Pitt Demo Leaders Hold Meet

Clark Calls For Fulfilling Responsibility Of Cleanup From Within

By JESS POINDEXTER Reflector Staff Writer "If there are things in the Democratic Party we don't like, let's stay in there and keep fighting to eliminate them. Where can we go if we get out?" Those words by Chairman John G. Clark reflect the tone of the Pitt County Democrat Executive Committee meeting held at Respass Brothers Barbecue House Saturday.

"This year is the most vital in the history of government for people in Pitt County, and everywhere, to take a keen interest in state and national politics," the county chairman emphasized. "There is pressing need for a revival of interest in good, clean, honest government, and it should start in your precincts." Clark charged the Executive Committee, which is made up of Pitt County's 23 precinct chairmen.

"The Democratic Party is a party of the people," he said, "and it is our responsibility to carry forward and support the policies and ideals of the party. And above all, we should stimulate interest in voting, wherever the candidates may be."

Clark disclosed that in Pitt County, Democrat candidates for office have no opposition, with winning the primary being tantamount to election. But though we have no opposition, it is our duty to get out and talk "good" government, he said.

"When a man does not vote, he should not criticize the government so much. Let's see if we can't get out the biggest vote this year ever recorded in Pitt County. There's no reason why we shouldn't vote 15,000 people in this county."

Clark explained that it is very important to vote as many people as possible because the number of votes the county has at the state convention is based upon the total vote cast for governor in the last general election.

Pitt County cast 8,965 votes in the 1950 general election, and thus, has 61 votes at the state convention. There are a total of 958 delegates to the county convention from Pitt County's 23 precincts.

The county Executive Committee Saturday selected three men of which two will be appointed to the county Board of Elections. They are J. Henry Harrell of Greenville, T. E. Joyner, Jr. of Farmville and Clifford Richard of Carolina Township.

Harrell is rounding out 14 consecutive years of service as chairman of the county Board of Elections. Joyner, too, has been a member of the board for several years. The three names will be sent to the chairman of the State Democrat Executive Committee, who will approve two of them for service.

Clark told the group, "We are very fortunate to get men like Henry Harrell and T. E. Joyner"

No Salute For Ten Seamen Who Stuck With Ship

NEW YORK (UP)—Half a ship made fast to a trash-littered Brooklyn dock gave 10 unnoticed sailors their rightful place among the heroes of the sea.

The grotesque hulk now safe in port was all that was left of the Fort Mercer, which was split in two with another 10,000-ton tanker in a double maritime disaster that claimed 14 lives off Cape Cod last Monday.

But to the 10 stay-put seamen who refused to abandon it in the stormy waters of the Atlantic the "surviving" stern of the Mercer was proof of a job well done.

Pitt Driver Seriously Hurt In Hitting Mule-Drawn Cart

A young Pitt County farmer was critically injured late Saturday afternoon when his automobile shown above rounded a curve, struck a mule and cart, and overturned some 160 feet down the highway. Joe Parker, of the Belvoir section, was taken from his wrecked automobile and removed to Pitt Memorial hospital and then rushed to Duke hospital for emergency operation. UN Negotiators Strive For Neutrality Issue Settlement

Offer Withdraw Nomination Of Norway To Truce Supervision Body If Communists Withdraw Russia; All Quiet On Korean Front

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—The United Nations offered today to withdraw their nomination of Norway to the truce supervision commission if the Communists withdraw Russia.

Under the U.N. compromise plan, the supervision commission would comprise four instead of the previously agreed six neutral nations.

The two Communist nominees would be Poland and Czechoslovakia. The U.N. has nominated Sweden and Switzerland.

Chinese Col. Pu Shan retorted that the Allies had "no justification" to object to Russia's inclusion on the commission, but did not flatly reject the proposal.

U.N. Col. Don O. Darrow suggested that the Reds reconsider the proposal seriously as a means of breaking a 10-day deadlock in staff officers talks on Russia's eligibility to sit on the "neutral" commission.

U.S. South African and South Korean planes nevertheless flew through dense clouds to pound Communist troop and supply centers.

The South Africans alone claimed direct hits on 80 enemy troop shelters and 15 vehicle revetments. They said they killed 75 troops and destroyed seven vehicles.

U.S. Mustang fighters wrecked 10 troop shelters and 12 supply buildings, while South Koreans made five rail cuts and damaged five supply dumps.

BLOOD CONTRIBUTIONS WASHINGTON (UP)—The Red Cross reported today that Americans contributed 3,724,500 pints of blood for military and civilian use since the outbreak of the Korean war.

This ranged from $255 to $680 a week when they worked 70 hours, or annual pay rates of $13,000 to $35,000.

At times the workmen numbered more than 5,000 and some drew a total of more than three million dollars pay before they even reached the job. They were sent in by ships that were delayed by frozen ice.

Testimony thus far is that the "Blue Jay" base is operating, but only about half completed after expenditure of more than 100 million dollars.

Most of the criticism has centered on construction of five or six North African airbases in French Morocco under a project known as "Atlas."

After the Senate public hearings got underway, Chairman Hardy (D-Va.) of the House Expenditures Committee said his investigators found the North African project a "construction fiasco."

Seven Accidents On County Roads During Weekend

Two Men Seriously Injured; One Wreck Found, No Occupants Around

BELOVOIR—A young Pitt County farmer was critically injured late Saturday afternoon when his automobile plowed into the rear of a mule-drawn cart about a mile from here.

The Parker, about 21, of the Belvoir section, was removed from his wrecked automobile and rushed to Pitt Memorial Hospital where he was sent by ambulance to Duke Hospital for an emergency operation. Hospital officials reported that Parker suffered from a fractured spine and scalp injuries.

Also injured in the wreck was a 63-year-old farmer, driver of the mule-drawn cart.

Lera I. Stancill, 63, was admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital with internal injuries and underwent an operation late Saturday night.

Patrolmen James W. Barkin and Bill Whitehurst who investigated the accident stated that the Parker car, which was a total loss, skidded for a distance of 150 feet before striking the cart and then went down the highway for a distance of 160 more feet, overturning into a ditch.

Parker was thrown clear of his wrecked automobile where he was found by a passing motorist.

The accident was one of seven which occurred over the county during the past weekend.

Yesterday a car driven by Marlon Roberson Hudson, 19-year-old, serviceman from Norfolk, Virginia, overturned near Farmville causing damage estimated at over $500. Neither the driver nor two other occupants were injured.

Investigation was made by Patrolman B. H. Jackson of Farmville.

A car, later reported stolen, was found by Patrol officers wrecked on the Old Creek Road about ten miles from Greenville Saturday night.

Patrolman D. E. Perry stated that no one was at the site of the accident when they arrived.

The car overturned on a curve and landed bottom up, narrowly missing going into a drainage ditch below it. Investigation of the accident is still incomplete.

Saturday night a truck operated by Thomas H. Nelson, 46, Beaufort, carrying a counter type drink box, skidded into the path of an oncoming car on N. C. 11.

The drink box struck the car driven by Johnnie L. Mays, 29, of Route 2, Winterville, causing damage estimated at over $800. No one was injured and no charges were brought.

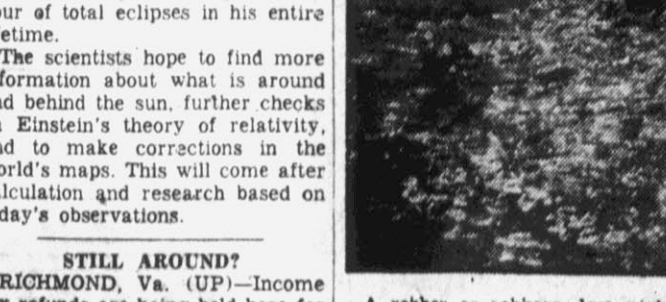

of parking on the highway without lights was placed against Abram Sumner, 32, Route 1, Stokes, Saturday night after his car was involved in an accident with a truck talked by Julius C. Peaden, 45, Greenville.

The accident occurred on the Belvoir highway about three miles west of Greenville.

Heavy property damage resulted Sunday when a car driven by William B. Haddock of Route 2, Greenville overturned seven miles west of Greenville.

NATO Council Meet Nears Close; Master Plan Drawn

Three-Day OPS Clinic To Begin Here On Feb. 28

Final Price-Chart Correction Clinic For Area; Enforcement Follows

All merchants in the Greenville area operating under Ceiling Price Regulation 7 are requested to attend a price-chart correction clinic which will be held for three days by the Raleigh office of the OPS.

The clinic will be held in the Army Room, February 28, 29, and March 3. Mrs. Nina M. Shaw and J. C. Allers, Jr., from the Raleigh office, will be at the Army room from 10 a.m. until 12 noon and from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. each day. Merchants have been notified as to which day's session they are expected.

"We expect merchants to attend these clinics because it is compulsory that all pricing charts be mathematically correct without further delay; and, for the merchant, this is the most practical and convenient plan we could devise," Alton G. Murchison, district director, said.

Merchants must bring their pricing charts and work sheets to the clinic, the OPS said. The OPS representatives will bring with them the OPS forms filled by local merchants with the Raleigh office showing the necessary mathematical corrections. The analysts will personally assist merchants in making similar corrections on the chart retained by them.

The morning session will be devoted to a discussion on pricing rules and application of the chart, with the afternoon hours spent in making the necessary corrections on individual charts. The OPS said that if the manager or owner cannot be present, he should send the person responsible for marking the merchandise for the firm, or several people from the same firm can attend.

Murchison cautioned merchants that this was the final phase of the OPS program to bring about voluntary compliance and that accelerated enforcement activity would be instigated.

"This visit to Greenville by experienced personnel who are bringing the charts with them to personally assist businessmen in their own city represents the attitude of the Raleigh OPS has shown from the beginning to do everything possible for the people," Murchison said, "and we feel we have done more than our part, and it is now up to the people to meet their obligations."

The OPS official stated that at other clinics, of an expected attendance of 800, there have been only 8 willful absentees; and arrangements were made for those with justifiable excuses to attend similar clinics in nearby cities.

The Raleigh OPS cautioned that any merchant who does not attend must submit a new and corrected chart to the Raleigh office within 15 days after this clinic, and is subject to investigation by the Enforcement Division at any time.

At the conclusion of the clinics, consideration will be shown only to those merchants who have made an honest effort to correct and properly use their pricing charts, the OPS official said. Failure to meet these requirements subjects a merchant to all penalties of the National Defense Production Act in addition to the possibility of legal action for treble damages instigated by customers who have been charged over-ceiling prices, the OPS warned.

In addition to local merchants, notices have been sent to retailers in Grimesland, Ayden, Maury, Farmville, Winterville, Fountain, Falkland, Bethel, and Stokes.

BRITISHER TO BE TOP OFFICIAL IN NATO SET-UP

LISBON — (AP) — Sir Oliver Franks, British ambassador to Washington, is to be chosen today as secretary-general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, informed sources said.

Today's closing session of the ninth NATO Council meeting also is expected to decide to move NATO headquarters from London to Paris.

Sir Oliver's post is expected to carry real responsibilities, not to be that of a figurehead.

The secretary-general will head a secretariat which will remain in permanent session and direct the work of committees of experts who will replace separate agencies such as the Defense Production Board, Finance and Economic Councils and the Council of Deputies.

The move will start some 600 NATO officials and secretaries on a house hunt in crowded Paris.

CURFEW IMPOSED TUNIS, Tunisia (UP)—Authorities arrested 10 nationalist leaders and imposed a curfew in the town of Kef yesterday after an unknown sniper shot a member of the French Foreign Legion.

Most Important Problem Remaining Before Group Today Is Raising Of Necessary Funds

LISBON (UP)—The North Atlantic Treaty Council hurried toward adjournment today after approving a master plan to give Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower about 50 divisions and 4,000 warplanes by the end of the year.

A high American source said the U.S. would make available seven divisions—six Army and one Marine—for the defense of Western Europe. However, the Marine division is expected to remain in the U.S. unless an emergency arises.

Most important problem scheduled for solution on this final day of debate is the raising of funds quarters, pick a secretary-general as permanent administrative head of NATO and choose a site for a late spring meeting—probably Copenhagen, Denmark.

After the NATO Council adjourns Big Three representatives will meet here in special session Tuesday to give their final approval to West Germany's contribution to Western defense and perhaps to review the Austrian treaty problem.

Under the master military plan announced by NATO's Council of Ministers last night, France would make the largest contribution to Eisenhower's forces—12 divisions, including two in reserve.

Italy would raise 11 divisions, Belgium and Luxembourg together five, Britain four and Canada one. The rest would come from Norway, Denmark and the Netherlands.

However, authoritative sources said a good part of the "about 50" divisions would not be up to full strength or fully armed or trained. They estimated that Eisenhower would have in full combat readiness in Western Europe by the end of the year no more than 30 divisions—an increase of 10 to 12 over his present forces.

WASHINGTON (UP)—Senate Democratic Leader Ernest W. McFarland said today that President Truman has granted no authority to send a U. S. Marine division to Europe.

to build West European airfields and communications. The U.S. has offered to put up 38 per cent of $500,000,000 total cost, but the other NATO members are reluctant to pay the balance.

The council also is expected to select Paris as its permanent headquarters.

Statistics on unemployment claims in the county released today by Office Manager W. B. Dillingham showed that last week the office had 872 continued claims for unemployment benefits and 116 new claims for the benefits. The total number of claims filed with the office was up 245 from the total number of claims reported by the office a month ago, and the total claims for last week topped the 1951 figures for the corresponding week by 33 claims.

Dillingham stated, however, that in his opinion the general employment conditions in Pitt County this year are still better than they were a year ago. He pointed out that of the 788 claims filed with the office last week, 608 were filed by women and only 180 by men. For the corresponding week a year ago 534 claims were filed by women and 254 were filed by men.

The number of new claims filed with the office last week was considerably higher than in recent weeks, but Dillingham attributed the influx of new claimants to the fact that a number of processing plants last week laid off a number of workers who have been working since Christmas. A breakdown of the 116 new claims for unemployment benefits filed last week showed 102 of the new claims were filed by women and only 14 were filed by men.

Dillingham said this morning the employment situation in Pitt County since the first of the year has not held up as favorably as he had anticipated. It would, he emphasized, that the period from January 1 to mid-March traditionally has been the months of greatest unemployment in Pitt County. "It seems that the construction projects are not holding up as well as we had anticipated," Dillingham said. "We are getting more men than we have jobs to fill." He added that the number of major construction projects in the Greenville area at the present time is less than for the past two years.

"The employment situation is still better than it was a year ago," the office manager asserted, "and the lack of jobs in the eighth district was the fact that some of Pitt County's manpower has been drained off to other areas by military service and

Farmville Man Nominated For State Jaycee Office

Greenville and Farmville Junior Chambers of Commerce jointly put forth a candidate for vice president of Jaycee district eight at the meeting of the Jaycee state board of directors held in Raleigh Saturday and Sunday.

Robert D. Rouse, Jr., past president of the Farmville club, was formally nominated for the district office by delegates of the Greenville club who attended the state meeting. In addition to being past president of the Farmville club, Rouse has been active in Jaycee work for several years, and this year served as state chairman of the Distinguished Service Award committee. The nomination of the Greenville club made Rouse the first official candidate so far announced for the district office.

The elections will take place at the annual state Jaycee convention which will be held in Charlotte in mid-May. The Junior Chamber of Commerce organization is headed by the state officers and a vice president from each of the districts in the state. Representing the Greenville Jaycees at the meeting in Raleigh were President Dan Saleed and Mrs. Saleed, Convention Chairman Ben Rouse and Mrs. Rouse, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dail, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Russ, John Lautares, Frank Woodson and Bancroft Mosley.

Rouse's nomination for the top office in the eighth district was made by the Greenville delegation at the business meeting held yesterday morning.

Women In The Church

By MARY FOWLER
Miss Elizabeth R. Tennant, of Portage, Wis., has been awarded a fellowship by the Woman's Division of the Methodist Church. She will work with the Department of Christian Social Relations and Local Church Activities in New York City, studying United Nations and U. S. foreign policies. Miss Tennant returned recently from Japan, where she was a missionary of the Methodist Church. She is one of several missionaries who have dedicated several months toward examining U. S. policies affecting peace and justice in the world, "with the intention of finding new ways of expressing their Christian faith in the realm of international relations."

When the President of Haiti was asked to name three recipients of the proceeds of a charity ball, he named as one the St. Vincent's School (Protestant Episcopal) for Handicapped Children in Port au Prince. Sister Joan, SSN, in charge of the school, is putting the gift into more apparatus for teaching the deaf children, this being the most costly part of the school's equipment.

Miss Garnet M. Everley, of Wichita, Kan., member of the staff of Blackstone Missionary Institute, Mathura, U. P. India, reports that in that city a small group of educated Hindu men, increasingly dissatisfied with things they are discovering in their religion, are seeking to know more about Christ. Bishop J. Waskom Pickett, of Delhi, recently visited the group and discussed problems with them, she says. "We gathered in the home of the man who has been teaching them, a convert himself within the past two years," says Miss Everley. "We were about twenty sitting on the floor. Half of them were Christians, the others Hindus. Each man spoke of his longing for a new religious faith. One who is a refugee from Pakistan said he had been a loyal Hindu until he came to Mathura and saw the rites of Hindu idolatry as he found it in the Krishna worship in Mathura. He said he was disgusted and that most of the refugees— young men— were, too, in Mathura. They asked for a Christian reading room, and place where they have meetings; we hope to provide it."

Hearing Tuesday On Plea To Hike Telephone Rates

RALEIGH —(AP)— The State Utilities Commission is scheduled to hold a hearing tomorrow on a request of Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company for permission to boost its North Carolina rates $1,780,000 a year.

In its application, Southern Bell said the additional revenue is needed to earn a fair rate of return on its net investment. The Utilities Commission has set 6.5 per cent as a fair rate for public utilities. Southern Bell contends its earnings are below that rate.

The proposed increase would affect approximately 206,344 Tar Heel telephone customers.

White said Hudson will work under Aubrey B. Taylor, Greenville, district manager in Green and Pitt Counties.

The firms he represents, the Farm Bureau Mutual Automobile Insurance Company, the Farm Bureau Mutual Fire Insurance Company, and the Farm Bureau Life Insurance Company maintain home offices in Columbus, Ohio.

Refugee Church Hopes Dashed

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—A four-alarm fire destroyed a vacant church yesterday—and the immediate hopes of a congregation of displaced persons for a church of their own.

The church, taken over recently by the Ukrainian Orthodox Church, was destroyed in the spectacular blaze. The congregation consists of about 150 families, all displaced persons who have been in the country less than a year and who have put their savings and labors into repairing and renovating the building.

Mrs. Nettie Brown, 73, suffered a heart attack and died while watching firemen fight the blaze.

MANITOWOC, Wis. (UP)— Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.) says his state hasn't done enough to promote its tourist and recreational attractions.

Six Crewmen Of Grounded Vessel Rescued Today

NORFOLK, Va. (UP)— Coast Guardsmen rescued the six crewmen of the fishing trawler Belle Isle early today after the 110-foot vessel ran aground Northeast of Cape Henry Light.

An amphibious "duck" from the Virginia Beach Lifeboat Station went alongside the stricken ship to help the men, all suffering from shock and exposure, and transfer them to a waiting ambulance.

None of the crewmen was in condition to talk, a Coast Guard spokesman said, and the cause of the Belle Isle's grounding could not be determined at once.

A heavy surf, kicked up by a 30-knot gale, hammered the trawler as she lay on her side in the breakers a quarter of a mile northeast of the Cape Henry Lighthouse. Coast Guard officials said she appeared to be a total loss.

On Monday night the Home Demonstration Club's family night supper was held in the Pittman-Carroll building on the school campus. Guests for the evening were Mrs. J. B. Spilman and Mr. Sam Weeks of Greenville, and Mrs. Blanche Quattlebaum of Rocky Mount.

A lovely prayer was given by Mrs. Spilman and then a delicious array of food prepared by club members was served buffet style.

Mrs. Sue Brickhouse May, county agent, gave an interesting talk on the need for economizing this year in all we buy. Mr. Weeks then presented and explained maps showing present farm production and possible future improvements we should strive toward for greater profits.

Mrs. Spilman, in a talk, stressed the dire need of our help for young tubercular women patients who are at Wilson Sanitarium, from Pitt County.

The group then sang "Let Me Call You Sweetheart" and played some games. The evening was closed with the singing of "Good Night Ladies."

In the language of our time To the people of our time Concerning problems of our time

To Unitarians, all doctrine and belief must stand the test of enlightened reason. While not discarding the tested truths of tradition, it keeps abreast of modern knowledge.

Fighting aside the veils of creed and dogma, Unitarians enlist the support of education and science that man may better understand and cooperate with his fellow man.

A group of Greenville citizens are eager to organize a Unitarian Fellowship here. Believing others would also be interested, a public meeting has been scheduled for Wednesday evening, February 27th, 8:00 p. m., at the Sheppard Memorial Library.

Monroe Husbands of the American Unitarian Association will speak on "WHO ARE THESE UNITARIANS?" to be followed by an informal discussion. All are cordially invited.

Strength for the Day

BY KARL L. DOUGLAS
BY GOD AND HUMAN PARTNERSHIP
The old adage that God helps those who help themselves is to be pondered in the light of growing opportunities.
It is one of those old truths which has become a cliché because it is true. Basic to its truth is the spiritual principle that God never does for us what we can do for ourselves. We never save our own souls, and, accordingly, salvation becomes completely a divine gift—not something we can work for. We could never discover the meaning of divine truth by our unaided minds; therefore God has given us the Bible and the essential illumination of the Holy Spirit.
But there are many things we can do for ourselves, and these God insists we shall do. There is an old proverb which says, "For a web, God sends a thread." That is just what happens. When we show a disposition to help ourselves, God begins to help us. In areas where we cannot help ourselves at all, God does the whole thing, but in the areas where we can be partners of the Divine, God insists that we live up to the responsibility of that partnership.
We start a web. God does not start it. He insists that we do that. But if we start it, He sends a thread—and later much more. One of the glories of human existence is that God and man are partners in a sublime enterprise.

Schools Still Need More Public Support

The concern which political leaders in North Carolina have shown and are showing for the improvement of North Carolina's educational system is, we believe of great significance. At the same time, the apparent attitude of the general public of the state toward the school system is conspicuous by its lack of enthusiastic support of expansion and improvement of the school systems of the state.
It is true that the people of the state voted overwhelmingly for the $25,000,000 bond issue for school improvements a few years ago, but that could hardly be considered a real test. It received more or less passive support since there was no highly organized opposition to the question.
Concern for the state school system is apparent among political leaders by the fact that the two leading gubernatorial candidates, William Umstead and Hubert Olive, have listed school improvements, both in physical plants and the educational system proper, as the first planks in their political platforms.
Since the turn of the century North Carolina has gone a long way in establishing and improving its educational system. To be sure the great strides could not have been taken without the support of the rank and file people of the state, but the initial support for the most part has and still does come from a relatively few citizens. The general public for the most part has turned a hard-of-hearing if not a deaf ear to the needs of the school system. The needs are apparent day by day in almost every community they go unnoticed until some leader champions the cause and brings the needs to the fore of public thinking.
The citizens of North Carolina want the best possible educational facilities for their children, but somehow they have not found the time to take a very active part in boosting the educational program. Surely they have footed the bills and paid the taxes for the improvements which have been made, but still there is a definite need for closer coordination between the teachers and school officials of the state, and the parents who have children in the schools.
North Carolina is continuing to make progress in education, but the public thinking toward educational improvements is still lagging too far behind that of the leaders of the state.

Time Becomes An Ally To Western Europe

Time, the all-important factor in world affairs, is playing into the hands of the Western World in the affairs of Europe, even if it is at present playing on the side of the Communists in Asia.
The approval by the Atlantic pact nations of steps to build up the NATO defense forces against possible Russian aggression in Europe is sure to be a blow to the Communist plans for a westward movement. The longer the Russians wait, the stronger the allied forces in Europe will become. As the military power between East and West becomes more balanced, the chances of another world conflict diminish.
At the meetings in Lisbon the Atlantic Pact nations have agreed on a 50-division army ready to take the field by the end of this year and 4,000 operational aircraft to protect the skies over Europe against possible Russian strikes. As one authority expressed it: "Right now the Reds could walk to Brittany, but by the end of this year they would have to fight their way. By the end of 1954 we would be able to throw them back."
When the movement for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization began, the Communists did everything they could to prevent the effectiveness of the organization. Even the peoples of the Western nations doubted the ability of the sovereign nations of the West to form a tightly knit defense force. Never before in history had such a thing been accomplished in peacetime. The Communists will continue to fight the organization of the defense programs of the group. But even so they are surprised that the program has developed as far as it has. It already has dealt a blow to the Communist timetable for European domination.
In spite of the fact that the NATO nations have come to agreement on what defense forces are necessary in Europe, the problem of financing the large military build-up remains a serious one. For the European nations which have not regained their sound financial footing since World War II, millions and billions of dollars for military outlay poses a grave situation. For even the United States, the multi-billion dollar loans which will be necessary if the NATO forces are to become an actuality pose a serious question.
The plan for organizing the European army has been worked out. The plan for financing the European army is the next barrier which must be overcome.

National Whirligig
WASHINGTON—The Taft-for-President organization has begun to function as smoothly and smartly as the Teddy Roosevelt "steamroller" that nominated his father in 1912.
On the other hand, the Eisenhower amateurs are still floundering helplessly and aimlessly without a leader or spokesman. The Taft total of probable delegates is now estimated at 450 by his promoters, with about 605 necessary for nomination.
That is the central fact of today's GOP situation, regardless of future developments and the identity of the eventual nominee. The Eisenhower faction realize that, unless they can bring the General home soon and place him on the stump, Taft will so far outstrip them that he may go over on the very first ballot.
OBJECTIVES—As a result of nationwide conferences during the Lincoln-Washington birthday period, the Ohioan's skilled operators are now concentrating on two objectives. Their campaign operations extend from Maine to Texas and from Oregon to Florida, an extensive territory which their hard-riding candidate has almost covered already.
The first objective is to amass such strength that "Ike" will be discouraged enough to remain silent and in uniform 3,000 miles away from the scene of political battle. His own partisans concede that such an indifferent course and attitude will eliminate him from serious consideration by the convention.
The second Taft aim is to place him so far in front in the next few weeks that all talk of a deadlock and a compromise choice—Warren, MacArthur or Stassen—will die out.
Lately, they have felt some worry over a sporadic but scattered boom for MacArthur, whom they had counted as a camp-follower, if not an actual supporter. Sufficient to them to know that he is avowedly anti-Eisenhower.
AMATEURS—The difference between the Taft and Eisenhower organizations is that between a group of experienced and skillful veterans and a bevy of likable but inept amateurs, with the possible exception of Senator Duff of Pennsylvania and Governor Dewey of New York.
But Dewey is such poison to GOP leaders and rank-and-file that his remarkably efficient machine cannot operate openly, even in New York. When his pro-Eisenhower associates want to consult him, they enter over long-distance telephone.
In Pennsylvania, Duff faces opposition from Governor John S. Pine as well as the Grundy-Owlett group, which may split the delegation between MacArthur and Taft, with "Ike" getting less than a majority.
CARNIVAL—The Madison Square Garden carnival to stir Eisenhower sentiment testifies to the juvenile tactics of his promoters. Most of the 15,000 consisted of boxing fans who remained over after the end of the usual weekly bouts. Many others probably attended to get a free look at Irving Berlin, Ethel Merman and other Broadway stars. They always draw a crowd anywhere.
The starry-eyed Senator Lodge, the Eisenhower campaign manager, was photographed as he gazed at this Mardi Gras with the remark that "it was the greatest thing ever happened in American politics," or words to that effect. Perhaps the most illuminating comment is that the General's military aides, and possibly Eisenhower himself, regarded it as undignified and entirely unhelpful.
SEASONED—Meanwhile, Taft has shown his determination and resourcefulness by assuming personal charge of his forces. By contrast, in 1948 he remained on the Senate floor during the pre-convention period. He did not reach Philadelphia until late afternoon before opening day, after attending a Senate session until 3 a. m. that morning.
His chieftains are seasoned warriors. Former National Chairman John D. M. Hamilton handles New England, New York and Pennsylvania. The Taft forces shocked the opposition by signing up Paul Williams, an old Driscoll aide, as their representative in New Jersey. David S. Ingalls, Taft's cousin, and Tom Coleman, Wisconsin boss, are looking after the Middle West.
INFLUENTIAL—The Taftites stole former National Committeeman Roy Dunn from the Blaesens camp in Minnesota. They lifted Senator Andrew F. Schoepel, although he represents the Eisenhower stronghold of Kansas. A recent acquaintance is Senator Eugene D. Millikin of Colorado, GOP policy leader in the Senate, who served in MacArthur's division in World War II.
Former Representative Carrol Reece, who had to work under wraps for Taft in 1948 because he was then National Chairman, is rounding up delegates in the South. A non-political but extremely influential figure in the West is Marriner S. Eccles, former head of the Federal Reserve, who has banking, railroad, farming and construction connections in that area.

Around Capitol Square

By LYNN NISBET
HEADQUARTERS—The 1952 state-wide primary campaign will get into full swing by the time, the State Democratic Executive Committee meets here during the first week in March. William B. Umstead, recognized as presently the leading candidate for the gubernatorial nomination, is scheduled to open state headquarters in the St. Vrain Hotel before March 11. Tentative plans of Hubert Olive, conceded to be a real contender for the nomination, call for headquarters opening about a week later.
PERSONNEL—Umstead has almost completed his staff of key personnel. Announcement was made several days ago that Carlisle Higgins of Winston-Salem will be state manager. Mechanics of the office will be handled by experienced women who worked with Umstead when he managed Gregg's campaign in 1944, during his tenure as state chairman, and as a candidate for the U. S. Senate in 1948. Just as soon as a publicity man is chosen—and that might be before this item gets in print—the Umstead organization will be ready to function. Judge Olive has not announced a state manager or any key personnel to be connected with his headquarters. Information from the Olive inner council is that these arrangements are nearing completion—and that announcements may have elements of surprise.
ADVISORY—A highly important segment of any political campaign is the unofficial advisory group, those volunteers aides who give advice whenever it is requested, and many times when it is not. Often it is difficult to determine just who make up these unofficial groups. Some names can be named now, others will appear on the scene as the campaign progresses, and some will never be publicized. Without disparagement of any contributions to the free advice budget, some of the most active background operations can be named.
ACTIVE—Umstead can list on his active advisory council

What Other Papers Are Thinking

THAT ROANOKE DAM (Wilson Times)
An issue is at stake on the Roanoke river that's quite likely to affect the entire nation. It's whether the basin is to be developed by the government as a power and flood control project, or whether it's to be done by private enterprise. The Virginia Electric and Power company has authority to go ahead with a dam and its rights have been upheld by the lower courts. But now along comes Oscar L. Chapman, the Secretary of Interior, who says he will carry over to the Supreme Court. In short, then, he challenges the right of private enterprise to interfere with what he calls the proper river development.
On navigable streams, when rights of that sort are given to private enterprise, dams constructed for power revert to the government at the end of 100 years. If, then, Chapman thinks an issue is at stake, why doesn't he give the Virginia company the go-ahead sign and fit the remainder of the dams he proposes building into the present pattern? For in the matter of another 100 years, the government will own what private enterprise constructs. But some of our people, including Chapman, who think that the government can manufacture power cheaper than private enterprise know full well that they can charge many of the operating costs to other departments of the government.
That's being done in Tennessee. What comes in from power goes only to power. Operating the locks and building up the social conditions of the area are charged to the government. Thus, in the end the government pours out. It'll be the same with the Roanoke river if the government goes ahead with the development. Of course, it will improve the area, but it'll improve it at the expense of all the taxpayers of the nation. Into the Tennessee has been poured far more than a billion dollars. Into the Roanoke will go a fourth of that. If the government takes over, is the issue at stake merely one of spending money?
SHORTAGE OF MILK IS FUNNY BUSINESS (Hertford County Herald)
Although we knew it all the time, this is to confess that we will never get used to hearing some one recite figures on how little milk North Carolina produces compared to the quantity it consumes. "More than 6,000,000 gallons of milk were shipped last year into the State from outside sources," says the manager of the Aoshkie Dairy Cooperative.
Just why there aren't more dairy farms, and greater production of milk on existing farms, we don't know. Maybe we can make a living so easily with our old cropping system that the work and the capital outlay takes more than the average farmer wants to put out. It could be for any number of reasons, or a combination of them.
Possibly Hertford County's Fred Jones and his board members of the State Milk Producers Association have the reasons all figured out, maybe the group can do something to raise the percentage of production. We understand that to be one of the problems the Federation is tackling at the present time. Dairyman Jones, having demonstrated the capacity for developing a dairy business of his own here in Hertford County where few farmers go in for dairying, ought to be able to tell his fellow board members some of the answers. At least, his addition to the Board is a recognition of his leadership in the dairying industry within this area.
Still, withal, we can't understand why more milk is not produced right here in this Roanoke-Chowan country. Our lowlands, river bottoms, swampy areas, creek banks, cut-over woodlands, and, yes, even some of the high land fertile acres now put to production of row crops, could be profitably used for pasturage. We have a long way to go before we bring our milk production up to anywhere near what our potential is.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
Appliance retailers of Stamford, Conn., are spearheading a movement which may result in a general revolution against television manufacturers by independent appliance dealers.
In an advertisement in the trade press headed, "Hello Brother Fall Guys," the Appliance Dealers Association of Stamford is calling on other dealers to refuse to buy TV sets that do not carry fair margins and to refuse to pay separate charges on any invoice or to handle money without a profit.
The advertisement asks, "How did you enjoy working last year for the television manufacturer for free? What did you think of selling TV for less profit than your operating cost and subsidizing the TV manufacturers with profits from white (i.e., unenameled) goods? How did you like the way your margins were cut by the use of quoting excise tax and warranty separately on your invoices and sales, then handling this money from the customer to the distributor, at bookkeeping loss, and paying this money, with your capital, before you received it? Was it a privilege to purchase a parts warranty you did not want, then be forced to go through an elaborate system of bookkeeping for parts return and replacement and pay freight and handling? Both ways?"
"Did it agree with your company policy to set a price and then tell the customer what she had to pay to own it? Did you fully appreciate customer reaction to this practice?"
J. S. Geoghegan, president of the Stamford dealers, said that all major manufacturers are at fault but that some of the smaller ones are forced to grant reasonable profits to distributors. Most manufacturers do not grant margins large enough to cover the cost of selling and some have squeezed these margins by reducing retail prices with making adjustments to dealers for stocks on hand. Margins have been further squeezed by the "pass through" of taxes and warranty.
The advertisement, Mr. Geoghegan said, has brought response from all sections of the country and many other associations have promised to call meetings to consider refusing to buy sets without adequate margins.
Only silence has come from large manufacturers, he said, but some of their representatives have said that if dealers were given larger margins they would just give them away in discounts.
FLORIDA'S TROUBLE; TOO MANY ORANGES
Too many oranges are making trouble for Florida. This year's crop is so large that prices have fallen and even the frozen concentrate market can't blot up all the golden goodness.
One of the troubles is quite embarrassing. For years Florida's reputation has maintained the reputation of their fruit by forbidding

Hal Boyle's Column

By CYNTHIA LOWERY
(For HAL BOYLE)
NEW YORK — (AP)— "The reason there are so many songwriters," said Steve Allen, who is one himself, "is because it doesn't take long to write a song and because it doesn't take any talent."
An estimates amateur songwriters comprise a larger group with special interests than any other, except possibly horse players.
"For almost all of these people, there is no hope that their songs will ever be published," he continued. "There is no other field so firmly closed to newcomers. There is about one chance in 100,000 that an amateur's song will be published."
Allen is pretty well qualified on a number of scores to discuss the problem of the unsung, unpublished songwriter. For one thing he's master of ceremonies of a network television show, "Songs for Sale."
Each week the songs of four unknowns are picked for presentation, and each is given an expensive, elaborate production with vocals by a big-name singer. It is somewhat significant that after almost two years of operation, during which hundreds of new songs have been launched, not a single one has hit the nation's top-ten song lists.
"That," said Allen, "will give you some idea of the problems—and remember that most of these have been good songs. Most amateur songs aren't good."
The show now is receiving between 1,500 and 2,000 song manuscripts each week, a figure which occasionally rises as high as 5,000. Of these, about 1 per cent are culled as possibilities. The rest are returned with a polite rejection slip. The 1 per cent is further whittled.
"It's so easy to write a song—it's not easy to write a good song, of course—that the supply is always much greater than the demand," Allen continued.
"If song writers would go at the job the way actors or writers usually do—studying and practicing—they could have a lot of fun. An amateur song writer can get his songs played around in his community, write special material for amateur functions and get to be quite a big man around his town. It gets bad when they try to get into the professional field."
Allen described "Songs for Sale" and other programs using unpublished songs as "a drop in the bucket" and added a note of caution to song-writing hopefuls.
"I don't believe there's another group as easily taken as songwriters," he said.
"Naive song writers dream about becoming Hoagy Carmichaels and owning a couple of Cadillacs. They are eager to pay money to some guy who says he can fix up their song for $10

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS
WASHINGTON — The rigors of Friday and Lenten fasting and abstinence have been so tempered that today many persons look forward to the tempting dishes served up then. This is the belief of Father Robert J. Gannon, S. J., who writes the introduction to "Fridays and Lent" "Cookbook for Fridays and Lent" (David McKay Co., Inc.)
This is the second cookbook written by Miss Rhode, who was a member of a class of some 50 girls from top-ranking families who attended the exclusive Grand Duchess of Baden Cooking School, held in the Grand Duchy of Baden, Germany, in 1928. Her first, published a year ago, was "The Viennese Cookbook."
Miss Rhode, daughter of a Lutheran minister, was raised in Berlin and came to the United States in 1928 to join her brother Bill in running a catering business in New York. He died in 1946 and Miss Rhode went to Philadelphia, where she now directs a catering firm, and some 3,000 employees in a large department store.
"There are no fancy recipes in the new book—everything is for a limited budget," Miss Rhode told me on a recent visit to Washington. "It's not like the elegant food outlined in the Viennese book, but Europe has been poor before, and we learn from both lives."
Father Gannon writes that there was a time when fast and abstinence in some places came to mean salt, bread, water and herbs taken once a day. The "merciful tempering of the old black fast," he adds, "leaves us not only with eggs, milk, butter and cheese, but a great variety of sea food which can be prepared many ways today."
Miss Rhode's own favorite Lenten dish is called "Pasta alla Conchion di Risa, Shrima, Oysters, Peas, Sliced Artichoke Bottoms, Pimentones and Spices." "You do it in a casserole, serve it with a salad, fresh pears and Roquefort cheese," she said.

Chapter 12
Johnny frowned, staring out across the glass-smooth surface. Theirs was the only craft moving. They were outlined against the skyline as sharply as a silhouette. He straightened further in the seat, still watching the shore.

"Something wrong?" The girl looked at him with curious eyes. "I don't know."

This time, it was close. You could hear wood splinter somewhere forward in the boat, near the water line.

"What was that?" Kay asked. Johnny was tense now. As he reached for the wheel, he guided the craft harbor-ward, he said, "Someone's using a silenced rifle."

Fear leaped into the girl's eyes. She saw the boat gas, realizing his intention to get as far from the shore as possible.

But even as the boat started to leap ahead, wood split stop the rail, not two feet behind them. Johnny yelled above the motor's roar, "Kill the engine. We're a perfect target here in the boat. Swim!"

He thought Kay Smith had a splendid, alert brain. She had cut the switch, bent low and was loosening her shoes even as Johnny called the warning. He, too, had jammed them off in an instant. He jammed them beneath his belt. The light coat slid from his shoulders as he followed the girl overboard.

Momentarily, the boat shielded them from the shore. As the girl's head popped to the surface almost beside Johnny's, she cried, "Can you swim?"

"I hope so," he said, and dove under again.

He remembered opening his eyes just below the surface. He had a swift, distorted glimpse of Kay, almost beside him, doubled up as she wriggled out of her skirt and kicked loose her sandals. At first he thought she was having cramps. Then her legs whipped out in a smooth drive and she swam under water.

Johnny did likewise, still holding his breath. Finally he was forced to come to the surface again. The girl was beside him, treading water. Both twisted their heads and looked quickly behind them.

The boat, drifting, was some distance away. It no longer offered a screen between themselves and the hidden marksman somewhere along the shore.

Without a word, Johnny and the slim-built girl dove again, striking out under water. This time they zig-zagged to the left. Finally, forced to come up for air again, Johnny looked around swiftly. He thought it was a useless thing to do. There was no telling from what direction the shots had come. It was like a marauder using a knife in the dark—silent and deadly.

Kay was swimming beside him, her face white and strained. "What'll we do?"

In the few moments since they had left the boat, the dusk was already deeper. This Johnny thought, was to their advantage. It should make the marksman's target deceptive.

Ahead of them, perhaps a quarter of a mile away, was the curving white strip of beach that belonged to the Smith estate. Kay saw his gaze dart that way.

"Can you make it?" she asked. "I'll try. Any way, I'd rather drown than die of lead poisoning," he told her.

They moved toward the beach in stages of swimming under water and popping to the surface for lungfuls of air. Soon it was fairly dark, and he knew the rifleman could not possibly see them now. Yet the beach looked a long distance away, Johnny thought. Though his trousers were light summer tropicals, he considered loosening his belt and kicking them off. They pulled at his legs. But he remembered he was carrying close to three hundred dollars in his pockets and decided against it. Also, he didn't want to lose his shoes.

It seemed that moments dragged into hours. Neither he nor the girl spoke, both conserving all the breath they could. Johnny was aware of her labored breathing and knew that, even though she was a good swimmer, the pulsing beat of danger had robbed her of energy.

They kept swimming.

Darkness was black over the shore when his feet finally touched sand beneath him. He stood up in shoulder-deep water, and his legs felt like something encased in cement. The girl swayed against him and clutched for his hand. He tried to steady her.

Together they struggled toward shallow water, both panting with exertion. Finally they were on the hard-packed, wet beach. Kay stumbled forward until her feet touched loose, dry sand. Then she sank slowly to her hands and knees. Unnerved now, she started sobbing.

Johnny knelt down beside her, putting on his shoes. Muscles in his legs and arms were trembling. "It's... all right," he reassured the girl. "The guy can't see us now."

"I know," Kay said. "I just... can't help it."

He put his hand on her wet shoulders and took it away again. His fingers were trembling. He decided he was in a rotten condition to be a detective. Perhaps he ought to stop smoking.

Johnny removed his shirt. He flung his sodden necktie away. "Here," he offered, "put this around you."

She was only wearing the light sweater and some kind of panties.

For a moment she did not move. She was still crying a little. Then she straightened up, reaching for the wet shirt that Johnny held out to her.

"I can't see the bathhouse," he said. He started into the gloom. "Which way is..."

His question trailed off. Neither of them spoke, and the girl's slim fingers dug fiercely into his arm as she involuntarily held onto him.

A little distance away, still unseen in the darkness, someone was moving toward them. Footsteps made hushed scuffing sounds in the loose sand.

NO TRACE OF OCCUPANTS.—The occupants of this automobile fled after it overturned on the Old Creek road near Fictibus Saturday night and have not been heard from since. The car narrowly missed going into the canal which runs below the mound of dirt on which the car is resting. Sunday, the owner reported the car as stolen. (Reflector Staff Photo by Roy Hardee).

Law At State Convention Jaycees Back Anti-Mask

RALEIGH — (AP) — The North Carolina Junior Chamber of Commerce is on record as favoring the enactment of an anti-masking law and opposing the renaming of Blue Ridge Parkway in honor of Rep. Robert L. Doughton.

Approximately 500 Jaycees adopted these resolutions at a quarterly meeting here yesterday. The anti-masking resolution called on the 1953 General Assembly to pass an act "such as has been adopted by one or more of our sister Southern states."

The Jaycees also adopted a resolution calling for state-supported driver training programs in the public schools.

S. Kelly Vester of Rocky Mount was awarded the first annual North Carolina Jaycees Distinguished Service Award to a man under 35 for outstanding service to the state. Vester, 34, is a senior sanitarian of the Rocky Mount Health Department.

Umstead Opens Offices Tuesday

RALEIGH — (AP) — Former U. S. Sen. William B. Umstead — the first major contender for the North Carolina Democratic gubernatorial nomination — will open campaign headquarters here tomorrow.

Umstead's headquarters will be located in the Master Room of the Sir Walter Hotel.

Last week Umstead released an 11-point platform calling for higher school teacher salaries, continued improvement of secondary and primary roads, and better care for mentally-ill and other state hospital patients.

Mr. Doughton himself had clearer perspective and begged his associates not to do what they did. He has the main center on the parkway named for him, which was and is highly appropriate. Now if he can persuade his colleagues not to mess with the established name of the famous drive, but to move the official headquarters of the parkway administration from Virginia to North Carolina — where it properly belongs — history will accord him sufficient honors, without the chance that legislative nomenclature will be ignored by the public.

Tournament time is on top of everyone at the present time, and Pitt County is just about taking its share.

Three tournaments are scheduled to take place within Pitt County in the next two weeks. The Coastal Athletic Conference gets a head-start on the others by jumping into action tonight in Ayden with five girls teams and five boys teams scheduled to participate.

The Class AA Northeastern Conference takes the spotlight during the latter part of this week with its dribble derby. East Carolina's Wright gymnasium will be the scene of the three-day tourney which gets underway Thursday night and runs through Saturday night, when the finals will be held off.

Winding up the tournament tour will be the week-long Pitt County Conference tourney at Wright gym. A total of 20 teams—ten girls and ten boys—will see action in this elongated affair.

Breakdown
Ayden is the favorite in both the boys and girls division of the Coastal tourney by virtue of its seven-one records compiled during the regular season. For a while, it looked as if Coach Stuart Tripp's topsedded Tornadoes would carry an unbeaten conference record into the event, but Vanceboro eliminated that possibility last Friday night with an overtime daisy-do affair in the Craven County gym. Incidentally, both Ayden teams are defending champions.

Probably the biggest surprise in the girls division is the sudden drop of Vanceboro's sextet. After sporting one of the best teams to be found in the conference, as well as taking the Craven County championship for several years in a row, Coach E. P. Blair's team has dropped below the 500 mark with a 3-3 league record. Part of the unexpected downward movement can be attributed to a mid-season accident to Vanceboro's high scoring forward Lois Jean Forrest. Miss Forrest, who had averaged nearly 26 points per contest, slipped while leaving her home and broke a bone in her leg.

Although no seedings were made other than the top-spot, Farmville's girls could very easily surprise a lot of people. The Red Devil lassies have experienced what is probably its worst season in history, yet they have one of the best-looking teams on the court to be found in the conference. Coach Charlie Tucker started the season with only two first stringers back from last year—a forward and one guard. The rest were chiefly composed of freshmen and sophomores. They have a lot to learn of the game of basketball, and probably have no chance at all of winning the four day derby, but one thing is almost assured—the Farmville lassies will put up a good showing, even in defeat.

Northeastern—This is expected to be the toughest of all, as the top three teams—Kinston, Washington, and Greenville—are all rated just about even. The Kinston team, which recorded lopsided victories over Greenville and Washington in the first games played with the two schools, has been seeded first in the tourney, with Washington and the Green Panthers filling in behind them in second and third places, respectively. About the only way to tell anything at all about the outcome of the tourney is to wait and see just what does happen.

Pitt County—Now here is a marathon in the true sense. Four games—two for boys teams and two for girls teams—will be played on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights, and with Friday off, the final four teams will battle it out Saturday night for the championship.

Bethel's Indians, perennial favorites in the county tourney, have taken their accustomed spot once again, with their toughest competition expected to come from second-place Ayden. Coach Walter Latham sent his team through another undefeated campaign during the regular season's schedule. Ayden lost twice to the Indians, by two points in the conference contest and by three points in a non-conference tilt.

It's a different story in the girls division, however, as three teams have a chance at the title. Winterville and Ayden are the favorites, while Belvoir has a chance, although it is a slim opportunity, to take the trophy home.

Winterville and Belvoir finished the year with identical records—eight wins and one defeat apiece. The Ayden team also had only one defeat, from Winterville, but had only six victories. Included in that string of wins, however, was one over the Belvoir team. Winterville lost its only contest of the year to Belvoir, as Claudia Pollard of Belvoir was hitting the nets for 41 points.

East Carolina hits High Point for the third time this season in the opening round of the NAIB tourney in Burlington tonight. The Pirates play the second game of the all-North State team derby, while Elon and Appalachian square off in the first game.

The winners tonight will meet tomorrow night in the finals, with the champion moving on to Kansas City for the National championship tourney.

Going outside this district for a moment, Scotland Neck High School of Halifax County qualified for the district playoffs last Friday night by whipping William R. Davie High, 112-16.

East Carolina Meets High Point In NAIB

Apps-Elon Open Two-Day Tourney At Burlington

High Point will tangle with East Carolina in the second game of the first night of action in the 1935 NAIB Tourney, which starts at Elon College in Burlington tonight and runs into Tuesday night for the finals. The winner of the two-day tourney will represent the Carolinas in the NAIB National Tourney to be held in Kansas City in March.

Elon College and Appalachian State square off in the opening round tonight at 7:30. The Christians and Mountaineers finished the regular North State conference season in a tie for first place with identical 12-4 records. Elon and Appalachian divided a pair of games during the recent season in the North State.

East Carolina and High Point also met twice during the regular season, with the Pirates coming out on top in both contests. Coach Howard Porter's high scoring Buccaneers dropped the Purple Panthers by scores of 71-65 and 69-64.

High Point is the defending champion in the Carolinas district of the National Association of Intercollegiate Basketball as they beat East Carolina in the finals last season. The Panthers went on to Kansas City for the national playoffs but were eliminated in the first round of play.

The NAIB event will in all probability be a preview to the forthcoming North State Tournament as the tourney is an all North State affair. Only two teams from South Carolina—Presbyterian and Furman—were in the running for bids at any time, and Presbyterian could not finish the season with a percentage better than the North State teams could while Furman, who has hopes of participating in the Southern Conference tournament, withdrew from the running.

Pairings Drawn For North State

STATESVILLE (UP)—Fourth-seeded High Point and Western Carolina will clash in the opening basketball game of the North State Conference tournament Thursday.

Coaches met yesterday to draw the pairings. The first game is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. It will be followed by third-seeded East Carolina and Lenoir Rhyne at 4 p.m.

Thursday night second-seeded Elon will take on Catawba at 7 p.m. And at 9 p.m. first-seeded Appalachian meets Guilford.

The semi-final games in the limitation tourney will be played Friday night and the final game Saturday.

The two top conference teams, Elon and Appalachian, meet tonight in the first game of the Carolinas District National Association of Intercollegiate Basketball playoffs at Elon. East Carolina and High Point meet in the other game.

Winner of the finals tomorrow night will represent the district in the National tournament in March at Kansas City.

Elon and Appalachian moved to the top and held on Saturday night in one of the closest conference races in the loop's history. Elon took Lenoir Rhyne 86 to 78 and Appalachian swamped Catawba 100 to 76.

Hawaiian Chant
MIAMI (AP)—Dr. G. E. Woodard, Florida horse breeder, has a penchant for giving his horses Hawaiian names. And race track announcers are getting tongue-tied as a result. Last year Dr. Woodard named one of his horses Mama Na Wawae. This season Erwiwi, Hekili and Makani Ikaika are racing in his colors. In Hawaiian, the names of the last mentioned horses mean "the quick thunder" and "hurricane". But pity the poor announcers.

Bethel Closes Home Season In Bear Grass Game

BETHEL—Bethel High School will close out its home schedule tonight with a game against Bear Grass, who upset both the boys and girls teams of Bethel in a game played earlier in the season.

In that first game, Bear Grass connected late in the game to squeak out a close 57-56 victory over the Indians. It was a different story in the girls game, however, as Bear Grass won handily, 42-33.

Coach Walter Latham will send his boys team against only one more opponent in regular season play this year, against Snow Hill tomorrow night, but after that, Bethel will participate in the state championship eliminations and the Pitt County Conference tournament.

The boys will meet the team that finished the regular season in second place in Wilson County next Thursday night in the district playoffs for the state championship. The tournament will be played in Louisville. Besides the Bethel five, Ayden's Tornadoes will also represent Pitt County in the tournament, along with the first and second place teams in Wilson County, Louisburg High, and S'em.

Jack Burke Takes Top Houston Pay

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—All little Jack Burke Jr. needed was to play it safe to win the $10,000 Houston Open Golf Tournament—and he did.

The 29-year-old son of an old-time Houston golf professional yesterday turned in an even par 72 for a 72-hole total of 277 and $2,000 first money. It was his second tournament victory in two weeks. His first was the Texas Open at San Antonio.

Amateur Frank Stranahan came in second with a 71 that gave him a 283 total.

German sled.
The U.S. showing in hockey, climaxed by holding the powerful Canadian combine to a 3-3 tie yesterday, left the Yanks elated.

"I am more than satisfied, by the results," said Hockey Coach Connie Pleban. "The boys played great hockey. So did the Canadians. And I think our Dick Desmond, of Milford, Mass., proved to be the best goalie in the tournament."

"We're still shivering from that close shave," said Canadian Coach Lou Holmes. "We estimated our winning margin would be a comfortable two goals, but those Americans turned up something we hadn't expected and gave us an uncomfortable time. One thing, it was a good, clean game."

Sixth Winter Olympics Closes Today; United States Second

United Press Sports Writer
OSLO, Norway (UP)—The sixth winter Olympic games, in which the United States made its strongest showing in history, closes today with two hockey games and brief colorful ceremonies.

The only thing remaining to be settled in the competition was third place in the hockey competition. Sweden and Czechoslovakia, tied for the spot with identical records of six wins and two defeats, meet in a playoff game at 11 a.m. EST.

The other game matched also-rans Poland and Germany.

Since the European championship was blended with the Olympic hockey tournament, the winner of the Swedish-Czech game will also win the European title. Canada won the hockey crown with seven victories and a tie, and the U.S. was second with six wins, one loss and a tie.

The showing in hockey was typical of the fine performance by U.S. athletes in the games here. The star-spangled U.S. team ran up a total of 89 1-2 points to take second place in the unofficial team competition behind Norway's 125 1/2.

Though the U.S. won the winter Olympic title in the 1932 games at Lake Placid, N.Y., that showing is not rated nearly as strong as the Yanks' deeds here during the past week because few European nations were able to send full teams in 1932.

All told, the Americans won four Gold Medals—the greatest number they have ever won in an Olympics held outside the U.S., topping the three they won in 1948.

Mrs. Andrea Mead Lawrence, 19-year-old dark-haired ski daredevil from Rutland, Vt., emerged the top U.S. star with two first places in the ladies' giant slalom race and the regular slalom.

But her brilliance was only slightly greater than that of Dick Button of Englewood, N.J., peerless master of the blades who successfully defended his figure-skating title, and dashing Ken Henry of Chicago, winner of the 500 meter speed skating race.

The U.S. team won respect with its balanced show of power. With five points for second place in Hockey, the Americans also marked up 26 1-2 points in skiing, 10 in bobsledding, and 48 in skating.

The lone event that might be considered a mild disappointment was the four-man bobsled. The U.S. sled skipped by Stan Beham of Lake Placid, N.Y., had been the original favorite, but had to settle for second place behind the crack

Seattle Star Sets Mark For Individual Scoring

SEATTLE (AP)—Johnny O'Brien, jumping-jack Seattle University guard, owned a new national collegiate single-season basketball scoring record of 970 points today.

The 5-foot-9 youngster with springs in his legs broke the old mark of 967 Saturday night against Portland University with a 37 point performance. George King of Morris-Harvey was the record-holder he overtook.

But despite O'Brien's 71 points in two nights at Portland, his club lost both games, 83-82 and 93-80, to dim its hopes of a bid to the NCAA regional tournament at Corvallis, Ore. next month.

The South Amboy N. J. twin, who teams with his brother at guard for the Seattle U. Chieftains, has two games left against Portland here Thursday and Friday to become the first player in collegiate history to score 1,000 or more points in one season.

O'Brien earlier broke the free throw record of 291 and now has 322 points from the gift line.

Snead Loses And Then Ducks Away

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—Siammin Sammy Snead watched Mary Lena Faulk calmly drop a 10-foot putt for a birdie on the 18th green of the Dabedread course yesterday, then ducked under the ropes and disappeared without saying a word.

Snead and Betty MacKinnon of Mt. Pleasant, Tex., had just been eliminated 1-up by Miss Faulk, amateur from Thomasville, Ga., and Don Bisplinghoff, 17-year-old Orlando high school junior, in the International Mixed Two-Ball Golf Tournament.

Today the Faulk-Bisplinghoff team faced Edean Anderson of Helena, Mont., and Dick Chapman, British amateur champion from Pinehurst, N. C., in the semi-finals. Chapman and Miss Anderson beat Patty Berg of St. Andrews, Ill., and Pete Cooper of White Plains, N. Y., 3 and 1 yesterday.

Burlington Man Will Head Rally

SANFORD, N. C. (AP)—Eugene Gordon, Burlington attorney, will be in charge of arrangements for a huge Democratic rally planned for Gov. Scott's Haw River farm next August.

W. W. Staton of Sanford, president of the North Carolina Young Democratic Clubs, announced over the weekend that Gordon has been named general chairman for the event. The YDC's are sponsoring the rally and barbecue.

The Democratic Presidential candidate is scheduled to launch his national campaign at the rally. It will be held two weeks following the Democratic convention at Chicago in July.

On a recent trip to Raleigh, National Democratic Chairman Frank McKinney promised that the party's Presidential candidate will attend the rally and speak. President Truman assured Gov. Scott last week he will attend "or send a good man."

Stocks And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Prices edged upward on the stock exchange early today in moderately active dealings.

The modest improvement in prices marked the third consecutive advance. Dealings on the upswing, however, were restricted and sales in the first hour totaled only 290,000 shares, compared with 360,000 in the same period last Thursday.

Specialty issues featured in the rise. General refractories continued its current advance with a gain of a point to 42 1/2. At one time, it touched a new high of 42 3/4. Lehman Corp. was also a bright spot with an improvement of 1 1/8 points to 72 3/8. Scott Paper added 1 1/4 points to 52 1/4.

Elsewhere, a few metal shares displayed a considerable amount of strength. Newmont Mining at 121 1/2 was up 3 points and American Metals added a point to 58.

Steel shares lacked on small gains. Automotives moved irregularly. Utilities were neglected.

Oils were mixed, with Cities Service a weak spot with a decline of 1 1/4 points to 103 5/8. Rails held around their previous close.

Tipsters Paid $500,000 For Tax Fraud Reports

WASHINGTON (UP)—The government paid "patriotic" tipsters $500,000 in fiscal 1951 for tips which helped it collect some $9,700,000 on unpaid taxes.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue revealed today it gave rewards ranging from $25 to $62,000 to 121 informers in the 12 months ended last June 30.

The number of tips the bureau gets has increased in recent years along with taxes, one official said. The current tax scandal investigation is expected to drive the number even higher this year.

Total rewards will not exceed $500,000, however, because that is the limit set by Congress.

The bureau follows up all tips, anonymous or signed. Experience has shown anonymous tips pay off far less often than the signed ones, however, the official said.

Motives for informing are usually envy, revenge, patriotism or cash.

The informer who cashed in for $62,000 last year led the bureau to a taxpayer who had been keeping two sets of books for a number of years. The set which tax collectors had been allowed to see omitted or underestimated sales and "grossly misrepresented" expense accounts according to officials.

For reporting a taxpayer who hadn't filed a return for several years, another tipster got the $25.92.

The going rate for fruitful tips is about 10 per cent of the money collected, but this varies greatly depending on how much information the tipster provides.

The smallest amount ever paid a tipster was $2.60, the largest, was $80,000.

The money collected by the bureau on the basis of tips is not only back taxes, but also various penalties, interest and fines on those taxes.

An example of the type of tip for which the bureau does not pay off is the man who embarked on a plan of reporting real estate dealers whose names and addresses he learned from publications.

He knew nothing about any of them and was not in a position to get any facts about their financial affairs. He just thought their tax returns would bear investigation.

But another informant got $8,700 last year for disclosing a tax-evasion system some racketeers were using in several illicit businesses.

And then there was the tipster who "forgot" to include his substantial reward on his income tax return. The bureau caught him and collected.

Two Break-Ins Are Investigated

Greenville police today were checking on two break-ins, possibly related to the recent wave of robberies in the city and over Pitt County.

Shortly after midnight, a police officer making his regular rounds in the uptown section of the city discovered that someone had cut the lock from the ABC store on Evans Street and attempted to enter the building.

However, nothing was found to be missing and it was not believed that the robber or robbers actually entered the building.

This morning, officers were called to the Harris Super Market when employees discovered that the store had been robbed of a number of cartons of cigarettes.

Investigation of the robbery revealed that the window panes of the front door had been carefully removed to gain entrance.

First estimate of the loss suffered by the store was between 75-100 cartons of cigarettes of all brands.

At least four successful robberies have been carried out over the county in which large amounts of cigarettes have been stolen.

Officers stated that investigation of the robberies is still far from being completed.

Later this morning an employe of the Allen Implement Company, located a short distance from the Harris Super Market, reported the discovery of the stolen merchandise hidden behind some farm machinery in four bags.

Arrest Three On Bootleg Charges

Three arrests on bootleg whiskey charges were made during the weekend by Pitt County ABC officers and members of the county.

Oscar Mizelle, white, 35, of Route 5, Greenville, was arrested Saturday night when officers went to Mizelle's home with a search warrant and found 29 and one-half gallons of bootleg whiskey.

The whiskey was found in the hall and pantry of his home, officers said. Mizelle posted a $200 cash bond for his appearance in County Court Tuesday, February 26.

Arresting officers were Jim Ward, J. L. Taylor, C. T. Manning, R. W. King, and L. E. Manning.

The same officers made two other arrests Saturday night when they stopped a car on the Creek Road and found a quantity of bootleg whiskey in the car.

Arrested were Herman Ward, colored, 22, of Route 12, of Reid Street, City. The whiskey was found on Ward's car, a 1942 Chevrolet. Both defendants were placed in jail in default of a $200 bond. Each will appear in County Court Tuesday.

Asks Damages In Filing Complaint

For the second time in as many months, a complaint for damages has been filed against the City of Greenville and the Greenville Utilities Commission.

Gus Zappas, a night cook at the Busy Bee Cafe, Saturday filed a complaint with the Clerk of Superior Court asking damages for an accident he says was caused by negligence on the part of the city.

According to the details of the complaint, on Monday, October 1, 1951, at 6:30 in the evening, Zappas left his home on the corner of 12th and Washington Streets to go to his place of employment.

While walking down the street, Zappas claims he fell into a deep hole, seriously hurting his right foot and causing extensive, painful and permanent damage to the foot.

The complaint contends that there were no lights, flares, or warnings of any kind to indicate there was a hole in the street, though the street
