Reds Claim New Violation By UN

Charge Bombing Outskirts Of Neutral Kaesong; UN Team Investigating; Two MIGs Downed Without Firing A Shot In Odd Aerial Battle

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—The Communists accused the United Nations today of bombing the outskirts of neutral Kaesong, headquarters of the Red armistice team.

A U.N. investigation team sped at once to the scene, a hill outside the town but within the three-mile zone whose immunity had been guaranteed by the Allies.

The investigators, headed by U.S. Marine Col. James C. Murray, returned to Panmunjom late this afternoon and went into conference with Red staff officers. Murray did not disclose his findings immediately.

Communist liaison officers on a 14 Allied plane dropped a bomb on the hill this morning. They did not say at first whether it caused any damage.

It was on just such a charge last Aug. 22 that the Communists broke off the then stalemated armistice talks. The truce negotiations finally were resumed Oct. 25, but they again are deadlocked.

The Reds charged in August that a U. N. plane had bombed and strafed Kaesong in an attempt to murder North Korean Gen. Nam Il, head of the Communist negotiating team. The Allies countercharged that the incident had been manufactured.

8TH ARMY HQ, Korea (UP)—Two American Sabrejet pilots downed two Communist jet fighters today without firing a shot.

Maj. William F. Shaeffer of Boone, Ida., and Lt. Frank P. Robinson Jr. of Shreveport, La., scored the unique victories during a dogfight between 23 Sabres and 30 MIGs in northwest Korea.

The two Americans maneuvered the less skillful Communist pilots into high-speed power stalls. Another MIG was damaged by gunfire in the "MIG Alley" melee.

Other Sabrejets exchanged fire with 16 MIGs in a second dogfight during the morning, but no additional claims were made at once.

Only patrol activity and minor probing attacks were reported from the 145-mile ground front.

An 8th Army communique tonight said U.N. forces repulsed small-scale Communist attacks West of Kangop on the western front, East of the Pukhan River on the central front, and northeast of Puchon Valley and northwest of Kangson on the eastern front.

The Sabrejets scored their no-shot victory during a routine patrol. The 60 MIGs approached the United Nations formation in pairs.

"They would come in quick, make a 90-degree deflection shot at us, and then break off as we turned into them," Robinson said.

"We were at about 30,000 feet altitude when two of them came in from behind on Major Shaeffer and me. They made a firing pass on Major Shaeffer. The first I knew of it was when I saw red balls of fire going by me.

"I yelled to break and both of us went into a tight turn with the MIG's right on our tail. At the lightest part of our turn, the MIG's seemed to lose all control and went into a spin.

"We got behind the MIG's and followed them down. First one pilot ejected himself and then the other. But only one parachute opened. Both planes crashed into the ground."

Mrs. Boyd Takes Stand In Trial; Jury Is Selected

Wife Of Slain Man Begins Testimony; Beaufort Court Room Jammed

WASHINGTON—Mrs. Opal Boyd, wife of Harvie Boyd, young Beaufort County farmer who was slain by an ambush shotgun blast Thanksgiving Eve, went on the stand this morning as the first witness for the state when the murder trial of Lafayette Miller opened here.

The slain man's wife took the stand at 10:20 after the final selection of the jury had been made at 9:55. She remained on the stand for an hour and twenty minutes.

Dressed in a black coat with a small grey and black hat, with a veil over her face, Mrs. Boyd told the packed court room in clear deliberate tones the events leading up to and the actual murder of her husband.

Testimony was made by Mrs. Boyd that after finishing her evening's chores, she and her husband prepared to retire around 9 o'clock. Her husband was standing by the window of their living room, Mrs. Boyd a few feet away. He was winding his watch at the time the blast rang out, striking him down, the woman stated.

She then told the jury that she fell to the floor and screamed for her husband to turn out the lights, to which he replied "I can't," the last words which he uttered.

Next the woman told of being forced to drive Miller down the road, during which time she was pleading with him to let her go and get help for her husband.

Later, she said, Miller made her get out of the car and locked her in the boot of the vehicle, where she was later found by two Pitt County highway patrolmen who stopped the automobile near Greenville for a routine check.

The next witness scheduled to take the stand was Cpl. H. M. Morrow of Greenville, one of the officers who stopped the car and unearthed the murder.

Court was to recess here at one o'clock with the opening gavel of the afternoon session coming at 2:30.

Further delay in the trial resulted yesterday afternoon when the special venire of 125 Martin County jurors was exhausted and Judge Clawson Williams ordered that 30 Beaufort County jurors be brought into court for this morning's session. Court recessed around 4:30.

Less than an hour was required this morning to complete the selection of the jury. Yesterday, up until noon, only one juror was chosen.

Miller sat looking down at the floor or out the window all the time. He showed no emotion.

An overflow crowd had packed the Beaufort County court room here all day long.

Names of the jurors chosen for the trial from Martin County include: Wiley Elliland, Ernest Ward, O. H. Fields, all Negroes; S. D. Robertson, David P. Griffin, Fernando G. Bowen, John A. Griffin, Warren White, J. H. Coltrane, Beaufort County jurors selected this morning were: Richard J. Waters and Sammy Brickhouse.

Passengers Of Stalled Train Reach Oakland

OAKLAND, Calif. (UP)—A long, cold journey ended today as a rescue train carrying 232 passengers and crewmen removed from the snowbound City of San Francisco rolled into Oakland.

The 17-car train's journey brought to an end the greatest rescue operation in the history of the towering High Sierra Mountains.

A Madri Gras spirit filled the air as the survivors of three days locked in the grip of a mountain blizzard poured off the train.

Four passengers, some suffering minor injuries and one with a respiratory ailment, left the relief train when it stopped at Sacramento, Calif. The remaining 219 passengers and 13 crewmen rode on into Oakland in carnival spirit.

Guaranty Bank's Earnings High

Stockholders Told Deposits Are $7 Millions Above '51

Officials of the Guaranty Bank and Trust company at the annual stockholders meeting here yesterday reported total deposits of the bank are up $7,000,000 above last year and that earnings on the $75,000,000 capital stock were 20 percent which is above the average in the nation.

The fifty-first annual stockholders meeting of the bank was held yesterday afternoon in the Shepherd Memorial Library. More than 50,000 shares of the 60,000 shares of stock in the bank were represented in person and by proxy at the meeting.

In his report on the past year's operation of the bank, President W. H. Woolard said the operation had been very satisfactory. He pointed out that the bank's large investment in government has been adjusted during the past two years so that at present on average the government bonds held by the bank have less than 12 months to run to maturity. The face amount of the bonds exceed the amount at which the total is carried on the books, the president said, and therefore a possible loss in further decline in the market has been eliminated.

The bank's investments in loans are a little of from what they were at this same date last year. Woolard pointed out, showing a very liquid condition especially considering the fact deposits are seven million dollars higher.

"The bank has been active in advancing loans to its farmers through its subsidiary, the Greenville Agricultural Credit Corporation, and the amount loaned last year has been paid up 100 percent," Woolard told the stockholders. "The trust department operates in a prosperous and growing condition and renders a valuable service to its patrons. During the year $25,000 addition par value stock has been sold principally to new stockholders, and the number of stockholders has been increased from 390 to 537. During the year we have added two branches—one in the tobacco section at Washington, and the other at Meadowbrook in Greenville, both of which have favorable prospects for future development."

The assets of the bank as of the date of statement were at all times $44,000,000, "including the assets of our affiliate, the Bank of Abbeville, runs considerably over 50 million dollars," Woolard said. He added that barring an all-out war, the business outlook for 1952 is encouraging.

James S. Ficklen, chairman of the board of directors of the bank, in his address to the stockholders made reference to the federal tax situation, stating that the power to tax is the power to destroy. He mentioned the present proposals of

"The decision has been made by the President. He told me about it—about the expansion program. Further than that I can't state."

High School Day Set For College

Tenth Annual Program Scheduled April 4 At East Carolina

East Carolina College will hold its tenth annual High School Day Friday, April 4. Plans are already being made for entertaining approximately 3,000 high school seniors who are expected to be guests on the campus at that time.

Dr. Ed J. Carter, director of the Bureau of Field Services at the college, is chairman of a committee of students and faculty members in charge of arranging the program for the day. Events being scheduled will emphasize both the educational and the social values of college life.

According to custom established in previous years, the college will operate as usual on High School Day so that guests may see "a college in action."

Opportunities will be given to visit departments of instruction, and such divisions of the college as the Nursery School, the Kindergarten, and the Training School. Special exhibitions are being planned through appropriate displays the types of work being done at East Carolina.

The Student Government Association will present during the afternoon a musical comedy "Good News," which gives an entertaining picture of campus life. A one-act play by the Teachers Playhouse is also being planned as a special attraction. The Air Force ROTC unit on the campus and the College Band will stage a parade along the college driveways.

Of chief interest to many will be a baseball game between East Carolina and Elon. Other events will include, according to present plans, picnic luncheon, a tea dance, and a tour of the campus conducted by college students under the direction of Charles Self of Greensboro, president of the Student Government Association.

Steel, Not Gold Or Favors Is British Need - Churchill

Will Start UMT By Next Fall If Given Approval

Lovett Says Program Would Begin On Small Scale, Gradually Expand

WASHINGTON (UP)—Defense Secretary Robert A. Lovett disclosed plans today to start universal military training next fall — if Congress gives its assent.

The start would be on a small scale, involving initially fewer than 700,000 of the 800,000 18-year-olds who would be expected eventually to become liable for UMT each year.

Seventeen existing Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine bases in 12 states would be partially converted to handle the proposed new six-month training program.

Lovett was called as a witness by the House Armed Services Committee, which is considering training plans recommended by the National Security Training Commission. The commission was set up last year when Congress approved UMT in principle.

In answer to a question hotly debated in Congress—when should UMT be started?—Lovett told the committee:

"To our mind the answer to this is clear. It should be started as soon as possible. The military departments believe that a UMT program can be begun, on a limited scale, approximately six months after the enactment of the implementing legislation now before you."

Congressional military leaders said the UMT bill can't be passed before March or April. They would put the first inductions according to Lovett's plans, in September or October.

Lovett said UMT would result in lower defense costs, a smaller standing military force, and a higher degree of "military readiness."

"After years of study and the most earnest efforts to find the best solution," he said, "we are convinced that UMT is the only dependable, long-range source for our reserve forces."

"A strong, readily available reserve force is our only alternative to a large standing force. Therefore the sooner we begin UMT, the sooner we will reap the benefits of a smaller, active military establishment."

Lovett gave no details of the plan to start UMT inductions next fall. However, members of the commission had testified earlier the start probably would be made with fewer than 100,000 men.

Only yesterday Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) told training commission members the committee was convinced UMT could not be operated side-by-side with the draft except during a changeover period of not to exceed about 12 months.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Seventeen military camps throughout the country were listed yesterday as tentative sites for Universal Military Training, when and if it begins.

They include among others Ft. Jackson, S. C. (Army); Camp Lejeune, N. C., and Cherry Point, N. C. (Marines).

The listing was given by Dr. Karl T. Compton during testimony on UMT before the House Armed Services Committee.

PARIS (AP)—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky today called U.S. Lieut. Gen. James Van Fleet a "cannibal" unfit to conduct armistice negotiations in Korea.

Vishinsky told the United Nations Political Committee the "unreasonable demands presented by the American command can give no hope for a successful conclusion of those negotiations."

"could want to leave truce talks in the hands of Van Fleet and other military leaders."

The Soviet foreign minister quoted the Associated Press as reporting that General Van Fleet was "perfectly satisfied" with war destruction in North Korea and the critical state of the civilian population.

"Those are the statements of a blood-thirsty man—of a cannibal," Vishinsky declared.

WASHINGTON (UP)— Winston Churchill told a cheering joint session of Congress today that he came here to get steel to build up strength against Communist aggression rather than gold to make the British people comfortable.

Churchill was greeted with an ovation when he began his important address, the third time he has spoken to a joint session of the House and Senate.

He plunged immediately into the subject of greatest interest to the American legislators. He drew loud laughter and applause when almost at the outset he said:

"I have not come here to ask you for money."

The British prime minister assured Congress today that British and American policy in the Far East will be marked by increasing harmony. He said that if a truce is reached in Korea, and subsequently breached, "our response will be prompt, resolute and effective."

"I have come here not for gold, but for steel; not for favors, but for equipment," Churchill said.

He warned that Britain faces a formidable task in rebuilding her armed strength and will need American military aid. But he stated that he would not ask for a penny from anyone just to make the British people more comfortable.

Churchill then started a review of relations with Russia and deplored that a former "gallant ally" had tossed Western friendship aside after the war.

But now, he added, the West has another "tremendous danger"—"another tyranny to face"—China. But he said that he was still hopeful about the future of China.

He said that China's present situation does not mean that it will remain "for generations in the Communist grip."

Churchill praised this country for its stand against Chinese Communist aggression in Korea and said "we take our stand on your side."

He added that he is "grateful" to the United States for bearing nine-tenths or more of the burden in Korea.

He said that all that was given to Britain under wartime lend-lease would "never be forgotten."

The loan from the United States in 1946, he said, was not spent on "ourselves," but "mainly on others," and Britain's "true position" was not to be determined by its dwindling dollar problem.

Let no man underestimate the abiding wealth of the Commonwealth and the British empire," Churchill said.

Speaking of the formidable problem of rearmament, he said Britain requires American aid if the Allies are to reach the high levels of military strength necessary.

"Whether you aid us much or little we shall continue to do our part in the common cause," he said.

Churchill turned to a discussion of British and American politics and said Britain, like the United States, believes in the two-party system.

Churchill said our complicated society would be "deeply injured" if bi-partisanship was not practiced. He paid tribute to the late Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg (R-Mich.), one of the leaders in forming a bipartisan foreign policy in this country.

Current Street Repairs Will Be Soon Augmented, Reports Mayor

Mayor Lester D. Page announced this morning that several street repair projects are now in progress throughout the city, with more to be commenced in the near future.

The Mayor disclosed that the portion of Maple Street lying between Fifth and Tenth Streets is already undergoing necessary preparations for the pouring of curb and gutter.

"The work should be completed within the next week if the weather permits," he said. Property owners along Maple Street are paying for the project.

The pouring of curb and gutter along Watauga Street is now completed, with property owners financing the project, the mayor said. "That street will be paved sometime in February," he added, "with the city paying for one-third of the total cost, and property owners two-thirds."

Mayor Page now has on his desk a petition requesting the curbing, guttering, and paving of Ash Street, between Fourth and Fifth Streets. The petition will be presented to the Board of Aldermen at its next meeting February 7.

Board of Aldermen met yesterday with the Greenville School Board and approved the opening of Skinner Street from Howell Street to Griffin Street.

At the meeting, the group discussed the possibility of negotiating a trade with property owners across the street from South Greenville School so that the proposed opening of Skinner Street from Howell Street to Harris Street could go straight by the school instead of diagonally, so, as is now the case. The proposal was left open for further consideration.

Cases Tried In Police Court

By CHESTER WALSH In Police Court yesterday, Judge Charles H. Whedbee found Cecil B. Lupton of Camp Lejeune guilty of careless and reckless driving.

A warrant charged Lupton with colliding with a car driven by Walter Lewis, while he was making a left turn at East Fifth and Maple Streets early Sunday morning. Police estimated damage to Lewis' car at $1,000; Lupton's, about $350.

Testimony was that Lewis' car turned over after the other vehicle struck it. Both drivers were considerably shaken up, but they were not injured.

In the first report, the police report listed Lewis' name erroneously as Harvey.

The court fined Lupton $25, no court costs. The judgment provided that Lupton drive a motor vehicle for a year, or until he makes restitution for damage to Lewis' car.

Richard E. O'Mary was found guilty of driving drunk. The court gave him 60 days on the roads, sentence suspended on payment of $100 and costs and he is not to drive a motor vehicle for a year.

The court gave O'Mary 60 days on the roads for reckless driving, sentence to be served concurrently with other sentence. # Plans For Study Course Announced At P.T.A.

Plans for the annual cooperative P. T. A. Study Course to be held in February and a discussion of the need for rhythms in the school were highlights of the business meeting of the Training School P. T. A. when it met yesterday afternoon at the school.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Dink James, and the opening song was "Faith Of Our Fathers."

Mrs. Dick Evans, program chairman, presented Miss Carolyn Flewelling, nutrition consultant with the State Health Department, who is working in the county through the local Health Department, as the speaker for the afternoon.

Miss Flewelling, who has been working in the county since September in the interest of the health of school children, discussed ways of improving health habits in the homes. After presenting many interesting facts compiled through a dietary survey among the children in the community, she proceeded with a most interesting discussion of what good nutrition is.

Mrs. Jack Howard paid tribute to Mrs. Alice M. Burney, founder of the P. T. A. organization, in observance of Founder's Day. She expressed a wish that every child be given the best that enlightened parents and teachers can give him. This tribute was followed by the taking of an offering in connection with the observance of this day.

New members were welcomed by the president during the business meeting and the college student teachers were recognized. Mrs. James announced that Dr. Leo Jenkins, Dean of East Carolina College, had accepted the chairmanship of the P. T. A. Study Course for parents and teachers in which the three elementary schools take part.

A request was made for Girl Scout leaders and the sponsorship of a troop under the auspices of the school.

There was considerable discussion of the need for rhythms in the school. The motion was made and carried that the Executive Board consider this matter at once and be given the power to act in the best interests of the children.

Mrs. James read a delightful letter from Miss Redwin's first grade thanking the organization for the ball which was provided for their use.

The attendance prize was won by Miss McGee's third grade.

Safety Theme Of P.T.A. Program

At the January meeting of the Grimesland P.T.A., a timely program on Safety was presented.

The meeting was held on Tuesday night, January 15, with the president, Mr. Elbert Mills, presiding. The opening song, "America," followed the call to order by Mr. Mills.

An impressive devotional was given by a group of the seventh grade girls. The girls sang the first verse of "Soft as the Voice of an Angel." Then Joyce Beddard read a Bible story. Following this, a trio of girls sang "There is No Secret." In conclusion, Peggy Taylor offered a prayer.

The minutes were read by the secretary and approved.

The room count was taken and the winners were the grades taught by Mrs. Ainsley, Mr. Lupton, and Mrs. Cozart.

The committees were asked to give their reports. The meeting was then turned over to the program chairman, Mrs. Hendrix.

Mrs. Hendrix announced the theme of the program was "Safety."

A movie, "Survival Under Atomic Attack," was shown.

Mr. Russell T. Rogerson gave some suggestions on accident prevention. His talk consisted of four accident prevention factors:

1. Engineering. Most roads over the state have been engineered for 35 miles an hour speed.
2. Motor Vehicle Administration. This has been organized primarily as a method for getting money from the public.
3. Enforcement of law in the state and cities. Better policemen, highway patrolmen, and court judgments are needed.
4. Education of the people. The public should be educated about safety through the homes, schools, advertising, and safety councils.

In conclusion, Mr. Rogerson said, "The answer to accident prevention is in the palm of each person's hand who drives an automobile."

Girl Scout Executive Discusses Project Planning Among Scouts

Elizabeth Figner, Girl Scout Executive of the Regional Staff, spoke to scout leaders and interested friends of scouting last night at the 12th Annual Girl Scout Banquet at the Rotary Club.

Miss Figner's talk centered around the National Girl Scout Organization's project, program fields of interest. She said the project was studied by educators and scout leaders who took different sections of the country and gathered facts about what is being done in scouting.

In studying the project, Miss Figner said 96 scout troop programs, 80 camp programs, and 51 councils were studied through visits and 14,000 scouts were asked questions on their ideas of girl scouting.

The visitors who were doing the study looked for the following items, based on the fundamentals of scouting: A chance for scouts to plan programs with leaders; skills and activities used in the troop that are useful; the use of the laws and promise behind the scout's activities; and the type of relationship between the leader and the scout.

Miss Figner said the study found that the laws and promise did govern scout's actions but the poorest job done in scouting was the planning of programs, where the scouts did not do the planning. She said girl planning would be now the number one item in the future.

In closing, Miss Figner read a number of quotes taken from questionnaires that scouts had answered and she labeled them as "very revealing." She said the questionnaires gave scouts the opportunity to say what things they wished added to scouting and what things they wished could be left out of scouting.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. S. M. Crisp who called Miss Figner a "professional girl scout leader." Mrs. Crisp said she was a graduate of Bucknell University, a girl scout leader, and a craftsman. Miss Figner has had her crafts exhibited in the National Library of Arts in Washington, D. C.

Mrs. J. K. Long, scout commissioner here, recognized guests from Winston, Washington, and other surrounding towns. One of the guests was a Girl Scout leader from Copenhagen, Denmark, Dorshe Kjar. Miss Kjar is visiting in Winston and is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Carr.

Mrs. F. D. Duncan, Camp Hardee treasurer, gave a salute to Camp Hardee and recognized Rotary Club member Knott Proctor for his help and the Rotarians help in making the camp a success during its years of operation.

Mrs. Knott Proctor, past commander, saluted the scout leaders and the one recognized by standing, Mrs. M. P. Hoot, first deputy and scout leader, answered the salute.

Nine girl scouts from senior troop three sang four songs, two of which were camp songs.

Afternoon Reception

Mrs. William Best received from three to five on Tuesday afternoon in honor of her sister, Mrs. Sam White. The house presented a picture of beauty and comfort, with no decorations but cut flowers and the soft glow of the candleabra with shaded electric bulbs casting a mellow glow over the scene. The guests were ushered into the parlor. In the receiving line near the guest of honor, Mrs. White, Mrs. Fred Forbes, Mrs. George Hadley and Mrs. Mark Quinerly. In the punch room: Messrs. James Joe Moyer and Charles Forbes; dining room: Misses Hennie Ragsdale, Lizzie Jones and Lizzinia Moore.

This was the first time Mrs. Best had entertained her friends since her marriage. Judging by the number having called despite the inclemency of the weather proves the popularity of the young hostess.

The first public exhibition of Soviet-produced jet planes was given on Aviation Day, July 17, 1949 in Moscow.

once powerful Scott organization in North Carolina. The Governor is not likely to give up politics, and what remains of his group is likely to merge with some other faction in state politics, but the formidable Scott organization as it appeared in 1948 and 1950 will no longer be a dominating or controlling faction in the state's politics.

Home Training Will Be Best Safeguard

Planners for the Universal Military Training program of the country are proposing elaborate ideas which they say will safeguard the morals of the 18-year-olds who go into military service under the program.

The proposals of the UMT planners are fine, but their results may not produce as much good, clean living among the 18-year-old trainees as the planners would have the country believe. Having a chaplain for every 1,092 trainees, and prohibiting intoxicants at the training camps probably will do little to safeguard the trainees' morals unless adequate foundations of character have been laid in the lives of the youngsters.

Having twice the normal number of chaplains and prohibiting intoxicants on the UMT bases will not count nearly so much in safeguarding the morals of the 18-year-olds as the training they have received at home. During the 18 years since they have been growing up, the young men who will be called for military training have been instilled with certain moral standards—high or mediocre—by their parents. When the young men get away from home they are more likely to conduct themselves by the standards they learned at home rather than according to the camp restrictions under which they are trained.

For 18 years the moral fibre of the future trainee has been weaving itself into a pattern of life for the young man. By the time a young man reaches the age of 18 his value of morals is fairly firmly established. It is not likely to change abruptly for the worse unless the boy's parents have allowed a weak pattern to be formed.

The precautions proposed by the UMT planners for safeguarding the morals of the young men called in service have merit, but the home training a boy has received will be a much greater factor in determining his moral conduct than the precautions proposed by the UMT planners.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—Organized labor's growing restlessness and irritation toward the Administration have been assuaged by President Truman's failure to cosponsor more than a slight nod in his 1952 legislative and rearmament program.

Although numerous big unions now seem willing to "improve" the Taft-Hartley Act in accord with the Ohio Senator's amendments, the "big three" of the labor organizations and their top officials must reiterate demands for its repeal. Otherwise, they would lose face, in view of previous formal declarations of hostility to it.

It is not merely Mr. Truman's 1951 and 1952 refusal to call and work for repeal that worries the workers. They look upon this White House indifference as symbolic of official neglect of their interests. They are not happy over the aloofness of certain key men in the war agencies.

OBJECTIVES—They realize, too, that they must obtain their objectives at this session, or face indefinite delay. Likewise, they must wrest a series of favorable wage-price policy decisions from rearmament planners before next November.

They doubt whether they would have as firm a hold on a Taft or an Eisenhower, if either should become President, as they thought they had on Mr. Truman until recently. They also suspect that the next Congress may reject their demands even more brusquely than recent sessions, especially if "cold war" pressures become more tense.

They remember how such a good friend as Franklin D. Roosevelt was forced to abandon his New Deal beneficence for a "win the war" program.

REPUTATION—Organized labor's latest and most threatening move is its decision to junk its 20-year-old policy of supporting the Roosevelt-Truman plan for government construction, ownership and operation of power facilities.

It was a direct rebuff and repudiation of Mr. Truman and Secretary of Interior Chapman. Ironically, they got the startling news of the labor shift just as they were preparing for a public power invasion of the vast Missouri Valley, New England and the Niagara Falls area in New York.

Frank W. Jacobs, vice-president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (I.B.E.W.), recently delivered the ultimatum for his powerful organization.

PERIL—The government's public power program, he said, "has gone far beyond the plans of its original sponsors. It has been extended step by step to the point of peril to legitimate free enterprise and free labor."

The I.B.E.W. my group, has learned through bitter experience that the fine-sounding slogan of "public power" does not serve to safeguard labor's rights and interests.

The Chicago Federation of Labor, which represents almost a million workers in numerous non-power industries, recently repealed the section of its constitution advocating public construction and control of power, gas, water, telephone and municipal transport.

"We are for free enterprise from top to bottom," explained William Lee, president. He added that labor "would try to stop the displacement of private utility companies by government utilities."

SIGNIFICANCE—Labor's real reason for this politico-economic reversal, according to its spokesmen, is that it cannot obtain as good wages and working conditions under federal authority as it can from private industry. It has greater difficulty with bureaucrats than with business men.

Moreover, in view of power's basic importance to a peacetime or wartime economy, labor does not enjoy the same bargaining weapons or freedom to strike under Uncle Sam as political boss.

The private operators, naturally, have been propagating this argument for many years. They have also employed smart strategy in paying relatively higher wages than their government competitors.

But the 1952 political significance, as the White House realizes, is that a revolt against government intrusion into this $20,000,000,000 industry may be accompanied by similar resentment against federal interference in many other fields, both industrial and agricultural.

If so, it would remove a New Deal-Fair Deal mainstay for the November election.

Tribute To Oratory

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Since the New York Times is a famous newspaper, and you are a member of an American family, you might be interested in knowing what the Times says about the typical American family.

Compared with families of other countries, we in America are unusual in that we have the privilege of picking a mate with a minimum of influence from other people. That means that we have a greater interest in courtship than people in other countries. Our movies, short stories and novels are quite often about courtships, and problems thereof, to the extent that people in other countries begin to think we are a nation of mental adolescents.

In the average American family there are three children. The days of big families are almost gone.

With the average family of three, there will be just enough to replace the population. In America plenty of people think the age of marrying is getting older. That's not true. In 1900 the average male married at the age of 26.1, but in 1947 he married at the age of 23.7. The average female married at the age of 22.0 in 1900, but by 1947 she married at the age of 20.5.

You can't talk about marriage without talking about divorce. As years go by, it becomes easier and easier to get one. It has risen to the point where one out of every four marriages ends in divorce.

As life expectancy increases, there is an interesting problem facing us. Women in the United States now live 70 years on the average, and men live only 65 years. Therefore, the normal mother has completed having her children about half way through her life. Because her children marry early, the average parent now days has a long period of life remaining after her last child has left home.

That presents the problem of an elderly person learning how to face loneliness, which is one of the saddest problems of our advancing civilization. Some sell their houses and move to an apartment. Some visit their children but feel unwanted.

Even facing that one problem, the American family is the greatest institution in the world. If we didn't think we are out-doin' the rest of the world, we wouldn't be true Americans. And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

Reflector Bureau

By LYNN NIBBET

Ann. Afternoon Dallas

PLATFORMS—Capitol square folks have been analyzing the ten-point program enunciated by Hubert Olive in connection with his announcement for governor, and comparing it with similar statements by candidates in previous elections, as well as with the program outlined by Ernest Gardner when he announced for governor last week. The other candidates of consequence in the gubernatorial race, William B. Umstead, has not issued a statement or policy program. All the candidates are careful to avoid use of the word "platform," because all will be running on the platform adopted by the state Democratic convention.

GENERAL—Most of the items in both the Gardner and the Olive statements are couched in general terms. They are for good roads and schools, extension of electric and telephone service, economy in government and against new or increased tax levies. They are not against more taxes, because it is recognized that continuance of the progressive movement in North Carolina will require more money. Thought is that present schedules will yield revenue sufficient to meet demands.

SPECIFIC—Olive is specific on one point. He uses one of his ten brackets to endorse a state-wide vote on alcoholic beverages. Gardner is specific on one point: he favors civil service for all state employees. On these points the candidates leave no room for doubt or speculation about their positions. On most others the statements are susceptible to varying interpretation.

ELASTIC—There can be wide divergence of opinion as to what constitutes adequate pay for teachers and other state employees, and on the degree of responsibility for private enterprise and government in rendering commercial services. There may be just as wide variance of opinion about good employer-employee relation among state workers and as to what constitutes "democratic majority" in liquor voting.

ISSUES—One man was bemoaning the lack of real issues so far presented by the several candidates in formal statements and in past records of the men now running. An experienced politician, now holding high state elective office, said the lack of issues is very temporary. Experience and observation has convinced him that as the campaign moves along issues will develop. On good schools there might well develop an issue over whether the United Forces for Education program calling for a base teacher salary scale of $3600-$4100 is too much or too little. On good roads: there can be continuing issue about division of available funds among primary, secondary rural, and municipal roads.

COMPLEX—This experienced campaigner noted that the situation is not simple as a candidate enunciating at outset of the campaign what he believes in and following through on that position until the election. To the contrary, it is a very complex proposition, with new alignments and conditions arising almost daily tending to put one or the other of the candidates more definitely in this or that position than the candidate himself may wish. There are expressed and implied conditions to be met in return for support of certain groups, and exigencies of practical politics sometimes require the candidate to paranoimote and soft pedal other items in his program. And sometimes after getting the nomination, the candidate finds it necessary to switch. Classic examples of that are found in the records of the late President Franklin Roosevelt and Governor Kerr Scott. Roosevelt was elected in a depression year on a program pledging governmental economy and retrenchment; and his administration saw the nation launch the biggest spending spree in history. Scott was nominated in a campaign which hooted the idea proposed by his principal opponent of a bond issue for a secondary road program and he made that the paramount item in his administration. So the fact there are no real issues presented now does not mean there will be lack of issues before the May 31 primary or in the next legislature.

EARLY BIRD—A late law provides that seats in the senate and house of representatives must be assigned on basis of "first come first served" with proviso that any member returning from last session can claim his same seat, or priority on any vacancy. New members or returning members desiring to change seats must take "mill turn," first request getting the desired seat. Secretary of State Theodore Eure has the responsibility of keeping up with these requests and assigning seats under terms of the resolution. Mr. Eure has on file now requests for a seat from a prospective legislator for a choice seat. The applicant will not know until mid-April whether he will have opposition, and if he does he will not know until May 31 whether he will be nominated as the Democratic candidate, and maybe he will not know until after November 4 whether he will be elected. But—if he is nominated and elected he has a good chance to get the seat he wants. Who is he? That, says Mr. Eure, is confidential.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

HOW MUCH DEFICIT
(Wilson Times)

In the days when Roosevelt was telling us that he had to balance our budgets before he could balance the national budget, someone asked, "how high can you go without endangering our credit?" To which Roosevelt replied, $40 billions. That, of course, was before the war. Since the nation has grown considerably wealthier. But how high can that budget go before we endanger the national credit? Truman, it's certain, doesn't have the answer. That was evidenced by the fact that he reported a deficit of $7 billions again the other day.

When the war in Korea broke out we consoled ourselves with the belief that the national government would get on a pay-as-you-go basis. If that were done the national debt would at least remain frozen. But we're not, as the evidence indicates, on a pay-as-you-go basis. The very fact that we reported an added deficit of $7 billions the other day makes that clear. Thus, were adding to that national debt, despite our being told that with safety it could go no higher. We are slowly draining the cash money out of our people's pockets. That seems all but impossible when we remember that the government, as fast as it collects, spends. But the money doesn't come directly back to the people from whom it's been extracted. Instead, it goes to the heavy industries which are engaged in war work. Thus, we get it back only as those industries, spend, as their workers buy cigarettes and food. And when we do get it back, after a year of labor, we hold on to it back to the government. If, besides, that the government is to live out of deficits, when can the vicious circle be straightened out? We admit we don't know the straining point, but we do suspect that we're approaching it.

Business Today

The new excise tax on alcoholic beverages has created serious problems for the entire liquor industry. The federal tax is $2.10 a bottle on 100 proof liquors and on top of that are state levies and frequently city levies. In addition, the industry must pay business and corporation taxes and the scores of other taxes that all businesses pay.

The industry takes a mark-up on all these taxes except retail sales taxes. This is in accord with standard business practices, since the tax is as much of a cost of producing the beverage as payments for grain, sugar or labor. Consequently, the price is very high, friends who buy the stuff tell us.

One result is that liquor sales are down. It is hard to tell just how much, since there was a burst of buying before the higher federal taxes went into effect November 1. Nobody knows whether people are drinking less or just surviving on their accumulations. Nevertheless, package stores and taverns in all parts of the country say they never had it so bad.

Another result appears to be a shift from straight whiskeys, bonded and unbonded, to cheaper blends. During war shortages, blends captured almost 90 per cent of the market. As straight whiskeys became more plentiful, blends dropped to 70 per cent of the total. Now they appear to be rising again. This is painful to those companies specializing on straight whiskeys. There was a total of 755,040.852 gallons in bond in October, compared with 670,223,390 gallons a year earlier. Much of it is reaching the eight-year limit, at which time taxes must be paid. Firms without capital reserves may be forced to unload at sacrifices.

The shift may extend to gins and rums, further confusing marketing patterns, threatening investment in brand promotions and reducing dealer volume.

A third result is a rise in bootlegging. The government says it hasn't happened, but the story may be changed when the Congress comes around to Congress for its next appropriations. If bootlegging hasn't risen, it seems certain to do so. A 5-gallon tin of sly has a $130 federal-state-local tax edge on honest stuff and that is tempting.

Worse than actual bootlegging is the increase in switching in taverns and bars. The average drinker cannot tell the difference in brands, especially after the first shot and rarely in a mixed drink. Liquor companies, as well as federal and state enforcement agencies have to check all purveyors and difficult to get evidence. Penalties have not been very severe. In New York State, for example, penalties may be secretly—and legally—complied-and customers never know they have been cheated.

YEAR-AGO COMPARISONS MAY SEEM DIMINAL

Retail sales figures this month and next will not look good in traditional comparison to year-ago records, no matter how intense promotions are. These are the first anniversary months of the second Korean buying wave when buyers went simply crazy.

50,000 BOOKS BOOST CARPET PROMOTION

Fifty thousand books giving retailers plans for participating in the fourth annual Carpet Fashion Opening will be mailed in a few days by the Carpet Institute. More than 5,000 stores are expected to set up special merchandising program as for the 10-day promotion beginning April 21.

STEEL EASIER TO BUY, SAY PURCHASING MEN

The men who buy steel for industry say the supply is getting better. Purchasing magazine polled a cross-section of purchasing agents and found that 65 per cent found an improvement in the steel supply in the last 3 to 60 days and that 70 per cent said the grey market was less active. Two-thirds favored continuance of the Controlled Materials Plan.

RISE IN RESEARCH LESS THAN IN SALES

Research expenditures of 123 manufacturing companies surveyed by the National Industrial Conference Board have not kept pace with the rise in sales. Only half reported increases in research budgets. One company reported a 280 per cent increase in research. It is hoping to land a government aircraft contract.

PRESSER: A necktie presser is being imported from Germany (by L. Sommer, 5038 Cabanne Ave., St. Louis 13). The flat, plastic device is slipped into a tie and a spring expands it, setting the fabric in a smooth, flat shape. Boards, shaped and brightly colored to resemble animals, has been brought out for juveniles' beds by Hetrick Mfg. Co., Toledo, Ohio.

POLISHERS: Polishing cloths, treated with a chemical, are being produced for silverware and furniture by Codd Chemical Products, Inc. 549 W. 132nd St., New York. The chemical is said to be odorless, greaseless, moistureless, stainless and non-corrosive.

MEASURER: Plastic bottles with a built-in device that accurately measures a teaspoonful are being made by Apco, 79 Midland Ave., Garfield, N. J. They are being marketed through drug stores.

Hal Boyle's Column

By ED CREAUGH
(For HAL BOYLE)

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Today, invading the field of the true confession magazines, we focus on the home life of Sarah Mears Hall.

She is a colored woman. Plumpish, attractive and well-spoken in a dreamy, little girl sort of voice. Nickname: "Dimples." Occupation: "Barmaid," she said, not without pride. It never was made clear whether she is Miss or Mrs. Hall.

Dimples told her story on television yesterday. The scene was a crowded room in which the Senate's District of Columbia Committee was trying to find out whether the numbers operators and other leeches that inest your capital have been paying off the cops, and if so how much.

And Dimples Hall, a star witness, owned up to having some inside information.

From 1945 to 1950, she said, she maintained a home on Georgia Avenue, here in Washington. And in her home, she said, one Roger (Whit) Simkins operated a "numbers business." A thriving one, too. Dimples said, with a take ranging up to $8,000 a day.

"This was in your home?" asked the committee's counsel, Arnold Bauman.

"Yes, sir," Dimples Hall said matter-of-factly.

She went on to give a few details of her home life in that period.

Adding machines, needed to keep track of the money that flowed in, were part of the furnishings.

The money? Oh, they just left that on the dining room table. And visitors to her home, Dimples Hall said, included policemen—sometimes in uniforms, sometimes not.

"You realize that you were in an illegal enterprise," Bauman said. "Did it give you any concern when these officers came in?"

Dimples Hall said she felt "a little leery" at first, until Simkins told her not to fret about it. Why wasn't she to fret? She had a little memory trouble at that point, but finally remembered. Simkins, she said, told her he was paying the police for "protection."

"What was his term for it?" Auman asked.

"Ice," said Dimples Hall, dimpling.

How much "ice?" Dimples Hall said she didn't know for sure. She'd heard, though, that all the big numbers operators paid off "in the hundreds."

There was quite a staff employed in the "numbers business" at her home, Dimples Hall said—a man called "Jack the Bear," another called "Chee Chee Charlie," various others. Senator Hunt (D-Wyo.), who was presiding, took a hand in the questioning. Did these people, he wanted to know, report for work in the morning and go home in the evening, like employees of any firm?

How long," inquired the Senator, "did Simkins stay at your house each day?"

Dimples Hall looked surprised. "Why, at that particular time," she said, "he stayed as long as he wanted to. He was my boyfriend."

Simkins took the stand himself a little later. On the ground that it might incriminate him, he said, he wasn't going to answer questions about anybody he might have known. Including, he said, Dimples Hall.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — Latin-American guests dining at the home of Rear Adm. Milton E. Miles, director and senior delegate of the Inter-American Defense Board, usually ask for second helpings of Mrs. Miles' "real U. S. dishes."

This pleases Mrs. Miles, who says her specialty is foreign cookery. But she is eager to "show off the United States" and can whip up equally well such delicacies as pecan, pumpkin, mince and apple pie, Bismittid ham, crab and shrimp Norfolk, baked beans and homemade rolls.

"Everybody expects a cocktail party, but I'd much rather give a dinner," she said. "In fact, I'm probably about the only service wife who's never given a cocktail party."

Any kind of cooking comes easy for Mrs. Miles, who earned two home economics degrees from Cornell University, and is director of nutrition for the American Red Cross. In addition, she's the star of a five-minute weekly local television show on which she demonstrates the preparation of low-cost menus.

She and her husband gave dinner parties in their spacious suburban mansion almost every week for visiting Latin-American officials. Once they entertained about 75 people. It was in balmy weather and guests gathered in the garden. Mrs. Miles simply dished up her Yankee baked beans and ham.

Recently entertaining a group of 30 in honor of the visiting minister of marine of Peru, Rear Adm. Roque A. Saldias, she served fried oysters made in the Miles' basement "night club."

After the oysters she had crab and shrimp Norfolk and mince pie for dessert.

When the Miles' sons, Midshipman William Beall Miles of Annapolis and Murray E. and Charles Hammond Miles of Cornell University, are home the fare is usually Chinese. Mrs. Miles was married in Hong Kong in 1925 and went to live in China for three years when her youngest son was 2 and the eldest 7. "They'll eat anything you eat with chopsticks," she said.

Change of Heart

By Kathleen Harris

Chapter 10

The party had gone stale for Marcia almost as soon as Dean had left.

She wondered again if Dean really had been serious about doing a portrait of her, as she carried some of the debris to the kitchenette. Abigail had gone on to bed, insisting that they leave things as they were until morning. Mrs. Smithers could clean up the mess. But Marcia's orderly soul protested against leaving quite so much disorder for even a cleaning woman to face. Besides, she was wide awake. She knew she could at least carry things out, rinse them, put food away, empty ashtrays.

When the phone rang she hurried to answer it, thinking Abigail would already have fallen asleep. No matter who was calling, Marcia decided, she would not disturb her sister. Poor Abigail, she had been simply exhausted, as she herself had said.

But the call was not for her sister, although Marcia had been so certain it would be.

"You're Abbie's little sister, aren't you?" a masculine voice demanded. The voice was husky, slurred. "Shush the person I wanted to talk to."

"Yes, I am Abigail's sister. But couldn't you call in the morning, please?"

"Have to talk with you now, morning too late." The voice held defiant determination. "Listen carefully."

"I am listening," Marcia said. "I shush want you to deliver a message."

"All right."

"Kornoff speaking."

"Oh."

"Shush tell Abbie, your sister, that I am going to kill myself."

"That you...oh, come now, Mr. Kornoff, of course you don't mean that."

"I mean it, Abbie knows I mean it. Shush you give her the message."

"Why don't you call Abigail in the morning and talk to her?"

"Wake her up and tell her now!"

There was such a commanding ring about his voice now that Marcia felt she dared not make light of what he was saying. "Please hold on," she said. "I'll see if I can waken her."

"Whatever do you want?" Abigail responded sleepily, shaking Marcia's hand from her shoulder with an impatient movement.

"I told you to come on to bed, Marcia. There's no sense in trying to dig into that awful mess."

"It's Mr. Kornoff," Marcia said. "He is threatening to kill himself. Abigail. I tried to make him put off talking to you until morning, but he wouldn't listen to me. I'm afraid you'll have to talk to him now."

"Oh, very well!" Abigail put one bare foot out, fumbling for the satin mules that should be within reach. Marcia hastened to help her wiggle into them.

She decided to stay in the bedroom and get ready for bed. She had done all she could for now. Mrs. Smithers would have to undertake the rest. And she did not want Abigail to think she was trying to overhear her conversation.

She could not help getting snatches of it, as Abigail did not lower her voice as Marcia had done.

"Really, Manning...No, you won't...You knew I intended to do it sometime. Yeg, you did. You know I've never let you on. Do be reasonable, darling, or I'll hang up on you."

It must be that Mr. Kornoff contemplated suicide because Abigail was going to marry Mr. Scott.

It must be awful, Marcia thought, slipping between cool sheets, to love someone that desperately. Yet she could not imagine feeling that life would not be worth living without the one person you loved. And in another sense it would be wonderful to love someone so much.

"...In the morning, yes, I will! I'll be waiting...come for breakfast. Or I'll meet you at our regular place...Ten...better make it eleven. It's nearly morning now, you know."

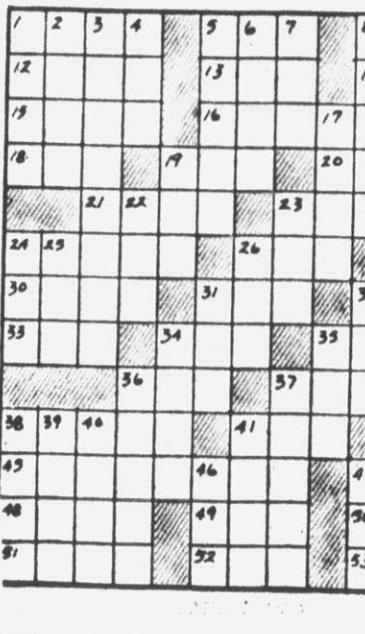

Evidently Abigail knew how to handle him. Marcia gave a sigh of relief. She was not used to so much excitement, not all at once. It was interesting, but it was exhausting.

That was what she put in her letter to Tommy the next day. Abigail had gotten up for once before Marcia, to keep her appointment with Manning Kornoff, apparently.

She went on then to outline, in detail, all the things she had seen and done. That part was easy. It was harder to write of more personal matters, but what she had been doing, but what she the masculine voice at the other end of the wire. Her heart had never misbehaved in such fits and starts back home when Tommy or one of the other boys phoned.

"How about running over this morning?" Dean asked. "I just ran into Abbie and Manning, breakfasting together, so I know the coast is clear. I'd like to get started on that portrait."

"All right," she said. "I'll be right over. Am I to wear my blue dress?"

"Bring it along. You'll want to leave it here so it will be on hand." He gave her short, but explicit directions as to where he lived. "It's a little hole in the wall, really," he told her. "But you can't miss it. I'll be on the lookout for you. Come along, just as you are, as I said. I'm anxious to get going."

She felt terribly excited. She was going to be a part of something important, she was going to be of some help to Dean. Why, maybe, as she had said to Abigail, this might be a turning point for him!

The Sport Reflector

By JIMMY ELLIS

(Today's column is written by Melvin Lang)

Basketball in Pitt County has taken a turn for the better this season, as nearly all of the teams have improved to make this one of the most evenly matched seasons that the county has ever had.

Bethel and Ayden's boys have had what amounted to almost a monopoly on the boys division, with the Indians copping the tournament championship for several years in a row. Bethel's string of championships has broken only once since World War Two, when Farmville took an upset victory in the tourney finals several years ago.

Farmville and Ayden held the same position in the girls' bracket until two years ago, when Winterville made a strong upward surge in the county ranks. Bethel's lassies came out as a surprise in the tournament last season by blasting both Winterville and then Ayden in the finals to take the championship for first time in over ten years. Records so far this year have proved that Bethel's rise was no accident, as they have lost but one game, to Winterville, while winning ten.

Bethel's boys still are riding on the crux of the pile in county play with an undefeated season, including victories over Ayden, Farmville, and Winterville's young but potentially strong team. Grimesland seems to be the biggest surprise at the moment in the boys' division. The Panthers have won their last five games in succession, including four victories in the county.

All of the coaches in the conference seem to agree that the largest jump has been made by the Bethel girls. After dwelling in the lower half of the standings for a number of years, the Indian Maids have increased their fortunes this season considerably. Although their overall record is not one of greatness—four wins against five defeats—they are greatly respected by opposing teams.

The four defeats within the county have come at the hands of the top three clubs—Winterville, Ayden twice, and Bethel once. Bethel gave Winterville its roughest game of the year in its last outing, losing in the last quarter by seven points. Winterville was held to only 36 points in that contest, the only time that it has fallen below 84 in nine games this year.

It's almost tournament in this area, as four dribble derbies are slated to run in succession within the next six weeks. Farmville has the first one, an invitational affair called the Coastal Plain Gold Medal Tournament. Then comes the Pitt County Tournament, the Northeastern Conference tourney, and finishing up the parade will be the Coastal Athletic Conference event in Ayden.

The Gold Medal, running for its fourth consecutive season, should have one of its best presentations in its history. Winterville and Vanceboro have already been established as co-favorites in the girls' division, and, while no favorite has been announced as yet in the boys' division, it will in all probability go to Bethel.

Eight teams are entered in the rapidly growing tournament, which saw a record breaking attendance at the games in the Farmville gym last season. Gold Medal chairman Marvin Speight stated several days ago that all indications point to a success again this year.

Teams entered in the four day tourney are: Walsenburg, Snow Hill, Winterville, Bethel, Belvoir, Stantonburg, Vanceboro, and the host Farmville clubs.

Fans attending the East Carolina-High Point game last night saw a new version of basketball as some teams (?) play it.

Vernon Morrison, Intra-mural Director at ECC, came up with the idea, to wit: two of his intra-mural teams to play a regulation game, only each player was to wear boxing gloves.

As could be expected, the players had quite a rough time in their attempts to pass or shoot the basketball, but the capacity crowd loved it. Plans right now are for a repeat performance in the near future.

High Point Knocked Off Top Rung In Conference As Pirates Get Third Conference Victory; At Atlantic Christian Friday

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Sports Writer

A packed house last night roared its approval as big Bobby Hodges led the East Carolina Pirates to a 71-65 upset victory over the High Point College Panthers. The victory was the third in North State Conference play for the Pirates who have lost two. It was High Point's second loss in six conference tries.

Hodges, the Pirates' sensational sophomore from Kingston, led just about every phase of play in last night's game. He led the scoring with 28 points—three more than the conference scoring leader, center Ed Sueta of High Point, was able to get. He turned in a good job on defense and then finished up his work with an almost blanket control of both teams' backboards.

While Hodges was having his night, the Panthers were paced by their center and star, Sueta. The tall, slender senior from Erie, Pennsylvania, paced his team's scoring with 25 points—most of which came after Hodges had four fouls and had to ease up and play him loose on defense.

After Hodges and Sueta came East Carolina's Sonny Russell who seems to make a habit of turning in brilliant performances. Russell moved along as only he can and wound up with 17 points on offense and second only to Hodges in defensive play.

The Pirates led all the way except for a brief period in the first quarter when the visiting Panthers tied the game at 8-8. Russell, Hodges, and Charlie Huffman had provided the Pirates with an early 8-5 lead when Sonny Thornton hit a free throw and Sueta hooked one from the side to tie the score.

That was High Point's only moment of real glory, however, because Hodges, Russell, and Huffman got moving again and shoved the score to 16-11 at the end of the first quarter.

Russell and Hodges maintained their pace in the second period to keep the Pirates continually in the lead. Both scored six big points to run the Bucs' halftime advantage to 34-28.

Both teams began pulling all the stops in the third period but the Pirates continued to extend their lead. Hodges and Sueta waged a personal scoring duel with Hodges easily winning and when the period ended the Pirates had moved into a 51-46 advantage.

A wide open fourth quarter found ECC still holding the advantage—mostly because of the presence of Cap'n Dick Blake, a starter in the first eight games of the season, found himself sitting on the bench for most of this game and didn't get to see extensive action until the fourth quarter began.

When he got in, he found the touch that he had lost in the games with McCrary, Appalachian, and Guilford and plunked in two quick field goals which gave the Pirates a seven point advantage after only a few minutes had passed in that final quarter. He wound up with an eight point total for the evening.

When Hodges fouled out with 2:31 left to play, Blake, Russell, and Huffman moved in under the boards to grab rebounds and protect the slim lead they had. With their work under the boards, the Pirates were able to control the ball for the majority of the last two minutes and keep High Point frozen out of action.

The Pirates will play again tomorrow night when they go after their fourth North State Conference victory in Wilson against the Atlantic Christian Bulldogs in a renewal of the battle of the Bohunk Cuck.

San Diego Open May Be Opening For Negro Pros

SAN DIEGO, Calif.—(AP)—The San Diego golf tournament gets underway today for what may or may not be a precedent setting event.

Included in the field of 132 players is former heavyweight boxing champion Joe Louis, who awaited tie off time as the first Negro ever to compete in a tournament co-staged by the Professional Golfers Association of America.

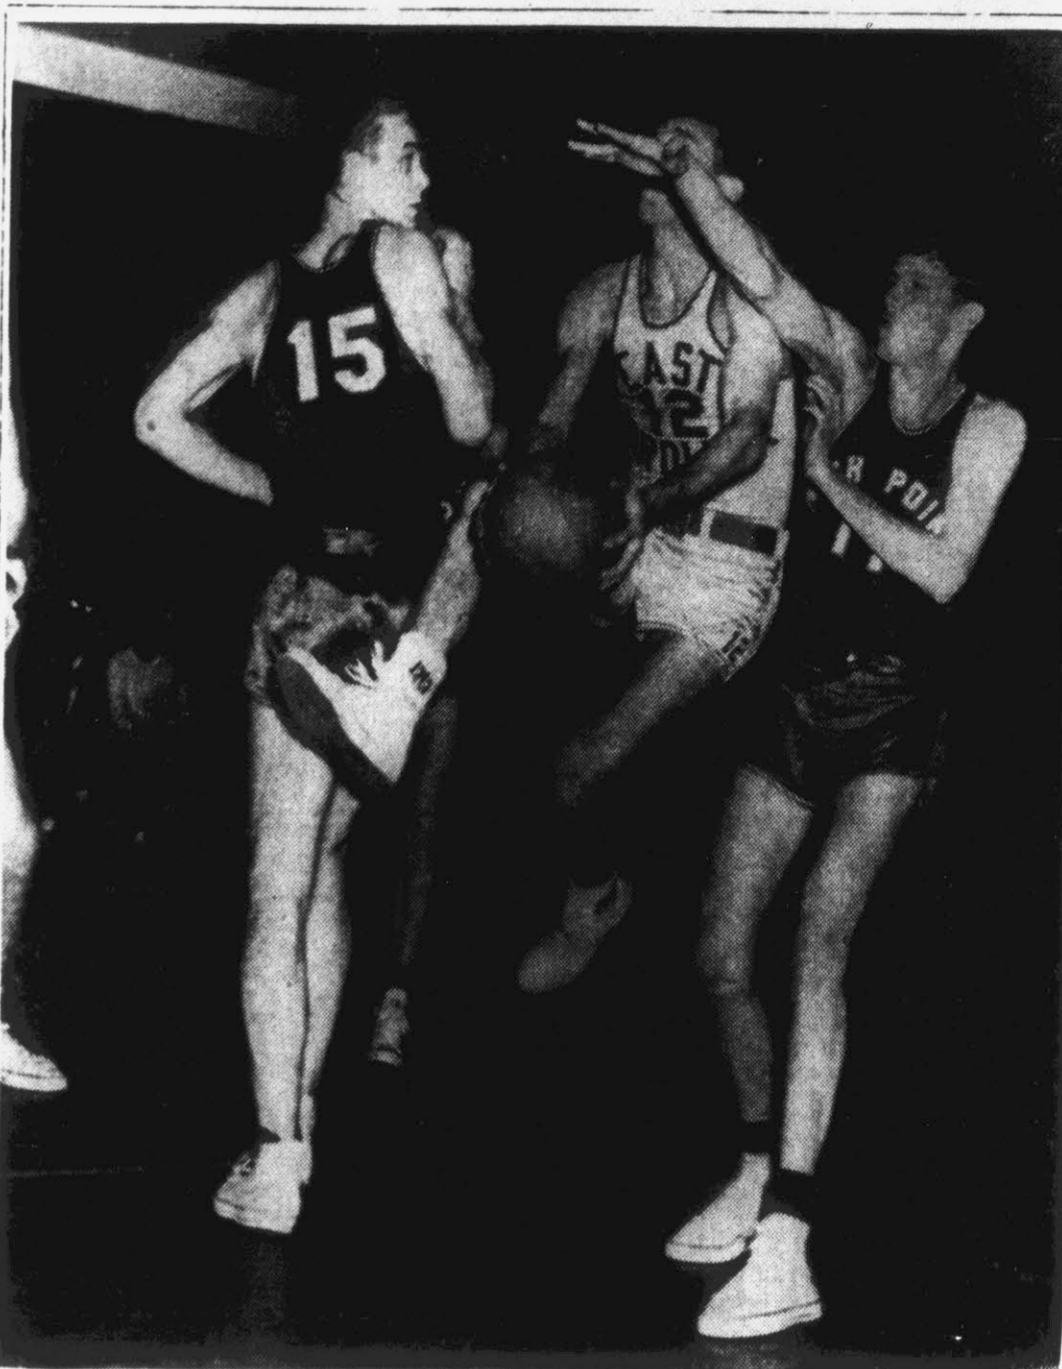

Louis' followers hailed his entry as "the first step" in a long fight by Negroes to compete in PGA tournaments. They likened it to the case of Jackie Robinson as the first Negro to crash into organized baseball.

PGA President Horton Smith described Louis' participation as more automatic in that he was invited to compete by the co-sponsors, a group of San Diego automobile (Chevrolet) dealers who are financing the tournament. Louis was one of 10 players invited, and exempt from qualifying, by the dealers' group.

Most of the nation's big name golfers are here, ready for the 72-hole contest at the par 72 San Diego Country Club.

Overshadowing them, at least for today's opening, was Louis and the racial angle.

TODDY FENNEL didn't get the two points for which he was trying when this photo was made by Staff Photographer Roy Hardee. Fennell's attempt layup shot was blocked by Sonny Thornton (11), High Point's outstanding freshman guard from Raleigh. Others in the picture are High Point's Ed Sueta (15) and East Carolina's Lou Collie (11).

Mays Accepted By Draft Board After New Exam

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—(AP)—New York Giant Centerfielder Willie Mays and a heap of memories will be called into military service soon.

The 20-year-old Negro was accepted for the armed forces in a second test at the pre-induction center here yesterday. He was rejected when he failed an aptitude test at his first test last October.

Mays said he hoped to be assigned to the Army, and to play baseball on a service team. The young player said he regretted deeply losing two years of experience, but "maybe I'll learn some baseball in the Army."

His draft board quota for this month has been filled. A Third Army public information officer at Atlanta indicated that Mays would be called into uniform in late February or early March.

Mays will take a lot of memories along for a youngster with only one year in the majors. He was one of the fastest men in the big leagues, and was a prime factor in the Giants' stretch drive for the 1951 National League pennant.

The centerfielder said his outstanding memory was the first of his 20 homers with the Giants. A four-sacker against the Boston Braves was his first hit in 26 times at bat. He batted .274 last season.

The Third Army announced following Mays' second trip to the pre-induction center that he had been "administratively accepted."

Col. James F. Johnston Jr., Alabama State Selective Service Director, said regulations were changed Jan. 1 to permit acceptance of high school graduates.

Mays graduated from the Negro high school at Fairfield, a Birmingham industrial suburb. He is the oldest of nine children. His mother said he had been providing for four of his brothers and sisters.

Duke Third In Scoring Average

NEW YORK (AP)—After two weeks in second place, Kentucky again took over as the nation's No. 1 offensive major college basketball team today, according to statistics of the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau.

With 83 points against Xavier of Cincinnati and 99 against Florida, the Wildcats show an average of 84.3 points per game in contests through last Saturday. West Virginia is a distant second with a mark of 78.8.

Behind the leaders are Duke with 78.7, DePaul and Holy Cross, each with 78.3 and Villanova with 77.5. Syracuse, the leader the past two weeks, nosedived to 14th as a result of three defeats.

In team defense, Oklahoma A&M heads the list for the second straight week, having allowed the enemy an average of 44.2 points per game. Oklahoma City University is second with 46.7 and Maryland third with 47.5.

The University of Houston holds a narrow first-place margin in field goals percentage with 41.4 to 41.3 for Duquesne. Yale has made 72.3 of its free throws to pace the colleges in that department, while Seton Hall has committed the fewest personal fouls per contest—17.2. Indiana has been charged with the most—29.2.

In northeastern Iran, in the so-called "Belt Cave" overlooking the Caspian Sea, the bones of three Stone Age people were unearthed in 1951.

Directors Meet

DURHAM (AP)—Directors of the Carolina League will meet in Raleigh Sunday to map plans for the 1952 season.

League President Ted Mann said the directors would study a proposed draft of the 1952 schedule. A proposal to play 140 games this year has already been submitted to the directors by mail. The season would open April 16 and close Sept. 1.

The eight club circuit is composed of Winston-Salem, Greensboro, Reidsville, Burlington, Danville, Durham, Raleigh and Fayetteville.

Apps Take Unofficial Lead After Pirates Win Over HP

By the Associated Press

The powerhouse Presbyterian Blue Stockings will continue their invasion of the North State Conference tonight at Lenoir Rhyne, and Elon College will visit the McCrary Eagles. Neither game is a conference tilt.

Appalachian unofficially took over the North State League lead last night when the East Carolina Pirates handed High Point College its second straight loss in conference competition by beating the Panthers, 71-65.

New unofficial standings find Lenoir Rhyne and High Point tied up for second place.

In opening its North Carolina tour last night Presbyterian whipped Catawba 93-76. The Indians made a fight of it for the first quarter but trailed by a point as the period ended. By halftime, the Blue Stockings had stretched their lead to 45-38.

Guard Bill Blewett was high man for the winners with a total of 26 points. Top scorer for Catawba was forward Bill Hunsucker with 23.

Well, They Tried

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—The Maggie Walker High School girls' basketball team tried its hardest to make a basket in a game here last night. The ball caromed off the backboard, it did dipsey-doo around the edge of the ring. Often it looked as if, for a certainty, it would go through the nets.

But it didn't—nary a time. Carver High, of Chester, won the game by a shutout, 44-0.

Tourney Chances Brighter Now For William And Mary

By the Associated Press

William and Mary's chances of gaining a berth in the Southern Conference basketball tournament at Raleigh, N.C., in March were brighter today after last night's 84-82 victory over Washington and Lee's Generals.

William and Mary now has a league record of three wins and three losses. The defeat just about eliminated Washington and Lee from the tournament running. The Generals have won only two of eight conference contests.

The Indians won the game with only 17 seconds left. After trailing most of the game, Howie McCallen came up with a hook shot that broke an 82-82 deadlock. At one time, the Generals held a 14-point buge.

Center Jim Rich of Washington and Lee led the point-makers with 20 points. High for William and Mary was Joe Agee, a guard, who collected 16.

Virginia Tech's Gobblers, the only other Southern Conference team in action last night, bowed to Hampden-Sydney's Tigers, 84-70, in a non-loop scrap. The Bengals, with center Emerson Johnson firing in 25 points, led all of the way and held a 50-28 halftime advantage.

All conference teams are idle tonight.

NSLI Starts Dividend Payments Next Month

All Pitt County veterans of World War II who still hold their service insurance will receive dividend payments beginning next month.

Ernest C. Elliott, officer-in-charge of the local VA office, announced today that the Veterans Administration will pay a dividend commencing in March, 1952, to approximately 5,000,000 holders of National Service Life Insurance.

Under terms of Public Law 37, passed by the 82nd Congress, policy holders who wish to receive their 1952 dividend in cash will have to notify the VA. "If such notice is not given," Elliott said, "the dividend will be used to pay the premiums coming due after the dividend is payable — if the policyholder fails to pay such premiums."

Elliott reported the VA will mail a special form to all policy holders which they may use to request cash payment of the dividend if they wish. "However, any type of written request for payment of the dividend will be acceptable," he added, "provided it contains the full name and address of the veteran, together with his insurance number."

The 1952 regular dividend is payable to policy holders whose policies were in force under premium paying conditions for three months or longer between the 1951 and 1952 anniversary dates of the policies. The same dividend rates that were used in computing the special three-year 1951 dividend will apply to the 1952 dividend.

Steel . . .

(Continued from page one) matter most," he said as he pledged that this is what the British would do, too.

Churchill took up the changes which had occurred in the United States and the Congress since he last spoke before it in 1943.

"Former allies have become foes," Churchill said, "and former foes have become allies. Nations have been enslaved."

He said that Russia, a former "giant ally," had "tossed over the admiration and good will" of the Western world.

Of the Middle East, Churchill said "enormous changes" have taken place there since he was last in power. Previously, he said, there were a lot of people who had a good word to say about the British. He said the responsibility for maintaining the freedom of the Suez Canal is now an international one, and no longer that of Britain alone.

He said he welcomes the four-power approach to that problem advanced by the Attlee government which he ousted from office.

"We do not seek to be the masters of Egypt," he said.

He also said "real rapid progress is being made toward European unity."

Recalling that he had said in 1946 that France "should take Germany by the hand and lead her back into the family of nations," Churchill said that as a forerunner of a United Europe there must be a European army which must include the German army.

"Fusion is not the only way in which the defense of Europe can be built," he said. "What is important is not the form, but the number of divisions . . . available for unified action under the supreme commander."

Dog In Distress Is Reported; Not Found

Police were unable to find any trace of a dog reported by a resident of the Greenville Airport community, to have a steel trap hanging on a foot and roaming about that territory.

A telephone call to headquarters stated that a fairly large dog was dragging a trap and apparently was in distress. Enoch E. Jones, city humane officer, did not find any trace of the canine. Police request that any person seeing the trapped dog telephone headquarters.

Guaranty Bank's . . .

(Continued from page one) the administration which, he said, would increase taxes unnecessarily. Ficklen stressed the necessity for military preparedness, but declared that with proper administration this and the other branches of the government could be handled more economically.

The report of J. H. Waldrop, vice president and comptroller, showed total deposits of $42,215,000 compared with deposits of $34,185,000 a year ago. It is a deposit increase of more than 23 per cent.

Waldrop's report indicated operating earnings of the bank for 1951 were better than in any previous year, but with considerably higher taxes. The net, after taxes, was approximately the same as in 1950, he reported. During the year $100,000 was added to the capital account of the bank, $100,000 was added to the surplus, and $79,900 was added to the undivided profits.

Stockholders received dividend checks of 10 per cent.

Talk Restricting Soviet Diplomats

WASHINGTON (UP)—The United States may hit back at Russia's latest restrictions on foreign travel by clamping rigid controls on Soviet travel in America.

Russian officials now are free to travel in this country. Soviet embassy attaches drove two limousines from Washington to San Francisco for use by the Soviet delegation to the Japanese peace conference last August. They chose their own route without any checking with the State Department.

The possibility of banning this type of travel is sure to be considered as possible retaliation for new Russian travel restrictions on foreigners announced yesterday.

Officials recalled that the State Department in 1948 reluctantly decided only by a "narrow margin" against banning or limiting Soviet travel. The action was discussed with various other agencies, including the FBI, but was finally shelved because the Russians still permitted some travel in their country.

Yesterday's Soviet order added 22 large cities to the prohibited list. It reduced the 1948 restriction on travel from the Moscow city limits from 31 to 25 miles.

Diplomats said it appears that Americans and other foreigners can still travel to Tiflis, Stalingrad, Novgorod and Leningrad. The latter city is on the rail line used by foreigners to get to their diplomatic posts in Moscow. One official said it would be "very serious" if Leningrad ever appears on a prohibited list.

The effect of the new order will not be felt until spring when it is possible to travel outside Moscow.

'Torch' Sweater Peddlers Face Gov't Action

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government is going to try to punish people who have been peddling "flash-fire" sweaters.

Chairman James M. Mead of the Federal Trade Commission said yesterday agents have been sent to New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Providence, R. I., Chicago, Kansas City and Los Angeles to check on reports of "torch sweaters" being sold.

Mead said the agents will examine suspected garments to see if any federal laws have been violated.

Investigation so far, Mead said, indicates most of the sweaters have been sold by peddlers, not retail stores.

Cases Heard In Superior Court

One divorce was granted on the grounds of adultery; a mistrial was ordered in another suit for divorce; and five civil suits were disposed of in Superior Court here yesterday.

Albert F. Harris (white) received a divorce from Lucille Dixon Harris on the grounds of adultery.

Judge Susie Sharp ordered a juror withdrawn and declared a mistrial in the divorce case of Cecil Vines vs. Patsie Louise Daniel Vines, Negroes.

In the case of Eva Mae Suggs, administratrix vs. J. Con Lanier, the plaintiff (Eva Mae Suggs), recovers $4,000. Of the total costs of $30.20, the plaintiff is ordered to pay $15.00, and the defendant (J. Con Lanier) is directed to pay $15.20.

Judge Sharp dismissed the action in the case of Perkins Oil Company vs. Annie Smith McLawhorn. The case of State of N.C. vs. Ed Fleming, and others was continued until the next term of Civil Court, which will begin February 18.

Notice of appeal was filed in the case of Edward D. Moore and wife vs. J. W. Clark. A suit brought by Josie McLawhorn, administratrix, against Roscoe Wainwright, was settled out of court.

This term of Civil Court is scheduled to adjourn late today.
