

Secret Talks On Disarming OK'd

United Nations Unanimously Approves Big Four Conference As Vishinsky Discloses Acceptance Of Arab-Asian Plan; Little Hope Of Immediate Results

PARIS (UP)—The United Nations approved unanimously today a proposal for a secret 10-day Big Four disarmament conference. The talks may start here tomorrow.

The unanimous vote climaxed a strong small-nation campaign to get major antagonists in the cold war to sit down together and seek some way to end differences on disarmament.

Despite general elation after today's decision, there was no great expectation that the 10-day session would produce immediate and tangible results on disarmament.

Western acceptance was hedged by insistence that a short time limit be placed on the talks so the Russians would not be able to delay final U.N. approval of the West's disarmament plan.

In announcing Russia's acceptance of the plan, Vishinsky kept up his bitter denunciation of the West's plan to reduce world atomic and conventional armament by a "step-by-step" system of census, international inspection and control.

The Big Three demand for the time limit was designed to prevent use of the disarmament talks for propaganda purposes. The purpose of the meeting will be to hammer out a means of bringing the rival plans closer together.

Pakistan, Syria and Iraq proposed the private Big Four conference in a resolution submitted to the committee Monday.

Vishinsky announced the Kremlin's acceptance of the proposal at the end of a 29-page rehearsal of Soviet charges that the West's disarmament plan aimed at world domination.

In three previous speeches, he flatly rejected the West's blueprint and submitted emasculating revisions. The Soviet plan calls for immediate outlawing of the atomic bomb to be followed by an international disarmament conference.

Informed sources said Vishinsky, himself, will sit in at the talks for the Soviet Union. Big Three representatives were expected to be Dr. Philip Jessup of the U. S., British minister of State Selwyn Lloyd and Jules Moch of France.

Vishinsky insisted throughout his lengthy address that the Soviet plan was the only one which would result in the outlawing of atomic weapons. He said the plan would permit full disclosure of rival military establishments.

"We'll put down our figures on the table to the last machinegun and soldier and you'll see just what we have," he said.

UNWITTING TRUTH? WASHINGTON (UP)—A Chinese Communist propaganda broadcast offered this gem: "The Soviet people not only love the Chinese people, but they treat the soul of the Chinese people as their own."

WICHITA FALLS, Tex.—(AP)—A grand jury, shocked at revelations of marijuana sales in Wichita Falls schools, has given advice for parents today.

Keep your children at home. Find entertainment and recreation for them there. Chaperone their gatherings. Limit the amount of money given your children. Limit the use for pleasure purposes of the family automobile. Know where your children are and "not just think you know where they are."

Gov't Calls On Farmers To Top 1951 Production

Planting Goals Are Four Percent Above This Year's Near-Record Crop

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government today called upon farmers to push production next year four per cent above this year's near-record yields to meet "the greatest needs we have ever faced."

Announcing planting goals for spring crops, acting Secretary of Agriculture Clarence J. McCormick urged growers to put forth special effort to boost production of livestock feed grains so that a high level of output of meat, milk and eggs might be maintained.

Acting in the absence of Secretary Bran on who is on an official trip to the Near East, McCormick acknowledged that farmers will have a tough job because of shortages of fertilizers, some type of farm machinery and a tightening farm labor supply.

Promising as much help as possible, the department said it would be prepared to support producer prices of corn, cotton, wheat, soybeans, wool, milk and butterfat at a maximum level permitted by law. That level is 90 per cent of parity. (Parity is a standard for measuring farm prices, declared by law to be equally fair to farmers and those who buy their products.)

However, no supports were promised for hogs, beef cattle, poultry, eggs and other perishable products. None of these products is being supported this year.

Because farmers have just about reached the limit of new cropland, they will have to try to increase the acre yields in order to meet the higher production goals, McCormick said. If goals are attained, plantings would total about 377,800,000 acres compared with 374,600,000 this year and twice as much farm produce would go to market as the 1935-39 average.

Because livestock feed supplies are shrinking rapidly, the department asked farmers to give corn and grain sorghums prior claim over all less productive feed crops. Another big cotton crop was recommended. The planting goal was set at 28,000,000 acres compared with 29,510,000 planted this year and about 18,000,000 in 1950. By increasing acre yields, the department said, farm produce should be able to produce 16,000,000 bales compared with 15,771,000 this year.

Scandal Probers Go Into Recess

WASHINGTON (AP)—House tax investigators unexpectedly recessed their hearings today until Monday to allow more time to examine Justice Department files—including any that may throw light on rumors of an attempted "fix" in a New York tax fraud case.

The recess was ordered as a House Ways and Means subcommittee was scheduled to resume its fifth consecutive day of inquiry into the activities of T. Lamar Caudle, ousted Assistant Attorney General and former chief tax prosecutor.

Backs Plea For Tougher Control

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Fulbright (D-Ark.) today backed Eric Johnston's appeal for tougher consumer credit controls, but Senator Welker (R-Idaho) said Congress was wise in liberalizing the curbs.

Johnston made the appeal as he stepped aside as director of Economic Stabilization, a post he has held for ten months. His successor, Roger L. Putnam, Massachusetts industrialist and former mayor of Springfield, was sworn in yesterday.

adults by legal definition, are high school students. In all, 15 persons have been arrested. The other five are expected to be indicted in other cities. Dist. Atty. Alan Haley estimates that 25 high school students were involved in possession or sale of the drug. Another seven to 10 junior high school students—in the 13-14 age bracket—may have been touched by the ring. Investigation in junior high schools is continuing.

The grand jury yesterday also advised hiring of an officer for the schools "to police the school properties xxx vested with authority to investigate cases of delinquency and absenteeism among school children and xxx maintain close watch over public places where students congregate."

Huge New Foreign Aid Outlay Slated For 1952

Reliable Sources Indicate Appropriation Will Top Last Year's Record Sum Though Final Figures Not Yet Set

WASHINGTON (UP)—The administration plans tentatively to ask Congress early next year for the biggest peacetime foreign aid appropriation in history, it was disclosed today.

It is too early to say exactly how big the request will be. But according to reliable sources, it will top the $8,500,000,000 which President Truman requested and the $7,328,000,000 approved by Congress this year.

The administration will urge approval of the huge request to keep the free world's rearmament program rolling ahead on schedule during the crucial 1953 fiscal year, beginning July 1.

The proposed new foreign aid bill is now on the drafting boards and probably will go up to Capitol Hill in February, government sources said. They would not speculate on its probable fate.

Meanwhile, the administration does not plan to ask for any new emergency aid funds to meet the economic crises threatening to slow the defense effort in Britain and France, as some observers have suggested.

It is said to feel that it can juggle present economic and military aid funds to get these two key countries over the economic hump and keep their defense effort from slackening.

Experts said there are several reasons why U. S. foreign aid should increase during the next fiscal year if the whole rearmament program is not to lag.

They said the nation must spend more than $8,000,000,000 in foreign aid for three years to keep the arms drive going.

Congress' action in slicing more than $1,000,000,000 off the first year's request accented the need for more funds during the second year, they said.

Inflation, which boosts the price of the program, also is still in full swing. The rearmament program is gathering momentum, driving costs up with it. And some countries—notably Britain and France—have run into serious economic trouble.

France needs between $500,000,000 and $700,000,000 as quickly as possible. Britain's requirements range between $200,000,000 and about $500,000,000.

Where previous blasts were marked by blinding flashes of light and balls of fire, the final explosion gave off only a wink of light and little noise. From Mt. Charleston, 45 miles from the test site, observers saw a billowing cloud surge slowly upward from the ground around the firing point and rise to a height of about 10,900 feet.

Red Cross Boxes Are Packed Here

Over 300 Packages For Children Overseas Are Prepared

Over 300 gift boxes for children overseas, which were filled by students in the city and county schools, were packed yesterday at the Red Cross office to be sent overseas.

The articles for the boxes were contributed by members of the Junior Red Cross in the county and city schools. Education items, such as pencils, crayons and other articles, health items, toys and personal items were included in each one of the boxes.

The boxes are sent to national Red Cross headquarters and they determine which countries are to receive the boxes on the recommendation of the League of Red Cross Societies and overseas Red Cross personnel.

Cardboard containers are furnished to the schools enrolled in the Junior Red Cross by the local Red Cross office. They are financed through the National Children's Fund, which also pays overseas shipping charges. The boxes are filled under the supervision of the teachers.

Those who helped fill the boxes yesterday were: Judy Moore, Jim Winstead, Jimmy Perkins, Richard DeSavigny, Betty Lois McGowan, and Helen Stokes. Mrs. J. H. B. Moore heads the Junior Red Cross here.

Hunt Murderess In Asylum Escape

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Winnie Ruth Judd, the greying red-haired trunk murderer of 1931, escaped from the state hospital for the insane for the fourth time last night.

Twenty years ago she shot two girl friends to death, dismembered their bodies and shipped the grisly remains to Los Angeles in a trunk and a suitcase. She was convicted and sentenced to be hanged, but was adjudged insane and committed to the asylum.

Mrs. Judd, 48, climbed out of a second story window about 10:30 p.m. on a ladder fashioned from rags and scraps of cloth.

Just before her disappearance she had been visiting in the room of her 84-year-old mother, Mrs. Carrie B. McKinnell, also a patient at the state hospital. Earlier, Mrs. Judd had been at a dance for patients.

New Deadlock In Korea Truce Talks

UN Delegation Refuses To Consider Withdrawal Proposals; Communists Refuse Ban On Reinforcing Troops

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—Korean armistice talks reached a new deadlock today. Prospects of a truce by the Dec. 27 target seemed more remote than ever.

The Communist truce team again rejected the U.N. demand for a ban on the reinforcement of troops in Korea during an armistice and the right of joint truce teams to roam all Korea to enforce the ban.

Chief U.N. negotiator Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy told newsmen at the end of the 95-minute meeting that the truce conference had reached "Impasse No. 2."

The armistice committee nevertheless will hold its 32nd meeting at 11 a. m. Saturday (9 p. m. Friday EST).

The two truce teams had ended "Impasse No. 1"—on location of a cease-fire line—only Tuesday by agreeing that the line should be the Nov. 27 battle line providing the remaining armistice terms are settled within 30 days.

Joy quickly spiked speculation that the informal Communist proposal Thursday for gradual withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea after an armistice might open the way for a compromise. Previously, the Reds had sought an immediate troop withdrawal.

"The U.N. delegation will not make any commitments at this time concerning the ultimate or staged withdrawal of all foreign forces from Korea for the simple reason that the governments concerned consider the withdrawal," is unrelated to a military armistice," Joy told the Reds.

Commissioners Plan Appointees Meet Monday To Fill Non-Elective County Positions

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners will meet Monday, December 3, for the purpose of appointing officials to serve in county positions not filled by county-wide election. These appointments, which are for one year, will affect some half-dozen county offices, as only the offices of sheriff, clerk of the court, and registrar of deeds are elective.

Offices directly concerned with the board's action Monday are auditor, tax collector, home demonstration agent (white and Negro), county farm agent (white and Negro), and superintendent of the county home.

A new superintendent of the county home will have to be named, as former superintendent H. E. Hill has resigned, his resignation to become effective December 31. Officials said this morning two or three applications have been submitted, but the final decision will not be known until the board takes action Monday.

They said the other appointments would probably be routine, with all the officers now serving the county slated to be re-appointed.

Army Plans Send Guard Division To Duty In Korea

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army is going ahead with plans to send to Korea at least one of the two National Guard divisions on occupation duty in Japan, it was learned today.

A proposal to use the two divisions, the 45th of Oklahoma and the 40th of California, for replacement of units long in the Korean battle line was first considered last summer.

Recently, a decision was made to send one division, the 45th, before the end of the year. The two divisions slated for the Far East late in March. They are part of the first four Guard divisions brought into federal service in September, 1950.

Destroy Or Damage 17 Communist Planes; Flight Of Bombing Planes Encountered And Shattered With No UN Losses; Infantry Has Light Day

8TH ARMY HQ, Korea (UP)—United Nations jet fighters scored two major victories today, destroying or damaging 17 Russian-made Communist planes.

Eleven Red planes were shot down. One was so badly damaged that probably crashed. Five were damaged less seriously.

While ground fighting remained almost at a standstill, F-86 Sabre jet pilots swept far over northwest Korea.

They caught a fleet of enemy bomber planes escorted by MIG-15 jets and propeller-driven fighters and ripped it to pieces.

Six enemy bombers, three propeller-driven fighters and one jet were destroyed. In an earlier dogfight another enemy jet was shot down. Every U.N. plane returned safely to base.

U.N. infantrymen fought three minor actions against light Communist attacks on the central and eastern fronts, but contented themselves otherwise with patrolling.

But the pilots had a big day. First, planes sighted an unprecedented 9,200 Communist trucks clogging North Korean supply roads nearly twice the number ever before sighted on a single day. The planes destroyed at least 300 vehicles and damaged uncounted others. It was evident the enemy was taking advantage of the lull in fighting to strengthen the front.

Then a force of 31 American Sabre jet fighters made a sweep almost to the Yalu River on the Manchurian frontier.

"They saw a formation of 12 Russian JU-52 light bombers, similar to the American B-26. The enemy bombers were escorted by 18 propeller-driven fighters and 16 MIG fighters.

The American planes closed fast and knocked down one MIG. Then they tangled with the LA-9's. Three of these enemy planes went down. Then the Sabrejets ripped into the slower bombers. They shot down six of them and damaged three. Only three of the bombers escaped damage.

It was the first time since last June 20 that enemy bombers had been encountered south of the Yalu river. There was a suspicion that the fleet was on a training flight and was caught napping.

Last April 12 U.N. planes destroyed 14 MIGs, probably destroyed 14 and damaged 30 in a mass jet battle over northwest Korea.

The Reds appeared to be taking advantage of the lull in ground fighting to strengthen their depleted armies for a big new offensive if truce talks collapse.

Night-flying B-26 light bombers and shore-based Marine planes raked the enemy truck convoys with bullets, bombs and rockets. They claimed to have destroyed at least 300 and damaged many others in dusk-to-dawn raids.

Pilots reported the Red trucks moved in long convoys with lights blazing in defiance of the Allied raiders. Heaviest traffic was on the Wonsan-Pyongyang east-west highway and on the two main north-south arteries from Manchuria through western Korea.

Huge Arsenal In Korea Blows Up

No American Soldiers In Area Of Awesome Blasts Injured

PUSAN, Korea (AP)—The Korean government arsenal here blew up today in a series of awesome blasts that spread damage across an area four miles wide.

American soldiers holed in by the general area escaped injury but U. S. Army authorities said six Koreans were killed and at least 50 were injured.

Korean authorities said 48 homes were destroyed, 100 others were badly damaged and 400 more were damaged in some degree. They estimated total damage at $20,000,000.

Civilian and Army rescue workers dug in the ruins searching for possibly more victims.

Col. Lee Hong Chong, chief of the arsenal, said it was not known whether sabotage or accident touched off the blasts that rocked this southeast port city and sent civilians racing from their homes in panic.

It was recalled, however, that a mysterious fire destroyed the U. S. Embassy building in Pusan Monday. The North Korean Reds long have boasted they have agents in Pusan.

Alison Hearne And John Moss Pledge Vows In Afternoon Rites At Methodist Church

In a quiet ceremony attended by relatives and close friends, Miss Alison Reynolds Hearne became the bride of John Ewell Moss in rites performed on Saturday afternoon, November 17, at three o'clock at the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

The Rev. Leon Russell, pastor of the bride, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The church was decorated with fern and baskets of white chrysanthemums lighted by cathedral tapers in wrought iron standards.

Prior to the entrance of the bridal party, George Perry of the music department of East Carolina College presented a program of organ melodies. The traditional wedding marches by Wagner and Mendelssohn were played as the processional and the recessional.

Alfred Kreeker of High Point sang "Ich Liebe Dich" by Grieg before the ceremony, and as a benediction, he sang "Benedictus" by Lutkin.

Miss Mary Belet Smith was the maid of honor and the bride's only attendant. She wore a suit of brown wool with matching accessories and a shoulder corsage of yellow and brown asters.

Ushers were William Darby and Paul Boeman, classmates of the groom at East Carolina College.

The bride and groom entered the sanctuary unattended. The bride wore a costume suit of maroon wool with a small maroon hat. Her shoulder corsage was of orchids.

Kenneth Edmonds of Norfolk, brother-in-law of the groom, was best man.

Immediately following the ceremony, the couple left for a short wedding trip to unannounced points. They are at present making their home in Greenville.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Closs W. Hearne of this city and the late C. W. Hearne. She is a senior music major at East Carolina College and will present her graduating recital in voice in March.

The groom is the son of Mrs. Charles Crawford of Norfolk and is also a senior at East Carolina College. He served two years overseas in World War II.

Discussion Of Problems In Near East Led By Mrs. Long At Book Club

An informative and exhaustive report on the Near East was given to members of the Chatham Book Club when it met on Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Luther Bowling.

On arrival the guests were served an attractive and appetizing salad plate by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. F. A. Benda and Mrs. E. R. Conway.

A brief business session was presided over by Mrs. L. W. Topping, president, before the program commenced.

Mrs. A. C. Ruffin, program chairman, turned the meeting over to Mrs. J. K. Long, the speaker for the afternoon.

Mrs. Long had prepared a lengthy paper which contained much valuable and interesting information on the countries which are currently making the headlines so often in the daily papers.

"The Near East is one of those indefinite geographical terms often used but seldom defined," began Mrs. Long. She explained that the terms as now used are political rather than geographic in meaning and refer to Turkey, Syria, Lebanon, Israel, Palestine, Jordan, Iraq, Iran, the Arabian Peninsula, Egypt and the Sudan.

She brought out the point that there is much diversity and variations in the culture, background, customs, religions and governments of these many countries, as well as in geographical aspects. She told of how most of the countries were becoming increasingly aware of the need for modernization in all areas of their lives and of the help that was being extended to them from the Western Hemisphere.

Mrs. Long made clear and vivid some of the reasons for the great surges of unrest and turmoil which have led to so much disturbance in this part of the world. She discussed in great detail the situation in Iran, Egypt, Iraq, Palestine and Jordan. From her analysis of the conditions there, members gained a clearer insight into the problems which are facing freedom-loving peoples of the world today.

In her concluding remarks, she expressed the opinion that the systems of government, economic enterprises, and cultural and social patterns will of necessity seek out the Western Powers for aid and support, and that when the present period of unrest and conflict dies down, she believed that the countries of the Near and Middle East would ally themselves with the democracies.

At the conclusion of the program, the books were exchanged and the meeting adjourned.

and goodbyes were said to Mrs. A. B. Perry.

Approximately two hundred guests called during the afternoon.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
INTERNATIONALISM WITHOUT RELIGION
A six-foot bronze statue of the Zeus of Artemis has been presented to the U.N. by the government of Greece. It will be placed in a landscaped area at the U.N. headquarters.

The significance of the gift is not entirely apparent. It is probably just a reminder to the world that the ancient Greeks were the most artistic people the human race has produced. In other words, the statue probably represents well-justified national pride in a noble heritage.

But if it is supposed to have any religious significance, then that significance is bad, from the Judaic-Christian standpoint. We are part of a Christian civilization. There are many nations in the U.N. which are not Christian, but no nation today worships Zeus. Furthermore, the nations of the world are almost unanimously opposed to idolatry.

This may be making too much of a small item,
but it does raise the question whether we are going to try to take religion out of our national dealings and say that we can have both private and public goodness without any reference to religious faith. If we are, then we are going against the teachings not only of Christianity but of every other religion which in the world today is influencing the minds and hearts of men.

Restrain That Wishful Thinking

The virtual termination of ground fighting in Korea on Wednesday was received skeptically by the American people on the home front, and the official denials from the White House that American troops had been ordered to hold their fire against the Chinese Communists in Korea only added to the confusion.

The fact that the order had been issued,
however, can not be written off as pure rumor. It was passed on to at least 100,000 American fighting men in Korea, at least one correspondent saw the orders in black and white, and others heard the orders paraphrased by officers.

One logical explanation for the conflicting reports from the battlefronts and the flat statements of denial of a "cease fire" from Ridgway's headquarters and from the White House is that the news blackout from Korea was not as complete as the higher echelons probably thought. Word of the order got out, but official Washington,
not wanting to tip its hand to the Communists, issued denials that orders to stop American offensive operations had gone out.

The reports gave rise to high hopes that the fighting in Korea may soon cease altogether; but the American people, as much as they desire the Korean war to cease, must not be betrayed by their own hopes.

The halt of offensive action by United Nations forces in Korea is a direct reverse of the pattern the UN used against the Communists in Korea. Heretofore it has been the professed policy to make the Communists realize the fighting would continue until complete truce terms were arranged.
Behind the policy "about face" there must be some good reason.

The most logical reason is the UN-Communist agreement that the present battle line will become the cease fire line if the remaining three items on the truce agenda
can be resolved by the December 27 deadline.
In view of that agreement, neither force is willing to sacrifice men and material to gain ground it may not be able to keep.

The UN forces, however, never know what the Communists have up their sleeves. They can hardly afford to drop their guard and allow the Communists to reinforce their troops or acquire other military advantages, later to be exploited,
while the lull in the fighting exists.

Pitt's Streamlined Method For Listing Taxes

City and county tax officials are working out a method for tax listing whereby they hope to avoid the long lines in front of the tax listers this year. The speed-up listing process should require the individual taxpayer less time to list his taxes, and thereby make it unnecessary for the county or City of Greenville to extend the listing period beyond January 31 as it had to do last year.

When a person goes to list his taxes in Pitt County during January he will find that the lister already has an abstract filled out for him giving his name, address and real property which the individual listed last year. It will be necessary only to make changes in the real property listings if the individual has sold some of the property
he had last January 1 or has purchased additional property since then; and then list
the personal property of the individual.

The change in the listing method has been made for the convenience of the individual taxpayer as well as for the city and county. It will require less of the individual's time to list his taxes, and less time for the tax lister to get a correct statement of property from the individual.

If the people of the county cooperate with the new program by listing their taxes
early and not waiting until the last week in January, the tax listing can be completed in the month allotted. If the people of the county, however, wait until the last minute to list their taxes they may not be able to get the listings filed before the January 31 deadline. In that case they may have to pay the penalty for late listing.

Under the new tax listing set-up it should not be necessary for the county to extend the listing period beyond January 31 this year.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—J. Harold McGrath is expected to resign as Attorney General in the near future, and the man mentioned in Administration circles
as a likely successor is Senator Estes Kefauver, assuming that the Senate's crime chaser will accept the offer. The promotion might place him in line for his supposed ambition, a vice-presidential nomination next year.

The proposed shift has many advantages from President Truman's standpoint. Although he is extremely fond of Mr. McGrath, a former Senate crony and Democratic National Chairman, the tax scandals involving former Assistant Attorney General T. Lamar Caudle inevitably reflect on the head of the department. Mr. Truman had to fire Mr. Caudle because of his questionable "outside activities."

FAVORITISM—There have also been charges that the Attorney General, or somebody responsible to him, tried to block Grand Jury investigations of Internal Revenue Collectors who were subsequently indicted.

It is understood that a study of files in the Tax Division, which Mr. Caudle headed before his dismissal, will show favoritism toward political friends and favorites of the Administration.

Representative Cecil King, the California Democrat heading the committee investigating Internal Revenue, asked President Truman several weeks ago to let his group examine files where he suspects that the Attorney General dragged his feet in prosecution.
Although they may have changed their minds by the time this article is published, both Mr. Truman and Mr. McGrath did not take kindly to the King request.

"CORRUPTION"—A McG-ath resignation resulting from his alleged failure to prosecute tax defrauders would have many ironic aspects, especially if he should be succeeded by Senator Kefauver. As a practicing politician, the Rhode Island man was never sympathetic to the Kefauver-Halley investigation. He even had been accused of trying to sidetrack it.

In fact, President Truman himself was not too enthusiastic about the Kefauver proceedings. The White House believes that the crime committee's revelations were largely responsible for the defeat of many prominent Democrats in last year's Congressional contests, including former Senate Majority Leader Scott W. Lucas of Illinois.

Just as he once referred to the Fulbright ex-posure of R.F.C. speculations as "asinine," so Mr.
Truman originally thought that the Kefauver disclosures of the alliance between politicians and criminals in New York, Missouri, New Jersey, Florida and Illinois were overdrawn.

But he realizes now that they have given his political enemies a potent issue for the 1952 campaign—namely, "corruption." The November 6 election returns proved that.

CHOICE—In the opinion of many shrewd Democratic politicians, President Truman can spike that issue by naming Senator Kefauver to the Attorney Generalship, and thus making him more eligible for the vice-presidential spot on a ticket topped by Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson of Kentucky.

Such a combination might set the G-O-P on its heels insofar as making political hay out of corruption charges is concerned.

Despite official denials, the Chief Justice is Mr.
Truman's choice for the presidential nomination if he decides not to run again. Principal proof is that there is not another figure on the Democratic horizon with sufficient stature for the honor. It was the subject of their talks during their Thanksgiving get-together at Key West.

Another consideration behind thoughts of a Vinson-Kefauver slate is the possibility that the naming of a Kentuckian and a Tennessean might minimize the threat of a southern revolt.

BOOTLEGGING—The increasing number of seizures of elaborate stills by federal and state authorities indicates that large-scale bootlegging has been resumed. It bears out warnings of the liquor trade that higher taxes on booze, which became effective November 1, would profit nobody but the law-breakers.

It is believed that illegal manufacture and sale of liquor are more extensive than the official figures show. Both the federal government and the states have reduced the number of revenue agents in recent years, with a resulting letdown of enforcement.

Another sign of increased bootlegging activity is a "ring-off" in legitimate sales despite the Thanksgiving holidays. Due to higher prices, customers are buying smaller amounts, and turning to the cheaper brands.

As a result, the anticipated tax revenues from this field will probably be much lower than Secretary Snyder's experts forecast in their testimony before Congressional committees.

ANECDOTE—Gordon E. Dean, Chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, is responsible for this anecdote.

Nevada Indians were sending smoke signals from hill to hill during a recent atomic test at Las Vegas.
When a chief saw the terrific flash of atomic light,
he grunted:

"Ugh! Wish I'd said that!"

BYRD'S ANTI-TRUMAN BLAST

From the Savannah (Ga.) Morning News
Senator Harry Byrd's fiery blast against President Truman in a speech in Selma, Alabama, before the Dallas County Farm Bureau, was the most vehement condemnation of the Missourian the Virginia legislator has ever voiced.

No Fair Deal opponent in either major party could have been more outspoken in opposition to the President's re-nomination by the Democratic convention next year than was the Virginian when he said,
"I am calling on you to save the Democratic Party from elements now in control who have debauched its principles and made it a party of political expediency," to which he added that "One of its chief articles of trade is the peddling of influence!"

Going Strong

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

If you are married you realize that one of the biggest thrills of the procedure is receiving wedding gifts. As much as we hate to get up in the morning, Wife Rachel and I were thrilled about the alarm clock we received. It was a very high quality Seth Thomas.

While at Chapel Hill the alarm clock saw me through, making me a mere three minutes late for every class. With any other clock I'm sure it would have been five minutes.

This clock has been very loyal to us, and we are very much attached to it. Now that we are parents of a very energetic 14-month-old daughter, there is a new chapter to tell in the history of our alarm clock.

For many months, it went idle,
in fact, it completely went down.
But now that Nancy's hours have become very indefinite, the time has come that we need to set the alarm, just in case she doesn't wake up by seven in the morning.

The fate of our clock was decided one day when I was showing Nancy through a magazine.
There happened to be an advertisement handy showing a variety of clocks. With a great deal of enthusiasm I pointed to these clocks and said to Nancy, "Clock!
Clock! Clock!"

In return, Nancy said, "Dock!
Dock! Dock!"

At that stage of the game I was the proudest father in Greenville.
But what followed was another story. Every time Nancy would see a clock in the house she would go through the same procedure:
"Dock! Dock! Dock!"

Then came the day when she toddled up the night table beside the bed, and spied our beloved alarm clock. That day when I came home for dinner Rachel said, "You know the alarm clock we like so well?"

"Yes."

"Nancy broke the crystal in it today."

The next day it was the same question, except Rachel said,
"Nancy tore off the minute hand
today."

Yesterday it was the hour hand that bit the dust. No doubt we are the only people in town who have a clock with no hands that is still in service. You can tell where the hands were, and with a great deal of imagination, you can set it to alarm at approximately the right hour.

Now when I show Nancy through a magazine I am far more careful about the words I try to teach her.

And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

Reflector Bureau

By LYNN NISBET

Assn. Afternoon Dailies

REACTION—So far as capitol square and its immediate environs are concerned, President Truman is in relatively better position than he was a week ago.

This improvement is not traceable to anything Mr. Truman himself has done or said within that time, but to conduct of others not presently associated with the president, mainly Senator Robert A. Taft and T. Lamar Caudle. Reaction of capitol square folks to activities of these two headlines in the news has had invisible secondary effects of strengthening the Truman position.

TAFT—Folks hereabouts
have not taken kindly to the idea of Senator Taft, avowed candidate for the Republican nomination for president, using the Well Lectures platform at Chapel Hill as a springboard for an intensive political campaign throughout the state. Criticism on this point includes University authority for permitting such use of the traditionally high honor implied in being asked to deliver the Well Lectures. Feeling prevails that both the university and the senator have suffered loss of dignity. Since many North Carolinians think Truman again will be the Democratic nominee for president, and will be opposed by Taft anything that tends to depreciate Taft stock is bound to help Truman to the same extent. That is a sort of indirect approach, but general result is that the Taft visit to North Carolina has raised Truman stock hereabouts. There would have been some objection to having an avowed and active political candidate as the Well lecturer, whatever his party affiliation, but such criticism would have been much less if the lecturer had not tied in his overt political campaigning. The whole incident has not helped the university, or Senator Taft, or the Republican party in opinion of most state officials and employees around the square.

CAUDLE—A much heftier boost was given Truman prestige
by news reports of Lamar Caudle's appearance before the congressional committee investigating the handling of tax cases.
Announcement ten days ago that the president had "fired" Caudle,
who had been assistant attorney general in charge of tax matters, was greeted with resentment hereabouts. There was outspoken belief that Caudle
was being made a scapegoat,
and, to change the simile, was being thrown to the wolves to protect some of the president's more intimate friends of Pendergast or vice. News accounts of the committee hearing at which Caudle testified and offered his "defense" didn't do a thing to support that belief. Your reporter has yet to find a person who believes that Lamar Caudle
is consciously crooked, but the growing impression of his ineptness, and just plain dumbness and stupidity, is raising questions not about Truman asking for his resignation, but about why he was ever put in such high position in the first place.

OPINION—It is appropriate to get into the record at this point that capitol square generally, on top elective officials, has not agreed with and does not now share Governor Scott's opinion of President Truman and his policies. The governor has been advantaged in expressing his opinion by reason of the fact he cannot stand for re-election.
Other elective officials are more cagey in comment because they are not too sure about public reaction over the state, and many appointive officials are also wary about what they say because they hope the next governor will reappoint them. Fact is that except for the governor Mr. Truman hasn't got very many real supporters around capitol square. Several officials were secretly happy about the Caudle firing, because their first reaction was that it afforded something they could tie in to opposing Truman. They aren't so sure now, and there is both comedy and tragedy in their efforts to side-step the issue. Essentially the same observation

can be made about Raleigh business men and other business and professional men from over the state who have visited Raleigh this week.

BOOSTED—Subsequent developments in the tax scandals
may occasion another shift in North Carolina sentiment. There remains deeprooted conviction that national political morality,
at both ends of Pennsylvania avenue and throughout the country, is at deplorable low ebb.
There is widespread belief that high officials elective and appointive, Democratic and Republican, are more concerned about immediate personal and partisan advantage than about basic moral integrity in government.

There is unfortunate lack of complete confidence in the individual honesty and capacity of public officials. But, as these lines are being written, your reporter is convinced that activities of Senator Taft in North Carolina, congressional investigations of campaign spending in Ohio, and reports of the Caudle appearance before another congressional committee, have contributed powerfully to boosting prestige of Harry Truman in this state.

Business Today

A truce in Korea will not curtail the defense effort, Washington officials and many commentators keep reassuring business.
True, but it also appears true that a truce would bring some very important changes in the economy.

Signing of a truce agreement surely will not be followed by a flood of telegrams from Washington ordering cutbacks in military production. The defense program is not a temporary expedient; it is a broad plan for rearming against any possible aggression and will go on despite what happens in Korea, Berlin, Iran or any place else.
Furthermore, with the record of Communist duplicity, it would be foolhardy to rely on the endurance of any truce agreement.

On the other hand, a truce in Korea would change emphasis on some production. Cessation of fighting could reduce the amount of explosives, weapons, transport, clothing and food expended in fighting, lost by capture or worn out by violent use. Defense planners can be expected to make a gradual reduction in the manufacture of some of these expendables after adequate stockpiles are built up, and to shift emphasis to such long range needs
as planes, tanks, etc.

More important will be the psychological effects. The stock and commodity markets have regularly shown weakness each time peace hopes rose. In so doing they reflect public attitudes. The public finds it difficult to believe that the total defense production will continue during a truce and has less interest in bidding up prices.

A truce can bring even more important changes in some sections of the economy. With men no longer dying in battle, there is bound to be less willingness to conform to controls. Even a section of the public will be inclined to wink at violations of credit and price regulations and illegal diversion of scarce materials. The matter will be compounded because, with no fighting going on, the government will find it harder to persuade the best executives to sacrifice income and risk reputations to serve as government administrators.

TURN IN SHOE SALES
REPORTED AT SHOW

Considerable optimism was expressed at the popular Price Shoe Show of America in New York this week. Exhibitors said that it was apparent that consumers' inventories of shoes, as well as that of retailers and manufacturers, were considerably reduced and the need of replacements would stimulate the industry. Maxwell Field, executive vice president of the New England Shoe & Leather Association said a pick-up in consumer buying had already begun.

Suppliers said that they believed leather and hides had reached their low point and there was no need for manufacturers to hold off buying any longer.
HARD SELLING NEEDED
TO MOVE PEACE PACK

It looks as if canners and grocers will have to push peas harder.

This season's canning, plus a carryover from last year, totaled almost 39,000,000 cases, some 12-000,000 cases more than last year.
About a quarter of the peas have moved to wholesalers and retailers. Whether the bulk of the remainder will be sold before the next crop will depend much on the supply of other canned vegetables and the promotional efforts put behind brands. Some canners are reported to be offering their stocks at small discounts.

RAYON AND NYLON
PRODUCTION G.F.

Production of rayon broad woven fabrics in July through September was 417,000,000 yards, the lowest quarterly output
since 1946, the Census Bureau reports. It is a drop of 30 percent from the second quarter. Production of 100 per cent nylon fabrics totaled 33,000,000 yards, down 13 per cent from the second quarter.

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK (AP)— Look,
by the time you read this tale,
it will be time to go to bed.
Then will you seek your sleep?
There are no birds flying so late.

Here is your story:

It is about a wondrous bird,
the bird that all men love and always flies away. She has many names, but one man knew her as "Hermione." If you say that name softly, as if you liked it,
it has a bell tone to it—far away. Why, the way I talk about it you would think she really were a woman—and near. And yet she is—how far? Tell me the miles in desire?

I don't know just why I joined the bird watchers. I guess they all had just been looking for something they hadn't been able to find—and figured it would have wings if they did find it.
And I guess I must have felt that way, too.

Anyway I was restless, and this life felt heavy upon me, and to go with them lifted a little of the weight.

Really, I guess, the sad catalogue of bird watching meant nothing much to me. But it gave me a kind of discipline of feathers.
I counted the colors and the names of birds as a duty and an opportunity as I saw them—my rosary of wings.

Each had a separate personality, anchored to something I had known. The wren was a fretful wren, tied to her children and trying to rule the world.
The thrush was Caruso in the bush, saying the Metropolitan Opera needed him and all he required as a platform was a twig. The finches, the sparrows
—they were bows and arrows in my heart. The crow was a state-house politician, wary of all. The hawk and the eagle were destiny,
as I spied up at them.

O, the cloud of hovering feathers—it became my world. I discovered the haunt of the clinging bat by day. I stayed awake to hear the "hoot" of the owl by night.
The music of this world I heard.
I swear I got so I could hear a bird unfold upon a branch in spring
as well as I could hear a dry leaf crackle under foot in November.

And all the time I searched for the rose-breasted grosbeak. That is what I wanted most to see —after listing all the crows, the nuthatches the robins, the bluebirds, and all. I guess you would have to be a bird watcher to know what that means.

And one day, walking all alone
in a forest glade, I saw the bird
I sought—the rose-breasted gros-beak. She was perched in a tree of silver. And as I watched, fearful of stirring her to flight, she turned into a fair girl and she said to me: I am whom you look for.

Well, I reached out, not really to catch and hold her, you know, but just to brush her with the hand of longing. And she turned her wings and left the tree, and then a feathered thunderbolt struck her, a hawk from high,
and carried her listless away.

And I never saw her any more.
What a bird is there now to watch for? Hermione is gone.
Sincerely yours,
Kenneth N. Cuthbert, Director

born and the lamp of stars, she had gone.
Sweet vanished Hermione
leaving the fragrance of a dream behind you, every man's dream—and nothing to remember but the lightning bolt that flared and left nothing but duty forever.

Look, it is time to go to bed.
Who ever really saw a rose-breasted grosbeak? Now will you go to sleep? There are no birds flying now. What can you hope to see?

WASHINGTON—Miss Gretha
Griffis couldn't see the audience
she addressed and they couldn't hear her. Miss Griffis is blind.
The young people to whom she talked are deaf.

A staff worker for the Family and Child Services here, Miss Griffis was assigned to the Gallaudet College. The only college in the world for the deaf, it was established in 1864 by an act of Congress which President Lincoln signed.

As Miss Griffis, an attractive young brunette with sensitive face, talked, her words were interpreted in sign language by Dean Elizabeth Benson, the college's dean of women, who is the daughter of deaf parents. Miss Griffis has been totally blind for the last 14 years.

During the war she had worked in an aircraft plant. She liked to talk as she worked, she said, and the plant foreman, knowing this, surrounded her with three women co-workers who were deaf.

"I couldn't read what they wrote on a pad and I couldn't write back," she said. "There was no bridge of communication between us so I learned the sign language." She communicated with the blind and reads and studies by using the Braille system, which she says is the blind what the manual alphabet is to the deaf.

Miss Griffis has degrees from McPherson College in Kansas, and from the University of Chicago,
and Washington University at St. Louis. She lives alone in an apartment for which she chose all the furnishings and made the drapes. She taught her own mother Braille in a Red Cross class so she could corre-

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Exodus 32; Numbers 11-14.

Moses stayed so long on Mt. Sinai that the people lost faith and asked Aaron to make them a god they could worship. He took their jewelry, melted it, and molded a golden calf, which they worshipped and sacrificed to.

Coming down from the mount with the stone tablets engraved by God, Moses saw the people worshipping the golden calf. Furious, he dropped and broke the sacred tablets, then smashed the idol and burned it.

Next the Israelites complained that they had no meat such as they had in Egypt. Angered, the Lord sent them great flocks of quail to eat, so many, indeed, that they were surfeited, and many of the people died.

Coming at last to the promised land, Moses sent twelve men to spy it out. All reported that the land was fruitful, but ten of them declared it could not be conquered.

Freedom Balloon Found By Group

A recent hunting party ran across a little more than they expected while scouting through Pitt County woods the other day. The party of four men, bent upon stalking some unsuspecting prey, were hot on the trail when their dogs decided the take off and chase a cotton-tail. Running closer examination, the party stopped abruptly, for suspended in a large pine tree, was a big round-shaped object. One of the hunters stated that "I didn't know whether to shoot it or not". But one advanced up to the object and with a limb brought it to the ground. At first it appeared the group had stumbled across a weather balloon of the type used by the armed services. In the middle of the balloon were discovered a large number of leaflets. Upon closer examination, the paper told of messages of freedom being sent to the people behind the Iron Curtain. Was it possible that this balloon had travelled across the ocean, a distance of thousands of miles and landed in Pitt County? That possibility was eliminated when it was learned that a balloon such as those used overseas was set into the air from the Court House square several weeks ago, as part of a fund promotion drive staged by the sponsors of the Crusade For Freedom. Discovery of the balloon was made by the party in a tract of woods near the county home. Hunter in the party were, Luke Page, Pete Freeland, John H. Nichols and F. Laughinghouse.

Training School To Open In January For Needed Wild Life Protectors

The North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission and the Institute of Government of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill will conduct a training school for prospective wild life protectors starting in January, 1952, Clyde P. Patton, executive director of the Wildlife Resources Commission, has announced. Men between the ages of 21 and 45 who are interested in becoming wildlife protectors may apply for the training school on regular state employment application forms available at state employment offices or form the Wildlife Resources Commission, Raleigh. Applications must be completed and on file in the Commission's office by January 1, 1952. Applicants for positions will be given a competitive examination later in January. Successful applicants will be given a thorough training course at the Institute of Government training school in Chapel Hill. Room and board will be provided and a small salary will be paid trainees during the course. Candidates for jobs completing the training course successfully will be installed as wildlife protectors immediately or held in reserve until vacancies occur. The starting salary for wildlife protectors will be $2,580 a year, plus $540 expenses, with provisions for periodic increases in salary and expense allowances. Applicants must be between 21 and 45 years of age and have at least a high school education, be interested in wildlife conservation and meet high mental and moral standards. A Doubting and Disobedient People

THEY LOST FAITH IN GOD AND WORSHIPPED A GOLDEN CALF

Scripture—Exodus 32; Numbers 11-14.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. OUR LESSON today is the story of rebellion and disobedience of the Hebrew people against the Lord who had heard their cries when they were slaves in Egypt, and had brought them out of their degradation to go to a land that He promised would be "flowing with milk and honey." They also plotted against Moses, who, against his own will, had left his peaceful home to undertake the task of forcing the Pharaoh of Egypt to let the Israelites leave his land. Through all his trials, however, Moses was true to his trust, even interceding for his people when Jehovah was incensed against and threatened to destroy them. Moses had been in the mount for a long time, and he had received from Jehovah "two tables of testimony, tables of stone, written with the finger of God." When Moses did not come back, the people began to complain. It would have been natural for them to have been worried about their leader, and to have sent his brother or some of the elders to go and find him. These people, however, were so ungrateful for all Moses and the Lord had done for them that they said to Aaron, "Up, make us gods, which shall go before us; for as for this Moses, the man that brought us up out of the land of Egypt, we know not what is become of him." Aaron, instead of severely rebuking the people, told them to break off their gold earrings and bring them to him. He made of them a golden calf, and the people ham, Isaac and Jacob, but that they were a "stiff-necked" people. He plagued the people that had made the calf. The next complaint of the children of Israel was that they did not have meat to eat. In Egypt, they said, we had fish, cucumbers, melons, leeks, onions and garlic. They were tired of the manna which the Lord had provided for them. Jehovah was angered again, and Moses asked Him why the burden of this discontented and ungrateful people was laid upon him? The Lord sent a great wind that blew flocks and flocks of quail to the Israelites—so many that they were surfeited, and a plague fell upon them. No wonder Moses rebelled against this work he had undertaken. Even his sister, Miriam, and his brother, Aaron, rebelled against him, because they said, he had married an Ethiopian woman. Jehovah punished Miriam by making her a leper. She was restored to health after seven days, however. Leaving the vicinity of Sinai, the Israelites journeyed to Hazeroth and pitched in the wilderness of Paran. The Lord told Moses to choose 12 men to spy out the land of Canaan and bring their report to Moses. The 12 set forth, and when they returned some were carrying a great bunch of grapes so heavy that it required two men to carry it, and pomegranates and figs. They reported that "we came unto the land whether thou sendest us, and surely it floweth with HAYDEN, Colo. —(AP)—Residents of this tiny northwestern Colorado community of 767, stepped up today to offer aid for 10 children orphaned by a double suicide. They are the children of Phillip and Tony Linda Montoya who killed themselves minutes apart with the same gun yesterday.

Mrs. Dorothy Todd, welfare office director, said neighbors and friends of the family will care for the children until her office can determine their permanent status. "It seems like everybody in Hayden has called to offer to care for the children permanently," she said. "But we are checking on the possibility that they have relatives before we make any decision."

Howard R. Root, county coroner, said Mrs. Montoya, 39, killed herself and then her grief-stricken husband, 42, called for help and shot himself. Both had been in ill health, Root said, and Montoya was out of work. He was a miner. The family lived here seven years. Three children were home at the time of the shootings. The RALEIGH —(AP)—Automobile insurance officials have put in an urgent request to increase auto liability rates in North Carolina $2,000,000 a year. They told Insurance Commissioner Waldo Cheek at a public hearing yesterday that companies writing that type of insurance lost $10,000,000 last year. The loss was attributed to a higher accident rate and the increasing cost of liability claims because of inflation. Insurance officials proposed the following increases on liability rates: for private passenger cars, 25.3 per cent in property damage rates, 7.7 in bodily injury rates; commercial autos, 24.2 per cent property damage, three per cent bodily injury.

Some six billion checks are printed annually to supply the need for this handy substitute for cash.

Japanese Satisfied By Results Of Occupation

TOKYO (UP)—The vast majority of the Japanese people are satisfied with the results of the occupation, according to the influential Maimichi Shimbun.

There are some minor matters which the Japanese as a nation cannot understand and with which they are not fully satisfied, the newspaper said in an editorial, but generally speaking, "the occupation policy has proved a success."

Maimichi said misgivings among "certain foreign circles" that the Japanese will undermine what has been accomplished during the occupation years as soon as their independence is regained "seem to have no grounds."

Beyond Expectations

The editorial pointed out that in addition to the fair play, generosity and good-will of the allied powers, there were unexpected developments which contributed greatly to the success of the occupation.

"The biggest of all such unexpected developments was the fact that the occupation policy was entirely contrary to what was generally anticipated by the Japanese public," it said.

The second factor was Japanese sentiment toward Russia.

"The Japanese as a whole could face the Americans with a feeling which was something akin to what a defeated athlete might feel toward his victor," the editorial said.

"The sentiment which governed the Japanese in regard to the Soviet attack at the very close of the war was not the same."

Impressions Resented

Maimichi said the Japanese attitude toward the Russians, in addition to old feelings about the Russo-Japanese War, was developed by the Russian detention of some 300,000 prisoners of war and the occupation of the Kuriles— islands Japan held before embarking on a course of aggression.

"Such developments have created a deep emotional stir among the Japanese," the editorial continued.

The article said it was beside the point to discuss whether it was right or wrong to entertain such sentiments toward the Russians. It added:

"This is a state of affairs that actually exists and it compares sharply with the sentiment that the Japanese cherish toward the Americans and other nationals of the allied powers."

It was this very sentiment, Maimichi concluded, which helped to a large extent to make the Japanese appreciate the Allied occupation policy.

Taft Winds Up Tour In N.C. With New Blasts

CHAPEL HILL, N. C.—(AP)—Sen. Robert A. Taft, a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, wound up a three-day tour through North Carolina last night with a parting shot at the Truman administration and a few ideas of his own on how to win the cold war.

Taft arrived in North Carolina Tuesday to deliver three Well lectures at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. In all, the Ohioan made 13 speeches, one television appearance and held two news conferences.

In his final Well lecture here last night, Taft said the only way in which the United States and its allies can hope to win the cold war is "by attacking the ideology of communism in the minds of men by a great propaganda campaign in behalf of liberty."

He said he believed "a comparatively small amount of money, if well spent, could succeed in substantially building up a love for freedom in Soviet dominated territory which would have a most killing effect on any Soviet ideas of military invasion of Europe and might lead to the ejection of communist control in some of those countries."

Picture Window Is Bagging Quail

BELLEVILLE, Ill.—(AP)—The quail are knocking themselves out for Mr. and Mrs. Armin Gantner.

They live in a house with a large picture window fronting a lake. Apparently the reflection from the lake on the window in the sunshine blinds the birds.

The only thing the Gantners have gotten out of their unwitting trap so far is a lot of noise. Most of the quail, stunned at first, pick themselves up and take off again.

L. T. Weeks Will Head Foundation

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina Agricultural Foundation's first new president in seven years is L. T. Weeks of Raleigh.

Weeks, who is general manager of the Fine-Cured Tobacco Co-operative Stabilization, was elected to the post yesterday to succeed Thomas J. Pearsall of Rocky Mount.

Pearsall had served in the organization's top post since it was founded.

Other officers named were Frank Brown of Sylva, first vice president; W. B. Rodman of Beaufort, second vice president; L. L. Ray of North Carolina State College, secretary; and J. G. Vann, also of the college, treasurer.

The foundation named 28 new directors, 12 new members of its executive committee, and a three-man investment committee.

In his farewell address, Pearsall said two events during the current year were among the most important in the history of the state, agriculturally speaking. He listed them as the Nickels-For-Know-How program, and the establishment of the Reynolds professorships at State College.

Nickels-For-Know-How will yield about $125,000 annually for agricultural research. The Reynolds endowment will yield about $20,000 a year from 10,000 shares of Reynolds tobacco stock.

Checking Up On Cupid In Census

ROME (AP)—Italy's new census, now being tabulated, is expected to show whether Rome's marriage rate is still blowing that of Paris, Berlin and London.

In the past, Cupid's aim here just hasn't been as good as in the other major European capitals. Rome's average of marriages per 1,000 has been 6 to 7 since the start of the first World War. In 1918 it hit a low of 3 per 1,000.

The census Bureau says in the same period London has averaged 9 to 10 per 1,000, Paris 9 to 11 and Berlin 10 to 13.

ECC Department Of Music Accepted As Member Of National Association

The department of music at East Carolina College has been accepted as an associate member of the National Association of Schools of Music, a nation-wide accrediting body made up of leading schools, departments, and conservatories of music. After associate membership is granted by the NASM to schools which qualify, full membership follows after a two-year period of maintaining satisfactory standards.

The acceptance of the East Carolina department for membership was completed at the 27th annual meeting of the organization in Cincinnati, Ohio, last weekend. Dr. Kenneth Cuthbert, director of the

The three-month-old skunk, named Flower, has been to school a half dozen times and has conducted himself with decorum while pupils sketched him or wrote compositions about him.

One little student wrote: "Sharon washes her hands after she pets her pet." Flower was deodorized after Sharon's father bought him from a farmer.

The Sport Reflector

By JIMMY KELLS

The team that takes the floor for the East Carolina Pirates Saturday night will not be a strange one to the fans in this area who know Howard Porter's Bucs. Most of the boys have been around for at least one season.

Heading the list of players that Porter has available is a fellow who is familiar to every eastern North Carolina basketball fan—Sonny Russell. Sonny is the talented junior from New Bern who was a first string choice for both All-State and All-Conference honors last year. He's six feet, three inches in height and will play at one of the forward positions opposite Charlie Huffman.

Huffman is the lone sophomore on the starting team but he's already a letterman, having won his letter last year. He's from Thomasville and played high school football and basketball there. He's a big boy, too, weighing about 195 and standing 6-3. Charlie gets the nod over another sophomore, big Bobby Hodges, the Kinston boy who was delayed in reporting for basketball because of football.

Hodges is 6-6 and weighs in at 225 but he isn't quite ready to take over the first string spot he had last year when he teamed with Dick Blake as the number one guard combination. Blake is back again this year as a junior and has seemingly steadied a lot. The 6-3 junior from Camp Lejeune was a good player last year but had a tendency to be erratic. Thus far in practice, Blake has shown that he's settled down and is ready to play all the way for Porter. He'll see a lot of action. He's a good ball handler and gets more than his share of the rebounds.

At center in Porter's style of attack will be the team's shorty, Toddy Fennell. Fennell is a senior from Wilmington who almost looks lost with just five feet, ten inches to throw against the six feet plus the other players claim. This will be Toddy's fourth year as a regular for Porter and the Pirates.

The other senior—and guard—on the team is the fellow who was Fennell's running mate at guard for Leon Brogden at New Hanover High School—Lou Collier. Lou stands 5-11 and has put on some weight this year that will make him a rough man to handle. Collier has always been one of the better ball handlers on the club and has a set shot that is difficult to stop. He hits it, too—and enjoys a darned good percentage of hits.

Behind this first team, Porter has got 11 men, anyone of whom might crack into the starting line-up should any of the first five decide to take even a slight vacation. Other than Hodges, stacking up as one of the top reserves is Paul Jones, a highly rated sophomore from Thomasville who won his letter last year. Jones, 6-1, can play anywhere on the squad although he's officially listed as a guard and is a good shot. Backing up the number one guard combination is a junior—before coming to ECC and Clarence Butler. Postas is the only outsider on the squad—having come from Franklin, New Jersey—but Porter would probably like to see a few more Yankees around if they all play ball like the big Postas does.

Butler is a senior from Salemburg who's rounding out his career in college basketball. The 6-1, 180-pounder played ball at EMI before coming to ECC and while he's never been first team here he's never been a better than average ball handler and has a good set shot.

A couple of freshmen certain to see a lot of action are Jack Carr, a forward from Rose Hill, and Cecil Heath, a guard (listed as a center) from Wilmington.

Jack was the spark plug of the high school team at Magnolia and has made almost remarkable progress since reporting to Porter. He's 6-2 and Porter has him running second string to Russell at forward.

Heath was the unsung member of the great Wilmington club which won the state triple-A championship in high school ball last year. He's a shorty at 5-9 and is the smallest man on the squad but he handles himself and the ball very well. He teamed with Charlie Niven at guard at Wilmington and while Niven got most of the points and the headlines, Heath was always setting up the plays. He'll play a lot of ball for Porter and the Pirates.

Carl King, a sophomore from Farmville who's being highly rated by the Pirate board of strategy, is following up the first team guards. He played some varsity ball last year and is sure to see a lot more action.

The remaining players, Larry French at guard and Nick Kanos, Clyde Owens and Jimmy Harris at the forwards, are all newcomers to the squad and it'll take them some time to get used to Porter's system. French, from Jasper, is a transfer student who has just become eligible and is listed behind Fennell and Heath in the center-guard spot those two play. He's six feet tall.

Kanos is the Fayetteville boy who came out, along with Hodges and Harris, when football ended. He's got a great hook shot and will be of a lot of value when he has had a chance to learn the system. He's 6-2 and is a good man under the boards.

Harris is another transfer student—a sophomore—who has just become eligible. He's six-two and has a good hook shot. Owens was the mainstay of the high school team at Beaufort last year but he needs a little more experience in college ball. He's big (6-3) and is a rugged fellow so you can look for him to see some action before the year's out. "Mullet" has a good one hand

Pirates Open Home Schedule With Guilford

Team Closes Out Heavy Practice For Engagement

The East Carolina Pirates yesterday closed out their heavy work for their opening contest tomorrow night with the Guilford Quakers in Wright Gymnasium.

Coach Howard Porter ran his 16 man squad through an extensive half court scrimmage drill which featured defensive work. The half court workouts were necessitated because bleachers are being erected on the main floor and one half of the court was cluttered with the bleacher materials.

Other than the half court work, the Pirates devoted considerable time to various fundamentals. Such items as foul shooting and other shots from the floor were given particular attention.

Coach Porter announced yesterday that his starting line-up for the game with the Quakers would be the same which started the first game of the year against the Norfolk Naval Air Station on November 17.

That team has Sonny Russell and Charlie Huffman at the forwards, Toddy Fennell at center, and Dick Blake and Lou Collier at the guards. Porter will dress the entire 16 man squad for the game tomorrow night against the North State Conference visitors.

Questions regarding tickets and other matters can be answered by calling the Athletic Office in the Wright Building.

No preliminary game has been scheduled.

shot that's very deadly from close in.

Although some more teams were entered into competition yesterday for the intramural basketball at East Carolina, Intramural Director Vernon Morrison said today there was still room for more clubs. He made an especial appeal to boys living off-campus to get on a team if they have not already done so. Inquiries can be made at the Athletic Office in the Wright Building about teams.

Morrison said there were about 12 teams entered thus far in the intramural competition. There will be just one league until after the Christmas holidays when the top teams will be separated to form League "A" from the bottom clubs (which will form League "B").

Ban Placed On Post-Year Games

HIGH POINT (AP)—All post-season games, except county conference or state playoffs, will be banned for North Carolina high schools under a recommendation drawn up by public school superintendents here yesterday.

In a 22-point program for regulating interscholastic sports, superintendents also recommended that no regional or state championship games for girls be allowed. The recommendations will be presented to the State Board of Education with a request that they become effective July 1, 1952.

An expected controversy over spring football practice failed to develop at the meeting. The superintendents did not refer directly at any time to spring practice. The only recommendation made regarding practices stated that practice in any sport may not start before August 15 or two weeks prior to the opening of the regular school term.

ABE USUALLY RIGHT—(UP)—Police here are firm believers in psychology. In the headquarters room where prisoners are questioned hangs a sign reading: "No man has a good enough memory to be a successful liar—Lincoln."

Phants Open With Cyclones Tonight

Basketball will get its start tonight in Greenville as Coach Boley Farley's Green Phantoms entertain Wilson's touring Cyclones in a non-conference contest scheduled for the local high school gym at 8 p.m. The contest will be preceded by a junior varsity scrap between the two schools.

It will be the opener for both teams, although each club has scrimmaged against outside competition. Greenville has bowled over teams from the Class A schools at Winterville and Farmville with ease. Wilson, under the tutelage of Coach Hank Madden, has also had no difficulty in pre-season practice sessions.

Wilson is reported to have one of its better teams in recent years, while the same statement is true for the local Phantoms. Each team will be out for a victory, and a full house is expected to see the contest.

Greenville will probably start off with the combination of Sid Briley, Glenn (Sonny) Scott, Wallace Conway, Leon Moore, and Smith Worthington. All of the boys have looked good in practice, especially Conway, Moore, and Worthington who are all newcomers to the varsity, with the exception of Conway, who played some last year.

This will be the first of five games for the Green Phantoms before Christmas. The team has two other games scheduled with Rocky Mount, one with Goldsboro, and a return match in Wilson. All of these clubs are from Class AAA schools.

Scholarships For Guilford Alumni—(UP)—A group of Guilford college alumni sponsored last night that the college grant scholarships to athletes to "a little" toward meeting their education expenses.

But the alumni reached no definite decision regarding withdrawal of their support of football at the Quaker school. Spokesmen said they could not match the scale of football spending at other north State colleges, which they estimated at nearly five times the $5,000 Guilford will spend this year for athletic expenses other than coaches salaries.

Negro Semi-Pros To Meet Monday—A meeting of all interested people will be held Monday night at the home of Dennis Norris for the purpose of organizing a Negro semi-pro baseball club for next season.

Arrangements for the organization have been going on for several weeks, and this will probably be the deciding point on whether there will or will not be a team. Backers of the club have invited everyone who is interested in baseball to attend the meeting and take part in the discussion.

Chicod Releases 18-Game Slate

CHICOD—Belvoir High School will open the 1951 schedule for Chicod High on December 7 when it travels to Chicod for a Pitt County game.

A 17-game schedule was released today by Chicod coaches, with all of the contests coming against Pitt County competition, with the exception of one. Vanceboro will play in Chicod on February 5.

Fifteen girls reported to practice two weeks ago, including four holdovers from last season. The ones who are coming back for another season are Shirley Gaskins, a high scoring forward, and Elva Forrest, Opal Jones, and Nancy Worthington. The squad was hit hard by graduation.

The remainder of the team will be picked from the following list: Bobbie Jean Sutton, Jessie Kennedy, Shelby Harris, Clara Wilson, Louis Smith, Le Verne Joyner, Maxine Jones, Sybil Adams, Mazil Sutton, Joyce Spain, Geraldine Coward, and Hazel Carrow.

The boys team will be composed of new faces also, as only three lettermen were left after graduation. Duey Gaskins, Rudolph Mills, and Walter Smith will form the nucleus of the team this year.

The rest of the squad will be composed of: Grady Bailey, Kenneth Ross, David Tripp, Tony Mills, Jaded Bryant, Archie Oakley, Bobby Fones, Bobby Broughs, Alton Hodges, Curtis Mills, Carlton Adams, J. T. Mills, Marshall Spain, Carlton Stanley, and Syvester Boyd.

The schedule: December 7, Belvoir; 11, Stokes; 14, Ayden; January 4, Winterville; 8, at Belvoir; 11, Arthur; 15, at Grifton; 18, Grimesland; 22, at Ayden; 25, at Bethel; 29, at Arthur; February 1, Farmville; 5, Vanceboro; 8, at Stokes; 12, at Winterville; 15, at Grimesland; 29, Grifton.

Three Veterans To Play For Carolina In Season's First—CHAPEL HILL (UP)—The University of North Carolina basketball team will open its season tomorrow night against The Citadel at Charleston, S.C., with a team including only three veterans from last year's unimpressive crew.

Captain Howard Deasy, a senior, and juniors Jack Wallace and Vince Grimaldi are the veterans on the starting five named by Coach Tom Scott. The others will be bob Phillips, a reserve guard last season, and freshman Paul Likins of Elkhart.

Let Love Alone

Chapter 29
"Me! Oh, no," Jan began, but now her heart was in her throat. "Yes, you, and no one else ever." There was a note of sadness in the older girl's voice now. "He thinks I'm wonderful. Ray always is saying that. He's so grateful to me that he doesn't want me to do anything more for him, like this operation. But I am flying to New York as soon as you get here, Jan. That's another reason you have to come so someone will be with Ray. I'm going to get the finest surgeon available and bring him back with me. And Ray is going to have that operation," she wound up this long conversation, "and have his chance."

"You are wonderful," Jan said humbly, gratefully.
Bernice's low laugh came back over the wire. "Not as wonderful as you, my dear. For you were the one who helped Ray get well so fast before, and now when you're with him, when you tell him you do love him, I believe that he will walk again!"
She had not asked again if Jan would come. There was no need. For now that Jan knew that Ray needed her, nothing on heaven or earth could have kept her from going to him.
Jan was so anxious to get to Ray she wished Mr. Peters was on hand to charter that private plane again. But she found, when she called the airport, that there was a flight to Washington that same afternoon and that she could get a reservation.
She got Aunt Amanda to pack for her, as Jan was much too shaky and had to get ready herself.
"I told you you'd use that silver service—I gave you—and all of those other presents one of these fine days," Amanda said.
"I still don't know for sure about that," Jan returned. Dear Aunt Amanda. She would always be grateful to her. There was no need to try to tell her how grateful. Aunt Amanda knew, Jan felt certain of that.

She had stood by the ship, as she had expressed it, and more important, she had taught Jan how to stand by.
As long as she remembered anything Jan thought that she would never forget the light that sprang into Ray's blue eyes when he saw that she had come back.
He had been bent over a portable tray, writing, as she approached. He did not glance up until she stood in front of him.
It was then she saw the light that came into his eyes, transmuting his whole face, more eloquent than any words of greeting.
"Jan! You came back. It's really you!"
"But why, I mean I don't understand." A faint frown creased his high forehead. Some of that light dimmed. "Did Bernice, or someone, send for you?"
Jan had expected such a question. She did not think a little white lie would be wrong. She said, "Why should anyone send for me? I've had a hard time staying away this long." That, at least, was the truth. He never would know how hard.
"It had seemed a long time," he answered. That welcoming ring had gone out of his voice. He spoke stiffly, as though it were an effort. His hands closed tightly around the arms of the wheelchair so that the knuckles stood out. He was telling himself sternly that he must hold everything. It's no go, he was saying, even if she has come back. That can't change things.
"It's been forever," Jan said, gravely.
"Aren't you going to ask me to sit down now that I'm here?" She made this light and gaily challenging. She looked around for another chair to pull up beside the wheelchair. There was a low hassock. She drew it over, sat down, practically at his feet.
"I could go down on my knees to you, my darling, she was thinking. But I must go slowly. There is so much ground to cover, so much I must make you see.
"I'm afraid that isn't very comfortable." His voice still was strained, as was the expression around his nice mouth now. The blue eyes held a wary look. His hands still gripped the chair.
"It's fine!" Her tone remained light and gay.
His eyes were hungrily taking in everything about her—the halo of her shining hair, her grave sweet look, the prettily flushed cheeks. To him, although she never would know it, she was the most beautiful girl in the whole wide world.
"Aren't you going to ask me how long I'm going to stay this time, Ray?"
He did not answer right away. His fingers read their grip and he let his hands rest on the tray, covering a sheet of paper on which he had been writing.
She would never know it, but it had been a letter to her, one of many letters he had written. Letters which he never had mailed.
"How long?" he said finally, adding hastily, "I don't imagine I'll be here much longer. Not much more they can do for me." And HUNT VICTIMS IN WRECKAGE—Rescue workers hack their way into a telescoped passenger car smashed in the collision of two deluxe streamlined trains near Woodstock, Ala. A part of the car's roof is jammed over the top of another car. Railway officials placed the number of dead at 16. About 60 persons were injured. The northbound Southerner, en route from New Orleans to New York, had just pulled out of a side track. The Crescent, bound from New York to New Orleans, roared around a bend and crashed into the Southerner head-on.

then for fear he had given himself away. "I'm not sure just where I'll be going—got all sorts of things in mind, naturally."
"That's fine!" The smile she gave him was bright, if her heart ached for him, knowing some of the thoughts that were behind the things he said. "I'll do them with you, Ray," she added softly. "I'll go wherever you go. For you see, I came back to stay and you can't send me away again, ever."
"I don't know what you mean." He had to look down on her again, that sweet smiling face, his little love. He could not let her say things like that. "You told me when you went away that you'd just been pretending."
"I was pretending again when I said that," Jan interrupted. There was no use in going over all the past. "But I'm not pretending now, Ray. All you have to do is look at me."

Savings And Loan Bodies To Grow

Savings and loan associations can expect to double their business from the present total of nearly $19 billion within the next 10 years, Walter J. L. Ray, president of the United States Savings and Loan League, told the organization's recent convention here.
"Today there are approximately eight million families with incomes of $5,000 a year as compared with only $570,000 10 years ago," Ray said. "In the past decade our total population increased by 14.4 per cent, but individual family units increased by 25 per cent."
"During the early years of the past decade, we saw the highest rate of marriages in history and a war-baby boom. In another decade the war babies will start coming of marriageable age and we can expect the rate of new family formation to zoom upward to a new all-time high."

Dog Eats Warm Cigarette Butts

AP Newsfeatures
INDIANAPOLIS — Lady, a khaki colored dog with an unusual appetite, serves as a walking ash-tray in the Robert M. Conlon household.

Lady eats cigarette butts—warm ones, that is. She loves them and begs for them. And eating them apparently doesn't harm her.
She doesn't like cold ones or stale ones. Those that have cooled overnight hold no attraction. But fresh ones, even with a bit of fire in them, are delicious to Lady.
The veterinarian who treats Lady says she has a perverted appetite but the tobacco habit doesn't seem to harm her. In fact, he says, as long as she eats fags she won't be bothered by worms. He says her case is "unusual."
Lady is five years old, part Boxer and part Great Dane.
Mrs. Rosalie Conlon says Lady's habit is a bit embarrassing at times because when guests smoke cigarettes Lady can hardly wait until the cigarettes are discarded, and if a guest should hold the cigarette within reach, Lady will snap at it.

Vietnam Economy Grows In War

SAIGON, Vietnam —(AP)—Vietnam's economy is on the upgrade even though there's a war on against the Communist-led Vietminh forces.
Increased rice exports are highlighting this trend. The Vietnamese minister of national economy, announced here that rice exports during the first 10 months of 1951 topped 320,000 tons. Vietnamese now optimistically predict that the outgoing shipments will reach around 500,000 tons in 1952.

One Caudle Statement Fails To Ring True On Procedures

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON —(AP)— It's hard to understand a statement made by Theron Lamar Caudle, recently fired by President Truman from his job as Assistant Attorney General.

Caudle has been testifying before a subcommittee of the House Ways and Means Committee. Caudle told the subcommittee that tremendous pressure had been put on him—when he was considering the fraud cases laid in his lap for decision by members of congress and others.

He hurriedly added that no one ever asked him to do anything wrong. Caudle said members of congress frequently found it difficult to believe a prominent constituent had done anything wrong. But after a conference the members of congress sometimes changed their minds, Caudle said. He added that a "good many innocent people have been completely exonerated" as a result of his conferences.

Then he made the statement which is hard to understand. He said some of those accused of tax violations didn't even suspect that they had violated the law.

When I asked an official in the Justice Department about this same point, he said it's possible a case could reach the department—after all the investigations—without the suspect having any idea he's in trouble—but it's not likely.

CAUDLE AND LAWYER AT HEARING:—Former Assistant Attorney General T. Lamar Caudle (right) listens intently to the advice of his attorney, Bernard Gallagher, in Washington Monday. They are preparing for testimony before a House Ways and Means subcommittee which is investigating operations of the Internal Revenue Department, and tax scandals. The subcommittee called Caudle for questioning about his handling of tax fraud prosecutions. He resigned from the Justice Department recently at President Truman's request. (AP Wirephoto).

In fact, he said, away down the line of investigation a suspect is allowed to bring in his lawyer to confer with the Internal Revenue Bureau.

Later, when the Justice Department gets the case and there's no record of the suspect's lawyer appearing anywhere, the man is notified he can have a lawyer talk over his case with the Justice Department.

Briefly, these are the steps involved in a tax fraud case, from the time it's discovered until it's brought to trial or dropped:

Jones files a return. Checking, a revenue agent has reason to believe there's fraud. He brings in a special agent, called an Intelligence Agent, of the Internal Revenue Bureau.

The agent investigates. If he finds evidence confirming the suspicion, and thinks there's enough to get a conviction in court, he makes a report to his boss, a Chief Intelligence Agent.

If the chief agrees there's enough evidence for a court trial, he recommends it to the Revenue Bureau's chief counsel for the region. There are four regional offices. There lawyers go over the evidence.

If they think there's a good case, they send it to the bureau's chief counsel in Washington. If he agrees, it goes to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue and from him to the criminal section of the Justice Department's tax division. There a lawyer is assigned to the case to decide whether there's enough evidence to warrant a trial. If he, too, agrees, he sends it to the Assistant Attorney General in charge of the tax division, the job which Caudle held.

Then, if the Assistant Attorney U. S. District Attorney in the district involved to bring the accused man to trial. If the Assistant Attorney General decides there's not enough evidence for a criminal trial, that ends that part of it.

Where there's no doubt of fraud but not enough evidence to bring a court conviction, the Internal Revenue Bureau will try to get the taxpayers to settle up, even if it means a civil suit where the evidence doesn't have to be so complete.

Police Wearing Winter Uniform

Greenville policemen have donned their new blue winter uniforms. They are tailor-made, comfortably fitting and are military in trim and insignia.

Patrolmen's blouse has one silver bar on a sleeve. Sergeant's uniform has a one-half inch and a one-fourth of an inch silver bar on a sleeve. Lieutenant's blouse has one gold bar on a sleeve. The captain's uniform has two gold bars, and the chief's uniform has three gold bars.

The new winter caps are more comfortable than those previously used here, Chief Guy C. Langston stated. The cap and visor are more flexible and the officers like them, he said.

Langston said during the winter the police officers will continue to wear their short leather jackets. The new blouses will be used on dress occasions. Including the chief, there are 26 members of the Greenville police force.

Staunch Alumnus Among 'Missing'

OKLAHOMA CITY —(AP)—L.H. Bengston, a staunch Oklahoma A alum, has been faithfully attending Aggie home football games this year. And his companions have been A. O. Martin and Thurman Gay, heads of the Aggies' Former Students Association.

Recently he received a copy of the alumni newspaper listing him as among those whose whereabouts is unknown.

LOOTING ENDED IN ROSE SINGAPORE —(AP) An American shipping lines representative has returned from Indonesia with reports that looting for a long time the scourge of shippers—has virtually ceased in Jakarta's main port of Tanjung Priok. T. J. Cokely of American President Lines, said Tanjung Priok is the "best operated port in Indonesia today."

Prizes Awarded To Finalists In Contest

Last night was award night at Greenville High School. A Hartwell Campbell, manager of Radio Station WGTC, presented the awards. In making the awards, Hartwell said, "I do not believe a more important speaking contest is in progress anywhere in the country nor one that is being of more benefit to the nation's youth than the one which the Jaycees have conducted in Pitt County." Bill Watson, chairman of the Jaycees, expressed the organization's profound gratitude to Campbell for being of such service throughout the entire contest.

Each of the finalists presented his speech at the meeting last night, and each was enthusiastically received. Bright, the county winner, traced the moulding of democracy from the men who formed the union to more recent leaders. From George Washington, "The true father of democracy," through Abraham Lincoln, who preserved democracy and restored the union, to "My church, my family, my privilege to vote, my very life—all this is democracy to me," he said.

Gutta Cannon likened democracy to a "tree of freedom." She dwelt fleetingly on the various freedoms democracy embraces: "freedom of religion, of speech, of the press, of assembly," and all the intangibles that form the "trunk of the democratic tree." "I know that I may speak my mind, and oppose publicly the opinions of others, regardless of their positions," she said. Gutta further stated, "And the bountiful fruits of the ever-green tree of democracy are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

The speaker from Ayden, Wilbur Jack, traced the first ideas of democracy from the ancient Spartans, through the crusades,

Presents Awards In Jaycee-Sponsored Contest

A. Hartwell Campbell presents the Jaycee award a $25 savings bond to Robert Bright of Belvoir-Falkland High School, winner of the Jaycee-sponsored county-wide "Voice of Democracy" essay contest. Certificate of Merit winners are left to right, Gutta Cannon of Farmville High School, Wilbur Jackson of Ayden High School, and Bob Langston of Greenville High School. Bill Watson, chairman of the Jaycee Essay Committee, witnesses the presentation.

Christopher Columbus' voyage to discover the land which was to become the "workshop of democracy," and the pilgrim fathers who came to this land to avoid religious persecution. He quoted the Declaration of Independence document which declared America free, then now and for all time, Jackson said, "History proves that America has recently gone to war in defense of the principles that make up her beloved form of government."

Bob Langston of Greenville High School, put life into a cross on the Korean battlefield, and asked his audience to imagine that the Christian cross over a dead American soldier was speaking. "I am speaking from the shell-pocked hills of Korea," he said. "Democracy still lives because of the sacrifices of myself and the men of many nations who lie here. Such sacrifices as mine have been in existence since time itself. Many times men have gone to war and died for the preservation of their ideals. I hope this sacrifice has not gone in vain."

Jaycee officials termed the contest "very successful," and intimated that the project would be carried on in the future. Several guests from all over the county were present to hear the reading of the essay.

Chinese Building Over-Sized Army Claim Observers

By ART-HUR GOUL
United Press Staff Correspondent
TAIPEI, Formosa (UP)—Nationalist military authorities are studying closely mainland intelligence reports that indicate the Chinese Communists are overbuilding the manpower of their armies.

The reports indicate, an official source said, that the Chinese Reds have 5,300,000 men under arms. This source said expert analysts of Communist military developments found that figure far more than the Communists need for their own purposes, either to continue the war in Korea or defend the mainland against an assault by the Nationalists.

The buildup of the forces and conscription of able-bodied youths is continuing in all sectors of the mainland, intelligence reports said.

More Than Needed
The reports also said the Chinese Red armed forces are already more than necessary to carry on the fight in Korea, and defend the mainland with the invasion of Indo-China added.

The analysts here have drawn no conclusions as to the purpose of massing troops in all regions of the mainland.

Their assessment of Chinese Red strength in round figures includes 900,000 to 1,000,000 in Korea and Manchuria, 100,000 in North China, 200,000 in the coastal areas of Kwangtung, Fukien and Chekiang Provinces, 300,000 in the Yunnan-Kwangsi region, 600,000 in central China around Hankow and 400,000 scattered in the west and northwest, including Sinkiang, Kang, Chinghai and Szechuan.

Experts here estimate that out of a total of 5,300,000 under arms, 2,500,000 are front-line regulars, the best trained and best equipped. They estimate that 8,000 are in security divisions and 2,000,000 in the "National Army" which is the counterpart of the National Guard in the United States.

Official sources here refused to say they believe the Chinese Red buildup is being carried out for aggression far beyond China's borders. They pointed out for speculative purposes only, however, that it is not logical to assume that Russia would want anyone, including an ally such as Red China, to build up its armed manpower in comparison to Russia's own forces.

The analysts further speculated that for the Chinese Reds to maintain standing armed forces of the present size, aside from adding to them, would be an economic burden which is far too great to carry.

"An official source said anyone wanting to speculate on the reasons for the Chinese Reds' all-out mobilization might consider the possibility of Chinese troops being used in areas outside their borders where the danger of surrender en masse would be at a minimum—in areas where the Chinese language is not used.

"It's something for the western world to think about," this source said.
