Miller Says Wife Shot Husband

Claims Mrs. Boyd Wanted Him To Kill Husband; Did It Herself

WASHINGTON — A jam-packed Beaufort County courtroom listened spellbound this morning as Lafayette Miller, 21-year-old parolee, charged with the shotgun slaying of a Beaufort County farmer, testified that Mrs. Opal Boyd, wife of the dead man, killed her husband after he refused to do so.

Miller, who went on the witness stand around 4:30 p.m. yesterday, was still on the stand at noon today, undergoing cross-examination by the State.

This morning, Miller stated that Mrs. Boyd told him one day while he was washing windows and floors at her home that she could not please her husband and that they were always arguing.

Earlier yesterday, Mrs. Boyd, the first witness for the State, had testified that she had not known the man or seen him until the night of the shooting.

According to Miller's statement today, Mrs. Boyd asked him to shoot her husband, planning to offer him the car if he did so. Miller said that he told her "I can't do that."

On the Saturday before the fatal shooting, Miller stated, he was again working at the Boyd home, for the fourth time, and again was asked by Mrs. Boyd to shoot her husband.

The man stated that he told her that he would get her a gun but that he could not do the shooting. Then Miller said that he stole the gun from his parole officer, Miss Elizabeth Warren, and carried the weapon to the Boyd home Wednesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Boyd were playing cards at the time, with Mrs. Boyd facing the window, Miller stated. He told the court room audience that he signaled her to come out in the yard, and she did so on the pretext of looking for a dog. She told him, Miller said, "You go ahead and shoot," to which he says he replied, "I can't do that."

Returning to the house, she came out five minutes later and he stated that he told her to do the shooting, and she refused.

Then, however, he showed her how to work the gun and she shot her husband, said Miller.

Miller had gone on the stand yesterday afternoon against the wishes of his lawyers.

After shooting the man, Miller said he and the woman drove off, headed towards Chocowinity with Mrs. Miller driving. Miller then stated that he told her that people would think it funny if they were seen together—and that she then get into the boot of the car.

Miller did not state what the purpose of the trip was.

Yesterday, court was adjourned just as Miller was giving a detailed description of the inside and outside of the Boyd house. Miller was on the stand for 40 minutes yesterday before court recessed.

Twelve highway patrolmen and a number of other law enforcement officers lined the court room during the trial.

Court recessed at one o'clock today and was set to get underway again at 2:30.

The court yesterday afternoon heard Cpl. H. M. Morrow and Patrolman B. H. Jackson tell of discovering Miller with a loaded shotgun in the front seat of the automobile which they stopped for a routine check. Then they told of discovering Mrs. Boyd in the boot of the car.

Next, Charles Toler, surveyor, took the stand and gave an outline of the house and its location in relation to testimony given regarding distance and such.

Beaufort County Deputies Phillip Paul and Jack Harris then took the stand in order and told of their investigation of the murder.

Paul told the court that he visited Miller in jail on three different times, and each time Miller told him a different story on the shooting, but always admitting that he shot the man.

Paul stated that he asked the man why he shot Boyd and he replied "to get his car."

The deputy sheriff then stated that Miller told him he passed the Boyd home daily as he worked on a road construction gang beyond the house.

Coroner Bonner Paul described the fatal blast, saying any one of the buckshots was capable of killing the man.

At this point Paul showed the

Turnage Congratulated Upon Jaycee Honor

Lester E. Turnage, Jr. (center) received congratulations from F. Badger Johnson (left) upon being named Greenville's Man of the Year last night at the annual banquet of the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Turnage was named Man of the Year for his outstanding work on community projects during 1951 and his leadership in civic activities of the city. Easily Top Quota For Demo Dinner

Lester E. Turnage, Jr., 28-year-old insurance and real estate agent, last night was named Greenville's Man of the Year for 1951 and presented the Distinguished Service Award by the Greenville Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The presentation of the coveted award was made at the annual awards and bosses night banquet of the Greenville Jaycees. F. Badger Johnson, charter member of the Greenville Jaycees and now president of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce presented the award to Turnage.

The long list of community projects and activities in which Turnage participated during the past year and his leadership in the projects won for him the Distinguished Service Award and the designation as Greenville's Man of the Year.

Turnage was one of the instigators as a wheel horses in the movement to get a full time recreation director for Greenville. He took a leading role in establishing Little League baseball in Greenville, and served as secretary-treasurer of the organization. Turnage is commander of Pitt County post 39 of the American Legion, was a committee chairman of local boy scout troop, institutional representative to the East Carolina Council of the Boy Scouts of America, assistant superintendent of the Christian Church Sunday school, a member of the board of directors of the Pitt County chapter of the American Red Cross, on the executive committee of the Pitt County fair, was co-chairman for the disposition of the old Pitt fairgrounds and co-chairman for the construction of the new fairgrounds, member of the Greenville Recreation commission, chairman of the Jaycee scrap paper drive, and co-chairman of the Jaycee dogwood tree committee which planted more than 300 dogwood trees in the city last spring.

In addition to those activities, Turnage was active in other civic movements and activities during the year, and participated in practically all of the more than 20 individual projects which were sponsored by the Greenville Junior Chamber of Commerce during 1951. Other than civic activities Turnage established a new insurance agency in Greenville last year.

In accepting the Distinguished Service Award last night, Turnage thanked the judges for designating him Greenville's Man of the Year, and thanked the members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce for their cooperation in the civic projects which were undertaken in Greenville.

Superior Court Civil Term Closes In Pitt Yesterday

Judge Susie Sharp closed the January Civil Term of Pitt County Superior Court yesterday at 10 A.M. The case of Willie Williams vs. the City of Greenville and the Greenville Utilities Commission, was settled out of court. Terms of the settlement were not disclosed. Notice of appeal to the State Supreme Court was filed in the case of Atkinson-Carl Clark Company vs. Paul Nelson, J. A. Bunting and W. McLaughlin. A writ of habeas corpus was awarded a divorce from Nina Williams, on the grounds of two years separation.

Uncover Another Dog Mutilation

TROY — (AP) — Another dog mutilation case has been reported here. A small black and white terrier was discovered hanging from a limb of a dogwood tree in a swamp near here Wednesday. Jake Furr, county surveyor who found the dead animal, said a cord had been tied around the dog's neck. He also had been shot and gashed, Furr added. Troy is more than 150 miles from Burke and McDowell counties where other dog mutilation cases have been reported in recent months.

However, such an accomplishment can only be realized by the full cooperation and support of all the merchants in Greenville."

The 1952 sessions will meet Monday night, January 21, from eight until nine in the association's office.

Carlsen Relaxes After Weeks Of Public Tribute

WOODBRIDGE, N. J. (UP) — Capt. Henrik Kurt Carlsen slept late and relaxed with his family today and a police guard assured him privacy for the first time in weeks.

A 24-hour guard was placed around the Carlsen home by Police Chief George E. Keating to keep well-wishers and the curious away.

Inside, "Captain Stay Put" enjoyed a belated Christmas. He opened presents marked "Daddy" under the still-decorated Christmas tree in the living room and played with Sonja, 11, and Karen, 7, while his proud wife looked on.

Scolding Judge Didn't Remember

ENID, Okla. — (UP) — Municipal Judge Doug McKeever reprimanded his old friend, Dr. Fred Entringer, for allowing his driver's license to expire.

"It's easy to remember your license renewal date," McKeever scolded. "The license expires on your birth month every two years. Take mine for example," he illustrated. "It expires 2."

The judge got up and accompanied Entringer to highway patrol headquarters to take the new examination with him. His own license had expired last July.

Punctuality Was Fatal Passion

TORONTO — (UP) — John Virgint's lifelong passion for punctuality killed him.

The 68-year-old employee of a moving firm had a perfect record for getting to work on time. Yesterday, however, he was delayed by a strike of local bus and streetcar operators.

Unable to get a lift, Virgint ran. He collapsed enroute. Seconds before he died he murmured "I shouldn't have run."

Shorth Inquiry

WASHINGTON (AP) — Comptroller General Lindsay C. Warren told senators today he had ordered a "full and complete investigation" of shortages in the Agriculture Department's grain storage program, after his auditors found shortages of more than $3,800,000 in a single office at Dallas, Tex.

Warren testified before the Senate Agriculture Committee, Secretary of Agriculture Brannan and a dozen assistants waited their turn to explain the cases under probe.

Savings And Loan Shows Big Gain

Shareholders And Members Reelect Officers and Board

Shareholders and members of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association re-elected four officers and nine directors at the annual meeting of the association Wednesday night.

A. C. Tadlock, executive vice president and secretary-treasurer, said in his report 1951 was another year of growth for the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Greenville. Tadlock reported total assets of the association at the close of the year were $2,797,424.02, total savings for the year were up $719,000, and the association during the year financed approximately 200 homes totaling $1,000,900.

Tadlock reviewed the year's activities in the light of their bearing upon the nation's fight against inflation, and pointed out that the $719,000 net increase last year in savings invested in the association represented that sum withdrawn from immediate spending, thus helping to preserve the stability of the dollar. Cooperation of the association with the voluntary credit restraint program of the Federal Reserve System was cited in the institution's report as was the care which the association exercised with regard to down payments.

"Real estate prices and building costs are at dollar-and-cents levels which have not been seen before in our memory," Tadlock stated. "Sound real estate lending in such an era depends on good personal risks for borrowers as well as on the property." He added that families who want to build the more expensive homes may face some delay or even postponement this year because of stringencies in critical materials, but that 1952 should see substantial amount of modest home building all over the country.

Officers and staff of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association re-elected at the meeting are: President, Dink James; vice president, Guy V. Smith; executive vice president and secretary-treasurer, A. C. Tadlock; assistant secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Allie P. Whitehurst; stenographer, Miss Mary Belle Eldridge; cashier, Mrs. Jean Wells.

Directors of the association are: Dink James, Guy V. Smith, A. C. Tadlock, M. B. Massey, S. M. Crisp, J. A. Collins, M. K. Blount, Alton Barrett and Allie P. Whitehurst.

Thirty Days For 50-Cent Theft

CELESTINE, W. Va. (UP) — Oral Wilgus, 75, was arrested for stealing 50 cents from a March of Dimes contribution box.

Police found he was carrying $1,970.47, mostly in $100 bills. Wilgus said it was his life's savings and he carried it because he didn't trust banks. He was sentenced to 30 days in jail for the 50-cent theft.

Administration, Congress And Military Men Voice Emphatic 'No'; Only Issue On Which Prime Minister Apparently Stubbed His Toe In U. S. Visit

WASHINGTON (UP) — Winston Churchill got an emphatic and unanimous "no" today to his suggestion that American troops help the British defend the Suez Canal Zone against the Egyptians.

The Truman administration members of both parties in Congress, and American military men quickly rebuffed the plea for "token forces" which the British prime minister made, without advance warning, in his address to a joint session of Congress yesterday.

It appeared to be the major place where the adroit and eloquent British leader may have stubbed his toe during his visit to Washington. But Churchill had another chance to thrust out the issue with President Truman at their farewell White House meeting today.

Churchill also was expected to make a last try at blocking appointment of an American admiral as supreme Atlantic Pact naval commander and at increasing the flow of atomic secrets between Britain and America — two points on which he previously has gotten little satisfaction.

On the other side of the ledger, Churchill could add up an impressive list of accomplishments in his talks with Mr. Truman and his appearance before Congress. These included a firm Allied agreement on swift retaliation against Red China's mainland if there is any truce trickery in Korea; a mutually beneficial arrangement for trading American steel and British tin; and a joint effort to streamline the cumbersome machinery of the Atlantic Pact organization.

The 77-year-old Briton also won bipartisan cheers from Congress with his stirring declaration that his countrymen will solve their own economic troubles and seek U.S. aid only for rearmament in the "common cause."

His oratorical prowess proved completely inadequate, however, to persuade Congress or the administration that the United States should get mixed up militarily in Britain's Middle Eastern troubles.

High officials were surprised and dismayed that Churchill even should have raised the question. They said American military intervention in the strife-torn Suez at this time would wreck current U.S. diplomatic efforts to work out a perfect solution, and would damage American prestige throughout the touchy Arab world.

Diplomatic officials stressed that the United States has no legal right to "invade" the Canal Zone in which British troops are stationed under a 1936 Anglo-Egyptian treaty.

Military officials said the joint chiefs of staff are opposed to extending American military responsibilities into the Middle East.

Three Red Fighters Downed, 7 Damaged

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — Jet planes fought over northwest Korea today for the fourth successive day.

U. S. Sabre jets screening Thunderjet strikes against Red rail lines and supplies fought briefly with elements of a formation of 120 Communist jets.

One flight of four MIG-15s broke through the screening Sabres and made a firing pass at the Thunderjets, then headed for home. No damage was reported.

The Air Force reported three MIGs downed and seven damaged in the previous three days fights. Allied losses are reported only weekly.

Action along the frozen 145-mile ground front followed the same quiet pattern of the last two months. The only fighting Friday morning reported by the U.S. Eighth Army was along the eastern front.

Reds Accused Of Seeking To Keep ROK Prisoners

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP) — The United Nations accused the Communists today of trying to keep 50,000 impressed South Korean war prisoners in the Red armies after an armistice.

Rear Adm. R. E. Libby said the Communists also apparently intend to keep indefinitely an undetermined number of civilian internees.

By contrast, he said, the Allies will release all 116,000 Communist war prisoners after a truce and give them a choice whether they wish to return home or stay in Allied territory. Libby blisteringly charged the Communists with bad faith during another "no progress" meeting of the armistice subcommittee trying to arrange an exchange of war prisoners. A second subcommittee was still stalemated by the Communist refusal to consider a ban on military airfield construction during a truce. U.N. and Communist liaison officers went back to the village of Yurang in the Kaesong neutral zone for a second on-the-spot investigation of Red charges that an Allied plane dropped a bomb there Thursday. The U.N. team brought back twisted bits of metal, presumably part of a bomb casing, from the site. The bomb caused no damage or casualties, but left a crater 26 feet in diameter and eight feet deep. Libby categorically denied Communist charges that the Allies will detain any war prisoners after an armistice has been signed.

Club Approves Recommendations

At the meeting of the Junior Women's Club on Wednesday night at the club house, the members set a tentative date for the annual Bread Sale Day which is held to raise money for the Watson Memorial Fund at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

This event will take place the first Sunday after Easter.

Mrs. Tom Brown, club president, presided over the meeting. She urged all members to be present at the next meeting, at which time officers for the coming year will be elected.

Mrs. Kenneth Mercer, corresponding secretary, read a letter of thanks from the CARE FOR KOREA organization thanking the club for its donation. She also reported writing a letter of transfer to Greensboro for Mrs. Denola Patten, who has recently left the city.

Mrs. Sam Weeks, secretary, read a letter of thanks from Mr. C. D. Ward expressing gratitude for the club's help at the hospital and to the patients.

The members accepted the recommendation of the Executive Board that the club enter a report on the Watson Memorial work in competition for the Mamie Latham Award, which is presented each spring at the state meeting to a club for the most outstanding community service project. They also accepted the recommendation to donate $10 to the North Carolina Club Woman magazine.

Mrs. Larry Averette, chairman of the Children's Home Society department, presented Mr. Sherman Parks, who showed a most interesting film on the Children's Home in Greensboro. The support of this home is a state project for all Junior clubs.

Special guests for the evening were Mrs. Harry L. Davis, Mrs. E. S. Jones and Mrs. W. B. Hinton.

Hostesses for the social hour were Mrs. Paul Scott Jr., Mrs. R. W. Shipton and Mrs. Frank Dail, who served coffee, pie and ice cream.

Mrs. Flewellen Speaks To Fountain P. T. A. Members

FOUNTAIN—The Fountain Parents-Teachers Association met in Fountain School Auditorium Wednesday, January 16, at 7:30 o'clock.

Mr. M. E. McDonald, principal of Fountain School, introduced Rev. Philip M. Cory, pastor of Fountain, Falkland and Grace Presbyterian churches, who opened the meeting with Scripture reading and prayer, followed by nine eighth grade students singing "Blessed Assurance, Jesus Is Mine." They also sang several other songs, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Elizabeth B. Eagles of Crisp, the fourth grade teacher.

Mr. Amos Little, president, presided over the short business session.

Mr. McDonald said he was proud to announce that the attendance record of 261 students had been reached since Christmas, and he introduced Mrs. Herman Baker of Farmville, former Fountain School principal for the past five years. Mrs. Baker introduced the speaker, Miss Carolyn Flewellen of the State Board of Health.

Life And Work Of Audubon Given At Sans Souci Club

The Sans Souci Book Club met Tuesday afternoon, January the first, with Mrs. J. B. Kirtrell at her home on Fifth Street.

Mrs. T. White, president, who has been absent for several months, because of a death in her family, was welcomed back and presided over the meeting. She quickly dispensed what little business there was on the slate and appointed Mrs. J. K. Brown and Mrs. F. L. Blount as a committee for the Club Day, in May.

Concluding the business session Mrs. White in her usual gracious manner introduced Mr. Ralph Rives, who was to give the program for the afternoon.

Mr. Rives is a senior at the college and has spoken to a number of clubs in the city. He is quite active in dramatics, and birds being one of his many interests he chose "Audubon," the great painter of birds, as his subject. He told of Audubon's mysterious birth and of his adoption by Captain and Mrs. Audubon who brought him to the United States where he lived out his life with the exception of a few years in France at school.

From earliest childhood Audubon was interested in nature and mostly birds and he began at an early age drawing them. He spent his life roaming the fields and woods studying them and their haunts. People of today have reaped a rich harvest of his work and talent in the lovely paintings of birds which every body now enjoys.

Mr. Rives gave his talk in such an easy, informal manner that it was greatly enjoyed by every member of the club, each one of whom expressed her pleasure and appreciation in no uncertain terms.

At the conclusion of the program the hostess served a most enjoyable salad plate with coffee and cake, after which the meeting adjourned.

Musical Comedy Cast Announced

Principals in the cast of the musical comedy "Good News," to be presented at East Carolina College in April under the sponsorship of the Student Government Association, have been announced by Dr. Kenneth N. Cuthbert, head of the department of music and director of the production.

Tryouts held this week were attended by approximately fifty students interested in participating in the play. In addition to principals, a chorus of twenty men and women singers and dancers, an orchestra, and a large staff of technicians will work on the production.

Dr. Elizabeth Utterback of the department of English is drama director of the musical. Twelve other faculty members from various departments of instruction are cooperating with students on such details as scenery, lighting, costumes, and dances.

Leonard Starling of Rocky Mount and Carolyn Eisele of Statesville will play the romantic leads. Cecilia Cartwright of Norfolk and George Starling of Rocky Mount will have character parts contributing to the comedy interest of the musical.

Others chosen for important parts in "Good News" are Jesse B. Jones, Ayden; Albert L. Harrington, Burlington; Alec J. Hurst and Charles Self, Greensboro; W. Bernard Ham and James K. Drew, Portsmouth, Va.; Joe Hallow, Goldsboro; Catherine Stephenson, Willow Springs; Jacqueline Waldron, Statesville; and Jeannine Ennis, Dunn.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
January 15, 1912
The Ohio home-seekers are due in Greenville tonight and every citizen of this community is reminded that Greenville has a slogan to live up to. The special reception committee left this morning for Washington to escort the visitors to our town. This committee is composed of the following: Mayor F. M. Wooten, Mr. J. W. Ferrall and Mr. W. H. Dail, Jr. Every citizen who can possibly be at the Norfolk Southern depot tonight should not be missing and those that have vehicles should have them at the station to convey visitors to the Training School. Tomorrow morning the visitors will be taken to nearby farms.

There are at least 60 different kinds of soil.

Extemporaneous Talk In Advance
WASHINGTON—(UP)—Newsmen frequently get copies of speeches in advance of delivery. The Office of Price Stabilization issued one yesterday with this preface:

"The following are excerpts from an extemporaneous speech by Edward F. Phelps Jr., assistant director, Office of Price Stabilization, at the luncheon session of the National American Wholesale Grocers Association convention, Ambassador Hotel, Atlantic City, Jan. 18, 1932."

Churchill A Living Symbol Of An Era Ended; Can't Believe It

By JAME MARLOW
 WASHINGTON (AP)— Winston Churchill looks like what he is, an old man of 71. He retains what he always had, stubbornness and steadfastness. But he's the end of an era and can't seem to believe it.

He is a product of the 19th Century, which he loves, and is astonished by the 20th. His speech to congress yesterday was full of valor but it was a study of nostalgia.

In World War II he was a steadfast ally, which he remains now in the struggle with communism. He made that clear in his talk. No one doubts his word or his intentions.

In the last war he showed the profound depths of his stubbornness when, by his unyielding will against the Nazis, he carried his people to victory, the finest page in British history.

Counting the colonial empire it had acquired by conquest, the 19th century Britain in which he grew up was the greatest single power on earth: commercially, numerically, and militarily.

It is no longer that. Bled almost to death by war, it was left impoverished, lacking the power and resources to hold its ancient empire. India, for instance, got its independence.

As its power dwindled, so did its prestige, for the prestige had been based on power, particularly among the colonial and backward people. Events in Iran and Egypt show how that prestige has suffered.

People everywhere after the war began to demonstrate their deep desire for national independence. The desire had been there. But it had been held in check. The run left by the war unleashed it.

This became one of the great facts of the mid-20th century. During the war Churchill was unwilling, or unable, to foresee this. For it was he who said he had not become his majesty's first minister to preside over the liquidation of the empire.

The events that have happened since the war, he said, have left him astounded. And even now, in the face of facts and a diminished Britain, Churchill looks with nostalgia on the 19th century, as he revealed in the use of a single word, "predominant."

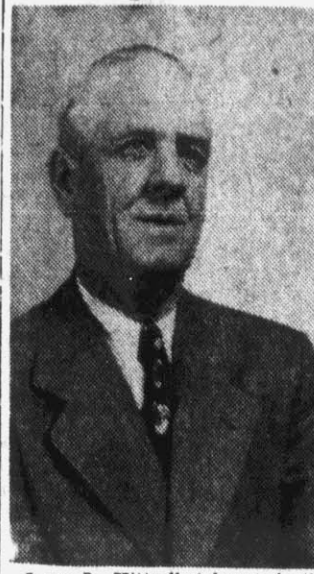

"When the war ended," he said, speaking of the Middle East, "the western nations were respected and predominant throughout" the area.

The people of the Middle East could answer this by telling Churchill the treatment the British have received there springs from their determination not to let anyone be predominant over them.

And Churchill proudly told congress he not only thinks the other nations of western Europe should be unified, and have a common army, but has urged it on them.

But as for Britain—no. He would not let Britain take part. He still seems to think of Britain as different and apart from Europe. He will not let it lose a shred of its identity in a merger with others.

have had to appoint United States senators have been forced to support their appointees in subsequent primaries. Results have not been satisfactory to the appointing governors. Governor Gardner saw his appointed senator, Cameron Morrison defeated by Bob Reynolds; Governor Cherry saw his appointed Senator William Umstead defeated by J. M. Broughton, and Governor Scott saw his appointed Senator Frank Graham defeated by Willis Smith.

LESSON — There may be a lesson in that historic record. It shows that the people resent accusations and charges against them they have elected in previous elections. It also shows that the people resent with equal force assumption of the right by any name high level officials like United States senators. The people didn't elect the senators appointed by Governors Governor, Cherry and Scott. But the people didn't take kindly, either, to Candidates Fountain and McDonald saying they had acted like dum-bells and Broughton.

Attendance Stressed By Church Workers' Council

At the quarterly meeting of the Workers' Council of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, convening last night in the Educational Building, it was announced that 764 members were present at the Church School on last Sunday morning.

Sunday School Superintendent J. H. Rose presided over the dinner meeting.

During the dinner hour, Mr. Rose read the attendance figures for January 13 and emphasized the fact that this was the largest attendance figure on record for the Sunday School. He urged all teachers, leaders and officials of the different departments to work at that figure as an average for each week.

Mr. Rose also paid recognition to the Sam Carson class for its recently concluded successful drive to increase its class membership and suggested that other classes could carry out a similar thing in bringing others to Sunday School on Sunday.

"We are interested not only in getting the people here," Rose said, "but in keeping them after we get them." He made a suggestion that teachers follow up absenteeism from classes each Sunday with a telephone call, a written card or a visit, if possible. He further stated that if parents would bring their children rather than send them that the attendance would remain high and the influence of the work that is being done would be greater. He urged that all teachers and officers make a special effort to be on time each Sunday.

The pastor, Rev. Leon Russell, made announcements about the dedication service for the Educational Building. This event will occur on Sunday, February 3, at which time Bishop Paul Garber, presiding bishop of the Richmond area, will be present. He also sketched plans for the workers' Training School, a joint project of the city churches, which will be held this year from February 10-14.

Miss Denny Lee Bryson, Director of Religious Education who has recently assumed her duties in Greenville, was introduced and made a few remarks.

Ralph Hardee, superintendent of the Ayden Methodist Sunday School, was recognized as a special guest, as was another guest.

The Council reluctantly accepted the resignation of Mrs. A. J. Taylor as superintendent of the Beginners' Department. Mrs. Taylor will remain as teacher and helper, however.

Following the dinner, the group broke up into department groups to discuss plans and problems in each section.

tually forced the retiring governor then to throw his weight in the scales for J. C. B. Ehringhaus, and Ehringhaus won. Then in 1944 Ralph McDonald openly attacked the integrity of the Broughton administration in the famous "Rocking Chair" liquor deal, leaving the retiring governor no alternative but to deny the charges and give his support to Gregg Cherry. Except for these two instances, which were forced upon the incumbent governors, retiring chief executives have pretty well stayed out of the primaries in which their successors were named.

Old Windjammer Rides Out Gale Without Help

DEAL, Eng. — (AP) — The four-master German bark Pamir, one of the last of the big sea-going windjammers, today rode out a North Sea gale which had sent lifeboats scudding to her rescue.

The four-masted vessel with 45 sea cadets—40 Germans, four Britons and one Italian—and 46 crewmen aboard had radioed an urgent call for help after heavy seas pounded off one of her anchors.

Later she messaged the weather had moderated and she was able to resume her voyage without help.

Lifeboats from two English Channel ports battled through a blizzard to the scene 20 miles offshore. The 5,556-ton British steamer Empire Parkston had stood by to help if needed.

The lifeboats began their rugged trip after Capt. Paul Grief radioed he thought the young cadets should be taken off his battered ship at once. With rescuers standing by, he decided to keep everyone aboard and finally was able to go on his way.

The picturesque, 2,769-ton sailing ship, built at Hamburg in 1905, left Hamburg for Rio de Janeiro on Jan. 10 with a cargo of cement. The boys aboard her are training for the merchant marine.

The Pamir and her sister windjammer, the Passat, carried grain from Australia to Britain under various ownerships from 1905 to 1949.

Three years ago the Passat defeated the Pamir in the last of the traditional sailing races from Australia with the year's first wheat cargo.

Seven Local Recreation Leaders Attend Institute

Silent Struggle Between Drivers

"Who gets the parking place?" was the question in the minds of a number of onlookers yesterday afternoon when two cars driven by women headed for the same parking place in front of the Guaranty Bank.

It seems that "Miss Mercury" spotted the place first and pulled up ahead of it and started backing in. Along came "Miss Dodge" who also had her eye on the same place and pulled in the place right behind "Miss Mercury."

The result was two cars and the curb forming a "K" turned around. Miss Mercury was half way in the parking place and so was Miss Dodge but neither would give in to the other. The two cars stayed there for a few minutes and then the police arrived.

In the meantime, the driver of the Dodge left her car half in the place and half in the street and completed her business in the bank. She returned to the car and gave up the place to the Mercury.

The police said neither person was wrong and it just had to be settled between the two.

Seven persons from Greenville attended the Leadership Training Recreation Institute in Wilson all or a part of the four nights it was held.

Those who attended were: Warren Carroll, director of recreation; Mrs. Betty Gordon, activity supervisor; John Painter, part time leader; Henry Trevathan, part time leader; Mr. and Mrs. Sam Brooks, volunteer leaders; and Sara Lee, playground leader.

The course included mental games, social games and mixers, square dancing, party planning, playground planning, children's games, stunt songs, music, and dramatics.

Carroll said one point stressed at the institute was that today recreation should serve the interest of the people, and the interests can be broken into five elements: Physical, mental, creative, social, and service.

Special training programs are being planned for Negro leaders and the next program will be held at Eppes High School January 28. The program will be under the direction of Warren Carroll.

California Again Hit By Downpour

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A fresh torrent of rain brought death and destruction to waterlogged Los Angeles and southern California today.

The entire state has been plagued by the worst storms since the turn of the century this week, and northern California braced itself for another one bearing down from the gulf of Alaska.

Virtually all main railroad and highway routes across the Sierra have been closed and there is general transportation chaos.

The southern California area had hardly 24 hours respite from the Tuesday-Wednesday storm when the downpour began again yesterday. This sudden storm which developed off the coast surprised the weather forecasters. Nine new deaths were reported.

Schools in Los Angeles City, Pasadena, Norwalk and El Monte were ordered closed today because of the heavy rain, many flooded streets and intersections. There were 40,000 absentees in Los Angeles yesterday. Principals will be on hand to care for any children who show up today.

Southern Pacific trains, north and southbound between Los Angeles and San Francisco, were blocked by washouts or high water. Six inches of snow on the Ridge Route (U. S. 99) between here and Bakersfield closed that route to all traffic at 3 a.m.

JAFFREY CENTER, N. H. — (UP) — Mabelle E. Cutler celebrated her 80th birthday by climbing to the top of Main street's highest hill and sliding into the center of town. Policeman George B. Farnham, an old friend, held up all traffic.

BETTER VISION BETTER SHOPPING

Shopping is supposed to be one of woman's most enjoyable pleasures. But some women find it tiring. After a day of examining price tags and materials, a day spent in stores chock full of all kinds of merchandise — they arrive home headachy and tired and irritable.

Poor vision is often to blame. When eyesight defects are corrected, shopping returns to its place as a pleasure. Keen eyesight can buy better, too — bargains are really bargains.

"We did it Again!"

That's the jubilant news that comes from Flint to every Buick dealer—and here we pass the thrilling story on to you. It sure is true for '52 that better automobiles are being built—and Buick is building them. Read the good word and you'll agree.

LET'S pare this down to plain statements of fact and let them speak for themselves: The dynamic darling pictured here is the 1952 ROADMASTER.

It has the mightiest engine in Buick history.

It has the biggest brakes of any postwar Buick.

It is the quietest car that Buick ever built.

It has the richest fabrics and smartest tailoring that ever graced a Buick's interior.

It has the greatest trunk space since spare tires moved off the front fenders.

It has the most superb ride in Buick history.

It has the finest carburetor that Buick research has ever devised.

And with all its new power, it delivers more miles per gallon.

But that is not all.

For those who wish it, there is a brand-new version of power steering that works like a helping hand—gives you the same sure feel of control you have always known in straight-away driving—yet takes less than one-fifth the effort needed to turn the ordinary wheel standing at curbside.

Sure, we're putting our best foot forward when we talk about ROADMASTER.

But you'll find a host of notable features in SUPERS and SPECIALS too—plenty to make them, as always, the standout buys in their fields—for ride, for comfort, for style, for room, and for power.

Come in—look this triumphant trio over—and you'll know why every Buick dealer from coast to coast is going around with a smile on his face.

Strength for the Day

By KARL L. DOUGLAS ENEMIES

We often hear it said that a man is known by the company he keeps. We can sometimes tell a good deal about a person by his associates; the man who spends all his evenings in the tavern with roistering friends is not likely to be sober himself.

But it is hard to be sure of a man by his friends. So many of us are either afraid to speak up when we disagree or willing to go along for the sake of peace that we often seem to agree with people and ideas that actually don't please us at all.

It is truer to say that a man may be known by his enemies. Having enemies at all is a sign that he has taken a definite, recognizable stand. It is much harder to be mistaken about enemies than friends, and when we find a man hated by dishonest and disreputable men, we can be quite sure that he has at least some good qualities.

Of course, no one likes to make enemies—but who can live really well without doing so? Great men always make enemies. Jesus was put to death by his enemies. So was Socrates. So was Lincoln.

A man may be judged by the enemies he makes. Are you willing to be judged by yours?

Less Extravagance Not Higher Taxes

The time was ripe long months ago when the nation's lawmakers should have sought to balance the federal budget by cutting out unnecessary federal spending rather than heaping billions upon billions in new taxes upon the citizens of the nation.

It is still not too late for the lawmakers to seek to bring the federal budget into reason by lopping off unnecessary expenditures rather than pumping the nation's well of resources dry by piling taxes on top of taxes in an effort to catch up with the government's skyrocketing spending program.

In his economic address to the Congress this week, President Truman reiterated his hollow philosophy of more and more spending and more and more taxes. The President said the nation must have five billion dollars more in taxes soon to forestall a "torpedoing" of the national defense program. He urged that the defense program should not be torpedoed by measures of what he called "false economy."

Surely Mr. Truman and his advisors are far-sighted enough to see that the present scale of taxes is torpedoing the economy of this nation which has been built upon free enterprise. Surely they should be able to comprehend that new taxes heaped upon the schedules already in effect will lead wage earners and large corporations alike farther down the road to insolvency. Whether Mr. Truman and his bureaucratic economists will admit it or not, it surely is not false economy to cut back federal spending where there is clearly a multiplicity of agencies and departments doing the same jobs with gross inefficiency and waste. Yet every time there has been a movement to revamp a portion of the government to cut out waste, it has been pegged by the administration and little has come of it.

There have been many new agencies created in the government for supposedly small, temporary jobs, but somehow once an appropriation is made for a new agency, the agency never disappears from the maze of bureaus in the government. Many spring from relative insignificance to multi-million dollar operations in a surprisingly short span of years.

There is no doubt that the government, the people and the economy of the United States is facing a financial crisis which will become more and more severe if the nation continues its present policy of more the nation literally can be taxed to death—and that is not just idle chatter. The problem has moved from the realm of possibility to the category of probability and unless a change in the financial policy of spending and higher taxes, the economy of the government is made, it will not take many years for the feat to be accomplished.

The Reflector has said many times before and we repeat again, the answer to the financial problems of the United States lies not in higher taxes, but in an earnest, far reaching effort to reduce the billions of unnecessary spending being done by the federal government.

It is our considered opinion that if wasteful extravagance were removed from federal spending, the United States would not have the eight billion dollar deficit in the operation of the current fiscal year, nor would it be facing an estimated deficit of 16 billion dollars during the coming fiscal year.

The Outrages Have Been Tolerated Too Long

Immediate and vigorous steps must be taken by the State Bureau of Investigation and other authorities in the southeastern section of North Carolina to prevent the recurrence of the floggings and other brutalities which have occurred in that section during the past three months.

Since the Ku Klux Klan held its ceremonial in a corn field near Whiteville, at least five floggings have occurred, and probably others have occurred, but have not been made public. The law enforcement officers have been working on the cases, but so far have come up with no concrete evidence as to who is doing the flogging or who is responsible for the reign of terror which now prevails in Columbus County.

The floggings certainly have the earmarks of Ku Klux Klan activities, but the officers have not yet definitely established the identity of any of the assailants who have dragged the Columbus County citizens from their homes at night and beat them.

As long as the persons guilty of these outrageous examples of misconduct are allowed to go unpunished, the floggings in the Columbus area are likely to become more numerous, and even may spread to other sections of the State.

The Ku Klux Klan has no place in North Carolina. Every measure possible should be taken to keep its white-hooded trouble-makers out of North Carolina. Every effort should be made to bring to open court the individuals or the organization which is responsible for the floggings in the Columbus County section of the state.

North Carolina has tolerated the outrages of the night-riders of Columbus County too long already. No stone should be left unturned to put an end to their activities.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—Members of the high command in the American Army in Europe during World War II may be dragged into Presidential politics as a result of General Eisenhower's decision to become a candidate for the Republican nomination. It would present an almost unprecedented situation.

Their testimony may be needed to defend "Ike" against rivals' charges that he was partially responsible for the partitioning of Germany that left the Western powers—the United States, Britain and France—in a vulnerable position vis-a-vis the Russians.

Besides permitting the Reds to gain an "iron curtain" control of Eastern Germany, Poland, Austria and other areas, the arrangement did not give the Western powers direct land access to Berlin. It is this omission which has left us at the mercy of Moscow.

QUESTION—The other issue raised frequently is that General Eisenhower should have pushed his force faster and farther eastward so that the Russians could not have achieved their historic aim of gaining a foothold in the heart of industrial Europe.

Although it seems obvious that such important problems could not be decided by military officers, the question has been brought up again and again in attempts to weaken and embarrass Eisenhower. It has appeared in books, magazine articles and speeches. It will be heard more frequently in the pre-convention struggle and possibly in the campaign, is "Ike" should be the GOP entry.

President Truman has already warned his European commander that he must expect to face a barrage of dead cats and rotten tomatoes.

DISAGREED—In any event, the Eisenhower candidacy will have the effect of solving a mystery which still puzzles high-ranking statesmen here and abroad. Even Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Minister Eden, in reminiscing ever war days with military men on their recent visit to Washington, disagreed on details.

The partitioning, it is known, was made in London by the European Advisory Commission. The American member was John G. Winant, former Governor of New Hampshire and former Ambassador to London, who had himself suicided several years ago.

In discussing the question, Churchill said he doubted if the agreement had ever been ratified by the British Cabinet. When Eden assured that he had tried to find documentary evidence of the approval since his return to office, but without success.

CONCERNED—General Eisenhower's companion in arms and close friend, General Omar N. Bradley, has told part of the story in a way that should exonerate "Ike" on this issue. Writing in his biography, "A Soldier's Story," he indicates that he at least was extremely unhappy and concerned over the advantage given to the Reds. He says:

"These occupation boundaries had already been drawn by the European Advisory Commission in London. They were haggled over at Quebec, approved at Yalta, and finally forwarded for compliance to us in the field. . . .

"Meanwhile, as the result of the agreement, Berlin was to be established as a Four Power island in the center of the Russian zone. Thus the capital of the Reich was to be divided equally into four sectors and governed under quadripartite control."

Somebody Told Me

By I. P. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

The sale of television stock is going full swing. As of last night I had sold $3,500, with $4,500 more promised but not yet on the dotted line. In the stock-selling contest there are several salesmen ahead of me, so you can tell that the project is going over. If you hurry, I'll let you have a little before it's all gone.

Greenville's Young Man of the Year, named last night at the annual Awards Night of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, Lester Turnage by name, is also one of the salesmen in the contest.

"This is a tough break," I told Les last night, "now I don't stand a chance of winning the contest."

"How's that?" Les shot back. "Everybody will want to buy stock from Greenville's Young Man of the Year. But when I write my column I'm going to urge them to buy from me, naturally."

At 29, Les can look back on a remarkable record during his five years in Greenville. Eisenhower in the Reflector his accomplishments are outlined. During 1951, Les thinks he put the most effort on the organization of the Baseball Little League, which was one of the most successful programs of any kind that Greenville can name.

Next in effort Les names his work on the Recreation Board.

During 1951 Greenville wised up recreation-wise by hiring a full-time director. Les Turnage was one of the pluggers in putting the plan over. His most recent work with Recreation includes the formulation of plans for the construction of white and Negro parks.

Les was raised between here and Farmville and is the father of two children.

"Tell me, Les," I asked, "how many suppers did you eat at home during 1951?" My question was prompted by the fact that a person so busy in civic life usually attends several supper meetings a week.

"Well," Les confessed, "there were weeks when I would eat only one meal a week at home. And during the organization of the Little League, I was seldom home one night a week."

"Ah ha!" I said. "Now I have the human interest angle. How did this set with your wife?"

"Jack, you've married and you already know the answer to that question."

But Les made a New Year's resolution: To be away from home only one night a week. That resolution will be hard to keep. A man as interested in the progress of Greenville as Les is devotes his time, day and night, week after week, to its betterment.

And I thank you.

Assoc. Afternoon Edition

UNANIMOUS—There have been larger crowds attending hearings before the utilities commission on the question of discontinuing train services than showed up Wednesday for the hearing on taking off two Southern trains between Goldsboro and Greensboro. But oldtimers could not recall an instance where opposition to the proposal was so nearly unanimous or was represented by such wide diversity of potent interests.

Comers down from Raleigh to Asheville newspaper publishers and insurance companies and other business firms, even the State of North Carolina as majority stockholder in the North Carolina Railroad which owns the tracks under lease to the Southern, had high powered legal talent on hand to oppose discontinuing the trains.

ISSUES—The issues were presented in legal phraseology which often is confusing to the layman. Boiled down to common language, they were mainly these: The Southern is losing money on the trains and wants to take them out of service, meanwhile changing schedules on other trains so as to provide adequate connections with main line Southern operations at Greensboro. Chambers of Commerce, business firms and newspaper publishers oppose the changes because the new schedules will play hob with east-west passenger and mail service.

ARGUMENTS—The railroad presented figures showing actual loss in operating the trains, and from profit and loss standpoint justifying discontinuance. The opposition presented data showing that the proposed changes would add five hours to the train trip between Raleigh and Asheville at night, add three hours to the train trip from Asheville to Raleigh in daytime. The morning newspaper at Raleigh could not be delivered by train mail even as near west as Durham, and the morning newspapers at Durham, Greensboro, Winston-Salem and Charlotte could not be delivered by train mail to the northern part of the state. It was quite obvious that more was involved than the simple matter of profitable operation of two trains.

WAITING—A good many folks on the state payroll are waiting for Governor Scott to get back in his office from that Virginia booster cruise to the Caribbean before making up their minds about who to support for governor in the upcoming primary. A few state workers, including some high ranking elective and Scott-appointed officials, are already pretty well staked out for Umstead or Olive. Governor Scott has not announced his attitude, but consensus among Capitol Square folks is that he will give Hubert Olive his full personal support. What many state folks want to know is how far the governor will go, whether he will go all-out—as he did for Senator Frank Graham—or will be content with less vociferous support of his candidate, and whether there will be actual embarrassments to the employees if they should fail to go along with the "chief."

COMMITTED—Governor Scott had publicly committed himself to support Capus Waynick for governor, and when the ambassador to Colombia decided not to run, the Scott support was openly pledged to Henry Jordan.

The highway chairman also decided not to run, and Governor Scott has not endorsed any other candidate. He is on record for Dr. R. E. Earp, highway commissioner in the fourth division for lieutenant governor—a post the retired Johnston county doctor apparently doesn't want. Governor Scott is also on record against Roy Rowe, who announced his candidacy for lieutenant governor this week. Some months ago the governor said at a press conference that he would help to keep Rowe from getting the nomination. As senator from the ninth district in 1949 the Pender county man frequently voted against the governor's pet bills.

Whether opposition to Rowe would lead Governor Scott to support Marshall Kurfess, mayor of Winston-Salem and only other announced candidate for the No. 2 post, or will seek a more desirable candidate, as another question bobbing around Capitol Square, and which the governor will be asked to answer when he gets back in his office. Last summer Governor Scott indicated he might be interested if the No. 2 job himself, and that possibility is still to be reckoned with.

VALUE—There is also serious question about the total effect of a retiring governor seeking to help name his successor. There have been numerous instances of political charges that governors were trying to perpetuate their own cliques in the top state office. The only two historically proven cases involved Governors Max Gardner in 1932 and J. M. Broughton in 1944. Attacks made upon Gardner by Candidate Dick Fountain vir-

What Other Papers Are Thinking

WHEN JUSTICE WEPT
(Henderson Dispatch)

By his own admission, Newton Hanes was guilty of something in the fatal shooting of Ishmael Simmons, although a Craven county jury sent him out of the court house a free man. Hanes related that the Negro had raped his wife, but that she said nothing about it for a month or more, and it was nine days even after that before the slaying occurred.

Charges of the rape of a white woman by a Negro man go a long way with juries, although circumstances of the alleged crime in this instance offered little convincing evidence to substantiate the claim. Moreover, as if to buttress himself against possibility that the jury would not accept that argument, Hanes also set up the contention that he shot the Negro in self-defense. There was testimony that Hanes already had a bad reputation for "shooting and drinking," and some witnesses claim that Simmons was with them all day on the train of the alleged crime against Hanes' wife.

The verdict is generally regarded as a gross miscarriage of justice. It does not increase faith in the fairness and integrity of the courts. Along with that, it will tend to heighten race prejudice among those who are always on the alert for just such evidence as this to support their arguments. In this particular instance, they have a pretty stout leg on which to stand.

Solicitor Bundy characterized the rape tale as "fabricated and imaginary," and there are many who agree with his appraisal of that sort of defense. Years may be required to establish in the minds of many people that justice can be had in the courts of North Carolina, but one instance of this sort will undo a great deal of what has been accomplished over a long period.

Theoretically, the law is supposed to recognize no color line, nor any social limitations. It should apply to all alike under like circumstances. The Craven jury's verdict is deplorable. Justice must have wept profusely when the twelve men marched into the court room and announced their decision.

Business Today

With not much fanfare, lobbyist, trade association executives and pressure groups have been quietly converging on Washington for a battle with billions of dollars at stake.

They are seeking allies for the third great fight over controls. Controls of prices and materials stem from the Defense Production Act, which automatically expires June 30. The Act undoubtedly will be passed again. But whether it will be stretched or watered down is up to Congress, and how members react to various pressures.

The administration is expected to ask for a stiffer program. Efforts will be made to repeal or modify the Caphart and Helms amendments which prescribe the Office of Price Stabilization must lift price ceilings. Other tightenings of the price-control features of the act will undoubtedly be pushed. There will be less of a fight over materials control. The Controlled Materials Plan appears to be working fairly well, although the larger auto companies are opposed to allocations which they say give smaller manufacturers an unfair advantage, and the housing industry is outraged at the new cutbacks which W. O. Atkinson, president of the National Association of Home Builders, says will reduce housing 23 per cent while cutting other civilian industries 10 per cent and the auto industry 7 per cent.

Favoring a lessening of price controls will be a larger number of associations representing both retailers and manufacturers and a lot of other special interests. Retailers are especially opposed to the margin freeze, although they liked the idea when it was first proposed. Unexpected rises in operating costs, they now say, have changed the freeze into a squeeze.

Those favoring weaker controls have a strong argument: Inflationary pressures are less than expected and, since inflation control was the reason for controls in the first place, there is less need for them. The answer will be, of course, that the reason inflationary pressures are less is price control. There will be a lot of Congressional debate over which is the cart and which is the horse.

Washington observers point out that the climate is not right for tightening controls. This being an election year, Congressmen will be loathe to impose more controls which would be resented by important segments of their constituencies. On the other hand, the advent of the election may tend to keep the law much as it is. Many Congressmen are eager to get back to the hustings and do not want a draw-out session. They will prefer a speedy reenactment of the D. P. A. with only such changes as can be quickly and painlessly agreed on.

Although the butter-margarine fight is far from ended, a fight over cream and vegetable oil whips may be shaping up. A California company is marketing two products of emulsified vegetable oils which are said to have the taste and performance of cream and whipping cream and, like margarine, smaller price tags. They can be added to non-fat dry milk solids and water to produce a "whole milk" at only 13 cents a quart.

As with margarine, first emphasis is being made on cooking uses, although other purposes are not being neglected. PRODUCE MEN UNITE FIGHT FROZEN FOODS

The National League of Wholesale Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association are scheduled to merge at a meeting in Cleveland, January 28. The purpose: to protect competition by frozen foods. The merged organization is expected to launch a campaign to improve packaging and transportation of fresh fruits and vegetables, to reduce speculation, and to map an extensive promotion of the values of fresh produce.

Carpet production last year fell considerably below 1950. Output during the first 11 months was 56,724,000 square yards, a decline of 27.8 per cent under the same period a year ago, according to Carpet Institute figures. December production is not believed to have changed the ratio material-ly.

FUNGICIDE: A new fungicide which is said to control brown patch on lawns and snow mold is being compounded by Mallinckrodt Chemical Works, 72 Gold St., N. Y. City.

Hal Boyle's Column

By ARTHUR EDSON
(For HAL BOYLE)

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Here it is six months until the political conventions, and already at least four presidential campaigns are rolling along.

Literature has been made up, and campaign buttons are being passed out, just as if the game already had started. As indeed, it has.

Let's drop around and have a look at what's stirring in campaign headquarters:

Senator Taft (R-Ohio): Most business-like office of all. It's in the Standard Oil Company Building, right below the Capitol.

From the outside it looks like any other business office, except for one thing: A GOP elephant painted on the door capers for joy, apparently because he is wearing a red blanket labeled, "Taft."

Campaign manager Vic Johnson is politicking at the Republican National Committee meeting in San Francisco, but I was allowed to peek into the inner sanctum.

An enormous U. S. map covered one wall. Underneath was the legend, "Sales Control Map." Pins were stuck generously in every state, leaving the impression that headquarters are certain the product, Taft, is selling well from coast to coast.

I counted seven pictures of Taft, looking confident, on various walls. I asked myself if the Taft buttons. Nothing frilly. Plain orange button with the single word, "Taft."

Gen. Eisenhower: Most decorated office of all. Must have got their bunting wholesale. The office is dominated by a huge, indirectly lighted picture of the General, looking confident.

National headquarters are in Topeka, Kans. The office here—in the Shoreham Hotel, a couple of miles from downtown Washington—is in charge of Senator Carlson of Kansas. He's in California.

Like all other campaign offices, the Eisenhower people depend a lot on volunteer help. Two calls came in while I was there. One was from someone who wanted to work for money, the other from one who offered to work for free. The volunteer got the friendliest greeting.

Took two red, white and blue campaign buttons. They say, "Like Ike."

Senator Kefauver (D-Tenn.) is in the newest of the offices. It opened in the Willard Hotel in downtown Washington.

Has a large picture of Kefauver, looking confident. Also considerable bunting and the Senator's trade mark, a coonskin cap.

A big board on one wall lists the 48 states, with stars after those which are supposed to have Kefauver committed. Only Delaware was unstarred. Charley Neese is in charge of the campaign, but he was in New York.

Kefauver, who hasn't decided whether he will run, dropped by the office once, but left no clues. He stayed less than a minute.

Got my campaign buttons. They're red, white and blue and say, "Kefauver For President."

Gov. Stassen: Quietest office of all. Only persons around when I dropped in was Helen Gunderson. She said the working office really is in New York. Her boss, Daniel C. Gainey, is on the west coast, too.

There were three pictures of Stassen, looking confident. No bunting.

The west coast, too. There were three pictures of Stassen, looking confident. No bunting.

The Stassen office also is in the Willard, and Miss G. dropped by the Kefauver office to see how things are there. "They may have overdone it," she said. "What did you think of bunting?"

I assured her I never had voted for a candidate because of his bunting.

Asked for campaign buttons. Miss Gunderson said, sorry, no buttons either. "We've got them ordered, though," she said.

Washington Letter

WASHINGTON—Oklahoma Mabel Kennedy, now assistant treasurer of the United States, has a lot in common with her boss, Georgia Neese Clark, a Kansan and first woman treasurer of this country.

"We're old pals," says Mrs. Kennedy, "and furthermore, our lives have followed about the same pattern." Both are widows, and both are country bankers. Both have been top figures in Democratic party affairs. The two are among the latest of President Truman's women appointees to high government posts.

Mrs. Kennedy has four daughters and a son and 11 grandchildren. Mrs. Kennedy is a native of Missouri, where her Virginia grandparents were settlers. She has maintained her legal residence in Pawhuska, Okla., since 1907. The widow of Edmund T. banker, she studied banking herself at the American Institute of Banking and took a course in ranch management at the Oklahoma College.

She simultaneously runs five cattle ranches and the Pawhuska National Bank of Commerce in addition to being Democratic national committeewoman for Oklahoma since 1948. She was a delegate to the 1940, '44 and '48 Democratic conventions.

The nation's second leading "T" woman is a dark, trim, slightly built, with dark hair and smiling brown eyes and a vivacious manner. She has a flair for style, prefers tailored costumes and matching ensembles, though she says she doesn't spend much time on herself. "I'm like a chorus girl about getting dressed—she it in a flash," she told newsmen here.

The story goes that when she attended President Vargas' inauguration in Brazil in 1951, the only woman member of President Truman's delegation of 18 representing the U. S., a Latin gauded surprise at the elegance with which she attired herself for a formal function.

"I've never seen a woman rancher dressed like that before," he said. "I don't wear this sort of thing when I ride the range," she replied.

Mrs. Kennedy used to cover many miles of her vast property on horseback. Now she does it by automobile, but she still feeds with her men off the "chuck wagon."

In addition to her many interests and responsibilities, Mrs. Kennedy pursues her hobbies of coins and early American glass. She explains her bright-eyed eagerness to get things done is the fact she can't stand to waste an evening going to bed early, "she says

By JIMMY ELLIS

On the strength of his 23 point scoring spree against High Point, Bobby Hodges has finally gained the scoring lead among the East Carolina Pirates although he's played in only nine of ten games played.

Hodges' 23 points Wednesday night showed his scoring total up to 173 points in nine games. That's an average of 19.2 points per contest. His closest rival, Senny Russell, maintained his 16.8 average by scoring 17 points against High Point. Senny's total for the year is now 168 points in ten games.

Both Hodges and Russell will be back at their scoring game tonight in Wilson. The Pirates will meet the Atlantic Christian Bulldogs tonight in a renewal of the Battle of the Bonkum Bucket. If my tips are correct, East Carolina has the symbol of athletic supremacy right now and I hardly believe they're ready to give it up.

It would be sheer folly to underestimate A.C.C., though. They are yet to win in North State Conference play but they've dropped some tough ball games. They nearly came through against Lenoir Rhyne but couldn't score when the chips were down.

The Pirates will probably present the same starting line-up tonight that started against High Point Wednesday. This line-up has Russell and Hodges at the forwards, Toddy Fennell at center, and Charlie Huffman and Paul Jones at the guards. Lou Collins and Dick Blake, the guards who started the first nine games of the year, might get back into the line-up but both Jones and Huffman did very well against High Point.

Huffman's performance was especially pleasing. He started the first game of the year at forward but was benched when Hodges took over the scoring lead. Up until Wednesday night, he had been used mainly as Hodges' substitute. If he can continue to play as he did Wednesday, his substitute days are over.

Incidentally, Huffman was once turned down for a basketball scholarship at High Point. His work Wednesday night, seems to have convinced at least one group of people that a mistake had been made.

Cap'n Dick Blake was the surprise of the game against High Point. Dick had started every game except that one and used very little of the Bucs until the final tie by the Bucs when he did get in the game. He popped in two quick field goals that kept the Pirates ahead when they really needed the points. He also got two more field goals later in the period and turned in a good job under the backboards.

Blake started out the season with something like a 14 point scoring average for the first five or six games. Then he ran into his slump. He lost his touch against Guilford and he still couldn't find it against Appalachian the next night. The Pirates took off for almost three weeks and when they came back against McCrary's Eagles, Dick was still not hitting.

If his performance Wednesday night means that he's got his touch back, he'll be a hard man to keep out of the line-up. He's a good rebound man and was close to leading the club in rebounds until he hit his slump.

After tonight's game with A.C.C., the Pirates will be idle until next Thursday night when they meet the Norfolk Naval Air Station in a return match. The Fliers defeated the Pirates 63-55 in the first meeting of the two clubs.

It hasn't been announced officially yet, but Coach Jack Boone's East Carolina baseball Pirates have an attractive baseball schedule drawn up for themselves.

The card lists around 25 games this spring and will be announced pretty soon by the college athletic office.

Work on the new gymnasium at EOC is still going on and is progressing to the extent that college officials are already planning use of the new pool next quarter. The Athletic Department has set up a schedule for courses in swimming next quarter. The new quarter will begin around February 26 or 27.

Indians Announce Signing Of First Baseman Easter

By FRED DOWN
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP)—The bigger they are, the quicker they fall into line—in Cleveland.

General Manager Hank Greenberg of the Indians corralled one of the club's biggest men, literally and figuratively, when he announced today that 6-foot-5-inch Luke Easter had signed to terms, reportedly calls about $11,000, in the third "big" Indian to sign without argument.

Bob Feller, a 22-game winner last season, signed recently as did broad-shouldered Al Rosen, who blasted 23 homers in 1951. The only other player the Indians have signed so far is outfielder Harry (Butts) Simpson, who, although not a big name yet, is one of Cleveland's great hopes for the future.

Elsewhere around the big leagues, the Chicago White Sox, seemingly intent on defending the signature-signing title that they won last winter when their club was the first to announce all players had accepted terms, reported they now have 22 players under contract for 1953.

The Chicago Cubs announced that Southpaw Joe Hatten was the fifth signer so far.

Brooklyn brought its signed player total to 10 by snaring the signatures of pitchers Carl Erskine and Jim Romano and catcher Steve Lembo in one swoop.

Centerfielder Chuck Diering, who looms far more important in the New York Giants' 1953 plans as a result of Willie Mays' impending entrance into the Army, agreed to terms with his new club. Diering came to the Giants along with pitcher Max Lanier in the deal that helped Eddie Stanky become St. Louis Cardinal manager.

Infielder Dick Smith signed his contract with Pittsburgh, becoming the third Pirate player to do so. Smith batted .330 with Charleston, S.C., last season and then hit .174 in 12 games for the Buccaneers at the end of the campaign.

Christenberry To Be Tough With New York Boxers

NEW YORK (UP)—The fight mob realized today that Chairman Robert K. Christenberry of the New York State Athletic Commission was such a tough man he would either clean up boxing or seek to have it outlawed in New York.

Loudly and grimly the chairman issued that warning last night at the annual dinner of the Boxing Writers' association in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

Christenberry said it was his opinion "now" that there are a lot of decent people in the fight game—that they are not all "criminals, hoodlums and scum."

He said, "It would seem there is nothing to prevent our driving out the undesirables."

But then he started the more than 400 listeners by adding: "However, if I find I'm wrong—if I find there are more criminals, hoodlums and scum in boxing than there are decent people, and if I find I can't guide out of boxing all these undesirables, then I'll resign and do everything within my power to have boxing abolished in this state."

According to the July, 1950, census report, California had a population of 10,472,348.

Belvoir Wins Thriller From Ayden Girls

Ayden Boys Win 51-41 Over Belvoir Boys

Nadine Morris Wins Game For Belvoir Girls With Minute And Half Remaining In Game; Ayden At Robersonville Tonight

By MELVIN LANG
Reflector Sports Writer

BELVOIR — A layup by Nadine Morris, coming with a minute and a half left in the game, gave Belvoir's defending Pitt County champions a 48-46 victory over Ayden's girls here last night. Ayden's boys took the nightcap, 51-41.

Trailing 34-29 on entering the final quarter, the winning Belvoir team staged a comeback that saw the score tied at 38, 40, 42-all, before Nadine Morris put them ahead for the final time with a free throw after 5:30 minutes had passed in the period. A field goal by Claudia Pollard and one by Morris in the next minute ran the margin to five points, 47-42.

Alice Jean Smith broke Ayden's scoring freeze, which had lasted for over two minutes, by dropping in a field goal from close up with a minute left in the game. Claudia Pollard came back with a free throw and the scoring for Belvoir, and just as the gun sounded Katherine Bright got off a field goal that was good for Ayden.

Belvoir took the lead early in the first quarter and built up a six point lead, but Ayden, who had trouble throughout the night in working with co-ordination of play, cut the margin to only three points at the close of the quarter. With Katherine Bright and Charlene Smith doing most of the scoring, Ayden went ahead for the first time in the second quarter and had a 23-18 lead at halftime intermission.

The win gives Belvoir a record of 11 wins against but one defeat. Ayden now has lost three games while winning six.

Claudia Pollard broke through the defensive cordon thrown up by Ayden's Peggy Conway, Betty Jean Padley, and Vera Thomas, to score 21 points to lead both teams in the scoring column for the night. She collected ten points in the first quarter. Nadine Morris was second high for Belvoir with 15 points, followed by Jean Jones with 12 points.

Four girls figured in Ayden's scoring. Katherine Bright was high with 14 points, but she was followed close behind by Alice Jean Smith with 13, and Wilma Stocks with 12 points. Charlene Smith dropped in seven points to round out the scoring.

Belvoir's tight defense was led by Edna Randolph and Jean Tyson. Shelby Waters also was outstanding on defense for the winners.

Boys' Game
Ayden won its second game in succession by the identical score of 51-41 by dropping Belvoir last night, after beating Farmville by the same margin last Tuesday night.

With lanky Mac Whitehurst leading the way with 17 points, Ayden took a rather substantial lead in the first half and then built it up in the third period and held on in the last quarter to take the decision, their seventh of the current campaign. They have lost two games.

Mac Dupree dropped in a free throw after ten seconds had passed in the contest to give Belvoir an early lead. Whitehurst dropped in a one-hander a few seconds later to give Ayden the lead, but Howard Bullock connected to give Belvoir the lead for the last time of the night. Whitehurst dropped in another field goal a few seconds later and Ayden led for the remainder of the game.

Mac Whitehurst, Randall Harrington hit for nine points to take second high scoring honors. Curtis Dennis was close behind with eight points, and Delano Cox connected for seven. Hal Edwards and Cox led the defensive play for Ayden.

Belvoir was paced by Howard Bullock with 12 points, followed by Franklin Garris with 11 points. Ralph Tyson also had eight points. Garris and Billy Ross looked good on defense for the losers.

Ayden travels to Robersonville tonight for a Coastal Conference contest, while Belvoir is idle.

Holy Cross Pulls Big Upset Over St. Louis

By STAN OPOTOWSKY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—It was now or never as Holy Cross' Jim Dillingham fidgeted at the foul line with a second to play in the overtime period.

If he sank the goal, it meant a victory over St. Louis and national basketball prominence for the Crusaders. If he missed it, Holy Cross would be — in the words of its own coach, Bus Sheary — "just another basketball team."

Dillingham, fouled by St. Louis' Guard Lou McKenna, bounced the ball nervously and then took his shot. It swished through the strings and Holy Cross won, 66-65, before 8,771 whopping fans at Boston. The defeat was the fourth in 15 games for St. Louis. It gave Holy Cross a 10-1 record and a good case for being rated among the nation's top 10.

St. Louis, ranked fifth in the nation, went into the game fresh from a victory over New York University. Bob Koch had just scored 30 points for the season's high in Madison Square Garden, and NYU Coach Howard Cann remarked that not even double-teaming Koch can halt his scoring sprees.

Koch wasn't stopped last night. He scored 21 points. But Togo Palazzi of Holy Cross, playing almost the entire game, scored 22. The score was tied at 61-61 at the end of regulation time, and each team scored four points in the five-minute overtime period when McCann made that fatal foul on Dillingham.

The game was the jewel on an otherwise drab basketball program last night. None of the undefeateds saw action.

Oklahoma A&M used its strength at the free-throw to score a surprisingly close 49-45 win over Wichita for its second Missouri Valley Conference victory without a defeat. But St. Louis, with a 3-0 record, still leads the league.

Wyoming's undefeated record within the Skyline Conference was punctured by Utah State's 54-47 victory. That leaves Brigham Young at the top of the league with a 2-0 record.

Arizona beat Texas Tech, 77-68, to pull into a tie with West Texas for the Border Conference lead, each with 3-0. But Texas Tech gets a chance to pull ahead tonight when it plays Arizona State.

Marciano Helped Boxing The Most

CHICAGO (AP)—Rocky Marciano, heavyweight contender who destroyed Joe Louis' comeback hopes, did most for boxing during 1951, Chicago boxing writers and broadcasters have decided.

They named Marciano last night for the Packey Mac Farland Trophy, annual award for the year's best contribution to boxing.

Marciano will receive the trophy at a dinner by the Chicago Boxing Writers and Broadcasters Association here Feb. 17.

Williams Unable To Back Greenville Club

Greenville's chances for re-admission in the Class D Coastal Plain League were lean today as its chief benefactor, Kelly Williams, owner of the Colonial Heights - Petersburg, Va., team in the Virginia League, has announced that he will be unable to take over the Greenville franchise.

Williams wired Guy V. Smith and W. Z. Morton last night and informed them that the Virginia League, which had been in a state of doubtful operation for the coming year, would probably operate again, as the teams in that circuit have raised enough money to back their teams. The Virginian offered to buy the franchise here at a meeting of the Coastal Plain last Monday night in Goldsboro, providing the Greenville people would help pay the standing debts against the local team.

The Virginia League is scheduled to have a meeting Sunday afternoon to discuss the possibilities of operating ahead this year. Williams, who has already withdrawn his offer to the Greenville people, has expressed doubt of any definite decisions to be made at the league meeting.

"It will take about three weeks, I should guess," Williams told an Associated Press reporter this morning. He also said that when the Coastal Plain gave Greenville seven days to clear up its difficulties, he was afraid that would not be enough time to do it.

Smith, one of the principal backers of baseball in Greenville for several years and one of the men who had represented Greenville at the Goldsboro meeting, stated this morning that the money which the local fans were supposed to put up as their part of the payment had almost been collected by last night. W. Z. Morton, the other leader in the revival of baseball in Greenville, was unavailable for comment this morning.

The unexpected situation leaves the Coastal Plain with only seven clubs and just about no chance at all of getting an eighth club. Wilmington, the city given the most

Pirates-ACC In Only North State Contest

By The ASSOCIATED PRESS
Atlantic Christian College plays host to East Carolina tonight in the only North State Conference basketball game on tap.

The Pirates will be seeking their third win in the conference while the Bulldogs are still looking for win number one. East Carolina defeated High Point Wednesday night, 71-65, in their only action of the week.

East Carolina Coach Howard Porter is expected to start Senny Russell and Bobby Hodges at the forward, Toddy Fennell at center and Jaul Jones and Charlie Huffman at the guards. This is the same combination which started the Pirate victory over High Point.

Game time tonight will be at 8 p.m. in the Atlantic Christian College gymnasium.

Unofficial conference standings find the Appalachian Mountaineers surging past High Point to take the league lead. High Point and Lenoir Rhyne are tied for second place.

In last night's activity Elon's Christians gained revenge for a previous defeat by edging McCrary's Eagles 63-62, in a return contest.

Ken Kendall paced the Christians with 18 points and Billy Hawkins netted 17. Hilliard Nance was high scorer for the Eagles with 19 points and Abe Williams followed with 18.

A pair of forwards, Dwight Granger and Lew Hawkins, dropped in 18 points each to lead the Presbyterian Blue Stockings to a 72-65 victory over Lenoir Rhyne in a rough-and-tumble non-conference tilt.

Presbyterian was battled to a halt for most of the first half, holding only a two-point lead at the end of the first period and a four-point lead at the half.

High for Lenoir Rhyne was Tony Sellari with a total of 28 points.

Golfers To Begin Steps To Clear Racial Prejudice
SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UP)—The first steps aimed at the elimination of racial discrimination in the ranks of the Professional Golfers Association will be taken today, PGA President Horton Smith announced.

As the $10,000 San Diego Open golf tournament rolled into the second round play with Ted Kroll leading the pack with a seven-under par 65, Smith said he expected to confer with other members of the PGA tournament committee on the possibilities of putting in new rules that would allow Negro professionals to compete against the field.

Amateur Joe Louis, who yesterday became the first Negro ever to play in a PGA-sponsored tournament, announced that he is going ahead with his program to break the PGA ban and hopes to play in the Phoenix Open and Tucson Open in Arizona the next two weeks.

Hairston Favored In Bout Tonight
NEW YORK (AP)—Gene (Silent) Hairston, 22-year-old New York middleweight contender, is a 3 to 1 favorite to whip veteran Al (Red) Priest of Cambridge, Mass. in the main ten rounder at St. Nicholas Arena tonight.

The 10 p.m. (EST) bout will be telecast by NBC and broadcast by ABC. Madison Square Garden, the usual site for the weekly Friday shows, is occupied by an ice show.

Hairston's record is 43-10-3 with 22 knockouts. The record book shows only Priest's performances since 1942, 37 wins, nine losses and two draws.

Bowl Games To Get Approval Says Rex Enright

MACON, Ga. (AP)—The Southern Conference will approve bowl games on a contract basis, Coach Rex Enright of the University of South Carolina predicted last night.

Enright, here to address the Macon Touchdown Club, said he believed "the conference would go for a permanent contract with a bowl that would match our champion with another."

The Rose Bowl has such an arrangement which pits the Pacific Coast Conference champion against the Big Ten winner and the Cotton Bowl host team is, by contract, the champion of the Southwest Conference.

After voting last year to ban post season games, the Southern Conference forced Maryland and Clemson to cancel their league games for 1953 for violating the ban.

In his speech, Enright said the football de-emphasis problem required the attention of experts and deplored some abuses in the present scholarship arrangements.

Pittsburgh Gets Minority Share Of Stars' Stock

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A minority interest in the stock of the Hollywood Stars of the Pacific Coast League has been acquired by the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Victor Ford Collins, president of the Stars, said yesterday that George F. Young has sold his stock in the club to Robert H. Cobb, who in turn sold it to Pittsburgh. Collins said he has agreed to sell his stock, also, to the Pirates, but that the major league club would not have control.

"Pittsburgh is in all respects a minority stockholder," said Collins, "owning just a little less than 25 percent."

President Clarence Rowland of the Pacific Coast League warned that any investment in this territory must be "on an up and up basis," and said the stock sale would have to be approved by PCL directors.

"No major league interests will be permitted to come in with the thought of using this territory as developing grounds for material," said Rowland. "This league is bound for the top and nothing is going to stop it."

Matthew Becomes a Follower

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matthew 9:9-17; Luke 5:27-39.

Jesus, passing by, saw a publican named Levi sitting at the seat of custom, and He said to him, "Follow Me," and the man rose up, left all and followed the Master.

That evening Levi gave a great feast in his house, and there was a big company of fellow publicans and of others that sat down with them at tables to eat and drink.

Scribes and Pharisees complained that Jesus and His disciples ate and drank with "publicans and sinners," and asked them why they did things that were forbidden Jews.

Jesus answered that "they that are whole need no physician, and that He came not to call the righteous, but sinners, to repentance."

MEMORY VERSE—Luke 5:28.

Matthew Becomes a Follower

HE LEFT HIS WORK AND WENT WITH THE MASTER.

Scripture—Matthew 9:9-17; Luke 5:27-39.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL IN JESUS' TIME in Palestine, publicans were tax gatherers for the Romans, who ruled the Jewish people. The jobs were sold to the highest bidders, and as there were no overseers to see that they collected only what was due, they grew rich from the proceeds of the excess money they collected.

The publicans were hated by their fellow Jews because they were working for the people's master, Rome, and so were disloyal to their own people. Also because of their extortion and exploitation of their neighbors.

They and their families were not permitted to associate with loyal Jews or even enter the synagogues. They were outcasts—but they made a great deal of money. Matthew or Levi, as St. Luke calls him, was probably heartily sick of his job. It is possible that he may have heard Jesus preaching, and had decided that the money he made was not worth the constant proddings of his own conscience.

When Jesus passed that way, and, instead of upbraiding him and shunning his society, called to him, he joyfully left all and followed after the Master.

The tax scandals of today make this a pertinent lesson for us. Do those accused, those that may be

People who are well-do not usually call a physician, only those who are ill, need such service. Jesus' mission on earth was to heal these people who were soul sick, and to make them see that their sins were causing their illness. He called them to come to Him, repent their sins, and save themselves.

That answer seemed to quiet His accusers; at least they dropped that subject, but they had another question that they thought would at least make the disciples unpopular. They asked, "Why do the disciples of John (John the Baptist) fast often, and make prayers, and likewise the disciples of the Pharisees; but thine eat and drink?"

What these men were concerned with was that the people should obey all the rules laid down by the church. If they went through all the formalities, that was quite all right; the church rulers did not inquire further.

Jesus' mission was to make men see that the formalities, while good in their way, were not so important as the spirit of the worship.

Jesus answered this question by saying, "Can ye make the children of the bridechamber fast, while the bridegroom is with them?"

MEMORY VERSE

guilty—feel that the money they may have collected will do them any good? They may, as Matthew probably had done for many years, quiet their consciences for the time being, but could any wealth so gotten make anyone truly happy?

Jesus saw Matthew or Levi not as a sinner, but as a good man whom He wanted with Him.

The call of Matthew took place at Capernaum, and that evening Matthew invited a large gathering to have a feast at his home. There "was a great multitude of publicans and of others that were sitting at meat with them"—Jesus and His disciples. Levi wanted everyone to know what had happened to him, and to persuade others to join him.

The scribes and Pharisees were always sneaking about, trying to find something that Jesus did or said that would give them an excuse to take Him into custody and have Him put away. This, they probably thought, was their great opportunity.

They were not of the company at the feast, but were waiting outside to question the disciples and Jesus Himself about this matter. They "murmured against His disciples, saying, 'Why do ye eat and drink with publicans and sinners?'"

"And Jesus answering said unto them, 'They that are whole need not a physician, but they that are sick, I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance.'"

"But the days will come, when the bridegroom shall be taken away from them, and then shall they fast in those days." Only Jesus knew how short that time would be.

This is Old Testament language. Jesus associated Himself with the Old Testament phrases and prophecies. He was the bridegroom, and He was present with His followers; therefore, why should they fast? His disciples were the sons of the bridegroom.

Then Jesus "spoke a parable unto them: 'no man, He said, would put a piece of material from a new garment and put it on an old one; 'else he will rend the old, and also the new will not agree with the old.'"

"And no man putteth new wine into old wine-skins; else the new wine will burst the skins, and it self be spilled. But new wine must be put into fresh wine-skins."

The scribes and Pharisees had made religion of that period a thing of formalism; of outward observance, Jesus' new gospel, fitted to the time, made it a thing of the spirit.

The first was outward, no good to patch it with the new. Throw it away and take the new. The old wine-skins would spoil the new wine and waste it; they must take new, fresh goat-skins which would preserve the wine poured into it.

Teachers Aware Of Recent Ebb In Home Training

CLEVELAND, O. —(UP)—Teachers in northern Ohio, at a series of meetings, have provided a wealth of new ideas for educators and have leveled serious criticisms at today's parents. The Central Association of Science and Mathematics Teachers was advised recently to make greater use of models when presenting a lecture.

Students not only listen more attentively, but learn more thoroughly when science models are displayed," Dr. J. A. Campbell, associated chemistry professor at Oberlin College said.

Home Training Wanes The Northeastern Ohio Teachers' Association was told — and members agreed—that schools are taking over many of the duties of parents. Broken homes and homes where both parents work — situations reported on the increase—combine to offer schools more children, some of whom cannot tie their own shoes. Others must be taught to brush their teeth and even wash their hands, according to Mrs. Eleanor Whipple, an Akron teacher.

"A teacher nowadays must give a pupil a pat on the back or a friendly smile to make up for the neglect (at home)," commented Ben Waddington, Cleveland wood-working instructor.

The problem of self-made entertainment also was discussed at U. S. N.E.O.T.A. gathering. The consensus was that radio, television and motion pictures had the effect of stunting the child's ability to entertain himself.

Hobbies Called Vital "Children must be participants, not mere spectators," Mrs. Elsie Peebles, an Akron elementary teacher said, "if they are to get some kick out of life. More and more, the teacher must teach the games, stunts and hobbies that once were developed at the family fireside."

Miss Babetta Breuhaus of Cleveland Heights, warned parents that "children's poetry is better for the child than a diet of radio wisecracks and mystery stories" in another criticism of the over-flow of commercial entertainment which invades the home.

Teachers from Akron have found extensive use of field trips, real and imaginary, offer valuable aids in education. The Akron Public School system has even prepared a pamphlet for teachers naming 22 possible places to go in the Rubber City, with suggestions on how to prepare pupils for the trips.

Border Guards Insure No More Freedom Trains

HOF, Germany — (AP) — Czech border guards have tightened precautions to forestall any attempt at a second "freedom train" escape through the Iron Curtain, West German border police report.

The Czechs have fastened steel bars to the rails from Asch, Czechoslovakia, to the Bavarian border to on this stretch, the Germans reported.

German police said that only trusted Czech railway personnel possess a "safety wrench" to remove the bars permitting the few authorized passenger and freight trains to cross the border to West Germany.

Czechs also are reported busy digging ditches and erecting electrically charged fences which will discharge automatic flares at a touch. Czech border guards then machinegun the area systematically.

Mooring Mast Is Television Aid

NEW YORK —(AP) Originally designed as a mooring mast for airships in the days of the Zeppelins, the tower that makes up the top floors of the 108-story Empire State building finally has come into its own.

The tower now houses a mast that bears the antennas of five of the New York area's seven television stations. WNBC-TV, WISN-TV, WABD, WJZ-TV and WPIX send out their programs simultaneously without interference although their antennas are located within a short distance of each other on the mast.

Addition of the mast to the tower increased the building's extreme height to almost 1,500 feet.

Princess Elizabeth To Soon Go On Another Tour Distant Lands

LONDON —(UP)—Princess Elizabeth, a new wardrobe in her trunks and back on kissing terms with Prince Charles, sets out with the Duke of Edinburgh, Jan. 31 on another journey to the far places of the British Empire.

Again the 25-year-old heiress to the throne is traveling in place of her father, King George, who still is convalescent after a serious lung operation. She and her husband will be away from England in Africa and Australia for more than four months.

Her departure will help create a situation almost without precedent in British history. The king and queen and Princess Margaret will sail for the West Indies aboard the battleship Vanguard in the spring, on what amounts to a recuperative cruise for the sovereign.

Thus three of the royal figures who help make up the five-person council of state which acts in the absence of the king—the queen, Margaret and Elizabeth—will be out of the country at the same time. So unusual is this occurrence that Prime Minister Winston Churchill will ask Parliament to pass special legislation to cover it.

Princess Has Rested
Palace sources describe the princess as completely rested from the exciting but exhausting six weeks tour of Canada from which she returned only Nov. 17.

She had three full weeks of freedom from public duties—a period on which she insisted because 3-year-old Prince Charles failed to kiss her on her return.

This was partly due to the noise and color of the homecoming ceremonies but also partly due—as the princess recognized—to the fact the little prince has seen his mother so infrequently since the king's health threw so many additional royal burdens her way.

Now they are mother and son again rather than princess and prince.

The royal courtiers have made the princess a new wardrobe for the tour. As is always the case with royal costumes the design and colors are state secrets until worn by the princess in public.

Chapter 11
Although Marcia had been prepared to find Victor Scott's country estate on the Bay very elegant and imposing, she was not prepared for quite so much grandeur. Everything was on the scale of an enormous motion picture setting: drawing room, library, music room and den; each bedroom with its private dressing room and bath; grounds with formal gardens like a park, the blue-green swimming pool with its picturesque terrace; eighteen holes of golf course, a sandy beach embracing the blue bay; and a corps of well-trained servants to keep all of this opulence in order.

But it was Dean Marcia thought of as she took her hot shower and dressed. She had been so delighted when she had found the Dean was to share this week-end. But Dean had behaved somewhat strangely; he had seemed to avoid her. The week-end was nearly over and they had had very few minutes alone together.

It had been entirely different that day when Marcia had gone to his apartment. Dean had been very business-like about the sitting, putting Marcia at ease because of this attitude. Then when it was over—and he had not allowed her to pose long, claiming he did not want her to become weary or bored as then she might refuse to come again—he had been friendliness personified.

He had insisted on making tea and a platter of hot toast. They had been very gay over this simple repast. The whole atmosphere had been charged with intimacy.

"Imagine me enjoying a cup of tea," he had said, with his crooked little tantalizing smile. "I told you, youngster, you bring out the best in me. In every way. This is going to be the best piece of work I ever did. I feel it in my bones, and when I get that feeling it never fails."

And now this week-end he had behaved so strangely. As though she were someone he had just met. When forced to exchange a few words, he was curt and impersonal. And he certainly had avoided Marcia as carefully as though he were afraid to be left alone with her for even as much as a split-second.

Now, brushing her hair, putting a last touch of perfume behind each ear, Marcia decided it had been deliberate. Was it because of the others? Abigail? Did Dean intend their friendship to be limited to the secret meetings when she posed for him? If so, Marcia decid, she would not pose again. She would tell him so. Tonight. She was going to wear the new dress, the loveliest dress Marcia ever had owned. The color was a sort of gray-rose, ashes of roses, Carol had called it, and it had a wide girdle in a deeper shade. Matching this, there was a circlet of roses that crowned Marcia's short curls and there were more roses hidden among the folds of the full-length skirt. The dress had practically no back and a quaint small bustle. It was very simple, a garden-party dress for a young girl, yet, provocatively, the expanse of bare back, the snugness of the bodice gave it the suggestion of sophistication.

She looked different, there was no question about that. How she would look to Dean? That was the question that was in Marcia's mind as she joined the group already gathered on the south terrace for the cocktail hour. Would he notice, would he approve? Or would Dean look at her at all?

"My dear," Victor Scott said, holding out a hand to draw Marcia toward the rest of them, "you look like someone stepping from an old master's most famous painting. A wood nymph. A young goddess turned into flesh and blood. I didn't realize, Abbie, that your little sister is a beauty, too!"

"I told you I could turn her into one!" Carol raised her arched eyebrows, her tone proudly triumphant.

"You do look different," Cliff Travers said. "Like music. Beethoven, I think. Or no, Debussy."

"You look much more grown-up," Mrs. Terry broke in. "I don't know how you do it, Carol. That dress is a masterpiece. So girlish, yet so revealing."

"She looks the same to me," Manning Kornoff interrupted. "A dress cannot change a pretty girl. Girls should be pretty, nothing more. Not dryads or goddesses or muses. Nor," his eyes sought Abigail's, "too beautiful for their own good and the good of others."

"You ought to be ashamed, all of you," Abigail said, in her light, yet purposeful tone. "Can't you see it's embarrassing to Marcia to be the center of so much comment? See how she's blushing? Don't mind them, Marcia darling; they have no manners, any of them. Unless oddity, Dean has refrained from adding his opinion out of politeness. Wouldn't you like to paint my little sister, Dean?"

Her voice, and glance, became mocking. "I've always wanted Dean to do a portrait of me," she added, "but all of you know, he has always refused. Now will he give any reason. But perhaps he won't be as stubborn when it comes to Marcia."

"I wouldn't paint Marcia as she looks now," Dean's voice was gruff his manner almost rude. "You were right, Abbie." He made her one of his stiff little bows. "I kept quiet out of politeness. But since you insist I be rude, I do not like the dress Carol made, nor the way it hugs Marcia's figure, nor the bare back. I do not like the wreath of

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

The average American home erected within the last 10 to 15 years has turned out to be too nearly air-tight. It has been so snugly constructed in an effort to step up the efficiency of its heating plant, as well as to keep it comfortable in summer, that it is often a poorly ventilated house.

This results in some serious trouble. Letters from many owners of newer homes tell of paint blistering and peeling off their houses, wallpaper staining and loosening, window and door hardware corroding and rusting. While condensation of excess moisture is the immediate cause of such damage, the real villain in the case is lack of controlled ventilation.

It used to be that houses leaked enough air through floor and wall cracks and around windows and doors to keep them adequately ventilated. One ordinary, well-fitted window, for example, will leak enough air in even a 20-mile wind (which isn't much of a blow to change the air in a good-sized room every hour.

Because that means wasted heat, weatherstripping and storm sash are used to cut that leakage down to a negligible minimum. Then the use of large sheets of modern building materials, such as plywood or gypsum sheathing, tough sisal-felted building papers, blankets of insulation and tight vapor seals in walls and ceilings have largely eliminated cracks to a point where houses can't breathe like they used to.

"Such a good job has been done with modern building methods," observes one heating expert, "that the normal air leakage in a new house has been reduced from one-third to one-half the amount found in an older house. Modern weathertight houses may have as little as one-half an air change each hour. This often is inadequate to supply the amount of outside air the family needs for its comfort and health."

That commentator, Sheldon Coleman, Wichita, Kan., manufacturer of heating equipment, contends that the modern house needs not only a heating plant, but a heating and ventilating system.

Heating in winter and coolness in summer are not enough for complete comfort. Seven requisites for proper indoor air are: (1) satisfactory temperature, (2) adequate density, (3) proper amount of water vapor, (4) constant but imperceptible motion, (5) freedom from dust, dirt, smoke and pollens, (6) freedom from germs and bacteria, and (7) lack of staleness, which means fresh air.

Three Artificial Lakes To Aid In Irrigating Farms

CAGLIARI, Sardinia. —(AP)—Three artificial lakes being made in the upper reaches of the Flumendosa River will enable 8,000 families to have new farms in a 112,000-acre area of formerly uncultivated land. The three lakes will have a total capacity of 50 million cubic meters of water, and will supply water to 22 towns with a total of 100,000 inhabitants who now have only scanty wells.

This effort has been possible in this Mediterranean island through the financial aid of UNRRA, Interim aid, ERP, ECA, and a new Italian credit institute which appropriated 200 million dollars to be spent over 10 years for the building of roads, aqueducts, industrial plants and land reclamation projects in Sardinia.

Colorado's New Toll Road Opens

DENVER —(AP)—Colorado's first important toll road is the Boulder-Denver four-lane turnpike. The toll is 25 cents for automobiles, 50 cents for trucks. The turnpike is 17½ miles long in a straight line from Denver to Boulder. It will be joined to the new Colorado Springs-Denver highway by way of the Valley highway. A toll road also operates to the 4,100-foot summit of Pikes Peak west of Colorado Springs. City officials said the road has shown a profit each year at a toll charge of 50 cents per automobile. The highway, 18 miles long, is open only in summer months.

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia —(AP)—One man was killed in a traffic accident, but when the police arrived they found two bodies. One man was killed when the jeep he was driving rammed into the rear of a truck. Police then found the body of an army lieutenant in the truck. He had been injured fatally by a hit-and-run driver a few days previous and the truck was carrying his body from a hospital to his home for burial.

TB Leads Death Toll In Italy

ROME —(AP)—Diseases of the respiratory system remain the chief cause of death in Italy, a recent official report states. In 1950 tuberculosis and allied ailments accounted for 20 per cent of the deaths in this country. Heart disease brought the second largest number of deaths. Thirteen per cent of all deaths came from this disease. Cancer and other malignant tumors were put in third place causing 11 per cent of all deaths in 1950.

DR. KENNETH W. CLARK

Dr. Robert E. Cushman and Dr. Kenneth William Clark, both faculty members of the Duke Divinity School, will offer instruction at the Seminar to be held at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church on Monday and Tuesday of next week.

Cushman, son of Ralph S. Cushman and native of Massachusetts, is professor of systematic theology at Duke University. He will preside over a lecture on "The Authority of the Apostolic Church and Mission" at the opening period on Monday morning following the devotional by the Rev. Hiram King. On Tuesday morning at 9:30 he will lecture on the subject "The Wesleyan Revival and the Mission of Methodism."

Dr. Clark, professor of New Testament Language and Literature at the Divinity School of Duke, is a native of New York. He is author of a number of periodicals and books, dealing particularly with the Greek manuscripts and research in Greek history of Biblical times. He is a Greek scholar of considerable note.

Dr. Clark will preside over the period when new books for ministers will be reviewed on Monday will also be present to preach at the vesper service at the Methodist church on Sunday afternoon at 8:00 p.m. The subject will be "Journeying With St. Paul".

On Monday night a program of particular interest to Methodist women will be presented with a panel discussion on "The Laywoman's View." Taking part in the discussion will be Mrs. J. H. Cutchin of Whitakers, president of the N. C. Woman's Society of Christian Service; Miss Sarah Godfrey, president of the N. C. Wesleyan Service Guild; Mrs. J. B. Kittrell of Greenville; Mrs. T. S. Newbold of Rocky Mount; and Mrs. J. E. Peterson of Kingston.

All the sessions of the Seminar are open to the public. During the two-day Seminar, more than 100 ministers from eastern North Carolina will be in attendance. Many will drive over each day for the sessions, while others will be guests in local homes. The Seminar was instituted about four years ago and made possible through the James A. Gray Fund. It is one of the projects of the Divinity School. A similar meet will be held in Winston-Salem Thursday and Friday of the same week for ministers in the Western North Carolina Conference.

Less Skidding In Zero Weather

CHICAGO — (UP) — The danger of skidding on ice and snow goes up with the thermometer, according to safety experts of the Kemper insurance group. They point out that the skidding distance at 30 degrees above zero is more than twice as great as at four below. Tests show, the experts say, that a car equipped with ordinary tires can stop from 20 miles per hour in about 110 feet on ice at four below. The same car needs at least 250 feet on ice at 30 above. They warn both motorists and pedestrians that a slippery film begins to appear on snow and ice as soon as the temperature rises above the 14-degree mark.

Thank-You Note From Escapee

Stauffer didn't want the sheriff to take it personally. So he wrote a polite note of appreciation for Bernard Ammerman's hospitality when he broke out of the Vernon County jail. "If my own father had lived, I would want him to be like you," the 22-year-old Los Angeles magazine salesman wrote. "And if he had lived I might be a different type of fellow. If I am caught I will never be in trouble again."

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

AP Newsfeatures A NINE-FOOT OVERHANG shelters the broad windows and glass doors of this house that exploits the blending of indoor and outdoor living. Clerestory windows under the flat roof provide for rapid ventilation in warm weather. California modern in style, this house H-131B was designed by the Homograf Planner Corp., 1171 East Eight Mile Road, East Detroit, Mich. The house covers approximately 1,500 square feet and requires no basement.

Patrolmen Often Report Doors Unlocked At Night

Greenville policemen, patrolling their beats in the business section on foot and in radio cars, find many doors to offices and stores unlocked nights. The night patrolmen, nearly every night, except Sunday, find half a dozen or more places open while they make their rounds. The police check doors—front and rear—during their night time rounds. Seven places were found unlocked Wednesday night of wholesale and retail stores; offices, drug stores, and sometimes a bank and occasionally a newspaper office. Checking reports at police headquarters, a reporter found that there has never been a report that a physician had left his office door unlocked when he left for the night.

Policemen on the midnight to 8 a.m. shift have some interesting experiences when they phone owners of stores or offices that their doors are unlocked. Some "echo" back to the officers, "Just slip the night latch when you close the door," or "I will be right down." In one store found open during the Christmas holidays, the officer found the safe door open, and the keys to the establishment on the bookkeeper's desk. The owner was amazed when he was called to his store. Nothing was missing, but there was a lot of money from the day's sales in the open safe.

Helpful Witness Had Wrong Idea

MILWAUKEE, Wis. — (UP) — Someone once said that you can't please a woman and at least one helpful Milwaukeean agrees. He stepped in when he spotted a young woman driver futilely backing in and out of a tiny parking space. Fifteen minutes later the car was neatly parked in the space, thanks to his directions and gestures. "Thank you very much, sir," the woman said. "This is very nice, but I was trying to get out!"

Diesels Termed Health Hazard

CHICAGO — (UP) — The increasing use of diesel locomotives has created a new industrial health hazard, according to an article in the American Medical Association's Journal. The article was written by Drs. John R. Winston and Edmond N. Walsh, who are associated with the Scott and White clinic of the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe Hospital. They said chromate salt compounds used in diesel locomotive radiator fluid can cause serious, crippling skin inflammations. There is a high rate of sensitivity to such compounds, the doctors said. They recommend that workers who are exposed to the fluid wear rubber gloves and boots, waterproof aprons and sleeves.

Edison's Tools Among Ford Village Treasures

DEARBORN, Mich. — (UP) — If Thomas Alva Edison were alive today, he could sit at his original work bench, pick up a cigar he lighted in 1929, and work with the same tools he used in 50 unexpired years of invention.

A material record of America's greatest inventor, who died Oct. 18, 1931, is painstakingly preserved here at Henry Ford's 250-acre Greenfield Village. Most of the objects lie where Edison left them. Ford, who as a young man drew much encouragement from Edison in his work on the "horseless carriage," acquired the inventor's entire Menlo Park, N. J., laboratory and transported it here.

Brick by brick, chair by chair and chemical bottle by chemical bottle, all four buildings and their contents are arranged here exactly as they were in Menlo Park.

Boarding House There The boarding house of Mrs. Sarah Jordan, where Edison's assistants lived, stands across the road from the original laboratory building. It was the first home ever lighted by electricity.

Edison's first visit to Dearborn was in 1929, the 50th anniversary of the invention of the incandescent electric light.

Charles Matz, curator of the Edison buildings, recalls the event. "After he had shown Edison around, Mr. Ford asked him if everything was just right," Matz related. "Edison said the whole layout was 99 9-10ths per cent correct."

Mr. Ford was worried. He asked right away what tenth of a per cent was incorrect.

Exhibit Too Clean "Edison replied, 'our place was never this clean!'"

It was on this first visit that Edison left a cigar butt while walking through one of the buildings. After Edison left, Ford ordered that the cigar never be moved. It never has been.

Also at the 1929 celebration, Edison, who had 1,033 inventions patented from 1868 to 1928, made by hand a model of the first incandescent light. The light, made with a carbonized sewing thread for a filament, still burns. Tucked away in a corner of his laboratory is Edison's first patented invention, an electrographic vote recorder, and a flop as far as immediate acceptance was concerned.

Edison took the machine to Washington in 1868 but congressmen were unimpressed. "Nice machine you have there," they told him, "but how can we filibuster if all you have to do is press a button?"

Seek Victims Of Radium Drinking

CHICAGO — (UP) — A group of Chicago scientists is searching for people who drank radium as a medicine before the treatment was revealed to be dangerous.

The study, conducted by the Argonne National Laboratory, is to discover how much radium a human body can take without harm and the relationship between dosage of radiation and cancer formation.

Drinking radium chloride in water was popular between 1915 and 1930 as a treatment for high blood pressure and other ailments. The Chicago team has located 36 former radium users so far. One of them had died of cancer.

Doctors said others have shown a few areas of dead bone in the leg.

Mailman Retires After 33 Years

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. — (AP) — After 33 winters as a mailman, V. Ray Smock, 68, is retiring.

Smock is turning his letter-carrying duties over to someone else because he has broken cartilages in his knees from falls on ice.

Forger Erred In Triplicate

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — (UP) — There is no substitute for accuracy. In a display of faked and forged documents in the museum room of state archives building there was a document which was proved false because:

- 1—The watermark on the paper was not designed until 15 years after the claimed date of the document.
- 2—The typewriter used was not made until 31 years after.
- 3—The type of paper fastener used was not manufactured until 10 years later.

Citizenship May Become Easier

SINGAPORE — (AP) — The Singapore government is considering a proposal to cut the present $30 nationalization fee and also to make it simpler for non-British subjects to become citizens.

Chinese leaders had said that the present procedure was too costly and too cumbersome. They said thousands of Chinese who lived in this Crown colony for decades were thus denied citizenship rights.

California produces more gold than any other state.
