'Eyewash Votes' Striking Sparks

Truman Dismissal Of Primary Elections Brings GOP Retorts; Demo Senator Douglas Urges Expansion Of State Presidential Primaries Rather Than Contraction

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman's dismissal of state presidential primary elections as eyewash brought sharp retorts today from Republican contenders for his job.

Harold E. Stassen said: "President Truman's statement is an example of the cynical attitude of the Pendergast machine toward the rights of the people."

Gov. Earl Warren of California said: "The election process in this country is never eyewash."

Stassen added in a statement that the primaries are "the people's best chance to influence the selection of their own leaders in both political parties."

Democrats generally shied away from comment, but Senator Smithers (D-Fla.) said he agreed with the President.

He and Senator Douglas (D-Ill.) have been pushing for congressional action to install party primaries in all the states.

Senator Douglas, noting he was not seeking a row with the President, urged that "presidential primaries be expanded rather than contracted."

Three other Democratic senators agreed with Truman's claim that he can have his party's presidential nomination—if he wants it—without bothering about state primaries.

Still keeping his plans to himself, the President told his news conference yesterday that if he wants the nomination he does not have to go into any primary.

"I feel sure about that," Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo.) told a reporter. "In fact he'll have to fight now to keep from being renominated."

Johnson clung to his belief that Truman will not be a candidate again for the Presidency.

Senator Anderson (D-NM), who served in the Truman cabinet as Secretary of Agriculture and thinks the President will run again, agreed Truman can ignore all primaries and still be renominated.

Senator Kerr (D-Okla.), who has hinted he might run if Truman does not, put it this way:

"It is generally recognized that if he lets it be known that he is available."

J. H. Rose, director of civil defense for Pitt County, announced this morning that a 30-minute movie entitled "And A Voice Shall Be Heard" will be shown in the new West Greenville School Gymnasium at 7:30 p. m. the first three days of the coming week.

The movie will show just what steps city officials and private citizens may take to help prevent serious personal injury during an actual enemy attack. It will also deal at length with preventative measures that cities and towns should set up before an attack.

LONG CRIME WAVE

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP)—Sidney Martin, 63, a Negro butler at Peace College, was convicted in city court yesterday of stealing items of food from the college over a long period of time. So long in fact, officers said, that they found a can of coffee in his house marked 57 cents.

'Resigned' PMA Clerk Doesn't Know Reason For Losing Post

A lady clerk formerly with the Pitt County Production and Marketing Administration who resigned recently, yesterday charged PMA Secretary James Meredith with asking for her resignation.

Mildred Adams, an employee of the local PMA office from September, 1942, until she resigned in January, stated yesterday Meredith called her into his office January 16 and asked her to submit her resignation.

According to Miss Adams, the request grew out of the circulation of a petition among the farmers of the county which requested that she be made secretary of the local PMA office.

She said Meredith asked for her resignation because of the petition. "Mr. Meredith told me he thought I had something to do with the petition—that I was the instigator—and on that account, asked me to resign," she stated.

During her conversation, she said she did not know why Meredith made such a request, other

Gabrielson RFC Deals Embarrass Republican Solon

Kyzer Begins Nixon Urges GOP Chairman's Ouster In Wake Of Congressional Report

WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. Richard M. Nixon (R-Calif.) charged today that Republican National Chairman Guy George Gabrielson has put GOP congressmen in an "incongruous position" by his dealings with the RFC.

He made the statement after the Senate's investigating committee issued a report which Gabrielson hailed as complete vindication for his dual role as party chairman and as paid president of Carthage Hydrocol, Inc., a firm which has borrowed $18,500,000 from the RFC.

The Senate report dealt mainly with last year's hearings on the relations between former Democratic Chairman William M. Boyle Jr. and the American Lithofold Corp. of St. Louis, a $645,000 RFC borrower.

Boyle had no immediate comment on the report. It cleared him of any "illegal" actions, but asserted that his "conduct was not such that it would dispel the appearance of wrongdoing."

The committee said it was "not in the interest of good government" for Gabrielson to continue representing Carthage Hydrocol before the RFC after he became GOP chairman. But it found "no evidence of improper influence" on his part.

Nixon, who has urged several times that Gabrielson resign, asserted that "no amount of explanation will remove the doubt from the minds of the great majority of people" about the propriety of a party chairman dealing with the RFC on a private loan.

He noted that a majority of Senate and House Republicans are on record in favor of abolishing the RFC.

These GOP lawmakers, Nixon said, "find themselves in the incongruous position of having their party chairman's salary paid by the RFC."

Nixon apparently meant that the annual salary which Gabrielson draws as Carthage Hydrocol president is made possible because of the RFC loan to the firm.

Gabrielson said that he was gagged into the investigation by "false and malicious charges originally made against me by an irresponsible Democratic congressman."

Nixon said that "unless the Republican Party takes strong, decisive action in cases of this kind, we are going to find that the Democrats—with men like Sen. (Estes) Kefauver—will run away with the corruption issue in the campaign."

The Senate committee rapped Boyle sharply.

The group said "it is evident that (Boyle) failed to follow that course of conduct which the public rightfully expects of the chairman of a major political party."

New Marine Air Wing Activated

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Marine Corps today commissioned the Third Marine Aircraft Wing at the Marine Air Station at Cherry Point, N. C.

The new wing, which still consists only of administrative units, was set up as part of the newly redesignated Third Marine Division. The division was recently created out of the Third Marine Brigade to form the framework for a full division if needed.

Demands Given Textile Union By Woolen Firm

BOSTON (UP)—President Francis W. White of the American Woolen Co. has submitted a series of demands to the CIO textile workers' union that may decide the future of the company's 22 mills in New England.

White said he wrote a letter to TWUA President Leslie Rieve and that "in it, demands were made."

He would not discuss what the demands were, but it was understood they contained the conditions under which American Woolen would renew its contract with the TWUA March 15.

The company, charging that it couldn't meet Southern competition because of high wages and taxes in New England, asked earlier for a speedup in work.

county committeemen, who told her they instructed Meredith that it would be his duty to ask her to resign.

Miss Adams submitted her resignation January 16, and it was accepted at a meeting of the county committee that night. She began work with the PMA as marketing quota assistant in 1942, and was serving as compliance clerk at the time of her resignation.

Yesterday afternoon, when questioned about Miss Adams' resignation, PMA Secretary Meredith said, "The only statement I care to make is that she just resigned." When asked why, the secretary replied that it would just be stirring up trouble and he would not give out any information.

"If you get any information, it will have to be from someone besides me," he said. "Personally I hope it doesn't get into the paper, not because it will hurt me, but because it will stir up more trouble."

From January 7 to January 16, Miss Adams reported, she was out on sick leave, and when she came back on the 16, the request was made that she resign. During her illness, she said, she talked with J. L. Wilson and Carl Scott,

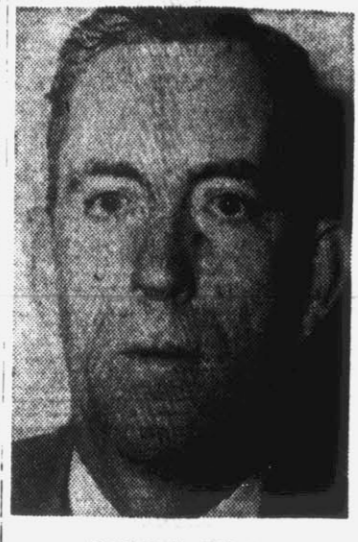

Elected To C-Of-C Posts

W. W. SPEIGHT

J. W. OVERTON

ERCEL S. WEBB

A. HARTWELL CAMPBELL

C-of-C Directors Elect Ercel Webb President

Campbell, Speight Elected Vice Presidents; Overton Re-Elected Treasurer; Old Board Transacts Final Business

Ercel S. Webb was elected as chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors last night at a meeting of the new and old board in the Chamber's office at Five Points.

A. Hartwell Campbell and W. W. Speight were elected as vice-presidents along with the re-election of J. W. Overton as treasurer. The officers will head the board of directors for a one-year term, beginning today, February 1.

The new officers and three men, Alton R. Barrett, N. O. Van Nortwick, Jr., and George Wolkstein, will serve on the executive committee. The president was empowered to appoint a finance committee.

Officers whose terms expired last night were F. Badger Johnson, president; C. E. Blair and F. W. Overton, vice-presidents; J. W. Overton, treasurer; and Van C. Fleming, Jr., National Councilor to the Chamber of Commerce. Badger Johnson was elected as new national councilor.

The old board of directors met first last night to transact old business. They heard a financial report where it was stated that the chamber is in sound financial condition. Dave Whitchard, III, chairman of the public relations committee, reported on the new member's party and Whitchard said he had heard a large number of favorable comments from both newcomers and representatives of the sponsoring organizations.

The steering committee of the public relations committee will meet sometime next week to appraise the party and make suggestions for improving the party if it is to be an annual affair.

The board also authorized full cooperation in the extension of Route 13 which is proposed to run from the southern terminus of Windsor through Greenville, Robersonville, Kinston, Clinton, and south.

The first business of the new board was to elect their officers for the fiscal year beginning today. Following the election of officers, Willard T. Kyzer was re-elected as manager of the Chamber of Commerce. This will begin Kyzer's 14th year as manager.

Eight new directors were added to the board and began three-year terms today. They are Dr. E. B. Aycock, Alton R. Barrett, A. Tyson Bilbro, A. W. Bryan, S. Reynolds May, John C. Proctor, W. W. Speight, and N. O. VanNortwick, Jr.

Iran Spokesman Says Shutdown Order Was Error

TEHRAN (AP)—A government spokesman denied today that Iran has decided to close all foreign cultural centers outside Tehran and said shutdown orders issued yesterday to American, British and Russian information offices were due to "wrong handling by local authorities."

U. S. and British embassy spokesmen said yesterday that provincial governors had ordered immediate closing of the U. S. Information and Education (USIE) centers in Tabriz, Meshed and Isfahan and the British Councils, branches of a government-subsidized cultural organization, in the same three cities and in Shiraz.

The spokesman said they understood the Russians also received orders to close two cultural branches in the capital city.

Today U. S. and British officials said they would halt the planned shutdowns pending further clarification.

Train Wrecked By Broken Rail

GOLDSBORO (UP)—Atlantic and Eastern Railroad crews worked today to clear the tracks blocked near here by the derailment of a freight train.

No one was injured in the wreck between here and La Grange. Officials blamed the accident on a broken rail.

The center section of the 41-car train buckled outward late yesterday, damaging 11 cars, five badly and two beyond repair. The line's assistant general manager, W. J. Edwards, estimated the damage at $15,000.

The A and EC runs from Goldsboro to Morehead City and carries only freight.

Second Day Of Idleness At DuPont

No Progress Toward Settlement Reported In Yesterday's Meeting

GRIFTON—Construction workers at the $40,000,000 Du Pont plant near here were off the job for the second straight day today as members of the painters union continued to picket the entrance to the plant site and other workers not directly involved observed the union picket line.

Only scanty information of negotiations between the company and the union was available, but the groundwork for getting full scale negotiations started was believed underway.

Representatives of the Du Pont company and Local 678 of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America (A. F. of L.) met for a short time yesterday afternoon, but no progress toward a settlement of the dispute was reported by either the union or the company.

A statement released by the Du Pont company shortly before 1 o'clock this afternoon said:

"Durham painters Local 678 continues to maintain a picket line along highway number 11 which is being recognized by the majority of Du Pont manual employees, thus continuing to slow down construction of the project. C. S. Anderson, field project manager, stated today that he regretted the workmen were losing time by staying away from the project."

"The basic demand by the union that we remove certain painters from the job has not been adequately explained to us; neither can we remove these men under existing state and federal laws without just cause. In addition we believe it would be unjust to do so."

"The injected wage issue may be settled on the union furnishing information acceptable to the company and to the Construction Industry Stabilization Commission." We are now paying maximum rates under government regulations."

Work on the huge Dacron plant was virtually halted yesterday morning when the Painters Union threw a picket line along highway 11 at the entrance to the plant site, and other workers not directly involved in the dispute between the company and the Painters Union refused to cross the picket line.

Practically all of the estimated 925 construction workers at the multi-million dollar Dacron plant were away from their jobs yesterday and today as a result of the picket line of the Painters Union.

Union spokesmen who have been quoted by the press in connection with the strike insist that the dispute arose over the question of a wage increase approved by the Wage Stabilization Board which the company would not recognize. The company statement however termed a union demand that certain painters (assumed to be non-union painters) be removed from the job as the "basic demand" of the union.

Ohio Flood Crest Near Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (AP)—The crest of the weakened Ohio River flooded toward Cincinnati today and areas downstream in Kentucky and Indiana began getting ready for their job of high water.

The predicted crest of 57.5 feet was due here today. That would be five and a half feet over flood stage.

Low-lying streets already were under water but there were no indications of any serious or unexpected damage.

Upstream, the river started falling at Portsmouth late yesterday and it crested later at Manchester, Aberdeen and Ripley.

Manchester was the hardest hit in the Adams-Brown-Clermont County area and residents of approximately 40 homes were being housed in the National Guard armory.

President Truman flew over the flooded area yesterday and reported he did not think it would be necessary to ask for additional relief funds. He expressed gratification over the success of flood control measures and said "our flood control program pays in the long run."

The President's four-hour flight over the area was made without a stop and his plane circled Cincinnati without making any radio contact here.

One Groundhog Scooped Rivals

WILMINGTON (UP)—A groundhog at Harris Greenfield Park's kiddie zoo scooped his rivals by a full day today, by coming out of his burrow ahead of time.

The groundhog, a gift to the Wilmington zoo from the governor of Pennsylvania, found the weather here so mild that he couldn't stay out of the sunshine any longer, zoo keepers said.

Kyzer Begins His Fourteenth Year In C-Of-C Post

WILLARD KYZER

Board Re-Elects Him To Serve Another Year As Chamber's Manager

Willard T. Kyzer, manager of the local Chamber of Commerce, was re-elected by the board of directors last night to serve another year as manager.

This will be his 14th year as manager of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce.

Kyzer was first named as executive secretary when he went with the Chamber August 15, 1938 and then his title changed to manager.

Kyzer said when he first became associated with the Chamber, the offices were where Tadlock Insurance Agency is located now and then they moved into the city hall.

The Chamber of Commerce moved into their present office at Five Points in 1942.

In naming his duties the manager said he kept the minutes of regular and special meetings of the board and the committee meeting, he advises to the affairs of the chamber, employs the staff, signs checks, and many other duties which have to be attended to.

When he was re-elected last night, Kyzer told the board he appreciated the compliment shown him by re-election. "I have enjoyed working for 13 years with the organization," he stated, "but I still see a lot to be done in keeping Greenville moving along progressively."

"Subject to their direction, I am going to devote my entire energies to realize the objects to which the organization is operated."

MURFREESBORO (AP)—Gubernatorial candidate Hubert E. Olive of Lexington last night reiterated that he favors a statewide referendum on legal liquor sales.

Byrnes Advocates Bombing Of Chinese Bases, Naval Blockade

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP)—Gov. James F. Byrnes of South Carolina, Secretary of State in the Truman cabinet from June 1945 until Jan. 1947, today advocated Air Force bombing of Chinese communist bases and naval blockade of Chinese ports.

He also declared "we should accept the aid of the 250,000 fighting men of the Nationalist government of China" to help bring the Korean war to an end.

In a speech prepared for delivery before the Virginia General Assembly here, Byrnes maintained "there should be an end to the talk about our being engaged in a police action" in Korea.

"We are at war," he insisted. "And there should be an end to waging war merely to win a stalemate."

He charged that this nation's foreign policy with respect to Soviet Russia has been one of "fear."

"That is not the spirit of America," he asserted. "A policy of fear will never stop Russia. It may well encourage her to war."

Byrnes, a recognized spokesman for anti-Truman Southern Democrats, repeated previous statements that "political principles" should take precedence over "political labels."

"Americans, whether Democrats or Republicans, should place loyalty to country above loyalty to any political party or any political candidate," he declared.

He sounded a states' rights note with this statement: "Here in historic Williamsburg let us as Americans, regardless of party affiliation, rededicate our efforts to restoring the republic to the concept expressed" by Thomas Jefferson—"forty eight states united in matters of foreign policy and independent in matters of domestic concern."

Although he said the government must "have the support of all right thinking people" in continuing its rearmament program, regardless of what takes place in Korea, he warned that "we must always keep in mind that our objective is to win the peace, and that 'we cannot secure peace if while fighting for it we destroy our economy.'"

Therefore, he said, "I think it the duty of congress to examine carefully the request or an appropriation of $10 billion to aid other governments. Our own government agencies ask for more than they need; we cannot expect officials of other governments to have greater regard for our taxpayers."

Austerity Vote

LONDON (UP)—The British Parliament upheld Prime Minister Winston Churchill's government last night, defeating a Labor "no confidence" vote on the super-austerity program 309 to 278.

Parliament then passed by 306 to 275 a Conservative motion approving the bill which tightens Britain's belt in a fight against economic ills.

The new program was introduced three days ago by Chancellor of the Exchequer Richard A. Butler. It provides for a cut of some $420,000,000 in imports including coal and tobacco, a slash of some 10,000 employees from civil service and health, charges for formerly free building services, less money for foreign travel and fewer automobiles.

Following the vote the 77-year-old Churchill told commons he had never seen Britain so denuded of military defense.

Russia Labeled Treaty-Breaker

PARIS (AP)—The U. N. General Assembly approved today an American-backed resolution labeling Russia a treaty breaker for failing to live up to its 1945 friendship pact with Nationalist China.

With almost half the members not voting, the ballot was 25 to nine, with 24 abstentions and two members not present.

The assembly's action in approving the relatively mild rebuke represented a jump for Nationalist China's delegate Dr. T. T. Tsiang, who has been trying for three years to get some sort of U. N. condemnation of Russia's part in the downfall of Chiang Kai-shek.

The Nationalists charged Russia violated the treaty to aid the Chinese Communists and that this aid was responsible for Chiang's ejection from the mainland.

The watered down resolution merely noted Russia "failed to carry out" its 1945 treaty.

Even in this weakened form, however, many countries including some of America's staunchest allies, refused to have anything to do with it. They included Britain, Mexico, The Netherlands, the Scandinavian countries plus many of the Asian and Arab nations. All these abstained from voting.

Burma, India, Indonesia and Israel voted with the Soviet bloc against the Chinese complaint.

The Russian treaty with Nationalist China was signed in August, 1945, as an outgrowth of the Yalta agreement by President Roosevelt, Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill. Introducing his complaint last Saturday, Tsiang said he found Roosevelt's position at Yalta difficult to justify.

The Chinese Communists repudiated the 1945 treaty when they came to power and signed a new agreement with Russia in 1950.

Two-STATE ACCORD KANSAS CITY (UP)—A settlement of the truckers' strike was reached in Kansas and Missouri today.

The U. N. proposed that neutral interview displaced persons after the Reds again rejected a proposal to give the job to the International Committee of the Red Cross. The Communists said they wanted no part of the Red Cross because it is not neutral.

There was no mention of voluntary prisoner repatriation, key stumbling block in the prisoner exchange negotiations.

Staff officers working on truce supervision machinery completed a preliminary study of the allied working draft.

The official U. N. command communiqué said the officers "will now attempt to resolve the differences in viewpoints, most of them minor, which have been uncovered."

The Communists did not reply Friday to the allied suggestion that work begin immediately on agenda item five—recommendations to beligerent governments.

Vets Bonus Plan Rally Set For Court House Tonight

A veterans' rally to promote a bonus plan, has been called by the North Carolina Amvets at Pitt County Court House for this evening.

Andy Del Vescova, state director for the veterans organization which has been promoting the plan, and state Senator Tom Sawyer, of Durham, will address the meeting scheduled to get underway at 7:30.

Senator Sawyer introduced legislation in the last General Assembly which would provide for a state referendum on the bonus proposal. It was defeated, but the lawmaker plans to re-introduce his measure in the next assembly with added popular support.

Veterans' meetings have been conducted under the auspices of Del Vescova and Senator Sawyer in a large number of North Carolina cities during recent months. "We plan to reach into every county in our campaign," says Del Vescova.

The bonus plan legislation, providing for a statewide referendum, proposes: payment of $15 per month to veterans of World Wars One and Two, and of Korea, for stateside service; $20 per month or overseas service, with a maximum of $500 and $750 respectively. Total cost of the bonus plan is estimated at $200,000,000, and funds would be provided by a bond issue to be paid off over a five-year period.

Grimesland To Rebuild

The Reflector man was down at Grimesland Wednesday and was glad to find that the people there are not cast down because of the fire that swept away half of the business section of the town about a month ago but made up their minds to rebuild. And the rebuilding will be on a larger and better scale than before, handsome brick buildings to take the place of the ones that were burned. Mr. H. H. Proctor and the Clark brothers have already decided to put up two double brick stores and are only waiting for spring weather to begin building.

Dr. Hudson will also build a brick office and drug store, and others will soon be following with new buildings.

A Pharisee and a Repentant Woman

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Luke 7:36-50

A Pharisee asked Jesus to eat at his house, and Jesus went to the Pharisee's house and sat at meat with him when a woman came in.

The woman, who had sinned greatly, began to wash Jesus' feet with her tears, wiping them with her long hair, kissing and anointing them with ointment.

The Pharisee objected, thinking the Lord should know that she was a sinner, but Jesus said, "Her sins which are many, are forgiven, for she loved much."

Some asked, "Who is this that forgiveth sins?" To the woman Jesus said, "Thy faith hath saved thee, go in peace."

MEMORY VERSE—I John 1:9

A Pharisee and a Repentant Woman

JESUS REBUKED THE ONE; FORGAVE THE OTHER

Scripture—Luke 7:36-50

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

A TALE of self-righteousness, sin, forgiveness and love is told in today's lesson, all taking place in the house of a Pharisee who exhibited his feelings of pride that he was not as others, although he was not the one who prayed aloud in the market place in the parable.

This Pharisee must have been interested in and more or less friendly to Jesus, because he invited the Lord to dine at his house. Jesus accepted the invitation. There were others present, too.

As they sat at meat, a woman entered. She knew Jesus was there. She was what is known as "a woman of the streets," a sinner, she is called, at any rate a poor, unhappy soul. In her hand she carried an alabaster box of ointment.

She stood at His feet behind Him weeping, and began to wash His feet with tears, and did wipe them with the hairs of her head, and kissed His feet, and anointed them with the ointment."

When the self-righteous Pharisee saw that, he thought to himself, "This man, if He was a prophet, would have known who and what manner of woman this is that toucheth Him; for she is a sinner."

Jesus read his mind like a book and said, "Simon, I have somewhat to say unto thee." The Pharisee answered, "Master, say on."

There was a certain creditor which had two debtors; the one owed 500 pence and the other 50. "And when they had nothing to pay, he frankly forgave them both. Tell Me, therefore, which of them will love him most?"

Simon answered that he supposed the one to whom the debtor forgave most.

Then Jesus turned to the woman, and said unto Simon, "Seest thou this woman? I entered into thy house, thou gavest Me no water for My feet, but she hath washed them with tears, and wiped them with the hairs of her head.

in' hath not ceased to kiss My feet. My head with oil thou didst not anoint; but this woman hath anointed My feet with ointment. "Wherefore I say unto thee, Her sins, which are many, are forgiven; for she loved much; but to whom little is forgiven, the same loveth little."

It was customary in those hot, dusty countries, to offer the sandled guest water to wash his feet when he entered homes; also he usually was greeted with a kiss, and as a special honor his head was anointed with oil. None of these courtesies had been offered to Jesus, and Simon must have felt embarrassed at the rebuke implied in the Lord's words.

Then Jesus turned to the woman and said, "Thy sins are forgiven."

Then these other guests asked to dine with the Master began to say within themselves, "Who is this that forgiveth sins also?"

Jesus, paying no attention to them, said to the woman, "Thy faith hath saved thee; go in peace."

Jesus, paying no attention to them, said to the woman, "Thy faith hath saved thee; go in peace."

This incident is related only in the gospel of Luke. This woman should not be confused with Mary Magdalene or any other woman in the Bible story. She is not mentioned by name. To us she is simply a "woman and a sinner."

Mary Magdalene is not called a sinful woman. She was possessed of seven demons. Weary of her miserable, sinful life; this other woman sought out the Master, and poured out her soul—her sense of utter sin and her deep repentance, to Him. We know no more of her.

As to the Pharisee whose name was Simon, we can but wonder if he took the Lord's rebuke to heart; if he was less self-righteous for the rest of his life; less critical of others, and especially if he realized in his short but vivid encounter with Jesus, that He it was who was to bring light unto the world and heal many of their sins.

He will help you, too, if you really repent and yearn for His forgiveness. The events recorded here took place somewhere in Galilee in the summer of A. D. 28.

BETTER VISION BETTER SHOPPING Shopping is supposed to be one of woman's most enjoyable pleasures. But some women find it tiring. After a day of examining price tags and materials, a day spent in stores chock full of all kinds of merchandise — they arrive home headachy and tired and irritable.

Poor vision is often to blame. When eyesight defects are corrected, shopping returns to its place as a pleasure. Keen eyesight can buy better, too — bargains are really bargains.

Reds Lift Secrecy Veil On Prisoner Gen. Dean

By ARNOLD DIBBLE United Press Staff Correspondent PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—The Communists lifted the iron curtain today to give the world a portrait of the prison life of the Korean war's most famous fighting man—Maj. Gen. William F. Dean, the hero of Taejon.

Photographs taken by Communist photographers at the request of the United Press showed Dean in a blue pin-stripe suit, looking burly and healthy and apparently almost back to the 190 pounds he weighed before he was captured on Aug. 26, 1950.

The former commander of the 24th Division—the first to try to stem the communist drive in Korea—shows in several pictures how he has recovered from a shoulder injury which for months prevented him from raising his arm.

The 52-year-old general was named as a prisoner by the Reds in December. The photographs of Dean's prison camp life, showing him walking in the woods, doing setting up exercises, "shadow boxing, reading a prison camp newspaper and mail, eating a bowl of rice and playing chess, were obtained at the request of United Press photographer James Healy.

The request was made two weeks ago and the photos were delivered by Communist correspondent Alan Winnington.

The story of General Dean is the story of one of the great episodes of the Korean war. It began when the Communists smashed across the 38th Parallel on a June morning in 1950. Almost immediately, Dean—who once had borne the title of military governor of South Korea—became a fighting general.

It was nothing new. Dean was a celebrated division leader in World War II and was decorated many times.

Our Girl Scout Troop 11 met Tuesday after school. We had lots of fun. We discussed and worked on badges. The Handy Woman badge, the Tree Finder badge and the First Aid badge were a part of our discussion. The weather was very cold but badges must be earned. Some of the members who enjoyed the activities were Bette Knox, Jane Jeffreys, Peggy Lofton, Barbara Gainer, Faye Clark and Mary Whitehurst. Come on, Scouts, let's have more fun! Jane Jeffreys, scribe

The Pastor's Aid Club of Sycamore Hill Baptist Church will meet at the home of Mrs. Rosa Lee Bradley Monday night, Feb. 4.

Nearly four million farm tractors are now in use in the United States.

On July 21, 1950, Dean was reported unofficially to be missing. He and his men were cut off, reports said, when Communists poured into burning Taejon from three sides and forced Americans out of the town.

He was last seen shortly after he walked up to a command post and said proudly, "I just got me a tank."

In the next 18 months Dean's fate was a mystery. But there were reports that he was alive and in Communist hands. Meanwhile, the President announced that Dean was awarded the Medal of Honor.

Then the Communists, in releasing a list of war prisoners on Dec. 19, 1951, claimed that Dean was being held at Pyongyang.

Arab Solidarity Urged In Session Held At Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) Reduction of passport and customs barriers among Arab states were among the recommendations made at the concluding meeting of a Congress of Arab Chambers of Commerce held in Beirut and Tripoli.

The congress recommended outright abolition of passports among member states of the Arab League. Reduction of customs barriers was advised, with a view to abolishing them completely as soon as this is practicable.

Delegates advocated strong action to curb foreign economic infiltration in the Arab world. The congress urged member governments to encourage national industries, to develop them, and to protect them against foreign competition.

Soviets Insist Austrian Kids Learn Russian

VIENNA (AP) Soviet authorities recently inspected Austrian schools in their occupation zone to check the progress of Russian language courses, a spokesman of the Austrian Ministry for Education said recently.

In schools where but little interest was found on the part of the pupils to learn Russian or where records showed insufficient progress, the inspecting officers blamed the leader of the school and the respective teachers for sabotaging the education plans.

The Soviet officials also demanded the showing of Soviet films in the schools. Teachers were to be held responsible for a complete attendance at these performances.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

WHERE DO YOU STAND?
"Yes, I believe in God." He shrugged his shoulders as much as to say, "So what?" I presume that in that short declaration he believed he had settled a problem that has bedeviled the mind of humanity from the beginning of time, namely, whether or not there is a personal beneficent power higher than ourselves who has created the world, and who sustains it.

The more declaration that we believe in God has no more significance than an observation we may make about the condition of the weather. The burning question is whether or not we are doing anything about our belief. A shrug of the shoulders and a "so what" settles nothing. Furthermore, in what kind of God do we believe? Is our God just impersonal cosmic force or is our God the Being such as the Old and New Testaments show forth with such logic, consistency, and clarity?

Philosophy talks about God as an abstraction, but religion cannot do this. Religion has to go after the problem and try to answer the questions that it raises. And if there is a God—and religion says there is—then the question is whether we are on his side or on the Enemy's side. Religion makes no place for a "no man's land."

The Individual's Right To Earn A Living

When a handful of men can throw hundreds of others out of work because they can not get the power they want in some organization, things have reached a sad state of affairs.

In the opinion of The Reflector, that is exactly what has happened at the Du Pont plant near Grifton where picketing members of the painters' union have caused some 900 construction workers to leave their jobs.

On the surface the local leaders of the A. F. of L. painters' union would have the public believe that they put a picket line across the entrance of the Du Pont plant because of a dispute over wages. The union officials have said the company will not pay a wage increase granted by the Wage Stabilization Board. The company on the other hand has said it is paying the wage rate authorized and would be subject to penalties from a government agency if it hiked the pay of the painters.

From what The Reflector has been able to learn, however, the crux of the dispute is not over wages, but over the fact that the painters' union wants to tell the company who it can hire and who it can not hire, and the company will not give in to the demand. The members of the painters' union went on strike at the plant several weeks ago when the company would not lay off four non-union workers. Had the wage issue been the real issue in the union-company dispute, it is logical that they would have picketed the plant then instead of waiting until yesterday when it looked like the company may add more non-union painters to get the necessary work done.

The Reflector respects the principle of collective bargaining where it is necessary and also labor's right to go on strike where necessary to get reasonable requests which are made.

The Reflector, however, does not condone strikes or picketing when it prevents people who want to work from going to their jobs and earning their living. If the members of the painters' union do not want to work for the Du Pont company under the present conditions, that is entirely their business and their right to stop work if they so desire.

When they put up picket lines which keep other workers that are not members of their own organization from going to work, that is going too far.

If a man wants to earn a living that is his right and his privilege in this free nation. We should not be dictated to by labor leaders who try to force the individual workers to lose earnings while the leaders seek to grasp more power than they already have.

Spoken Like A True Political Boss

This week Mr. Truman uttered a truth which can not be refuted, but one which leaves a bad taste in the mouth of the public. President Truman told reporters he withdrew his name from the New Hampshire primary because if he decides to become a candidate for president he would not have to enter any primaries. He added that preferential primaries would be just so much eyewash when the national convention meets.

All that is true . . . absolutely true . . . and the inference which the president made is what makes the people boil. By his statements, the President inferred that candidates are not chosen by the people, but by party bosses who take charge of the conventions and carry out pre-arranged plans for a cut and dried nomination of the man they have picked in the pre-convention sessions.

In other words, the little guy at the convention, who in turn is the big guy in his home state political system, doesn't have much say-so as to the party nominee unless he happens also to be one of the hierarchy of the national party organization.

The Reflector can not refute President Truman's lowly opinion of the individual party primaries, for as he said, they do not amount to much when convention time rolls around. That, however, does not obviate the fact that the primaries of individual states should have a great deal to do with the nomination of the national party candidate.

If the members of the party have a preference among the possible candidates which the party may nominate, their choice should be made known through the primaries and the instructions of the grassroots members of the party followed by the delegates to the national convention.

In turning his nose up at the New Hampshire primary Mr. Truman may as well have said, those voters of the party will vote for who the big-wigs want nominated or get out of the party. Right you are, Mr. President, but that's a far cry from the way elections used to be held in the tried and proved old-fashioned town meetings.

More party control for a long time has needed to go back to the grass roots categories, and less power held by the black cigar big-shots who make or break potential candidates.

WASHINGTON—A squabble over Latin American fish has produced the first but frequently forecast row over the prospect that successful operation of the Truman-Acheson Point Four program will transform so-called "backward countries" into commercial rivals of domestic industries.

Congressmen from Pacific Coast states, as well as deep-sea and fish processing sympathizers from Cape Cod to Chesapeake Bay on the Atlantic Seaboard, are demanding greater tariff protection against frozen tuna and tuna-like (bonito) fish from Peru, Ecuador and Japan.

Increasing imports from those fishing grounds have closed down canneries, tied up several hundred boats in San Diego and San Pedro, caused serious unemployment and jeopardized heavy investments ashore and afloat.

CONTROVERSY—The threat did not become serious until the Truman Administration, under Point Four, joined with private American-Peruvian capital to modernize the fishing and cannery practice of Peru and Ecuador whose off-shore waters provide most of the catch.

This situation, together with farm states' demand for restrictions on a long list of agricultural imports, promises to make the tariff question and Roosevelt-Truman trade agreements spotty but important issues in the Presidential campaign.

Although the fish controversy has only regional concern as of today, it indicates growing Capitol Hill opposition toward the whole Point Four philosophy. Paradoxically, the more successfully it functions, the greater hostility it will encounter among politico-economic interests at home.

EXPERIMENT—The Truman plan for aid to "backward and undeveloped countries" is designed to increase their industrial and agricultural potential, and to improve living standards as a basic immunization to Communist infiltration. It has been hailed generally as another "noble experiment."

Many poverty-stricken lands, like India, China and Africa, will be able to absorb added output of goods and food at home, and not become competitors of ours in the world market. They will present no problem, at least not for scores or hundreds of years.

CIRCLE—Other dollar-short countries, especially in advancing South America, will produce an export surplus. In some instances, instead of making this production available for the home market, foreign governments will encourage export, providing fresh competition for American interests.

Whenever that happens, as is true in the current controversy over fish, Congressmen from affected areas will demand tariff protection against the products of industries and agricultural expansion which American capital, public and private, has financed. If ever there was a vicious economic circle, this threatens to be it.

There is another grave aspect in the Point Four program, which was obviously not given careful consideration by President Truman before he tossed it haphazardly into his 1948 inaugural address without prior consultation with State or Commerce Department experts. It is now one of Secretary Acheson's heaviest headaches.

PROMISES—Under the bright promises and dollars of Point Four, foreign governments are investing heavily in these new developments, as are their nationals, banks and insurance companies. We provide small sums of money and essential "technical advisers," as we are doing around the globe, including the Middle East.

If our executive assistance and promises are eventually thwarted by legislative erection of high tariff walls, the disillusioned beneficiaries of Point Four will accuse the United States of double-crossing and selfish dollar diplomacy. This has already happened, to the chagrin of Secretary Acheson, who is fighting new tariff proposals on fish.

It so happens that Peru and Ecuador have been two of our best friends in South America. Peru sent us needed raw materials during World War II. Ecuador permitted Jesse H. Jones, then RFC head, to finance construction of a camouflaged air base on the Galapagos Islands before Pearl Harbor, as protection for the Panama Canal.

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Remember last summer when the movie came to town called "I Can Get It For You Wholesale"? Being in the wholesale business, I went to see the movie, but walked out of the theater wondering how it got its name.

Even if the movie was misnamed, it popularized an expression that was already over-used: "I can get it for you wholesale." In the news this week there is a report on that very subject. An electric appliance distributor in Dallas puts it this way: "It's getting so that anyone is just a fool to buy anything at retail."

This is a problem that is of great concern to the wholesalers who are trying to uphold their business standards. The buyer comes into the store and says, "I represent Jones and Company. We have upkeen trucks and bla bla cars and have been getting fleet discounts from so-and-so. Quite often the customer will produce discounted invoices to prove his point. Usually, this type of customer is actually entitled to a discount. But which wholesaler would cross examine every customer to catch the one who is pulling his leg?"

In the automotive business, discounts are extremely hard for the wholesaler to control. However, the service station and garage man has a way of striking back at the man who gets his materials wholesale and brings them to him for installation. In such cases the service station and garage man is being deprived of a profit on materials that he is entitled to. Therefore, he would be completely justified in hiking the price of his labor.

Probably the worst-hit business by this situation is the appliance field. The retailer is hurt most by "discount houses" that offer everything from washing machines, refrigerators and TV sets, down to fountain pens, at 20% to 30% below list price.

The big-name mail order houses are a big factor also. Quite often, the retail prices they offer are in line with regular wholesalers' prices. Which, in effect, makes them a jobber selling direct to consumer, in disguise.

Service is the thing that will always keep the retailer alive. One of my friends bought a TV set wholesale and regrets it. He has spent more on service than he saved by getting it wholesale. The retailer gives thousands of services, particularly appliance retailers, that cost him plenty but are simply figured in the price of the appliance.

APPROPRIATE—The state utilities commission this week is hearing evidence and argument in connection with the application of Duke Power Company for increased rates on electric current. Attorney General Harry McMillan is appearing in the case as representative of all the people of the state to bring out all the facts in order to afford the utilities commission adequate information upon which to base a ruling.

Also appearing to question propriety of increasing rates are lawyers representing the North Carolina Merchants Association and other groups. So far as the attorney general's intervention is concerned, it could hardly be classed as a protest against the requested rate increase. It is rather an effort to make doubly sure that whatever rate is authorized will be fair to both the public and the utility company.

PROTESTANT—Many people have come to the conclusion that every application for change in rates of public utility service—whether the service be train or bus transportation, electric light or telephone—should be formally questioned by some agency acting in name of and on behalf of all the people. This idea does not contemplate that every application would be opposed, but only that all the facts would be brought out. Such intervention almost necessarily would have to come from outside the state government. The attorney general is the legal adviser of the executive-administrative branch of government. In that capacity an assistant attorney general is assigned to the utilities commission, which is agency.

REFEREE—When the utilities commission holds hearings to determine proper rates and charges by public service corporations, or to assign areas of operation by particular companies, it is essentially a judicial body. In franchise matters it acts as referee between the several applicants for rights to operate in protected areas. In rate matters the commission acts as referee between the bending company and the public, with equal obligation to each. In such cases the attorney general as legal adviser to the commission, which is both judge and jury, is not in position to act as counsel for the defendant public.

ASSISTANCE—It is just as much the duty of the utilities commission and the attorney general to see that public service corporations and individuals get fair treatment as that their customers are treated fairly. Since most of the utility companies have privately paid attorneys to assist the commission in finding all the facts, it is important that the consumers and customers also have non-government paid assistance. The assumption that such assistance ought not to be required, because the utilities commission and the department of justice are supposed to look after the public interest will not hold up, because, forsooth the vendors are just a part of the "public" as are their customers.

UNORGANIZED—Practical problem arises here because the service renderers are pretty well organized, the service customers are not. That is, they are not organized for the purpose of questioning proposals for changes in utility rates. So it might be there is room for one more organization in the already multiple-organization set up. Maybe such outfits as the North Carolina Merchants Association, the North Carolina Press Association, the State Grange, the North Carolina Farm Bureau, and a dozen or so others, ought to get together and jointly finance a set up that would guarantee presentation of all facts in every utility hearing, whether the immediate issue be passenger fares, freight rates, telephones or telegraph tolls, or the granting of exclusive franchises in a given area for any of these services. Such full presentation of facts by both sides would enable the utilities commission, sitting as a court comprising judge and jury, to reach a more equitable conclusion than is possible when only one side is presented.

NEUTRAL—In such event, and despite constitutional provision that the attorney general is the legal adviser of the executive-administrative branch of government, the department of justice should and would be available to help both sides in their respective efforts to arrive at a fair solution of the problems involved. It is patently unreasonable to expect that attorney general's office to assume the full load of being impartial adviser to the commission and at the same time to act as counsel for the defendant for one sector of the public—and customers—against another equally important sector—the vendors of service.

BEEF—The North Carolina Hereford Association has scheduled its annual show and sale at Statesville on February 29 and March 1. Ordinarily the announcement of an event like that would be buried in a small item on a back page of the newspapers. This one rates more attention, be-

5,000 MORE FACSIMILE MACHINES THIS YEAR
During this year Western Union expects to install 5,000 foot-square facsimile telegraph machines as many executives' desks. About 5,000 have already been installed on an experimental basis. A message may be typed or written. Putting them in the machine and pressing a button does the rest. The machine buzzes when an incoming message is ready. The executive puts a receiving blank in his set and pushes another button and the message is imprinted.

NBBB WARNS AGAINST BARGAIN CARBON PAPER
The National Better Business Bureau is warning business men that some sharpers are offering carbon paper at bargain rates, usually with the story that the seller is stuck with a large quantity because of a cancelled order. The samples are good, the NBBB says, but the delivered paper is inferior.

SHORT & SIGNIFICANT NOTICES ON BUSINESS
Buyers' resistance will reduce retail toy prices to slightly above 1950 levels, predicts Melvin Guidance Council. A lot of the wailing about overstock of TV sets is bunk, says one manufacturer. John S. Meck, president of Scott Radio Laboratories. Excess stock he says, is largely old, mis-priced and inferior sets.

GOVERNMENT DEVISES COTTON-SAVING METHOD
The Department of Agriculture, which spends quite a bit for cotton as an assist to the growers, has come up with a process that makes cotton used to shade tobacco crops last three times as long. The process involves a finish of lead chromate, which screens out damaging sun rays. Full details are available from the Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C.

LAW WOULD REQUIRE INSTRUCTION BOOKLETS
A bill requiring manufacturers of household appliances sold in interstate commerce to be accompanied by an instruction booklet with complete details on operation care and repair has been introduced in Congress by Representative Walt Horan (R-Wash.).

While there appears to be no such a law, it is curious that one should be considered necessary. Most manufacturers do offer just such literature because it increases enjoyment of the product and hence is a factor in building good will and future sales.

WALLET: A woman's wallet featuring a secret billfold, a key container and a detachable change purse is being made of plastic in four colors by Pavana Engineering Co., Huntingdon, Pa.

LOBSTER: A new and successful method of quick-freezing lobsters has been developed by the North Atlantic Lobster Institute. They are packed in rockweed and a plastic bag and, after thawing, may be dropped into boiling water, bag, weed and all. If will be used by member companies.

NEW YORK (AP)—When is the right time to retire? That problem is becoming of great concern to social workers who see America becoming a land of long-living greybeards. And more and more they question the wisdom of automatically turning out to uneasy pasture at 65 men who are still vigorous and healthy.

It seems to me that people who have the least immediate likelihood of being able to retire are the ones who are loudest in saying they want to. And it might also be true that the less anybody knows about life the more he wants to retire.

When is the right time to retire? "Now!" squalls the newborn babe, looking dully about him in red-faced anger at the perilous, puzzling world of strange sights and sounds he has unwillingly entered.

"I surely will have enough money at 30 to quit," hopes the young college graduate, and begins making notes for his memoirs.

"About 50 will be right for me—and I'll spend the rest of my life traveling," muses the fellow of 35.

"I guess I'll hang on until I'm 65," he says at 50, educated to the falling value of money and a growing disinclination for long journeys.

"If they'll just let me stay on working until I'm 70 I won't mind," he says at 64, now in love with the job he has complained against for 40 long years.

But at 69 he speaks out: "Retire? Never. I'm a better man now than I ever was. What is experience for—just to throw away as junk?"

And if he is forced into retirement, he goes grudgingly and sore of heart. He has carved a pattern in the wilderness world that frightened him as a baby so long ago, and he hates to yield that pattern for a formless new world of retirement, where he will again feel himself a stranger—a pioneer in idleness.

By now he knows that idleness and vague yearnings for a life of complete ease are for the young and unknowing. He has learned himself that just is the red warning of death and decay.

Success used to be the old American dream, when success was measured in dollars and cents. But for millions of people today there is a new American dream—retirement.

It is a beautiful dream—as a goal. But it is like most other dreams, goals, and fair wishes. The closer you get, the more the wrinkles show. A star is pale and cold and lovely far away in the evening sky. But if you ever came near it, it would roast you into a clinker.

So does the dream of retirement turn man ashy when he achieves it and finds it a nightmare. He no longer wants to taste lotus. Heaven is a nice thing to think about, too, except when you get pneumonia.

Favored Teams Move Into Finals Of Gold Medal Play

Snow Hill Get Win Over Winterville

Bethel And Snow Hill Boys, Winterville And Snow Hill Girls To Meet In Gold Medal Finals Saturday Night

By MELVIN LANG
Reflector Sports Writer

FARMVILLE—Rogers Ham dropped in a long set shot with but 10 seconds remaining in the game here last night to enable his Snow Hill teammates to defeat Winterville, 40-39, and to move into the finals of the Coastal Gold Medal tournament Saturday night.

Snow Hill moved into the final period with a three point deficit, 28-25, as Winterville moved into the lead during the third quarter for the first time in the contest. Bobby McGlohon increased Winterville's lead 15 seconds after the last period opened to 30-25, the widest margin of the game.

Snow Hill's Ed Lane came right back to score but McGlohon, who played his best game of the tourney here last night, scored for Winterville. Snow Hill started a rally at that point that soon saw the score standing at 34-33, still in Winterville's favor. Rex Wainright scored for Winterville with only two minutes left to build up the lead to 36-33, but Rogers Ham came back in the next minute with a field goal and free throw to knot the count at 36-36 with 1:05 showing on the scoreboard clock.

Wainright hit again on a left handed hook to put Winterville in the lead. Rogers Ham once again knute left to be played. Little Bobby Cole dropped a free throw in with 40 seconds left for Winterville and a one point lead for the Wolves, and it looked as if the Pitt County team was in the finals.

But the second seeded Snow Hill team roared back as they took the ball away from the Winterville team under its own basket, raced down the court, and Rogers Ham made the long set from outside the foul circle with less than 10 seconds remaining to be played. Winterville had the ball back under its own basket when the final horn sounded, ending the game.

Snow Hill will now meet Bethel's top seeded Indians in the finals of the boys division Saturday night at 9:00 p.m.

First Quarter
Wainright put Winterville ahead first with a basket from the floor in the first minute of play, but Howard Ham showed the nature of the contest as he dropped two free throws 10 seconds later to knot the count at 2-2. Rogers Ham put Snow Hill ahead for the first time with a field goal after 2:30, but again Wainright, who was the mainstay of the losers for the night, tied the score with a shot from the left of the basket.

Howard Ham came back with a goal and Bobby McGlohon hit on a free throw for Winterville to give Snow Hill a 6-5 lead after 2:30. Rogers Ham and McGlohon swapped baskets in the next minute and then McGlohon and Bob Exum each picked up a goal. Winterville went ahead on another shot by Wainright, 12-10.

Ham came back to tie it again with a floor goal. R. Ham's free throw was good and Snow Hill took the lead to hold it until soon after the second half began. Snow Hill led at the end of the first quarter, 15-14, and at halftime at 22-21.

High scoring honors went to Wainright as the Winterville junior picked up seven field goals and one free throw for 15 points. Howard and Rogers Ham of Snow Hill came in next with 13 and 12 points, respectively. McGlohon had 11 for Winterville. Leck Keeter and Bob Cole led Winterville's defense while Snow Hill was led by Ed Lane and Jim Exum.

NOW WAIT just one minute, a Snow Hill player with outstretched arms seems to say to Winterville's Bobby McGlohon, who attempts to move past him for a shot at the basket. Winterville lost the semi final round of play to the Green County team in a last-minute thriller.

Ann Spier Sets Scoring Record As Winterville Defeats Eagles

FARMVILLE—Ann Spier set a new tournament scoring record here last night as she dropped in 23 field goals and one free throw for a total of 47 points in leading Winterville's girls team to a 75-59 decision over Belvoir's Lady Eagles.

Belvoir matched the top seeded Winterville sextet shot for shot in the contest until the last four minutes of the second period when it went into a scoring drought that was not broken until Claudia Pollard hit on a field goal with but 40 seconds left in the half, but by that time Miss Spier and Jean Ann Liverman had run the score to 35-25.

In setting the new tourney record, Ann Spier scored 19 points in the first half and came back with 28 points in the second half. She hit on 18 points alone in the final quarter and 11 in the second period.

Belvoir never led in the contest as Winterville jumped into the lead early in the first quarter and held a 16-13 lead by the end of the period. They had increased their lead to 37-29 at halftime, and held a 54-43 margin at the end of the third period.

Forward Claudia Pollard led the Belvoir scoring with a total of 27 points, while Nadine Morris collected 22 points to take the runner-up scoring honors for the losers. Jean Jones rounded out the Belvoir scoring with 10 points. Jean Tyson was outstanding on defense for the losers.

Besides Miss Spier's 47 points, Jean Ann Liverman connected for a total of 18 points for the winners. Betsy Castelloe scored 10 points. Ruth Hazelton and Faye Branch led the strong defensive play by Winterville. Each team used a total of only seven players for the entire contest.

Winterville will meet Snow Hill's girls in the finals of the tourney Saturday night at 8 p.m.

Snow Hill Girls Reach Tourney Finals With Win

FARMVILLE—Snow Hill's favored sextet came through as expected here last night, but only after a hard fought battle with Farmville's host Lady Red Devils. Snow Hill finally won the contest, 41-35.

A case of just too many fouls hurt both clubs in the final quarter as a total of five players left the game via the foul route. Snow Hill lost its high scorer, Lois Dobson, and two of its starting guards, Evelyn Perry and Marjorie Sutton. Farmville's high scoring forwards, sisters Edna Wooten and Lia Wooten, each committed too many fouls.

Snow Hill jumped into an 8-0 lead in the first three minutes of the game before Farmville could find the scoring range. When the hometown team finally hit, they were not as the proverbial fire cracker and by the time that the whistle sounded ending the period, they had tied the count at 12-12, chiefly on the work of Edna Wooten.

Lillian Barrow, who hit for 11 points for the winners, dropped in a bucket after 30 seconds of the second half to put Snow Hill ahead and they held on until late in the third period.

Snow Hill went into a scoring freeze during the first four minutes and 40 seconds of the third quarter and by that time Farmville had taken over a 27-24 lead in the game. Each team scored once and then Snow Hill's Lois Dobson hit for six points in the last two minutes to put her team ahead once again.

Snow Hill led 32-29 at the end of the period.

Snow Hill held its lead and built it up two points in the last quarter as both teams missed their starters who had fouled out.

Gertrude Smith led Farmville's defense while Perry and Sutton paced Snow Hill.

Grimesland Tops Chocowinity

GRIMESLAND—The Grimesland Panthers took a basketball double-header played here Wednesday night from Chocowinity, winning both ball games by comfortable margins.

The Grimesland girls won 25-16 in the first game while the boys followed up with a 43-18 walloping of the Chocowinity boys.

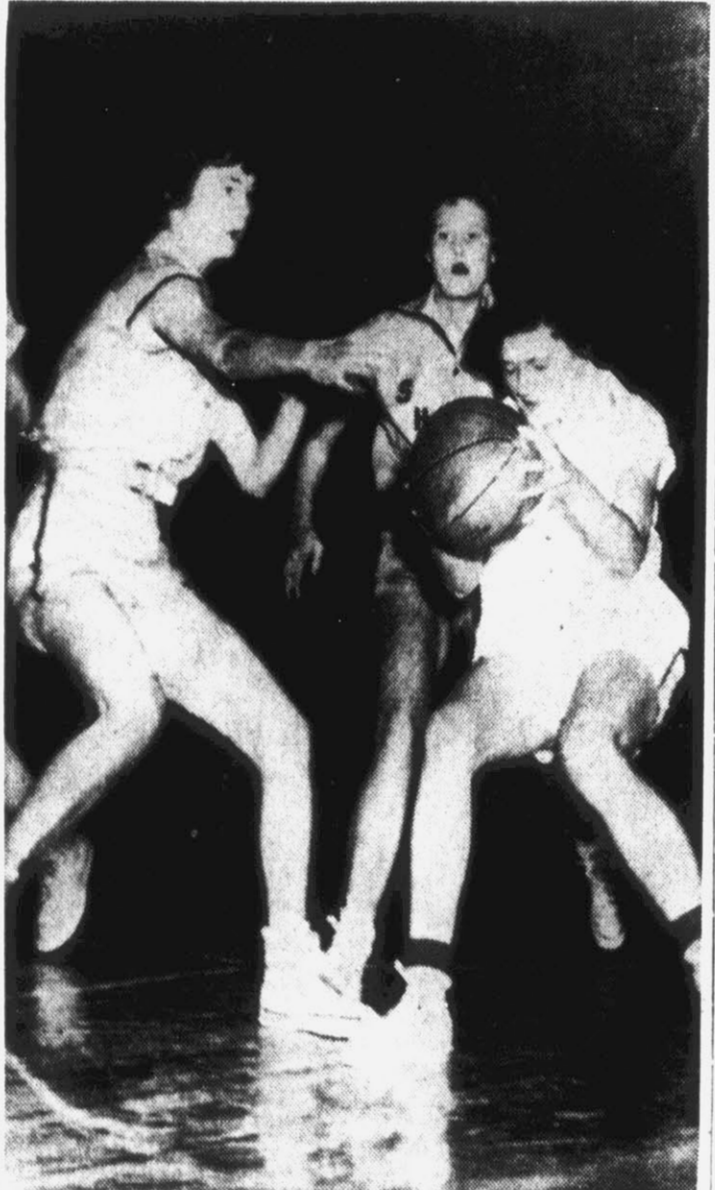

In the girls game, a slow ball game was given a red hot finish by the Grimesland girls who were paced by Joyce Moringo's 14 points. Shirley Buck of the losing Chocowinity team was runner-up in the scoring race with nine points.

Chocowinity never really had a chance to catch up with the Panthers in the boys game as the Grimesland team played a slow ball game in the first half and wound up running away from Chocowinity in the second half. Grimesland led 12-7 at the half.

Wayland Elks and Roger Mills each scored 11 points to pace the Grimesland attack while Crutch and Hill were the leaders in the Chocowinity offense.

Manning Scores 21 Points To Lead Bethel Victory

FARMVILLE—Bobby Manning hit for 21 points to lead his Bethel teammates to a 63-38 victory over Walstonburg's Pirates in the semi-finals of the Gold Medal tourney here last night. Bethel will meet Snow Hill Saturday night for the championship in the boys division.

After getting off to a slow start in the first half, Bethel bounced back in the third quarter to take a 42-26 lead and ran wild in the last half. Although Coach Walter Latham sent his first team to the showers with nearly three minutes left to be played in the game, the Indian reserves continued the scoring parade as Bethel hit for 21 points in the final quarter while Walstonburg was taking only 12.

Bethel beat Walstonburg Wednesday night to move into the semi-finals while Walstonburg edged Farmville Monday night.

Robert Nelson hit for 13 points to come in second in the Bethel scoring behind Manning's 21. Playing better than approximately 625 people in overflowed Farmville gym, 10 players shared the Bethel scoring.

Elmer Harrell, an easy moving forward led the Walstonburg attack with 15 points, although Wesley Cobb, a guard, was close behind with 13 points. James Harrell and Dwight Norville gained five and four points, respectively, for the losers. Walstonburg's Tommy Norville, the leading scorer on the team, was held to only one point but he turned in an excellent game on defense.

Bethel will carry a record of 10

HIGH POINT—The East Carolina College Pirates unleashed their big scoring guns again last night and came out of their eighth North State Conference game with win number five—a 69-64 victory over the defending champion High Point Panthers. The game was played in the High Point gymnasium.

As is the usual custom, the bulk of the Pirate scoring effort fell squarely on the solid shoulders of Bobby Hodges and Sonny Russell. Russell led the two with 22 points in addition to a magnificent all-around game while Hodges was right behind with 21 points and a great job on the backboards.

Both Hodges and Russell started slowly but once they got warmed up to the scrap there was no stopping either of the two. Russell was simply incomparable in his style of play while Hodges teamed up with big John Postas to almost completely freeze High Point out of any rebound action.

Postas was a pleasant surprise in the game. He had not played at all in the two games immediately preceding this contest but he was sent off the bench to help Hodges under the boards. It was big John's most extensive action for a long time but he came through very well. In addition to his work under the boards, he also came through with a fourth quarter field goal which came at a critical time.

The rebounding work of Hodges and Postas, in particular, and the entire East Carolina team, in general, was the big factor in deciding the second meeting of the two teams. In an earlier meeting, played in Greenville, East Carolina had won by a 71-65 margin.

The two clubs started on virtually equal terms and were tied up 13-13 at the end of the first quarter. High Point was able to make only three field goals during the first ten minutes of play but they made seven of eight free throws to keep themselves in the ball game.

In the second quarter, Hodges and Russell began hitting and the Pirates never surrendered with three and a half minutes remaining in the half. The game had been tied six times and the lead had changed hands eight times before Ritchie Blake hit on the set shot which sent the Pirates into the lead.

After that second period, when the Pirates hit well over 50 per cent of their chances from the floor, the Panthers never really seriously

Chapter 23
How could she stop Abigail from going to Dean? For Abigail's sake, no one else's.

Tomorrow would come much too soon for Marcia. She knew she would lie awake the rest of the night, waiting for it. And when it came she still would not know what to do.

It seemed to her as though hours had passed—she had long been hearing Abigail's quiet, steady breathing which meant that her sister had fallen almost immediately into deep, untroubled slumber—when the phone began to ring.

Marcia hastily slipped out of bed to answer it before Abigail was awakened. When she heard the voice at the other end of the wire she was reminded of another night, which now seemed long ago. For it was Manning Kornoff, the "mad" Russian. And he said much the same thing he had said that other time.

"I want you to deliver a message to Abigail for me," he said. "I want you to tell her that I cannot endure it—I saw her face to-night. It was bad enough when I thought she would marry Victor. I cannot stand by and endure more. Please tell her good-bye for me."

"Please hold the wire," Marcia said. "I'll call her. Abigail is asleep. But I'll call her, if you'll wait, please."

"It's no use. Do not call her now. Morning will be time enough."
"No, I'll call her now. I am sure she will want to talk with you."
"Thank you, no." His voice remained firm, final. It was far too controlled for Manning, who was given to dramatics. "Tell her that I loved her far, far too much—and good-bye. That is all."

Marcia heard the decisive click of the receiver at the other end. She fidgeted the hook on her own phone, but brought no response. She did not know why, but she felt panic. It was almost as though a deep shadow had darkened everything, casting a silent ominous spell.

She could not go back to bed. She wished she could wake Abigail. Yet she hated to. Her sister had slept through the conversation, Marcia carefully having pulled the door to the bedroom shut. Abigail did not stir when Marcia tiptoed back into the room.

No, it would be a pity to wake her, Marcia decided. She would have to do something without her sister's help.

There was an indexed pad on the telephone stand—she should have remembered it before. Thumbing through it, Marcia found Manning's number, and beneath it the address where he lived.

She dialed the number; she could hear the bell ringing; then ringing and ringing again. The fearsome panic within her grew. The silence at the other end of the line was a bad as the quiet that seemed to be closing in on Marcia.

She felt she dared not wait longer. Keeping trying the phone. She dressed as quickly as she could. Still Abigail did not stir. Perhaps she ought to leave a note in case her sister did wake and become alarmed at Marcia's absence. But Marcia still felt there was not time; she felt some urgency hurrying her.

She was lucky in getting a cruising cab at the corner. She gave the man the address. She did not notice that the man looked her over curiously, carefully. But he respectfully repeated the address she had named and reached to slam the door tight.

The big city was asleep, the Avenue deserted. Marcia never had seen it like this, without its color and glamour. Why, it was as peaceful as Elmwood. Perhaps underneath the big show it was not so different, its people not so different on the surface. Abigail was like that. Tonight she had revealed that she was soft and warm and loving beneath the polished sheen.

"This is it, miss. Want I should wait for you?" The driver looked around, sizing up his passenger carefully again. He often drove odd passengers at odd hours of the night. Women sometimes as well as men. But this girl was only a kid. Too young, fragile, to be out alone.

"No, thank you," Marcia paid him. "Thank you very much for bringing me. Good night."

No one had ever said that to the man. Good night, as though he were a special person, a friend. People talked to him, of course. Taxi drivers go lonesome. They often started the talk rolling, but they never brought it to too personal a basis.

There was something about the kid's face. He decided he would wait, anyway. A little while. Could not do harm. She might come out, not be so lucky to find a cab right off. She oughtn't go walking about trying to find a cab by herself after midnight, not a kid like that.

The driver had two kids of his own, boys. But he had always wanted a girl, too.

Marcia was relieved to hear music, soft music, from inside Manning's door. It was a huge relief after all that stillness. The recording that was playing was "Now Is The Hour."

She remembered, with a pang of nostalgia, when she had heard that song before. With Tommy, back home. She wished Tommy were here, beside her now. He had said, Remember, Marcia, if you ever need me just send for me. She needed him now. She wished she could send for him.

She did not know why she should think of Tommy except for the song, which was beginning now, as it had that other time, to play over once more. She should have been thinking of Dean. Or of Manning Kornoff. History repeating itself. Tommy and the song. The phone and Manning. Dean. Dean she need not think about now.

There was no response to her ring or knock; probably neither could be heard by the record machine going. Marcia could not leave without going in. She tried the knob; it turned beneath her touch, the door swinging open.

The small living room was ablaze with lights, but it was empty. Except for the soft music this room seemed to hold that same ominous silence, that same dark shadow.

Seeks Owner Of Painting Mailed Him By Mistake

NEW YORK —(AP)— An Army captain would like to find the owner of a painting of two children which his wife received from Korea by mistake.

The soldier, Capt. S. R. Eisnitz, now stationed at the 1st Army Information Section, 90 Church St., New York City, mailed a package from Korea last summer containing a painting of his own children. When his wife received it, there was an additional painting of two other children enclosed. Eisnitz thinks a postal mixup probably caused the snafu.

The extra painting is of a boy and a girl. It is painted in oils on silk and is the work of a Japanese artist.

Protein's Effect On Older People Being Studied

LONDON, Ont. —(UP)— Some of medicine's baffling mysteries are getting their most thorough study in a little-known section of the department of veterans' affairs hospital south of here.

The project, known as a clinical investigation unit, is studying rheumatoid arthritis and allied conditions, psychiatric stitles and the relationship between nutrition and surgery. It is also investigating one of science's enigmas, the aging process.

Situated in one wing of the DVA hospital, the unit has been operating only eight months. It was established under a two-year-old government scheme by which three DVA hospitals in Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver.

The unit is a hospital within a hospital. It is staffed by 12 persons: nurses, orderlies, kitchen staff, a dietitian and laboratory personnel. Conducting the research are six staff doctors and consultants. The unit consists of a seven-bed ward, a small specially-equipped kitchen and storeroom, and a laboratory design, specifically to serve the needs of the research program.

Scientists Study Mystery Vitamin

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. —(UP)— Four University of Illinois scientists believe a little yellow grub holds the clue to carnitine, a substance in the flesh of men and animals which has remained a mystery since its discovery a half century ago.

In a paper presented to the American Chemical Society, the scientists said they have found that vitamin B-7 and carnitine are identical. The vitamin gets its name from the mealworm, whose technical name is "tenebrio."

The vitamin is essential to life for this grub, or beetle larva, but no other living thing seems to suffer when it is omitted from the diet.

However, Prof. G. S. Fraenkel, said, "It appears that a compound of such high activity functions in an enzyme system of vital importance. A compound of such regular occurrence must be present to some purpose. It must have a vital function."

Oldsters Prefer To Stay On Job

PASADENA, Calif. —(AP)— A lot of oldsters here are convinced that retirement kills more persons than hard work.

Typical of those still on the job is P. M. Kokanour, 86, who runs a print shop which he opened 22 years ago. "It keeps me young in spirit," says Kokanour who has been a printer since he was 17.

Alfred Davies, 76, opened a clock repair shop here two years ago and says business is fine. Another 76-year-old man, Ralph L. Cannon, retired once and didn't like it. Now he has returned and is already planning to expand the business.

Protein Studied

In this setting the research workers are studying, in general, the body's chemistry, and in particular, protein, metabolism, or the body's use of protein, the tissue-building substance of food.

The program consists of placing the seven patients on a rigidly-controlled diet, which varies little over a period of two weeks to three months. The exact quantity of fats, carbohydrates, proteins and calories going into the patient's body is constantly known. By knowing the amount of protein taken into the body and the amount rejected as body waste, the scientists can determine the quantity used by the body in its chemical processes.

In addition to seeking to pierce the veils of specific problems the investigation unit is geared to study any obscure illness involving the body's chemistry which may appear in the hospital's departments of surgery, medicine or psychiatry. Many such cases have been helped since the unit opened.

One of the main problems being tackled by the clinical investigation unit is why some men remain active and mentally keen at 90 while other men have been senile at 60.

Much of the work at the unit has been in this field. Conclusions reached as a result of early tests were summed up by one of the unit's doctors:

"Preliminary observations suggest that the protein intake of many old people is inadequate. Studies are now under way to see

Ex-Judge Has Collection Eccentric, Bitter Wills

ST. LOUIS —(UP)— Fred J. Hoffmeister, retired circuit judge, pursuing a hobby of 35 years, has built up one of the largest collections of odd wills from all over the world.

One of Hoffmeister's favorites is that of Herman Oberweiss of Anderson County, Texas.

"First thing I want done," Oberweiss wrote, "I don't want my brother Oscar get a damn thing I got. He is a munser and he done got me out of $400 14 years since."

The former judge said Benjamin Franklin left a 40-page will and several pages are extremely interesting such as his comment on inherited wealth:

"It is my opinion, that the person who receives an estate from his ancestors is under some kind of obligation to transmit the same to their posterity; this obligation does not lie on me, who never inherited a shilling from any ancestor or relative."

See Television Spanning Oceans

SYRACUSE, N. Y. —(UP)— Transoceanic television, "of great possible significance," probably will be achieved during the present generation, according to a pioneer in the field.

Dr. Walter R. G. aker, a vice president of the General Electric Co., said certain technical requirements still must be met before overseas programs can be broadcast.

Baker, whose initials (WRGB) identify the TV station at Schenectady, N. Y. SAID:

"Transoceanic TV is of great significance. There is much to see abroad, of great importance here in showing how well off we are here."

The eye of the television camera, said, possesses a "unusual quality," a type of moral X-ray which penetrates show and deceit and pretentiousness.

"Some public figures will find that the camera's unblinking stare and simultaneous and instantaneous scrutiny by millions of people will be unerving," he added.

America is far ahead of European countries in the television field, he said. Italy has only one transmitter and about 100 receiving sets, while France has only two transmitters.

England has about 1,000,000 receivers, compared to America's 14,000,000.

"We know there's TV behind the Iron Curtain," Baker said. "Two transmitters were sold over there before the war. Then, too, they claim they discovered television in Russia in the first instance."

"We know they can copy and produce what they get and that what is published here goes to them."

Young Estate Involved

When Brigham Young died in Aug. 29, 1877, he left an estate of $2,500,000 in trust for his families. The families were divided into classes. At the time of his death, he had 18 living wives and three deceased. There were 48 children and an adopted child. The estate was divided into 19 different parts.

In October of 1926 a Canadian, Charles Vance Miller, died and left his wish that $500,000 be paid from his estate to the Toronto woman who bore the most children in the last 10 years after his death.

The Ontario Supreme Court in January of 1938 gave the prize to four women, each the mother of nine eligible children.

Rockwell Sayre of Chicago reversed the order of leaving money to animals when he specified in his will that his executors should buy 150 boxes of candy and ship them to 150 persons whom Sayre listed as his "fellow warriors in the world war against cats."

Bitter to End

In Campsie, Australia, a man whose wife would never let him get the last word finally got it in his will. Francis Reginald Lord left his widow "one shilling for tram fare to some place to drown herself."

Another wound up with: "And to my wife I bequeath the balance of my estate, both real and personal, including my pants, which she has past 15 years in the wash."

In Woodbridge, N. J., a Chinese named John Ling left his one dollar with the wish that he use the dollar "to purchase a ripe long and strong enough to support his Irish wife."

Expressway Plan Surveys Slated For This Spring

Winston-Salem (UP)—An $8,000,000 East-West expressway through the heart of Winston-Salem went on the planning tables today and surveys for rights of way will begin this spring.

The super-highway, designed to become an integral part of an inter regional highway system reaching from Virginia through Asheville, was approved here yesterday by the State Highway Commission.

Commissioner Mark Goforth of Lenoir said about $1,500,000 is available to start work on the project, but said ground may not be broken for at least another year because of steel and material shortages.

The commission also approved bids of $5,058,509 involving 387 miles of roads in 29 counties. It set Feb. 26 for the next meeting in Raleigh and will hold its March meeting in Wilmington.

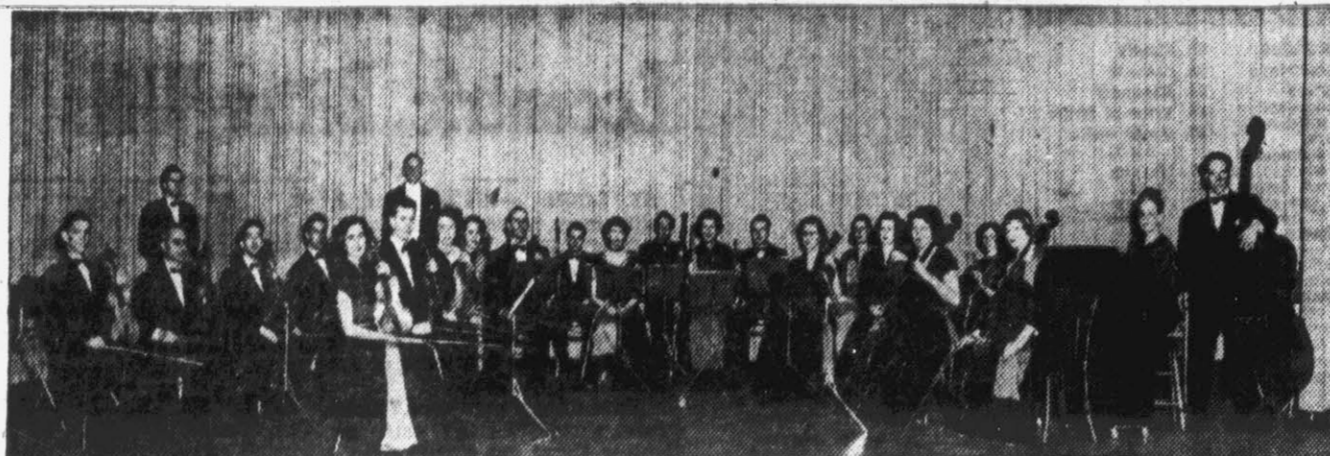

Cattle Breeders Meet Tonight In County Building

Members of the Pitt Artificial Breeding Association and all Pitt County dairymen are urged to attend a meeting in the Pitt County Office Building tonight at 7:30.

In making the announcement, Norman Coward, association president, said it is imperative that all members and interested dairymen be present to join in the discussion.

"We hope to lay plans for a more efficient and extensive operation of the breeding association," Coward said. "At the same time, we plan to discuss the feasibility of using beef semen along with the current program of providing semen for dairy breeding in the county."

Little Symphony To Appear In Washington February 4

The Washington Chapter of the North Carolina Symphony Society announces Monday, February 4, as the date for the annual appearance of the North Carolina Little Symphony, under the direction of Benjamin Swalin.

The evening performance will be in the same auditorium at 8:15. Arriving in Washington after two weeks and over twenty-five concerts of the ten-week winter tour, the musicians will be escorted to the afternoon concert by a marching band.

An enthusiastic reception is anticipated, all the children having been prepared weeks in advance for the selections they are to hear. These include the first movement from Beethoven's Fifth Symphony and novelty numbers such as Trumpeter's Lullaby and The Waltzing Cat.

The evening concert offers a wide selection to appeal to all musical tastes from Haydn to Ravel and Lehár. Memberships in the North Carolina Symphony, regardless of where purchased, entitle the holder to admission at the door.

Truman Spoke For Demos Only

By LYLE C. WILSON United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON (UP)—President Truman was talking for Democrats only when he said presidential preference primaries are so much eyewash.

The Republicans know better and have so known since they lost the White House back in 1932. If the Democrats ever are ousted from the White House, their presidential primaries will take on sudden and great significance.

Democratic presidential primaries had not meant anything since FDR won his first term. He was party boss thereafter and chose the presidential ticket with himself on top as long as he lived. Democratic national conventions did his bidding.

Mr. Truman intends to pick the Democratic national ticket this time. His brush-off of presidential primaries was blunt warning of his intention to do that. There was nothing in the statement to suggest he would be bashful about picking himself again, either.

In 1952, conditions are "most favorable for a great year of massive recruiting," said the party's organization secretary Augustus LeCompt in a letter to party officials published in L'Humanite, the party organ in Paris.

The key party official apparently wrote from Moscow, where he has been conferring with Kremlin leaders.

The Red party—with membership estimated at 650,000—is the largest single faction in France, but is kept out of power by a coalition of middle-road parties.

LEXINGTON (AP)—John Andrew Roman, a Negro war veteran, was convicted of first degree murder by a Superior Court jury today in the slaying last August of Mrs. Herbert Hinshaw.

The jury of eight white and four Guilford county Negro men, returned its verdict at 10 a.m. after deliberating for nearly three hours. A sentence of death in the gas chamber is mandatory when the jury does not recommend mercy.

Judge J. Will Pless did not immediately pass sentence. Extensive shipbuilding activities have been resumed in the port of Leghorn, Italy.

Communists Of France See Big Recruiting Year

PARIS (AP)—French communist bosses say the party picked up 50,000 new members in France last year but failed to show an overall increase in strength because many old members dropped out.

In 1952, conditions are "most favorable for a great year of massive recruiting," said the party's organization secretary Augustus LeCompt in a letter to party officials published in L'Humanite, the party organ in Paris.

The key party official apparently wrote from Moscow, where he has been conferring with Kremlin leaders.

Linwood T. Manning, charged with careless and reckless driving, was ordered to pay court costs and not operate a motor vehicle for six months unless adequate restitution is made for property damage to Henry Benton and Julius Adams.

Guaranteed Wage By Industry Is Murray's Demand

NEW YORK (AP)—A guaranteed minimum annual wage in American industry was demanded today by Philip Murray, president of the CIO United Steelworkers, to offset unemployment and to "strike dismay" in the Kremlin.

Murray, also CIO president, likened guaranteed annual wages to a domestic "point four program" for "backward, or under-developed, areas of American economic stability."

Murray outlined his proposal in a prepared statement for a six-man panel of the Wage Stabilization Board, which resumed a hearing on the steel workers' wage and other demands after a three-week recess.

A possible nation-wide steel strike hinges on the outcome of the hearings.

ECC Students Carry On Cooperative Learning Plan In Schools Of Hyde

Three student teachers at East Carolina College are spending this week in Hyde County studying problems of rural schools. Their work forms part of a Plan for Cooperative Learning now being carried on through the cooperation of Hyde County school officials and under the sponsorship of the East Carolina department of education and the staff of the campus Training School.

These students are the second group from the college to go to the school at Swan Quarter during the present school year as a liaison unit between East Carolina and the rural area eighty miles to the east. The work of these two units is considered an introduction to an expanded program at the college. Its favorable progress is being carefully followed by interested local and state school officials.

Students now in Hyde County, chosen because of their ability as teachers and special personal attributes, are Margie Smith, Kingston, and Jeannette Tillet, Kitty Hawk, both student teachers in the second grade at the Training School, and Ola Edmondson Perry, Bethel, student teacher in the third grade of the Training School. During the fall quarter Maxine Robinson, Angier, and Rachel Davis, Fremont, made up the first unit to accept an invitation from Hyde County educators to visit the Swan Quarter school.

The purpose of the Plan for Cooperative Learning is to enable college students to learn about teaching methods in practice and to study the needs of rural schools. Their work is expected to bring to the college first hand experiences from which the teacher training program may benefit in its functional approach to rural instruction.

In turn, the student teachers from the college share with classroom teachers in the area visited methods of instruction, special demonstrations, current developments in visual aids, and selected professional literature.

Cooperating personnel in Hyde County include N. W. Shelton, superintendent of schools; Bettie Sandell, school supervisor; T. S. Hoid, principal; Lola Watson and Mrs. McKinney, teachers respectively of the first and the third grades. College officials and staff promoting the Plan for Cooperative Learning, headed by Dean Leo W. Jenkins, include Dr. J. K. Long, director of the department of education; Dr. E. J. Carter, director of the Bureau of Field Services; Dr. Keith D. Holms and Dr. Eva D. Williamson of the department of education; and Frances Wahl, principal, Eunice McGee and Sally Klingenschmitt, supervising teachers, of the Training School.

California Trip Awarded Dealers

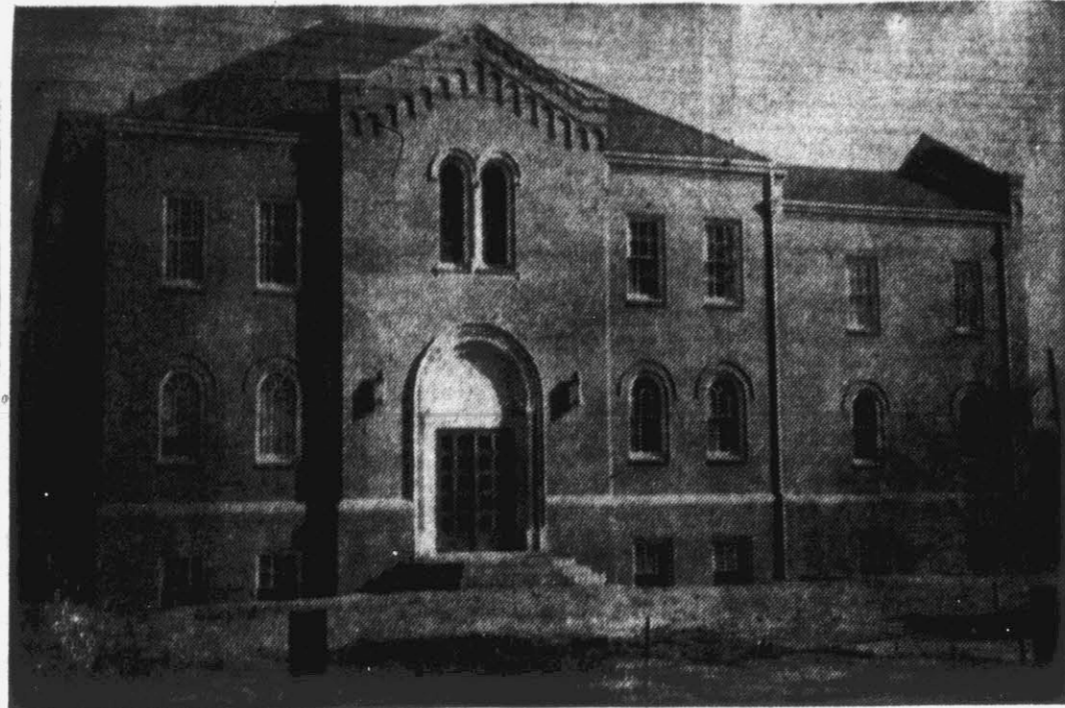

V. A. Merritt and his son R. N. Merritt have been given an all-expense paid trip to California by General Electric.

The two men won the trip by selling the more G. E. Appliances than any store in the state from August 15 to December 1. They now head number one team in the state which includes stores in the large cities in the state.

Merritt and his son will leave for California around February 15 for two or three weeks. Along the way, the special train will pick up dealers from other parts of the nation. More than 1,100 dealers will go to California where they will be entertained by the G. E. Corporation.

A few weeks ago Merritt was named the "G. E. Man of the Year" at a state meeting of G. E. Dealers in the state. He was voted as the ideal dealer and large banner carrying his picture and title was draped in the meeting place.

New Jarvis Memorial Building Will Be Dedicated On Sunday

The new educational building of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church (above) will be dedicated by Bishop Paul N. Garber on Sunday, February 3. The building was begun in 1950 and was occupied in the late fall of 1951. Special dedicatory services will follow the regular morning worship hour, at which time Bishop Garber will preach. The building was constructed at a cost of approximately $180,000.

The new Educational Building of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church will be dedicated in special services to be held on Sunday.

Bishop Paul N. Garber, acting bishop of the Richmond area, will be present to preach at the morning worship hour. Immediately following the services in the Sanctuary, the congregation will adjourn to the Fellowship Hall in the Educational Building where the Bishop will lead the ritualistic dedicatory service.

J. H. Rose, chairman of the Board of Christian Education and also general superintendent of the Church School, will present the edifice to Bishop Garber for dedication. The congregation will participate in the responsive reading ritual.

The Rev. H. K. King, District Superintendent of the New Bern District, will also have a part in the service on Sunday.

Bishop Garber, at one time professor of Church History at Duke Divinity School when it was first organized in 1926, later became

Dear of the Divinity School. Eight years ago the Southeastern Jurisdictional Conference, meeting in Atlanta Georgia, elected him bishop of the Geneva, Switzerland, area, which position he still retains. He has also served as acting bishop of the Richmond area since the retirement of Bishop W. W. Peelle a few years ago.

On Sunday afternoon beginning at 3:00 members of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church will receive at an open house to honor their bishop and the dedication of the building. Members of the Women's Society of Christian Service will be hostesses for the occasion and preside over the tea table.

Officers and teachers of the Church School will be present in each class room to welcome the callers. The senior young people will act as guides for the afternoon. All friends and members of the church are invited to attend. The Educational Building is the outgrowth of a project which was planned several years ago. It was constructed at an estimated cost of $180,000, including land and equipment.

The contract for its construction was let in May of 1950 to the Crossland Construction Company of Columbia, South Carolina, and groundbreaking ceremonies were held in June, 1950, during the Vacation Bible School week. The building was completed and occupied in the late fall of 1951.

H. L. Ormond was chairman of the Finance Committee, which was instrumental in collecting the pledges and donations for the edifice. The Building Committee was composed of Ollie Van Norwick, Jr., chairman, Dr. F. P. Brooks, J. W. Overton, Mrs. J. B. Kirtrell, and Mrs. H. L. Ormond.

All organizations in the church had a hand in the plans and in the contributions. The dedication on Sunday marks the end of the first phase of the long range building and remodeling program which the church has planned for the future.

Relief Agency Is To Be Abandoned

ATLANTIC CITY —(AP)— The Christian Rural Overseas Program—for four years the biggest Protestant-Catholic relief agency—is to be abandoned because of insufficient public support, says the Rev. Franklin Clark Fry.

The Rev. Fry, of New York, made the announcement last night to the 34th annual meeting of the National Lutheran World Relief, Inc., one of the organizations which participated in the CROP relief work.

Contributions to the program have not been sufficient to justify overhead expenses of the organization which was founded in 1947, Fry told the delegates.

Since its foundation, Fry said, CROP has collected more than $11,000,000 in commodities and cash. This was distributed among 30 foreign countries.

Prior to making the announcement, Fry told the meeting:

"There has been a departure from unselfish and humanitarian objectives, which mark a retrogression in the spirit of our country's foreign aid program."

Breeding Ewes Available From Dept. Of Agriculture

Pitt County sheep raisers were informed today that yearling breeding ewes for May delivery are available again this year.

Farm Agent Sam Winchester reported this morning that the Department of Agriculture has obtained a contract for early delivery that officials feel will be difficult to duplicate in quality at a later date.

Winchester said in purchasing ewes, the time of delivery as well as quality and size is an important factor. Ewes delivered early in the season have time to recover from shipment and are ready to breed for early lambs, he explained.

"We were able to deliver yearling ewes for approximately $36.00 at shipping points in North Carolina last year," the farm agent stated. "The ewes we offer now will deliver from $2.00 to $3.00 per head under last year's price, depending upon changes in freight rates. They are from the same man and area that we purchased them last year. Delivered in early May, the ewes were of good quality and have proved very satisfactory."

Several of last year's ewes were purchased by sheep raisers from Ayden, Grifton, and other places in the county. Winchester asserted, and we are very well satisfied with the results of the purchases. "This year, we have a definite guarantee on 500 and a possibility of securing 1,000 if we act within the next two weeks," he said.

Winchester explained that in order for the county to take advantage of the offer, it will be necessary for farmers to place orders with a $5.00 per head deposit immediately, the deposits being payable to the North Carolina Department of Agriculture. "We will take orders on a first received, first filled basis. Deposits for any orders not filled will be returned. We would appreciate an immediate indication of just how many ewes Pitt County farmers will want so that we can act promptly in ordering them," he said.

According to the farm agent, there are more than 300 sheep being used for breeding purposes in Pitt County at present.

Wealth British Earners Again Show Reduction

LONDON —(AP)— The thin ranks of Britain's much-soaked earners of big paychecks have been weeded again. The Inland Revenue Commissioners reported last night only 60 persons had incomes of 6,000 pounds ($16,800) or more after they paid income taxes for the year that ended in March, 1950.

The year before there had been 86 members of this dwindling elite corps.

And the little guys still paid most of the taxes. Revenue officials said most of the money collected came from 8,200,000 people earning between five and 10 pounds ($14 to $28) a week.

Cuba, the "Pearl of the Antilles," is the largest island of the West Indies.

Chess Game For Four Developed

EL PASO, Tex. —(AP)— Now even chess has gone global. A variation of the game, permitting play by four persons instead of two, has been introduced here by Leon Aptacker. He calls it Global Chess and has copyrighted the rules.

The board is enlarged and assumes the form of a cross instead of a square. The four players have white, black, red and yellow chess pieces respectively. They can play partners or individually under various versions of the rules. The games has been publicized both here and in Juarez, Mexico, and an international tournament is planned.

ROME —(AP)— Ingrid Bergman said today she and her film-director husband, Roberto Rossellini, "are expecting another baby in June."

"We have already told a number of friends about it," the Swedish-born actress said in a telephone conversation from her home near Rome.

"We're planning on the baby right along," she explained. "I hope to make more pictures but that will be in the fall."

cause of its significance as evidence of the changing agricultural economy in the Tarheel state. North Carolina is moving out of the cotton-tobacco one crop basis to a diversified program in which livestock plays an important part. Much more publicity has been given to dairy cattle and development of dairy products, but the beef cattle folks are not at hand to show the increase in other breeds, nor the actual number of animals in this one, but Jim Graham, secretary of the state Hereford association, is authority for the state that in January of 1948 there were forty-eight members of his group. Now there are two hundred twenty-six members—an increase of 450 percent in four years.

WHY? Asked whether this increase in membership in the association was due to larger number of Hereford cattle or to more interest in associational activities, Graham said it was due to combination of both cases. He added that his group is interested in developing both pure bred stock and what is commonly called "commercial" stock. Asked for further interpretation of the terms, he said they hoped to provide purebred Herefords for anybody and everybody who wanted them, but were also concerned about helping farmers grow beef to provide meat for the state markets that would meet requirements of state-federal inspection and certification, whether or not the animals slaughtered could qualify for blue ribbons at a cattle show.
