Post Guard Over Pond Of Gasoline

Twelve Thousand Gallons Of Gasoline In Street Of Iowa Town; Area Roped Off; Officials Hopeful Evaporation Will Be Accomplished In Week

SHELDON, Ia. (UP)—Fire and police officials today stood watch to prevent a spark from touching off a 12,000-gallon pond of gasoline three blocks from Sheldon's main street and less than a block from the nearest homes.

Fire Chief Zane Hudson said it would be at least a week before the danger is past.

"Slow" orders were issued to all Illinois Central Railroad trains passing through town because the tracks are only a few yards from the pond. It was feared a spark from an engine might ignite the fuel.

The greatest danger was from fumes, and firemen sprayed the surface of the gasoline with high-pressure fog to reduce the vapors.

The entire area was roped off to keep unauthorized and curious persons from approaching the pond. Policemen stood guard to hold back anyone who might try to come too close.

The pond formed Thursday night when a 12,000-gallon gasoline storage tank burst a seam while it was being loaded from a transport truck.

The tank was equipped with a gauge to indicate the amount of fuel in it.

Authorities said the gauge apparently was frozen and did not indicate the tank was full. Those loading the tank continued pumping until the seam burst.

Gasoline rushed out, forcing the split open to a width of almost six inches halfway around the tank. At the same time, the bottom of the tank was wrenched from its supports and gasoline flowed from the opening.

The tank was empty before any steps could be taken to halt the flow of the fuel.

The pond collected around the bases of the tanks and gasoline spread over an area of about half a block.

Officials hoped for clear weather to hasten the evaporation of the fuel. For a time, plans were considered for pumping the gasoline into other tanks, but this latter was abandoned as impractical.

Homes Destroyed In Jet Accident

PUSAN, Korea (UP)—An Allied jet plane hit a high tension wire in a South Korean village today, fell and started a fire which destroyed 17 houses.

The pilot and 15 civilians were killed. Eight other civilians were injured. The accident occurred in Kimhae, 20 miles North of Pusan. Damage was estimated at $50,000.

Track Is Cleared At Wreck Site

WILSON (UP)—Trains were running again today on a stretch of track four miles North of here after Atlantic Coast Line Railroad workmen cleared the debris of a derailment yesterday.

No one was injured as 20 freight cars of a 96-car Northbound train jumped the track. Several hundred feet of track were ripped up and a few wooden cars smashed.

Strong Grip Of Small Business In U. S. Economy 'Encouraging'

By ROGER W. BABSON BABSON PARK, Fla. — "Good morning, Mr. Babson, — I've saved for you the newspapers you usually order. And, will you please tell your wife that the breakfast food she mentioned has come in, — in case she still is interested. — As long as you and I (together with some tens-of-thousands of other folks) want that personal, neighborly, friendly service, we must remain incurably optimistic on the future of small business in America.

What is "Smallness"? Let us ever remember that vast size is no omen of huge success. Who was that spindly-shanked champion pugilist of a bygone era who voiced the deathless dictum: "The bigger they come, the harder they fall?" Bob Fitzsimmons, if I recollect aright. Other philosophers of equal eminence would want to remind us that bones of extinct and childless mastodons did right well down through the ages; and their myriad descendants today are still on the job and someday may exterminate Man himself.

Says RFC Loan Not Affected By Redden Activities

Banker Insists $25,000 In IOUs Had Nothing To Do With Getting Loan

WASHINGTON (UP)—Banker Harry R. Playford insisted today that the $25,000 in IOUs he gave Rep. Monroe M. Redden and his brother had "nothing to do" with getting an RFC loan.

The Justice Department is investigating the loan, but refused to comment beyond saying that the FBI is looking into the transaction.

Playford, chairman of the First National Bank of St. Petersburg, Fla., said the notes represented "brokerage fees" to the North Carolina Democrat for arranging the sale of the Skyland Processing Corp. to him.

Redden said yesterday that he and his brother, Arthur J. Redden, received the "IOUs" from Playford. He also said the money represented "brokerage fees" for the sale of the frozen foods processing plant in his home town of Hendersonville, N. C., to Playford.

Shortly after the sale, the North Carolina firm received a $460,000 loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corp. The company subsequently went broke and still owes on the government loan. An RFC official said it could not be determined immediately how much the company owes.

Playford said in St. Petersburg he "presumed" the RFC knew about the brokerage fees to Redden when he made the loan application.

He said there was nothing suspicious about the fact that the firm went into receivership after it got the loan. Presumably referring to the Justice Department, he said: "They already have found that out."

Redden also "welcomed" an investigation of the "facts" of the loan, and added: "I defy anyone to show in any way that I profited one cent or received one cent, directly or indirectly, in connection with this loan."

Redden, who previously had announced his retirement from Congress at the end of this session, acknowledged that he was listed as one of the firm's attorneys in Playford's application for an RFC loan. But he said he had not acted as a lawyer for the firm in the loan transaction and that Playford was only recording the fact that he employed the Redden law firm on a general retainer basis.

Redden said that before the Skyland firm was sold to Playford, he had written to the RFC board of directors protesting against its "exacting and unfair" conditions for a loan to the company. He served notice, that, as a member of Congress, he would "strive to get rid of men who are seeking to destroy the businesses of America in this fashion."

Redden said he and his brother received only $1,250 each on the "IOUs"—part of it after the RFC loan was granted. He expressed confidence, however, that the remainder of the notes would be paid and that the RFC would collect all of the $460,000 loan.

... And A Tag For Shotgun, Too!

Pals, George Goughly, 10, and "Shotgun," a fawn colored Cocker some years younger, display their A-Bomb identification tags issued to them by Atlanta, Ga., Civil Defense authorities. Seems George (Pup) Phillips, Atlanta's director of civilian defense, was mailing out tags to school kids, but was stopped when he came to the name "Shotgun," with proper address but no age or last name. Investigating he learned that "Shotgun" was the pal of a small Negro boy who had enclosed an extra 15 cents so his dog could be identified in the event of an A-bomb attack. (AP Photo).

Two Men Wounded In Violent Outburst

Rifle-Shooting Bell Arthur Man Talked Out Of Further Shooting From Barricaded House By Officers

BELL ARTHUR—Violence approaching riot squad proportions flared up in Bell Arthur last night as Lyman Nichols, 43-year-old white man, shot two men down with a rifle and then barricaded himself in his house.

Around 10 o'clock last night, officers said, Nichols shot Dorsey Baker and Robert Nanney, also white, through the knees with a 22 calibre rifle, and after officers were called, shut himself in a back room of his home and threatened to shoot anyone who entered.

He shot through the door two or three times, an officer stated, and kept shouting, "You've got nothing to lose if you kill me, but I'll kill any of you. I'll get the gas chamber." It was reported that Nichols was drinking heavily at the time of the shooting.

According to officers' statements, they continued to talk to Nichols from outside the house for some time, and at last persuaded him to (Continued on page eight)

Finish Hearings On Missing Ship

SEATTLE (UP)—The Coast Guard has ended hearings into the causes of the sinking of the freighter Pennsylvania which went down Jan. 9 in a North Pacific storm.

"Heavy storms in the North Pacific no doubt sealed the fate of the States Steamship Co. freighter and her 46 crewmen," said Capt. A. L. Dickert yesterday. Dickert served as head of the inquiry board.

Every piece turned out had to pass severe inspection, and delivery schedules had to be met without fail. This incident significantly shows how success is being won by businessmen who rate small in number-of-employees and dollar assets, but rate big in talent, and personal industry. Demonstrations like that — look around for yourself and find many others — prove better than mere cold figures and logical theories that the roots of economic success go far deeper than dollar capital.

True: You cannot run a business without Capital. False: Capital is measured only in terms of cash in the till, bank balances, and securities. Given intelligence, initiative, and continuous personal application, any man or woman can "capitalize" skill, patience, diplomacy, good taste, or other intangible but valuable resources. Thousands of potential winners have quit dismally — or failed even to start — because obsessed by the Dollar Delusion. They think only of going to their Bank, instead of their Church, for the needed "Capital." Abraham Lincoln, I believe, was the keen observer who noted that "God must have loved the common people, because He made so many of them." In all reverence, we may conclude that the preponderance of smaller concerns is a testimony to their enduring importance and perpetuity.

Seventh Jet Ace In History Gets Title Over Korea

Louisiana Sabrejet Pilot Gets Fifth Kill; UN Air Losses Talled

By EARNEST HOBEBRECHT United Press Staff Correspondent TOKYO (UP)—Maj. William T. Whisner of Shreveport, La., shot down his fifth Communist MIG-15 jet fighter today to become history's seventh jet ace.

Flying a Sabrejet, Whisner blasted the Russian-built plane from the sky in a dogfight between 36 Sabres and 40 MIG's just South of the Yalu River in northwest Korea. A tabulation of official figures showed that it was the 36th enemy since the start of the Korean war. U. N. losses so far have totalled 1,153 planes, all but 17 of them American.

Two other MIG's were damaged during today's air battle. Whisner scored his fifth "kill" when he went to the aid of a fellow pilot of the 51st Wing, Maj. Don E. Adams of Mount Clements, Mich., whose plane had been hit and was unable to evade a pursuing MIG.

"We were patrolling South of the Yalu when I heard Adams call for help," said Whisner. "I went in, firing all the way, until I was within 600 feet of the MIG. There was an explosion in his engine and a big puff of smoke came out of his tailpipe."

"I stayed on his tail until the pilot popped his canopy and bailed out. Then I joined Adams and covered him until he got safely back to the base."

Said Adams: "I'm sure glad Whiz picked today to make that ace's rating. It really felt good to get that MIG off my tail."

The aerial score for the Korean war was tallied as action both on the ground and in the air slumped.

A brief 8th Army communique reported only "light patrol" contact along the 145-mile ground front.

Official reports broke down Allied aerial losses this way: U. S. Navy, including shore-based Marines, 654 planes. U. S. Air Force—484 planes. Non-U. S. United Nations units—15 planes.

More than half the planes lost by the U. S. Navy were shot down by the enemy, however. Of the 654 total, 361 were listed as "operational losses." These included planes which crashed in hazardous landings on aircraft carriers.

In the Air Force, 58 planes were lost in dogfights, 395 were shot down by Communist ground fire and 31 were lost to other causes.

The combat losses comprised 194 jet planes and 259 propeller-driven aircraft.

Far East Air Force headquarters said Communist losses well be above the 361 officially listed. It pointed out that many of the 102 enemy planes listed as probably destroyed and 451 damaged well may have crashed before they reached their home bases.

Medal of Honor To Dead Officer

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Army today awarded the Medal of Honor to 2nd Lt. Jerome A. Sudut, Wausau, Wis., who lost his life in a single-handed assault on an enemy stronghold in Korea.

The 23-year-old platoon leader of the 25th Infantry Division had received a battlefield commission just one month before he performed the deed which won him the nation's highest military award.

Reds File Bitter Protest Over Prisoner 'Massacre'

Bankers Stage One-Day Session; Elect Officers

C. C. Simpson, Of Farmville, New Vice Chairman; Jenkins And Butler Speak; Meeting Said 'Biggest Yet'

More than 300 bankers of eastern North Carolina gathered in Greenville yesterday for the annual meeting of Group One of the North Carolina Bankers Association. The one-day meeting was highlighted by a business session yesterday afternoon at which Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, dean of East Carolina College, was the principal speaker, and a banquet last night at which James W. Butler, alumni secretary of East Carolina College, delivered the principal address.

New officers elected by Group One at the afternoon business meeting were Wyatt R. Aydielt of Elizabeth City, chairman; C. C. Simpson of Farmville, vice chairman; and Frederick A. Arthur of Washington, secretary-treasurer.

Butler in his address last night urged the bankers to put more emphasis on their public relations programs and to sell the "Miracle of democracy" at the grass roots where it is most needed. The speaker admonished the bankers to remember their obligations to the public not only as businessmen, but also as good citizens of the United States. At the same time he asked out at the underhand activities which have been widespread in the federal government.

"Never before have we had a better opportunity to stabilize the thinking of the American people than today," Butler declared. "America is a real miracle and we need to tell our people about this great miracle. We need to tell the people it is time to end dealing favors out of the pockets in Washington. We should end government banking on the basis of bossism buddies. We must sell the people that business is not bad simply because it is big."

Butler asserted that a cleanup in the federal government will only ease the deep rooted disease from which the nation is suffering unless more concrete steps are taken to remove the disease. "The problem of good ethics in government is not one of rewriting a code of ethics or a new copy of the ten commandments," Butler said.

"The answer is for businessmen to take time to point the way to sound government that can be developed from the grass roots all the way up to the capital. This country developed out of the contributions of the people who did not have the concept of 'let Washington do it.'"

Dr. Jenkins in his address yesterday afternoon discussed the problems of education which are being faced by the schools of the country and urged the bankers to lend their support to solving these problems. He cited a number of the problems the schools are facing from the public and the public attitude toward schools, and asserted that some of the educational associations are being attacked unfairly from without.

John W. Overton of Greenville, chairman of Group One for the past year said the annual meeting of the bankers here yesterday was the largest in the history of the group and "definitely the most successful meeting we have ever had."

Distinguished guests of the group at the meeting included Wiley Meares, president of the North Carolina Bankers Association, Joe Wolf, executive secretary of the association, W. W. Jones, state banking commissioner and others.

Wilkinson Named As Delegate To GOP Convention

WASHINGTON, N. C. (AP)—John A. Wilkinson, an ardent supporter of Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) for President, last night was named the first congressional district's delegate to the Republican national convention.

Although uninvited, Wilkinson stated flatly "after his election 'in for Taft.'"

Wilkinson, whose home is here, was the Republican nominee for the U. S. Senate in 1948. He is the first national convention delegate chosen by Tar Heel Republicans, who will have 26 votes at the national convention.

Clarence Dozier of Elizabeth City was chosen Republican nominee for Congress in the first district. Wheeler Martin of Martin County was named an alternate national convention delegate.

Seize On Internment Camp Riot To Inject New Issue In Truce Talks; Demand Accounting On Other Prisoners; Yield To United Nations On Troop Rotation

By LEROY HANSEN United Press Staff Correspondent PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—Communist negotiators yielded to the Allies on troops rotation today, but injected a new issue into the truce talks with a bitter protest against "massacre" of 69 Reds in the Koje internment camp.

The break in the troop rotation deadlock came in staff officer talks on supervision of a truce. The Reds bowed to United Nations demands for rotation of at least 35,000 troops a month during a truce after refusing for more than a week to go above 30,000.

The agreement removed one more obstacle to an armistice, but the "massacre" protest in the talks on prisoners threatened new delays.

Communist Col. Tsai Chen Wen lodged what he called a "serious protest" against the killing of 69 Communist civilian internees and wounding of 142 others by American security forces in a riot in a camp on Koje Island Monday.

The Red internees, armed with clubs and knives, killed one American soldier and wounded 23 others, before U. S. troops restored order.

Tsai said the American troops had "barbarously massacred" the civilian internees. He demanded a "clear account for the slaughter."

The Communist officer said the riot proved "the utter bankruptcy of your absurd principle of so-called voluntary repatriation."

He implied that the Communists involved actually were Red soldiers captured by the Allies and released as civilians in an attempt to deny them eventual repatriation.

Tafogs, demanded an accounting of the 44,000 Communist prisoners who he said have been reclassified as South Koreans or civilians by the U. N. Col. George Hickman said the Allies were prepared to give the accounting and asked the Reds to reciprocate with a full report on some 50,000 missing U. N. war prisoners.

Despite the bitter tone of the protest, Hickman said Tsai showed no sign of anger as he read it. The result of the exchange appeared to be a strengthening of the Communist determination to hold out for repatriation of all war prisoners and internees.

The Reds subsequently accepted six paragraphs of a U. N. draft on a prisoner exchange. All dealt with previously agreed technical arrangements. The Communists, as expected, balked at two other paragraphs which would permit prisoners to refuse repatriation if they wished.

Despite the agreement on troop rotation in the truce supervision meeting, the delegations still were divided on the number of ports through which the rotation would take place. The Allies demanded six ports and the Communists refused to go above five.

The deadlock over the Communists' nomination of Russia as the sixth "neutral" nation to police the truce also continued.

Pitt Democratic Committee Holds Dinner Meeting

The Pitt County Democrat Executive Committee held a dinner meeting at Respos Brothers Barbecue House today at 12 o'clock.

County Chairman John G. Clark announced this morning that the purpose of the meeting is to decide who will serve on the county Board of Elections.

"We will choose three men," Clark said, "whose names will be sent to the state chairman. He will select two and approve them for service on the Pitt County Board of Elections."

"Only two of the three men selected today may serve," Clark stated.

Will Be Tried Friday

WENDEL (UP)—Three Knightdale men charged with malicious trespass, in burning a cross in a farmer's yard will be tried in recorder's court here Friday.

The subcommittee probed a wide range of subjects yesterday in continuing its efforts to locate waste and duplication in the military establishment. It will continue hearings next Wednesday, with Karl R. Bendisen, assistant secretary of the Army, as the main witness.

The subcommittee contends that many purchasing practices, including the two billion dollar annual clothing program, mean expensive duplication.

William B. Umstead, former U. S. Senator and candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor of North Carolina, will speak before a joint meeting of Rotary and Kiwanis clubs in Farmville Monday evening in the high school lunchroom.

Will Discuss New Church At Meeting Tuesday Night

On Tuesday night at 7:30 a meeting will be held at the Rotary Club to discuss the prospect of organizing a second Methodist Church in Greenville.

This movement has been proposed by the North Carolina Methodist Conference and has been heartily endorsed by many of the members of Jarvis Memorial who believe that there is a need for another Methodist church in the city.

Present for the meeting will be the Rev. H. K. King, district superintendent from New Bern, who will help to guide the discussion and who will be available for consultation.

It has long been felt by some of the interested persons that a more convenient place for worship from the congestion of the downtown area was needed. It has been suggested also that a new church would bring into a worshipping group many who are not now identified with Jarvis Memorial and that a smaller group would tend to encourage and develop additional leaders in a church organization.

The matter has been given careful consideration by a committee which was appointed by the Board of Stewards of Jarvis Memorial in November, 1951. They are calling the meeting on Tuesday night for the purpose of exploring the sentiments of the people in this matter. This committee is composed of H. J. McGinnis, chairman, D. H. Conley, J. B. Kittrell, V. C. Fleming Jr., and Dr. W.M.B. Brown.

All interested persons, whether members of the present Methodist church or not, are invited to attend this meeting.

To Take Part In Nat'l Symposium

Mrs. Dorothy W. Perkins, who directs work in special education in the department of education at East Carolina College, has accepted an invitation to participate in a symposium at Hunter College, New York City, on the Education of the Exceptional. The meeting is scheduled for February 25-28.

Mrs. Perkins' selection as a member of the symposium comes as recognition of her leadership in the field of special education. During the meeting she will participate in discussions on the training of teachers for special education.

The event, sponsored by Hunter College with the cooperation of other colleges and universities, will be the first college symposium on the education of the exceptional. Among objectives will be a consideration of major problems in teacher education and selection. Those present will also survey the training programs of such professional workers as guidance counselors, psychologists, visiting teachers, social workers, administrators, supervisors, and auxiliary personnel in the field of the education of the exceptional.

In Memoriam After bidding her family an affectionate good-night on February 10, 1952, how beautiful it was that there was: "No mourning of the Bar. When SHE put out to sea. But such a tide as moving seems asleep. Too full for sound and foam. When that which drew from out the boundless deep Turns again Home." In the homeing of Mrs. Florence W. Jones, the George B. Singletary Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy lost a devoted, loyal and consecrated member. She lived in Greenville for eight years, while her husband, Rev. H. Frederick Jones, was pastor of Memorial Baptist Church, and while here, she served ably as president of the George B. Singletary Chapter for several years.

She exemplified the true Christian spirit through her many services to mankind, and while we mourn her loss, we thank God for the inspiration of her life of service among us. She was a devoted wife, a wonderful mother and a true and loyal friend.

We extend to the members of her family our deepest sympathy and commend them to the love and care of our Heavenly Father.

Club Discusses Hearing Clinic

Led by Dr. Melvin Hoot, the local Exchange club discussed plans last night at its meeting for an Exchange club sponsored program of testing children in the local schools to find those defective of hearing.

It was brought out that programs of this kind is the national project of Exchange clubs throughout the nation. Plans for obtaining the necessary equipment for testing were discussed and the club voted to refer the matter to the Aims committee of the club for study and report.

"Many children in our schools today who are considered 'dull,'" Dr. Hoot stated, "are simply suffering from hearing defects. They can't hear what is being said, and as a result lose interest." By proper testing the children can be given remedial treatment which is very effective during childhood but hard to correct in an adult, he said.

According to Dr. Hoot, many people have suffered both complete blindness and complete deafness and have stated that given their choice for return of one of the senses, it would be hearing.

"I have never seen an unhappy blind person in 17 years of work with the blind and the deaf," Hoot said, "and I have never seen but one totally deaf person who was happy. Totally deaf people have suspicions that other people are talking about them, and tend to turn inward, becoming introverts."

Hoot said little work is being done in the local schools and a program of testing the children is greatly needed.

Jaycees Attend Raleigh Meeting

A delegation of Greenville Jaycees left this morning for Raleigh to represent the local organization at the Third Quarterly Board Meeting to be held to day and tomorrow at the Sir Walter Hotel.

Heading the Greenville delegation will be Jaycee President Dan Saled, accompanied by Mrs. Rouse and Mrs. Rouse also made the trip.

Other Greenville Jaycees and their wives who left today to attend the two-day meeting are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wheeler; Mr. and Mrs. Gene Gordon; Mr. and Mrs. Bob Russ and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dale.

Scheduled to be at the Raleigh meeting are state presidents from Virginia, Tennessee and South Carolina, and the national Jaycee vice-president.

Executive Committee meetings will be held today and tomorrow, and the Board of Directors will meet tomorrow morning at 9 a. m. All visiting Jaycees will be entertained at a banquet tonight from 9:00 to 12:00, and will gather for a banquet tomorrow at 1 p. m. in the hotel.

The Greenville delegation will have a room in the Sir Walter as convention headquarters, and most of the local group and their wives will stay in the hotel, Ben Rouse said this morning.

Mark Twain's Story Of Tom Sawyer Chosen For Annual Children's Play

Mark Twain's "Tom Sawyer" has been chosen by the Teachers Playhouse of East Carolina College as their annual spring production for school children of Pitt County. The classic of American boyhood, in a dramatization by Charlotte Chorpennig, will be presented in six performances April 2 through April 9 before audiences expected to reach a total of 3,500 young people.

As in former years, the annual children's play will be presented under the auspices of the Greenville Chapter of the American Association of University Women. Dr. Lucile H. Charles, director of dramatic arts in the department of English at East Carolina, will direct the play. Mrs. C. A. Bowen of Greenville heads the advisory committee of the AAUW.

Lloyd Whitfield of Kinston, president of the Teachers Playhouse, will have the title role of Tom Sawyer. Wade Jordan of Edenton is cast as Huck Finn; Peggy Barrow of Greenville, as Becky Thatcher; Janet Waters of Greenville, as Aunt Polly; and Garland Jackson of Mt. Olive, as Injun Joe. Other members of the cast will soon be announced.

Ralph Rives of Enfield, as student director of "Tom Sawyer," will be assisted by Bobbie Caldwell of Wadeville, Wade Jordan of Edenton and Norwood Elliott of Chapin. He has been chosen as technical director, and Garland Jackson of Mt. Olive and Percy Wilkins of Benson as business managers. A large staff of students will be engaged in work on such aspects of production as scenery design, lighting, costuming, and make-up.

Performances have been scheduled so that all school children of Pitt County will have an opportunity to see "Tom Sawyer." Matinees will be given in the College Theatre, Wednesday and Thursday, April 2 and 3, for pupils in Greenville schools; and on Monday and Tuesday, April 7 and 8, for pupils in county schools.

A performance Wednesday afternoon, April 9, for Negro children of the city will be presented in the Eppes School in Greenville.

Officers Learn 'Toy' Bomb Was Really Loaded

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UP)—Military and police authorities today checked the origin of a 16-inch practice bomb—used as a plaything by a 13-year-old boy here for more than a year.

The authorities were called when young Danny Thompson and a playmate began to dismantle the bomb and found it was loaded with a heavy and active charge of dynamite.

The boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Thompson, told authorities the bomb was given to him by his grandmother, Mrs. Anna Darrington. She said she found it when she moved into her home a year ago.

"It looked just like a toy," said Danny.

An evening performance in the College Theatre Monday, April 7, will be open to college students and the public.

Three Members Initiated Into Eastern Star Group

On Tuesday night, February 19, at the Masonic Temple Mrs. Louise Lewis, Mrs. Florence Scott and Mrs. Florence Batman became members of the Greenville Chapter 149, Order of the Eastern Star, in a most impressive ceremony.

The meeting was opened by the Worthy Matron, Mrs. Keith Downing Cain. Flags were beautifully presented by the flag bearers, Mesdames Martha Forrest, Lillie Dell Briley, Mary Freeland and Ethel Allen. Allegiance was pledged to the American flag and the national anthem was sung.

Mr. George Parker, District Deputy Grand Patron, was introduced and welcomed by the Worthy Matron.

The business session followed and was concluded with the initiation ceremony. For the good of the Order, the Worthy Matron talked briefly of George Washington, who was a Mason, and the great moral purposes for which he stood. After the singing of America the Star Points, in a brief but significant ceremony, paid tribute to the American flag. The Marshall gave the history of Old Glory and traced the changes which had taken place in her design since her beginning. The entire group joined in singing "God Bless America" and the program was closed by Mrs. Lucille Cox, who gave an inspiring message on National Brotherhood Week.

The Worthy Matron welcomed the several guests who were here from Farmville, Goldsboro and Charlotte. She thanked Mr. Parker for helping with the ceremony.

At the close of the meeting, delicious refreshments were served in the dining room. The table, which carried out the patriotic motif, was centered with a very colorful George Washington cherry tree. This was flanked with the American flag on one side and the Eastern Star flag on the other. Individual cherry pies, salted nuts and hot coffee filled the plates from which tiny American flags waved.

The hostesses were Mesdames Lillie Dell Briley, Ethel Allen, Rubelle Byrum, Jennie Stokes, Hilda Laughinghouse, Lela Williams, Pauline Whitehurst, Thelma Stokes, Mary Freeland, Mary Ross, Louella Stancill and Hugh Sawyer.

College Students Give Party For Fifth Grade

Friday marked the last day of teaching for the student teachers from East Carolina College who were working with the children in the city schools.

Some of the teachers celebrated their last day with special treats for the children. The pupils in the fifth grade taught by Mrs. Elsie Eagan were treated to a George Washington party by their student teachers, Frances Long, Burma Tunstall and Nina Stillman.

Just at 2:30 the teachers came in bearing attractive trays with cups of ice cream, red cookies in the shape of hatchets and cups of salted nuts. The pupils greeted the surprise by bursting spontaneously into a song appropriate for the occasion.

The room party was in accordance not only with the day but also in keeping with a unit of study which the group had been pursuing.

On Monday of next week a new set of teachers will be present to assume duties during the spring quarter.

40 Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
February 23, 1912

That the boys of Greenville hold a place in the interest of the people was shown in the large audience that gathered in the courthouse Friday night at the Boy Scouts mass meeting. Yet the fact that a large majority of this audience were women shows that woman is the boy's best friend.

It was an interesting meeting and gave the boys a real uplift in their work. The scouts met at the drill hall and after a short drill on the street marched to the courthouse. They were greeted with applause as they filed in their places within the bar.

Assistant Scoutmaster W. T. Lipscomb Jr. explained the organization of the Boy Scouts and called on several of the boys, each of whom spoke briefly on some principle of the organization. These were as follows:

Honor—D. J. Whichard Jr.
Obedience—R. L. Humber Jr.
Self-Respect—Chandler Zahnizer
Faithfulness—Ferral Burch
Loyalty—Richard King

"The Future of Our Boys" was the subject of a splendid short speech by Mr. P. C. Harding. He said the manhood and womanhood of a community are the units that make the nation.

Scoutmaster C. M. Rock then made a statement of what the boys had done unaided toward equipping their quarters, and that they were in need of help to equip as they and the total amounted to some over a hundred dollars. The boys were delighted.

Oil Paintings Of Art Students On Display At ECC

Nine students of art at East Carolina College are exhibiting their oil paintings in the college library February 22-March 8. The young men and women are students of Francis Lee Neel of the art faculty at the college, and all are beginners in the study of oil painting.

Approximately thirty canvases are on display. Mr. Neel has announced. Landscapes, abstractions, and still life studies from the works of the young artists are included in the exhibition.

Those whose paintings were chosen for the art show at the college library are: Harriet C. Conart, Greenville; Dorothy Nell Henderson, Greenville; William McWilliams, Aurora; Nell E. Murphy, Henderson; Joan C. Edwards, Wilmington; India Wright, Halifax; Lois C. Patterson, Vanceboro; Dahlia Pendergraft, Portsmouth, Va.; and Howard P. Williams, Elm City.

Red Cross Meet Set In Grifton

Dr. Leo H. Jenkins will speak to Red Cross workers of the Grifton community Monday evening at 7:30 in the school cafeteria.

The meeting will be open to the public.

Hoover Taft, president of the Pitt County Red Cross chapter, will be present to outline workings of the "Bloodmobile."

Limestone is used in blast furnaces to combine with and carry off the slag.

Local Lodge Will Be School's Host

Greenville Lodge 284, A F & AM will be host to a School of Instruction for the Fifth Masonic District, on Monday and Tuesday evenings, February 25th and 26th, at the Masonic Temple.

A large number of masons from all over the district are expected to attend the school which will exemplify the ritualistic work of the order. The school will be conducted under the direction of Sam D. Bundy, Farmville, district deputy grand master for the fifth district, and Mr. Henry Carawan, Sr., Washington, district deputy grand lecturer for the third and fifth masonic districts. The sessions will begin at 7:00 P.M. each evening.

On Monday evening the Bethel lodges will exemplify the Entered Apprentice and Fellowcraft Degrees, with Greenville lodge exemplifying the Master Mason Degree on Tuesday evening.

In announcing the school the master of Greenville Lodge, Harold E. Alder, issued a cordial invitation for all Master Masons in the district to attend.

In Memoriam

After bidding her family an affectionate good-night on February 10, 1952, how beautiful it was that there was:

"No mourning of the Bar. When SHE put out to sea. But such a tide as moving seems asleep.

Too full for sound and foam. When that which drew from out the boundless deep Turns again Home."

In the homeing of Mrs. Florence W. Jones, the George B. Singletary Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy lost a devoted, loyal and consecrated member. She lived in Greenville for eight years, while her husband, Rev. H. Frederick Jones, was pastor of Memorial Baptist Church, and while here, she served ably as president of the George B. Singletary Chapter for several years.

She exemplified the true Christian spirit through her many services to mankind, and while we mourn her loss, we thank God for the inspiration of her life of service among us. She was a devoted wife, a wonderful mother and a true and loyal friend.

We extend to the members of her family our deepest sympathy and commend them to the love and care of our Heavenly Father.

Respectfully submitted, MRS. P. E. WELLS MRS. E. L. WILLARD

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENT Mr. and Mrs. William E. Hudson announce the birth of a daughter, Rebecca Dowdle, on February 20 in Pitt Memorial Hospital. Mrs. Hudson is the former Miss Katherine Davis of Little Rock, Ark.

Firemen Answer Three Calls In City Last Night

Greenville firemen answered calls to three fires in Greenville last night, all of which were of a minor nature.

Shortly before eight o'clock a call was received from the home of Walter Lee, 303 West Fourth Street when an oil stove became clogged up. However no damage resulted, firemen reported.

A box alarm was received at 11:10 last night when an oil stove in the home of Ed Ratcliff, 803 West Fourth Street exploded and filled the house with smoke. Firemen reported that heavy damage resulted from smoke but there was no fire loss.

An early morning call was received today from the College View Cleaners when a heating unit went out. No damage resulted.

Stepped-Up Air Activity Over City Recalls Field's Use In World War II

By MURIEL SHOTWELL
Reflector Staff Writer

The increased air activity in Greenville and vicinity helps take many people back to the days of World War II when the Marines used the local airport as an auxiliary field to the base at Cherry Point.

The airport here was first used during the last war for "bounce landing" practice with "Beechcraft," and then a part of the Second Marine Air Wing moved in and fighter planes and dive bombers were used. Today, the Pitt-Greenville Airport is being used as an auxiliary field to the air base at Kinston where Air Force cadets are being trained as pilots by the Serv-Air Corporation.

The Pitt-Greenville Airport Commission began negotiations with the Serv-Air Corporation last December and recently signed a non-exclusive agreement to use the airport as an auxiliary air base to train the students. The agreement was effective January 1, 1952, but activity at the airport did not start until a few weeks later.

Temporary
The local field is being used to train pilots in practice landings and take-offs and solo flights for the Air Force cadets. No personnel, either civilian or military, is stationed at the airport permanently in the operations by the corporation and Air Force.

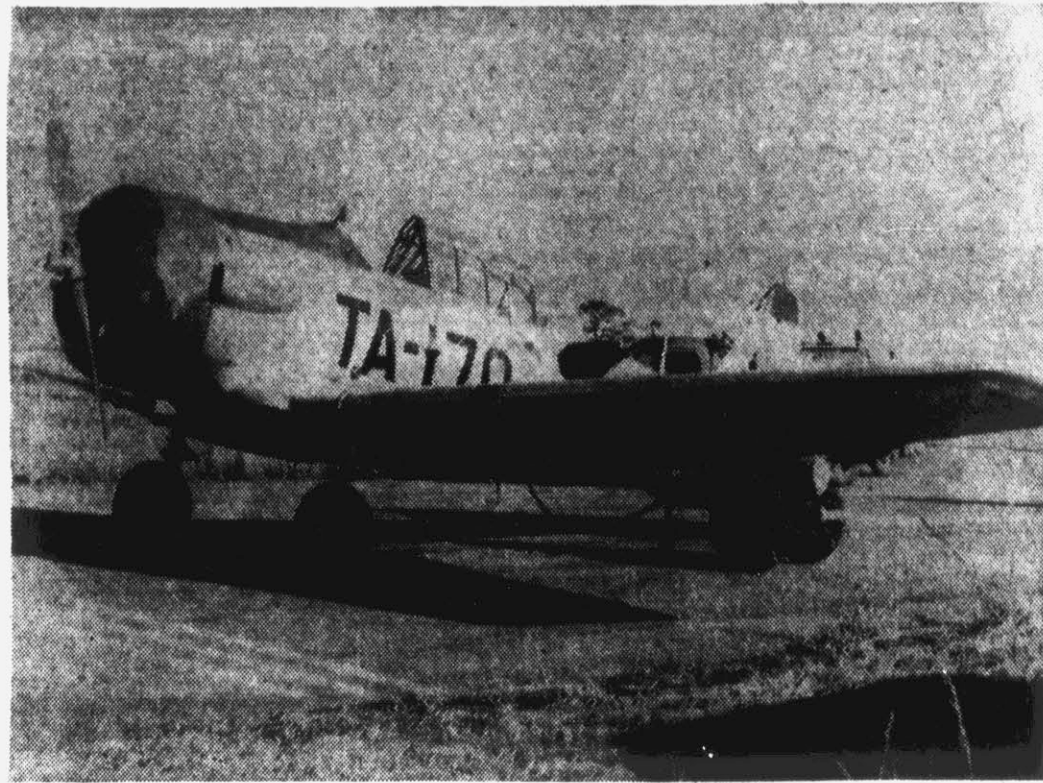

But whenever there is flying activity, an ambulance, fire truck and mobile radio control unit are stationed on the ground. Two men are stationed on the ambulance, two on the fire truck, and one on the radio unit. The pilots fly from the air base in Kinston to the field here with instructors, since no planes are stationed here overnight.

The average number of planes using the airport daily is eight, but on some days they total 10. During the last week, at least three students made solo flights daily. Only students who have had 25 hours in the air are allowed to solo.

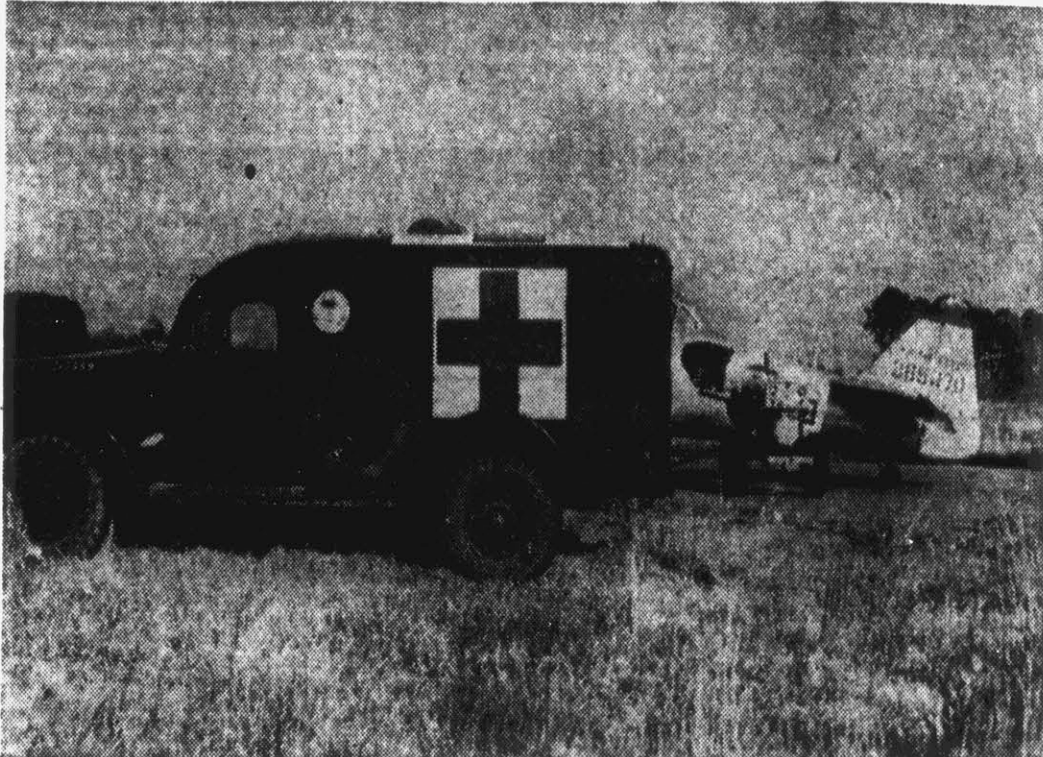

Normally flying takes place from the airport five days a week, Mondays through Fridays, but in event there is flying time lost because of bad weather conditions, the airport will be used on Saturdays and Sundays. The planes can usually be heard over the city from eight o'clock in the morning until five o'clock in the afternoon.

Traffic Patterns
When the airport was under consideration for use by the Air Force, traffic patterns were worked out so civilian flying could take place as usual. After several weeks of flying on the first traffic pattern, a number of complaints came from Greenville citizens on the disturbance made by the planes.

Another traffic pattern has been recently worked out which changed the right-hand traffic pattern on three runways. The prop-pitch was also changed at 100 feet to decrease the noise. Since there is a non-exclusive use agreement on the airport, there is no interruption of local air service; but officials recently stressed the importance of abiding by all conditions for the safety of all concerned.

A group of AT-6 training planes and crew members of the ambulance and fire truck stand behind one of the training planes used at the Pitt-Greenville Airport in training Air Force cadets.

Training Program
The Air Force cadets are trained by civilian instructors hired by the Serv-Air Corporation. The Serv-Air Corporation is a civil contractor which trains students for the Air Force. Mostly civilian personnel is used but under the supervision of the Air Force.

Whitney engines are 550-horsepower, are used for training the pilots. It is not an unfamiliar sight to see the silver planes streaking through the sky at all hours of the day. When the meteor, which was traveling along the Eastern Seaboard passed over the city Tuesday, many calls were received at the airport asking if a plane had crashed since the meteor resembled a flaming plane.

Truman Miller, head of the Serv-Air Corporation, said the airport here would be used for training primarily but the extensiveness of use would depend on the number of classes which come in to be trained at the Kinston Airport. Other auxiliary airports are set up at Washington and Wilson.

not organized like the football officials but it is expected to be some day.

But in addition to all the duties as mayor, and his hobby, Mayor Jones finds enough time to carry on a lively business in the office equipment field.

Other Activities
A past president of the Farmville Rotary Club, deacon in the Baptist Church, Sunday school teacher, Mason, and a member of the Southern Conference Officials organization just about rounds out the list of activities carried on by this Pitt. Countian.

Jones is well proud of his town which he serves and well he might be.

"We have a fairly low tax rate, of $130, which is kept down in part by the city owning its own power and water works from which revenue is collected to help run the city and make improvements," he said.

In the later part of the year, the city limits were extended, bringing in property meaning an increase in taxes of over $10,000 annually.

Another bright spot which the Farmville mayor can proudly point to is the fact that the city also maintains its own swimming pool and playground and golf course for the use of its citizens.

"Our recreation program is about the average for a town with only a population of 3,000," Jones pointed out.

In recent years, a new Boy and Girl Scout hut have been built and furnished for the use of the youngsters with a new building built by the American Legion. Another civic building is the well equipped DAR Home opened some few years ago.

Prior to the extension of its city limits last year, of the 16.4 miles of streets in the city; 13.8 of them were paved, a record which a town of any size might well be proud of.

Additional paving will be carried on in Farmville in the near future since the town received over $10,000 under the Powell Bill. Just how much paving will be done will depend on the costs.

"There is only one way to describe the local Fire Department and that is 'Terrific,'" states Mayor Jones. Fire losses in the city to date have been extra low, the records show.

Another feather in the cap of the Farmville firemen is the fact that they are the only city in North Carolina to ever have two presidents of the North Carolina Firemen's Association elected from its ranks. At the present time Haywood Smith is serving as Chief of the Volunteer Company.

Six large warehouses offer a lively tobacco business to the town, aided by the location of several big re-drying plants for processing of the golden weed after its sale in the city. The market has steadily gained in strength and maintains a high average each year.

If the average citizen was to just stop and think, then he would know that being a mayor, conducting a business and a near full-time hobby all at the same time requires the American know-how, and that surely is displayed by Farmville's mayor.

Valentine Party

On Thursday night, Feb. 14, Mrs. Abie Cleve and Mrs. Earl Cleve entertained with a Valentine-party and dance at the parish house in honor of Bobbie Walker and Robert Earl Cleve. During the evening the guests enjoyed games, contests and dancing. Refreshments consisting of sandwiches, cake, salted nuts and punch were served to approximately 45 in attendance.

M.Y.F. Party

Members of the Methodist Youth Fellowship of the Vanceboro Methodist Church combined business with pleasure Friday night when they held a "Hat Party" at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Bryan. Each person was asked to decorate an old hat to be sold at the party. The hats, wrapped in various kinds and styles of wrappings, were auctioned off to the highest bidder, with the purchaser wearing the hat during the party. The proceeds from the sale are to be used towards the purchase of a station wagon for the youth director in Durham. A prize for the most comical hat was won by the Rev. Alton P. Hill Jr. after the hat sale games were played and a song fest was held. Refreshments of assorted cookies, salted nuts and punch were served to approximately 35 members and guests.

Mrs. Wayne Bryan and Mrs. Oscar Taylor are M.Y.F. counselors. Miss Patsy Sammons played the piano and the hats were auctioned off by Calvin Miller.

Farmville's Mayor Is Kept Busy By Varied Interests

By ROY HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE—Serving as mayor of a growing city, carrying on an active business, topped off by directing a host of sports officials in his spare time as about the best way to introduce one of Pitt County's most active mayors who steps into the limelight this week.

The man in question is none other than Farmville's own Walter Jones, who is currently serving as mayor of this Pitt town of better than 3,000 population.

There is one problem which seems to bother a lot of folks, and that is not any reflection on his ability to do his various jobs; but just how in the world he manages to carry on all his duties with the efficiency that he does.

Farmville's number one citizen stepped into the city's first position in its city government in 1949 for his first term of office. His current term will expire in 1953. While Jones will not look too far into the future in reference to political ambitions in 1953, it seems pretty evident that the people around Farmville way will like to see him retain his job.

And a job it is! One might think that being the Mayor of a small town would be a simple task, but that is far from being so. Especially with a growing community such as Farmville which has already outgrown its old boundaries and is expanding in all directions.

In a small town, as in a larger one, people are going to see the mayor about this matter and that and under some conditions, the post would become a full time occupation.

In addition to handling the business matters of the city which fall to him, the Mayor acts as chairman of the board of commissioners which meets in regular session each second Tuesday of the month when the planning and work of the city is carried out.

One of the more important tasks which falls to the Mayor is that of holding Mayor's court each Monday. While the docket is not always crowded, at times several hours are needed to clear up the slate after which the Mayor must pass judgment. An average of about eight cases are tried each week the year 'round, Jones estimates. "It depends largely on the season of the year," the Mayor stated in checking over a few mental records.

Plans Changed
Jones, who was born in Fayetteville, completed grammar and high schooling in Cumberland County; he entered State College where he graduated in 1934 with a BS degree in school education.

There possibly came the change did not always make the first team or turning point in his life for at in sports, but that something about the time an "A" certificate earned the athletic life rubbed off on him a top pay of $80 monthly, which a man and wife could hardly live on. At this point, Jones turned to selling for an office equipment company working with them in various parts of the state.

His first post was in Edenton where he met his wife and married in April 1934. The family now boasts of two children, Dotdee, 16, and Walter 11.

The Jones family moved to Pitt County and Farmville in 1941 where they have been happily located ever since.

There again a change opened up a new field to the Mayor. Back in 1941 there was a serious shortage of officials to referee ball games in the eastern part of the state, and Walter entered the business on the side, purely as a hobby. This was in keeping with work which Jones wanted to do and had always wanted to do since he was in college and high school, he says.

While at school, he will admit he local organization whereby officials are furnished for teams in the immediate vicinity of Pitt County or nearby area. This organization is

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
BEGIN WITH US
There are many of us who believe that a religious revival has started in this country. But it has only started. The evidences of this revival are as follows: increased church attendance, the popularity of religious books, the utterances of national leaders in terms of religion, the rise of certain effective evangelists who appear to have shed some of the unpleasant attributes of the older evangelists. Most significant of all is the rise of groups—sometimes called cells—of praying religious persons throughout the country.

All this is fine but it is not enough. When the revival really strikes us, it will be like a hurricane. The Spirit will descend, and the population, from one end of our country to the other, will know that something of a prodigious nature has taken place. There will be conversion of people in high station and in low. The Church will take on new vigor.

The trouble with the present stage of the process is that seekers after spiritual blessings are not, for the most part, willing to admit that the problem with which they have to deal is old-fashioned sin centered right in their own hearts.

We are not called upon to reform the world. We are to allow God to reform us. He will attend to the reformation of the world.

Blood Is Coming Back To Pitt County

Pitt County is receiving valuable, life-saving dividends on the blood investment the people of the county have made in the two recent visits of the Red Cross bloodmobile.

During the past month Pitt Memorial hospital has used 101 pints of the life-giving fluid received free of charge from the blood bank in Norfolk. Pitt County citizens gave some 300 pints of blood when the bloodmobile visited Greenville and Farmville. In just a month one-third as much blood has been returned to Pitt County by the bank to use in saving the lives of local people.

The fact that people in Pitt County could donate their blood in large quantities to be used to save lives in itself is a worthwhile program. The fact that by so doing, the people of the county would enable their fellow-citizens to receive benefits from the store of blood from the blood bank makes it even more worthwhile. It gives the people of the county an opportunity to see here at home just how much their donations and thousands of others throughout the nation are doing to help people who are seriously ill.

Time For Work With The Sleeves Rolled Up

The Greenville Recreation Commission is ready to enter the second phase of the development of the recreation program of the city. The facilities needed for the expansion of the program can not be had in the near future, however, unless the people of the city get behind the project.

The city government of Greenville has implied repeatedly—if not bluntly said—it does not have sufficient funds to appropriate the capital outlay necessary for the development of the new playground areas and other facilities needed for better recreation.

If the organizations of the city are willing to throw their collective weight behind the expansion program for recreation and accept responsibilities as individual groups for specific parts of the expansion program, it should not be many months before new facilities are ready for use by the youngsters and adults of the city.

Of course the city government is expected to cooperate in the expansion not only through the Recreation Commission, but likewise directly as the board of aldermen. City equipment will have to be used in some of the work and also employes of the city departments probably will be called on to throw their efforts behind the expansion of recreation facilities.

Without the direct support of the various organizations of Greenville, the Recreation Commission and the government proper would be able to develop only a part of the proposed expansion program between now and the beginning of the summer months. With the active support of the various local organizations, it should be not too difficult a task to complete the second phase of the expansion program by the summer months.

The city recreation program has made great strides during the past nine months, and it has received fine support from some of the local organizations and some of the individual citizens. Now if the second, and larger, expansion program is to be carried out without too much delay, the support of all the organizations and all the individuals is needed.

The recreation program is certainly worthy of all the support the organizations and individual citizens of the city can give it.

Another Choice Bit For Red Propagandists

The Communists this week were handed another piece of truth which they will wrap into valuable propaganda material.

Doubtlessly the communist-led riot in an internecine compound off the Japanese mainland will be labeled by the Communists as cold blooded killings and other fabricated atrocity stories will be produced by the Communists out of the incident.

The uprising and the 70 deaths which it caused is a regrettable incident. Communist propaganda will make the most of it.

The truth behind the matter very likely is that the Communists instigated the riot for two reasons: 1) to prevent the questioning of civilian prisoners about repatriation; and 2) to gain another valuable piece of propaganda to use on the people of Asia against the United States and the United Nations.

At least the Americans told of the incident, in spite of the Communist propaganda which they knew would follow. Unfortunately, however, the people of Asia and the world probably will never know how many thousands of Korean civilians the Communists have slain in cold blood during the Korean war.

National Whirligig

Every Saturday this veteran Washington correspondent devotes his column to answering readers' questions of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent direct to Ray Tucker at 6308 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON—It seems to be the general opinion of the politicians that Senator Kefauver has no chance for the Democratic nomination for President, writes Mrs. K. L. of Richmond, Va. "Even if this is so, don't you think it is a healthy development for him to show his independence by daring to oppose Truman and the Missouri machine?"

Answer: I most certainly do. As a fellow-columnist wrote recently, his entry into the race has been like a "fresh breeze at Washington."

He puts to shame the political and Congressional time-server on and off Capitol Hill who, despite their private realization of the Administration's incapacity on the domestic and foreign fronts, tag along with the man in the White House out of a false and destructive sense of party loyalty.

COURAGEOUS—His courageous action has had another good effect, especially in view of his repeated declarations that the White House failed to take any decisive move against official corruption until after Congressional and newspaper exposures. It may help to keep this issue alive during the campaign, as it certainly should be, whether or not Truman runs again.

The Kefauver movement, together with Truman's description of the primary system as "eyewash," has revived interest in this scheme for nominating our Presidential candidates by more democratic methods than those now in use.

It has inspired demands in many states for enacting or strengthening the election laws in order to abolish the "smoke-filled room" conspiracies against the public interest.

RESULTS—While these may be intangible benefits, Senator Kefauver has forced Mr. Truman into the open despite his contempt for primaries. For fear that the Tennesseean might carry New Hampshire if there were no opposition, the President has had to enter his name there.

Should Kefauver make even a respectable showing in this contest, and many politicians believe he may, it would be a severe setback for the Truman faction. On the other hand it might madden the Chief Executive so that he will insist on a renomination.

Another of the practical political results of the Kefauver participation in several primaries is, perhaps, the most important. It may force Democrats to vote in their own primaries instead of taking part in Republican contests, where state laws permit crossing party lines.

Since most of these "independent Democrats" would probably vote for General Eisenhower, it is possible that the insurgent from Tennessee may provide indirect support to Senator Taft.

IRONIC—"Do you agree," asks Mrs. T. G. of Sandusky, O., with those who maintain that Congressional or newspaper criticism of the actions and policies of the Joint Chiefs of Staff—Bradley, Fechteler, Collins, Vandenberg—is "unpatriotic," "un-American" and "cheap politics?"

Answer: I certainly do not under the circumstances prevailing today. It seems ironic that the very people who justified MacArthur's firing on the ground that civilian authority must remain supreme over the military, now describe the Joint Chiefs of Staff as a sacrosanct body beyond reproach or questioning.

World Leader—And His Guide

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

After all the scrambling around I do to get column material, I found the place to get information: basketball games. Unfortunately, I discovered that fact at the last game of the East Carolina season, last night when the Pirates rolled over The Citadel.

The first story I heard was from Scrapy Proctor, of Perkins-Proctor Clothing Store. Last night Scrapy had a telephone call from a voice that said, "Is this Mr. J. G. Proctor?"

Scrapy is so unaccustomed to hearing his actual initials that he immediately thought it was somebody playing a joke on him. The voice went on to say, "This is Sergeant Buck at the Police Station. We would appreciate your coming by here to pick up a $1 refund. This afternoon we overcharged your wife $1." It was no joke. Yesterday afternoon Scrapy's wife, Jo Ann, went to the Police Station to get license plates for the bicycles of the Proctor children, J. G. seven, and Sue, six. The policeman on duty charged $1 each for the license, when they should have been 50 cents each.

Scrapy thinks he is the only person in Greenville who ever got a refund from the Police Department.

No sooner had I grabbed Scrapy's story than I ran into one of Greenville's most colorful characters, Edgar Denton, accountant for Vance "Buddy" Harrington. Back in my college days I took the Greenville-Chapel Hill trip with Edgar several times, and after about three trips he completed the story of his experiences in a German prisoner of war camp. If you regard a PW camp as a gruesome place, you should talk to Edgar. He gives the story a twist that will keep you in stitches. It's phenomenal how so many funny things could happen to prisoners of war.

But Edgar isn't still talking about World War II. Last night his topic was his second child, now two months old. "That boy," Edgar says, "is the ugliest one in town. He looks just like me. Why, he's got the biggest nose you ever saw. To top everything off, we gave him the ugliest name we could find: Edgar."

"I'll say one thing for him, though," Edgar continued, "he's the only two months old boy in Greenville who can stand under the shower and smoke a cigar at the same time."

And I thank you.

COMPARATIVE — Principal difference found in the campaign declaration issued by William B. Umstead this week and that promulgated by Hubert Olive in mid-January is that Umstead goes more into detail, apparently is somewhat surer of his ground and his course. He includes specific treatment of several items which are found in the Olive statement only by implication.

SCHOOLS — Both candidates make the public school system the first plank in their personal platforms; both urge continuance of the school building program, increased teacher pay and reduced pupil loads. Umstead includes special mention of expanded vocational education programs, and extends his concern to institutions of higher learning as well as the public school system.

ROADS — Umstead makes public roads the second item, while Olive has it in sixth place. Their positions are essentially the same—for continuing development of secondary roads to serve more rural communities and to modernize as rapidly as possible the important primary highway system. Both think these aims can be accomplished without additional bonds or higher gasoline taxes.

AGRICULTURE — Umstead deals at length with the agricultural situation, pointing out that as a member of the Congress he voted for establishing the Soil Conservation Service, the Production Marketing Administration, the Farm Home Administration, the Production Credit Association, the Rural Electrification Authority, and the several control programs. As a member of the United States Senate he supported continued and expanded functions of these agencies. He spells out a 10-point program for North Carolina looking toward better farming and improved rural living conditions, with special emphasis on research, Olive devotes separate but short paragraphs, his Nos. 4 and 5, to rural electricity and rural telephones, but does not treat other phases of farming activities.

RESOURCES — Umstead's fourth item is "Conservation and Development" while Olive makes his "Natural Resources" paragraph No. 9. Again Umstead elaborates in more detail, and includes not only development of such natural resources as water power, mineral and chemical deposits; but also promotion of industry, development of the profitable tourist trade, more attention to the seafood industry and processing of agricultural products.

HEALTH — Umstead calls for continuing the general hospital support policy through the Medical Care Commission, and recalls that he cast a vote in the Senate to make Hill-Burton federal aid funds available for this purpose. He proposes strengthening the State Health Department, particularly in the field of early childhood examinations and correction of discovered handicaps. Olive does not have specific references to general public health work.

MENTALLY ILL — Olive deals with the need for better care and treatment of the mentally ill in the second paragraph of his statement. Umstead includes it in No. 6 under the broader title of "State Institutions for Ill and Crippled," and calls for more adequate support of hospitals for mental patients, tuberculosis sufferers, those in need of orthopedic treatment and victims of cerebral palsy. Both candidates endorse the continuing trend toward curative treatment rather than custodial care.

STATE EMPLOYEES — Umstead's No. 7 item, not mentioned by Olive, calls for consideration to be given adjustment of salaries among all state employees and remedial action in hardship cases under the retirement system. In his paragraph on roads Umstead also calls for reducing the work week of highway employees from the present 55 hours to a maximum of 50 hours.

HIGHWAY SAFETY — Olive deplors "the appalling loss of life and property in traffic accidents on our highways." Umstead notes "the terrible slaughter and injury of our citizens and destruction of property upon our highways." Neither candidate has an answer, but each promises to diligently seek for one. In both statements highway safety is No. 8.

REFERENDUM — On the highly controversial question of a state-wide vote on the sale of liquor Candidate Olive says: "I stand for a statewide referendum on the liquor question. I am a Democrat and believe in the will of the majority." Candidate Umstead says: "In 1948, in reply to a questionnaire submitted by the Allied Church League, Inc., of North Carolina, I publicly stated that I was in favor of referendum on the liquor question. I have not changed my mind since then, and I am still in favor of a referendum. If I become Governor, I will so recommend to the General Assembly of 1953."

JUVENILE DELINQUENCY — Umstead calls for more attention to the serious problem of increasing juvenile delinquency.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

CUMBERLAND GETS SPECIAL ATTENTION (Fayetteville Observer)

The high percentage of court actions brought against Cumberland county firms for alleged violations of OPS orders is enough to give the good people of this section cause for worry.

Why is it, we might ask ourselves, that out of 75 court actions in all eastern North Carolina, 13 were brought against Cumberland county firms?

As the largest defense community in the state something can be said for the latter theory. In those communities where most money is being spent in the name of national defense the temptation toward inflation is most pronounced and whatever defense against inflation which OPS can furnish, most needed.

It is therefore quite probable that Fayetteville and Cumberland county have received more attention from the OPS people than the average county in North Carolina.

This should be a greater challenge to us here in Fayetteville to live up to the letter of the law, even if it is an irksome law, and any law which limits our profits is going to be irksome.

OPS may not be the thing we need to beat inflation, but it does set out to make all suffer at the same level. The individual who tried to "beat" OPS at the same time is fudging on ethical firms in the same line of business. If he gets away with it he is setting an example of contempt for all kinds of law and pointing the way to a national chaos which will be his own ruin as well as the ruin of free enterprise and democracy.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
There will be plenty of griping when the Associated General Contractors of America convene in their 33rd convention in Detroit Monday. Those contractors who specialize in dwelling construction will say that the confusion into which the industry has been thrown by conflicting government and private statements is "worse than the shortage of metals."

The National Production Authority has announced that copper, brass and steel will be available for only 660,000 new housing units but has said that, with care, builders could construct 800,000 units. Since then the N. P. A. has increased slightly the amount of copper available for plumbing and Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson has said that there can be no increase in non-industrial building or perhaps another year.

Confusion was compounded by the one-, one-and-a-half- and two-bathroom puzzle. The N. P. A. circulated a proposed order limiting bathrooms to one in new units and, after a storm of protest from builders, is reported to have dropped the idea, or, at least, shelved it for a one- and-a-half plan.

Financing of new housing also creates puzzlement. There has been a great rise in personal savings but there seems to be less of these savings available for mortgage money. The savings institutions seem to be holding out for higher rates. At least, it is so short that Senator Burnett R. Maybank (D., S. C.) told a round-table discussion in Washington that Congress would act this session to increase the supply of mortgage money.

Private home builders have been caught "in a cross-fire of rumor and scuttlebutt about what they will or won't be able to do in 1952." Orman Strunk, executive vice president of the U. S. Savings and Loan League, told a Wisconsin savings group, "Few in the industry have been able to do any sort of planning in that kind of atmosphere. Many builders have been afraid to start homes for fear they will not be permitted to finish them."

Government figures bear out Mr. Strunk; there were 68,000 units started in January, compared with 85,900 in January, 1951.

This fear has spread to families too. Many are unwilling to contract for new homes in apprehension that the contractor will be stymied by some new restriction after the foundation is laid, or that their bungalow will be delivered sans bath tub. In fact, a family may be in making arrangements for financing before starting and getting guarantees from the builder that he has copper, brass and steel available. There is plenty of lumber, bricks and cement.

BACK TO SCHOOL FOR 50 EXECUTIVES
Fifty business men who expect higher administrative positions will work study and live together in a six-week course for executives announced by the Columbia Graduate School of Business. The course will be held on Harriman Campus, 80 miles north of New York, beginning June 16. Topics will include sales policies, production, purchasing, industrial and public relations, and finance, and will involve such questions as fitting defense orders into operations and shifting policies in view of current tax regulations.

PROMOTER OPPOSES SPEED UP OF MAILS
Whatever a high dudgeon is, the Old Promoter was in one when he dropped into this office today waving a newspaper.

"Look at this!" he said. "Some fool Congressman wants a law to speed up the mails and to restore directory service. Is that progress, going back years?"

"Service should be improved," we protested. "Why, it recently took a week for a letter to us from our friend Saul Gill to travel four miles."

"Look," said the O. P., "dropping the directory service has brought me the first peace and contentment I have known in years. I used to be bothered to death by creditors. Now when I see a letter I just take months for their duns to catch up with me through the mails. Sometimes they never do."

THE IS NOT DIZZY DAY
The Let's Have Better Business Motives Association is a captive organization, the property of a Chicago direct mail advertiser. It spices its promotions with unusual business slogans, such as "Work fascinates me—I can sit and look at it for hours," and "Money isn't the best thing in the world—I just happen to like it best."

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK — (AP)— What is a junior executive?

You hear more and more about this character. But he seems to me a pretty mysterious and will-o-the-wisp fellow, and I am not sure he really exists at all. I am beginning to think he is just a figment of somebody's imagination.

No one can tell me for sure what a junior executive really is, because nobody ever seems to have met one in the flesh.

Go up to anyone you know who works in an office for a living and ask, "Are you a junior executive?" He may flush with embarrassed pleasure or turn upon you in cold anger, but he is certain to answer, "Who, me? Of course not."

Everybody has heard of junior executives, but nobody will admit he is one. That's why I don't think there really are any.

Opinion varies as to just what a junior executive is. Some people think of him as a fine, clean, modest, alert young man who has climbed the first rung of the ladder of success. Others see him as a merely a young stuffed shirt, a petty office tyrant who tries to get ahead by sping the real executives.

That's part of the mystery of the junior executive—his anything you want to believe he is. A would-be boss in rompers, or industry's new type Horatio Alger. And nobody seems to know for sure just what his job is except to sit around and wait for the senior executive to drop dead.

The clearest picture of these new big tycoons of the business world is given in the magazine ads. You see two fine old senior executives discussing a buy-out of the ancient Indian capital in Peru, but a few days in bed fixed that. While on land they couldn't drink milk, and the water had to be boiled. They couldn't eat raw vegetables or fruits except bananas and oranges. "The children were all overweight anyway, so that did not matter," Mrs. Riddell said, "when they got back on the boat they made up for it."

Mrs. Riddell, a partition, dark-haired, serenely-confident woman, learned how to travel with youngsters the hard way. Joan and Roland were mere babies when war broke out in Europe and they had to live in Budapest, where Mrs. Riddell's father, John F. Montgomery, was serving as U. S. Minister. Her husband was his secretary.

Unable to live on a junior executive salary, he will go up to his boss and say, "Why don't we switch to Blotio typewriter ribbons," and in three weeks the firm will be bankrupt, because nobody really can read letters written with Blotio typewriter ribbons.

The junior executive will be tossed out of his swivel chair, and he will lose his wife, his home and his car, and be forced to pawn his suit.

That's the danger of being a real-life junior executive. One lousy idea — and you're just the man in the street again.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — The Richard Riddells don't let four young children keep them from indulging their yen to travel. When they want to see the world they just pack up their brood and take off.

"The secret is not to worry," Mrs. Riddell, wife of a Washington real estate man, told me, "and don't plan too much if you want to do everything and enjoy yourselves."

Two years ago the Riddells, with Joan, now 15, Roland, 14, Marie, 10, and Sally, 8, traveled for two months by train, motor and boat across the United States and back. Last year, the family went by freighter on a two months' trip to South America.

The youngsters learned a lot and had fun. So did their parents. Mishaps were minor. Sally picked up a "bug" and got dehydrated in a 11,500-foot high Cuzco, the ancient Indian capital in Peru, but a few days in bed fixed that. While on land they couldn't drink milk, and the water had to be boiled. They couldn't eat raw vegetables or fruits except bananas and oranges. "The children were all overweight anyway, so that did not matter," Mrs. Riddell said, "when they got back on the boat they made up for it."

Mrs. Riddell, a partition, dark-haired, serenely-confident woman, learned how to travel with youngsters the hard way. Joan and Roland were mere babies when war broke out in Europe and they had to live in Budapest, where Mrs. Riddell's father, John F. Montgomery, was serving as U. S. Minister. Her husband was his secretary.

"We boarded a ship at Genoa, but the sailing was canceled," she recalled. "We finally got to Paris by train and crossed the channel to England, where we waited until we could get a ship back home." Mrs. Riddell says the family is now discussing plans for a trip next summer. Roland wants to go to Mexico, but the rest of the Riddells want to go to Europe. "We don't want to take any chance on a Europe trip if trouble is going to break out," she said. "I managed with two children before, but I don't think it would be easy with four."

Mrs. Riddell says she planned the family wardrobe for both trips so they'd have as little to carry as possible. She took mostly clothes made of nylon, light in weight and easy to launder.

Murder is Forgetful

BY WILLIAM G. BOGART

Chapter 12

The garage was quiet. This must be the fellow Johnny had heard working on a smashed fender a little while ago. As water started running in the sink, the man looked up at Johnny and said "Hot, ain't it?"

"I'll say."

Johnny said, "I understand you have that Smith car here... the one which was cracked up..."

"Yeah," said the husky mechanic. "You'll find 'er back there."

He joined the investigator as Johnny started toward the back of the garage, pointed to a big gray-colored sedan. "That's the job."

Johnny walked around the car. The front end was bashed in; the windshield had cracked, but not shattered. The two front wheels were towed in and one tire was flat.

The mechanic said, "There's only a slight drop-off there where she drove off the road in her excitement. Otherwise..."

"You mean, Irene Smith?"

"Yeah... Otherwise, she might've broke her neck. Lucky 'er car didn't go over."

Johnny had noticed that the sides and top of the car were undamaged.

He asked, "Do you know where that place is on Route 28A where she drove off the highway?"

"Do you work on Sunday mornings?"

"No!"

Johnny removed a bill from his wallet and handed it to the man. "How about driving me out to that spot on 28A tomorrow morning? Say about ten o'clock, before it gets too hot?"

The mechanic glanced at the bill, shoved it into his pocket. The freckles seemed to grow larger as his face beamed. "You bet! Then he added, "I'll pick you up right outside the main gate to the Smith place. Ralph tells me you're staying over there."

Reference to Kay's young friend reminded Johnny that he was still awaiting her return.

"By the way," he said, "where'd they go?"

"Probably down to the corner for a coke. Want me to find them?"

"All right."

He stood there, looking at the wrecked car as the man hurried out of the garage. As his footsteps died away silence was heavy in the place.

Johnny had seen a mechanic's long gray jacket hanging on the wall nearby. He quickly slipped it over his clothes, buttoned it, then located one of the flat, roller-skis scooters used for working under cars.

A moment later he was on his back beneath the car, using his heels to move the scooter from one place to another. His quick, sharp eyes studied the chassis and under-frame.

And when he came out from beneath the car and replaced the jacket, his eyes were thoughtful.

He heard footsteps approaching the garage and started out to meet Kay Smith.

"I'm sorry I missed Uncle Thomas," said the girl.

"What happened?" asked Johnny.

She indicated the small package in her hand. "I had to get some things at the drugstore."

"I mean, what happened to Ralph?"

"Oh, him," she said.

Red Oak News

Twenty-four members and nine visitors were present at the attractive new home of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Evans at the February meeting of Circle No. 1 of Red Oak.

Guests were given a hearty welcome at the front door by Mr. and Mrs. Evans and Mr. and Mrs. Ola Kittrell who were co-hosts.

Mrs. Jarvis Tripp presided over the meeting in the absence of Mrs. F. L. Allen who was sick.

Mrs. B. L. Tyson read the minutes of the previous meeting and gave the treasurer's report.

Mrs. John Crawford had charge of the devotional. She read the story of a very courageous girl who had lost faith but regained it. Mr. H. H. May read the Scripture and led in prayer.

We were happy to have three new members join our circle, Mr. H. R. Allen and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Garris. Mr. and Mrs. Garris have recently moved into our neighborhood from near Farmville. They will soon move into their new home on the Farmville highway.

Mrs. B. L. Tyson gave a resume of work done by the Circle since it was organized.

The members honored one of their members, Mr. Ola Kittrell, because it was his birthday. Many useful presents were presented to him.

Some good old fashioned singing was enjoyed around the piano.

The hosts and hostesses served homemade strawberry and vanilla ice cream, cakes, cookies, nuts and mints.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Mary Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis Tripp Jr. were hosts to the Young Married Couples Class of Red Oak Friday evening. Early spring flowers and potted plants were used throughout the house.

James Sydney Allen, president of the class, presided. Mrs. Amos Evans acted as secretary in the absence of Mrs. J. T. Manning who was unable to be present. Our roll showed 66 members.

Mrs. Inez Haddock had charge of the devotional which was enjoyed by all. Mrs. Clarissa May sang "My Task."

Mrs. May also introduced the idea of starting a "Lord's Acre" movement in connection with our annual Harvest Sale. The class voted to help sponsor this program.

Mrs. Tyson announced that "The Mule Train" Boys from Williamston, Mr. Blue Manning, the Magician and others would put on a program in the community building sometime in March. The proceeds will be used on the organ fund.

Willie Page announced that a down payment of $1,000 had been made on the organ. Three more payments of $22 each will be made one each year, to complete the purchase of the organ. We are more than pleased with the organ and feel that it adds so much to our worship services at Sunday school and church.

The teachers, Mrs. Travis Crawford and Mrs. B. L. Tyson, helped the hosts serve. Mrs. Tyson served delicious home-made cake and Mrs. Crawford served ice cream from a beautifully appointed table. A lovely arrangement of flowers flanked by burning candles graced the center of the table. Salted pecans and mints were also served.

Mr. and Mrs. Fenner Leslie Allen Jr. will be hosts at the March meeting of the class. Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Denton will be co-hosts with them.

Library Displays Selected Books Until March 1

A number of books are on display at Sheppard Memorial Library on the subject of family life, brotherhood and religious interest, and will continue to be on display through March 1.

A large number of books on the subjects have been collected by the library during the past 12 months and may be secured by readers. Some of the books which can be found are:

Family life—"Two to Six" by Alschuler; "All in the Family" by Bacmeister; "Your Child's Mind and Body" by Dunbar; "The Psychology of Exceptional Children" (revised edition) by Garrison; "McCall's Book of Modern Homes" by Gillies; "A Manual for Baby-Sitters" by Townsends; "Your Child's Development and Guidance" (revised edition) by Meek; "America's Baby Book" by Montgomery; "Room For One More" by Rose; and "The Handicapped Child" by Stern.

Religious interest—"Faith and Freedom"; Bennett; "Treasury of Biblical Quotations"; "Light of the World"; Cooke; "Alter Your Life"; Fox; "Lore of the Old Testament"; Gaer; "God So Loved the World"; Goudge; and "Rufus Jones Speaks to our Time"; Jones.

"Man Called Peter," Marshall; "Handbooks in the Denominations in the U. S.," Mead; "Living Joyously," Page; "God Makes the Difference," Potter; "The Higher Happiness," Beckman; "Signs of Life," Truthbold; and "World Religions and Hopes," Williams.

In addition to the books on family life the library has books on the adolescent, preparation for marriage, and expectant motherhood. The books may be secured at the library and if they are not in at the time of request, they will be placed on reserve.

FAR FROM THE BATTLE FRONT

It seems a long way from the trundle bed and the pastel colors of a nursery to the horrors of a battle-ground... but not as far as it may appear. Even if war should not come to our shores, it will be only ten or twelve years before these youngsters themselves may be face to face with conflict and battle.

This little boy and girl, however, are being taught the power of prayer. They are discovering at the impressive age that nothing takes the place of prayer and that no surer protection for the future can be found by any other means.

In days when problems of defense are foremost in the minds of everyone, it is wise to ponder on the limitations of bomb shelters, radar, and weapons. They can protect only the body—when there is still the spirit to keep safe.

Prayer is essential to the well-being of every human person, and now is the time to begin. Go to church and learn with millions of others how prayer can give new meaning and strength to your life.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... AND FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest force in the world. It is the only force that can bring about a change in the hearts of men. It is the only force that can bring about a change in the lives of men. It is the only force that can bring about a change in the world.

Without a strong, united, active church, we cannot hope for a better world. We cannot hope for a better life. We cannot hope for a better future.

Let us join together in prayer. Let us join together in service. Let us join together in love. Let us join together in the power of prayer.

For the sake of the Church, for the sake of the world, for the sake of the future, let us join together in prayer.

Russell Stars For Bucs In Final Home Game Of Year

Pirate Ace Stars In 87-71 Non-Loop Win

The Citadel Presents Little Test For High Flying Buccaneers Who Win Seventh Game In Row; Tournament Action Next Week

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Sports Writer

Forward Sonny Russell was All-America in everything but name last night as he paced the East Carolina Pirates to an 87-71 victory over The Citadel in the final regular season game of the year for the Bucs. The win gave East Carolina a record of 15 wins and seven losses in regular season play.

Russell reached the apex of a brilliant year with his performance last night. He scored 27 points—13 field goals—to lead both teams in scoring and seemed at times to be practically a one man team despite an exceptional performance by the Pirates as a team.

Russell did everything right last night. He was moved "out front" on defense for the first time this year and had a field day playing havoc with the Bulldog guards. He was especially effective on rebounding under the Pirates' board and his ball handling was simply a thing of beauty. He set up as many points as he personally scored and there was not a man on either team who could begin to compare with him in performance.

While Sonny took the biggest portion of the honors last night, teammate Bobby Hodges continued to play great ball in the pivot position for the Bucs. Hodges scored 24 points in an outstanding show in the second half plus working well under both backboards. Hodges played a great game but he had to be content with second place honors so long as Russell was in the game.

Following the two Pirate stars in the scoring column were the other three members of the Buc starting line-up, Toddy Fennell, Louis Collie, and Cap'n Dick Blake. Fennell scored 11 points, all in the first half, in his last game on the ECC court. Collie, likewise in his last game at home, pumped in 10 points; and Blake added nine points plus his usual good work on rebounds.

Leading the visiting Bulldogs was guard Bob Fischer who had to be content with a total of 13 points for the game. He was closely followed by forward Teddy Weeks, with 12, and center Terry Britt, with 11. Dick Zelinski, the scoring ace of The Citadel club, was held to four points by Blake.

The Citadel offered a real threat to the Pirates only in the first few minutes of the ball game. They started on even terms with the Pirates but once Russell got warmed up, the balance was tipped far to East Carolina's favor.

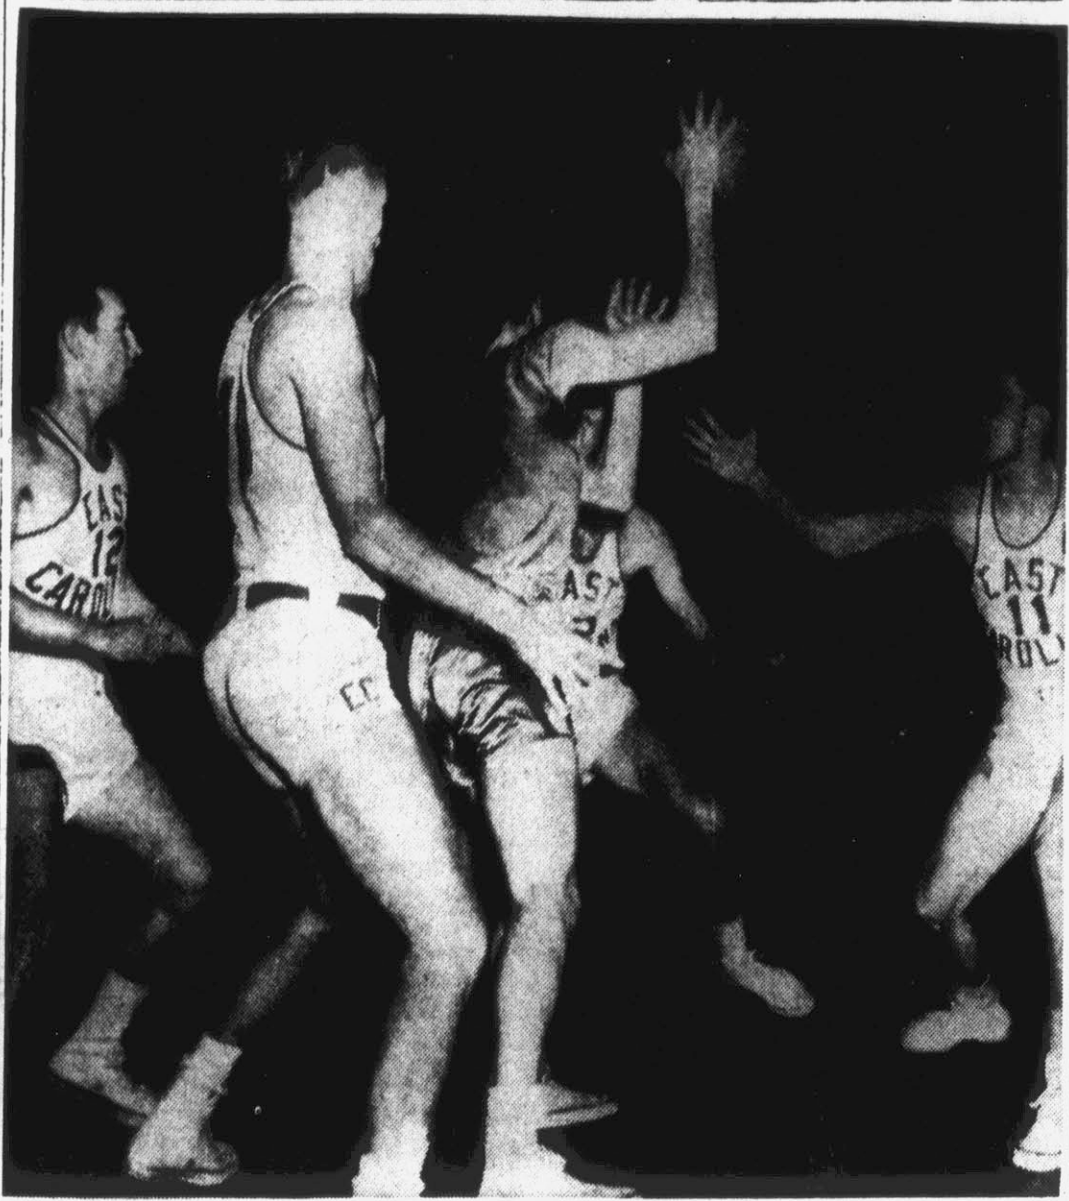

While Russell was finding his eye, Fennell was "Johnny-on-the-spot" for the Bucs. He sank three first quarter field goals which kept the Pirates on a par with the visiting Cadets and his was his shooting and floor work which kept the Pirates from falling behind in the first minutes of the game.

When Russell did start rolling—very early in the second period—the Pirates were off to the races. Sonny hit three quick field goals and Hodges tossed in a couple which put the Pirates far ahead of the Bulldogs. While the margin fluctuated from very wide to a small five points, The Citadel causers were never able to stay up with Russell and Company.

With last night's game out of the way, the Pirates now turn their attentions to the tournament action which is coming up next week. On Monday night, they will meet High Point at 9 p.m. in Elon College's Alumni Gymnasium in the first round of the district NAIB tournament. The winner of that game will meet the winner of Monday's first game between Elon and Appalachian in Tuesday's championship round to decide just who will represent this district in the National NAIB tournament which will be held in Kansas City, Mo.

Following the NAIB competition, the Pirates will move to Statesville to take part in the North State Conference tournament. Plans for the dribble derby are not yet complete because there is still some family action between North State teams which could affect the final standings.

Washington Drops Contest To Bethel By 66-60 Score

Grifton Drops 2 To Winterville

WINTERVILLE—Winterville High took both ends of a non-conference doubleheader here last night from Grifton, winning the girls game by a score of 72-26 and the boys game 50-45.

Bobby Cole dropped in 17 points to lead the Wolves in their revenge triumph over Grifton. Despite the defensive efforts of Grifton's J. R. Hooten and Clyde Adams, Cole and Dean Winkate just could not be stopped. Winkate came in for nine points.

Hooten turned the tables in scoring however, as he combined his offensive talents with his defensive ability to score 18 points. Rex Lewis scored 13 points for the Bulldogs. Winkate and Leck Keeter were defensive standouts for the winners.

Girls Game
Joan Averette scored 19 points in leading the Winterville girls to their one-sided victory. Joan McLaw was second high for the winners with 16 points, while Ann Spier picked up 15 points for the night's work. Ruth Hazelton and Nancy Worthington led Winterville's defense.

Colleen Braxton scored 10 points for Grifton and Mildred Sellers collected seven points. Louise Corey was outstanding on defense.

North State To Decide Leader In Games Tonight

By the Associated Press

Tonight is the night of decision for North State Conference basketball teams.

The Conference decides its top team of the regular season tonight as Appalachian is host to Catawba at Boone and Elon invades Lenoir Rhyne at Hickory.

If both Appalachian and Elon win, they'll end the season with 11-4 marks, one half game ahead of East Carolina. If one wins and the other loses, the winner will wind up a half game ahead of East Carolina, with the loser dropping into a third place tie with High Point. Should both lose, East Carolina's 7-14 mark will top the conference, leaving Appalachian, Elon and High Point tied for second place.

Tonight's games also present three other developments:

1. Either Appalachian or Elon can wind up as the top team, thus gaining top seeding for the annual conference tourney opening at Statesville next Thursday.

2. Should Appalachian and Elon finish in a tie, the No. 1 team will be decided by lot at tomorrow's meeting in Statesville to determine pairings.

3. East Carolina, its conference season already complete, stands pat on its 10-4 record and becomes the No. 1 team.

East Carolina brought its overall season record to 15-7 last night by whipping The Citadel, 87-71. The Pirates, led by Sonny Russell and Bobby Hodges, at one point in the game sported a 15-point margin over their Southern Conference rivals. Russell counted 27 points to lead the night's scoring, trailed by Hodges with 24.

Bob Fischer led the visiting Cadets with 13 points.

Villemain Records Win Over Nardico

NEW YORK (AP)—Robert Villemain, a busy man in the ring and at chasing the American dollar, had a victory over Danny Nardico to his credit today and two more money dates lined up.

The stocky, little Frenchman picked up about $7,000 in outpointing the Tampa, Fla. light heavyweight, and the triumph in the live-action Madison Square Garden bout won him a promise of another booking by the International Boxing Club.

Rapid Robert already is signed to meet Joey DeJohn at Syracuse, N. Y., March 6. Today IBC matchmaker Al Weil said he will pit the gallant Gaul against one of the winners of two coming IBC middleweight productions. The bouts match Ernie Durando and Paddy Young in New York and former middleweight king Jake LaMotta and Gene (Silent) Hairston in Detroit.

WHITE SOX DOWN
CHICAGO (AP)—In 51 seasons in the American League the Chicago White Sox have lost exactly 100 more games than they have won. Their totals are 3,799 victories as against 3,899 setbacks.

Phantoms Tie For Top With 42-33 Win Over Edenton

U. S. Team Loses Last Chance For Win In Olympics

By HENRY THORNBERY
United Press Sports Writer

OSLO, Norway (UP)—American Olympic stars were reduced to little more than spectators today as the winter games moved swiftly toward their climax.

The Americans, with 84 1-2 points to Norway's 101, were a creditable second in the unofficial team point score. But their chances of adding substantially were rated as virtually non-existent by experts here.

Finland made a clean sweep of all medals in the women's cross-country ski race. The 10-kilometer event came under fire even before it started, because many thought such a grind was "unladylike."

But Lydia Videman plunged across the frozen countryside in 41 minutes 40 seconds for her gold medal. No Americans were entered.

The Americans moved back into action when the four-man team of John Burton of Wayzata, Minn.; Wendell Broomhall of Rumford, Me.; George Hovland Jr., of Duluth, Minn.; and Robert Pidacks of Rumford competed in the four-man 40-kilometer ski race.

Tonight the U. S. hockey team, which beat Poland, 5-3, yesterday opposes Czechoslovakia in a battle for second place. Both teams are currently tied with Sweden for second with 5-1 records.

Canada apparently wrapped up the title yesterday by beating out Sweden, 3-2, in their sixth consecutive victory.

Americans had what was expected to be their last "good day" yesterday when they scored 11 points and won silver medals in two events.

The U. S. four-man bobsled crew took second place. Piloted by Stan Benham of Lake Placid, N. Y., the Americans rocketed down the curving hill in a four-run time of 5:10.48—2.65 seconds slower than the victorious German team.

In the figure skating pairs, Paul and Ria Falk of Germany led the way with 11,400 judging points and 11.5 place points.

Farmville Wins Over Pinetops

PINETOPS—Farmville's Red Devils grabbed victories in both games of the Coastal Conference twin bill with South Edgecombe here last night, winning the boys game by a top-sided margin of 69-39, and taking the girls game 57-51.

Charlie Fitzgerald was the star in the boys victory with a total of 22 points for the night, followed by Marvin Tugwell with 16 points. David Hobgood turned in a good offensive game as well being the outstanding defensive star for the winners.

Luke Lewis led the hapless South Edgecombe team with 14 points, while Brooks Drake was close behind with 13 points. Maynard Abrams was the only defensive standout for the losers.

In the girls game, Farmville came from behind in the second quarter to go way out in front to take the comparatively easy conference win. Emily Cannon led the Red Devils Ladies in their comeback victory by tossing in 23 points, while Edna Wooten was right behind her with 21 points. Grey Heath and Clara Flanagan were instrumental in the win with their excellent defensive work.

Although South Edgecombe's Sue Lilly, Susan Strickland and Marjorie Wooten were unable to stop the Farmville forwards who were hitting from all parts of the floor, their forwards, Ann Webb and Dot Jones, accredited themselves with 19 points apiece. Rachel Corbett came in with 13 points to her total.

This was the final conference game for both teams before the Coastal Conference tournament in Ayden next week.

Score by periods:

Girls Game	Boys Game
Farmville 11 23 15 8-57	South Edgecombe 15 9 14 14-51
South Edgecombe 15 9 14 14-51	Farmville 17 22 16 14-69
	South Edgecombe 14 5 8 12-39

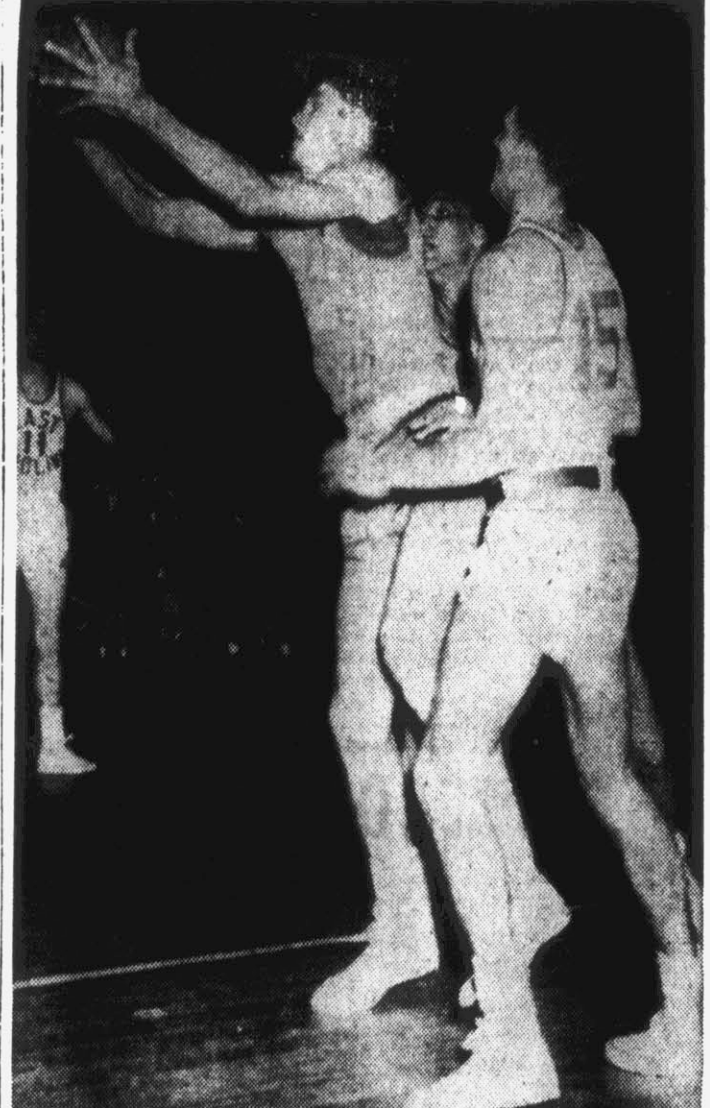

Santa Anita Set For Rich Derby

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—Fourteen colts, headed by the favored Windy City II from Ireland, awaited the start of the Santa Anita Derby today and a chance to win the big part of the $140,000 at stake.

Fifty thousand or more fans were expected to watch the race, the 15th running of the event, and most of them trooped into Santa Anita's immense plant expecting to see the long-legged colt from Ireland knock down the winner's share of $92,900.

The entries read like this, in post position order:

1. Halafire; 2. Smoke Screen; 3. Windy City II; 4. Tiger Sir; 5. Red Charger; 6. Arroz; 7. Dark Count; 8. Cold Command; 9. Kingley; 10. Whither; 11. Marcorator; 12. All's Fair; 13. Hill Gall, and 14. Indian Land.

EAST CAROLINA'S Ritchie Blake looks on as The Citadel's Terry Britt takes a rebound off the ECC board in last night's basketball game at Wright Gymnasium. This was one of the few rebounds that The Citadel got in the game. The remainder of them went to some member of the ECC squad.

BOBBY HODGES has little trouble in making this lay-up shot despite the presence of big Terry Britt in The Citadel line-up. Britt is the player who is behind Hodges on this particular play. Hodges scored 24 points from the pivot position for East Carolina last night. (Ref. Year Sports Photos by Roy Hardee)

Tampans Deliver Her Cherry Pie
TAMPA, Fla. (UP)—The Tampa Chamber of Commerce stepped in yesterday to help out a Tacoma, Wash., mother whose soldier son was born on Washington's birthday.

The Chamber delivered a 19-pound cherry pie to Pfc. Donald R. Schermerhorn, who is stationed at MacDill Field, at the request of Mrs. N. Schermerhorn who wanted her son to have a pie on his 20th birthday.

When Caesar conquered Egypt, part of the tribute was paid in glass.

MacArthur Has Staff Reduced

NEW YORK — (AP) — An aide to Gen. Douglas MacArthur says the former Far Eastern commander has been forced to cut five members from his eight-man personal staff. The Army says the reduction is routine.

MacArthur's aide, Col. Lawrence E. Bunker, said last night that orders from Army Secretary Frank Pace Jr. came through Feb. 12 directing that the five be transferred within 60 days.

Bunker added that, in addition to the five, the resignation last month of Lt. Col. Anthony Story, the general's former pilot, also was forced.

In Washington, the Army said the staff reductions had been made in line with treatment accorded to other five-star generals who — like MacArthur — were not assigned to any specific duty.

Gen. George C. Marshall is the only other five-star officer not now assigned to specific military duty. Army officials reported Marshall never had more than three aides assigned to him.

Both MacArthur and Marshall are still technically on active duty although not assigned.

MacArthur had no comment on the matter, but Bunker told newsmen in New York that his chief did not agree to the reduction although he obeyed the order.

The meeting was called to order and presided over by President Foreman. An very timely business meeting was had as reports were given. After a very timely meeting the club adjourned, after which Mr. Goore served a delicious repast which was enjoyed by all. The next stated meeting will be at the home of Mr. George T. Graham on Tyson Street. At this meeting we are anxious to have all present and on time as this will be a very short meeting.

John Payton, Jr. of 606 Tyson St. died at his home on Thursday morning at 1:30 p. m. He was the son of the late John and Lucy Payton of Pitt County. He was married to Mary Foreman in 1902. He made his home in Greenville during his youth. He was a member of Sycamore Hill Baptist Church of this city.

Surviving in addition to his wife, are three sisters, one brother, five grand children, six great grand children, seven sisters-in-law, three brothers-in-law, one aunt and numerous other relatives and friends.

Funeral services will be held at the Sycamore Hill Baptist Church at 2 p. m. with the Rev. J. A. Nimmo officiating. Burial will be in Brown Hill Cemetery.

The members of the Loving Union Tent No. 464 are asked to meet at Planagan & Parker Funeral Home Monday afternoon at one o'clock for the funeral of Ella Graham.

By order of Mrs. Hattie Forbes, leader.

ABC Raid Finds Whiskey In House

An ABC raiding force, aided by Greenville Police officers, last night struck pay dirt for the first time in recent weeks when they arrested a 38-year-old Negro woman on charges of possession of non-tax paid whiskey.

Arrested was Ada Clark, 1204 Factory Street, Greenville.

ABC Officer Jim Ward stated that the woman when arrested told him "I have been selling whiskey for only about a month".

When searched, the house revealed more than two and one-half gallons of the illegal spirits. A portion of it was hidden under a cot in the front room of the house while the remainder was found in various parts of the kitchen.

She was released under a bond of $200 for appearance at Monday's session of City Police Court.

Officers making the raid were ABC men Jim Ward, C. T. Manning, R. W. King, J. L. Taylor, Detective N. H. Byrd and Police-man Caesar Corbett.

GOP Given Conflicting Viewpoints

By RAYMOND LAHR United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON (UP) — Republicans got conflicting advice from rival campaign camps today on how to win and lose presidential elections.

The Eisenhower organization warned that the "Old Guard" may win the GOP national convention but lose the election by nominating Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio.

Taft countered that the GOP can lose by compromising its principles to get a few "mugwump" votes.

The blast at the "Old Guard" came from Sen. James H. Duff, (Pa.), one of the leaders of the drive to win the GOP nomination for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

"If the Old Guard Republican regulars and professionals insist on nominating a candidate whom they prefer irrespective of the candidate the overall public may indicate it wants, they may again prove their ability to dominate a convention and lose an election," Duff said in a speech at Miami last night.

"The rank and file of the republican Party must not underestimate the capacity of certain technical Republican Old Guard professionals to lead the party down the drain again even in the face of the most favorable opportunities for victory."

Duff obviously aimed the barb at Taft, who has widespread support among organization Republicans.

Taft plugged away at the Eisenhower camp in a speech at Barre, Vt., last night. He replied to arguments that Eisenhower should be nominated because polls indicate that the Atlantic defense commander has greater appeal to independent voters.

"We have had candidates before who were well ahead of Democrats in the polls when nominated but who went downhill fast as they were forced to take positions on controversial issues or failed to present a definite philosophy to the voters," he said.

Taft said the GOP can win only by an all-out attack on the "immorality" of the Truman administration, its disastrous foreign policy and its "spending and taxing and bureaucratic regulation." Votes can be won from independents and Democrats, he said, by a clear presentation of issues.

"We cannot afford to modify our principles to secure the support of a limited number of mugwumps who never have and never will believe in Republican principles," Taft said.

Other political developments: 1. Taft decided to conduct a three-day campaign in New Hampshire before the March 11 presidential primary in that state.

2. Sen. Frank Carlson (R-Kan.), director of the National Eisenhower headquarters, said in a speech at Asheville that Eisenhower's views on public issues are no mystery, that the general had made his stand clear while president of Columbia University.

3. John B. Chapple, publisher of the Ashland (Wis.) Press and chairman of Fighters for MacArthur, telegraphed Gen. Douglas MacArthur "the heartfelt gratitude of millions of Americans" for repudiating a story in Newsweek magazine which said the general favors Eisenhower for the GOP nomination.

(Continued From Page Four) EQUAL JUSTICE — Olive devotes a paragraph to equal justice. He says the free enterprise system and the rights of all persons to fair and just treatment must be preserved so that our people can have firm faith in their government. "They must not only receive this justice but must feel that their state government has given to them equal rights."

TAXES — Olive deals with taxes in his third paragraph, Unstead in his eleventh. The treatment is almost identical.

Says Olive: "I am against any new State taxes, or increases in present rates." Says Unstead: "I do not see any reasonable probability that a reduction of State taxes will be possible under present conditions, and I would consider new taxes or increased rates unwise and detrimental to the development of our state."

Both note the terrific burden of federal taxation and necessity for careful spending by the State, and both point with prideful hope to the prospect that growing commerce, industry and agriculture will provide sufficient revenue, under existing schedules, to accomplish the objectives of their respective programs.

After all, it is essentially the same program which North Carolina has followed for twenty years, and, and the almost phenomenal progress recorded has been achieved without material change in the tax structure since 1933.

open the door. The sheriff and a deputy then went inside and brought him out.

Baker and Nanny, the two wounded men, told officers this morning there had been no argument. Their statements disclosed that they put Nichols to bed at his house and started to leave when Nichols opened fire with the rifle, shooting each of them through the knee.

Both Baker and Nanny were taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital last night, but had returned home this morning. Officers said Nanny was up on crutches today but that Baker was told to stay in bed for about six weeks.

Nichols was placed in the Pitt County jail last night, and the rifle confiscated.

Soviet General Claims Varied A-Bombs Tested

MOSCOW (UP) — A Red major general reported today that the Soviet Union has built and tested atom bombs of various calibers.

The article was one of many appearing on the occasion of the 34th anniversary of the founding of the Red Army.

Maj. Gen. Peter Korkodinov discussed the atomic bomb in the newspaper Soviet Agriculture. "Aware of the jungle customs of aggression," he wrote, "the Soviet government saw to it that our state would not be caught unprepared and that an aggressor would be met with all possible weapons."

"For this purpose, it organized and tested atom bombs of various calibers."

Coal Mine Fire Is Covered Up

BOULDER, Colo. (UP) — A blazing coal mine fire smoldered today beneath a makeshift door covered with tons of dirt.

The flames raced up the 300-foot timbered air shaft in the Pluto mine. Firemen were unable to control the fire by normal methods.

A bulldozer was brought up, the top of the shaft covered with a makeshift door, and tons of earth piled on top to cut off oxygen to the fire.

Indonesia Gov't Quits Over Issue Of U. S. Help

JAKARTA, Indonesia — (AP) — Premier Soekarno and his 10-month-old government quit today and left for their unnamed successors the hot political issue of whether Indonesia should keep taking U. S. aid under the Mutual Security Act (MSA).

President Soekarno accepted Soekiman's resignation soon after it was submitted this morning and prepared to name someone else to form a new government.

Soekiman's coalition government was the third to fall since the island republic won independence from the Netherlands 26 months ago.

The cabinet's fall became inevitable after the premier's own party, the Moslem Masjumi, decided last night to withdraw its support because the foreign ministry had agreed to U. S. help.

Probe Death Of Girl Denied Of Medical Care

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (UP) — Officials today investigated the death of a five year old girl who died without medical treatment nearly 17 hours after a religious sect began conducting rites at her bedside in an effort to save her life.

Injury and death of the child, Frances Francisco, was not reported to authorities until five hours after her death yesterday.

Members of the sect said they had continued their long vigil and prayers in hopes a "miracle would happen."

Investigating officers said they were questioning members of the sect, but said they would not consider filing charges until a "full and careful" investigation was completed.
