Communists Cling To Demand Russia Be Considered Neutral; Balk At Troop Rotation Offer

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—The Communists rejected today a U.N. compromise offer to cut troop rotation from a truce from 40,000 to 35,000 men a month. There was speculation that the Reds might be holding out on the troop rotation issue in an attempt to blackmail the U.N. into accepting Russia as the sixth member of a neutral commission to supervise the armistice.

There was no word on when a third group of staff officers will meet to settle mechanical details of the fifth and final item on the armistice agenda—recommendations to belligerent governments. The full truce delegations agreed Tuesday that the recommendations would be for a peace conference within 90 days of a cease-fire to consider withdrawing the foreign troops from Korea and other Korean political questions. A Voice of the U.N. Command broadcast from Tokyo said Communist insistence on referring the item to staff officers for detailed drafting was another "proof beyond dispute that the Reds still are intent upon delaying a Korean armistice as long as possible."

The U.N. offered to reduce the number of troops to be replaced during a truce from 40,000 to 35,000 in line with its proposal last week to "split the difference" between the Allied and Communist figures. However, the Reds still maintained that troop rotation should be held to 30,000 a month. Each side accused the other of breaking a prior agreement on nominations to the commission of neutral nations which will supervise the truce. North Korean Col. Chang Chun San contended each side had agreed not to dispute the other's nominations. Moreover, he said, the U.N. had no reason to reject Russia after it had accepted Red Poland and Czechoslovakia. U.N. Col. Don Darrow countered that the Reds had gone back on their agreement that all nominations must be approved by both sides.

President Asks For Extension Of Wartime Powers

Committee Chairman Promises Early Consideration Of Blanket Appeal

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman's request for blanket extension of some 60 war powers that may run out on him soon got a "make haste with caution" rating today in Congress. The request, made yesterday in letters to Speaker Rayburn and Vice President Barkley, went to the House and Senate Judiciary Committees with a plea for prompt consideration. Chairman Celler (D-NY) of the House Committee promised to "act expeditiously" after a careful screening of the legislation involved. Committee hearings, Celler told a reporter, "will be as brief as possible because of the obvious urgency, but there will be no stampeding."

Seen Again

TOKYO (AP)—American bomber crews have reported seeing strange looking objects over Korea at night. Air Force spokesmen in Tokyo and Korea refused to comment. They said the information was classified. Night-flying B-29 bomber pilots in Korea told today of seeing "things" in the air. Earlier Air Force spokesmen in Washington said B-29 crewmen reported sighting "strange looking orange globes" in night flights. One veteran pilot in Korea said the "orange globes" could be flashes of exhaust from Communist jets. Red MIG-15 jets have been reported over North Korea at night.

Bankers Gather In City Friday

More Than 300 Will Attend Annual Association Meeting. More than 300 persons are expected here Friday to attend the annual meeting of Group One of the North Carolina Bankers' Association. The meeting will be held at the Sheppard Memorial Library. J. W. Overton, assistant vice-president and auditor of the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company here and chairman of the group, between 300 and 350 members of the association from the eastern part of the state would register here Friday for the all-day meeting. Registration is set for 11:30 and the business meeting will begin at 2:30 in the Sheppard Memorial Library.

Merchants Invite Bargain-Hunters

Out-Of-Town And Local Shoppers Awaited By City Tomorrow. A large number of out-of-town and local shoppers are expected to be on hand early tomorrow when Greenville merchants launch their three-day "Spring Opening."

U.S. Building In Belgrade Again Target Of Arson

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP)—A pre-dawn attempt to burn down the quarters of the U. S. Information Service in the middle of downtown Belgrade was prevented today by the early arrival of a Yugoslav employe. It was the second attempt within 15 months to destroy the headquarters—a building separate from the Embassy and housing a reading room and a showroom displaying pictures of life in America. The Yugoslav employe, arriving early to work on the office mimeograph machine which turns out summaries of world news, discovered the blaze just inside a guard wall near the entrance. He extinguished it without damage. Three bottles, wrapped in waste and containing a liquid fuel, apparently had been pitched through an iron grill outer gate behind the guard wall.

New England's Wintry Storm Leaves 50 Dead

Milk and food deliveries were at a standstill in Portland, Me., and many other communities. The 50-mile-an-hour winds that drove a blinding blizzard across the Dakotas and Minnesota last night subsided after taking at least four lives. Three young Indian children were burned to death at their home near Elbowoods, N.D., when a kerosene can exploded through the storm to get supplies. At Marshall, Minn., a 55-year-old man died of a heart attack after his car stalled in snow less than a block from his home. Another "near blizzard" in southern Wisconsin was blamed for a crash in which a pilot was killed. He had just taken off from Madison with a load of baby chicks.

Spy On Trial

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—John Fritiof Enbom, Communist agitator and editor, was charged today in the Stockholm magistrates court with "gross espionage" for Soviet Russia. Swedish officials said his arrest last week smashed one of the most dangerous Red spy rings ever to operate in Scandinavia. Enbom, 33, appeared today before the court in a closed session for security reasons. The charge carries a maximum penalty of life imprisonment. Authorities said previously the ring he is accused of heading was a relay to Russia for U. S. atomic secrets and betrayed some of Sweden's most vital military secrets to the Soviets. Enbom's arrest followed a tip to Swedish Minister of Defense Torsten Nilsson by a young student in whom the Red reportedly confided during a drinking party last Christmas.

Forced To Flee From Nightriders

Cumberland County Tenant Farmer Tells Of Hooded Gang. FAYETTEVILLE (AP)—Masked night riders have forced a Cumberland County tenant farmer and his family to flee from their home, Sheriff L. L. Guy reported today. Guy said Howard Prevatte, 30, called on him for protection last night after the third visit of masked men to his home in three nights. The farmer lives 12 miles from here on the Elizabethtown road. The sheriff reported the hooded men told Prevatte: "We don't want to hurt you or your wife and babies. All we want to do is get you out of the woods."

Two Washington Attorneys, Now Under Grand Jury Indictment, Face Queries On Fabulous 450-for-1 Profit Deal

WASHINGTON (UP)—Senate investigators said today they probably will call two Washington attorneys, now under grand jury indictment, for questioning about the fabulous 450-for-1 profits reaped on the surplus tanker deals of former Rep. Joseph E. Casey (D-Mass.). The lawyers are Joseph H. Rosenbaum, key figure in the Senate RFC investigation last year, and Robert W. Dudley, Casey's brother-in-law and a former member of Rosenbaum's profitable law firm. Both were indicted on perjury charges recently by a federal grand jury looking into findings of the Senate RFC inquiry. Meantime, the Senate's permanent investigating committee recalled Casey himself for further questioning on the deal in which he and his associates got $450,000 for stock interests in a firm which they founded by putting up only $1,000.

Disaster Staved Off By Steel Nerves Of Driver

COTOPAXI, Colo. (UP)—A steel-nerved truck driver, who stuck to his blazing truck loaded with 32,000 pounds of high explosives through this city before abandoning the vehicle was credited today with averting a possible disaster. The truck burned with a spectacular roaring orange flame, shooting flames 50 feet in the air shortly after the driver, Carroll Huntsman, leaped clear yesterday. The 43-year-old driver noticed the blaze and drove a quarter-mile past here before stopping to fight the flames. He abandoned the Rio Grande Motorways truck when he noticed the flames eating at the boxes of delex No. 2, a type of dynamite used in hard rock mining. The fire destroyed the truck and a nearby log house and storage shed were burned by the intense heat.

Shot His Wife To Keep 'Secret'

REYMOUR, Ind. (UP)—Police said today that Raymond T. Reynolds, 28, shot and killed his wife to keep her from telling neighbors that he beat her. Reynolds shot his wife and then attempted suicide yesterday, authorities said. He was reported in critical condition at a hospital.

OPS Clinic On Phases Of Contracting Planned Here

A special clinic for all phases of the contracting business, now covered by Ceiling Price Regulation #2 will be held here tomorrow. Charles A. White, president of the Merchants Association announced today. The clinic will be held in the Board of Aldermen room in the Municipal building at 2:30. Arnold Aspinen, from the Raleigh OPS, will explain the regulation and filing requirements to local businessmen at the meeting which is being held as a public service in conjunction with the Raleigh office. Numerous letters have been sent to businessmen in the area explaining that the required forms must be filed with the Raleigh OPS within 10 days after this meeting, and local residents are urged to take advantage of the opportunity for assistance, White said. Included in the types of contractors covered by the regulation are: General, industrial, electrical, plumbing, well digging, painting, plastering, and others. Accountants in the area who are handling accounts for any firms covered by the regulation are invited to the session, White said. Contractors living in Williamston and Washington are also expected to attend the clinic.

Infant Volcano Has A Birthday

URUPAN, Mexico (AP)—Mexico's husky infant volcano celebrated its ninth birthday today with a shower of stones and ash. The Paricutin volcano appeared Feb. 20, 1943, as a smoking crack in the ground near the village of that name, 250 miles west of Mexico City. In nine years it has grown 1,200 feet high. A few weeks ago, it renewed activity, showering the country for miles around with ash and pouring lava out of one of its two craters.

Atlantic Allies Warned Of Great Effort Lying Ahead

Seamen Refuse To Leave Hulk

Thirteen Cling To Stern Section Of Broken Tanker In Attempt To Salvage At Least One Part Of Two Ships. CHATHAM, Mass. (UP)—Thirteen seamen clung to the bucking stern section of the broken tanker Fort Mercer today in an attempt to salvage at least one part of the two tankers that split in two off Cape Cod Monday. The 13 men, in charge of Chief Engineer Jesse T. Bushnell of Pasadena, Tex., refused to leave the drifting hulk with 21 shipmates who were rescued by the Coast Guard cutters Eastwind and Acushnet. They hoped to aid salvage tugs get the stern section into port. They were the only men left aboard the pieces of the 10,000-ton twin tankers, Fort Mercer and Pendleton, which broke up in a violent Northeast storm 25 miles apart with a possible loss of 14 lives. The Coast Guard rescued 32 men from the stern of the Pendleton Monday night, took four off the bow of the Fort Mercer and 21 from the stern. No one was found on the Pendleton's bow. The Eastwind had a breeches buoy rigged to the stern of the Fort Mercer to take off the 13 salvagee seamen if the hulk threatened to capsize or sink in the heavy weather before it could be towed to port. The Coast Guard did not learn of the seamen's intentions of staying aboard until rescue operations at the stern section were under way, since the Eastwind radioed that it was "apparent all hands will be removed safely."

Sabrejets Down Two MIGs; Five Others Damaged

Fight Waged Near Manchuria; First Marine Draftees Land In Korea. The two kills were scored during a furious 15-minute air battle between 25 Sabrejets and 70 of the Russian-built enemy jets near Sinulju, on the Yalu River frontier between North Korea and Manchuria. Two of the 5th Air Force's leading pilots shared credit for downing one of the MIG's, boosting each to within one-half point of the five they need to qualify as jet ace. They are Col. Francis S. Gabreski of Oil City, Pa., who shot down 26 enemy planes during World War II, and Maj. William T. Wulmer of Shreveport, La. An additional three MIG-15s were damaged in a morning dogfight near Sinulju. Capt. Richard D. Stark of Tampa, Fla., claimed two damaged for the day. The first U.S. Marine draftees to enter a combat zone since World War II landed today in the biggest batch of Marine replacements yet sent to Korea. The 900 Leathernecks—nearly half of them conscripts—march off the transport Gen. William Wiegell at an East Korean port in sub-freezing weather as the sun shone brilliantly. The Marines had sailed from the U.S. Feb. 1 under the command of Lt. Col. William S. McLaughlin of Gloucester, Mass. Maj. Gen. John T. Selden, commander of the First Marine Division, said no distinction would be made between the conscripts and regular Marines. "They are the same boys fundamentally and they have gone through identical training," he said. "If they get out of line, you expect John Marine to straighten them out."

Acheson Says NATO Must Take Actions That Will 'Strain All Of Us To The Utmost'; New Members, Greece And Turkey, Attend Council Meeting

LISBON (AP)—A grave-faced Dean Acheson told the Atlantic Allies, opening their ninth Council session today: "We must take actions that will strain all of us to the utmost." "It is a task for governments and for peoples," the U. S. Secretary of State said. "We must develop the concrete military strength which alone can insure our people against the destruction and suffering of another war." Two new members, Greece and Turkey, joined the 12 Western Allies in a meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Council composed of foreign, defense and finance ministers. Portuguese Foreign Minister Paulo Cunha, in the role of host, broke into the usual welcoming pleasantries with a plea for the admission of Spain to the alliance. He blasted Spain's exclusion as a strategic absurdity, and said defense of the Iberian Peninsula was indivisible. Solemnly, Chairman Lester B. Pearson of Canada rapped a gavel on the flower-banked rostrum in the white marble Portuguese National Assembly, and warned that this session may well determine whether the Atlantic coalition will be a strong and enduring association for the defense of peace, or merely a fretful and uneasy alliance. "The session is faced with the necessity of producing enough concrete results in Western military and civil cooperation or risking a possible slash by the United States Congress in multi-billion dollar aid programs," he said. Portuguese guardsmen in bright dress uniforms lined the staircase as the delegates filed into the Assembly, among them Sophocles Venizelos, Greek deputy premier and foreign minister. Venizelos declared Greece fully realizes her responsibilities in the organization and she will show the same determination if called upon to aid her allies as did her tough mountain fighters in putting down Communist revolt within her own borders. In private conversations before the meeting opened, senior American delegates expressed conviction Congress is in a put-up-or-shut-up mood.

Ingenuity Brings Crippled Plane To Safe Landing

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UP)—A fire ax, a jack, and "Yankee ingenuity" brought a crippled B-29 bomber in for a perfect landing here yesterday. The plane circled the field here for two hours as the crew labored to repair a faulty down-locking mechanism in the nosewheel. In desperation as the gas supply ran low, the crew jammed the fire ax in a jack in the nose gear to hold it in place. The plane was not damaged, nor was the crew injured. The three-man crew included Medal of Honor holder Lt. Col. W. A. Shomo of Jeanette, Pa., Capt. James Shubin of Petaluma, Calif., and S- Sgt. W. Henley of Sheboro, N.D.

New OPS Chief To Take Oath Of Office Thursday

WASHINGTON (AP)—Ellis G. Arnall, former Georgia governor, will be sworn in as the nation's new price boss in Atlanta tomorrow. The Office of Price Stabilization (OPS) said Arnall decided to take the oath in his home state, where he is now winding up his personal affairs. The agency said he expects to arrive in Washington next Monday to assume his new duties as OPS director. Arnall succeeds Michael V. DeSalle, former Toledo mayor who was price chief from Dec. 12, 1950, until last Friday. DeSalle quit to seek the Democratic nomination for the U. S. Senate in Ohio.

Superior Court Closes In County Ahead Of Schedule

After a stormy wrangle yesterday afternoon over who paid who and for what, the February Civil Term of Pitt County Superior Court came to a close—two days earlier than originally scheduled. Presiding judge, Hon. John J. Burney of Wilmington, thanked the jury for their service during this term and dismissed them at 3 p.m. for the remainder of the term. In the case of J. B. James, trustee for Mrs. Gladys P. Etheridge vs. J. Archie Lee and Clark Art Shop Inc., a long argument was ended with Judge Burney's releasing of J. Archie Lee from further parties. The judge ordered that J. Archie Lee, upon payment of $309 into the Clerk of the Court's office, is released of all further liability in the conflicting claims of the other parties. The case was appealed to the State Supreme Court. A suit contesting a deed made by A. J. Garris to E. B. Garris, was settled this week. Judge Burney ordered that the deed be declared null and void due to A. J. Garris' incompetency and want of understanding. In a suit involving the Teel heirs vs. Harriett Teel, it was ordered that the defendant, Harriett Teel, cut no timber from lands in her lifetime except that necessary for proper enjoyment of her life estate. Judge Burney ordered that in the case of W. L. Stocks vs. Boyd Fleming, Stocks recover $150, together with costs of the action. Three divorces were granted, all on the grounds of two years separation. They were in the cases of Hazel Scott Harvell vs. Charles Lee Harvell; Robert Caton vs. Allene Caton; and Jessie Marie Riggs vs. John D. Russ. The next term of Superior Court will begin here March 17.

Brothers Return But One Is Dead

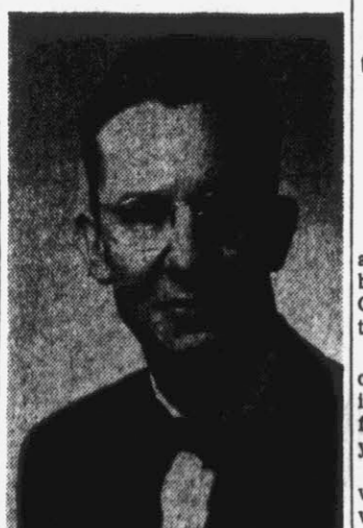

PLYMOUTH, Ia. (UP)—Two brothers who fought together in Korea have made a 8,000-mile journey home. Rollie Alitz brought the body of his younger brother, Charles, back home for burial yesterday. Charles Alitz was killed Dec. 2 on "No Name Hill."

C-Of-C Board Meets Tonight

The Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce will hold a meeting tonight at the chamber office at Five Points at eight o'clock. The meeting is the first one which the new administration will hold and a number of matters of business are on schedule. The permanent committees for the year will be appointed, a budget will be adopted and other business transacted.

U. S. Casualties In Korea, 105,841

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department's weekly summary based on notifications to families through last Friday reported: 85 killed in action for a total of 16,427; 281 wounded, 76,794; and 13 missing, 12,620.

Impressions

By MARTHA S. FORBES

An amusing incident took place on one of the downtown streets of Greenville the other day.

Two women tried to get into the same parking place and neither one would give in to the other. It happened this way. The first car pulled up in front of the parking place to back in. While waiting for cars behind her to go around, another lady sneaked in from the rear and boldly plowed forward, engine first, leaving the rear of the car exposed to the oncoming traffic.

The first driver blew her horn frantically to inform the other that the parking space was hers by virtue of first-come-first-served. The "pre-emptor" refused to concede to the maxim. Both of the drivers determined to have their way, tied up traffic and continued to sit the situation out. When one had finished her business, only then did she drive away and the situation became normal again.

The occurrence above leads me to speculate on the poor manners which we so often display in our determination to push ahead of other people. Consider, for instance, the conduct of a crowd waiting in line for any kind of service. You will always find more than a few who consider it their special prerogative to forge ahead of others who are politely awaiting the normal "flow of traffic" to the ticket window, counter, checking out register in a grocery store, or some such place.

You will always find some hearty soul with tireless feet who will greet a latecomer with a hospitable, "Come on and get in front of me. I am not in a hurry and I will make room for you." If she feels that noble, why doesn't she just step out of line altogether and exchange places with the latecomer?

We who read Emily Post and take such pride in doing things the proper and correct way socially often display thoughtlessness and crudity in the common amenities in life. Take, for instance, the bad manners so frequently shown in the use of a telephone. A party line person will jiggle the receiver and click the dial, even though it is evident that someone else is using the phone. To say that it is annoying is a mild statement. Of course the person who ties up a line with superfluous chatter is equally as rude and thoughtless as the person who interrupts the conversation with impatient breaks. Incidentally, I expect my "phone mate" is sorry she is attached to me! Though many of us do not realize it, abruptness is a form of impoliteness and bad manners. Have you ever been talking to someone who terminated the conversation so abruptly that you felt as though you had been slapped? A sincere "thank you" or a gay "goodbye" or a friendly "I'll be seeing you" helps to leave a good warm glow in the hearts of the conversationalists.

Again, for example, consider the conduct of an audience. How they wiggle and squirm and twist after five minutes of listening to the speaker! If a sermon is two minutes beyond the usual time, if the presented program extends beyond the limit set in the minds of the audience as "long enough," if the speaker in his enthusiasm at the sound of his own voice speaks a half dozen words after time for adjournment, the audience always expresses its disapproval by shifting about, audibly whispering and otherwise showing its impatience. Perhaps we think that good manners would encourage the program to last even longer!

Good manners is simply the Golden Rule applied to respect the feelings of others. When we blow our horn at the car ahead that doesn't jump like a rabbit at the change of the signal light, let us remember that horns have probably been blown at us—and remember how we felt. If we push ahead of the timid woman at the sales counter, let us remember how outdone we feel when someone shoves ahead of us.

Good manners can be "taught" and can be "caught," but mostly they come as a result of an instinctive consideration for the feelings of others.

Study Class
At Memorial Baptist Church
There will be a mission study class at Memorial Baptist Church on Thursday night, Feb. 21, at 7:30 o'clock. The book, "Tangled Threads," by Ralph Phelps, Jr., will be studied. This book deals with our problems of race, labor, alcohol, Communism, and the underprivileged. Speakers for the evening include Miss Gloria Blanton and J. B. Spilman, Jr. Jack Edwards, Dave Whitchard, III, Robert Holt, and Ralph Rives. The W.M.S., which is sponsoring this study, will welcome all who can attend.

Card of Thanks
We wish to express our deep appreciation to the friends and neighbors of our sister, Mrs. Minnie Briggs, for their kind thoughts and deeds during her illness and death; also to the entire hospital staff.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
February 20, 1912

One of the most attractive and enjoyable social functions was a Valentine party given a few afternoons since by Mrs. E. B. Ferguson, complimentary to Mesdames J. B. James and L. N. Whitted. The home was appropriately decorated with cupid, hearts, valentines and evergreens.

The guests were welcomed at the front door by the hostess and her sisters, Mesdames E. B. Ficklen and C. S. Carr. Punch was served by Mesdames T. M. Meade and L. C. Skinner.

Heart score cards were distributed which directed the guests to their respective tables which were numbered with valentines and progressive eucra and nations were played. The guests of honor were presented with bouquets of red carnations. Mrs. L. C. Arthur won the eucra prize and Miss Lillian Carr the nations prize, these being large heart-shaped boxes of candy and each guest received a smaller box as a souvenir.

At the conclusion of the game refreshments were served, these also being in shapes appropriate to the occasion.

Credit Woman Attend State Board Meeting

The Spring Board Meeting of the North Carolina State Association of Credit Women's Breakfast Clubs was held in Reidsville, North Carolina on February 16-17. Reidsville is the home of the state president, Mrs. Mary James, who presided at all sessions.

A lovely welcome party, followed by a dance, was given in the ballroom of the Belvedere Hotel on Saturday evening from nine till twelve o'clock. On Sunday morning at eight o'clock the state officers and associated club presidents were breakfast guests of Mrs. Mary James, state president and Mrs. Ruth Tyson, Reidsville club president. Among those present at this breakfast were Mrs. Dorothy Copeland, second vice-president of the state association and Mrs. Margaret Boykin, Greenville CWBC president. During the business session that followed, Mrs. Copeland, who is state convention chairman, gave an outline of the plans made so far for the coming annual state convention to be held in Raleigh on May 18, 19, 20.

in conjunction with the N. C. Merchants Association Convention at the same time and place.

At 10 o'clock Sunday morning, the past presidents' club held their breakfast meeting, with Mrs. Lettie Bilbro, president, presiding. The club consists of all C.W.B.C. girls who have the office of president of their local clubs. Reidsville's hospitality was reflected in the excellent luncheon at 1 o'clock, with the welcome given by Mayor of Reidsville, Mr. George Hunt, the response by Mrs. Dorothy Copeland of Greenville, and the splendid address by Judge of Superior Court, Allen H. Gwyn. Judge Gwyn also said he looked forward to re-newing his acquaintance with the Greenville Credit women during his Superior Court term in Greenville during the Spring. The Credit women from Greenville attending the State Board meeting were: Mrs. Margaret Boykin, president of the Greenville club, Mrs. Dorothy Copeland, Mrs. Lettie Bilbro, Mrs. Frances Cassick, and Mrs. Ruth Brady.

PTA Institute Panel Discussion Held Monday

The second class in the study course sponsored by the city P.T.A. Council was held on Monday night at the Third Street School.

The class was in the form of a panel discussion, during which time questions previously submitted or tendered from the floor were reviewed by members of the panel.

Such matters as public supported kindergartens, the implications of so-called social pronouncements, the effects and uses of TV and comics on the children, and the value of homework were considered.

Other questions which were brought up were what to do about children who were habitually tardy, children who were poor eaters, and children who were disinterested in their work or who were doing poorly scholastically. There were many different problems concerning the children in and out of the class room which were discussed, and although no definite conclusions were reached, the period of discussion and comment was of much value to parents and teachers in attendance.

According to Dean Leo Jenkins, chairman of the study course and moderator for the panel, this was one of the most enjoyable meetings ever held by a P.T.A. group and many expressed the desire to have many more meetings of a similar nature. It was the generally expressed opinion that such discussions brought to light many problems held in common by many parents and teachers, and exchanging ideas and advice helped in the successful handling of them.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. W. L. Whedbee, president of the Third Street School P.T.A. In addition to Dean Jenkins, others taking part on the program were Charles Whedbee, Louis Gaylord Jr., Keith D. Holmes, Mrs. W. W. Smiley, Dr. S. M. Crisp, Rev. J. A. Neilson, Miss Annie Mae Murray, Peter Eaton, Carl Willis and Sherman Parks.

The third and final study in the Institute will be held tonight at the Training School, at which time Dr. Leslie Hohman, a neuro-psychiatrist connected with the hospital staff at Duke University, will be the speaker.

Two Car Wrecks Are Investigated

Two wrecks were investigated by the Greenville Police Department over the past 24 hours, according to reports at the local office.

A charge of failure to stop for a "Stop" sign was placed against a 17-year-old high school girl after a car driven by her collided with another at the intersection of Billmore and Fourth Streets.

Terry Flanagan, 17, Route 1, Greenville was charged by officers with failure to stop for a stop sign after her car struck a car driven by Clarence F. Happer, 2501 Dickinson Avenue.

No one was injured in the accident but considerable property damage resulted from the early morning accident.

Minor damage resulted yesterday afternoon when car driven by Mrs. Lillian Williams Gradis, 207 South Summit Street and Mrs. Minnie Oakley, House of Route 1, Stokes, collided.

The Police report shows that the House car pulled out from a parking spot into the other car.

No arrest was made.

Prayer Service Notice
Tonight beginning at 7:30, Rev. Leon Russell, pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, will hold the first of two discussions on the book, "The Negro in the Methodist Church," by Dr. Mason Crum.

This book is the church study book for the year, and during the next two Wednesday night prayer services, the pastor will review this book for the church members.

All members are urged to attend this meeting, which will be held in the Youth Chapel.

Hostesses Entertain Club Wives, Husbands At Dinner

On last Thursday evening, four members of the Inter Se Book Club were hostesses to club members and their husbands at the annual husband-wife dinner party.

The hostesses were Mrs. David Evans, Mrs. Ed Williford, Mrs. W. H. Taft and Mrs. Tom Henderson, who entertained at the home of Mrs. Evans on East Fifth Street.

For the occasion the home was lavishly and tastefully decorated with many lovely arrangements of early flowering shrubs and bulb plants. The flower decorations were embellished with many attractive Valentine features in keeping with the holiday on which it was held.

As the guests gathered in den and living room, they were served a cranberry punch with tasty accompaniments.

The dining tables were set with single red candles and heart designed table cards. The main table in the dining room was centered with an unusual arrangement of red gladioli flanked by red candles in silver candelabra.

The guests were given torn halves of heart valentines to match for dinner partners. When they found their places at the auxiliary tables and at the dining room table, a two course dinner was served.

During the evening an original quiz program was held in which answers to questions corresponded to names of the guests. Another amusing game which was enjoyed was "hearts," which was played all during the evening. Each guest was given 10 small hearts upon his arrival, and if anyone responded to any question with a short affirmative reply he had to surrender his hearts to the person asking the question. For each of the contestants amusing little prizes were awarded.

Forty guests, members of the club and their husbands, were present.

Philippines Plan To Import Rice

MANILA — (UP)— The government-controlled national rice and corn corporation announced plans to import 50,000 metric tons of rice during the first six months of 1952. The corporation notified the import control commission that it will apply for a $8,000,000 foreign exchange license to buy rice abroad. The agency did not specify from what country the rice would be bought. In the past, the Philippines has imported large quantities of rice from Thailand. Although rice production in the islands has increased since the end of World War II, the Philippines is still not growing enough of the staple to feed its population.

BROUGHT BEAUTY OUT OF UGLINESS
Lillian Baylis, head of the famous old Vic Theatre, died some years ago in London. She took charge of the famous theatre after it had had a most unsavory reputation as a disreputable music hall. It was said in earlier days to have been "the focal point of vice" in all London. For many years within its walls "drunkard audiences shouted obscenities at performers hired for their adeptness at vulgarity."

What did Lillian Baylis make out of the old Vic? She made it the most famous Shakespearean theatre in all the world. So outstanding were her achievements that she received the honorary degree of Master of Arts from Oxford University, the only woman, save Queen Mary, ever to receive that degree.

George Bernard Shaw said of her: "When she was in difficulty, she went into her office, got down on her knees, and prayed. Everything then came out all right."

Here was one of God's lovely souls who brought beauty out of ugliness and trusted God every day to help her in her mission.

The Voice That Called In The Wilderness

For more than a decade in the federal government there has been a voice calling in the wilderness seeking to attract the attention of Congress and the people to the waste, inefficiency and incompetence which has existed in the federal government.

That was the voice of Comptroller Lindsay C. Warren, former Congressman of the first congressional district of North Carolina, who has been keeping tab on the nation's purse strings since 1940.

Until recently Warren's reports from the General Accounting Office on the waste in the federal government have gone unheeded by members of Congress and the executive branch of the government. In the past couple of years members of Congress have begun to take notice of the things the North Carolinian told them about government spending and the widespread squandering of taxpayers' money.

Warren's reports of government waste began coming through shortly after he took office in 1940. The reports pointed out wastes in federal spending and improper action by government officials in financial matters, but for the most part a deaf ear was turned to the reports. For the members of Congress during the '40's the attitude seemed to be "politics as usual, waste as usual."

Billions were poured down the drain by federal agencies, federal employes swelled their personal bank accounts at the expense of the taxpayers, and millions of dollars of federal money still remains unaccounted for.

In a recent interview Warren pointed out that inefficiency and waste still is going on in the government, although the general public and Congress is becoming more aware of the situation and seemingly is determined to do something about it. In personnel alone, the comptroller said the federal government probably has 25 per cent more employes than it needs to operate efficiently. In some agencies the percentage of surplus employes is even higher.

Warren's office is the real watchdog over the nation's expenditures, and under his direction the office has taken the job seriously. The tragedy has been that the voice of warning which has been sounded by the General Accounting Office of the federal government has been drowned out completely until recently by political overtures by members of Congress and the federal agencies.

History has pointed out that in times of great federal spending, there has been more waste and inefficiency in government. The United States is now in the greatest spending era of all times save a few months at the peak of World War II.

The great waste of federal money at last is becoming apparent. Likewise it is becoming more apparent every day that the nation needs more sound, economy-minded men like Lindsay C. Warren in the federal government.

A New Communist Definition Of Neutrality

The resourceful communists have now attached a new name to Russia. She has now been named a neutral by the Chinese communists who assert that Russia should be one of the nations selected to police the truce in Korea.

Just how far can one nation go in waging war on freedom around the world and still be considered a neutral?

Russia engineered the war in Korea almost two years ago and at the outset considered it a seven-day affair. When the United States and the United Nations stood up for the rights of free men on the battleground as well as in the debating halls, the Russian leaders realized that more troops and more war material would be needed if they were to enslave all Korea as they have several other nations. Communist China was picked as the fall-guy for Russia in Korea, but the war has been directed from Moscow, and the major decisions both in the shooting war and the truce negotiations have been made in Moscow.

It can not be denied that the fight in Korea is just as truly a fight against Russian aggression as it is against the communists of China. Russia is no more a neutral in the conflict than any of the leaders of the Western bloc in the United Nations.

The communists have thought up a great many inappropriate names for Russia . . . all flattering and without any foundation of truth. The name of neutral for Russia is just as inappropriate as any of the rest.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—Despite President Truman's off-again-on-again attitude toward his renomination, the central fact in the politicians' minds is that he is not promoting or training an heir. On the contrary, he is knocking down most of his principal rivals.

He bitterly opposes the only Democrat who seems to have caught the public imagination—Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee—because he first highlighted the issue of official tolerance of corruption. For the same reason he dislikes Senator J. William Fulbright of Arkansas.

Senator Paul H. Douglas of Illinois, highly favored by the A.D.A. liberals of the Roosevelt faction, is on the Truman blacklist. He sided with the Eccles-Taft school against the Truman-Snyder policy of "easy" credit and money. Moreover, he favors adoption of a code of ethics for appointive and elective officials at Washington.

The crime of this trio is that they are reformers of the moralistic, anti-machine and non-Pendergast type.

BIGWIGS—Speakers Rayburn and Senator Clinton P. Anderson have been crossed off because they hail from Texas and New Mexico, respectively. These "plantation politicians," although respected and liked by their Capitol Hill colleagues, might have no appeal to urban bosses and voters.

Senator Brien F. McMahon of Connecticut is ineligible because he is a Catholic. Any thought that times and prejudices have changed, which the Nutmeg statesman once entertained, vanished with the Protestant uproar over appointment of an Ambassador to the Vatican.

This list exhausts the party bigwigs who have been given even remote consideration as Truman stand-ins with the exception of Governor Adlai Stevenson of Illinois and Senator Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma.

SELF-STARTER—Mr. Stevenson was summoned to the White House recently, presumably for a discussion and examination of him as a possible Presidential nominee. But it is understood that he was given the once-over—he and Truman are not party kinsmen—as a second place prospect. Since then, he has said that he will run again for Governor.

Mr. Kerr, a multimillionaire oil man, is a self-starter. He will back Truman for renomination, but if the Missourian withdraws, he is willing, able and eager. He has no party or popular backing.

However, any man with Kerr's moneybags and a coterie of hard-driving friends who know what they want from Washington, must always be reckoned with in American politics.

QUESTION—A hard, political, second look at Governor Stevenson by White House canvassers has raised the question of whether he would make a good vote-getter against a Taft or an Eisenhower. His admitted accomplishments have been of a local, routine and administrative nature.

He is not associated in the public mind with any rabble-rousing "cause." He plods along quietly instead of riding a great white horse. In that respect he resembles Truman until the latter became chairman of the World War II watchdog committee.

A small and slight figure, with a dignified manner that is part professional and part businesslike, Truman's agents doubt whether he would be a crowd-pleasing campaigner. Ironically, they concede his ability, but question his theatrical gifts.

EMBARRASSING—A Stevenson nomination would keep alive the issue of corruption and police-politicians teups in a manner embarrassing to the Democrats. Not that the Governor has been touched by any breath of scandal. He probably exceeded his authority in trying to break up the recent "horse-meat-hamburger" graft in Chicago.

Indeed, he sponsored anti-gambling measures far more drastic than those adopted by Congress. He was defeated by the Democratic bloc of legislators from Chicago, where the machine is headed by "Jake" Arvey, a Truman-for-1952 man. Other reform proposals were blocked by the same group.

In defending his record on this question, Governor Stevenson and Democratic campaign speakers, including Truman and Attorney General McGrath, could hardly afford to reveal the real reason for their nominee's legislative defeats.

On social and economic matters, Stevenson has been a "fair deal" sympathizer. Thus, he might be no more popular in the South than Truman himself.

HANDICAPS—Mr. Kerr is ruled out by White House planners for the same reason that Rayburn-Anderson chances are discounted. But he has other handicaps, not the least being that northern voters of the eat-drink-and-be-merry breed might not hanker for a non-drinking, non-smoking, bible-teaching figure, who is so cynical in his politico-business deals. Commission of regulatory powers over certain natural gas operations, in which he has a vast financial interest. Mr. Truman vetoed the Kerr bill, although he has let the FPC override his veto by administrative rulings. He has named pro-Kerr men to FPC.

Rightly or wrongly, Truman supporters charged that the Kerr program, although enriching him, would melt city consumers by hundreds of millions. Twenty Mayors from the Northeast demanded a White House veto. A Senate city bloc led by McMahon lined up solidly against Kerr.

This review, which represents Truman's current conclusions on all the substitute entries, leads his partisan and patronage admirers to ask: "Who but Harry in 1952?"

But It Was Built To Save The House

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Sunday night when I was listening to the radio I paid particular attention to the Philip Morris commercials. Even though I don't smoke, I was interested because I had read the report of the Federal Trade Commission in regard to PM's advertising. Also, I had wondered about PM's increase in sales since the famous nose test came about, plus in the influence of Horace Heidt's program.

Here are the facts: PM's sales have shot from $2.6 million to $305 million in 18 years. Mainly, they have done this because they use diethylene glycol instead of glycerin as a moistening agent. Therefore, PM was convinced thousands of smokers, through its famous nose test, that their cigarettes are less irritating.

But the FTC has told PM that they can't make such claims any more. They have also told Lucky Strike that they can't claim they are preferred by men who know tobacco best, Old Golds that they can't claim to have less nicotine, and Camels that they aid digestion or relieve fatigue.

Naturally, Philip Morris didn't like the verdict of the FTC. They presented evidence from doctors, researchers and others who reported on "scientific" tests as far back as 1934. For every expert brought in by PM, competitors and U.S. glycerin manufacturers brought in counter-experts.

Rabbits were used in tests to show the effect of diethylene glycol. Philip Morris bubbled smoke of different brands of cigarettes through water, and then dripped the solution on to a rabbit's eyelids. It claimed Philip Morris smoke produced less irritation. Other brand representatives made more direct tests. They developed smoking machines and eye cups to blow smoke into the rabbit's eyelid and claimed that the test showed no difference in brands.

PM cut holes in rabbits' tracheas to pump smoke into their lungs. Five of the rabbits died, but PM claimed they were smoking rival brands. Competitors pumped smoke through the noses of dogs to see if nasal passages were irritated to cause obstruction. None of these tests impressed the FTC. It stuck to its finding that tobacco itself is the major irritant in cigarettes, and that all cigarettes are about equally irritating. Therefore, it told Philip Morris that they could no longer claim to be less irritating, and that outstanding nose and throat specialists recommend them for their patients who smoke.

As I listened to the radio Sunday night, I noticed that PM is claiming to be the only cigarette not having a source of irritation found in all other brands. Maybe next week the FTC will rule that out, too.

And I thank you.

ENTHUSIASM—Most striking contrast between the Democratic and Republican camps in Raleigh and the Republican Lib-con dinner in Winston-Salem was the degree of enthusiasm manifested by the guests. The Democrats were apathetic, almost apologetic, in reaction to the speeches by national party leaders; the Republicans were exuberant, almost boisterous, in their expression of approval. The acclamation was not personal, because Harold Stassen was not the favorite of a majority of the diners. It was partisan, a renewal of vows to support the Republican party, without reservation or apology.

GLEAPER—Comparison may be slightly unfair, because the plates at the Democratic affair cost only $1.50 apiece, those at the Republican dinner went for six bucks. (The Republicans had previously staged a fun-raising dinner with $100 plates.) Then, too, the Young Republican Clubs held their convention in connection with, and really sponsored, the Winston-Salem occasion. Young people are presumed to have more enthusiasm than older, and more dignity is called for with a $50 cover charge than at a $6 party.

CONFIDENT—A noticeable distinction was that the Republican diners were confident of victory in the nation. Some of the younger folks actually believe their party will make very substantial gains in the state. The old foxes smiled tolerantly and a bit sadly—and changed the subject back to Washington. The Democrats have no state worries beyond May 31, and not many of them smiled at all when November was mentioned. For the first time since 1928 the Democrats are on the defensive. In gridiron parlance the claim has been coached only for offensive play, with strategy developed around only one ball carrier. Republicans claim, and Democrats fear, the star player may not recover from injuries received in practice spirit prevailing among the Republicans.

CROSSED LINES—That many Democrats feel this confidence is justified is evidenced by their keen interest in the Republican presidential nominee. That many Republicans recognize futility of hope on state level is likewise proven by greater interest in the Democratic nominee for governor than in their own party's state ticket. There was indication that some Republicans may cross party lines and vote the Democratic state ticket this year, while some Democrats will—probably for the first time—vote the national Republican ticket. Evidence supporting that idea was found in conversations around the Sir Walter Hotel in Raleigh when the Democrats dined and around the Robert E. Lee in Winston-Salem when the Republicans got together. At both places there was apparent recognition of the necessity for maintaining a two-party system, rather than numerous minority splinter parties.

PERSONALITIES—One could sense the feeling among Republicans that their party is one of the Democratic party is largely one of personalities. Fact is, the Democratic party wasn't mentioned very often, in public speeches or private conversation. On national plans it was Truman and on state level it was Scott. It was also obvious that Governor Scott is liked by the Republicans, and that in their thinking he will be the most important issue in the upcoming Democratic primary. That is especially true of predominantly Republican rural counties like Avery, Davie, Mitchell, Sampson, Yadkin and Wilkes. In border-line counties like Alexander, Catawba, McDowell and Randolph the Scott influence is expected to be less potent, but still important. This attitude on part of the Republicans admittedly stems from the secondary road bond issue program, which Scott opposed as a candidate, adopted as the party nominee for governor and efface after his election. Indisputable fact is, that regardless of who originated the idea or who put it into effect, and regardless of future consequences in fields of taxation for-maintenance, the rural people of North Carolina are proud of their roads and they give Governor Scott major credit for obtaining them.

CONFUSING—The Republicans apparently are as confused as the Democrats with respect to national issues, but they are more confused about state politics, and impressions gained by an observer who tries to be impartial and objectives are just as confusing from both groups. Governor Scott admittedly is the outstanding champion among Southern Democratic leaders.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

SAVING 20,000 LIVES

(New Bern Sun-Journal)
Pageant Magazine insists that we in America can save 20,000 lives a year, and asks why it is not done. The answer isn't as simple as the question, but the publication points out that at least 57 per cent of the men, women and children we are going to kill in traffic accidents during 1952 will be killed needlessly and that each of those 20,000 needless deaths could be prevented with the traffic safety tools we now have at hand.

Attempting the answer, the magazine says that it is simply our resistance against giving up a small measure of our freedom behind the wheel. We're extremely jealous of our "right" to drive cars with poor brakes; to drive even though we've never properly learned how; to drive though we've clearly shown by repeated accidents that we're a menace on the road; to drive though drunk; to drive at any speed we think "prudent and safe."

Discussing compulsory inspection of motor vehicles, a measure which North Carolina tried and dropped and which the magazine says is a proven life-saver, the publication says that in the twelve states that have had periodic checkup laws since 1939, deaths in auto accidents are 14.7 per cent below the national average. Which means, on a national scale, that about 3,000 lives could be saved annually if all state had mandatory car inspection. But the magazine concedes that compulsory inspection is a great nuisance. It makes busy people waste their time waiting to get their cars inspected. And it adds employes to the state's already swollen payroll.

In 1950 there were 13,300 people killed because of too much speed. But the tickets people try to fix most of us want strict law enforcement—for the other guy. Most of the hundreds of cities that have attempted campaigns against jay-walking have abandoned them in the face of public outrage at being fined for crossing the street between intersections. But jaywalking accounts for around 4,000 lives annually.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

Those Confederate flags and those Union caps may not be a gag after all. They may symbolize a new War Between the States. Not a shooting war, of course, but an economic war.

The South has been losing a considerable amount of industry from the North. This is natural, since it is elemental that every state should diversify its economy as much as possible. Alabama, Kentucky, Mississippi and Tennessee all have state plans to assist incoming industries. In these states and other sections of the South, business civic groups have also been wooing northern industries. In many cases, tax concessions and easily paid-for plants are the inducement; in more, it is less expensive labor, often unorganized.

Now Massachusetts and Rhode Island are working on plans to attract new industry there. The governors of each state asked the legislatures to create state agencies empowered to issue bonds for financing new plants for lease to private industry. Being state-owned, these plants would escape city taxes, and the plan calls for compensatory payments to the cities by the state.

Among the largest losses of the North, especially of New England, have been in textile mills. This loss has been sharpened by the current slump in textiles. Those mills remaining in the North have found it increasingly difficult to compete with southern mills, with low wage scales, when demand is slack. There is considerable unemployment in most northern textile centers.

Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson recently set up machinery to divert government contracts to areas with "labor surpluses." With the permission of Controller General Lindsey Warren, Mr. Wilson announced plans to place orders in these areas even if the prices were up to 10 per cent higher.

Southern Congressmen immediately protested. This, as far as textiles are concerned, they said, would take potential government contracts out of the South and hand them to the North—without a shot. They were reassured, however, that the National Production Authority would guard against such direct intervention in the economic battle.

The recent action of organized northern hosiery workers in accepting wage cuts up to 25 per cent so their mills could meet as an example of union reasonableness and understanding of realities. Maybe. It is also warning to all northern unions that unless they succeed in organizing their southern competitors they may be next to lose the advantages they have gained.

NYLON ALLOCATION

WONT SHORTEEN HOSE
Du Pont has made slight cuts in nylon yarn for civilian purposes for March and April and may continue them into May. This will enable the government to increase its stockpile for military purposes.

This is not likely to have effect on supplies of nylon hosiery and garments. Manufacturers are already having trouble selling what they've got.

TURKEY TELLS HOW TO TRADE WITH HER

Turkey, in seeking more trade with the United States, has published a booklet in English called "Doing Business with Turkey" and answering almost every question pertaining to Turkish markets. Copies are being sent to chambers of commerce, foreign trade clubs and foreign trade departments of banks, and also may be obtained from the Turkish Information Office, 444 E. 52nd St., New York City.

WALNUT CROPS

SLIGHTLY HIGHER
The 1951 world walnut crop is slightly above average and considerably above the 1951 crop, the Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations says. The United States crop is put at 75,800 short tons, unshelled, the second largest since 1945. The world crop is estimated at 127,000 tons.

F. T. C. LEAVES SOME ROMANCE IN FURS

The Federal Trade Commission, in carrying out the Fur Products Labeling Act, has published a list of the true English names of fur-bearing animals and the fur industry will eventually have to use these names on fur names now used. There are still a lot of exotic names for furs, however, such as bassaris, desman, guanaco, jaguarondi, kinkajou and viscacha. The list also discloses that Kolinsky really is the name of a fur bearing animal (mustela siberica) and not the name of a Fifth Avenue furrier.

CAPE MAY, N. J. —(AP)—

Why work for a living if you can make a living by playing? The pleasure of finding they could turn a hobby into a business has been a real adventure in contentment for Ken and Marge Ewer.

They are the happy proprietors of the Cape May Country Store, a unique paradise for tinkers and people who like to buy things like old coffee grinders, cuspidors and beaver hats. It is also a thriving arts and handicrafts center.

Four years ago Ewer was a successful, well-paid executive of a Midwest metal firm. But he had insomnia, wasn't really having any fun, and fretted over whether he was saving enough money to pay for the ulcers he felt he was getting.

One night he and his wife talked it over and decided their way of life wasn't worth the worry.

"I thought before I started paying out everything to the doctors we might as well do a little real living," Ken said.

So he quit his job and came to this resort town to rest.

"After three days of sitting in a rocking chair on the front porch I decided that wasn't living either," Ken recalled.

What could they do? He and his wife shared a lifelong interest in antiques and handicraft. They decided to make their hobby their career, to create a place where people who like to use their hands could work in peace and maybe turn a small profit, too.

"I had always been a tinkerer," said Ken. "So I thought I'd set up a tinkers' headquarters where we could revive some of the old crafts that have been dying out."

They bought an old stable and slapped a coat of red paint on it. They began stocking the stable with thousands of antiques from the American past, from old shoe buttons to old horse collars (they make wonderful modern picture frames). For $300 they turned the loft into a warm, homey apartment in which they still live.

The Ewers formerly had made hand-dipped scented candles as presents for their friends. They decided that was the best item to launch their new arts center.

Today they ship their homemade candles to every state, several foreign countries. Another popular item has been a furniture polish and scratch remover set.

"The formula was used by Cape Cod cabinet makers 200 years ago," said Ken. "I got it from my father."

Neighbors interested in handicraft began cropping in on the couple asking if they couldn't be of any help. Now the Ewers have a staff of 15 "seasonal craftsmen" who each year turn out thousands of items like hand-carved snipe decoys, butter paddles, driftwood picture frames and decorative wooden flour scoops.

"Among these craftsmen have been a truckdriver, an insurance man, three housewives, and an 83-year-old retired railroad engineer," Ken said. "Right now a retired banker is helping me make picture frames. He's good, too."

— we'll make it for you ourselves.

The Ewers now work about 14 hours a day at their play, and love it, because there is always something new to do—and they are working for themselves.

"I'm working now on developing pastel-colored scented ladies' shoe polish," Ken said. "Women like things to smell nice, and there is no real reason why shoe polish has to smell the way it does."

Here is his own cheerful summary of his new life:

"From $10,000 a year to $10 a week—and happiness."

But the way business is booming the Ewers seem to be playing their way right back up into the $10,000 bracket they gave up four years ago.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — Heinz Ludwig Krekeler, chief of the west German trade mission to the United States, wears natty business suits, black horn-rimmed glasses, and a pearl stickpin in his tie and looks more American than German.

His wife, whom I interviewed in their apartment here, has the dainty rose-petal complexion and blondness of an English woman, and the enthusiasm of an American woman for parties and people.

With her husband and teenage son Juergen, called "Georgie" by his classmates at the Test Town School in Philadelphia, she shares great admiration for this country. She says she hasn't been homesick a day during the year they've been here.

Her husband, who served as consul general in New York before coming to the capital in December, is both the first German consular officer and the first head of a German diplomatic mission to the U. S. since the severance of American relations with Hitler's Third Reich in December 1941.

For a number of years before the Allied occupation of Germany Mr. Krekeler was a chemist and was associated with I. G. Farben and other chemical companies. The Krekellers met while both were students in Bielefeld and were married in April 1931. The 600-year-old family home, "Lindemannshof," a 180-acre farm in Westphalia, northwestern Germany, was inherited by Mr. Krekeler after World War II. On it are raised rye and wheat, cattle, sugar beets and other vegetables. The Krekellers used to fox-hunt and ride on the estate, swim and have a great time. Still, they are not homesick.

"We've had some great times here too," Mrs. Krekeler told me. "Georgie loves his school and the sports and when he's home he keeps away from the television." She said Mrs. Krekeler and her husband spent eight weeks at Minnewaska, N. Y., where they got in some riding and swimming. "I like to dive," she said.

"I'll never forget our first glimpse of the New York skyline and how overwhelmed we were by Niagara Falls," Mrs. Krekeler said.

A talented violinist and pianist, she has already been acclaimed as an accomplished hostess.

Good Duck Hunting To Be Had Next Year, Says Duck Expert

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor
NEW YORK — There will be good duck hunting next fall, if you can take the word of Jimmy Robinson. And you usually can.

Robinson is the Sports Afield expert who has spent a good part of his life hunting. Recently he published his own book, a highly interesting tome called "40 Years of Hunting."

Right now he's on his way to Paris to start a two-month hunting and fishing trip. He'll hit Monte Carlo and take part in a live-pigeon shoot. He'll hunt ducks, wild boar and grouse in France and fish in Ireland.

Accompanying the noted outdoorsman will be George Hart, Minneapolis trucker, and Roger Fawcett, Greenwich, Conn., publisher.

"I hope the ducks are as plentiful as they figure to be in the U. S. next fall," says Robinson. "I found more ducks this year than ever. Chased them all the way from northern Canada last September when the goose shooting season opened at the Pas, 500 miles north of Winnipeg, to Mexico. Visited spots in the Dakotas, Minnesota, Illinois, Arkansas and Texas."

"Due to almost ideal conditions last spring in the Canadian nesting grounds, the brood count was the highest in the history of Ducks Unlimited. This fact alone indicated more ducks than usual. But due to the unseasonable weather (an early freeze) the kill last season was light in comparison to other seasons."

"By this I mean that the percentage of ducks killed by hunters was smaller due to the greater number of ducks. Ducks seemed to be everywhere — sloughs, marshes."

"The bluebills migrated down the Great Lakes rather than through the Mississippi flyway, and the same held true for canvasbacks."

However, Jimmy says the big problem today is to provide safe wintering grounds for the ducks so that a bigger breeding stock returns to the Canadian duck factory this spring. It is Robinson's opinion that the ducks can stand the legal shooting pressure, but if they are hit by too much illegal shooting and poor wintering conditions, the sportsman hunter will suffer.

MacArthur Drive Gets Attention

WASHINGTON (UP) — Some highly-placed Republicans are beginning to pay serious attention to the persistent efforts to draft Gen. Douglas MacArthur for the party's presidential nomination.

Ardent MacArthur supporters in Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Oregon, New Hampshire, Minnesota and other states are continuing their fight to win convention delegates for the general, despite his repeated declarations that he does not want his name entered in any primary.

Sen. George D. Aiken (R-Vt.) believes the MacArthur boom may reach major proportions if Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower should be counted out of the race before the July convention. His argument is that some Republicans now are supporting Sen. Robert A. Taft solely because they don't want Eisenhower, and they might switch their allegiance to MacArthur if given a chance.

Sen. Owen Brewster (R-Me.), a strong Taft booster, put a different twist on Aiken's speculation.

He told a reporter today the growing interest in MacArthur indicates that Eisenhower and other Taft challengers already are "fading." Other GOP challengers are Harold E. Stassen and Gov. Earl Warren of California.

Brewster said he personally is still "100 per cent for Taft."

Until recently, nearly all Republican politicians have been counting MacArthur in Taft's corner.

Reports have been circulating here that MacArthur has been saying "vote for Taft" to callers who want to talk politics with him.

But one senator, who asked not to be identified, said today he was told by a MacArthur partisan this week that the general is beginning to have doubts about Taft's ability to be elected, if nominated.

Friends of Taft discounted such reports.

MacArthur asked yesterday that his name be removed from the Pennsylvania and Minnesota primaries. He had previously withdrawn his name in New Hampshire.

MacArthur's supporters entered him yesterday in the presidential primary in Oregon, where the law does not require the consent of the candidate. Eisenhower also is expected to be entered in Oregon.

Other political developments:
1. Republican National Chairman Guy George Gabrielson hailed the election of a Republican congressman from a normally Democratic New York City district in a special election yesterday as "the first—but not the last" GOP victory of 1952.

2. McCall magazine reported that a poll of young people, eligible to vote for the first time this year, showed Eisenhower their leading choice for president, with President Truman second and Taft third. The magazine said most of the young people polled came from Democratic homes.

3. Gov. Warren of California announced yesterday that he will enter the Wisconsin primary contest for GOP convention delegates. Taft and Harold E. Stassen have also announced they will enter the Wisconsin primary, and MacArthur backers have promised a delegate slate for him.

4. Stassen, former governor of Minnesota, was entered yesterday in the Nebraska GOP presidential primary, which he won in 1948. Sen. Robert Kerr (Okla.) was entered in the state's Democratic primary.

5. John Chapple of Ashland, Wis., national president of the Fighters for MacArthur, telegraphed MacArthur yesterday that the general's supporters will continue their campaign to draft him for the presidency.

Great Dismal Swamp Is Big Refuge For Wildlife

WASHINGTON, — (UP) — An area of unbroken wilderness stands today in the middle of the crowded eastern seaboard much the same as when this country was first founded.

The Great Dismal Swamp stretches over half a million acres of watery jungle in Virginia and North Carolina. Botanists and foresters describe its heart, half the size of Delaware, as the finest outdoor laboratory of its kind on the continent.

A "relict area" which holds an undisturbed community of plants and animals, the Great Dismal is populated by raccoons, otters, snakes, bears, wild ducks, and deer. It has a permanent human population of one family.

Above Swamp Level
Deep in the heart of the swamp is Lake Drummond, three miles long and nearly as wide, the National Geographic Society says. Its surface is as much as 10 feet above the general level of the swamp.

Canals and ditches cut by lumber companies after the gums, cypress, maple, and cedar trees of the swamp still offer the only access to the heart of the swamp.

Cutting across part of the swamp is the Dismal Swamp Canal, a 22-mile-long link in the inter-coastal waterway. It connects Hampton Roads, Va., with the Pasquotank River and Albemarle Sound in North Carolina. The house of a government-employed lock tender on the canal is the only permanent human habitation in the swamp.

The Dismal has shrunk only about one-third in the last 300 years and most of this has been due to fire which burns the peat of the forest floor in dry years.

Always A Refuge
During the war swamp-fire smoke was so intense it gave cover to U-boats and slowed down coastal shipping.

Escaped slaves, fugitives, and moonshiners have found the swamp an ideal hiding place and given it a reputation for mystery and danger.

The water in the Great Dismal, stained the color of dark cider, was barreled and carried around the world in the days of sailing ships because it did not spoil as quickly as ordinary water.

Conservationists have urged the federal government to turn the Great Dismal into a national forest.

Memorial Service Is Held By Legion Post

Memorial services were held by Pitt County Post 39 of The American Legion last night in honor of two members who died during the past year — Burney Warren and James R. Garris.

Following the singing of the national anthem and a prayer by the entire post, Commander Lester Turnage said, "We are here tonight on behalf of a grateful Pitt County to pay last respect to two of our members who have been called by the commander of all divisions."

"We pledge here and now to renew an even greater love for God and country in view of the sacrifices of our deceased comrades who served so long and so well for us," he continued.

Commander Turnage called upon the entire group to stand and observe 30 seconds of silent prayer for the two recently deceased members and for all deceased World War I and World War II veterans, and then asked Comrade W. C. Eagles to deliver the eulogy of deceased member Burney Warren.

"Burney Warren was born July 11, 1888," Eagles said, "and served in the U. S. Navy during World War I. He died June 4, 1951, at the age of 63. Comrade Warren was a graduate of the University of North Carolina School of Pharmacy, and a deacon in Emmanuel Baptist Church. Eagles termed him, 'a friend, a legionnaire, and a man who never lost the common touch.'"

The commander then called upon Comrade Bill Ennis to deliver the eulogy of James R. Garris, a veteran of World War II who entered the U. S. Army in 1942. Ennis said, "Comrade Garris was an American who loved America, an American whose very life was an example of the democratic tradition of free government." Ennis asked all members of the post to model their actions and attitudes after those of James R. Garris.

Two young Greenville girls, Mollie Hester and Jackie Sears, sang "My Buddy", and the post gave the Pledge of Allegiance. Memorial services closed with a prayer.

In the regular business session, the post voted to go ahead with plans to hold an oratorical contest at Greenville High School and award $25.00 in prizes to the winners. The date of the event was not set last night.

Post members received 500 books of American Legion Rehabilitation Stamps to be sold at $1.00 per book. The proceeds from the sale will be used to further the lot of veterans incapacitated by wounds or illness. All the money collected is to be used within the state.

The monthly $5.00 attendance prize was forfeited as winning member W. S. Stafford was not present. The prize will be doubled at the next meeting.

Davidson College Gifts Run High

DAVIDSON, N. C. — (AP) — Davidson College received more than $700,000 in special gifts last year.

Dr. John R. Cunningham, Davidson president, made this disclosure in his semiannual report today to the trustees.

The greater portion of the money will be placed in the endowment fund, he said.

Dr. Cunningham reported also that the college's new $700,000 church is nearing completion. It is hoped to dedicate it at June commencement exercises.

He added that progress is proceeding satisfactorily on the new student union building, with completion expected in early fall.

The report disclosed that more than $2,500,000 of the Davidson development program, which was completed in 1949 with the pledging of more than $2,800,000, has been paid.

"If we are not too much disturbed by military calls for upper class students, we should have no particular difficulty in enrolling approximately the same number 828 of students as this year," Dr. Cunningham said in discussing next year's outlook. "Applications for freshman enrollment are considerably ahead of this time last year."

Storekeeper Is Beaten To Death
BURLINGTON, N. C. (AP) — A middle-aged storekeeper was beaten to death at his grocery store on the outskirts of Burlington early today.
The body of Durwood Leon Owens, about 50, was found only a few feet from his store and relatives said that he apparently had been robbed of between $1,000 and $2,000.
Owens' body, with his forehead beaten in with a heavy instrument, was discovered about 5:30 a.m. by his two brothers, Smith and Paul Owens. They went to the store after their brother's wife awakened them and reported he had not returned home during the night.
County and city officers, directed by Sheriff C. H. Moore, roped the store area off and called in bloodhounds to track down the storekeeper's slayer. Moore said he has asked for the aid of the State Bureau of Investigation.
Police believed that Owens was killed with one single blow from a two-foot iron rod that was found near the body. They added that Owens' assailant apparently had hidden in the darkness outside the store and had waylaid him as he approached his car after closing the store about midnight.
Owens' 32-caliber revolver was found under his right hand. It had not been fired. Relatives said he had been carrying the gun for several years. His store was broken into several years ago and relatives said that several attempts to rob him had been made by unknown persons about two years ago.

World Is Safe; Old Men Don't Start Conflicts, Says Italian

By FRANK BRUTTO
AP Newsfeatures
ROME—Signor Neri, who is of almost no importance here, but there are millions like him in Italy and Europe, thinks there will be no war soon.

"You know why?" he asked. "Because old men do not go to war—not if they can help it." Signor Neri, old himself, but still the main support of a family of five children, makes about $85 a month acting as liaison man between Italian plumbers and a couple of American families. He paused in his task of adjusting a bathroom floater and said:

"Stop and think—nearly everybody who ever started a war was a handsome young guy; somebody who thought he could win in a hurry and cash in on the glory.

"Today's Leaders Are Wise
"Look at the world's leaders today. Sure, they could start something, but they know they probably wouldn't be there at the finish.

"Besides, nearly all of them have been through it—they got a good idea what it's like."

"Look at Baffone—Italian affectionate or derivative for Stalin, meaning 'Mustache'—He's 72, anyway, and not too well, from what I read in the papers.

"Look at Churchill—even older, 77. All of them—Truman, Eisenhower, Adenauer, De Gasperi—all of them over 60 and most of them around 70."

"The ones who went to war in the past were pretty young," said Signor Neri. "Look them up and you'll see."

History Proves the Point
A check showed they were Alexander the Great was only 22 when he crossed the Hellespont with 30,000 men to begin one of the greatest continuous marches in history. He was only 33 when he died of a fever in 328 B.C.

Julius Caesar lived to be 58 (comparatively ripe old age in those days) before dagger cut him down at the foot of Pompey's statue. He was only 39 when he became Military Tribune of Rome.

Napoleon, with the life expectancy index climbing up, lived to be 62, sitting out his later years on the Island of Saint Helena. But he was only 35 and full of victories when, on Dec. 2, 1804, he took the crown from the hands of Pope Pius VII and, setting it on his own head, declared himself to be Emperor of the French.

Kaiser at 55 Was Old
William Hohenzollern, the Kaiser of Germany, was comparatively old—55—when he and his generals started World War I.

Adolf Hitler was 50 when he blitzed into Poland in 1939 to begin what was to become World War II.

Mussolini was pretty old as war-starters go by the time he was hung up by the heels at a Milan service station. He was then 62. But he was only 62 when the thrust for glory persuaded him to send Italian troops and bombers into Ethiopia.

Refugees Study American Ways For Absorption

PITTSBURGH —(AP)—Right now the "Blue and White Club" has 72 members, all displaced persons from Europe. Next month there may be more or less depending on how fast the members are absorbed into the American way of life.

Thorough Job In Looting Of Home

WHEELING, W. Va. —(UP)—A thorough-going thief did a job of looting the C. E. Ewing home.

The Ewings returned from a visit to relatives to find $600 worth of their possessions stolen, including:

A large dictionary, three annuals, a set of encyclopedias, a sweeper with attachments, two traveling bags, a ring, a cigarette lighter, two pairs of gloves, a revolver, a jacket, jewelry, a dress and pocketbook, a toaster, a full tobacco pouch, a fountain pen, an electric razor, a wristwatch, a flashlight, a billfold and $12 in cash.

Group To Trace Unicorn Legend

PHILADELPHIA —(UP)—The Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia has sponsored an expedition to chase down a legend.

Two men were sent to Oman by the academy to bring back an oryx, an antelope whose horns in profile appear as one. The oryx, which has given rise to the legend of the unicorn, inhabits the desert wastes of Oman, an independent state in southeastern Arabia.

The word "clock" really signifies bell.

"You see," said Signor Neri, "old ones don't start wars—not if they can help it."

He smiled with pleasure at the thought.

Another Claims Capture—Credit Of Willie Sutton

NEW YORK (UP)—A Brooklyn pants salesman—not two policemen—was reported today to have identified Slick Willie Sutton, the nation's No. 1 bank robber, and caused his arrest.

The claimant was Arnold Schuster, 24. His attorney, Harold M. Weiss, said he would take the matter up with Police Commissioner George P. Monaghan today.

Schuster would be in line for some—if not all—of the $70,000 in rewards offered for information leading to Sutton's arrest. Policemen acting in the line of duty, are barred from sharing in such rewards.

Patrolmen Joseph J. McClellan and Donald P. Shea were credited with capturing Sutton on Monday.

They said they recognized the notorious bank robber as he tried to fix his car on a Brooklyn street.

McClellan was not available for comment, but Shea was said to have denied Schuster's claim that he pointed out the much wanted Willie to the policemen.

The two patrolmen were promoted to first grade detectives by Monaghan with salary boosts of $1,000 yearly for their parts in the arrest.

Weiss refused to discuss details surrounding his client's alleged part in the capture. However, it was said that Schuster first spotted Sutton on a subway, followed him to his automobile and then notified police.

"I cannot make any comment until I have taken the matter up with the commissioner," Weiss said.

Chief Inspector Conrad Rothen-gast said Schuster's story came as a complete surprise.

"I know nothing about it," he said. "I am taking it up, however, with Police Commissioner Monaghan first thing this morning."

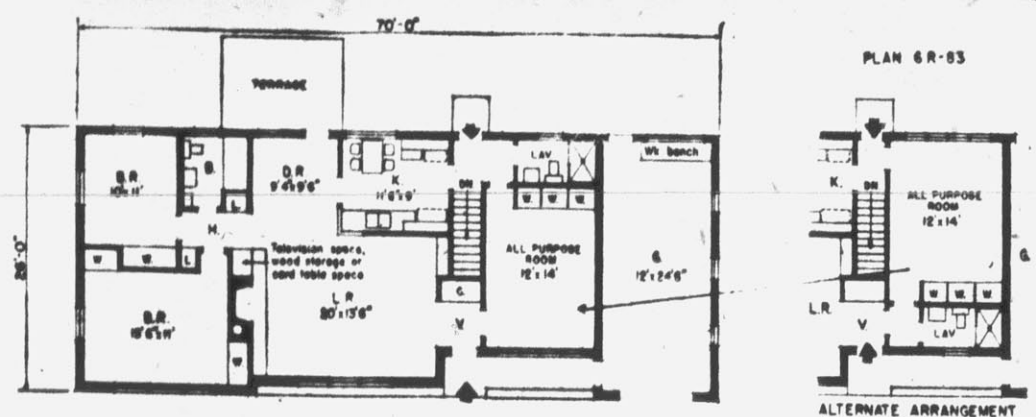

Sutton remained under heavy guard—the clock guard in Long Island City Prison. The jail itself was circled continually by a police radio patrol car.

Besides being the nation's most notorious bank robber, Sutton has broken out of state penitentiaries in New York and Pennsylvania and is known as a master escape artist.

He pleaded innocent yesterday to charges he robbed a Queens bank of $64,000 two years ago. Judge William B. Groat Jr. reserved decision on the district attorney's reputation for disappearing.

FBI agents were interested in questioning Sutton about the $1,500,000 Brink's robbery in Boston, but did not visit him in his cell yesterday.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

TELEVISION FOR ALL the family is planned in this house. A glass corner at the kitchen sink gives the housewife full view of the TV set next to the fireplace, while living room and dining room have a view of the screen.

This is Plan 6R-83 by Elmer Gylleck, architect, 120 South Grove Avenue, Elgin, Ill. The house covers 1,380 square feet. Garage adds 338 square feet—figures useful for local estimates. It can be built with or without basement.

An all-purpose room with extra bath can serve as guest room, maid's room, playroom, or study. Where a powder room adjacent to front entrance is more important than a lavatory near the kitchen the alternate plan is used. The architect suggests an exterior of Roman brick with asphalt shingle roof.—AP Newsfeatures.

French Air Force Begins Shaping Up As Real Arm

By GEORGE SIBERA
United Press Staff Correspondent
PARIS —(UP)—After years of occupation and post-war fumbling, France is rapidly catching up with air progress.

Responsible quarters believe the small but modern French air force could deliver a hard blow to any attacker.

French air officials cannot hope to bring their force to World War I rank, when France had undisputed supremacy in the air and sold thousands of its machines to the allies.

They do hope to avoid the mistakes of the Maginot-minded officials of the 30s which left France woefully weak in the air with nothing to match German Junkers and Focke-Wulfs.

French air force officials consider it an immense asset that French cabinets, no matter how many, are "air minded."

Money Appropriated
The biggest difficulty for a rapid air-power buildup is lack of funds. In the 1952 budget for France's armed forces the ministry has earmarked about 300,000,000 francs (about $1,000,000,000 for aviation).

That is about one-third of what the United States will spend next year on its air buildup and about one-half of the British military aviation budget.

After World War II, France had only a few dozen "flying coffins." Most of the good planes supplied by the American or British air forces went to Indo-China to help quell the Communist revolt there.

What was left in metropolitan France, a French air official said, were "flying junk heaps, with even some controls missing," to train new French cadres.

Details Kept Secret
Most details about the French air force are secret. Authoritative sources, however, disclosed the following facts:

Three years ago, France possessed not a single jet fighter. Today all French fighter squadrons are equipped with jets. Some come from the U. S. mutual assistance program but the majority are built in France under French or British licences.

Three years ago, the air space over France was empty. There were no radio stations to sound alert, which with the present rapidity and suddenness of an air attack is the prerequisite of any decent air defense.

UNC Chancellor To Be Speaker For Bible Class

Chancellor Robert House of the University of North Carolina will be the guest speaker at a supper held by the Carson Memorial Bible Class at the Methodist Church tomorrow night.

CHANCELLOR R. B. HOUSE
The supper at which Chancellor House will speak is the culmination of a contest between two teams in the class, the Missionaries and the Disciples, for raising the class attendance.

Dr. Kenneth Cuthbert of East Carolina College will present a musical program at the supper.

Several weeks ago the class, which had an average attendance of 35, divided into two teams to try to raise the membership. Five points were given to the teams for every new member brought in, one point for every visitor, and one point for a member of another church Sunday School class.

The Disciples won the contest with 921 points but the Missionaries were close with 918 points. The membership increased to 168 members and average attendance is now 80.

The Disciples were headed by Leo Jenkins and James Brewer was his assistant. Ed Griffith served as official scorer. Hoover Taft headed the Missionaries and he was assisted by Alvin Bunning. Official scorer was Ed Ratcliffe.

Class officers are: J. L. McDonald, president; George Smith, vice-president; Leslie Garner, secretary; and Frank Steinbeck, treasurer.

Shoes Have Gold Hoard Within

SINGAPORE —(AP)— Customs officers, searching a newly arrived small-Chinese ship, noticed a pair of shoes in a passageway.

Inside the shoes, they found 12 ounces of gold-worth about $500, so the customs men made everyone aboard the ship try the shoes on. They fitted no one particularly well. Stunned, the officers made no arrests but took the gold away.

Wildlife Diet For Old Trapper In Hungry Times

BISSETT, Man. —(AP)— People who are finicky about their diet should try the fare of "English John", a trapper on the fringe of this mining settlement, 100 miles northwest of Winnipeg.

English John has lived with the Indians of Manitoba as one of them since he was a small boy. He speaks the language better than most natives.

In his time — John figures he's "some" here around 63 — he has eaten most of the foods of his adopted brothers including caribou, fish, beaver, squirrel, lynx and hawks. But he has often gone hungry while on the trap-line trail.

"Sometimes we would go three and four days without food," he says. "We had to live on the wild stuff. If there was none we went hungry. But I backed up on night owls and skunks. That was too much for me."

170,000 SAW BOAT SHOW

NEW YORK —(AP)— The National Boat Show held here in Grand Central Palace drew 170,000 admissions, or one third more than saw the show in 1931. General Manager Joseph Choate has announced.

Family Doctor Idea Is Favored

PHILADELPHIA —(UP)— Medical students at the university of Pennsylvania have decided to do something about a recent gripe of medical authorities over emphasis on medical specialization in medical schools.

The future doctors have formed an organization known as the General Practice Society, dedicated to the re-education of the traditional ideas of the "family" doctor and the emphasizing of the basic role of the general practitioner as the keystone of the medical profession.

Wake Up To More Comfort

Without Nagging Backache
Nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness may be due to slow-down of kidney function. Doctors say good kidney function is very important to good health. When some everyday condition, such as stress and strain, causes the important function to slow down, many folks suffer nagging backache—feel miserable. Minor bladder irritations due to cold or wrong diet may cause getting up nights or frequent passages. Don't neglect your kidneys if these conditions bother you. Try Doan's Pills—a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. It's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief from these discomforts—help the 18 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. More Women Are Casting Votes
WESTPORT, Conn. —(AP)— Determining how many women vote in any given election usually means a painstaking examination of the check-off list, but it's as easy as pie here and has been for 30 years.
Westport's lone polling place has six voting machines. Three are for "men only" and three for "women only."
Which machines record the greater number of votes? The women's, by about 10 per cent, says Registrar Joseph McGill.

Piney Grove News
Folks out at Piney Grove are really proud of their church. We have completely renovated the interior, installed new pews and have covered the floor with carpet. The next thing on our list is to get pulpit furniture and we hope to do this in the near future.
We continue to grow out at Piney Grove and we are proud of this also. We have had as high as 207 present for Sunday school; last Sunday we had 132 present.
The Junior Ladies Auxiliary met Monday night at the home of Mrs. E. T. Clark. Mrs. Roy Avery was elected president for the coming year and Hilda Waters was elected secretary-treasurer. A nice meeting was enjoyed by all members present.
Mr. and Mrs. Graham Allen of Norfolk, Va. were weekend guests of Mrs. Bernice Causey.
Mr. and Mrs. Gene Brister and daughter left Monday for New Orleans where Lt. Brister will be stationed.
Rev. and Mrs. R. N. Hinnant were dinner guests of Mrs. Lula Allen Sunday.
We were sorry to learn that Mr. Jim Tucker has been confined to his bed again. We do hope that he will soon be out as we miss him at Sunday school.
The Senior Ladies' Auxiliary met Friday night at the home of Mrs. Lula Allen. Their officers for the coming year were elected and Mrs. Clarence J. Little was elected president and Mrs. R. R. Tyson was elected secretary-treasurer.

The Young's Old Location

The Sport Reflector

By JIMMY ELLIS

Washington High School's Pam-Pack last night gave an indication that Kinston's top-seeded Red Devils might have a hard time in the Northeastern Conference basketball tournament. The seedings, which were announced a week ago, have rated Kinston first, Washington second, and Greenville third in the annual dribble derby which will be held the last three days of February.

The Pam-Pack squeaked past the Devils 66-65 in a real thriller last night in Washington. Dick Cherry, the football ace who's leading the Washington team in scoring, gave the Pack its margin of victory when he banked in a set shot from the side with less than five seconds of playing time remaining.

Incidentally, a little strategy a few seconds before on the part of the Kinston brain trust might be questioned by some fans. Washington was leading, 64-63, when Kinston's Charlie Wickham was awarded two free throws. (There were about 20 seconds of playing time remaining.)

Wickham made the first of the free throws to tie the game up. He looked to the bench for instructions as to shoot or waive the remaining free throw. He got the nod to shoot. Wick made the second free throw and Kinston was ahead by one point and Washington had at least 15 seconds to get the ball in a position to shoot.

Kinston made it rough for the Washington guards but they got the ball down court although one jump ball had to be called. Cherry got the ball on the right side with about five seconds remaining and quickly set himself for the shot. He fired away, the ball banked in nicely, and Kinston had lost the second game of the year against a Northeastern foe.

As to whether or not Kinston should have waived that second free throw is the point which will bring about so much questioning. I frankly admit I'm afraid I'd have given Wickham the orders to shoot—the same orders Sexton gave. However, there are a lot of folks at the game last night who wanted to waive the shot.

The one point margin Wickham gave Kinston looked big at the time he made it. Both teams had slackened considerably in their ability to score from the floor and I honestly believe Kinston had the defensive advantage over Washington. I'd say the odds were in their favor to let Wickham shoot the free throw and take the chance on holding Washington.

Washington and Kinston may

Ayden Wins Two From Grimesland

GRIMESLAND — Ayden High School took both ends of a non-conference doubleheader here last night. Coach Stuart Tripp's boys won the nightcap, 53-31, and the Ayden girls, with Alice Jean Smith and Katherine Bright doing all of the scoring, took the opener, 41-23.

Ayden took substantial leads in the first quarter of both games and were never in serious trouble. The winning boys led at halftime, 27-13, while the Ayden girls had 22-7 advantage at intermission.

Randall Harrington was high for the winners with 16 points, although Mac Whitehurst was right behind him with 15 points. Curtis Dennis was the defensive standout for Ayden.

Grimesland's game but outscored Panthers were led by Earl Wright with 11 points. Billy Boyd picked up eight points.

Alice Jean Smith collected 23 points and Katherine Bright scored 19 points for Ayden in the girls game to take care of all of their team's scoring for the night. Guard Peggy Conway led the winners on defense.

Grimesland's scoring was spread through the line-up with Shirley McLawhorn topping the scorers with eight points. Nancy Best and Joyce Tripp added six apiece.

Farmville Wins, Loses In Coastal Games

Tugwell Lead Red Devils With 21

Jean Hill Of Vanceboro Scores 34 Points To Lead Team To 46-33 Victory Over Farmville Girls

FARMVILLE — Vanceboro and Farmville divided a Coastal Conference twin bill here last night with the Farmville boys winning out, 41-35, and Vanceboro's girls taking a fairly easy decision, 46-33.

The boys game was close all the way, although Farmville led after the midway mark of the second quarter in the low scoring contest.

Vanceboro took the lead in the first quarter and held it until the last 20 seconds of the period, when Farmville's Marvin Tugwell followed up on a follow-up of an attempted shot to tie the score at 8-all.

Tugwell, who was the scoring leader for both teams with a total of 21 points, put Farmville ahead for the first time after a minute and a half of the second quarter had passed. J. L. Peterson came right back to knot the score again at 10-all, and Vanceboro took a four point lead on baskets by Richard Gladson and Jack Taylor with 5:15 showing on the clock. A hook by Tugwell and a follow-up by Paschal Barrett brought the score back to 14-all with three minutes left in the half. Gladson and Hobgood exchanged baskets in the next two minutes and the score remained tied until Hobgood pushed one in from the side with 10 seconds left to give Farmville the lead for the last time, 18-16.

Farmville increased its lead in the third period and led by six points throughout the majority of the quarter, and led 32-28 at the end of the period.

With Tugwell doing most of the scoring, Farmville took an 11-point lead with about three minutes left in the game, 41-30. Vanceboro started a late rally that saw them narrow the margin to the final six points, 41-35.

Tugwell was easily the outstanding offensive player on the court last night. The Farmville senior hit from all parts of the floor to rack up his 21 points. Bert Warren, a small freshman, was equally as outstanding on defense for the Red Devils.

J. L. Peterson paced the losing boys with 10 points, while Wesley Gladson picked up eight points. Clarence Powell led Vanceboro's defense.

Girls Game
Farmville's inexperienced girls gave Vanceboro a tough battle in the first quarter but fell down in the second half and could never regain its pace, finally losing out by a score of 46-33.

The Red Devil Ladies went out in front in the first period by a margin of six points, 10-4, but Vanceboro's Jean Hill single-handedly scored 16 points in the second period to put the visitors in front while the Farmville forwards were scoring only two points in the entire period. Vanceboro led 22-12 at the end of the first half.

It was all Vanceboro in the second half as Farmville could not overtake the big lead that the Craven County team had built up.

Jean Hill, a senior in the Farm Life High School in Vanceboro, led her team in scoring with 34 points. Joyce Ann Wilson collected seven points, while Christine Cayton and Beverly Witherington led the winners defense.

Sisters Edna and Ila Wooten were the big scorers for Farmville with 16 and 15 points respectively. Phoebe Webb and Gertrude Smith were outstanding on defense for Farmville.

Defensively, Grimesland was led by Annie Laurie Taylor and Adrienne White. Despite some good action by the two standout guards presented by Grimesland, there was little they could do to stop the talented and taller forwards of Ayden.

Alice Jean and Katherine had given Ayden a 22-7 lead at halftime, a lead which enabled Ayden to coast through the last two quarters.

Grimesland's game but outscored Panthers were led by Earl Wright with 11 points. Billy Boyd picked up eight points.

Phantoms Travel For Game

The Greenville High School Phantoms will travel tonight to Roanoke Rapids in search of their eighth victory of the Northeastern Conference basketball season. The Phantoms have lost two games.

Tonight's meeting of the clubs will be the second this year. The Phantoms won the first meeting rather handily despite a great shooting performance by Yellow Jacket guard Lucky Hurst who will be in the Yellow Jacket starting line-up again tonight.

Coach Bo Farley of the Phantoms is not expected to make any change in the Greenville line-up which has started the last three games. This line-up has Smith Worthington and Sidney Briley at the forwards, Wallace Conway at center, and Joe Rowland and Sonny Scott at the guards.

Thus far this season, the Phantoms have chalked up wins over Roanoke Rapids, Elizabeth City (twice), New Bern (twice), Edenton, and Washington. They have lost only to Washington and Kinston.

RETURN TO ALMA MATER
EAST LANSING Mich. — (AP) — Two of Michigan State's greatest linemen are now assistant freshman coaches at their alma mater. They are tackle Hal Vogler, Captain of the 1949 team, and Don Maxon, hard-hitting guard on the same '49 team.

If conditions are exactly right the sun can be hidden in an eclipse for as long as 7 1/2 minutes.

Grifton, Belvoir Split Two Games

BELVOIR — After watching the Belvoir girls defeat Grifton 87-50 last night in the first game of a basketball doubleheader, the Belvoir boys found the going a bit rougher in the nightcap and wound up with a 58-38 defeat at the hands of the Bulldogs.

In the boys game, the Eagles held Grifton's talented Rex Lewis to only 13 points but Coach Adrian Brown reached into his stock of players and came up with someone to take the scoring leader's place. Last night it was J. R. Hooten who carried the scoring lead for the Bulldogs with 18 points—a total that was also good for high scoring honors for the night.

Grifton had little trouble in working up a big lead over the Eagles and were ahead 23-15 at halftime. Following Hooten and Rex Lewis in the Bulldog scoring list was John Lewis, Rex's brother, who canned 12 points. Clyde Adams was the top defensive man for Grifton and held Belvoir's Howard Bullock to only 10 points.

Ralph Tyson and Frank Garris followed Bullock in the Belvoir scoring with nine points each while Bill Ross led the scoring.

In the girls game, it was Belvoir's night to shine as forward Claudia Pollard practically licked Grifton all by herself.

The talented Miss Pollard scored 39 points—more than the total for Grifton—in leading her team to victory. Grifton's ace trio of guards, Louise Corey, Phyllis Jackson and Gertrude Garris, found their own talents of little use as the other Belvoir forwards kept feeding the ball to Miss Pollard who kept right on scoring.

Belvoir had trailed 16-18 at the half but a great second half performance by Miss Pollard gave them a runaway victory.

Harvie Ward Set As Favorite In Champs Tourney

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (AP) — Harvie Ward is heavily favored to win the Tournament of Golf Club Champions for the third time in four years.

Ward, winner in 1949 and 1950, took medal honors yesterday with a five-under par 67. It was only one stroke over the competitive course record for amateurs, set by Hobart Manley, Savannah, last year.

Ward covered the 6,987-yard Ponce de Leon Course in two strokes less than runner-up Lloyd Bihney, New York City, Dynamite Bill Goodloe, Valdosta, Ga., had 70, along with Beau Melik, Racine, Wis., and Roy Benjamin, Elmwood, N. Y.

Manley, defending champion, was one of three at 71. He took 79 to make the championship flight. The tournament swung into match play today.

Kentucky Loses Another To 'Fix'

NEW YORK (AP)—The shimmering college basketball scandal, which has involved some of the top schools and more than 20 players in the country, flamed anew today with the arrival here of Walter Hirsch, captain of the 1950-51 University of Kentucky team, as a material witness.

Hirsch's decision to appear in New York was an about-face on his previous stand, according to District Attorney Frank Hogan, who first broke the scandal last year. Hogan said Hirsch had refused repeatedly to cooperate with the investigation while he was a student at Kentucky.

Three Teams Set For Invitational

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Invitation Basketball Tournament has one fourth of its field lined up today for its 14th annual frolic which opens with an unprecedented triple header on March 8.

Three Eastern powerhouses, unbeaten Duquesne (18-0), St. John's of Brooklyn (19-2) and St. Bonaventure (18-2) accepted bids to compete yesterday in the 12-team tournament.

Teams under consideration for the remaining berths include Kentucky, Seton Hall, Dayton, Duke, Holy Cross, Penn State, St. Louis, LaSalle, Texas Christian, Western Kentucky, Wyoming, West Virginia and New York University.

Among birds now extinct are the passenger pigeon, the great auk and the Labrador duck.

Murder is Forgetful

Chapter 9

Johnny sat on the edge of one twin bed taking small sips of the whiskey. The drowsiness was slowly leaving him. He heard the door opening.

"She doesn't even know she had a husband," he said.

Moe started.

"In fact"—a smile flicked across Johnny's face—"She thinks I'm someone named Bart. She thinks I'm her lover."

Moe looked worried. "You'd be in some spot if Bart is someone who knows about her husband's murder."

Johnny nodded. "Wouldn't it?" He got up and walked over to the windows again and stood there looking out toward the balcony.

"But I don't think there's anyone named Bart. Otherwise, someone around here would have heard the name in the past."

"But she called you..."

"We'll probably learn that it's someone entirely fictitious."

"You mean..."

There was a sharp, impatient knock at the hall door. Before Johnny Saxon could even start toward the door it burst open and the wiry little man popped into the room.

Moe Martin, half-dressed, had started to reach for a robe. Then, seeing the old fellow with the shock of white hair, he stood there and stared out of puzzled eyes.

The fellow, spying Johnny, moved toward him quickly. "Got any pennies?" he demanded in his shrill voice.

Moe looked more puzzled than ever.

Reaching into his pocket, a smile flickered across the corners of his mouth, Johnny pulled out some change. Several pennies were in his hand.

The old man's hand darted out, picked up the coins. Examining them swiftly, he returned two and kept two. These he put into the pocket of his baggy jacket.

"Thanks," he said hurriedly, and went out of the room.

Moe Martin stood staring at the door.

"That was Grandpoppa Smith."

"And who would he be?"

"Just another one of the Smiths. Worth perhaps several million dollars."

He shook his head. "Then why is he humming pennies?"

"He collects things—including keys."

"A crackpot?"

Johnny shrugged. "Just eccentric. Is my guess."

"From now on," Moe announced with determination, "I'm keeping the door locked!"

Turning back to the window, Johnny saw that the nurse, Karen, had finally come out on the balcony. She was arranging cushions in a chair.

The tall, dark-haired nurse had come from the bedroom doorway directly across the courtyard space formed by the two rear wings of room and walk around the balcony sible for Johnny to step from this house. It would have been possible where the nurse was bent over the chair. Instead, he watched her.

At first he thought Karen was fixing the chair for Irene Smith, for she had disappeared inside the bedroom again. Then Karen reappeared with a magazine in her hand. She sat down in the chair and started flicking the pages of the periodical.

Behind him, as he finished dressing, Moe asked, "What's so interesting out there?"

Johnny said, "Moe, there's something I want you to do."

"Yeah?"

That nurse—Karen—who is taking care of Irene... see what you can find out about her. Where she's from. How long she's been here. Stuff like that."

"Now?"

"Now's as good a time as any. Just ask a few casual questions of some of the servants around here."

He turned. "There's another thing. You'll recall that there was a guard at the main gate when we entered the estate. Find out if they have any other watchmen or guards around. I mean, anyone who is supposed to see that strangers don't enter the Smith grounds."

Moe said, "I thought we were hired to guard Irene Smith?"

Johnny said, "I'm not going to stay up night and day on this case. Besides, I'm not a twenty-five-dollar-a-week nursemaid. We're being paid to find out what happened, exactly, the night her husband was murdered. For that, they're paying plenty."

"I guess we'd better get to work then," Moe said, disturbed.

"What do you think I'm doing?" snapped Johnny. "I'm working right now. I'm watching that nurse."

"Oh," said Moe, heading for the door, and it was obvious that he was slightly mixed up by Johnny's remarks.

Son's Scoring Is Reminder Of Dad

AP Newsfeatures

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — When Larry Noble, 21-year-old Yale junior, scored four goals in a 7-1 rout of Dartmouth it brought to mind Larry's father.

His dad, also Larry, was a top Yale athlete, winning letters for baseball, football and hockey. The elder Noble, now a faculty member at the Groton School, was graduated from Yale in 1927 and from Yale Law School in 1930. During that period he was head hockey coach at Yale and also a member of the football coaching staff. Before teaching he practiced law for two years in New York City.

Young Noble first put on double runner skates at four and at eight played hockey with the kids on Lake Bomeya in Groton, Mass. As a senior at St. Paul's School, Junior made the varsity hockey team. He spent a year in Switzerland at the U. of Lausanne where he studied French and philosophy.

Larry played freshman hockey at Yale but was a spare as a soph until the North-eastern game a year ago when he first crashed the starting lineup. He banged home three goals and has been the Ellis top scorer ever since.

Noble, however, is not the only familiar name in the ice sport at Yale. Two other members of the team, Wally Kilrea and Ted Shay, come from hockey families. Wally senior played for the Detroit Red Wings and now coaches the Johnstown, Pa., Jets, while Norm Shay was one of New Haven's best players. And, of course, the Yale team is coached by the former Iron Man of the New York Rangers, Murray Murdoch.

The head of a Korean village is elected by secret ballot, with one member of each household casting one vote.

New Pipeline Policy Proposed

CAIRO — (AP) — Syria and Lebanon are discussing adoption of a unified policy toward oil companies that run pipelines over the two countries, including a sharing of royalties, the Arab news agency reports.

The American-owned Trans-Arabian Pipeline Co. and the Iraq Petroleum Co. — in which American firms have an interest — would be affected.

Electrocution In Wine-Making

MOSCOW — (AP) — One form of making champagne here is an "electrical method." Moscow scientists have claimed that by electrocuting the champagne in a certain way it can be made as good as the finest of French champagnes. It only takes a very short time, so they say.

Official Soviet figures show champagne production is up 121 per cent over 1950.

Sale Of Savings Bonds Reported

Sales of Series E, F and G Savings Bonds in Pitt County for the month of January totaled $137,598.50, of this amount $121,650.00 was in Series E Bonds; $18.50 was in F Bonds; and $15,900.00 in Series G Bonds. The sales announcement was made today by County Savings Bonds Chairman, Mr. Waldrop, based on the monthly sales report from Allison James, State Director of U.S. Savings Bonds in Greensboro.

The total figures for North Carolina's 100 counties were as follows: Series E Bonds $4,187,648.00; Series F $92,389.00; Series G $530,700.00, totaling $4,800,737.00. The county chairman said that Series E Bond sales for January exceeded January sales of last year by $57,305 in North Carolina. The E Bond continues to be a popular investment, he said.

Mr. Waldrop said that during a nation-wide school savings drive from November 15 through January 31, North Carolina almost doubled its assigned quota of 75 new school savings program installations. The latest count shows that 145 additional North Carolina schools have tied in with the defense effort and are teaching thrift and saving, and students are permitted to actually practice thrift and saving through the purchase of U.S. Defense Stamps at the schools. This brings the total installations in North Carolina to 497.

Factories Boom In Sicily After Govm't Campaign

ROME — (AP) — Ninety new factories have been started in Sicily since last fall in a campaign, backed by the government, to increase industrialization of the heavily populated island. The government is granting special tax concessions to new industries starting there.

The new factories include 20 for food and sweets processing, 10 chemical and pharmaceutical factories, 12 for building materials, nine mechanical industries, eight wine-processing plants, five textile mills, five paper mills, four small oil refinery establishments, and others engaged in glassware, shoes and leathergoods, and electric-mechanical production.

Farm Leaders Of North Carolina Visit Florida

CLEWISTON, Fla. (AP) — A group of 75 North Carolina agricultural leaders and farmers visited sugar cane lands in this area today and planned to continue to Miami tonight.

The film, "From Darkness to Light", was shot in the jungles and rubber estates of Negri Sembilan. It depicts the true story of a Communist terrorist who revolted against Red rule because the bandit chieftain ordered him to shoot his sweetheart.

L. Y. Ballentine, North Carolina commissioner of agriculture, said the farmers in that state were interested in improving production and marketing practices, especially in vegetables.

Gourmet Shop Offers Rare Food, Rare Prices

By CHARLES E. LYONS
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK — If you'd like to go on a gastronomic binge, or maybe just spruce up your diet a bit, there's a shop just off fashionable Fifth Avenue that can supply almost any food item you've ever heard of and many you've seen only in your dreams.

The shop has touches of the old-fashioned country store of granddad's time, with a potbelled stove in one corner and a cracker barrel and coffee grinder gracing the scene. But this place, capitalized at $200,000, is spotless, furnished with lamps which look old-fashioned, and it has a terra cotta Bristol blue and white color scheme. Granddad's stock in trade was never like this—nor were his prices.

If you want to do it up a la Mexico, you might try their fried agave worms, a delicacy at better cocktail parties below the border. (A 1 oz. tin costs 85 cents.) Or you might surprise your spouse with a roughage item like cactus pieces for salads. This treat sells for 39 cents apiece.

Caviar at $32 a Pound

Of course it goes without saying there is plenty of fresh vavilar around at $32.50 a pound.

For the rough-and-ready type, boar meat (12 oz. for $2) from France might be used to replace steak on your menu. Such a meal soup, another gourmet shop delapidated rose petal jelly made from the genuine article and a special honey made by Canadian Trappist monks.

The formidable array of succulent morsels found at the shop comes from 23 countries. Generally marmalades and biscuits come from England, pates and game birds and duck from France, smor gasbord from Sweden, cheese from Holland, chocolate from Switzerland, vegetables from Belgium and sardines from Norway.

Convection from Sappin

From Sappin comes a confection known as torrone, while tons of myriad taste and aroma are secured from the Orient. Passion fruit nectar and toasted coconut chips are obtained from Australia and Hawaii respectively.

You don't have to buy sight unseen—or rather, untested. They have installed a "tasting room" on the mezzanine where these strange and exotic foods, mostly packaged in tin and glass, can be tried before ordering. Unhurried browsing is invited. In the rear of the store is a bar which serves nothing stronger than onion soup.

Mailboxes Never Have Wet Paint

WASHINGTON, D. C. — (AP) — Ever wonder why you rarely see a "Wet Paint" sign on a U. S. mail box?

Complications like sticky fingers and smudged clothes are avoided by replacing the mail box with a newly painted one when a paint job is needed.

In inland areas this is done every two or three years. In coastal cities replacement is made annually. Last year it took 9,000 gallons of quick-drying enamel to keep the nation's mail boxes spruced up.

In some of the wooded areas of New England, the wood stove continues to be used for household heating.

Buick even keeps the Sun in its Place

Of course, this new glass—which reduces glare and incoming sun-heat—is a Buick feature in '52

What Buick standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on other Buicks.

WITH all the new things we've had to talk about in 1952 Buicks, we're just getting around to this one.

It's called "Easy-Eye Glass"—a new kind of glass with a cool, soft, blue-green tint, which filters the sun's rays entering your car—cuts down their glare and heat.

You'll appreciate the "glare control" at any time—and when you hit your first stretch of hot-weather driving you'll find that this glass does a great job of keeping the heat out of your lap.

We know—because thousands of happy Buick owners already have this new comfort feature. The rest of the automobile industry is just beginning to discover what Buick discovered a year ago. It's a great idea, which costs you very little extra if you order it when you're buying a new car.

But this still leaves the other folks with a lot of catching up to do.

You'll look a long way before you'll find any thing that approaches a Buick's million dollar ride.

You'll look a long way before you'll find anything so completely satisfying as Dynaflow Drive.*

You'll find it hard to match the style and beauty and harmonious good taste of a 1952 Buick's interior trim and fabrics.

And when it comes to what you get for what you pay—we'll gladly match price tags with the field.

Have you had a good look at the '52 Buicks? That's something you ought to do soon.

Equipment, accessories, trim and models are subject to change without notice. *Optional at extra cost—available on most models. (Not presently available in Massachusetts.) †Standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on other Buicks.

Old Dust Bowl Area Now Valued As Big Producer

ELKHART, Kan. —(UP)— Fifteen years ago, farmers in what was then a wasteland of Motion County sold their land for $4 an acre and moved from the dust-blown area.

Today 110,000 acres along the Cimarron river in that county is pasture land and this year it will produce about a million extra pounds of beef.

The pasture is owned by the soil conservation service of the federal government. The service started work to reclaim the land in 1936, buying the land from farmers who went broke in the drought and dustbowl years.

Seeds Poured In

The service poured pasture grass seeds into the depleted, sandy soil. By 1943, a small part of the area was ready for grazing and farmers and ranchers in the region formed the Morton County grazing association.

Any farmer in the county can belong to the organization. Its a cooperative system, with everybody interested benefiting from the government grass.

This last year 80,000 acres were grazed. Another 20,000 acres will be ready next year. Cattlemen figure that more than 6,000 head of this year and gained a million pounds of beef.

In 1943 there were 475 head of cattle on the pasture that was opened for the first time.

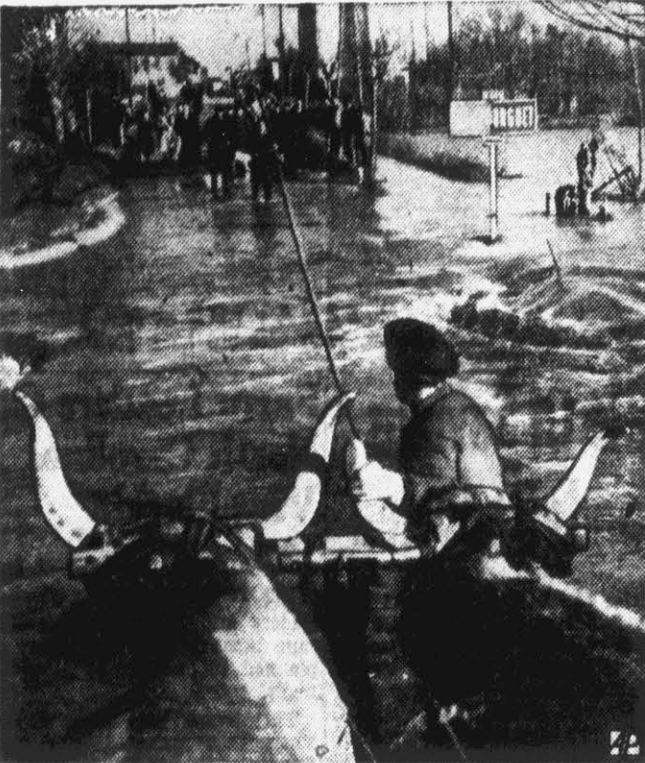

Cost Is Small

Stockmen pay $1.75 a month per head for use of the government grass. The government's fee is $1. The other 75 cents goes to the association to defray its expenses. One fourth of each dollar paid the government returns to the county in lieu of taxes. That means about $10,000 for the county treasury this year.

When it's roundup time on the pasture each fall, about 100 cowboys join forces to rope the different brands and separate the calves. The land worth $4 an acre 15 years ago now is figured from $30 to $100.

GI And Beauty Found Dead In German Woods

FRANKFURT, Germany (UP)— Authorities tried to determine today whether a beautiful blonde and an American GI found lying nude side by side in snow-covered woods were victims of murder or suicide.

The grisly death scene was discovered yesterday afternoon near the Frankfurt suburb of Offenbach by a forester gathering firewood.

Footprints were found near the bodies of the unidentified woman, believed to be a German, and a corporal of the U.S. Fourth Infantry Division whose name was withheld. They were lying on their backs in the snow.

Since there were no marks of violence apparent on the bodies, police believed the couple might have been poisoned. They also considered it possible that the bodies could have been brought to the scene from some other place.

Their clothes were found nearby but both pairs of shoes were missing.

A police officer described the woman as a dyed blonde, medium height, about 32 years old, "stunningly beautiful" and dressed in "cheap but good" clothes. Police tried to trace her identity through a gold-plated bracelet she wore on her wrist.

Investigators said that apparently someone visited the scene yesterday after the time of death but before the discovery of the bodies by the forester.

The woman's coat had been placed across the upper part of their bodies and her skirt was draped across her legs.

German detectives said the bodies could have been in the woods anywhere from two days to two weeks. The cold weather had left them in such a state of preservation that the time of death awaited the results of the autopsy.

At the man's feet were several articles of army clothing, including a jacket with the Fourth Infantry Division insignia and Corporal's stripes. Around his neck were his dogtags through which he was identified tentatively.

The bodies were taken for autopsy to the 97th General Hospital, where authorities said examination probably would be completed today. However, they added that final results may not be known for two or three more days.

Identification of the soldier will not be released before his family has been notified.

Taft Concerned By Stray Donkey

CINCINNATI (UP)— Republican presidential aspirant Sen. Robert A. Taft was concerned today over a wandering donkey that was supposed to follow him home.

The donkey was presented to the Ohio senator at the annual Saints and Sinners Club dinner at New York on Jan. 25. He sent it to his grandchildren but it hasn't arrived yet.

When Taft arrived here he brushed aside problems that had arisen during his recent campaign swing and said, "First, I want to find out why that donkey hasn't been delivered."

One Million Bushels Of Seed Grown In N. Carolina

RALEIGH — The North Carolina Crop Improvement Association, with headquarters at State College, certified more than a million bushels of seed grown in the State in 1951, Dr. R. P. Moore, director in charge, reported today.

This was more than 50 per cent higher than the total certified in 1950, Dr. Moore said.

The largest increases were shown in wheat, oats, cotton and Irish potatoes, as well as in tobacco, fescue, and legume seed, which are measured in pounds.

The 1951 totals show 1,076,992 bushels of small grain, corn, cotton, soybean, Irish potato, and sweet potato seed certified, compared to a total of 611,233 bushels certified in 1950. For tobacco, fescue, legume, and watermelon seed, the 1951 total was 63,758 pounds, compared to 25,695 pounds certified in 1950.

By crop the 1951 totals were: Wheat, 199,277 bushels; oats, 296,053 bushels; barley, 4,174 bushels; open-pollinated corn, 11,096 bushels; Irish potatoes, 71,171 bushels; sweet potatoes, 4,512 bushels; Tobacco, 21,489 pounds; fescue, 36,369 pounds; legumes, 5,300 pounds; watermelons, 600 pounds.

These figures, Dr. Moore explained, include both certified and registered seed, but not foundation seed. He pointed out that certified seed, bearing a blue tag, and registered seed, bearing a purple tag, are available to North Carolina farmers who want to make the highest crop yields per acre.

Long Machine In Louisiana Loses

NEW ORLEANS (UP)—A soft-spoken country judge appeared today to have won the Louisiana governorship and trounced the once-powerful machine of Gov. Earl K. Long.

Robert F. Kennon led Carlos G. Spah, the man Long personally chose to succeed him, 367,863 to 218,342 on the basis of returns from 1,554 of the state's 2,112 precincts in yesterday's Democratic primary run-off.

Kennon-backed candidates also led by large margins in races for lesser state offices.

The drawing, sandy-haired Kennon claimed victory last night and predicted the "beginning of the end" for "Longism" in the state.

A self-styled "poor man's candidate," Kennon had placed second in the first primary although he had little or no organized political backing.

Spah, leader in the nine-man field in the first primary, retired shortly before midnight and his aides refused to awaken him for comment.

The Longs have defeated Kennon on two occasions in the past when he sought major state offices.

Kennon ran third in a gubernatorial race against Earl Long in 1948, and in 1950 lost a bid for U.S. senator to Russell Long, son of the late Gov. Huey P. (Kingfish) Long.

Victory in the primary is tantamount to election in Louisiana, although Republicans will name a candidate to face the Democratic nominee in the general election.

Kennon ran on a platform of strict economy in state government.

Spah promised to continue the "humane benefits" program instituted by Governor Earl Long in 1948. He claimed there could be no tax reduction without junking the Long program.

Self-Conviction By Draft-Dodger

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (AP)—Carlton M. Owen, 23, of Williamson, S. C., turned down a directed verdict of innocent and testified against himself yesterday in U. S. District Court.

His testimony led a jury to find him guilty of failing to register under the Selective Service law.

Federal District Judge Carl A. Hatch directed that Owen be examined by a psychiatrist before sentencing Feb. 29.

Owens was arrested last July for failing to produce a draft card. He was picked up while hitchhiking through the city. He pleaded innocent at his arraignment.

But yesterday, after Judge Hatch directed the jury to find Owen innocent on the grounds the government had presented insufficient evidence, Owen offered to serve as a government witness.

In a lengthy statement to the jury he said he considers the Selective Service law "a wicked law in that it requires me to become a part of an organization based on principles very foreign to me."

He added he is "willing to go to jail for a hundred years to see the United States replace warfare with the golden rule in international relations."

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW!

SO HE MOVED 2,000 MILES, GOT A JOB WITH A WHOLESALE BUTCHER, AND GUESS WHERE HE'S SPENDING THESE SUNSHINY DAYS!

Fabulously Oil-Rich Kuwait Shapes Up As Britain's Trump Card In Iran Fight

By JOHN A. SCALI
WASHINGTON (AP)—The fabulous piece of desert-bound real estate called the Kuwait has moved into the Middle East oil picture as possibly Britain's trump card in its bitter dispute with Iran.

There are signs that Iran's fiery Prime Minister, Mohammed Mossadegh, realizes this and is getting increasingly jittery over his prospects of victory.

Ever since Iran nationalized Britain's billion-dollar oil properties, production in the Kuwait has been going up and up. Right now this desert sheikhdom, an Arabian port at the mouth of the Persian Gulf, is turning out 640,000 barrels of oil daily, replacing nearly half of Iran's output.

Added to stepped-up production in Saudi Arabia, Iraq and the Western Hemisphere, the rich flow of oil from Kuwait has enabled the West to get by without too much difficulty since last summer, when oil stopped moving from Iran.

Mossadegh is faced with the bleak prospect that oil production in the Kuwait and Saudi Arabia can be boosted even more in the next few months, if necessary. In the meantime, his government, without British oil royalties to count on, is heading straight for bankruptcy within the next six months unless something is done.

Some American and British oil experts think Mossadegh already has killed the goose that laid Iran's golden egg. Even if he were to reach a settlement with Britain tomorrow, they believe the West would continue to rely more heavily on trouble-free areas.

Further, there are indications that the sheikh of Kuwait and King Abdullah of Saudi Arabia would in effect insist that their stepped-up oil production be kept at the same level. These governments could argue very cogently, some officials believe, that they helped out in a pinch and should not be tossed aside when things ease up.

Regardless of developments, Kuwait, which is about the size of the state of Delaware, appears to have a gold-lined future. A new agreement with the British-American Oil Company, which operates the fields there, assures it of a $0-50 million division of profits.

This is expected to amount to 150 million dollars in royalties alone during this year. Not bad for a desert waste inhabited by some 100,000 Arabs.

So much money is pouring into the sheikhdom now that the British have sent half a dozen specialists there to figure out how the old sheikh can spend it. The 1,950-square-mile area he rules not only is one of the richest in the Middle East but perhaps the world. Some American statisticians estimate per capita income in the Kuwait this year, when added to the money earned by inhabitants working for the oil company, will average about $2,000 annually.

The United States has a per capita income of $1,456 yearly, according to the latest figures. Of course it is probably spread somewhat more evenly, however, than the Kuwait.

One American official who recently returned from there says the Kuwait is just as uninterrupted expanse of sand floating on oil but two unbelievable pools of oil. One of these alone is expected to have a reserve of 16 billion barrels.

Balloon Floated For 1,000 Miles

TOPTON, N. C. (UP)—In case you've wondered how far a gas-filled toy balloon will float O. R. Roper of Macon County has an answer—1,000 miles.

Roper found a balloon in the mountainous Nantahala National Forest that contained a note saying it was released eight days earlier in Homer, La., as a promotion stunt by a motor company.

Lawmakers Encourage One Washington Lobby

By STERLING F. GREEN
WASHINGTON (AP)—Some members of Congress did an unusual thing this week. They urged a disbanding lobby, an admitted pressure group, to stay in business.

The lobby is the Citizens' Committee for the Hoover Report. Its goal is better and cheaper government.

The committee plans to break up on May 31. A non-partisan body, it feels it can not survive the election campaign without getting involved in the political crossfire.

The committee was organized in 1949 to lobby for the approval of the government-reform proposals of the 12-member, bi-partisan Commission on Organization of the Executive Branch.

That commission quickly became known as the Hoover Commission. Its chairman, former President Herbert Hoover, said that in taking leadership he was performing his "last public service."

Sent to Congress in bulky installments three years ago, the Hoover report was an attic-to-basement survey of the ramshackle federal structure, and an item-by-item blueprint for modernizing it.

The Citizens' Committee, voluntary and privately supported, came into being when the Hoover Commission completed its work and closed up shop.

The committee's sole aim was to see that the Hoover report did not suffer the fate of earlier reform efforts—which still are gathering dust in congressional pigeon holes.

Numerically, the committee has won adoption of 55 per cent of the individual Hoover recommendations. In terms of dollars saved, it claims about two billions annually, against a potential saving of 5 1/2 billions a year if all the proposals

Free To Select Their Candidates

RALEIGH (AP)—State Paroles Commissioner T. C. Johnson issued a word of advice yesterday to Paroles Commission employees against using their position for political purposes.

At the same time, he told the employees they are "free to support the candidate or candidates of your own choice." In an office memorandum, Johnson stated, "Neither the selection of paroles nor the supervision of paroles should be influenced by political considerations."

Johnson recently stated he is supporting W. B. Umstead of Durham for governor. Scott, who appointed Johnson as commissioner, has said he feels his appointive officials should follow him in supporting Hubert E. Olive of Lexington, a candidate who Scott said will continue the programs of his administration.

Describes Naval Training Cruise

J. B. Smith, Lieutenant, USNR, last night gave the highlights of a recent two week cruise aboard the U. S. S. Tills at the meeting of the Greenville naval reserve unit.

The Tills sailed from Charleston on February 4 and arrived in Nassau on February 6 where the entire ship's company had an opportunity to do some sightseeing and shopping, Smith told the group.

On Thursday the news of the death of King George VI reached the Nassau and the entire island went into mourning. On Friday morning proclamation ceremonies were carried out.

"I was fortunate enough to be one of the officers invited as a representative of the U. S. Navy," Smith told the group, "and consequently sat on the Executive Council of the Bahamas along with members of the legislature and distinguished guests where His Excellency the Governor, and the Provost Marshall were the principal figures in the ceremony." After the ceremony the Tills fired a 21-gun salute.

The following day the Tills put to sea again and engaged in anti-submarine warfare practice and practice firing at surface targets.

"The training, most of which is too technical to mention here," Smith said, "I found very beneficial and the changes in highly specialized equipment and new devices are a revelation."

At the meeting of the Greenville naval reserve unit next week small arms firing practice will be at the indoor firing range.

Bandits' Friend Sent To Prison

IPOH, Malaya (AP)—A 21-year-old Chinese was sentenced recently to 15 years imprisonment on a charge of consorting with Communist terrorists. He was arrested in connection with the assassination of a British planter in 1948.

The arrest was made when two former bandits, now operating with a police jungle squad, saw him riding a bicycle in a nearby village. They testified at his trial that he was a member of the band which killed the planter.

Negro Red Cross Strive Is Started

A kick-off tea for the 1952 Red Cross fund campaign in the Negro section of the city was held yesterday afternoon at the home economics house at the C.M. Eppes High School.

D. D. Garrett, general chairman of the drive in the colored community, said they mapped out plans yesterday for the campaign and appointed committees for designated sections.

W. H. Davenport will head the special gifts committee and working with him will be Mrs. P. W. Moore, Alfred Norfleet, and M.L. Bartlette.

Acting as captain of the social, fraternal, and civic organizations will be Mrs. B. M. Atkinson and J. H. Donaldson will work with the churches in the campaign. Miss S. I. Sautler will have charge of activities in the schools.

Captains in residential sections were appointed and they are: George Jackson, Meadowbrook; Mrs. Madeline Bradley, Skinner's Ravine; Mrs. Annie B. Taft and Mrs. Fannie Gorham, downtown; and Mrs. Mary Brewington, South Greenville.

Mrs. Mabel Joyner, West New Town; Margaret Newton, East New Town; Mrs. H. B. Kelly, Eppes Park; Mrs. Frank Wilson, Jr., Perkins Town; Mrs. Lucile Gorham, Riverdale; Mrs. Dorothy Barnes, Cherry View; and Mrs. Lee Boyer Reaves, Middle Washington.

The captains were authorized to appoint as many workers as needed. The special gifts drive will get underway February 25 and the all out drive will begin March 1.

Two From Greenville Singing With Duke Glee Club On Tour

Two Greenville boys, Sam Northrup, Jr., and Paul B. Conway, are appearing with the famed Duke University Men's Glee Club during its longest tour in history which began February 15.

Celebrating a quarter-century of music, the Duke Glee Club will appear in concert in 18 cities throughout the East from New York to Miami. Included in the tour will be a nationwide broadcast over the NBC network March 29 and a CBS national television show March 31.

The two Greenville boys appearing with the glee club are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Northrop of 503 West Fifth Street, and Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Conway of 1510 East Fifth Street.

Blind Travelers Get Concessions

NEW YORK (AP)—A total of 12,116 rail and bus coupon books were issued in 1951 providing for rate concessions to blinded travelers, the American Foundation for the Blind reported.

The coupon books, issued by the foundation to legally blind persons, permits the blind person to take a sighted guide along on a trip at no extra cost. Guide dogs may also travel with their masters at no charge.

Fire Damages In Oxford Are High

3e BLAZE 17N S1049a 120
OXFORD (UP)—Estimates of damage in a fire that raged four firms in the business district here ranged today from $300,000 to more than $400,000.

Insurance adjusters surveyed the ruins of a supermarket, a feed supply store, a department store and a hardware store today. The blaze early yesterday was blamed on a trash box that caught fire in the rear of the big grocery.

New Department Store To Hold Grand Opening Here Tomorrow

Greenville's newest department store will open its doors for business tomorrow morning at nine o'clock. In the picture shown above, clerks and stockers are shown placing merchandise on counters in the firm's new store. The new store is located at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and Green Street. (Reflector Staff Photo by Roy Hardee).

Collins - Pridmore Department Store, the latest addition to Greenville's array of fine stores, will celebrate its grand opening here tomorrow morning.

The new department store will open for business in the renovated, completely modernized building which formerly was occupied by Young's Mercantile company in the 600 block of Dickinson Avenue.

The new store has been furnished with the most modern furniture and fixtures to blend with the pastel shades of the color scheme of the interior of the store. It will carry a general line of merchandise for men, women and children and house furnishings.

Robert G. Pridmore, president of Collins - Pridmore stores, will manage the new department store in Greenville. Pridmore is a native of Gaffney, S. C., and prior to coming to Greenville to prepare for the opening of the new store here was one of the executive officers in the Collins - Pridmore store of Lenoir.

Pridmore has been associated with the Collins Department store chain since 1941 and prior to that time he was engaged in scientific research for the American Petch Institute in Washington, D. C. He is a graduate of Clemson College. Pridmore married the former Miss Kathleen Collins of Spartanburg, S. C., sister of Harold A. Collins who is president of the Collins Department Store chain. Mr. and Mrs. Pridmore have one son, Bobby, 11, and are making their home at 121 Woodlawn Avenue, in Greenville. They are members of the First Presbyterian Church of Greenville, and Mr. Pridmore is a member of the Masonic Lodge and a Shriner. Before coming to Greenville Pridmore was vice president of the Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association of Lenoir and a member of the Lenoir Kiwanis club.

Negotiations for the new Collins-Pridmore store in Greenville began several months ago, and early in January work was begun on the renovation of the building which the new department store occupies. For the past week managers of the 11 other department stores affiliated with the Collins organization have been in Greenville making preparations for the opening of the new store along with other officials of the organization.

The Collins organization, founded and headed by its President Harold Collins, for some time has been successfully operating stores in Whiteville, Wallace, Elizabethtown, Chadbourne, Bladenboro and Lum berton, North Carolina, and in Mullins and Wallhalla, South Carolina. Collins is the son of the late John D. Collins who operated a store in Rockingham, North Carolina before going to Spartanburg, S. C., in the late 1890's.
