Shakedown Plot Story Backed Up

Atlanta Lawyer Testifies He Told T. Lamar Caudle Of Scheme, And Caudle Informed Him That Henry Grunewald Might Be Involved

WASHINGTON (UP)—An Atlanta lawyer testified today he told T. Lamar Caudle last August his name was being used in a reported $500,000 tax shakedown scheme, and that Caudle replied mystery man Henry W. Grunewald might be involved.

The lawyer was I. T. Cohen of Atlanta. He is a friend of Caudle, ousted assistant attorney general. Cohen told House tax fraud investigators he learned of the reported shakedown effort from Abraham Teitelbaum, Chicago attorney, on July 24 on a plane ride from Atlanta to Chicago.

Teitelbaum has testified that Frank Nathan, Caudle's friend and an accused "influence peddler," and an associate, Bert K. Naster of Hollywood, Fla., warned him last July that if he didn't pay them $500,000 he would go to the penitentiary.

Teitelbaum was in tax difficulties with the government at the time. Teitelbaum said that his difficulties took a turn for the worse after he told Nathan and Naster to "go to hell."

Shortly after the conversation with Teitelbaum, Cohen said, Caudle returned from a trip to Europe and he went to see him.

Cohen said Caudle's first reaction to the report that his name was being used in connection with the reported shakedown was anger and indignation. He immediately telephoned Nathan in Miami and told him to quit using his name, and to come to Washington at once to discuss the matter.

Cohen said he also told Caudle of Teitelbaum's report that, as part of the shakedown scheme, an anonymous caller, using a "deep, guttural" voice with a German accent, had telephoned him that he had better pay up. The caller, he said, advised that Nathan and Naster had "Caudle and (Charles) Oliphant in their vest pocket."

Cohen said he suggested to Caudle that this voice might be traced. "Did he make a reply to this?" demanded Bruno Schachner, assistant counsel to the tax investigating House subcommittee.

"Yes, he did," replied Cohen. "He said, that might be Grunewald. He's a Dutchman. That might be his voice."

Atty. Gen. J. Howard McGrath and perhaps former Internal Revenue Commissioner George J. Schoeneman will be questioned tomorrow. Charles Oliphant, who resigned last week as chief counsel of the Internal Revenue Bureau, will testify Wednesday.

The subcommittee planned to question McGrath about his approval of Caudle's acceptance of a $5,000 commission on the sale of an airplane to a representative of two men under indictment for tax-fraud.

Republican Reps. Robert W. Kean of New Jersey and John W. Byrnes of Wisconsin, members of the subcommittee, agreed that the tax scandal investigation would continue even if Mr. Truman makes some "dramatic" move to clean up the Internal Revenue Bureau.

They said the subcommittee will make no "demands" on Mr. Truman for a house cleaning in the agency.

TB Association Field Secretary Chosen For Pitt

Directors Name Mrs. J. B. Spilman For Post; Begins Duties January 16

By MURIEL SHOTWELL, Reflector Staff Writer

The Board of Directors of the Pitt County T. B. Association appointed Mrs. J. B. Spilman as a full-time worker in the position of field secretary at a call meeting of the board Friday.

Mrs. Spilman will begin duties as a worker with the association beginning January 16, 1952. In the meantime, she will visit the State T. B. Association office for a training course and neighboring counties, Lenoir, Wayne, and Nash-Edgemore, to observe work being carried on where there is a full-time worker.

She will work in harmony with the Pitt County Health Department and the Pitt County Welfare Department in creating community facilities for education, case-finding, treatment, and rehabilitation of the tubercular in Pitt County. Mrs. Spilman will also handle the seal sale from which funds of the association are derived.

The field secretary will work with the executive committee which is composed of K. T. Funtrell, W. E. Marshall, Lelia Higgs, Dr. T. G. Basnight, and J. H. Waldrop, ex-officio.

The association has already purchased an x-ray machine and given it to the county health department for the detection of T. B. in Pitt County there are 100 active cases of T. B., and the county ranks as second in the state as the number of cases, and third in the number of deaths resulting from T. B.

The North Carolina T. B. Association has urged Pitt County to have a full-time case worker. Waldrop said, "but the matter had been deferred until the board could purchase an x-ray machine and have mass x-ray in the county, all of which is paid for out of seal sale money."

They said the subcommittee will make no "demands" on Mr. Truman for a house cleaning in the agency.

Kean said Internal Revenue Commissioner John B. Dunlap was "complacent" at first, but now is making "good efforts" to clean up his agency.

Dunlap said today in a copyrighted interview with the news magazine U. S. News & World Report that "there is no excuse for the things that have happened."

"They must be corrected and are being corrected, and will continue to be corrected until every sore spot has been taken out of the picture," he said.

President Truman And His Top Advisers Confer; Korean Truce And Domestic Issues Discussed

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Truman went into a huddle with his military and diplomatic advisers today at an hour-long meeting to discuss "important decisions" that will be required if the Korean truce talks are to succeed.

The advisers avoided reporters by entering and leaving the White House through the basement.

Mr. Truman cut short his Florida vacation to canvass the world situation and deal with the political crisis brought on by the tax scandals. But he emphasized that "there is no emergency."

The President conferred with the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Defense Secretary Robert A. Lovett and Undersecretary James E. Webb as the Korean truce talks are to succeed.

Mr. Truman said last night after his hurry-up return that he wanted to see McGrath, but declined to link the meeting with the tax scandals.

But it was reported that McGrath, under fire for alleged irregularities in the Justice Department, will urge the President to set up a bipartisan group to give the government a thorough house cleaning.

Informed sources said Mr. Truman was genuinely alarmed at the extent of the official corruption uncovered by the House ways and means subcommittee investigating the tax scandals, and feels drastic action may be needed to prevent serious political repercussions.

Mr. Truman also is expected to look into differences between Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson and the joint chiefs over arms production schedules. Wilson and the military leaders were reported to have threshed out their differences yesterday in an unusual Sunday meeting which sides said was called because a mutually-suitable time could not be arranged during the week.

As for Korea, Mr. Truman said "important decisions" are required if the truce negotiations are to succeed. Quick action is necessary because the 30-day agreement on a cease-fire line expires Dec. 27.

Price Conscious

NEW YORK (AP)—To make officers and GI's cost-conscious, the Army is putting price tags on its equipment.

The price tags, says Secretary of the Army Frank Pace, are a "dramatic way of getting across to the soldier not only how important his job is, but how important it is that he use his equipment wisely and well."

As for officers, Pace adds, they also find it worthwhile to become economy-minded because it may mean a promotion.

Pace explained the Army's new "cost-consciousness" program during a Columbia Broadcasting System newscast yesterday.

Allies Demand Reds Begin Talk On Prisoner-Exchange

West Europe Not Meeting Targets

WON'T REACH REARMAMENT TARGETS FOR SEVERAL YEARS; SHAKY ECONOMIES ENDANGER WEST'S DEFENSE PLANNING

By R. H. SHACKFORD, United Press Staff Correspondent

PARIS (UP)—Western Europe is not going to reach its rearmament targets next year — or even in the years immediately thereafter.

Moreover, many of the countries on whom the defense of Western Europe depends will have a difficult time merely staying afloat financially.

As a result, over-all Atlantic Pact plans for the strategic defense of Europe are in jeopardy.

It is not a question of whether it is possible to rearm more quickly. It is possible.

Britain, for instance, spent more than half her national income during World War II on fighting the war. But this year she will not spend even her promised 12 per cent on peace-time rearmament.

Under full war mobilization, democracies obviously can do a lot. But the truth is that in peacetime there is so severe a dollar shortage — beyond which democratic governments dare not tread.

Here are some of the specific problems:

BRITAIN — Prime Minister Winston Churchill admits the $13,100,000,000 rearmament program for three years is too big for such a short time. He hasn't and probably won't cut it. But he will cut the amount of the 1951-52 targets and they will not be met until the 1954 targets until well after 1955 or even 1956.

On top of that, Britain again faces financial bankruptcy. The drain on her gold and dollar reserves is so severe that dollar payments will be completely cut off unless there is a change. And Britain is the keystone to U. S. hopes for defense of Europe.

FRANCE — Not counting Germany, here is the great pool of military manpower. France promised 10 "ready to fight" divisions by the end of 1951. But five of the 10 are only about 75 per cent of strength because of lack of officers and non-commissioned officers.

Indo-China is a terrific financial and military drain on France and for a while France was losing more officers in that war than she was producing at home.

The military budget for 1952 is planned at $90,000,000,000. But inflation is so great that it would take 1,500,000,000,000 (trillion) francs ($4,200,000,000) today to do the same thing — and the spiral still goes up. Military production is almost nil except for 5,000 French bazookas a month.

The U. S. has promised France $600,000,000 in one form or another to help.

Ice, Snow, Cold Slows Fighting Of Korea Armies

LITTLE ACTIVITY ON FRONT; SCATTERED RAIDS BY COMMUNIST PATROLS

8TH ARMY HQ, Korea (UP)—Ice, snow and low temperatures gripped the Allies and the enemy today and there was little activity in the "twitching" war in Korea.

United Nations troops beat off four minor Communist probing attacks in a snowstorm on the city east-central front today.

An 8th Army patrol reported only routine patrol activity along the remainder of the 145-mile front. Temperatures dropped to five degrees above zero near the east coast.

Three Communist forces up to a platoon in strength struck at U.N. lines northeast of Puchonbong Valley on the east-central front, but all were beaten off without loss of ground.

The fourth probing attack involved only 15 enemy troops who were thrown back northwest of Yangju after a 40-minute fight.

On the western front, about 30 Reds infiltrated U.N. positions Sunday night as far as a unit command post before being driven off in a brief exchange of fire.

Several "moderately heavy" clashes between U.N. and Communist patrols were reported in the Korangpo area of the western front Sunday, but actively slackened after dark.

South Korean forces announced they have killed 878 Communist guerrillas and captured 796 others since starting "Operation Rathole" in the southeast Korean mountains a week ago.

It seemed likely here that the Allies' next step may be awaiting instructions from Washington, where President Truman met with the chiefs of staff today.

Joy sent word to the Reds that he has appointed representatives to a subcommittee on the prisoner question and proposed that they meet Tuesday (11 p.m. Monday EST).

"If you are in fact interested in an early armistice and in the humanitarian features of a consequent early settlement of prisoner of war matters," he said, "we can see no justification for any further delay in your acceptance of our proposal."

Joy's blunt statement was read to the Reds by U.S. Maj. Gen. Howard M. Turner at a meeting of the joint subcommittee already working — and deadlocked — on the question of policing an armistice.

The meeting lasted only 41 minutes. It was just long enough for the Communists to say they could not answer at the time the Allied demand for immediate talks on the prisoner question and for the Allies to say they could not answer at that time a Communist inspection team.

The subcommittee decided to meet again at 11 a.m. Tuesday (9 p.m. Monday EST). But it was clear that both sides were knocking heads in a question match in which one or the other must give ground or the talks face the possibility of collapse.

Accuse Communists Of Repulsive Blackmail; Demand Couched In Near-Ultimatum Form; Spokesman Admits There Is Little United Nations Can Do About It

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—The United Nations accused the Communists today of blackmail "a thousand times more repulsive" than that of the lowest gangsters and demanded the Reds begin talks tomorrow on an exchange of war prisoners.

Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, head of the U.N. truce delegation, couched his demand for prisoner discussions in terms approaching an ultimatum.

But Brig. Gen. William P. Nuckols, spokesman for the delegation, later told newsmen there is nothing the Allies can do about it at this stage if the Reds reject the demand.

Nuckols said the Reds were attempting to blackmail the Allies into accepting the enemy demand for "neutral" policing of an armistice by stalling on the prisoner question.

The "Voice of the U.N. Command" broadcasts from Tokyo were even more bitter.

"This Communist blackmail, which is a thousand times more repulsive than the ordinary act of kidnaping by the lowest form of gangster, should not come as a complete surprise to the free world," the broadcast said.

"The Communists have long been hostages for 'ransom' of one type or another in Europe. Perhaps the most blatant example of the tactic emanates from Red China, where the Communists hold thousands of defenseless victims for the sole purpose of extorting money from their more fortunate relatives outside the Iron Curtain."

It seemed likely here that the Allies' next step may be awaiting instructions from Washington, where President Truman met with the chiefs of staff today.

There were suspicions that the Communists were stalling for time until the Red capitals of Pyongyang, Peking and possibly Moscow make up their minds whether to abandon their stance that the policing question must be settled before truce negotiators start discussing war prisoners.

WASHINGTON (UP)—The average full-time federal worker earns $3,954 a year, the government reported today.

The Civil Service Commission, reporting on the 1,004,624 full-time government employees, said the pay scale of the 885,925 clerical, administrative and professional workers ranges from $2,586 to $14,800, with an average of $4,066.

Sucked Into Jet Airscoop; Lives

GLASGOW, Scotland (UP)—A Canadian Air Force radio technician could hardly believe he was alive today after a Sabrejet sucked him out of his rubber boots and headfirst into the jet engine scoop.

Aircraftman Albert William Richards of Montreal, Que., escaped with two blackeyes, some torn ligaments and bruises. The incident occurred at Renfrew airport yesterday.

One mechanic saw Richards' empty boots and another throttled back the engine. The pair hauled him out by his feet.

The unit commander said he knew of only three similar cases and "they are all dead."

His Junkpile Is Army's Arsenal

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—A lot of people were interested in junk dealer Ira Monroe, 36, Camden, N.J., who went out in a rowboat yesterday to pick up some copper wire and scrap iron.

Army security guards nabbed Monroe and called in the FBI. The FBI questioned him and summoned a U.S. attorney who swore out a warrant and served it on Philadelphia police.

Police jailed Monroe for a hearing before a U.S. commissioner today. It was charged that Monroe's scrap source was the Frankford Arsenal here.

Prominent N.C. Legislator Dies Of Heart Attack

SALISBURY (AP)—State Rep. Kerr Craig Ramsay died of a heart attack here last night.

Ramsay, 42, had represented Rowan County in the North Carolina General Assembly since 1940. He was Speaker of the House in 1949.

During his career, the veteran legislator had been mentioned several times as a possible candidate for governor. Only recently he had announced that "at the present time" he did not intend to become a candidate for any office.

Volcano Again Thunders Over Devastated Island

ABOARDSHIP OFF CAMIGUIN, P.I. (UP)—A new atomic-like eruption of Mt. Hibok-Hibok today sprayed more lava and ash over the deserted, devastated countryside where 1,000 to 2,000 inhabitants perished last week.

All survivors of the initial eruptions already have been evacuated from the area, but the big new explosive eruption and several smaller ones kept back rescue parties seeking to recover bodies.

The volcano belched forth smoke and flame six times in an hour and 15 minutes this morning. The first and biggest eruption came at 3:55 a.m., sending up a huge, fiery column which mushroomed at a great height as though from an atomic bomb explosion.

The eruptions were clearly visible from this Philippine navy landing ship which is carrying 21 severely-burned victims of earlier eruptions and 700 other refugees from Camiguin Island to Cagayan de Oro on the north shore of Mindanao Island, just to the south.

The main eruption was second only to that which blew the top off Mt. Hibok-Hibok last Tuesday.

Health Secretary Dr. Juan Salcedo Jr. said he would return to Camiguin if the new violence caused additional casualties, but this appeared doubtful. He already has declared 70 per cent of the island around the volcano a permanent danger zone and uninhabitable.

The zone includes the wrecked town of Mambajao, the island capital, which had a normal population of 25,000. Camiguin's total population was more than 65,000.

Salcedo completed a tour of the danger zone Sunday, just as the fring of a typhoon lashed Camiguin, adding to the distress of 16,000 or more refugees huddled in government reception centers awaiting evacuation to Mindanao.

The Reflector today began its 58th year of publication as a daily newspaper.

The first Daily Reflector appeared on December 10, 1894 as an experimental project which was to be on a trial period of one month. The newspaper was founded in 1882 as the Eastern Reflector, a weekly, by the late D. J. Whitchard, and the late Julian R. Whitchard.

In 1885 the elder brother moved elsewhere to engage in the newspaper business and D. J. Whitchard became the sole owner and publisher.

Egypt Talks Ending Diplomatic Relations With British Gov't

CAIRO (AP)—Egypt's government today considered severing diplomatic relations with Britain following leveling of an Egyptian village by road-building British soldiers.

Acting Foreign Minister Ibrahim Pasha said a decision would be made soon. The cabinet held two lengthy sessions yesterday but a spokesman said only that Anglo-Egyptian relations were discussed.

In the Suez Canal zone the British announced that two of their soldiers were stabbed, beaten and killed and a third was critically wounded in Ismailia's Arab quarter Saturday night.

An Egyptian communique reported wounds received in the fighting at Suez last Tuesday, raising to 61 the number of Egyptians reported killed.

The Egyptian cabinet yesterday also approved a royal decree confiscating the lands of the 78-year-old British-founded Gezira Sporting Club in Cairo, center of much of the capital's social life.

The club's 150-acre establishment includes a race course, polo field and golf course, leased from the government and situated in Cairo's most expensive foreign residential section.

Informants said that the cabinet also decided yesterday to discharge all Britons employed by Egyptian government departments, the order reportedly would affect about 250 teachers, technicians and other experts.

The proposal to sever diplomatic relations resulted "directly from British forces' aggression in Suez," said the acting Foreign Minister in referring to the demolition Saturday of an Arab village outside the city.

B. Spilman, Jr., a fall bride. Receiving guests at the door was Mrs. W. I. Wooten. Mrs. Waldrop was at the door between the entrance hall and the drawing room, where the receiving line was formed. Standing in line to be presented to the callers were Miss Massey, Mrs. M. B. Massey, Mrs. Rose, Mrs. Moss, Mrs. C. W. Hearne, mother of Mrs. Moss, Miss Brown, Mrs. White, Miss Duke and Mrs. Spilman. Those in the receiving line were wearing corsages of white chrysanthemums, presented to them upon their arrival by the hostesses. In the dining room where the guests were served an ice cream, pale pink and delicate green were combined in table appointments and refreshments to carry out a pastel color motif. The table was covered with a green linen cloth with lace insertions and centered with a floral arrangement of pink gladioli and snapdragons in a silver epergne. Triple silver candelabra with pink tapers were at either side of the centerpiece, and from silver trays Mrs. M. K. Blount served bridal ice from one end of the table and Mrs. Leon Russell poured demi tasse from the other. Assisting in serving salts nuts, pastries and mints were Misses Nelson Blount, Lenna Rose, Betsy Holden and Frances Bendall. The buffet in the dining room was lovely with banks of magnolia leaves in which nestled Christmas ornaments and crystal candelabra. Lighted candles in hurricane lamps offered more illumination on a serving table. Elsewhere in the home red berries, magnolia leaves, scarlet gladioli and candles in brass holders were used to grace the rooms. Several hundred guests called between the hours of 4:00-5:30 p.m. to offer congratulations to those who were honored by the hostesses.

Church Will Present Its Sixth Christmas Tableau

Junior Club Has Business Meet

The Junior Woman's Club met on Wednesday night at the Woman's Club for its regular monthly business meeting.

Mrs. Tom Brown, president, presided.

Routine reports were heard from all officers and committee chairmen and among the new items of business which were handled was the planning of the club's annual Christmas party.

Members voted to have a covered dish supper at the clubhouse on Wednesday night, December 19, to which the husbands or friends of members would be invited. Following the supper at the clubhouse the members will go to the home of their sponsor, Mrs. J. B. Spilman, for a social hour. Former club members are extended an invitation to attend this affair.

It was reported at the meeting that the sum of $46 was realized from the bake sale which was held on Wednesday preceding Thanksgiving. The club had in the past sent $10 for a CARE package to Korea, and a letter was read which stated that the money had been used to purchase a package of food.

A letter of thanks was read from a boy at the correctional school in Rocky Mount, to whom the club had sent a birthday present.

A letter from Carl Goerch was read suggesting that the club sell his almanac as a project. Members voted to take orders only from club members who might desire a copy rather than try to sell them generally.

At the conclusion of the short meeting, the hostesses, Mrs. Wyatt Highsmith and Mrs. Kathleen Whichard, served hot gingerbread with lemon sauce and coffee to members present.

This week the First Presbyterian Church will present its annual Christmas Tableau for the sixth time.

The performance, which will be presented on the steps of the church Tuesday and Wednesday nights from 7:30 to 9:00, will picture three scenes long associated with Christmas.

The three scenes will depict the Herald Angel's appearance to the shepherds keeping watch over their flocks, the shepherd's adoration at the manger, and the wise men's visit to the Christ child.

The entire Christmas story may be seen and heard within a forty-five minute period. Appropriate scripture readings and prayer will precede each performance, and special Christmas music and effective lighting will accompany each tableau.

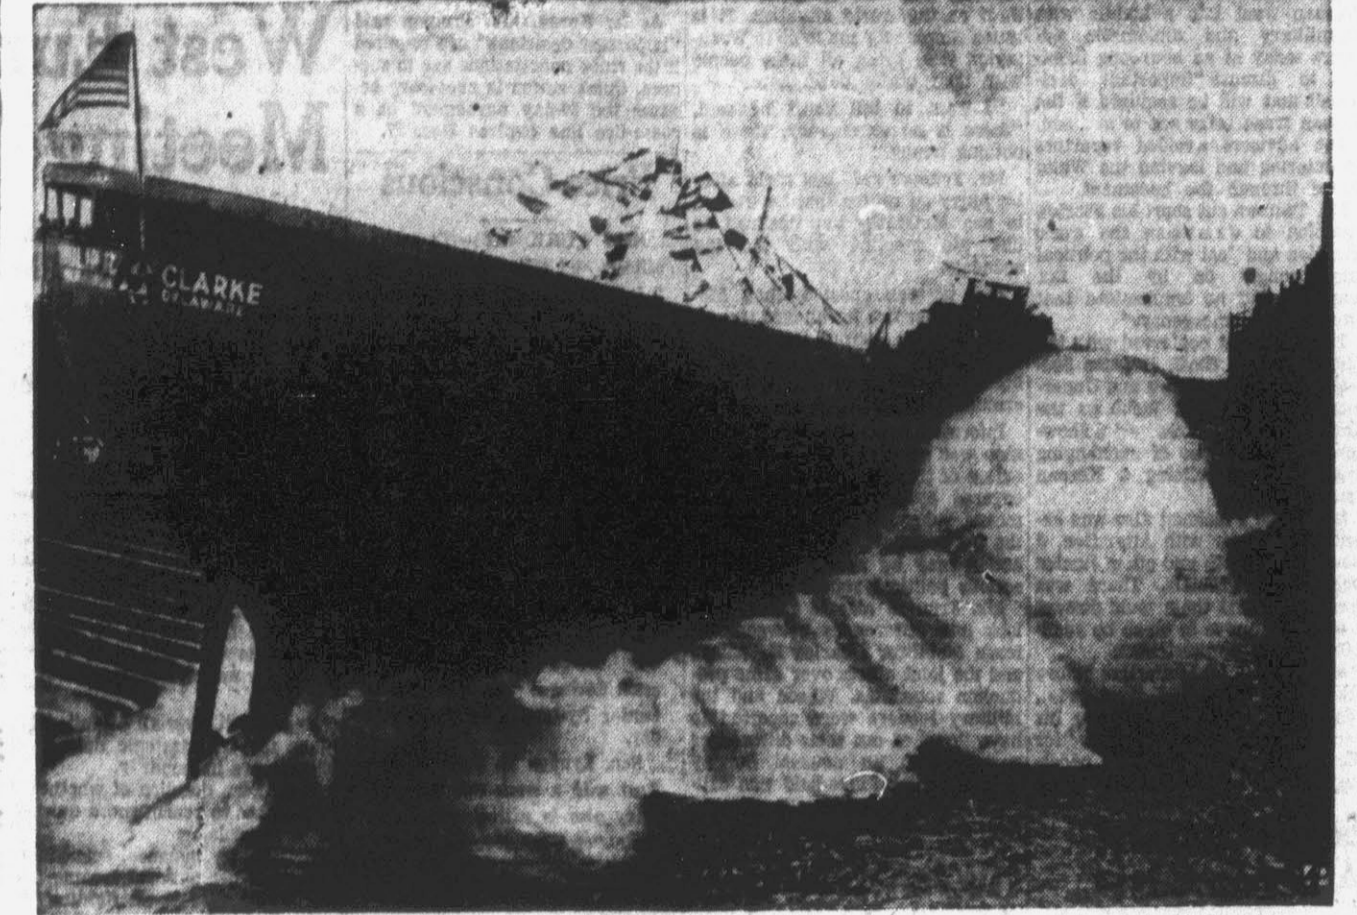

The Christmas program, which is being presented for the sixth consecutive year, will feature performances by the young people of the church. Approximately 100 persons are scheduled to take part in the ceremonies, and the pastor, Leonard W. Topping, announced that not only church members but the public is cordially invited to attend.

In years past, the tableau has attracted hundreds of townspeople and it is customary for police to block off the street bordering the church during the performance.

Realistic Air Raid Drill Fatal

LIMA, O. (UP)—Patrolman Charles F. Bozeman, 43, died today of injuries he received when a bomb used to add realism to an air-raid drill exploded prematurely.

Another officer, George Wilson, narrowly escaped injury when another bomb exploded too soon. Six other persons were injured, one of them critically, when an ambulance making a simulated emergency run collided with two autos.

Rodgers-Hammerstein Program Wins Applause

Four talented young singers and a chorus of fourteen men and women were received with enthusiastic applause as star performers of the entertainment "Rodgers and Hammerstein Nights" presented Saturday evening at East Carolina College. A well-trained orchestra, with Crane Calder as conductor, contributed to the excellence of the performance.

The program was sponsored by the East Carolina College Entertainment Committee as the second number in the series scheduled for 1951-1952. The evening of hit tunes from more than a decade of musicals by Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II proved popular with a large audience from the campus, Greenville, and other localities in this section of the state. The four principals, talented as singers and youthful and attractive in appearance—Leigh Allen, soprano; Earl William, tenor; Andrew Gaine, baritone; and Carol Jones, mezzo-soprano—won the audience with their fine interpretations of Rodgers and Hammerstein favorites. Men in the chorus, singing the popular "There Is Nothin' Like a Dame" from "South Pacific" gave the hit song of the evening.

Costumes used for the performance were attractive. Women in the chorus wore during Part I short white bouffant evening gowns with shoulder drapes and sashes of brilliant green and blue tulle and during Part II, glamorized pink-dotted gandy pin-flores. Miss Jones' and Miss Leigh's evening dresses were designed by Audre. The music for the evening, both songs and orchestral arrangements, included the cream of such popular shows as "South Pacific," "Oklahoma," "The King and I," "Carousel," and "State Fair."

Why Not Use Dixie Fertilizer And Try for the Dixie $1,000 Per Acre Tobacco Club in 1952

COSTS YOU NOTHING!
 See Your DIXIE FERTILIZER DEALER Or Write DIXIE CHEMICAL CORP. Kinston, N. C.

Gordon Aldridge, prominent tobacco grower of Laurel Grange, Rt. 1, says, "I tried Dixie Gold Leaf again this year and must say I had the darndest crop of tobacco I have ever had. Harvested 62 barns of tobacco off 41 1/2 acres. All but one of these barns were 18' by 20'. I still have more yield of tobacco than I've ever had on that much ground after losing five and ten barns in the field because I had no room. If they make Dixie Fertilizer any better I'll have to build a whole new set of tobacco barns and hire an extra set of hands to barn it. Dixie has sure done all right on my farm. I sure consider Dixie Fertilizer the finest in the field."

Morning Coffee Given For Miss Duke And Others

At a delightful Saturday morning coffee hour, Miss Margaret Lee Duke, who will be married the latter part of this month, was honored by Mrs. John Clark and her daughter, Miss Carolyn Clark.

Sharing honors with Miss Duke were Miss Jane Massey and Miss Melba Brown, brides to be of this week.

Greetings were extended to the guests at the door by the hostesses and the honorees, who were wearing corsages of white Garza chrysanthemums. After being served in the dining room, they gathered in conversational groups in the den and living room for a social hour.

Pyrantha Lertnes, magnolia leaves and poinsettias were used in attractive arrangements in these rooms, while in the dining room a bridal motif of green and white was used.

The refreshment table was laid with a white cut work cloth and bore a unique floral arrangement. An assortment of white carnations and narcissi were placed in an antique celery stand which was at one end of the table. A long rope of pearls was spiraled around the container and laid down the center of the table to the silver coffee service at the opposite end. Tiny flowers and bits of fern were intermingled with the beads to make a most attractive decoration for the table. On the buffet banked against a large mirror was a winter arrangement of magnolia leaves and clusters of grapes.

Mrs. Roy Coburn, mother of Miss Duke, poured coffee, and assisting the hostesses in serving party sandwiches, chicken salad in patty shells, bridal pastries, nuts and decorated mints were Mrs. Ed Williford and Mrs. Virgil Clark.

Watched Youths Die, One By One

DENISON, Tex. (AP)—A west Texas teenager today recounted the harrowing experience of watching his companions slip, one by one, from their overturned boat in cold, wind-swept Lake Texoma on the Texas-Oklahoma border. Four youths drowned.

The lad, Robert Davenport, 17, Odessa, spent nearly 30 bitter hours on the lake, much of the time in sub-freezing weather. He was in the water about 10 hours, his numb body buffeted by 10-15 foot waves.

Temperature on the lake dropped to 20 to 25 degrees, weathermen estimated. A 15-18 miles-per-hour wind, whipped through Davenport's soaked clothing, sapped what little warmth his body generated.

The teenager was semi-conscious when found on a small island. His rescuer almost died, a find him. Dr. W. C. McCaskill, Dallas dentist, was leaving when he heard a thin cry and found the numb youth.

Dr. McCaskill had gone to the island to investigate the half-submerged boat, which had washed up on the island.

The four companions were Harry Kirklin, 18, Abilene, and three other Odessa youths, Jerry Harrod, Robert Reed and Shirley Thomas.

The oldest charge that ignorant Chinese used to make against Christian medical missionaries—, that they "killed" children in their institutions—has been leveled by Chinese communists in Canton against five French-Canadian nuns at the Holy Infant Orphanage in Canton. Two of them have been sentenced to five-year prison terms and the others to expulsion from China for "wifely murdering" 2-116 Chinese babies at the orphanage.

Reports are that a "people's court" of some 6,000 Chinese mobsters gave the nuns a "public trial" for these "crimes of the imperialist missionaries." The nuns are sisters of the Order of the Immaculate Conception, and are from Montreal, Canada.

The purpose of the meeting will be the formation of a new pack which will be sponsored by the Methodist Church. Jake Hadley will assume the responsibilities as cub pack leader.

The meeting will be held in the Junior Department of the new Educational Building.

Women In The Church

In Orchard Center, N. J., a woman's missionary society composed of migrant workers harvesting crops in the region turned the tables by raising over $100 to help a nearby church in financial distress. Such societies are part of the program conducted by twenty-three Protestant denominations working through the migrant service of the National Council of Churches of Christ in America. College women and pre-ministerial students were among the 392 summer service workers who taught literacy courses, conducted worship services and led recreation for more than 120,000 seasonal workers.

There are more than 8,000,000 women in the world who cannot read and write, according to computations made by Dr. Frank C. Laubach, missionary leader of worldwide literacy campaigns. The Committee on World Literacy and Christian Literature, formed to promote his educational work, says that until very recent years, social custom in many parts of the world would have prevented women from learning, and would even have prevented them from wanting to learn. Nor could they learn if men were the teachers, nor leave their homes to go to school, nor commend themselves to their husbands by leaving their household duties to learn anything. Now, however, the Committee says, the new concept of womanhood which missionaries have taught, plus the rapid and simple methods of Dr. Laubach in teaching literacy, has opened the door for the speedy overcoming of this handicap to learning by the women of most of the nations.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
LOOK OUT FOR FOG
Many years ago the steamer Mariposa set out from a Canadian port determined to out-sail all the vessels that started with her. A heavy fog settled down, and while the other ships reduced their speed, the Mariposa steamed along with no regard whatsoever for danger. The next morning as the other steamers crept out to sea, they encountered lifeboats filled with terrified survivors calling upon the slowgoing and carefully navigated vessel to rescue them.

Courage and foolhardiness may at first glance resemble each other; in fact so much so as to be almost indistinguishable. But the same is true of the mushroom and toadstool. The former is food, the latter poison. He who hesitates, dabbles, or shrinks from making a decision when the day is clear and action is indicated, does himself and the whole world a grave disservice. But, on the other hand, he who plunges along under full steam when fog has settled down upon his sea lanes, is getting himself ready for shipwreck.

A Sordid Example Of College Behavior

There is no excuse for the vandalism and violence displayed by the students of State College over the use of the William Neal Reynolds coliseum.

On Thursday night when the crowd of some 10,000 people left the ice-capades to return to their homes throughout North Carolina, the State College students built a rock and fire barricade to snarl the traffic and harass the individuals who had attended the show at the coliseum. On Friday night the students formed a human barricade to snarl the traffic. They let air out of the tires of several hundred of the cars parked in the parking lot, and they threw rocks at the cars and jeered as the police officers attempted to get the traffic moving. The police were forced to use tear gas to break up the mob action by the students and get the traffic moving.

In the opinion of The Reflector the demonstrations of the State College students are one of the most base spectacles of mob activity ever entered into by a group of college students in North Carolina.

We only hope the investigation which has been launched by the State College officials will bring up the leaders in the movement for violence, and the individuals who are responsible for inciting the activity should not be allowed to remain members of the student body.

The gripe of the State College students against the management of the coliseum had grounds. But as supposedly mature college students, the State College boys should have realized that mob violence is no way to settle a dispute of that sort. It could have been worked out with the officials without such attacks on the general public as the students staged Thursday and Friday nights. The William Neal Reynolds coliseum was not constructed solely for the use of the students of State College. It was constructed for the use of the general public of North Carolina as well as the students of the college, and the public certainly has the right to take advantage of the facilities without being intimidated by a group of hot-headed young men.

These State College students who participated in this despicable action some day will make up a portion of the leaders of North Carolina. They have certainly set a sordid example to be followed by other groups in the state.

A Real Christmas Gift For Many Farm Families

Some of the people in the rural sections of Pitt County are going to receive a Christmas present this month for which they have been looking for years. There are others who receive the same present, but it may be delayed until February or early March. We have reference to the electrical service which is being supplied to some 1,200 rural families in Pitt, Beaufort and Craven counties by the rural electrification project of the Greenville Utilities.

It was two years ago this month that the Utilities Commission began work on the project which would bring electric power to more than 1,000 farm families in the three counties who were by-passed in the construction of electric lines throughout the rural areas. The project had to go through the federal channels of the Rural Electrification Administration, and was well entangled in the government red tape for more than a year. It was just slightly over two months ago that the last of the red tape was shaken off, and the Utilities Commission was able to begin actual construction work on the $396,000 project.

By Christmas many of the families in the rural areas of the county will be able to toss aside their lanterns and begin enjoying the artificial light that comes with only the flick of a button. They will be able to enjoy the use of radios and innumerable other modern conveniences which follow closely on the heels of the introduction of electrical service in every locality.

These rural families have been waiting for years for the Christmas present they will receive during the next few months. For the farm families who have been left in the backwash of modern living by the lack of electrical service, the new electric lines will be probably the grandest Christmas gift they have ever received.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—Although President Truman's inauguration of a mild set of fair employment standards for minority groups of employees has produced angry growls from what Franklin D. Roosevelt used to call the South's "unreconstructed rebels," it marks the first step in a carefully devised strategy to appease the rank-and-file voters by passing the Byrd-Byrnes-Talmadge leadership in the South.

Once the sting is removed from the Negro issue below the Mason and Dixon Line, Mr. Truman's advisers believe that the economic advancement in that area under twenty years of Democratic administrations will prevent any southern state from casting its ballot for a Republican President, even though the candidate be the popular "Ike" Eisenhower.

The new fair employment proposal is so weak, since the administrative board would have only advisory authority, that it has provoked protests from colored leaders, and from Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota. He insists on strong-arm enforcement of equality-of-labor laws after their enactment by Congress.

APPROACH—But this dilution of the President's original Civil Rights charter is expected to be only the beginning.

It is believed that he will now agree to waive his demands for anti-poll tax and anti-lynching legislation, or else ask Congress in his January message to make only a pious and meaningless declaration on these problems. The same sort of watered-down plank in the Democrats' 1952 platform might soften up even the Byrd-Byrnes rebellion.

This more considerate approach to the South is attributed to the influence of the new Democratic National Chairman, Frank E. McKinney of Indianapolis. He does not share the brusque and belligerent philosophy of his predecessor, William M. Boyle Jr., that "We can win in 1952 without the electoral vote of a single southern state."

SLOGAN—Mr. McKinney has had time and opportunity to take a few political beatings since he assumed the chairmanship only a few days before the November 6 elections. He has studied the anti-Democratic returns on that day, which brought bad news to headquarters from both North and South.

He saw startling upsets in New York and Philadelphia because of the voters' indignation over corruption in government at local and national levels. His own city of Indianapolis turned out a Democratic Mayor in a campaign based deliberately on issues involving the Truman Administration. The G.O.P.'s slogan in this contest was: "Elect Clark your Mayor and stop Trumanism now!"

PREMONITION—A more premonitory event, perhaps, was the election of a Republican Mayor in Little Rock, Ark., for the first time in seventy years. The outcome here warned Mr. McKinney, as well as Mr. Truman, that historic Democrats in the South might be getting ready and willing to vote under the once hated emblem of the G.O.P.

The Democratic chairman has also noted that his political opposite, Guy George Gabrielson, as well as Senator Robert A. Taft, had been making speeches in several southern cities on the express invitation of non-political organizations.

CAUTION—Another shrewd Democratic mind aware of these developments has been Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson of Kentucky, who spent Thanksgiving with Mr. Truman at Key West.

As one who may have a definite stake in the result of next year's Presidential election, assuming that he is tapped for the top spot on the ticket, Mr. Vinson's inclination would probably be to counsel caution.

The importance of the Truman-McKinney shift may be measured by the fact that only a few weeks ago, in fighting a challenging statement, the President declared that he would submit his original and provocative Civil Rights program to the January session.

STRATEGY—The new political strategy in Dixie contemplates a campaign based on economic rather than social or racial issues. It will emphasize the almost miraculous transformation which has come over that region during the regimes as they existed when Republicans sat in the White House.

Democratic orators and literature will highlight such advantages as these: Improved roads, rural electrification, TVA's magnetic attraction to industrial emigrants from other sections, higher wages, boom prices for such products as tobacco, cotton, rice, peanuts, oil, natural gas etc. Social Security benefits, lower freight rates for import of raw materials and export of manufactured articles, the H-bomb plant in South Carolina etc.

With the Negro issue played down to the vanishing point, and in view of the fact that southern legislators generally support the Administration's foreign policies on Capitol Hill, Messrs. Truman and McKinney believe that these bread-and-butter considerations will counter successfully the Republicans' determined effort to break the Solid South, as happened in 1928 and 1948.

NEWPORT, TENN., TIMES: "Pick up any daily newspaper, glance at the headlines on the front page, and you'll find some one to half a dozen cases where some government official is on the carpet for questioning. But, just let a few hundred fast bucks and that takes the headlines away from those who are accused of such small things as kicking around the tax man, influencing REA officials, buying expensive gifts with government money, and—oh well, you know what."

NORTHPORT, N. Y., OBSERVER: "Excessive government spending is contributing to the inflationary spiral, a threat to the national economy itself. Therefore, it seems that this greater evil might be cured by rectifying the lesser evil—by giving the taxpayer his money's worth for a change."

Can't Agree To Being Searched

Around Capitol Square

Reflector Bureau By LYNN NISSEY Asso. Afternoon Daily

CIGARETTES — One of the minor wars being conducted by representatives of tobacco growers and cigarette manufacturers on the one hand and the federal bureau of internal revenue on the other, is over the question of having the government revenue stamp show the amount of tax paid. Every package of popular brand cigarettes requires a federal revenue stamp costing eight cents, but there is nothing on the stamp to indicate this fact. The amount of the tax has been increased from six cent to eight cents within the past few years, adding of necessity at least two cents to the retail selling price of a pack of fags. Tobacco growers and manufacturers would like for the stamp to show that fact, and to some extent alleviate the impression that the farmers are responsible for the higher cost of smoke.

LIQUOR — Alcoholic beverage stamps are in the same category, but there has not been so much said about that. The revenue stamps there show that the tax was paid on the quantity in the bottle, but there is no indication of the amount of the tax.

CONTRAST — This attitude is in striking contrast with federal policy in other stamp tax instances. Most popular and best known of the government stamps are of course the postage stamps. Each of them has on its face the amount that must be paid for it. Stamps for use on land deeds and other legal papers also carry the cost value. Cigarette stamps, on the contrary, give notice of how much tobacco is supposed to be in the package, but nothing about how much tax the customer pays. The federal revenue folks, while insisting that purchasers of jewelry be made conscious of the 20 percent excise tax they must pay, for some reason do not want the purchasers of cigarettes to know how much federal tax is included in the retail price. Producers and handlers of cigarettes, from tobacco to retail counter, think the customer has a right to know that something like half the money he pays for a package of cigarettes is federal tax.

MISLEADING — Frank statement of the amount of tax collected would help to reduce misleading comparative statements about the percentage of income spent for cigarettes and liquor as contrasted with appropriations for education. Part of the business is a goodly part of all money paid by consumers for alcoholic beverages and tobacco products is also devoted into appropriations for education. Because of the policy of not publishing the amount of the direct tax, but hiding it in the total cost just as numerous other indirect taxes are hidden, many cigarette smokers are not fully conscious of how much they contribute to the government. Furthermore, in the case of cigarettes the state is supposed to collect a sales tax on the federal tax paid.

DOUBLE TAX — A piece of jewelry, for instance, will be priced for retail sale at $10.00 with the price tag showing that there is to be added a 20 percent federal tax and a 3 percent state tax, both figured on $10.00. But on a carton of cigarettes retailing for $1.75, of which 80 cents is a direct federal tax, the state collects sales tax on $1.75, not on 80.

GREATER RISK — It would appear on the face of the questions asked and answered in the bulletin that sponsors of the Wilkes Telephone Membership Corporation are assuming tremendous risks. It is suggested, for instance, that anybody in Wilkes county can get a telephone by signing the application and paying the membership fee. It is also suggested that every applicant can get the kind of service he wants, multi-party, two-party or single line—by paying the established rate. Truth is, that c-o-p-s—just like big telephone companies—must be assured of enough revenue to justify a line before a phone can be installed. The c-o-p is not going to build a ten mile line to care for one telephone at the same rate charged for a phone where only a few feet of line must be built.

TELEPHONES — Mention has been made before in this corner of the fine job being done by the vocational agriculture section, especially in the veterans' training program, in the Wilkesboro high school. The current edition of the Veterans' Farm Training Program News is devoted almost entirely to the rural telephone co-operative being organized in Wilkes county. The need and the value of telephone service is set out in detail, but no more clearly than the fact that the desired service will cost money, and cannot be obtained overnight.

RISK — No bones are made of the fact that telephone service is more risky than electric current service. There is frank recognition of the greater liability if times get hard, tendency to discontinue phone service the individual home customer has less at stake. To utilize REA electric service the farmer must pay for wiring his house and must make substantial investment in equipment, machinery and various gadgets. He does not have to buy his telephone, or pay for repairing it if it gets out of order. Furthermore, the electric co-op, according to the bulletin, can count on increased uses of electricity resulting in more revenue. The telephone usage is fairly well frozen at original installation basis.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

MAGAZINE RATE STRUCTURES

(Wilson Times)
The Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association has just completed a study of the rate structures of America's principal magazines and it finds that many have had to jump up as much as 33 per cent, while the Saturday Evening business in this era of high prices without increases. For, competitive as the magazine field is today, it would be suicide to try to reduce the quality if they are not to reduce the quality, they must go up in rates.

The highest for a page in black and white is Life which jumps from $16.10 to $16.750, or four per cent. The next is the Ladies Home Journal which goes up from $12.85 to $13.745, or four per cent, while the Saturday Evening Post, which ran third, jumped from $11,200 to $11,760, or five per cent. Some of the smaller magazines, however, had to jump considerably more. Cue was up 45 per cent and Argosy, 33 per cent. But, like the newspapers, they all had to raise rates. It was that or go bankrupt next year.

Are those really raises or are there more evidences of inflation? However we choose to term them, we're all in its grip. For we just can't run a business to day on the same amount of money we could run a similar business before Korea's true not of newspapers and magazines alone; it's true of department stores, telephone companies and railroads. The price of services are simply going up and we'd be derelict in our duty if we didn't recognize it. The magazines and newspapers have. Before the year is too far along, likely every business house in America will be charging more for what it did than it did a year ago.

MOUNTING TOLL OF DEATH

(Roanoke Rapids Herald)
The Grim Reaper continues to set a new record on the highways of North Carolina. Last week end, he put in a little overtime, and many lives were taken through car and truck accidents. All thinking people are concerned about the fast rise of deaths on the road this year over last year. Everyone has an idea how it can be stopped.

The process of education on traffic safety was never more thorough or well executed. But people have not reached the stage when they are not shocked by deaths in highway accidents. Almost every day, pictures appear in papers showing wrecked and battered cars where drivers and riders have met their death. We are warned constantly that speed, carelessness and breaking traffic laws will cause accidents. But somehow drivers take the view that this is all true—but it won't happen to me. The drivers go their merry way, figuring that they're skilled drivers and have no cause to worry. How many drivers have you heard admit that they're burnt by the wind, and in the next breath say how careful they are. Never take a chance, they say. Well, according to every qualified engineer and traffic authority, they are taking that chance when they drive at excessive speeds.

It is our honest belief, for instance, that the reason there is little fast, careless driving in Roanoke Rapids is due to the constant patrol of our traffic cops. Just about every driver in town has been stopped at one time or another by a city policeman. For the immediate future, we would say that enforcing the traffic laws on the highways would help about as much as any one thing.

American hotel and resort owners may face more competition with European resorts next year as a consequence of the new trans-Atlantic air tourist rates. Eleven air lines have agreed on new low tourist rates.

Round trips to London from April to October will be $486 from November through March, $417. This compares with first class rates of $711 and $618. The new rates are expected to price hundreds of thousands of Americans into trans-Atlantic air travel market.

This year some 300,000 Americans flew to Europe. The new rates are expected to attract 500,000. A shift of 250,000 persons from American to European vacations will mean a loss of half a billion dollars to American resorts. European governments and tourist industries, ever alert to the American dollar, are expected to increase their advertising here. And steamship lines, confronted with this new competition, are expected to step up their promotions of the joys of ocean travel.

There are three comforts for American resort owners: First, the amount of money spent for traveling abroad is but a small fraction of the total vacation spending, which is estimated from ten to twenty billion dollars or more a year. Furthermore, the current high total of income, which is expected to go even higher next year, will increase the total spending for vacations. The rise in population and the expected increase in employment resulting from the defense program is expected to bring more Americans into the vacation market than are lost to Europe. American resort owners can expect larger receipts next year, despite foreign competition.

Second, until Europe builds more hotels and resorts, it cannot increase tourism very much more. Many Americans who joined the great rush to Europe this year and last were unable to get the accommodations they hoped for.

Third, prices in Europe have been going up, wiping out more of the bargains that devaluation created. Salaried Americans in Paris for the United Nations assembly protest that they have to do their own laundry and skip meals to get by. IMPORTS OF SCOTCH UP MILLION GALLONS — Britain's desire for American dollars is bulging American warehouses with Scotch. Shipments during the first nine months of this year were 1,000,000 gallons more than in the same 1950 period. Harry L. Lewis, executive vice president of the National Association of Alcoholic Beverage Importers, said. Some was rushed in to beat the new tax rate, but, alas, much of that was held up by the lonshoremen's strike.

25 PERCENT OF DRUGGISTS' SALES ARE OF DRUGS — Druggists do sell drugs. Figures compiled by the National Association of Retail Druggists show that 25 per cent of sales in drug stores are of pharmaceuticals. The association also calculates the average drug store sale is 50 cents; that 80 per cent of the customers are men, 25 per cent women and 15 per cent juveniles.

FROZEN VEGETABLE COMPETITION PAINFUL — Both fresh vegetable dealers and canners are wincing from the competition of frozen vegetables. Guy Pollock, canner, told the Iowa-Nebraska Canners Association that canned foods occupied 75 per cent of grocers' shelf space 20 years ago but today occupy only 15 per cent.

Hugh Davern, food chain executive, told the recent meeting of the Vegetable Growers Association of Atlantic City that frozen foods were cutting deeply into the sale of fresh vegetables. He pointed out that during Thanksgiving week frozen green beans sold for $7 cents a pound while fresh beans sold from 39 to 43 cents a pound and that the frozen kind were more convenient for the housewife.

They are made of narrow basswood slats, woven firmly together and provide new decorating effects as well as control light and ventilation.

GLASS: A greenish tint glass that absorbs sun heat, reduces eye strain and eliminates fading and bleaching of fabrics has been put on the market as $6.95 by Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., 632 Duquesne Way, Pittsburgh. It will be used in some autos, public buildings, trains and buses next year and will eventually be available for homes. COCKTAIL: A new health drink is made of fruit juices and yeast. The fruit flavors mask the taste of the yeast. It is by Orchard Products Co., 209 S. Green St., Chicago.

Hal Boyle's Column

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK — (AP) — In almost every American attic today there is an old battered trunk that could save a human life far away.

The trunks contain old clothing, keepsakes of yesterday, that thrifty housewives packed up for sentimental reasons—or just because they hate to throw things away.

This clothing is desperately needed by our allies in South Korea. Knit us now by almost 18 months of steady blood-letting. In a war that has already cost perhaps 2,000,000 casualties the Korean civilians have been among the greatest sufferers. The battles, ranging up and down their weary peninsula, have made millions of homeless migrants. Life has become a pilgrimage of despair to them.

Existence in normal times is a matter of bare subsistence for most Koreans, and war has wrecked their bare and stringent economy.

With winter again gripping the land their chief problem is how to protect themselves against the bitter cold. A national drive is now underway to get the American people to contribute all the spare clothing possible.

What kind of clothing? Anything from a pair of museum high-buttoned shoes to Dad's old soft knickers. Bolls of old material. Linen of all kinds. Blankets. Lover children's wear. Mufflers, gloves—anything that can help to cover a human body.

The plight of the refugees has done more than anything to kindle a feeling of sympathy between the American soldiers and the Korean civilians. Last winter thousands of GI's gave away part of their own equipment to help clothe shivering Korean orphans. A year ago the population of Seoul, the republic capital, was being evacuated in a flight of mass distress. There have been fewer scenes of greater misery even in this century of war upon war. Families huddled for days in the open flat cars in the train yards outside the city. Others, thinly clad, took up the long march south on foot, wading the icy streams in their path and leaving raw blood marks in the snow. Their dead they had to abandon where they fell. Women gave birth to their babies in ditches, and got up and struggled on through the biting winds. Men and women strapped themselves to the sides of box cars, holding their children in their arms. Sometimes at night they dozed, their weary hands let-go—and a child would fall to the tracks, and the trains rolled on through the darkness. At every stop they lifted off the frozen dead. I remember also the walking dead—those with the rags wrapped around their front-bitten faces. They were gangrenous, but there was nothing for them to do but keep on moving until they dropped. If the American people could have seen these sights, there could be no limit now to the generosity of their response to the present appeal for clothing now.

Everybody likes to play Santa Claus. And this year there is an easy way to do it. Simply go up that old trunk in the attic, those closets hung with old clothes you no longer have a real use for, and bundle up anything you can find, and give it to the people of Korea. In a very real way you may thus easily postpone death for someone... a child or a grandma... in a land where, if you forget, there will be no Santa Claus this Christmas.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — Santa Claus is runn' g short of reindeer. And as for ree-deer reindeer like the Rudolph folks sing about, I asked Dr. William Mann, head of the National Zoological Gardens, whether he'd ever seen one.

"Never, not ever," he said. "except 'a circus, and he was a mule with imitation horns." "But really, the problem is serious. The National Geographic Society says Alaska's reindeer are being destroyed by man-made Arctic wolves. Within the past decade, the society says, all but an estimated 50,000 of Alaska's great herd of some 500,000 have been destroyed.

The reindeer shortage, plus the difficulty of keeping the animals alive in temperate climates, will prevent most children from seeing the Vixens and Deahers which tote St. Nick about in the story-bo k. Dr. Mann says the Washington Zoo gave up trying to keep reindeer some years ago. A reindeer couple, which had been bequeathed to it, after Christmas appearances in a local department store, perished in the Capital's summer weather. Some stores in New York have used Catskill Mountain deer as stand-ins, however.

But, National Geographic explains, depletion in reindeer ranks is more serious problem to the people who are served by the animals on a year-around basis than it is to Santa. In the far North the reindeer is used for food, clothing, transportation and even shelter. In his native Lapland, the reindeer has been domesticated since prehistoric times and kept in herds like cattle. The reindeer offers nourishing meat. Its milk is rich and sweet. One hide is enough to make two parkas and a pair of boots. The harness can make a tent from several hides, and useful implements can be cut from their tough horns and hoofs. Reindeer were first imported into Alaska in 1822 by the U. S. government to save the natives from threatening starvation. In 1929 the Canadian government sponsored the migration of some 3,000 reindeer from Alaska to the Eskimos west of Hudson's Bay.

Beating the basketball team from Fort Lee, Virginia, was quite an accomplishment for the East Carolina Pirates. The soldiers had a very strong team that is loaded with former college cage stars.

Perhaps the foremost of the individuals on the Fort Lee team is big Charles Clinkner, a former University of Tennessee player. Clink is about 6-5 and weighs well over 210 pounds. He also helps to coach the team.

Running from one of the forward positions, Clinkner ran up 19 points very quickly in the first half. He was slowed down and had to slow down at the end of the period and didn't get into the game at all in the third quarter. After he got back into the contest at the beginning of the fourth period, it took him just one minute and three seconds to make that fifth personal foul.

Clinkner was especially effective around the circle and possesses a deadly right hand shot when he's close in. He didn't appear to be too effective with the left hand stuff but he didn't need it.

The left handed talent on the ball club was largely vested in Walter Ashbaugh, a former Cornell University student. As far as I was concerned, Ashbaugh seemed to be about the best all around player Fort Lee had. Although he didn't score such a big number of points, his value as a ball handler and pivot man was not difficult to see.

Ashbaugh was able to hit from anywhere on the court and didn't hesitate to take his shot. He was really a good ball player. He's a second lieutenant and an ROTC graduate.

A former West Virginia man, Bill Zirkel, filled the forward position opposite Clinkner. Six feet, three inches tall, Zirkel's value came in the last minutes of the game when he kept the Travellers breathing down East Carolina's neck. He had two very timely shots that had they been put with a couple more by someone else could have put East Carolina out in the cold.

Milan Knezovich didn't start the game but he darn near beat EOC in the fourth quarter when he got hot and started adding some field goals to the free throws he had been making with monotonous regularity.

A former Mankato State College player, Knezovich is from Hibbing, Minnesota. He's 6-5 and weighs 210. He's also a very good shot from anywhere on the floor although he specializes in the shots from closer in. He was used as a substitute for Clinkner.

Charles Hall and Charles Bostick, a couple of Negro members of the squad, also proved themselves as good ball players. Neither of the two were starters but both played some good ball in a reserve capacity.

Hall, a big six foot, four inch center from Cleveland, really looked good under the boards. He didn't shoot too much but he is able to throw the ball up with either hand. He's big and rough and does well. According to the information at Fort Lee, he didn't go to college.

Bostick is a little 5-8 ball of fire that played for Florida A&M College. He's fast as greased lightning and he made a couple of plays that were really beauties.

Bostick once got a try-out with the famed Harlem Globetrotters but couldn't make the grade. Neither he nor Hall will be with the squad Friday night when Fort Lee comes to Wright Gymnasium.

Other than the boys mentioned, Coach Morgan Tiller of the Travellers had Pete Bentovola of Compton College, California; Charles Bule, a former N. C. State student; Pierce Butler of St. Cloud State in Minnesota; Roy Gordon of Oklahoma; Henry Wojtyla (one of the starting team) from De Paul, and Douglas Ross of Lawrence Tech in Illinois.

Tiller used only nine men against East Carolina Saturday and with the exception of Hall and Bostick, they'll all be here Friday night. The Pirates might have an advantage in playing on a big court but it should be a good ball game.

Despite the presence of all the ex-college men in the Fort Lee line-up, East Carolina did a good job. Bobby Hodges really worked well under the baskets when he was in the game. He and Dick Blake did a good job in scrapping the soldiers for rebounds in the rough games besides throwing in the points when EOC was on the offense.

While all the nine EOC men who played did a good job, it was Hodges who was really the backbone. He really did a good job.

Sedgman Win Over Savitt In Victorian

MELBOURNE, Australia (UP)—Blond Frank Sedgman of Australia scored an impressive 8-6, 6-0, 6-4 victory over Dick Savitt of the United States today in the final round of the Victorian tennis championships at Kooyong stadium.

The one-sided victory required only 59 minutes and sent the Australian to the final round of the Davis Cup in the final round matches Christmas week soaring to new heights.

The match, played in a tense air of an unofficial world championship since Sedgman holds the U. S. singles title and Savitt the Wimbledon championship, was watched by a crowd of 3,000 that included Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies and Gov. Sir Dallas Brooks.

proved almost ridiculously easy for the polished Sedgman. There was no sign of the strained shoulder muscle, which has been bothering him recently.

Sedgman's outstanding weapon was his brilliant volleying, which didn't give Savitt a chance to use his famed groundstrokes. And Sedgman thwarted Savitt's net-rushing tactics with unplayable lobs. He also gained a tactical advantage when he switched to spiked shoes after 10 games of the opening set—using them he cavorted about the court while Savitt lumbered around in his size 13 sneakers.

The highest team batting average in the majors was the .343 mark of the 1951 Philadelphia Phillies.

Hodges Paces Pirates To Third Victory

Russell Gets 15, Blake-14 Points To Follow Hodges In Scoring Chase; Buccaneers At Camp Lejeune Tonight

FORT LEE, Virginia — The East Carolina Pirates won their third game of the young season Saturday night with a 73-69 victory over the Fort Lee Travellers, the post team of this famed quartermaster training depot. The game was played in the post's Special Services Gym.

Big Bobby Hodges, a 6-6 forward from Kingston who won a starting berth only a week ago on Coach Howard Porter's team, was the leader in a red-hot Buc attack. He scored 23 points for the Pirates and played a whale of a ball game under the boards.

In the same capacity as Hodges, but on the other side of the fence, was big Charles Clinkner of the Travellers. A former University of Tennessee basketball player, Clinkner made 19 points (17 of them in the first half) to pace the soldiers' scoring. Clinkner did not play any in the third quarter and only a minute and three seconds in the fourth period before he fouled out of the game.

Backing up Hodges and Clinkner in the scoring race were East Carolina's Sonny Russell and Dick Blake and Fort Lee's Milan Knezovich, Walter Ashbaugh, and Bill Zirkel.

For the Pirates, Russell scored 15 points for runner-up honors plus turning in his usual exceptional game of ball handling. Blake came next in the scoring chase with 14 points and it was his teaming with Hodges on the boards that gave the Pirates a lot of rebounds.

For the Travellers, Knezovich was runner-up in the scoring chase with 15 points. The Pirates might have an advantage in playing on a big court but it should be a good ball game.

Despite the presence of all the ex-college men in the Fort Lee line-up, East Carolina did a good job. Bobby Hodges really worked well under the baskets when he was in the game. for a lay-up to make the score 63-62 but the Travellers couldn't move ahead as Jones came through with two dead-eyed push shots to run the margin to 67-62.

After Jones finished his exhibition, Henry Wojtyla tossed in a free throw for the soldiers which was matched by a gratis toss by Russell. Wojtyla got off a left handed set shot but Blake jumped in a shot to run the score to 70-65. Zirkel pumped in a left handed hook shot but Blake scored on a set shot and Heath hit on a free throw to clinch the game.

Pirates On Top In North State With Two Wins

By The Associated Press

Two family games feature the North State Conference basketball schedule tonight.

Lenoir Rhyne plays at Western Carolina in the first conference game of the season for both teams.

Atlantic Christian, loser in three early season conference games, invades Catawba. The Indians have a 1-1 conference record to date.

Non-conference games send High Point to Hanes Hosiery and East Carolina to Camp Lejeune.

High Point made its first conference start of the year Saturday night and downed Atlantic Christian, 81 to 60. The victory earned High Point second place in the standings at the end of the week.

East Carolina, which lost to High Point in the finals last season, tops the conference with a 2-0 mark.

In addition to tonight's games, two other conference games are scheduled this week. Tomorrow night Guilford is at Appalachian and Lenoir Rhyne plays at Western Carolina again.

Conway Picked For Second Team On N&O All-Stars

Wallace Conway, right end on Coach Bill Kittrell's Green Panthers during the past season, was accorded his second honor of the week today as he received a second string berth on an All-Eastern Class AA team selected by coaches for the Raleigh News and Observer.

Conway was selected on the first string All-Northeastern Conference team earlier in the week. Conway was one of the better pass receivers in the conference. Playing his last year in Greenville, big Wallace had his best year this season.

Ayden's Mac Whitehurst, also a right end, was selected for a second string position on the paper's All-Eastern Class A team yesterday. Whitehurst recently won his third successive berth on the All-Coastal Conference eleven. He is a junior.

VMI Coach Rates High For State Coaching Job

RALEIGH (AP)—A committee seeking a new head football coach for North Carolina State College is expected to make its recommendations "within the next few days."

Two men rate high on the committee's list of candidates for the job to succeed Beattie Feathers. They are Tom Nugent, athletic director and head football coach at VMI, and Horace Hendrickson, backfield coach at State College.

Nugent was interviewed by the committee yesterday. Dean Malcolm E. Campbell, head of the three-member group, said "We were well impressed with Nugent. We liked his theories, his philosophy and the way he handles his team."

Campbell indicated the committee may make its recommendation to the college Athletic Council this week. He emphasized "We haven't reached a decision."

Nugent came here at the invitation of the committee. He has been head coach at VMI since 1949 when he came from Hopewell, Va. High School. His team this season won seven and lost three.

Campbell said Nugent did not apply for the coaching job. "The committee sought him out because so many people wrote or wired to us and called about him," he stated.

Bears Cap Year With Pythian Bowl Victory

SALISBURY (AP)—Lenoir Rhyne's cup ran over today — it's first North State Conference football title in the league's 20-year history and a post season Pythian Bowl victory.

The Bears from Hickory defeated the California State College Vulcans of Pennsylvania 13-7 here Saturday in the bowl game.

The victory came on a second period touchdown by Steve Trudnak on a 32-yard run and a third-period touchdown by Jerry Robinson on a reverse that carried 39 yards. The scores came within four minutes of each other.

California State came back with a touchdown early in the third period of a five-yard run by tailback Don O'Hara. The drive carried 85 yards, beginning when State took the kickoff on its own 15 after the second Lenoir Rhyne touchdown. The key play was a 59-yard kickoff return by wingback Roy Mains, who was finally brought down from behind by Lenoir Rhyne's Gene Robinson.

Jerry Robinson was voted the game's outstanding player, and received a trophy.

A Negro played for the first time in the history of the Pythian Bowl game—Cliff Page, defensive end for the Pennsylvanians.

Extensive Program Planned In Little League Basketball Play

Grimaldi Takes Early Lead In Southern Scoring Race

By The Associated Press

Vince Grimaldi, North Carolina's accurate-shooting guard, is setting the early pace in the Southern Conference basketball-scoring scramble. Grimaldi has bucketed 73 points in the Tar Heels' three circuit clashes. This gives him an average of 24.3 points per tilt.

Three other players, although they've appeared in only one league contest, have averages of better than 20 points. Dwane Morrison, South Carolina forward, has 23 points; Jay Handland, Washington and Lee forward, 23, and Jim Gahagan, University of Richmond forward, 21.

By Saturday night, West Virginia's Mountaineers could take over undisputed possession of the league lead. Right now, North Carolina State's defending champion Wolfpack and North Carolina are deadlocked with 3-0 records. Neither plays a conference game this week.

West Virginia has won its only family feud. The Mountaineers have three tests this week—Tuesday at George Washington, Thursday at Richmond, and Saturday are hosts to Maryland.

Duke, victor in four straight appearances, make its conference debut Tuesday night against Furman at Shelby, N.C. The Dukes meet Virginia Military at Durham, N. C. Saturday night.

Duke, generally regarded as a team which could knock State out of the title this year, started tongues wagging more than ever Saturday night when the Blue Devils trimmed Bradley, 87-69. Dick Grant, Duke guard, collected 25 points.

In other games Saturday night, Furman downed Davidson, 82-66, in the lone league get-together; William and Mary beat Randolph-Macon, 61-45; Kentucky walloped Washington and Lee, 96-46; Wake Forest defeated the independent McCrary Hosiery quintet, 96-70; South Carolina trounced Newberry, 84-40, and Pennsylvania handed Maryland its first licking in three starts, 53-52.

Week's remaining schedule:
Tuesday—West Virginia at George Washington; Furman vs. Duke at Shelby, N.C.; Roanoke at Virginia Military; Virginia at Washington and Lee; Presbyterian at Clemson.

Plans for an extensive basketball program for the youth of Greenville were announced this morning by City Recreation Director Warren Carroll.

Included in the plans are proposed leagues for Little League competition, play in the Boys Junior High School bracket, and a Girls High School League division. If enough people show interest in the leagues, several separate leagues will probably be started.

Play in each division will not start until after the Christmas holidays, although first practices are scheduled to be held this week and the first of next week. Carroll stated that no organized practice sessions would be held over the holidays either, but anyone could go down to the armory and play.

Little League
The Little League is limited by rules to players who will not be 13 years of age before January 1, 1952. However, those who are over 13 will be eligible for the Junior League. It will not be limited to only boys league, Carroll said, for if enough girls are interested, a league will also be set up for them.

Every player that enters the program and attends at least two-thirds of the practice sessions is guaranteed a minimum of playing in one quarter of each game in which his team is involved. Playing rules will be the same as in the 1951-52 Basketball Guide, although local rules may supplant a few of them as the season progresses. The games will be divided into quarters of five minutes each.

Those boys or girls interested in playing in the Little League are requested to go by the armory Tuesday afternoon in order to sign their contracts. Practice dates will be set up that time.

Boys Junior League
The Junior League is primarily for the benefit of boys in junior high school. Each team is allowed a total of only eight players, at least six of them coming from the eighth and ninth grades.

Each team is allowed to carry one player from the eleventh and twelfth grades, respectively. The upper classmen are not required.

Each club will have a captain who will take the responsibility of this team. It will be his duty to see that at least five players are ready for each game scheduled.

No team will be allowed to sign new players during the last two weeks of the season, and a boy who is a member of the varsity or junior varsity teams in high school will be ineligible. Any team that is found using an ineligible player will forfeit all games that he participated in.

Junior League players are asked to report Thursday afternoon for their contracts and practice schedules.

Funeral Services For Joe Jackson

GREENVILLE, S. C. (AP)—Hundreds of friends from all walks of life attended funeral services here yesterday for "Sholess Joe" Jackson.

The former White Sox great died Wednesday night at his home here following a heart attack. He was 63 years old.

Jackson reached baseball stardom with the Chicago White Sox and Cleveland Indians. He was one of the eight players banished from organized baseball in the famous "Black Sox" scandal that followed the 1919 Chicago-Cincinnati World Series. The players were accused of fixing the series.

Among those attending the funeral were Lou Brissie of Ware Shoals, Cleveland southpaw; Ernie White, former St. Louis Cardinal pitcher, and Champ Osteen, who played with five different big league clubs at the turn of the century.

Team Banquet

George Radmen of the University of North Carolina football coaching staff will be the guest speaker at the Exchange Club Little League football banquet, it was learned last week. Radmen will bring a film of one of Carolina's games this year with him.

The banquet will be held in the armory Wednesday night. All boys who participated in the league and have returned their equipment are invited to attend the supper. Drop by the armory before Tuesday night and pick up the ticket. Fathers are also invited, but a door admission of one dollar will be charged. Warren Carroll asks that all parents who are coming inform him before Tuesday night so that preparations can be made.

HANGMAN'S COULEE

By AL CODY

AP Newsfeature

Chapter 5
She's told him off, Gentleman Jim thought. "And he's not the kind to take kindly to currying!"

"She knows my business and what I stand for," Hathaway added explosively. "I've always been open about it. I thought I could overcome her scruples. Today I have my doubts."

"Today you have doubts about yourself?"

"Maybe that's it. I could attend your lectures, get a civic conscience, as you call it, and become a tame monkey on a leash. At least to the extent of making some changes. That would please her."

"But it wouldn't please you."

Hathaway looked at him shrewdly.

"You have more sense than I gave you credit for. I didn't take your coming seriously, until tonight. I figured you as being a sort of medicine-man, here to get some easy pickings. The devil of it is that you're right. I could change, but I wouldn't feel right. I don't believe in that sort of thing—the sort that leads to churches coming to town. I doubt if she'd respect me either."

Gentleman Jim understood, better than Hathaway suspected. Deal Hathaway was a gambler. He loved Maita Gilson, probably as much as it was possible for a man of his nature to love anything not made with his own hands, anything save himself.

That was the rub. Business came first, and always would. A woman would have her place in his life, but it must be one which would not interfere with things as he planned them. No woman could dominate him, even to the extent of influencing him in such a situation as this.

"Your trouble," Gentleman Jim suggested, "is that you've picked the wrong kind of woman. Hathaway was as strong-willed as you. You want your way, and still have her. You're not willing to pay the necessary price to satisfy her."

"Maybe that's it," Hathaway agreed finally. "But aren't you advising me to do that—to give up all this—to turn over a new leaf and all that sort of thing?"

Gentleman Jim shrugged.

"Why should I?" he asked. "I'm no preacher. Maybe that's what I doubt it. But you wouldn't turn that leaf until you had a change of heart. If you get that, sure. But it will take something bigger even than Maita Gilson in your life to bring that about."

"Thanks, Professor, for straightening me out. You have got sense. And since I know, as you're trying to tell me, that there's nothing else will ever bulk as big as she old saying that a man should stick to his own game. I will."

"In that case, I may as well be going."

"No, sit still. Maybe we can talk business."

"I understood you before. Now I don't."

"You should. You're no fool. I've thought all along that I could win her by showing her that my way works. I still think so. The only thing that can spoil it is you—and this civic uplift stuff. Folks say that you gave them a real talk tonight. That, and the way you handled trouble, made quite an impression. Two or three were blubbering in their beer. I can wash out all that with whiskey in a few days—providing it doesn't happen too often."

"There's some things whiskey won't wash out, Hathaway."

"That's what I'm driving at. I've heard preachers say, back when I was a 'oy, that it takes blood—and maybe it does. But when I talk about blood, I mean different from what they do, and I'd prefer that it needn't come to that here."

He made the threat calmly, never batting an eye.

"Now take a man like you, Professor. You've got ability and a chance for a big future, if you were in the right place and with the right set-up—instead of lecturing in jay-towns like this for the collection-chicken-feed. If you had a real start, to go somewhere and build up—money enough not to worry while you were getting started—you could do almost anything you wanted to. Eh?"

"It sounds interesting."

"Well, it can be. Pull out of here—say in a week. You can stay that long to make it look right. Only you go along, so that everybody will see that the whole notion has been a failure. Then pull out—and you can have the cash that you need in your pocket."

It was the direct sort of a bribe that Gentleman Jim had expected of such a n. n. Curiously, he found himself bewildered by his own reaction. Here was a perfect setup. A week here would be long enough. If he worked it right. And he could leave with an extra cash dividend of no mean proportions, merely for the taking.

Under such circumstances, it was odd that he should feel anger at the proposition, a mounting indignation. Which was exactly the way it was affecting him. He realized that Maita had done that to him, knew it for a danger signal. But, stubbornly, he shook his head.

"I'm afraid you don't understand, Hathaway," he said. "Not on those terms."

"I haven't named my price. Shall we say five thousand?"

"It's generous—if I was interested."

Hathaway shook his head, almost regretfully. But he did not argue nor raise his price.

"I'm afraid you don't understand, Professor," he protested. "There's something about you that I rather like. Which is strange, considering that you're here to buck me. But that's the way of it. So I don't want to have to play rough. This other way would be so much better, all around."

Gentleman Jim stood up.

"Sorry, Hathaway," he said. "But if we do business, it will have to be on my terms—over at my place. And if you ever want to stand a chance with Miss Gilson—I'm afraid that's your only chance, too."

"I'm sorry, too," Hathaway retorted. "I hope you understand, Meader. If I can't get what I want one way, I take another. And I play rough—when I have to."

Chapter 6
Maita Gilson's arms were white with flour, with the tea-kettle singing on the stove. She looked beautiful and domestic, her round face guilelessly innocent. But her first question, as Gentleman Jim strolled into the kitchen, was disconcerting.

"What did Deal Hathaway want, last night?"

"He seems to be interested in what we are trying to do—though not from quite our angle," Gentleman Jim observed.

"Yes. But he and his kind have got to do—one way or another. Hangman's Coulee was a name that fitted this town, a year ago. It still does. But it won't, six months from now. There will be a new and better name—and a new and better town."

Somewhat he believed her. The railroad was one step in that building and regeneration. His own com-

Fast Camera To Aid Industry In Many Problems

COLUMBUS, O. (UP)—Battelle Memorial Institute has developed a camera here that can take 500 pictures in 1.200th of a second to help solve some of the complex problems of our high speed industrial life.

"What causes knock in a piston engine is but one example of the type of problem we're prepared to tackle," said the designer, C. D. Miller.

The invention takes pictures about 10 times as fast as previously developed cameras and will help in analyzing various mechanical difficulties. It uses only one lens to avoid distortion of objects in making a series of photos or frames for a single movie series.

Miller said the developed film may be projected as a motion picture without reprinting.

Ike's Backers To Depend Heavily On N.H. Primary

WASHINGTON (AP)—Republicans seeking their party's presidential nomination for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower may put a lot of their political eggs in the March 11 New Hampshire primary basket.

The prevailing opinion among Eisenhower rosters now appears to be that the General will say nothing if his name is entered on the Republican ticket, awaiting results of the New Hampshire vote before making any public statement.

Senator Carlson (R-Kan.), latest of the Eisenhower camp's leaders to see the General at his North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) headquarters in Paris, apparently doesn't look for any earlier action.

Senator Duff (R-Pa.), another of the leaders, has delayed making a trip to Paris which he had scheduled this month. Duff has let it be known he fully expects to get a political go-ahead signal from the General when he does go.

Edward Bacon and Ralph Imiel, Eisenhower backers in Wisconsin, told reporters they would accept the General's silence in New Hampshire as an indication he is in the race and would proceed from there.

The General's name can't go on the Wisconsin ballot, however, unless he filed an affidavit that he is a candidate by January 15. Thus a technically unopposed slate might have to be organized for him.

James E. Webb May Resign Post

WASHINGTON (AP)—Undersecretary of State James E. Webb may resign early next year on advice of his physicians to take a long rest, informed sources revealed today.

Webb, who heads the State Department when Secretary of State Dean Acheson is absent, suffered pneumonia last summer, and has not regained his health because of the heavy pressure of his office.

SWANBORO—Mrs. Pearl Langdale Ennett, 59, wife of Andrew Du Laney Ennett of Swansboro, died Friday afternoon in Pitt Memorial Hospital, Greenville.

Funeral services were conducted Sunday afternoon in the Swansboro Methodist Church with the Rev. J. H. Wetherington officiating. Interment took place in the Borden Ennett Cemetery at Cedar Point.

Mrs. Ennett is survived by her husband; three sons, Andrew, Jr. and William Borden, both of Swansboro, and E. Thomas, serving with Naval Intelligence in Japan; a daughter, Mrs. Hugh Hurst of Swansboro, and a sister, Mrs. Bertha Chestnut of Raleigh.

Lucile LaChapelle, radio broadcaster and voice specialist, as the guest speaker.

While in college at the University of Wisconsin, Miss LaChapelle received more honors in the School of Speech than any other woman who had ever enrolled and she represented Wisconsin in the Northern Oratorical League, the second woman in the history of the school to do so.

After college, she taught speech and dramatics for a number of years to high school and adult groups and then branched out as a speaker for a public utility corporation and as a broadcaster on the radio.

Following her marriage, Miss LaChapelle gave up her regular positions to do some free-lancing on the platform and take a longer lull of speaking engagements.

Southern Solons Reported Talking Party 'Walkout'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some anti-administration Southern Democratic senators were reported today to be exchanging ideas about taking a walk next year if President Truman is renominated.

How and whether they would follow through will depend on intervening developments, particularly the presidential choice of the Republican national convention which will be held three weeks before the Democrats meet to pick their map.

In any event, evidence available now indicates that the threat of a bolt by Southern senators will be greater in 1952 than it was in 1948 if Mr. Truman is a candidate again.

When the States Rights Democratic Party was formed in the South in 1948, only the Mississippi senators were actively identified with it. Election mechanics barred Alabama's senators from supporting the Democratic national ticket even if they had wished to do so.

Alabama has made public demands that the South carry on its rights within — not against — the national Democratic party.

Some anti-administration Southern senators have talked of making public statements opposing Mr. Truman's reelection if the President runs again. Like other Southern revolt strategy, such moves would depend in part on future developments.

Endorsement of the Republican presidential nominee has not been ruled out in these discussions. Southerners who have talked about the question believe it would be easier to endorse Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as the GOP nominee.

The Southerners think Eisenhower would be viewed in a different light than a candidate who had spent a lifetime in politics with the Republican Party, which has never commanded much support in the South.

Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., (R-Mass.), chairman of the Eisenhower-for-President movement, predicted yesterday that the general "soon" will announce his candidacy and will be chosen on the first ballot at the GOP national convention.

An eight-member bipartisan committee recommended last night that Republicans and Southern Democrats team up in a formal political alliance to halt the trend toward "socialism" in America.

The group urged Southern Democrats to vote for the Republican candidate to prevent Mr. Truman's reelection or election of another Democrat with his "Fair Deal" views. It would be "difficult" for the GOP to win the White House and Congress, the committee said, without "effective Southern support."

Funeral Tuesday For William D. Andrews William Dennis Andrews, age 45, Farmville, died of a heart attack in the Carolina General Hospital, Wilson, Sunday afternoon at 5:40.

Funeral services will be held at his home near Farmville Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock and will be conducted by Dr. E. W. Holmes, Baptist minister, and Reverend Tommie Tyson, Methodist minister. Interment will follow at the Hollywood Cemetery in Farmville.

Andrews had resided in the Farmville community for the past 25 years and was engaged in farming. He had been in declining health for the past three years.

He is survived by his wife, the former Adell Wilkerson; one daughter, Lorna, and two sons, Joseph and Martin, all of the home. He is also survived by four sisters, Mrs. William Roberson, Tarboro; Mrs. Chester Lewis, Route 4, Greenville; Mrs. Ernest Bullock, Tampa, Florida; and Mrs. Jack Norton, Tampa, and by three brothers, L. W. Andrews, Farmville, J. C. Andrews, Rocky Mount, and Major W. C. Andrews, Tokyo, Japan.

Oil Distributors To Hold Meet Tuesday The Greenville Oil Distributors will meet tomorrow at 12:15 at the Olde Town Inn to discuss problems of service to patrons and set policies.

REVOLUTIONARY AIRPLANE WING—Newsmen and aviation enthusiasts cluster around an experimental model of a plane with a new type of wing—called channel wings—in the inventor's first public demonstration, held in Pittsburgh, Pa. Capias Issued For Wm. Gerard

In Police Court today, Judge J. H. Roberts, counsel for Mrs. Therese Gerard, German war bride of World War II and mother of four young children—two of them twins—born about four months ago, asked the court to issue a capias instanter for her husband, William C. Gerard.

Judge Charles H. Whedbee issued the order.

In Police Court September 24, Gerard was found guilty of abandonment and non-support of his wife and four children shortly after the twins were born. He was given a road sentence, suspended on condition that he pay $20 a week into the police department for support of his wife and children. It was testified that Gerard had violated the court's order and will have to serve his sentence on the roads.

The Greenville Service League, Kiwanis Club and some other agencies and friends have assisted Mrs. Gerard and the children since she was deserted by her husband, Judge Roberts stated.

Mrs. Gerard is a native of Darmstadt, in northwestern Germany. Before marriage she was Therese Stemple. She and Gerard were married while he was in the American army of occupation. She was a little over 16 when married, and is 21 now. She is employed by a Greenville corporation. The children are in a nursery during the day while she is at work, Judge Roberts, her attorney, stated.

Christmas Seals Go On Sale In Booths; Bangle Day Saturday At the approach of the Christmas season, the Pitt County T. B. Association has begun on the annual sale of Christmas seals to raise fund for combating tuberculosis and setting up an educational program in the county.

All this week, booths will be located in the post office and Guaranty Bank for the purpose of selling T. B. Christmas seals. The booths are being operated by members of the Greenville Service League.

"Bangle Day" will be held Saturday when Girl Scouts in the city will sell bangles on the street. The scouts will work both in the residential and business districts. Prizes are being offered to the Girl Scouts who sell the most seals and Mrs. Thomas H. Henderson said the scouts were very enthusiastic about the coming "Bangle Day."

Tiny Housewife Hailed To Court CHICAGO (UP)—Mrs. Marcella Trombetta, a tiny housewife, must answer charges of assault today filed by six-foot policeman George Kalish.

The officer said that Mrs. Trombetta, a 31-year-old woman who is four feet, 11 inches tall, hit him on the wrist when he stopped her car for a traffic violation.

Investigate Two Local Robberies

Greenville police are continuing their investigation of two robberies in the business district last Friday night, when bricks were used to crash glass windows.

Shortly after Friday midnight police checking in the neighborhood of Fifth Street, between Cotanche and the swimming pool, heard a glass crash. Robbers had broken the glass at Davenport's Jewelry Store, on Fifth street, opposite the High School, and stolen half a dozen watches. The robbers fled.

Later in the night, D. L. Turnage, owner of the Turnage Building, Third and Cotanche streets, reported that robbers had broken a glass in the office of the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company, in the building, and entered the place.

The safe was tampered with, but nothing was missing, it was stated. Members of the city street department had reported to police earlier in the night that they had seen two young Negroes prowling around and looking into store windows between 2 and 3 a.m.
