UN Troops Advance In New Drive

Spearhead Now Four Miles North Of Line Where Offensive Started

38th ARMY HQ, Korea (UP)—United Nations forces continued to make up important gains today on the third day of an offensive on the mountainous Korean central front.

A U.N. division captured another hill southeast of Kumsong striking north at dawn against light to moderate enemy resistance after beating off three successive Red counter-attacks in strength from a company to a battalion.

The advance put the Allies nearly four miles north of the points where they crossed the Pukhan River in assault boats on a nine-mile front Saturday.

However, a Chinese battalion which had been enveloped by the fast-driving Allies in their initial onslaught Saturday apparently escaped through a gap in the U.N. line.

The U.N. drive threatened to flank Kumsong, rubbed former Communist headquarters town 29 miles north of the 38th Parallel. Although Kumsong was abandoned by the Reds, they still dominate part of it from hills to the northeast, north and northwest.

The offensives also may serve as a spur to Communist truce negotiators trying to decide whether to accept a U.N. offer to make the present battleline a cease-fire line if agreement can be reached on the remaining armistice terms within 30 days.

On the western front, elements of the 1st British Commonwealth Division which had yielded and recaptured a hill west of Yonchon Sunday beat off another enemy attempt to regain the position.

South Korean troops on the east coast were less fortunate. Communist attacks drove them off two hill positions south of Kosong, 46 miles north of the 38th Parallel, but they recaptured one of them.

36 light bombers and Allied fighters smashed at more than 1,400 Communist supply trucks behind the enemy lines during the night and destroyed at least 106 of them.

The 6th Air Force reported that gun camera films showed that two American Sabrejets destroyed four Russian-built MIG-15 jet fighters, probably destroyed another and damaged three in a strafing attack Sunday on a new Communist airfield at Uiju, just south of the Yalu River Manchurian border.

It was the first time in recent months that American planes have found Communist aircraft on the ground in Korea. First reports had put the Sabrejets' toll to two MIGs destroyed, four probably destroyed and five damaged, but this later was corrected.

Plasma Plant Is Facing Threat Of Quick Strike

WASHINGTON (UP)—Federal mediators called union and company spokesmen together today in an attempt to avert a strike which would threaten the army's supply of blood plasma.

The Federal Mediation Service summoned representatives of the CIO chemical workers and the Sharp and Dohme Co., Philadelphia, to a meeting. The chemical plant processes a major portion of the Army's blood plasma.

Some 2,000 workers have threatened to strike at midnight tomorrow. Contract negotiations on wages are deadlocked.

A mediation service spokesman said both sides were called here after regional mediators failed to make any headway toward an agreement. A strike, he said, would threaten the Army's entire blood plasma program.

OKAYS TREATIES

NARA, Japan (UP)—Emperor Hirohito signed the ratification of the Japanese peace treaty and the U.S. Japanese security pact today. The ratification and treaties will be taken to Washington Nov. 25.

Army Has No Prison For Sentenced WAC Non-Coms

CAMP BRECKINRIDGE, Ky. (AP)—The Army puzzled today over the problem of where to imprison six WAC sergeants sentenced to serve time for beating a fellow WAC.

The confusion stems from one major detail—the Army has no prison facilities for women offenders. The problem will be solved in either of two ways—the Judge Advocate General's on the base or a civilian board in Washington.

One highly placed Breckinridge officer suggested the review courts have no voice but to file away the prison terms and give the girls some other punishment.

The six sergeants were convicted of assault and battery on PFC Carol Ann Kierce, 20-year-old Mount Vernon, Ohio, girl. They were tried by court martial last week and given terms of one to 1-1/2 years.

Buffer Zone May Be Based On Present Battle Line

Map locates present battle line in Korea which would be the basis of a cease-fire buffer zone under the Communist proposal that was accepted by the U. N. command Saturday. Under the U. N. plan, the buffer zone would become permanent only if an armistice is signed within 30 days. Map also indicates the original buffer zone proposals made by the Communists and the U. N. when peace negotiations started. (AP Wirephoto).

Superior Court Convenes Today

Man Accused Of Slaying Wife Scheduled To Be Tried

The November special term of Pitt County Superior Court convenes this morning at 10 o'clock, with the Hon. Walter J. Bone of Nashville presiding.

Officials said Jim Jordan, Farmville Negro, will go on trial some time this week charged with the shooting slaying of his wife October 28. W. W. Speight, attorney for the defense, stated this morning that it would be a private prosecution, with the firm of Fountain and Fountain of Tarboro having been engaged by the slain woman's family to assist Solicitor W. J. Bundy in the prosecution.

In the one case heard before noon today, Judge Bone invoked sentence previously imposed in the August term of Superior Court, and sent Hilton Adams, 19, to the roads for two years. Speight, had pled guilty to a charge of forgery in August and received a sentence of two years on the roads, sentence suspended provided he be placed on probation and meet with all the requirements of the probation office. Probation officials said Adams had been convicted of public drunkenness and carrying a concealed weapon since that time, and it was his opinion that the sentence should be put into effect to prevent more serious violations in the future. Judge Bone ordered the sentence into effect.

The jurors were sworn at 10:15 today with two absences and one excused by Judge Bone because of sickness in his family.

This will be the last term of court this year.

La Prensa Back, But Its Voice Is That Of Peron

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—The newspaper La Prensa appeared on the stands today for the first time in almost 10 months. It looked like the old La Prensa, but its voice was that of its new boss—the giant labor union which is main prop of President Peron.

Pictures of Peron and his wife Evita, and messages from them appeared in the first edition.

Martiano Passo, former editor of the pro-Peron newspaper Democracia, is La Prensa's new editor, Alberto Gainza Paz, whose family founded La Prensa in 1869 and developed it into one of the greatest independent newspapers in the Americas, now lives across the river from Buenos Aires, in Colonia, Uruguay.

At Mount Vernon, Carol's father, Marshall E. Kierce, said his daughter had "witnessed an affair" involving the discharged WAC.

The father expressed fear for his daughter's safety. He said the sergeants lured her to a lonely river road, beat her badly, threatened to throw her into a river and released her only after warning her they would "get" her if she told about the beating.

Carol required 25 days of hospital treatment.

Chest Drive Still Is $3,300 Short

Not All Reports Submitted To Fund Chairman Johnston

The 1951 Community Chest Fund campaign still lacks around $3,300 to reach the $12,000 goal set up at the beginning of the campaign.

Fund Chairman Alton Johnston reported this morning that $8,736.30 of the goal had been collected to date but all reports and solicitations have not been completed as yet.

"We feel encouraged," Johnston said, "that the goal will be reached when the full reports are turned in, since we have not had a report since Friday." Johnston said it would be necessary for all those working to work harder if the quota is to be met.

He said many people had shown interest in the drive for funds by contributing and calling up inquiring as to how much has been collected so far.

The 1951 Community Chest campaign got underway last Monday with a parade and both general, business, and residential solicitations have been made in the last week.

Flood Menace In Italy Is Growing

ROVIGO, Italy (AP)—The home town of Romeo and Juliet—Verona—and Mantova today fell under the menace of Italy's rampaging flood with the collapse of a quarter-mile section of the northern bank of Bianco (White) Canal.

The break, which has doubled in size since yesterday, was only one more new calamity in the desolated Po delta, where nearly 200,000 persons have been made homeless.

Jammed Door Is Blamed In Death

URBANA, O. (UP)—A jammed door was blamed today for the death of a 33-year-old tenant farmer, his wife and their three children in a kerosene-fed fire in their two-room home.

Firemen said Ben Cantrell threw kerosene into a coal stove yesterday, causing an explosion and fire which trapped the five.

Snowfall Ties Up Cleveland Area

CLEVELAND, O. (UP)—A 13-inch snowfall, coupled with 30-mile winds, today forced the closing of many suburban schools and effectively tied up transportation here.

The snowfall started late Friday and was climaxed by an eight-inch drop yesterday. High winds piled the snow into drifts as high as seven feet in some places, and plows and graders fought a losing battle to keep the roads opened.

Rail and bus company officials reported they were operating as much as six hours late. Several air lines shut down operations yesterday.

No New Taxes In 1952 Predicted

Key Lawmakers Say Congress Will Reject Truman Request

WASHINGTON (UP)—A Senate Democrat and a House Republican—both members of congressional tax-writing committees—predicted today that Congress will reject any request by President Truman for another tax boost.

Sen. Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo.) said that as a member of the Senate Finance Committee he was "absolutely not going to vote for any more tax increases."

Appearing on the National Broadcasting Co.'s Meet the Press television show yesterday, Johnson said "I'd fall right off this chair" if the finance committee supports a new tax bill.

Rep. Daniel A. Reed (R-N.Y.), ranking GOP member of the House Ways and Means Committee, also forecast "prompt" congressional rejection of any administration request for another tax hike.

Their predictions were prompted by reports that Mr. Truman is drawing up a $90,000,000,000 budget for the next fiscal year and will ask for higher taxes to finance it.

Reed said in a statement that reports on the size of the projected budget are "further evidence that Mr. Truman never thinks of government economy and that he is determined to milk the taxpayer dry."

Good News For The Fighting Men

OAKLAND, Calif. (UP)—Authorities investigating the crash of two Korean airlift planes in which three persons died said today that both planes probably were flying "blind."

They refused, however, to disclose any other details they had learned from their investigation.

Eighteen witnesses on the ground narrowly escaped death when one of the C-54's spun out of control 3,000 feet to crash at the Oakland Municipal Airport Saturday.

The other airliner, a portion of its tail assembly sheared off, flew 12 miles across the bay to San Francisco where Capt. Ralph Shope made an emergency landing.

The mailing deadline last Thursday brought a last minute rush of packages from families and friends anxious to make the holidays merrier for the men in the services. (AP Wirephoto).

Pitt Employment Picture Already Reflecting Trend

Compensation Claims Beginning To Rise; Winter Outlook Is Good

Pitt unemployment apparently will take a decided upward trend this week as the local tobacco market closes and the tobacco processing plants curtail operations.

Manager W. B. Dillingham of the local office of the Employment Security Commission said applicants for unemployment compensation showed a decided increase this morning, and he estimated 20 to 50 new applications for unemployment compensations would be received by the Pitt office this week.

Even with the cut-back in tobacco factory operations, Dillingham looked for a brighter employment situation in this area during the winter months this year than in previous years. "We have been able to place most of the men laid off by the factories in construction jobs," he stated, "and if the weather conditions hold good employment for male workers should be good throughout the winter months."

While employment prospects for male workers are better than in past seasons, the outlook for employment for women in the area is no better than in past years. Dillingham said some of the women who have been laid off by the tobacco factories already have been placed in domestic jobs, but that many of the women are not qualified to hold domestic jobs, and few other type jobs are available for them.

The employment office received a total of 15 new claims for unemployment compensation last week to be added to the total of 13 claims which were eligible for payment by the office last week.

While the current trend is expected to send the unemployment claims made to the Pitt office up sharply within the next few weeks, Dillingham said the number of claims for unemployment compensation made to the office during the past four months was much lower than during a comparable period in several years.

Since July the claims for unemployment compensation claims in Pitt County have dropped sharply, and during several weeks in the past four months there have been practically no claims.

Details Of Air Collision Hushed

WASHINGTON (UP)—Charles O'Garra, assistant U. S. attorney for northern California, has told senators at a closed door hearing that he has evidence of stomach-turning corruption in San Francisco's U. S. Internal Revenue office.

Part of O'Garra's secret testimony before the Senate Finance Committee last Aug. 31, was disclosed today by Senator Williams (R-Cal.), a prime mover in current congressional inquiries into the government's tax collecting system.

Williams said he released it because a recommendation for O'Garra's dismissal now is before the Justice Department. His superior, Chauncey Tramuto, U. S. attorney at San Francisco, has accused O'Garra of "slandering innocent people."

No Mushroom In Atomic Blast

LAS VEGAS (AP)—The first in a new series of atomic detonations went off at the Yucca Flat test site at 9 a. m. PST today.

A flash was visible in Las Vegas, 75 miles from the test site.

But this time there was no immediate formation of the customary atomic cloud visible here.

This might indicate that this was an underground detonation which newsmen had been expecting but which the Atomic Energy Commission did not immediately confirm.

U. S. Production Is Leveling Off

WASHINGTON (UP)—Gross national production, which jumped sharply following the Korean outbreak, leveled off in the third quarter of this year, the Commerce Department reported today.

The nation's output of goods and services in the third quarter of 1951 was an annual rate of $328,000,000,000, unchanged from the preceding three months.

Reds To Reply Wednesday To UN Truce Proposition

Acheson Begins Debate On Arms

Warns That World Tensions At Dangerous Point In Offering West's Step-By-Step Disarmament Plan As Road To Peace

PARIS (UP)—U.S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson warned the United Nations today that world tensions have reached a "dangerous point" and offered the West's step-by-step disarmament program as a way back to peace.

Jules Moch of France, with Britain and the U.S. a co-sponsor of the disarmament plan, also pleaded for its adoption; that "the atom bomb won't boom anywhere — and I mean anywhere — in the world."

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky had been expected to reply to the Western delegates in a speech later today. But neither he nor any other delegate was prepared to speak after Moch, and the debate was adjourned until tomorrow.

Vishinsky is expected to reject the Western disarmament plan categorically. When Acheson first outlined it last week, the Soviet minister said he could not "restrain my laughter."

Acheson formally presented the three-power program to the U.N. political committee today as a challenge to the Russians to prove their propaganda statements that they really desire peace.

It calls for creation of a new 12-nation disarmament commission to replace the present U.N. commissions on conventional armaments and atomic energy. Like the old commissions, it would comprise the 11 members of the Security Council plus Canada.

The committee would work up census, an inspection system, progressive disarmament and an ultimate ban on atomic weapons.

"The conflict in the world is rising to an alarming state," Acheson said. "Tension in the world has already reached a dangerous point. There is actual fighting in Malaysia, Indochina and Korea, and this is certainly not a good prospect for peace."

He said the Western disarmament plan "would in itself furnish a turning point in history — a point where the world can turn away from tension and the threat of war toward the path of cooperation and peace."

Acheson emphasized that no actual disarmament conference could be held until the fighting had ended in Korea. But, he said, other problems need not be solved in advance.

Says Dixie Ripe For Two Parties

ATLANTA (UP)—Republican National Chairman Guy Gabrielson here to confer with Georgia GOP leaders, said today "the South is becoming ripe for a two-party system."

"In the 1952 elections," he said, "we are going into the so-called twilight zones and enter candidates for Congress in the South. We are trying to find out which districts we should go into. Then we will put organizers, speakers, and money into these districts. We want to develop a real two-party system, and we are going to build the Republican Party in the South by starting at the precinct level."

Two Minor Auto Wrecks Reported In Ayden Vicinity

AYDEN—Two automobile accidents were reported by Highway Patrolman W. M. Boykin of Ayden during the weekend.

Boykin stated that both accidents were of a minor nature and involved cars passing at the time the car which they were overtaking attempted to make a left hand turn.

Cars driven by Jesse Mewborn of Route 3, Ayden, 23, struck a truck operated by John William Tyson, 21, 406 Davis Street, Greenville, around 11:30 Saturday morning.

The accident occurred on the Gum Swamp Road near Ayden around 11:30 Saturday morning.

The truck driven by Tyson started to make a left hand turn and was hit by the Mewborn car.

Damage to both car and truck was about $125.

Boykin charged Mewborn with passing on a hill without the proper 500 feet clearance, and Tyson with failure to give hand signal.

The case will be tried in Ayden City Court this afternoon.

No one was injured.

A car driven by Earl A. Sells, 25, Coast Guardsman from Morehead City, was in collision with a car operated by Allen Smith, 50, of Route 1, Grimesland.

Clashes In Suez Constitute War, Claims Egyptian

THIRTEEN PERSONS KILLED DURING GUN BATTLES OVER WEEKEND IN AREA

CAIRO, Egypt (UP)—Clashes between British troops and Egyptian police in the Suez Canal zone city of Ismailia in which 13 persons were killed over the weekend constitute a "state of war," acting Foreign Minister Ibrahim Farag said today.

He said the clashes in which three British soldiers and ten Egyptians were killed threatened the peace "of the whole world."

Approximately 25 Egyptians were wounded in a three-hour gun fight last night. Six Egyptian police and three civilians were killed in the battle, the second within 24-hours.

At Alexandria today 2,000 university and high school students paraded in protest against the Ismailia incidents.

Strong police forces guarded foreign consulates and banks in the summer capital.

A joint British services communique issued here today said one British officer was killed and three soldiers wounded in last night's gun battle.

(However from Fayid, in the canal zone, it was reported two more British officers' bodies were found in the streets of Ismailia today. One British officer was known dead in a British-Egyptian clash Saturday night.)

The Cairo newspaper Al-Sabeer said seven British soldiers were killed in last night's clash, but did not give a source for the report.

Interior Minister Fuad Serag El Din said 25 Egyptians were known to have been taken to the hospital.

The newspaper Al-Ahram said the Egyptian government had prepared a protest to Britain, "couched in the strongest terms" over the Saturday and Sunday incidents in Ismailia.

The newspaper said the British had proclaimed a curfew in Ismailia and British troops had been ordered to shoot violators on sight.

The Cairo morning newspaper Misr published the most sensational and unconfirmed report of the situation in the canal zone. It said the Egyptian underground had collected a large number of poisonous snakes and loosed them at British camps at Panara and Fayid.

The newspaper Al-Ahram reported that about 100 British tanks and armored cars took part in last night's fighting in Ismailia.

It claimed British warships moored nearby in Lake Timsah, through which the canal passes, fired two shells into the city. The newspaper said British jet fighters roared over the city during the fighting.

U. S. Casualty Rate In Korea Is Above Last War

WASHINGTON (UP)—America's suffering battle casualties in Korea at a rate higher than in World War II, but below that of the first world war, Defense Department figures showed today.

As the Korean war approaches the end of its 17th month, the United States has suffered about 100,000 casualties in battle.

In World War I, U. S. battle casualties reached the 100,000 mark during the 18th month after this nation declared war on Germany.

This was 12 months after American troops entered combat. The United States suffered its 100,000 battle casualties in World War II during the 20th month of fighting.

The circumstances were somewhat different, in that our troops had some training before going into the trenches in 1917. The surprise attack on Pearl Harbor brought Americans into war and combat at the same time.

Communists Indicate They May Accept Proposal Designed To End Fighting Before Christmas; Battle Line Would Constitute Cease-Fire Line

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—The Communists promised today to give their answer Wednesday to a United Nations proposal designed to end the Korean war by Christmas.

At the Communist delegation's request, the joint armistice subcommittee adjourned until 11 a. m. Wednesday (9 p. m. Tuesday EST) to await the Red reply. The Communists already have indicated they may accept the proposal.

However, it was believed the enemy delegates wished to contact higher authorities in Pyongyang, Peking and perhaps Moscow before giving their final answer.

The U.N. proposal would grant the Communist demand that the present battle line become the cease-fire line provided an agreement is reached within 30 days on the rest of the armistice terms, including an exchange of war prisoners.

If there were no agreement within a month, the provisional cease fire line would be adjusted to cover any advances made by either side in the meantime and the next step would be up to the truce negotiators.

The Communists asked more questions about the U.N. proposal during Monday's subcommittee session, which lasted one hour and 15 minutes.

In reply, U.S. Maj. Gen. Henry I. Hodges re-emphasized:

1. That the war would continue until a complete armistice has been agreed upon and signed. This would include arrangements for an exchange of war prisoners and for appointment of a commission to insure compliance with the truce terms.

2. That the cease-fire demarcation line and demilitarized buffer zones would be tentative and provisional until the complete armistice agreement has been signed.

Hodges said the Communists asked that questions with apparent sincerity "in contrast to some of the propaganda speeches we have had at earlier meetings."

After hearing Hodges' clarification of the U.N. proposal, the Communists told him:

"We will give you on 21 November (Wednesday) our overall reply to your proposal."

Hodges presented the new U.N. proposal to the Communist Saturday in an attempt to break a four-month deadlock over the location of the cease-fire line.

The Communists had sought to designate the present battleline as the cease-fire line. The U.N. objected and said the truce line instead should be the battleline existing when a complete armistice agreement is ready for signing.

Campaign For Overseas Aid Being Sponsored By Club

The International Relations Committee of the Woman's Club, along with the club as a whole, is sponsoring the CARE-FOR-KOREA campaign in the local community.

The Federation of Women's Clubs has undertaken this project to help alleviate the suffering which is so acute in the battle-torn country. This week, November 13-24, has been designated as one of special emphasis for the collection of CARE packages to be sent to Korea through National Headquarters.

The campaign in Greenville has not reached its goal, and members of the Woman's Club are appealing again for contributions to this project.

Mrs. Dan E. Vornholt, chairman of the local committee, has issued the following statement: "More than two million civilian refugees are wandering about Korea, homeless and hungry, and many more CARE packages are needed. This campaign is based upon the voluntary efforts of generous world-minded Americans. And there is no more worthy name to head this year's list of Christmas giving than

CARE-FOR-KOREA.

Packages are being assembled in three sizes, costing seven, ten and fifteen dollars, but any amount no matter how small, is welcome.

Any one wishing to reach out beyond the seas to aid a suffering people may give money or a check to one of the following: Mrs. Dan Vornholt, East Carolina College; Mrs. Walter Krausnick, East Carolina College; or Mrs. W. H. Woodard, 552 Cotanche Street.

Checks should be made out to Mrs. Vornholt and marked for CARE-FOR-KOREA.

40 Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
November 19, 1911

About 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon a fire occurred out on the southwest side of the town, in the colored settlement known as New Town. The fire started in the second story of what was known as the hotel building or apartment house, that was on the west side of the Atlantic Coast Line railroad track.

The fire had already made much headway when discovered and as soon as the high wind blowing at the time got into it the flames were fanned to a fury. The long building was quickly a fire from one end to the other. Besides the large apartment house in which the fire started, two other double houses were destroyed.

PLAY AT RED OAK

"The Red-Headed Step-Child" will be given at the Red Oak Clubhouse Tuesday night, Nov. 20, at 7:30 by the Seniors of Belvoir High School. Admission—adults 25c, children 25c. Proceeds will be divided equally between the Senior Class of Belvoir and the Young Married Couples Class of Red Oak Church. All members of the Sunday School class will have tickets to sell. This is a most entertaining play for both old and young.

Mr. Walker had been in declining health for the past two years. A native of Durham, he had recently made his home with his sister, Mrs. Kenneth Knight, in Rocky Mount.

Funeral services are tentatively scheduled for 11:30 Tuesday morning at the Wynne Funeral Home in Durham.

Grimesland Class to Present Play

The Junior Class of Grimesland High School cordially invites the public to attend a dramatic presentation of 3 one-act plays on Tuesday evening, November 20, at 7:30.

The first play on the program, "Don't Tell A Soul," is a comedy composed of nine gossiping women. The second, "I Shall Be Waiting," is a touching drama in which a young girl attempts to prevent her blind mother from knowing that her only son is in prison for theft. The third play, "His Butler's Wife," is a hilarious comedy about a young bachelor who pays $10,000 to "borrow" another man's wife.

Whatever your theater tastes are, the Junior Class promises a varied program to entertain you. There will be a small admission fee.

Simpson Ruritan Elects Officers

SIMPSON—The Simpson Ruritan Club celebrated "ladies night" with a banquet at Respass-James Barbecue House last Thursday night. President Johnny Hardee was master of ceremonies.

He welcomed the guests and in reviewing recent activities said the Simpson Ruritan Club had a successful year and he predicted that the coming year will be better. He said interest in Ruritan is increasing. Ruritan National stands for improvement in rural areas, improvement in home life and in methods of farming, he added.

An important part on the "ladies night" program was the election of

R. G. (Bob) Little as president for 1952. Roy Edwards was elected vice-president; Elbert Mills, secretary; J. B. Smith, treasurer; J. R. Godley, director, and Marvin Porter, chairman of the Publicity Committee.

Announcement was made that the Ruritan National convention will be held in Asheville in December. The Simpson Ruritan Club will be well represented.

Active Participation In Community Welfare Registered By Local PTA'S

The Parents-Teachers Associations of the Greenville City Schools have taken the lead in many of the progressive undertakings of the local schools.

They are aware of the needs of the children in the community and have helped meet these needs through financial aid and the generous giving of their time and effort.

Each school in the city has a P. T. A. The Training School P. T. A. has a membership of 527 with 322 homes represented. The West Greenville School P. T. A. has a membership of 276 with 243 homes represented. The Third Street School P. T. A. has a membership of 195 with 126 homes represented. The combined membership in the negro schools is 270.

Each group sponsors during the year a fund raising project and with the money derived from the events they have secured for their respective schools the following equipment: film projector, library of films, books for the libraries, record players and records, equipment for first aid room, rhythm band instruments, playground equipment, band uniforms, and bicycle racks.

The P. T. A.'s work closely with other youth groups of the city. They sponsor Girl Scout troops, and Cub Scout Packs. Fourteen Negro teachers are Girl Scout leaders. They provide chaperones and refreshments for the Teen-Age Center. In March 1951 Third Street School P. T. A. and the West Greenville P. T. A. participated in the Americanism parade by decorating floats. They assist with the pre-school clinics held each Spring. All of the city P. T. A.'s actively endorsed the 1951 legislative program as set-up by the United Forces for Education, and presented the program at the Civic clubs of the City.

Monthly meetings are held at each school with programs designed to inform parents and teachers of ways in which they can guide children toward good citizenship. The P. T. A.'s serve as the connecting link between the schools and the community. Each citizen is urged to support this organization and the school children of Greenville.

Below Freezing

Winty weather swooped down on the Greenville area during the weekend and the mercury dropped to below freezing.

Highest temperature here yesterday was 47 degrees. Lowest last night, 23, and at 8 a.m. today the mercury stood at 26. Yesterday a year ago, the highest temperature in the Greenville area was 58 degrees. Lowest that night, 26, and at 8 a.m. next day it was 32 degrees—the freezing point.

Each ton of neoprene requires 17½ pounds of sulphur in its manufacture.

Grifton P.T.A.
At the regular meeting of the PTA on Tuesday night in the school auditorium President F. L. Cox presided at the business session. Routine reports were heard and remarks by the principal, Albert Tyson in regard to school visitation by the parents and friends and the school insurance were had.

The program was presented by the seventh grade under the direction of Mrs. Bruce Hart and Mrs. Braxton of the music department. The devotional was given by Janie Bowen who read the 100 Psalm. This was followed by an entertaining play, "Over Mountain, River and Plain" with characters portrayed by J. C. Reel, Peggy Dixon, Janice Manning, Earl Braxton, Jimmie McLawhorn, Herbert Adams, Letha Mitchell, Lonnie Griffin. The scene was a yard of a mountain cabin. A number of songs were featured by the entire class.

Attendance cakes won by count went to the third and seventh grades.

Tyson-May Reunion Plans Made

FARMVILLE — Members of the Tyson and May families will assemble for their yearly reunion on Friday, November 23, at 10:00 in the morning.

The annual reunion will be held this year at the house of the Benjamin May Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, in Farmville.

An interesting program has been planned. Dr. D. Ray Lindley, president of Atlantic Christian College in Wilson, North Carolina, will be the guest speaker.

No invitations will be sent to members of the family residing in Farmville, but it is hoped that all can be present.

The union of the two families occurred in 1785 with the marriage of Major Benjamin May, who served in the Revolutionary War, to Mary Tyson, the original home site stood just west of Farmville near the Wilson highway on property which is now owned by Mrs. Ione May Hooker of Greenville.

The Tyson branch of the family began to hold a yearly get-together in 1921, convening at Tyson's Church near Joyner's Cross Roads. The Mays joined with them in the annual observance about 18 years ago.

The officers of the organization are as follows: president, Mrs. Melton Allen; first vice president, J. R. Taylor of Ayden; second vice president, Robert Dixon of Fayetteville; secretary and treasurer, Mary Ann Rouse.

The president has appointed the following committees to handle details of the reunion this year: Invitations, Mrs. C. H. Moxingo, program, Horton Rountree; decorations, Mrs. Fred Moore; registration, Mrs. J. C. Brock, Jr. and Mrs. C. A. Moxingo; food, Mrs. Henry Smith and Mrs. Hubert Dixon.

Strength for the Day

BELLS IN THE HUMAN HEART
In a deep valley of a mountain range in Europe are hung some remarkable bells. No rope is attached to them, and no human hand ever rings them. They begin to swing and peal forth their resounding tones only when a gale has reached storm proportions. It takes the storm, and the heavy storm, to start these bells ringing.

There are bells hung in the heart of every one of us which never start to ring until we find ourselves engulfed in trouble. Probably there are people reading these words who have not uttered a prayer in twenty years. But some day the hurricane may sweep down upon them. They will be confirmed atheists indeed if in that hour they do not cry out shrilly and pitifully to God.

The bells here described are singular and unusual. Bells which gladden the hearts of those who dwell on the countryside throughout the world are bells which ring regularly, calling men and women to the glad assembly of worship. The atheist is a rarity. So is the agnostic. And, although not so rare, the man who thinks not at all about God is nevertheless in the minority in every population. The great mass of people are, in some degree at least, believers in something. For them the bells ring regularly—amid the ordinary events of life.

Community Chest Still Needs Help

Greenville must get behind its 1951 Community Chest drive if the much needed $12,000 is to be raised to finance the activities of the six participating agencies through the coming year.

So far the results of the first five days of the campaign have been encouraging, but the city is still over $4,000 short of its goal. There are a number of solicitors who have not yet reported to headquarters, and doubtless numbers of citizens of Greenville who have not contributed to the Community Chest.

The funds collected in the annual Red Feather drive go for the activities of the Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Service League, Thrift Shop, Emergency Charity Fund, Teenage Club and the United Defense Fund. Each of these organizations plays an important role in building Greenville into a better community, and the curtailment of the activities of any of these would be detrimental to Greenville as a city.

The Community Chest deserves the support of all the citizens of the city, and unless the support is received the six agencies will be handicapped in carrying out their programs in 1952. The Community Chest needs the financial support of all Greenville's citizens, and Greenville certainly needs the valuable work carried out from year to year by the six Red Feather organizations.

Getting Fired Is Not Sufficient

The scandal which has broken like a tidal wave over the Internal Revenue Bureau across the nation has swept into the Justice Department resulting in the resignation of Assistant Attorney General Lamar Caudle and the possibility that other top brass will be removed from government jobs before the waters calm.

For these men in government positions who have used their offices to line their own pockets and at the same time have defrauded the tax payers of the nation, the mere removal from office is not sufficient punishment. The removal from office should be followed by civil or criminal action or both where the individual cases warrant it.

In the instance of Lamar Caudle who resigned last week as assistant attorney general, President Truman has not given any reasons for Caudle's removal from office, although information uncovered by congressional investigation committees points to ample reasons. Unless the people are told directly the facts in the case they will remain in a fog caused by the rumors which of necessity must be accepted as partially true and partially propaganda.

The people of the country are entitled to know exactly what sort of activities have been carried on in the government offices by these officials who are under fire. The people are entitled to a clear statement of facts in each of the cases. President Truman apparently has come to realize the public's indignation at the graft and other unethical acts which have been carried on by his appointees in federal office. The President likewise should realize the people of the United States will not be satisfied if the officials guilty of these flagrant usurpations of power are removed from office with only a verbal slap on the wrists.

The average citizen who is nabbed for an unjust act against his fellow citizens or the government is brought into court and given punishment to fit his act. Too often, however, high government officials who commit much more serious offenses are skipped over lightly and made only to give up their offices as punishment for their offenses. Such punishment is not sufficient in the vast majority of the cases.

If the people of the nation know the facts in each case where a public official is accused of misusing his office, they will be able to determine whether the punishment received by the official is adequate. If the public is not allowed to know the facts, too many individuals will go unpunished because of their former standing in the government and in national politics.

News Behind The News

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Eleven Southern states can and probably will determine the identity of the next President of the United States, if they go through with the anti-Truman strategy outlined here and at the recent conference of Southern Governors at Hot Springs, Ark. That is the central fact of American politics today.

There is no doubt in informed circles that they will carry out their plan, unless they can wrest the kind of candidate and platform they want from a Democratic convention controlled by Truman-appointed Collectors of Internal Revenue, Postmasters, U. S. Marshalls and less important beneficiaries of federal patronage.

BITTERNESS—Mr. Truman knows the depth of the Southern politicians' feelings and the degree of their determination. Friendly Dixie Governors like Sidney S. McMath of Arkansas, who was host executive at the recent Hot Springs get-together, and W. Kerr Scott of North Carolina, have kept him informed of the growing bitterness toward him.

Indeed, it is considered significant that Mr. Truman did not begin to show around seriously for another Democratic standard-bearer until after Senator Harry F. Byrd's philippic at Selma, Ark., a few weeks ago. There the Virginia Senator called upon the South to forget ancient prejudices, and to "turn the rascals out." He asked action, not words.

TENTATIVE—It was after this denunciation, and the sympathetic reaction throughout Dixie, the South-west and the border states, that Truman emissaries approached two men with tentative suggestions that they run on the Democratic ticket in place of Mr. Truman. The two were General "Ike" Eisenhower and Chief Justice Fred Vinson.

It is not known whether Mr. Truman made the offer himself, but that is immaterial. It is certain that his authorized agents discussed the possibility with the military figure and the jurist, asking them to "give no answer now, but think it over." Mr. Truman is not closing the door on his own renomination for obvious reasons. He has another Congress to try to control.

APPEASE—Mr. Truman believes that the South, where Eisenhower is extremely popular, would forget its religious ideas, if he were tempted by and succumbed to the Democratic offering. However, the Dixie Democrats would not be appeased even with "Ike," if he agreed to run on a Fair Deal platform.

To satisfy the South, General Eisenhower and Mr. Truman would have to jettison many of the issues responsible for two decades of Democratic triumphs. These include such things as Taft-Hartley repeal, Civil Rights legislation, excessive spending, influence peddling, codding of minorities for partisan purposes etc.

Eisenhower would undoubtedly be willing to trim the platform along that line, but where would that leave Mr. Truman and his Fair Deal Democrats?

Should "Ike" decline the Truman offer, as expected, the President hopes that Mr. Vinson's Kentucky birth and background would appease the Byrd-Byrnes-Talmadge faction.

Here again, however, the nature of the platform would be as important a factor as the name of the candidate. The South will settle for nothing less than a general repudiation of what its spokesmen characterize as "Trumanism," and that covers a lot of debatable territory.

WEAK—The Southern leaders' failure to unveil their anti-Truman strategy in detail is understandable, for it has several aspects. Depending on next year's nominations, they will decide whether to name a separate date, support a Republican nominee as an "independent," or deadlock the electoral college by voting for favorite sons.

Their ultimate aim is to win such a decisive vote in the electoral college that they can defeat any Trumanite, or to throw the contest into the House of Representatives, where each state would have only one vote. With the Republicans, they would then name the next President.

Governor Herman Talmadge of Georgia put his finger on the political trigger, when he said that "We can organize an anti-Truman movement overnight." A study of the 1948 presidential tally in Southern and border states shows how weak the Truman faction is in that area, and it will probably be much weaker next year, in view of the character of the new leaders of the revolt.

The admittedly ineffective Thurmon-Wright ticket swept South Carolina, Louisiana, Alabama and Mississippi. The combined Dewey and States Rights vote exceeded Truman's in Virginia and Tennessee. Over the G. O. P. and T-W combination, Truman won by only 127,831 in North Carolina, 92,000 in Georgia, 13,796 in Florida, 57,000 in Arkansas, 111,000 in Kentucky and 110,000 in West Virginia.

Mr. Truman can hardly be blamed if he shops around for a substitute.

EAST ROCHESTER, N. Y., HERALD: "Did anyone ever see how to increase their take home pay the quickest and easiest? Did anyone ever think that by cutting down on the great masses of rats which are gnawing away at the paychecks of every man, woman and child, you can get an immediate lift in that take home pay? Just like a barnful of grain. As long as the rats continue to carry it away, you have to work that much harder to raise more to take up the losses. These Federal rats have waxed fat over the years, and they have grown more and more defiant of the public, by the protection which the government has given them. They have reached a point of an army of rats which not only will not be digested, but demand more and more of the public money."

Around Capitol Square

Reflector Bureau By LYNN NIBBET Asso. Afternoon Dallas

WATER—Water is rapidly becoming one of the most important elements in politics, as well as in the physical and economic life of our people. Biblical stories about the destructiveness of the flood and about miniature wars waged over wells digged by Abraham and Isaac; historic references to the Euphrates, the Nile and the Rubicon; significance of oceans, rivers and canals as commercial thoroughfares and protective barriers, have served to emphasize the importance of water in the developing experiences of the human race. Until a few years ago the influence of water was economic rather than political, so far as North America was concerned. Pioneer homesteads located near springs, and large communities grew up adjacent to ocean harbors or natural landings on navigable rivers. Factories were built where water power could turn the wheels of industry. Political prestige acquired by these waterside communities was incidental to the economic advantages enjoyed.

POLITICAL—The inventive genius of man discovered how to use steel rails and concrete pavement instead of rivers as avenues of transportation, and how to convert local water power into transmissible electric current. It was no longer necessary for cities to be connected with navigable water, or that factories should depend for power upon an immediately adjacent waterfall. Rivers were diverted into irrigation projects, while concentrated communities were provided drinking water from open streams and stagnant ponds through new discoveries in chemistry. Practical business men first adopted these ideas to their own advantage, but politicians were not slow to realize the possibilities involved. Result is that water, a physical and economic necessity, has now become a football in one of the greatest political games in history.

INEVITABLE—That was a natural if not an inevitable development. As other families moved into the community, the pioneer homesteader laid exclusive rights to his spring. Additional communities along the river required sharing of privileges by the first town established. As conflicts arose between these claimants, some sort of referee authority had to be recognized—and government moved in.

GOVERNMENT'S LOW MORAL TONE INVITES CORRUPTION (Nerfolk Ledger Dispatch)
Senator Wiley's proposal that Collectors of Internal Revenue be placed under Civil Service suggests a possible safeguard against the sort of corruption which is being revealed in the Federal tax-collecting system. Taking the 64 collectors out of the political patronage category, Senator Wiley thinks, might eliminate the "political fixing" of tax assessments and other irregularities which have been brought to light during the investigation of the situation by a House committee. This is one possible remedy for a condition which strikes at the very foundations of the integrity of the government.
Dorothy Flession has pointed out on this page that the Senate Finance Committee—before which nominations for collectors must go—has taken note of the unwholesome situation revealed in the case of James P. Finne-to assume that prerogative. It was a relatively short and easy step for government to change its attitude from referee to assumption of ownership. So we have such governmental institutions as the Tennessee Valley Authority, huge installations at taxpayers expense on the Colorado and Columbia rivers, proposals for development of the Missouri and dozens of smaller rivers (including the Roanoke in North Carolina and Virginia) under the guise of flood control for the public good, but actually for generation of electric power in competition with private enterprise.

TOTAL—Comes now a much more comprehensive total program for federal government control of all streams in the United States. This proposed scheme is involved in recent appointment by President Truman of a National Water Resources Policy Commission. Tentative plan calls for ten to fifteen regional river basin commissions, whose authority would extend to the remotest branch-head constituting the origin of tributaries to all rivers.

CENTRALIZED—There are low significant phases of tentative recommendations. First is that "for purpose of developing the resources of a river basin a single unified plan for entire basin be the basis for development," and, "that the proposed minimum organization as suggested would consist of a representative from each of six or seven affected federal agencies, an independent chairman, and some form of state representation." In other words, the plan calls for at least six federal representatives, probably one private enterprise spokesman on each regional commission. Stated another way, the commission would in fact be completely controlled by Washington.

RAW—That was a bit too raw for the North Carolina state government, which under leadership of Governor Kerr Scott has been pretty thoroughly committed to federal control of water power and other items traditionally reserved to state and local government and to the people. Back in September the president's commission submitted the proposed plan to North Carolina. No action was taken until last week when George Ross, director of conservation and development, called a conference to consider and reply to the September inquiries. Fourteen people attended that conference, twelve of them federal or state employees. The two "strangers" were representatives of an electric power company. Consensus of the conference, as reported next day in a letter signed by Director Ross, was that the overall idea had merit; but that North Carolina could not along entirely until some questions of state autonomy, local government participation and limitation upon the power of a national central "review board" had been clarified.

GOVERNMENTAL—Questions raised had to do with relationship of state to the federal government, with inter-state compacts, with ultimate relations among federal, state and local governments. Perusal of the questions submitted by the national commissions and answers approved by the conference last Thursday, as contained in the Ross letter, fail to disclose any attention to or recognition of the rights or activities of private owners of land, water, machinery or devices for adapting these resources to the use of the people. Inescapable conclusion is that majority of the conferees are committed to the idea of governmental control, and that the main question is whether that control shall be exercised at national, state or local government level. So it is that water has become a political football, subject to being kicked around by every public official from county commissioner to president of the United States.

PEANUT FARM—J. N. Vann, Ahochie business man and former member of the general assembly from Hertford county, made one trip to Raleigh to do double duty. He heard Rev. Billy Graham preach and contacted several folks about the proposed peanut test farm to be established in his section. The idea of a full scale test farm for experiments in peanut culture is not new. After many years effort on part of sponsors, an appropriation was finally obtained to buy land. Now Mr. Vann thinks the other problems of adequate and suitable acreage within the price range permissible have been pretty well licked.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

factor of integrity. The scandalous conduct in the collectors' offices—where dishonesty can do mortal harm to the whole principle of our form of government—is a part of a breakdown in morality and leadership in Washington. Happily for the welfare of the country, most officials arise above the level of the chiselers, the five-percenters, the White House hangers-on, and the camp followers of the Truman administration, who set the moral tone of the government. If this tone were not so low, we would not have important offices filled by the James P. Finnegans, and the political fixers who make a mockery of the administration of government. Senator Wiley's plan would provide some safeguards against bartering these offices for political favors. But the problem which has been revealed by the case of Finne-gan, former collector in St. Louis, and of officials in the tax-collecting system in half a dozen cities who have resigned or been dismissed because of irregularities in the conduct of their offices. The Senate committee has adopted a rule that before any collector is confirmed he must come before the committee and give assurance that his attitude toward the job is not the attitude displayed by Mr. Finnegan, who gave only a comparatively small amount of his time to the work of this office, and who said that he understood a part of his job was "to keep people happy."

The Senate committee's idea goes close to the root of the trouble, we believe, than Senator Wiley's idea—although there are many reasons why the office of Collector of Internal Revenue should be taken as far out of politics as possible and placed under Civil Service. For the whole problem revolves about the

Business Today

A bit of the cream has been skimmed off the stock option plan by which corporations could increase the rewards of them to taxes that would nullify the returns.

Under the Revenue Act of 1950, corporations were permitted to grant stock options to executives at less than the market price. At some future date, assuming that the value of the stock had risen, the executive could buy the stock at the option price and resell it at a profit taxed at only the capital gains rate.

Corporations that lobbied for this provision argued that pay raises were ceasing to interest executives because most was taken away in taxes, and that the stock option plan would encourage executives to build up the value of the company.

A few weeks ago the Wage Stabilization Board froze such options until it could determine whether they violated wage ceilings. Now it has thawed them, under certain conditions. The principal condition is that if the options are granted at no less than 95 per cent of the market value of the stock, no WSB approval is needed; if less, the option must be processed through the board in the same manner as an ordinary wage increase.

This will probably stimulate the granting of such options, especially by corporations seeking to hold present key executives or recruiting better ones. The 95 per cent figure need not be a deterrent; a corporation can offset the limit simply by increasing the amount of stock.

Many of the giant corporations have set up stock option plans, but some of them are inclined to go slow. There are a number of reasons. Other stockholders complain that while it is all right to use income to pay key executives, granting stock options is using capital for salaries. Others also fear the precedent will encourage labor unions to demand stock options for workers.

And there is also the possibility that, by the time a stock increases in value, the tax will be so high in upper brackets and capital gains that an employee would be better off by taking a small raise now in cash under present rates.

RETAILERS IMPROVE INVENTORY POSITIONS
Retailers went into October with inventory situations improved—but not very much—judging from Department of Commerce figures. On a seasonally adjusted basis, retailers' inventories totaled $18,800,000,000, compared with $19,400,000,000 at the beginning of September. Manufacturers' inventories rose slightly, from $40,900,000,000, and wholesalers' remained unchanged at $10,100,000,000.

CHANGING PACKAGES THWARTS PILFERERS
As recently reported here, some markets have been troubled by pilferers who switch butter into margarine boxes and pay only margin prices at check-out counters. Now one company, Miami Margarine Co., Cincinnati, is bringing out its margarine in a switch-proof package. It is so shaped that ordinary bars of butter won't fit in.

SPERMINT OIL AT NEW HIGH PRICE
Spermin oil, used in flavoring, perfume, candy and medicines, continues to go up in price and is now quoted—where stocks exist—at from $7.85 to $8.65 a pound, representing a rise of $1 a pound in a month. The crop is small this year. Some users are expected to stretch their spermin with peppermint.

RANDOM NOTES ABOUT BUSINESS
A Dallas company is advertising in Advertising Age for "Men with one head" and a nice smile to travel and contact media. A seeker for an ad-writing job is advertising, "I'm simple-minded—by the time I get an idea down to where I can understand it, anybody can. I'm lazy—too lazy to write long-winded copy."

Romeo Champagne has been elected president of the Associated Grocers of New Hampshire.
NEW PRODUCTS
16 RPM: Paper-thin plastic records in a new speed—16 rpm—are being introduced by Warner Research Corp., 100 W. 84th St., New York. It will complicate business for record shops only slightly, because the manufacturer is also bringing out an inexpensive attachment by which the records can be played on 33.3 rpm players.

LAMINATES: A same-day service in laminating identity cards, photos, etc. in transparent Vinylite plastic has been developed by Malco Plastics, 4100 Plastics Pl., Baltimore, Md. It preserves them indefinitely. The developer will sell its service only through photo, stationery and other stores.

INSULATOR—A heat insulator only .003 inches thick has been announced for electrical equipment uses by Irvington Varnish & Insulator Co., 6 Argyle Terrace, Irvington 11, N. J. It consists of long-fiber asbestos and 3 per cent silicon resin.

WARNING: A pedestrian or cyclist can now carry his own warning signal—a disc of reflective sheeting that may be clipped to coat, pocket or school bag. When not needed, it is small enough to be carried in a pocket. It is by Automotive Safety Device Co., 444 Asylum St., Hartford, Conn.

LAMP: A small portable fluorescent lamp with all the flexibility of incandescent lamps has been developed by Stocker & Yale, Inc., Marlborough, Mass. Two "twist" tubes are mounted in a 2 by 6 inch shade. A swivel joint permits use of the lamp in any position.

As for himself, being an honest man, he doubted whether he would ever believe anything again. He gave up tomorrow altogether.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—How to save our heritage of historic American sites and buildings from being converted into parking lots and neon-lighted hot dog stands is a primary concern of historians and preservationists.

It was the chief topic of discussion for members of the National Council for Historic Sites and Buildings at their fifth annual meeting in Independence Hall in Philadelphia.

About 65 members of the council, which is headed by Ulysses S. Grant III of Washington attended the meeting. They included representatives of such preservation groups as the Presbyterian Meeting House of Alexandria, Va.; the Los Angeles City and County Arboretum, which is restoring the old "Lucky Baldwin" gambling casino, a post-goldrush hot spot, and the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities, which is 70 years old and has preserved about 100 properties and opened them to the public.

A member from the national headquarters of the council here reports the group was so captivated by the architecture of Philadelphia that it was at least an hour late for a fabulous luncheon given in its honor at nearby suburban Radnor.

"We rattled around in buses with elegant old guard mainliner Philadelphians proudly calling out the sites for us like guides on any rubber-neck bus," my friend explained. "A stately, elderly lady, identified with one of the First Families of the Quaker City, kept us in line by blowing vigorously on a gold police whistle attached to a gold necklace."

When the delegates arrived at the handsome Radnor estate they sat down to a luncheon of whole roast squab with a desert of fresh pineapple halves, scooped out and filled with branded fruits.

A dapper old gentleman expressed growing concern over what male members were expecting to wear at the annual dinner of the council. He was told they would probably all wear tuxedos or even business suits. The man was horrified.

"I myself shall wear white tie, if I stand alone," he exclaimed. "I would as soon appear at a formal dinner of such an august society as ours without my trousers."

They had a time of mutual listening that knitted them, he felt. Then his hand reached out in the blackness and brushed against hers. He felt tremulous and bashful and bold.

He squeezed her warm hand in the darkness, and she squeezed his hand back again—she had such small bird fingers. He had a sense of fresh mystery in his tired world.

The music ended. The lights came on. And then he gasped—he was staring into the sightless eyes of his own wife.

"My husband, my husband," she said, folding his arm in hers, contentedly. "Let's go home now."

"How did you know who it was, my dear? I wanted surprise you!" he said, startled.

And she turned her blue unseeing eyes up to him and said wistfully:
"In love, my love, there are no surprises."
He honestly hoped as he looked at her bright upturned face of faith that he believed what she said. He wished, with a power deeper than his forgotten passion, that she would not think of him later only as a liar.

Let Love Alone

By KATHLEEN HARRIS

Chapter 17

There was the beautiful silver ship. It was waiting in readiness. There was not time to say much of anything, or to analyze reasons or even to know how she felt.

She stood there, with Hank watching until there was nothing, not even that small dark speck left in the sky. Never had she felt more forlorn, more forsaken. There was no reason, unless it was Jan's conscience that rose up to smite her now.

Jan's dark mood stayed with her all that day. She slept very little that night, but the next morning there was a wire from Ray. It made her feel better, but only a little bit.

"Smooth sailing so far," the wire read. "Not trying to make time on way out. May stop over for few hours or so at halfway point both send love."

Jan did not see why love should come from both of them, nor why they should take time out to make a stop-over. She imagined this was Bernice's idea. She would make the most of this time spent with Ray.

Well, let her. It did not matter to Jan. Let the other girl use all those feminine wiles of hers. Why should Jan care?

"Dear me, a ranch," Eve said.

when she read the telegram. "I suppose Miss Darrow has estates and houses wherever she goes. It certainly is a good thing, darling, that you made everything positive before they left."

"I don't know what you mean," Jan returned, but of course she did.

"You really are such a child," Her mother smiled on her fondly. No doubt that was why that handsome young man had fallen in love with Jan instead of with a sophisticated woman of the world like Miss Darrow.

"I'm not a child," Jan snapped. She was fed up with having everyone say that. She was restless and nervous all day. She drove out to the field to talk with Hank, but he had not heard anything more than she had. She tried to call Teddie again but he still was not at home. The maid said that young Mr. Lanford had not come in at all last night.

Whooping it up, I suppose, Jan thought, because he's carrying a torch for me.

There was no sense in his overdoing it. Jan decided she would tell Teddie the truth, swearing him to secrecy, when she did get to talk with him. She left word again for him to phone her as soon as he got her message.

Eve had ordered several wedding dresses sent out on approval for Jan to try on. It was some argument to persuade her daughter to try them on, but she finally gave in rather than have her mother throw a fit.

"Anyone would think you were preparing for a funeral in place of a wedding," Eve said. "I never saw such a girl!"

"Don't say things like that!" Jan said sharply. She felt too silly getting into a long white satin dress with a train that strung out for miles. Of course the dresses would all have to be returned. If she ever did get married Jan resolved she would never wear any such costume as this.

"It's 'imply divine, darling!" Eve exclaimed. "I must call Amanda to see how you look." Aunt Amanda had come out to the country, as she called Westchester, for the weekend.

While her mother was gone on this errand Jan took stock of herself in the long mirror. She got something of a jolt. The girl in the mirror looked slender and virginal, like some medieval princess, eyes bright, cheeks flushed. Why, she did not look at all like herself! She looked almost as beautiful as Bernice Darrow, so that Jan could not help wishing that Ray might have seen her looking like this.

She picked up the lace veil and held it experimentally to her head. It added that lovely mystery of a bride always wears, an almost nun-like purity. From the doorway Aunt Amanda said: "Don't do that, Jan! It's bad luck to try on your veil beforehand."

"Doesn't she make a sweet bride!" Eve cooed.

that betrayed no emotion, "You must hurry. There may not be much time, my dear."

"Oh, no!" Jan protested, it could not be that bad. Critical, as though Teddie were dying. "It'll come at once," she promised.

Chapter 18

She never was to remember how she managed to drive to the hospital, force her trembling legs to carry her inside. She was bound in a sort of frozen panic, and remorse, like ice, was wrapped around her heart. When she saw Teddie, looking so strange, lying on a stretcher, his face so terribly white, dark circles beneath his eyes, all she could do was kneel silently down beside him, glow tears streaming down her cheeks.

She knew about the accident. Mr. Lanford had told her when he met her outside the emergency room. Teddie had driven his car into a bank. It had turned over several times, throwing him against the steering wheel so that his chest and lungs had been crushed.

"We cannot save him," his father had said to Jan in the same quiet stern voice. But his eyes had shown all that he was suffering. Never had Jan seen such despair stamped indelibly in anyone's eyes before. It was the awful despair of resignation, without hope.

Now Teddie's white face was almost radiant as he tried to force a weak smile. "You came," he whispered. And then, with a great fort as if it cost him much pain to say even these few words, "Sorry, Jan... had to do it..."

"Oh, Teddie, you shouldn't have!"

Then what she had feared was true. He had done it on purpose. The accident had been deliberate. It was all her fault.

Teddie reached out a hand to touch her hair, for now Jan's head was bent and she was sobbing as she never had in all her life, deep, wracking sobs that shook her whole girlish frame.

"Don't cry, please," he murmured. He gave a short sharp gasp. "Better this way... promise you'll be happy... promise me, Jan."

It took all her will power to raise her head and look into Teddie's face again, to force the answer he wanted her to give him. It was all she had to give him. She could not tell him the truth now. It was too late.

"I promise, Teddie," she said. She leaned over and her lips brushed against his. She had not meant to do it, to bestow that gentle sweet caress, a plea for forgiveness, although his eyes told her that Teddie had forgiven her, a sort of benediction. A caress that told him, too, that she did love him, if not in the way he had loved her.

His face shone again with that inward radiance. He forced another weak smile, and then he turned his head aside, closing his eyes as though suddenly he were very tired, but Jan knew that it was more than that. She knew that Teddie was dead.

She did not cry again. She bent her head, and though her lips did not try to form any words, yet Jan was praying as she knelt there. She stayed until someone lifted her to her feet again; it might have been only a moment or two, it might have been an eternity.

Now Jan knew what Bernice had meant when the other girl had said that Jan was so young she had never tasted sorrow.

There was something which she had to do. She could not evade it, spare herself this. It was part of her punishment, part of any atonement she might make.

She had to tell Teddie's father the truth. Teddie had killed himself because he had thought he did not want to go on living since Jan could not care for him as he had for her. So Jan, actually, had killed him. That was the confession she must make.

"I must thank you for coming," Mr. Lanford said when they were outside that room once again. His face still betrayed no emotion, only that resignation in his eyes.

"But I didn't," Jan said. "I did try to reach Teddie, earlier today and yesterday too. There is something I must tell you, Mr. Lanford. It was my fault. Her voice broke a little, but she went on, nor did she try to avoid his eyes. "It was all my fault. You see, it wasn't an accident."

She hated to have to say this last. It was cruel to have to tell Teddie's father that his son had taken his own life. Jan saw his stern lips twitch, but Mr. Lanford spoke in his same contained manner.

"You are mistaken, my dear," he said. "No one can take his own life unless it also is God's will. My son could not make the final decision. I overheard what he said to you," he added. "His love for you was the best he had, for he always was reckless and impulsive. It is not your fault that you could not return it. Therefore you must not blame yourself. You must keep your promise to Ted."

Jan's eyes filled with tears again, but she did not break down. She had not been prepared for such kindness. It was almost harder to accept than harsh words would have been. He was a kind man Teddie's father; a truly big man to be so understanding and so tolerant. Yet she could not absolve herself from all guilt so readily.

"I will try to keep my promise," she said. "And one thing I know Teddie has helped me. He made me grow up. If ever I am worthy of his love it will be because of that. I don't know how to thank you, Mr. Lanford, except by trying to be worthy, as I just said."

Jan wished that her aunt had not made that remark about bad luck. "Get me out of this dress," she said. "I'm tired from standing. My feet are simply killing me."

Her mother obligingly began to unfasten the bridal gown. But before she could finish, Jan was called to the phone. Eve thought she should wait, but the call might be important. It might be from Ray.

Lifting the long train over one arm, Jan picked up the receiver of the extension in her mother's dressing-room. She had carefully closed the door so that Eve and Aunt Amanda could not overhear her conversation.

"I'd be glad to do anything I can," she added. She meant anything within reason.

"Can you come at once?" Mr. Lanford asked. "Or I can pick you up, if necessary, I'm sorry to inform you that there has been an accident. My son is seriously injured. He keeps asking for you."

His father said that his son was at the hospital. In the emergency room. He would meet Jan there. He added in that stiff stern tone

The Sport Reflector

By JIMMY ELLIS

The predicting business picked up considerably with the games this past week-end and lifted the column's batting average to a more or less respectable .707 (29 out of 41). That mark, however, is still quite a distance from being what it once was.

A quick run-down of the games will show that William and Mary was the only club that got past the column and it did so with a "mild" upset of Duke. That game ended up 14-13 and gave WM the sixth victory of the year. It was the second time that the kicking of Hadaoui Hines had defeated a big four team.

The State loss to Maryland was an expected thing although I had my doubts that the final score would be by such a whopping margin. Maryland really poured it on Beattie Feathers' club—as if in an effort to make up for the 16-13 loss to the Wolfpack last year. 63-0 is a good round figure and Jim Tatum probably will be hearing that score for a long time.

The Baylor-Wake Forest game played in Waco, Texas, came out pretty much as expected with quarterback Larry Isbell of the Bears looking exceptionally well on his passing. It was his pass slinging and the blocking he got before passing that broke the back of the big Deacons who just ran out of gas.

The Carolina-Notre Dame game at Chapel Hill was the game of the afternoon—not only in the Southern Conference but just about everywhere as far as I am concerned. It will be difficult to find another game that was as well played as that one was.

The Tar Heels came within three yards of doing what was considered impossible for them to do—to beat the Fighting Irish. A little more blocking—or call it luck, if you will—and the Irish would have been taking an extra-long plane ride back to South Bend.

One thing that came out of the game: the students haven't deserted their ball club at Carolina and neither have they deserted their coach. Their cheering was sharp and crisp all the way and when they gave that yell at the game's end for Snively, it pretty every person in the student section was on his feet in the Snively. It was quite a thing to sit there and listen to those students let it be known that they were so over-whelmingly behind the Gray Sox. I wonder how the howling alumni felt about it.

The University of Maryland and officials of the Sugar Bowl have been severely rapped by the sports editor of the Dallas News for Maryland's acceptance of a bid to the Sugar Bowl. Bill Rives, the writer in question, figures that Maryland thumbed its nose at the Southern Conference and the Bowl officials were part of the conspiracy. All in all, he concludes that it was a disservice to collegiate athletics.

Rives works his story on the angle that Maryland was still in the running for a Cotton Bowl bid but that such a bid would have to have the approval of the Southern Conference member schools. Because of the acceptance of the bid to New Orleans, Rives figures that the Tarps were afraid of polling the Conference members.

He also concludes that the Cotton Bowl "always conducts its operations upon an ethical basis."

Whether or not the acceptance of the bid was such a gross disservice to college athletics remains to be seen. I hardly think that it is since I believe the conference would have given the bid an okay without any trouble. Maryland is easily the best club in the 17 member circuit and they'll be a credit to the Conference.

Perhaps Mr. Rives is crying because the Cotton Bowl lost the presence of one of the country's great ball clubs. Could that be it, you reckon?

One correction today: John Postas, the East Carolina guard from North of the Mason-Dixon line, is not from Red Bank, N. J., as previously reported. He's from Franklin, N. J., and has lived there all his life.

Bears Can Clinch NS Title With Victory Over Indians

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The 1951 North State Conference football title isn't settled yet. Two games remain on the conference schedule. And the results of those games will decide whether the front-running Lenoir-Rhyne Bears win the North State football crown or wind up in a tie with runner-up Elon.

A victory for Lenoir Rhyne over Catawba in the Thanksgiving Day clash on the old rivals at Hickory would settle the pennant question. Should they beat the Indians, Coach Clarence Stasavich's Huskies would end the North State season with a spotless 6-0 record.

But should the Bears bow to Catawba and Elon defeat Guilford at Greensboro Wednesday night, the result would be a tie. If Lenoir Rhyne and Elon both lose, the Bears can still claim the title by virtue of having played one more game in conference competition than Catawba, which would move into second place.

The Bears will be battling a jinx when they meet Catawba on the holiday. The Indians have never lost to Lenoir Rhyne on College Field in Hickory.

There's a possibility of an upset in the Elon-Guilford meeting, too, but on their record, the Christians appear to have too much power for the Quakers. The Elon-Guilford game was originally planned for Thanksgiving Day but was switched to Wednesday night to avoid conflict with the Greensboro-Goldsboro high school game Thursday.

Blatcher Scores 29 To Lead Flyers Win

Dick Blake Scores 14 For Pirates; Sonny Russell Adds 13 In First Game Of Year For East Carolina Cagers

NORFOLK — Led by a sharp-shooting forward who had an almost uncanny amount of accuracy, the Norfolk Naval Air Station Flyers defeated the East Carolina Pirates 63-55 Saturday night in the Naval Station's gymnasium. The game was the first of the season for the college team.

The forward who did so much damage to the Pirates was Blatcher, who hit for 11 field goals and seven free throws (out of nine attempts) for a total of 29 points. The best the Pirates had to offer was guard Dick Blake who connected for 14 points.

Forward Tomlin of the Flyers and forward Sonny Russell of the Buccaneers were next in the parade with 13 points apiece.

The Pirates trailed most of the way in the game and were behind 27-23 at halftime.

There is not another game scheduled for the Pirates until December 1 when they will meet Guilford College's Quakers in Wright Gymnasium on the East Carolina campus. That game will be the first home game of the year and also the first of 13 North State Conference games which have been scheduled.

Bowl Sponsors Denounce Efforts To Outlaw Bowls

United Press Sports Writer NEW ORLEANS (UP)—Mid-Winter Sports Assn. officials today denounced efforts to outlaw post-season football games and defended their own Sugar Bowl, which would have to go out of business if the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. bans the contests.

A five-page statement, issued by sponsors of the non-profit Sugar Bowl, said opponents of the post-season games do not recognize the benefits to players, their schools and millions of fans.

Coch Jim Tatum signed the contract yesterday for his Maryland team to play Tennessee in the Sugar w. Tatum said he saw no reason for the talk about a possible Southern Conference squabble over the university's acceptance.

Tatum said his team does not expect any interference by the conference because in years past "other Southern Conference teams have accepted bowl bids in exactly the same manner."

There was no reason why Maryland's acceptance of an invitation should not get the usual approval that has been given to other teams when the Southern Conference meeting is held in December, Tatum said.

Disclosure that the NCAA will consider a proposal to ban post-season games under the football "de-emphasis" campaign apparently provoked the committee to issue its statement.

Some of the points raised by the association in defense of bowls: 1. "The four major (Rose, Sugar, Cotton, Orange) post-season games have been in existence for 18 or more years. In that time none has in any way done anything harmful to any educational institution, football players, or the game itself.

2. "From the date of their origin, the four major bowls have had official approval of conferences governing collegiate athletics in their locale.

3. "The four major bowls have been approved by the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. and are regulated under provisions set forth in the NCAA constitution.

4. "The four major bowls have always been handled by football officials selected by the conferences from which the teams have come.

5. "In the past 18 years, the football fans of America, through the sponsors of the four major bowls, have contributed more than $10,000,000 to participating schools.

6. "All of the four major bowls are civic, non-profit organizations; collegiate in concept and conduct; free of any taint of professionalism."

DENNIS (DOC) SMITH, a 216 pound junior from Chocowinity, will be at right guard for the East Carolina Pirates Saturday when they close their season against the Citadel in Charleston. Smith is a leading candidate for All-Conference honors in the North State Conference this year.

Colledge Presidents Open Investigations

By LEO H. PETERSEN

United Press Sports Editor WASHINGTON (UP)—The evils wrought on by the modern scale of intercollegiate athletics were attacked on a new front today.

A special committee of 10 college presidents opened a two-day meeting in the hope of coming up with the ways and means which will put the athletic houses of the nation's colleges and universities back in order.

Today's first session will be devoted to hearing two representatives of the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. and three sports writers, all of whom also will serve as committee consultants.

Chairman John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State College, ordered two sessions for the opening day and said he planned on winding up the committee's work at a meeting Tuesday morning.

The committee was appointed by the American Council on Education, which apparently is alarmed over the present hue and cry against over-emphasis of college athletics and is dissatisfied with the efforts of the NCAA to eliminate the evils.

The committee was asked to formulate remedial measures with the object of correcting the "ethical lapses which threaten the integrity of institutions of higher education."

It marked the first time that the ACE has entered the field of policing athletics. Heretofore, that task was left to the NCAA, the various athletic conferences and the schools themselves.

tee spokesman said, scheduled a discussion of gambling, cribbing and proselyting. Such other issues as post-season bowl games, spring football practice, the two-platoon system and the question of whether sports should be confined to the campus also will come up during the inquiry.

The committee is expected to ask the NCAA representatives what the NCAA is doing, and plans on doing, to put college athletics back on a sane basis.

When the committee completes its work, it will report its recommendations and suggested course of action to the ACE.

An ACE source suggested that one of the committee's major tasks might well be to decide how to de-emphasize the work of college alumni groups.

"There seems to be a feeling," this source said, "that if college sports need de-emphasizing, the proper place to start is with the alumni. There doesn't seem much doubt but what various alumni organizations, no matter what their intentions, are in a large measure responsible for these so-called 'ethical lapses'."

Representing most of the nation's conferences as well as the smaller schools, the members of the committee in addition to Hannah include John L. Plyler of Furman, and John D. Williams of the University of Mississippi.

Steve Owen, head coach of the New York grid Giants, was captain and tackle on the Giant team of 1927.

Ben Hogan Voted 'Golfer Of Year' For Third Time

CHICAGO (UP)—Bantam Ben Hogan, the gritty pressure player of big time golf, has been named "Golfer of the Year" for the third time in four years.

The Professional Golfers Assn. announced yesterday that Hogan, National Open champion, had received 85 per cent of votes cast in the annual poll of sports writers and broadcasters.

Hogan received 194 votes. Runners-up were Sam Snead, winner of the award in 1949, Lloyd Mangrum, Skip Alexander, Cary Middlecoff and Jim Ferrier.

Hogan won three tournaments and finished fourth in five starts during the 1951 season. In his first outing, at Phoenix, Ariz., he led the field through the first round with a 65 but then withdrew because of illness.

He next teed off in the Masters at Augusta, Ga., in April after falling behind in the early rounds. Hogan caught the field in a brilliant finish, winning the event for the first time in his career.

He was fourth in the Colonial Open at Fort Worth, Tex., but three weeks later won the National Open for the third time in four years. H. capped the season by winning the world championship of golf at Tam O'Shanter in August.

Hogan used an average of 70 strokes a round in these tournaments and netted cash awards of $20,400. He had previously won the plaque in 1948 and 1950.

Baseball Begins 1951 Draft Today In Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (UP)—Contracts of some 1,684 minor league baseball players go "on sale" today with the opening of the annual major league player draft but no one looked for crowded counters.

Only 38 players were drafted last year. Prices range from $10,000 for class Triple A players down to $2,000 for Class D hopefuls.

draft any players outside the three Triple A leagues—the International, Pacific Coast and American Association. These three leagues have 576 men on the selection list.

While sales may be slow, interest runs high this year. The sale follows charges by the Pacific Coast League that its best players are garnered cheaply by the majors.

And the draft was offered as proof that the majors do not violate anti-trust laws by holding the youngsters down in the bush leagues.

Big Race Begins With 104 Entries

MEICO CITY (UP)—A field of 104 contestants start the first lap of the 1,933-mile Pan-American stock car race tomorrow from Southern Mexico to the Texas border.

Italian speed champion Alberto Ascari was co-favored by France's top racing driver, Louis Chiron, to win the speed dash from Tuxtla Gutierrez north to Juarez. Thirty-five Americans headed by U. S. champion Tony Bettenhausen, veteran drivers from Europe and Latin America speedsters also will compete for shares in $68,300 prize money.

Some Winners Just Don't Care

LOUISVILLE, Ky. —(UP)—Some people who go to the races, bet and win, never bother to pick up their earnings.

Churchill Downs reported that it has been holding for more than two years $16,230.80 in unclaimed pari-mutuel winning tickets.

During the spring racing meet in 1949 $12,414.60 worth of tickets were left at the track.

Girl Grid Coach Evens Things Up

WORCESTER, Mass. —(UP)—Thirteen-year-old Linda Lichtenfeld took time out from her sparetime job as football coach for the Midland Street Juniors to explain the secret of her success:

"When a visiting team shows up with an older player than our 10-year old team has, I just put on a uniform and play quarterback, so even things up," she said.

So far, the Juniors and their girl gridiron mentor, have won one, lost one, and been rained out twice, using an "I" formation, a 6-3-2-1 defense and a statue of liberty play.

ROCKY MISSED

OXFORD, Miss. —(AP)—When Rocky Byrd, senior quarterback on the University of Mississippi grid squad, failed to perform against Kentucky and Vanderbilt this season it marked the first time in his collegiate career he missed a game. Including three 1948 frosh games, Byrd started in 20 contests. He sat out the Wildcat and Commodore engagements because of an injured shoulder.

When the committee completes its work, it will report its recommendations and suggested course of action to the ACE.

Art Gallery Displays New Home Pictures

NEW YORK — (UP) — "Art for interior" is a new gallery with a purpose it proposes to serve the public in two ways: 1) by embellishing homes through the use of works of art; 2) by advising people how best to invest their money in art.

The gallery intends to bring out some young painters. It opened its season with a one-man show of Leroy Davis.

"My art is akin, in spirit, to the small-sized work of such French painters as Manet, Degas, Vuillard, Bonnard, Rouault, Matisse and the American painter DeLamouth," the young painter said at the opening of his first New York one-man show. "I myself am working in small size. My picture are intended as satirical comments on society."

Davis rejects all vanguard art. "The trouble is," he said, "art dealers always want something 'new.' They should understand that there has not been anything 'new' since 1915. There can be nothing new any more—everything in the way of novelty has been tried.

"The only new thing in art can be a new medium. Such a new approach is the monotype. That is the medium which I use and which, for some unknown reason, so far has been largely neglected."

Monotypes are prints done on a metal plate that is passed through a printing or hand press. The subject is painted directly in oils at a single sitting. The method makes the production of only one copy possible. Thus, every monotype is a unique print.

"Abstract and non-objective art is largely doomed," Davis added. It is slowly wearing out. People will return to something more substantial. I believe they will go back to the old masters. That's what I am doing myself."

Deviationism In Malaya Emerges

LUALA LUMPUR (AP) — That big crime of "deviationism"—often prevalent in Communist party circles in Eastern Europe—also seems to crop up among members of the Malayan Communist organization.

The three were shot because Siew Lau had become a "dangerous drifter" away from the party line.

Vinson Talked Up As Nominee That Would Unite Demo Party

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Chief Justice Fred Vinson was being talked of today as a possible presidential nominee who might unify the Democratic Party.

The latest public plug for Vinson as a candidate came yesterday.

From Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo.), a western Democrat who sometimes votes with Dixie and Republican colleagues and supports only a part of President Truman will run again, and he predicted the party would turn to Vinson. The Colorado senator added he doesn't believe Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower will be nominated by either party. He conceded, however, that the General would be "a strong candidate" if he were nominated.

Marines Return To Routine Duty

Camp Lejeune —(AP)— Second turn to routine duty here today after completing two months of amphibious maneuvers Saturday.

The leathernecks climaxed the maneuvers Saturday by winning a five-day battle over "Black" defending this section of the lower North Carolina coast.

Last Tuesday the marines staged an assault landing at Onslow Beach, then drove inland against the "Blacks" commanded by Brig Gen. Gregon A. Williams.

The invading forces landed a knockout punch Saturday as the Sixth Marine Regiment teamed up with a helicopter-borne battalion of the both Marine Regiment to capture the enemy's last stronghold.

Maj. Gen. Ray A. Robinson commanded the invaders, while Lt. Gen. Graves B. Erskine, Commanding General of the Atlantic Fleet Marine Force, controlled the maneuver.

Meshaw was taken to a Lumberton hospital where he was pronounced dead shortly after arrival. For nearly 30 years he was a section foreman for the Atlantic Coast Line railroad.

ABC Men Stage Whiskey Raids

AYDEN — Pitt County ABC officers joined forces with Ayden policemen Saturday night in making three arrests for possession of city.

The officers arrested Lula Mae Anderson, Willie Brown Jr., and Laura Mae Brown, his wife, after their houses were searched and whiskey found.

Each of the defendants were placed in the Ayden City Jail pending the posting of bond for Ayden city court this afternoon.

Ayden officers assisting the County officers were J. M. Whitehurst and James Ross.

Two Greenville Negro men were also arrested Saturday night by an ABC raiding party as local law enforcement officers started a crack down on liquor violators in Greenville.

The home of John Atkinson, 1306 West Fifth Street, was searched by the officers and one half gallon of bootleg whiskey was discovered. While officers were searching for the whiskey, Atkinson slipped out of his house and fled. A warrant has been issued for his arrest.

Jesse Sherman, 621-B Hudson Street, Greenville, arrested and charged with possession of bootleg whiskey when one and one-half gallons was found on his premises.

Sherman was released under a bond of $200 for appearance in City Court next Friday.

Officers taking part in the raid were J. M. Ward, J. L. Taylor, C. T. Manning and R. W. King.

New Comics Are Starting Today

Beginning today, The Reflector will carry two new comic strips, "Flash Gordon" and "Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer."

Flash Gordon, who is billed as the world's most famous space adventurer, will explore new worlds in uncharted space along with his companion Dale Arden, in place of the comic strip "Popeye".

Today Flash takes off in "X-3" to explore the planet Jupiter. When the space ship has reached an altitude of 200 feet, the second rocket fails to fire and Flash and his companions must land at the nearest emergency space station which is Space Prison, where the earth's most dangerous criminals are kept. From there the adventures of Flash Gordon continue.

What would happen if Santa Claus' elves went on strike right before Christmas? In the new comic strip, "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer", is a story of what Rudolph did to make the elves in Santa's workshop to go on strike.

In the special Christmas comic strip, other characters such as loyal Grover Groundhog and the wicked J. Baddy Bear, who almost upset Santa's Christmas plans, will appear in the Reflector.

ATLANTA —(AP)— The CIO says that its southern organizing campaign "has been successful in the last 12 months and will be continued another year."

The union claims more than 110,000 southern workers joined in the last 12 months, with the largest gains in the wood, furniture and chemical industries.

John V. Riffe of the southern organizing campaign said Saturday that as a result the drive would be continued another year.

However, the generally optimistic report had nothing to say about progress in the textile industry.

Riffe said in Atlanta that the CIO had won 225 representation elections in the last 12 months. He added that so successful was the campaign that Florida, which had been written off by the union, has been returned to the list of states where organizing will continue. Florida, Mississippi and Arkansas were dropped by the CIO about 18 months ago as not sufficiently industrialized to warrant the organizing effort.

Cow On Highway Cause Of Damage

FARMVILLE — A wandering cow on the highway, caused a car to be wrecked Friday night about three miles west of here.

Patrolman Bruce Jackson reported that an automobile operated by Charles S. Henderson, 23 of Raleigh, struck a cow which was roaming loose on the highway on Highway U. S. 264, some three miles west of here shortly before six o'clock.

Jackson stated that damage to the Henderson car was about $200. The cow, which was owned by W.H. Simmons of near Farmville, was killed. The driver escaped without injuries.

No charges were brought.

Hitler's Famed Hideout To Be Thoroughly Razed

Hitler's Lair ROSE
MUNICH —(UP)— Adolph Hitler's favorite Bavarian hideout and love nest at Berchtesgaden will be torn down to prevent its becoming a shrine to Germans who look back on Nazism as Germany's days of glory.

The decision to demolish the barren, roofless, 15-room Berghof high on the Obersalzberg mountain was reached jointly by German and American authorities, it Shuster, U. S. land (state) commissioner of Bavaria.

The Alpine homes of Martin Borman, the only top Nazi leader whose fate is still shrouded in mystery, and hulking Hermann Goering will be dismantled also.

The Berghof, a hotel-like Bavarian-style building nestling high above the valley of Berchtesgaden, but below the 1,800-foot high "eagle's nest" where Hitler brooded alone over his 1,000-year Reich, was where Der Fuehrer received Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain, Premier Eduard Daladier of France, Benito Mussolini, and the Duke of Windsor, then Prince of Wales.

Favorite Spot
 It was also Hitler's favorite relaxation spot and the place he spent quiet hours with his mistress, Eva Braun, whom he finally married just before they both died in his underground Berlin bastion in 1945.

American and Bavarian officials decided to tear down the homes of the highest Nazis after it was discovered that local guides were giving tourists nostalgic, pro-Nazi lectures as they toured the ruins.

The also were selling tiles from the bathrooms of Adolf and Eva as souvenirs, and stone from the building itself for about $1 piece.

Five Buildings To Go
 The fate of the Eagle's Nest high on the Kehlstein is still under negotiation, Shuster said. He added that the agreement so far reached with Bavaria provides for the destruction of five buildings: the homes of Bormann and Goering, the Berghof, another seldom-used Hitler residence, and the barracks of the special SS guard.

Shuster said the property would be returned to the Bavarian government as soon as the Nazi buildings are completely removed.

Shuster also said the press he will return to the presidency of Hunter College in New York early in December. His commissioner's office will be taken by his deputy, Prof. Oron J. Hale, on leave from the University of Virginia.

clear particles. These rare visitors from outer space had not been observed previously because of their absorption or destruction in the stratosphere.

Yagoda said such studies indicate that the earth is constantly receiving a rain of hydrogen nuclei of tremendous energy and a sparse dusting with most of the members of the periodic system of elements, including copper, bromine and even tin.

BUCKET PASSE
PRINCE RUPERT, B. C. —(AP)— Firemen and volunteers hastily formed a bucket brigade to fight a blaze in a shack when an elderly woman cried, "My son Oscar is in that fire." But they found Oscar was busy passing buckets.

Metals Rain On Earth Out Of Stratosphere

CHICAGO —(UP)— Photographic emulsions sent into the stratosphere in giant plastic balloons show that some nuclear particles which make up the cosmic ray have masses greater than that of iron.

Dr. Herman Yagoda of the National Institute of Health made the disclosure in a paper read to the American Institute of Physics.

Yagoda said heavy tracks were found in the emulsions and that they were made by "heavy" nu-

Better Hearing Aids Predicted

CHICAGO —(UP)— Experiments on the human mastoid may result in the development of more efficient hearing aids for the deaf, according to a paper presented to the Acoustical Society of America.

The author is Dr. Ernest K. Franke, a biophysicist at the Wright-Patterson Air Force base. Until recently, he said, knowledge of the mechanical response of the mastoid has been incomplete.

Researchers at the aero medical laboratory, he said, have been able to gather accurate data on the mastoid's mechanical properties, the design of more reliable hearing aids, and will permit better aids by means of artificial mastoids.

Notes Left For Milkman Provide Puzzling Aspect

PHOENIX, Ariz. —(UP)— Roy Mallory, milkman, thinks he knows where the man who writes the income tax instructions gets his start in life... by scribbling directions to the milkman to puzzle out in the dawn's early light when he collects the empties.

From his own route, and those of his fellow drivers, Roy offers these samples of notes in milk bottles:

"One of the bottles you gave us the bottom fell out. Please 7 more of them."

"28 pounds. Thank you."

"Don't leave milk. My windows are drawn."

"Milk man: Please put ice box. If dog objects don't leave any."

"Eight quarts medium size."

In pioneering times one beaver skin bought a brass kettle or two hatchets.

His Job Is To Fish Folks Out

NEWPORT, Ky. —(UP)— Robert Payne has the kind of job a lot of people dream about.

Payne is paid for doing nothing more than sitting in a boat under a bridge eight hours a day.

The reason is this: The Green Line traction system's span across the Licking River is being resurfaced and it's Payne's job to fish any workmen out of the river who might fall off the bridge.

Kids Can Study Parent Problem

CLEVELAND, O. —(UP)— They have finally recognized the younger set at Western Reserve University.

After years of teaching courses in child psychology to parents and parents-to-be, officials at the school decided this fall to start an "adult psych" course for the small fry.

Catalogue notes describe the non-credit course as "a joint-generation study designed to help students in the eight-year-old bracket understand their fathers and mothers."

U.S. Air Force Scientists Are Studying Weapons From Russia

AP Newsfeature.
DAYTON, O. — The Air Force is peeking over Russia's shoulder in a laboratory.
The laboratory is the U. S. Air Force Technical Intelligence Center at nearby Wright-Patterson Air Force Base. What goes on there is so secret even workers themselves can't get in the restricted area without special code numbers on their passes.

An electric "code verifier" flashes like a metal detector in a prison when each of the workers check in or out. Armed guards will stop you, if you walk 10 feet inside the area without an escort.

A carefully screened, select group of officers and civilians works at the center. Engineers, photo interpreters, metallurgists, scientists and specially trained evaluation experts of all kinds are putting the enemy under the microscope 24 hours a day, studying North Korean Communist equipment as well as Russian equipment.

What these technicians do, the technique they employ and how much they learn is a secret locked behind the laboratory fences. But, their prime job is to get every bit of technical information about the enemy, evaluate it and make the information available to our fliers in combat.

More than 100 tons of captured North Korean, Chinese Red and Russian equipment have been shipped thousands of miles from the fighting zone to the Ohio intelligence center. Some was flown here. More came by ship. One big item is a MIG-15 jet fighter taken by an air intelligence team shortly after it was shot down in Korea.

"It was fairly intact," an officer said, "but there wasn't enough to warrant reconstructing it and flying the machine."

The officer explained, however, the Air Force could build an MIG-15 and fly it, if it wanted to. There's another MIG-15 at the base these days. But it's a pile of junk now. A mass of turbine engine cowling, wires, seats, tail pipe from a jet engine, rudder fin and elevators stacked in a storeroom. It was more complete when they got it, but they took it apart and studied it, piece by piece.

Col. Harold E. Watson, pointed to the pile of things about it, but we're only telling our own interested agencies. That's what makes our work so tough. It isn't that we're afraid to tell the Russians about the MIG. They know all about it. But they don't know how much we know."

The warehouse looks like a Russian junkpile, with here and there supplies of intact equipment. There are racks of clothing worn by North Korean Navy, Air and Army officers. There are oxygen masks, gloves, flying jackets, boots, helmets, new engines of a reciprocating type used by Russians in transport planes.

In warehouse cubby-holes, is a partly intact Russian IL-11 two-seater trainer. The wing is in good condition. The fuselage, however, is partly shot up. Just a junk heap? Yes, but it told U. S. experts many things. For instance, the plane was armed. Allied trainers are not.

What kind of things do the experts learn when they peer over the shoulder of the Russian bear? Well, the warehouse has some machineguns taken from the Russian MIG's. They are larger and heavier caliber than the guns in our F-86 Sabre jets. But the fire less rapidly and the Sabre has more guns.

Maybe that is one reason American jets are shooting down MIG's in Korea today.

ing 1 cup granule-type detergent and 4 tablespoons of plastic starch. This should be stirred vigorously and then whipped with an egg beater to froth up solution to a consistency of marshmallow sauce. It is spread on props with a knife or pastry tube. The goo can be coated over pencil stubs to make them look like icicles, or coated on a bunch of drinking straws which have been tied in the middle—fan-like—pretzels, curtain rings, coiled picture wire, pipe cleaners, clothes pins, pine cones and old thread spools. Any of these things can be further decorated by sequins, beads, artificial flowers. Lipstick, nailpolish and ink can be used to give the final flipp. You'll find ways to anchor wire or ribbon or curtain hooks to any of these things so that they can be hung on the tree.

Something for teacher. Take a bough—spruce, pine or cedar and gaily decorate it for a table or mantle centerpiece for a favorite neighbor, aunt or teacher. You can make it snowy white by spraying on a good white liquid shoe polish with an ordinary household spray. Let it dry and tie it with a big festive red satin bow.

Or spray gold or pink paint on a bough and sprinkle sequin dust over it. You can make attractive sprays for doors, windows or mantles also by combining pine boughs, holly or other red berries, a sprig of mistletoe and pine cones and tying all with a pretty wide red satin ribbon. Put these in appropriate boxes and you have gifts to please any number of people. If you're really ambitious you can save money, too, by making small fruit cakes, jams or jellies for Christmas presents.

That girl who wears glasses... She'll adore one of those colorful "specs" holders made of felt. Cut a pattern from an old case or measure around an average pair of glasses allowing about an inch on either side. With pinkish shears cut around edges, then stitch. If you do not have pinkish scissors, use a blanket stitch or running stitch to finish edges attractively. Some girls use felt in two shades, lining the case with one shade, and then cutting a large eye in the outer covering so that the under covering shows through. If you do that, embroider eyelashes around the eye. You can decorate the case with sequins, broken beads or embroidery, instead, if you prefer.

Last but not least... Christmas is a holy day, and thought should be given to church and peaceful celebration. Some young people organize groups of carolers in house-to-house-fashion to bring the real spirit of Christmas to others. While it is fun to give gifts and receive them, nothing could be worse than making this day a big commercial project instead of making gift-giving an incidental part of the real purpose of Christmas.

If you want to get choice Christmas cards and gifts — do your shopping early. The girl who leaves everything until the last minute will find, usually, that she pays more than she originally planned, and skips some of the people for whom she had planned gifts. Here are some hints which may help you get off to a good start on your Yule sled:

Christmas card etiquette... When selecting your card, pick or make one which looks like you. Don't let it be too sophisticated, but on the other hand do not select a flippant card for this most important day. You should sign it "Mary Jones" or "Mary" depending on how well you know the person. Above all, do not make the mistake of signing it with a boyfriend—such as "Mary and Joe." Current etiquette rules give an engaged couple who wish to sign their names on a mutual card. Tree decorations. Pretty tree decorations can be made by mix-

Drunks And Fights Are Routine On Saturday Night Police Duty

By ROY HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

Cruising along the busy city streets, the black and white sided patrol car ambled here and there in silence which was abruptly broken by the blare of the Police radio.

Over the radio came a call to go to the Person Garrett tobacco company where a man was threatening people with a gun.

This signaled the kick-off for another night of work for the local Police department which up until 4:25 had been uneventful.

Officer W. B. Cole, in the driver's seat wheeled the car about and headed for the factory, only two blocks away.

Arriving, no one was in sight, but up against the wall of a building across the way was a very drunk Negro man.

Pulling alongside, Cole lurched and hauled the teetering man into the back seat.

In searching him, a routine procedure, Cole pulled out a small but deadly looking .32 revolver.

Pocketing the gun, Cole climbed back in, satisfied that he had the right man.

Drunkenly the man kept repeating over and over, "You ain't got no right to lock me up, I ain't done nothing." Cole simply replied "Better keep quiet."

But he didn't.

Pulling up to wait for traffic to clear, a noise from the back made both occupants in the front seat turn around to hear a muffled cry "I ain't going to stay in here."

At this point the Negro man had the right rear door open and was partly out, "escapin' from the grasp of one who attempted to restrain him."

Officer Cole was off in pursuit. For a drunk man he ran amazingly well. A Negro woman observing the officer shifting the weapon taken from the man when he was arrested, so it would not fall in the chase; cried out shrilly, "Please stop, don't make him shoot you." Several others standing near-by joined in the uproar.

All to no avail.

By this time the fleetfooted man had run across the road towards the tobacco factory district.

In the meantime the location of the trouble flashed to a second patrol car and it moved to block the avenue of the fleeing man.

Cornered, the man swung several times at Officer Cole, before he was subdued and placed back in the police car.

At the Police Headquarters, the man was locked up and in a short time went to sleep.

No information out of him, except his name is Amos Barrett, "Beauty," a detective added address Greenville.

Cole charged the man with resisting arrest, carrying a concealed weapon, indecent exposure and public drunkenness.

Cleared with the troublemaker will come in that there was a drunk at the "B.C. store on Dickson Avenue.

Pulling up before the store a Negro man standing on the curb came up mumbling, "Willie T. Moore, Cap'n". He was jolly and happy, even when seated in the rear of the police car between two officers.

"Thinking of the man who got away a short while back, the officers grabbed the man by the belt as if to help hold him up, also just to keep a hand on him.

"I ain't going no place" the man murmurs. "We know that, but we just aren't taking any chances" one of the officers laughingly replied.

Just before going up to the cell, that one way trip for a time, the man laughed "Why, I have been in here so many times that I know my way around"; and the officers agreed.

Once again the radio barked, this time about a fight at 11th and Clark Streets.

A big crowd was gathered around the parked railroad cars. One Negro man was flat on his back while a second one moved away, holding his injured hand.

Officers Howard and Harris, moved in, cutting off the escape route of the pair and hustled them into the waiting car.

The crowd was "worked up" and the two were speeded from the scene as soon as possible.

One of the victims of the affair, strived, desperately to cover himself with the remains of his tattered clothing which was torn from his person.

Examination revealed that one of the men needed medical attention and they are taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment.

The nurses on duty at the emergency room eyed the officers with the customary "Saturday night starting out as usual", and the officers in turn shrugged their shoulders in reply.

Patched up, the men were taken to Headquarters where they signed a warrant against each other.

One Chesterfield Payton, well known to local officers was charged with assault with a deadly weapon while William H. Bullock was charged by Payton with assault with his hands and fists. Both were locked up for the night or until they post bond to get out.

After a belated dinner, Officers Howard and Cannon continued on their routine patrol.

Things were quieter, and the car settled down to a much-needed-for quiet patrolling.

The car passed two Negro boys along North Green and a cry of "Stop" rang after the departing car.

Swinging around, Howard and Cannon searched for the two, who were found huddled at the corner of a building, scared and drunk, but not enough to be locked up. After a lecture which had a sobering effect, on the pair they were told to go home and stay there.

Then for a thankful period of time all was quiet, and another Saturday night rounded its way out, only to be remembered when the Judge calls the Monday session of Police court to order.

Rehearsals are underway for one of the dance numbers, "The Chinese Ballet," which will be given in the "Follies of '51" Tuesday and Wednesday night in the Austin auditorium at the college. (Staff Photos by Roy Hardee).

Draftees Have Until Nov. 30 To Choose Branch

The U.S. Army and Air Force recruiting sergeants announced today that those who have received their pre-induction physical and mental examinations have until November 30 to enlist in the branch of service of their choice.

Anyone in the above category, who wants to enlist before the deadline, should contact Sergeant G. W. Foster at the post office on or before November 25 for initial processing and shipment.

The recruiting office will remain open Saturday afternoon and Sunday of the forthcoming weekend to take care of any enlistments.

Merchants' Body To Meet Tonight

Thompson Greenwood, executive secretary of the North Carolina Merchants' Association, will speak to the Board of Directors of the local Merchants' Association tonight at a regular meeting of the board.

Greenwood is scheduled to discuss the program and accomplishments of the North Carolina Merchants' Association. The meeting will begin at 8 o'clock in the office of the association in the city hall.

Speech Contest Finals Tonight

High school students in Pitt County have been participating in the nationwide "Voice of Democracy" Contest which is being sponsored locally by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

W. H. Watson, project chairman, announced today a $25.00 Savings Bond will be given to the boy or girl in Pitt County who makes the best speech on the subject, "I Speak For Democracy."

Selection of the Pitt County winner will be made at WGTG tonight at 8 o'clock and judges for the contests will be announced along with the winner Tuesday.

The finalists who are to compete today are: Bobby Langston, Greenville High School; Wilbur Jackson, Ayden High School; Oulta Cannon, Farmville High School; and Rob: T. Bright, Belvoir High School.

The winner for the state of North Carolina, to be announced December 15, will be entered in the running for the national contest for which prizes of $500 and trips to the nation's capital are offered.

Last year students in 1,600 communities in every state of the union entered the "Voice of Democracy" contest.

Durant To Speak Here On Tuesday

Dr. Will Durant, scholar, wit, philosopher and historian, will be the guest speaker at the Executive Club meeting tomorrow night at 7 o'clock at the East Carolina College dining hall.

Durant is author of the "Story of Philosophy" which has sold close to 4,000,000 copies, and the author of many other books on history and philosophy. He has written "The Mansions of Philosophy," "Our Oriental Heritage," "The Life of Greece," and "Caesar and Christ."

Two more books by Durant, "The Age of Faith" and "The Age of Reason," are scheduled and in connection with the former work, Durant journeyed to Europe and Asia during 1948 to gather material for the book.

Durant is a graduate of Columbia University where he also received his Ph.D. in 1917 and taught philosophy there for one year. He received his formal education at St. Peter's College and at Columbia and taught Latin, Greek, French and English for four years in Seton Hall College in New Jersey.

Women In The Church

Women In The Church By MARY FOWLER

Mrs. William M. Brewster, 89 years young, the "Shepherdess Mother of Hingham," has returned from China after sixty-six and one half years of service there as a missionary of the Methodist Church. Although her term of official service ended in 1934, Mrs. Brewster continued until this year, when communist restriction on travel led her to leave out of consideration for Chinese Christians. When Mrs. Brewster went to China in 1884 from London, Ohio, she was Miss Elizabeth Fisher. She was stationed at Foochow until her marriage in 1890 to Dr. Brewster. They moved to Hingham as the first missionaries in that province. When her husband died in 1916, she took over his duties as district superintendent. She saw that each of her seven children received a college education, and to the Chinese became "Bo Seo Bau," or "Shepherdess Mother," for her work in churches, schools, leprosy colonies, and orphanage and hospital. She is now with a son, William, in Oroville, Calif., confident the Christianity will survive in China.

Literature is supplied for a membership of 1,644,493 in the Woman's Society of Christian Service, the largest woman's organization in the world. The headquarters employs 75 persons.

About 35 pounds of sulphur in some form or other goes into the manufacture of the average automobile.

CAP Unit Plans Training Mission

The Greenville - Washington Flight of the Civil Air Patrol will hold a training mission for its personnel at the Washington, N. C. Airport next Sunday, November 25.

Several planes and personnel from other CAP flights will also participate in this mission. The purpose of the mission is to train the CAP personnel to locate aircraft or objects on the ground so they can be prepared in case an emergency arises.

The public is invited to the airport to witness the maneuvers. 2nd Lt. J. H. Bynum, Jr., stated.

American Legion To Hold Supper Meeting

Pitt County Post No. 39, American Legion, will hold a supper meeting (dutch treat) at the Legion Home on Evans Street Tuesday night at 7 o'clock.

The meeting will be held on the second floor, recently altered and repaired to provide a larger hall for the meetings. Commander Lester Turnage Jr. will preside.

Some important business is to come up for consideration.

Fatal Hotel Fire Is Being Probed

CHICAGO (UP)— Investigations began today into the cause of a fatal fire in which three persons died and 10 others were injured yesterday morning on Chicago's south side.

Five of the 10 injured guests jumped from fourth floor windows and 200 other guests fled in nightclothes as the flames crackled through the Norwood Hotel.
