Gov't Seeks Injunction To End Crippling Rail Walkout

CLEVELAND (UP)—The government sought a court injunction today to end a crippling "token" railroad walkout that caused the New York Central Railroad to lay off 4,500 employees not directly affected by the strike.

The walkout of three railroad brotherhoods was against the NYC Western division and the Terminal Railroad of St. Louis.

The New York Central announced that it will lay off 4,500 operating and non-operating employees on its lines east of Buffalo, N.Y., because of the strike on its Western lines. A reduced volume of freight and passenger traffic moving east was given as the cause.

Acting U.S. District Attorney J.J. Kane, after a conference with Department of Justice and Army officials, asked Federal Judge Emerson B. Freed for a court order and injunction to end the strike.

The government asked for an immediate 10-day temporary injunction and presented affidavits signed by defense leaders to show that the strike would have "serious" effects on the national welfare.

In a strongly-worded petition, the government re-affirmed that it was in charge of the railroads, taken over by the Army on Aug. 27, 1950.

and asked Judge Freed to grant it "injunctive relief."

The petition asked that the three unions—the Engineers, the Conductors and the Firemen and Enginemen—be restrained "from acting in concert and from in any manner encouraging, ordering, engaging in or taking part in a strike in the transporting by railroad systems in the possession, control and operation of the United States."

The government thus sought to end the strike by 6,000 union men that started unexpectedly Sunday morning, idling 20,000 rail workers and paralyzing the NYC's Western division operations in six states.

The main issue centered around changes in working rules, particularly one which would permit the lines to extend the length of present runs.

The unions already have agreed generally to an hourly wage increase of 23 1/2 cents for road service workers and 38 cents for yard workers.

The walkout, called Sunday, defied the authority of the U.S. Army which technically has been in charge of the nation's railroads since Aug. 27, 1950.

The striking unions would be subject to contempt of court and heavy fines if they ignored an injunction. Another railroad union not involved in the current walkout, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, was fined $100,000 last year for ignoring orders to end a "sick strike."

Everyday lives of thousands of persons in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Missouri were affected by the new walkout and effects continued to worsen.

Industries dependent upon the Central and the other five directly affected carriers—the Wabash, Burlington, Baltimore & Ohio, Illinois Central, and Chesapeake & Ohio—have laid off 5,000 employees.

The most critical point in the strike, extending westward from Buffalo, N.Y., was in St. Louis, where 500 terminal workers left their jobs, turning huge Union Station into almost a deserted terminal. Only one of 15 lines using the station reported normal service.

About 2,000 Eastern Ohio coal miners were laid off and another 7,000 miners and pottery workers may be affected if the strike continues.

At least 2,100 miners were idle in Illinois and an additional 2,600 were expected to be laid off for lack of coal carriers.

In Michigan, the Detroit Fisher Body Corp. said production in 17 Midwest plants faced a "complete" breakdown within three days unless the strike ends and General Motors said "some auto assembly plants" might be closed if Fisher stopped production.

The unions said they were permitting all troop trains and "essential freight" to move.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has permitted all railroads to move freight, especially perishable goods, by any routing available, allowing the lines to reroute freight labeled for the NYC or its branches.

Farm Building Wrecked By Early-Morning Storm

The contents of this destroyed shelter barn on Mrs. Celia Harris' farm near Ayden was left undamaged early this morning by a gale-like storm which roared out from the West and ripped the building down. The top and side of the building were blown across the Ayden-Grifton highway blocking traffic there for some time. Other reports of tobacco barn tops being blown off were heard in the county. Reds Drop Insult Tactics After Libby's Warning

Communists Still Blame Armistice Deadlock On UN, But Modify Stand

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—Rear Adm. Ruthven E. Libby yesterday told the Communists today he was "getting fed up" with what Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway earlier called "known falsehoods" by Red troops negotiators in prisoner discussions.

The Communists, still blaming the armistice deadlock on the United Nations, dropped their threats and insults in prisoner of war discussions under Libby's warning yesterday that the Allies will walk out if the Reds kept it up. All in all, Libby said later, the 45-minute meeting was "quite mild" and minus the vicious Communist invective of the past two days.

North Korean Maj. Gen. Lee Sang Cho again accused the U.N. of "fabrications" to cover up conditions in prisoner compounds, but his words were phrased more softly, Libby reported.

Libby, irritated by Lee's insistence that the UN command was stalling negotiations, said: "We are getting fed up with your attempt to make things appear as facts when they are not facts."

Ridgway, in a surprise visit to truce camp headquarters at Munsan, denounced Communist armistice negotiators for their "known falsehoods" and said the talks have now reached a state where it is impossible for him to guess what would happen next.

The supreme commander returned to his headquarters in Tokyo late today after a two-day visit at the Allied camp.

The supreme U.N. commander said the armistice conference was "a fight—a spiritual and ideological contest with communism" that has become increasingly "trying" in recent weeks.

Ridgway assailed the Communists charging Allied planes and artillery with looting diseased insects in North Korea and China to spread epidemics.

"There is not a scintilla of truth in the Communist assertions," he said. "I repeat—not a scintilla of truth. The Communist statements of bacteriological warfare are completely and categorically false."

The supreme commander said he had seen evidence that bubonic plague exists in North Korea and that the Reds might have disseminated germ warfare propaganda in "covering up their own epidemics."

Ridgway, commenting on the slow-down in the conference tents, said:

"It is very trying to the patience of the negotiating staff. It is a very difficult thing for a man of integrity and principle to have to deal day after day with men who see little relation between the spoken word and the fact—who resort to intemperate language and deliberately employ known falsehoods as part of their tactics."

Ridgway said that if an armistice is reached, there is no guarantee the Communists will respect its terms.

"I do not think we can be sure ahead of time," he said.

The only assurance the Reds will comply, Ridgway said, is to set up "safeguards" in the form of inspection of a reasonable nature.

"N. and Communist staff officers adjourned a discussion of armistice terms after only five minutes with no progress. It was the third straight day the session, deadlocked on Communist nomination of Russia as a truce inspector.

New Hampshire Popularity Test Off To Early Start As Scattering Of Insignificant Returns Already Trickle In; Campaign Closely Watched

By PHIL COGSWELL

UNITED PRESS STAFF CORRESPONDENT CONCORD, N.H. (UP)—A handful of insignificant returns trickled in even before dawn today as a possible 150,000 voters cast ballots in New Hampshire's presidential primary, the nation's first test for potential White House candidates. With 14 votes cast, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower led both the delegate contest and the legalized popularity poll by narrow margins over Sen. Robert A. Taft. On the Democratic ballot, President Truman and Sen. Estes Kefauver split two "straw" votes and their delegates were tied.

Other than being official, the early votes carried no political significance. They were recorded at Millsfield and Waterville, two small communities in the northern section of the snow-covered Granite State.

The main army of voters moved to the polls this morning under heavy skies. Despite inclement weather, officials expect a heavy turnout, possibly half of the state's 300,000 eligible voters.

Tabulation of the fourteen votes gave some indication of the difficult task facing officials when they start counting ballots in larger districts. The polls will remain open until all eligible voters have participated, but not later than 8 p.m. EST.

At Millsfield, claiming to be the first community officially to record its vote, the balloting began at 12:01 a.m. The last of seven voters entered the booth at 12:58 and it was 20 minutes later before the official count was available.

Eisenhower was blanked at Millsfield, where Taft received four votes, Harold E. Stassen, one, and resident Truman and Kefauver one each. At Waterville, however, the general swept all seven votes.

There were five candidates favoring Eisenhower running ahead in the delegate-at-large race and the other five were tied with Taft supporters. The general had one district delegate and tied the other.

The voting at Millsfield followed the "town meeting" custom. The voters discussed local problems, sat down for sandwiches and coffee and then went to the ballot box to vote. Many town meetings are planned tonight, which will slow returns from rural areas.

The bitter campaign has been followed closely by national political leaders. Stassen and Kefauver hitting drive between Eisenhower and Taft supporters might be carried over into the party's national conventions at Chicago this summer.

"Republicans gave the Democrats enough material for two presidential campaigns by their stinging attacks on their principal candidates," one Democratic leader said. "They are going to have a tough time explaining to the voters their sudden change of view when they finally select a candidate."

Taft, who conducted a "cracker barrel" campaign throughout the state, was the chief target of "Ike's" forces and of Stassen. They charged he had not changed his "isolationist" policies.

The Ohio senator devoted most of his campaign to challenging Eisenhower's strength as a candidate. He said the general would lose much of his appeal when he is forced to take a stand on controversial issues facing the nation.

Results of the voting could depend on the two "dark horse" candidates—Stassen and Gen. MacArthur. MacArthur is in the race against his will, but some observers believe he will cut into Taft's vote. Stassen may take votes from

Have Taken Refuge In Mexican Embassy; Gov't Officials With Him; Ambassador Asks Safe Conduct For Prio To Leave Country If He Wishes

HAVANA, Cuba (UP)—Ousted President Carlos Prio Socarras has taken refuge in the Mexican embassy with his family and about 15 officials of his government, it was disclosed today.

Mexican Ambassador Benito Coquyt officially informed Gen. Fulencio Batista, who overthrew the government yesterday, that Prio and asked and had been granted asylum as a political refugee.

The ambassador asked a safe conduct for Prio to leave the country if he desired, along with those who accompany him.

Prio, sent to the embassy, it was disclosed, with his wife, their two daughters and officials, including Defense Minister Ruben de Leon and Interior Minister Segundo Curiel. The news cleared up a 24-hour mystery over Prio's whereabouts since he left the presidential palace yesterday 30 minutes before troops loyal to Batista seized it.

Batista sent a force of 250 regular army troops to the central Cuban city of Camaguey to put down the only open threat to his authority as leader of the new provisional government.

The troops left by special train last night on the 350-mile journey after Col. Jose Acosta, garrison commander, issued a manifesto denouncing Batista for seizing the government.

But advice from Camaguey today said Acosta disappeared possibly to organize resistance in the countryside. The garrison now is under Batista control.

In nearby Las Villas, mobs attacked the police offices of Batista's forces. Streets were virtually deserted during the night, and tanks, armored cars and infantry were on the alert for any possible counter-revolution.

Roadblocks were established on the approaches to the presidential palace and searchlights were in

Sabres Down Three MIGs Against Odds

High Gales Over Southern States Little Damage Despite Violence Of Wide-spread Storm

By UNITED PRESS

Hurricane-force winds belted sections of Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia as a squall line spawned by a low pressure area over Southern Illinois and Western Kentucky swept eastward.

Relatively little damage and no injuries were reported despite the violence of the storm, and weather forecasters predicted sunshine would follow in its wake.

The storm brought a significant development in the nation's weather picture. Forecasters issued, an unprecedented public warning that tornadoes might occur, and one twister struck squarely in the "target area."

A storm hit the area between Bordolville and Mansura, La., in the Lower Mississippi Valley, fulfilling a prediction by the Tinker, Okla., Air Force Base's Severe Storm Center.

The tornado forecast came in answer to public clamor raised a week ago when word leaked out that the Air Force was predicting tornado possibilities in comparatively small areas.

The Louisiana tornado arrived on schedule between 2 and 4 p.m. CST yesterday as the Air Force had predicted.

Sheriff J.W. Jeansonnie of Avoyelles Parish (county) reported "several homes were damaged" and many trees and utility poles were blown down.

Some six hours earlier, tornado winds damaged some 20 homes at Dubberly, La., more than 150 miles to the northwest and about 36 miles east of Shreveport.

Sixty-Seven Jets Battle Against 263 Enemy Fighters In Four Encounters; Red Supply Center Burned Out By Napalm

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—American Sabrejets shot down three Communist MIG-15s, probably destroyed another and damaged five of the Russian-built jet fighters in stepped-up air action over Korea today.

The action brought the two-day total to 10 enemy destroyed, one probably destroyed and eight damaged. The kills brought to 205 the number of MIGs destroyed in the Korean war.

Sixty-seven Sabres, taking on their usual odds, battled about 263 MIGs in four encounters over Northwest Korea where the Red fighters were trying to break through the U.N. cover to get a crack at the fighter-bombers working over enemy communications near Namchonjom.

Meanwhile, fighter-bombers slammed more than 33,000 gallons of napalm, 300,000 pounds of demolition bombs and 5,000 rounds of machine gun bullets at Red positions over a four square mile supply concentration, turning it into a flaming mass.

The onslaught by 8th Wing planes was probably the most intense (Continued on page eight)

Russia Calls For Big-Four Parley

Would Unify, Rearm Germany, But Bar NATO Membership

MOSCOW (UP)—The Soviet Union called today for an early Big Four conference on a German peace treaty designed to unify and rearmed Germany but bar it from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The Soviet proposals would:

1. Withdraw all occupation forces from Germany one year after the proposed treaty became effective and end all foreign bases on German territory.
2. Bar a revival of German militarism, but permit Germany national land, sea and air forces and limited production of war materials.
3. Hold German borders to those set at Potsdam, where Poland was given East German territory to compensate for the westward expansion of Soviet borders.
4. Support Germany for United Nations membership.
5. Permit unlimited "development of a peaceful economy" for Germany.

The proposals were contained in a note and a draft of a German peace treaty given to United States, British and French representatives here last night. The note and draft were published in Russian newspapers and broadcast by Moscow radio today.

In the 250-word note, one of the shortest ever to come from the Kremlin, the Soviets agreed to discuss any Western proposals for a German peace pact.

The treaty draft did not mention NATO specifically, but would exact a pledge from Germany "not to enter any coalitions or military alliances whatsoever directed against any power which had taken part in armed forces in the war against Germany."

Russia repeatedly has said the North Atlantic Pact is aimed at the Soviet Union.

Network Closing After 13 Years

CLEVELAND (UP)—The Continental Press Service prepared today to close down its multi-million dollar wire after 13 years of operation.

Joseph Lebit, the service's auditor, said the firm's wires would close down at the end of business tomorrow. He said the company currently employs some 80 men in "20 or 22 cities" in the country.

The announcement yesterday climaxed a series of moves by the Ohio Public Utilities Commission against the service.

However, a hearing scheduled for March 19, will go on as scheduled, the PUC said. It has subpoenaed eight persons, including Arthur B. McBride, owner of the Cleveland Browns football team and local taxi magnate.

Anti-Inflation Moves In Britain

LONDON (AP)—The government announced today a new drastic slash in imports and raised the bank rate for loans to 4 per cent in an effort to make money dearer and stem inflation.

The bank rate goes up from 2 1/2 per cent. Last November the Conservative government raised it from 2 per cent. The effect is to make money harder to obtain for construction and other efforts that do not fall within the government's planning.

High Winds And Heavy Rain Quickly Disappear

C-Of-C Board Is Against Rate Hike

Members of the Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors acted on a few matters of business and heard committee reports at its meeting last night.

The board went on record as opposing an increase in telephone rates which the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company has made application for to the North Carolina Utilities Commission. A hearing has been set by the State Utilities Commission March 26 in Raleigh to discuss the increase in rates.

The Public Relations Committee of the Chamber was directed to meet and confer with officials of East Carolina College in reference to advertising the college.

Each year the Chamber and other business firms in the city appropriate money for advertising the college. The committee will meet with college representatives to work out an advertising program.

A number of committee reports were heard last night and the Civic Affairs Committee, whose representatives attended the meeting at the development of Elm Street Park, reported on the progress so far and are waiting for action by the steering committee of the park for further work.

The Transportation Committee reported they are still working on the extension of U.S. Highway 13 to be run through the city.

Agriculture Committee representatives reported on the progress of the Fat Stock Show and Sale which will be held here April 17. The committee members attended a meeting February 10 to begin laying out plans for the coming stock show and sale.

Rep. Durham Is Confident N. C. To Get 2 Bases

DURHAM (UP)—Rep. Carl T. Durham (D-NC) predicted today that Congress will approve the construction of Air Force installations at both Raleigh-Durham and Seymour-Johnson airport at Goldsboro.

Durham, ranking member of the House Armed Services Committee, said a "troop-carrier" wing at Raleigh-Durham would have a $1,000,000 monthly payroll and eventually would employ 300 civilians. He said 3,000 servicemen would be based at the airport.

At Seymour-Johnson, he said, a jet fighter wing would have a monthly payroll of $1,300,000 and employ 200 civilians. He said some 4,500 air force personnel would be based there.

Durham said the two bases are a "must" on the Air Force's current program.

Considerable Damage, Disrupted Power And Telephone Service Over Parts Of County; Brief Storm Was Rude Awakening

By ROY HARDEE

AYDEN—High winds approaching gale velocity, accompanied by a driving rain storm, roared across Pitt County early this morning leaving in its wake considerable property damage and disrupting power and telephone service in many parts of the county.

The storm, which struck in most sections early this morning about seven o'clock, saw more than an inch of rain falling on the already rain-soaked Pitt County area, who are currently facing a threat from flooding streams and rivers in many places.

Claps of loud thunder and bolts of lightning made a rude awakening for many of the Pitt citizenry if they had not already been roused from their slumber by the brisk winds and driving rain.

Possibly the hardest hit section of the county was around Ayden where the gale-like winds ripped off the tops of tobacco barns dotted across the farm lands and destroyed a shelter barn belonging to Mrs. Celia Harris near Ayden.

According to people in the Ayden community, the storm hit there around seven o'clock and lasted for about 30 minutes.

The wrecked shelter barn belonged to Mrs. Harris was completely blown down, leaving the contents of the building intact, however. The wind approaching from the west blew the building's top and sides, across the Ayden-Grifton highway blocking traffic for some time.

Included in the shelter which was destroyed were more than 8,000 tobacco sticks and other farm items. None of this was damaged. The falling barn disrupted telephone service in the section for some time.

Clean-Up Man Newbold Morris Takes Stand In Tanker Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Newbold Morris, government cleanup man, took the witness chair today in a Senate investigation of profitable deals in war surplus ships and was promptly asked whether the White House arranged for a 1947 meeting he had with Maritime Commission officials.

Morris said he did not recall that the White House had any hand in the arrangements, but two senators told him that later testimony will show it did.

"For your own protection" Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) told Morris "you should be told the original appointment was made from the White House."

McCarthy and Sen. Mundt (R-SD) joined in a request that Morris "search your memory" about the 1947 meeting. Morris repeated that he recalled no White House help.

In weeks of hearings, the Senate Investigations subcommittee has developed that a group of prominent persons headed by ex-Rep. Joseph E. Casey, made a $1.4 million dollars from an investment of $101,000 in surplus ships.

Morris was not among this group but his name has come repeatedly into the hearings. Two ships the Casey group bought were turned over to United Tanker Corp., a shipping concern which employed Morris' law firm as counsel. Tankers owned by this company, it developed, hauled oil to the Chinese Reds until about a month before the outbreak of the Korean War.

The tall, lanky Morris was a cool and composed witness as the questioning began with Francis D. Flanagan, the subcommittee counsel, putting the queries.

Under questioning by Flanagan, Morris testified he went "alone" to the Maritime Commission here in 1947 to learn whether it was willing to sell war surplus oil tankers to either of two Chinese companies.

They were the China Trading and Industrial Development Corp. and Chinese Petroleum Corp., for which his law firm was counsel.

"Was that appointment made by the White House?" Mundt asked. "What?" Morris practically exploded.

He cupped his hand to his ear as though not sure he had heard correctly, and Mundt repeated the question.

"No sir," Morris said, letting his voice rise.

"Did anyone from the White House go with you?"

"For goodness sake, I wish they had," Morris retorted.

He insisted "I did not know Adm. W. W. Smith," then Maritime Commission chairman.

"I went there absolutely alone—and cold," he added, "and I never knew him before."

"I don't know anyone in Washington yet," he added.

Mundt asked whether Morris knows "a man named Turner" at the White House, and Morris told him "I never heard of anyone named Turner" working for the President.

It was at this point that McCarthy cautioned him, and Morris told him, "Senator, since you put it to me that way . . ."

"The testimony will be that the White House made the original appointment," McCarthy interjected.

Notice to Local Artists
All local artists, either amateur or professional, are invited to exhibit their paintings at the Woman's Club during the Art Festival week March 21-25.

Paintings may be oils, water colors or any other media. Limited space makes it necessary to limit the number of paintings from each artist to two if canvases are larger than 16 by 20.

All pictures must be framed or otherwise prepared for hanging. Each artist is requested to label his or her work on the back, including name, address, phone number and whether or not the article is for sale. Do not include the price.

Paintings will be accepted at the Woman's Club on Thursday and Friday, March 20 and 21, between the hours of 3:00-6:00 p.m. All paintings must be in by that time. For further information call Mrs. Donna Tabar at 4196.

FINGERED BY UNCLE SAM—The tiniest member of the wealthy du Pont family, eight-month-old Alletta du Pont Bredin, doesn't appear too concerned about the government attempts to include her among 188 relatives of the du Pont clan as defendants in an anti-trust suit. The child, daughter of the former Octavia Mary du Pont and J. Bruce Bredin of Wilmington, Del., is the youngest of the family defendants in the suit filed against the huge du Pont industrial empire. Her grandfather is Irenée du Pont, former president of the company. (AP Wirephoto).

'Stinkers' Don't Mind Their Name

NEW YORK — (AP) — You can call them "stinkers" and they won't mind.

They're the men whose job it is to add a special aroma to odorless natural fuel. This is done for safety in home and industry, according to the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association.

One pint of the odorant, a sulphur derivative, will smell up a million cubic feet of natural gas. The gas absorbs the odor as it passes over a vat of the liquid or the odorant is injected directly into the gas transmission line.

Inch And Quarter Of Rainfall Today

An inch and a quarter of rain fell in the Greenville area during a heavy storm this morning. Strong winds accompanied the downpour. The local Weather Bureau station recorded 1.28 inches of rain.

Mrs. Carl E. Malden, local observer for the U.S. Department of Commerce, reported that 4.33 inches of rain fell here during the first 10 days of March. The normal rainfall is 3.80 inches for the month.

The average annual rainfall for this section is between 50 and 60 inches, she stated.

Highest temperature here yesterday was 60 degrees. Lowest last night, 60, the warmest night temperature of the winter. And at 8 a.m. today the mercury stood at 63 degrees.

The flood level of Tar River at Greenville today was standing still at 15.63 feet, J. L. Missett, local observer for the U.S. Department of Commerce, reported.

The river flows over parts of the Bethel highway when it reaches the 22-foot level.

Election Filing Is Family Affair

MT. CARMEL, Ill. — (AP) — A petition for Republican W. V. Brown's re-election to the Illinois House of Representatives came back completed — but there was only one family name on it.

Some Suspect Pres. Truman Regrets Entry In N.H. Test

By RAYMOND LAHR
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—Some highly-placed Democrats believe that President Truman regrets his decision to run against Sen. Estes Kefauver in today's New Hampshire Democratic primary.

They also believe that Mr. Truman personally squelched moves to enter him in the Oregon and New Jersey primaries, and that he intends to steer clear of future "popularity contests" in other states.

This viewpoint was expressed independently by two Democrats who are usually well informed on party affairs. Both were firmly of the opinion that Mr. Truman has decided to stay out of primary battles, whether he runs for re-election or not.

One Democratic strategist suggested this explanation: "He knows he can have the Democratic nomination if he wants it. Why should he put people on the spot and take unnecessary risks?" The party organization has staged an all-out fight on behalf of the President in New Hampshire, even though Mr. Truman himself has done no campaigning. Kefauver has stumped the state tirelessly, but conceded he would be happy with a "good showing."

In other political developments: 1. Sen. Tom Connally (D-Tex.) is scheduled to give a speech in an angry Senate speech for remarks which Taft made in Connally's home state of Texas yesterday. Taft said Connally was partly responsible for "inviting" the Communists to invade South Korea, because he said publicly the United States would "do nothing" to stop them. Connally retorted that Taft has been a "chameleon senator" on foreign policy questions and is "trying to buy a few slimy, filthy votes—with untruths."

2. Sen. Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo.) said it is his "hope and belief" that Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) will either be president or still chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee in 1955. He made the remark in a Senate speech about a UMT bill, but later said he did not intend it to be an endorsement of Russell's candidacy for the Democratic nomination.

3. Sen. Frank Carlson (R-Kan.), national director of the Eisenhower movement, denied telling Southern Republican leaders that Eisenhower would return to this country late in April. Carlson said he doesn't know when Eisenhower is coming back, "but as far as I know, he is not coming in April."

4. Retired Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, onetime military leader of Taft for the Republican nomination. He said that in his judgment Taft's nomination "will be tantamount to a sweeping Republican victory in November."

Attorneys For Rita, Aly Meet

NEW YORK (UP)—Attorneys for Aly Khan and his estranged princess, Rita Hayworth, conferred here today amid rumors they were arranging a meeting—for love or money—between the couple whose romantic shenanigans have covered half the earth.

Aly's attorney, Charles Torem of Paris, said he and Rita's lawyer, Bartley Crum, might fly to Hollywood within the next few days to talk to the actress.

Torem said Aly had no plans "for the present" to come to this country, but added "he likes to come here very much, and of course he has a daughter here."

In other political developments: 1. Sen. Tom Connally (D-Tex.) is scheduled to give a speech in an angry Senate speech for remarks which Taft made in Connally's home state of Texas yesterday. Area Searched For Plane Wreck

DANVILLE, Va. (AP)—A sparsely populated hillside area around Danville was being searched today for traces of an unidentified plane believed to have crashed during a wind-driven rain storm last night.

Residents of the Cascade-Axton area in Southwest, Pittsylvania County, near the North Carolina line, reported hearing a loud crash at 9:45 last night after a plane had dived overhead for more than two hours.

The storm turned back planes which tried to get to the crash and lead it to the Danville airport last night. No trace could be found later by searching parties.

Clear skies at dawn permitted planes to take over from the local airport.

The CAA and official sources said there was no doubt but that the plane had been lost over the area. Hundreds heard it and some 2,500 cars massed at an airfield near Martinsville in response to a radio appeal—and played their lights on the runway in a futile effort to lead the plane down. But the ceiling there at that time was only 200 feet.

No radio contact was established with the craft, however. Persons on the ground differed as to the size of the plane—some said it was single-engine and others insisted it was multi-engine.

The Danville CAA station reported at 8:30 a.m. today that there still was no report from any plane missing or overdue.

Storm Warnings Raised On Coast

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Weather Bureau today ordered storm warnings along the Atlantic Coast from Block Island to Cape Hatteras.

The advisory, effective at 4 a.m., forecast for the area "35-50 mile-an-hour southerly winds today in connection with deep storm center moving northeastward over the Great Lakes."

Soviet Press Is Printing Diary Of U. S. General

MOSCOW (UP)—The Literary Gazette began the serial publication today of the book containing excerpts from the diary of U. S. Maj. Gen. Robert W. Grow.

It was the first reference in the Soviet press to the diary of Grow, until recently U. S. military attaché here.

Excerpts from the diary appeared in the book "On the Path to War," published in the Soviet zone of Berlin under the name of Richard Squires, a former British army major who disappeared in the German capital four years ago.

Pages from the diary indicated Grow traveled through the Soviet Union seeking bombing targets and locations of anti-aircraft defenses. He wrote that the U. S. should fight "this dirty war by hitting below the belt."

(U. S. authorities, in Frankfurt, Germany, have said Grow's diary was photographed by a Soviet agent when the general attended a secret conference of American officials there last June.)

In Pithers, France, Squires' estranged wife declared that he was "not a Communist at all." She said that Squires "was so mad he would he would go anywhere if I left him."

"My opinion is that he smuggled himself through the Iron Curtain and was taken prisoner. Under force or drugs he was made to write the book—if he wrote it. It might even have been dictated to him so they'd have it in his own handwriting," she said.

Mrs. Squires, a bookkeeper, said it was "inconceivable" that her husband, a former professor of English, could have written this "of his own free will."

Italian General Resigning NATO Area Command

ROME (AP)—Italian Gen. Maurizio Lazzaro De Castiglioni has resigned as NATO commander of land forces in Southern Europe, a high Italian source said today, in the face of Greek and Turk opposition to placing their troops under his leadership.

Gen. Elio Marras, Italian chief of staff, asked Castiglioni to reconsider his resignation, the informant said, but Castiglioni rejected the request.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower visited Greece and Turkey last week. Leaders in both countries opposed placing their troops under Italian command. Greece especially is bitter toward the Italian army. Eisenhower was reported to have worked out plans to put the Greeks and Turks under U. S. Adm. Robert B. Carney, Allied commander in chief for Southern Europe.

Fugitive Nabbed After Ball Game

NEW YORK (AP)—A fugitive wanted in the slaying of a Virginia policeman vainly sought to escape FBI agents last night by disappearing into crowds leaving a Madison Square Garden basketball game.

But city police held back the Garden fans, and three FBI agents with drawn guns captured Arthur Raymond Kimball, 28, after a half-hour chase.

Kimball was wanted in Petersburg, Va., in the shooting of Patrolman William Swofford, slain with his own gun during a jewelry store burglary Feb. 18. The FBI here said Kimball admitted shooting the policeman but said it was an accident.

FBI agents said Kimball was trailed here on Feb. 20 and had been watched ever since. They closed in on him at 10:20 p.m. last night in front of Madison Square Garden, where the National Invitational Basketball Tournament is being played.

When an agent grabbed him, he slipped out of his jacket and top coat. He dashed among several parked cars and into a drug store hallway, where he was cornered. He was not armed.

He will be arraigned here today.

'Disturbed' Over Sellers' Hearing

RALEIGH (UP)—Aly. Gen. Harry McMullan said today "a lot of people here are disturbed" by a U. S. Supreme Court decision to review the case of convicted rapist Raleigh Sellers.

The Negro was sentenced to death for the rape of a woman in 1947.

Sellers' attorneys contended Negroes were excluded from the trial jury which found him guilty of attacking a woman near Williamston.

"Our position all along has been that Sellers had a fair and impartial trial," McMullan said today. "A lot of people are disturbed by the fact that we haven't been able to get the case finally settled."

The high court announced yesterday it will schedule arguments in the case appealed by Sellers' attorneys and will hand down an opinion later.

Dixie Division In Big Airlift

FORT JACKSON, S. C. (UP)—The 31st Dixie Division today made final preparations for participation in the largest airlift in history.

Some 10,000 men of the division will be flown next week from Shaw Air Force Base near Sumter to Fort Hood, Tex., where the division will participate in the joint Air Force-Army maneuver "Operation Longhorn."

The airlift will mark the first attempt by the Air Force to transport almost a complete division to a maneuver area.

Some 3,000 men of the division are making the trip to Texas by motor convoy, some units of which have already left.

Certainly! Frequent and abundant use of a good skin lotion will make sheer stockings show to better advantage. Of course you don't apply the lotion to the stockings—you put it on your legs! Seriously, sheer nylons may be things of beauty but they were never intended to protect you from the weather. Use of depilatories and exposure to the elements is very apt to make the skin on your legs chapped, scaly and bumpy. Applications of lotion several times a week will keep your legs silky smooth and considerably enhance their appearance when encased in those same sheer hose that are partly to blame for the trouble.

Bevan Defeats Censure Effort

LONDON (AP)—Aneurin Bevan today defeated an attempt by Clement Attlee's moderates to censure him for bucking the Labor Party's views on rearmament. The censure motion was defeated 172-62 at a party meeting in which Attlee at one time was booed.

All that Attlee salvaged was a watered-down version of restoring "standing orders" of the party leadership. Under standing orders, rebels can be expelled from the party. But the resolution was finally adopted left loopholes for the Bevanites.

Both sides claimed victory in the lobbies after the meeting, but it appeared the Bevanites' claim was the stronger.

The party decision avoided censure of Bevan and his 56 followers. Bevan had not recanted in any of his beliefs, and he had headed off an iron-clad crackdown on his bloc. The party split came to a head last Wednesday when Bevan, former health minister, and his bloc refused to follow party orders during a Commons vote on supporting Britain's huge rearmament program—a program launched by the Attlee government which now is questioning the ability of the Conservative government to carry it out.

Olive, Umstead Join Discussion Of Farm Topics

GREENSBORO (AP)—Two candidates for governor of North Carolina joined top Grange officials here yesterday in a discussion of the state's agricultural problems.

The candidates, William B. Umstead of Durham and Judge Hubert Olive of Lexington, discussed the Grange program with members of the organization's executive committee.

State Grange Master Harry B. Caldwell opened the meeting with a report on state organization and stressed that the Grange is non-political and does not give endorsement to any candidate for any office.

W. W. Andrews of Goldsboro, cotton committee chairman, reported that the Grange has asked Secretary of Agriculture Brannan to adjust the price support program for the 1952 cotton crop so growers will be assured of fair prices and dependable markets.

Doctors were convinced the general is unable to work.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
WAR IS INCONSISTENT

The greatest arousal of peace sentiment that the world has known for two thousand years began about the year 1900 with the organization of peace societies and the attempt on the part of idealists, statesmen, and great business men the world over to do away with war. They realized that war is inconsistent with the humane sentiments of modern life, that it destroys more property than any peace settlement can pay for, and that from beginning to end war is always bad business, bad economics, bad morals.

It is interesting to note that two of the most outstanding business men of modern times, Andrew Carnegie and Henry Ford, were particularly interested in peace, which speaks volumes for its economic advantages. For centuries the peace movement had consisted of a feeble minority protest made either by idealists far ahead of their age, or by pacifists who disbelieved in war under any circumstances.

Today there are millions of people in the world who have sworn never to let an opportunity pass by to raise their voices against war.

And these people are not pacifists, not mere dreamers, not theorists, but people who believe that war jeopardizes and may perhaps destroy the social benefits that modern civilization confers.

The Proving Ground For 1952 Politics

The nation's political eyes, from the black-cigar political bosses to the individual citizen, are watching the outcome of the New Hampshire presidential primary.

Why all this interest in the primary which can carry only 14 electoral votes to the Republican convention and only 12 votes to the Democratic convention? As the New York Times says, "Never before have so many national figures seen so much of New Hampshire—and vice versa."

The New Hampshire primary this year will be the proving ground which will carry great sway in the campaigning and in public opinion both of which will wax warmer between now and convention time in July.

The outcome of the voting in the little New England state could in itself determine the future of General Ike's candidacy. If Taft deals the General a crushing blow in New Hampshire, the General's supporters would set up a howl for him to come home and enter the campaign himself. If Ike stuck to his guns in Europe, many of his supporters may fold their tents and steal quietly away to pop up again in another political campaign between now and nomination time.

The primary will give a good indication of whether Senator Estes Kefauver is able to get his foot into the door of top Democratic politics either as a presidential or vice-presidential candidate. It could be the determining factor which will force President Truman to either announce his candidacy or get out another of his proteges in a stop-Kefauver movement while the head of the party watches for more trends before giving a yes or no answer on his position in the race for the Democratic nomination.

A good showing by Kefauver would almost force the hand of Truman. As much as 30 per cent of the popular vote and one delegate pledged to Kefauver may be enough to turn the trick.

For the professional politicians, the outcome of the New Hampshire primary today will be handwriting on the wall which will guide activities between now and July. For the man on the street, it will show what someone thinks about his choice as a candidate and may influence voters across the nation.

Late; But A Start In The Right Path

Democracy moves slowly—too slowly at times—but it is nice to see that the United States government has finally gotten around to limiting the travel of Russian officials in this country.

For a long time American officials in Russia have been fettered as effectively as if they were on a leash held by the Russian police, and have been permitted only a few miles from their home bases in Russia. During that time Soviet officials in the United States have roamed far and wide throughout the United States looking at what they pleased and using the embassy for a pipeline on American information to the Kremlin.

The unlimited travel of the Soviet officials in the United States doubtlessly has been of great benefit to the Communists. Although the order restricting their travel came much later than justified, it is better now than many more months in the future. The Soviet officials in the United States now are under similar restrictions which have affected the American officials in Russia for some time.

If the United States will not just follow its own lead and invoke other much-needed restrictions on the activities of the agents of the Kremlin in this country, we will have made a real stride in the right direction.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—Unless checked by Congress, the Truman Administration will gamble on jeopardizing national defense in order to win its suit for federal ownership of submerged oil lands off the coasts of California, Texas, Louisiana and Alaska.

The White House will even invite Russian spying and other hostile activities within these strategic waters—an area which the Japs fished and mapped before Pearl Harbor—in spite of a ruling by the International Court of Justice at The Hague, which destroys the legal position of President Truman and Attorney General J. Howard McGrath.

Not even the recent reappearance of Soviet submarines off the shore of San Domingo has led them to reverse their legalistic stand.

MUZZLED—In order to obtain untold billions of federal revenue, Truman and McGrath have upset the defense strategy framed by Pentagon experts. In refusing to abide by The Hague decision, they weaken Secretary Acheson's attempt to convince Russia, satellites and neutrals that the United States respects international law, and seeks a peaceful rather than a warlike settlement of world conflicts.

Despite their disagreement, high State and Defense officials have been muzzled by the White House. They dare not voice their protests against this narrowing of our defense waters. But several retired naval and military men may denounce it as witnesses before Congressional committees.

As a result of these new developments, which have not been publicized sufficiently except along the Pacific Coast, the tidelands oil controversy becomes a grave problem of national interest and concern.

It resolves itself into a question of whether the Truman Administration's ragged need for dollars to rescue the Treasury is more important than national defense in this dangerous period of world history.

DIFFERENCE—The new and nationally important twist in the tidelands row involves the basic question of where the boundaries of "internal" waters along the coasts of California and Alaska shall be fixed, and who shall fix them.

It should be explained that there is a difference between "inland" waters and "internal waters." The former belong to the states. The latter, which are also known as "marginal" or "territorial" waters, belong to the United States. And the property under these bodies—that is, oil or other valuable minerals—belongs to the states or federal government, respectively.

The disputed petroleum deposits lie under the outer "marginal" and "territorial" waters, and on the continental shelf beyond. There is little or no oil in the area known as "inland waters," which represent the states' legal domain.

BOUNDARIES—In order to grab the oil in the outer waters, Attorney General McGrath's lawyers have fixed the states' and Alaska's boundaries so that they skirt the coast only a short distance from shore. From this line, and to a distance of three miles, federal jurisdiction takes over under the McGrath setup. His line even includes the beaches of certain cities in California.

Off California, however, there lies a string of volcanic islands which extend from 26 to 75 miles from the coast. They run from above Santa Barbara to below San Diego. Off Alaska and the Aleutians the island coastline protrudes close to Russian territory.

On the basis of legal decisions and official maps, California claims that her "inland waters" extend to the outer rim of these islands. If the United States would accept this contention, it would mean that our national defense line—our ocean frontier—would be pushed far out to sea, and not run within sight and easy firing distance of coastal cities.

It would mean that Russian "fishermen" as well as the Japs, could not invade or fly over these waters with immunity from American protest or action.

CONTESTATION—But Truman-McGrath acceptance of California's claim would deprive them of billions in badly needed revenue. So, to the despair of our defense and diplomatic experts, they are willing to surrender these strategic sea areas to foreign nations.

Ironically, The Hague decision has upset the government's case, although Attorney General McGrath had expected it to provide him with legal reinforcements. Now that it is adverse, he refuses to admit its application to the California-Alaska situation.

The Hague arbitration involved a fisheries dispute between Britain and Norway over the latter country's "inland waters." Having the same kind of off-shore island network as California and Alaska, Norway claimed that this outer line should mark the boundary of her "inland waters." To the consternation of the D of J and the White House, the international jurists ruled in favor of Norway.

DISPUTE—Although the Supreme Court has held in a 4-3 ruling that the United States enjoys "paramount" authority over "marginal waters," it did not pass on the bony dispute as outlined here. It referred that question to a special master at Washington, who will not decide the matter for months. It is before him that McGrath's bright young men are arguing in favor of dollars against defense.

Californians on Capitol Hill deny the right of the D of J or the Supreme Court to fix the national boundaries of the United States. That is the sole function of Congress, as set forth in a bill recently introduced by Representative Samuel W. Yorty, a good Los Angeles Democrat. Unless Congress puts dollars for Truman before defense for the United States, favorable action seems certain.

CHESTER, S. C. REPORTER: The determination to remain free is a decision that all of us must make. Freedom will be protected not by Congress, heads of businesses, labor leaders, or politicians—but by you and me, working from our own personal pulpit, and by practicing what we preach.

FORREST GROVE, ORE., NEWS-TIMES: "The simplicity of small town living is its strength. Residents of small communities are able to see most of their governmental, economic and social patterns clearly and know how our cherished institutions function. The self-sustaining features of community life are apparent. The citizen of the small community can observe where each individual who performs a useful service is a valuable citizen because he can see how the activities of each affect the whole. Much government is a direct local responsibility and responsibility to local control."

Ready With A Statement

Somebody Told Me

By J. L. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Very soon, I'll have to make a very important decision: Either I'll have to stop taking vitamin tablets or float a loan with the Chase National Bank. This appetite of mine is slowly driving me into bankruptcy.

Last night at the supper table I devised a plan which I presented to Wife Rachel for her comments. "Suppose," I said, "that I sponsor a contest through my column, giving a write-up to the winners. My first contest would be on chocolate pies, with the idea of women who read my column allowing me to sample their chocolate pies in an effort to determine which one is the real champion."

Rachel laughed and added, "Yes, and I'm sure you would demand a whole pie from each contestant. One slice wouldn't be sufficient for you to make any decision."

"You're exactly right," I agreed, "then I could sponsor a fried chicken contest, and so on. With this plan in operation, we could eat for a year."

"But," said W.R., "during the chocolate pie contest we would have to eat it three times a day in order to eat all of them before they spoiled."

"That," I insisted, "wouldn't bother me a bit. It would be a great deal of fun to eat nothing but chocolate pies until I couldn't stand another one. If I thought the readers would cooperate, I would certainly give it a try."

From there Rachel and I went on to talk about the things that we would like to eat enough of to get a fill. My list, after chocolate pie:

1. Fresh strawberries.
2. Fried mignon.
3. Fried oysters.
4. W.R.'s brownies.
5. W.R.'s toll house cookies.
6. Good fried chicken.

From there, the list just dwindles into thousands of dishes that all have great appeal to a man taking vitamin tablets. If you've never seen an advertisement on vitamins, you should read one. Each tablet has enough food value to last a man a week. Then if you take the tablet it makes you eat enough to last you a week, but it lasts only a day. Doesn't make sense, does it? Vitamin-takers need something, probably enough money to buy enough food.

And I thank you.

EXPENSIVE—It costs a lot of money and take a mass of detailed work to merge a couple of big power companies. Estimated cost of working out the mechanics of the merger between Carolina Power & Light Company and Tide Water Power Company, which was consummated last week, is around $180,000. This of course not include any purchase price money paid for land, material and equipment. The printing bill alone ran to about $40,000, and there was well above $1,000 spent for postage. Another sizeable item is that of recording fees in the offices of the secretary of state, clerks of court and registers of deeds.

Some of the papers had to be recorded in each of the counties where the enlarged CP & L will operate, which is more than half the counties in the state.

WOMEN—The women have moved another step nearer to equal representation in the Democratic party of North Carolina. The party plan of organization was amended by the state executive committee last Friday to provide equal number of men and women on the advisory campaign committee. That will be in the printed rules, but unless the ladies keep right behind the proposition it will not be in the practiced rules. The plan calls for equal number of men and women on the executive committee, too, but as presently constituted there are 121 men and 98 women among the elected members.

LIP-SERVICE—The men pay lip-service to the idea of equal representation, as manifested by the committee action Friday. The women don't do much better than give lip-service, as demonstrated by attendance at that same committee meeting where this matter was scheduled to come up. Twenty-two women were in the hall of the house, and several of them were not members. A good many of the present also were non-members. There were more than 90 persons in the hall, 56 of whom were members and several others holding proxies of absentees for a total of 149 votes from the full committee strength of 222.

FOREHAND—The committee came to the meeting with their minds made up about two things: They would set the state convention date as close to the primary as possible, and they would not listen to speeches by Governor Scott or anybody else. The matters incident to amending the plan of organization and filling vacancies on the committee were "new business" to many members, but quickly disposed of. On motion of J. Hampton Price of Rockingham the state convention was set for noon Thursday, May 22, in Raleigh Municipal Auditorium. The primary comes on Saturday of the following week, May 31, on motion of Mrs. Charles M. Meakin the equal representation amendment was adopted. Two vacancies were filled, National Committeeman Jonathan D. Davis reported $25,953 in the 1952 Jefferson-Jackson Dinner fund. Leroy Martin offered the motion to adjourn. Just 28 minutes after it opened the meeting was over.

TOO FAST—Some members felt the committee should have adopted a resolution of respect for the late Walter D. Siler, long time member and a veteran at platform drafting. Some others thought Governor Scott should have been honored, since it is traditional for the governor to be heard on such occasions. But most of the folks wanted no speeches.

DELEGATES—The executive committee has no official function in connection with selecting delegates to the national convention or in naming members of the national committee. Unofficially most of the attending members were as much interested in prospective developments along those lines as in the business at hand. It is apparent that there is strong sentiment for an anti-Truman delegation and for changes in the national committee. Vigorous contests are indicated when the congressional district caucuses are held during the morning before the state convention. Manipulations were underway also to have the "right man" chosen to make the keynote address. Selection of the keynote is up to Chairman Everett Jordan.

CANDIDATES—Candidates were conspicuous by reason of their absence from the capital and hotel lobbies. Luther Hodges, candidate for lieutenant governor, was busy shaking hands. Hubert Olive, candidate for governor, was in his headquarters most of the day. Only other state-wide candidates spotted by your reporter were officials seeking to succeed themselves and who were already in Raleigh most of them going about their routine duties. William Umstead, candidate for governor, was speaking in Charlotte.

ACTIVITY—Absence of the candidates did not mean lack of intense activity in their behalf, not only among committee members and others attracted by the meeting, but among the hundreds of people here for the basketball tournament. Umstead headquarters space was jammed most of the day by visitors, majority of them supporters but a few of whom were being impartially polite. The letter group also visited Olive headquarters, along with a good many genuine supporters. The disparity in number of callers and tenor of lobby conversation led one man, who confessed his chief interest was in the supreme court contest, to observe: "If Olive gets the nomination, he's got to get it from now on. Umstead has to

What Other Papers Are Thinking

LET THE GROWERS DECIDE (Henderson Dispatch)

Some one, or several, in Washington thinks he knows more about what benefits the tobacco growers than the grower himself does. Actually, the situation in that respect may be about the same as with other activities, where people who are novices are trying to tell men experienced in their field of work how they should operate.

Plue-cured tobacco growers have been voting in the summer on the question of continuing the acreage quota system of planting. But a recent act of Congress would have the referendum held after allotments have been proclaimed by the secretary of agriculture in the fall for the following year's crop.

The point made at the Farm Bureau and Grange committee meetings in Raleigh a few days ago by Carl Hicks, of Walstonburg, was timely and wise. He said that when the referendum is held before the marketing season begins, it "puts everybody on notice that there will be quotas for the next three years and sets the pattern for the whole industry." The very fact that controls will be continued is a stimulus to prices, and that advantage should not be lost sight of. Evidently, it was overlooked when Congress in its wisdom (?) was wading into a situation which only a few of its members know much about.

Since acreage control for tobacco is a matter concerning growers almost exclusively, and certainly more than any other group, the referendum might at least be held at a time of their choosing. Since they prefer the summer, as heretofore, they ought to be allowed to have their way about it. It has always worked very satisfactorily heretofore, and that is the way it should remain.

Business Today

If a symbol should ever be needed by the American toy industry, there could be nothing better than a golden stork. Jet-propelled, of course.

Figuratively, thousands of business men are making obeisance to the bird today, literally, they are milling about some thirteen acres of exhibits in two New York hotels and several showrooms. The 49th annual American Toy Fair is on until March 19. Neither the manufacturers nor retail buyers (the public is barred) are worrying about a recession. The high birth rate since the war assured them it can't happen to them.

The major trend in new toys appears to be toward a closer imitation of real life. On display are dolls with poodle and horse-tail hair cuts, trains with aluminum cars with astradomes, a modern beauty-parlor play kit, contour chairs for playrooms, a doll carriage that can be converted into a bassinet, atom-ic-energy chemical sets, a running-for-president game, space suits, a playhouse of the ranch type, trailers for velocipedes and tractors and futuristic blocks.

There are also toy bulldozers, newsprint trucks, toy equipment for pastry chefs, a junior stewardess set, play military uniforms for both girls and boys, a dump truck with a hydraulic lift, and games simulating traffic control, oil prospecting and politics. No toy burglar kits, but several tool kits that could be used to jimmy a cookie cupboard.

There is an increase in the variety of toys for the under-six age group, or postwar baby crop. More dolls, pull-toys and rattles. The TV cowboys appear to be seeking younger fans; there is a rattle with a horse's head.

While the cowpoke fad in toys seems to have waned, there is no let-up in the variety of toys designed to cash in on the fad. At the same time, there is a sharp increase in inter-planetary toys—space suits, Z-ray guns and Martian helmets.

While manufacturers are not worrying about demand, those requiring metals and other scarce materials are frankly concerned about supply. Since allocations are based on previous years' usage and the market is expanding, many of them foresee trouble in filling orders.

However, there are two alternatives: using alternate materials and extending production of toys requiring scarce materials into the fourth quarter.

TRADE-INS HELD SECOND-HAND DEALING

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—Even some of the professional politicians, who seldom put on a poor mouth beforehand, speak cautiously about the outcome of the New Hampshire primary today.

And the politically wise Washington newsmen, who invaded New Hampshire in ostentatious formation, are reluctant to stick their necks out with any flat prophecies. Their stories are on the fly side.

The professionals, political and journalistic, indicate the result may be close, although that result in the long run may not be conclusive proof of anything except now the people of New Hampshire feel right now.

There are a lot more state primaries between tomorrow and next July when the Republican and Democratic finally pick their candidates at the big Chicago conventions. Much can happen between now and then.

True, the New Hampshire result may have some psychological effect on what happens in the other primaries and, eventually, on what happens in Chicago although even this "sea can be twisted" one way or the other.

Over the long end Sen. Taft was "dedicated with edge" up on Gen. Eisenhower, who had been expected to make a big showing in New Hampshire where his backers were strongly organized.

It has been said a bad setback tomorrow may force the general, if he really wants the party nomination, to come home from Europe, make a real campaign, tell the voters in person where he stands on the issues.

It also has been said that a sweeping victory for Eisenhower tomorrow might in the long run lose him the Chicago nomination in this way:

A big win tomorrow might lift him into a feeling he can get the nomination without lifting a finger, a situation which would certainly stir the fire in men into even more strenuous effort and maybe the nomination.

At this point you can play guessing games all day with the problems resulting from the New Hampshire primary not only on the Republican side but also among Democrats, since there's a contest between President Truman and Sen. Kefauver, too.

Is a retailer who accepts trade-ins a second-hand dealer? They think so in Washington, D. C., where police are insisting that such retailers take out licenses as second-hand dealers. The cost of the license isn't as bad as the necessity of making daily reports to the pawn shop squad about articles taken to trade.

The problem has come up in most other cities, but there has been no uniformity of rulings. Some authorities have held acceptance of trade-in makes a merchant a second-hand dealer; others have decided the other way.

OFF IN A WORLD OF ITS OWN

The chemical and pharmaceutical trade press, ordinarily dull to the layman, sometimes makes imagination-stimulating reading. It reports that the price of poppylin prices are firm because of the shortage of mandrake root, from which it is made. Sandalwood has declined in price. Buchu leaves are neglected. Gum karaya bears close watching. Patchouli is softer but cedarleaf and wormseed is firmer.

STATES' TAX TAKE DOUBLES IN 10 YEARS

State tax collections have increased 100 per cent in the last ten years, Commerce Clearing House calculates. However, it notes reassuringly that the increase in terms of the purchasing power of the 1941 dollar is only 15 per cent. Total collections in 1951 were put at $10,316,077,405.

SUPPLEMENT A new feed supplement for poultry and swine, which is said to have shown excellent growth stimulation in tests, has been announced by Commercial Solvents Corp., 17 E. 42nd St., New York 17. It is a combination of penicillin and bacitracin.

FIBER: Still another synthetic wool-like fiber will take its place along with Dynel, Orion and Acrilan and the rest. It is said to take dyes better than other wool-like synthetics. It's temporary name is X-51, and it is by American Cyanamid Co. 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York 20.

TIE PADS: After eight years of testing, tie-pads said to save more than $450 a mile annually per mile of track, are being shown at the National Plastics Exposition in Philadelphia by F. Bunkley & Co., 4900 Second St., St. Louis 7. They are made of abaca fiber and vinyl plastic compounded under great pressure.

been invariably wrong on foreign policy, and added, "a senatorial blindspot on foreign policy is unfortunate, but a presidential blindspot on foreign policy would be tragic."

After such a statement it's hard to see how Stassen, if Taft wins the Chicago nomination, could campaign for the senator. The same goes for some of Eisenhower's New Hampshire supporters who have torn into Taft's foreign views.

Taft had some things to say about Eisenhower, but he seemed to speak with less finality than, for instance, Stassen. And this is only the beginning of the struggle among the Republicans or the nomination.

Washington Letter

WASHINGTON—Gretchen Green once worked for the Indian poet, Tagore, has been active in the sewing dog program for the blind, counts friends the world over, and is fond of giraffes.

"You can see why I like giraffes," she said as she arose from a tea table to a slender, but distinguished 6 feet, or more.

"I have a bed with posts carved in the shape of giraffes."

Miss Green, gourmet, recipe collector, past owner of unique tea rooms in various parts of the globe, also treads raising claims as a poet when a child because someone told her they'd "taste better with loving care."

She is currently devoting many hours as a volunteer recreational worker in local hospitals in Washington. Miss Green's fabulous experiences have been put into a book, "The Whole World and Company." Miss Green was born in St. Louis, the daughter of a clergyman and granddaughter of a one-time bishop of Mississippi. She was in about 26 states of the Union, but most of her life has been spent abroad.

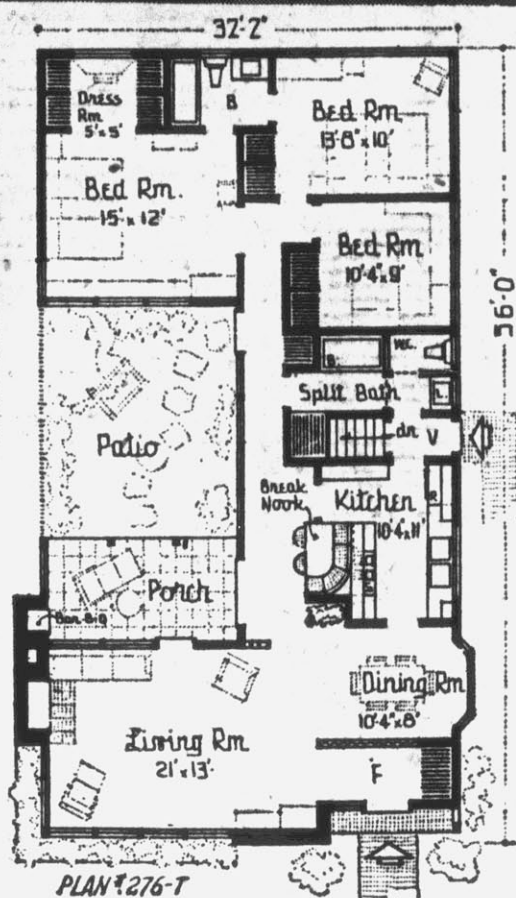

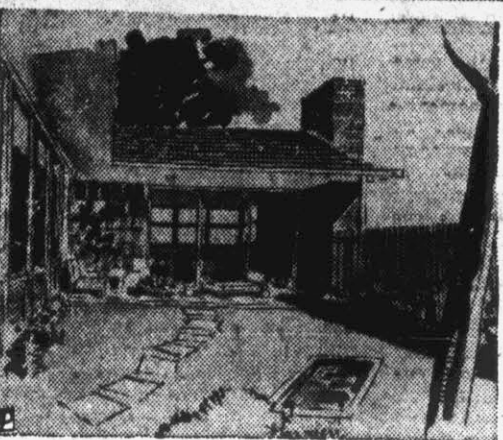

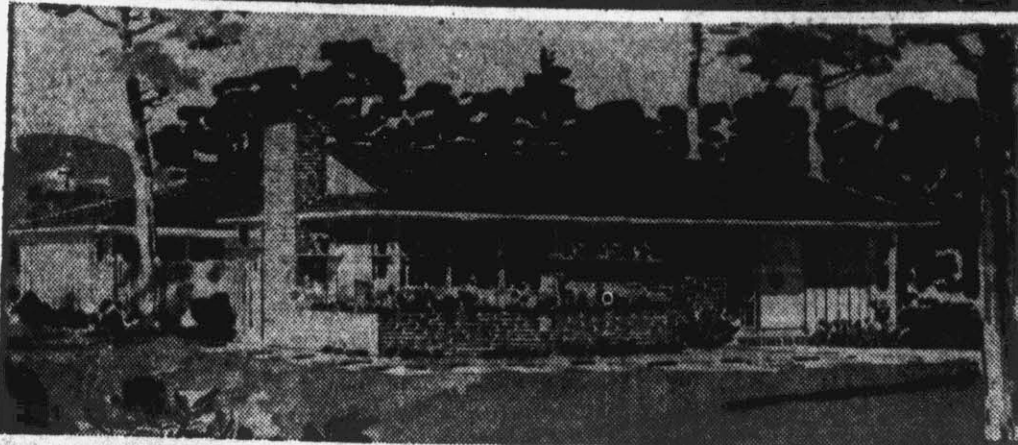

Before setting out to see the world she had worked for the Big Sisters welfare organization in New York. Then she was a policeman and welfare director in an Idaho town. A friend got her a job as an English teacher to a wealthy family in Morocco. She later contracted a fever in Fez and stayed on to help work with charity patients in the hospital.

She was later invited to serve on the staff of Rabindranath Tagore's international university, which he had set up in India. Here she lived and helped run a dispensary on top of the elephants' stable. She taught the students English and Western ways of cooking. She also traveled with Tagore to China.

She worked with Malvina Hoffman, noted sculptor, who took her on a round-the-world trip to sculpt heads for an anthropological collection at the Field Museum in Chicago.

During the war, Miss Green, a handsome, highly engaging, vital woman set up such club in New York as the Air Force, the Union Jack, the Chinese Seamen's Club, the Lascars, for Indian sailors, and a club for British Wrens.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

THE CALIFORNIA PATIO is setting a new style in house design with rooms arranged around a secluded garden, affording complete privacy even on a small lot. This plan 276-T by Edward R. Tyler, 586 Macon Place, Uniondale, N. Y., shows how California indoor-outdoor living, wide roof overhangs and broad window walls can be incorporated in a compact small house. An outdoor barbecue fireplace on the porch, a kitchen breakfast nook facing the garden, front and side vestibules, two baths with one of them compartmented and 11 closets feature this plan. The house can be turned to face the street either as shown by the plan, or from the right. If built without basement, the cellar stair space provides for a heater room. The house covers 1,411 square feet—a guide for local estimates on building costs. Roof pitch is just high enough to accommodate the use of asphalt shingles.

Millions Of Acres Of Land Acquired For Govm't Uses

By COMPTON S. JONES
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON — (UP) — Millions of acres of land are passing from private ownership to the government to meet needs of the armed forces and atomic research.
 From graveyards and plantations to towns and deserts, vast tracts of land in the United States have been bought for use as bombing ranges, naval bases, atomic experimental areas, or just plain "public use."
 This large and intricate job is being performed by the little-known lands division of the Department of Justice. Within this division, lawyers are working constantly on the many complicated legal steps that are necessary for the government to buy or condemn land.
Titles Need Clearing
 In condemnation proceedings, the lands division fixes the price and acts as the government's lawyer when the cases go to court. In purchase proceedings it does not fix price but it must clear all titles so that there will be no cloud on the government's legal right to the property.
 This land acquisition can be accomplished because every foot of land in the United States or its possessions is subject to the law of eminent domain: the government can acquire land for public use, subject to the provision in the Fifth Amendment that "private property shall not be taken for public use without just compensation."
 The division has 25 clients, all government agencies seeking to take land from private owners for public use. The Army is the biggest client, with the department of the Interior next and the Navy close behind.
Defense Needs Met
 The growing national defense program has greatly increased the workload of the unit to the point where the number of cases handled has almost equaled the peak year during World War II. The fiscal year of 1951 showed 14,000 cases, compared with 15,880 in the fiscal year of 1942.
 The recent acquisition of 20,000 acres of land at Ellenton, S.C., for use of the Atomic Energy Commission is a sample of the size of its operations.
 As of Jan. 1, the division had 3,120 condemnations cases pending in the courts, involving 33,500 tracts and 8,770,000 acres, appraised for condemnation purposes at $48,000,000. During the last six months of 1951, it approved titles of 2,500 tracts and parcels of land containing a total of 188,000 acres purchased by the government for $18,750,000.
 In the fiscal year 1951, which ended last June 30, the division handled government purchases involving 7,500 pieces and 377,000 acres of land bought for $25,800,000.

Students Depart For Scholastic Press Meeting

Eight Greenville High School students left Sunday morning for New York to attend the Columbia Scholastic Press Association which is being held at Columbia University.
 The students are members of the journalism class at the high school and members of the staff of "Green Lights," the school newspaper.
 The group left yesterday by train from Rocky Mount and were accompanied by Frank Toothman and Mrs. J. H. Rose. They will be at the association meeting until next Sunday.
 The students will hear instructors and journalists from schools and newspapers all over the nation and the high school paper will compete for awards with other high school papers in their class. "Green Lights" was presented the Medalist award at the meeting last year.
 Those who are in New York from Greenville High School are: Sudie Mae Spain, associate editor; Evelyn Smith, feature editor; Paye Sermons, Jean Tetterton, Rachel Lang, Ann Ruffin, Gloria Cox, Judy Allen and Jimmy Cheatham.

Link Eye Faults To Delinquency Among Juveniles

PITTSBURGH — (AP) — One of the factors in juvenile delinquency is often inadequate eyesight, according to the American Optometric Association.
 The child who cannot see well enough to perform his school tasks often seeks self-expression in anti-social behavior, says Dr. J. Otis White, association president.
 A New York City study showed that 90 per cent of a group of delinquents were found to be school failures. Two studies made by the Ohio State Bureau of Juvenile Research revealed that over 26 per cent of children brought before juvenile courts were deficient in vision, he said.
 Dr. White recommended better visual environment in the schools and a more comprehensive eye-sight examination program.

Texas Geography Lesson Learned

AUSTIN, Tex. — (AP) — The University of Texas Department of Geography helped settle the question of how many states have capitals closer to Amarillo than the Texas capital at Austin.
 Dr. Donald Brand, geography professor, said the answer is three. With a big globe and calipers Dr. Brand's assistants measured these geographic airline distances: Amarillo to Santa Fe, N. M. — 230 miles; Amarillo to Oklahoma City, Okla. — 240 miles; Amarillo to Denver, Colo. — 355 miles.
 Amarillo in the Texas Panhandle is 415 miles from Austin. All other capitals were farther away than Austin. Topeka, Kas., however, ran a close race at 425 miles distant.

All Aboard C-47 Survive Crash

OMAHA, Neb. (UP) — A C-47 military air transport plane crashed and burned today at Offutt Air Base today. All 12 persons aboard escaped without injury.
 It was the second crash of a heavy plane in less than two weeks at the base, home of the Strategic Air Command.
 An SAC spokesman said a board of officers was to meet later in the day to determine cause of the crash.
 The transport fell and burned at the end of the parade ground at the base, just next to the runway, as it left the ground bound for Hill Air Force Base, Ogden, Utah. The plane was based at Mountain Home Air Force Base.
 The Air Force said it was on a routine mission.

Founding Date Isn't Sure Thing

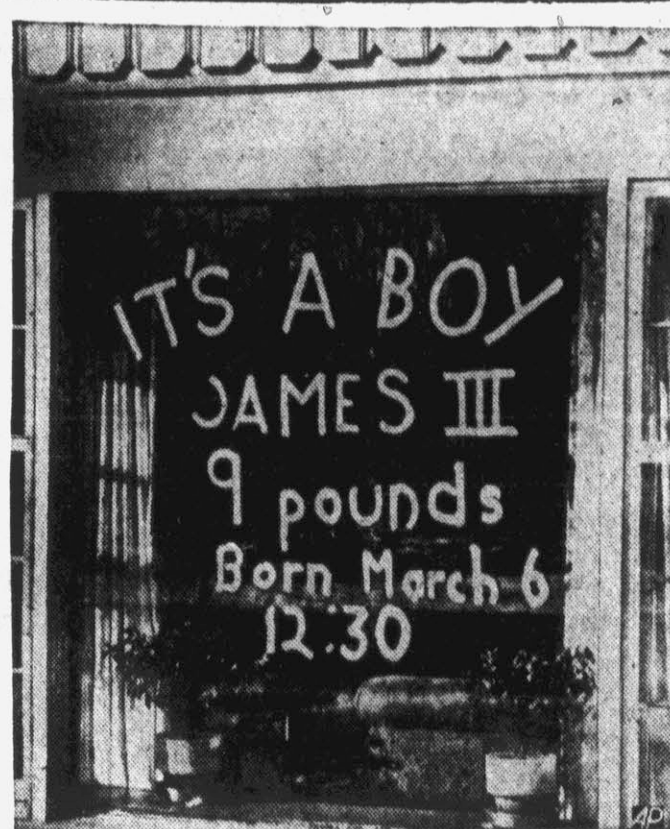

CARBONDALE, Ill. — (AP) — They're going ahead with plans for Carbondale's centennial celebration this year — although there is some question whether this Southern Illinois city was founded 100 years ago.
 Records show the site was picked in 1852, the first house was built, first sermon preached and first business set up. It was 1856 before the city was organized, '69 before it got its special charter, and '73 before it was brought under the Illinois City and Villages Act of 1870.

Parents Depend On Boy, Aged 6

WASHINGTON — (UP) — Six-year-old Tommy Beierle has the unusual task of being his parents' link with the outside world.
 He is the voice and ears for his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Beierle. They can neither speak nor hear. They talk in sign language and before Tommy's birth had a difficult time communicating with their neighbors.

When Tommy was born his parents began teaching him sign language. They did not know he had normal speech and hearing faculties. When Tommy was two he heard a neighbor's radio and began imitating the sounds. His parents became aware that he was making noises and sent him to a play school, where he learned to speak like the other children.

Now Tommy can communicate both in sign language and by regular speech. He acts as the family interpreter. He orders the groceries, does the talking when there are other chores, and interprets when Triller Village, Va.

Huge Bear Isn't Through Growing

MILWAUKEE, — (AP) — Five-year-old Otis is already 8 feet 10 and officials of the Washington Park Zoo think he may easily wind up as the world's biggest bear.
 George Spindel and Charles Stanke, zoo officials, measured him in his cage by getting Otis to stand up full length to swipe at an apple. Otis, who has about three more years to grow, weighs about 1,000 pounds now, they figure.
 When Otis was 6 months old, he weighed 100 pounds and could turn around in a 31-inch-long crate. Now he can't even get his head in the 17-inch-square door.

Old College Try Cut Expenses

SOUTH HADLEY, Mass. — (AP) — Having college students make up their own beds and clean their own rooms to pare down college expenses is nothing new.
 Back in 1837, Mary Lyon, founder of Mt. Holyoke College, organized her students into breakfast circles, laundry circles and baking circles. The first year all charges for board, room and tuition were $64; in 1838, by dint of good management Mary Lyon was able to reduce the charge to $60.

Pam-Pack Defeats Phantoms 43-38 For District Title

Poor Playing Marks Championship Game

Sid Briley Scores 19 Points To Take Honors As High Scorer and Outstanding Performer As Phantoms Lose Chance At Crown

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Sports Writer

In a loosely played game last night in East Carolina College's Wright Gymnasium, the Washington High School Pam-Pack defeated Greenville 43-38 for the District One (Class AA) basketball championship and the right to represent this district in the State Finals next week in Durham. The game was the final contest in regional play-offs which started last Friday in Wake Forest.

Coch Bill Sweet's Pam-Pack, winners of the Northeastern Conference tournament, led all the way in the ball game and were threatened seriously only once. That was in the second quarter when Greenville got within three points. Dick Cherry remedied the situation for Washington, however, when he scored five points in just a matter of seconds to again give the Pack a wide margin.

Greenville threatened slightly near the end of the contest, but they made their bid too late and the clock ran out before they could take advantage of Washington's momentary lapse.

So far as the full house of spectators was concerned, there was only one really outstanding performer in last night's championship game: Greenville's Sid Briley. If any one ball player ever carried his team through a game, Briley did last night. He led the scoring for both clubs with 19 points. He was practically all Greenville could claim in the rebounding department and he was by far Greenville's number one in other phases of defense and offense.

In contrast to Greenville's fumbling, loose method of playing, the Pam-Pack at times presented a highly coordinated attack. They threw up a zone defense which had Greenville's guards practically standing on their heads and a poor night from the floor is the only thing which kept Washington from running the score up.

Cherry, the All-State football player and the All-Conference basketball performer, put on a top-notch second half show to lead the Washington team to victory. He led the scoring with 12 points and teamed up with Bobby Hackler to play "out front" in the zone and raise calm with the Greenville ball handlers. He and Hackler, who scored seven points, got numerous opportunities on the fast break but the scoring of both boys was held down because of inaccuracy from the floor.

Following Cherry in the scoring column were the centers for the two ball clubs, John Hoyt of Washington and Wallace Conway of Greenville. Each got eight points. Although Hoyt spent much of the first quarter on the bench, Hackler and Edgar Woolard tossed in seven points for Washington while no other member of the Greenville team could top four points.

Both teams, normally high scoring quintets, appeared to be dead tired throughout the game. Only Cherry and Hackler seemed to have any great desire to run as usual while the other members of both teams seemed to be content to let the ball game run its course without any hurrying.

By virtue of its win last night and the Friday night victory over Henderson High School, the Pam-Pack gets a chance to grab the State AA title which is currently in the hands of Kanes High School of Winston-Salem. Kanes defeated Kingston in last year's state finals for the crown. The trip will be the first to the state tournament for the Pam-Pack.

Correction

The trophy awarded Saturday night for sportsmanship in the 1952 Pitt County Conference season was won by Grimesland's girls team and not the Gritton girls team as was reported in yesterday's paper.

The Grimesland team was eliminated from tournament play in the first round of action last Monday but their play in that game, as was the case all season, was marked by an impressive degree of sportsmanship. There was little question among the judges as to the right to the award.

The Reflector sports staff regrets the error and is glad to make this correction.

Heavy Hitting Features Opening Of Spring Games

By RALPH BODEN

Associated Press Sports Writer
Jim Fridley was just another name on the Cleveland roster when spring training began but today the husky 26-year-old rookie outfielder is a prime candidate for the regular right field berth.

Fridley, up from Dallas of the Texas League, is blasting away at a merry 583 clip and almost half of his blows have been for extra bases.

The freshman, who resides in Dayton, O., has banged seven hits, including two triples and a double, in 12 times at bat against the New York Giants the past three days.

Fridley stands the best chance among the newcomers of sticking because he is a righthanded hitter. The only other orthodox swingers among the outfield candidates are rifle-armed Bob Kennedy, Rookie Bud Hutson and Dino Restelli.

Dale Mitchell and Larry Doby appear certain of landing two of the outfield jobs. Other contestants are Paul Lehner, Barney McCosky and Harry Simmons, all left-handed hitters, and switch-hitter Pete Reiser. Another prospect, Dick Wakefield, was released by the Tribe yesterday.

Fridley belted two triples as the Indians turned back the Giants 4-0, at Tucson, Ariz., yesterday. It was the Tribe's third straight victory over the National League champions.

The Giants' "B" team trounced the Chicago Cubs, 15-3, at Mesa, Ariz. Catcher Ray Noble pounded two homers and recruit outfielder Hal Henley doubled in with three singles and a double to lead the Giants' assault.

Heavy hitting also featured the Philadelphia Athletics' 10-4 victory over a Boston Brave rookie squad at Bradenton, Fla. The A's collected 14 hits and sewed up the decision with five runs in the seventh inning. Carl Scheib, who won only one game last year, was the winning pitcher.

The Cincinnati Reds also enjoyed a big inning in their 10-4 verdict over the Philadelphia Phils at Clearwater, Fla. The Reds shoved six runs home in the eighth to wrap it up. Joe Adcock climaxed the rally with a three-run double off Jim Konstanty. Ted Kluszewski launched the Reds' attack with a three-run homer in the sixth.

Manager Casey Stengel's fine collection of rookies led the New York Yankees to a 7-4 triumph over the Boston Red Sox at St. Petersburg, Fla. The Yanks amassed 17 hits, including a home run by newcomer Jim Briendewer.

The Washington Senators turned back the Detroit Tigers, 4-1, at Lakeland, Fla., and the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Boston Braves, 8-5, at Bradenton, Fla. in

Elon Loses 101-69 To Millikin Team

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Elon's Christians prepared to return to North Carolina today after losing to James Millikin College in yesterday's opening round of the National Association of Intercollegiate Basketball tournament.

The speedy Millikin team from Deatur, Ill., smothered Elon 101-69 in an afternoon game. Millikin is one of the top-seeded teams in the tournament.

Bright spot for Elon was Don Halthox who led the game's scoring with 27 points. Ben Kendall sparked the Christians' floor game and netted nine points.

The Big Blue of Millikin, one of the smallest teams in the tourney, turned on its speed to gain a 25-13 first quarter lead. The victors enjoyed a 49-27 lead at the half as seven different players penetrated Elon's defenses to score.

Charles Mueller led Millikin scoring with 24 points and Capt. Bob Kova contributed 23 points. Ten Millikin players figured in the final scoring.

Elon connected on 39 of 111 field goal attempts for 36 per cent average. Millikin scored 44 of its 99 tries for 44.4 per cent.

Catcher Has Chance

ST. LOUIS — (AP) — Big Lester Leroy Fusselmann, 1951 catcher for the Houston Buffs, is being given a spring tryout by the parent Cardinals. Fusselmann led the Texas League in putouts with 691, assists — 97, most chances accepted — 473, most opponents caught stealing — 40, and double plays — 15.

The Pirates will work out each afternoon on the college diamond but most of the work this week is expected to consist of conditioning drills. Following the conditioning work, the Buccs will swing into full-scale batting and fielding sessions.

Preferred Jail To Paying Fine

PITTSBURGH — (AP) — Julie Oberman, 54, of Pittsburgh took a 10-day jail term rather than pay a $5 fine for drunkenness, but today police still don't know why Oberman was really heavy with money.

Two policemen who searched Oberman as he was admitted to jail will vouch his money was heavy. Included in a total of $1,100 on his person was 34 pounds of silver coins. Police weighed them.

Shortly after the prisoner was admitted yesterday he was transferred to the jail dispensary for treatment of a leg ailment of which he complained. The service is free for inmates.

For Normal Driving - It Loafs!

You cross over the boundary into another state — and there are the posted rules and regulations.

Maybe the daytime limit for passenger cars is "forty-five" — or "fifty-five." Or, maybe no limit at all... just your own good common sense and the general rules of safety.

Well, whatever the legal limit, your Golden Anniversary Cadillac is going to "loaf"!

Down under its hood is the most powerful engine ever used in a standard American passenger car. There's more power there than you'll ever need — except for emergency.

But don't think that power doesn't work for you — even when you're driving within the legal limits!

It works for your safety... because a great reserve of power is a wonderful safeguard in most of the driving emergencies that present themselves.

It works for your comfort... because no car rides so well, or handles so superbly, as when it "coasts along," with a great percentage of its power still under the accelerator.

And it works for your peace of mind... for it is unbelievably comforting to know you have tremendous acceleration, should the necessity for it arise.

Of course, power has to be harnessed and handled in order to be your friend and servant.

So the Golden Anniversary Cadillac has superb new brakes — larger and more efficient — and designed and built to double the span of their endurance.

And those who want the ultimate in easy handling may order at extra cost Cadillac's new power steering that eliminates up to seventy-five per cent of normal steering effort.

It would take a volume to tell you all the things that have been done to make this a "car among cars." But it will take but a mile or a minute for you to sense what it means in terms of pleasure and satisfaction.

It means something wonderful... too wonderful, in fact, to miss!

Better come in today — for a look — and a ride — and a revelation.

Children Pay In Unusual Terms For Getting Car

BRECHENRIDGE, Minn. — (AP) — When Hugh Wing, used car dealer here, offered to deduct $10 for each child of a car buyer, he did it without knowledge of Mike Leinen's family. A farmer near Fairmount, N.D., Leinen read Wing's newspaper ad. It also stipulated that the buyer must bring the child along when he picked out the car. Leinen drove in with his children — Gale, 13; Gerald, 12; Virginia, 10; Ronald, 9; James, 8; Mitche II, 7; Cletus, 6; Carol Ann, 5; Paul, 3, and Mary, 1.

Leinen picked out a 1936 car priced at $95. With license and title transfer, the deal came to $103. Leinen gave Wing $3 and the family drove home — in two cars.

Debaters Meet Davidson Team

Debaters representing the Jarvis Forensic Club of East Carolina College will visit Davidson College Saturday of this week, March 15, for two contests with debaters there. Mitchell Saleed and Ray Bears of Greenville make up the affirmative team for East Carolina and will compete with a negative team from Davidson. Donald Gaylor of Magnolia and Royce Jordan of Washington, East Carolina negative team, will meet an affirmative team from Davidson. Dr. Meredith N. Posey, faculty advisor of the Jarvis Forensic Club, will accompany the college debaters to Davidson. The two teams from East Carolina recently participated in an intercollegiate contest with Atlantic Christian College and also in the South Atlantic Forensic Tournament in Hickory, winning in the latter event seven debates and losing seven. Later in the spring they will enter the Grand National Forensic Contest at Mary Washington College, Fredericksburg, Va. Debaters at the Saturday morning meeting in Davidson will present arguments on the national intercollegiate query for the present school year: Resolved, that the Federal Government should adopt a permanent program of wage and price controls. "Martyr" means literally "witness" and acquired its present connotation of "one who dies for a cause" when many early Christians testified to the truth of their convictions by their deaths.

States Righters Status In State Still Unanswered

RALEIGH — (AP) — Will North Carolina's States Rights Democratic Party gain representation on 30 county boards of elections for which it has submitted nominees? That question was still unanswered today — and may not be answered until March 22 when the State Board of Elections meets here to appoint boards of elections in the 100 counties. The board held a two-hour, closed door session yesterday and discussed the question but failed to reach a decision. The only positive action yesterday was the adoption of a resolution calling on the state Democratic Party to try to provide an additional nominee for each of 13 counties for which only two names were submitted. Heretofore, the state board has followed the custom of appointing two Democrats and one Republican to each county board. The question of the States Rights Party gaining representation arose last week when Dave Clark of Charlotte, chairman of the States Righters, filed with the State Board of Elections three nominees for county boards in each of 30 counties. Protests already have come from States Rights nominees in two of the counties, claiming they were both States Righters and that they had not been consulted before their names were submitted. Clark explained that those named on his list were not necessarily members of the States Rights Party. He added the law gives a party the right to nominate anyone it feels would do an honest job of supervising elections. In filing his list of nominees for county boards, State Democratic Chairman Everett Jordan listed three names for each of 87 counties. There were only two for each of the other 13 counties. If the state board follows its usual custom of nominating two Democrats to each board, it would have no choice in selecting the Democratic nominees in those 13 counties.

Will Not Attend Sheriff School At Chapel Hill

Due to a conflict with the March Term of Superior Court here, the Pitt County Sheriff's Department will not be represented at the three-day Sheriff's School to be held in Chapel Hill next week. Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson reported this morning that a full week of court here will make it impossible for either he or his deputies to attend the Wednesday through Friday school at the Institute of Government on the university campus. For the same reason, Pitt County Jailer W. G. Leggett will not be able to attend the Jailers' School, to be held over the same period in conjunction with the school for sheriffs. Rhinoceroses once lived in both hemispheres of the world, but are now found in the wild state only in tropical Africa and Asia.

Visitation Evangelism Program Earns Results

The visitation evangelism program being carried on by Greenville churches went into its second night of visits last night with slightly less than 100 church members turning out to make visits in the residential sections of the city. The report of the Sunday night visit given at the supper meeting last night at the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church showed 21 persons made professions of faith for the first time during visits Sunday night, and 36 other people transferred their membership from other churches to churches in Greenville. A complete report on visits made last night will not be available until late today. The Rev. Art Wenger, assistant to the president of Atlantic Christian College, last night told the church workers, "We are entering the second night of this effort which already has had results not in terms of times, but in terms of eternity. Twenty-one people for the first time have accepted the challenge of the cross. We have a glorious opportunity of becoming part of that program of God for the redemption of humanity. Many of the people whom you contacted last night, a preacher couldn't have reached with a 10-foot pole. In many cases you are the key to the situation of salvation, and God has sent you."

Claims Chemical Beats Snow, Ice

A German highway engineer claims he has discovered a chemical combination to keep highways free of snow and ice. Wilhelm Rademacher, 66, calls his solution "Electrowa Chloracrinat 999-A." He maintains a short road test strip near here. Not far off is a main highway. It has been coated with ice and snow, while Rademacher's strip has been bare and dry. A handful or two of snow, when thrown on it, melts in an hour. Rademacher claims his chemical combination will mix with any road ingredient. His chemicals in liquid form cost about 80 cents a quart. He says a little more than a quart is enough for a square yard of road material. Material thus treated will remain snow and ice-free for eight to 10 years and will not cause deterioration in the highway surface, Rademacher says.

Electrical Plant For New Hanover

WILMINGTON, N. C. — (AP) — An electric power plant will be built in New Hanover County to supply at least 110,000 kilowatts to the Wilmington area. That was the announcement made here yesterday by Louis V. Sutton, president of the Carolina Power and Light Co. Sutton told a luncheon meeting of business and civic leaders that the P & L has not decided where the plant will be erected in the county, but he said that the firm expected to have the facility in operation by 1954. A kilowatt is equivalent to one and one-third horsepower. The erection of the New Hanover plant is part of a program to increase power in Southeastern North Carolina. Two large units which will generate at least 75,000 kilowatts each at Goldsboro and Lumberton will be brought into service this year, Sutton said. The total load in Wilmington is now 30,000 kilowatts, Sutton explained, and in the entire Tidewater area the load is about 60,000 kilowatts.

Less Secrecy In Relief Rolls Has Fresh Support

GREENSBORO — (AP) — Less secrecy in welfare operations and more access to relief rolls for interested taxpayers are favored by top Piedmont County officials. That was the indication here yesterday as the fifth district of the state County Commissioners Association met to discuss sources of revenue and budgetary problems. The group conferred with Alexander McMahon, an assistant director of the Institute of Government. The discussion hinged on the welfare problem as McMahon reported that since the new tax lien law covering old age assistance cases went into effect Oct. 1, a reduction of 10 to 15 per cent in recipients has been noted. The meeting was the first of 10 such gatherings to be held in the state during the next two weeks. The U. S. Marine band has given New Year's day concerts in the White House since 1801.

Yukon Area Has Steady Growth

OTTAWA — (AP) — The Yukon, strategically important and on its way back to a new mining heyday, is Canada's fastest-growing area. On a percentage basis, the Yukon far outstripped any other area of Canada in growth of population between 1941 and 1951. It increased 85 per cent from 4,914 to 9,096. Officials cite a number of reasons. The Alaska Highway has gone through in the last decade, putting the Yukon on a direct road link between Edmonton and Alaska. Whitehorse has become an important military base in joint Canadian-American plans to defend the North. The air force has a base there. But the key to the Yukon's growth is mining. In 1946, the total value of minerals produced in the Yukon was $1,700,000. In 1950 it was $8,500,000.

Foresees Record In Tax Returns

RALEIGH — (AP) — State Revenue Commissioner Eugene Shaw foresees a new record this year in the number of individual income tax returns and total collections. The revenue department received $66,000 returns from individuals last year, a new record. The collections of $80,100,000 also reached an all-time peak. Shaw noted that there was an increase of 25,049 income tax returns filed last month. The mail delivery at the revenue department yesterday totaled 22 bags. Before the peak is reached next week it may surpass the one-day record of 67 bags set last year.

Stocks And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Prices moved irregularly on the stock exchange early today in fairly active dealings.

Price movements throughout the list were small either way. A few managed to score substantial gains.

Despite the easier undertone in the market, dealings were highly restricted and sales in the first hour alone totaled only 240,000 shares, compared with 250,000 in the same period yesterday.

Superior Oil of California, which moves in wide arcs, was the bright spot in the petroleum group. It ran up 7 points to 525 on one transaction. Amerasia Petroleum, also a wide mover, jumped 2 1/4 points to 225. Shell Oil, ex-dividend, added a point to 78 3/4.

Elsewhere, steel shares moved within a very narrow range. Bethlehem Steel slipped a small fraction and U. S. Steel was unchanged at 38 5/8. Automotives were also mixed.

Rails moved lower, but losses in this group were extremely small with a number of pivots holding at their previous close. Utilities were neglected. Chemicals eased.

Handbills denouncing Batista as an "assassin and thief" and promising to punish him for "treason" appeared in the capital late yesterday, but no trouble followed.

Airline workers at the big Rancho Boyeros Airport on Havana's outskirts went on strike against the coup. However, full Cuban internal air service was resumed this morning and international service was expected to be back to normal later in the day.

Batista was still at Army headquarters at Camp Columbia on the outskirts of Havana.

From Camp Columbia, Batista broadcast in a hoarse voice to the Cuban people last night that he seized power only to forestall a dictatorship by deposed President Priolo.

There was a last-minute drive in behalf of Sen. Styles Bridges, New Hampshire Republican. Advertisements and pamphlets were distributed asking support for the senator. They read: "Bullet a Ballot for Bridges."

Democratic voters will decide between President Truman and Eisenhower in the presidential contest. On the delegate contest, former National Democratic Chairman James A. Farley is expected.

Farley, who won fame as a political forerunner, is being managed by campaigns for the late Franklin D. Roosevelt, said he expected Truman delegates to win because they are backed by a strong organization.

The complex paper ballot contains scores of names in addition to the "savage" poll. Fourteen Republican convention delegates, 10 at-large, and four district representatives, will be selected.

Democratic voters will pick 12 delegates, eight at-large and four from the state's two congressional districts. At the party's convention, however, Democratic delegates have only eight full votes.

Negotiations In Strike Hit Snag

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UP)—Negotiations in a strike against the International Harvester plant here were broken off today, but a union official said his group was ready to resume talks if the company requests them.

The 10-day-old strike arose out of a worker's refusal to try a new job method which union officials said was impossible.

Local President Jack Coady of the AFL Federal Employees Union said "no further meetings" had been arranged since negotiations broke down last night.

The Greenville Utilities Commission reported that interruption of power service in several areas was reported but in most cases power had been restored.

However, utilities crews were still working on a stretch of line running to the Vanceboro area.

Near Ballards Crossroads, a television aerial blew off a house onto a power line, knocking out service there for around 30 minutes. On the New Bern highway transformer trouble was reported this being the line which serviced the Vanceboro area.

Numerous interruptions of power connections were reported from all parts of the county, from falling tree limbs and trees which fell victim to the winds and rain.

First reports showed that no poles were lost in the brief but vicious storm.

Jack Warren of Belvoir reported that a heavy downpour of rain, lasting around 20 minutes, struck that section around seven today but no reported damage had come in at the time.

Frank Harrington, manager of the Carolina Telephone Company stated that he had had no report of damage to his lines over the county but had heard of damage in the Snow Hill area where a road washed out, sending a pole down with it.

In Greenville traffic was snarled momentarily as flooded streets made many detours necessary. Several blocks on Tenth Street were flooded by the high waters, flowing over the curbing. Most of the unpaved streets in the city were turned into small rivers and many people reported their yards flooded.

Trees were reported down on Dickinson Avenue, Seventh Street, Centennial, Fifth, Goshen and Third. Work crews of the city street department were on the job and soon had most of the streets passable.

Greenville, unlike most of the county, was hit by the storm's forerunners last night as a moderate wind, followed by a steady rainfall began shortly after 9:30.

Women Again To Govern Village

MENDON, Mich. (UP)—The men of this village of 800 submitted willingly today to another year of rule by their womenfolk.

"We're mighty happy that both the men and women of this town think we've been running things well enough to deserve a vote of confidence," said Miss Florence Dickerson as she began her second term as village president.

Miss Dickerson and six other members of the all-woman Citizens' Party swept to victory in yesterday's election — although more men than ladies braved a chilly rain to go to the polls.

Two of the four village trustees elected defeated their husbands.

MARRIAGE LIKE MOTORING
NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UP)—Dr. Frederick C. Redlich announced a marriage counseling clinic will be operated by Yale University along the lines of a garage. He explained: "First there will be a sort of owner's manual for maintenance and service. Secondly, we will help repair damage and finally we will provide a wrecking service for marriages which have broken up."

Total license collections in Greenville through February of this year were more than $1,500 more than collections through the same period in 1951.

The $530.75 collected from licenses last month swelled this year's collections to $21,862.46, as compared with $20,322.14 at the end of February, 1951. The 1952 total is $1,540.32 more than last year's.

The VA will pay the dividend to individuals some time after the anniversary date of the policy. Just how soon afterward the VA would not estimate.

Murder is Forgetful

BY WILLIAM G. BOGART

Chapter 28
Nancy sighed and rested her head back against the deep cushion of the armchair. "It does make you feel cooler." She crossed her legs. John observed that she had nicely rounded knees. He wondered why she didn't wear more stylish clothes. Or shorter dresses. He wondered if he would have felt this way if he had not just finished a tall glassful of five kinds of rum!

"Yes," he agreed. "It sure has been hot lately. No rain out here at all, they say."

"That's right."

"Do you do much driving?"

"Very little."

He could feel the rum creating a glow in his stomach.

Nancy added, "Kay's the good driver in the family. My sister, too, of course, not right now..."

"Naturally..." Johnny lit another cigarette. "I understand you're going to stay out here with Irene for a few days?"

"I'm sorry... what did you say?" Her eyes, now, did not appear to center on him directly. They appeared slightly out of focus. It must be wonderful, Johnny thought, to get a belt out of a drink as swiftly as that.

"I said..."

Moe came in. He had a silver cocktail shaker in one hand and a bottle of rum in the other. "We might as well stretch it out a bit," he said cheerily. He gave the shaker a jiggle, refilled the glasses. Removing the strainer top he dumped the contents of the rum bottle into the mixer. He handed Johnny and the woman each a full glass. "I feel mighty splendid," Moe announced.

"He's cute," said Nancy.

They finished the second round of drinks.

"Michael's cute, too," said Johnny. He bent down and rubbed the Great Dane's ears. The animal turned his head sideways and pushed his massive head against Johnny's hand.

Moe Martin was refilling the glasses, draining the cocktail shaker. "I'm afraid these will be pretty strong." His round eyes were somewhat red.

"We're out of rum, that's what I'm afraid of," Johnny said.

"He is a wonderful dog," Nancy England said as Johnny handed her the refilled glass. She made a kissing sound with her lips. "Come here, boy."

The dog, chin down between his outstretched paws, looked up at her balefully and did not move.

"You were saying..." prompted Johnny.

Nancy's gaze left the rug. Her eyes had a liquid brightness now, as though Muriel had been dropped into them. "What was I saying Johnny?"

"I forget. I forget what I asked you."

She laughed softly.

With the comment, "I'll just make sure there's no more rum," Moe Martin started toward the pantry. Michael, the dog, arose and trailed after him.

"Oh yes," Johnny lied. "It was about the novel."

He picked up his glass from where he had set it on the rug beside the chair.

"The novel?"

"The book your sister Irene is... I mean, was writing."

"Oh." She finished her drink and put the glass carefully on the table. Uncrossing her legs, she seemed absorbed in smoothing her dress across her knees. Johnny wondered if she had understood what he said.

"Do you think..."

Nancy said, "I don't think you'll find it." She got up, selected a satin-covered pillow from a divan, returned to her own chair and put the pillow behind her head. Outside of a certain unhurried deliberateness in her movements, she showed no signs of feeling the drinks.

"Why?" prodded Johnny.

"I have an idea Irene destroyed the manuscript. She got tired of working on it."

Johnny got up and strolled over to the fireplace. He felt that he had to move around a bit. The rum made his thoughts slightly fuzzy. Leaning against the fireplace, he looked across at Nancy England.

"What was the story about?" She shook her head. "She never said."

"Does anyone know?"

"I don't think so..." She looked at Johnny and smiled again. He tried not to concentrate on theseated within the room. "Goodnight."

"Careful," Johnny said quietly, "or you'll fall on your face."

The Great Dane watched them from the center hallway.

Johnny's eyes were thoughtful almost harsh-looking as he accompanied his partner to the foot of the hall staircase. Moe was asking, "Aren't you coming up? Everybody's in bed." He nodded toward the library. "I think you'd better send her to bed, too." He stood with his foot on the bottom step and one hand on the banister. Johnny knew he must have had plenty to drink before they started on the rum combinations. "There was something — wanted to tell you," he added.

"Well, pappy," urged Johnny, "tell it."

"It'll come back to me." His eyes blinked sleepily. "You'll be right up."

"I don't know."

She sure doesn't show those drinks," Moe's voice was inclined to be too loud.

Johnny made an impatient quieting motion, said, Dipso. I've just figured it out. They'll fool you every time."

"Who'll fool you?"

"Go to bed," ordered Johnny. His eyes held that same impatient glow.

Moe Martin went up the stairs. The great Dane, Michael, seemed undecided what to do for a moment. Then he followed. The animal looked awkward climbing stairs.

Forgotten State Of Tishomingo Lived In 1852

JACKSON, Miss. — (AP) — Few persons even in this area remember "the great state of Tishomingo."

The "state" existed 100 years ago in the northeast corner of Mississippi and many official documents bore that seal, while residents proudly referred to their area as a state. Thriving Jacinto was the Tishomingo County seat when the county was the largest in Mississippi, with a total area of 1,286 square miles, 73 square miles larger than Rhode Island.

Today the fragments of Tishomingo, Alcorn and Prentiss. The only reminder of Jacinto's former greatness is the decaying old red-brick two-story courthouse, which is now used by the congregation of the Methodist Church.

Only One Rival Jacinto was recognized as the most prosperous and fastest-growing city of northeast Mississippi in the '80s and '90s and its only recognized rival in the area was the bustling port of Eastport, Tenn., on the Tennessee River. Jacinto originally was known as Cincinnati after another community on the banks of the Ohio, the residents decided two "great" cities with the same name would prove confusing. Along about that time the Texas fight for independence had ennobled the public fancy, so when the battle of San Jacinto was fought and won by the pioneers, the Mississippi town's name was changed.

In time, residents in the county's outer perimeter began to complain that slow travel made it a day's journey to Jacinto in the geographic center of the county. The "state" was split into three counties.

Population Shrank Today the once prosperous community of Jacinto contains fewer than 100 persons and its former rival, Eastport, is not even on the map. The community is almost inaccessible in bad weather. Two small general stores make up the bulk of the business district.

Nevertheless, Jacintinos still are proud of their community and its past and believe the former town still has a future. They have hopes that the old courthouse some day may become a state shrine.

When that happens, they feel the town will at last give proof that it is not dead but sleeping.

Scott Doubtful South Could Win

ATLANTA — (AP) — Gov. Kerr Scott of North Carolina doubts that any Southerner can win the Democratic presidential nomination or the election.

The Tar Heel chief executive expressed his doubts before the Atlanta Rotary Club yesterday but said he believed Georgia's Sen. Richard Russell may carry North Carolina should he win the Democratic presidential nomination.

As for President Truman, Scott said he didn't think the president will seek renomination. The governor wouldn't offer a prediction on his state's action at the national Democratic convention — but he did say North Carolina will back the Democratic nominee 100 per cent in the general election.

Scott also told the audience at the "North Carolina Day" program that he is supporting Judge Hubert Olive for governor of North Carolina.

The governor and his party spent last night at the state's executive mansion as guests of Gov. and Mrs. Herman Talmadge.

Indians Clinging To Ghost Ritual

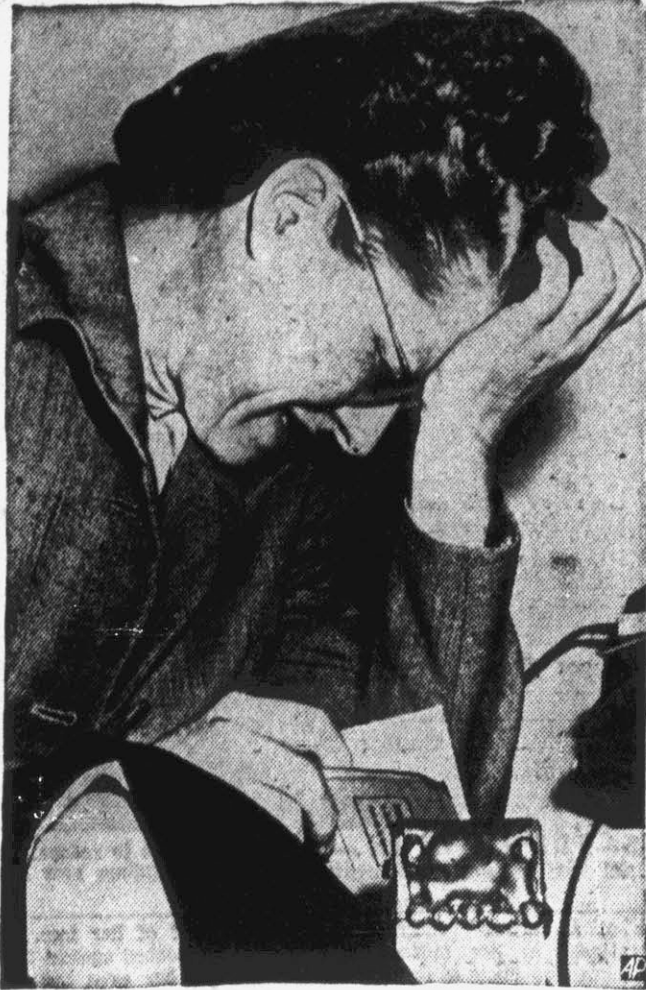

WASHINGTON — (UP) — Sacra that enters the spirit land, leaving behind all concern with affairs of mains earthbound, circulating among the living.

It is to this second soul or "ghost" that sacrifices of burned offerings, food, music, and dances are made, says the Smithsonian Institution. Any illness, real or imaginary, called "ghost disease," is attributed to some dissatisfied ghost and good cause for the various "feasts." The general features of the ritual for any cause are essentially the same.

This great and elaborate ceremonial was witnessed chiefly by French explorers and missionaries in the last half of the seventeenth century. Since that time, however, few outsiders have seen the "feast" ritual because contemporary Indian generations have tended to modify and restrict the occasion to single tribes, communities, or families.

VACATION SPURNED HADLEY, Mass. — (UP) — Alice Lawrence, a school teacher, was ready to faint when a dozen of her sixth-graders asked permission to go to school one day during a vacation week. Money Sought For Black Shank

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A House subcommittee was asked yesterday to recommend a $200,000 appropriation to fight the spread of black shank disease.

Representatives of tobacco-growing states asked for the appropriation and told the subcommittee the plant disease is threatening the entire tobacco industry. Appearing before the group were R. W. Cummings, director of research at the North Carolina experiment station, R. Fluke Shaw of Greensboro, N. C., representing the state farm bureau and tobacco representatives from Kentucky and Tennessee.

Farm Supply Shortage May Be Eased In 1952

The difficulty Pitt County farmers encountered in obtaining barbed wire and metal roofing for farm use last year may be alleviated in 1952.

James Meredith, secretary of the Pitt County Production and Marketing Administration, reported today that action has been taken directed toward a production in 1952 that is calculated to meet military requirements and in addition, provide a substantial domestic supply.

According to the secretary, the 1951 production of barbed wire was far short of farm needs and was approximately 10 percent below 1950 production. The several factors influencing supply last year were a shortage of steel, shortage of zinc for coating and heavy military purchases from a supply already about 10 percent short of farm needs.

"We have realized that there has been a shortage of barbed wire for some time and that the shortage was a hazard to maximum production," Meredith stated. "It is also realized that increased rotational grazing, shortage of manpower, increased acreage in production and many other factors will put pressure on the supply."

The present outlook for 1952 is that since we started the year in a very short supply, the first quarter will find barbed wire in short supply, and the second quarter, though still short, should show some improvement over the first, he theorized. The third and fourth quarters should see production catching up so that the whole year may show a production equal to 1950.

Meredith disclosed that metal roofing has been in short supply generally for some months. The general outlook for steel, copper and aluminum remains about the same. However, increasing inroads on the supply of galvanized steel sheet threaten to limit still further the supply of galvanized roofing, barn and barnyard equipment and other sheet metal products used on farms.

NPA has been requested to classify aluminum roofing, which is used principally on farms, in the category of more essential consumer goods so that production can be maintained at about 25 percent of normal — in contrast to the category of lesser essential consumer goods which will be allotted aluminum in the second quarter of 1952 on the basis of only 25 percent of base period production.

"We believe that as a result of the action taken, the situation on barbed wire and metal roofing will be easier in 1952, particularly in the last two quarters," Meredith said.

Life Is Saved By 110 Transfusions

CHICAGO (UP) — Twenty-six year-old George Bieniasz who already has received 110 blood transfusions, today was urgently in need of more blood.

Bieniasz suffered third degree burns in a fire in November, 1950 and was near death for months after.

Doctors at St. Mary of Nazareth Hospital said he will recover "completely" if their plea for blood donations is answered. Bieniasz' family already have donated blood to the point where doctors have advised them that further donations would endanger their health.

PEAR TREE STILL BEARS JERSEYVILLE, Ill. — (UP) — Friends of Ray Nevius were treated once again this year to pears from a tree which was planted in 1830. A pioneer, Dr. Ralph H. Van Pelt, set out the tree 121 years ago.

Death Threat Sent Family Of Tipster In Sutton Arrest

NEW YORK (UP) — Terror gripped a quiet Brooklyn neighborhood today as FBI agents studied a new death threat sent to the family of murdered Arnold Schuster, tipster in the capture of bank robber Willie Sutton.

Doors to most of the two-story brick homes in the 900 block of 48th Street in Linden Heights were locked. Shutters were drawn on windows near the spot where Schuster was slain last Saturday night.

An hour before the 24-year-old pants salesman was buried in a Long Island cemetery yesterday, a relative of Schuster received a note warning that "this isn't the end."

"One life is not enough," the note said. "There will be more." FBI agents took custody of the note. They entered the case because the note was sent to the Schuster home through the mails.

A filling station attendant who played only a minor role in the capture of Sutton on a Brooklyn street last Feb. 18 also reported that his life had been threatened.

Jack Peene, who told police the direction in which Sutton had gone after renting an automobile battery from his gas station, said his wife received the warning from an anonymous telephone caller yesterday.

"When you get in touch with him," the caller told Mrs. Peene, "tell him to take out a bigger insurance policy and not to take long walks."

Police Commissioner George Monaghan put a 24-hour guard around Peene and his wife as well as Schuster's survivors.

As the FBI studied its newest clues, the city worked toward raising a large reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the gunman who fired four bullets into Schuster as he walked home from work.

Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri said he would ask the city to put up a $25,000 reward. Newspapers and a television station already had posted $12,000.

"If they get those rewards up to $100,000," Monaghan said, "I think we'll catch him. Some of these guys would turn in their own mother for $100,000."

As officials attempted to raise the rewards, New York's 19,000 policemen—headed by a squad of 150 picked men—searched the city for Frederick J. (The Angel) Tenuto, former prison mate of Sutton and a friend of Thomas J. (Scup) Kling, linked with Willie in the $60,000 robbery of a Long Island bank two years ago.

Tenuto, a convicted killer, was considered the prime suspect because a bartender reported he saw him near Schuster's neighborhood a few hours before the slaying.

He has been wanted by the FBI since 1947, when he and Sutton climbed over the wall of a Philadelphia prison.

Police speculated, too, that a neighborhood gang of young hoodlums might have killed Schuster to enhance their own "prestige" as well as to warn others to mind their own business.

By WYATT BROWN
The Greenville Rotary Club was host to three neighboring Rotary Clubs last night in an Inter-City meet held in the gymnasium of the West Greenville School. The guests were the Belhaven-Panther, Bethel and Washington Clubs. The group heard a brief address by Past District Governor James W. Butler on more Rotary for a better Eastern Carolina industrial and agricultural growth.

Mr. Butler said that the eyes of the world are on this area due to new industry, large military installations, and the new emphasis on agriculture. "There should be an emphasis on the building of men as we build an empire of industry and agriculture," he exhorted. Prior to making these remarks Mr. Butler had talked shop in terms of just how to get the most Rotarians to get the most out of true Rotary, which men he said would be ready for he task ahead.

Entertainment was provided by the Varsity Quartet of East Carolina College composed of the following men: Bob Mills, Bernie Ham, Clyde Straghan and Andy Meeder with Bob Craft as accompanist.

Early Morning Winds Wreck Farm Building

High winds approaching gale force roared over the Pitt County side early this morning leaving in its wake a deluge of rain and damage to farm property. Above is shown the wreckage of a shelter barn on the farm of Mrs. Celia Garra of near Ayden. The storm struck in the Ayden section around 7 o'clock this morning. A falling telephone line can be seen around the wreckage. (Reflector Staff Photo by Roy Hardee).

Plane Damaged In Landing Mishap

Firemen at the Pitt-Greenville Airport are shown looking over the wreckage of a training plane which crashed there yesterday during a flight. The accident occurred, according to one witness, when the plane approached the field, and a wing dipped into the ground. The student pilot was uninjured but considerable damage resulted. The landing gear of the plane was torn off and damage resulted to the motor and wing. (Reflector Staff Photo by Roy Hardee).

Service Chaplain Has His Moments--True Flattery

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—You think a service chaplain doesn't have his moments? Listen to the story told me by Maj. Gen. Charles I. Carpenter, head of chaplains for the Air Force.

The chaplain talking from here on.

"Carp," as he likes to be called, deserted his parish when the call to duty came and found himself in Panama. There he held services every Sunday morning. Always on Row One was a young character who was so attentive the chaplain felt he must have a pipeline to God.

After about a month of this, Carp received a letter from a mother in the states. Her son had been in Panama for a month, she said, and hadn't written. The chaplain looked through the files and discovered that the boy was his best customer—the man in the front seat.

He called him in. Why no letter to mom? The boy said he was new at this training business and when he got through with his day's toil he was tired and hit the pad for rest.

"Write to your mom," the chaplain commanded. The kid said he would. But he didn't. Two months passed and he got another letter from the boy's mother. No letter, yet. He called the boy in again. This time a little sterner.

"Look, boy," he said. "Yonder is a table. On top is a pad of paper and a pen. You write a letter to your mother this minute, and I personally will mail it."

The chaplain went about the business of clearing his desk and dictating letters. An hour passed. He looked at the GI, who had not made a scratch. Carp wanted to know why. The boy stammered: "Well," he said, "I got almost through the second grade and I don't know how to write. The worst is, my mother doesn't know how to write, either, and I would like to know who is writing all of these letters to you."

The next Sunday the kid was on the front row as usual for services. That evening the chaplain and his wife were driving to town for services at another church. At a stop sign was a lonely GI, who wanted a hitch. The parson picked him up and delivered him to another church in the town. Same old pal, of course.

Next day, the Panamanian lady who did the chaplain's wash asked Mrs. Carpenter if she knew of a "Parson Smith" on the base—a fellow who "comes down to my church in town every Sunday night and gives a wonderful sermon."

Mrs. C. said she didn't know him. She told the chaplain about it. He said he didn't know either, but was interested because if another preacher was on a premises, maybe he could claim a day off.

Turned out the "Parson Smith" was none other than the fellow who wasn't bright enough to write to his mother.

What the boy had been doing, he discovered, was listening to the chaplain's Sunday morning sermons, memorizing them, and then peddling them at the evening services in town.

Crude Cross Is Burned In Night

By UNITED PRESS
A five foot cross, made of wooden planks and wrapped in burlap sack, was burned near Mount Airy last night. It was the latest in a series of North Carolina cross burnings.

The cross was burned about 7 p.m. in Hemmingston on a farm owned by Roy Hemming on a farm miles east of Mount Airy. The site was halfway between other Surry County cross burnings at Misery Hill and Payne Town.

The cross was the fourth burned in Surry County since Feb. 29. At Lumberton, police said today they thought the burning of a cross in front of Solicitor Malcolm Seawell's house Sunday night was a prank. The crude cross of tobacco sticks wrapped in rags flared in the middle of town.

Seawell was out of the city at the time and his wife declined. Seawell has prosecuted former police officers for protection.

Truman Unconcerned By Results Of New Hampshire Primary Today

By ERNEST B. VACCARO
KEY WEST, Fla. — (AP) — President Truman appeared unconcerned today over what may happen to his prestige in New Hampshire's presidential preference primary. Yet he showed other signs of acting like a candidate for re-election.

His decision to interrupt his Florida vacation for a speech in New York Saturday — his first talk away from Washington since last fall — renewed speculation he may seek another term.

The President is flying from Key West Friday to spend Friday night with Mrs. Truman and her ailing 89-year-old mother, Mrs. D. W.

Wallace, at Blair House in Washington.

He will fly Saturday to New York where he will address the Columbia Scholastic Press Association in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

Truman is not expected to announce whether he will seek re-election before his major political address March 29 to the $100-a-plate Jefferson-Jackson dinner in Washington.

Truman, who once described presidential primaries as "eye-wash," had no special arrangements for getting the New Hampshire results, which could have an important impact on his prestige.

Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee has made a spirited day-and-night campaign in that normally Republican state for a slate of delegates entered in opposition to Truman.

The President has left all campaigning to his supporters in New Hampshire, and, just as he did in 1948, he is leaving it to his staff to sweat out the returns.

The one thing that the President definitely will do is stump the country this year, whether he campaigns for himself or for candidates who support him.

He and Charles S. Murphy, his special counsel and principal speech writer, have had frequent conferences on what he will tell the voters.

Caribee Hailed As Winner Of Yachting Race

HAVANA (UP)—Caribee was hailed as the winner of the St. Petersburg to Havana yacht race today despite a record crossing by the Ticonderoga.

The Ticonderoga made the 262-nautical miles in 31 hours, 36 minutes and 15 seconds—a new mark. But the Caribee's corrected time was 30 hours, 37 minutes and 28 seconds. Malabar III was the winner in the "B" class with a corrected time of 37 hours, one minute and 10 seconds.

The Cuban revolution produced only one incident as the yachts approached Havana. That was when machine gun bullets passed over the deck and through one of the sails of the Ben Bow, owned by George Bass of Grosse Point, Mich.

Ike Is Favored In Student Poll

WAKE FOREST, N. C. — (AP) — Republican candidate Ike Eisenhower is the presidential choice of a majority of Wake Forest College students.

A poll conducted yesterday among 900 of the college's 1,300 students showed Eisenhower was preferred by a wide margin over three leading Democratic candidates, President Truman, Sen. Estes Kefauver (Tenn.) and Sen. Richard B. Russell (Ga.).

Of those balloting, 453 were listed as Democrats, 216 as Republicans and 192 as independents. Asked to vote for their favorite party candidate, the Democrats balloted for: Kefauver 250, Truman, 219, Russell 146, Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois 18, and Sen. Douglas of Illinois 10. The Republican vote: Eisenhower 363, Gov. Earl Warren of California 121, Sen. Taft of Ohio 82, Harold Stassen 62, and Gen. MacArthur 21.

Army Reducing Its Chair Corps Jobs At Bases

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Armed services have eliminated 2,500 "chair corps" jobs at three bases to save military manpower. Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson announced today.

The Texas Democrat, who heads the Senate preparedness committee, said the moves freed 2,100 men for overseas duty.

The three test projects were conducted at the Army base at Fort Knox, Ky.; the naval training center at Great Lakes, Ill., and the Air Force base at Lackland, Tex. The program is being extended to 34 other bases.

Accident Victims Said Improving

Five of the six Negroes, injured when an automobile crashed into a tree in Grimesland last Friday, are improving at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

They were occupants of a car driven by Willie Mills, 43-year-old farmer of Grimesland. State Highway Patrolman Jim Davis quoted Mills as saying he sneezed and blacked out and remembered no more until after the crash.

The injured:

Willie Mills, slight head and chest injuries, was released from the hospital last Friday.

Mrs. Lilly Jane Mills, his wife, received a compound fracture of a leg and cuts and bruises. Letha Howard, fractured legs and other injuries. Charlie Green, compound fracture of a leg and arm. Fable Green, fractured foot and other injuries. Laura Gardner, injured eye and cuts and bruises.

Skiping School Cost Boy's Life

NEW YORK (UP)—A 13-year-old boy's decision to play hooky ended in his death.

Larry Lupton, frustrated over the subjects he couldn't master in school, decided yesterday to hop a freight train and seek his education in travel and adventure. His crushed body was found beside a track of the Long Island Railroad near Mineola, N.Y. Police theorized that he was killed as he tried to board a train.
