153 Pints Of Blood Donated By Local Citizens Tuesday

Top Initial Quota, But Chairman Reminds Collection Of Blood Is Continuing Need; Bloodmobile Will Return

By MURIEL SHOTWELL, Reflector Staff Writer Greenville citizens donated 153 pints of blood yesterday at the blood center here, three pints over the quota set at 150.

The bloodmobile came equipped to take care of 150 pints but arrangements were made at the last minute to take care of the three extra pints. A few people were rejected yesterday but they will have the opportunity to offer their blood again.

B. C. Satterfield, general blood program chairman, said the people of Greenville did what they were asked to do and it was a job well done. "All of the donors should be proud for donating blood," Satterfield said, "but we must bear in mind that the donation of blood is a continuous thing and the supply must be built up for use here and the armed forces."

The chairman commented on the work done by Mrs. J. T. Little and her crew of volunteer workers. "The procedures worked out by the volunteers ran successfully and smoothly and it was a pleasing operation," he said.

Mrs. Walter Taylor, executive secretary of the Pitt County Red Cross Chapter, said the most rewarding part of the blood center was the donors, who went away feeling that they had given blood for a good cause. "I haven't heard anything but praise on the whole program," she said. The crew which traveled with the bloodmobile that came yesterday, commented on the blood center which had been set up. Many of the nurses said the Sunday School building adjoining the Methodist Church was an ideal place for the center.

Donors will have an opportunity to donate blood again in future visits of the bloodmobile and it will also be at various towns in the county.

UMT Planners Promise Guard Teen-Age Morals

Pledge Return Young Trainees To Civilian Life With Better Morals Than When They Were Inducted

WASHINGTON (UP)—UMT planners promised today to return 18-year-old trainees to civilian life with better morals than when they were inducted.

Dr. Karl T. Compton, atomic physicist and member of the National Security Training Commission, also assured Congress that graduates of the proposed new universal military training camps will make better students in college as a result of their six months in the barracks.

Compton said every possible step, including assignments of more than twice the normal number of chaplains to UMT camps, will be taken to protect the "untees" from such moral pitfalls as liquor and prostitution.

He and other commission members were called as witnesses as the House Armed Services Committee pressed its study of UMT plans submitted by the commission and soon to be voted on by Congress.

Compton said in a statement prepared for the committee: "The safeguards which we have provided for the moral welfare of the trainees are of the greatest importance. We believe that they can be made to work in such a manner that moral hazards will be the net result of the UMT experimental fiber and high ideals among the trainees."

In another prepared statement, commission member William L. Clayton, former under secretary of a democratic answer to a problem created by diktators.

"It will serve notice on the dictators that the United States is determined to do its part in keeping the world free," Clayton said. Compton directed much of his testimony to frequently-expressed fears of parents, members of Congress, and others that morals of the teen-age trainees might be impaired and that their schools also

Bombing Of Prison Camp Is Possible, Admit U N Chief

Planes Were In Area, But Point Out Site Of Prison Camp Unknown; Jets Battle Briefly Over Korea

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—G United Press Staff Correspondent PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP) Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's headquarters conceded today that an Allied plane might have bombed a Communist war prisoner camp as charged by the Reds.

At the same time, the Communists increased from 10 to 20 the number of United Nations war prisoners they said had been killed in the raid Monday night. Forty-five other prisoners were said to have been wounded, five seriously. The casualties were believed all South Koreans.

Other developments in the deadlocked armistice negotiations included:

1. Both truce subcommittees reported "no progress" during the day, but agreed to meet again at 11 a. m. Thursday (9 p. m. today EST).

2. The Communists agreed to consider a U.N. request that they accept parcels as well as mail for Allied prisoners.

3. The Reds again rejected a U.N. proposal that sick and wounded war prisoners be exchanged at once.

4. The Communists turned back at Panmunjom two International Red Cross representatives who sought to enter North Korea to deliver in person to Kim Il Sung, North Korean premier and commander in chief, a personal message from IRC President Paul Reugger. Contents of the message were not disclosed.

5. Chinese truce delegate Maj. Gen. Hsieh Fang argued that the U.N.-demanded ban on military airfield construction during a truce is unnecessary because the Reds already have agreed not to bring additional planes into Korea. The U.N. disagreed and again demanded the ban.

Ridgway's supreme command headquarters in Tokyo issued a statement conceding that "there is no question U.N. aircraft were in the general area" of the Communist Reds said it was bombed.

Speaker Says U.S. Should Profit By British Errors

A noted British author, lecturer and newscaster last night warned members of the Pitt County Executive club that the United States should take care to profit by the mistakes of domestic and international policy which have brought about the deterioration of Great Britain.

John William Hughes who addressed the Pitt County group asserted, "This century will go down as the American century. History holds no record of a nation that became a world leader without becoming arrogant and unpopular. The young people of the United States may become as arrogant and proud as the British were. The people of the world are wondering whether the United States is going to start a new world order or fall into the old track of imperialism."

Hughes declared that the United States is not unpopular among the people of Europe or Asia, but it should guard its actions so it will not become unpopular as the British were.

Acheson Blasts Soviet Proposal For Dismarming

Claims Plan Is Only 'Paper Prohibition' Against Atomic Weapons

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Acheson, blasting new Soviet disarmament proposals, accused the Russians today of seeking only a "paper prohibition" against atomic weapons. He said they offered no assurance of agreeing to a control system which would assure prohibition of such weapons.

Acheson spoke out in a news conference discussion of Soviet proposals placed before the United Nations in Paris. He said the United States would examine the Russian ideas but that international inspection which the Soviets are now talking about has never been regarded as an adequate safeguard against the illegal possession of atomic weapons in defiance of some future control system.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinskiy has offered to accept international control at the same time a ban on atomic weapons goes into effect and to accept continuous international inspection of atomic facilities instead of only periodic inspection.

Acheson said that the Russians, even on inspection, would bar interference in the domestic affairs of any state so that the Soviet Union "would appear to give with one hand (in agreeing to inspection) what it takes away with the other."

A key requirement in this respect, Acheson said, is a provision of the plan supported by a majority of the United Nations for creation of an international control agency which would own all atomic materials and operate all atomic facilities using materials in dangerous quantities.

Acheson noted in a formal statement that the Russians had opposed a resolution sponsored by the Western powers in the U.N. for creation of the disarmament commission and that as soon as the resolution was voted the Russians then reintroduced old proposals on disarmament which they described as "new."

Mistrial Ruled In Deadlock On Frank Costello

NEW YORK (UP)—The jury in the contempt trial of gambler Frank Costello failed to reach a verdict yesterday because one of its members held out for an acquittal.

Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan ended the trial by discharging the jury after its foreman reported it was "hopelessly" deadlocked.

One of the jurors who refused to be identified said the lone dissenter held out against conviction during 10 hours and 55 minutes of deliberation.

U.S. Attorney Myles J. Lane immediately requested a retrial. Ryan set Friday for discussion of the new trial date and continued the 60-year-old gambler in $5,000 bail.

Costello was indicted on 11 contempt counts for refusing to answer certain questions asked by the Senate Crime Investigating Committee at its televised hearings here last March.

President Says Rearmament Requires Added Funds; Warns Against 'False Economy' In Year Of Hardships Ahead; Spending To Run Between $85 And $90 Billions For Year

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Truman called on a reluctant Congress today to raise more than $5,000,000,000 in new taxes. He said this must be done "very soon" because the "tragic necessity" of rearmament requires it.

Mr. Truman coupled his urgent recommendation with a warning against "torpedoing" the defense program by what he called "false economy."

He laid down his bold program in a 13,000-word annual economic report which disclosed that federal spending will hit a stratospheric $85,000,000,000 to $90,000,000,000 in the next year. And he put the American people on notice that they must prepare to bear some inconveniences and hardships because this "is going to be a year of strain."

In unveiling his election-year request for still higher taxes, Mr. Truman did not specifically mention bigger personal income taxes. But he clearly hinted such. He said his request could be achieved "by eliminating loopholes and special privileges, and by some tax rate increases."

But his proposal seemed foredoomed. Congressional tax leaders already have served notice they will oppose any further tax boosts, barring all-out war.

Mr. Truman's call for still greater taxes was part of a 12-point legislative program which included: Stricter price and credit controls. More foreign aid.

Revision of the Taft-Hartley labor law. A better farm price support program. Improved social security and unemployment insurance laws.

"1952 is not going to be an easy year for the economy," Mr. Truman said. Americans "must give up many of the things that we can afford to do without," to build our military strength against the threat of communism.

He told the nation not to expect "business as usual, consumer enjoyments as usual, or government programs and services as usual" for the next two or three years of intensive rearmament.

"In his overall economic plan for the next 12 months, the President charmed what he called 'a middle course in an uncertain sea.' He said this meant no quarrel between 'guns and butter,' but maintaining the strength of the main components of present national life—military, industrial, civilian."

He said it would be tragic deceit to maintain civilian consumption at "too lush a level" under current world conditions. He felt, too, that there were definite dangers in building up military and industrial He preferred following the "round-top" rapidly or too slowly for the long pull.

The President estimated that national output would soar to a new year and that employment would go to about 62,000,000 jobs, an increase of 1,300,000 over last year and "the highest civilian employment in our history."

Feeling that the rearmament and foreign aid programs will taper off "in about two or three years," Mr. Truman said "the essential security program neither imposes excessive strains upon the economy or makes it impossible to contain inflation."

He renewed his request for federal aid to help meet school operating costs, plus increased aid for school construction and operation in critical defense areas. Mr. Truman pointed out, however, that school construction must still be held "below the real need."

"New natural resource development projects, including flood control, navigation and reclamation projects, are being postponed unless they are essential because of electric power or other urgently needed features," he said. "Low rent public housing starts in 1952, levels contemplated in recent housing legislation."

The President was specific in his call for stronger price control but he asked for no new controls on wages.

He asked that congress repeal the so-called Caperhart amendment permitting transfer to the consumer of increased costs incurred from the first half of 1950 until

Alton Clapp Has Birthday Party

Alton Clapp Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Alton Clapp of this city, was host to more than 70 of his friends at a circus party to celebrate his sixth birthday on Saturday afternoon.

The party was given at the Woman's Club, which was lavishly and amusingly decorated to simulate the traditional "canvas top" of a big circus.

Above the doorway entrance to the Rachel Maxwell Moore room a candy-striped mural resembled the entrance to a tent. Inside the room the walls were covered with paper panels on which were painted animals, cages, trapezes and other symbols suggestive of a circus.

From a popcorn booth the young guests received boxes of the perennial favorite of big top spectators—popcorn and peanuts. On the opposite side of the room was a bandmaster's stand, from which circus music was played and lemonade served.

Balloons by the dozen and crepe paper streamers added to the festivity of the occasion.

During the afternoon circus games were played, directed by some of the parents. A table at one end of the room bore the huge birthday cake, which was decorated in circus symbols and topped by a miniature ring, complete with performers. Ice cream, cake and pink lemonade were served; and for favors, the guests were given attractive novelties made of marshmallows and animal crackers.

The young host was the recipient of many presents from the many children who were invited to this delightful party.

Starks Honor Couple At Dinner Party

Mr. and Mrs. Thad Nobles were complimented on Saturday night when Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Starks were dinner hosts.

The guests arrived at 7:30 and enjoyed iced fruit drinks and hors d'oeuvres in the living room before being invited to find their places at the dining tables by means of bridal place cards.

The main table was centered with an arrangement of yellow chrysanthemums and Dutch iris with yellow tapers placed on either side to complete the table decorations.

A two course dinner was served to ten couples who were intimate friends of the recently married honorees.

Langston Cites Alcohol Evils In Legion Speech

By CHESTER WALSH

Police Chief Guy C. Langston, speaker at the American Legion meeting last night, said "Alcoholism is a community, as well as a national problem, and we should do something about it."

He said 332 persons were arrested in Greenville last year on the charge of drunkenness, and many of them are repeaters. "One frequent offender has been arrested more than 50 times, and this indicates that we are not solving our problem," the speaker said.

Langston believes that so-called social drinking is a national pastime and a problem. He said 31 different institutions had made a study of alcoholism and they found it to be the nation's No. 2 problem. "It is apparent that the courts cannot solve this problem and it must be attacked from the standpoint of education. We are doing much about the breaking of other laws, but there is a general tendency to smile on drinking alcoholic beverages—even if we are dry," Langston declared.

Discussing the problem at random, the chief said "we have a grave responsibility, and should do something about educating the young people concerning the menace of alcohol—a menace to morals and a menace to physical health. The present trend indicates that in a quarter of a century we in America will become a nation of drinkers."

Langston referred to advertisements, particularly in national magazines. "They paint the qualities and 'virtues' of whiskey and other strong drinks as alluring and necessary to the social welfare of the nation," he declared. "None of the labels on whiskey and other alcoholic liquors—'lies warns the prospective drinker that it is poison which applies the body when taken to the health authorities declare that alcohol is the nation's No. 4 problem."

The speaker said he believes the answer and solution to the problem lies in the minds and hearts of the people of our own generation and those to follow. "Educating the young people as to the moral dangers of drinking and the danger to physical health will," he believes, "do much toward solving the problem." Langston declared.

W. Connor Eagles, who had charge of the program, presented the speaker, Lester E. Turnage, Jr., commander of Post 29, American Legion, presided.

Sam Whitehurst reported on the work of the Christmas Committee, and distribution of "good cheer" to worthy families.

The commander reminded that there is a plan on foot to resume the holding of memorial services for deceased legionnaires.

The Post now has 460 members for 1952. A committee is at work to obtain another 100 members. Memberships are open to veterans of both World Wars.

British Refuse To Close All Of Iran Consulates

TEHRAN —(AP)—Britain bluntly rejected today an Iranian demand to close all nine British consulates in the country.

The Iranians made the demand Saturday in a note accusing Britain of "interference of British government officials in the domestic affairs of Iran." Premier Mohammad Mossadegh said on Sunday the closure order would stand as long as he headed the government.

Britain's reply invoked an 1857 treaty between the two countries permitting Britain to maintain consulates anywhere in Iran that other powers have consulates.

The British note accused Iran of violating the treaty by ordering closure of the consulates by next Monday and protested "formally and emphatically" against the demand.

Banner Year Coming Up For Political Bromides

CHICAGO —(UP)— From the rockbound shores of Maine to the sun-kissed coasts of California, the bromide season is open.

A bromide is a trite word or phrase that has been sufficiently overworked to fit into a politician's well, ah, a politician's bag of tricks.

The national election is less than a year away, and politicians have started tossing them out toward the intelligent faces of multitudes.

There are no rules for bromide tossing and it has never been established which party is champion at the art. The tossers come in all sizes and political hues. Generally, square.

A good bromide man gets a head start when the toastmaster says the next speaker needs no introduction and then goes ahead and introduces him.

Speakers Always Glad After the toastmaster exhorts himself, the bromide man announces he is glad to be here. He then is reminded of something, which usually is a funny story. Then he announces that this is a great city, a progressive community or a fine little town. He can't help but marvel.

Launching into the tossing, he reveals there has been an alarming increase of something. But the citizenry is aroused and they are not going to be hoodwinked. Everyone knows what is going on because the issues are in an open book.

The rascais, it seems are out for all they can get. They have mysterious forces on their side and are powerful, make no mistake about that. But with the kind of spirit that has been displayed here tonight, voters will show them at the polls.

But don't sell them short because, in the words of someone, nothing is in the bag. Taxes are a great problem and will always be. Then think about

Three-Year-Old Would Preach

WEST MEMPHIS, Ark. (AP)— Mrs. P. R. Askew tried to sink through the floor when her son Danny got up to preach to startled congregation. Danny is 3.

It happened Sunday at the West Memphis Church of Christ and kicked up quite a sensation. "Danny's always playing like he's a preacher," he said. "Preaches to his dogs. Gets out in the back yard and sings and mumbles and claps his hands."

But Danny had never made any trouble in church before. Mrs. Askew was startled but not uneasy when they started serving the Lord's Supper and all of a sudden Danny wasn't sitting beside her any more. "I looked up," she said, "and there he was, walking up the aisle, right up to the altar." She sat tight, hoping Danny would come back. He didn't.

Danny stood at the pulpit, his mother said he mumbled and he sang a little, all very serious. And then he looked down at the communion table. He reached for a glass, but couldn't make it. So Danny looked at one of the men. He stretched out his hands to indicate great height and said: "When I get this big, I'm gonna have some of that!"

In the hush that followed, Danny looked around. His mother's eyes caught his, and what he saw dampened his spirits. He quietly sat down in the pastor's chair and stayed there.

Poll Shows Taft Backed By Most Of GOP Group

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)— Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio is a three-to-one choice over Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for the Republican presidential nomination among GOP National Committee members willing to express an opinion.

An Associated Press poll of the 98 members who represent the 48 states disclosed: Of 43 willing to state how they stand, 31 favor Taft; nine support Eisenhower, two are for Gov. Earl Warren of California, and one backs Harold E. Stassen.

Members are arriving for a national committee meeting beginning tomorrow. Western regional GOP officials planned to study their own problems today.

A similar poll taken at a meeting in Washington a year ago gave Taft 29 votes; Eisenhower 12. Thus Taft is holding his own but apparently Eisenhower has lost strength.

Says Fair Dealer Has Best Chance

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Senator Humphrey (D-Minn.) said today the Democrats can't win the presidential election unless they nominate a "consistent Fair Dealer" and warm supporter of the administration's foreign policy.

The Minnesota lawmaker told a reporter President Truman would fill the bill "better than anyone else because I obviously am talking about the kind of program for which he has fought."

But Humphrey added: "We have other good Democrats who could qualify and win the election" if Mr. Truman decides not to seek another term.

Senator Capehart (R-Ind.) said he believes the President will run again.

"The Democrats in my opinion haven't anyone else who could even make a race of it and I think Mr. Truman knows that," Capehart declared.

Capehart is backing Senator Taft of Ohio for the Republican presidential nomination. But he said he is convinced "any Republican nominated can win this year."

Humphrey conferred with the President Monday and said afterward that Mr. Truman had kept him guessing on his plans.

Humphrey reported, however, that Mr. Truman had told him he "wants a liberal platform, a liberal party and a liberal candidate."

Royal Children Accorded Praise

LONDON —(AP)— Britain should be OK when King Charles III is on the throne, according to P. H. Mitchiner, senior vice-president of the Royal College of Surgeons.

Welcoming Princess Elizabeth to honorary fellowship in the college, Mitchiner said:

"Prince Charles has an inquiring mind and a clear blue eye, capable of an unwinking stare. These augur well for the future of this country under King Charles III."

"Princess Anne I have seen only asleep in her baby carriage. Judging by the tendency displayed in many of her photographs to push her parents and relatives from her, she will doubtless develop a fine independence of character, coupled with a forthrightness of speech."

Heir To Egyptian Throne Born To Queen Narriman

CAIRO, Egypt —(AP)— Queen Narriman, teen-age second wife of Egypt's King Farouk, gave birth today to a son—heir to the Nile kingdom's throne.

The boy—born at 8:20 a.m. (1:20 a.m. EST)—was named Prince Ahmed. Found after his grandfather, King Fouad I, Palace sources who announced the birth said the queen and her baby both were "doing well."

King Farouk has three daughters by his 10-year marriage to former Queen Farida, whom he divorced in Nov. 1948. Under an Egyptian constitutional provision, common to all Moslem countries, only males can succeed to the throne.

The King was married last May 6 to Narriman Sadek, commoner daughter of an Egyptian civil servant. The Queen celebrated her 18th birthday last Oct. 31. Farouk will be 32 on Feb. 11.

Swelling crowds massed in the huge square before Abdin Royal Palace and cheered as a 101-gun salute boomed to herald the birth.

A steady procession of cars carried cabinet ministers, government officials and other dignitaries to the palace to record their official congratulations. The Education Ministry ordered all schools closed today and tomorrow.

Palace sources said the little prince was born at the palace, in the center of Cairo. Dr. Ibrahim Magdi, who attended the Queen, said "all went well" at the birth.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
BEING ABOVE CLASSIFICATION
What is God's nationality, race, or religious affiliation?
A silly question, you say. Yet some people act as if God were an American, or a Britisher. Some think of Him as a white man. It is interesting to see that in Asiatic Christian communities, Jesus and his apostles have taken on Asiatic features and customs.

How we as human beings have to pay considerable attention to our classifications. We are citizens of particular nations, and it is just as unworthy for a person to disavow a sensible variety of nationalism as it is to disavow family ties. We are all of different races, and every man should be proud of his race. Each race has something of inestimable value to contribute to the life of the world. Likewise, we are either religious believers or unbelievers, and if we are believers we belong to a certain family of faith. Of this also we should be proud. Beware of the man who to any degree is ashamed of his religion.

If there is about us any of the bigness which is characteristic of God, then we rise ultimately above all the classifications which human life put upon us. While in the days of our flesh we submit to these classifications and are proud to do so, nevertheless there are exaltations of the spirit in which we rise above them all.

Thus we are like God who is indeed above them all.

Encouraging Trend In Greenville's Financing

The Greenville Utilities Commission took a step in the right direction last night by adopting the "pay-as-we-go" idea for completing the water plant project which is underway for the city.

The outstanding bonds of the city have the city strapped down financially where a bond issue for a major improvement program for any division of the city government is impractical. Greenville's bonded indebtedness has been hovering near the unsound point for a number of years, and it is encouraging to see that the members of the Utilities Commission have taken a firm stand on the "pay-as-we-go" finance plan rather than proposing more bonds to finish the water plant project.

There is no question about the necessity of the completion of the water plant. The plant as it is now is designed for a flow of a million and a half gallons of water a day. The city is already pumping two and one-half million gallons of water through the plant each day, and by next fall officials expect a demand of almost three and one-half million gallons a day. If Greenville is to have a sufficient supply of water, the city's facilities must be kept ahead of the demand.

The utilities has on hand $70,000 which it can apply to the project, and according to the officials that amount should be sufficient to get the new water plant into operation, although it will not be enough money to put all the finishing touches to the plant. The utilities should be able to add these finishing touches from time to time without issuing more bonds.

As of December 31, 1951, the outstanding bonded indebtedness of the city was $3,109,000 or approximately 18 per cent of the total property valuation of the city. For sound municipal financing the Local Government Commission holds that the bonded indebtedness of a city should never go over 20 per cent of its property valuation. Of the total bonded debt of Greenville the city schools have outstanding $36,000, the administrative division of the city government has outstanding $413,000, and the Utilities Commission has outstanding $2,660,000.

The Utilities Commission, as the figures indicate, has issued the lion's share of Greenville's bonds during recent years. The city still needs a great deal of improvements in the way of schools, paving, recreation facilities and other things, but they can not be had on a large scale until the financial burden of the city is now carrying is relieved.

The utilities should make every effort to get by without issuing any more bonds until some of the other divisions of the city government are able to catch up on much-needed improvements.

Warning Signals For The American People

Speaking before members of the Pitt County Executives Club last night, John William Hughes, noted British broadcaster, author and world traveler, delivered one of the simplest, yet most sound and most scathing verbal broadsides at Socialism that we have heard in a long time.

His words and the note of caution to the United States with which they ring are well worth the consideration of every thinking American in all walks of life. From his observations of Socialism in England and other nations Hughes reached these conclusions which are well worth remembering:

"You can not bring about prosperity by discouraging thrift. You can not strengthen the weak by weakening the strong. You can not help the small men by tearing down the big men. You can not help the poor by destroying the rich. You can not lift the wage earner by pulling down the wage payer. You can not keep out of trouble by spending more money than you earn. You can not further the brotherhood of man by inciting race hatred. You can not establish sound security on borrowed money. You can not build character and courage by taking away a man's initiative and independence. You can not help men permanently by doing for them what they could and should do for themselves."

In those simple words, Hughes pointed out the pitfalls of the philosophy of domestic and foreign policy which has been steadily creeping into the government of the United States.

Being so wrapped up in the everyday changes which are going on in the governmental philosophies of the United States, we are prone to overlook the significance of the changes which are taking place and correctly evaluate their meaning.

During the short span of six years Britain went over its head into Socialism probably without even realizing exactly what it was doing. The same things happened in other countries, and it could well happen in the United States unless the people take stock of the situation and seek to stem the tide before the stream becomes a rushing river. Britain, now foundering in the throes of Socialism is beginning to realize what a long and tedious task it is to throw off the creeping paralysis which has robbed its people of most of their initiative and left them over their heads in the stagnant pond of the welfare state.

If it will, the United States can take heed and avoid a repetition in this country of the catastrophe which has befallen England. If the people of the United States will not heed the warning we will drag ourselves down into the chaotic pit of Socialism without fully realizing how we got there, and worse still without leaving a life line by which to pull ourselves out.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—The Truman-Churchill communique on their discussion of world affairs veiled only thinly their deep concern over the possible outbreak of hostilities in Indochina and the strategic area to the south of this French possession.

The military representatives of the two western nations devoted almost all their attention to that problem during their recent talks at Washington.

Indeed, any willingness by the Red Chinese government to settle for an armistice in Korea may be only a prelude to a mass attack on Indochina, Thailand, Burma and the Federation of Malaya. A temporary halt to the Korean fighting would enable Peking to shift its present embattled forces to the new field.

The Reds are reported even now to have massed at least 200,000 troops and a vast store of weapons on the Indo-Chinese borders. In recent days they have stepped up their campaign of internal violence and disorders, apparently to throw the French defenders off guard.

IMPORTANT—The significance of this new threat is that Southeast Asia is far more important to the Anglo-American economy, whether in war or peace, than the barren peninsula of Korea. The British and French position here is the storehouse of many of our raw materials.

Hostilities in this area would aggravate present shortages and prevailing high prices of such essentials as rubber and tin. The disappearance or reduction of these exports would disrupt the finances of our West European allies, forcing them to rely on the United States for more money and materials.

In short, there is hardly a spot in the universe where Stalin could deliver a more devastating blow at the West, and especially the United States.

DRAIN—In conferences on a larger French contribution to General Eisenhower's West European Army, the military and diplomatic spokesmen at Paris refer to the severe sacrifices and the heavy drain on their economy entailed by the present operations in Indochina. They have even suggested that Britain and the United States furnish reinforcements.

The French have been fighting in Indochina almost since the end of World War II, or long before the United Nations embarked on its "police action" in Korea.

Besides more than 200,000 French and colonial troops, the flower of their officer corps has been involved there. Their enforced absence from France prevents the assembling and training of more divisions for General Eisenhower's force.

SUPPORT—Any invasion of Indochina and adjacent territory by the Chinese Communists might force the defenders to utilize Chiang Kai-shek's troops, or a portion of them, now stationed on Formosa. They would prove a valuable addition, and appear to be the only reserves on which the western nations could call.

In recent and prospective military analyses of the situation at Washington, London and Paris, it was generally agreed that England and the United States could provide only naval and air support to the French in the event of a crisis.

We could not withdraw or weaken our present forces scattered around the world without opening great gaps in the "containment ring" we are building around Russia proper.

How Was That Again?

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Yesterday's column announced that Operation Television is underway, with the appointment of salesmen to solicit stock in WOTC-TV. Before approaching my topic for today, let me report my results: completed transactions, last night after supper, $600 in stock sold; other sales promised, but not yet completed, $1,100.

This is only a small part of the stock already sold, and a small part of the other stock that must be sold before we get TV in Greenville. There are many salesmen in Greenville who will sell you stock. Don't hesitate to call them; they can convince you readily that TV is a good, sound investment! Better still, call me and I'll come by to tell you the details.

From TV, my discussion today goes to a man that everybody in the nation is talking about: General Eisenhower. Ike has made several things plain: He is a Republican; he will not make a pre-convention campaign for the Republican presidential nomination; he will accept the nomination if it is offered to him.

Some important newspapers have lined up with Ike. The New York Times, which has backed Democrats in the last five elections, says, "This widespread faith in General Eisenhower's fitness to be President is deeply sincere and wholly spontaneous. . . . We are confident that he would use the great power of the United States bravely, but with a sober sense of values. If Dwight Eisenhower should be nominated by the Republican Party, we shall support him enthusiastically."

The Chicago Sun Times says, "Eisenhower, of all Americans, can best bring unity to this country and the free world."

After Senator Lodge had stated Ike's intentions, he verified them, saying, "Senator Lodge's announcement of yesterday, as reported in the press, gives an accurate account of the general tenor of my political convictions and of my Republican voting record. He was correct also in stating that I would not seek nomination to political office. My convictions in this regard have been reinforced by the character and importance of the duty with which I was charged more than a year ago.

"Under no circumstances will I ask for relief from this assignment in order to seek nomination to political office and I shall not participate in the pre-convention activities."

And I thank you.

Reflector Bureau By LYNN NISBET Ann. Afternoon Edition

By LYNN NISBET
FILING—It will cost all state-wide candidates, except governor and supreme court justice, more to enter the primary race this year than ever before. Filing fees for legislative candidates and for most county officers also will be increased over the 1948 and 50 scale, because of increased salaries provided by the offices sought. The election laws fix the filing fee at one per cent of the annual salary. Presently the attorney general is paid $8,400 per year and members of the council of state are paid $7,500, but with beginning of the next term these salaries go to $10,000 for the attorney general and $9,000 for the council of state members who are the secretary of state, state auditor, state treasurer, superintendent of public instruction, commissioner of agriculture, commissioner of labor and commissioner of insurance. That means it will cost candidates for attorney general $108 to file and will cost candidates for the other positions $90 each. No change was made in the salary of the governor or supreme court justices, that figure remaining at $15,000 and $14,000 with filing fees of $150 and $144, respectively.

LEGISLATORS—Application of the same rule to filing fees of candidates for the general assembly would set that figure at $13.50 this year, instead of the six dollars which had prevailed for a long time. Members of legislatures from 1931 to 1949, inclusive, were paid $600, regardless of length of the session, with provision for extra pay in event of a special session. The amendment ratified two years ago changed the basis of pay to $15 per day for not exceeding ninety days, or a maximum of $1,350 for the regular session. The 1951 session went well above the year. But the "compensation" of the lieutenant governor was substantially increased by the raise in pay as ex-officio presiding officer of the state senate. That was upped by virtue of a constitutional amendment ratified two years ago from $700 for the session to $20 per day for a period not exceeding ninety days. The 1951 general assembly ran well above the ninety days and Lieutenant Governor H. P. Taylor was paid the maximum of $1,800 as president of the senate. Added to this regular salary as lieutenant governor that brought his compensation for the year to $3,900 and fixed the base filing fee for the office next time at $39 instead of the $28 which Taylor paid four years ago.

LIUENANT GOVERNOR—No change was made in the regular salary of the lieutenant governor, which stays at $2,100 per ninety days, and each member was paid the maximum of $1,350, which set the filing fee for candidates at $13.50.

GRAVY—Whichever member of the house of representatives is elected speaker will get a free ride for part of his filing fee. Because the speakership is not an office at stake in the primary, he will pay the same $13.50 filing fee as all the other 119 members—but if the session goes to the ninety days he will get $1,800 in compensation.

RECORD—At noon Monday books in the office of Raymond Maxwell, secretary to the state board of elections, showed three candidates had filed for the supreme court associate justiceship. These files were Titmouse Valentine, now serving by appointment of the governor; Oscar Efrid of Winston-Salem and Superior Court Judge Allen Gwyn of Reidsville. Valentine and Efrid filed for both terms to which Valentine was appointed and the full eight years beginning January 1, Gwyn filed only for the full term. In other words, Valentine and Efrid each tendered checks totaling $288, while Gwyn settled for one check of $144.

GAMBLE—Paying $144 for the chance of serving for a little more than one month might be

What Other Papers Are Thinking

POLITICAL SHIFT IN N. C. VERY SIGNIFICANT

(The Charlotte Observer)
A questionnaire, submitted recently by a national organization to newspaper editors throughout the country, contained this question: "What in your opinion was the most important political development of the last year in your state?"

The most important political development of 1950 in North Carolina was evidence of the greatest shift in public sentiment in two years that has been seen in the State in decades.

That evidence was in the nomination and election of Senator Willis Smith two years after the election of Governor Kerr Scott and the election of a General Assembly that would not follow the Governor's leadership two years after the election of a Legislature that approved most of his proposals.

Scott men were in control of the Legislature elected in 1948. Anti-Scott dominated the General Assembly elected last year. Had the senatorial election of last year occurred two years earlier, the logical assumption is that Dr. Frank P. Graham, supported by the same people who nominated Scott, would have defeated Smith, a conservative whose views are more in accord with those of Senators Byrd, Governor Scott and Dr. Graham, loyal supporters of most of the Truman administration's policies.

Smith was comparatively a newcomer in the politics of the State. He had served terms in the Legislature, with conspicuous ability, but he had never sought the vote of the people outside Wake county. He had served as president of the American Bar Association, but his political experience had been limited to that of a State legislator elected by the people of his home county.

Dr. Graham had served in the United States Senate by appointment and had a record of nearly 20 years of successful service as president of the Un-

North Carolina. He had a host of ardent admirers and friends throughout the State. He had also the active support of the Governor, with the prestige of his office and the loyalty of his organization.

The views of Senator Smith are about as different from those of Governor Scott and Dr. Graham as the views of members of the Democratic party can be, and yet the Democratic voters of the same State who selected Scott for governor in 1948 gave Smith the victory over Graham in the contest of 1950, despoiling and his organization. And the same State that elected a pro-Scott Legislature in 1948 elected a Legislature in 1950 that would not follow his leadership.

The evidence of shift in sentiment in two years could have important significance as a portent of the 1952 primaries and general election, particularly in case of a Southern Democratic revolt against President Truman if he is nominated again.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
Even though steel is vitally needed for defense weapons and structures, it appears that the nation will have to use a large chunk of the available supply for highways. The importance of highways to defense is also vital. Steel is essential to road building. It is used in concrete forms, reinforcing, culverts, bridges and the machines with which roads are built.

The American highway network is in pretty poor shape. There are some very fine ones, notably the New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and New England throughways. But thousands of miles of highways, including primary as well as secondary roads, are in such a state of disrepair as to be dangerous.

Highway construction, except for roads necessary for military during World War II. After the war, work was resumed on bringing highways up to date and some fine progress was made until Korea. Then programs began to be curtailed. It now appears that some of the thinking about road construction will have to be modified if not reversed.

The highway network is insufficient even for peace times. There are around fifty million cars on the road. Not only has the number of cars increased, but their use has increased even more. Between 1935 and 1951, car registration rose 85 per cent, use increased 100 per cent, and highway construction rose only 17 per cent.

In event of war, the road system would be dangerously inadequate for the movement of munitions, weapons and men. This would throw added burdens on rail, air and ship transport. And in event of an atomic or other attack, a flight of refugees and movement of relief and defense over deteriorating highways could result in chaos despite all that Civil Defense authorities have done to reserve strategic routes. Highways can be equally as important as tanks and guns.

In his State of the Union Message, President Truman said, "We are going to keep on building essential highways." In the many state legislatures meeting this year plans are being made for improving essential highways. In New York, Governor Thomas E. Dewey told the legislature that highway needs are so great that "decades must pass and billions of dollars must be spent" before safe and adequate roads are achieved. These programs, in addition to improving defense, may help save lives. More than 35,000 died on the road last year, many because of poor highway conditions. That is more than double the number killed in Korea.

GAS HEATING RISES, CENSUS DATA SHOW
The Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association is cheered by Census figures showing that the percentage of centrally heated homes warmed by gas rose from 3 per cent in 1940 to almost 14 per cent in 1950. The increase in some sections, notably the North east, was almost eightfold, the figures show.

Macy's may not tell Gimbel's, but General Motors is willing to tell its packaging procedures and policies to others, including competitors. The company has agreed to show samples, describe methods, explain design procedures, disclose costs and relate tests at the National Packaging Exposition in Atlantic City April 4. It is considered so important that the American Management Association has reserved half a day's program for the presentation.

Hal Boyle's Column

By ARTHUR EDSON
WASHINGTON (AP)—If the Society for the Protection of Parents from School Homework will please come to order, your president will get on with his report.

Frankly, the situation is not good. All over the country parents are tottering under the burden of writing essays on the robin or trying to solve obscure arithmetic problems.

The U. S. Office of Education has no statistics on how many hours parents spend each year on their children's homework.

But a fellow I talked to there said he had a pretty good idea. "Plenty," he said.

I realized I had a potential member of our society.

"What is your hardest subject?" I asked sympathetically.

"Latin," he said.

"Mine's mathematics," I said.

Actually, the real evil being done by homework for children often has been overlooked.

Moralists have attacked it on the grounds that a child should do his own homework, and not palm it off on his parents.

That may be true. But I suspect the argument often is used by people who can't do the homework, and therefore hide behind their morality.

I think a more honest approach is this: to do a child's homework tears down the final shred or respect for his parents' ability.

By the time a youngster is a year and half old, he has begun to think for himself. If he's smart nowadays—he has—his parents pretty well sized up as frauds who rarely have the courage to carry out the threats we make.

In a few fields, however, the parents linger on as something of an authority. True, as the father of four girls, I have to skulk around the fringes of most conversations at our house.

My opinions are worthless on such subjects as A) how much lipstick should a 14-year-old wear? B) How long should a girl's hair be? And C) Are blond boys cuter than dark haired boys? (My girls say blond boys. I'm dark haired myself.)

But in one field I always held my own. If a youngster came in with a school problem, Mrs. E would say sweetly, "Take it to your father, dear. He knows everything."

It was simple, for a time. But this year the 14-year-old entered high school and I had to work out various stunts for time.

Such as: "This is something you should learn for yourself. Look it up in the encyclopedia so that next time you'll be sure to know it."

Last week the inevitable blow fell. My daughter came in with: "Plane A starts from airport 8 at 8 a.m. flying 150 m.p.h. at 9:30 a.m., plane B starts after A on the same track flying 250 m. p. h. How long will it take B to overtake A?"

"Looks simple," I said, lying hopefully.

Well, I wrestled that problem until algebraic equations covered the living room floor. I mentally flew plane A from airport A, and then hurried back and took off in plane B, until I was aairsick.

Finally, hours overdue and given up for lost, I checked in with the answer. Well, anyway, an answer. It was too late. Everyone knew by then that I didn't know any more algebra than a goat.

What has happened to me has happened to millions. So, parents of the world, unite! Join our protective society. Stand firm behind our slogan: "No More Homework!"

It's our only hope.

Washington Letter

WASHINGTON—Fifteen years ago Vera Bloom, daughter of the late Congressman Sol Bloom of New York, wrote a song. When it didn't seem to click she passed it off as "just one of those things." The song, "Jealousy," now sung by Frankie Laine, was one of the top numbers on the "Hit Parade," ranking among best sellers at disc shops throughout the country. "I wrote it in 15 minutes," the surprised Vera told me. "Like most popular songs it had a chance in a million of catching, and when it didn't, I just forgot about it."

Then one of the several years ago Vera heard it sung by Kathryn Grayson in the movie, "Anchors Aweigh," starring Frank Sinatra. She says the producers hadn't even asked her permission to present the song "But, I didn't care," she said. "It became popular overnight, and now the royalties are rolling in like pennies from heaven."

The writing and selling of popular songs is a "risky business" at best, Miss Bloom thinks, yet her father made it pay. After handling the entertainment end of the Chicago World's Fair in 1933, he went into the music publishing business. He found that 10-cent music (the price in those days) would sell like newspapers if someone played the tunes on a piano near the store door. Before he sold out he had a chain of 80 stores.

Mr. Bloom, who later was to serve as chairman of the powerful House Foreign Affairs Committee during World War II, was no slouch either at writing hit tunes. His "The Heroes who Sank with the Maine," commemorating the disaster at Havana Harbor, sold a million copies. So did his "Honeyuckle and the Bee."

He married Vera's talented mother after she had brought him a song to publish.

Despite the song-writing success, Vera didn't stick to writing prose. Her greatest success came with the publication of her first book, "No Place Like Washington."

"I felt I really had made the grade when I saw it published in cheaper editions and selling like hot cakes in drug stores everywhere," she said. She also wrote "The Entertaining Lady," a book on Washington social life.

Economical European Trip Offered To Pitt Farmers

All Pitt County farmers who would be interested in taking a tour of Europe are hereby informed that such a trip is now possible, county farm agent Sam Winchester announced this morning.

Winchester said those wishing to make the 31-day trip have a choice of two tours, both of which leave New York May 29, on the new Holland-American liner, S. S. Ryndam.

One tour goes into France, Holland, Denmark, Norway, Scotland and England. The second tour touches Holland, the Rhine country, Switzerland, Italy, France and England.

The price of each tour is $995, and includes steamship accommodations, railroad transportation on the Continent, hotels, transfers, sightseeing by special bus, and, with a few exceptions, meals. The exceptions are dinners in Paris and London, and luncheon and dinner at Newton Abbott, where tourists will attend the Royal Agricultural Show.

The Farmers' Friendship Tour is conducted by American Express, and everything is taken care of for the tourists. Express officials report that hundreds of people have taken these tours during the past few years—farmers and their wives, as well as people who have never seen a farm.

Winchester said the Holland made at any American Express office, and the farm agent's office will American Line has set the deadline for obtaining reservations at February 1. Reservations may be made at any American Express office, and the farm agent's office will provide information for those wishing to make the trip.

Science Pursues 'Absolute Zero'

TORONTO, Ont. —(UP)—Scientists at the McLennan Laboratory work alongside the coldest place on earth, a room where the temperature is minus 458 degrees, just one degree above absolute zero.

Absolute zero is the point where scientists expect all elements to solidify and all atoms to stop their incessant motion. Studying elements at such low temperature may hasten the advent of the rocket ship.

Prof. Kenneth Robert Atkins, on loan to the University of Toronto from Cavendish Laboratory at Cambridge, says metals show amazing characteristics in the deep-freeze room.

The application of the low-temperature research in metals to the construction of space-ships or rocket ships, will mean an earlier debut for those "things of the future," he said.

Prof. Atkins accepted an associate professorship in physics at the University of Toronto to do his research with liquid helium, a non-inflammable gas with twice the density of hydrogen.

Atkins and A. C. Hallett, a young Toronto physicist, hope to produce their own liquid helium in quantity for research purposes. At one degree above absolute zero, the atoms composing all elements slow down their tremendous speeds to comparatively nothing but still flash around at the speed of a jet plane or the speed of sound.

The 31-year-old British physicist and his young Canadian colleague work in the laboratory with ultra-modern equipment.

The process of liquefying helium calls for successive use of liquid air and liquid hydrogen, also produced at the laboratory. The helium, gaseous until it reaches the minus 458 degree mark, is stored in a flask of liquid nitrogen which in turn is surrounded by a vacuum flask.

"I'll not ride with anyone who drives as fast as you must have to get here so quickly," the woman said. She refused to leave her house until the company sent another cab.

Private Island Is Under Water

EAST HAMPTON, Conn. —(UP)—J. Howell Conklin says he's the only person in the world who holds a deed to an underwater island. He bought the island 40 years ago from the state. It was really an island in those days. Since then the lake which surrounded it was dammed up to make it larger. The island disappeared under five feet of water.

"I see it once a year or so when the water is low," Conklin said.

The highest postoffice in the United States is at Cimarron, Colorado—11,320 feet.

Onlooker Wishes Solons Would Remember They Serve The Public

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Me, I got confused. "We the people..." it says right here in something I been reading. Constitution, they call it. Bunch of bigwigs got together a long time ago in Philadelphia and wrote it out. Pretty hot stuff.

"We the people..." it says, meaning, I take it, we the people own the government. I guess that included me because I pay taxes, too. But sometimes I wonder. Sometimes I ask myself: Just whose government do the politicians think this is?

I know politicians run the government. Guys like me elect them. I don't like them much. Never have. Too many of them get too big for their britches. Every time guys like me elect them it's like using a bicycle pump on them. It puffs them up.

But I guess I haven't got too much right to complain. Somebody's got to run the government. So guys like me elect them to take care of the details while I make a living. Of course, they make a pretty good living off my living. But that's all right so long as they remember who's paying them and the government belongs to guys like me, as well as to them.

Something just came up to make me think. This talk about stealing in the government. Internal revenue, particularly. Burns me up. Guys playing around with my money. "Clean 'em out," I says. And I really mean clean 'em out. So President Truman sends a plan to Congress to make Internal Revenue cheaper to run and cut down on the chances for stealing.

Nobody been talking louder about cleaning out Internal Revenue than Congress and now all of a sudden, I read in the papers, Congress gets a big chill. It begins to look like a man who suddenly got a forkful of mud when he ordered gravy. Seems this is the trouble: There are 64 Internal Revenue Collectors and a whole bunch of offices scattered around the country. Mr. Truman wants to cut down on the offices and out the 64 collectors to 25. But that's not all.

As it is now the senators can name all 64 collectors—guys that did them favors or put up dough for their campaign, or something. Anyway, they can name all 64 and the President appoints them for the senators. But under the new plan the senator couldn't appoint even one. All 25 would be regular government Civil Service people who got promoted to collectors because they been doing good work.

So if the senators okayed this idea they'd be knocking themselves out of 64 political friends or political pay-offs. So they get a chill. Or some of them do. But I'm not interested in their temperatures or in helping them make political friends. I wish there was some way I could remind them sometimes about the question that pops up in my head: Just whose government is this?

Scouts Before Board Of Review

Seven Boy Scouts appeared before the Pitt District Board of Review held Monday evening at the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

Ormon Whitchard, Troop 30, made application for the rank of Life Scout. It was accepted, and Whitchard will receive the award at the January Court of Honor. In addition to the Life rank, Whitchard qualified for merit badges in Beef Production, Pioneering, Farm Records and Bookkeeping, Citizenship in the Home and Hog and Pork Production.

Application by Jack Clifford for the rank of Star Scout was accepted. Clifford also qualified for merit badges in Public Health and First Aid.

The following scouts qualified for merit badges: Dickie Newell, Farm Home and Planning; Eugene Roberts, Art, Safety, Home Repairs, Reading and Firemanship; Eddie Lee, Athletics; Angus Duff, Astronomy and Woodcarving; Bill Simmons, Leathercraft and Astronomy. All were from Troop 30. Advancement badges will be awarded at the Court of Honor to be held in the Pitt County court room Court House.

Scout officials comprising the review board were: Frank Steinbeck, Howard Hunter, Erskine Duff and J. C. Clifford.

Predicts Spread Of Civil Service

NEW ORLEANS (UP)—Robert Ramspeck, chairman of the U. S. Civil Service Commission and former Georgia congressman, predicted today the government scandals will result in more federal jobs being placed under his department.

Ramspeck said he not only favors placing tax collectors under the merit system, but also would include the commissioner of internal revenue.

He said if the nation's businessmen want clean, honest government "they've got to clean their own houses" of those who are guilty of bribing government officials.

Petrillo Would Support Truman

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UP)—James C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians (AFM), said today his personal support will go to Mr. Truman if the President seeks another term.

Petrillo emphasized that his choice does not bind his union. Here for the mid-winter meeting of the AFM, the union chief observed that "in these times of crisis" the American people should vote for the man and not the party label.

Goal Too High?

GREENSBORO — (AP) — R. Flake Shaw, vice-president of the North Carolina Farm Bureau, said yesterday that cotton producers doubt they can reach the 16 million bale crop, asked by the government this year.

Shaw returned to his office here after attending a meeting of cotton and peanut producers in Washington.

He said that doubts arose because of "marketing uncertainties, high production costs and the scarcity of labor."

The cotton representatives recommended that Secretary of Agriculture Brannan make a complete analysis of the current cotton situation.

Gaming Supplies Seized In Raid

PHENIX CITY, Ala. (UP)—Authorities confiscated $70,000 worth of gambling equipment here last night in a raid that followed by a week the unsolved dynamiting of an anti-vice crusader's home.

State Public Safety Director L. B. Sullivan said 77 race horse slot machines and 29 boxes of parts were found in a barn, and two men described as well-known gambling kingpins were arrested as owners of the equipment.

The men, identified as Hoyt Shepherd and Jimmy Mathews, were freed under $1,000 bond. Sullivan said the raid was staged by a state investigator, Sheriff M. Ralph Mathews and state troopers acting on an anonymous tip received by the Russell County Betterment Association.

Hugh Bentley, whose neat frame home was wrecked by an unknown dynamiter last week after he received a telephoned death threat, heads the association.

Bentley said he has received a number of threats on his life since he started his drive to wipe out illegal gambling and prostitution in this GI "resort" town, just across the Chattahoochee River from Fort Benning, Ga.

The threats will not halt his crusade against vice, Bentley declared, adding that he did not mind them as long as he also got tips about undercover gambling activity.

Piers Closed By Cargo Checkers

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—A walk-out of 12 cargo checkers in a wage dispute closed down three of this city's busiest piers yesterday, interrupting the loading and unloading of five ships.

More than 1,000 other dock workers refused to cross an eight-man picket line set up by the strikers, affiliated with Local 1537 of the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA). A spokesman for operators of the cargo docks said the piers involved handle more than 85 per cent of all dry cargoes on the Delaware River port and if the work stoppage continued it might affect the unloading of 40 other vessels already booked.

Kefauver Crowd Will Organize Campaign

WASHINGTON (UP)—Democrats backing Sen. Estes Kefauver for the presidential nomination are going ahead with plans to set up a campaign organization, it was learned today.

Kefauver talked politics with President Truman at a half-hour meeting yesterday. Sen. Clinton P. Anderson (D-NM) had a date at the White House for the same purpose today.

While Kefauver refused to say whether he learned anything about Mr. Truman's intentions, other sources revealed that the Tennessee Democrat's friends are moving ahead with plans to build an organization to recruit support and enter his name in selected state primaries.

Kefauver himself would say only that he has "fairly well made up" his mind, and will announce formally about Feb. 1 whether he will make a bid for the nomination.

He said Mr. Truman's intentions about seeking re-election would be one factor, but not the only one, governing his final decision.

Anderson told reporters that he was not going to the White House with the hope of getting information on Mr. Truman's plans.

"That is the President's decision," he said, "and I'm not going to try to hurry him in making his announcement."

Anderson, chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee, said he merely wanted to pass along to Mr. Truman information he has received about the political situation in various states.

Other political developments: 1. Sen. Robert A. Taft (O), a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, was thrust into the New Hampshire primary when two men pledged to him filed as candidates to be convention delegates at-large.

2. Taft was formally entered yesterday in the Illinois presidential preference primary and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was entered in the New Hampshire primary.

3. Arthur H. Vandenberg Jr., son of the late Michigan senator, was appointed chairman of a "citizens for Eisenhower" committee by the Eisenhower campaign organization.

The announcement that two New Hampshire candidates for convention delegates seals would run supporting Taft was released by the Ohioan's campaign headquarters here. The two — State Rep. Charles A. Holden and attorney R. Wayne Crosby — formerly were backers of Gen. Douglas MacArthur. They said they have been notified that MacArthur did not want his name in any primaries.

Embalmed Heart Placed In Bank

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UP)—The last living descendant of the ill-fated first Marquis of Montrose said today she hoped his mummified heart someday would be placed in St. Giles Cathedral in Edinburgh, Scotland.

Mrs. Thomas Hurley received the marquis' embalmed heart yesterday by air from England. It was a wedding present from her bridegroom.

"It's here, it's here, and I'm more convinced than ever that it is the heart of Montrose," Mrs. Hurley said, her voice choked with emotion.

Fearing the 300-year-old heart might be stolen, Mrs. Hurley had it placed in a bank vault.

Hurley, one of Vancouver's most prominent criminal lawyers, purchased the heart from the Royal Stuart Society. Mrs. Hurley wants it to rest at St. Giles Cathedral, along with the remains of other Scottish nobles.

The marquis was captain-general of all of King James' Scottish armies. He was executed on a scaffold outside Edinburgh Castle following a series of defeats by the Scottish covenanters.

His body was quartered and buried under the scaffold, but a faithful retainer recovered the heart and had it embalmed.

Strike Fails To Delay Project

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (UP)—Spokesmen for the Atomic Energy Commission's largest building contractor here said today a strike by its AFL truck drivers had failed to slow down construction in a "secret" area.

Some 40 drivers walked out yesterday in protest against the company policy of laying off men if the union contends it should decide what men are to be laid off.

"I'll not ride with anyone who drives as fast as you must have to get here so quickly," the woman said. She refused to leave her house until the company sent another cab.

The Sport Reflector

By JIMMY ELLIS

Monday night's action by the directors of the Coastal Plain League gave me a great deal of personal satisfaction. Ever since Greenville and Tarboro both surrendered their franchises last summer, I have wanted to see them back in the league.

Of course, Monday's business doesn't mean that Greenville is back in for certain. There is still the detail of clearing up the outstanding debts of the club. It's a rather large undertaking to clear up the debts and put the team on solid ground but it should be accomplished easily within the next seven days—the time limit imposed by the league.

The combination of New Bern, Goldsboro, Kinston, Wilson, Rocky Mount, Greenville, Tarboro and Roanoke Rapids is as strong a league as could be hoped for. All of the eight towns want baseball and if the local owners will keep the clubs on a sane operating basis, there is no reason at all why such a combination should not pay off.

To attempt to run a ball club with Class D attendance and Class A salaries is nothing short of rank foolishness. No one has ever gotten rich (I suppose) by running a Class D ball club but it's for sure that he's not going to break even by paying salaries out of the club's range.

Most of the clubs now in the league have tie-ups with ball clubs of a higher classification. Not many of the teams are actually owned by other clubs but the working agreements go far to raise the caliber of play.

There is no reason why Greenville should not raise the necessary funds to get back in the league and there is no reason why the 1952 season shouldn't be a rousing success.

Other business covered by the directors included two very important items. One was the renaming of Ray Goodmon as president of the league and the other was the adoption of a 126-game slate. To get Goodmon back as president of the league, someone had to talk him out of a resignation which he had intended to become effective December 31, 1951. The resignation was tendered at the conclusion of last season.

Goodmon has been president of the league since it was first organized. He's done a good job in the 14 years he has been president and probably knows more about the league than does any other person.

There might be better men for the job but I don't know where they might be.

The adoption of the 126-game schedule gives the league a shorter operating time which should help to keep expenses down. The old 142-game slate extended well into tobacco season but it failed to accomplish its intended purpose in that it didn't seem to help attendance too much.

The directors of the league seem to have acted wisely and well Monday night. Let's hope the league can go as well during the 1952 season.

Clearing up a little detail reported some time ago by officials of Farmville's Gold Medal Basketball Tournament:

The basketball shoes to be awarded to the boy and girl in the tournament will be awarded on the basis of the number of free throws made in a pre-game contest. Each team will be allowed one participant. The shooters will throw from the free throw line until they hit on a free throw and then will shoot until they miss.

The boy and the girl who make the most consecutive free throws will get the shoes.

The shoes, the best that can be had, will be awarded by Williams Sport Shop, here in Greenville. The first game in the tournament will be played January 28. Competition will run for four days with a winner in both the boys and girls divisions.

Robersonville Splits Twin Bill With Pinetops

SOUTH EDGECOMBE—South Edgecombe and Robersonville divided a Coastal Conference basketball doubleheader here last night. The Robersonville boys won easily, 48-38, while the South Edgecombe girls had little trouble in stopping the Robersonville girls, 49-39.

In the boys game, Robersonville overcame a two point deficit at the end of the first quarter to win going away. At halftime they had pulled ahead 24-18 and by the end of the third quarter had built up a 36-27 lead.

Billy Warren, with 14 points and R. H. Weaver, with 11, led the Robersonville scoring but John Felton of South Edgecombe took scoring honors with 18 points. Luther Lewis followed Felton in the South Edgecombe scoring with 12 tallies.

Julian Budecz of Robersonville and Brooks Webb and Luther Lewis of South Edgecombe paced the defensive play.

Girls' Game
South Edgecombe lost little time in exerting its superiority over the Robersonville girls. They led all the way in the game and had a 28-19 lead by the time the half ended.

Ann Webb continued to lead the South Edgecombe scoring, hitting for 31 points against the luckless Robersonville girls. Good defensive work by Sue Lilly of South Edgecombe helped to hold Robersonville's Patsy Bishop to only 13 points. Sara Smith and Joan Warren led the Robersonville defense.

Tonight's Game At East Carolina Tops Loop Slate

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
One North State Conference game is scheduled tonight, with the league leading High Point College basketball team traveling to meet the East Carolina Pirates.

The game will start at 8 p. m. following a preliminary contest between two intra-mural teams in Wright Gymnasium.

The league-leading Panthers will be looking for the fifth win in six conference affairs while East Carolina will be seeking to get above the 500 mark. The Pirates have a 2-2 record.

Non-conference action will see the Catawba Indians at home to the sharpshooting Presbyterian Blue Stocking five.

Last night the Guilford College Quakers went on a scoring spree to down Ft. Jackson, 93-62. The Quakers, paced by push-shot artist Don McLeod, who dropped in 20 points, took an early lead and were never headed by the soldiers.

Top man on the court was Bill Baily of Ft. Jackson with 21 points for high scoring honors.

Eion College fell victim to powerhouse Presbyterian, 68-50. The winning Blue Stockings racked up their 10th win in 13 starts. Guard Bill Hewitt led the scoring with 23 points.

Favored Appalachian downed Erskine 86-61. Forward Joe Hunt paced the winners with 21 points. Catchers and Robinson shared Erskine scoring honors with 16 points each.

W & M, Generals Game Tops Card For Southern

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
William and Mary's Indians, still hoping to gain a berth in the annual Southern Conference basketball tournament in March, play an important league contest with Washington and Lee's improved Generals at Lexington, Va., tonight.

William and Mary's conference record is currently two victories and three defeats. A win tonight would even the Indians' mark at 3-3 and improve their chances of playing in the March 6, 7 and 8 tourney at Raleigh, N. C.

Washington and Lee doesn't have much hope itself. The Generals, although they've been better since their return from a post-Christmas tour of the Midwest, have scored only two triumphs in seven outings.

In the only other game tonight in which a loop quintet sees action, Virginia Tech's winners, Gobblers, journey to Hampden-Sydney.

South Carolina's Gamecocks won a big one last night when they downed Clemson's Tigers, 71-65. Accuracy at the free throw line turned the trick for the Gamecocks, who were outscored, 28-25, on number of field baskets.

Virginia Military Institute's Keydets finally won a ball game, surprising the University of Richmond Spiders, 78-67, for their initial triumph in 11 tries. Karl Kilmer was the big reason, sinking 26 points.

North Carolina State's Wolfpack, top team in the league, put on a spectacular rally but couldn't beat its intersectional foe, the University of Louisville. State lost by 73-68. It was the Pack's fourth defeat against 11 victories.

The Citadel tripped Newberry in another non-conference encounter, 73-60.

Worthington, Briley Pace Phantoms Attack

Football Ace Dick Cherry Leads Scoring With 19 Points For Pam-Pack; Phantoms At Elizabeth City Friday Night

By JIMMY ELLIS

WASHINGTON—The Washington Pam-Pack turned on a red-hot shooting act in the third quarter here last night to bounce the Greenville Phantoms out of the ranks of the undefeated in Northeastern Conference play. The Pack's final margin over the Phantoms was 54-40.

The Pam-Pack was paced in its second conference victory by All-State football ace Dick Cherry. Cherry experienced little difficulty in hitting from anywhere on the court and scored with 19 points and high scoring honors for the night. Teammate Bobby Hacker contributed 13 but Cherry was the whole show—at least offensively—for the Washington club last night.

Greenville's attack was placed squarely on the shoulders of slender Smith Worthington and Sidney Briley. Worthington threw in 16 points and Briley was right behind with 14 but they were the only members of the squad who even came near their past performances.

The Phantoms were hampered seriously by fouls to Sonny Scott early in the game. Scott, the peppery floor leader of the team, had three personals by the end of the first half and went out of the contest in the fourth quarter. He was held to six points by a tight one-three-one zone tossed up by Coach Bill Sweel of the Pam-Pack.

Washington led all the way in the game except for a spurt by the Phantoms late in the second period. After Cherry, Edgar Woodard and Hacker collaborated to give Washington a 12-6 lead at the end of the first period, the Phantoms went to work.

John Hoyt extended Washington's margin early in the quarter by sinking a free throw given him when he and Wallace Conway were involved in a double foul. Conway missed his shot but Joe Rowland, subbing at forward for Leon Moore, hit a free toss to pull the score to 13-7. Scott narrowed the margin to 13-9 with a push shot from the side but Conway fouled Hoyt again and the slender center for Washington sank the toss to make the score 14-9. Hacker got a free throw for the Pam-Pack but Briley countered with a left handed hook shot at the five minute mark.

Cherry drove in for a "snow-bird" layup shot which was matched by a layup shot by Worthington. Briley and Hoyt were mixed up in a double foul while scrapping for a rebound and while Hoyt missed his chance, Briley sank his throw and the Phantoms trailed 17-14.

Worthington was fouled by Bob Rhodes with 3:50 left in the period and he sank both the free tosses given him to pull the Phantoms within one point. Both Rhodes and Rowland missed chances from the free throw line but Briley hit on two jump shots from the circle within a half minute of each other to put the Phantoms out front 20-17. Cherry hit one of two free throws to make it 20-18.

With a minute remaining, Rhodes and Cherry hit on three chances from the free throw line to put the Pam-Pack back into a lead they never again surrendered. The Phantoms made an effort after the half but the damage was done and they were out in the cold as the Washington team controlled both backboards and just about all the floor play.

The Phantoms will travel to Elizabeth City Friday for their next Northeastern Conference game. They now have a record of one win and one loss in conference play.

Junior Phantoms Beat Washington For Third Win

WASHINGTON—A determined and methodical possession game gave the Greenville junior varsity Phantoms their third straight win last night over the Washington high school junior Pam-Pack by a 37-31 margin.

Playing in the preliminary game of last night's Northeastern Conference double header, the Phantoms trailed 22-18 at the half. After the intermission, they began their efforts to bring Washington out of a tight zone defense. Guards George Siders, Dixie Hobgood, Harry Scott, and Pat Sawyer did most of the ball handling during this period with Saled doing the scoring which pulled the Phantoms into the lead.

Tommy Saled hit for nine points to pace the baby Phantoms but he had to give high scoring honors for the game to junior Pam-Pack forward Lee Roberson. Roberson scored 10 points. Phantom Ed Moore followed Roberson and Moore in the scoring with eight points.

This game marked the third consecutive time the Phantoms have won with their possession tactics. They took more chances from the free throw line than they have been attempting but they still valved over fifty per cent of their chances from that mark.

Ayden Nips Farmville In Both Ends Of Conference Twin Bill

By JERRY BALLARD

AYDEN—Ayden's basketball teams took both ends of a twin-bill with Farmville here last night, winning the boys' game 51-41, and taking the high-scoring girls' game, 71-54. Farmville took an early 4-1 lead before Ayden started rolling in the boys' game, but quickly saw it go down the drain as Delano Cox and Mac Whitehurst began to hit. The Tornados had built their lead to 13-5 at the end of the first period and had a 22-13 advantage at halftime. They were never seriously threatened after that point, although the Red Devils outscored them 21-13.

Cox hit for 26 points to take high-scoring honors for both clubs, while Whitehurst was only one point behind with 17. Todd Kittrell aided the Ayden cause by dropping in nine points. Curtis Dennis and Hal Edwards looked good on defense for the winners.

Wilma Stocks hit for 26 points for the Ayden team to lead the winners' scoring for the night in the point-conscious contest. Alice Jean Smith and Katherine Bright also went over the 20 point mark for Ayden, by scoring 20 and 21 points respectively. Peggy Conway and Charlene Smith led the way on defense.

Farmville's Edna Wooten captured high scoring honors for the night, however, by dropping in 32 points for the Red Devils sextet. Sister Lisa Wooten hit for 14 points and second place in the scoring column. Gertrude Smith led the defensive play for Farmville.

Manning And Johnson Pace Bethel Win Over Wolves

By MELVIN LANG

BETHEL—Bobby Manning and Earl Johnson scored 19 and 14 points, respectively, here last night to lead the Bethel Indians to a 66-50 verdict over Winterville's Wolves after surging out in front in the second half. Winterville's girls had a big scare before finally winning out, 36-29.

The boys contest was nip-and-tuck for the first 10 minutes, but the stronger Bethel boys then started connecting on their shots and settled down to take the lead for the final time. With the score tied at 14-14 at the end of the first quarter, Johnson put Bethel ahead to stay after 15 seconds of the second period by dropping a shot from the floor. The Indians had a lead of 11 points midway the period.

Winterville started strong in the opening minutes of the game and had an 11-5 lead at one point. With two minutes left in the first period, Vance White dumped a goal in to tie the count at 11-11 and B. B. Tetterton made a free throw to put Bethel in the lead for the first time, but Winterville's Bobby Cole connected to put the Wolves in front once more. Robert Nelson and Rex Wantright each made a free throw for Bethel and Winterville, respectively, to bring the score to 14-14 at the close of the period.

Coach Walter Latham substituted liberally in the second half after the first four minutes, with every player on the Bethel bench seeing action in the game. A total of 16 players entered the game for the Indians.

Vance White joined Johnson and Manning in the Bethel scoring parade with 11 points, while Robert Nelson had eight points. Johnson was star of the floor play as he was consistently a thorn in the side of the Winterville offense. Dalton Council, who came in late in the third period, also looked good for Bethel.

Girls' Game
Winterville's favored sextet was held to its lowest point total of the year in edging past the vastly improved Bethel girls, 36-29.

Coach Paul Clark's lassies had to come from behind in the last quarter to win by holding the Bethel girls to only one point while scoring nine themselves, six of which came in the last three minutes. Winterville put on an effective freeze in the last two minutes.

After a low-scoring first period, which saw Winterville take a 7-6 lead, Bethel's Jo Wynne hit on three field goals and one foul shot and Joyce Beverly connected on a field goal to put their team ahead at halftime, 15-13.

Jo Wynne led the Bethel scoring with 15 points, followed by Joyce Beverly with 7 and Isabel Manning with six points. Carrie Ayers, Geraldine White and Jean Culliter were outstanding on defense for the losers.

Grifton, Chicod Split Two Games

John Lewis scored 18 points to lead the Grifton scoring, followed by Clyde Adams with eight points. J. R. Hooten was outstanding on defense for Grifton.

Old timers say that it was at a now abandoned Fayetteville ball park that the Babe hit his first homer on March 14, 1914, or maybe it was the 15th.

Jean Ann Liverman tossed in 19 points for the winners to take high scoring honors for the night. Joan Averette and Ann Spier each scored six points, while Betsy Castlell hit for five. Ruth Hazelton led the Winterville defensive crew.

Nineteen Die In Canadian Mine

STELLARTON, N. S., (AP)—Canada's worst mining disaster in 11 years killed 19 coal diggers yesterday in a gas explosion they feared and were working to prevent.

Every man in the blast area in the McGregor Mine here was killed. Their burned, broken bodies were brought out of the pit last night and early today.

Three others, working farther from the blast, were brought out alive.

Many tons of coal were blown from the mine roof by the explosion, hampering rescue efforts. But mine officials indicated immediate arrival of rescuers would have been futile, saying there was evidence all the men died immediately.

The blast occurred at the "very bottom of the mine, about 1 1/2 miles down the slope" from the pithead, a mine official said. Many of the miners had been pulled out before the explosion.

Fire warnings already had been put into effect. Miners reported the odor of gas yesterday morning and about 100 men were put to work erecting hardwood and concrete barriers.

It was Canada's worst mine blast since a colliery explosion in 1941 at Nordegg, Alberta, in which 29 died.

Chapter 9
Dean nodded. "Yes, I've thought of nothing else, since the day we met. The thing that bothered me was how I wanted to do it; what expression. But now I know. I knew when you looked up at me, before you nearly drowned yourself on that drink. Eyes wide, sort of incredulous, mouth slightly open."

"You make me sound like an idiot! You always make me look foolish, act foolish."

"No. You looked the way I want to catch you in the painting. Young, vulnerable, too dressed up—forgive me, that's what your pretty little blue dress does for you. Yet it points out all the depths beneath that hidden fire Carol mentioned."

She said, "I'm not as young as all that. I do wish you and all Abigail's friends, wouldn't keep harping on how young I seem. And I shan't change, so don't worry about that."

"I wish you'd make that a promise." His dark eyes looked so deeply into hers that she could not look away. Then he said, "But you haven't promised to sit for me. And there's one other thing. I'd rather, for very excellent and entirely personal reasons, that Abigail and her friends didn't know about it. Not until the portrait is done, anyway. Would you promise that, too?"

"Why, I suppose so." She hardly knew what to say. She supposed it would be all right for her sister to believe she was studying under Dean.

He leaned over, caught one of her hands, and gave it a hard squeeze. "That's it, then," he said. "Oh, here you are!" Abigail's low, mocking voice sounded, as usual, lightly amused, slightly bored. "Whatever are you two conspiring about? And you ought not monopolize Marcia, Dean. She is supposed to be the center of attention tonight, you know."

"Except that you are, per usual." Dean's tone was his dry one. "I see," he added, that you're wearing old Vic's orchids. And I hear, by the way, that write number three has finally consented to Reno. Or is it Mexico? I assume that, in a way, this party is in celebration of that, as well as Marcia's debut into respectable society."

"One hears all sorts of things," Abigail shrugged. "However, it's Mexico, darling, since you seem so interested. And you were right. Victor has persuaded me to let him make a formal announcement of our engagement. As he says, all our friends are here. That's why"—she turned her smile on her sister—"I wanted to tell you about it first. Needless to add, it won't mean any change in this coming year. I've told Victor we must wait that long, just out of decency."

"To the memory of which wife—or all three?" Dean inquired.

"Our mother has not been gone very long," Abigail returned, looking at him in a way that made that young man flush. "I don't think a year, this year she wanted Marcia and me to share, is too long to give, or wait."

"Of course it's all right," she said. She meant that it was all right for Abigail to turn the party that was to have been in her honor into an announcement party.

But Dean did not seem to agree. He got up abruptly. "Guess I'll be on my way," he said. "Sorry, Abbie, but I cannot stay to hear your piece of news. Kindly extend my regards to the lucky man."

Her sister did not seem to mind. She laughed. Her large violet eyes were thoughtful a moment. She shrugged once more and held out a hand to her sister. "Come, darling," she said. "Victor wants you with us. It seems he's taken a great fancy to you, which is fortunate indeed. And remember what I told you about Dean: never take him seriously. I made that mistake once, but never again."

Then maybe Dean had only been talking when he had said he wanted to do her portrait. Maybe days, weeks would pass and he would never mention it again. Marcia did not want to believe that. There was nothing to do but wait and see, find out for herself whether she could take Dean Dearborn seriously or not.

Abigail had been right about the party's lasting until the "wee small hours." It was two o'clock before the last guest finally took a reluctant departure. She had been right, too, about his becoming somewhat hilarious. This was Marcia, felt because some of the men had taken too much to drink. The Douglasses had not left, after all, when they had started out to do so. Mr. Douglas, or Paddy, as everyone called him, had stopped to have "just one more." Then that had led to still another, so that by the time they did leave, Paddy had to be helped out by two of his friends.

"Poor Paddy!" as Carol said of him. "He never could hold his liquor. And here he said he had an important appointment in the morning. He'll be up, so I can't sleep, but he'll have such a head he won't be able to make it. It's certainly lucky that I'm the breadwinner of the family."

But the person Marcia became most concerned about was Manning Kornoff, the Russian.

She had never seen anyone consume quite as much liquor as this tall, blond Viking—for that was how he looked, contrary to her conception of how a Russian should look. He simply kept pouring it down, one drink after the other, until finally Abigail had refused to let him have any more. Then he had thrown his empty glass against the mantelpiece and banged out of the apartment.

No one had seemed to mind. Abigail had laughed and Carol had said something about an evening's never being complete unless Manning made a scene and Victor Scott, who had gone after him, came back, shaking his head and saying it was no use, no one could do anything with Manning when he was drinking.

"No one can do anything with Manning at any time," Carol had commented. "You must play his way, or he won't play at all."

East-West Turmoil Causing Byrd Delay Antarctic Visit

By HARRY W. FRANTS
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP)— Rear Adm. Richard E. Byrd wants to lead another expedition to Antarctica but the odds are it won't be soon.

The Korean war, the cold war, and lack of money are standing in the way of a new trek to the South Polar region.

"I will not work on an Antarctic expedition until the Korean crisis is over," Byrd said recently. "When that is over, I would feel free to start in again on an Antarctic program."

"I do want to go there again."

There is no monetary provision for a new Antarctic expedition in the naval appropriation for next year. Nor is there likely to be as long as the cold war continues between the wet and the Iron Curtain countries.

It may be, too, that United States policy regarding sovereignty in Antarctica may have to be clarified before the next large-scale expedition from this country to the bottom of the world. Trouble could arise among this and other countries over control of the 6,000,000 square miles of icy continent.

On Active Duty Now
 Byrd now on active duty in the Defense Department, working on Polar strategic problems for the joint chiefs of staff.

Byrd went to Antarctica first in 1928-30. He conducted a second expedition in 1933-35. He spent the long winter alone, in scientific observations not a great distance from the South Pole.

In 1939, Byrd was head of the United States Antarctic service. This expedition explored more than 100,000 square miles of previously unknown territory, and charted 700 miles of additional coast-line.

The 1946-47 Antarctic operation, called "High Jump," brought more knowledge about the region than had been accumulated in all previous explorations. The complete official reports of this expedition never have been published.

"High Jump II" was scheduled for the season of 1949-51, but was postponed in August, 1949, but was postponed in August, 1949, for reasons of economy. Its purposes were naval training in cold regions, explorations, and mapping.

Colder than Arctic
 If and when the navy resumes Antarctic exploration, the interest again will be chiefly in the training phase. Antarctica averages about 49 degrees colder than the Arctic region, and trying there affords extraordinary tests of human adaptability, ice navigation and aviation.

The political opinion regarding U. S. policy in Antarctica probably will be tested in Congress next year. The House foreign affairs committee has a resolution pending by which this country would declare its right of sovereignty over the part of the Antarctic continent between the 90th meridian, west, and the 150th meridian, west, and would reserve rights based on discoveries and exploration in other areas.

Besides the physical aspects of Antarctica, there is a delicate diplomatic problem. Other countries claim part of the big icy region. Among these is Russia, advancing claims based on an expedition in 1820-21.

The State and Navy departments are keeping close tabs on Antarctica. They know that in event the Suez and Panama canals are blocked, a huge volume of traffic would have to traverse the Cape of Good Hope and Cape Horn. The seas in those regions would have great strategic importance.

Water Douser Shows It Works

CORNISH, Me. (UP)— The pros and cons of water dousing are argued continually but Roy Thompson says he has switched to the pro side.

His farm well went dry and contractors quoted "sky-high" prices for damming the large brook which curves past his barn.

A local water douser, Morris Rogers, brought out his willow rod and checked the farm.

"Dig here," he told Thompson at one spot.

Thompson gambled on the willow and won a productive new well.

Freak Beak Kept Chick Off Table

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UP)— A smart little chick named Babe never opened her mouth and lived a happier and longer life than her scornful brothers and sisters.

Babe saw much more of the world than her noisy neighbors. They never got out of their Clay, Ala., chickenyard.

Babe was born with her beak crossed.

The Fred Martin family fed her through an eyedropper and made her a family pet. She accompanied the family to California, where she strutted long after the bolterous neighbors had landed in the stew pot.

TOWN ALL LIT UP
LYNDONVILLE, Vt. (UP)— This is the only town in the country with a fluorescent-lighted main street. The ski resort town has ten of the units on its main street. Town officials plan to hold their famous sled dog races down the main street.

150-Degree Heat Found In Desert

LOS ANGELES (UP)— Searing ground temperatures of 150 degrees, believed to be the highest ever recorded, have been reported on California's Mojave desert by four University of Southern California geologists.

The temperatures were reported by Dr. Thomas Clements, head of the SC geology department, who led a scientific team into the deserts of the southwestern United States to make surveys for the Army's quartermaster general.

Dr. Clements said he shoved a thermometer into the ground in the Mojave desert 30 miles east of Barstow, Calif., and obtained a reading of more than 100 degrees.

He was amazed to discover, however, that when he held the thermometer three feet off the ground, the mercury climbed 40 degrees to 150.

The USC scientists were studying the effects of heat, sand, wind, stones and spiny vegetation on men and equipment to determine the conditions American troops will face if they ever again are called upon to fight in the desert.

The scientists encountered 122-degree heat one day in Death Valley, and that as night, they had to sleep in fleeced-lined jackets to keep warm.

The highest temperature ever recorded officially in Death Valley was 134 degrees. It has been 135 in the Libyan desert.

Pupils Organize Own Little UN

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP)— About 35 students at the University of Alabama have organized a pin-size United Nations among Americans and foreigners on the campus.

Called the International Relations Club, the group emphasizes political discussion and social activities designed to achieve "a fuller understanding of each other."

Representatives of foreign countries are invited to speak to the students.

Famed 'Vinegar' Bible Is In Vault

PORTLAND, Me. (UP)— The famous "Vinegar" Bible of Preble Chapel has gone back into storage in a bank vault after a brief display at the chapel's centenary ceremonies.

The hand-tooled, leather-bound volume is one of the few existing copies of the edition which received its odd name from a printer's mistake 234 years ago.

The printer, John Baskett of Oxford, England, set up the word "vinegar" for vineyard in the heading of the parable of the vineyard.

Soviet Ready To Grab Romania's Uranium Supply

BELGRADE (UP)— Russia will begin exploitation of major new uranium finds in Romania in the spring of 1952, an authoritative source disclosed here.

The Soviet Union already is mining large quantities of uranium in Bulgaria.

A Bulgarian refugee who survived a year's forced labor in the uranium mine at Buhovo, near Sofia, told newsmen here that the Russians were shipping out 60 carloads of uranium ore every night.

He said 3,000 civilians and 1,500 Bulgarian army men were working at Buhovo.

Details on the new find in Romania were gathered from refugees and some of the expert smugglers who ply the Danube River between Yugoslavia and Romania.

They said considerable quantities of uranium had been located in the Turnu Severin and Galatz districts.

Between August and October this year teams of Romanian geologists, equipped with modern machinery sent from the Soviet Union and directed by Russian experts, scoured the regions. More than 100 test borings were made around Turnu Severin alone.

Building materials and specialized equipment are being collected at Turnu Severin in preparation for what are described as "huge construction works" to be started in the spring.

Some of the preparations are clearly visible from the Yugoslav village of Kladovo, directly across the river from the Romanian port.

Refugees report that peasants in the affected districts have been warned by local police that they may soon be deported to the interior "away from this important territory where significant mining and construction work is to begin soon."

Many of the border villages are inhabited by members of the Serbian minority in Romania.

Texan Gives Up On Fish Story

RANGELEY, Me. (UP)— Texans have a reputation for bigness. But Joe Smith of Hereford, Tex., in the Panhandle country, says he never could top Everett Towle, a Maine guide, as a tall story teller.

During a fishing expedition here, Smith was asking about the fish in Flatiron Pond at Kennebago.

"Well," said Towle, "three square-foot trout rose one day to grab a dry fly I cast into the water. Two of 'em bumped, heads and were knocked cold."

Cat's Faith In Humans Restored

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UP)— A cat's faith in humanity was restored today after cat-lovers here brought about its rescue from atop a 50-foot pole.

Tabby shivered through two nights of rain and snow because police, firemen and the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals refused to conduct a rescue mission. The cat was freed, however, when angered citizens demanded that city officials do something about the trapped feline.

After a hearty meal of warm milk and fish, the cat was turned loose to find its way home.

POLE FOOLS BEAR

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UP)— A state game protector, John S. Shuler, found the carcass of a 300-pound bear six feet from a power line pole. Shuler said claw marks on the pole and slight bruises on the bear's back indicate the bear probably mistook the humming of the line for a bee tree.

Swiss Plan For Expedition To Climb Everest

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP)— The Swiss Institute for Alpine Research is planning a Mt. Everest expedition in 1952 hoping not to tread on the toes of a British expedition which is due to climb the same mountain at the same time.

The government of Nepal recently gave the Swiss formal permission to launch the first postwar effort to climb the world's highest peak. At the same time, the Swiss learned that a British expedition was also preparing to renew the attack on unconquered Mt. Everest next year. Both expeditions are believed to be planning the ascent by the southern route from Nepal in the early fall of next year.

The Institute is lining up H. mountaineering experts to join the Swiss group. The expedition, complete with the most up-to-date equipment, is expected to leave Switzerland early in April.

Recover Truck Despite Odds

NEW YORK (AP)— One of those 1,000-to-1 shots has led to the return of a tractor-trailer truck that "disappeared" last October along with a new equipment of a Bronx trucking firm.

An amazed friend of one of the firm's partners spotted the tractor recently on a chance visit to Indian River City, Fla. The trailer was returned to the owners by the men who were said to have leased it. Police are seeking to bring back the culprit.

CLOSE, BUT NO SHAVE

MATTOON, Ill. (UP)— Truck driver R. C. Tanner, 31, literally escaped death by his hair. His vehicle went out of control and turned over. A wheel landed on Tanner's hair, pinning him to the road. A motorist freed Tanner.

Carlson To Again Try Flying Home

NEW YORK (UP)—Capt. Henrik Kurt (Slay-Pub) Carlson, jinxed in the air as well as at sea, heads homeward again today to the arms of his wife and the hearts of New York's parade-loving millions. Carlson, who doesn't know how many times he has sailed across the fickle Atlantic, boarded an airliner at the Shannon, Eire, Airport last night for his first trans-oceanic flight.

But the big plane carrying the intrepid skipper of the sunken Flying Enterprise to a ticker-tape parade down New York's "Canyon of Heroes," developed mechanical trouble 280 miles out and returned to Shannon an hour and 25 minutes after its takeoff. Carlson was sleeping when the airliner set down on the runway and was confused by the noise made by disembarking passengers until he got his bearings. He told the pilot he wanted to stay put in his berth aboard the plane but was persuaded to sleep at the airport hotel when he was informed the takeoff had been rescheduled for 8 a. m. EST. That would bring him to New York's International Airport about midnight tonight, airline officials estimated, barring delays by bad weather.

Ends Tonight "DETECTIVE STORY"

It was expected that a small informal group composed of Grover Whalen, the city's official hand-shaker, officials of the Isbrandtsen Lines, which owned the Flying Enterprise, and Mrs. Carlson would wait up for the skipper's arrival. Carlson's unforeseen delay caused the city's reception committee to alter its plans for the welcoming which the Danish-born sailor thinks he does not deserve.

The big parade, originally scheduled today, was postponed until 12:05 p. m. EST tomorrow but none of the elaborate preparations was changed. He will be taken by a Coast Guard cutter tomorrow to the Battery. Then he will walk to City Hall in a parade of 2,000, including marchers from the armed services and various city groups, through a blizzard of ticker tape. It will be the city's first real welcome for a man of valor since 7,500,000 hero-worshippers jammed the streets to greet Gen. Douglas MacArthur last year. Reception committee officials declined to predict how many would turn out to shout "well done" to Carlson, but it was believed there would be more on the streets than the "2,000,000 to 4,000,000" who cheered Col. Charles A. Lindbergh upon his return from Paris almost 25 years ago. At least 4,000,000 saw Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower parade down the Highway of Heroes following World War II. For Carlson, however, the parade was to be an anti-climax. His big moment, he said, would be the happy reunion with his wife.

who lives in a white cottage at Woodbridge, N. J., and his two small children—Sonja and Karen, 7, and 7. The deeply religious Mrs. Carlson—at the orders of her doctor—has been living in seclusion since the beginning of her husband's perilous adventure. The anxiety caused by her husband's defiance of death plus calls from well-wishers brought on nervous exhaustion. "She is feeling quite well now, because she has been doing nothing but resting since she knew her husband was safe," the Rev. Paul Baagoe, a friend of the Carlsons, said. Before retiring last night, Carlson yawned and, in an aside to newsmen, said: "I still say the Atlantic is tough to beat."

Speaker Says . . .

(Continued from page one) ceive all the government they pay for. In Britain we do get all the government we pay for. The recent British elections, the speaker pointed out, marked a change in the strict policy lines which had previously separated the Conservative and Labor parties. Churchill's group compromised on the issue of socialism, and the Labor party of Atlee promised no further socialization of the country. As a result the British people were confused. The deciding factors which brought Churchill back into power, Hughes said, were the Egyptian crisis and the fact that the British people do not like any government to stay in power too long. "We think six years is too long for a government to stay in power."

Summing up the fallacies of socialism in the domestic and foreign policies of the United States and Britain, Hughes declared: "You can not bring about prosperity by discouraging thrift. You can not strengthen the weak by weakening the strong. You can not help small men by tearing down the big men. You can not help the poor by destroying the rich. You can not let the wage earner by pulling down the wage payer. You can not keep out of trouble by spending more money than you earn. You can not further the brotherhood of man by inciting race hatred. You can not establish sound security on borrowed money. You can not build character and courage by taking away a man's initiative and independence. You can not help men permanently by doing for them what they could and should do for themselves.

Turning to conditions in Asia, Hughes gave high praise to Nehru of India, and to Atlee for pushing the independence for India. Had Atlee not come to power in Britain following World War II, Hughes said, Britain would have gone to war with India over the question of independence. India was promised independence following World War I, but the promise was not kept by the British government, and Hughes asserted the same thing would have happened in Churchill.

India is full of life and will get somewhere, Hughes said, but Nehru has a great deal to do to unify India before he can begin shouting at leaders of other nations of the world. Hughes said there is no chance that India will join with the communists but it will remain loyal to Britain and the free nations of the world. India, he said, has well trained leaders who are doing a good job of governing the new nation.

In the East Indies, according to the speaker, the Dutch did more for the welfare of the people, than the British did in India, but the Dutch failed to train leaders to assume the governmental responsibilities in Indonesia. "Most of the people in power in Indonesia are Moscow trained, but they are not communists." Hughes termed the Philippines the West's entrance to the people of central Asia, and recommended that the United States take steps to scrap the 100-year trade agreement which was made with the Philippines when that nation was given independence. He said the agreement is being attacked by extremists on both the left and the right and is making it very difficult for the Philippine government to unify its people. "It will be a great many centuries before the people of Asia are ready for the kind of democracy we have in the United States," Hughes said. "We can do a great deal of harm by trying to push it upon people before they are ready for them."

Judge Gwyn New Court Candidate

REIDSVILLE, — Allen H. Gwyn of Reidsville, judge of the Superior Court of North Carolina from the 21st Judicial District, said today that he had mailed to the State Board of Elections his certificate and filing fee as a candidate for associated justice of the State Supreme Court.

Do you intend to make speeches in your campaign? Yes, but I shall not make "political" speeches. I shall not discuss any qualifications I may have for the office. I shall not discuss the Supreme Court or my candidacy. I shall speak upon other questions which vitally affect the welfare of the state and the entire country. Judge Gwyn said his personal "platform" as a candidate could be expressed briefly, directly and simply as "A fair and impartial administration of the law."

Truman Asks . . .

(Continued from page one) July 26, 1951. He also asked renewal of slaughtering quotas which were banned by the last session of Congress. Mr. Truman also objected to "another weakening amendment" to the Defense Production Act which permits a percentage markup by distributors. "To achieve our stabilization objectives, these defects in price control legislation should be corrected and the law should be strengthened when it is extended," he said. "We cannot afford to gamble further with inflation."

He recommended continuance of a "firm wage policy" but advocated nothing more stringent than regulations now in effect. In fact, he looked with favor on wage adjustments to allow for increases in productivity, but suggested that they be "carefully limited and firmly administered." The President recommended that congress eliminate the present sliding-scale system of farm price supports in favor of firmer supports so that farmers will not be afraid to increase production. Mr. Truman also suggested that congress consider "a more effective way of supporting the price of perishable farm commodities." He encouraged the organization and "sound growth" of farmer cooperatives.

New Pre-Trial Process In Navy

"While the navy has always followed a routine of investigation before ordering a person to trial, the code spells out a new pre-trial procedure," said Paul E. Powell in the third of a series of meetings concerning naval reserve is holding concerning naval courts. Powell said the pre-trial procedure is a hearing somewhat similar to our present course of inquiry and board of investigation, and is conducted by a single investigating officer. "Normally, the delivery of the charges precede the investigation and the accused has the right to be present at the investigation, have counsel, cross examine witnesses, and present witnesses who will testify for him," Powell said. The command who orders the investigation decides, upon its completion, whether the charges shall be forwarded to the convening authority of general court.

If charges are served after the investigation, there will be no further investigation unless the accused asks for it. If such a demand is made, the accused can only cross examine and present new evidence. Powell said when a convening authority receives charges against an accused he is required to refer them to his legal officer for his consideration and advice before he orders a new trial for the accused. "If a man is held for trial by general court," stated Powell, "he must be served the specifications within eight days after arrest. Precision is made too against hastily trial. The accused may not be brought to trial within five days after having been served the charges."

The only plea an accused can enter to charges is guilty or not guilty. Courts are prohibited from accepting a plea of guilty to a charge which carries the death penalty. Powell also said witnesses may be compelled to appear and testify in any part of the U. S., its territories and possessions. The code provides a penalty for failure to appear after being duly subpoenaed and for contempt of court.

Theft Is Solved Before Reported

Two alert police officers early Monday morning nabbed a truck thief, and placed him behind bars some six hours before the lawful owner ever discovered the vehicle missing. But they had to chase him three times to bring him in.

Patrolman James Boykin and James Ross of Ayden were riding in the vicinity of Winterville around 3:30 Monday morning when they noted a car and truck racing, horn blowing loudly. There the officers stepped in to see just what was up.

Patrolman Boykin discovered that the two occupants of the car were trying to catch the driver of the truck, as the truck had collided with the car some distance up the road. The driver of the truck, James Rollins, 22, of No. 4 Pitt Street, Greenville, was taken to jail where charges of driving drunk, hit and run, and driving without driver's license were placed against him.

The truck which he was operating belonged to the Atlantic Beer Company of Greensboro. After being placed under arrest, Rollins broke away from the officers three times and had to be run down each time. Rollins was placed in jail in Ayden. Later that morning Boykin was in the Greenville police station when the driver of the truck which had been stolen, stroled into the office and began to give details of the stolen truck. There Boykin informed the man that he had his truck.
