Firm Steps Said Adopted To Stay Indochina Attack

Strict Secrecy On Outcome Of Military Meeting By Chiefs Of Staff

WASHINGTON (AP)— The military chiefs of the major Pacific nations have completed consideration of specific measures to head off a threatened Chinese Red invasion of Indochina.

What these steps are for meeting the growing Red threat to southeast Asia is veiled in deep secrecy —but they are said to be firm.

Gen. Omar Bradley, the U. S. Chief who presided over the military meetings, urged the conferees to such strict secrecy their one-day session yesterday closed with neither a communique nor comment from the participants.

But the military leaders are known in informed official quarters to have reached basic understanding on some recommendations. Only their political superiors can translate these into specific measures called for by President Truman and British Prime Minister Churchill in their talks here this week.

The communique issued after the Churchill-Truman talks stated the purpose of the conference, attended by the staff chiefs of Britain, France the U. S. and observers from Australia, New Zealand and Canada.

The informants said the recommendations considered followed these general lines.

1. All the free nations with stakes in southeast Asia should give prompt and wholehearted support to any French appeal to the United Nations in the event Red China moves directly into the Indochina strife which she has supported and kept stirred up for several years.

2. Consideration should be given to the rendering of air and naval assistance in the event of an open invasion. The U. S. chiefs, in particular, have fought shy of suggesting any American commitment to send ground troopinto Indochina short of a decision to risk a general war in Asia.

3. The democratic powers should avoid giving Red China any pretext for direct intervention in southeast Asia, certainly until after a truce and the framework for an over-all settlement is established in Korea.

Fifth Air Force Reveals 16 Planes Lost During Week To Reds In Korea

Heaviest Week Of Losses During War; Anti-Aircraft Guns Account For Most Of Losses; Armistice Negotiations Completely Deadlocked

8TH ARMY HQ., Korea (UP)— The 5th Air Force disclosed today that it lost 16 planes during the past week, its heaviest loss of the Korean war.

Three American Sabrejets were shot down by Communist MIG-15 jet fighters in air battles during the seven days ended yesterday.

Red anti-aircraft guns accounted for four F-80 Shooting Stars, four F-51 Mustangs, three F-84 Thunderjets, one B-26 light bomber and one F-4-U Marine Corsair fighter-bomber.

Never before in the war has the 5th Air Force lost so many planes in a seven-day period.

Sabrejets partly offset the record shot down by Commist MIG-15 combat, five of them yesterday alone, but the enemy planes stayed out of range of Allied anti-aircraft guns.

Out for further revenge, Sabre jets spotted almost 200 Communist jets over northwest Korea today and clashed with three separate groups in brief dogfights without scoring any hits. Allied losses, if any, were not given.

On the 145-mile ground front U.N. raiding parties stabbed at Communist lines all the way across Korea. One patrol captured two hill positions before dawn, one of them almost without firing a shot.

Another infantry raiding group ran into stiff resistance near Chorwon on the west-central front and was pinned down for 50 minutes by heavy small arms and automatic weapons fire. Allied tanks intervened to bring the group back to safety.

The 5th Air Force reported that Communist jet pilots were "more aggressive than ever" during the past week. The Reds ventured on one occasion as far south as Kumchon, only 10 miles North of the 38th Parallel.

Moreover, the Air Force said, Communist jets "badly outnumbered" the Allies in almost every dogfight. But the Allies nevertheless shot down 12 Commist MIG's in combat while losing only three.

The Air Force claimed to have cut the main communist rail lines from Manchuria in 598 places and to have destroyed or damaged 505 enemy freight cars and 21 locomotives during the week.

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—Korean armistice negotiations bogged down completely today on the twin questions of military airfield construction and voluntary repatriation of war prisoners.

The Communists told United Nations delegates they were just wasting their time in trying to get the Reds to say whether they intend to build airfields in North Korea during a truce.

"I do not know what your side is going to do," said Chinese Maj. Gen. Hsieh Fang, "but I must tell you that the longer you insist on this obstacle, the longer you are delaying armistice negotiations.

"Unless your side intends to delay and disrupt the negotiations, you should pay attention to the facts that the more you go down that track, the less able you will be able to return."

Although the Reds from the start have refused to accept the U.N. demand for an armistice ban on airfield construction, they have made conflicting statements as to whether they actually intend to build any bases. The U.N. has spent the past two days trying to smoke out the Communist attitude.

In another armistice subcommittee, the U.N. and Communist delegates spent over four hours rehashing old arguments over the U. N. plan to let war prisoners choose whether they shall be repatriated.

"I thought they were stalling before," said Rear Adm. R.E. Libby, "but now I think they don't like it and won't accept it if they can get away with it."

Libby disclosed that the Allies have hired many persons of Chinese extraction to train Chinese war prisoners in vocational trades and instruct them in "the fundamental concepts of democracy", including the five freedoms.

Hanes Acquitted In Murder Trial

Jury Returns Verdict After Nine Hours Of Deliberation; Family Plans To Leave County Following Trial

NEW BERN, N.C. (UP)—Newton Hanes said today he was "very thankful and humble" at being found innocent last night in the killing of a Negro tenant on his farm.

The jury brought in the verdict after almost nine hours of deliberation, staggering spectators who had felt the case would end in a mistrial.

The "gentleman farmer," member of a wealthy Winston-Salem family, sat through the deliberations at the side of his wife. He had told the jury that the Negro, Ishmael Simmons, 40, had raped Mrs. Hanes.

He pleaded self defense, testifying that Simmons attacked him with a butcher knife when he told the tenant farmer he was going to have him indicted for rape.

"I hated to bring my wife into it," Hanes said after the trial, "but she's a good soldier."

The jury had just returned from supper with no apparent signs of agreement. Many of the spectators left, as did some of the newsmen covering the trial. A scant 15 minutes later James Howell, the foreman, announced the verdict.

Judge John J. Burney had given the jury three choices: Guilty of murder, guilty of manslaughter, or innocent.

Defense attorneys appeared to be pessimistic during the long hours of deliberation and were openly jubilant at Hanes's acquittal. Chief defense attorney Fred Hutchins said he had figured one chance in ten for a verdict of innocent, but he regarded the verdict as "righteous."

Hanes' Trent River farm has been rented, and his attorneys said in their summation that because of publicity of the trial it would not be possible for Hanes to live in the county, regardless of the outcome.

Carlsen Rejects Hollywood Cash

Skipper Says Nobody Going To Buy Him Away From Sea

FALMOUTH, Eng. —(AP)— Kurt Carlsen, the shy little sea captain, turned down today the glamor of Hollywood and its money—offered for rights to his saga of supreme courage and endurance aboard his ship, Flying Enterprise.

Firmly, the 37-year-old skipper said nobody was going to buy him away from the sea.

Carlsen said he just isn't interested in offers totalling between 30,000 and 40,000 pounds ($88,000 to $112,000 which already have been made for the film and story rights to his 13-day duel with the sea aboard his ill-fated freighter, which sank 37 miles out in the Atlantic Thursday.

He came back to Falmouth today from an undisclosed hideout where he rested to make an official report to shipping agents on the loss of the Flying Enterprise in the worst North Atlantic hurricane in half a century.

Now, he said, he wants only two things—to get back to his wife and two daughters in Woodbridge, N. J. "and then get another ship."

Hans Isbrandtsen, head of the Isbrandtsen Lines which owned the Flying Enterprise, already has said Carlsen will get a new command.

Isbrandtsen collected insurance totalling $800,000 yesterday from American marine insurers. The rest of the $1,200,000 insurance on the ship was reported held by British firms.

POLICE ROUT HORNETS

Still No Trace Of Ship's Crew

No Doubt As To Pacific Sinking; Search Is Continued

SEATTLE (UP)— The Coast Guard said today there was "no doubt" the freighter Pennsylvania had sunk in the stormy North Pacific as the search for her 46 crewmen was intensified near her last reported position.

Debris, mostly from her deck cargo including a hatch cover, plates, lumber and other wreckage was sighted by planes and the Canadian weather frigate Stonetown 24 miles southeast of where the ship was thought to have sunk.

Lt. Comdr. F. H. Salmela, the duty officer at Seattle Coast Guard headquarters, said the winds and current prevailing since the Pennsylvania was last heard from at 4:30 p.m. Wednesday would have carried the debris to the new position.

"It is assumed from the circumstantial evidence we have from the debris that the Pennsylvania has sunk," Salmela said.

"We don't think there is any doubt about that. The debris sighted by the Stonetown is the same as might be carried on the decks of the Pennsylvania."

The cutter Klamath reported that aircraft taking part in the search of the grey and stormy waters sighted an oil slick and olive-colored drums with yellow ends in approximately the same position.

There was no trace through the day and night of the four lifeboats in which the men of the stricken freighter were thought to have abandoned ship after the two-word radio message, "leaving now," was sent.

Planes and ships of the rescue team covered an area of 10,800 square miles yesterday.

The planes returned to their airfields at sundown, but the ships patroled the area all night, piercing the darkness with their powerful searchlights for some trace of Capt. George P. Plover and his men.

Rising temperatures, slackening winds and increased visibility aided the rescue teams. However, another storm was forming up in the area of Kodiak Island to the North and was expected to hit the search position later today.

The ship was owned by the States Steamship Co. which reported the vessel was carrying a generally military cargo to Japan.

Vote Veto-Free Peace Enforcing

PARIS (UP)—The United Nations General Assembly smothered Soviet bloc opposition today and approved veto-free machinery to cope with any future "Koreas."

The vote on the Western proposal was 51 to 5. Only Russia and it satellites voted against the plan. India, Indonesia and Argentina abstained.

The Assembly also voted 57 to 0 in favor of a high-level meeting of the Security Council on cold war issues when the time seems ripe.

The Communist delegates voted for the resolution because Russia introduced it originally, but the West in the meantime had eliminated from it the Soviet demand that the meeting be held at once so it could discuss the deadlocked Korean armistice negotiations.

The machinery to deal with future "Koreas" was proposed by the Western powers as the second instalment of the so-called Acheson plan to curb aggression, first unfolded in the fall of 1950 by U. S Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

It would permit the veto-free General Assembly to deal with an aggressor whenever a veto handcuffed the Security Council.

The vote came after Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky reiterated that the Western program is a buildup for unleashing a new world war.

British Tanks In Action Against Guerrilla Attack

ISMAILIA, Egypt, —(AP) Four British Centurion tanks rumbled into action today against a heavy Egyptian guerrilla attack on railway marshalling yards near the Tel El Kebir station in the Suez Canal zone.

A fierce gun battle broke out this morning after one Cameron Highlander was reported killed and three others wounded by a mine explosion on the railway track. As the fighing progressed, the British moved in the tanks to spearhead action by two companies of Coldstream Guards. Two Egyptians were reported captured.

Egyptian guerrilla fighters had tried to blow up a British army supply train in the freight yards at the giant supply base, a British spokesman said.

Red-Hot Ingot Is Shipped By Rail

MONTREAL —(AP) A 37-ton steel ingot heated to 3,000 degrees was shipped on a railway flat car here last night for the steel mill at Trenton, Nova Scotia, 800 miles away. The red-hot ingot, packed in a specially lined steel contaner, is expected to arrive in Trenton in 24 hours.

Officials say it will arrive in condition to be forged without the costly price of reheating. If the experiment is successful other similar shipments will be made.

Bloodmobile Volunteers Meet For Instructions

Brief Orientation Course Conducted Friday For Local Workers; National Program Told By Field Worker

Over 30 volunteer workers for the blood program gathered in the aldermen's room at the city hall for a short orientation course conducted by Mary Quinlan, field representative from the area office.

B. C. Satterfield, general blood program chairman, introduced Miss Quinlan and told the volunteers they were "ready to go to town" and the orientation course was the final setup for the blood program.

Before giving actual instruction in the regulations which the workers are to follow, Miss Quinlan reviewed the history of blood and its work in the body and said: "Blood is life, without it we would not be here." She told of the first blood transfusion known which was performed on Pope Innocent VIII in 1492 but was unsuccessful.

Miss Quinlan said the first blood bank was set up in Chicago in 1936 and since then science has made the greatest advancement in the use of blood and blood plasma.

She told the volunteers the Red Cross has received 13,000,000 pints of blood from American people in the blood programs. "There are cases," Miss Quinlan said, "where some people have given over a gallon of blood."

She pointed out four principal reasons for the blood program: To make blood available to everyone in the United States who needs it; to have a blood supply ready in case disaster strikes; to have blood for a national emergency; and to have it for research.

Miss Quinlan went over the activities which the volunteers will be called on for in the blood program. She said there would be a waiting room, a donor room, and a canteen where volunteers would be stationed. She told the group that after donors gave blood, the blood would be sent to Norfolk for tests and then a month's supply of blood would be sent back to the hospital here to meet the demands. "To anyone who needs it, there will be no charge for the blood, only for the administration of it," she said.

Utilities Body To Discuss Water Plant Monday

The Greenville Utilities Commission will meet Monday night at the city hall to discuss the water plant expansion program currently underway.

Utilities Commission Chairman Roy Martin said this morning the commission will attempt to devise the most advantageous method of continuing with the expansion program while maintaining full operating capacity.

"A new mixing chamber will have to be built," Martin stated, "and the commission will discuss construction of said chamber at the meeting Monday night."

The problem seems to be the addition of facilities not previously anticipated, and still proceed according to schedule, Martin said.

The meeting will be held at 7:45 in the office of utilities superintendent Martin Swartz.

Advertising Defined As 'Good Risk' In Survey By Economist

By ROGER W. BABSON

NEW YORK CITY — This is not a defense of advertising. Probably as much money has been wasted on advertising as on drilling for oil or mining for gold; but getting only dry wells and dead veins! But without those willing to take these wild-cat risks, we would have no oil and no gold. Advertising is a risk and should be sold as such.

But advertising is a good risk. Money spent thereon is the best gamble that I know of. According to an Advertising Bureau which made a study of the 717 companies which were spending annually over $25,000 on advertising ten years ago, 91 percent are still in business and doing more advertising than ever, while only five are now spending less on advertising. Only one company in twelve found advertising unprofitable.

Those companies which have quit advertising were trying to sell a wrong product, or had wrong sales policies, or an antiquated management. The way this 91 percent has stayed in business with continuing success, despite competition from new companies and improved products, proves my point.

Opportunities in Small Cities

Most of the above 717 concerns are located in the larger cities; but I believe that statistics of merchants in small cities would show an equal percentage of success. The most successful companies are now giving much advertising to all dailies and weeklies. This tendency is sure to increase as years go on. The people of small communities read advertisements very carefully.

One of the safest investments is in newspapers, large or small, especially where there is only one newspaper which controls the field. It is true that the costs of producing all newspapers are rising; but it is easy to raise the price of a newspaper. Most newspapers now sell for five cents, while some have recently increased to seven or ten cents. People want news; the more they pay for a newspaper, the more carefully it is read (news and ads)—hence, more valuable is its advertising space.

Helping Your Employees

I believe in Pension Plans; but pensions help wageworkers only after they are 65 years old. Advertising helps all employees all the time. Too few companies take seriously the problem of making factory workers understand the importance of what advertising does to hold up production, with high employment.

Labor newspapers should not accuse businessmen of "throwing money away" by spending it on advertising. It is true that advertising expenditures were about $6 billion in 1951, but nearly all of it is closely watched for very prompt results in more sales, which, when achieved, lead to larger payrolls.

Thank Advertising For American Prosperity

Advertising is largely responsible for the fact that our wages and standard of living are so much higher than that of any other country. Without advertising, we could not have mass selling. Without mass selling, we could not afford mass production. Without mass production, we would not enjoy the world's highest standard of living.

"What is selling—and advertising—doing to help me?", you may ask. It is helping you to secure 52 weeks of employment and is helping to increase your "take-home" pay. It is increasing employment so that your son can also get a good job. As it helps every worker, it makes more trade for every merchant. We should all encourage advertising.

Magazine Advertising Has One Danger

Everything in this world has its advantages and disadvantages —hence, so has magazine advertising. It is becoming so beautiful and "pulling", prepared by high-priced artists and psychologists, that it may get many women to buy more than they should and go needlessly into debt. These ads may also result in unreasonable labor demands. On this point, you might be interested to write the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, Washington 6, D. C., and ask for these free leaflets: "Fables and Facts About Advertising"; "The Man Who Couldn't See Beyond His Own Nose"; and "Where's Elmer".

Pitt March Of Dimes Campaign Move Closer To All-Out Drive

Initial phases of Pitt County's March of Dimes, including publicity and the distribution of campaign materials, has been about completed Chairman James Butler announced Friday.

Also, it was learned that district chairmen have been appointed and are beginning the solicitation of funds.

The Pitt Chapter one of almost 3,000 chapters of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis is an agent for bringing hope to every polio patient, where ever he may be, Chairman Butler said.

With funds raised through the March of Dimes the chapter is aiding in the fight of polio epidemics, helping hospitals, furnishing nurses and physical therapists, supplying hospital equipment and braces, relieving families of financial worries, removing the veil of ignorance that once stood between the polio patient and maximum rehabilitation.

Through the March of Dimes, donors have accomplished much —so much that today men of science are confident that the means of controlling polio will be found in the not-too-distant future, the National Foundation reports.

As National Foundation workers have increased the pressure against the disease, so too has polio increased the tempo of its attack. The last four years have been the four worst polio years in the history of this nation, more people having been stricken with the disease in this time than in the entire previous decade.

"Polio doesn't hit and run. Its crippling after-effects remain, and will continue to remain until people like the citizens of Pitt County put into the hands of scientists and doctors the means of wiping our physical disabilities. And the March of Dimes comes to us this January and calls for all our assistance," Dimes Chairman Butler oted.

"If you were to stand by the bedside of a sick child and hear a physician say, 'This child has polio', I'm sure you would do anything within your power to help that youngster along the road to recovery. When you give your dimes and dollars, you stand beside the sick child and help him rise from his bed. When you give, you promise the children of tomorrow that you will fight until polio is no longer a threat to their health and happiness. so when the solicitor in your community invites your help and support, please give and join the March of Dimes," said Butler.

America's Forgotten Colony Discussed At U D C Meet

The George B. Singletary Chapter of the U.D.C. met at the home of Mrs. J. B. Spilman on Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Spilman in her usual charming manner welcomed each member and the following guests: Mrs. Sallie Irons, Mrs. E. L. Clark, Mrs. Nan Moore and Mrs. Bob Harrington.

The president, Mrs. E. W. Harvey, presided over a brief business session.

Mrs. Irons and Mrs. J. G. Lautares brought clippings for the scrap book.

Mrs. Spilman, in charge of the program, used a most interesting as well as informative subject, "America's Forgotten Colony." This referred to a colony in the steaming jungles of Brazil, deep in the Amazon country, and made up of descendants of Southerners who sought a new life in Brazil, following the War Between the States.

"In their memories," said Mrs. Spilman, "they keep alive traditions of columned plantation houses, the scent of magnolia blossoms, the fields white with cotton. During the long dark tropical nights they dream of ancestral homes in Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama and the Carolinas. Behind their existence is a strange and tragic tale of flight from a war-torn land and of bitter struggles on foreign soil against unfamiliar elements."

From old letters and records and from the yellowed pages of long neglected books, students of history have pieced together the story, Mrs. Spilman elucidated.

The dream of a Dixie in Brazil did not have a successful ending, she told, but the perseverance displayed by the colonists is a remarkable example of the frontier spirit that made America great. Their traditions of the Old South that still live — "these, too," she concluded, "are a part of the epic story of our country, and should be remembered as long as America exists."

The hostess, assisted by Mrs. J. L. Fleming, Mrs. P. E. Wells and Mrs. Lautares, served spiced tea, cookies, party sandwiches, fruit cake and mints.

Farmville Rotary Hears Minister

FARMVILLE — Rev. H. L. Davis, Methodist minister, addressed the Rotary Club Tuesday night at a regular meeting of the club.

Rev. Davis spoke on the war in Korea and that even though people are anxious to solve the problem, there is but on way out. "But we are overlooking the fact that God has given us a way out and that way depends on us as individuals," said Davis.

He said the way out could be summed up in one simple statement, "Humble thyself, and pray and seek my face, and turn from wicked ways, then will I heal thy land."

John Stancill, program leader for next week, announced there will be a joint meeting of the Rotary Club with Kiwanis Club and Jaycees in the school lunchroom at seven o'clock next Tuesday night.

Margaret Lewis, club pianist, received the attendance prize. Jimmy Holloman of Fort Bragg was the guest of Bobby Rouse.

Cancer Society Plans February Linen Drive

The Greenville-Pitt County Cancer Society is planning to launch a linen shower in the near future to aid in the equipment of the North Carolina Cancer Institute, which is expected to open soon in Robeson County.

The Cancer Institute is to be a home for incurable indigent cancer patients. Its opening will mark a milestone in the hospital program of the state, according to a statement from the president of the state Cancer Institute, Dr. Roscoe D. McMillan of Red Springs.

The Institute is being built on the site of the abandoned Robeson County Home site. The County Commissioners rented the place to the Institute for 99 years at the rental fee of $1 a year. The 1951 Legislature appropriated $50,000, through the state Board of Health, for building the Institute. The maintenance and equipment of it will be the responsibility of the North Carolina Cancer Institute.

The local cancer society, of which Mrs. Charles Reynolds is commander, is planning to help supply towels, wash cloths, single bed sheets, blankets and single cotton bedspreads through showers carried out in church societies and civic organizations.

Mrs. Bill Sermons is project chairman for this enterprise. She said, in explaining the purpose of this drive, "The opening of this home will be of great benefit to elderly cancer incurables who now have nowhere to go nor anyone to care for them. The Home plans to open very soon and though many of the cancer units throughout the state are contributing, much is needed to care for the 60 patients which the Institute can accommodate. It is our hope that by means of this linen drive many articles will be secured to supply the linen chests of the Institute."

The shower is planned for February and similar projects will be carried out in all communities in the county.

The bull, she says, couldn't do any more damage than when the oil burner in her store back-fired. The slight explosion caused enough vibration to destroy $10,000 worth of china and crystal.

Scene Of Nelson-Avery Wedding; Reception Follows Long Beach Navy Chapel

The marriage of Miss Winifred Avery of Ayden and James Edward Nelson of the United States Navy took place in the Navy Family Chapel in Long Beach, California, on Wednesday afternoon, December 19, 1951, at five o'clock.

The bride is the daughter of Butler Avery of Greenville. Mr. Nelson is the son of Ira E. Nelson of Stokes. W. W. West of Long Beach escorted the bride down the aisle to the altar. The bridal gown was of white lace and net over satin with an apron effect panel on the bouffant skirt. Her halo hat of rhinestone and satin held a veil of illusion net. The bride carried a bouquet of white carnations and orange blossoms centered with an orchid.

Gloria Hebert of Long Beach was maid of honor and the bride's only attendant. Leo F. Cassey, stationed on the U.S.S. Kaskaskia with the bridegroom, acted as best man. Rev. Harry Leigh Pink of Long Beach, California, officiated.

A reception at the Wilton Hotel was held with the shipmates, their wives, and friends of the bridegroom being among the many who attended.

Mrs. Nelson was graduated from Winterville High School and attended East Carolina College. The groom graduated from Stokes High School and is now stationed aboard the U.S.S. Kaskaskia.

Duo-Pianists To Give Concert With Commentary At College On February 7

Virginia Morley and Livingston Gearhart, duo-pianists, give a "concert with commentary" at East Carolina College Thursday, February 7, under the sponsorship of the college Entertainment Committee.

The young American artists, best known perhaps to the public as stars of the Fred Waring radio and television shows, will play in the Wright auditorium at 8 o'clock before what promises to be a large audience from the campus, Greenville, and other localities in eastern North Carolina.

Described as "artists of impeccable technique, talent, temperament and taste," Morley and Gearhart studied abroad and made their debut in Paris. In America they have been heard in recital in New York's Town Hall, in concerts sponsored by the League of Composers and the Philharmonic-Symphony League, and in recital on tour from coast to coast each season.

For nine years they have appeared on the Fred Waring shows, for which Gearhart, also a composer and arranger, has created many highly distinctive arrangements. Their best-selling Columbia records include the album "Night Life on Two Pianos." For the last four consecutive seasons they have been soloists with the Cleveland Summer Orchestra.

and a state bond issue to complete the school building program, the money to be distributed on basis of need ability. The second phase of additional but less immediately vital needs embraced such items as extended employment for school teachers, including time before and after the regular teaching term; increased sick leave and retirement provisions, more school buses, additional secretarial help in administrative offices, and similar items.

PROVOCATIVE — Admittedly many of these items are provocative, and raise the question of ability on part of the state to meet them. The significant fact is that the details are left for further discussion, but that the basic needs are presented in time for consideration during the campaign for state, county and legislative offices. Even more significant is the fact that the basic program comes with full support of the several agencies concerned. The United Forces for Education, even some of the component units of that overall group, may have different ideal from the school teachers on how the program can best be put into effect. Instead of bogging down in argument over these details, the folks are backing the basic idea now with detailed discussion to come later. Thre was obvious agreement with Lieutenant Governor Pat Taylor's statement, as chairman of the board of education, tha the presentation was the most able and effective of any he had heard in his legislative and state board experience.

Strength for the Day

CALLING ALL MINISTERS

The ministers of the United States and Canada often fail to realize that they confront an almost unprecedented opportunity for Christian service. Secular leaders all over the world are assuring us that our national and international ailments and dislocations are not primarily political or economic in origin but spiritual. The Church is invited today to deliver a full, unabridged message of spiritual potency to a generation which knows itself to be weak and sick.

Listen to what Fortune Magazine has to say on this subject.

"By no conceivable set of circumstances will it be possible to solve by materialism the titanic problems, domestic and international, with which humanity is faced today. The ultimate answers to the questions that humanity raises are not, and never have been in the flesh. . . .

"The way out is the sound of a Voice, not our voice, but a Voice coming from something not ourselves, in the existance of which we cannot disbelieve. It is the earthly task of the pastors to hear this Voice, to cause us to hear it, and to tell us what it says."

It is the privilege of the Christian ministry to inspire the leadership of the world with an exalted vision of spiritual power.

Smaller Array Of Political Fireworks

State politics in North Carolina are getting off to a slow start in this election year of 1952, and right now it looks like the people of the state will not see the array of political fireworks this year that they witnessed two years ago in the Senatorial election or four years ago when Scott and Johnson took the spotlight in the gubernatorial race and Broughton and Umtsead fought a tough battle for the Senate post.

In spite of the fact that Dunaway and Ernest Gardner have announced for the gubernatorial race against William B. Umstead, there seems little likelihood that the race will develop into a heated battle unless another major candidate enters the field to challenge Umstead's already great advantage.

The big question mark on the political scene at the present moment seems to be the office of lieutenant-governor. There was talk several months ago that Governor Scott might seek that position for himself in order to control the Senate committee appointments, counting on his supporters in the House to take care of that half of the General Assembly for him. That speculation has more or less gone by the board now, and the political prognosticators are looking for the Governor to throw his support to a yet unannunced candidate from the eastern agricultural region of the state. Whether or not Ex-House Speaker Frank Taylor of Goldsboro or another of the leaders in the strong anti-Scott faction will seek the office of lieutenant governor remains to be seen. The possibilities that the lieutenant governor's race will develop into another pro-Scott, anti-Scott battle, however, remain in the foreground.

With the field of candidates for state offices relatively small at the present time, the voters of North Carolina are afforded an excellent opportunity to look into the background of the candidates whose hats already are in the ring, and get a pretty good idea of the qualifications of the individual candidates before campaign propaganda gets things thoroughly confused.

Although the campaigns on North Carolina's political scene are not likely to be as heated in 1952 as they have been in recent election years, the state will continue to need the best possible men in the state offices. It behooves the voters of the state to make sure they elect to these offices the most capable men from the field of candidates. That can only be accomplished if the voters of the state give careful consideration to the field of candidates over as long a period as possible.

Washington Is Becoming An Obsolete Capital

The capital city of these United States is an anachronism.

Maybe that's putting it rather strongly, but the fact is, Washington was planned and established as the capital city of a nation sprung up on the eastern coast of the American continent. Today that nation extends from coast to coast and its population trend is westward.

Once, Washington was centrally located in terms of population and geography. But no longer.

It was situated on the banks of a fairly large river, close to the Atlantic Ocean . . . providing a natural highway and the best available means of communication with the sprawling states and overseas powers.

Former arguments of geography, population or accessability no longer hold. The old reasons for placing the nation's capital where it is now, don't apply today.

For the present it would be more appropriate for the heart of government to be placed closer to the heart of the nation.

Such a suggestion has been made before. Always it falls on deaf ears.

Aside from the more obvious advantages of a central location and military defensability, there is the natural opportunity of devising a more efficient lay-out of offices and government buildings; an opportunity for building a city for one purpose, the operating of the machinery of government in a new atmosphere free of the faults that have become part of the procedural red tape of Washington-by-the- Potomac.

National Whirligig

Every Saturday this veteran Washington newspaper correspondent answers readers' questions of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent direct to Ray Tucker at 6308 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON—"From my reading of your columns," writes F.M. of Brooklyn, N.Y., in a rather complimentary letter, "you have been covering Churchill for more than ten years, off and on. Do you notice any change in him personally, and in his relations with President Truman?"

Answer: Definitely. First, there is the fact that the Prime Minister is ten years older than he was when he held that famous first press conference with President Roosevelt, leaped on a chair with the agility of a pole vaulter, and gave us a two-fingered speech of victory. Then he spoke in swift and matchless English.

GROPING—Today, I have seen and heard him several times since his arrival. He speaks haltingly and slowly. He fumbles and sometimes seems to be groping for the precise word, whereas it used to come to his tongue easily and happily. My British informants tell me that he turns to and listens to his advisers more frequently than he used to do. There is also the fact that Mr. Churchill is not quite so popular in Administration circles as he was when he came here as the architect of triumph and the hope of the democracies in their war with the dictators of Germany, Japan and Italy. His policies in Western Europe, the Orient, Egypt and the Middle East have riled President Truman and Secretary Acheson.

CRITICAL—They have expressed their critical viewpoint in sharp language. They had every right to do so, of course, in view of the military and economic aid we have given to England during and since the war. And a frank expression of our disagreements and differences was the first step toward solving or ameliorating them.

The Churchill of 1941, when he was only sixty-seven years old, would have replied to Truman-Acheson criticism in sharp and eloquent language, as he used to do to opposition speakers in Parliament. But participants in Blair House and Pentagon conferences inform me that he accepted our attacks in good grace.

LESSON—He admitted that, for domestic political reasons, he had to disagree with us on continued recognition of Nationalist China, resistance to Egypt's demand for independence and, most important of all, in his refusal to integrate England's armed forces with Eisenhower's Western European defense system.

He gave President Truman, no dumb politician himself, a lesson in practical British politics. In fact, he rigged both the President and the Secretary of State a bit on their failure to understand his political situation and his precarious control of Parliament, where his party has only a slim majority.

ALLIANCE—Despite these differences, however, Prime Minister Churchill assured Truman and Acheson that on all major matters of war and peace, we would find Britain standing shoulder to shoulder with us. Only a close and permanent Anglo-American alliance written or unwritten, he said, could guarantee peace around the world, or a victory over Russia if Moscow should engage in global war. That was his most important but least known statement during his conferences here.

DECLINE—As an indication of Mr. Churchill's decline in esteem at Washington, I was impressed by an incident which occurred after one of the conferences between himself and President Truman, including their diplomatic and military experts.

When Mr. Churchill left the conference chamber and entered the big White House anteroom, about sixty newspapermen and reporters swarmed around him. They asked if he could give them any information on his discussions with President Truman. Waving his cigar, he said: "I shall borrow a valuable American expression—'no comment.' "

A young and irreverent reporter, who had not seen or met Churchill in his more glorious day, remarked:

"He should have said 'lend-lease' instead of 'borrow'."

When Truman and Acheson heard of this seemingly unimportant incident, they roared with laughter. Nobody used to laugh at Churchill ten years ago, when he warned Hitler that the British would defend their beaches and streets and backyards with broken bottles for want of any other weapons.

Selected Shorts

STARKE, FLA., TELEGRAPH: "It has been a sin and a shame that the underworld racketeers have not shared with the rest of the public the privilege of paying taxes. Now that this condition is to be remedied, we may yet see a racketeer wearing the only thing left to most of us after taxes—a barrel!"

WEST POINT, MISS., TIMES-LEADER: "Washington dispatches disclose the fact that a total of more than 5,500,000 persons are now drawing Federal aid of one sort or another—and that current relief rolls are the largest in peacetime history."

BALTIMORE, OHIO, TWIN CITY NEWS: "The day is past when the farmer grew most of the things he and his family needed. Now he must buy many things—lumber, machinery, nails, fencing, roofing, barn equipment, fertilizer and seed, as well as food and clothing. While inflation drives up all prices, the pressures on many goods the farmer buys are greater than they are on many of the products he sells."

CULLMAN, ALA., DEMOCRAT: "The politicians' creed seems to be to keep the people's pockets full of 'money', even though the 'money' eventually drops to where it is not worth the cost of the paper used to make it."

ANTIGO, WISC., DAILY JOURNAL: "The National Security Resources Board is trying to promote the dispersal of new industry in the United States for safety reasons. Says the board: 'There is o need of a bureau in Washington or elsewhere in the federal government to do this job.' And apparently the effort is meeting with considerable initial success despite the board's almost herctical views. If it works out, maybe others will be inclined toward this unorthodoxy and away from the prevailing notion that you're not in business until you've denuded the capital warehouses of every available desk and have hired people to lean on them."

Another Unbalanced Budget

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

The outstanding amateur athlete in the nation in 1951 is a preacher! When the news of the award came to the Rev. Robert Richards he said, "Great day in the morning!" Rev. Richards is a professor of theology at LaVerne College, California, and he is the world's best pole vaulter. Under his own power he has been closer to heaven than any other preacher in the world, 15 feet 4 and three-quarter inches.

Preacher Richards now hopes to clear 16 feet. His present record beats the old one of 15 feet 4 and one-quarter inches, set in 1942. At 25 years, Bob is just as much amateur as an athlete can be. He turns down all offers of help from meet promoters.

Bob won his 50th straight vaulting victory December 30th in the Sugar Bowl meet, which means that he is a cinch for the U. S. Olympic team for this summer in Helsinki. Bob is't just a pole vaulter, either. Last May he gave a talk at Pasadena on the subject "Christianity and Athletes," dropped in two days later to enter a decathlon at John Muir College. In the field events Richards turned out to be a champion, in spite of the fact that he is small, only 5 feet 10, weighing 163 pounds. Two months later he won the National AAU decathlon title, with a score of 7,834 points, fourth best on record. In this Olympic event, Bob will rate second only to Stanford's Bob Mathias, the world record holder with 8,042 points. But Preacher Bob has set a goal in the decathlon for 8,400 points, which he hopes to hit "with the help of God."

Bob has not always depended on the Lord so much. In his sermons he recalls that when he was a boy in Champaign, Ill., he wanted to become a boxer, loved violence and "was headed for juvenile delinquency." Luckily for him and the U.S. Olympic team, at 16 he fell in love with a girl who wanted a Christian boy friend.

As usual, Bob thanked the Lord when he was chosen the Outstanding Amateur Athlete of 1951. But Bob doesn't want anybody to consider him impractical. He says, "I don't imply that God is any metaphysical demon hiding behind the nearest cloud, waiting to clutch at me and lift me over the crossbar. . . . I mean psychological influence, which He exerts over all those who can search their souls and find there the strength to perform wonderful things."

And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

Reflector Bureau — By LYNN NISBET — Asso. Afternoon Dailies

GOVERNOR? —Ernest A. Gardner, Shelby lawyer who devotes as much time to his Cleveland county farm as to his law office, has announced his candidacy for governor. The announcement took most of his friends by surprise, for although he has insisted for three years that he would be a candidate, very few people believed it—and not many folks even thought he believed it himself. More than two years ago, just after he was fired from his job as special attorney for the highway commission dealing with right of way acquisition for the Blue Ridge Parkway, he said that he was running for governor on the Kerr Scott platform. He interpreted that platform to be "turn out the folks that are in and get some new ones," and he said he was all the way for that idea—now. He is a distant relative of the late Governor and Ambassador Max Gardner, but so far as can be learned he is not trying to ride prestige of the family name—he is running on his own record, which includes three terms as representaive of Cleveland county in the general assembly, 1933-35-37.

CAMPAIGNER—There was a story told about his first campaign for the legislature in 1932, which may have been forgotten, but which illustrates the zip he might put into the governor's race. He was running against Henry Edwards, a young lawyer who had made a good record in the 1931 session. The big depression was just being recognized for what it was, and everybody was acutely tax conscious. The 1931 session had dealt with matters of tax policy largely based on the desperate plight of homeowners, and dozens of substitutes for ad valorem taxes were proposed. Young Ernest Gardner (he was then 35) charged that his incumbent opponent, younger Henry Edwards (who was then 28) had sought to get through the general assembly extension of the occupational franchise tax to cover such homely occupations as blackberry picking. Actually, the matter concerned such things as trespass and a lot of other ramifications, but the blackberry picking item had high popular appeal.

RACONTEUR—Ernest Gardner is an excellent raconteur, which is the high brow word for a good story teller. The way he tells about how he reached decision to get an education and become a lawyer, instead of remaining a lifelong plowboy, constitutes almost a masterpiece in story-telling. Some of Ernest Gardner's friends are still not sure whether he is seriously interested in being elected governor, or is just having himself a good time. If he does make a real campaign of it, it will be an interesting interlude in the seriously pessimistic pronouncements of some other candidates. And, before too many folks attempt to laugh him off it might be well to recall that Cleveland county election in 1932, and the oft published advertising line about "they laughed when I sat down at the piano." None of the folks around capitol square think that Ernest Gardminated and elected governor of North Carolina, but those who know him do not think, either, that he will come up with such insignificant number of votes as have been counted in the past for Olla Ray Boyd or Stanley or Simmons.

PROGRAM — The program for public schools as presented to the state board of education Thursday by representatives of the United Forces for Education and the state teacher organization was greeted with respectful attention by members of the state board. Evident impression was made for three reasons: First, the proposals had been trimmed to basic factors, unencumbered with a lot suggested machinery for effectuating them; secondly the proposals had concurrent support of all the recognized agencies devoted to pubic school improvement, instead of the cross-purpose and contradictory presentations of previous years; and, thirdly, the program was fo nulated long enough in advance of a legislative session to enable full discussion and explanation, so that nobody in responsible position—as member of the board of education, member of the general assembly or school teacher or patron would be asked to act blindly and on faith

REASONABLE— There was also manifested feeling among members of the board of education that the total program presented is reasonable, although there remains some doubt about ability of the state to put it fully into effect. It was reduced to two major divisions—a basic legislative program of five points, and an additional program of needs but less vital to the school system. The five points of the basic program are, briefly: Reduction of teacher-pupil load from 32 to 30, with ultimate goal of 25; base salary scale for Grade A certificated teachers of $2600 to $4100 a year, including twelve increments of $125 each; provision for attendance officers; adequate appropriation for janitorial and maid service at school buildings;

What Other Papers Are Thinking

(Henderson Dispatch)

It is perhaps just the way of politics. Surely nothing could have happened in a matter of a few weeks to make so much difference. Yet some who for months have been talking of the possibility of General Eisenhower as the Democratic candidate for President have already begun casting slurs in his direction since he intimated he would accept the Republican nomination. Probably only the first of this has been heard as yet.

As is quite well known, Eisenhower was in demand on both sides of the fence. Had he accepted the Democratic nomination, which reports say President Truman was ready to give him, these same sources would have been priaising this same general to the skies. Now it is just the opposite.

There would have been no difference in the present trend had Ike decided to go along with the Democrats. The Republicans, many of whom are embracing him with both arms, would have shied away just as their opponents now are doing.

It may be, of course, that the general will not be nominated. Senator Taft may have it in the bag already, as a few of his supporters are guardedly claiming, although they are taking in a whale of a lot of territory in that attitude. Until the GOP choice is made, however, critics might well say their ammunition to be fired, if necessary, after the Army chief has won out at the convention, if he does. As yet, Ike is the same Ike he was last week or last mnth, or even when he conferred with President Truman during his flying visit home two months ago. His statement earlier in the week neither detracted from nor added to his character, his convictions nor his fitness for high political office. If he were qualified before, he still is, and vice versa.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

Ad writers have rediscovered a new magic word. It is "magic."

Rambling through the announcements of 1952 appliances disclosed a lot of proffered magic. The word appears to be displacing "colossal," "super," "ultra modern," "streamlined" and other favorites of yesteryears. Bendix TV is featuring a "magic interlace," Kelvinator a "magci cycle" refrigerator defroster, Admiral TV "dynamagic" radio built in and Hallicrafters "magic prices."

Further rambling through television and many others are putting strong emphasis on price.

The new models may be the last for a while, since National Production Authority regulations effective February 1 interdict new tooling. But because this order was long expected, manufacturers have been engineering as many improvements as possible for their 1952 models.

While there may not be many revolutionary models, most manufactures have come up with interesting improvements which should stimulate sales.

Next to "magic," the most popular features are push-buttons and other automatic devices. Many refrigerators feature push-buttons and other automatic devices. Many refrigerators feature push-button temperature controls or automatic defrosting and one, Admiral, has "flash defrosting which is accomplished in only a few minutes," thereby giving a new time dimension to "flash." Several ranges are also featuring push-button or dial temperature control and some new model suction cleaners are stressing the ease with which accumulated dirt may be removed.

Among television receivers, in addition to lower prices, there are definite trends toward better picture reception, easier tuning, larger screens, UHF tuning and better fringe reception.

Most engineering talent appears to have been devoted to that last point. It makes sense, too. The freeze on new stations has kept the TV market frozen for some time and this has accounted for the slump in sales of sets. But if the engineers are able to increase the range of receptivity from 50 to 150 miles, they will increase present markets up to nine times in area and perhaps double or triple the market in terms of purchasing power.

BUREAU USES ADS TO GET BILLS PAID

"The man who does not pay his old accounts now during these prosperous times will have difficulty in obtaining credit in years to come," says a three-column ad in Yakima, Wash., newwpapers. It's part of a series of ads sponsored by the local credit bureau, urging people to maintain their credit ratings.

EXPORT OLDSTERS, PROMOTER'S PLAN

"America is a great exporting nation, but we are developing a new important export," the Old Promoter remarked as he settled himself in the visitor's chair with the air of a man who had come to stay all day—or at least until our cigars were gone.

"This export," he said, "is old people. We may soon be shipping vast quantities of them all over the world."

"Huh?" we asked, ever ready with the sharp, definitive questions.

"That's right," he said. "Under social security laws a married gets up to 160 a month. Most of them will get less, and there are restrictions on extra earnings. There are some places in the United States where couples can live on that, if inflation doesn't get worse. But there are lots of places in Latin America, the Caribbean, Italy, France and so on, where that will provide a really fine living. And I don't see that restrictions against extra earnings can apply. So I expect we will be exporting old people by the thousands.

"I am thinking of forming a travel agency to arrange such migrations on a large scale. Now, if you have a few thousand dollars not working . . ."

THINGS IT'S PUT ON ARE STILL HIGH

Pepper, which was close to $2 a pound wholesale a year ago, had dropped in price under pressure of larger crops abroad. This week it sold as low as $1.27 a pound, with March deliveries quoted at $1.17. It went begging at 3 cents a pound in 1939.

SUPPORTS FOLLOW LARGE OLIVE CROPS

As reported here recently, the Mediterranean basin is producing a bumper crop of olives. So are California and Arizona. So the Department of Agriculture has announced a price support program for domestic olive oil.

Hal Boyle's Column

By ED CREAGH
(For HAL BOYLE)

WASHINGTON —(AP)— "I'm sorry," my wife said. "We must have a bad connection. I thought for a minute you said you were going to a party with a kangaroo."

"Not with a kangaroo. For a kangaroo," I said.

"Oh," she said. "A party for a kangaroo. That makes everything perfectly clear.

"Look, are you feeling all right? You're not feverish or anything? You haven't had a blow on the head?"

So I explained that some movie people, who have just finished shooting a picture called "Kangaroo," had flown a couple of the beasts in from Australia. One kangaroo took to her bed after a few hours of Washington, but the Australian Ambassador was giving a party for the other one.

"All this," my wife said, "sounds a little giddy, even for this town. Go ahead, though. Try to get home early. And I don't want to hear any stories about your having to sit up with the sick kangaroo."

Well, the party at the embassy was more fun than a barrel of kangaroos.

This Percy Spender, the Ambassador, is a ruddy, gusty type who sets out a fine buffet. Turns out he's a great kangaroo fancier. Mrs. Spender can take kangaroos or leave them alone, but she let this one romp through her house with never a shudder.

And Joe, the kangaroo, stole the show.

He's the only kangaroo I ever met socially, but if they're all like him I want one. He's greyish in color and about the size of a small kangaroo. He's as cunning as an Easter bunny, and tame, too. Didn't kick a single American.

Mostly Joe was led around on a leash by a pretty Australian model named Loretta North, an 18-year-old who has been chosen "Miss Kangaroo," of all titles. She didn't have anything to do with kangaroos until she won the contest, but she learns fast. Turns out there's a lot to learn, too.

"Wonderful animals!" boomed the Ambassador. "Ought to see them jump! Ten yards easily Whole herds of them in the interior of Australia! It's a picture, by gad, to see a whole herd jumping at once. Why, I remember one time—"

Just then his son John, who is 16, burst in. He mde a bee-line for Joe—and the kangaroo, who had never seen him before, greeted him like a long-lost brother. Talk about a boy and a dog—you should have seen John and little Joe scamper through the embassy corridors.

Joey fell on his face, finally. Besides, he had a tough schedule ahead of him—New York this week-end, then a tour of 30 or more U. S. and Canadian cities. So they covered him with a brown blanket and he took a long nap, right there on the rug.

"Has it occurred to you," somebody said, "that with Washington women afraid to wear mink coats, on account of all the scandals, there might be a brisk demand for coats made from kangaroo fur?"

I could have sworn that, under his blanket, Joe the kangaroo trembled from head to foot.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — Capitalites are accustomed to seeing visitors in such attire as kilts, saris, rich Far Eastern robes and Indian headgear, but they got a real bang when the Lord Provost of Glasgow came to town recently. Glasgow's Mayor, Sir Victor Warren, decked himself out in wine velvet and ermine robe, with a big gold chain and medals. The gold chain, he told District Commissioners, who gave him and his wife a party, "is the only bit of British gold that isn't buried in Fort Knox."

His Lady wasn't so fancy. She wore dark blue tucked net with a little, tight-fitting hat fashioned of pale blue sequins.

Sir Victor, a handsome man, not yet 50, has the distinction of being the first Progressive or Conservative Party member to be elected Lord Provost of Glasgow in 15 years. He's also manager of the Imperial Chemical Industries. Lady Warren is the first Lady Provost of the city.

Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne, wife of the Norwegian Ambassador, dean of the Diplomatic Corps, in a recent interview, said the successful hostess is one who plans a party well ahead of time, relaxes and enjoys her guests. She added that getting the right people together, flower arrangements, the right frock and good food are equally important.

General Eisenhower is a man who likes his vittels. Solid, simple, tasty, nothing too fancy. He's an expert himself in the kitchen. Potato salad, for instance, is one of his favorite dishes, according to a friend who recently visited him in Europe.

"Potato Salada Eisenhower" is made by cutting potatoes into small cubes, throwing in generous portions of diced celery, adding garlic powder and hard boiled eggs and smothering the whole business in mayonnaise and letting it stand at least 24 hours.

Once in a while, the General and Mrs. Eisenhower make a flying visit to their old Washington friend and hostess, Mrs. Perle Mesta, the Minister to Luxembourg. Mrs. Mesta whips up batches of the General's favorite cookies, just as she does for the soldiers who are her guests at the American Legation in Luxembourg each week

VIRGINIA McLAWHORN

Eastern Star Meeting

Vanceboro Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, held its regular meeting and Christmas party in the chapter room of the Masonic Hall on Wednesday night, Dec. 19. The meeting was opened in ritualistic form by Worthy Matron Mrs. Verona T. Lancaster. After the flag ceremonies a brief business session was held. Associate Matron Mrs. Virginia McLawhorn reported on illnesses among the members and their families and the courtesies extended them since the last meeting. The chapter voted to send a number of cheer and needy baskets to be delivered on Christmas Eve, and to send a cash donation for Christmas to the chapter's guest, Mrs. Jennie Williams, at the Masonic and Eastern Star home in Greensboro. Greetings from the grand officers, the district officers and Mrs. Lula Disoway were read.

After the business session chapter members and members of the Masonic Order who had been invited to the program and fellowship hour gathered in the social rooms which were attractively arranged with holly, long leaf pine and candles where a Christmas program was presented. The Worthy Matron welcomed all members and Masons and the program opened with the hymn "O Little Town of Bethlehem," followed by a reading, "The Holiday Spirit" by Jather McLawhorn, Worthy Patron, a poem, "Keeping Christmas," by Lawrence Lancaster, the Christmas story "The Gifts of the Wisemen" by Mrs. H. E. Barrow and a prayer by B. L. Witherington. The program closed with all singing a number of Christmas carols.

From a table covered with a white linen cloth, decorated in the Christmas theme and lighted by red candles, refreshments of nuts, mints, cranberry punch and decorated cakes carrying out the Christmas motif were served. All members carried gifts to be sent to the Masonic and Eastern Star home.

The Worthy Matron thanked all who took part in the program and those making preparations for the meeting: program, Mesdames H. E. Barrow, Lawrence Lancaster and George Ipock; decorations, Mesdames E. P. Blair, James E. White and Z. V. Johnson; refreshments, Mesdames B. L. Witherington and Verona T. Lancaster, and Miss Helen McLawhorn.

Change of Heart

Chapter 6

"I thought," Marcia suggested, "I'd like to take up something, if I could. It seems wicked to be in New York and not take advantage of all its opportunities."

"What would you 'take up'?" Abigail looked amused.

"Well—" Marcia was hesitant. She did not want her sister to think her presumptuous, or to underrate her ambition, either. "I've done some sketching, a few charcoals. What I'd really love to try are oils."

"Oils? You mean paint?" The expression on her sister's usually placid face was pure astonishment.

Marcia nodded. "I won a prize ...oh, of course it was high school amateur stuff. But I love it more than anything."

"Dear me, we'll have to talk this ov- with Dean."

"Dean?" There could only be one man named Dean. Marcia did not know why her heart skipped a beat.

"Yes. Dean is an artist."

"He is!"

"He'd really be very good, if he weren't so lazy," Abigail continued. "He could get enough commissions from the rich women he knows to establish a nice sound business—and bank account." There was light scorn in Abigail's tone.

"Most artists aren't especially sound business men," Marcia ventured. Somehow her opinion of this young man whom she had considered so disagreeable continued to rise.

"Heaven knows Dean isn't! He's perfectly content, apparently, to starve in a garret. Sometimes I think he enjoys it, thinks it romantic."

"Maybe he'll do something great some day," Marcia said, almost feeling as she said it that it would come to pass. "But maybe you'd better not tell him about me. That I paint, I mean."

"Why not? He'll be enthralled." Abigail remained amused. "Besides, Dean can advise you what to 'take up,' as you phrase it."

"Are you—that is, is he coming to the party?"

"I'll invite him. But one never knows what Dean will do."

That sounded very much the way Dean had spoken about Abigail.

Abigail said, "I have a feeling that Dean will come, if only to see again how we possibly could be sisters. What did you do to him, Marcia?"

"Do to him?" Marcia did not know what Abigail meant. Yet once more she felt the hot color [illegible] up into her face. "I didn't do anything. I'm afraid he must think me simply impossible. I so seldom cry. But I was tired and excited."

"Dean can be an exciting person, almost dangerous."

That was, indeed, a strange thing for her sister to say.

"But forget Dean." Abigail dismissed him with a proud toss of her honey-colored hair.

"Let's see." She consulted her list once more. "There'll be Stanford, the producer, and Sammy Harlow, who has a smash hit on Broadway. Thelma Courtney, his leading lady—stage and heart—of the moment; Cliff Travers, the violinist—you've heard of him, of course. And Manning Kornoff. He's quite devoted to me, incidentally. And Victor Scott, whom, also incidentally, I'll probably marry some day."

Marcia had just been thinking that she never would be able to get all, if any, of these various people straight. Her sister's last statement, significant yet so casually interjected, brought her to sharp attention.

She put down her coffee cup with a little click. "Marry? Are you engaged, then, Abigail? Do you mean you are thinking of being married soon?"

Abigail shrugged once more; with her it was an expressive gesture. "Who knows? Victor insists it will be soon enough. And of course any girl would be out of her mind not to jump at the mere possibility of snaring him. Victor's tremendously rich, you see, darling, and diabolically handsome in the bargain. Goodnatured, too. However, Mrs. Scott may have different ideas."

"Mrs. Scott?"

"The third." Abigail laughed now, her gay, tinkling laugh, no doubt thoroughly amused at her younger sister's effort not to look too shocked. "Yes, darling, he's married. But then nearly all the men one could consider marrying are, you see. The only exceptions are the ones like Dean, with no ambition or desire to prosper, or Manning, who is too foreign and too intense for comfort."

"But if Mr. Scott is still married," Marcia said trying to sound as though she were not too concerned—it was concern she felt; Abigail was wrong in thinking her only shocked —"then you aren't engaged. Definitely, I mean."

"Victor considers it definite." Abigail looked bored, rather than delighted. "It's only a question of how mucy settlement and alimony he was to shell out to wife number three."

Marcia felt a little chill of revulsion go through her. Could Abigail really want to be number four?

"By the way," her sister added, "don't discuss my engagement in front of Dean."

"Of course not."

"Now we must make out the list of what to get from the store." Abigail chewed the end of the pencil reflectively. "You can do the marketing, darling, since you're so domesticated."

"I'll be happy to do anything I can," Marcia returned.

For you, my lovely sister, she was thinking. For she was deeply disturbed and distressed. Abigail must not marry a man who has been so much-married, a man who still had a wife; a man she did not love. Maybe it was young and romantic and without ambition, all the things her sister had said of Dean Dearborn, but Marcia believed that one should marry only for love.

She did know she was anxious for the party on Friday. And she certainly hoped that Abigail was right about Dean's showing up. Marcia did not think he would come—if he came—just to see again how the two girls possibly could be sisters. She did not think, either, naturally, that he would come because, as Abigail had insisted, Marcia had "done" something to him.

All that mattered was the he be there. It was amazing, really, how much this seemed to matter now to Marcia.

Part of this DEBT is YOURS

No, not the national debt. That is merely a financial obligation, and you already know that part of it is yours. What is meant is the service debt that you owe to your family and to society.

The Church shown here is one of thousands which are carrying the load of responsibility for a better kind of citizenship, for international peace, and for the greater acceptance of those higher values which alone can lead people into the better life and save the world from destroying itself.

No matter what your estimate of this or that church may be, the fact is that in the Church, and in the Bible which is its written word, lies the world's one hope.

Every responsible person owes a part of civilization's debt to the Church. For the sake of your children—for the sake of humanity—for your own sake—why not take an interest in the Church? Let's give religion a chance to do what it will do when today's unchurched millions are added to the forces for good already at work.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

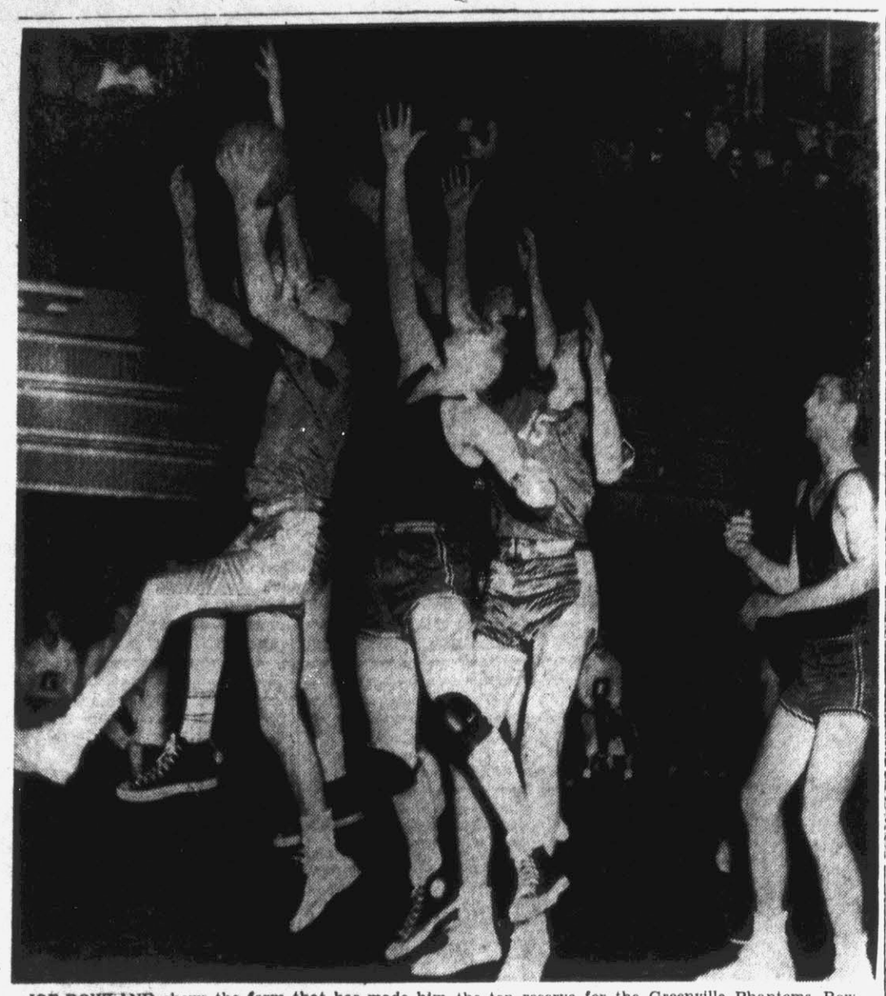
Smith Worthington Leads Phantoms To 70-42 Loop Win



JOE ROWLAND shows the form that has made him the top reserve for the Greenville Phantoms. Rowland is shown in this photo driving in for two of the 70 points the Phantoms scored last night against New Bern. Others in the photo are New Bern's Robert Kennell (10), Wallace Conway (15) and James Diffe (9). The two players behind Rowland and Kennell are not identified. Worthington Gets 28 In First Loop Game

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Sports Writer

With slender Smith Worthington turning loose all his basketball talent to lead the way, the Greenville Phantoms last night swamped the New Bern Bears 70-42 in the first Northeastern Conference game of the current season for the two clubs. The game was played in Greenville's high school gym.

Worthington, playing by far his best game of the season, ran wild to score 28 points against the Bears who were seemingly helpless to stop him. Time and again he drove right past New Bern defensive men to score his points and just simply couldn't be stopped.

Worthington's chief aid in the stunning defeat of Coach Joe Caruso's Bears was guard Sonny Scott who came in second in the scoring race with 17 points. Sonny's real value last night, however, was as the playmaker for the Phantoms and it was his passes that shook Worthington loose under the baskets. Scott didn't begin his own scoring spree until Worthington was slowed down but once he got started, he couldn't be stopped by anyone.

The Phantoms enjoyed one of their better evenings from the floor, hitting 28 shots in 74 attempts for an average of 38 per cent.

With Worthington leading the first quarter scoring, the Phantoms were never behind in the ball game. The stringbean forward started the evening action by hitting a push shot from the corner and the Phantoms were off to the races. The visiting Bears pulled up to within one point of the Phantoms (11-10) with four minutes remaining in the quarter but Worthington hit two quick lay up shots and Joe Rowland drove in for two points to put the Bears out in the cold.

After running up an 18-14 margin at the end of the first period, the Phantoms didn't let up a bit in the second quarter. Scott began his evening's work and by the time the half rolled around, the Phantoms were ahead by a comfortable 34-28.

Even as hot as they were from the floor in the first half, nothing quite matched the performance of the Phantoms in the third quarter. Hitting on just about every shot they decided to make, the Greenville team ran up 28 points in the third period to chalk up a whopping 62-35 margin at the end of the period. After that knockout punch by his first team, Coach Bo Farley of the Phantoms pulled the starting five and sent in his reserves who finished the game.

Play slowed down when the reserves got in the game but the damage was done. Caruso, who used his first team throughout the entire first half and much of the third quarter, pulled his starting five out of the game, and reserves for both clubs finished the contets.

The Phantoms will continue their Northeastern Conference play Tuesday night with a trip to Washington. The Pam-Pack is sharing top billing in the pre-season polls for conference champions while the Phantoms have been classed as the loop's dark-horse entry. A junior varsity contest will precede the varsity game Tuesday night in Washington.

Belvoir Devils Take Loop Wins Over Farmville

BELVOIR—Almost similar circumstances prevailed in both games here last night as the Belvoir Blue Devils took a pair of victories from Farmville. The Belvoir girls started off the evening's work with a 54-32 triumph over the Farmville girls and the boys finished up with a 59-48 win.

In both contests, the two clubs stayed fairly close to each other but as the second period got underway, the Belvoir teams began showing their superiority.

In the girls game, Belvoir held a slim 13-10 margin at the end of the first quarter but had moved to a 29-19 lead at the end of the first half. Forward Claudia Pollard led the scoring for the Blue Devils with 30 points, 17 more than Farmville leader Ila Wooten could score. Miss Wooten got 13 points.

The defensive honors went almost entirely to the guards on the Belvoir team. Jean Tyson, Margie Pollard and Edna Randolph all turned in good defensive work as the Belvoir team gained its ninth victory in 10 starts. Doris Oakley led the Farmville defense.

Boys Game

Farmville's Charlie Fitzgerald hit for 26 points in the boys' contest but his efforts were all in vain as the Red Devils failed to check the efforts of the Belvoir boys. Ralph Tyson led the Blue Devil scoring with 21 points.

Farmville held Belvoir to a 13-13 tie at the end of the first period but Tyson got busy in the second quarter and at the end of the half he had moved Belvoir to a 26-22 margin. The lead was extended two more points in the third period and the fourth quarter made the game a runaway for the Blue Devils.

Defensively, Marvin Tugwell of Farmville and Howard Bullock of Belvoir took the honors.

Belvoir's record is now 6-4 for all games.

Bethel Makes Comeback To Win Over Ayden In League Thriller

By MELVIN LANG
Reflector Sports Writer

BETHEL—Bethel's Indians took over undisputed possession of first place in the Pitt County Conference here last night by edging Ayden 45-42 in a league thriller. Ayden's girls captured the first contest, 45-37, to chalk up their fifth win against one defeat in conference play.

The Indians staged a surging comeback in the second half to overcome an eight point deficit at halftime to take the lead for the first time in the game with two minutes left in the contest. Vance White pulled in a long down-court pass from Bobby Manning and laid the ball up in the basket to give Bethel its first lead, 30-29.

The winners built the lead up to four points at 33-29 with less than a minute to go in the quarter before Mac Whitehurst broke the Ayden scoring freeze with three successive free throws to narrow the count to 33-32. A push shot by Robert Nelson with 10 seconds to go gave Bethel a 35-32 lead at the close of the third period. The Indians scored a total of 19 points in the period while holding Ayden to only eight.

Both teams got a field goal in the first 30 seconds of the final period as Randall Harrington traded shots with Bethel's White. Whitehurst's push was good and Bethel had a margin of only one point again. Bobby Manning pushed one in for Bethel but Harrington connected on two free throws and Curtis Dennis hit for one to knot the count at 30-all. With five minutes gone, Harrington then hit on a hook from the left side to give the Tornadoes a two point lead, 41-39.

Ayden's lead was a short-lived affair, however, as Earl Johnston connected for a field shot a few seconds later to tie the score. Bethel went ahead to stay with 2:20 left in the game as Larry Tetterton made a free throw and White's layup was good. A free throw by Ayden's Whitehurst and Bethel's Mac House finished the scoring for the night.

Whitehurst's 17 points was good for high scoring honors for the night, while Harrington copped second high with 16 points. Besides his scoring spree, Whitehurst was the rebound leader for both teams. The 6-2 center missed only a few chances in the first half. Delano Cox, Hal Edwards, and Dennis were outstanding for the losers on defense.

Bobby Gene Manning and Robert Nelson broke through the almost impenetratable defense thrown up by Ayden in the first half to lead the scoring for the winners with 14 and 13 points, respectively. Earl Johnston, who played a whale of a ball game on the floor last night, was third for the Indians with eight points. Johnston and White were leaders of the Bethel defense.

Girls' Game

Ayden's girls, led by Katherine Bright, came from behind soon after the second half opened to win 45-37. Katherine, playing in her first game in nearly five weeks, scored 23 points during the night, with 16 of them coming in the second quarter.

Bethel took over the lead with only a few seconds left in the first quarter and held it throughout the half, leading by one point at halftime, 18-17. Bright laid in a shot from close up after 10 seconds of the third quarter to give Ayden a short lead, but Isabel Manning dropped in two one-handers from outside the circle to give the Bethel lassies the lead once more.

A field goal by Bright and a free throw and goal by Alice Jean Smith put Ayden ahead for the final time. With Bright and Wilma Stocks doing the scoring, Ayden built up a lead of five points at the close of the quarter, 32-27.

Jo Wynne and Joyce Beverly broke through the defensive cordon thrown up by Peggy Conway, Betty Jean Padley and their Ayden teammates to score 16 and 12 points respectively to lead the losers. Isabel Manning dropped in nine points. Jean Cullifer and Geraldine White were leaders of the Bethel defense.

Alice Jean Cox was second for Ayden with 13 points, while Wilma Stocks had six points. Charlene Smith, who dropped in three points during the crucial minutes of the game, played a good game on the floor for Ayden.

This was the final meeting of the two schools during the regular season.

Possession Pays Off With 43-36 Win For Baby Phants

Possession of the basketball paid off again for the Greenville High School Junior Varsity Phantoms as they defeated the New Bern Junior Varsity Bears 43-36 last night. The game was played as a preliminary contest to the Varsity clash between the two schools.

Little Pat Sawyer was again the big man in the victory for Coach Bill Kittrell's ball club. Sawyer hit for nine points to lead the Phantom scoring plus doing a top notch job of ball handling at his guard position.

Sonny Fones, a little guard for the New Bern club came off with high scoring honors for the night with 13 points but he wasn't able to carry the entire load by himself.

Carl Coley chipped in seven points for the Bears but it wasn't enough to keep the wolf from the door.

A superior height advantage owned by the baby Phantoms gave them complete control of the backboards and most of the floor play was controlled by Sawyer and the Phantoms. Operating under orders from Kittrell, the Phantoms waived most of their free throws to take a chance on hitting from the floor. Forty-two of their 43 points were scored from the floor while only one came via the free throw route.

Ranked behind Sawyer in the scoring for the Phantoms were forward Bob Howell and guard George Sideris, both with six points.

Score by quarters:

New Bern	5	10	7	14—36
Greenville	14	11	10	8—43

Robersonville Wins Two From Vanceboro High

ROBERSONVILLE—The Robersonville Rams chalked up two victories last night over Vanceboro. The Robersonville boys won their contest by a comfortable 58-44 margin while the girls squeaked past 48-46 in their game. Both were Coastal Conference contests.

In the boys' game, R. H. Weaver of Robersonville hit for 25 points to lead the scoring for both teams. It was largely through his efforts that the Rams built up their 31-19 lead at the half time and came back strong in the fourth quarter after slacking up in the third period.

Wesley Gladson led the scoring for Vanceboro with 14 points but the entire Vanceboro team was slowed down by the defensive work of Darrell Gurganus of Robersonville. Richard Gladson and G. L. Peterson were the defensive leaders for Vanceboro.

In the girls' contest, Betty Davenport scored 21 as the Robersonville lassies put on a fourth quarter drive to win by a selnder two point margin.

In winning their third game against a single loss and a tie, the Robersonville girls overcame a 45-40 deficit at the end of the third quarter. Robersonville guards, led by Joan Warren, held the Vanceboro forwards to only one point in the fourth period while their own forwards were scoring eight points of their own.

Jayce Wilson led the Vanceboro scoring and Christine Cayton paced the defense.

Free Throw Wins For Winterville Wolves

GRIFTON—A free throw by Dean Wingate with five seconds left in the game gave Winterville's boys team a 42-41 victory over Grifton in a Pitt County game here last night. Winterville's girls breezed to a 55-32 decision in the opener.

Bobby Cole had tied the score in the boys game only 20 seconds before Wingate's game-winning toss by dropping in a free throw for the Wolves. The final gun brought the end to a game that had seen the lead go back and forth for both clubs, with the score tied at several points in the game.

Grifton took a 9-3 lead early in the first quarter but were unable to hold it as the Winterville boys bounced back to tie the count at 13-13 at the close of the first period. The scoring alternated for the clubs in the second quarter and another stalemate was the result at halftime intermission, 28-28.

It was all even once again at the end of the third period as both clubs scored a total of five points. Winterville finally broke the ice when Wingate dropped his free throw.

Girls' Game

Coach Paul Clark elected to send his second stringers into the game after the first four minutes and they easily won the contest over the inexperienced but game Grifton sextet, 55-32.

The winners ran up a 25-6 lead during the first period while the Winterville starters were still in the contest. They dropped back to score only eight points in the second period while Grifton scored six.

Joan Averett led the scoring for the winners with 17 points, followed by Ann Spier with 14 points. Ann Kittrell and Faye Branch led the defensive play for the winners.

Grifton was led on offense by Colleen Braxton with 16 points. Mildred Sellers came in second high for the losers with eight points. Ethlyn Koon paced the defensive floor play for Grifton.

Grifton plays at home Tuesday night with Chicod as its opponents, while Winterville travels to Bethel for a doubleheader.

State-W And M Top Week-End Cage Schedule

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS

North Carolina State's Wolfpack, riding atop the Southern Conference basketball scramble, have a chance tonight to stretch their loop mark to seven in a row.

The only undefeated quintet left in conference competition, the Wolfpack—five-time league champions—take on William and Mary's Indians in the headliner of a four-game circuit card.

State probably is just as glad the encounter is on its home court at Raleigh, N.C. The Wolfpack has ventured to Norfolk twice in the last two years and been whipped by W & M both times. The two teams play again in Norfolk in February.

In addition to the N.C. State (6-0 in loop play) - William and Mary (2-2) contest tonight, league action will have George Washington (4-2) at Virginia Military (0-4), The Citadel (0-3) at Clemson (1-1) and Virginia Tech (0-1) at Washington and Lee (1-5).

Non-conference activity finds Duke at Temple, Pitt at West Virginia, South Carolina at Georgia, Wake Forest at Marshall College and Maryland at Rutgers.

There were three loop games last night — George Washington edged W & L 66-60; Davidson walloped the Citadel 100-66, and Furman trimmed South Carolina 73-64. The University of Richmond dropped a 75-64 non-league decision to the University of Virginia.

George Washington, rapidly moving up in the loop standings, had to withstand a late W & L rally to pull its game out of the fire. Archie Polis dumped in 14 points for the Colonials while W & L's Charlie Topp had 16.

Hitting 45 per cent of their field goal tries, Davidson's Wildcats set a new school scoring record in their win over the Citadel. No previous Davidson quintet ever had scored more than 90 points in a game.

Eastern All-Stars Picked For Game

RALEIGH (AP) — High school football players from the eastern part of the state were chosen here today for the 1952 North Carolina All-Star game to be held in Greensboro in August.

Selection was made by the eastern committee of the North Carolina Coaches Association.

The eastern squad includes 24 players with 11 alternates. Coach Dwight Holshouser of Lumberton High School was named eastern coach in a recent balloting of the N.C.C.A., and Choppy Wagner of Washington was selected as co-coach.

Stokes Splits With Grimesland; Boys Win 56-48

STOKES—Grimesland and Stokes High schools divided two close Pitt County games here last night as the Panthers took the boys' game with a second quarter rally, 56-48, while the Stokes girls squeezed to their fourth win, 26-24.

Stokes' boys jumped the gun in the first quarter to take a 14-12 lead, before the house fell in on them in the second period. Shooting with perfect accuracy, the Grimesland team hit for 20 points in that quarter to take a 32-26 lead at halftime. It went on the same way for the rest of the game, with the final margin the widest point during the night.

Billy Boyd continued to lead the Panthers' scoring by hitting for 15 points, but he had to step down for Stokes' Jack Warren and Donnie Cherry, who collected 18 and 16 points, respectively. Three Grimesland players were pushing close behind in the scoring column. Earl Wright picked up 12 points and Bobby Reid and Roger Mills connected for 11 and 10 points.

Scoring talents were teamed with defensive honors for the night as Warren and Cherry led the losers, while Boyd and Reid joined forces to lead the Grimesland team on defense. Both of the Stokes stars fouled out in the fourth period.

The win was the fourth straight for Coach Joe Lupton's Panthers.

Helen Copeland scored nearly three-fourths of her teams' points to lead the Stokes' girls to their close 26-24 victory by tossing in 18 points. She was five points ahead of her nearest competitor for the Grimesland team, Joyce Mozingo, who scored 13 points.

Shirley McLawhorn hit for six points aided Miss Mozingo in the Grimesland cause. Janet Cayton and Adrine White led the defensive play for Grimesland, while the entire crew of guards were outstanding for Stokes.

Big Wind Blows Scores Sky High In Pro-Amateur

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—A big wind blew scores sky high in the opening round of the Bing Crosby $10,000 National Pro-amateur 54-hole Golf tournament and left Jimmy Demaret out in front with a plump 74.

Clearing weather was in prospect for today's second round over the par-72 Monterey Peninsula Country Club course. Sunday's third and final round will be on the Peeble Beach layout.

Rain and wind gusts up to 45 miles per hour defied the efforts of an outstanding field of pros and amateurs to equal or better par over the soaked, tough-to-play 72-par Cypress Point course yesterday.

Demaret and screen-radio comedian Bob Hope teamed for a best ball of 70 to share a second place tie in the pro-amateur doubles competition.

The pro-amateur competition was led by San Francisco's Art Bell and amateur William Hoelle with a best ball of 69

CUTBACK:—Rep. Tom Steed (D-Okla.), sadly contemplates the new style serving of bean soup in the House restaurant in Washington as congressmen gathered for reconvening of the House and Senate. When the Oklahoma Democrat left Washington after adjournment 11 weeks ago, two bits bought a brimming bowl (foreground) of the traditional headliner of the House menu, but now a serving comes in a boy's size oatmeal bowl (background). Cotton Acreage Figures Needed By PMA Office

Pitt County cotton growers are being urged to provide the local PMA office with acreage and production figures regarding the 1951 cotton crop.

PMA Secretary James Meredith reported this morning that cards are now being mailed to county cotton growers requesting the desired information. "It is very important that complete figures showing the total acreage devoted to cotton cultivation on each farm in 1951—and the production derived therefrom —be reported," Meredith said. "This information will be available for use in the event any future cotton acreage allotment and marketing quota is set up."

The PMA secretary stated each cotton farmer should consider having his 1951 cotton acreage measured before the land is "turned", because that will establish the most accurate cotton acreage record possible for use in determining future allotments for that farm. "It will be necessary for each farmer to bear the expense of measuring his cotton acreage, since funds set aside for the cotton program are not sufficient to cover this activity," said Meredith. He disclosed, however, that the maximum charge to each farmer will be the greater of $3.00, or 50 cents per acre.

"If farmers plan to have their cotton acreage measured," the secretary asserted, "they should come by the county PMA office and put up a cash deposit. If they do not wish to have their farms measured, they should enter their reported cotton acreage and number of bales produced on the cards already mailed out, and return them to the county PMA office as soon as possible."

Costs, given into the County General Funds in counties where case is tried, came to $37,726.

Highway revenue collected for overloads and improper licenses amounted to $1,571.25.

Fire Chief Lists Preventive Steps

The Greenville Fire Department today issued an appeal for citizens to be extra careful in the handling of heating units during the cold weather.

A spokesman for the local department stated that in the past weeks the number of calls received by the department to faculty stoves and such has shown a drop.

"People can prevent many of the small fires, which we receive calls to each year, by thoroughly checking their heating units before using them", Fire Chief George Gardner pointed out.

"Before a stove is used it should be cleaned, and more so after it has been used for some time. A check of chimneys, clogged flues and bad fuel lines will prevent many dollars in damage if caught early" the Chief said.

As well as checking for faulty heating appliance, attention should be given to see that house and business places are properly fused.

Gardner stated that should a fuse larger than the regulation 15 ampre house fuse be used, it should be replaced at once. By using larger fuses, the current load on many homes is allowed to build up to the point whereby a fire can start without the fuse blowing.

A small 15 amp fuse will not allow too much current to be on the line before blowing, giving warningof some trouble, Gardner stated.

"The practice of placing a penny behind a burned out fuse, is inviting trouble," the fire chief stated. "Never insert a penny behind a blown fuse, always replace the burned out fuse with the proper size required to do the job."

Friday's Cases In Police Court

Only four cases were tried in Police Court Friday. It was the shortest docket the court has had in a long time.

Judge Charles H. Whedbee found Red Anderson, Negro, guilty of assaulting a female, his wife, Beulah Hines Anderson, and sentenced him to 30 days in jail. The court suspended judgment on payment of $30 and ordered Anderson not to molest in any way his wife.

James O. Elks was given 30 days in jail for being drunk, or pay $15.

In the case of John Edward Vernon, employe of Greenville Mills Inc., charged with breaking into the company's office New Year's Eve night and the larceny of $40 from a drawer in a filing cabinet, the court found probable cause.

The case was sent up to Superior Court for consideration by the grand jury at the January criminal term of court. Vernon's bond was set at $600.

Describes Trip At Kiwanis Meet

Jesse R. Moye II, Greenville tobacconist who went to Europe last year for the Imperial Tobacco Company, Ltd., related some of his experiences at the Kiwanis Club last night.

Moye and E. B. (Timbo) Jeffress of Rocky Mount went to England last January. Moye said with emphasis that he appreciated "Home, Sweet Home," while he was in England.

"We made some interesting observations while abroad and we had a 'good looking over' by the British customs officials," the speaker said.

The two Americans did not like the fog and cloudy and cold weather, Moye stated. They were stationed at Bristol, England, for some weeks, and later went to Nottingham. Moye gave interesting descriptions of his visits to Shakespeare's home and other English places and Scotland.

Don H. Conley had charge of the program. He presented Mrs. Rosa Jones Little, teacher at Ayden High School and four young singers. The mixed quartet, Joan Padley, soprano, Barbara Lynn Cox, alto; Steve Farish, tenor, and Randall Harrington, bass. They sang four numbers: "Old Nicodemus," Ezekiel," and "Climbing Up the Mountain." Mrs. Little was accompanist.

Announcement was made that the Kiwanians are pledging to contribute to the Red Cross blood bank. J. Franklin Steinbeck is Kiwanis chairman for the blood bank.

Claude Ward had a birthday and donated a dime for each year of his age. The Finance Committee, Bill Taft, chairman, held a brief meeting after the program.

Secretary David C. Moore Jr. reported that the officers and directors met during the week. John B hill, a director, was host to the group at supper.

Eight-Year-Old Boy Among Young Dope Addicts

NEW YORK —(AP) The discovery of a marijuana-smoking eight-year-old boy has led to the disclosure of youthful gangs of dope addicts supplied, police say, by a 19-year-old peddler.

The child, sent to Bellevue Hospital for treatment as an habitual smoker of Marijuana cigarets, was the first of at least a dozen youngsters rounded up by police in the Bronx since Tuesday.

Capt. Peter Terranova of the narcotics squad disclosed yesterday that the eight-year-old told of his addiction when questioned about continued truancy from school.

A widespread investigation then revealed the existence of three gangs, separated by age, with younger members never mingling with older boys.
