Change of Heart

By Kathleen Harris

Chapter 30

She would have to make it clearer. "I talked to Grace, and Father, long distance, before we came here for dinner. I told them I was coming home with you, Tommy. So it wouldn't come as a shock to them. They both are very pleased about it."

"About what?" Tom asked.

"Why should it be a shock to them for you to come home for a while if that's what you want to do?"

"I also talked to some newspapers," Marcia said. "Wait until you see the papers tomorrow, Tommy!"

"The newspapers!" Tom would have thought Marcia had had enough notoriety.

She nodded, still smiling. "They are going to reproduce my picture again—the one taken from the portrait. Give the story in headlines. Play it up big. About my going home with you, Tommy."

"But why...?" His jaw dropped open; he no longer could manage to look so grim when he was so bewildered. What had ever possessed Marcia to do this? She had said she had something up her sleeve. He thought he began to get it. "Oh, I see. You thought maybe when your artist sees that..."

"Exactly!" Marcia looked delighted. "You see it that way. Dean will, too. When he reads that I went home with you, Tommy, that we are going to be married, Dean will come back. I know."

Tommy drew a long breath. He had to. Women, as he observed before, were sure funny. But he was tired of being the fall guy, even for Marcia.

"But we aren't going to be married," he said. "That's going too far. Marcia, I may work the opposite way. Your artist chap may stay away and sulk some more."

"Oh, no, he won't!" Her smile, her tone, were confident. "Dean will know that everything is all right. You see he only went away to sulk because he was afraid he might have to marry me. Now when he knows I am already married to you, Dean can come back and marry Abigail."

"Abigail!"

"You see, Abigail has been in love with Dean for ages. I didn't know it when I thought I was in love with Dean, too. They quarreled all the time. So Dean must have thought he would get even by filling in love with me. But he wasn't, really. I feel sure of that now. Only he will be afraid, ashamed, to come back until he knows I am married to someone else, so..."

"That's carrying it too far, as I said before!" Tommy broke in. However, there was a new light slowly creeping into his blue eyes. Marcia had said when she thought she had been in love. Did that mean she thought differently now? "You can't sacrifice yourself any more for your sister." That was it; he saw through Marcia now.

"It won't be a sacrifice," Marcia said. "Goodness, Tommy MacIntyre, are you going to start quarreling with me? I tell you everything. I even tell you I am going to marry you. And you just sit there and argue. What else do you want me to say?"

Now his blue eyes did look into hers. A long time.

"Look," he said, "you haven't said anything important yet."

"I'll say it," Marcia said. Her eyes were saying it for her. Her whole sweet face. Her heart beat so steadily, so confidently. Her head, as well as her heart, this time. "I love you, Tommy. I guess I always have. I know I guess I will. Maybe not in the way I thought I did. But in the right way, the way that counts, that will last throughout a whole lifetime—even beyond that."

Tommy took another long breath.

He could not say anything. He did not have to. His blue eyes said it all for him. The way he pushed back his plate, stood up, reached out a long arm toward Marcia. He paid the check at the cashier's counter. He held open the door for Marcia to walk out into the night.

They walked in silence until Marcia stopped abruptly, looking up at him.

"Aren't you going to say anything, Tommy?" she asked. "You might say the most important thing to me."

He shook his head. He slipped an arm around her slender waist, led her on.

"Now is the hour, not for words, but for action. If you think for one second that I'm going to waste time talking... He stopped and he halted a passing taxi.

"Waste time? But where are we going?"

"We're going to be married, where do you think?" He helped her inside. "I'm not taking any chances on you changing your mind again. I'm not going to wait until tomorrow, when you never know what tomorrow will bring."

"But we can't! We have to have a license and..."

"I have one," Tommy said. "I thought you might weaken some time. If I hadn't, we'd manage. There are places—Maryland, somewhere closer maybe—and this driver will drive us all night if necessary, won't you, Bud? We want to be married. My girl and I."

The driver turned to grin at them. "Your girl, eh?" he said. "Youse wanna get hitched, eh? Sure I can take you and I won't have a drive all night. I ain't got eyes in the back of my head, either, kids. So don't mind me, see?" He turned his back and shifted into high.

The cab gave a lurch as it started rolling. But that was not what threw Marcia into Tommy's arms.

GIRDERS

You must have girders to build a skyscraper. Only a mesh-work of steel can endure the weight, strain and atmospheric variations to which such a structure is subjected.

And you must have girders to build a man... girders of faith and moral courage that will enable him to stand erect against the pressures and onslaughts of human experience.

The Church builds the girders into a man's life: In childhood it sets in place the mighty "uprights" that will mold his stature later. In youth it reinforces these with "cross-beams" that solidify his moral character. Day by day, all through adulthood, the Church "rivets" into their proper place the truths and ideals and aims that enable him to reach his full stature.

Faithfully, generously give strength to the Church. Faithfully and generously it is building strength into our lives.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Texas Heat Wave Cuts Mink Price

DALLAS Tex. (UP)—Texas' mid-winter heatwave has plagued farmers, kicked up dust storms, threatened the citrus crop and caused merchandisers generally to reverse their tactics.

But the real crux of the situation was apparent today when the famous Neiman-Marcus specialty store slashed prices on its mink coats to $2,500.

Oyster House Often 'Re-Discovered'

Tar River Firm Busy 22 Years

By JESS POINDEXER
Reflector Staff Writer

All during the warm months of the year, Pitt Countians hunger for that ancient delicacy which has their tastes and their stomachs—the native oyster.

But when the months with the "r's" roll around they are jubilant, because then that eye-opening little mollusk exists in beautiful supply and steamed, fried, stewed or raw—it is in demand.

And in Greenville where for generations families have handed secret recipes for making oyster sauce, they may be purchased in any amount from a pint to a truckload—depending upon the buyer's point of view.

Every gastric genius in the city knows the oyster man, his residence and his place of business. On weekends, scores of cars wind their way down North Side Street all the way to the river bank, where their drivers "discover" the Tar River Oyster House.

It is a small, wooden-frame building geometrically out of focus, teetering precariously on the bank of the sluggishly flowing Tar River.

Oysterman Extraordinary There, lounging in the sunshine outside the door, motorists will invariably find Cap'n Jack Teel—a veteran of 34 years in the oyster business. They speak, and are immediately drawn into a conversation of such profound interest that the sun is dying when at last they purchase a quart and take their leave.

Cap'n Jack is a riverman from birth. He began his career on that same Tar River "out there" at the age of 12. As a youth of 21, he went to Norfolk, Va., to take the examination for steamboat license.

That same year, he received his license to operate a steamboat in any waters from the Chesapeake Bay to Key West, Fla. That was 40 years ago, and he still had it—and in good standing.

"I've been running this oyster house for 22 years," Cap'n Jack says, "and I expect to be running it 22 years from now." Years ago, the cap'n muses, he came right up to the docks here in Greenville, and oysters were sold directly from their decks. Then, as now, the demand was always greater on Friday and Saturday, and they all had to hit Greenville on weekends.

According to oysterman Teel, the boats discontinued coming up to Greenville entirely around 1940, and several years prior to that date, only small boats made the trip. "The river got too shallow, I guess," Cap'n Jack theorizes, "and since that time, oysters have been hauled in by truck."

15,000 Bushels Annually "I can handle anywhere from 12,000 to 15,000 bushels of oysters a year here if I can get them," Teel asserts. Of these total figures, about 90 percent are sold in pints, quarts and gallons—already "shucked" out.

But he still has calls for them in the shell because people are always having oyster roasts around the county. "And a lot of the old timers had just rather have them in the shell anyway," he reports.

According to Cap'n Jack, oyster boats lie all around Pamlico Sound and its tributaries—Rose Bay, Bay River, Jones' Bay, Skull Rock, Sumpy Point and Englehard—but the cap'n sells Rose Bay oysters exclusively. He usually goes down to Rose Bay the first of every week, he says, "to see how the oyster is going."

An employe "shucks" oysters at the Tar River Oyster House. Although there are still many calls for oysters in the shell, about 90 percent are sold already "shucked" out. Skilled workers can get an oyster from the shell about every two seconds.

The state law provides that oystering may only be carried on during the time from October 1 to March 1—a five-month period.

When oyster boats come in, state inspectors examine the "catch" to see that required specifications have been met in regard to size and storage.

Practically all oystering is done by native boat owners who operate during the season for a livelihood. Some, however, are farmers who oyster in winter and farm in summer.

"Sun to Sun" Boats Boats range in size from 26 feet long for a one-man crew, to a length of 65 feet for a three-man crew. Cap'n Jack says most boats average around 40 feet in length and carry a two-man crew.

The one-man boats are called "sun to sun" boats, which in an oysterman's terminology, means they go out and back in a day. During the heavy season, most of the larger boats go out Monday and stay until Friday.

Oystermen bring their "catch" into clearing houses, from which the oysters are transported by truck to various points on the eastern seaboard and inland. They are shipped out both in the shell and "shucked" out.

There are two established methods for gathering oysters from the bottom of the sound—longing and dredging. The tonging method has been almost wholly abandoned in favor of the more efficient dredging process, the cap'n states.

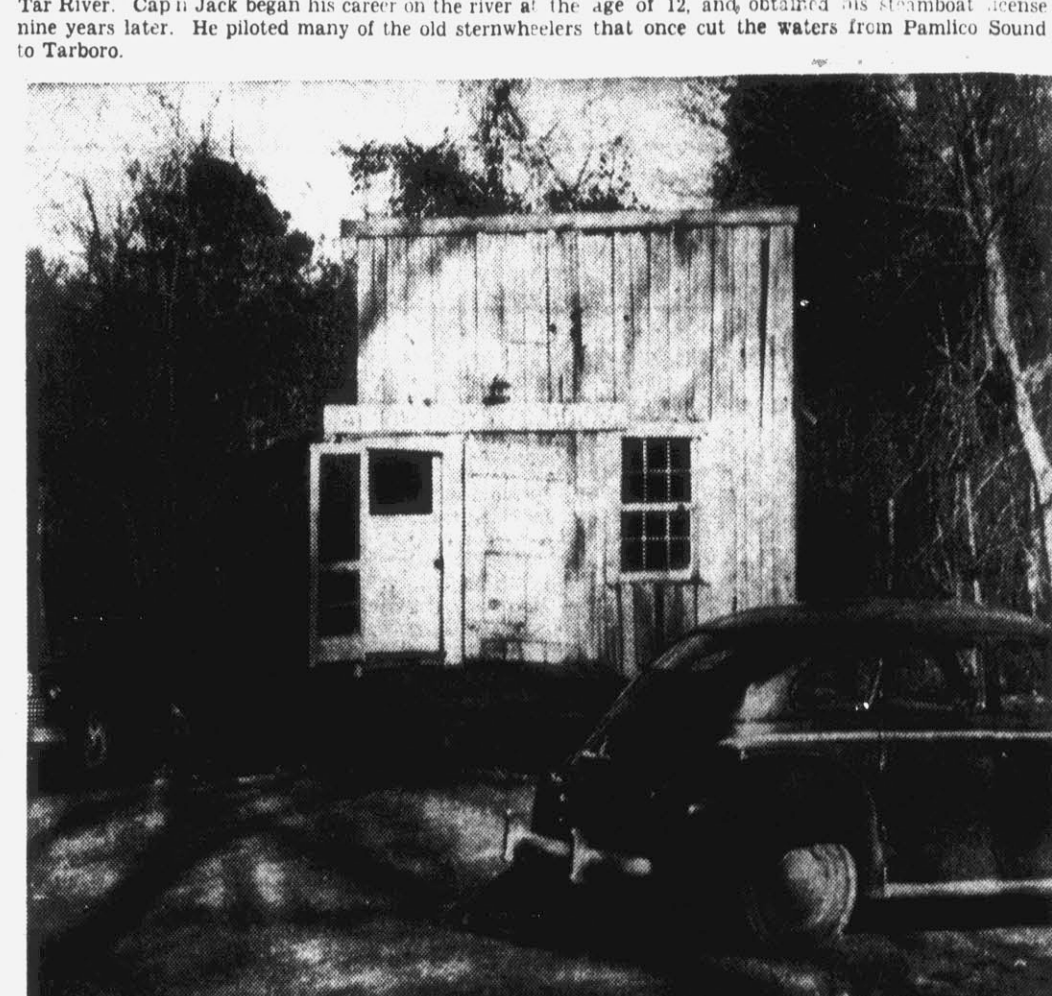

In tonging, oystermen employ two rake-like jaws which are dragged along the bottom, breaking up the oysters loose and holding many of them. Too many oysters are lost by this method, however, and it has been largely abandoned.

In dredging, a steel frame having long teeth, with a heavy mesh net attached behind, is put over the side and dragged along the bottom. The teeth break the oysters loose and they roll back into the net which holds them. When the net is full, it is hoisted up with a power winch, emptied, and the same procedure repeated.

Wheelman at 12 Cap'n Jack Teel knows the Tar

Cap'n Jack Teel, old riverboat skipper now retired, dips out oysters at his headquarters on the bank of the Tar River. Cap'n Jack began his career on the river at the age of 12, and obtained his steamboat license nine years later. He piloted many of the old sternwheelers that once cut the waters from Pamlico Sound to Tarboro.

Perched on the bank of the Tar River and operated by a retired steamboat captain, the Tar River Oyster House serves as a clearing house for between 12,000 and 15,000 bushels of Rose Bay oysters annually. In season, oysters are eagerly sought by citizens of Greenville and vicinity.

"Yes, Greenville was really a thriving place then," Cap'n Jack reminisces, "and only a few feet from the oyster house here stood several large docks and warehouses. Of course it was mostly cotton and merchandise at that time—very little tobacco was shipped then."

He recalls when the old plank road reached directly from the docks in Greenville right into Wilson. "Many are the times I have seen four and six muleteams strain to pull heavily loaded wagons up that long hill there."

According to the old riverboat captain, Greenville and the Tar River have a long and rich history, but unfortunately those who know it so well, like Cap'n Jack Teel, are swiftly passing on.

He will begin the week of February 10 with a talk before the congregation of the First Free Will Baptist Church of Greenville Sunday evening. He will speak Tuesday evening at the Greenville Fireside Club on "Home and the Community"; and on Thursday evening he will be present at the annual dinner of the Nash-Edgcombe Alumni Chapter in Rocky Mount. As guest speaker, he will attend Friday evening the

According to the farm agent, farmers with "grade" cows whose calves are ordinarily disposed of soon after birth may breed with beef semen and get a good beef type calf. "The calf resulting from this cross will have all the physical characteristics of the beef breed," he disclosed.

"It is especially important for breeders who have good dairy cows to use dairy semen instead of beef semen," Winchester emphasized. "In so doing, they will not only build up their milking herds, but they will breed calves having a high market value."

"All leading authorities predict that good dairy calves will be expensive for several years to come," he added.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS DISCIPLINE AND GROWTH We are all working, to the limited extent we are able, to make the world a better place in which to live.

Does this mean that human effort has failed? Not at all. It means that life is a school, and being a school it will always be presenting problems to man's mind and spirit.

The problems of life arise out of the maladjustments of life. What would school be like in which the children solved no problems?

Pitt Newest Institution Is One Year Old Pitt Countians' newest and proudest possession is one year old.

In the time that has elapsed since the first patient was admitted to Pitt County Memorial Hospital, the plant which stood so raw and strikingly "new" on its rising ground, has added beauty and an atmosphere of serenity to all its attributes of modernity.

More than 5,000 persons have had resort to the facilities offered; and with the growth of the popularity of the hospital among its own owners—the people of Pitt County—the numbers who seek refuge within its walls for medical care will steadily increase.

When the new $1,400,000 hospital was being planned and the people of the county went to the polls to give official sanction to putting their money into the erection of the institution, they felt that it would be a great asset to better health and better conditions in Pitt County.

The first day the hospital opened its doors a year ago it had 50 patients. On its first anniversary yesterday the hospital had 87 patients. The very figures themselves speak for the increasing confidence the people of Pitt County have in their own medical institution.

Through the years as the confidence in Pitt Memorial hospital spreads, the service the hospital can render to the people of Pitt County will be multiplied, for the service which can be rendered by a medical institution is directly proportionate to the willingness of the people to be served by it.

It's Enough To Make Their Blood Boil It seems to The Reflector that the American Red Cross is cutting off its own nose to spite its face in the issue which is making the citizens' blood boil in Bristol, Tenn.-Va.

In this instance it certainly appears that the organization is taking a selfish attitude of self above service by refusing to send a bloodmobile into Bristol to collect the blood which the citizens of the city have offered to give to help fill the plea for blood donations.

Hardly a day goes by that the people in almost every community do not hear of the acute need for blood to help save the lives of the men on the fighting fronts. Yet, because the people of Bristol this year felt it wise to include the collections of funds for the Red Cross in a one-package drive for donations to red feather organizations, the Red Cross says the people of the city are not eligible to give their blood through Red Cross facilities to help save the lives of American boys.

Maybe the Red Cross has a valid point, but in our opinion it is a narrow view which has come in retaliation for the people of the city including their donations to the Red Cross in a one-package gift through the Community Chest.

The Red Cross has had its way so long and has fought so obstinately to keep from being included in Community Chest campaigns that it took the prerogative to ostracize the people of Bristol for contributing funds to the Red Cross through the Community Chest.

If the Red Cross does not take the blood which is being offered by the willing citizens of Bristol, it certainly is not living up to its avowed high principles which have been shouted to the four winds for so many years.

Blood from the people of Bristol could save lives just as well as blood from the people of Pitt County. During this period when blood donations are so acutely needed, the Red Cross is certainly violating the trust which has been placed in the organization by the American people by turning up its nose at the offer of blood by the people of the Tennessee-Virginia city.

WASHINGTON—“Why is it,” asks Mrs. G. H. of Richmond, Va., “that all the practical politicians, including President Truman, are so hostile to Senator Kefauver's attempt to get the nomination for President for himself? I saw him on television, and I thought he was a nice man.”

PRACTICAL—Answer: In answer to this and many letters of a similar nature, it is sufficient to say that the Senator from Tennessee is not “practical” enough for the clubhouse type of politician. He is too undisciplined for them. Not yet forty-nine, he is also in too much of a hurry to enter the White House.

He is too moralistic. While local and national officeholders are not generally tied up with the underworld, they have helpful associations with certain fringe elements—gamblers, race-track figures, a few of the less ethical saloon keepers, and “small fry.”

CRIME—Kefauver exposed both these big and little shots in his investigations. He weakened the Chicago and New York machines, lost important elections—a Senator in Illinois and a Mayorality and Council Presidency in the metropolis.

Legislation resulting from his work, as well as increased public interest in crime, put thousands of gamblers out of business, at least temporarily, and landed others in jail.

Thus he violated one of the first principles of political organizations, which is to “live and let live.” HOSTILITY—Although Mr. Kefauver hails from a border state, his candidacy rings no bell among his colleagues from Dixie.

The Senator has opposed the Truman Civil Rights program save for the proposal to ban the poll tax as a qualification for voting. He also supported a Republican move to make it easier to impose censure, which is the weapon with which Truman Democrats seek to break southern filibusters.

Neither of these votes, however, are responsible for southern hostility. The poll tax is gradually disappearing by act of southern states themselves. Despite strengthening of the cloture procedure, it is still an effective bar to bringing unwanted measures to the floor for debate or vote.

AUDACITY—But Mr. Kefauver has supported most of the “new deal-fair deal” measures which his more conservative associates regard as extravagant and socialistic. On the basis of his votes in the House and Senate, he should be a favorite at the White House. That alone is enough to condemn him with the Dixie group.

Finally, he had the audacity to fight and defeat the Crump machine in Memphis. Any man who dares to defy the “organization” becomes a potential menace to all machines and all bosses. As European monarchs leagued against Napoleon when he undermined the system of royalty, so the political rulers here will gang up against Kefauver.

In short, as Mrs. G. H. suggests, the dese-dose-and dem boys don't like him because he is a “nice man.”

CUSTOM—“Don't you think,” inquires Mrs. T. K. of Houston, Tex., “that President Truman's insistence on naming his successor, if he doesn't run again, is extremely undemocratic? Why doesn't he leave the selection to the convention? Why should he impose his will on the Democratic Party?”

Answer: Technically, the practice under which a President forces his favorite on the party, and possibly on the country in the event of victory, is “undemocratic.” But it is an old custom, as Jefferson, Jackson and Theodore Roosevelt demonstrated when they named their heirs—Madison and Monroe, Van Buren and Taft, respectively.

It is only natural for a Chief Executive to want a successor who will carry on his foreign and domestic policies, which he naturally regards as best for the country. Feeling that way, it is also natural for him to use his tremendous political power and prestige to achieve his end.

Political “Solution” Of Inflation

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

As much as I like the radio, there are weeks that I go without listening a single night. However, I always make a special effort to be at my radio on Sunday night, when the best programs are on the air.

Last week the voices of Tallulah Bankhead, Kate Smith and Fred Allen were tape recorded and sent over the telephone to 5,000 New York homes. Tallulah said: “Hello, darling, this is Tallulah. Could I make a date with you for next Sunday? Well, what I mean is, I'd like to have you listen to my Big Show. You know, 6:30 to 8 each Sunday evening on WNBC. That's 660 on your dial...”

Even if the voices were tape recorded the New Yorkers were impressed by the personal contact. Many of them probably tuned in on Tallulah as a result of the stunt.

This is not the first time Ted Cott has produced a plan to get new listeners. He says, “If you take a big bomb and drop it, you cause a lot of damage, but it can be cleaned up right away. I like to drop a lot of little bombs. The mess is harder to clean up.”

Cott introduced to the air a weekly news broadcast designed especially for children. H. V. Kaltenborn started off one of the programs by saying, “Good morning! Last week two bad men tried to kill the President of the United States.” Also, Cott had Leopold Stokowski, Sam Goldwyn, Walt Disney, and Arthur Treacher as MCs on disc jockey shows. His motto is “Anything to get an extra listener.”

And I thank you.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Wilbur Peable, America's most average citizen, today suddenly called off his one-man investigation of the federal government. He tells why in this final letter to his wife, Trellis Mae: Dearest Honey, Well, I give up!

I came here as a patriotic duty, trying to find out what really is going on in the national capital. But it is simply too much for one mind, no matter how gifted. You have to be a paper clip to really get the feel of Washington.

And I'm worn out from head to foot. My arches are flat from walking on marble floors all day, and I'm suffering from martini-arthritis, a common disease among the cocktail circuit riders here.

Also, I'm broke. I told the hotel clerk I would probably have to go out on the highway and hitch a ride home.

“A lot of our visitors leave that way,” he said, cheerfully. “Come back after the November election. They always button up here a little before election.”

Now, that was a typical remark. They figure nobody comes to Washington except to look for a job, and nobody leaves unless he is discharged. Just do not believe anybody works outside the government by choice.

Around Capitol Square

Reflector Bureau By LYNN NISBET Ann. Afternoon Dallas

JUDGESHIP—Governor Scott is expected to act promptly, may have acted before this item is read, in appointing a special superior court judge replacing Judge Harold Bennett of Asheville, who resigned Thursday to resume private law practice in the Asheville firm headed by George Ward, Capitol square folk long ago recognized the hazardous nature of predictions about what Governor Scott will do in connection with appointments. That is especially true where the judiciary is concerned.

Speculation around the square when news of the Bennett resignation broke was that the governor will probably name Frank Parker of Asheville to the vacancy.

DOUBLE-DUTY — It is pointed out that Parker's appointment would serve a dual purpose, most important phase being it would take him out of the race for congress in the twelfth district. That would leave the field clear for Dale Thrash, tenth division highway commissioner who announced for congress earlier in the week, apparently with Governor Scott's full backing.

POLITICAL — Announced congressional candidates other than Parker and Thrash are Irvin C. Crawford, law office associate of former Senator Bob Reynolds; A. A. Rice, reformed Republican of Sylva, and George A. Shuford of Asheville, former legislator and special superior court judge — whom Scott failed to reappoint three years ago. Opinion prevails in the area that Parker and Thrash would split the vote of the pro-Scott element, thus enhancing chances of Shuford to lead the field. Crawford and Rice are generally considered minority candidates. Removal of Parker by appointment to the bench would leave the field to Thrash, and would presumably assure large part of Parker's strength going to the highway commissioner, as opposed to the former judge, whom Governor Scott would like to see continued in his present status of a private citizen. Admittedly that would be playing politics with the judiciary, but it would not be the first time that has been done.

CARRYING ON — Despite the obvious unfavorable reaction to Governor Scott's “Square-out” endorsement of Hubert Olive, and his public suggestion that he expects his appointees as members of “his team” to go along with him, the governor is still trying to pick a lieutenant governor. He has said at press conferences that he would try to make it hard for Roy Rowe to be elected to the number two place in state government. Also at press conferences he has said that Luther Hodges would make a good lieutenant governor. A few weeks ago on two public occasions he nominated Dr. R.E. Earp, his appointee as highway commissioner for the fourth division. Dr. Earp didn't respond with enthusiasm, and the other night at Winston-Salem the governor proposed Fred Royster of Henderson as a likely and acceptable candidate for lieutenant governor.

BACK-FIRE — The governor's statements in behalf of Olive and Hodges back-fired in some quarters, at least. It is common knowledge around Capitol square that several of the men whom the governor named as due to take instructions from him about their vote, have noticed him they cannot go along. On the trip your reporter made through the Piedmont and near west this week, it was evident that many original Scott supporters resented the governor's assumption they would blindly follow instructions or orders without being consulted in advance. One strong Hodges man, in fact one of those who persuaded him to get in the race for lieutenant governor, was very bitter about Governor Scott's press conference statement, implying endorsement of Hodges.

CLEARED — The situation with respect to the lieutenant governorship was partially clarified today with announcement from J. C. Pittman of Sanford that he will not be a candidate. Some months back the Lee county man had been prominently mentioned, but in recent weeks he had been counted as a very improbable candidate. There is still question about Frank Taylor, speaker of the 1951 house, and about John Larkins, veteran senator from Jones county, as well as about Fred Royster, the man Frank Taylor defeated for speakership of the last house. Presently announced candidates are Rowe, Hodges and Marshall Kurfess, mayor of Winston-Salem.

QUALITY — Equality of facilities and opportunity for public school children seems to be an impractical dream. The consolidation program begun in North Carolina more than thirty years ago, and speeded up tremendously during the past five years, has to some degree defeated its own purpose. Consolidated schools provide better buildings, better teachers, and generally improved “mechanics” for educating children. The program

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER Just a year ago a few far-seeing merchants were saying that store buying was at the expense of future sales. A few had the courage to buy advertising to urge the public to limit its purchases.

Just how right these prophets were is shown by conditions in the textile industries today. They are in the worst and longest depression since 1933. Many mills are shut, unemployment is high and inventories are enormous. Wages have been cut in the unionized Northern hosiery, woolen and cotton, rayon and millen mills are asking unions to give up some of their fringe benefits, if not take a pay reduction.

Rayon yarn stocks at the beginning of the year were 106,500,000 pounds, according to the Textile Economics Bureau. That was the greatest total in history and thirteen times as much as a year earlier.

Here is how we got into this mess: In fright, consumers were buying wildly a year ago. They were stocking up on sheets, undergarments, hosiery, suits, shirts and almost everything else. Closets were being stuffed with supplies for months and even years ahead. At the same time stores were reordering frantically and manufacturers were increasing their orders from the mills.

The public snapped out of it. Federal Reserve records of department store sales showed that after the peak buying in last January and February, sales dropped to normal seasonal levels in March and have held steadily near that level ever since. But mills and manufacturers kept on producing and it was not until later in the year that they sharply cut production.

There were reasons for this. Pipe lines were empty and it was not until July that they were filled. There was always the expectation that store buying would break out again. Some manufacturers, fearing a rise in defense employment would strip them of workers, kept going to keep their teams together. Others believed government demands for textiles by the military would cut production of civilian goods and good inventories would be good insurance. But defense moved slower than expected and consumers, with those full closets bought less than normal. Price cuts have failed to break the jam. Further cuts may invite bankruptcy. And how do we get out of this? Reduction in wages may not be the long-term solution. Cutting northern wages nearer levels of the South may help Northern mills compete with Southern mills, but it will not move burdensome inventories nor stimulate buying, except as it permits further price cuts. The best hope lies in the wearing out of the deterioration and the out-moding of goods in consumers' hands. Until that happens, there is little hope of moving the mountainous inventories. But it will happen, and it can be speeded along with better promotions and harder selling. SEES MOVABLE WALLS IN FUTURE HOMES

What the world needs, we seem to remember Salvador Dali saying, is soft walls. While there are no immediate prospects for this innovation in home building, there is a good chance that in the future, Murlin R. Hodgell, of the University of Illinois, says. Writing in the Journal of Home Economics, he foresees the day that when children arrive or relatives move in, new walls will be brought in and bolted into place making more rooms. And when families get tired of interior arrangements, it will be a simple matter to change things about.

“Today, after 400 years of mental stagnation in home planning, we are beginning to show signs of progress,” he writes. NPA SURVEYS FOREIGN RADIO

The National Production Authority has made a survey of radio in 96 countries, including data on sets in use in relation to number of households, percentage of receivers designed for short-wave reception, the number of wired speakers, total imports by value, the principal supplier and the American share of the total.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Wilbur Peable, America's most average citizen, today suddenly called off his one-man investigation of the federal government. He tells why in this final letter to his wife, Trellis Mae: Dearest Honey, Well, I give up!

I came here as a patriotic duty, trying to find out what really is going on in the national capital. But it is simply too much for one mind, no matter how gifted. You have to be a paper clip to really get the feel of Washington.

And I'm worn out from head to foot. My arches are flat from walking on marble floors all day, and I'm suffering from martini-arthritis, a common disease among the cocktail circuit riders here.

Also, I'm broke. I told the hotel clerk I would probably have to go out on the highway and hitch a ride home.

“A lot of our visitors leave that way,” he said, cheerfully. “Come back after the November election. They always button up here a little before election.”

Now, that was a typical remark. They figure nobody comes to Washington except to look for a job, and nobody leaves unless he is discharged. Just do not believe anybody works outside the government by choice.

You almost became a widow yesterday. I was passing a government office building just before dusk. The doors opened, and a mob of people rushed out and ran over me. I jumped up and yelled to a fellow: “There must've been an explosion in there. Come on. Let's go in, and help bring out the wounded.”

“There's nothing wrong,” he said. “It's just quitting time.” I fell in step with him, and he said: “You know a lot of folks have got the wrong idea about our government employes. They think we're all loafers. But we work as hard as anybody. I wish some of them that criticize us just had my job.”

Then he paused in alarm, and said: “What am I saying? I don't mean that!” I decided I ought to pay my respects to President Truman before getting out of town. On the way over I told the taxi driver I felt pretty blue because I really hadn't been able to find out what is going on in Washington.

He cheered me up by saying: “They ain't nothing to find out because they ain't nothing going on, now, bud. Nobody is doing anything, because he knows if he does something he'll be investigated, whatever it is. Everybody's in his mouse hole—waiting.”

Well, I didn't get to see the President. One of his hired hands apologized, and said: “He is busy right now reading a book somebody sent him called ‘How To Live On A Small Income In Florida.’”

But I'll tell you, Trellis Mae, the President is the only relaxed man in town. He's having more fun than a circus, because he's the only man here who knows for sure what he's going to do—and hasn't said what it is.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

(New Bern Sun-Journal) No political realist imagined that the Universal Military Training was going to have an easy time in Congress in a year when the lawmakers must face mothers, fathers and service-eligible youngsters of voting age at the polls. It has been hoped, nevertheless, that enough legislators would hear the call of statesmanship to insure the prompt enactment of the vital defense measure.

First reactions in the new session do not encourage this hope. Already there is talk of a limp compromise: the proposal that for the first year of a Universal Military Training program the very essence of any sound military training program is that the burden of service shall fall fairly upon all young men. Deference for good reason may play some part in the freedom from exemption—complete freedom from service—has no proper place.

To inaugurate a Universal Military Training plan with a call of volunteers is, therefore, a total violation of the spirit and purpose of the program. It puts a premium upon the man who does not choose to offer his services, bestowing special favor on him at the expense of his volunteering comrade. If, in spite of all, Congress should initiate the program on a volunteer basis, it will amount to the lawmakers saying: “We do not have the nerve to put this plan into effect on a compulsory footing, as it should be. Therefore, we are risking damage to the whole Universal Military Training concept by asking for volunteers this first year.”

The wise and brave course is admittedly difficult for a politician to follow: The average congressman's mail undoubtedly is running heavily against Universal Military Training. But most of those who write are not thinking of the welfare and safety of their country. They are simply thinking of themselves.

Mr. And Mrs. J. P. Wilson Celebrate Golden Anniversary

The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Patrick Wilson was celebrated with an informal reception given by their nine children on Saturday evening, February 2, at their country home near Grimesland.

Mrs. Wilson was the former Pattie Galloway Tucker, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Tucker of Simpson.

Beginning with the front door spray bearing the numerals 1902-1952 the lower rooms of the home were elaborately decorated with gold and white, using gold and white burning tapers throughout the house.

Those in the receiving line with Mr. and Mrs. Wilson were Mrs. Lucy Talley of Washington, Mrs. Dave Smith of Greenville, Rufus Elks of Washington and O. J. Galloway and J. H. Edwards of Grimesland, Mrs. Talley and Mr. Elks being attendants in the wedding fifty years ago.

Those receiving throughout the house were Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Wilson at the front door; Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hodges of Washington introducing to the receiving line; Mr. and Mrs. Leo Tucker of Norfolk directing to the register; Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Apple of Greenville registering guests; Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Tucker of Grimesland; and Mr. and Mrs. Steve Caton of Newport News were at the gift table; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carver of Williamston and Mrs. Clay Johnston of Morrahaus, Texas served bridal ice cream and cake, with Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Basnight of Greenville saying the goodbyes, all the above being children and in-laws of the Wilsons.

Others assisting throughout the house were Misses Pattie Sue and Carol Apple, Gwynn Basnight, Jane Tucker, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lewis Wilson, Leo Tucker, Jesse Ray Wilson, and Steve and Talmadge Caton. Those present too young to assist were Pat and Lou Johnston, Bobby Hodges, Jimmy Tucker and Patsy Ann Tucker, all being members of the family. Others helping were Mrs. Josh Bell, Mrs. Alston Elks, Mrs. Wesley Smith, Mrs. Claude Boyd and Miss Nancy Elks.

Many elaborate and beautiful gifts were received by the honorees. Over two hundred guests called during the evening to wish Mr. and Mrs. Wilson health and happiness for many years to come.

W.C.T.U. Members Witness Inspiring Playlet At Meeting

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union met with Mrs. J. N. Williams on Wednesday afternoon. Twenty-two members were present, with Miss Sallie Cowell and Mrs. Earle Brown as special guests.

The president, Mrs. C. W. Brown, called the meeting to order, asking for reports from the different committees. The treasurer reported a balance of $91.84 in the organization's account.

It was announced that the "Union" is on the radio every Saturday morning from 10:00-10:15. The club voted to send subscriptions to the "Union Signal" and "Tomorrow" to the high school library. Members also voted to increase the dues to $2.00 a year.

For the program a playlet was presented entitled "When Two Great Souls Meet." Taking part in the production were Mrs. McCarty, as grandma, Mrs. V. C. Carson as Mrs. Helpful and Elizabeth Anne Williams as Jane Joy.

After hearing and seeing this, one could appreciate more the life of Jennie Casaday, how as an invalid she had the vision to send flowers to shut-ins and to the hospitals. When the W.C.T.U. convention met in Louisville, Frances Willard went to see Miss Casaday. When these two great souls met, Miss Willard suggested to Miss Casaday that a department be organized for the W.C.T.U. with Miss Casaday as superintendent. This movement has grown until every country in Europe has been helped by W.C.T.U. groups in the United States. Besides flowers, many other articles have been made and donated. June 9 is the day that is celebrated in honor of Miss Casaday, the first superintendent of the Flower Mission Work.

Mrs. W. W. Howell presented a very interesting and timely devotional, using as her theme "Magnificent Obsession," telling of many incidents in the life of Paul, and showing how small groups have grown to do great things in a spiritual way. She showed how things can be accomplished if one has the "obsession." Her devotional proved to be a challenge to all who were present.

Miss Lill Wilson gave a spiritual thought as a benediction which had

Sixth Grade Pupils Present Chapel Program On Greece

The pupils of the sixth grade of the Training School presented a chapel program depicting life in ancient Greece on Friday.

The program was written and prepared by the students and was an outgrowth of their work in history and the social studies on Greek civilization.

Everyone of the 44 pupils had a part in the program. They composed the spoken parts, worked out the characters, and designed the scenery and costumes.

The program depicted the well known places, scenes and people of ancient Greece. The stage was arranged to resemble a forum, the gathering place of the people. Men and women of historical prominence were impersonated by the children. The program was concluded with the group singing of a Greek folk song.

Linda Lundy performed a Greek dance, and Elizabeth White repeated the Greek alphabet. Ruth Berry Young was the announcer for the program, and music and accompaniment for the dances and songs was played by Carolyn Rogerson.

The students are pupils of Mrs. Malta Batchelor.

Phantoms Get Tie For Second With Win Over Pam-Pack

Looking very much as if he has two right arms, Washington's Bobby Smith (the player on the right, whose number "1" is showing on the edge of the picture) is going right after Sid Briley, the man who has the ball perched on his neck. Neither Smith's arm nor the other arm (which belongs to some unidentified Washington player behind Smith) quite reached the ball and Briley retained it long enough to set the Phantoms up with two more points.

Scott Leads Victory For Greenville Team

Smith Worthington Leads Greenville Scoring With 18 Points As Red-Hot Phantoms Lead Throughout Contest

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Sports Writer
The Greenville Phantoms last night pushed themselves into a tie with Washington for second place in the Northeastern Conference by downing the Pam-Pack 56-50 in a thrill-packed game staged last night in the high school gym. The game gave each team a conference record of six wins and two losses.

A packed house—and then some—jammed every available bit of space in the gym to watch the Phantoms build up a big first half lead of 31-17 and then hold off a determined bid by the Pam-Pack in the last half. Not until the final minutes of the ball game when the Pack made a spirited rally was the Greenville club ever seriously threatened but by the time Washington had started rolling Coach Bo Farley's club had already sailed the game away.

As seems to be the usual case, slender forward Smith Worthington led the scoring for the Phantoms with 18 points but this performance—bright as it was—had to take a back seat to the exhibition put on by Sonny Scott.

Hampered for the last couple of games by an injured ankle, the always-hustling Scott last night showed no effects of the injury as he turned in his best performance of the year as the Phantoms' floor leader. He scored fifteen points and his ball handling was quick and sharp. His defensive work is reflected in the opponents' scoring column. Scott was assigned to hold Dick Cherry in check and when the final whistle tooted, Cherry had potted only four field goals—all of them from outside the foul circle on long set shots.

After Scott, the outstanding players for the Phantoms came a dime dozen. Center Wallace Conway did a great job on the boards for the Phantoms plus tossing in 11 very vital points. Joe Rowland, who worked his way into the starting line-up only a week ago, turned in a good game and while Sidney Briley was hampered by three quick personal fouls, he turned in his usual outstanding game.

Largely the game is a story of the Phantoms not being able to do anything wrong. They hopped into a big lead in the first quarter over the team that had swamped them in the first meeting of the two clubs and then sat back and enjoyed the show.

According to official game statistics, the Phantoms took 53 shots from the floor and hit on 22 of them for a 43 per cent shooting accuracy average. The Pam-Pack, a team which didn't start rolling until the second half, only hit 20 out of 64 shots for a 31.3 per cent shooting average.

Washington's play was led on both offense and defense by guard Bobby Hackler who scored 11 points plus joining a good job on defense for Coach Bill Sweet's team. With Scott bottling Cherry very effectively, Hackler was forced to take over the leadership duties for the Pam-Pack and did very well.

Most of the rough play in the contest which saw 50 personal fouls called came in the last three minutes of play as the Phantoms were determined to protect a slim five point lead and the Pam-Pack was just as determined to overtake them. The Pam-Pack fouled the Phantoms 12 times in the last three minutes of play but the Phantoms waived 10 of the free throws and were thus able to retain possession of the ball at the most important point in the game.

The Greenville team will be at home again Tuesday night when they play host to Elizabeth City. The Phantoms swamped the Yellow Jackets in the first meeting of the teams.

Ayden Girls Hand Belvoir Lassies First Loop Loss

AYDEN—Coach Stuart Tripp's Tornadoes ran wild here last night to record their sixth victory against one defeat in Pitt County Conference play, blasting Belvoir, 58-34. Ayden's girls won the opening game, 40-37, to hand Belvoir's defending champions their first league defeat of the season.

Center Mac Whitehurst paced the scoring in the boys contest with 22 points, followed by Delano Cox with 11 points. Haj Edwards, who picked up eight points, and Curtis Dennis were defensive standouts for the winners.

Ayden romped to a 14-3 lead in the first half, and had increased it to 22-4 by the midway mark of the second period. The Tornadoes held a halftime lead of 32-16. Belvoir made its best showing in the third period when it matched the Ayden reserves point for point. Ayden's starters came back in the fourth quarter and built up the score at will.

Howard Bullock paced the losing boys with eight points. Ralph Tyson led the defensive play for Belvoir.

Girls Game
Ayden took the lead in the opening minutes and held it until four minutes had passed in the second period when Belvoir caught up and went ahead for the first time in the game, 16-14, on a layup by Claudia Pollard. Jean Jones tossed in two shots from the floor in the closing minutes while Katherine Bright made one for Ayden. Belvoir led at halftime, 19-16.

A scoring drought by Belvoir in the third period gave Ayden all the opportunity that it needed as Alice Jean Smith and Katherine Bright poured in 12 points together to give Ayden a 28-23 lead at the end of the third period.

Ayden carried its lead to 32-25 in the first minute of the final period, before Belvoir could get going. Two field goals by Claudia Pollard brought the score up to 32-29, but Ayden's Bright dropped one from the floor to move their lead back to five, 34-29. A field goal by Nadine

Morris and a free throw each by Miss Pollard and Jean Jones closed the scoring gap to one point, 33-34.

Claudia Pollard then hit on a basket for Belvoir to give the Lady Eagles a brief 35-34 lead. Charlene Smith tied the score for Ayden at 35-35. Two floor shots by Katherine Bright put Ayden out to stay, and they went on to give Belvoir its first conference loss, 40-37.

Miss Bright was high in Ayden's scoring column with 13 points, followed by Alice Jean Smith with 12 and Charlene Smith with 11 points. Peggy Conway and Sybil Meeks paced Ayden's defensive play.

Claudia Pollard hit for 22 points to lead the Belvoir team. Nadine Morris and Jean Jones had eight and seven points, respectively. Jean Tyson and Margie Pollard were outstanding on defense for the losers.

Picklesimer Leads Pactolus Scoring

CHICOD—Wednesday night was almost "Ralph Picklesimer Night" in Chicod as he paced the Pactolus Ruritani Club to a 51-46 victory over the Chicod Ruritans.

All that Picklesimer did during the game was score 39 of his team's 51 points as they won their first victory of the year. A former center for the New York Giants pro football club, the 240 pound, 6-4 principal of the Pactolus school scored 16 of his points in the fourth quarter when his team broke a 33-33 deadlock which had existed at the end of three quarters.

Chicod led 23-17 at the halftime but they had not reckoned with Picklesimer who saved his best efforts for the last half.

Junior Phantoms Continue Win Streak With Victory

The Greenville High School Jay-Vees last night continued to be the hottest Junior Varsity team in the Northeastern Conference as they racked up their eighth straight victory with a 59-40 defeat of the Washington Junior Varsity Pam-Pack.

As in the Varsity contest between the two schools, there was never any doubt about the outcome of the contest. The Greenville club had an almost uncanny shooting accuracy last night with Pat Sawyer setting the pace.

Sawyer, the leader for the club since the season opened, was almost unbeatable in the first half last night as he scored 14 of his 16 points in the first 16 minutes. Sawyer was hitting consistently on a push shot from the corner in addition to his usual outstanding job of ball handling from the guard post.

Largely through Sawyer's efforts, Coach Bill Kittrell's Little Phantoms had a 34-19 lead at halftime and coasted through the second half. Despite their lead, they continued to use the possession tactics which have marked their games against Northeastern Conference Junior Varsity teams by waiving free throws.

All told, the baby Phantoms last night were offered 12 chances from the free throw line. They took two of the shots and made one of them. The other ten shots were waived and the ball taken at mid-court. The bit of strategy worked time and again for the Phantoms as they waited until they had a good shot before popping it.

Ranged behind Sawyer in the scoring chase were Edgar Moore, who tallied 12 points—most of them on push shots from well beyond the foul circle; Walter Perkins who scored nine points; and Bobby Conway who collected eight points in his pivot position.

The scoring for the Washington club was almost evenly distributed with forward Luke Waters getting 10 points—all free throws—to lead the Pack. Guard Bill Waters had eight points for runner-up honors.

The Jay-Vee Phantoms will play again Tuesday night when they meet the Elizabeth City Junior Varsity Yellow Jackets in the first game of a Northeastern Conference double-header.

BETHLEH PLAYS TONIGHT
BETHLEH—Robersonville and Bethleth will play tonight in a non-conference battle. The girls game will start at 7:30, with the boys game scheduled for 9 p.m.

JOE ROWLAND, first team guard for the Greenville Phantoms, gets a hand—and that's all—on the rebound which big Bob Smith has just brought down from the Phantoms' backboard during last night's top Northeastern Conference game. Smith retained possession of the ball despite Rowland's efforts. That's Smith Worthington checking the play at the right of Smith (number 10) while an unidentified Washington player comes up behind Rowland to assist Smith.

NEITHER WALLACE CONWAY (15) nor John Hoyt (8) could get to the ball before it went out of bounds on this particular play in last night's Greenville-Washington game. Although he lost the ball on this play, Conway was able to hold it often enough throughout the rest of the game to spark Greenville's rebound play and score 11 points.

Red Devils Upset Grifton In League Contest, 44-41

Pirates Play

The East Carolina Pirates will go after their eighth North State conference victory tonight when they play host to the pacesetter, Elton Christians in Wright Gymnasium. The game is slated to start at 8 o'clock.

Coach Howard Porter's Pirates led to the Christians last Saturday night 59-54 in the first meeting of the two clubs. The loss was the fourth as against the Christians, who have lost only twice, are rolling along on a record of seven consecutive victories against North State opposition.

The Pirates will probably start Sonny Russell and Bobby Hodges at the forwards, Toddy Fennell at center, and Louis Collier and Ritchie Blake at the guards. Coach Doc Mathis of the Christians is expected to counter with Ben Kendall and Ned Gaudin at the forwards, Dave Haltheath at center, and Don Mondy and Melvin Cooper at the guards.

FARMVILLE—Coach Elbert Moye's Red Devils won their third victory within the Pitt County Conference here last night as Farmville upset Grifton's Bulldogs, 44-41. Grifton's girls staged an upset of their own in the first game by dropping Farmville, 42-41, to win their first conference game of the year.

Grifton started a rally late in the third period that saw the Bulldogs take the count at 38-41 with four minutes left in the contest. Farmville regained the lead a few minutes later on a field goal, 40-38. A free throw by Grifton narrowed the count back to 40-39, and Teddy Allen then sank the winning goal for Farmville, a few seconds later, to carry the score to 42-39.

Grifton was not out of the picture, however, as J. R. Hooten sank one for the Bulldogs, Marvin Tugwell dropped in the final basket for the Red Devils in the last minute to move the point spread to its final margin, 44-41.

Farmville now has a 3-5 conference record, while Grifton has a 5-3 record in the loop.

Center Marvin Tugwell hit the nets for a total of 18 points to lead the Red Devils in their hard earned victory. Charlie Fitzgerald scored 16 points to come in a close second for Farmville. Teddy Allen and Jack Allen paced the defensive play for the winners.

Grifton, which trailed by a ten-point margin at halftime, 23-13, was led in the scoring column by J. R. Hooten with 17 points. Johnny and Rex Lewis each had seven points for the losers. Hooten also led the defensive play for Grifton.

Girls Game
Grifton led all the way in the girls contest, although Farmville was never out of the game at any point. The widest margin that the Lady Bulldogs held was a nine point spread at the end of the third period, 33-24.

After staging a fourth quarter rally that saw them move to within one point of Grifton in the final minute, Farmville got an opportunity to tie the score after the game was over. Red Devil forward Emily Cannon missed on a free throw attempt after the contest was over, and the score stood at 42 for Grifton, 41 for Farmville.

The win was the first in the county for the Grifton girls. They dropped their first six starts against county opposition.

Coleen Braxton led the winners with 13 points, but she had to take a back seat to Farmville's Edna Wooten, who poured a total of 21 points through the nets. Hilda Buck amassed 10 points for Grifton and Ila Wooten hit for eight for Farmville. Gertrude Garris and Louis Corey led the defense for Grifton while Gertrude Smith and Doris Oakley paced the Farmville defensive play.

Winterville Gets Double Victory Over Grimesland

WINTERVILLE—The Winterville Wolves gained a double victory over Grimesland last night as they swept both ends of a Pitt County Conference double-header. The Winterville girls started the evening's action off with a 39-38 victory in their game and the boys followed up with a 58-28 win in the nightcap.

In the girls game, the trio of Joan Averette, Ann Spier and Joan McLawhorn was just too much for the Grimesland lassies. Miss Averette led the scoring for Winterville with 16 points while Miss Spier had 10. Miss McLawhorn came through with eight points and third place honors for the night.

For Grimesland, their one claim to fame was that their ace forward, Joyce Mazingo, got runner-up scoring honors for the night with 14 points. She was quite unable, however, to carry all the scoring by herself and Winterville had little trouble in building up a quick lead.

Defensive play was led by Adrienne White and Annie Laurie Taylor of Grimesland and Betty Lou Nobles, Jean Little and Phyllis Jones of Winterville.

In the boys game, Dean Wingate of Winterville and Earl Wright of Grimesland got 13 points apiece but Wingate got more support than did Wright as Winterville edged Grimesland 39-38.

Winterville got their margin of victory in last minute and thirty seconds of play when Bobby McGlotham made a field goal. After that shot, Winterville regained possession of the ball and froze play for the remaining time.

Following Wingate and Wright in the scoring column were Bobby Cole of Winterville and Billy Boyd of Grimesland. Cole got 11 points and Boyd got eight.

Slated for action is Elon at East Carolina and Lenoir Rhyne at Catawba. Appalachian will play host to High Point College and Western Carolina will be at home to Atlantic Christian.

North Carolina's Tar Heels, a disastrous four-game losing streak finally broken, tangle with Furman tonight in a game the Tar Heels must win if they are to retain their hopes of reaching the Southern Conference basketball tournament in March.

The contest at Chapel Hill will pit Carolina, barely keeping its nose above water with a 7-6 circuit mark, against one of the better quints in the conference. Furman already has assured itself of a berth in the championship tournament by winning nine of its first 13 league tilts.

But even a victory tonight would not give North Carolina too much hope of a spot in the dribble derby. For after Furman, the Tar Heels have skirmishes with South Carolina, Clemson, Davidson, N.C. State and Duke—and there isn't a push-over in the lot.

While tonight's tussle is on at Chapel Hill, two other aspirants for the eighth tournament position—William and Mary and George Washington—will be meeting each other at Williamsburg, Va. William and Mary (6-4) could almost count on playing in the tourney with a victory over the Colonials (6-5).

Other league games tonight find V.M.I. at Maryland, Clemson at Wake Forest, and Davidson at N. C. State.

Oh, NO, Hogjaw! You can't call that play like that... seems to be the words on Coach Bill Sweet's lips as he addresses official Al Wadford at one point during last night's Greenville-Washington game. The play which caused all the argument was an out-of-bounds play which Wadford had called against Sweet's Pam-Pack. As usual, the official "Hogjaw" won the argument.—(Reflector Sports Photos by Roy Hardee)

French Premier Wins Test Vote

PARIS (AP)—The three-week-old government of Premier Edgar Faure won a slim 262-275 vote of confidence early today in the National Assembly.

The issue, a procedural one, was whether the parliament should consider at once the Premier's proposal for a guaranteed wage, scaled to the cost of living.

The assembly voted to take up the issue. But the narrow margin meant the test on the bill itself, probably this weekend, would be critical.

Fewer Dental Cavities When Fluoridation Used

Children literally can drink their way to better dental health if the water in their homes contains the proper amount of fluorides.

Research has produced much evidence showing conclusively that children born and reared in communities whose public water supplies contain one part per 1,000,000 or more of fluoride have only one-third as much dental decay as children who drink water which does not contain the chemical.

Children need not be born in an area which has a sufficient supply of fluoride in its water to receive the benefits of fewer cavities. But the earlier and longer they drink water containing fluoride while their teeth are developing, the greater protection against tooth decay they will have. This applies to both first and permanent teeth.

One of the most convincing examples of the value of fluoridation is provided in a six-year study made at Newburgh, N. Y., and the nearby city of Kingston. Newburgh began fluoridating its water supply in 1945 and is continuing to do so. Kingston has never fluoridated its water.

Dr. David B. Ast, New York state dental director, who conducted the study, has reported that among 5 to 6 year old children in Newburgh there has been a 115 per cent increase in the number of children with all of their first teeth free of decay, compared with children in Kingston.

During a four-year period of fluoridation, there was a reduction of 32.5 per cent in the number of decayed, missing or filled teeth among Newburgh children from 6 to 12. Complete health examinations showed no harmful effects that could be attributed to fluoridation.

Lewiston, Idaho, reported a 58 per cent reduction in dental decay among 7-year-olds in 1951. After fluoridation was started, and drops of 35 and 25 per cent, respectively, among 8 and 9 year old groups.

When fluoridation was begun in Marshall, Tex., in 1946, a neighboring city, Jacksonville, which has fluoride-free water, was selected as a control point. Examinations were made of native born children in both towns and the decay rate at both places was between 7 and 8 decayed teeth per child.

After 29 months, Marshall children showed a 23 per cent reduction in the decay rate, while at Jacksonville the rate was unchanged. Six-year-old Marshall children who had been drinking fluoridated water almost half their lives showed a 47 per cent reduction in decay.

At Branford, Ontario, Canada, the decay rate among 6-year-olds dropped 56 per cent after 54 months of fluoridation, with reductions of 43, 22 and 20 per cent for children 8, 12 and 14, respectively.

In a five-year test period of fluoridation at Grand Rapids, Mich., the decay rate was reduced 51 per cent for 6-year-olds, 36 per cent for 9-year-olds and 16 per cent for 13 year olds.

Sheboygan, Wis., reported a 39 per cent decay rate cut among kindergarten pupils in a 44-month period of fluoridation, with drops of 24 per cent for fourth graders, and 18 per cent for seventh to ninth graders.

It is apparent from these reports that the earlier a child starts to drink fluoridated water the more protection he has from decay.

Capitol Square

contemplates that no rural school child will have to walk more than a mile to get a good school. If he lives more than a mile from the school house he is entitled by law to have a school bus pick him up. City children living more than a mile from their school, and thousands of high school pupils do, have to get to and from school the best way they can. The state definitely discriminates against city children in that respect. In some respects there is obvious discrimination against rural children.

EXAMPLES—For instance, between Pittsboro and Siler City in Chatham county your reporter saw school children in groups ranging from three to ten, standing by the roadside waiting for the school bus at around 10 o'clock Monday morning. Their school had already been in session for more than an hour, and the bus they were waiting for had already made one trip, according to what one of the kids said in answer to inquiry of why they were so late. Before three o'clock that same day your reporter saw school buses between Claremont and Conover in Cat wain county making the first trip home with school pupils. Somebody was getting short-changed in that deal. One group of children could not possibly get to school much before eleven o'clock, and another group had to leave soon after two o'clock. Either the teachers had to spend a lot more time in the classroom than they were supposed to spend, or some of the pupils did not get the full day's instruction to which they were entitled and which the taxpayers were paying for. The fact that the ten o'clock waiters were colored and the two-thirty leavers were white, doesn't affect the basic issue.

Members of the swing band and the instruments they played were: Mary Ellen Dail, Carroll Allen, James C. Allen and Mack Homes, saxophones; Shirley Newton, and Norris Spencer, clarinets; Eddie Bass and Albert Monk, trumpets; Jimmy Allen and Bella Moseley, trombones; Jimmy Bell, drums.

Mr. Maenhout called upon Willa Rae Harper, club sweetheart and pianist, to sing one of his numbers. George Moye was the guest of Frank Allen, Lewis Allen had as his guests his daughter, Ann Francis, and Alex Allen III.

Nassif Cannon will have charge at the next meeting.

Babson . . .

so many of the world's people are starving. Ultimately, either our living standards will be lowered or else we must help other nations raise their living standards. Perhaps the first persecuted race we should help is the displaced Jews of Israel; but first we need a World Truce.

Knows By Our Fruits
A professor under whom I once studied at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology would prove that God has given the world new discoveries only as soon as the people were ready for them. This was his interpretation of the old saying, "Necessity is the mother of invention." May this now bring us a World Truce.

I wish that preachers, instead of praying for peace, would pray that we be worthy of peace and be willing to make the necessary sacrifices therefor. Then peace will come naturally, as have other great blessings. The Apostle Paul must have had this in mind when he said: "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered in to the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him." (1st Cor. 2:9)

A Final Thought
It certainly seems as if some mistake has been made. Either the leaders of our mission schools did not properly teach the right Gospel, or else we in this country have set such a poor example as to undo all their efforts. Jesus said: "By their fruits ye shall know them." Did He expect this would be applied to our foreign missionaries or to us churchmen here at home who are urging Truman to bomb China?

The eleventh of February is the birthday of Thomas A. Edison for whom I once had the honor of working. When anything which he did failed to give the desired result, he always blamed it on himself, never on the chemicals or other materials with which he was experimenting. He would then try to find the mistake which he had made. I believe in foreign missions and in present day churches, but certainly this Korea-Chinese situation makes me feel that there has been a mistake somewhere. Let us remember Edison and see that it will be corrected. If we hope to have further prosperity and avoid unemployment, we now need a World Truce, —not simply a Korean Truce.

ONE DEAD . . .
An early morning accident today resulted in injuries to a Grimesland native and heavy damage to a car and truck.

Amos Earl Hudson, 30, received a broken right thigh and knee cap and was placed in Pitt Memorial Hospital. He was operating the car which was attempting to pass a dump truck driven by Joe Nelson, Route 1, Greenville, which was making a left hand turn.

Nelson escaped injury. Damage to the two vehicles was placed at $1,600 by Patrolmen Whitley and H. M. Morrow.

The accident occurred three miles east of Greenville on Highway 264 around 7:30 this morning.

A fourth accident occurred on the Old Creek Road later today but a report had not been made on the accident.

SOLONS REFUSE TO PAY FEE FOR CHICKENS' BURIAL
ATLANTA (AP)—Georgia legislators don't like the idea of paying burial expenses for a flock of chickens.

The chickens were scared to death by the booming guns of National Guard field artillerymen on maneuvers.

Farmer Claude Bennett contended that the roaring guns so frightened his 7,500 ten-week-old fowls that 425 smothered during the excitement.

Rep. Dempsey Leach proposed to the House of Representatives that the state of Georgia pay Bennett, one of his constituents, 90 cents for each casualty and toss in $25 extra for the cost of burying the birds.

The House agreed yesterday to pay Bennett $322.50—but said nothing doing on that $25 burial fee.

Children's Theatre Group Being Planned

Plans for the formation of a children's theatre group were announced today by Recreation Director Warren Carroll of Greenville.

Carroll said the first meeting of the new group has been slated for Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock and is open to all children of the city between the ages of 6 and 16.

The children's junior theatre group will put on theatre productions throughout the year, and during the summer months probably will present productions at the playgrounds of the city.

A group of volunteer workers have offered to direct the activities of the children's theatre group and the play "The Magic Path" has been selected for the first production of the group. Mrs. Donna Tabor will be the director for the first play, the recreation director said.

"The formation of this children's theatre group is a great step forward for Greenville's recreation program," Carroll said. "I think this will be on a par with any little league sports program we have developed here."

Children who are interested in becoming members of the children's theatre group have been asked to meet at 5 o'clock Friday afternoon at the armory. Parents of the children are also invited to attend the meeting.

ROBIN GETS MEMORIAL
NIGARA FALLS, Ont. —(UP)—High up on an arch in the recently-completed St. Martin's Church here is a stone bird's nest with a sculptured robin in it. It is the same spot where a robin built its nest during the construction of the church. Workmen carefully worked around the bird while it hatched its young.

STILL SUFFERING DROUGHT EFFECTS
RALEIGH —(AP)—Although heavy rainfalls were reported during January, North Carolina's pastures are still suffering from the severe drought of last summer and fall.

This was reported today by the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service in a crop summary for the month ending Jan. 31.

Growers were told to begin the early part of the month preparing tobacco beds and cotton to cotton stalks. But field work was almost impossible the last of the month because of general rains.
