Veterans Stage Big Turnout For Bonus Plan Rally

Ex-GI's packed the Pitt County courtroom last night to hear representatives of the State Amvets organization urge a state-wide referendum on the question of North Carolina paying a bonus to the veterans of World Wars I and II and Korea. The photo above shows a portion of the crowd as they listened to a presentation of the proposal by Tom Sawyer of Durham, ex-senator of the North Carolina General Assembly and state commander of the Amvets. Troop Rotation Is Argued At Parley

UN Command Holding Out For Rotation Of At Least 40,000 Men Per Month; Reds Seek Further Limits On Inspection

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP) — The truce negotiators settled three more minor disputes today, but the United Nations Command served notice it will hold out for the rotation of at least 40,000 troops a month.

The U.N. also rejected Red demands to trim the number of ports of entry to be inspected during an armistice from 12 to three on each side. The Allies contended that the smaller number would be "entirely inadequate."

U.N. and Communist staff officers reached agreement on the following three points during a "second trip" through a 54-paragraph U.N. proposal for supervision of a truce:

1. The number of joint observer teams roaming the demilitarized zone between the opposing armies shall be 15 rather than 10, as first sought by the U.N. The number may be further reduced after the peak load of the early days of the truce.

2. Each side shall decide the rank of the members it wishes to assign to the military armistice commission.

3. Armistice headquarters at first shall be in the cease-fire conference village of Panmunjom, but the armistice commission shall have the right to shift later to another site.

The Communists delayed again their nomination of three nations to serve on the neutral supervisory commission. They also postponed their reply to a U.N. proposal that staff officers begin at once discussing the fifth and final item on the armistice agenda—recommendations to the belligerent governments.

By ROGER W. BABSON. BABSON PARK, Fla. — Last week you read that 85 people have been killed in airplane accidents during the preceding thirty-eight days in Elizabeth, New Jersey, and yet nothing is being done about it. I believe it is a crime against the American people for the airplane companies not to do more to prevent such accidents. It is true that they can use their planes so as to get a new one when a plane is destroyed, but no insurance can replace lives which they destroy. In my humble judgment, their attitude is all wrong.

UN Showered By Eggs, Tomatoes

Noisy Demonstrators Invade Chambers Of Assembly

PARIS (AP)—A group of noisy demonstrators turned the sedate Palais de Chaillot into a brief bedlam this afternoon by showering United Nations delegates with eggs, tomatoes and anarchist pamphlets.

"Politicians—Gossips—Windbags" the pamphlets cried. "Enough talking!"

None of the delegates had said a word all afternoon. One of the eggs splashed an inch from the seat of Soviet Delegate A. A. Sobolev, another swooshed against the white rostrum occupied by the assembly president Secretary General Trygve Lie and his executive assistant, Andrew Cordier.

Sitting in the top gallery of the big amphitheater of the Palais de Chaillot, the group began stirring up excitement a moment after Assembly President Luis Padilla Nervo rapped his gavel to end the day.

While many delegates were still in their seats, they rained down small pamphlets signed "La Federation Anarchiste—the Federation of Anarchists."

Flagstad Sings Last Concert

NEW YORK (UP)—Acclaimed by many as the greatest Wagnerian soprano of this generation, Kirsten Flagstad ended her Carnegie Hall concert last night with the announcement that it was her last recital in New York.

The 55-year-old Norwegian singer made the announcement with tears in her eyes as the audience shouted "No, no!"

The Needed Remedy There is only one means of preventing these accidents. This is to discover some partial insulator of Gravity, although helicopters may also help in solving the problem. Insulators exist for light, noise, fire, air, heat, cold, magnetism, electricity and even atomic energy. The work of the Gravity Research Foundation at New Boston, New Hampshire, is helping to discover a partial insulator for Gravity. This Foundation believes that the airplane companies could discover an alloy

Sabrejets Stage Running Battle

Damage 3 MIGs In 40-Mile Chase To Yalu River Border

8TH ARMY HQ, Korea (UP)—The 5th Air Force, out to avenge the loss of 14 planes in its second most disastrous week of the war, damaged three Communist MIG-15 jet fighters in a running 40-mile air battle today.

Eighteen American Sabrejets fought 5 MIGs all the way to the Yalu River border at altitudes of 30,000 to 40,000 feet. The three enemy jets damaged brought the 5th's claims to 188 MIGs destroyed, 33 completely destroyed and 354 damaged.

Sabrejets also exchanged firing passes with other MIGs over Northwest Korea during the day, but no additional claims were made. Altogether 135 of the sweptback-wing fighters were spotted.

F-80 Shooting Star jets at the same time destroyed one Communist tank and damaged another in raids behind the Red lines.

The 5th Air Force said it lost 14 planes during the past seven days. Communist anti-aircraft guns shot down 13 of the planes and the 14th was lost because of mechanical failure.

By contrast, the Communists lost only one jet fighter during the week. It was shot down in a dog-fight by American Sabrejets.

An 8th Army communique on ground fighting said U. N. tanks supported infantry in a clash with Communists northwest of Kumhwa on the central front. A two-squad Communist probing attack was repulsed below Kosong on the East Coast.

FAMILY SUICIDE

YAMAGATA, Japan (UP)—A 37-year-old farmer, his 27-year-old wife and their three children, aged one to seven, leaped in front of a speeding train today and were killed. Police said Genaro Ozaki and his family committed suicide because of worry over their poverty.

which would partially insulate Gravity if they would only combine and spend the money to do so. When a partial insulator is discovered the exterior of all planes would be covered with this alloy. The weight of the plane would then be so reduced that a fall need not cause a fatal disaster. Besides, the plane and contents would be so much lighter it would be much less liable to engine and other difficulties and hence less liable to fail.

Bonus Plan Talk Enthusiastically Received By Vets

Local Amvet Unit Organized To Promote Bill; Opponents Shouted Down

By JESS POINDEXTER Reflector Staff Writer Approximately 400 white and Negro veterans of World War II from Pitt County jammed the courtroom in the courthouse here last night to hear State Senator Tom Sawyer of Durham speak in favor of a referendum on a state bonus bill.

"One of the greatest obstacles we have to overcome to get this thing through in Raleigh is the so-called 'gag rule' in the senate and house," Senator Sawyer said. "It leads itself to machine type politics. I should know, because I have been smashed by it 10 times."

"In order to get this thing through, veterans will have to have an organization in each county in North Carolina to represent them. You have to have a strong voice and a combined organization to get any legislation past committees and to combat the 'gag rule'."

According to the speaker, the proposed bonus will be paid from revenue raised by declaring a bond issue to be paid off in five years. "Why shouldn't North Carolina pay a bonus to its veterans?" he asked. "Veterans in 26 other states have received one." Sawyer stated that the only way to get the referendum through is to send men to Raleigh who will vote in favor of the proposal.

Several questions were raised from the floor in opposition to the speaker's theories and at times the discussion became rather heated. Often discussion was drowned out by vigorous rebukes from the entire group. The sentiments of the majority were very much in favor of the referendum.

Andy Del Vecova, state director, told the group the Amvets is the only World War II veterans organization chartered by congress. "It is also the only one endorsing a bonus proposal," he stated. He asked that the group last night form a local Amvets organization to agitate for a bonus referendum.

Both white and Negro veterans met after the meeting and formed individual units of the organization. Membership dues are $5.00 a year, of which $2.00 stays in the local unit, $1.00 goes to the state organization, and $2.00 goes to national headquarters. Dues for trainees are only $1.50, with fifty cents going to each of the units. The local unit received none of the money collected last night.

Officers elected last night to serve the white local unit were: commander, George Webb; vice-commander, Curtis Joyner; adjutant, Bill Ennis; public relations officer, J. A. Joyner, Jr.; and provost marshal, Bill Phillips.

Negro officers elected were: commander, John H. Gregory; first vice-commander, Lonnie Anderson; second vice-commander, Hildred Wilson; A. Tucker, adjutant; Everett Jones; finance officer, Millard Bell; judge advocate, Jolly Atkinson; service officer, Jesse Coburn; public relations officer, Robert Lee Cherry; provost marshal, James T. Langley; chaplain, Albert Poust; surgeon general, Jesse Grimes; and historian, Robert Moore.

Conspiracy Case In Job Selling Is Dismissed

JACKSON, Miss. (UP)—Charges of conspiracy in connection with federal job-selling charges against 10 Mississippi pro-Truman Democrats were dismissed in Federal Court late yesterday by Judge Allen Cox.

Cox threw out the conspiracy indictments on two technicalities. However, he upheld the constitutionality of the statute under which the 10 were charged with peddling postoffice and rural carrier jobs and perjury.

Dismissal of the conspiracy indictments throws out the government case against former Mississippi national committee man Clarence Hood of Meridian and two other defendants.

The others are Frank Mize, of Forest, former chairman of the pro-Truman Executive Committee, and Miss Laverne Yelverton, a secretary in the committee office.

Two Republicans Object To Morris Choice For Cleanup

By WARREN DUFFEE United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON (UP)—Two Republican senators today criticized appointment of Newbold Morris to head the government cleanup campaign because he is involved in a Senate investigation of surplus tanker deals.

Sen. Karl E. Mundt said "it would be much better if a man were selected who could devote his full time to investigating corruption and not have to spend part of it being investigated in another case."

"It is a big unfortunate," the South Dakota Republican said, "that the President selected to head his corruption clean-up squad a man whose name has been linked with the elements now under investigation."

The Senate's investigating committee is looking into reports that a firm headed by former Rep. Joseph E. Casey (D-Mass.) made a quick $2,800,000 profit by buying surplus tankers from the government and reselling them under favorable tax conditions.

There have been no charges that Morris profited on the tanker deals. However, Chairman Clyde R. Hoey (D-N.C.) said Morris figures in the inquiry. Hoey said he did not know whether Morris would be called to testify.

Morris, New York Republican attorney, is president and a trustee of the China International Foundation, Inc., owner of all common stock of the United Tanker Corp. The latter firm acquired three surplus tankers from Casey's company and transferred them to the non-profit Chinese Educational Organization as a gift.

Atty. Gen. J. Howard McGrath, himself under Republican fire, announced Morris' appointment yesterday. Morris said his first move will be to investigate the Justice Department, and McGrath pledged his "complete, enthusiastic and unlimited cooperation."

However, Sen. Richard M. Nixon (R-Calif.), like Mundt a member of the Hoey committee, said the appointment of Morris was "too little and too late."

"He's too little and McGrath is too late," Nixon said. "I don't see how the Justice Department can investigate itself."

The White House was expected to direct all government agencies to turn in all complaints and tips that federal employees are involved in irregularities. This plan was reported to have been ready for three weeks while President Truman sought someone to head the anti-corruption drive.

Morris, who returned home to celebrate his 50th birthday today, said he would be in Washington Monday to start his "non-political and non-partisan" campaign. He promised to "put my heart and soul into it."

Mr. Ground Hog Saw His Shadow

At Least The Pitt Didn't Oversleep

If the proverbial ground hog didn't see his shadow in Pitt County this morning it was either because he overslept or couldn't get his eyes open once he struggled out of his hole.

Skies were clear over the area early this morning but became partially cloudy as the day wore on. If the little critter was able to remember what he is supposed to do on this groundhog day, he took one glance at his shadow and scampered back into his hole for another six weeks of hibernation.

Pilot Subdued

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Thirteen angry airline passengers subdued their pilot who became drunk in flight and tied him in a seat to permit the co-pilot to make an emergency landing at Nagpur, a Civil Aeronautics spokesman reported today.

The passengers, nine of them foreigners, handed the pilot over to police after the Nagpur landing. The spokesman said his pilot's license was suspended.

He said the flier, a hefty Australian, was enticed from the plane's control cabin—after he permitted the plane to fall practically uncontrolled from 10,000 to 4,000 feet—on the promise of another drink.

Russians Appeal For FDR Policy

WASHINGTON (UP)—Russia has appealed to the American people to reject the Truman administration and return to the policies of President Roosevelt.

In a broadcast beamed to the United States, Radio Moscow paid the late President lavish tribute but charged President Truman with leading the world toward World War III.

"A return to Roosevelt's policy of cooperation and good neighborly relations with the USSR," it said, "corresponds to the interests of peace-loving people, to the common interest of both the Soviet and American people."

In contrast, Moscow said, "the Truman government... has taken the road of aggravating relations with the USSR, the road of preparation for a new war."

It said American delegates in the United Nations are "undermining" the big-power veto power and added "it was no accident that this principle was proposed by none other than Roosevelt."

Ridgway Reports Reds Use Korea For Training

PARIS (AP)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway has officially reported to the United Nations his belief the Communists are using northwest Korea as a combat training center for jet fighter pilots.

Ridgway's report, covering the month of November, was contained in the U. N. Commander's periodic survey of the Korea War submitted to Trygve Lie, U. N. Secretary General.

In the air war, Ridgway said, "The quality of communist pilots varied radically, sometimes being reported as equivalent to that of student pilots while at other times the superior acrobatic performance of the MIGs indicated they were flown by pilots who are experienced and competent."

"There seems to be good reason to assume that northwest Korea is being used by the Communists as a combat training center for jet pilots," he said.

Fantastic Pay In Atomic Project

Wire Splicer Paid $775.50 Per Week At Proving Grounds

LAS VEGAS (AP)—An Atomic Energy Commission hearing has uncovered that a wire splicer received $775.50 a week for his specialized work on the EC's Nevada proving grounds.

E. J. Maupin Jr., president of the Dodge Construction Co., of Fallon, Nev., testified at the final session last night that the splicer, F. T. Singleton, was employed 40 hours a week on regular time and 89 1/2 hours on an overtime basis. He said Singleton was released from the Navy for the job at the AEC request, and that he was here only during the time his services were needed.

Maupin's firm has two projects under construction at the atom test site.

Other witnesses testified that high wages paid by Haddock Engineers, Ltd., almost paralyzed some of Las Vegas' industrial activities. Roy Flippin, secretary of the Employers' Association of Southern Nevada, said Haddock was paying $100 a day for roofers and that other workers got from $500 to $600 a week. Workers left Las Vegas jobs for the higher wages, witnesses said.

The hearing was called after the McNeil Construction Co., which lost a $661,000 fixed fee contract for failure to complete its work on schedule, complained that Haddock "pirated" its labor.

Newsmen attending the hearing were permitted for the first time inside the heavily walled control at Yucca Flats, scene of the atomic tests last fall. The visit disclosed apparent preparedness for additional atom explosions which may be held early in the spring.

Magician Loses Set Of Props

CHICAGO (UP)—Magician Eddie Cotts was in the market for a whole new set of props today after thieves pulled a disappearing act with a rabbit, five opossums, a raccoon, two ferrets, three guinea pigs, 50 white rats and 25 homing pigeons.

With a possible eye or nose to the future, the thieves overlooked four skunks.

Eastern All-State Band Clinic Closing With Concert Tonight

The Eastern Division of the All-State Band Clinic, in session on the East Carolina College campus yesterday and today, will come to a close tonight, when a 110-piece band of high-school students will be presented in a concert in the Wright auditorium at 8 o'clock.

The Clinic Concert Band was organized on the campus Friday and today under the direction of James C. Pfohl, head of the music department at Davidson College and music director of the clinic. Those making up the band represent 34 schools in eastern North Carolina and were chosen for work at the clinic because of their superior talent as musicians.

A series of sectional meetings has made up part of the work of the clinic. At these sessions, performers on various instruments of the band have received instruction from twelve visiting band directors.

Poison Gas Charged In Korean War

Malik Complains To UN; U. S. 'Disturbed' By Slow Course Of Truce Talks

PARIS (AP)—Russia charged the United States today with using poison gas in Korea. Soviet Delegate Jacob A. Malik told a joint session of the United Nations political, economic and social committees an attack with "toxic gases" was made by American planes Jan. 9.

PARIS (UP)—The United States told the United Nations today that it is "disturbed by the slow course" of the Korean armistice negotiations.

"We share with all other peace-loving nations a profound sense of disappointment that a satisfactory end to the hostilities has not yet been reached despite the sincere and patient efforts of the U. N. side," American Delegate Ernest A. Gross said.

He urged adoption of a Western resolution calling for a special session of the General Assembly as soon as a Korean armistice has been concluded or if the need arises for new U. N. military measures against the Communist aggressors.

Gross said the West opposed the Soviet demand for an immediate debate on the political future of Korea because it might further snarl the "already complicated problem" facing truce negotiators at Panmunjom.

The committee rejected the Soviet motion for a full-scale Korean debate at this time by a vote of 40 to 5 with 12 abstentions.

Soviet Delegate Jacob Malik charged that the postponement move had been plotted illegally in a "kitchen or club cabinet" by the U.S., Britain and France "in the interests of the aggressive policy of the U.S.A."

Gross retorted that the U.S. continued to give the "highest priority" to the U.N. aim of a unified and democratic Korea, but added: "The United States is disturbed by the slow course of the armistice negotiations at Panmunjom..."

"Precisely because we are anxious to go forward, we desire to avoid premature political discussions which could postpone or complicate the conclusion of an armistice. It is the armistice which will open the way to constructive consideration of political issues."

A 110-piece band made up of high school students rehearse for the concert here tonight under the direction of James C. Pfohl, head of the music department at Davidson College. (Photo by Mary Greene).

Journals Publish Science Articles By Dr. Eaton

Dr. Theodore H. Eaton of the faculty of the East Carolina College science department has recently had two articles published in scientific journals. They are "Feeding Habits and Relationships of the Lower Chordates," in "Turtos News" and "Origin of Tetrapod Limbs" in "The American Midland Naturalist."

Dr. Eaton joined the East Carolina faculty in September 1950, after teaching experience in the University of California, George Washington University, and other schools. Since that time, he has published a text for introductory courses in comparative anatomy, "Comparative Anatomy of the Vertebrates," which was issued from the press of Harper and Brothers of New York in June 1951.

Change of Heart

By Kathleen Harris

Chapter 24
Marcia went in. There was another closed door, another opening into a bedroom. She started toward the latter; her heart beat with each step that echoed in her ears at least, too loudly. She did not know why she did not call Manning's name, or wait, but that same compelling unseen force drew her toward the bedroom.

On the threshold she stopped, frozen in her steps. Manning lay flung across the bed, one arm hanging limp. There was a small pool of blood seeping from beneath his body; his head hung grotesquely downward. On the floor she saw a small revolver.

Marcia thought she screamed. She was not sure. She stood, rooted in horror. She must go on in, over to the bed; she must lean down and touch Manning, make sure he was dead. For if he was not, she must summon help.

It was the hardest thing she had ever forced herself to do. She was shaking all over; her own fingers were so icy that the flesh of Manning's wrist was warm. Even if he was dead, it might still be warm; she knew so pitifully little about the dead.

Automatically she leaned down and picked up the revolver. She placed it carefully on the small night table.

"You shouldn't have done that, miss," someone spoke behind her. Marcia whirled; her heart in her throat.

She was thinking of Manning. "Is he alive?" she asked. "Will you take him—at once—to a hospital? May I go with you, please?" "Come on, you two!" One of them touched her on one sleeve. "Save the tears, lady."

"I'm not crying," Marcia said. She must not. She must think clearly.

"Let her come alone. It'll save time," the second policeman broke in. "You too, buddy!" He nodded toward the driver.

"Oh, thank you!" Marcia said. "And please hurry. If he's still alive we simply must get him there in time."

"Don't be so anxious, lady." The policeman in command spoke in that sharp way. "You'll get a chance later to tell your story."

"But I haven't any story," Marcia protested. She saw from the look on the policeman's face—each of their faces—that, like the taxi driver, each one believed that she had had something to do with all this. "You see, the truth is..."

"Don't say nothing!" the cabbie interrupted swiftly. "Wait until they get you a good lawyer."

"A lawyer!" Marcia gasped. He couldn't mean... they couldn't mean... The driver should not have said that. It was plain to be seen that everything he said was only going to make it harder for Marcia to make these others believe the truth.

Two of the policemen were carrying Manning out of the room. Marcia had to turn her head; a small sob escaped her.

This was the tomorrow that Abigail had waited for so eagerly so joyously. It was the tomorrow Marcia had thought might come too soon. It was the day that might have been her wedding day.

Who knew, ever, what any tomorrow would bring? All the tomorrows that lay waiting; that, like this one, too soon or too late would turn into today.

YOUNG AMERICA

Integrity, confidence, and courage are reflected in the face of this lad. If all of America's youth were as assured of his heritage of happy, useful, unselfish, Christian citizenship, our nation need not fear the future. True, these are times of war and conflict and no one can foresee the outcome. It is therefore especially comforting to know that this Boy Scout and thousands like him are being trained to meet the challenge.

The Boy Scouts are taught and encouraged in every way to respect and to serve their fellow men and their country. Moral and spiritual training holds an important place in their program, and practical applications of all they learn are fostered.

And the Scout is taught to serve God too. He attends Church regularly and takes an active part in its work.

This then is at least a part of Young America that is receiving the blessings of Christian training. But there are millions more who are not. Won't you encourage the youngsters of your community to seek the Church? Take groups of them with you and make them feel that Sunday morning means Sunday School and Church.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For the sake of his community and nation. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Mushrooming Utilities Work To Transform Rural Areas

By ROY HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

A vast transformation is overtaking the rural sections of Pitt, Beaufort and Craven counties, as work speeds steadily along on the big $390,000 expansion program being carried on by the Greenville Utilities Commission among its rural power users.

Daily as work goes forward, bringing rural and remote sections into contact with the everyday modern conveniences known to city folks for some time, the vastness of the program can be traced.

To the people of the three counties, the commission's vast undertaking in expansion of its existing rural power lines and the addition of service to areas heretofore unserved, it is the realization of a dream come true after many years. For many of these people have eagerly awaited the transferring of their homes and farms into the modern up-to-date places which they can be through the medium of electrical power.

They know as well as others, that progress follows the power transmission lines, and the addition of power in the region will bring in with it better roads, and a desire among other people to come and settle there.

Behind all this progress has gone long hard months of work and careful planning on the part of the Greenville Utilities Commission and its workers.

The local commission had long seen the need for additional power service in sections of the three counties and in anticipating of securing this service, over a year ago, started signing up customers for the new service once it was obtained.

Since the city was not able to finance the expansion program, the commission turned to the Rural Electrification Administration for the necessary funds.

After months of debating, consideration and changes in original plans the awarding of a contract for the first expansion program was let to September 22, 1951, after a loan commission turned to the Rural Electrification Administration for the building of the 243 miles of new lines now under construction.

The building contract was awarded to R. H. Bouligny Construction Company of Charlotte, which began work in November and had a contract that called for a 100 working day schedule.

Mrs. Charlie Whitfield of near Greenville, and small daughter, are justly proud of their new washing machine which will now do the family laundry, operated by water furnished by the newly installed electric pump. This is typical of the many modern devices which will soon be in hundreds of farm families' homes once the power line program is completed.

Following the granting of the loan to the city and the awarding of the contract, there began the giant construction task, which was to touch nearly every section of Pitt, Craven and Beaufort County.

With the addition of the new lines, the City of Greenville will have the largest number of rural customers and the greatest amount of rural power lines of any city in the State of North Carolina.

Payment of the expansion will be taken care of from the revenue which is anticipated from the new lines. In the event that the city fails to live up to its payment scale, spread along a 35-year period, the Rural Electrification Administration has a first mortgage on the line, thus protecting itself.

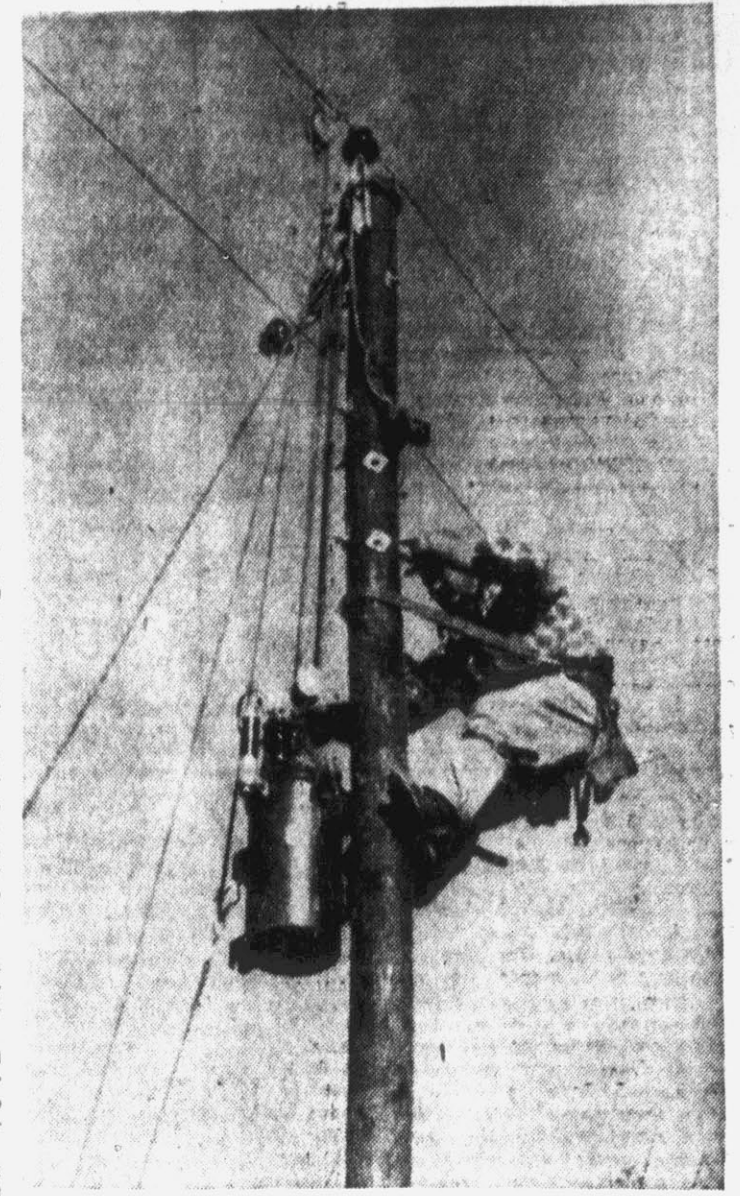

In the original survey made of the rural needs in the tri-county area, the engineers found that over 200 persons were ready to put in application for power service. In addition the area contains over 2500 potential power users who are expected to benefit from the program in the near future.

When the lines were surveyed it was taken into consideration the number of now undecided customers who would later change their mind about obtaining power and the lines laid out accordingly. A lot have now joined the ranks of those who see the opportunities offered by electrical service.

The work on the present job is being carried out on the assembly line process which is best suited for the type of work now being done. All told, the work is actually divided into seven steps involving the use of seven specially trained crews who arrive on the scene, perform one duty and move on down the line.

Here the job of the engineer must keep his crews properly spaced out in order that they will not overrun one another or get too far apart.

The present job has not been hampered by serious labor difficulties, other than the inability of the

A lineman guides a transformer up the pole as he gets set to install it on a section of new line near Greenville. Operations of fixing the lines is carried on on an assembly line basis involving seven different operations. (Staff Photos by Reflector Photographer Roy Hardee).

Another rural home is about to reap the benefits of the expansion program now underway to bring electrical service to more than 1200 persons over a three-county area. Above, a workman for the Greenville Utilities Commission finishes the installation of a meter.

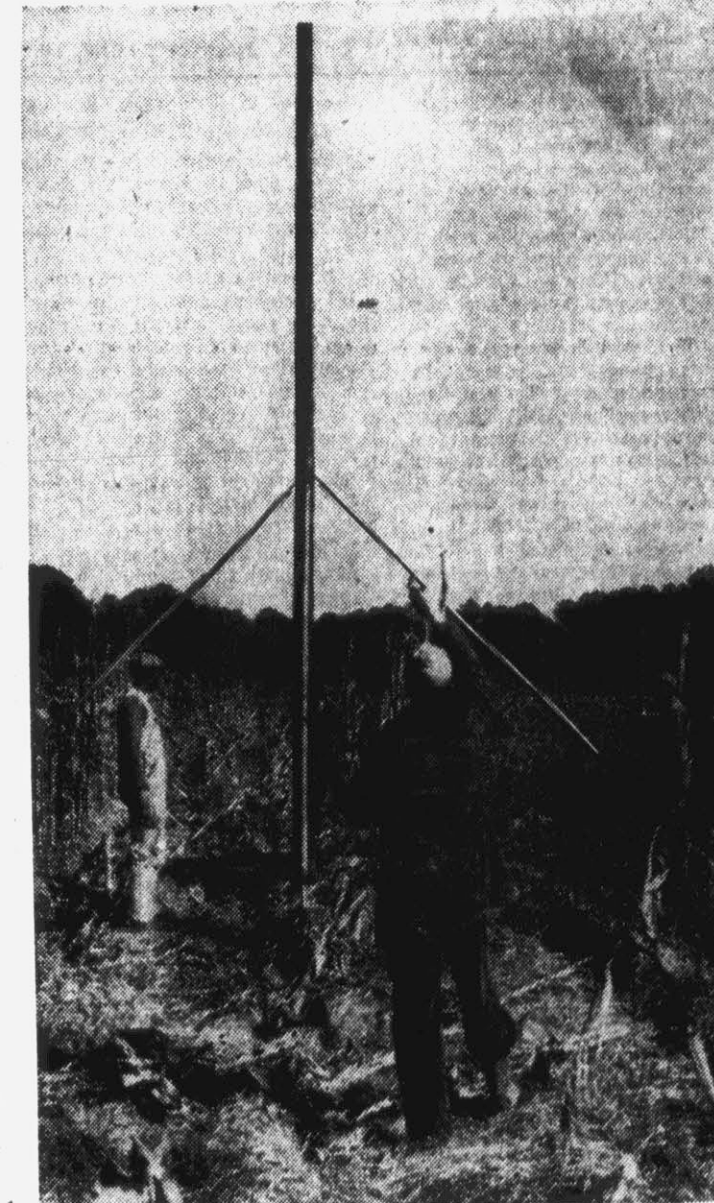

Some idea as to the vast store of supplies which are needed for an undertaking such as the one started by the local utilities commission is shown by this pile of poles being loaded. Supply areas are kept in Greenville and near Vanceboro to fill the needs of the working crews.

This labor saving machine, a boring instrument, can dig a hole to place a pole in less than two minutes. Then the hoist swings the pole around and drops it into the freshly dug hole.

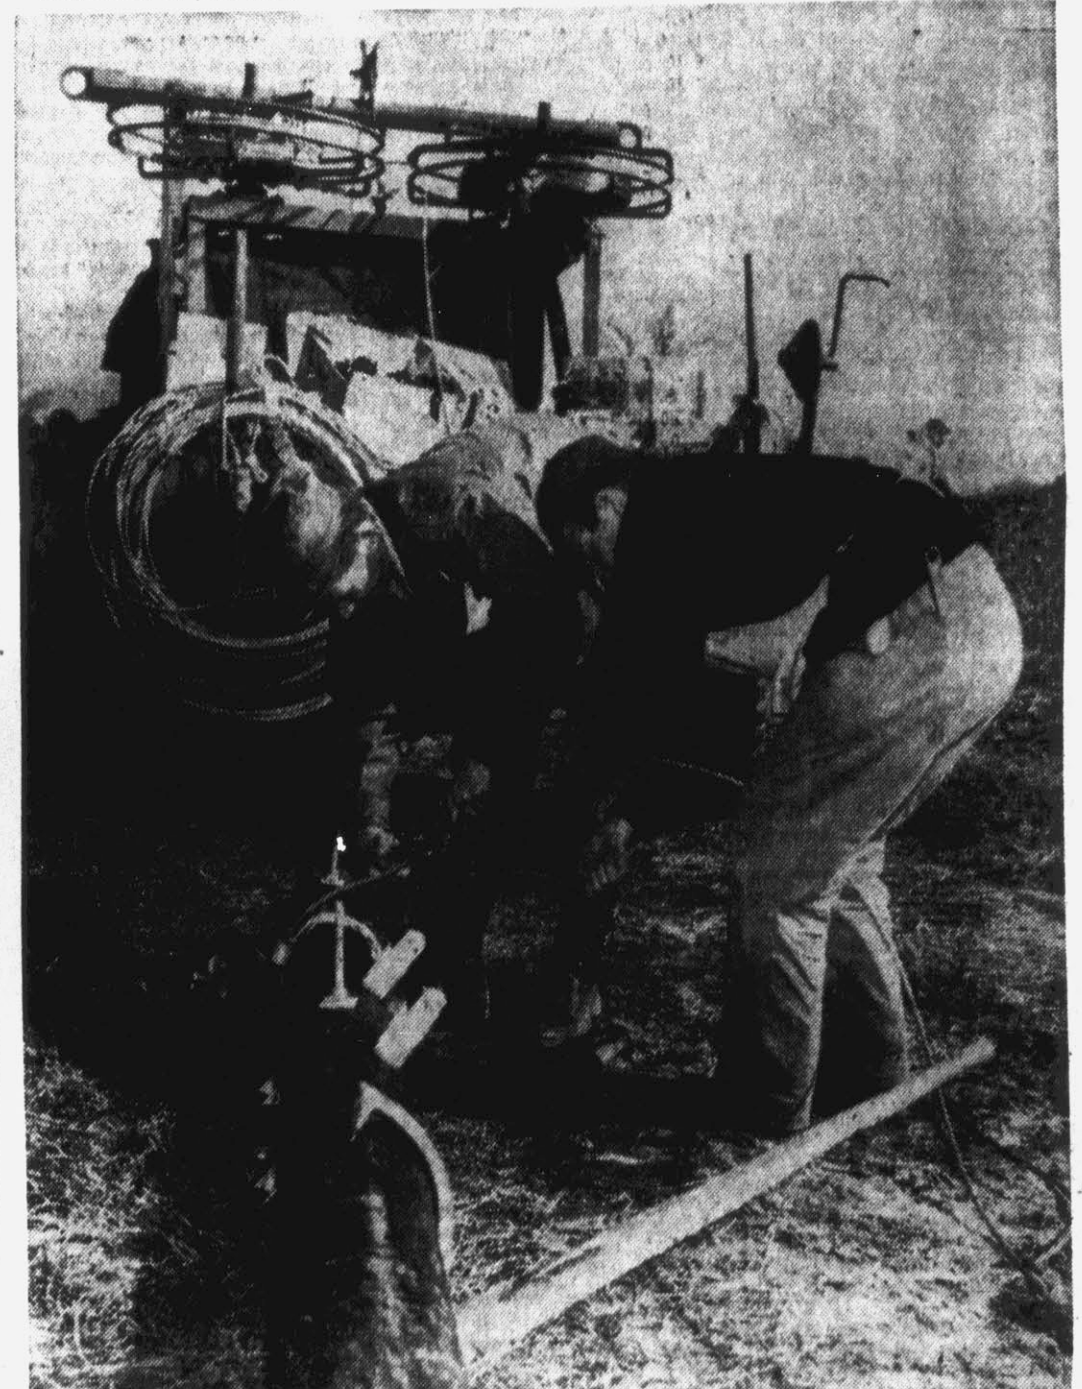

Another pole in the vast chain of units which are now dotting the countryside of Pitt, Beaufort and Craven counties is shown ready to be placed in position by a field crew.

Once the poles are placed in the ground, they must then be lined up properly as is being done in the above picture. The man in the foreground is giving directions to the workmen in order to have the pole right.

Towering power poles carrying eagerly awaited electrical energy are now found spanning even the remotest section of a tri-county area bringing to some folks their first full utilization of electrical power.

These two men are "framers." It is their job to completely fit the poles while still on the ground with the correct "hardware" for the attachment of wires and other units by the next crews. The job requires a lot of skill in placing the fittings correctly since they must be at the right angle when placed in the air or will not work.

The final step in bringing power into a rural home is made by two workers when they connect the lead in power lines to the household wiring as shown above.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

THE MIND AND OUR AILMENTS

A doctor remarked recently that it wasn't so hard to cure a disease; the great difficulty lay in curing the person.

Even if we have an infection, our state of mind has considerable to do with our recovery. Of course there are some incurable diseases upon which no state of mind would seem to have any effect, but more often than we would suppose, our afflictions arise from some dislocation of personality. We work too hard, or we eat about twice as much food as we need, not because our bodies demand it but because our minds do. Doctors assure us that the hunger which prompts over-eating is largely a delusion. So is every other impulse which leads us on to excess.

If the psychiatrist could get all the mental quirks straightened out in the minds of the American people, many of the doctors probably would have to go on the relief rolls. As a matter of fact, every good doctor is a psychiatrist. Most of them are treating not only disease but the disordered attitude of patients toward what they believe to be disease.

There is plenty of real suffering in the world, real disease. For this we should have the most tender-hearted sympathy and against such disease the lessons of science should be supported in their crusade. But a lot of our ills are only in our minds.

Pattern Makers Are Becoming Inferior

Today, just as always, the conduct of the adults of the United States has a vivid and tangible effect upon the behavior of the youth of the nation. The tragedy of the situation is that many youths are following the disgraceful conduct which has been exhibited by the older people.

Just this week Philadelphia police announced the discovery of a Nazi-like youth organization after the arrest of two boys who had thrown a "Molotov cocktail" into a synagogue of the city. Whether the youth organization was instigated by adults or whether a group of boys merely patterned it after behavior set by some of the adults of the country, we don't know. One thing for sure, however, the latter is entirely probable.

In Florida during recent months there have been a number of bombings of churches, homes and other buildings by terrorists seeking to create a state of unrest between members of different races. It is likely that the Philadelphia youngsters got their bombing idea from the reports of the Florida outrages.

Even in North Carolina in recent months there have been several reports of floggings intimidation of individuals by groups of men who have either taken the law into their own hands or out to spread fear among a particular group of people.

So far there have been no reports of similar action by youngsters' groups, but it would not be surprising to see it most any day.

The youths look to the older people they know and hear about for a pattern of behavior. With the rate of crime and misconduct among the adults of the United States today, there is little wonder that far too many youths are showing a lack of discretion in their behavior. The major fault for the condition lies with the adults who set the patterns rather than the youths who follow.

More People Are Wanting More News

There is no nation in the world as news conscious as the United States. And the nation is becoming more and more conscious of current events every day.

One can hardly go into a cross roads filling station or country store these days without seeing two or three newspapers lying around. Practically every home in cities and in rural areas have at least one newspaper which is delivered every day, and sometimes even more.

There is hardly a 15-minute period when a person can turn on a radio and turn the dial without finding a station which is reporting the latest happenings in the day's news. News magazines are becoming more popular, and people are becoming more interested in news pictures as well as the printed word.

The increasing news consciousness of the people of the country is evidenced not only by the casual observations noted above, but by the fact that newspaper circulations in 1951 climbed above the 54 million mark for the first time in history. Even with the other sources of news, the newspapers of the United States remain the principal source of news for the people of the country.

The newspapers are constantly endeavoring to bring to the people in their localities a more complete and more comprehensive report of the day's news in the community, and in the state, nation and the world as well. The time and effort of increasing numbers of people are being turned to gathering reports for the 1,773 newspapers which are printed daily in the United States. More time and effort is being devoted to interpreting the news editorially and to providing pictures correlated with the news reports.

This increasing news consciousness is a healthy sign for the United States where the pace of life is rapid, government, business and daily routine are becoming more complicated.

As long as the United States can retain a well informed public, there is little worry about freedoms disappearing from the American scene.

National Whirligig

Every Saturday this veteran Washington newspaper correspondent answers readers' questions of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent direct to Ray Tucker at 6308 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON—Why is it that General Eisenhower gets his strongest Presidential backing in the East? asks Mr. C. T. of Grand Rapids, Mich. "While other sections seem to favor Senator Taft, Governor Warren of California, Stassen or Senator Dirksen of Illinois?"

Answer: The explanation for that is easy. Most of the influential interests in New England, New York and along the northern section of the Atlantic seaboard—banks, insurance companies, importers and exporters, industry and business, the newspapers and the politicians—have always had strong sentimental and commercial ties with Europe, especially England. PRESTIGE—When England was a going concern, all these institutions had profitable arrangements with their British opposites. Even now, when the United States provides economic and military aid to the "old country," they are benefitting in many ways from our huge advances. Should Europe return to her former glory and power, they will share in her recovery.

General Eisenhower is the physical symbol of this association with Europe and England. Although he is reported to have certain doubts on the wisdom of the general Truman-Acheson foreign policy, he conducted the war in that area, and he has been charged with making Europe safe from Russian conquest. In a similar manner, General MacArthur is associated with safeguarding and developing the Far East. Finally, eastern politicians—Dewey, Duff, Lodge etc.—figure that they can win power and prestige, if they can nominate and elect "Ike." As party disidents on Capitol Hill, they are not especially popular with G.O.P. stalwarts, who prefer Senator Taft to an outsider like the General.

And, of course, certain magazine and newspaper editors fancy themselves as political Warwick, as they did when they swung behind Wendell Willkie in 1940. There is no mystery about it.

REASON—"Do you believe," inquires C. S. of Milwaukee, Wis., "that a military clique at Washington—Marshall, Bradley, Collins etc.—double-crossed General MacArthur, and tried deliberately to discredit him with President Truman, thus leading to his recall? I notice that several important military experts advance this idea."

Answer: I have too high a regard for the men on the Joint Chiefs of Staff to think that they set out deliberately to cut down General MacArthur. From reading their testimony before the Senate committee which investigated the ouster, I think they felt sincerely that MacArthur's strategy of aggressive, all-out war against the Chinese Communists might transform a regional conflict in Korea into a World War III. That was President Truman's official reason for the recall, and, of course, he obtained the facts to support his reasoning from the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

DISAGREEMENT—After saying that, I can testify that the military group around the President had no great love for MacArthur. The publicity given to his exploits in the Pacific War gripped them, especially as they knew from experience that "Mac" is a genius at publicizing himself. They knew that he had disagreed since 1941 with their insistence that Europe was the main theater of war.

In talking with newspaper correspondents, diplomatic visiting members of Congress and Army friends, "Mac" did not conceal his disagreement with the Eisenhower-Bradley-Collins strategy.

He said that the North African invasion was a "waste and unnecessary." He denounced the attack on Italy. He exploded again and again when a steady flow of men and weapons went to Europe, while he had to improvise and do without necessary supplies for several years.

So, although I don't think the Joint Chiefs of Staff deliberately sabotaged MacArthur, they did not go out of their way to prevent his recall. Their views, it seems, "happened to coincide" with President Truman's in this matter.

UNFITNESS—"Don't you think," asks H. S. of Muskegon, Mich., "that Congress has thoroughly demonstrated its utter unfitness to declare war? Wouldn't we be better off today, if the late Representative Louis Ludlow's 1948 bill had been enacted? It would have made war possible only after a vote of the people?"

Answer: In the days of sailing ships, muskets and soldiers who sprang to arms overnight, as William Jennings Bryan fatuously believed they could and would the Ludlow proposal would have been an ideal way for a democracy to go forth to war. In fact, that is almost how we did it in the near-disastrous conflicts of 1776, 1812 and 1861-65, not to mention 1917 and 1941.

FEASIBLE—But how can any nation take time out to hold a referendum on war when Russian planes loaded with atom bombs could attack our coasts and great industrial centers overnight? Suppose, for instance, that Congress was not in session.

While I dislike to see the nation's war-or-peace destiny and decision vested in certain Presidents I might name, there have been plenty of them, besides Truman, I see no feasible alternative to permitting him to possess that power in these days of atomic weapons and airplanes with supersonic speed.

Those directing the spending and handling of the goods which the tax dollars buy are going to have to be just as efficient, just as economical and just as wise in using and spending as the Average American is today. Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

If you read this column regularly you know my point of view on war news: Read just as little as possible, yet enough to have a general idea about what is going on. After all, it's an American's duty to know how to vote. The only way to know how to vote is to keep up with the USA's position in world affairs under the guidance of our leaders.

This week marked the end of seven months that truce talks have been underway in Korea. What do the big wheels in Washington think of that? They are split. One group is completely discouraged, on edge about the whole mess. The other group is very patient because they think there is still hope for settlement.

Among those who are exasperated are the Navy and the Air Force. Last week the Secretary of the Navy, Dan A. Kimball, had a speech all prepared for his appearance in Milwaukee. But he got completely off the subject and said, "If God forbid, we do not have a truce in Korea, the Navy will carry the war to the enemy. We're not going to fight the next war in the United States."

William Fichteler, Chief of Naval Operations, told his ships and men can act: "If the truce negotiations break down, the Navy is prepared to broaden the scope of its operations. We have the capability of blockading the China coast." The Air Force's General Hoyt Vandenberg was equally ready for strategic attacks on the China mainland.

One of the top civilians in the Defense Department said: "We have come to the point with this thing, where we cannot afford to go on any longer. The American people are losing patience, and I'm afraid that we may be reaching the breaking point."

But not everybody in Washington is impatient. The top brass, Generals Omar Bradley and J. Lawton Collins, were in favor of sticking it out at Panmunjom just as long as the Communists are willing to talk and not start up a new offensive. They think that the waiting was an advantage for the U.S. it kept down casualties and provided a training for ground troops.

The State Department is full of questions: Is it worth talking peace to the Communists any longer? If not, on what issue shall we break off—airfields, or prisoners of war? If we break off, what will we do next? They are the questions that the State Department has to answer. And until these questions are answered, our representatives in Korea are not to leave Panmunjom.

TEST—Another court test of North Carolina inspection fee system is in the offing. The Florence Mayo Nu Way Corporation of Farmville has instituted mandamus proceedings against the State Board of Agriculture, L. Y. Ballentine as commissioner of agriculture, and C. D. Baucum as chief of the weights and measures division in the state department of agriculture.

These state officials have been cited to appear before the presiding judge of superior court in Wake county on February 18 to show cause why they should not accept a check in the amount of $50,000 for one thousand approval seals for oil burner tobacco curers, instead of requiring a check for $1,000 under board of agriculture regulations fixing a fee of $1.00 per unit.

DIFFERENT—This action is brought in state courts and in material elements is different from two previous court attacks upon the state inspection in federal courts. Back in the 1930's a fertilizer company challenged the right of the board of agriculture to charge fixed registration fees for brands as a revenue producer. The state lost that case on technicalities, and changed from brand registration to tonnage inspection fee basis. In 1909 an oil company questioned the right of the board of agriculture to set standards and collect inspection fees on kerosene oil. The state won that case also on technicalities. Since then there have been threats of other court action, but none developed because of agreed adjustment made in the whole field of inspection fees and regulatory policies. The upcoming action has reminiscent features of former court cases and mutual agreements, with some new angles.

PROGRES—It's a long cry from conditions of the last decade of the nineteenth century and the first decade of the twentieth to those obtaining now. There are still rumblings about too much charge for fertilizer and oil inspection, and there is imminent prospect of court contest of the "Nickels for Know How" program, but generally relations between state departments have been friendly will, all questions adjusted through compromise agreements.

AGREED—The general assembly of 1947 enacted a law requiring the department of agriculture to inspect and approve types of oil burner curers for tobacco barns, and provided that manufacturers, dealers and distributors of the oil burning devices should pay the cost of such inspection. Agreement among a number of manufacturers and the department fixed a fee of one dollar per unit as fair. Correspondence on file in the department of agriculture show that the Florence Mayo folks were parties to that agreement. Meanwhile the trend to oil burning units for curing tobacco moved with geometric progression. The take from the one dollar fee pyramid, because oil installations came along faster than had been contemplated. In fact, they came so fast the state department just could not do adequate inspection on individual installations, but was still collecting the dollar fee on basis of approved types.

LEGISLATIVE—During the last session of the general assembly the department asked for an appropriation approximately equaling the collection, to do a real job of inspection. The legislature did not go along with that request. The situation as of now, according to figures in the complaint filed by the Mayo corporation, is that last year the department collected some $30,000 in fees and spent less than $1500 on the project. State funds that figure of $1500 is far too low, but they admit collections have greatly exceeded on gasoline, fuel oil, fertilizer, seeds and what have you, also greatly exceed the amount actually spent for inspection. Some time this whole business of relation between inspection fees collected and inspection service provided must be faced. In the matter of tobacco curers the department of agriculture wants to do a real inspection job, but legislative action does not permit it.

Some of these generally known but not officially confirmed facts may be brought out in the court action initiated this week by the Mayo corporation.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

ANOTHER WAITING PERIOD (Roanoke Rapids Herald) Delay, delay delay!

The program of delay being carried out by Secretary of the interior Chapman is working out pretty well—for him.

He has delayed construction of the Roanoke Rapids Dam again. He now has until April 1 to request a review of the Power Commission decision.

While Chapman has lost in every legal maneuver he has engaged in regarding the dam, he has succeeded in delaying the project for three years. He is now starting on his fourth year.

He must hope for some miracle. We can't believe that he hopes for a favorable decision by the Supreme Court. But maybe he figures the election this year will change the complexion of Congress. We just don't know what he figures.

The word had sifted through from Washington about a week ago that no appeal would be made. This word came from good sources, then about two or three days ago, the word started to change. There had been, according to the same source, a change of decision.

So we are now faced with another delay.

This is not time to let up, however, in the efforts of the people of this area to get the dam built by VEPCO. Now is a good time to really go to work.

Remember this—every decision up to now has been in favor of VEPCO. Chapman has lost every single decision, by unanimous vote. Remember, he must some day go to the Supreme Court. After that, if he loses, he can't go anywhere else.

The request for extension of time to file an appeal is foolish. He has had three months. His case, with his same old arguments, has been prepared and presented and presented again for three years.

Every effort will be made, of course to get him to call off the case. Miracles sometimes happen, and he could, under the proper persuasion or pressure, be inclined to drop the case.

Every effort we can put forth will be worthwhile. We should let him and the President know how we feel.

That dam is needed and needed badly. The power is needed in this area. Let's get the dam built as quickly as possible.

Business Today

Unless considerable Congressional pressure develops, the Office of Price Stabilization's current study of the soft goods situation will probably not lead to sweeping relief from price controls.

It won't take much of a study to find out that most soft goods—textiles, clothing, shoes and leather goods—are generally selling below ceiling prices. When ceilings were imposed, cotton, wool and hides were at a high price. Since then large supplies of these commodities and a decline in demand have brought prices well below ceilings.

The question naturally arises: since prices are safely below ceilings, why continue controls? The OPS will probably come up with this answer:

Although the oft-predicted shortage of hard goods—appliances, autos and others made of metal—has not yet arrived, supplies may eventually decrease. The April-through-June allotment of metals has been sharply cut to divert more to defense. If and when durable goods become harder to get, most economists expect a transference of purchasing power to soft goods.

Expectation of just such a transference is one of the reasons that soft goods prices have weakened. The National Industrial Conference Board commented, "Sales of apparel manufacturers lagged since early 1949. Production continued heavy in anticipation of a rush to soft goods. Not until June, when stocks had piled up noticeably, was production cut more than seasonably and below comparable 1950 levels."

The OPS will probably also find that, just at the moment when lesser supplies of durables cause a shift in demand to soft goods, spending power will increase and this will tend to bid up prices. At that moment deflation production will be getting into full swing, meaning more employment, more overtime and more profit.

The OPS is likely to take the not unreasonable position that just about the time soft goods were decontrolled it would become necessary to impose controls again.

The OPS, however, is amenable to pressure. The Defense Production Act, which authorizes price controls, expires June 30 unless Congress votes its continuance. If Congress balks at extending authority for control of prices of things now selling below ceilings, the OPS may have to make last compromises.

There is another question: when articles are selling below ceiling prices, why do industries worry about controls? That answer, as every business man knows, is that it costs money to be under control. There are records to be kept and reports to be made, all of which require manpower and other expenses.

Besides, some day prices may go up. TIME-PAY MEAT NO LONGER GAG The Old Promoter chuckled as he came on his announced but not unexpected weekly visit. "All your cartoonist friends will have to think up a new gag," he said. "They'll die first," we answered. "What's your point?"

"For months now they have been living on jokes about housewives buying meat on the installment plan," the O. P. said. "But it isn't a joke any more. A supermarket in Wisconsin that specializes in quantity sales of beef for frozen food lockers has made arrangements with a bank to finance customers' purchases. No money down, six months to pay, 8 per cent interest."

NEW YORK (AP)—Cross-section of a man's mind waiting for a bus:

Look at all the people on the street tonight. Boy, I bet if a mad dog ran up right now you'd see them scatter. I'd scatter too... but if I had a cane I wouldn't... with a cane a fellow is pretty safe against attacks by mad dogs...

Why did men ever let themselves be jarred out of the habit of carrying canes anyway? I'd carry one if every body else did—a thorn cane with a big knobby end... canes feel good... a man never knows what to do with his hands when he's walking with a cane in your hand you are two inches taller...

What if a mad dog jumped me right this minute? Why, I would be helpless... You think the cops would help you? Not them... They're too busy writing out traffic tickets. They'd probably arrest you for obstructing the dog's path.

Well, what could I do—climb this "bus stop" sign? Hmm, it's only about four feet high... that dog would bite me sure... Oh, well, what's a slight case of rabies today? If a guy had it and didn't tell his friends, they would never even notice it... that's how crazy the world is now...

But if you get cirrhosis of the liver the word gets around right away. I never knew anybody that had secret cirrhosis... and yet that's easier to hide than varicose veins...

Varicose veins... That's what I'm getting waiting for this darned bus. I'll bet all the buses are parked at the end of the line and the drivers are playing pennyante poker... You never catch a bus driver with varicose veins, kidney trouble? Yes...

"We get it from jouncing over holes in the street the mayor is too busy to fix," a driver told me once... he said they took a kidney stone out of him as big as a hen egg... when I didn't believe him, he took it out of his pocket and showed me... It was only about as big as a pigeon egg... never stir a bus driver...

I guess it's barbers that get the most varicose veins... from standing on their feet so long, they say... I asked one why didn't they invent a revolving chair so they could circle around a customer while sitting down in comfort... didn't impress him at all... That's a barber for you... rather talk about his troubles than think out a way to cure them... lot of people that way... Where is that bus?

Now what's that dame giving me the frozen eye for? Well, how d'ya like that? Here I am just peacefully waiting for my bus and she walks over and stands still right where I happen to be looking... and right away she jumps to the conclusion I am staring at her... What a nerve! I wouldn't look at her twice if she swam past here in a cellophane night-gown what a frie-puss she is anyway... If RipVan Winkle saw her, he'd go right back to sleep again... Funny thing about women—they never get mad if you stare while they're trying to hold down their skirts in a high wind... they just giggle then, even if they're 0... It's the weather, I guess...

The weather affects people in lots of ways... Cops say married people and barroom drunks always fight more often during a full moon. The weather gets animals, too. I know a fellow who said his dog always cried when it thundered... but cats are braver... I never heard of a cat that was afraid even of lightning... People used to say thunderstorms turned milk sour...

Well, that's a cheap way to make yogurt...

Oh, oh... Look at that mousy guy with the umbrella, who's he think he's fooling? Every time I see a guy with a married look who carries an umbrella I figure him for a two-time woker... he thinks the umbrella makes him look harmless... s'funny, I don't remember ever seeing an old bachelor carrying an umbrella... I guess the bachelors that carry umbrellas die young of galloping caution...

Why don't men go back to carrying canes again and... oh, here comes that darned bus... "Broad, driver, where you been—abroad?"

"Okay, wise guy. Save those punny remarks for your wife. You fancy her to listen. All you pay me for is to drive you home."

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—John and Christine Seaton are impatient with the red tape holding up the arrival of a German brother and a French sister their parents requested months ago.

John, II, and Christine, 8, themselves are adopted children of the new Republican senator Nebraska and Mrs. Fred A. Seaton. They begged for a younger brother and a younger sister. Clearance for adoption of the displaced youngsters was on the books when the State Department by the Seaton's last July. Their arrival has been anticipated with mounting excitement.

Meanwhile, John and Christine are adjusting themselves to life without their parents. Mr. Seaton, general manager of eight newspapers, three radio stations and a farm magazine, was appointed by Nebraska's governor, Val Peterson, to fill out the unexpired term of the late Sen. Wherry. Since Mr. Seaton does not expect to run for election next November, it was decided to leave the children in the Seaton's brand new ranch-type home back in Hastings.

"They're long-legged youngsters and need plenty of room to run around," Mrs. Seaton said. "Besides that, we decided the 'Beds get used to being away from us better than they would separating from their playmates, and hope and school surroundings.'"

Mrs. Seaton, only child of a Kansas farmer, who met her husband in journalism classes at Kansas State College, Manhattan, Kansas, is a practical woman. The new five-bedroom house on their 18-acre farm estate is the product of two years planning on her part. She read hundreds of books and articles on construction and designs, collected thousands of clippings, spent many hours going over details with an architect.

"I tried to make all the mistakes on paper, and as a result practically everything turned out all right," she said.

In their selection of a boy of German and a girl of French extraction, Mrs. Seaton said much thought had been given to which nationality would best fit in with the county in which they lived. "The people in our community are mostly fair or medium in coloring," she said. "We thought the children would feel more like they belonged."

She says the other children did not seem to mind much when she and the Senator took off for Washington, but she got a letter from Christine the other day. It read: "I hope you come home soon. I hope you are having a good time."

Morning Mass Unites Miss Worsley To John Monyak Of Aliquippa Pa.

Groom Is Medical Student At School In Washington

In a ten o'clock ceremony this morning at St. Peter's Catholic Church, Miss Bernadine Worsley became the bride of John George Monyak at a nuptial mass.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Randolph Worsley of this city. Mr. Monyak is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Carl Monyak of Aliquippa, Pennsylvania.

The impressive and dignified ceremony was performed by the Reverend Charles Gable, pastor of the church.

Prior to the mass, a program of organ melodies was played by George Perry, who also accompanied Miss Jacquelin Waldron of Statesville, North Carolina, who was soloist for the occasion. Miss Waldron sang Bach-Gounod's "Ave Maria," "Pans Angelicus," "O Lord, I Am Not Worthy," and "Mother, At Your Feet Is Kneeling," by Sister C. M. The traditional wedding marches by Wagner and Mendelssohn were used as the processional and the recessional.

The church was decorated in simplicity and beauty with masses of white snapdragons and carnations against a background of fern. The family pews were marked with bows of white satin ribbon.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She chose for her wedding a gown of white bridal satin fashioned with a fitted bodice of Chantilly lace and long tapered sleeves. The circular skirt fell in soft folds into a long cathedral train and her veil of illusion was attached to a tiara of pearlized orange blossoms. She carried an old-fashioned nosegay of eucharis lilies and lilies of the valley centered with a white purple throated orchid.

Miss Ann Worsley was her sister's maid of honor. She was attired in a mint green floor length gown of rayon taffeta designed with a fichu neckline. She carried an old-fashioned nosegay of gold pom pom chrysanthemums and wore a matching headpiece.

The bridesmaids were Miss Dorothy Monyak, sister of the groom; Eileen Garrison of Baltimore, Maryland; and Ramona Fornas of Washington, D. C. All wore emerald green gowns patterned after that of the maid of honor and carried similar bouquets.

Honorary bridesmaids were Misses Martha Conway, Marie Brown, Ann Oakley, all of Greenville; Miss Mary Rose Klitch of Baltimore, Maryland; and Mrs. Jack Hughes of Winston-Salem.

The groom's best man was Thomas Sabo of Aliquippa, Pennsylvania. Groomsmen were James R. Worsley of Washington, D. C.; Richard K. Worsley of Greenville, brothers of the bride; Woodrow Pickering of Columbus, Ohio; and Amiel Dickum of Aliquippa, Pennsylvania. Carl Worsley and Jerry Worsley, brothers of the bride, were acolytes.

The wedding ceremony was followed by the nuptial mass after which the bride dedicated her bouquet to the Blessed Virgin Mary before leaving the altar.

Mrs. Worsley, mother of the bride, chose for her daughter's wedding a mauve falls suit with an orchid hat and contrasting accessories. Her shoulder corsage was an orchid.

Following the wedding, the parents of the bride entertained at a luncheon reception at the Woman's Club to honor Mr. and Mrs. Monyak.

The traditional bridal couple note was carried out in the selection of flowers and ferns for decorations. The entrance hall had large standards of ferns and greens, and in the Rachel Maxwell Moore room, banks of magnolia leaves and lighted tapers were used on the mantel. The bride's table was dominated by the tiered wedding cake flanked by two tall single candles and tracteries of fern.

The refreshment table was centered with a massive arrangement of white and pink flowers and fern and triple candelabra placed at either end of the table. Elsewhere were candelabras and flowers made attractive decorations for the reception.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Worsley welcomed the guests at the door and introduced them to the receiving line, composed of the bridal couple and the wedding attendants.

Mrs. Henry Gurganus served coffee from one end of the refreshment table, while Mrs. H. R. Rogers poured punch from the opposite end. Assisting in serving creamed chicken salad, hot breads and accompanying luncheon dishes were the honored bridesmaids.

Next, the point-keepers gave their reports on those having the highest number of points in each class were awarded a prize by Miss Taylor. They were: Freshman—Doris Cole; Sophomores—Joan Averette, Junior Faye Branch, and Senior—Betty Ruth Worthington.

The business session of the meeting was chiefly concerned with discussing the Mother-Daughter Banquet, which the organization is giving on February 14, in the School Lunchroom. The president also reported the members of the approaching election of officers for next year.

With this last reminder, the president turned the meeting over to song-leader Dorcas Cayton, who led the group in the club song. She also gave each member a typed copy so she could learn the words before the banquet.

The meeting was then adjourned.

Current Book Reviewed At Inter Se Club

The Inter Se Book Club met with Mrs. Joe Taft on Tuesday, January 29 at her home on E. 5th Street.

The hostess had arranged early spring flowers as a setting for the meeting which was presided over by Mrs. M. P. Hoot in the absence of the president, Mrs. Vance Perkins.

For the program, Mrs. Tyson Bilbro reviewed the current best seller, "A Man Called Peter" by Catherine Marshall.

This biography of Dr. Peter Marshall, written by his wife, is the story of one of the most widely acclaimed Protestant ministers of recent years. She tells her husband's story and the story of their life together in a record of love and faith that has few equals in real life. It was almost unbelievable how within 19 years, after having landed in this country at Ellis Island as a poor Scottish immigrant, Peter Marshall had risen to be Chaplain of the U. S. Senate, which appointment he held from 1947 until his death in 1949. During his short life span, his inspirational leadership had made its mark on countless thousands of people, especially through his personal approach in bringing God into the everyday living of the individual.

This new book by Mrs. Marshall, just off the press since October 1951, seems to be headed for the same popularity which came to her other book, "Mr. Jones, Meet the Master." This collection of her husband's sermons and prayers was on the best seller lists continuously for almost two years.

During the social hour, the hostess served a delectable salad plate with coffee.

Guests for the afternoon were Mrs. Hoover Taft and Mrs. J. H. S. Hodges of Ayden, mother of Mrs. Bilbro.

The local Cancer Society is sponsoring a linen shower to help in supplying bed linens and covering for the Home For Incurable Indigent Cancer Cases located in Lumberton, N. C.

The home, which is soon to open its doors, is being built or remodeled from a portion of the old Robeson County Home site. The 1951 Legislature provided $50,000, through the State Board of Health, for building the Institute.

The maintenance and equipment of the Home is being done by the State Cancer Society, which is sponsoring the linen showers throughout the state during the month of February.

The project will be presented locally to members of the church circles which are meeting on Monday and at other times during the month. It is hoped that in this way most of the women will be contacted and that they will be generous in their response to this cause.

Mrs. Charles Reynolds is county commander of the Pitt County Cancer Society, while Mrs. Bill Sermons is service chairman for the project. Any one who wishes to donate towels, sheets, wash cloths, pillow cases, rubber sheets, blankets or bedspreads are asked to contact one of the above mentioned women who will be glad to make the collection.

Kinston Red Devils Romp To 60-38 Victory Over GHS

Wickham Leads Attack For Defending Champs

Phantoms Held Scoreless For 11 Minutes And 20 Seconds At One Point In Conference Game At New Bern Tuesday

By JIMMY ELLIS, Reflector Sports Writer

KINSTON—The Northeastern Conference defending champions, the Kinston Red Devils, showed little inclination last night of surrendering their conference championship to anyone—particularly Greenville—as they pasted the Phantoms 60-38 in Kinston.

For the Red Devils, there was nothing they could do wrong. In addition to running their own score up almost at will, they put a lid on Greenville's basket in the first half and held the Phantoms scoreless for 11 minutes and 20 seconds at one point in the game.

Coach Amos Sexton's red-hot Red Devils wasted little time in letting Coach Bo Farley's Phantoms know just who was boss in the game. With Guard Charles Wickham leading the way, they quickly pushed into a lead and they never even thought about surrendering.

Wickham wound up tied with a team mate for scoring honors but he was easily the big man in the Kinston attack. His 16 points were equalled by Douglas Gregg's 16 but no one came near his performance. He fouled out of the contest in the fourth quarter but not before he had done his damage to the Greenville club.

In addition to leading the scoring for the game, Wickham also took over the individual scoring for the conference. His 16 points ran his five game total to 111 points. Smith Worthington, who had been leading the conference, was held to eight points and ran his six game mark up to 106 points.

The white wash job the Devils hung on Greenville started late in the first quarter. Smith Worthington scored on a jump shot for Greenville with one minute and 30 seconds left to play in the period. After that, all Greenville could do was stand around and watch for the next 11:20 seconds as every shot they took refused to drop. They shot 13 times in the second quarter and missed all 13.

In the third quarter, the Phantoms took about eight shots from the floor before Sonny Scott finally put them back into the show with a free shot with six minutes remaining in the period. After that, the Phantoms had little trouble in hitting the basket but the damage was done and it was too severe to be re-

North State Race Can Be Confused After Tonight

By UNITED PRESS

The sizzling North State basketball race could be thrown into utter confusion tonight.

League-leading Elon meets East Carolina and High Point and Appalachian in the runner-up spot with identical 7-3 records, meet Catawba and Lenoir Rhyne respectively. Lenoir Rhyne and East Carolina have 5-3 marks and are tied for fourth place.

An Elon loss and a High Point win would put the Panthers back on top. If Appalachian wins and Elon and High Point lose, the Apps would be in first place.

If Elon, High Point and Appalachian all lose, East Carolina and Lenoir Rhyne would move up to first place.

In another North State game that will have little effect on the standings, last-place Atlantic Christian plays sixth-place Guilford.

State Gets Second Chance Against Veteran Wildcats

RALEIGH (UP)—N.C. State College will try again tonight to whip Villanova, a team that has won four out of five previous games, including an 86-71 victory Jan. 19 at Philadelphia.

Nearly 11,000 fans are expected to fill the huge Coliseum here for the return match tonight which may see State's leading scorer, Bobby Speight, sidelined with a head cold.

Forward Larry Henessey, the nation's ninth-ranking scorer, will lead the visitors and have the backing of four other veterans from the squad that saw action in last year's NCAA playoffs.

Duke will play host to George Washington tonight after taking an easy 73-66 victory last night from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Captain Dick Groat whipped a total of 27 points through the net as he boosted his team to a 21 point lead in the third quarter. North Carolina rallied too late but whittled the lead down to five points with one minute to go.

Richmond captured its first Southern Conference game of the season by beating Virginia Tech 83-70 at Richmond after leading most of the way. Elmo Stephenson led the scoring with 23 points for the winners.

In other conference games, West Virginia whipped VMI 91-66, and Furman shelled Davidson 98-69. Virginia walloped Johns Hopkins 92-74 in an inter-sectional game at Charlottesville, Va.

Gehrman Defeats Wilt In Race At Milwaukee Meet

MILWAUKEE (UP)—Mile king Don Gehrman and cloud-busting pole vaulter Bob Richards headed for Boston today where they'll compete in the Boston A. A. Games tonight and try to set their second meet records in two nights.

Gehrman ran one of the most brilliant miles of his career here at the Milwaukee Journal Games last night when he conquered his old foe, Fred Wilt, by a spanking 12 yards in 4:08.4. That clipped a half-second off Wilt's meet mark set last year.

And Richards, the California parson, turned in his second great pole vault as he cleared 15 feet, 4 5/8 inches.

Tonight both men, along with Wilt and several other stars who competed here, are slated to display their talents in the Boston A. A.

"I gave it everything I had last night," said Don today, "but I could have done better if the pace had been faster."

Wilt's New York A. C. teammate, George Thompson, set a smart pace for a half-mile last night and then Wilt moved to the front and set the pace until the final half-lap. But when Gehrman "kicked," it turned out that Wilt, not Gehrman, was the one who was tired.

The Boston vault record is 15 feet, 7 1/4 inches, set by Cornelius Warmerdam. Richards tried three times last night to beat Warmerdam's world mark of 15 feet, 8 1/2 inches, but failed.

Arthur Cagers Lose To Belvoir

BELOIR—Belvoir's basketball team romped to a double win over Arthur here last night, winning the girls game, 49-34, and taking the boys title, 52-37.

Franklin Garris led the way in the boys game with 14 points, followed by Ralph Tyson with nine points. Billy Ross and Mack Dupree were outstanding on defense.

J. Nichols paced the Arthur team with 13 points while Sutton had eight points. D. Harris and Sutton led the defensive play.

It was all Belvoir in the girls game as the winners ran to a 17-7 lead in the first quarter. Joyce Mayo came in high for Belvoir with 11 points, although Neel Dupree was close behind her with 10 points. Nadine Morris and Claudia Pollard each picked up eight points. Jean Tyson and Shelby Waters were outstanding on defense.

Mozingo led Arthur's girls with 15 points, high for both clubs. Crawford had nine points for the losers. Smith and Letchworth were defensive standouts.

Score by periods:

Girls Game	Arthur	7	10	3	14	34
Belvoir	17	8	10	14	49
Boys Game	Arthur	5	11	8	13	37

Walcott's Boss Squaring Off With Norris

MIAMI (UP)—Heavyweight champion Jersey Joe Walcott's manager squares off with promoter Jimmy Norris here today in a verbal bout to decide whether the champ is to get rich against Harry Matthews or play ball with the International Boxing Club.

Walcott's manager, Felix Bocchicchio, said last night that he would "probably" book the champion against Matthews in a fight in the West unless Norris matches the Matthews' guarantee of $250,000.

Bocchicchio's statement, made in Orlando, Fla., where Jersey Joe appeared in an exhibition bout, marked the first time he used the word "probably." Until then, he had spoken definitely about fighting the light-heavyweight from Seattle.

Norris just laughed.

He said he had "ironclad contracts" with Walcott forcing the 38-year-old champion to give Ezard Charles a return match.

Bethel Indians Get 52-44 Win; Girls Team Also Wins, 34-27

Ayden And Pinetops Split Doubleheader

PINETOPS—Ayden's Tornadoes held on in the closing minutes here last night to beat South Edgecombe, 41-38, in a Coastal Conference contest. South Edgecombe's girls edged Ayden's injury-riddled team, 38-36.

Ayden took the lead late in the first period and held it until the warning minutes of the first half. Edgecombe's James Webb connected on four set shots from near the mid-court line to put his team ahead at halftime, 25-22.

The Tornadoes took over once more in the third quarter and led 33-32 at the end of the period. Lewis placed South Edgecombe in the lead for a brief period in the final quarter, but Todd Kittrell and Billy Powell McLawhorn quickly tied the score and Hal Edwards connected on a set to put Ayden ahead.

Deiano Cox led the Ayden scoring with 12 points, followed by Mac Whitehurst with eight points. Whitehurst fouled out of the game in the first minute of the second half. Kittrell and McLawhorn each had six points for the winners. Edwards and Cox led the defensive play for Ayden.

James Webb led South Edgecombe for 13 points. Brooks Webb scored eight and Luke Lewis hit for six. Brooks Webb led the defensive play for South Edgecombe.

Girls Game

Ann Webb dropped in 19 points to lead South Edgecombe to a 38-36 victory over Ayden in the girls contest. The winners staved off a last quarter rally by the visitors in order to win the game.

The score was tied seven times in the first half—three in the first quarter and four in the second period. The score stood at 20-20 at the end of the first half.

South Edgecombe held Ayden to only one point in the entire third quarter, and had run to a 33-21 lead in the final period before Ayden's Wilma Stocks dropped in a field goal to make it 33-23. In the last two minutes, with the winners leading 36-30, Ayden's Alice Jean Smith and Charlene Smith narrowed the count down to the final margin 38-36.

Dot Jones was second high for South Edgecombe with 11 points, while Rachel Corbett had eight points. Susan Strickland was outstanding on defense for the winners.

Alice Jean Smith had 18 points for the losers, who were playing without the services of two starters. Charlene Smith dropped in nine for Ayden while Wilma Stocks collected six.

GRIFTON—Bethel's Indians, defending champions of the Pitt County Conference, came out on the long end of the scoring and the fouling contests here last night. Bethel held on to defeat Grifton's Bulldogs, 52-44. The visiting girls also recorded a 34-27 verdict.

A total of 66 personal fouls marred the boys contest from beginning to end. Bethel was the recipient of the largest number, a sum of 37 personal fouls, while Grifton was credited with 29 fouls. Eight players left the game via the personal foul route in the third and fourth quarters.

Bethel grabbed a 13-6 lead in the first three minutes of the game, but Grifton hit a scoring streak and tied the score as they tallied six points in the next minute, 13-13. Bethel, who meets Snow Hill in the finals of the Gold Medal tourney at Farmville tonight, took the lead once more as Vance White connected on a free throw and Earl Johnston hit on a field goal. Bethel led 18-14 at the close of the first quarter.

Grifton took the lead for the first time with six minutes left in the second period. John Lewis, who hit 100 points during the night connected on two field goals and one free throw in the first two minutes of the period while Bethel was held scoreless to send the Bulldogs out in front on a short-lived lead of 19-18. Bethel extended its lead to five points during the next three minutes to 24-19, chiefly on the work of Robert Nelson, who packed up 18 points during the whistle-happy minutes, to take high scoring honors for both teams.

Grifton was not finished, however as J. R. Hooten hit for a basket from the floor and a free throw and Jesse Stancil dropped a gratis toss for the Bulldogs to bring the margin back to one after 5:30, 24-23.

Hooten committed his third personal a few seconds later and Johnston's free throw was good. A basket by Bobby Manning moved the score to 27-23. Rufus Craft for Grifton and Vance Manning was the only Bethel player who had four personal fouls for the night with 11 points exchanged free throws to carry the count to 28-24. Stancil scored his fourth free throw without a miss for Grifton, but Nelson, who was the big gun in Bethel's attack for the night, pushed one in with only two seconds left in the half to give the Indians a 30-25 halftime lead.

Grifton had three men to star the second half four personal fouls—Clyde Adams, Hooten, and McLawhorn, who was the defensive leader for Grifton. Manning was the only Bethel player who had four personal fouls although three more had three fouls to their credit.

Second Half

Coach Walter Latham's team took over in the third period and built up 13 point lead with three minutes left to be played, good enough to last.

With both teams missing their regulars—four were gone from each team—reserves played most of the second half. Grifton's Rex Lewis pumped in a field goal in the last five seconds to cut the count to the final quarter, the smallest margin for Bethel after the opening minutes of the third period.

Vance White and Earl Johnston led Bethel on defense to their 12 win in 13 starts.

Girls Game

Joyce Beverly hit for 18 points to lead Bethel to its 34-27 decision in a slow moving contest.

She hit for 10 straight points in the third quarter to pace Bethel to a 27-18 lead at the end of the third quarter. Grifton was unable to catch up with the Bethel sextet after that spurge.

Tasha Manning scored nine points for the winners. Carrie Ayers and Anne Riddick were outstanding on defense for Bethel.

Hilda Buck was high for Grifton, with nine points, followed by Ethlyn Koon with eight. Gertrude Garris and Ruby Hoffman led the Grifton defense.

Score by periods:

Girls Game	Bethel	6	8	13	7-34

Junior Phantoms Control Ball For 34-32 Victory

KINSTON—There's an old saying about basketball which goes something like this: "You can't score as long as I have the ball." The truth in the statement has not been questioned for a long time and it is highly doubtful that it will be questioned in Kinston for sometime to come.

Last night, the Greenville High School Jayvee Phantoms made the statement their personal philosophy and "held" their way to a 34-32 victory over the Junior Varsity of Kinston's Grainger High School. The victory kept Coach Bill Kittrell's Junior Phantoms undefeated against Jayvee squads from Northeastern Conference member schools.

The little Phantoms have played a style resembling possession basketball for several games but none of their previous performances quite matched that of last night. They jumped into a quick lead in the first half and then went into their action defense to shoot except when they shook a man loose under the basket for a good, wide-open shot. They waived free throws. They held the ball for minutes at the time and made no effort to move it as the frustrated Kinston club desperately looked for ways to get and control the ball.

The Kinston club managed to get the ball at intervals but once they lost it, they could look forward to playing defense for quite a while. Greenville's guards, Pat Sawyer, Ed Moore, Dixie Hobgood and George Sideris, did an excellent job of controlling the ball and only in the waning moments of the fourth quarter did it look as if they might lose the game.

At the time, with a minute and a half left to play and Greenville leading 34-32, the Junior Red Devils stepped up their defensive pace. They began to pick up the Greenville players all over the court and several times got the ball for wide-open shots at their basket. They missed numerous shots in that last ninety seconds, however, and that was that.

Sawyer, Greenville's pepper-pot guard, led the scoring for both clubs with 14 points while Kinston's Burr Savelle got nine.

Final Action In Gold Medal Meet At Farmville

FARMVILLE—Bethel's boys meet Snow Hill and Winterville's classy girls team takes on Snow Hill's sextet in the finals of the Coastal Gold Medal Basketball Tournament tonight.

Top-seeded Bethel breezed past Stantonsburg and Walstonburg to qualify for the finals in the Boys Division, while Snow Hill, second seeded, walked over Vanceboro and edged Winterville, 40-39, last Thursday night in order to enter the finals.

Winterville's girls, number one team in the girls bracket, takes on the second seeded Snow Hill team which dropped Stantonsburg Monday night and Farmville Thursday night. Coach Paul Clark's Winterville lasses have scored their way to victories over Walstonburg and Belvoir.

Bethel and Winterville will probably be the favorites to walk off with the crown, although the Snow Hill teams could very easily take upset victory in eight division.

Winterville's Ann Spier will take a new tournament scoring record in the match with Snow Hill. The Pitt County star hit for 47 points against Belvoir Thursday to bring her tourney's scoring total to 61 points for two games.

This is the fourth year that the Gold Medal has been in operation and overflow crowds have attended each round of action this year.

Mushrooming

...to obtain some skilled workmen in some of the lines. All of the key personnel came from other units of the company's force over the nation to lead the operation.

...vast stores of supplies keep the work going along on schedule, with some items still on the critical list and hard to obtain. Far-sightedness on the part of local officials resulted in the obtaining of quantities of materials which now are obtainable only on a quota basis.

...leading the construction firm is E. J. Dale of Charlotte, who has been in the power line construction business for over 13 years.

...it is his job to see that all phases of the job are carried out, and that means keeping tabs on some 50-60 men working over the three county area.

...Dale estimates that to date between 1800-2000 power poles have been set in place by his crews.

...In fact, all of the poles for the expansion program south of the Tar River, with the exception of the Vanover region, are now in place.

...The seven-step operation begins with a pole loading truck arriving at the pole yard where it takes on a quantity of various size poles.

...Poles are laid along the lines, in accordance with the size stated in the plans by the engineers, as they have determined the size and height of the poles in advance to meet the actual needs on the job.

...The poles weighing between 700-800 pounds each, have an overall average height of 35 feet. They go as small as 25 feet to as large as 50.

...The truck can lay as many as 75 poles in each working day, enough to cover a five miles stretch of line.

...all of the poles used are of pine which have been soaked in a dip for a period of ten hours.

...After the poles have been laid at the spots stated by the engineers along comes a "framing crew," which tackles the job of placing the "hardware" on the poles. By hardware, is meant the insulators, wire fittings, and other parts which go on the poles, making it possible to attach the wires and other units later.

...This job is a skilled operation, due to the fact that the "framers" must be able to visualize the pole being set on the ground, as it would appear when erect, and have the fittings in their correct position, so that the next crew will not be held up.

...Behind the "framers" come the pole setting machinery, which picks up the pole, and places it in the ground. A labor saving bore is used by the contractors, which digs a hole for setting up the pole in a little over two minutes. The entire operation requires only three men.

...After the tamping crew appears, to level the pole from its dangling angle left by the pole setting group, it is their responsibility to see that the pole is perfectly straight and is carefully lined up by the men.

...Then the next step is by a group to see that the poles will remain upright and are properly secure. They place anchors and guy wires to support the poles at the right spots.

...Following along, wherever there are to be transformers to be installed they are placed in position, ready for the wire crew to arrive and complete the operation.

...Once the crews have placed the line up, then the foremen check for any possible weak spots, followed by the superintendents, with all being checked by an engineer from the L. E. Wooten Company.

...A careful check is made by the company to obtain the proper amount of slack in the power lines, which is an important factor.

...The wires spanning the poles are hung according to a chart reading based on the temperatures at the time of the wires being strung. By this manner the wires at any time of the year will not hang at a dangerously low angle and will protect the people passing by.

...At no time must the wires fall below a 15 foot level, as required by electrical specifications. Also the correct slack of the lines assures maximum safety in the event of high winds and storm conditions which will leave the wires loaded with ice.

...In the present job, the contractors have run across a number of houses which have been wired for only two-wire service, and the engineers called for three-wire service. The two-wire service is ample to supply the average household needs, without the addition of heavier electrical appliances.

...Whenever such spots are encountered, the third wire is left, since it will mean a saving to the customers in the long run and is cheaper to the company to leave the wire up once it is placed, as it would cost more to re-do the set-up.

...As with the case of erecting lines, right-of-ways, and permission to place a pole here and there must be obtained. This is worked out in a large degree before the crews move into the area. One of the main objections met, is the fact that people state that they don't want a power pole around their buildings. Engineers explain that actually this would help the buildings in the event of an electrical storm since the poles and wires would have a tendency to draw the electrical charge from the air to the pole before it could hit the buildings.

...Dale stated that "A fine spirit of cooperation has existed among all parties during the construction program" which has been due largely to the careful planning.

...Dale pointed out that one factor which a lot of people can't understand, is after the power lines are once in place, why they can't have current.

...As explained above, all the work must be checked and double-checked to avoid any errors; thus once Farmer Jones' new line has been attached to his house, it may be three or four days before he actually will be able to start using his new appliances or that farm machinery.

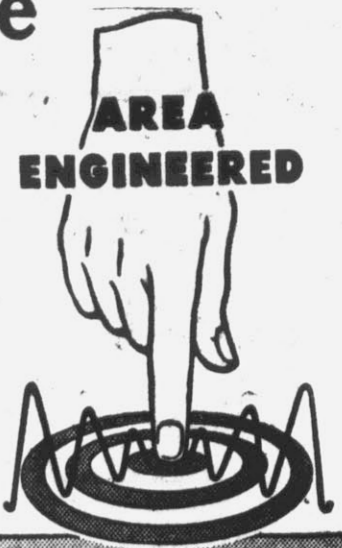

...By now, when completed, the expansion program will have opened a door of comfort, enjoyment and pleasure to hundreds of rural homes in Pitt, Beaufort and Craven counties. Many of these people have had appliances stored away the months in anticipation for the time when they would be able to place them in operation.

...The Tar River, stretching for 417 miles, is Italy's longest river.

Birds Put Ants To Useful Tasks
WASHINGTON (UP) Ants can be an asset, according to Arthur Cleveland Bent of the Smithsonian Institution. The hermit thrust and several other varieties of birds snatch ants and place them in their feathers usually under their wings, to get rid of lice, Bent said. They also may kill ants and spread the juice over their bodies or dust themselves in ant hills. Some ornithologists believe the birds even eat ants to rid themselves of internal parasites. The louse-repelling power of the ants springs from the formic acid they secrete.

Justice Itimous Valentine Speaks At Kiwanis Meet

Associate Justice Itimous Valentine of the Supreme Court of North Carolina, an account of the "workings" of the Court to the Greenville Kiwanis Club at its regular Friday evening meeting. Justice Valentine was presented by J. W. H. Roberts, local Kiwanian.

In outlining the procedure of the State Supreme Court, Justice Valentine stressed the importance of the oral arguments given by the lawyers of the appellant and the opposition before the court, following the presentation of the briefs. After hearing these arguments, the Court takes an impression vote, then the briefs are distributed among the justices (including the Chief Justice), for the writing of the opinions. If a Justice concludes that the impression vote is the correct decision, that is the decision of the Court. However, if the Justice finds that a different decision should be made, he writes it as such, then it is brought back to the Court for conference and a final ruling.

When the court sits on session, the Justices wear their robes but these

Louis Gaylord, Jr., District Solicitor W. J. Bundy, Jack Spain of Washington, D. C., Fred Lynch, Eugene Case; and two Circuit Court members from East Carolina College.

Director Henry L. Andrews announced that the February meeting of the officers and directors would be held at Respos Bros. restaurant next Thursday evening, at six-thirty instead of Tuesday as previously announced.

Few Cases Tried In Police Court

One of the smallest dockets to be tried in City Police Court in many weeks was disposed of by Judge Charles H. Whedbee yesterday morning in short order.

All of the cases were for traffic violations, and included two careless and reckless driving cases, one hit and run, a driving drunk, and failure to yield the right of way.

The case against Dennis Bailey, charged with failure to yield the right of way was not prosecuted.

A driving drunk charge against Mildred A. Harris was transferred to Superior Court for jury trial.

Ed Alton Whitehurst, charged with careless and reckless driving was placed on good behavior after prayer for judgment was continued in his case. A provision of the judgment was that he operate his automobile in an orderly and prudent manner.

Haywood R. Spain, charged with careless and reckless driving and hit and run was not guilty of "Hit and Run".

The court found him guilty of reckless driving and gave him a 60 days suspended sentence on payment of $25, less cost of court, with provision that he display a "I have been convicted of Careless and Reckless Driving" sticker on the left hand side of his car until March 1st.

using the highways of North Carolina were neither better nor worse with respect to complying with the law in 1951 than in 1950. Figures compiled from records in the State Department of Motor Vehicles show that in both years 89 percent of all trucks stopped for checking were operating in violation of the law. Because of larger enforcement staffs and perhaps because more trucks were on the roads the number of violations recorded were up 72 percent. These figures show that in 1950 40,871 trucks were checked and 3,671 were found to be illegally operating. In 1951 70,569 trucks were checked and 6,315 were found to be violating the laws. The percentage ratio of violation was less than one tenth of one percent. It might be significant that in division of in-state and out-of-state registered trucks, the North Carolina folks showed increased violation (from 9.6 percent to 9.9 percent), while out-of-state trucks showed a decrease (from 6.8 percent to 6.1 percent).

ENFORCEMENT - The larger number of trucks stopped for checking as well as increased license fees and penalties collected indicates better enforcement of the law, by reason of additional personnel authorized by the last legislature. Although this larger personnel was not available until the last half of 1951, its value is reflected in the comparative figures for the two years. In 1950 the additional license fees and penalties collected amounted to $974,216.05; in 1951 that item was $1,079,589.34. Fines and court costs collected from 681 persons for criminal convictions in 1950 amounted to $24,700.83, and in 1951 to $33,403.23, from 1,108 persons.

After the minutes were given by Mrs. R. K. Pippin, secretary, Mrs. Louise Harris gave a report on get well and sympathy cards sent to different people from the class. Mrs. L. E. Flowers, treasurer, gave a report. A contingent fund was taken. Mrs. Z.B.T. Cox gave the devotional, using as her theme "Prejudice," based on scripture, 1st Kings, Chapter 5:1-3. "We sometimes have malice and prejudice in our hearts without a cause and too often we criticize a person before we have time to get acquainted. It is then that we realize that we have misjudged them. So you see," she said, "the Christian way is to look for the good in the person first having a spirit of forgiveness in your heart. Let's remember that prejudice comes from the mind and not the heart."

Mrs. Cox closed by reading a poem entitled, "Forgiveness," followed by prayer.

Mrs. L. E. Turnage had charge of the program, which consisted of Bible quizzes and contests.

Tar Heels Said 'Eager To Pay' Income Taxes

RALEIGH (UP) - North Carolina citizens are eager to pay their state income tax, a report from Revenue Commissioner Eugene Shaw indicated today, and state income is up 12 per cent.

Nearly 1,100 more citizens paid their income tax in full last month than settled up during January of 1951. Shaw said. Receipts for the month totaled nearly $3,685,000, a jump of more than $1,000,000, he said.

He said his department has not had time yet to pinpoint the reason for the jump in collections but the number of early individual returns was "significant."

Sales tax collections hit the highest one-month mark in the history of the tax, Shaw said. The total of nearly $5,898,000 was more than $323,000 over the previous January, which also had set a record.

Hot Pipes Set Disaster Blaze

MINNEAPOLIS (UP) - Arthur Thompson, chief arson squad investigator, said today that hot boiler pipes that touched a wooden support started a tenement fire that killed 17 persons last Monday.

Industry Making Progress In New Atomic Power

WASHINGTON (AP) - Private industry is making progress in its attempts to put a commercial harness on atomic power, says Rep. Durham (D-NC), but success seems years ahead.

Durham is vice chairman of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, which yesterday heard a report from a group of industrialists. The group, encouraged by the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC), is making privately-financed studies to determine whether industry can set up its own atomic furnaces.
