History Of Nile Presented At Sans Souci Club

The Sans Souci Book Club met with Mrs. Key Brown on Tuesday afternoon at her home on East Fifth Street. Mrs. H. S. Regdale was assisting hostess.

Decorations of spring flowers turned the spacious home into a veritable spring garden and provided a pleasing setting for the meeting.

Mrs. F. T. White, president, presided and called the meeting to order. She extended a welcome to Mrs. P. T. Anthony, Mrs. J. B. Bluman, Mrs. A. E. Hogwood and Mrs. David Wilchard, who were guests for the afternoon.

At the conclusion of the routine business, the president turned the meeting over to Mrs. W. I. Wooten, chairman of the program committee. Mrs. Wooten in turn presented Mrs. Key Brown, who gave an absorbing study of the Nile River, which topic is a continuation of the year's study of famous rivers of the world.

Mrs. Brown introduced her subject by saying that the Nile River is impressive in size, length and other dimensions. By reason of its varied terrain and fabulous history it is one of the most interesting of the world's waterways. She also stated that though it is the greatest stream on earth, it is by no means the most abundant, a fact which determines its whole life and that of its basin.

After taking the members on a word trip up and down the Nile and Blue Nile, Mrs. Brown continued her talk by saying that the basin of the river contains the biggest lake in the eastern hemisphere, the highest mountains and the largest city on the continent of Africa. She further added that its banks are peopled by the richest birds life of the Northern hemisphere, by nearly every animal species known to Paradise, by vegetation ranging from Alpine flora and the tropical forest through the swamps, steppes and deserts to the richest arable land on earth.

It feeds hundreds of different races—men of the mountains and men of the marshes, Arab, Christian, cannibal, pygmy and giants. The struggle of these men for power and wealth and for the supremacy of color, can be traced farther back here than the history of mankind anywhere else in the world. All of this reflects the power of nature, the activity of its creatures, and the strivings of its human beings, she surmised. Agriculture and plants, animals and peoples, scenery and history would not have been what they are were it not for the river," she stated in conclusion. "A mighty element has been tamed by human ingenuity in the Nile River."

At the conclusion of this interesting paper the hostesses, assisted by Miss Margaret Purvis, served a salad course with spiced tea and individual cakes.

Joanne Bloom Weds Mr. Rubenstein

Boston Club Scene Of Formal Rites On Sunday

Beneath a heart shaped canopy of pink camellias and blue lilacs, Miss Joanne Rhea Bloom and Jules H. Rubenstein were married in formal ceremonies which took place on Sunday afternoon, March 9, at 6:30 p.m. at the Boston Club in Boston, Massachusetts.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. El Bloom of this city. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Rubenstein of Newton, Massachusetts.

Rabbi Klausner of Temple Israel in Boston performed the marriage rites in the presence of members of the families and intimate friends.

The club was lavishly decorated for the wedding with garlands of smilax and arrangements of lilacs, snapdragons and hyacinths. The stairway of the club was entwined with the greenery interspersed with blue lilacs, and on each landing were massive baskets of blue and white flowers. The ballroom where the ceremony was held, had an improvised altar banked with greenery over which was a canopy of camellias and lilacs. The aisle for the wedding party was marked with rows of wrought iron candelabra tied with tulle bows and garlanded with smilax and holding lighted Cathedral candles. Potted hyacinths were used at intervals around the room along with palms and ivy.

Miss Bloom, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ice blue satin which was fashioned with a molded bodice and full flowing skirt worn over hoops. The off-shoulder neckline was outlined with hand sewn Chantilly lace embellished with small hand-made velvet flowers sprinkled with seed pearls and blue sequins. It had long sleeves which buttoned down the side and the skirt formed a cathedral train in the back. Her softly draped cap was an original model designed of matching Chantilly lace and embroidered with hand sewn flowers, pearls and sequins. To it was attached a finger tip length veil of blue illusion. Her bouquet was of white orchids and blue lilacs.

The bride was attended by Miss Phyllis Gerahman of Providence, Rhode Island and Mrs. Stuart Konopse of Stamford, Connecticut, as bridesmaids.

The gowns of the attendants were made of mauve net and styled with light bodices sprinkled with pearls and bouffant ballerina skirts. They wore crescent shaped flower bands of snapdragons shaded from pink to deep rose in their hair and carried matching bouquets.

Miss Iris Rubenstein, sister of the groom, was maid of honor. She wore a dress styled like that of the bride's maids designed of ice blue net and carried a bouquet of Parma violets and lilacs. She wore a matching head band of the same kind of flowers.

Best man was Alvin Nigrosh of Boston Murray Stern, Charles Shapiro, Robert Shapiro and Allan Seligman, all of Boston, were ushers.

Mrs. Bloom, mother of the bride, wore a blue gown of nylon tulle with matching shoes. The dress was made all over with silver threaded flowers and an ankle length bouffant skirt. With it she wore long white gloves and a matching stole. Her corsage was of purple orchids.

Mrs. Rubenstein, mother of the groom, wore a gown of pink net with full, ankle length skirt and fitted bodice which was trimmed with sequins. Her corsage was of lilacs and green baby orchids.

Prior to and during the ceremony, a program of nuptial music was played at the organ by Billy Kroner.

Immediately following the ceremony, the parents of the bride entertained at a reception in the French Room of the Boston Club.

The reception hall was decorated with garlands of smilax, white tapers, and pink and blue flowers with lilacs and hyacinths predominating. Wedding punch and hors d'oeuvres were served as the first course to the wedding supper which later followed. During the reception hour an orchestra provided accompanying music for the enjoyment of the guests. Later in the evening the bridal couple cut and served the three tiered wedding cake.

Following the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Rubenstein left by plane for a two weeks' trip to Miami and Havana, Cuba. The bride's traveling outfit was a navy tailored suit with a mauve hat and a silk mauve blouse with navy accessories. She wore a white orchid from her bridal bouquet pinned to her shoulder.

Muriel Shotwell Reviews Book At Chatham Club

Mrs. L. T. Shotwell was hostess to members of the Chatham Book Club on Tuesday afternoon at her home on East Tenth Street.

A dessert course was served to the members prior to the opening of the meeting by the president, Mrs. Leonard Topping. Mrs. Lawrence Smith was welcomed as a guest for the afternoon.

During the short business session the club voted to send a donation to the local Red Cross chapter.

Mrs. C. A. Bowen introduced the speaker for the afternoon, Miss Muriel Shotwell, who gave an interesting and refreshing review of one of the current best sellers, "Singing Hills" by Lillian Craig.

Miss Shotwell began her review by giving a background of the circumstances incident to its writing. Miss Craig began her journey through the mountains of Virginia to gather material for a book she wanted to write on the folk lore of the mountaineers. She was warned beforehand of the mountain people's dislike of strangers, particularly if they thought she was an "official" or connected with the law in any way. She was also warned of dangerous Dale Dell, escaped murderer, who had sought refuge in the hills.

The "strange woman," as she was called by the residents of the section, found friends along the way to guide her and to help make her book a success. Her many experiences, as related by the reviewer, were both humorous and pathetic.

After this delightful program, books were exchanged and the meeting adjourned.

Atheneum Club Meets Tuesday With Mrs. Crisp

Members of the Atheneum Book Club were luncheon guests on Tuesday when Mrs. S. M. Crisp was hostess at her home on East Fifth Street. Arrangements of early spring flowers were used for decorations.

A two course luncheon was served at 1:00 p.m., after which the meeting was turned over to the hostess. She introduced Mrs. William Dole, who gave a delightful skit entitled "The Atheneum Flower Shop." Assisting Mrs. Dole in the presentation were Ralph Rives, Clarkson White, Garland Jackson, Ann Osborne, and Irene Brinn, students at East Carolina College.

After the distribution of books, the club adjourned.

Guests for the afternoon were Mrs. Sam White, Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Howard Grady.

Ruritan Group Addressed By Dr. J. L. Oppelt

WINTERVILLE—Dr. J. L. Oppelt, head of Student Teaching and Teacher Placement at East Carolina College, was guest speaker at the Winterville Ruritan Club Tuesday night.

President W. B. Dillingham presided over the meeting, which was held in the Winterville Community Center. During the business procedure, the various committees made their reports. One new member, R. L. Cox, was received into the club.

A very interesting stunt was put on by Ronald Carroll and Ronnie Mallison. Ray Oglesby was declared the winner.

Dr. Oppelt was introduced by R. E. Boyd, chairman of the Program Committee. In his opening remarks Dr. Oppelt, who is a native of Minnesota, expressed his delight with the mild climate in this part of the country. He stated that his hobbies were golf and working with young teachers.

The field of student teaching is very important in a college which trains teachers, according to Dr. Oppelt. The college has connections with a number of high schools within a radius of 25 miles of Greenville. For a number of years the Winterville High School has been used for practice teaching.

Dr. Oppelt stated that he visits all of his practice teachers while they are at work in the classrooms. He said that he requires them to attend P.T.A. meetings, chapel programs, teachers' meetings and take part in the various activities of the schools in which they are teaching. With regard to employment opportunities, Dr. Oppelt pointed out that some of the high school fields are overcrowded, whereas there are many opportunities for grade teachers. The demand for men teachers in the grammar grades is on the increase. Eventually, many of them will become elementary principals.

Results Of Cancer Linen Drive Very Satisfactory

The results of the linen drive conducted by the women of Greenville and Pitt County during the month of February were very gratifying, according to a report from Mrs. Bill Sermons, chairman of the drive.

The drive was conducted in cooperation with the Pitt County Cancer Society, which Mrs. Charles Reynolds is commander, and the State Cancer Society. Its purpose was to collect bedclothes and other linen articles to help equip the North Carolina Cancer Institute, a home for indigent cancer patients which is located in Robeson County.

The linens are being shipped today to the Institute which will open in a few days. The collections were made through contact with women's organizations in the county.

Mrs. Sermons reported contributions as follows: 71 bed sheets, six bedspreads, 83 wash cloths, 178 pillow cases, 110 towels, five rubber sheets, five dresser scarves and one package of gauze.

A large quantity of clean cloths were contributed for use by the Pitt County committee in making dressings for cancer patients. These dressings were made under the direction of Mrs. J. R. Jackson, welfare chairman of the Woman's Club, as a public service to cancer patients.

"We want to express our gratification to all who helped to make this project a success," stated Mrs. Sermons. "It is through efforts of this sort that we will make a success of the Institute, which will fill a long required need in the health and welfare program of North Carolina."

Talk On Mexico Given By Members At Semi Centi

Mrs. Joe E. Brown was hostess to the Semi Centi Book Club last night at her home in Elmhurst.

Presiding over the business meeting was Mrs. Frank Strawn, chairman, who called the meeting to order and presented the speaker, Mrs. Levey Corey, a member of the club.

Mrs. Corey's talk, which was both interesting and educational, was on Mexico. She mentioned in particular its Capitol, Mexico City, one of the most beautiful capitols in the world.

Mexico is about a fourth the size of the U.S. and its religion is 90% Catholic, she stated. Most of the people there live in poverty, not many of them even enjoying the pleasures of middle-class Americans.

Mrs. Corey also spoke of the coffee and banana plantations, tropical fruits, cattle ranches and oil fields of Mexico. Finishing her talk, she stated that Mexico has fought against illiteracy in the last few decades to the extent that each person who could read and write has been requested to teach another person to read and write. Illiteracy has thus decreased and there are now many rural schools in Mexico, she explained.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS
REAL WORTH AT LAST
Some of the most important people have been halting in their speech and most unimpressive of demeanor. Moses declared that he could never lead the children of Israel because he was "slow of speech and of a slow tongue." But he became about the most influential human being that ever lived. In the latter years of his life, George Washington developed the capacity to compose effective speeches and to read them effectively. But as a boy and young man, he was so halting in his speech that his contemporaries remarked about it.

Who would ever have believed that the rough country boy of Illinois would ever develop into the great world figure which Lincoln became. St. Paul in one of his epistles refers to his inability to speak effectively in public.
Some one was telling me recently about a professor who was usually very ill at ease in a classroom and halting in his speech. But year after year students, after they were graduated from that college, declared that here was the most influential personality with whom they had ever come in contact. The big blustering extrovert may seem to be sweeping all before him in his conquest of the world, but usually the world is seeing to it that he is gradually being edged over in the direction of the trash can. Real worth always comes out at last.

No Place For Ego To Rule Supreme

The broadsides leveled at American tanks in operation in Korea by a British officer may be taken with a grain of salt by some Americans, but it could prove beneficial to the United States if the nation would wake up to its own shortcomings in military weapons.

The United States is so far ahead of other nations in so many fields that we have come, by force of habit, to believe subconsciously that everything the United States builds is unsurpassed. In many instances the belief is justified, but there are a number of instances in which it is not.

American-made tanks have been a point of controversy in the military field since the beginning of World War II. Our tanks, though they turned in good performances in the war, were found through use to be inferior to those used by the British, and by the Germans. We made improvements, but we never quite caught up with the pace of advancement made by other nations.

In the Korean war the same thing has been found to be true. American tanks just can't fill the bill as well as those produced by some other nations.

Why haven't we kept pace in this field? Why haven't we forged ahead to produce more practical equipment? There are many answers to those questions, but basically the fundamental answer may be found in the unwillingness of the United States to copy the improvements made by others. To a certain extent it may be pride in our own ability which keeps us plugging away at our own ideas about tank design. But is this pattern producing the results we want and need?

Where men's lives and military materiel are concerned, we should not let our own ego deceive us. If someone else produces a better tank than the United States, we should get it and find out how and why, and profit by the knowledge others have gained. The same is true in the case of aircraft and other military machines and weapons.

Vote May Encourage The Faint Of Heart

There is no question about the New Hampshire vote in its presidential primary, but what the vote means is causing a lot of head-scratching about the nation.

At the outset, it would be well to remember one thing: Results of the primary are more likely to be overplayed than they rightly deserve by partisans on the sidelines.

The fact that two newcomers to national politics licked the old political hounds at their own game is an indication that the folks in the New England state, and perhaps in other parts of the country, are eager for new faces and maybe new policies in the national government.

In spite of the snow and sleet, 129,000 voters went to the polls, compared with 75,000 four years ago. That factor is a strong indication that the rank and file voters are sick and tired of the old line politicians on both sides of the fence carrying precincts around in their hip pockets. The same feeling may be prevalent in other sections of the nation. We hope so, but it is too early to tell.

One thing is sure. The primary which President Truman called "eye-wash" should have certainly loosened the scales of arrogance on his near-sighted eyes. Even with the full force of the well-oiled Democratic machine in New Hampshire, the President couldn't freeze out the previously little-known crime-buster from the South... Kefauver.

Kefauver asserted the vote he received was not an anti-Truman vote. We hate to disillusion the Senator, but it undoubtedly was predominantly an expression among Democrats of their dislike for the present party leader, his policies, and the political dynasty which has been created in the Democratic party.

Indeed, the election returns showed that the dynasty of both parties is rapidly running on the reef.

In spite of Kefauver's victory, Truman is still the recognized leader of the Democratic party except in the South... and in New Hampshire. From Truman's past actions, Kefauver's victory probably will be like a red flag in front of a bull. At any rate it puts more pressure on the President for a clear-cut statement on his future political plans.

For all its complications, implications and ramifications, the New Hampshire results point out that Truman can be beaten by another Democratic candidate on relatively neutral ground. That alone should add new courage to those who have stomachached as much of Truman's leadership as they can stand.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—The day when atomic energy will supplant present-day forms of fuel in industry, power and transportation is extremely distant, according to engineers working on commercial adaptation under government contracts.

It is extremely doubtful whether anybody save youngsters with lucky lifelines will see the time when an atomic "hill" will propel automobiles, trains, civilian planes or trans-Atlantic liners. It is also doubtful whether homes will be lighted and heated, and mechanical appliances operated, by the neutrons which blew up Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

IMPORTANCE—This finding has more than an academic aspect. It is of everyday, bread-and-butter importance to millions of workers and investors, who might lose jobs and income, if atomic energy could be installed overnight in our industrial, utility and transportation systems.

In emphasizing the long delay inherent in commercializing atomic energy, both Gordon Dean, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, and Senator Brian McMahon of Connecticut, who heads the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy, have quieted the fears voiced in many letters to both bodies.

It is true, as recently explained here, that Mr. Dean was giving a boost to federalized power when he minimized the idea of substituting atomic force for hydroelectricity in his recent letter to Representative Henry M. Jackson of Washington. Nevertheless, engineering data as of the moment supports Mr. Dean.

REASONS—It is difficult to write authoritatively about this wartime miracle. Science has a wondrous way of refuting and discrediting the so-called experts. It refuses to be pinned down and catalogued and kept static. But, as of now, here are a few reasons why peacetime civilization as we live it may not be disrupted overnight by advent of an atomic age:

The reasons are financial and physical. As of now, only the federal government can afford to spend the vast sums required to harness their costlier-than-gold stuff.

There is no telling on the funds that must be spent for atomic bombs, bullets, planes and submarines. Relatively small as the government's investment in this field is, it approaches $6,000,000,000.

COST—The cost is a compelling and limiting factor. It will be many, many years before atomic energy can be produced and applied to autos, trains, commercial aviation and vessels for less than coal, oil or gasoline. It must drop to a lower figure than now savaged by engineers before it will justify scrapping the vast investment in current forms of propulsion and generation.

That consideration also applies to the billions which have been sunk by millions of large and small investors—banks, trust funds, insurance companies and individuals—in our industrial, power and transportation structures.

What would happen, for instance, to the holders of bonds and stocks of these corporations, if a government controlled or licensed atomic energy agency were suddenly to destroy the value of their investments?

DANGEROUS—The physical handicaps are equally weighty. An atomic engine of any size must be encased in a massive and heavy shield in order to prevent the escape of deadly, radioactive particles. The weightiness of this protective covering obviously obviates the application of A-material to automobiles, trains and commercial planes, although this difficulty may be overcome some day. But even suppose that scientists develop a casing sufficiently light, as they are hoping to do with military planes and subs, so that atomic energy can be used in transportation, the prospect raises difficult and dangerous possibilities.

What would have happened to the people of Elizabeth, N. J., if the planes which crashed in congested areas there had been powered with death-distributing gases?

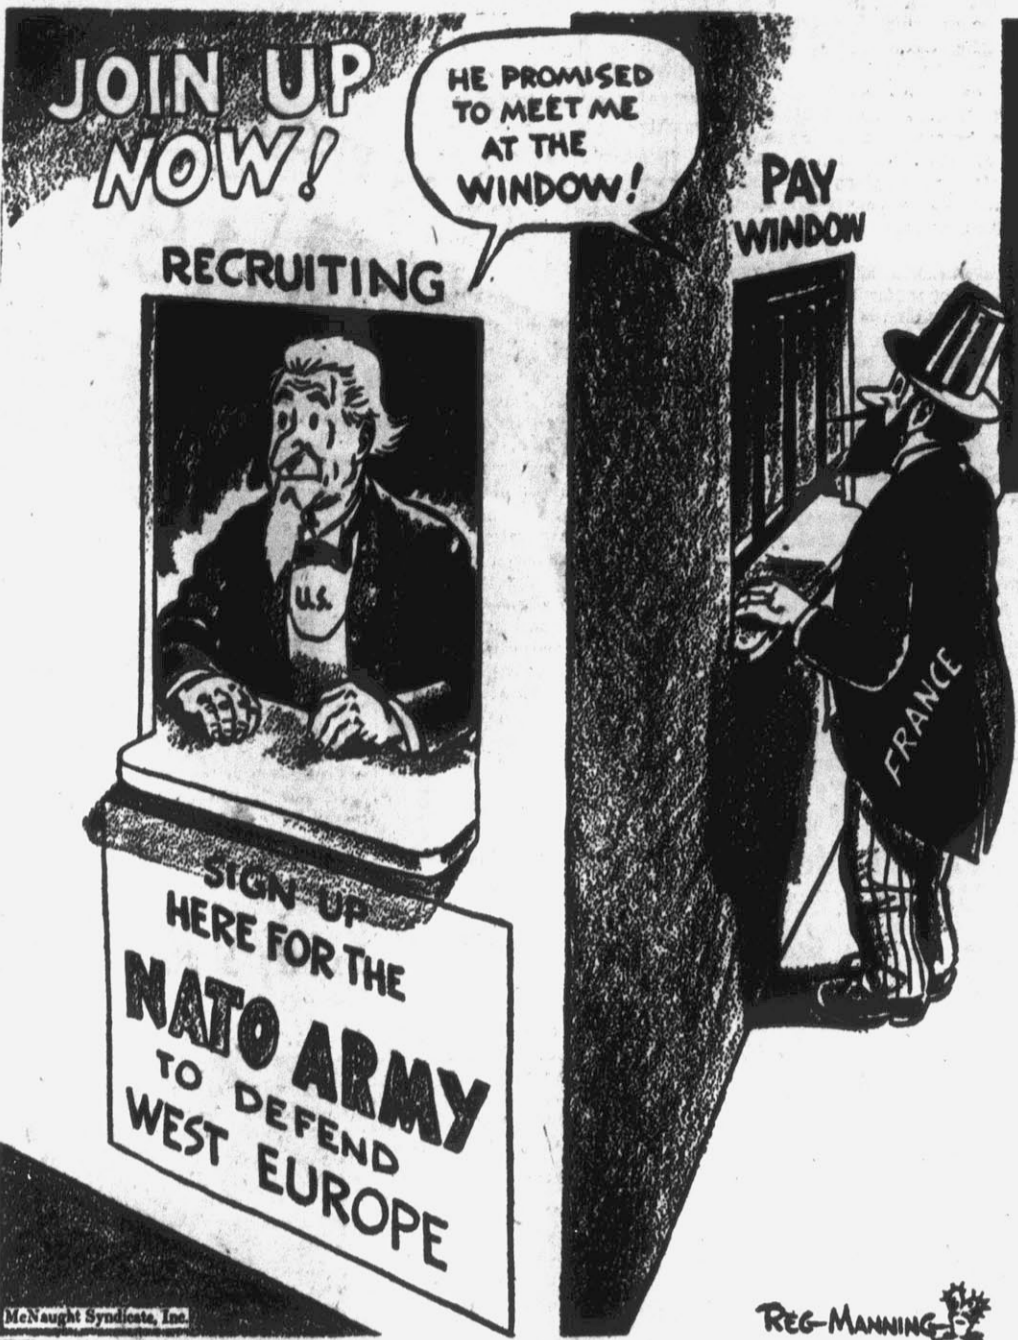

What would happen if two trains or two ships similarly propelled collided in a great city or harbor? What would happen if two atomic automobiles smashed together at a downtown corner?

SAVING—It would not be difficult to sink an atomic reactor and shield deep below ground to run a factory or a power plant. But the only saving here would be on fuel, which represents about 30 per cent of the cost of operation.

Even a 90 per cent economy on this item, and the cost of conventional fuel might fall under the threat of atomic competition, would not justify liquidating the present investment in these generating facilities.

So, those who have expressed their worries in letters to Messrs. McMahon and Dean may go back to sleep—or to work!

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Last night George Lupton showed me an amazing book named "Behind the Flying Saucers" by a well-known newspaperman, Frank Scully. For his newspaper, Variety, Frank set out to find the truth about the saucers and was enraged when the Air Force would tell him nothing.

Therefore, he set out on his own and compiled enough information to write a book. The most interesting facts were brought to light by a scientist in a speech at the University of Denver, in summary are:

There is such a thing as a flying saucer and the Air Force has not abandoned its Project Saucer. Four of these saucers have actually landed on this earth. Three of the four have been captured and been inspected by men currently identified in geophysical research. A total of 34 men, measuring from 35 to 40 inches in height have been found dead in the three saucers discovered.

The first saucer to land on the earth landed over two years ago on a site within 500 miles of Denver. It did not appear to come from any part of this earth, but the question of where it came from still remained unsolved. The best speculation is Venus, but it remains a wide-open question.

Found in the first space ship were instruments which seemingly measured lines of magnetic force. These instruments were a key to something which a group of scientists (of which this man is a member) is still working on and they will have the answer to how the saucers were propelled.

Such ships capable of traveling with the speed of light could leave such a planet as Venus, say, which is 161,000,000 miles from us when our orbits lie in extreme positions, and return to Venus in less than an hour.

The first disc that landed was 99.9 feet in diameter and had a cabin measuring 72 inches in height. The second measured 72 feet in diameter, the third, 36 feet. All of the measurements on the ships were divisible by nine, so the people seem to have our system of measurement.

Sixteen dead men, probably 35 to 40 years old, landed in the first ship. Their bodies had been charred to a dark brown color. Sixteen dead men were also found in the second ship, but they had not been burned and were all of fair complexion. Only two men were in the third ship, and they had lived to land, because they died trying to get out of the saucer. And I thank George.

MONEY — Money is pouring into the state general fund right now faster than the clerks and adding machines in the revenue department can count it. This is income tax time. Usually something like a third of the annual general fund receipts come in March. This year it is predicted that corporation payments will be no more, possibly a little less, than last year but that individual payments will more than make up any decrease. Add to that condition the upward trend in sales taxes and larger yields in other schedules, and you have the reason for the flood of money coming in right now. The immediate reason, that is, is necessary to go back twenty years to find the real reason.

FOUR MEN — There is historical basis for the statement that four men are mainly responsible for the current satisfactory condition of the North Carolina state treasury. In chronological order, without reference to relative importance of their contributions or their widely divergent motives, these men are Rufus Doughton, Blucher Ehringhaus, Adolf Hitler and Josef Stalin. Sounds screwy, doesn't it? It should sound screwy, because it is. Maybe several other names should be added to the list, including A. W. McLean, who set up the budgetary system in North Carolina, and Max Gardner, who centralized state purchasing, and legislative leaders. This story deals more with collection than with spending of state tax money, and from that viewpoint the two North Carolinians and the two Europeans named seem to have had most influence.

ROLES — Analysis of the roles these men played in the drama of State revenue discloses some pertinent facts. The General Assembly of 1933 convened in the depth of the great depression, concurrently with inauguration of J. C. B. Ehringhaus and two months before inauguration of Franklin Roosevelt as President. Conditions in the state treasury and in the homes and businesses of the people were desperate. There was nothing wrong with basic structure of the state's fiscal policy, except there just was not enough money coming in, and no hope of getting it from the established sources of state revenue. The sales tax had been debated and defeated in the 1931 assembly. It was still unpopular with the people.

SCHOOLS — The 1931 assembly had relieved counties of current obligation to build and maintain roads, but did not relieve them of bonded debts for roads and bridges already built. Increasing demands for better public schools were imposing tax burdens upon the people at county level, and there was wide disparity in school facilities provided in different counties. At state level North Carolina was approaching default on bond debt payments. A desperate condition called for courageous action.

LEGISLATION — The need produced the men to meet it. Governor Ehringhaus reluctantly accepted necessity for a sales tax. The late A. D. McLean, who had moved over from the house in 1931 to the senate in 1933 and headed the education committee, led the fight for public schools. Grady Rankin, then and now (though not continuously since) senator from Gaston county, was chairman of the senate finance committee and lent tremendous aid in putting through the necessary bills. But it was recognized then and now that the genius, the personality and the diligence of Rufus A. Doughton, chairman of the house finance committee, was mainly responsible for the 1933 revenue act. It required days and long nights of toil, but out of one of the longest legislative sessions in state history came a revenue policy that has not been materially changed since. It was re-enacted in 1935 and 1937 and in 1939 was made "permanent" and successive amendments since have not affected its basic provisions.

OUTSIDERS — Throughout the Ehringhaus administration and that of Governor Clyde Hoey which followed, this taxing bill produced enough revenue to reasonably meet the expanding needs of the state, as it was designed to do. That reasonable balance between income and outgo probably would have continued, but for the impact of unforeseeable outside influences. First of these outside influences was the rise of Hitler and Mussolini, causing the second world war and putting a ban on civilian spending, while producing inflationary yields of state revenue. That condition prevailed throughout the administration of Governors Broughton and Cherry, and resulted in huge unexpended cash reserves by 1948.

SCOTT — That year Kerr Scott was nominated and elected governor on a platform calling for using the cash surplus to alleviate the deficit in services. Despite charges and counter-charges of non-cooperation, the General Assembly went along with his ideas, appropriated for immediate use all the accumulated reserves and authorized elections for borrowing a quarter billion dollars more. The people approved the borrowing — and some conservative citizens got into the government service. Congress likely won't do what the Treasury department asks. And it'll be for another reason. For Washington is filled with ex-Congressmen who're doing what Truman did. They practice law for clients who're asking on this line and they, like former employees of the government, get favors that they're not entitled to. If Congress, by law, prohibited those former employees from serving, it would have to prohibit the ex-Congressmen, too. And none likes the prospect of returning to the sticks. Somehow they much prefer the Washington stoneware.

Now they have pensions and the need isn't as great as it once was. BRIDLING EX-EMPLOYEES

(Wilson Times)

The Treasury department in a statement the other day said it would welcome an act of Congress which would prohibit former employees of the government from interfering in tax cases. It should from the present look of things. For as Senator Williams of Delaware pointed out, the government has lost more than two million dollars from clients represented by Joseph D. Nunan Jr. former revenue commissioner. He, it's quite plain, was successful because he knew how and with whom to deal in Washington, men no doubt who were under him when he was in the government service.

Congress likely won't do what the Treasury department asks. And it'll be for another reason. For Washington is filled with ex-Congressmen who're doing what Truman did. Business Today

The first quarter of 1953 is being chalked up on many official indexes and business ledgers as unsatisfactory. It is true that the retail picture looks worse than it really is because comparisons are usually made against year-ago records, and a year ago this quarter the buying panic was on. But even allowing for that distortion, this quarter's sales are not good: prices of many durables and most soft goods are down, sure signs sales are hard to make. Unemployment has caused many cities to be classified as distress areas by the government. Plant expansion and home construction has gone ahead, but not enough to change the total picture.

With the first quarter written off, the question of the coming second quarter remains. The answers are neither sharp nor unanimous.

Generally, there is a pick-up in the spring. Better weather accelerates construction. Easter stimulates soft goods sales, farmers increase their spending in preparation for new crops, families start planning for vacations and people begin to repair damage to bank accounts done by income taxes.

Specifically, the second quarter of this year ought to see a further rise in defense production, with direct effects on industrial demand, employment and payrolls and indirect effects on retail sales.

A. W. Zelomek, economist and president of the International Statistical Bureau, has gone on record as predicting an improving trend of business in the second quarter. He said that while there was some temporary unemployment, wages and salaries are advancing more rapidly than taxes; that the farmer's position is improving, and that even people with fixed incomes are better able to buy than a year ago and will probably consume more.

"The public as a whole will probably spend a little more and save a little less in 1953 than in 1951, when it was compensating for over-buying in the second half of 1950," he said.

On the other hand, the financial experts are not so confident. While the stock market has proven defective as an omen for future business conditions, it certainly is an index of what investors believe at the moment. The recent rallies have failed to wipe out declines which show that those with money do not believe the immediate future justifies bidding up prices. At a meeting of the New York Society of Security Analysts last week, most of the members indicated by a show of hands that they did not believe the market would trend strongly in any direction. The minority was evenly split as to whether the market would go up or down.

And prices of commodity futures — the prices at which you can buy commodities for delivery later in the year — have dropped 6 per cent in the last few months.

UNCLE SAM BIG REAL ESTATE BUYER

Most people have overlooked the fact that the present Federal Budget provides two and a half billion dollars for the acquisition and construction of real estate.

The National Association of Manufacturers, which calculates this could be cut to one billion, calculates that the 1951-53 budgets provide $8,900,000,000 for acquiring real estate, a sum almost exactly equal to all the farm real estate in Illinois, Indiana and Iowa. Even $1,000,000,000, it points out, would be equivalent to all the farm real estate in Kentucky.

DRYER SALES UP, WASHERS DECLINE

The sale of clothes washers is down, but the sale of clothes dryers is up. The American Home Laundry Manufacturers Association reports January sales of dryers rose from 32,000 in 1951 to 45,000 in 1952, while washer sales declined from 321,000 to 214,000 in the same months. Ironers fell off from 24,600 to 15,600.

Judging from the figures, most home owners buy a washer later if they can afford it. ROCKETRY: Interest in interplanetary rockets has inspired a new wallpaper design for children who have outgrown cowboy motifs. It consists of whirling planets, stars and space ships on a blue background and ATTO D-ALER EMPLOYEE RELATIONS IN BOOK

The National Automobile Dealers' Association has compiled into one 148-page book all the material it has sent auto dealers dealing with employee relations. It includes chapters on federal labor laws and on labor relations, the latter containing a section on "how-to-avoid-unionism." The book is available only to association members.

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK — (AP) — The sex criminal is the most hated member of society.

But how can you deal with him? Heavy legal penalties do not deter him. And in any case, if he explodes in violence, punishing him won't remove the horrifying experience from his victim's memory or restore her life, where he has killed in lust.

William T. Whalen, retired New York City chief of detectives, believes the answer is this: "Anyone involved in any type of sexual crime, no matter how minor, should be given a psychiatric examination — or 'bugged,' as we call it. He should then be forced to take the institutional or clinical care he needs."

"Most of them aren't ordinary criminals. They have sick minds. Thirty-three years of dealing with sex crimes has convinced the veteran ex- cop that present systems for handling them are hopeless, because little is done to prevent them from developing from minor offenders into major offenders.

The public has little realization how widespread minor sex offenses are. The two commonest forms are window-peeping and the molestations of women in crowded buses and subways.

"We have more police calls about peepers than anything else," Whalen said. "As to subway molesters, there are thousands of cases the police never hear about. Women are partially to blame. If someone annoys them, all they have to do is slap him in the face with their hand. There are plenty of men about to come to their help."

Many people regard peepers and molesters as detestable but comparatively harmless thrill-seekers. "They aren't," said Whalen grimly. "They follow a pattern. Most of those later arrested for major sex crimes have a police record of minor offenses."

But at present in New York — the minor offenders can only be charged with disorderly conduct, given a small fine or a short time in jail — even though they are picked up a thousand times. They can't be compelled to take a mental examination.

And when one goes on to commit a sex murder he gives police the hardest possible type of crime to solve. "There is no motive for the crime that can be traced from the victim's own background," explained Whalen. "The hideup man cases his job in advance. The sex murderer usually does not. He kills by impulse."

Whalen recently served as technical advisor for "The Sniper," a Columbia Pictures film making one of the first efforts by Hollywood to deal with the problem on a sociological basis. It tells the story of a perverted youth who kills several women with a carbine but who, before going berserk, tries vainly to bring his deteriorating mental condition to the attention of a young hospital interne, too busy to deal with him.

"Compulsory psychiatric examinations may show which offenders are potentially dangerous and need to be put away — and which can be put back on the right track," said Whalen. "As it is now we have no real barometer to see what can be done with these people."

His advice to women who are suddenly confronted by a violent sex criminal is this: "Scream. A woman's best defense is a scream. As a rule, they are easily frightened off and 99 times out of 100 they'll run."

"But don't fight back or try to hold on to a man like that to keep him from escaping. Rape or attempted rape carries a long prison term, and a man will kill to keep from that."

Washington Letter

By JANE KADS
WASHINGTON — From June to early October about 250 young men make their lives by parachute jumping on fire from airplanes. They are the U. S. Forest Service's famous "smoke-jumpers," whose techniques were used by the Army in 1940 in the training of its first parachute division.

It is estimated that approximately $700,000 was saved in fire-fighting costs in 1951 through the efforts of this small band of daring young men. A total of 1,134 jumps were made on some 394 fires.

T. V. Pearson, a forest service fire-control specialist is given credit for introducing the parachuting of fire fighters after transportation of the men had progressed from foot to mule to truck.

He had observed that Russia and Germany had dropped men from military planes on level countries. A slower plane, a Ford Trimotor, still used, was tried out over the mountainous areas and professional parachutists were employed for the experiment.

Later the forest men tried it out, and in 1940 the first actual jump to a fire was made. Two men jumped at about 4 p.m. They had the fire in Nesperce, a national forest in Idaho, under control by 10 o'clock the following morning.

Later that year the Army sent four officers to watch the service's training techniques at the Missoula, Mont. headquarters. They were going to Ft. Benning, Ga. to train the first parachute division for the Army. Among the four was Maj. William Cory Lee, who later commanded the 101st Airborne Division that was sent to England for the Normandy invasion.

In 1943 the U. S. Coast Guard, School and the U. S. Air Force sent 26 men to train with the smoke jumpers for rescue work. Army paratroopers also trained with the jumpers. During the war years when manpower was scarce, many conscientious objectors were used by the fire control foresters, and they did a fine job. Most of the smoke-jumpers recently have been young men studying to be foresters who want the experience they get on this kind of job. The pay is around $260 a month. Jumpers must be between 18 and 30, in very good physical condition and weigh between 150 and 180. They must have had previous experience in the woods and at least one year as a fire-fighter with a ground crew. A month's intensive training is then required.

Diplomas Presented Friday To Eighteen Club Members

On Friday evening, March 7, the Credit Women's Breakfast Club met at a dinner meeting to celebrate a very important occasion.

President Margaret Boykin presented to eighteen members their diplomas for successful completing the four year course in the Study of Credit Procedure as relating to interviews for and the granting of Credit, and the Collection methods used in collecting accounts and retaining Customer Goodwill and in the importance in building a good credit rating. These ideas go hand-in-hand.

Eighteen members received diplomas. The president explained that out of the total membership, many more were due to receive the coveted diplomas, but because of the fact that many had joined the club since organization, they were not, as yet, eligible to receive the four year diplomas until all courses were completed. These diplomas represent much study, applied and theoretical with examinations, and a prescribed percentage of attendance at the educational lessons, and are, therefore, the more to be prized.

Teachers in the past have included Dr. E. R. Browning, of E.C.C.; Mrs. G. C. Fry, State Vocational Teacher; and representative business and professional men of the city.

In 1931, the Greenville CWBC received the International Award for Educational Achievement. This award is competed for by all North Carolina clubs, all clubs throughout the United States, Canada and Hawaii. The Greenville club, in 1931, was awarded the honor of receiving this, with the club's inscription.

In addition to presenting the diplomas, President Boykin presented the last point in the Dixie Council "World of Wisdom" District Project, a workshop of information on the Credit Women's Breakfast Club. She called for the local Club History, given by Mrs. Dorothy Copeland, the club's first president; the State History, given by Mrs. Frances Cassick, the local club's first vice-president; the Dixie Council History, given by Miss Mary Belle Eidge, the local club's recording secretary; the International, given by Mrs. Lettie Bilbro, immediate past president of the local club; and General Information, given by Mrs. Ruby Lam, charter member and first recording secretary of the local club.

After this workshop of CWBC information, an open forum of questions was held, and the club voted to include this program of information as a permanent record of the club. Much enjoyment was added to the program by Mrs. Lettie Bilbro's assortment of prizes for the correct answers to her questions on the International History.

At the completion of the program, the president called for committee reports. Especially interesting were the reports on the three little underprivileged girls the club is caring for. Also enthusiastically received were the views of the club on the recreational park project, and Mrs. Frances Cassick, first vice-president, was chosen to represent the club on all meetings of the proposed park.

After a most enjoyable meeting, the girls individually thanked Mrs. Louise Rush, of the American Legion Dining Room, for a lovely candle-lit dinner of barbecued chicken with all the trimmings.

Tentative plans and programs were discussed relative to the annual state convention of the N. C. State Association of CWBC to be held in conjunction with the N. C. Merchants' Association in Raleigh on May 18-19-20. The Greenville club's participation in the program of the convention will be the tea given on Sunday afternoon, from 4:30 to 5:30 at the Sir Walter Hotel.

The local club's first president, and present State second vice-president and convention chairman, Mrs. Dorothy Copeland, is in charge of the convention, and all members of the Merchants' Association, as well as the entire membership of the Greenville CWBC, and their sponsors, are urged to attend.

Mrs. Copeland says a splendid, interesting and diversified convention is indicated, and she urges that plans be made now for May 18-19-20 at Raleigh, and reservations made just as soon as possible at the Sir Walter, convention hotel headquarters.

Floral Arranger To Give Lecture

Mr. Reginald Weber McFarland of Louisville, widely known floral artist, writer and lecturer, will come to Greenville some time during the week of March 17 to 21 to demonstrate simple flower arrangements.

He is an advocate of utilizing foliage and interesting containers with a minimum of flowers. He stresses the importance of the layman using flowers the year around, rather than in certain seasons. Mr. McFarland plans to show how several blossoms which when tastefully arranged can lend a "personality" atmosphere to a room.

Mr. McFarland lectured extensively, lecturing recently in Tennessee, Virginia, Texas, Georgia, Connecticut and Canada. His most recent experience was a thirty minute program on TV in New York City.

The demonstration will be given in one of the East Carolina College auditoriums at three o'clock in the afternoon. Registration fee will be fifty cents.

The date will be given later due to the fact that Mr. McFarland could not be specific when arrangements were made because of other engagements.

Mr. McFarland is being sponsored by the Pitt County Home Economics Teachers Council.

Mrs. Buchanan Gives Funeral Today For Program At Inter Se Mrs. John Warren

John Randolph of Roanoke was the subject of a paper presented by Mrs. L. M. Buchanan before the Inter Se Book Club at the home of Mrs. Jack Edwards on Tuesday afternoon.

In her discussion of his life and career as a prominent political figure on the national scene Mrs. Buchanan traced the influences and commented upon the circumstances which helped to make him the personality which he became.

After the program Mrs. Edwards served a delicious salad course with coffee.

Special guests for the afternoon were Mrs. A. C. Tebeau and Mrs. Carter Studdard.

Plan Leadership Training

Representatives from several Girl Scout Councils met in Kingston on Tuesday morning to arrange for a day of leadership training. This training will be given at the Kingston "Scout Little House" on Thursday, March 27. It is hoped that every Girl Scout leader will take advantage of this opportunity to get a full day of training.

There will be no registration fee and the lunch will be free to the leaders. For one day they will be Scouts and Brownies and cook lunch on an open fire. They will have the privilege of attending a troop meeting all day.

Washington, Kingston, Goldsboro, Cherry Point, Camp Lejeune and Greenville will participate.

Mrs. Betty Warren, 73, died unexpectedly Wednesday afternoon at 4:45 o'clock at the home of her son, H. B. Bowen of Robersonville. She had been in failing health for several months.

Funeral services will be conducted at the home this afternoon at four o'clock by Elder W. E. Grimes, Primitive Baptist minister, assisted by the Rev. Ralph Ferguson, Baptist minister of Robersonville, and burial will be in the Robersonville Cemetery.

Mrs. Warren was the daughter of the late Hardy and Lucinda Martin Cullifer, was born and reared in Martin County, and spent all her life there. She was a member of Flat Swamp Primitive Baptist Church. She was married to Lawrence Bowen of Martin County, who died in 1919.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Neva Bell Ayers of Robersonville, two sons, Arthur Bowen of Aurora and H. B. Bowen of Robersonville. She was later married to John Warren, who died in 1936. She was also survived by two brothers, Eddie Cullifer of Williamston and Johnny Cullifer of Pinetown; nine grandchildren; and two great grandchildren.

Informal Reviews Given At Meeting Of Literature Dept.

The Literature Department of the Woman's Club met at the club house Tuesday afternoon, with Mrs. J. E. Phelps, Mrs. Claude B. West and Mrs. T. S. Womble as hostesses.

The building was made cheerful and attractive with colorful spring flowers. For refreshments, the hostesses served green and white block ice cream and fancy iced cakes accompanied by toasted pecans and coffee.

Mrs. R. P. Rogers, chairman, presided over the business session. She announced there would be no meeting of the Literature Department on March 25 as scheduled, because the Arts Festival will be held that week. Mrs. Rogers read the list of books that have been selected and approved by the committee from the Federation of Women's Clubs. She urged the members to read these books. The ones on hand were distributed.

An informal participation program was enjoyed. Different ones present gave a short review or resume of a recent book or of an outstanding magazine article they had read.

Mrs. A. W. Baker was a special guest for the afternoon.

Family Night Celebrated By Music Club

"Family Night," a musical event instituted by the Greenville Music Club two years ago, was again celebrated at their meeting on Tuesday evening held in the Woman's Club.

Mrs. K. V. Gilbert, program chairman, prepared a program which consisted of a goodly number of members of the club, but due to illness and various reasons, fully a third of the performers were not able to be present. The program given by five family groups was varied and showed much interest in the yearly event by the members as a whole.

Two songs presented by Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Spain and daughter Sudie Mae, was the first group presented. Mrs. Spain accompanying a duet sung by Mr. Spain and Sudie Mae, and Sudie Mae accompanying a solo sung by Mr. Spain. This was followed by a piano duet played by two sisters, Venetia Cox and Mrs. Oliver C. House. The Howard Bodkin family, consisting of Mrs. Bodkin and sons Frank and Tommy, presented the next numbers, a solo sung by Frank and a viola solo played by Tommy. Mrs. Bodkin accompanied both numbers at the piano. Mrs. Dink James, daughter Elizabeth and sister Agnes Fullilove, gave the next family number, which consisted of two duets sung by Mrs. James and Miss Fullilove. Elizabeth accompanied both numbers at the piano.

The closing number, presented by the K. V. Gilbert family consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert and son David, was two movements of a sonata trio for violin, flute and piano. The violin was Mr. Gilbert's instrument, the flute David's, and the piano Mrs. Gilbert's.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting by the hostess committee, consisting of: Mrs. J. Knott Proctor, Mrs. Ellie Tolson, Mrs. J. Vance Perkins, Mrs. J. B. James and Mrs. W. Z. Morton.

Musical Program Presented To Club In Fountain

FOUNTAIN—"Music Education" was the subject of the program presented to the Woman's Club of Fountain on March 6 by Mr. and Mrs. Lee Howard of Wilson and Mrs. Barbara Griffith of Goldsboro.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard rendered two piano duets from Brahms and Mrs. Howard gave a beautiful piano solo. Mrs. Griffith sang several German folk songs in German after Mrs. Howard translated them into English and told the story of each. Mrs. Griffith also sang several more familiar selections. The Howards gave an interesting number on two records—an instrument that resembles a flute. Mrs. Howard, who is a native of Berlin, Germany, explained the mechanism of this instrument and said that it is found in nearly all German homes.

Mr. Howard of Kingston is professor of music at Atlantic Christian College. Mrs. Griffith, a member of the cast of "The Lost Colony," resides in Goldsboro with her husband, who is director of music in the Goldsboro High School.

The Woman's Club met at the home of Mrs. Rod Harris with Mrs. J. M. Horton presiding over the business session that preceded the program.

For the occasion the Harris' lovely new home was decorated with spring flowers, with pink snapdragons and lavender Dutch iris centering the dining table, a lovely vase of pink glads on the piano, and jonquils in the hall.

The hostess served a most delicious dessert course of orange short-cake and coffee to about 20 members and visitors.

The Sport Reflector

By JIMMY ELLIS

If anyone has any ideas about the New York Yankees being an "old and tired" baseball club, he'd better take another look at their spring training camp.

The Yanks yesterday won their fourth Grapefruit League game in five starts when they beat Detroit, 4-1. Three of their major league pitchers did the throwing and there was hardly a single point in the game when the Tigers offered any real resistance. Not only have the Yank pitchers been doing very well, but the batters as well. In two games played over the weekend, the Yankee sluggers pounded out 18 home runs. Of course, as the Grapefruit League is not a real league, these big numbers will doubtless be cut down considerably but they look good now. Those hitting .345 by New York's leading slugger, Yogi Berra, and .333 by the old pros that will come during the course of this year.

The Yankees also had the rather dubious honor of being the first team in the Grapefruit League to come up with a major injury. Utility infielder Billy Martin broke two bones in his ankle with a slide into second base yesterday and he is out of action for some time. Martin was headlined for considerable action this year as a utility performer but may have lost his chance yesterday.

Manager Phil Cavarretta also scored a "first" earlier in the week with his Chicago Cub team. Cavarretta raised Cain with his squad Monday when he didn't like the way they played in losing to the New York Giants. The cheering out must have done some good because the Bruins went out yesterday and mopped up the Giants, 10-2, despite the presence of practically all of New York's first string men in the lineup. Jim Hearn and Sheldon Jones were two of the Giant pitchers who had to face the Cub onslaught.

Tommy Byrne, the old Wake Forest player who is now with the Browns, pitched five innings for the Browns yesterday and wound up with a 1-0 shutout win. The game was called after only five innings because of rain. Tommy had given up but one hit to the Chicago White Sox.

Grapefruit League play will continue until the teams start their way home for the season openers.

In basketball, most of the present attention in North Carolina is focused on the High School Tournament being held at Duke University today, tomorrow and Saturday. Local fans are pulling for Washington in the Class AA division but the Pam-Pack will not get to play until tomorrow afternoon when they meet Leaksville in the first game of Class AA play.

All of today's action will be carried out by the Class AAA teams. Greensboro is favored to win out in that division despite the presence of defending champion Wilmington. Both Greensboro and Wilmington suffered heavy losses from their 1951 teams but the two squads have done well in their divisions of the AAA group.

Most of the national attention on basketball is focused on the National Invitational Tournament being held in New York City. Duquesne, Dayton, LaSalle and St. Bonaventure are the four teams still in the running and Duquesne is favored to take the title.

The presence of Dayton and St. Bonaventure in the semi-finals is a victory for both the schools regardless of who wins the game between them tonight. They're both comparatively small schools and have only recently become known in the big-time of collegiate basketball.

Incidentally, Dayton has one of the taller teams in the country. They have a man 6-7 and a man 6-6 while the team average is a rather healthy six feet, five inches.

Yank Stallings of the Kingston Free Press, who has seen plenty of basketball games, is also doing some wondering if the teams in the Northeastern Conference didn't tackle too many basketball games this past season. As this column did yesterday, he had in mind the performance put on by Washington and Greenville Monday night in the Regional Finals for the Class AA District One title. Yank thinks the Kingston ball club became stale the Tuesday night they met Greenville and were not any good after that. He also believes that Washington has had enough for one season.

Women's Tourney Opens; Suggests In Top-Seeded Spot

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Louise Suggs, the Jackie Burke of women's golf whose great competitive spirit has created one of the finest winning streaks in the game, was No. 1 in the field today as the Titleholders Tournament opened. Louise's competition in this tournament, which annually is the first major meeting for the girls, is tougher than ever. But, the rugged little golfer from Carrollton, Ga., still is the pick to win her second Titleholders championship.

An Even Dozen

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP)—Ralph C. Picard and his wife, Edith S., have had it an even dozen divorce suits. Ralph filed his sixth divorce suit against his wife yesterday. Mrs. Picard entered her sixth against Ralph last Thursday. All the previous suits have been dismissed because of reconciliations. Each has accused the other of cruelty in the 12 suits. The Picards were married in Manchester, N. H., in 1944. Mrs. Picard brought the first suit less than two years ago.

State High School Tourney Opens Today

Washington Plays Leaksville In Class AA Opener

DURHAM (AP)—Sixteen of the state's top schoolboy basketball teams are in Durham for a three-day, 13-game program to determine the championships in Classes AAA, AA and A.

The "big boys" of Class AAA take over today's entire program of four games. Six games, all semi-finals, will be played tomorrow and the three championship contests will be held Saturday night in the spacious Duke Indoor Stadium.

Only Wilmington, in Class AAA, is back to defend its title. But, with Little Charlie Niven, the high-scoring spark of last year's champions graduated, the Easterners are rated back of Greensboro, Western Conference champion, and Raleigh, Eastern titleholder. Raleigh edged Greensboro, 60-49, in a great semi-final last year.

The top four teams of both conferences on the basis of season long play win AAA tournament berths. The AA and A fields are restricted to four teams each, winners of regional and sectional tournaments. Here is today's schedule for the triple-A teams:

2:30—Wilson vs. Greensboro; 4—Raleigh vs. Asheville; 7:30—Charlotte Central vs. Durham; 9—High Point vs. Wilmington.

Tomorrow's 10-hour program of six games opens at 1 p.m. with Robbina meeting Welcome in a Class A game. Washington and Leaksville follow with a Class AA game at 2:30. An AAA semi-final follows at 4 when the Charlotte-Durham winner faces the Asheville-Raleigh winner.

Knighthdale and Pleasant Garden, of Class A, go on at 6:30. Hendersonville and Laurinburg Class AA rivals, take over at 8 and at 9:30 the High Point-Wilmington victor will play the Wilson-Greensboro survivor.

The Class A finalists will open the Saturday program at 6:30. The AA finals will go on at 8 and the triple-A contest will follow at 9:30.

Sponsoring North Carolina High School Athletic Association officials have added several new features to "dress up" this year's fifth annual meet. Each of the 16 competing schools will be represented in a beauty contest tomorrow night, with the winner reigning over the finals program.

The outstanding player of the tournament, regardless of the class, will receive a trophy as will the cheer leading section doing the best job.

Western teams, shut out completely last season, hope to fare better this time. Kingston, AA winner, and Camp Lejeune, in Class A, combined with Wilmington to give the East a sweep of all 1951 titles.

Top-Seeded Duquesne LaSalle In Top NIT Game

By JOHN GRIFFIN, United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—The classy Iron Dukes of Duquesne were favored to whip the crowd-pleasing Explorers of LaSalle in a semi-final game of the National Invitational basketball tournament tonight and skyscraper Dayton was picked to beat scrappy St. Bonaventure in the other.

Duquesne was listed a five-point pick, and Dayton was the choice by three points.

Duquesne, top-seeded in play at Madison Square Garden, was given the nod because of the power it displayed in trouncing Holy Cross by 10 points in a quarter-final and because it defeated LaSalle during the regular season, 71 to 60.

LaSalle rooters, however, were quick to point out that the first clash of these two teams occurred on Duquesne's home court in Pittsburgh.

LaSalle's problem boils down to this: How to stop the sharp shooting and rebounding of Duquesne's "twin towers," six-seven Jim Tucker and six-six Dick Ricketts, inside and still squelch such outside shooters as Al Bailey.

Duquesne, on the other hand, must tie up Tom Gola, six-six LaSalle freshman who sank 30 points against NYU six-five Norm Grekin.

Bill Martin Breaks Ankle In Yankee Training Camp

Jack Burke, Jr., To Play In '52 Azalea Tourney

WILMINGTON—Jack Burke Jr. of Houston, the hottest golfer on the Winter circuit, tentatively agreed today to play in the $10,000 Azalea Open here, March 27-30. Burke has won four straight tournaments and is the only pro in the current circuit who stands a chance of beating Byron Nelson's PGA record of eight consecutive victories in 1945.

Gib Arthur, president of the Wilmington Athletic Association, today received a tentative list of pros who will participate in the Open. Fifty-seven golfers were included on the roster. The list came from St. Petersburg, Fla., and Frank Caywood, tournament supervisor, advised Arthur that he will continue to furnish him his reports.

Ted Kroll, Bobby Locke, Tommy Bolt, Cary Middlecoff, Jim Ferrier, Al Bessellink, Ed Furgol, Skee Reigel, Clayton Heafner and Marty Furgol were listed for the Azalea Open. The Cape Fear country club course, over which the Open will be played in 18-hole rounds, is one of the toughest ones on the Winter circuit. Only three other tournaments went over the 261 shot by Lloyd Mangrum in winning the tournament last year.

Mangrum will rejoin the touring pros when they come to Wilmington and defend his title. Jim Turnesa, along with Ed Furgol and Jim Ferrier, tied for second place money last year and the later two have already said they will return this year. Arthur said he is expecting Turnesa to also put in an appearance.

Princeton Gets Bid To NCAA Meet

PRINCETON, N. J. (AP)—Princeton, conceded only an outside chance before the season started, can win the Eastern "Ivy" League basketball championship—and an automatic berth in the NCAA eliminations—by beating Columbia tonight.

The Tigers were assured at least a tie for the crown when Yale upset Pennsylvania in New Haven last night, 61-56. Should the Tigers lose tonight they will get another chance to take the title by beating Penn on Saturday.

TRAINING CAMP BRIEFS

By UNITED PRESS

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UP)—Rookie Andy Carey got his big chance and Manager Casey Stengel had a new headache as the world champion New York Yankees arrived on Florida's East Coast for a game today with the Philadelphia Athletics and a three-game weekend exhibition series against the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Carey isn't even on the Yankee roster but he became the team's No. 1 third base candidate yesterday when Billy Martin broke two bones in his right ankle. Ironically, Martin, who was Stengel's leading third base prospect, was injured while sliding into second base before a movie camera which was taking pictures to be used in a Joe DiMaggio television program.

Martin's ankle will be in a cast for three weeks and he is not expected to be ready to play until about May 1.

Three other young Yanks, Bill Miller, Tom Morgan and Art Schallack, pitched the champions to a 4 to 1 exhibition triumph over Detroit yesterday at St. Petersburg.

ORLANDO, Fla. (UP)—Pitcher Glenn Elliott, the bespectacled Washington 19thander struck on the head yesterday by a ball off Mickey Vernon's bat, is expected to rejoin the Senators tomorrow at St. Petersburg for a three-inning stint against the St. Louis Cardinals.

SARASOTA, Fla. (UP)—The Boston Red Sox, who have lost three straight games, will try to break their exhibition slump today against the pitching of Sid Hudson, Don Johnson and Paul Sanchez of the Washington Senators.

Outfielder Herb Gorman's single scored Larry Miggins to give the St. Louis Cardinals a 7-6 victory over the Red Sox in 15 innings yesterday.

Cardinal rookies Jack Collum and Hal Coffman held the Red Sox hitless in the last seven innings.

LAKELAND, Fla. (UP)—The Boston Braves will try to boost their exhibition record above the 500 mark today when they invade the Detroit Tiger camp.

The Braves scored their third victory against as many defeats yesterday when they defeated the Cincinnati Reds, 7 to 5, at Bradenton, Fla.

MESA, Ariz. (UP)—The New York Giants, who began warming up to defend their National League championship by losing their first four exhibition games, make another try for their first victory today against the Chicago Cubs.

The Cubs, coasting behind a seven-run fifth inning, humiliated the Giants, 10 to 2 yesterday at Phoenix.

PASADENA, Calif. (UP)—The St. Louis Browns parlayed one-hit pitching by Tommy Byrne and Hank Arfit's triple into a 1 to 0 victory over the Chicago White Sox yesterday in a game called after five innings because of rain.

MIAMI (UP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers finally scored their first exhibition victory last night by edging the Philadelphia Phillies, 10 to 9, but they hoped to score a more clear-cut triumph over Manager Eddie Sawyer's team today.

The Dodgers came from behind in the eighth inning last night when they scored three unearned runs on as many errors without hitting the ball out of the infield against Howe Fox.

First Stock Car Races Sunday At Wilson Track

WILSON—The first in a series of NASCAR-sanctioned modified stock car races to be held during the summer months will be held Sunday afternoon at the Wilson Fairgrounds.

The races, which are operating under the auspices of the American Legion unit of Wilson, are scheduled to be held every other Sunday afternoon. Large crowds flocked to the track each day that a race was held last season, as the big-style racing came here for the first time in several years.

Time trials for the first event will start at 1:00 p.m., with races getting underway at 2:30. Heat races have been designated for 10 laps, while the main event will go for 25 laps of the half-mile banked track.

Match races between the drivers are also expected to be held. A large, covered grandstand is available for the public to use.

Included in the long list of drivers to appear next Sunday are the following well-known racers: Buck Baker of Charlotte, Joe Weatherly of Norfolk, Cotton Owens of Spartanburg and George Rickley of Norfolk, both of whom are former national champions, Jimmy Lewallen of High Point, Buddy Shuman of Clinton, and many others.

Most trees on rubber plantations yield four to five pounds of rubber a year.

REFLECTOR'S KITCHENS

Wilson & Co., as you all know, are famous meat packers, but did you know they process wonderful foods for Lenten menus, too? Take Wilson's Clearbrook Eggs, Certified or O' Fashund (Natural Cheddar) Cheese and Clearbrook Butter or Certified Margarine and whip up a cheese omelet or soufflé. Accompany it with toast and cheese and you couldn't ask for a better, tastier or higher protein meal. Here's the recipe in Lenten eating.

Choose between the milder Certified American Cheese flavor or the O' Fashund Cheese is a matter of personal preference. BUT the resulting Cheese Omelet, light and fluffy with the freshness of Clearbrook Eggs, mellowed with cheese and cooked golden brown in Clearbrook Butter or savory Certified Margarine is a universal favorite. All our taste-testers order Cheese Omelet at home. They can't get enough.

Cheese Omelet
Best until light and fluffy:
4 Wilson's Clearbrook Egg Yolks
1 Wilson's Clearbrook Egg, whole
1/2 teaspoon salt, and few grains pepper
When thickened and fluffy fold in:
1 cup shredded O' Fashund Cheese and
4 stiffly beaten Clearbrook Egg Whites
Meanwhile slowly heat up a heavy skillet to moderately hot. Add:
2 tablespoons Wilson's Certified Margarine or Clearbrook Butter
Butter will quickly melt. At once pour in the omelet mixture. Turn heat low, cover skillet and let cook slowly until nicely browned underneath. Omelet should be set (even in center) enough that an inserted knife comes out clean. Cut two one-inch gaps at outer edge opposite each other. Run spatula underneath one side and fold omelet in half. Place hot serving platter over skillet, invert omelet and it will be on platter. Garnish with cheese and parsley and serve hot. Serves 4.

*If underdone in browned and complete is not set (that is cooked) you will have to finish cooking it in oven. This will not happen if you turn heat low.

Pirates And Smugglers Flourish Off Indonesia

By FRANK L. WHITE
AP Newswriter

MANILA — Rumors of a sudden upsurge in piracy, smuggling and slave trading in the island-studded Celebes Sea have reached the foreign offices of three nations.

Comely Indonesian girls, kidnapped from their island homes, are said to be appearing in the harems of Moro (Mohammedan) chieftains on Mindanao Island in the Philippines.

The girls command high prices on the illicit slave market. They reportedly are plucked from Indonesian coastal villages by bold Moro pirates who slip in under cover of darkness, then flee in small boats powered by brightly colored sails. Many elude naval patrol craft among the reefs and atolls.

Arms Smuggling Rumors There have been other ugly rumors of guns and ammunition flowing into seething West Irian (Dutch New Guinea), where the Dutch and Indonesians accuse each other of inciting the natives to revolt.

Both nations claim West Irian. Guns and bullets from the Philippines are reported to be in great demand — just as in the days when Indonesians were battling to win their independence from the Netherlands.

Smuggling, piracy and slave trading are an old story in the waters south of the Philippines. However, the problem became one requiring action at the diplomatic level because of reports that pirates and smugglers are branching out, coupled with unrest in West Irian.

Report Requested The Philippines foreign office has asked Indonesia for a full accounting of reports that scores of Philippine citizens are in Indonesian jails.

In a campaign to stamp out pirates and smugglers, the Indonesian government has strengthened coastal patrols and reportedly has jailed anyone picked up without an official permit.

The drive was order originally to curb the depredations of Moro pirates who seized copra boats off Indonesia, then sold the cargoes in British North Borneo.

Indonesia wants the Philippines to do something about kidnapers.

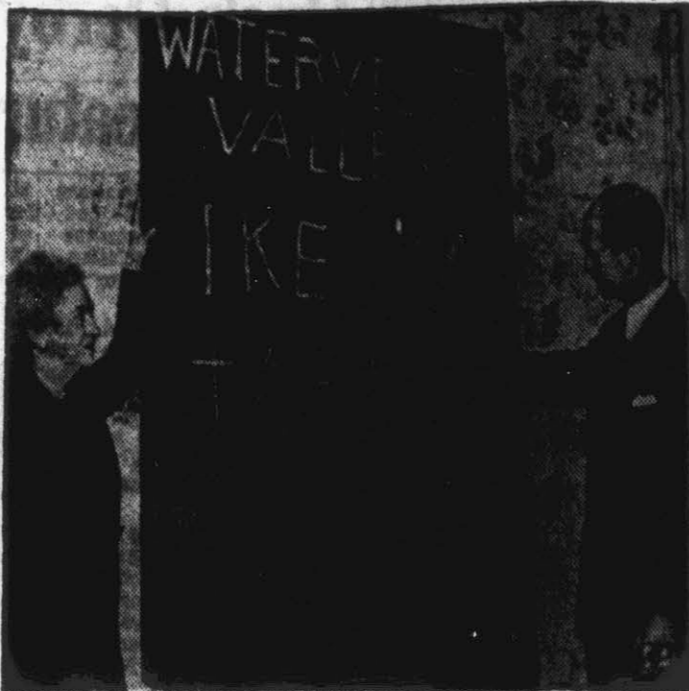

Resistance Expected If the reports are true, the Moros could be expected to resist any attempt to interfere. While they are Philippine citizens, they never have been actually conquered.

The Spanish, the Americans, and finally the Filipinos all have tried without success to subdue the fierce Mohammedan warriors. The Philippines national bureau of investigation and congressional committees have been probing smuggling activities. There never has been an official disclosure of what they found.

The Netherlands government is keenly interested and is making its own investigation. Both Indonesian and Netherlands diplomats have been in consultation with the foreign office here.

Frightened By Hanging Dummy

ROCKFORD, Ill. — (AP) — Frightened motorists called police on a recent Saturday night to report seeing the body of a man hanging from a railroad viaduct. Police cut it down. It wore a mask and was fully dressed, including hat and shoes. It was a dummy.

Mathematician Has Rumor Under Study

CHICAGO (UP) — A professor, The experiment was conducted said today he hopes to develop a by Stuart C. Dodd, head of the mathematical theory to determine University of Washington's public among other things whether good opinion laboratory.

Anatol Rapoport of the University of Chicago believes he can set down mathematical equations which will show how rumors are spread.

Rapoport is one of a group of men, headed by Nicholas Rashevsky, who are working in a new branch of science known as mathematical biology. They believe that mass behavior can be explained in mathematical terms.

Rapoport already has applied a theoretical formula to an actual experiment in rumor spreading conducted on the West Coast.

The experiment was staged in a small town by University of Washington researchers working on an Air Force project.

The researchers "planted a rumor" among housewives by having advertising leaflets dropped from airplanes.

The leaflets said that anyone who could find out a new advertising slogan before its public release could collect a pound of coffee free from a local grocery.

The slogan itself was told to 40 persons. Each told others, and within three days the word had spread to 100 of the little town's 306 housewives, or to 80 per cent of the "concerned population."

Further, starting a new lawn is a fussy, expensive, muscle — and time — consuming project which should be undertaken after consultation with experts, study of soils, moisture and other factors. Obviously it requires more information than could — or should — be contained in a single, short newspaper item. Hence we should skip that subject entirely and go immediately to spring care of established lawns — a "must" in every gardener's and homeowner's calendar.

Chances are good indeed that the lawn, after the winter, contains some spots which require renovation or, at least supplementing. When there's a good sized area needing attention, spade it to a depth of at least 4 inches, work in a couple of inches of humus, peat moss or compost to break up the soil, and reseed, after raking it smooth.

There may be a few small, water-collecting hollows around the lawn which may be built up by raking in a rich topdressing — but not more than a half-inch at a time or the grass will be smothered. If depression is large, dig the soil to loosen it, fill the hole and reseed. Sometimes the hole may be filled by peeling the established sod back, filling the hole under it, placing.

Spring is an excellent time to give the lawn a feeding. Plan to use about four pounds of a balanced fertilizer like 6-10-4 to each 100 square feet. A perfect time for this feeding is before new spring growth starts.

Fertilizer can be spread on top of a light layer of snow, to be washed into the ground as it melts. In the alternative, spread it when the grass is fairly dry and follow by a good soaking to carry the nutrients into the soil. (But if crabgrass is a major problem, spring feedings also give it a healthy spread or suppression of rumors.

Some of the practices that farmers may carry out that make them eligible for CP funds are permanent pasture, spreading lime, applying fertilizer, and introducing both open and tile drainage.

Farm Allocation Still Has Funds

Pitt County farmers were informed today that more than $12,000 still remains in the local Agriculture Conservation Program allocation for this year.

James Meredith, secretary of the Pitt Production and Marketing Administration, said this morning that all farmers who have not received the limit under the program may apply for assistance immediately.

"I want to encourage farmers to come in and apply for assistance while funds for that purpose are still available," the secretary stated. "If they have not received the limit and plan to carry out one or more of the prescribed practices, they should certainly come by the PMA office and make application."

Faculty members and staff members of East Carolina College have contributed $400 thus far in the 1952 Red Cross Fund Campaign which began the first of March.

Dr. Leo Jenkins, dean of the college and chairman of the fund campaign in the county, said the college had made a fine record in its contributions and they could always be depended upon to do their share.

Dr. Robert Holt is in charge of donations from the faculty members and staff and he said donations were continuing to come in from the college.

Plan No Inquest In Brock Death

Charlie Brock, white, age 56, was found dead yesterday morning in his front yard.

Coroner Griffin H. Rouse said the man died of natural causes and no inquest would be held.

The man lived on Mabel Polard's farm at Ballard's Cross Roads.

Pleasant Green Lawns Require Lots Of Work

By CYNTHIA LOWEY
AP Newswriter

As those unpleasant early Spring winds — which so usefully help dry up winter-drenched soil — blow in, comes the opening of that long, long season devoted to the care of the nation's most popular growing thing: grass.

Lawn culture for most of us is a necessary evil, a bore and a potential backache. This attitude is partly induced by the fact that grass does nothing sensational, like come into dramatic bloom as a rose. It just turns green and — hopefully — stays that way. It also demands rolling, feeding, sweeping and — above all — eternal mowing. However, a house without a lawn would be almost un-American.

Spring, however, is not the ideal time to set about building a new lawn. Lots of people have had success with spring lawns, but the odds of weather, temperature and competition from sturdy annual weeds are against it.

Consult the Experts Furthermore, starting a new lawn is a fussy, expensive, muscle — and time — consuming project which should be undertaken after consultation with experts, study of soils, moisture and other factors. Obviously it requires more information than could — or should — be contained in a single, short newspaper item. Hence we should skip that subject entirely and go immediately to spring care of established lawns — a "must" in every gardener's and homeowner's calendar.

Chances are good indeed that the lawn, after the winter, contains some spots which require renovation or, at least supplementing. When there's a good sized area needing attention, spade it to a depth of at least 4 inches, work in a couple of inches of humus, peat moss or compost to break up the soil, and reseed, after raking it smooth.

There may be a few small, water-collecting hollows around the lawn which may be built up by raking in a rich topdressing — but not more than a half-inch at a time or the grass will be smothered. If depression is large, dig the soil to loosen it, fill the hole and reseed. Sometimes the hole may be filled by peeling the established sod back, filling the hole under it, placing.

Spring is an excellent time to give the lawn a feeding. Plan to use about four pounds of a balanced fertilizer like 6-10-4 to each 100 square feet. A perfect time for this feeding is before new spring growth starts.

Fertilizer can be spread on top of a light layer of snow, to be washed into the ground as it melts. In the alternative, spread it when the grass is fairly dry and follow by a good soaking to carry the nutrients into the soil. (But if crabgrass is a major problem, spring feedings also give it a healthy start. So you might skip the spring meal in favor of a September or October one.)

Grass, like other plants, suffers more from light sprinklings than they do from actual drought. However you do it, with a sprinkler or soaker, make sure the water penetrates four or more inches deep. In the case of new-sown grass, try to keep the soil moist — not wet — up through the first inch while the roots are getting established.

Wait until the lawn is fairly dry, and has a springy, spongy reaction to your feet before you roll it. Remember that the purpose of rolling is not level the lawn surface, but merely to press back into contact with soil the roots which have been heaved and washed out by the action of successive freezeings and thaws during the winter. The roller should be fairly heavy — but not a dead weight which would crush the tender plants. Around 150 pounds is usually enough weight for the job.

Mowing Starts Early Mowing should start when the new growth starts. Ideally, cutting blades should be adjusted not closer than 1 1/2 inches from the ground, preferably 2 inches. It is better for the grass, and easier on the person who mows, to cut the grass frequently. If the tops aren't too long, the clippings will fall among the plants and form a protective mulch and provide food for them. Otherwise they must be swept up. The day of the chemical weed-killer is upon us, so that the broad-leaved weeds like plantain, buckhorn and dandelion can be controlled with 2,4-D preparations — and do follow the manufacturer's instructions to the letter. There are also commercial preparations for the destruction of crabgrass.

Use DDT Cautiously Be careful about using DDT for pest control — it kills friendly and beneficial things as well.

Don't use a hard rake on the lawns. A bamboo sweeper or a metal broom-type is essential either for gathering clippings or for gathering leaves.

Rice paper, so named because it is mistakenly supposed to be made from rice, is actually made from the pith of a small tree.

Attorney Claims Alger Hiss Convicted On Bad Evidence

NEW YORK (UP)—An attorney hoped today to win a third trial for Alger Hiss by proving that the former State Department "boy wonder" was convicted of perjury on the evidence of a "fake" typewriter.

Chester T. Lane said in Federal Court yesterday he can show that the Woodstock typewriter was "a deliberately fabricated job, a new type face on an old body."

He said it was planted at the trial "by or on behalf of Whitaker Chambers as part of his plot for the false incrimination of Alger Hiss."

Hiss, now serving a five-year prison term, was convicted on charges of lying when he said he never gave Chambers, former Red courier, secret papers to be handed over to a Russian spy ring.

Chambers kept the papers in a hollowed out pumpkin on his Maryland country estate and witnesses at the trial testified they were typed on the disputed machine. They have since been known as the "Pumpkin Papers."

Hiss, who went to prison maintaining he was innocent, sought a third trial on the ground the documents could have been forged.

Arguments on the motion for a third trial were scheduled for April 8 before Judge Henry Goddard, presiding jurist at the second trial which ended in Hiss' conviction.

Lane produced an affidavit signed by Dr. Daniel P. Norman, president of Skinner and Sherman, consulting industrial chemists of Boston, who examined the disputed

Woodstock typewriter and eight other machines. Norman's affidavit said the typewriter, vital evidence in the conviction of Hiss, "shows positive signs of having been deliberately altered, in that many of its types are replacements of the originals, and have been deliberately shaped."

Boy Struck By Train; Suffers Only Broken Leg

HANNA, Wyo. (UP) — An 11-year-old schoolboy dashed into the path of Union Pacific's crack streamliner "City of Los Angeles" here—and escaped with only a broken leg.

Young Rudy Duran, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Duran, ran from between sidetracked cars into the fast moving streamliner's path yesterday. Train engineer Ralph Broderick heard the thud, and notified officials that he believed a boy had been killed.

A search of the area failed to turn up a body—and it was later disclosed the boy walked from the scene of the accident until his leg began to hurt. His 14-year-old brother, Andy, carried him the rest of the way home.

Officials believed the boy stumbled just before the train hit him, and was struck a glancing blow that saved his life.

Thief Grabbed Shop's Diamonds

MIAMI (UP)—A hulking, freckle faced thief scooped up $100,000 worth of cut diamonds in a jewelry store here and vanished as his accomplice kept the store's owner busy exhibiting carving knives yesterday.

"There have been no arrests," a police official said today, "and that pretty well sums up the situation."

Detective Joel McNeill termed it "a bona fide theft by someone who knew the entire layout."

Police said the accomplice entered the store and asked owner David Rabinowitz to show him some carving knives. The second man then came in and sat down near a switchboard operator at the door to Rabinowitz' office.

A few seconds later the thief walked into the office, opened a desk drawer and removed a small wooden box containing the gems. He walked out hurriedly, followed by his accomplice and both broke into a run.

Rabinowitz gave chase but lost sight of the pair. He said the box contained cut diamonds worth $100,000 only partly covered by insurance.

The switchboard operator, Lynda Valentine, said she did not suspect the store was being robbed and when the thief came out of the office asked him if she could help him.

"No, I'm in a hurry," he replied. "I've got to go."

Embezzling Was Done In Quarters

NEW YORK (UP)—Fred E. Riedel, 57, assistant head of a coin department in a bank, was charged yesterday with embezzling $800 in quarters over an eight-year period.

When arrested by FBI agents Tuesday, Riedel had 141 quarters in his pockets, representing the day's take.

Civil Defense In Surprise Test

NEW YORK (UP)—An unannounced statewide emergency test of civil defense communications caught many TV viewers and radio listeners in this area by surprise last night.

Shortly before midnight a sign reading "this is a civil defense program" was flashed on TV sets. Radio programs also were interrupted briefly. A message about the importance of communications to defense efforts was read to the listeners.

Called at random MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UP) — City Recorder John Scott fined James Stele 65 and costs after finding him guilty of dialing telephone numbers at random "in order to become acquainted." The calls were an invasion of privacy, Scott said yesterday.

Police Bullets Kill Young Vet In 'Tragic Mistake'

NEW ORLEANS (UP)—Police bullets killed a 33-year-old war veteran here in a tragedy of errors shortly after his wife told him she felt "something terrible" was about to happen.

Vincent Cappo was wounded fatally in the stomach early yesterday as he stood in the dark doorway of a staircase leading to his upstairs flat. Over the door hung an ace of spades, advertising his business, the Ace Cleaners.

Cappo's beautiful red-haired wife Lena, said he had seen two policemen around his car and mistakenly thinking they were auto thieves had gone to investigate.

The 27-year-old widow tearfully told this story: "We had attended a wake at a funeral home for a friend last night (Tuesday). After we got back I was feeling blue and couldn't sleep."

"I jumped out of bed about 4 o'clock and told Vincent I had some terrible feeling, like somebody was going to come into our house in the night."

"I finally went to sleep. Later my husband awakened me and said thieves were breaking into the car. He got his pistol and tiptoed downstairs."

"Then I heard shots and screams and curses. Vincent cried 'my God!' I screamed and ran to the stairs and tumbled down and saw Vincent staggering back against the doorway."

"He pulled himself back up the stairs and fell on the floor. Those policemen were following him with guns in their hands."

"I was crying and I asked them 'why did you shoot him?'"

"A detective in plain clothes shouted in my face, 'I'll be —! You got a hell of a nerve. All this fussing, and a policeman shot!'"

"It was dark and he couldn't see who it was," sobbed Mrs. Cappo. "We had been robbed of 140 just a week or two before. He was just trying to protect his property and they killed him."

Police agreed Cappo probably did not recognize them as officers. Two of them, Charles Newman and Nicholas Cristina, said they fired after a shot from the doorway wounded Patrolman Julius Kimble, 29, in the left leg.

The three said they had stopped to investigate an automobile with one of its doors open after arresting five persons in the block.

They claimed they had received numerous complaints of narcotics sales and car thefts in the neighborhood.

Mrs. Cappo said the officers would not let her touch her husband. She said an ambulance finally arrived and took him to a hospital, where he died two hours later asking for relief from "this terrible pain."

Cappo, who served with the Army in the Pacific during World War II, "was just getting started in business," his wife said. They had been married about two and a half years and had a five-month-old daughter, Nina.

Big Gas Flame Is Pilots' Beacon

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The Calstate Refining Co. here doesn't have any trouble with its huge open gas flame until workmen turn it off.

The big torch, seen for miles at night, burns off surplus gases from the plant. On rare occasions when the flame doesn't burn, the plant and local police station are swamped with telephone calls with the complaint: "The torch is out."

The flame is also a marker for pilots who land at Long Beach Air Terminal, a company official said.

Duck Derby, Fashion Show Featured Tonight

A number of organizations at East Carolina College and the Trade Promotion Committee of the Merchants' Association will sponsor a "Duck Derby" here Thursday, March 20.

The derby will be held at the Wright Gymnasium at the college and a fashion show of spring styles will be held. The proceeds of the derby and fashion show will be used for the Loan Scholarship Fund for Elementary Education, and to promote the work of sponsoring firms.

Business firms, civic groups and individuals will be asked to enter a duck in the derby and each duck will try the sponsors name or name that they may select. Co-eds of the college, in attractive outfits, will drive the ducks in heats and winners will be awarded prizes.

Every merchant who enters a duck in the derby is invited by the sponsors to participate in the fashion show. The college will assist in providing models for the show.

A parade will also be held Thursday afternoon, beginning at 3:45 and will form on Dickinson Avenue and Ninth Street at 3:30. The Greenville High School Band and the Dixie Jazz Band of ECC have been invited to participate in the parade.

The co-eds at the college who will drive the ducks in the derby will ride in open cars in the parade and all civic clubs and similar organizations have been invited to enter a float or decorated car or truck. Business firms and college and high school clubs have also been invited to enter a float or decorated vehicle. A number of farm equipment dealers have been invited to display their merchandise.

J. B. Smith, Jr., will line up the parade and act as marshal. Assisting him are Larry Averette, J. A. Taylor, J. W. Butler, C. Heber Forbes, and J. B. Vaughan.

The Fashion Show will be opened by Carolyn Elsew who will appear in a bunny suit and sing "Easter Parade". Children's outfits, suits, shoes, jewelry, sportswear, dressy clothes, evening dressing, and men's wear will be featured.

In charge of the arrangements for the fashion show are H. F. Steinbeck, Mrs. Louise Carrigan and Mrs. W. E. Dole.

Sponsoring the duck derby are the Association of Childhood Education, Circle K, Future Teachers of America, East Carolina Alumni, and the Trade Promotion Committee of the Merchants' Association.

The derby is under the direction of Dr. Ed Carter of ECC and members of the sponsoring organizations.

Masters of ceremonies for the event will be J. W. Butler, Mrs. W. E. Dole, and B. B. Suggs, Jr. Judges for the derby will be W. T. Kyzer, Mrs. J. H. Thomas, and Allan Powell.

New Adjustment Said Needed By German Youth

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A pretty exchange student from the free University of Berlin and now a doctoral candidate at Carnegie Tech says German youths have not had time to adjust themselves from war to peace and then to rearmament.

Blue-eyed Irene V. Reitsenstein thinks some of the confusion in the minds of German youth could be alleviated if the university could afford more cultural programs. This would give the students the spiritual strength needed.

Many of the students, she says, are refugees from the Soviet zone of Berlin where no Western papers are permitted and the radio stations are policed. Most refugees and west Germans can't afford to go to school.

Parked On Track, Blocks Traffic

ELGIN, Ill. (AP) — When Donald L. Sprague of nearby Aurora visits this city again, he'll watch how he parks his car.

He parked his car on the Chicago and North Western Railroad tracks which cut diagonally through the downtown area. Police searched the town for Sprague when a train was blocked, tying up automobile traffic.

Sprague finally showed up at the police station and reported his car was missing. Police told him he could reclaim it by paying the charges incurred in towing his car away.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BARBUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

The spring clean-up, paint-up, fix-up custom is one of the best things that ever happened to home owners. You can't bask in the sun on the back steps and whittle, letting the house go to rack and ruin, when all the neighbors are busy sprucing up their places. You naturally get busy and before you know it, you've tallied up a neat saving.

A good paint job can increase the value of a house by 12 per cent—that's an old rule of thumb among real estate appraisers. There are two reasons:

1. By keeping the weather out, you give the house a new lease on life and make it more comfortable, because you can then sit around and enjoy it without distractions of damp spots here and blisters there.
2. By adding to the beauty of the place, you enhance its attractiveness to others, increasing its resale value, thereby protecting your investment.

In the old days when mortgages came due every five years, lending institutions used to compel householders to repaint before the mortgage could be renewed. The lenders knew the value of a paint job and took no chances on having the security for a loan undermined by the insidious effects of weather wear and tear. But now with long term monthly payment mortgages, no one can step in and tell a man when to paint. He's on his own.

And he paint-up season is better than a string around a finger. Paint manufacturers have accomplished a great deal in making painting almost foolproof. If—and it's a big if—you follow directions.

Proper application is so important that the American Builder magazine, trade publication for home builders, tells contractors in its current issue: "You can give a good mechanic poor material and he will do wonders with it; but nothing can save a good material in the hands of a poor mechanic."

One of the worst extravaganzas is to skimp on exterior paint job. Cheap paint, or trying to spread good paint too far, can cost you more in the long run than if you start right. When a coat of paint goes bad, you can't just paint over it, unless you want to throw dollars to the wind. The original coat will have to be removed—probably burned off—and you'll spend 3 per cent more than if you had started right.

One way to spoil good paint is to add an extra quart of linseed concerned about too much spending. They feared the state budget would be as much out of balance on the debit side at end of the Scott regime as it was on the credit side when he began his campaign.

STALIN — That might have happened but for the impact of other outside influences. Josef Stalin began set up to start what many people even now regard as the third world war of this generation. That brought more national government spending, more inflationary income for North Carolinians and more money into the state treasury from the long standing income and sales tax levies. The slump in state revenue that occurred soon after adjournment of the 1949 assembly did not last long. Outbreak of the "incident" in Korea occasioned a faster and greater jump than did the attack on Pearl Harbor. Governors Broughton and Cherry had justifiable pride in the surpluses they left in the treasury, along with understandable regret their administrations could not render all the services desired. Governor Scott is fully justified in boasting of the fact that he put the little money he found in the treasury to work, and that the newly borrowed money served the intended purpose of advancing the state. He can also boast, as did Broughton and Cherry, that his administration did not burden the state or deplete the treasury.

REPUBLIC — Back of all the loom the stalwart figures of Rufe Doughton and Walter Bingham and their predecessors and colleagues who formulated the sound fiscal policy which had sustained North Carolina's continued advancement. Also there can be discerned in the shadows, the figures of minor and minor whose ambitions for world dominance occasioned the military processes that made more tax dollars available.

Scale Can Weigh The Invisible

St. Louis — (AP) — Standard Chemical Co. weighs invisible quantities of radio-active materials.

The company has a scale of the mound laboratory in Mississippi, O., operated for the Atomic Energy Commission, with a balance so sensitive it can detect weight differences as small as one three-billionth of an ounce.

The first Rotary Club was formed in Chicago in 1905.

Blind-Flying B-29s Collide In Mid-Air

NEW BRAUNFELS, Tex. (UP)—Two blind-flying B-29 Superfortresses collided in flight crashed and exploded on the barren brush country near here yesterday. The Air Force said today that all 15 men aboard were killed.

E.C. McDonald, witness to the crash, said one of the B-29s approached the other from the left and rear. It chwed into the leading plane's fuselage, shearing the tail off.

The forward section of the crippled plane, carrying eight men, "fell right down on its back," McDonald said, and burst into flames when it hit.

"Its tail section floated down a few minutes later," he added.

The second plane "maintained its altitude and course for several minutes longer," McDonald said, "then...went into a steep glide and hit."

It also exploded on impact, four miles from the spot where the first plane crashed.

Authorities at Randolph Air Force Base, where the 29s were based, said both planes had canvas covers over the cockpits as part of the instruction of the students on transition training.

Officials could offer no explanation of why none of the seven men in the second plane parachuted. No radio distress signal was sent out by the plane.

A Randolph investigation team was assigned immediately and the Air Force flying safety investigation team from Norton Air Force Base, San Bernardino, Calif., was due today.

McDonald said the second Superfort seemed undamaged after it had severed the tail of the first. The crash occurred about 1:40 p.m. yesterday. One of the Superforts had been in flight only 11 minutes, said Lt. Bill Adams, Randolph public information officer.

RIDGEWAY ASSAILS REDS: Gen. Matthew B. Ridgeway, supreme commander, wearing his customary battle dress including a grenade strapped to his right shoulder tells news men at Munsan, Korean peace camp, Red accusations of bacteriological warfare are "known falsehoods." He said it was impossible for him to guess what would happen next in current peace talks with the Reds. Vice-Adm. Turner C. Joy, chief UN negotiator (left), listens as Ridgeway talks. Driver Paid No Heed To Shouts

MOUNT HOLLY, N.J. (UP)—An automobile dragged a three-year-old girl nearly half a mile while pedestrians waved vainly at the 16-year-old driver and the child screamed for help, police reported today.

Hanging to the rear bumper without the knowledge of John Schlosser, the driver, Mary Ann Hatfield dropped to the street after a 700 yard ride yesterday. She was treated for shock and brush burns.

Police could not determine whether the child's clothing caught on the bumper when Schlosser started up or whether she was afraid to let go. The girl had been playing in the vicinity of the car. Schlosser wears a hearing aid, police said.

Chain Is Charged With Conspiracy

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UP)—Officials of the National Toddle House Corp., faced trial today on an indictment charging they formed "a conspiracy for the purpose of defrauding the United States."

Seven of the restaurant chain's officers are accused in an indictment returned yesterday with misrepresenting prices charged for certain food items during the OPS base period of Dec. 19, 1950 to Jan. 28, 1951, which would allow the firm to charge higher prices than it is entitled to do.

Never Again

DENVER, Colo. — (UP) — A 55-year-old husband looked up from his hospital bed today and said: "From now on my wife does the grocery shopping."

The husband, Willard Geer, was shot through the neck when he interrupted a $2,500 holdup of a grocery store.

"I've been trying to tell her for years," Geer said. "But the shooting clinched it. From now on, Mildred — my wife — does the grocery buying."

Geer was shot when he walked into the Safeway Store here. When one of the four stickup men told him this is a "holdup," Geer said "I laughed and said 'Oh yeah!'"

The gunman shot him late last night, police captured the three men and a blonde woman who admitted the robbery and shooting.

Club To Organize Softball League

PACTOLUS — The Pactolus Ruritan club at its monthly meeting Monday night voted in favor of organizing a softball league among the Ruritan clubs of Pitt County.

Noel Lee, Jr., was appointed by the club to contact other Ruritan clubs in the county and organize the softball league if other clubs will join in the project. The softball league would be operated similar to the basketball league of Pitt Ruritan clubs this winter.

It was reported to the club that the Stokes Ruritan approved at their meeting this month the joint meeting of the Pactolus and Stokes Ruritan which was proposed by the Pactolus Club. The joint meeting is slated to be held in June.

President W. F. Little presided at the meeting of the club which was attended by approximately 75 percent of the club members. Guests at the meeting included Marvin Boyd of Greenville route five, and A. U. Leggett of Stokes route one.

Solons' Heated Outbusts Fall Far Short Of Being Intellectual

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON — (AP) — After a few years in politics many a man develops a skin so thick it never twitches when the opposition pelts him with dead cats.

Not so with Sen. Taft and Sen. Connally. They've served long and been in many Capitol battles, but both men remain as sensitive to criticism as anyone in Washington.

Let a Democrat stick a needle in Taft at his Senate desk and the Ohio Republican develops a great restlessness which manifests itself in a sudden busy shuffling of his papers.

And when a Republican roughs up Connally, the white-haired Texas Democrat looks like a thermometer in mid-July. His face reddens. He practically dances up and down in his desire to talk back. And he pumps his arms when he answers.

This week he got pretty rough on Taft, who went down to Connally's own Texas to criticize him. This isn't the first time Taft blasted the Truman foreign policy and Connally, who is the Democrats' chief man on foreign affairs in the Senate. But most of Taft's remarks about Connally had been made here in Washington.

This time Taft cut loose on him and President Truman in Texas, where Connally is running for reelection.

The Texan accused Taft of trading his integrity for a "few slimy votes." And more of the same. What he said about Taft and what the Ohioan's Republican Senate colleagues said in Taft's defense provided a fiery few minutes in the Senate.

Because of the emotional nature of the oratory historians may not consider it to be quite the same intellectual level with some senatorial discussions of the past.

For example, here is a little discussion between Connally, Sen. Butler, Maryland Republican, and Sen. Millikin, Colorado Republican, who got in on the act after Connally jibed at Taft for being in Houston instead of in Washington:

Butler — I should like to ask the senator from Texas where the President of the United States is today. The president was in Key West, Fla.

Connally — It is not my business to find out. The senator from Maryland can go ahead and hunt him up. If the senator from Maryland does not read the newspapers and if he does not have sufficient information on what is going on in the world to answer that question, he has no business to ask anybody else about it. I would suggest that the senator from Maryland read the newspapers.

Butler — I should like to very much.

Connally — I would suggest that the senator from Maryland read his newspaper.

Butler — Has the senator from Texas read his newspaper?

Connally — I would say to the senator from Maryland: "Go ahead and read your paper this afternoon."

Butler — Where is the President of the United States? I have

Congressional Races To Put Life In Political Campaign

By LYNN NISBET
RALEIGH—Entry of Lawrence H. Fountain of Edgecombe as a formal candidate for Congress in the second district brings the number of assured congressional races to five among the twelve districts. There is definite prospect that before the filing deadline Saturday of next week the voters of two or three other districts will have to choose a Democratic nominee for the congress.

The second district race against the veteran John H. Kerr, Sr., who has served the district since 1923. A likely prospect is Julian Allsbrook of Halifax, who is known to have cherished congressional ambitions for a long time. Allsbrook said sometime ago he would not run if Kerr did not have other opposition. Now that the line has been broken, he may get in and there might be entries from the southern end of that district which rambles across the map from Warren to Lenoir — and reaches out to embrace Bertie County. Other districts in which contests are certain include the sixth, where State Senator Tom Sawyer of Durham has announced against incumbent Carl T. Durham of Chapel Hill; the seventh, where J. O. Tally, Jr., of Cumberland is vigorously campaigning against incumbent Eitel Carlisle of Robeson; the ninth, here Hugh Alexander of Cabarrus and Graham Carlton of Rowan have announced for the seat left vacant by retirement of Robert L. Doughton; and the twelfth, where George Shuford, Frank Parker and Dale Thrash of Buncombe and A. A. Rice of Jackson are seeking the place vacated by retirement of Monroe Redden.

Primary opposition to incumbents Herbert Bonner in the first district; Graham Barden in the third; Thurmond Chatham in the fifth; and Woodrow Jones in the eleventh is not apparent. Harold Cooley in the fourth district has a good chance to get by without a contest, although it might develop next week. Charles B. Dean in the eighth and Hamilton C. Jones in the tenth are less certain of nomination by default.

Cooley appeared to be fairly safe from opposition until he gratuitously stated a few days ago that he favored re-nomination and election of President Truman. That set off a lot of opposition talk which had been withheld, despite some feeling in his district that he was giving more attention to his private law practice than to serving his constituents. His position as chairman of the committee on agriculture, however, is expected to prevent serious challenge for his office.

Deane was also counted "safe" a few weeks ago, but lately there has developed a good bit of resentment over his almost perfect (7) record of voting with the national administration. Most likely opponent is Brooks Price of Union county, a staunch supporter of the Scott regime in the state, but whose preliminary statements indicate he may run on a more "conservative" platform than Deane's.

Hamilton Jones in the tenth is faced with the familiar problem of threatened opposition in the primary and certain strong opposition in the general election.

In his tenth district, as in the ninth and eighth, the Democrats are concerned about November. The general election doesn't bother the other districts. Democratic nominees are sure of election. In the eighth, ninth and tenth districts November is more important than May. Where the switch of a few hundred votes can mean the difference between a Democrat or a Republican in congress, political practicalities dictate that personal popularity among Democrats is not so important as vote-getting power in the general election.

As of now, and on basis of purely Democratic primary strength, all of the incumbent congressmen seeking re-election seem to be in reasonably good shape. That doesn't mean they are "safe," because almost anything can happen. It does mean that opposing candidates must recognize that the burden of proof lies with them and they must show beyond reasonable doubt that they can do a better job than the incumbents.

Mr. and Mrs. Houdini ?

When George Pal, Hollywood producer, announced movie plans based on the life of the famous escape artist, Harry Houdini, he received nationwide nominations for the principal roles by professional magicians. On the west coast, Gerrie Larsen, "The Magic Lady" of TV and theater, was mentioned for the Mrs. Houdini part after a personal interview with the producer. On the east coast a Paramount talent scout spotted Milbourne Christopher, a world-traveled and TV magician. He was recommended for the Houdini role. Recently, Miss Larsen flew east to play a magic date. It was a good opportunity for "Mrs. Houdini" ... maybe ... to meet Mr. Houdini ... maybe.

Surrounded by Houdini mementos, Gerrie Larsen, west coast magicienne, and Milbourne Christopher, eastern prestidigitator, make like Mr. and Mrs. Houdini. She wears a gem studded brooch given to Houdini by the Grand Duke of Russia. Miss Larsen was presented with the heirloom by Mrs. Houdini before she died. The other mementos are from Christopher's valuable private collection.

Lots Of Jobs, But Many Idle

MELBOURNE, Australia — (AP) — Vacant jobs in Australia are fewer today, but there is still plenty of employment.

Secretary H. A. Bland, of the Labor and National Service Department, said the number of vacant jobs in this Dominion fell from 140,000 to 100,000 between August, 1951, and last month.

Bland told newsmen the demand for workers in many industries is still in excess of supply. However, there has been a falling off of employment in the clothing, footwear, textile and radio industries, he said.

Nylon Vest

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—American infantrymen in Korea are testing a lightweight armored vest that is all nylon. It weighs only seven or eight pounds — about half the weight of metal alloy vests, the Army said today.

Last February the Army tried nylon vests that contained protective inserts of lightweight metal.

The latest vest is designed to protect against mortar, grenade and shell fragments. These normally account for 60 to 80 per cent of combat wounds.

Made of 13 layers of nylon, the vest is light and flexible. It has two breast pockets and straps for a cartridge belt.

Family Follows Soldier, Anchorage To Germany

CHICAGO (UP)—Grain markets were mostly fully steady on the Board of Trade at mid-morning in rather quiet dealings.

Price changes were rather small as there was no particular trading incentives.

Wheat traders continued to direct attention to the attitude of producers to sell grain. However, no general redemptions of loan wheat were expected unless the profit to farmers increased materially.

Comedian Hugh Herbert Is Dead

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (UP)—Comedian Hugh Herbert, 66, whose foggy hands and giggling "wo wo wo" brought chuckles to movie and theater goers for four decades, died unexpectedly at his home last night of a heart attack.

The smiling little comedian with the baggy eyes succumbed shortly after 9 p.m. EST, to end a career of performing, writing and directing that included nearly a quarter of a century in vaudeville.

He was attended by his personal physician and long-time friend, Dr. Victor Kovnar, who said Herbert called him a short time before he died and complained of feeling ill.

Death came to the little comic one week after he completed a two-reel comedy movie for Columbia Studio.

He appeared on a television show two weeks ago, and his last stage appearance was two months ago in New Orleans, where he played a comedy role in a Metropolitan Opera Co. presentation of "Der Fliegende Holländer."

He was a stage headliner for nearly 25 years but was almost as well known as a playwright. During his career, he wrote 150 plays, vaudeville sketches and plays.

His most famous role in vaudeville was in "Son of Solomon," a comedy skit he wrote himself.

In the early film days, he acted, wrote and directed. He was co-author of the first full-length talking picture, "The Lights of New York."

He later joined Fox Movietone Studio, where he wrote and played in the film "Mind Your Business" and other films.

His most recent pictures were "Ever Since Eve," "Beauty for Sale," "Kismet," "A Miracle Can Happen" and "Beautiful Blonde from Bashful Bend."

The family of Sgt. Norman Stokes embarks next week on one more phase of the globe-trotting life known to professional army men, when they leave Greenville for Stuttgart, Germany. Above, Mrs. Stokes, daughters Norma Jean, 3, Barbara Ann, 2, and Ronald, 6 months. The two girls were born in Anchorage, Alaska, at the time their father was stationed there. (Staff Photo by Muriel Shotwell).

Mrs. Norman B. Stokes, wife of Sergeant First Class Norman Stokes, and her three children leave next week for New York and then on to Germany where Sgt. Stokes is stationed.

The family, which is made up of Norma Jean, age three, Barbara Ann, two, and Ronald, six months, will have a brief stay in Stuttgart, Germany by plane, where Sgt. Stokes is stationed.

Sgt. Stokes is planning a twenty-year army career, and has ten more years to go. His family expects to be in Germany with him for at least the next three or four years.

The Stokes family returned from Anchorage, Alaska, 16 months ago where Sgt. Stokes was stationed since early 1950. Two of the children, Norma Jean and Barbara Ann, were born there. Mrs. Stokes said in Alaska they resided in apartment-style government quarters. With steam heat, they were quite comfortable despite the near-Arctic cold.

Sgt. Stokes and his family flew from Alaska when they came home for the first time in three years. They flew to Fort Lewis, Washington, and then traveled to Fort George Meade, Maryland, where the family has lived for ten months, broken only by a short visit to their original home in Greenville.

In Germany Mrs. Stokes is expecting to see her brother, Sgt. William T. Padgett, who has been stationed there for six years.

Mrs. Stokes is the daughter of Mrs. J. W. Padgett, Evans Street, Greenville. Sgt. Stokes is the son of Mrs. Pearl Stokes of Cotanche Street, Greenville.

Dares Gov't To Collect Tax

SUMMIT, Miss. (UP)—An outspoken woman editor challenged the federal government today to "either confiscate my business or put me in prison."

Mrs. Mary D. Cain, editor of the weekly Summit, Miss., Sun, said in an open letter to Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder "she is refusing to pay the 'immoral and illegal' social security tax."

Mrs. Cain announced she would refuse to pay both the self-employment tax on herself or deduct payments from the salaries of employees.

She said she hopes the government will imprison her for not paying the tax "because then the people of America will realize to what a pretty pass we have come in this country."

"The social security program, added to the equally iniquitous and confiscatory income tax program is the hub around which the whole wheel of communism revolves in this country," Mrs. Cain said in a front page editorial of her weekly paper today.

"I have all the insurance I want or need and I don't want any that stems from this rotten New Deal which has taken from the people of this nation in the last six and one-half years 260 billions and is still 260 billions in the red.

"I've had enough of the New Deal. I'm sick of the whole Truman administration. Pop your whip, Mr. Snyder, I am ready."

Fountain Ruritan Had Dinner Last Thursday

The Fountain Ruritan Club held its regular scheduled dinner meeting Thursday evening, March 6.

In a business session following the dinner the club heard and adopted favorably, a proposal that Lynch street in the town of Fountain be opened and extended to the site of the new Negro school building here, in order that the school children may have a safer approach to the school than the present state highway.

Following the business session the membership witnessed the excellent Esso film, "Meet North Carolina."

THOMASVILLE, N. C. (AP)—Employees of the Thomasville Chair Company went on strike here today, climaxing a wage dispute that began late last summer.

Claude Ray Fox and Lee D. Weldon, Negro, were cited in Recorder's Court for blocking a gateway at plant C with two automobiles.

Red Cross Ready To Study Charges Of Germ Warfare

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP)—The International Red Cross Committee said today it has agreed conditionally to investigate Communist charges that U. N. forces are waging germ warfare against Communist troops in Korea.

U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson asked the investigation. He has denied the red charges.

Paul Ruegger, president of the Red Cross Committee, said the Red Cross Societies of Hungary, Poland, Romania and Bulgaria also had sent protests to the committee against alleged use of bacteriological weapons in Korea.

Ruegger sent identical messages to Acheson, Korean Communist Prime Minister Kim Il Sung, and Gen. Peng Te Hui, commander-in-chief of Chinese Communist troops in Korea, saying the committee would investigate the germ war charges if it is "assured of cooperation of authorities on both sides of the front."

Ruegger's message to both sides noted the United States has denied using germs to start reported epidemics of bubonic plague and other diseases in North Korea.

His message said the United States asked the investigation to find the "real causes, nature and extent of epidemics" in North Korea.

The Communists have been reported recently taking drastic measures to halt the spread of disease, inoculating all troops and civilians.

The Chinese and Russian press and radio have made detailed charges alleging U. S. planes have dropped bombs containing disease germs which were loosed from high compartments when the bombs blew up. United Nations leaders have denied all such charges.

Ruegger advised both parties to the Korea conflict that the International Committee was prepared to set up a commission under its direction "composed of persons who will offer every guarantee of moral and scientific independence which could be offered by experts who have highest qualifications, especially in epidemiology."

Ruegger said that "known specialists" would be selected by the committee in Switzerland and that national Red Cross societies of Asiatic countries not involved in the war would be asked to propose two or three other scientific experts.

Hodges Stresses Power Of Office

RALEIGH (UP)—Luther Hodges candidate for lieutenant governor, contended today that the post in some respects is more important than the governorship and promised voters he would make an active campaign in the three-way primary race for the Democratic nomination.

The Leaksville-Spray Industrialist pointed out the lieutenant governor presides over the Senate and serves as chairman of the State Board of Education. He said those are duties of increasing importance because of the "rapid growth of our state and its financial problems."

The governor may only recommend legislation to the General Assembly, Hodges pointed out, "but it is the duty of the presiding officers of the House and Senate to assist the members of the legislature in enacting such policies into law."

Roy Rowe of Burgaw and Mayor Marshal Kurfies of Winston-Salem also have announced their candidacy for the lieutenant governorship.
