$2 Millions And Safe Are Stolen

Burglars Missed Another Million Dollars In Multi-Millionaire's Home

RENO, Nev. (UP)—Burglars carried off a multi-millionaire's 400-pound safe containing an estimated $2,500,000 in cash, securities and jewelry. But police said today they overlooked a battered suitcase nearby containing another million dollars.

An unsecured watchdog chewed on a hambone during the entire robbery last night.

The safe was taken from the 15-room stone chateau of Mr. and Mrs. Laverne V. Redfield while the couple played roulette in a downtown casino.

If police estimates on the amount in the safe prove correct, the burglary will be one of the largest on record. The largest cash robbery in history was the $1,219,000 holdup of Brinks armored car office in Boston in 1950. The Brinks' bandits never have been caught.

The police report said preliminary estimates listed this as the contents of the safe:

Jewelry valued at between $50,000 and $100,000.

More than $300,000 in cash, including several large-sized, old-fashioned bills of $100, $50 and $10 denomination.

Negotiable securities valued at between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000.

The bonds, police reported, have all been endorsed by Redfield.

Two neighbors, Ruby and Marie Neely, reported seeing a badly-scratched pickup truck parked in the Redfield yard during the time the burglary was believed to have taken place.

Officers found a miniature bar of soap with a wrapper bearing the words "St. James Hotel, Dayton, Ohio," near an open window. They theorized the soap may have been used in sliding the safe to a window and into the waiting truck.

The safe was kept in a closet in a first-floor, front bedroom, hidden by some clothing and several suitcases, one of which was full of negotiable securities valued at $1,000,000.

James Clem, assistant superintendent in the police bureau of identification, said that during his investigation he noticed the heavy suitcase in the closet and asked Redfield what was in it.

Clem said Redfield opened the suitcase, thumbed the first bond and then the last and remarked, "Yes, I guess they're all here."

The police report said the family watchdog was fed a hambone, taken from the Redfield's refrigerator by the thieves, and was left tied in an adjoining room while the burglars fled.

Redfield, about 55, has lived in Reno since 1935. He once was a store clerk in Idaho, friends said, and went to Los Angeles "dead broke" in 1931. He made his first fortune in oil land deals.

Blast Damages Big Ford Plant

DETROIT (UP)—Ford Motor Co. officials investigating an explosion and fire that wrecked part of the company's giant new tank arsenal under construction at suburban Livonia, doubted today that sabotage was involved.

An explosion in the paint storage area of the skeleton plant last night touched off a fire that twisted 20 per cent of the steel girders out of shape and ripped off 30 per cent of the roof.

GOP Solon Will Support Russell

North Dakota Senator Makes Startling Endorsement

WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. Milton R. Young (R-ND) announced today he will support Sen. Richard B. Russell for the presidency "if the Democrats have sense enough to nominate him."

Young gave his startling endorsement of the Southern leader just two days after the Georgia senator announced his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Young favors Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio for the Republican nomination. Asked if he would support Russell as the Democratic nominee over any Republican who might be nominated, he replied he would.

Young told reporters he regards Russell as "one of the most able, conscientious and sincere men" in the country.

"By experience and otherwise, he is superbly equipped to be president," Young said.

In view of Russell's familiarity with farm problems, Young said he did not "know how the Democrats of the Midwest can turn him down." He added, however, that Midwestern Democrats appeared to favor reelection of President Truman.

Russell and Young are colleagues on the Senate agriculture appropriations subcommittee.

Two Persons Killed; 300-Foot Wide Strip Of Wreckage Marks Path; Red Cross Rushes Emergency Supplies To Little Hospital

FAYETTEVILLE, Tenn. (UP)—A brief but destructive tornado smashed a freakish pattern through the heart of this small mid-Tennessee city late yesterday, killing two persons and injuring at least 160.

The unpredictable twister, touching lightly at some points as it crunched heavily at others, ripped through a 300-foot wide strip within an area of about five blocks, toppling or damaging scores of buildings.

It struck this town of little over 6,000 population at 4:40 p.m., moving diagonally from the southwest and whirling through a residential area and half the city square in no more than two minutes.

Of the many injured who quickly filled the 73-bed Lincoln County Hospital, only 10 were believed seriously hurt, doctors and nurses said. The rest were released after treatment as hospital attendants worked beneath makeshift lighting and with no heat and little water.

The extent of the more serious injuries could not be determined immediately because of lack of power for X-rays.

Property damage caused by the twister, the second to strike this mountain area within 16 days, was estimated at $750,000 to $1,000,000 with at least 100 dwellings destroyed.

Fayetteville citizens turned out with tractors, gang saws and other equipment to clear the streets of at least two dozen smashed and upended cars and trucks and felled utility poles and trees.

Lights were restored by midnight to part of the stricken area and portable generators rushed from Nashville and Chapel Hill, Tenn., and Huntsville, Ala., supplied power for the hospital, city hall and other points.

The Red Cross brought in plasma, glucose and other medical supplies from Birmingham, Ala., and Nashville after setting up (Continued on page eight)

Fair Turnout At OPS Clinic Here

Approximately Sixty Merchants Attend Twice-Daily Talks

Approximately 60 merchants attended the OPS clinic each day that it was in progress here at the Greenville Armory.

Merchants of Greenville, Pitt County and surrounding areas attended both the morning and afternoon sessions at the clinic which was held here at the Armory Thursday and Friday. The clinic will end after a session Monday.

Mrs. Nina Shaw and J. C. Allers Jr. of the OPS in Raleigh conducted the clinic which was divided into two sessions. The morning session was devoted to explanation of making up and applying the pricing charts under Regulation 7.

The afternoon was devoted to spot changes in the merchants' charts. The merchants are to notify the OPS of other errors found in the charts within 15 days after the first spot corrections were made.

Truman Reopens Foreign Aid Battle Thursday On Heels Of Acheson Talk

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Truman will open next Thursday the second round of the administration's fight to persuade Congress to appropriate $7,900,000,000 for a new foreign aid program to stop communism.

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Truman will make a half-hour radio and television speech to the nation on the mutual security program Thursday night, the White House announced today.

The first round was assigned to Secretary of State Dean Acheson, who urged Congress last night to give its "utmost support" to the new program to strengthen the free world, particularly America's European allies.

Administration officials said today that Mr. Truman will send the new program to Congress on Thursday with an urgent appeal for full approval. Congressional hearings on the program are scheduled for March 11.

Acheson and foreign aid officials expect a tough fight to get the full amount approved. The request includes $5,400,000,000 for military aid and $2,500,000,000 for economic help during fiscal 1953, beginning July 1.

In his television and radio report to the nation on recent conferences in Europe, Acheson said "giant strides" had been made to weld

European unity by setting new defense goals in divisions, planes and ships, and to add West Germany to the defense effort.

But Acheson warned that "the days of danger are still with us." He said the European defense goals require "hard work" and continued American dollar aid because "our friends in Europe have grave economic problems."

The foreign aid program, he said, "is playing a vital part in the structure of strength which is being built in Europe."

Acheson said his conferences in London with British, French and German officials and the 14-nation North Atlantic Treaty meeting at

Lisbon marked "a time of historic decision for the forces of peace in the world."

"The way is open to us to support these decisions with actions which will carry us far forward in maintaining peace and safeguarding our freedom," he added.

"If we act with vigor and firmness, we can prove once again we are unconquerable."

He directly referred to yesterday's fall of the French government as typical of the problems which confront the West in carrying out its new rearmament plans. But he expressed conviction that all such problems "can and will be solved."

Egypt's Premier Suddenly Resigns

Was To Have Begun British Settlement Talks Today

CAIRO (AP)—Prime Minister Aly Maher Pasha resigned unexpectedly today on the eve of talks he had confidently predicted would lead to settlement of Egypt's bitter feud with Britain. He stalked grim-faced from an hour-long emergency cabinet session and told reporters he had quit. He made no other statement.

Political sources said Maher became involved in a dispute with the palace, which installed his independent government Jan. 27 following bloody anti-British torch riots in Cairo.

It was reported Ahmed Naguib Hiliya Pasha, also an independent and one of Egypt's elder statesmen, may be asked to form a new government.

Maher Pasha's son, Mohammed Aly Maher Pasha said the 69-year-old independent leader resigned because of "inability to work due to mysterious currents behind his back."

King Farouk installed Maher Pasha after ousting the strongly nationalist government of Wafdist Party leader Mustapha el Nahas Pasha.

The prime minister was to have met this morning with British Ambassador Sir Ralph Stevenson on reopened discussions aimed at settling the dispute between the two countries over the Suez Canal Zone and the Sudan. Those talks were postponed only a short time before Maher resigned, and the announced reason was Sir Ralph had become ill with a "chill."

Those talks also were aimed at trying to reach some agreement which eventually would bring Egypt into a Western-backed Middle East defense program. Egypt's entry into such a setup hinged on her demands that British troops first be withdrawn from the Suez Canal Zone and that the Sudan be placed under King Farouk's full sovereignty.

One In Million

WASHINGTON (AP)—A leap year baby born four years ago now has a leap year brother, born yesterday. Doctors estimate chances of two leap year births in one family are about one in a million.

The father is Myron Herrick Mike Palm, outstanding football star with the University of Pennsylvania and later with the professional New York Giants. He now runs a Washington restaurant.

Popular Book Reviewed At Literature Department

The Literature Department of the Woman's Club met on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Maude Swartz on East Tenth Street.

A variety of spring flowers about the room brightened the dark and rainy day. In the dining room George Washington's birthday was commemorated with small red hatchet favors, red, white and blue streamers, and a modernistic red cherry tree loaded with fruit, which centered the refreshment table. Cherry pie accompanied by coffee and salted nuts were served in keeping with the occasion.

During the short business meeting, over which Mrs. R. P. Rogers presided, Mrs. Walter Krausnick spoke entertainingly about "The Silver Whistle," the comedy which was presented by a faculty cast of East Carolina College in behalf of the A.A.U.W. scholarship fund.

Mrs. J.H.B. Moore urged all Literature Department members to read the books which have been selected and approved by the committee from the Federation of Women's Clubs. They were "Family Living" by Evelyn Miller Duval; "The Arts" by Hendrik William Van Loon; "Our Children and Our Schools" by Lucy Sprague Mitchell.

"Meeting of East and West" by F. S. O. Northrup; "Seven Decisions That Shaped History" by Sumner Welles; "What to Listen For in Music" by Copland; "Understanding Politics" by Louise Young.

Mrs. Moore also discussed with members the program which they are planning for the Community Arts Festival which will be held in March. Chancellor R. B. House of the University of North Carolina will be a speaker for the occasion.

Mrs. Paul Ricks, program chairman, then introduced Mrs. Tyson Bilbro, who gave a stimulating and interesting review of the current best seller, "A Man Called Peter," the story of the life of Dr. Peter Marshall, renowned Presbyterian minister who was Senate chaplain at the time of his death a few years ago. The book had been written by his wife, Catherine Marshall. In her review, Mrs. Bilbro stressed the fact that the book needs to be read in its entirety to get its kindly and joyous spirit and Christian message of love and good will.

Assisting hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. K. F. Whiteley and Mrs. D. L. Moore.

Dr. Hoot Explains Eye Bank Program To Nurses Club

At the Greenville Nurses Club's regular monthly meeting on last Tuesday night, Dr. M. P. Hoot was guest speaker, presenting to members the plans for a North Carolina eye bank.

Dr. Hoot told of the work that had been done on transplanting eye corneas and outlined the proposed program of establishing an eye bank to function similar to that of a blood bank. He described the manner in which healthy corneas from the eyes of persons who had just died could be successfully extracted and preserved for use in cases where such an operation would restore sight to one who is blind or nearly so because of defective or diseased corneas.

The members of the club were very impressed with the proposed program and pledged their help in such a project.

The club met at Respos-James Barbecue House at 6:30 for a dinner meeting, during which the president, Mrs. Royce Jones.

Twelve members were present, and one visitor, Mrs. Stephen Bartlett, was welcomed.

Community Project 'Fleming House' Is Forging Ahead

This three-room cottage in which the Fleming family has lived since 1914 will be vacated by them around the first of April. They have rented this house for the past eight years, but within a few weeks they will move into a new and roomier structure, built for and dedicated to them by their neighbors at Stokes.

Volunteers Build Home For Invalid And Family

By JESS POINDEXTER
Reflector Staff Writer

STOKES—Two years ago, a thin, wasted man was wheeled into the operating room at Eastern North Carolina Sanatorium in Wilson where surgeons were preparing to remove his badly diseased lung.

For more than nine bitter years, John Fleming had waged a losing battle against tuberculosis, and as he lay on that sterile table he felt that the final round was ended—with the decision going against him.

But as white robed nurses flitted noiselessly about the room ready for the operation, John Fleming's principal concern was not for himself, but for his family. What would happen to his four little boys—and his wife, Ruth?

Operation a Success
Penniless, and stricken with a deadly disease, John went under ether with misgivings because even if he lived to return to his family, how could he make a living for his loved ones—how could he provide them with a home?

Happily, the operation was successful and in time the worried father returned home to his family in Stokes. But his problems had really just begun, because he was unable to work, and four growing boys—one just a baby—needed food, clothing and school supplies.

However, with the aid of his wife, Ruth, who had worked tirelessly for the children during her husband's numerous and sometimes long sessions in the hospital, the little family somehow got by. She made all the children's clothes and looked after them while caring for her invalid father at the same time.

Must Vacate Home
They were not without friends, however. The people of Stokes community were observant and sympathetic toward the Flemings in view of the little family's exhaustive struggle against frequent reversals—and the residents there gave the Flemings a great deal of aid.

But last Fall, the crowning blow fell. The Flemings would have to vacate the small three-room house they had occupied since 1914. They possessed no money, owned no property, and had no place to go.

This latest calamity to a family already prostrated by bad luck—a family that had suffered years of hardship humbly and without complaint—was more than an admiring and now thoroughly aroused community would endure.

A Christian Neighborhood
Mustering all the combined resources of a Christian neighborhood, the people of Stokes set up a cry to relieve for all time the insecurity of the Flemings—who had been buffeted by the whims of fortune for 15 years.

Almost overnight, a movement sprang into existence, designed as its supporters put it, "to give John and Ruth Fleming, and the kids, a permanent home they can call their own." That was last November, and it immediately attracted a large and enthusiastic following.

When they jokingly tried to rent a lot from Mrs. Arthur Glisson, she volunteered to deed an acre of land located right on the highway to John Fleming.

House Plans Drawn
That offer gave the project the necessary impetus and within a short time, plans for a modern, six-room house were drawn up. Pledges of logs, lumber, materials, labor, equipment and cash poured in, not only from Stokes but from all over Carolina Township.

Frank Roebuck's Service Station in Stokes soon became headquarters for the joggling but appropriately named "John Fleming Construction Company." A bulletin board so labeled was put up in the station, and on it was listed the nature and amount of materials, labor and equipment needed for the current day's work. Progress on the project was also recorded there.

Roebuck says work began on the project with the cutting of logs. "A few logs here and there, all donated by different people, amounted to a lot of timber," he asserts. "This is not a charity project. It is being done as a result of the community's pride and admiration for a family of good parents with nice kids—just good citizens."

Only Volunteer Donations
According to Roebuck, there has been no solicitation of any kind in connection with the project—just voluntary donations of materials, labor and cash. The volunteer force began to cut logs in January, and a week ago they had cut more than 16,000 feet—with much more still to go.

When word about the project got around, what was begun as a community enterprise got completely out of hand. Not only did people in Stokes and Carolina Township contribute, but donations poured in from churches and civic clubs in Robersonville, Greenville and Washington.

The original plan was to saw out all rough lumber and framing, and sell some of the finished stuff to buy building supplies. That was done for awhile, but pledges of logs and materials are still pouring in and Roebuck says there is no telling how things will end.

$300 In Cash
About three weeks ago, when a great deal of lumber had been sawed and dressed and cash donations reached $500, actual construction began. With from 100 to 200 people working on the house at one time or another since that time, it rapidly took shape.

Every day an odd collection of trucks, cars, jeeps, wagons and bicycles fills the yard, and an even odder assortment of workers—young, middle-aged, and old—parade in and out of a structure that is nearing completion. And it is truly one of the finest in the community.

In fact John and Ruth Fleming will undoubtedly consider it a marvel, because it is really to be a beautiful thing. Plans call for a large living room and bedroom in the front portion of the house, with a long hall running the remainder of the way back through the central part of the building.

Paneled In Knotty Pine

Doors leading to the dining room and kitchen will open off one side of the hall, and doors leading to two back bedrooms will open off the opposite side. The floors will be of pine, and the walls and ceiling in every room in the house—and the hall way—will be finished in paneling of knotty pine.

The outside will be finished with cypress "german siding," one of the most expensive materials on the lumber market. There will be two chimneys and four double windows in the "Fleming House," and it will be topped with an asphalt shingle roof. Roebuck thinks the structure will be ready for occupancy by the last of March. "If work progresses in the future like it has in the past three weeks."

Electric Current Soon
The area in which the "Fleming House" is being built is not currently served with electricity, but the house has been wired anyway, in anticipation of service to come in the near future. In fact poles have already been spread along the road and as soon as they are set and wires strung, current will be turned into that area.

And so it seems that at long last, a community in which he has lived for so many years has graciously and humbly provided John Fleming with the peace of mind he has vainly sought all his life. After a lifetime of hard knocks and nine painful, unproductive years in various hospitals, John can at last assume civic responsibility in a thoughtful and considerate community—Stokes.

Of the four boys, three ride the bus into Stokes daily to attend school there. They are John Elton, 12, George Everett, 10, and Eugene Carroll, 7. The baby, Jerry Lynn, 4, is too young to attend school, but he runs to meet the school bus daily. His greatest ambition is to ride that bus to school someday.

Entering Poultry Business
After his long siege in the hospital, John is still not able to do any strenuous work, and he is still in the care of a Greenville physician. But the doctor has recommended that he take on some light responsibility, so after he gets moved into his new house he thinks he'll go into the chicken business.

All this generosity on the part of the people in the community simply appalls Ruth Fleming. "Just think, we have been married 14 years," she exclaims, "and this will be the first time we ever had a place to call our own." She says it is just the Christian thoughts of her good neighbors that have made all this possible.

"Thrilled To Death"
"I'm so happy and just thrilled to death to know that people thought enough of us to help us get started again," she says. "I know the good Lord has been watching over us all these years, or we could never have made it this long."

And truly, when citizens of a Christian community put their shoulders to the wheel and push as instruments of the "good Lord," there is little in the workings of fortune that cannot be reversed with startling suddenness and remarkable ease—as in the case of John, Ruth and four little Flemings.

Kiwanians Have Musical Program

Music and fellowship featured the Kiwanis Club's weekly supper meeting last night. President Milo Smith presided. Hunter B. Keck had charge of the program.

Male members of East Carolina College faculty were special guests. It is a custom of the club to welcome new members of the faculty each year. Dr. Leo W. Jenkins and Dr. John O. Reynolds introduced them and each stated the state of his birth and where he had worked. They are: Dr. Clinton R. Prewett, Judson White, Dr. Donald H. Murray, Dr. James E. Poindexter, Sgt. I. H. Barry and Sgt. H. Stalls and James Butler, secretary of the ECC Alumni Association. Some new faculty members were unable to attend.

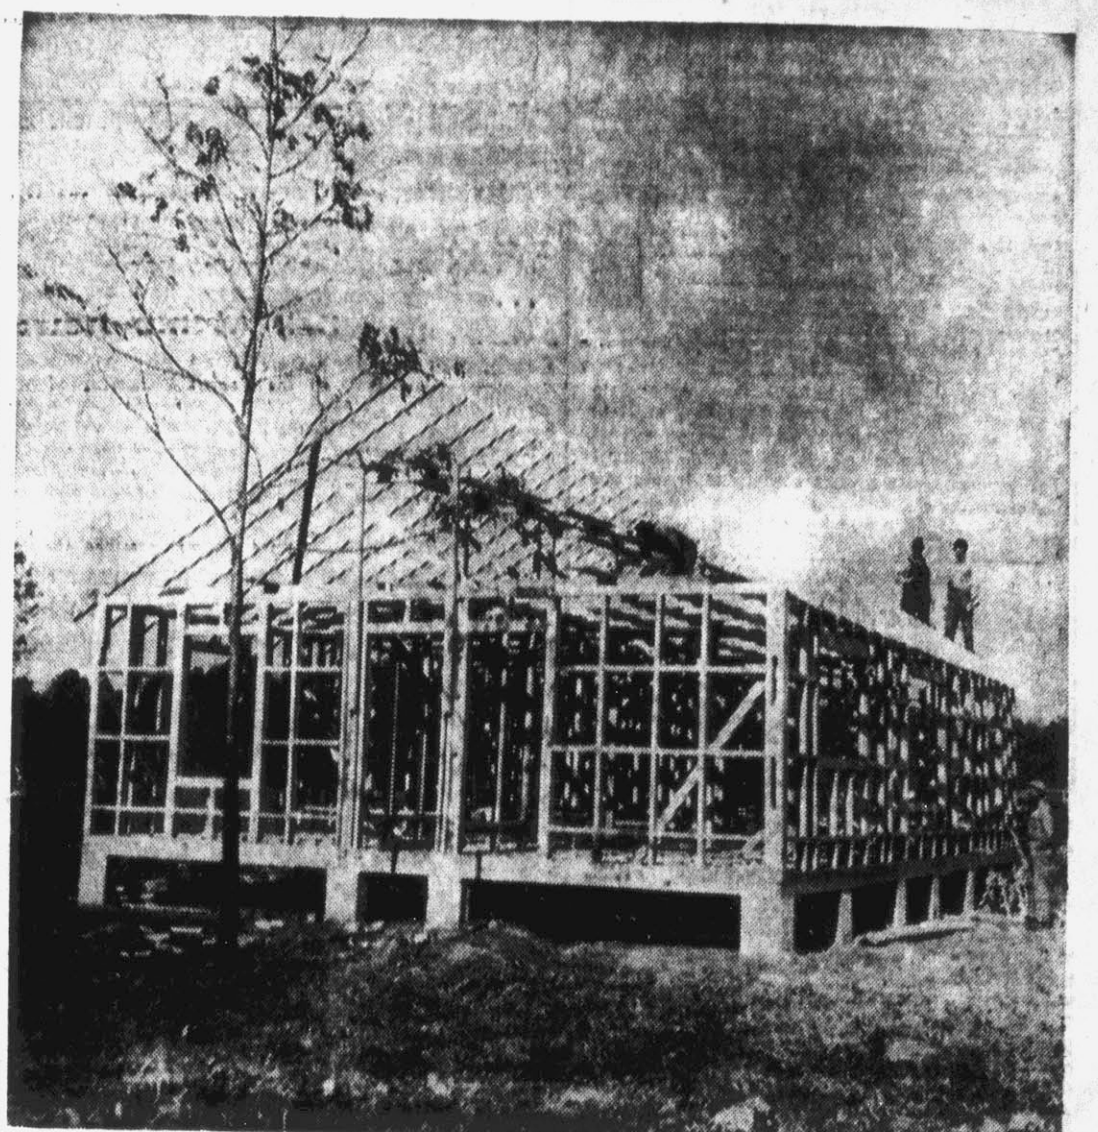

Charlie Armstrong, trombonist, and Miss Marcetta Hooper, pianist, of Elizabeth City, college students, presented a musical program. They are former members of the Elizabeth City High School Band. After playing several selections, Armstrong gave some imitations of the "Gay Nineties."

Bob Bass and Johnny Johnston, members of the Kiwanis Circle K Club at East Carolina College, were special guests.

Eli Bloom, producer of the Kiwanis Minstrel, announced that rehearsals for the show will start in about a week. The minstrel will be given at Austin Auditorium, on the college campus, Wednesday and Thursday nights, April 23 and 24. Tickets are on sale by Kiwanians.

Past President Bloom will be host at supper to the club officers and directors at Respass' Barbecue house, on the Bethel highway, next Thursday night at 6:30.

Ed E. Rawl led the "Pledge of Allegiance." Dr. H. Glenn Haney said the invocation. Hunter Keck led the singing of Kiwanis songs and Mrs. Lena Tyson was accompanist. Dr. Elmer Lamsche had a birthday and he donated a dime for each year of his age to the club fund.

The aptly named "Fleming House" near Stokes rounds into shape under the creative hands of scores of community workmen who have donated their time and labor to the project. The structure is being built as a gift for John Fleming, 38-year-old Stokes native suffering from tuberculosis, who has spent several years in various hospitals. (Reflector Staff Photos by Roy Hardee).

A workman puts the finishing touches on the "ridge pole" in the house the community is building for John Fleming. The six-room structure will be weather boarded with cypress "german siding," and the entire inside will be finished with paneling of knotty pine. It will be completed around the first of April.

RALEIGH — (AP) — Building construction in North Carolina during January continued at a high level of activity, the State Labor Department reported yesterday.

Permits for $12,774,912 worth of construction in 75 North Carolina cities and towns were issued. This followed a seasonal drop in December which saw permits with a total value of less than five million issued.

New housing permits issued in January were for $7,025,646 worth of construction. Nonresidential permits issued were for $4,193,514 and alterations, additions and repairs were valued at $1,555,752.

BAD LUCK HITS TWICE

FORT WORTH, Tex. — (UP) — Five members of the Thomas West family were involved in two separate accidents in less than 30 minutes. The first time, the West car was involved in a crash. The second time was when a motorist who was taking the family to a hospital also crashed.

Returns With Trained Dog

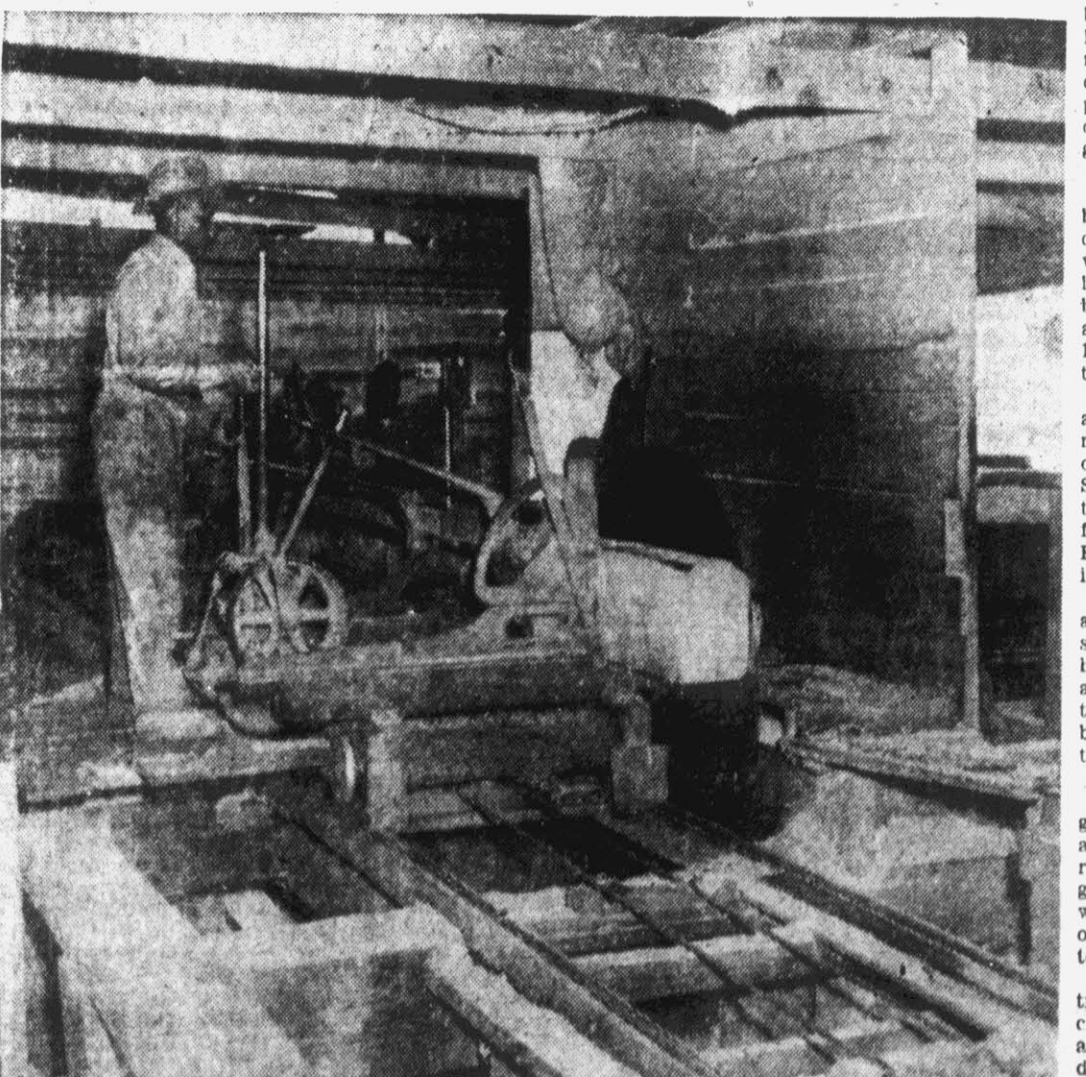

J. Milton (Chick) Johnson, former resident of Greenville but now of Wilmington, was a Greenville visitor this week. Over a long period of years Chick has devoted his spare time to dogs and horses and always has one or several well-trained pets. Upon his visit here he was accompanied by his famous performing dog Dal. Johnson said the dog is now about 11 years old but is still alert and active and can go through the paces of his tricks.

Campaign Office Will Open Soon

RALEIGH — (AP) — Gubernatorial candidate Hubert E. Olive, who has a publicity man but no campaign headquarters, is expected to open his headquarters here sometime next week.

Candidate William B. Umstead, who has already opened his headquarters, has not named a publicity manager.

THIEF IS CHOOSY
VIENNA, W. Va. — (UP) — A thief with a passion for chocolate milk has been bothering home owners here. Gerald Simmet, police chief, said the culprit either takes or drinks parts of the contents of bottles of milk chocolate left on doorsteps but leaves the white milk untouched.

A board that is destined to go into the construction of a "dream home" for the John Fleming family falls from the saw at a mill near Stokes. This log, and countless others like it, were pledged by a variety of citizens to be used in the construction of a house for a neighbor who has been ill and unable to adequately provide for his wife and children for several years.

Strength for the Day

CHIEF UP!
Sometimes as we read modern novels we come to the conclusion that human life is essentially filthy and degraded. I have just been reading a certain well-written novel which involves a most interesting plot. The book pleases me very much in many ways, but just about the time I get interested in it, the author opens one of the main trunks of the city sewer and for a few minutes lets the sewage engulf his readers. After an hour or two with a book of this sort, one comes to the conclusion that there is no decency in the world.

But of course that is a mistake. The decent people in the world far outnumber the indecent. For every household in which carousing drunken parties are held over the week-end, there are hundreds, and perhaps thousands, of households where people are quietly enjoying themselves and in which no unwholesome type of entertainment is ever permitted. Alcoholism and problem drinking have reached alarming proportions in this country, yet those who drink to excess are at most about four per cent of the population. About one-third of the people of the United States do not drink at all.

Most people are well intentioned and decent, the modern novelist to the contrary notwithstanding.

Taking The Bull By The Horns

A large number of Greenville citizens have taken upon themselves as individuals and as organizations the task of filling a great need of the city of Greenville.

They have accepted the task, not necessarily because it is their responsibility, but because they recognize the city's desperate need for more and better recreation facilities. They likewise have seen the city go without adequate recreation facilities too long simply because support for the needed facilities and programs was not forthcoming from past city administrations.

Greenville has a lot of catching up to do if it is to bring its recreational facilities up to date. In spite of the fact that the city officials have warned considerably to the recreation problem during the past year, they can not in one year get the necessary capital outlay to make up for what should have been done over a long period of years.

Recognizing that fact, citizens of the city as individuals and organizations interested in providing the city with adequate recreation facilities have taken upon their own shoulders the development of the first portion of the Elm Street park. Admittedly, the development of the area is only a small, but nevertheless important, part of the overall recreation facilities Greenville needs. But if the citizens can take it upon themselves to get this portion of the work done, it will certainly stand as a challenge to the city administration to continue rapid development of recreation facilities.

If the present undertaking is to be completed by summer, it is going to take diligent work from the various organizations and citizens of Greenville. It can be done, and it should be delayed no longer than it already has.

This Is More Than Sectional Politics

Responsible Southern Democratic leaders shouldn't publicly sound off with dark hints of a possible party bolt at this stage of the game. There's simply no reason for a Dixie exodus at the present time.

Why?

The Democratic Party platform hasn't even been written; nor has a Democratic Party candidate been chosen. Everything about the coming political convention is still in the clouds of uncertainty.

Reasons for silence as to what Southern leaders will do or won't do, are many. But the best reason to date is that the goal of conservative-minded Democrats should be to guide the party leadership away from the leftist trend which it has taken. It cannot be done by increasing tensions between two views of political philosophy, and thereby provoking further differences that will weaken the whole fabric of party unity. The big hope is that a peaceful settlement can be attained within Democratic ranks. Otherwise, an out-for-blood Republican Party will benefit most from the division.

Fortunately for the conservative branch of the Democratic Party, it has a candidate of more than sectional stature to rally around. Senator Richard Russell is respected by all his colleagues as an extremely able man and a conscientious lawmaker. His entry into the race for nomination lends emphasis to the position that the philosophy he represents is not limited to Southern states alone.

However, over-enthusiastic supporters can talk the voters into believing that Russell is the South's candidate for president... costing him support that he must have to win. He can't win with the backing of only eleven states, no matter how loud the rebel yell.

Cost-Plus Building Is Doing Just That

Cost-plus building by the government is in the news again, and the citizens of the country are getting another look at what sort of prices go along with that building arrangement.

An auditor for the $300,000,000 of air base construction work being carried on by the United States in Africa has supported a House investigation charge that some $25,000,000 already has been "poured down the drain" in the project.

The cost-plus arrangement with contractors has proven poor business on the part of the government and the taxpayers of the United States. It has caused the federal government to pay out for facilities literally millions more than they should have cost. Particularly during periods of great government spending such as was witnessed during World War II and since the beginning of the Korean war has the government leaned heavily on the cost-plus method of doing business.

Those officials who are hired to keep tab on the purse strings of the government have pointed out time and time again where the cost-plus projects were taking the taxpayers for a ride, but little heed from the military or Congress has been forthcoming.

If the government can not get its needed construction work done without the cost-plus arrangement, it should at least crack down on the way the cost-plus projects are being handled. If the officials really set their minds to it, there is little reason that the cost-plus scheme could not be eliminated entirely.

The elimination of cost-plus arrangements would not only be a boon to the federal government, but also to the strapped taxpayer who already is receiving far less than a dollar's value for each dollar spent by the government.

WASHINGTON—"What is Washington's reaction?" inquires P. G. of Williamsport, Pa., to Speaker Rayburn's ruling that the hearings and investigations of House committees cannot be televised or broadcast? Is this not an indirect form of censorship?

CRITICAL—Answer: With the exception of the likeable Texan's close circle of political friends, the reaction is extremely critical. The House has always accepted and utilized every other media for more effective communication of information on its activities to the people—telephones, telegraph, fast messenger service, even typewriters instead of quill pens. It has never required special legislation for the National Legislature to benefit from the advances of science and industry. Television and radio are as integral units of a free press as the reporters who represent newspapers on Capitol Hill.

POLITICS—But there is an even more important consideration. Mr. Rayburn and his colleagues, including presidents, have frequently deplored the lack of public interest in public affairs, politics and government. It would seem that they would be only too eager to welcome any instrumentality which has the beneficial effect, as television and radio certainly have.

Mr. Rayburn is simply reinstating the star chamber system, where permits Congress to operate in the dark as much as possible. By the same reasoning, he should bar reporters from the press gallery and committee hearings.

Many suspect that the shrewd and partisan Sam is playing politics. It was television, for instance, which transformed the almost unknown Estes Kefauver into a public figure and a Truman opponent.

It was a visual view of the crime hearings, depicting the tieup between politicians and crooks, which dramatized the issue of corruption. So Sam must think, television is a distinct Democratic liability in 1952 politics.

INDIFFERENT—"Can you explain," explodes Mrs. G. H. of Auburn, N.Y., "why it took four or more years for the Civil Service Commission to punish members of the Boston Internal Revenue office, who were found guilty of violating the Hatch Clean Politics Act?"

Answer: The explanation is that the politically administered Civil Service Commission is not the idealistic and noble agency it is held to be in the public mind. As Mrs. G. H. notes, the Canfield report of 1947 showed how the individuals just now undergoing punishment high-jacked fellow-workers for the party contributions, and based promotions on these gifts.

Copies of the Canfield report, by order of the committee, were sent to the head of the Civil Service Commission, as well as to the President, the Attorney General, the Secretary of the Treasury and the Internal Revenue Commissioner. Obviously, they were more or less indifferent to these wholesale and particularly vicious violations of the Hatch Act.

QUALIFICATIONS—"Why are so many prominent Republicans promoting Eisenhower?" asks Mrs. F. V. G. of Chico, Cal. "Although I read the newspapers and listen to the radio, I cannot find what he has done that would make him a good President. Being a great general or college president surely has not given him sufficient experience for such a high and responsible office."

Answer: It is not unfair to say that the first consideration among the Eisenhower promoters is their belief that he would be a sure winner. Any peculiar qualifications he may have for the job rank second with them.

But they insist that he is qualified. They point out that he had to show administrative, business and diplomatic ability as commander of our World War II effort, and that he was not merely a military man. They regard him as able, stable and intelligent enough to master the job quickly.

Last, they argue that no other American has such a grasp of foreign problems, especially the need for rebuilding a strong democratic alliance in opposition to Russian aggression and imperialism.

Somebody Told Me

By J. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Billy Graham of North Carolina will go down in history as one of the greatest Evangelists of all time. His most recent accomplishments in evangelism have been published in the news this week: during the last nine weeks he preached to 600,000 citizens of Washington, D. C., and has on record 6,244 conversions. During those nine weeks Billy preached to one-third of Washington's population!

Billy once called Washington "the most sinful city" he ever visited, but his point of view now is probably different. By the end of his crusade he was packing 6,000 a night into the National Guard Armory. "And they were not just ordinary people," he said. "As near as I can tell, we averaged between 25 and 40 congressmen and about five Senators a night!"

Among Billy's greatest supporters were Tennessee's Perry Priest and Missouri's O. K. Armstrong, who ushered at meetings. Others were Senator Toby of New Hampshire who Billy called "the warmest-hearted friend I had" and of course Senator Hoyt and the rest of the representatives from North Carolina. Vice President Alben Barkley told Billy, "You're certainly rocking the old Capitol."

Besides preaching at other key points in town, Billy held daily non-time prayer meetings in the Pentagon auditorium. The response he got there surprised him. "Never in my whole religious experience," he said, "have I seen such a hunger for religion as at the Pentagon."

His one disappointment in Washington was the fact that Harry Truman, a Baptist, didn't answer repeated invitations to attend the meetings. Billy explained, "I guess he was just too busy or something."

Last week Billy received a hearty reception from another important man, Douglas MacArthur, an Episcopalian. About Doug, Billy said, "He is one of the most inspiring men I ever met. He is deeply religious."

Billy plans to see every candidate for the presidency, including Truman. He says, "I want to give them the moral side of the thing. Of course, I do not intend to endorse any candidate." Billy's plans for March include an address to 500 British ministers in Westminster Abbey and a visit to France, where he hopes to talk with like Eisenhower.

And I thank you.

FROTH—Many real friends of the University of North Carolina are genuinely concerned about conditions maintaining on the campuses of the three institutions making up the system, both among faculty members and students. There is a feeling, regarded as unfounded fear by some, as a very serious threat by others, that the current outbreak of student protests and questioning is only froth and that the trouble is much more deeply rooted. How much profit the student supply store makes and what is done with the money; the ratio of scholarships awarded to athletes and non-athletic students; uses made of the college's endowment; the student newspapers criticizing faculty actions and faculty members trying to muzzle the student editors; exchange of letters between individual trustees and individual students; charges and counter-charges of communistic leanings, are all symptoms of disease, rather than disease within themselves.

PATTERN—These developments follow a general pattern which was manifested by student movements in Europe a decade or more ago and by disclosures of loose activities on part of governmental officials in the United States during the past three years. Hitler and Mussolini came to power because the youth movements were treated as the main ailment rather than as a symptom of something deeper. There are many people now who think that the same is true of the individual miscreants in public service with sympathetic kindness, instead of seeking to correct conditions which made their pilfering possible and profitable.

Hitler and Mussolini came to power because the youth movements were treated as the main ailment rather than as a symptom of something deeper. There are many people now who think that the same is true of the individual miscreants in public service with sympathetic kindness, instead of seeking to correct conditions which made their pilfering possible and profitable.

There is a feeling, regarded as unfounded fear by some, as a very serious threat by others, that the current outbreak of student protests and questioning is only froth and that the trouble is much more deeply rooted. How much profit the student supply store makes and what is done with the money; the ratio of scholarships awarded to athletes and non-athletic students; uses made of the college's endowment; the student newspapers criticizing faculty actions and faculty members trying to muzzle the student editors; exchange of letters between individual trustees and individual students; charges and counter-charges of communistic leanings, are all symptoms of disease, rather than disease within themselves.

PATTERN—These developments follow a general pattern which was manifested by student movements in Europe a decade or more ago and by disclosures of loose activities on part of governmental officials in the United States during the past three years. Hitler and Mussolini came to power because the youth movements were treated as the main ailment rather than as a symptom of something deeper. There are many people now who think that the same is true of the individual miscreants in public service with sympathetic kindness, instead of seeking to correct conditions which made their pilfering possible and profitable.

Chapter 18

Johnny's eyes had been on Nancy's face as the man made the remark. The woman had sat down in a chair near them and idly picked up one of the books that Moe Martin had been examining in his hopeless quest for the missing manuscript. Expression of her eyes said that her thoughts had drawn up sharply for an instant; she was not looking at the book at all, but was absorbed in Nick Walker's statement. The look that swept briefly through her eyes puzzled Johnny Saxon.

He said, "Excuse me for a few moments." He motioned toward the terrace. "I'll talk to her."

Nick Walker picked up his pipe and started toward the hallway. "Meanwhile, I'll fix some drinks. This is the butler's night off. What we need are some Singapore Slings."

"Not a bad idea," said Johnny. "Anything with liquor in it will be suitable."

Chuckling loudly, the big man disappeared.

"Mr. Saxon..." Nancy was standing up. Her features looked ivory-white in the subdued light of the room.

Johnny paused a moment.

"There's something I feel I ought to tell you."

"Yes?"

She went on, "You'll probably hear some things about Martin's husband."

His eyebrows raised slightly in a question.

"I mean, you'll hear that he was... well, not thoughtful of Irene... that he was living a life that she did not suspect. Someone's bound to tell you these things."

He remembered Kay's remarks this afternoon. He wondered what this woman was trying to tell him. "An investigator hears lots of things. If I believed everything I heard..."

"Don't believe what you hear about Martin." Her voice had raised slightly. There was something unnatural about her eyes. "He was a fine man, I don't care what they say. He did everything in the world for his family."

Johnny walked over to the fireplace. Within a silver frame was a picture of a handsome-looking man with sensitive, sharply defined features. It was Martin Smith, the murdered man. Johnny had oftentimes seen the millionaire's picture in the newspapers, but he hadn't realized the man was so young-looking.

Johnny merely glanced at the picture, then turned abruptly to Nancy, who had come behind him. Perhaps she had expected him to study the photograph for a moment longer. Any way, she seemed unprepared for his move.

Sh, too, had been looking up at the photograph. He was amazed by the expression that had come over her face.

Apparently she had been smiling up at the photograph. But what Johnny saw was somewhat awesome. Half of the woman's features smiled. The other half of the face was a partially twisted grimace. It was sort of a frightful combination that gave Johnny Saxon a distinct shock—until he realized what was wrong.

The left side of Nancy England's features were affected by partial paralysis.

And she knew he had observed this.

Nancy turned away quickly, murmured something inaudible and hurried toward the center hallway. She moved with a tense manner that was visible in the straightness of her slim shoulders.

Johnny Saxon stood there a moment, again looking up at the man's photograph in the silver frame. He had made an astounding discovery.

Johnny closed the screen door quietly and let his eyes grow accustomed to the sudden darkness outside. Moe Martin's stocky figure appeared out of the night and he whispered, "She's over there." He made a motion indicating the far end of the terrace-veranda.

The great Dane accompanied Johnny's partner. He came over and shoved his big head against the investigator's leg and waited for his ears to be scratched.

"Asleep?" asked Johnny quietly.

ONE WAY TRAFFIC

On today's busy thoroughfares you travel only one way in the wrong direction before horns blast, traffic cops whistle, and other drivers shout menacingly.

In your daily living, though, there is little such clamor if you choose the wrong direction. You slide along blithely, supposing you are on the right way because others are traveling along with you. Well, others can be wrong too, you know.

The road you travel has to be either right or wrong. And the best way to find and follow that right road for present-day living is to check off the signs as your road map.

Consult it diligently. Let your different-colored eyes interpret the signs and signals you find in it. You have been a tried and proved map to successful, happy living for many centuries.

Through your Bible and your Church get on the right road—NOW.

Kinston Red Devils Defeat Phantoms In Semi-Finals

Top Seeded Team Closes Fast To Beat Phantoms

The defending champion Kinston Red Devils last night moved into the finals in the Northeastern Conference tournament by eliminating Greenville 54-43 in the first game of the semi-final round. The Devils will meet Washington tonight at 9 p.m. in the tournament championship round while Greenville will meet New Bern in a consolation game for third place.

The Red Devils never managed a lead of more than nine points over the Phantoms until the final moments of the game and were extended to the limit before they got past the third-seeded club.

The top-seeded Kinston team was paced by guard Charlie Wickham who tied Greenville's Sid Briley for scoring honors with 13 points. Briley was by far the outstanding performer in the contest, however, as he not only led the Greenville scoring chase but shared in the defensive and ball-handling chores as well.

The Phantoms took an early lead in the contest but soon lost it to Coach Amos Sexton's smooth working quiet. Kinston managed to retain the lead for most of the game but it was a shaky one and the Lenoir County visitors were unable to do any real running until Greenville lost ace guard Sonny Scott on personal fouls in the last quarter.

Following Briley and Wickham in the scoring column was a pair of Kinston performers, each with 10 points. Captain Bryant Aldridge and forward Douglas Gregg shared the runner-up honors but barely got past Greenville's Smith Worthington and Wally Conway. Each of these two got nine points along with Kinston's Lee Abbott.

Kinston drew a first round bye Thursday night while Greenville was getting past Elizabeth City 47-35. The Kinston quint was seeded first in the dribble derby despite the fact that Greenville and Washington finished ahead of them in a tie for first place honors in regular season play.

Terps Go After Indoor Crown

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—Maryland, a rising power in Southern Conference track, today went after the conference indoor title to go along with its outdoor crown won last spring.

The Terps snapped the long reign of the University of North Carolina in the last outdoor meet and tonight they hope to break a seven-year grip the Tar Heels have held on indoor honors.

CONFERENCE CHAMPS

CHAPEL HILL — The University of North Carolina tennis team will defend the Southern Conference title this year. Last year's team copped the crown.

MISS GAY HERRING, a freshman at East Carolina College, represented the EOC Pirates in the "Miss North State Conference" contest which has been held in Statesville for the past three days. A native of Lenoir County, Miss Herring represented Kinston in the "Miss North State" contest last summer. The winner of the "Miss North State" contest will be announced tonight at the tournament finals between High Point College and Lenoir Rhyne College.

Groat Scores 48 In Duke Win Over North Carolina

By the Associated Press
Regular-season basketball competition comes to a virtual end in the Southern Conference tonight.

Three games involving five circuit teams are on the slim Saturday card and after that, it's all over; but for the tournament for all clubs except George Washington's Colonials, who have a March 4 date with Georgetown.

Three of the eight teams which will compete in the March 6, 7 and 8 conference tournament at Raleigh—West Virginia, Maryland and North Carolina State—get their final pre-tourney action tonight.

North Carolina State, assured a second-place finish in the standings, winds up its card against powerful Cincinnati at Raleigh.

Maryland had its circuit record lowered to 8-5 last night when George Washington's Colonials clipped the Terps, 57-56, on Elliott Carver's free throw in the last 10 seconds. By winning, the Colonials moved up to fifth place in the league standings.

Dick (The Great) Groat popped in a grand total of 48 points as Duke wound up its schedule with a runaway 94-64 win over North Carolina. The victory was No. 13 in a row for Duke. Groat collected 19 a row for Duke. Groat collected 19 a row for Duke. Groat collected 19 a row for Duke.

Duke's victory brought many a person around to the viewpoint that the Blue Devils may, at the moment, be the team to beat for the tournament championship.

Eight Teams In Bright Belt For 48 Game Slate

FARMVILLE—The Bright Belt League will operate with eight clubs this summer. It was announced by league president John Allen Farfour.

Three teams—Stantonsburg, Luma and Macleodfield—were voted full membership in the fast semi-pro league last night at a meeting of the teams returning from last season. Five clubs—Greenville, Ormondville, Farmville, Pinetops and Fremont—announced their intentions of fielding a club again this year at a meeting here two weeks ago.

The league has operated in the past with four and six clubs, but at the first meeting of the directors it was decided to expand to an eight team circuit. Several teams were invited to attend last night's meeting for a possible franchise. Kinston representatives who wanted a semi-pro team in that city were also present at the meeting.

Plans were made to obtain umpires for all league games this season from East Carolina College. The League will operate on a 48-game schedule, with games slated to be played on Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday, beginning April 24. The season will terminate on July 2.

Managers already lined up for the year include four former professional players. Fred Pittman, pitcher for several years with the Wilson Tobs, will handle the managerial reins at Stantonsburg, while Garland Little, who played with Greenville, will be at Ormondville. Dave Lingie of Goldsboro will guide Fremont, while Pete Pietrak, who played with Kinston and Greenville in this area, leads the defending champions, the Farmville club.

Pot Shots Win In Little League Play

Bobby Edwards scored 12 points yesterday afternoon to lead the Pot Shots to the first championship of the Recreation Department's Little League basketball program.

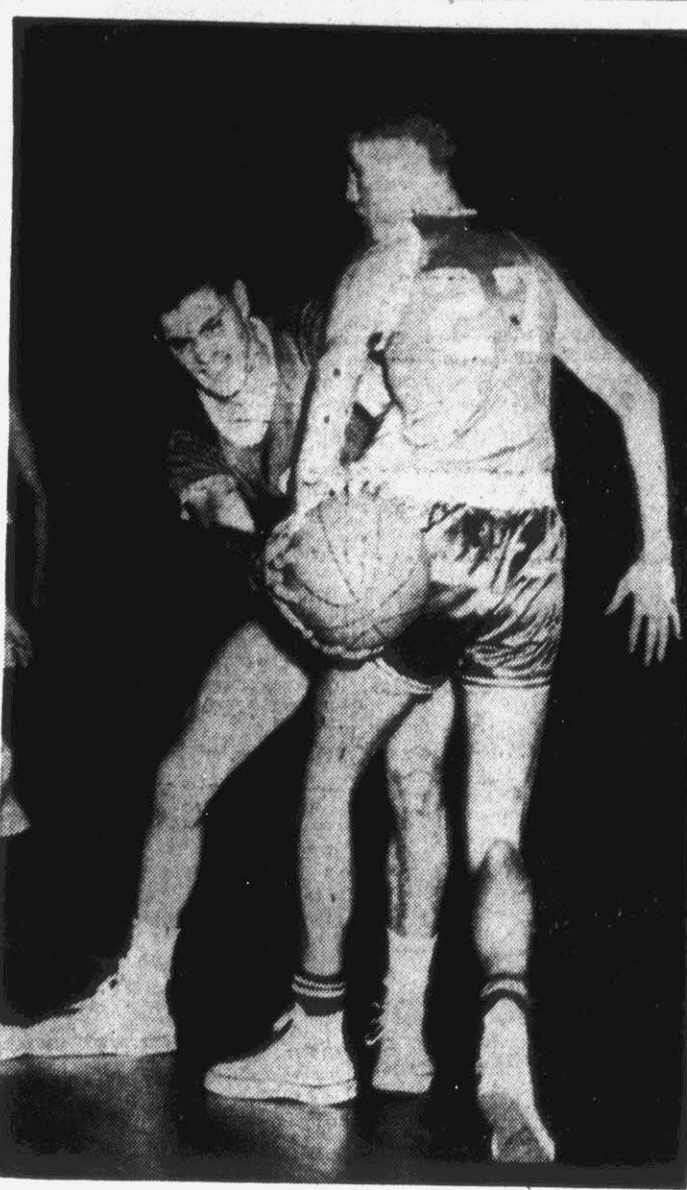

The Pot Shots defeated the Wildcats by a score of 25-14 to win the tournament, which has been running throughout the week. Ten teams from the various leagues in the program were represented in the first round action.

Other than Edwards, Jim McGee scored six points for the Pot Shots, while Peanut Nunn and Don Wilkerson collected four and three points respectively.

For the Wildcats, Charles Smith led the offensive play with seven points, followed by Howard Garner with five points and Dick Evans with two points.

Greenville Team In Finals Of State Jayvee Tourney

HIGH POINT—Greenville's junior varsity played its way into the finals of the state junior varsity tournament here this morning by edging Asheville Junior High, 39-35.

The Baby Phantoms will meet the winner of the Haynes-Durham game to be played this afternoon in the championship game tonight at 8:00 in the High Point high school gymnasium.

Tommy Saeled and Pat Sawyer led the Phants with 11 points apiece in their morning game. The Phantoms pulled away in the last three minutes of the game to win. Asheville operated from a zone defense, and Greenville went into a zone early in the contest to counteract the height advantage of two 6-4 players floored by the western team.

Bobby Starkey also scored eight points in the Greenville-Asheville semi-final game. Greenville was seeded first in the tournament on the strength of its 16-0 regular season record and received a bye in the first round of action.

Edgar Moore, a regular for Coach Bill Kittrell, was put in bed early this morning with an attack of flu and was forced to miss the first game today and also will sit out tonight.

In its first game of the tourney yesterday afternoon, Greenville dropped the defending champions from Burlington by a score of 45-43.

Pat Sawyer was high for Greenville with 21 points, followed by George Siders and Edgar Moore who scored six points each. According to Coach Kittrell, the Greenville players appeared listless and dead in the game, possibly because of the Jones and Jean Little were defensive

Bethel Loses To Louisburg Team In Semi-Finals

By BOB BOWERS

LOUISBURG—Ayden and Louisburg moved into the finals of the District Class A elimination playoffs here last night by recording victories in semi-final play over Franklinton and Bethel, respectively.

Ayden swamped the Franklinton quint by a score of 59-39, while Bethel could not find the right formula to cope with the strong Louisburg team, losing out, 52-32.

Randall Harrington and Mac Whitehurst were the big guns for the winning Tornadoes. Harrington dropped in a total of 19 points for the night's work, with most of them coming on a jump push shot from the left of the basket. Whitehurst was not far behind, turning in an all-round good ball game. The lanky Ayden center tallied 16 points to join Harrington in the scoring circle.

Ayden took the lead early in the first period, but Franklinton came back to tie the score soon afterward. The Tornadoes, who enjoyed one of their best exhibitions of the season, pulled out in front by a seven point margin, however, and led with ease throughout the first half, until a Franklinton rally late in the second half narrowed the spread down to two points, 25-23.

Coach Stuart Tripp turned loose his full scoring punch in the final period and turned the contest into a rout. Franklinton's potent scoring power was held in check by Ayden's Curtis Dennis and Delano Cox, while the Tornadoes were burning the nets with 24 points. Franklinton could muster but seven points in deciding fourth quarter.

For the losers, John Woodlief and Tuz Harris each scored 11 points to lead the offensive play of the team. They were the leaders in the second and third quarter rallies put up by the Franklinton game.

Bethel loses.

Bobby Manning and Robert Nelson were the offensive leaders in Bethel's losing cause. The Indians, who led at 2-0 for their only advantage of the night, never hit their scoring peak as the powerful hometown Louisburg club jumped into a 12-point lead in the first half.

Dow Perry and Jim Rhodes led the winners to a 47-28 in the third period. Perry was the scoring leader for Louisburg with 16 points, while Rhodes picked up 13 points. "Mollie" Stallings led the winners' defense, along with Phil Moore.

Bethel had qualified for the tourney by running through an undefeated season in the Pitt County Conference. In their first game, the Indians dropped Elm City in the first round of the event.

New TV Code Of 'Good Taste' Is Effective Today

WASHINGTON (UP)—Something new will flash on your television screen today if you're tuned to programs of some 77 stations and the four national TV networks.

It will be the "Seal of Good Practice," an emblem indicating the belief of telecasters that their programs are in good taste.

The stations and net works have subscribed to the television code adopted by the National Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters in an effort to head off growing demands for government censorship of TV programs.

The code provides that costumes shall be within the bounds of propriety and "avoid such exposure or such emphasis on anatomical detail as would embarrass or offend home viewers."

WSB Expert Will Be Here March 4

President Charles White of the Merchants' Association has arranged with Mrs. Pauline Horton, federal representative, Department of Labor, to have the wage stabilization program explained here.

Gilbert S. Taylor of the wage stabilization staff will be here Tuesday, March 4, in the city hall to discuss the program and then hold a question and answer period. He will be assisted by Rodney Knowles, supervising investigator of the Wage and Hour Division.

White said many firms are not covered by the Wage and Hour law, but, he said, from our interpretation of the Wage stabilization (control of salaries) every firm that employs one person or more, regardless of whether they do business under Inter-State Commerce, is subject to provisions of wage stabilization.

"There is a heavy penalty for violation and businessmen should attend this meeting to learn how they are covered and the requirements," said White.

DeGaulle's May Back Reynaud In Forming Gov't

PARIS (UP)—Gen. Charles de Gaulle's right-wing French People's Rally indicated today it might be willing to join a "national unity government" under Premier-designate Paul Reynaud.

The party, largest in the National Assembly with 118 out of the 624 seats, announced after a caucus that it is willing to "discuss with... Reynaud his proposed program for a national unit government."

It marked the first time since 1946 that de Gaulle's group has shown any inclination to take part in a coalition cabinet, and greatly increased Reynaud's chances of forming a stable government to stave off national bankruptcy.

While the $200 reward is still unofficial so far as the municipality's records are concerned, it is a fairly good bet that the reward can be made official at the next meeting of the board if the three commissioners who authorized the reward want to make it a matter of public record and offer it in the name of the town's administration. Grimsland's board of commissioners is made up of five members, and the three members who have already given sanction to the $200 reward could constitute a majority in a board meeting.

Promises Expose Further Waste

WASHINGTON (UP)—Rep. Pat Sutton (D-Tenn) promised today to expose more "waste" in the 2nd Army to follow up his charge that a plush $50,000 hunting lodge was built at the taxpayers' expense for personal use of the commanding general.

A spokesman for Lt. Gen. Edward H. Brooks, commander of the 2nd Army at Fort Meade, Md., denied there was a hunting lodge at the A.P. Hill Military Reservation near Bowling Green, Va.

But Sutton told the House yesterday the spokesman was "lying." Sutton gave the House a first-hand report on his inspection trip to the reservation and a description of "the most magnificent lodge I have ever seen in my life." He said the swank layout included the lodge with nine bedrooms, a beautifully equipped kitchen and dining room, a dice board hidden away behind the chimney in the attic and a "beautiful" bathroom on the lake.

The area, Sutton said, was posted with signs marked "game preserve" and "off limits for all military personnel."

Sutton said a sergeant, who was caretaker of the lodge, explained that "when the general is down here he doesn't want troops on maneuvers coming up and asking for a drink of water."

Sutton said he found a sergeant and another man working on the lake shore. They told him they were lowering the water level two feet to "kill weeds" so there would not be so many weeds when the general came down to fish.

"If that hunting lodge didn't cost $50,000," Sutton declared, "I'm not standing in the well of this house."

The first news dispatch to be carried by telegraph was word of the nomination of Henry Clay for president by the Whig party on May 1, 1844, at Baltimore.

Preparation For Kite Tournament In Final Stages

Last minute preparations are being completed for the kite tournament to be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Third Street School.

Arren Carroll, city recreation director, urged all entries in the contest to register between 1:30 and 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon for the tournament so the events can get underway promptly at 2 o'clock.

The kite tournament for the Negro boys and girls of the city was run off this afternoon at the South Greenville School under the sponsorship of the Colored Civic League.

The tournament for white boys and girls to be held tomorrow afternoon will be under the auspices of the Greenville Junior Chamber of Commerce. Dave Whichard, chairman of the Jaycee youth committee, urged members of the club to be on hand to help with the registration and the events in the tournament.

Divisions for both boys and girls have been set up in the tournament regulations, and each entrant is required to have a helper. The entrants in the tournament will compete against each other according to age groups in the eight competition events which have been scheduled.

Only homemade kites will be allowed in the tournament, and the regulations require that each youngster must have helped in making the kite which he enters in the tournament.

Awards will be made to event winners and division champions in the tournament.

Eight Sentenced To Die In Greek Spy Ring Trials

ATHENS, Greece — (AP) — A court martial today sentenced to death eight members of a 29-member spy ring.

Four others were sentenced to life imprisonment.

The prosecution had asked the death sentence for 12.

The military tribunal's verdict finished one of the most sensational espionage cases ever tried in Greece courts.

Eight of the 29 persons accused of spying and high treason were women. The trial began Feb. 15. Government witnesses produced codes, radio, and copies of wireless messages for Cominform headquarters in Bucharest, Romania, and other Communist stations surrounding Greece in their cases against the conspirators.

Says Communist Leaflets Used For Good Intent

ROCKINGHAM, N. C. (UP) — The publicity chairman of a Red Cross fund drive admitted today that he was responsible for leaflets urging citizens to donate their money to the "North Carolina Communist Party" rather than to the Red Cross.

Joe McLaurin, a Rockingham businessman, said he had the leaflets printed and distributed on his form Red Cross officials or others own responsibility and did not in any way associate with the drive.

McLaurin said he hired two Negro boys to stick the leaflets on car windshields and stuff them under the doors of business places. Indignant police officers questioned the two boys.

McLaurin said he developed the "publicity stunt" after hearing how blood donations had risen at Chapel Hill when similar leaflets were distributed there.

from that attack will go further and deeper than questions about the coliseum, the student supply stores, operations of public utilities by the university, athletic scholarships or any of the previously publicized matters.

Again, and more important than ever before, it will be necessary for those in authority to determine where that narrow dividing line comes between what ought and what ought not to be made public.

RESPONSIBILITY — Conclusion seems inevitable that most of the present and prospective trouble stems from the fact that trustees of the university have regarded their position as one of honor rather than of responsibility. Some members of the board who take obligation seriously have chased communism will-o'-the-wisps to the exclusion of basic items which tend to breed communism or some other "ism" equally alien to the tenets of real democracy.

SYMPTOMATIC — That gets back to the original premise, that these current outbreaks are symptoms of a more serious and deeper trouble. The remedy for that disease will not be found in arbitrary suppression of students or in unwise yielding to all their demands. One of the first steps would seem to be toward re-establishment of mutual confidence and respect among administrators, faculty, students and alumni, by recognition of the rights of each as participants.

Not Surprised By Russell's Entry

RALEIGH (AP) — Sen. Russell's announcement he will seek the Democratic presidential nomination came as no surprise, Gov. Scott declared yesterday.

Asked to comment on the announcement, he told reporters "from all I've heard," the Georgia senator "is a very able man."

"Scott said the announcement may mean 'there will be no splinter party this year.' He mused, however, 'I wouldn't be sure.'"

"I have announced he is for the reelection of President Truman but that he would support the party's nominee regardless of who he is."

He said he believes it would be difficult for a "deep Southerner" to get the nomination. He pointed out he has been mentioned as a possible secretary of agriculture, but "You don't come East to get a secretary of agriculture."

In answer to another question, the governor said he believes the North Carolina delegation to the Democratic national convention will be divided this year as it was four years ago.
