Plan For Financing Elm St. Park Program Outlined

Elaborate plan for raising funds amounting to $20,000 for the development of Elm Street Park were outlined last night by organization general Chairman Louis Gaylord, Jr., and representatives of clubs at a meeting in the Armory.

Following a report on the projects assigned to various clubs in the city in the development of the park, the representatives and chairman discussed the means by which funds could be raised in order to have the park in use by summer.

The committee outlined a solicitation program and plans for a parade to be held the day in which funds will be solicited. Mrs. Frances Cassick and Jimmy Harris of the finance committee made suggestions in raising money for the project and Gaylord reported that many people seemed interested in the project.

In opening the meeting the chairman stated that the success or failure of the project depended on the organizations which are undertaking the projects. "But I don't see how we can fail," Gaylord stated, "with the interest that has been shown and with the people we have behind the project.

"I am anxious to see the area in use by summer and we must take advantage of an opportune time and the time is now."

All of the clubs were heard from last night either by representatives present or by a report made to Gaylord before the meeting was held. Every club which has taken action on the project assigned has agreed to do what they have been asked to do.

Many of the clubs reported 100 percent agreement to carry out its project and a number of clubs have volunteered to no more than has been asked of them.

The committees on landscaping, surveying, surfacing, and general lighting have already begun work on the project assigned to them in the development of the park and other committees reported that they are ready to begin work as soon as possible.

It was reported last night that the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church and the Eighth Street Christian Church have wholeheartly adopted the plan and have appointed men to work with the development committee.

Warren Carroll, recreation director, pointed out that the development of the park area was only a phase in the development of recreation facilities in the city and that other projects would not be abandoned.

Smoking Scene Of Fatal Fire

The smoking remains (above) are all that was left of the frame farm dwelling in which a young Negro mother and her infant daughter were fatally burned Tuesday afternoon near Stokes. The fire apparently started when the mother, Letha Ebron, was around an oil stove in the bed room and it exploded. She died about four hours later in Pitt Memorial hospital. Her three-months-old baby died in the flames.

Proposed Zoning Changes Include Variety Of Issues

Height Limits For Buildings Near Airport Covered; Hearing Saturday

New regulations concerning the height of buildings within the turning zone of the Pitt-Greenville airport will consume a portion of the public hearing on changes in the city's zoning regulations Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at the city hall.

It was announced earlier this week by Mayor Lester D. Page that the hearing date for the proposed changes in city zoning had been set.

The proposed changes in the residential, business and industrial zones of the city as well as the fire district for the most part will be only alterations of the areas now covered by those specific zones.

The proposed regulations governing the turning zone of the city-county airport, however, is a new phase of zoning regulations for the city.

Zoning regulations proposed for the section within the turning zone of the airport will set maximum limits on the height of buildings within the area, and will cover practically all of the present corporate limits of the city.

Regulations for the turning zone provide that no obstruction protruding above the height of 75 feet shall be constructed within a limit of one-half mile of the airport. From one-half mile away from the boundary of the airport to two miles away, no obstruction shall protrude above the 30:1 slope line up from the 75-foot height. The regulation will mean that at a point within the turning zone of the airport two miles from the airport boundary, the maximum building height would be 339 feet.

The new airport zoning map on display in the city hall likewise shows the approach zones for the airport runways, but additional restrictions, if any, within the area covered by the approach zone, are not indicated on the map.

Mayor Page said the public hearing on the new zoning regulations would be conducted by the mayor, Chairman Frank Little of the city planning board and City Engineer Thomas W. Rivers.

Page urged citizens of the city who are interested in the zoning regulations to attend the public hearing which will be held in the aldermen's room at the municipal building.

Senator Defends Tax Case Action

Ominous Silence Over Tunisia In Wake Of Decrees

French Clampdown Of Martial Law Reverberates In Political Circles

TUNIS — (AP) — Tunisia was ominously calm today but political storms raged elsewhere over yesterday's sudden French clampdown of martial law and the arrest of four top Tunisian cabinet ministers.

In Paris, at least two major political parties prepared to rake the already-shaky government of Premier Antoine Pinay over the coals for the dramatic and drastic action.

Two other Tunisian ministers, whose activities in Paris since January had been vehemently protested by the French governments, flew quietly out of Paris to Geneva, after going into hiding for 24 hours to escape the fate of their colleagues in the Tunisian capital.

In this two-languaged capital, the Arab city was deathly quiet, in the grip of a complete shutdown by Moslem storekeepers and workers. The French city appeared normal.

No incidents were reported, although Tunisian Nationalists were openly incensed at the arrest and exile to the interior of Premier Mohammed Chenik and three of his top ministers.

In Paris the powerful Socialist Party and the MRP Popular Republican Movement — Foreign Minister Robert Schuman's own party-both appeared ready to demand a full explanation from Pinay for the unprecedented action yesterday. Schuman's ministry has charge of Tunisia's administration.

National Assembly sources believed government spokesmen may try to throw the blame for any criticism on Resident General Jean de Hauteclocque, who ordered the arrests and put the country under a state of siege with a dusk to dawn curfew.

Yesterday, however, a foreign ministry spokesman said De Hauteclocque's action was in conformity with instructions from Paris.

De Hauteclocque had the ministers arrested, along with a large number of other Nationalists, after Tunisian ruler Sidi Mohammed Al Amin Boy refused a French de-

Repeatedly Avers His Only Interest Was In Official Capacity To Push 'Proper' Action By Bureau; Denies Knowing Fraud Charge Involved

WASHINGTON (UP)— Senate Republican Leader Styles Bridges testified today that his interest in a liquor dealer's $7,000,000 tax case stemmed solely from a desire "to encourage quick and proper action."

Bridges conceded to a House subcommittee investigating tax scandals that he did not know Hyman Harvey Klein, the Baltimore liquor dealer in tax difficulties.

Bridges said he entered the case at the request of an old friend, William Power Maloney, former special assistant attorney general and now attorney for "mystery man" Henry W. Grunewalkd.

Maloney previously testified that he had asked Bridges to intervene in the Klein case. Both Klein and Klein's attorneys have said they do not know Bridges. They said they had no idea why Bridges became active.

Bridges said he did not know that the government had a fraud charge against Klein. If he had known this, he said, he would "have made no inquiry" about it.

The fraud charge was dropped by the government during the period the case has been under negotiation, that is, since March 3, 1948. It is still under negotiation.

"At no time have I had anything but official interest in the Klein case," Bridges said. "My conversations on the matter with the bureau were as a result of Mr. Maloney's request and for no other reason whatsoever."

He admitted he has known Grunewald for several years, but said that Grunewald "has never represented me in this or other matters."

Grunewald has refused to answer questions by the subcommittee and contempt of Congress action against him is pending before the House.

Bridges began testifying by reading a four-page statement in which he said time and again that his only interest in the Klein case was in his official capacity as a senator.

Bridges previously had acknowledged that he conferred with Internal Revenue Bureau officials about the case, but did not explain how he happened to get involved.

The House subcommittee investigating tax scandals invited Bridges to testify after both Democrats and Republicans said they thought the senator should clear up his behind-the-scenes activities.

Revenue bureau records show that Bridges has been active in the Klein case since shortly after the bureau levied an assessment for an additional $7,000,000 in taxes and penalties on the liquor dealer.

Klein paid a $1,200,000 capital gains tax in 1947 on the sale of stock which he held in Cuban and Panamanian corporations that sold Canadian whisky in the United States in 1944-45-46. The bureau contends that Klein should have paid taxes at the higher personal income rates, and is now trying to collect the difference, plus the penalties.

The bureau made its additional assessment against Klein on March 3, 1948. The bureau's records show that on March 23—20 days after the assessment was filed—"Mystery man" Henry W. Grunewald inquired about th case.

On Sept. 16, 1948, the bureau's records show that George J. Schoeneman, then internal revenue commissioner, and Charles Oliphant, then revenue chief counsel, talked about the Klein case. In the course of the conversation Oliphant mentioned "the senator," presumably meaning Bridges.

Debate Over Industrial Allocation Nearing End

Today's Witnesses Expected To Follow Same Line Of Arguments Advanced By Previous North-South Spokesmen

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Office of Defense Mobilization conferences on means to relieving unemployment in the textile industry neared an end today with the North-South battle over methods of awarding defense contracts continuing.

New England textile interests are urging allocation of textile orders on a regional quota basis with a price differential to offset higher costs over the South. They claim this is necessary to maintain skills needed for defense.

Southerners are contending textile unemployment in northern plants is not a result of defense mobilization and there fore the industry should not be included under a new defense manpower policy designed to relieve critical employment conditions caused by the defense or preparedness program.

The Southerners say New England unemployment is due to a long-time trend of textiles from North to South. The South itself faces unemployment because of industry-wide slowdown, they argue, and to change from competitive bids to quotas in procurement would merely transfer the problem from one region to another.

Today's witnesses were expected to follow the same general line of argument.

Rep. John J. Riley (D-SC) said in a prepared statement that he opposes the opening of textile goods procurement to negotiated contracts.

He said the North's economic situation "is the result of water seeking its own level, and is not the result of favoritism nor of war.

"If textile orders are made by negotiated contract, it will throw out of employment the people now employed in the Southern textile industry, where there is no other market for that labor...

"I think that a policy of negotiated contracts, especially for goods in bountiful supply, will result in increased unemployment, extravagance and confusion."

Among other witnesses today are Reps. Gore (D-Tenn), Fogarty :D-RI) and Kennedy (D-Mass), State Rep. William X. Wall of the Essex District of Massachusetts, and Orville Poland, economic adviser to Gov. Paul Dever of Massachusetts.

Farm Groups Ask Halt Of Subsidy

House Farm Leaders Term Economy Appeal As 'Ill-Advised'

WASHINGTON (UP)— Two major farm organizations have asked Congress to reduce sharply the subsidy payments farmers receive for soil conservation practices.

House farm leaders, who beat down a similar request last year, protested that the new economy drive was "ill-advised" at a time when the government is calling for record farm production. They said it foreshadows another "hot fight" on the floor.

The American Farm Bureau Federation urged that funds for the conservation program be cut from the present $262,500,000 to $100,000,000 when the 1953 appropriations bill comes up in the House next week.

The National Grange also urged sharp curtailment in the program. Both groups said farmers should not be paid for soil conservation work when it is in their own interest and they can afford to do it themselves.

Their views were set forth in testimony published today by a House Appropriations subcommittee headed by Rep. Jamie L. Whitten (D-Mass).

The testimony revealed that Whitten took sharp issue with "economy" cuts in the agriculture budget proposed by Allan B. Kline head of the Farm Bureau.

Chairman Harold D. Cooley (D-NC) of the Agriculture Committee told a reporter that the position of the two farm groups will "make it more difficult" to sell city congressmen on the need for continuing the "vital program."

Truce Negotiators Argue; No Process

Communist Spokesman Says Americans Can't Represent Koreans; Both Sides Probe Topics Of Differing Viewpoints

PANMUNJOM (UP)—A Communist truce negotiator charged angrily today that "Americans cannot represent the Korean people" and advised the United Nations command to stop contending that it does.

"It would be wise for you not to repeat any more that you say you represent the Korean people," declared North Korean Col. Chang Chun San in armistice terms discussion.

"Americans cannot represent the Korean people."

Col. Don O. Darrow told Chang that "in numbers we, meaning the United Nations command, represent as many if not more Korean people than you do.

"I am not here as an American but as a representative of the United Nations command," Darrow continued.

"As the United Nations command representative I represent also the Republic of Korea and the citizens of the Republic of Korea."

The Communists apparently set off the anti-American blast in an attempt to stall on the question of whether Russia is a neutral nation qualified to sit on the post-armistice commission.

The 80-minute meeting made no progress.

Prisoner exchange negotiations, held in secret, lasted eight minutes longer.

The U.N. "further explored the Communist proposal of March 21" —the formalized version of a plan for continuing negotiations on the basis of lists already exchanged

Col. George W. Hickman, U.N. staff officer, said both sides were continuing a verbal probe of differing viewpoints. He said the negotiators are holding free discussions in an atmosphere that had no rancor.

The bitter debate today was set off during discussion of translating into Korean the term "United Nations command," as related to the agreement on ports of entry.

The Reds favored the term meaning "Allies" and the U.N. wanted a specific translation.

Truman Returns To Capital Today

Key West Merchants Mourn Possible End Of Tourist Boom

KEY WEST, Fla. UP)—President Truman flies back to Washington today and an assortment of problems ranging from the steel strike to politics.

The chief executive was scheduled to take off from Boca Chica Naval Air Station in the White House DC-6 Independence at 2:30 p.m. EST, arriving back in Washington between 6 and 6:30 p.m.

The people of Key West, particularly the merchants, were more sentimental than usual about the President's departure.

His highly publicized 11 trips down here have resulted in thousands of extra tourist dollars. Businessmen, even vocal opponents of Mr. Truman's politics, were loathe to see him leave.

The President has said that win, lose of draw, he'll come back in November, but what worried the merchants was whether that would be his last visit to Key West.

"I certainly hope," said one merchant to a group of reporters last night, "that if Eisenhower runs and wins, you fellows will interest him in Key West."

But the retail merchants, the barbers, the bartenders, the laundrymen and the filling station operators, to say nothing of the hotel managers, were generally wistful as members of the large press and radio party packed up.

"Sure hope you fellows come back next fall," said one of the town's leading hotel men. "Truman has put this place back on its feet. I don't like his politics, but when I look at my cash register..."

Question Right Of Senator To Waive Immunity

WASHINGTON (UP)— Several Senate colleagues expressed doubt today that Sens. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis) and William Benton (D-Conn) will be able to carry their running feud into the federal courts.

They said there is a serious constitutional question whether Benton or any other senator can waive his legal immunity from slander or libel suits, even if he is willing and anxious to do so.

But Sen. Homer Ferguson (R-Mich), a former judge, said that a senator should be able to waive the right just as a private citizen can waive his right to trial by jury.

McCarthy has filed a $2,000,000 suit against Benton on grounds that Benton libeled and slandered him —and conspired with others to libel and slander him —during his campaign to have McCarthy ousted from the Senate.

DALLAS, Tex. UP)— Tornado-stricken Arkansas has been granted National Production Authority priority assistance to obtain materials for reconstruction and repair of its damaged homes and buildings.

Ernest Tutt, regional NPA director, said at Dallas building owners in Arkansas may apply to the Department of Commerce for priority to obtain the materials.

Recognized

WASHINGTON (UP) — The United States today formally recognized the new government of Cuba headed by Fulgencio Batista.

Notification of this nation's decision to recognize the Cuban regime was communicated to Minister of State Miguel Angel Campa by U.S. Ambassador Willard E. Beaulac.

Secretary of State Dean Acheson told a news conference yesterday that American action on recognition would be based on whether the government has firm control, whether the people of Cuba "acquiesce" to the government, and whether it would carry out its international obligations.

Press officer Michael J. McDermott, who announced the action, said "all the criteria" outlined by Acheson had been met.

Batista and his supporters overthrew the government headed by President Carlos Prio Socarras on March 10.

New President

Robert A. Robinson (above), of Franklin Springs, Ga., was elected president of the Student Government Association of East Carolina College Tuesday. He assumed his new office Wednesday evening, and will head the SGA for the remainder of the present term and during the 1952-53 school year.

One Alderman Says He Is No Candidate

By JESS POINDEXTER
Reflector Staff Writer

After four consecutive years as a member of the Greenville Board of Aldermen from the fifth ward, J. E Waldrop this morning announced that he would not be a candidate to succeed himself in the May 5 municipal elections.

"I don't think I will run again this year," Waldrop said early today, "because I have served for four years, and I think that is long enough for me. I am now willing to turn the post over to someone else, and wish whoever wins the seat the best of luck."

The alderman from the second ward, C. B. Mayo, has been confined to his home with a cold recently, but stated this morning that he thinks he will run. "I am planning to run but I want to get out and talk to the boys a little before I make my final decision," he said.

Neither alderman J. E. Collins from the fourth ward, nor Robert Elks, alderman from the third ward, could be contacted this morning for comment as both were out of town, but it is thought that they will probably run again this year.

Political activity on the county level has been relatively quiet recently with only four candidates having filed for the May primary. Those who have filed and their respective offices are: Blair Cox Wheless, register of deeds; W. C. Cobb, justice of the peace; and J. R. Mobley, Heber T. Savage and Gus Stokes, Greenville Township Constable.

Stokes is the incumbent constable at present.

Police Engaged In All-Out Probe

Nature Of Investigation Undisclosed; Brantley Still In Jail

With the surprise outcome of a coroner's jury investigating into the death of Melvin E. Daniels, caused by a witness reversing earlier statements, Greenville police detectives have launched an all-out investigation into the death.

While nothing has been revealed by the officers as to the nature of the investigation, it was known they are leaving no stones unturned in their deepening probe into the facts about Saturday night's shooting.

No comments were made by the department on the presence of a police officer at the front of the Dail residence early Wednesday morning, from seven o'clock on though it was speculated a thorough search was being undertaken.

Until the inquest, Mrs. Walter Dail was considered the chief figure in the case; but after the coroner's jury findings were announced, the spotlight has been focused on Glenn Brantley, who until then, had been regarded as a material witness to the shooting.

At noon today, Brantley had not posted his increased bond, and was still in Pitt County jail.

Mrs. Dail posted bond minutes following the end of Tuesday night's inquest and is free under the $1,000 bond for appearance at the next sitting of the Pitt County Grand Jury.

Propose FBI Chief For Newbold Morris' Job

WASHINGTON (UP)— A key House member recommended today that Congress draft FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover to take over Newbold Morris' job as head of the government's drive against corruption.

Rep. Francis E. Walter (Pa.), a ranking Democrat on the House Judiciary Committee, made the proposal. He told a reporter he would wage a "strong fight" for its approval at a closed committee meeting today.

A judiciary subcommittee recommended yesterday that the House follow the Senate's lead and reject President Truman's request for subpena powers for Morris.

Walter approved that recommendation, but said Hoover should handle the cleanup job instead of turning it over to an "independent investigator" as the subcommittee proposed.

Recalling the hubbub stirred up by the Senate investigation of Morris surplus tanker deal, Walter said:

"It is unfortunate that Mr. Morris has accumulated the atmosphere he has. Perhaps he could have handled the job."

As for Hoover, he said, no one can question his "ability or integrity" and few if any doubt that "he would do a fine job."

Morris said in a New York television interview last night that he does not see how it is possible to conduct an "effective" investigation of corruption without subpena powers.

He also complained that "practically no one in Washington" is ready to lend all-out support to his inquiry.

"They treat me as though I'm Alice in Wonderland," he said.

Two German Youths Talk To Local Students Friday

Two German youths who are visiting high schools in 13 states under the sponsorship of Freedoms Foundation, Inc., of Valley Forge, Pa., will speak at an assembly at the Greenville High School tomorrow morning.

The youths, Wolfgang Bernhardt and Wolfgang von Kaltenborn, nephew of the American news analyst, H. V. Kaltenborn, are two high school students from West Germany. There are making a tour of American high schools for a "youth-to youth" discussion with American teenagers.

Wolfgang Bernhardt, 18, came to the United State under the Foundation in 1950 and visited more than 150 schools from coast to coast. He is the son of a prominent Berlin physician and was present at the dedication of the Freedom Bell in Berlin. He was brought to America following the ceremony by General Lucius Clay for the Foundation. A high school senior, Bernhardt is an active leader in the Rias-Schulfunk, democratic youth parliament in Berlin.

Wolfgang von Kaltenborn, 17, has never been to America before. He is the son of Colonel von Kaltenborn and is active in youth groups including Boy Scouts and the YMCA. His father was a Russian prisoner of war for several years.

The boys arrived in the United States a few weeks ago after being selected from 105,000 German Youth who in 1951 particpated in the Freedoms Foundation Awards Program.

O. E. Dowd, principal of Greenville High School, said he felt the school was fortunate to have the boys appear and they were scheduled for Greenville entirely by accident.

A letter to Dowd notifying him of boys arrival was missent to here instead of Greenville, S. C. where the boys were supposed to appear. Dowd immedately wrote the Freedoms Foundation and after a series of telegrams and phone calls it was arranged to have the boys appear here instead of Greenville, S. C. where they were originally scheduled.

The boys will tour in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Virginia, and West Virginia.

Prolonged Superior Court Hearing For 4 Defendants

Superior Court was dispersed prematurely here yesterday as Judge John J. Burney ordered a two-hour recess to await the arrival of C. J. Gates, Negro attorney from Durham who is defending four members of a Farmville Negro family charged with a multitude of offenses.

The four defendants are Jesse Frank Warren, Jr., and Perry Lee Warren, brothers; their mother, Julia Warren; and their uncle, Milton Warren.The four were indicted in Farmville August 21, 1951, as a result of an alleged disturbance in which Milton was shot three times through the leg and hip by Farmville police oficers.

Two officers testifed on the stand that Milton advanced toward them with an open knife and refused to halt after being warned three times. Officers reported that after being shot once, Milton lunged at an officer with his open knife and shouted, "You ain't got me yet."

As a result of this second pass with his knife, officers said, Milton was shot twice more, and as he grabbed a telephone pole for support his knife was knocked from his hand. The state had not rested its case late yesterday afternoon, and with defense testimony the trial is expected to last most of today.

Other cases heard yesterday were:

James Williams, driving drunk, plead guilty and fined $100 and costs and his driver's license suspended for 12 months.

Jesse James Hooks, driving drunk, found not guilty in jury trial.

John Staton, driving drunk, sentenced to six months on roads.

John Staton, assault with a deadly weapon, sentenced to six months on roads, second sentence to run concurrently with the first.

John Station, assault on a female, 30 days on roads, sentence to begin at expiration of six month sentence.

Water Colors By Artists of Americas On Special Tour

An exhibit of contemporary water colors done by artists of the two Americas is currently being shown at the Art Department of East Carolina College in Austin Auditorium.

This exhibit was assembled by the International Business Machines Corporations, who lent the paintings to the Virginia Museum for circulation throughout the Commonwealth.

Thomas J. Watson, president of I. B. M., stated in reference to this project: "It is with sincerest regard for the contributions made to art by the Americas that this exhibition, a panorama of contemporary water colors of the Western Hemisphere, is presented. Since art is one of the truest means for revealing the heart and mind of a people it logically should play an increasingly important part in the development of a more thorough understanding between our countries."

The I. B. M. corporation feels extremely proud of the work that is being done by artists of Canada and Latin America and they have assembled the exhibit in a belief that through the language of the artist people will be better able to recognise those traits common to all men which bind humanity together in universal kinship.

Also on display is an exhibition from Lord and Taylor's Store, Fifth Avenue, New York, of nine original costume and interior decoration designs of the following nationally known illustrators: Hood, Hall and Kernoff.

Twenty pieces of ceramics 3" x 5" made by students of East Carolina College art department have been sent to Birmingham, Alabama to be used at the Southeastern states art association convention's banquet held during this week, March 25 through 28.

Eighteen people were present at the March meeting of the Youthful Workers Club held at the attractive home of Mr. and Mrs. William Tripp last Monday night with Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis Tripp Jr. as co-hosts. In spite of the downpour of rain, a warm welcome awaited those who came.

The meeting was opened by singing two favorite hymns after which Mrs. Jarvis Tripp Jr. gave a most inspiring devotional.

Mrs. William Tripp gave a report on the birthday party held at the County Home last Sunday afternoon for Mrs. Nan Tyson, who celebrated her 93rd birthday.

Mrs. R. R. Tyson gave a report on the birthday party held for Mr. Langley in honor of his 88th birthday. The Youthful Workers Club sponsored both of these parties and gifts were taken to both.

The club is sponsoring a May Day family party at the club house on the first of May. The proceeds from this party will be used to bring cheer to some needy family.

Mrs. Travis Crawford was elected president, Amos Evans, vice-president, Mrs. Francis Cassick and Mr. Johnnie Cassick corresponding and recording secretaries, and Jarvis Tripp Jr. treasurer to serve for the coming year.

The club voted to visit a shut-in on Easter Sunday afternoon and to hold a song service for the inmates of the County Home on the third Sunday in April.

Doughnuts and cold drinks were served by the hosts and hostesses.

Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Tyson and Miss Mary Stocks will be hosts at the next meeting which will be held at the club house on Monday night after the fourth Sunday in April.

Friends of Mr. Albert Allen will regret to learn that he has had to return to Duke Hospital for further treatment.

Revival services will commence at Red Oak on Easter Sunday night with Rev. Harold Tyer doing the preaching and Mrs. William May and Lawrence Tyson in charge of the music. This is the first spring revival ever held in our church and we are really hoping to have a wonderful revival.

Recounts Merger Of Indian Tribes

LOS ANGELES — (UP) — An American Hopi-Tewa Indian has chalked up two firsts at the University of California at Los Angeles. He is the first American Indian to receive a doctor's degree from the institution and the first such degree from the department of anthropology and sociology.

Edward P. Dozier, born in Santa Clara Pueblo, N. M., did it by studying his own tribe.

He completed a study of "The Changing Social Organization of the Hopi-Tewa," which disclosed how the two tribes maintained separate villages from 1620 to 1950 while living as close as city next-door-neighbors.

According to Dozier's report, a group of Tewa-speaking Indians left the Rio Grande Valley and journeyed some 200 miles to join the Hopis on an Arizona mesa, where, despite their close contact, the two cultures have remained distinct.

Dozier also ascertained there has been very little hostility between the groups. He found, however, that during the last generation, some of the barriers have been broken down by intermarriage, business and a change in values.

To Salvage Two Sunken Vessels

SINGAPORE — (AP) — Two ocean liners and a coal hulk whose scrap value is worth several million dollars are sooh to be salvaged from the depths of Singapore harbor.

The victims of bombing and mining during World War II, the ships are the Empress of Asia, the Sirdhana and the hulk Oscar II.

The Empress of Asia, aboard which the last batch of British troop reinforcements arrived before Singapore's fall in 1942, was bombed and sunk by Japanese planes with much armor aboard. The Sirdhana hit a mine in 1939 and the hulk was scuttled to prevent it falling into Japanese hands.

HERRIN, Ill. — (AP) — Dr. W.I. Lewis couldn't have picked a much better spot to break a leg. He did it getting out of a car with Dr. W. A. Miller, head of Herring Hospital, after a meeting of physicians and surgeons.

Report Banking Empire Near End

NEW YORK (UP)—A Washington dispatch of the New York Times reported today that the Federal Reserve Board has decided to dissolve the $7,000,000,000 Giannini banking empire.

The newspaper said the board ruled on a 3-2 decision that the empire's Transamerica Corporation was violating the Clayton antitrust act "through stock ownership or other control of 48 banks with 667 offices in California, Oregon, Nevada, Arizona and the state of Washington."

Members of the board of governors refused to confirm or deny the story, but one source said a will be announced "soon."

In addition to Transamerica's $7,000,000,000 of deposits, the empire founded by the late A.P. Giannini has made half the loans outstanding in the five states, the Times reported.

The Times said the board would issue a formal order, probably next week, directing Transamerica to divest itself of stock holdings in all banks except the Bank of America National Trust and Savings Association of San Francisco, the world's largest.

In Gambia, Northwest Africa, many people live in Sin, which is the name of a town, says the National Geographic Society.

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS

AVOID TENSION

A radio news commentator recently told about a student who, because he was so relaxed of mind and body, passed an exceedingly difficult examination and stood first among several hundred of his classmates. Almost at the same time, a noted athlete attributed his prowess to the fact that he never "tensed up." He declared that if a person could just be relaxed, his efficiency would be increased many fold. This athlete is a runner. He starts every race as if he didn't care whether he was going to win or not, but that spurt on the finish has been the despair of many who have competed with him.

Have you ever noticed that men who are doing the biggest things in the world never appear to be busy? They are by no means neglecting their work; they are just relaxed, and confident in their approach to their work. One of my friends who is compelled by the nature of his work to carry several dozen projects on his mind all the time never seems to have anything at all on his mind. Yet when asked about any of these projects he replies with detailed information which is astounding to hear.

Getting tensed-up in the deadly enemy of all higher achievement. This holds not only for physical achievement but for mental and spiritual also. "Be not anxious," said our Lord.

Still Open Competition For Air Service

The Kinston Daily Free Press took the occasion of the hearing of the Pitt-Greenville Airport Commission in Washington to inject the thought that the city-county airport here is delaying air service for Kinston.

That certainly is not a factor in Greenville's effort to secure air service.

Kinston may want air service and need air service as badly as Pitt County and Greenville; but in neither instance is the case of Kinston superlative to that of the Pitt-Greenville Airport Commission. Greenville and Pitt County certainly are not expected to bow their heads and steal quietly out of the picture just because another city in the area wants air service also. Greenville has needed and wanted air service as long as Kinston, but certainly no mention from this side of Contentnea creek has sugested Kinston should stand back until Greenville has the service.

The hearing in Washington was a procedure which is as much a part of deciding what city in this section of the state—if any—should get commercial air service as anything else which has been done. It was another effort by the Pitt-Greenville Airport Commission to get the much needed air service here to serve not only this county, but others as well in surrounding territory which badly need commercial air service.

The Pitt-Greenville Airport Commission is doing everything it can to secure air service for the city-county airport, and the people of this area certainly expect them to continue their efforts.

Leading The Horse To Another Barn

Pressure from organized labor, a portion of northern industry and some of the cogs in the administration is continuing to pose its threat against the textile industry of the South.

The Southern states have fought hard for the industry they now have, and surely they do not intend to stand quietly by and watch the rug snatched out from under it by federal edict spurred by self-interested of other sections of the nation.

An effort directly aimed at cutting Southern industry out of government contracts, particularly in the textile industry, has moved along further than most people realize. In spite of the fact that it is fundamentally unsound and discriminatory, it is receiving a great deal of support in certain sections of the North.

The government proposal is to send government contracts to areas which have been hit by unemployment rather than leaving the work on an open contract-bid basis. In other words, if an area has been suffering from unemployment in industry, government work would automatically be channeled into that area without consideration of cost. Areas which have no appreciable unemployment among industrial people would not even have a chance at the business.

That factor in itself should be enough to have the whole idea kicked out in view of the already phenomenal rate of government spending.

Proponents of this legalized discrimination scheme say areas which already have good employment conditions can get along on consumer contracts. The government gravy should be given to others. They likewise would bar from government business any concern which operated more than two shifts of workers a day. That would have serious repercussions in areas where employment is afforded one-third more workers by virtue of three-shift operations.

The whole scheme, it seems to us, is another step to put the economy of the country in the hands of the government to be regulated as some agency sees fit. The government is by far the biggest purchaser in the United States today, and if its purchases are tied up by such action, it will be a major step toward the wholly regulated economy the like of which is practiced behind the iron curtain.

The fight the Southern states are waging against the proposal must be continued with increasing vigor.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—An odd but significant feature of the presidential races in both major parties is that they find the so-called "federal" politicians arrayed against the "state house" clique—senators versus the governors.

It is not an entirely new or surprising development. It is only natural for members of Congress to feel that the House and Senate provide the finest finishing school for White House matriculation. Similarly, state executives believe that their greater familiarity with practical problems of government equip them for the nation's highest office.

The controversy has been aired in acute form in the GOP pre-convention strife. When a Taft speaker questioned whether military service fitted a man (Eisenhower) for the presidency, an "Ike" admirer countered that the Senate had not been such a successful proving ground for promotion.

The reference, obviously, was to Warren Gamaliel Harding and Harry S. Truman.

STRENGTH—General Eisenhower has the backing of numerous members of Congress, especially since his New Hampshire-Minnesota opening. But his original promoters hailed from the "political sticks."

The "big five" in his camp are now Governors Dewey of New York and Driscoll of New Jersey, and such former governors as Duff of Pennsylvania, Saltonstall of Massachusetts and Carlson of Kansas. If they can control their delegations to the Republican convention, Eisenhower will have a solid bloc of more than 200 votes on the first ballot, not to mention his support from other sections.

Although a few state executives, such as Governor J. Bracken Lee of Utah, prefer Senator Taft, his main strength consists of Congressional colleagues—Senators Millikin of Colorado and Brewster of Maine, Representatives Brown of Ohio, Halleck of Indiana, the Illinois delegation and ex-Representative Reece of Tennessee, southern campaign manager.

ADVANTAGE—As the New Hampshire primary results demonstrated, a candidate backed by the state machine has a tremendous advantage. Governor Driscoll's unexpected, pre-primary endorsement of "Ike" immediately forced Taft to withdraw from the New Jersey test.

Thus, if Eisenhower wins the nomination and election, he will be more indebted to local political interests than to the Capitol Hill faction.

This factor can, and probably will, have considerable influence on Eisenhower, if he reaches the White House. Likewise, it would affect the policies of any other candidate nominated and elected under gubernatorial auspices—Governor Stevenson of Illinois, and ex-Governor Russell of Georgia, now a Senator and the anti-Truman South's entry.

RECOGNITION—A president so sponsored and supported, for instance, might feel obliged to name one of these governors or former governors to the Cabinet or a major diplomatic post. It is known that several Eisenhower promoters—Dewey, Duff, Lodge—would not object to such recognition.

More importantly, a chief executive in debt to the state house rather than the Capitol Hill crowd would be in a position to revise the present lopsided relationship between the federal government and the 48 commonwealths.

That would be especially true, if the next national leader should be Eisenhower, Stevenson or Russell. Ironically, Taft is an exponent of the same sort of philosophy.

DIVISION—As financially harassed state administrators, all of these non-Washington presidential possibilities would undoubtedly advocate federal aid to health, education, housing etc. But, unlike Roosevelt and Truman, they would probably counsel that all questions of execution and policy be left to the states.

This division of jurisdiction would also apply to the controversial and still unresolved issue of civil rights. In short, the election of a president on the basis of state house support might result in a better and more constitutional balance in all business involving our dual form of government.

Although Governor Stevenson seems to be Truman's selection, largely because nobody else suits the White House occupant, the Illinoisan is also the favorite of many Democratic governors and ex-governors. He would also be a popular Congressional choice, if the White House insists on him.

BACKING—Although a "fair dealer" in many respects, Stevenson recognizes the danger of continued federal encroachment on the states. He expressed this fear at last fall's governors' conference at Gatlinburg Tenn.

Senator Russell, an ex-governor himself, was persuaded to enter the race by Governor James F. Byrnes of South Carolina, and ex-Governor Harry F. Byrd of Virginia. He has the backing of all save two southern state executives. There is no need to expand on their viewpoint on federal-state relationships.

Neither Senators Kefauver of Tennessee or Kerr of Oklahoma have organized support of any kind, federal or gubernatorial. They are self-starters. Despite discreet equivocation for campaign purposes, both lean toward the states' rights philosophy.

BALANCE—Thus this unpublicized but underlying conflict between the "federals" and the "state housers," as well as the prospect of the supremacy of the latter faction at Washington, no matter who is elected, promises to redress the balance between the White House and the states after twenty years of executive centralization and usurpation.

Selected Shorts

NARROWSBURG, N. Y., NEWS-TIMES: "In the present situation small business not only faces the necessity of readjusting to different conditions, but is unable to do so because of the arbitrary and often futile rules and orders issued by the government. The small business man's own judgment is of no avail because the operation of his business has been taken out of his hands by a paternalistic government. . . ."

TITUSVILLE, FLA., STAR-ADVOCATE: "Behind the notion that inflation and prosperity go hand-in-hand is the superstition that money is wealth. There was a time, of course, when money was wealth, because things that had value in themselves—gold, silver, cattle, wheat—were used as money. And for more than a century paper money could be exchanged, on demand, for precious metal. Today it is a criminal offense for an American citizen to possess gold money. But this ancient faith in money as wealth has been transferred to our paper currency which is not, today, redeemable in gold."

Leave It To The Girls

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Last night I enjoyed the position of having a newspaperman on the spot. The Reflector's Managing Editor, D. J. Whichard III, is usually on the other end of the interview, but last night I had him answering my questions.

Since Dave writes most of the Reflector's editorials, my first question was, "During the four years that you have been here, what have been the most controversial issues that have been viewed on your editorial page?"

Dave obligingly listed the three that popped into his mind:

1. The Chief of Police issue, which resulted in the firing of our present Mayor (then Chief of Police) Lester Page, after the arrest of a member of a prominent Greenville family on the charge of drunken driving.

2. The Reflector coverage which resulted in the cleaning up of the privy situation in Greenville, causing many prominent property owners to make a considerable outlay in order to make their property pass inspection.

3. The recent movement to acquire a state bonus for veterans of World War II, which the Reflector opposed.

With issues like these coming up, I asked Dave, "Do you ever have anybody to confront you with a demand to lay off?"

"Occasionally," Dave answered, "somebody approaches us with the idea that we should have nothing to say about a certain issue. Such statements make us realize even more that we have a responsibility not only to the 6,200 subscribers, but also to the other 18 or 20 thousand people in the county who read the Reflector. If we should let threats determine our editorial policy, we wouldn't have one.

"Another controversial issue which should not be left unnoticed is the revaluation of property in Pitt County." From checking the books, Dave has determined that the tendency is for the little man to carry more of the taxes, percentagewise.

The Reflector is well aware that it does not always take the popular side of an issue on the editorial page. The issue is weighed and the stand they think right taken, regardless of the reaction it will bring. Dave says, "Even if a person doesn't agree, if he reads the editorial and disagrees, he has at least given the issue thought, and that's what we like to accomplish."

The Reflector is interested in getting more comments from readers in the form of letters to the editor. Next time a topic strikes your writing fancy, sit down and let the Reflector know it in the form of a letter. The staff would appreciate your comments.

And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

Reflector Bureau — By LYNN NISBET — Asso. Afternoon Dailies

ROADS — The 1952 "working season" for road building was ushered in this week when bids on grading, paving and structures on 492 miles of roads in 29 counties were received in aggregate amount of $6,682,387.40. (The dime and cent numerals on multi-million dollar projects have always intrigued the people who think in round figures when such sums are involved.) The contractors bids do not include cost of rights of way nor engineering and overhead administration. Experience has shown that on long time averages the engineering costs approximate 10 percent of construction, and rights of way acquisition something like 5 per cent. Applying that rule to the current projects raises their total cost to around eight million dollars. This was one of the biggest, if not the biggest, single "letting" in the history of highway construction in North Carolina.

HANDICAPS — The huge road construction program for this year, in which these contracts represent the first new business (there are numerous projects already under contract upon which work has not begun) starts off under severe handicaps. There is a seriously crippled highway commission to handle the job of completing the $200 million secondary road bond program and getting started on the tremendous job of bringing the primary highway system up to date. Politics has decimated personnel of the commission and diverted attention from the main idea of road building.

POLITICS — Three of the ten highway division commissioners have been immobilized so far as road building is concerned by political activity. Dr. R. E. Earp, fourth division commissioner, has resigned to manage the campaign of Hubert Olive governor and an inexperienced man named in his place. Two other commissioners—Mark Goforth in the eighth division and Dale Thrash in the tenth—are actively campaigning as candidates for congress in their respective congressional districts. They are holding on to their position on the highway commission, but their chief interest now is getting votes for themselves for congress in the May 31 primary.

PARAMOUNT — From inception of the state highwa program in 1921 until now occasional charges that the roads were being used as political football have been refuted by the record. North Carolina has been exceptionally free from "road politics" as compared with other states where those charged with responsibility for spending highway funds have not hesitated to take personal political advantage of their positions. That has not been past practice in this state. It seems to be the present idea. And a lot of North Carolinians do not like it. Tarheel taxpayers want their road money to go for roads, and they like to make their political contributions through other channels. It is recalled that some 25 years ago Charles Upham, who as state highway engineer had supervised building of the state's primary highway system in the Morrison and McLean administrations, took a much better paying job in Louisiana—but soon found he couldn't stomach the Huey Long political domination of the program there. He wanted to paramount roads, and quit when he found he had to put factional politics first.

CONSIDERATIONS — Since beginning of the secondary bond issue road program three years ago there have been complaints about county roads being selected for paving on basis of political considerations for residents rather than economic requirements of the community. Most of these complaints have been answered by engineering figures tending to prove that the selected roads were economically wise. So far as the public record shows no roads have been located for political reasons. But, with three of ten highway commissioners actively involved in personal political campaigns, as candidates or managers for candidates, the public record now shows that politics is the main objective of those charged with responsibility for spending road tax money. Under these circumstances the taxpayers ay be excused for questioning whether state expense accounts for commissioner travel should not be more approximately charged to personal campaigning than to "official inspection" of road work in their districts.

OFF-RECORD — Much of the political manipulations of the incumbent state administration and highway commission is on

What Other Papers Are Thinking

TAX PLAN OPPOSITION
(New Bern Sun-Journal)

Back in 1939 a unique experiment began. It was an effort to initiate among the 48 states themselves a constitutional amendment to limit the Federal income tax. The United States Constitution provides for two methods of amendment. In one, Congress approves an amendment and then submits it to ratification by 36—three fourths—of the states. This is the standard approach. In the other, 36 states, for two thirds, may in effect petition Congress to act on a proposal which they have already endorsed.

Congress then must call a constitutional convention to act on the amendment. At this point the constitution is vague. It does not say that the convention must draft and approve the amendment advanced by the petitioning states. It is silent on that. But, perhaps guided by legal decisions, some people interpret the convention as being "charged" with the duty of following the 36 states' wishes.

In any event, if the convention does approve such an amendment, it then has to be re-submitted to the states and must be ratified by 36, in the same manner as amendments drafted originally by congress. Patient and plodding attempts to use this rare method have over a 13-year period produced a total of only sixteen states with effective resolutions for a limit of 25 per cent on Federal income taxes. Altogether, 25 have adopted such resolutions, but seven states later changed their minds and in two cases the measures were vetoed by the governors.

Although the proposal may be considered by six or seven additional states this year, supporters of the tax limit are no longer optimistic the plan will work. Consequently, resort is being had to the more standard method of amendment. A House subcommittee is soon to begin hearings on the plan. But it is given no chance of approval at this session.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

If the economy snaps out of its present bit of heel-dragging, housewives next year may be confronted with food prices the like of which they have never seen before.

Business right now isn't so good. Nothing serious. Just a touch of the miseries. Textiles are still in a slump. Electric goods have been moving so slowly that prices, pared at retail some time ago are now being reduced by manufacturers. And for the first time in a long time, the cost of living has taken a sharp drop.

The prognosticators are on the fence. If current trends are projected things will get worse before they get better. Many of the cycles, including the sunspot cycle, are overdue for a downturn. On the other hand, the arithmetic of the defense program adds up to higher employment, bigger payrolls and more spending.

If there are more work and wages, it seems certain that there will be a pick up in business. Certainly, demand for meat and other food rises and falls with employment.

But recent drops in the price of food at the farm level have made farmers wary. This uneasiness has been compounded by a shortage of manpower caused by the draft and the lure of higher wages in industry. So they have planted smaller crops.

Early this year, the Department of Agriculture called on farmers to increase their plantings by 6,500,000 acres. This month the Department checked. Instead of planting more acres, they planted less. Just about 1,000,000 less.

The check is neither final nor complete. Because Congress insists that no cotton estimates be made before July 1, the Department is forced to skip that major crop. Furthermore, some of the decline in plantings is because farmers are keeping land in grass for beef.

But if demand is increased by the defense program and by our commitments to our allies, and total production is reduced as much as the Department of Agriculture indicates it may, food prices will surely shoot to new highs.

The survey indicates that 83,928,000 acres of corn will be planted. While that is slightly more than last year, it is below the government goal of 89,000,000 acres and below the 1940-51 average of 88,379,000 acres. Higher employment, hence higher demand, can end those bonuses in pork housewives are now getting, for corn is the raw material for pork. The potato acreage is low, too, below last year, the government's goal and the 11-year average.

Good weather, of course, may increase crops and reduce the upward pressure of prices. But bad weather at critical times could increase it, especially since carry-overs of farm products are less than last year.

DEFENSE ORDERS HELP PRINTERS

While many categories of printing have dropped off, printing of house organs is increasing. House organs are especially useful in new plants or in plants where employment has expanded because of defense orders. Good house organs can acquaint new employees with procedures, etc., and help them become members of the "team."

That's why printing salesmen are watching U. S. contract awards closely and scurrying to every plant that shows signs of increasing employment.

THERE ARE RECLUSES IN BUSINESS, TOO

Every once in a while another case of a wealthy recluse comes to light. Authorities —or reporters — discover another aged man or woman who has withdrawn from life behind the drawn blinds of an ancient house or side-street hotel, taking along a passel of each and securities.

There is another kind of wealthy recluse less often discovered. That's the financial recluse who withdraws from regular business centers and conducts business the way the Collier brothers lived their lives. Most of them operate through backs or brokers; some do all their own negotiating, avoiding the payment of the fractional fees.

There is one "capitalist," who operates in a run-down building in New York in an office so small that it provides room only for his chair and a roll-top desk. To talk to him, visitors must stand in the corridor. But if he likes their proposition — and he is rarely wrong — and if the interest rate is satisfactory, he will write a check for $100,000 or more.

RETAILER SHIPPING ASSOCIATIONS THREATEND

To reduce shipping costs, retailers in many cities have organized associatons to combine shipments to get lower rates. Legislation has now been introduced in Congress to place them under regulation of the Interstate Commerce Act.

If passed, the National Retail Dry Goods Association is bulletining members, the laws "may seriously hamper or destroy" these non-profit associations.

WANT TO SELL? THEN LOSE MONEY

Tax status continues to be a factor in the sale of a business.

From one publication:

"Carry-over loss $125,000; ladies' undergarment manufacturer wishes to sell capital stock."

"Wholesale wine corporation for sale, with tax-loss carry-over.

"Wanted: manufacturing business valued at $1,000,000 or more; tax loss at least $500,000."

In another category, an ad says, "Wanted, defense orders Contact men who can secure these orders are offered a share in profits."

Five per cent, we hope.

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK — A(P) — Spring prayer by the poor man's philosopher:

It is such a beautiful season, Lord, that everything upon the budding earth and bending sea should share Thine own vast compassion.

Teach us to understand the eternal why of all unlovely things.

Such as—

Poison snakes, biting dogs, poison ivy, puppies in zoot suits, the throne upon the rose's stem, the stinging thistle underfoot, gossips and witches and people too big for thir britches.

Yes, such as toll roads and taxes, road hogs and gay old dogs, tourist traps and weasels, and the daubs of paint upon modernistic artists' easels.

Show us Thine own endless patience in dealing with our daily vexations and frustrations.

Such as—

Falling hair and rising prices, doors that jam, slide fasteners that stick, relatives and wonder drugs that won't work, television sets that work too often, drug clerks who try to sell us deodorants and lotions, and statesmen with weird political notions.

Grant us, O Lord, Thine own mercy in judging the stuffed shirts of our time.

Pontifical columnists and commentators, sanctiomonious parsons, people who measure your social standing by the length of your motor car, radio master-of-ceremony smarties, and the long-winded intellectuals who try to save the world at cocktail parties.

Let us, O Lord, forgive all even as Thou dost forgive.

Such as—

The fellow who passed us a counterfeit $5 bill, those who did us a small favor and couldn't help making a big brag about it later, the idealist with a mind of one dimension, bill collectors who won't grant us just one more extension, and the butcher who in the last war didn't give us the breaks when we asked for steaks.

Seal our lips against making a big gripe about our own small troubles. Help us put up wth them.

Such as—

The spoiled kid next door that wails half the night, the neighbor that won't lend us his new lawnmower just because we broke his old one, complaining wives, husbands that stop off for just one more—and then come home and try to kick their way through the door.

Yes, such as the brother-in-law who comes to visit for a week and stays on through the years, mosquitoes in the parlor, cockroaches in the kitchen, sudden small pains and the garbage that insists upon clogging the drains.

Teach us, O Lord, in this beautiful spring to take the little and the big in stride, to appreciate the shower as well as the flower, to look at both sides of the wonderful gold coin of life.

Let us be grateful even for the mice in our paradise.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — That indescribable something that hovers between laziness, day-dreaming and wanderlust, commonly called "spring fever", is not a physiological disease.

"It's more a state of mind, and there's no known cure for it," Dr. Curtis Southard, psychiatrist at the National Institute of Mental Health, U. S. Public Health Service, tells me.

Webster's international dictionary defines spring fever simply as: "The lazy, listless feeling which comes to persons with the first warm days of spring. Humorous."

"That's about it," Dr. Southard agrees. "after weeks of being cooped up with bad weather, folks just get the urge to get out in the pleasant, warm, sunny outdoors."

Physicians say that in the old days people did feel lazier when warm weather came on, probably due to a dietary deficiency resulting from a lack of fresh fruits, vegetables and red meat which were not available during winter months as they are today. Some of us still screw up our faces as we remember the home remedy of sulfur and molasses spooned out to us about the time the pussy willow bloomed.

The National Geographic Society notes that this American institution, which has all but vanished, was passed on from England's "brimstone and treacle" and "guaranteed to propel a youngster from winter into summer with hair standing on end." It recites this famous recipe. "Two ounces of sulfur; molasses, two ounces...Mix ...Dose—a teaspoon just before breakfast."

"Farmhouse 'doctor books' gave vivid accounts of the juvenile hazards of oncoming spring," the Society reports. A typical volume, published in 1901, said: "The special indication for the use of sulfur is a peculiar kind of anemia, causing the discoloration of the various structures of the body. There is a peculiar pallor of the skin and a fading of the eyes and hair.. a sort of washed-out look."

Where, or how, the springtime sulfur—and molasses custom began is not known, but doctors say grandmother touched a scientific truth in speaking of "thinning out the blood." However, they add, blood thins itself in the spring without benefit of any medicine.

Nevertheless, I have a friend who still brews herself and family a "tea" made from the bark of the sassafras root. "We have made sassafras tea every spring since I can remember," she told me. "We drink it with meals like we do store tea."

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
March 27, 1912

About 12:30 this morning fire was seen gushing from the rear windows of C. T. Munford's big store and by 1:30, in spite of the brave battle put up by our firemen, aided by some of the bystanders the building and contents were a total wreck; the adjoining building occupied by the Busy Bee Cafe, Gornto Shoe Store, on the lower floor and the offices of the Consolidated Tobacco Co. on the upper floor, had to be flooded to prevent its burning up and naturally but for a little of the stock in the Gornto Shoe Co. store which was carried out, the contents of the entire building were totally ruined. The John L. Wooten Company's drug store suffered some damage on the wall adjoining the Big Store and its cellar was flooded, more or less damage being also sustained by the store occupied by Frank Wilson across the street. Nobody really seems to know how the fire started.

Mrs. N. O. Warren Luncheon Hostess To Atheneum Club

In a cheerful setting of lovely spring flowers, Mrs. N. O. Warren graciously entertained the members of the Atheneum Book Club and guests, Mrs. E. G. Flanagan and Mrs. S. T. White, on Tuesday afternoon at her home on Eastern Street.

Following a most delicious two course luncheon, the hostess presented Mrs. J. H. Rose as program leader for the afternoon. It has frequently been the privilege of the members to experience the pleasure of having a member review various plays, and the club was charmed with Mrs. Rose's dramatic reviews of nine plays—dramas and comedies—which she had recently seen in New York while visiting there with the journalism class of the high school.

Following her enjoyable reviews, Mrs. Reid Perkins gave an interesting current event item about the popular movie, "The Greatest Show on Earth."

At the conclusion of the program hour a brief business meeting followed, presided over by the president, Mrs. J. J. White. The club voted to send $5.00 to the Cancer Society. Committees for the coming year were appointed and the meeting adjourned after the exchange of books.

Round Table Meets With Mrs. Wimslow

Mrs. J. E. Winslow was hostess to the Round Table Club when members met with her on Tuesday afternoon at her home on West Fifth Street.

Arrangements of spring flowers were used throughout the spacious home to lend a pleasant setting for the meeting.

Mrs. E. E. Rawl, the outgoing president, expressed her pleasure in working with the club during the past year. At the conclusion of the business session the new president, Mrs. Charles Horne, took over her duties and presented Mrs. Royce Hunsucker, program chairman for the year.

Mrs. Hunsucker in turn introduced the program for the afternoon, which was given by Miss Lelia Higgs.

Miss Higgs spoke on "New England Community Life." Having visited the New England states this past summer, she gave the club a most interesting and informative account of her visit with the people of New England. The highlights of her talk included discussions of the homes, traditions, government, business and distinguishing characteristics of that part of the United States.

Mrs. H. H. Duncan gave a short sketch of her life as the special report for the afternoon.

At the conclusion of the program the hostess served a delicious salad course with coffee. The meeting adjourned with the exchange of books.

Ada Cherry Class Has Hat Modeling Contest At Meet

The Ada Cherry Sunday School class met on Monday night with Mrs. Morgan Fambrough. Assisting her in the role of hostess were the members of the March hostess committee.

Mrs. R. P. Rogers presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. George W. Smith. The main item of business was the discussion and vote to buy drapes for the class room out of funds from the treasury. Mrs. Fambrough, Miss Polly Dail and Mrs. Jimmy Rouse were appointed to a committee to investigate this matter.

During the social hour, members made and modeled Easter bonnets which they fashioned from paper plates, flowers, bits of other decorations and glue. Much merriment was occasioned by the fashions which were turned out and Mrs. J. C. Galloway Jr. was presented a prize after a vote from the members as to the most attractively styled hat.

During the refreshment hour the hostesses served ice cream pie with nuts, cheese straws and coffee.

Missionary Rally Held In Farmville

FARMVILLE—The annual District Missionary Rally was held last week in the Farmville Christian Church with Mrs. H. H. Settle of Greenville, executive secretary, presiding. Representatives from ten churches were present.

The welcome address was given by Mrs. Lloyd Smith. Mrs. Aaron Turnage opened the meeting and gave the devotional. The worship phase was discussed by Mrs. H. G. Haney of Greenville. The study phase was led by Mrs. Settle and the service phase by Mrs. Hubert Dixon.

Miss Catherine Schutze of Indianapolis, Ind., director of business and professional women's groups of the United Christian Missionary Society, was the principal speaker. Miss Schutze in her charming manner brought a message of love, devotion, service and work.

She developed her theme stating that "we are made in the image of God not physically, but spiritually, and if we only develop these potentialities, we can, through this inspiration within inspire others. Also we should not feel our missions in the foreign fields are any further from our hearts than our local societies; for, it is we, the people, who make these missions possible through our desire to be of service to others."

Being a missionary, Miss Schutze was in a position to tell how grateful the people of these missions are, and she illustrated their ways of showing their gratitude.

After a delightful luncheon was enjoyed, the afternoon session opened with reports from the various towns.

Miss Schutze's last report was how to support missions with money and prayers. She closed with reading of the Prayer of Francis of Assisi.

During the social hour, the hostesses served a dessert course with salted nuts to the members present.

Mrs. Bilbro told of the life and background of the man who was such a renowned preacher, serving as one of the most popular Senate chaplains ever to be appointed. The glimpses into the personal life of these two people were frequent and intimate, as recorded in the book, and the man's philosophy and attitude toward life as told by his wife was refreshing and inspirational. A number of his more popular sermons were included in Mrs. Tyson's review, which was greatly enjoyed by all the members.

The club presented Mrs. Bilbro with a gift at the conclusion of the program.

The Sport Reflector

By JIMMY ELLIS

Weather conditions this morning when this was written at last looked as if they were going to permit the East Carolina Pirates play their first home game. That event has been postponed twice now because of the weather and Coach Jack Boone is hopeful that the game can finally be played today.

The game was scheduled to begin at 2:45 (if the good weather held out). Opponents for the afternoon are the Cherry Point Marines who squeaked past the Bucs 2-1 last Thursday at Cherry Point. Three Pirate pitchers surrendered only three hits — one apiece—to the Marine batsmen but the Flyers were quick to take advantage of fielding lapses by the East Carolina team.

The Pirates displayed a rather potent batting attack in that one game which they have played thus far. The only trouble is that most of the base knocks came when there was no one on base. When the Bucs did get someone on base, the Cherry Point club tightened their defensive play and cut the ECC players off without a single tally after the first inning.

The Pirates will hit the road tomorrow for a two game series before returning home Monday against Atlantic Christian in a North State Conference battle. That game will also go into the records as one of the battles for possession of the Bohunk Bucket.

For those of you who like your golf in first-class editions, the place this weekend is Wilmington. This is no plug for the Azalea Festival but simply a word of advice to those who want to see the best golfers in the world (at least, so far as I am personally concerned).

All the top ranking professional linksmen in the country with the exception of Jack Burke, Junior, are in the Port City for the 72 hole event. Burke, winner of the first four major tournaments on the curent swing about the circuit, is practicing up for next week's Masters in Augusta, Ga.

Several golf fans in the Wilmington area were delighted yesterd , when they got the opportunity to watch Snead practice a bit on the Cape Fear Country Club course. The West Virginian really impressed the on-lookers with his power and golfing skill.

The Azalea Open will run through Sunday. There'll be an 18 hole round each day until the finals Sunday.

In addition to the golf, there are several side attractions. Including a few million beautiful flowers.

No report today from the St. Petersburg hospital where Bobby Slaybaugh is in bed. Doctors yesterday said they may be able to save the little lefthander's eye but his case is still serious.

Baseball fans in Goldsboro, where Slaybaugh has pitched for the last two years, are greatly disturbed by the accident. They're all pulling for the plucky little guy.

The Goldsboro Jets (that's the new name for the club) have opened their spring training in Albany, Ga., the spring home of the clubs in the St. Louis Cardinals' farm system. The Jets aren't owned outright by the Cardinals but they do have a working agreement with the St. Louis team.

Most of the players who are presently on the Goldsboro roster were with the club last year. That's no indication that they'll stay there, though. Some of them deserve promotion in the Cardinal farm system.

One fellow conspicuous by his absence in the training camp this spring is Gerry Thomas. Thomas was the rookie third baseman from Petersburg, Va., who won the league batting title and was ticketed for at least Class A ball this season before Uncle Sam stepped in and invited him to accept a position with the 101st Airborne Infantry at Camp Campbell, Kentucky.

Pirates-Marines

Wet grounds and threatening weather yesterday caused the postponement of the opening home game of the season for the East Carolina College baseball Pirates. The game, with the Cherry Point Marines, was immediately rescheduled for this afternoon at 2:45 by college athletic officials.

This was the second time the opening game had been called off. The first scheduled home contest was originally carded for last Friday with the Norfolk Naval Receiving Station. That game was called off at the request of Navy officials who said they had not had a single opportunity to work outdoors.

This afternoon's meeting between the Pirates and the Marines will be the second contest between the two clubs. The Cherry Point squad won a close 2-1 game at the Air Station last Thursday despite a three hit pitching performance by three Pirate hurlers.

Coach Jack Boone of the Bucs is expected to use the same three pitchers this afternoon. Jimmy Byrd, sophomore ace from Kinston, is expected to start and pitch at least three frames. He will be followed by Rodney Heath and Jim Piner.

Who's On First?

SARASOTA, Fla. — (AP) — Who's on first? Ted Kluszewski.

Who's in the outfield? That's anybody's guess, including Cincinnati manager Duke Sewell's.

Sewell feels the big gap is in the diamond hinterlands. Johnny Wyrostek, the Reds' only .300 hitter last year with a .311 average, is a shoo-in for right field, and there are three candidates for left. But, Oh! That center field job

Joe Adcock, Dick Sisler or Hank Edwards should be able to take over left field, but Luke doesn't consider any one of them speedy enough to cover the middle area. That leaves young Wally Post or Bob Borkowski, former Chicago Cub.

They both suffer from batting weakness, although Wally appears stronger in that department. It could just be that the big trading deal the management is hoping for any come through to fill the centerfield spot.

Tar Heels Elect

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. — (AP) The University of North Carolina's 1952 track team will be headed by Frank Scott of Orange, Va., and Gene Brigham of Augusta, Ga.

The star trackmen were elected co-captains of the team yesterday. Scott won the 1951 Southern Conference indoor low hurdles title but was unable to defend his crown earlier this month due to illness. He is the Conference's outdoor 100-yards dash champion.

Brigham is the Tar Heels' ace quarter miler.

Kansas Wins NCAA Title With 80-63 Win

Lovellette Leads Win For 'Hawks With 33 Points

By JIM HUTCHESON

SEATTLE (AP)—Kansas rules the world of collegiate basketball today and big Clyde Lovellette wears the crown.

The Jayhawks won the NCAA title in convincing fashion last night by downing St. John's of Brooklyn, 80-63, in the championship finale of the 1952 playoffs.

Lovellette, keeping up a terrific scoring pace with the championship chips down, led the way with 33 points. His record-breaking performance brought him the designation as most valuable player of the tourney.

The Kansas conquest came after Illinois won third ranking by downing Santa Clara, 67-64, in the consolation game. Kansas had beaten Santa Clara and St. John's had upset Illinois in the semi-finals.

Kansas, which was rated eighth by the nation's sports writers in the 1952 Associated Press poll, never gave the Redmen of St. John's a chance in the payoff game. Lovellette put the Kansans in front with an opening free throw and they stayed there all the way.

The Jayhawks set up an iron defense that kept the Redmen in check so they never were able to keep a sustained offensive clicking until the final period. It was the only one in which the losers held a scoring edge.

Meanwhile, Lovellette kept firing his deadly pushups and hook shots to run up a dozen field goals along with nine free throws.

The 6-foot-9 Lovellette ran his four-game NCAA playoff scoring total to 141 points. He had broken the old record of 83 points in the first three games. It had been set by Don Sunderlage of Illinois last year.

He also set a new free throw record of 35 for the four games. The old record of 27 also was held by Sunderlage.

The tight Kansas defense kept the St. John's star center, Bob Zawoluk fairly well in check through most of the game as Lovellette hung over him like a leaning tower under the basket. Zawoluk got nine points in sparking a fourth quarter St. John's drive, bringing his game total to 20. He fouled out 3 1-2 minutes before the end.

Hanes Team Plays Tonight In AAU

WICHITA, Kas. — (AP) — Mexico's Champions look like a strong contender for championship honors in the National AAU Women's Basketball Tournament.

The sharp little players from Chihuahua moved into the quarter-final round last night with a convincing 50-20 win over the Columbus, Ohio, Dickersons. The Mexican team jumped off to an early lead and stayed in front all the way.

Also advancing to the quarter-finals with victories last night were the Dallas, Tex., Hornets, the Jackson, Miss., Magnolia Whips and the Nashville, Tenn., Highway Patrol.

Today's schedule includes:

11 p.m. Hanes Hosiery, Winston-Salem, N. C., defending champions, vs. Jackson, Miss., Magnolia Whips.

Chuck Davey Wins Bout With Williams

CHICAGO (UP)— Chuck Davey, a dancing southpaw welterweight who won four collegiate boxing championships, held his boxing degree cum laude today.

The 26-year-old Michigan State scrapper won it with a technical knockout triumph at 1:47 of the fifth round over one of the game's most rugged fighters, former lightweight champion Ike Williams.

And even though Williams may not be now the same pugnacious whirlwind who scored 58 knockouts in 150 profights, Davy proved he had complete mastery over the better known Trenton, N.J., Negro. Davey dominated the bout so thoroughly, coming out of his so-[illegible]y stance, the referee William O'Connell gave him every round for a 24 to 16 point margin before Doty moved in to stop the brawl.

Davey adm[illegible] was one of his l[illegible]ter bouts.

"I was really keyed up for this one," he said. "More than ever before. He hit me once, that I felt, with a right in the second round."

Williams couldn't believe he was as bad as he appeared.

"I'm going to have another fight and then see about maybe retiring," he said.

Negro Semi-Pro

All Negro semi-pro baseball players who would be interested in playing with a Greenville semi-pro team this summer are asked to be present at the organizational meeting Saturday afternoon at South Greenville School. The meeting will get underway at 1 p.m.

All new equipment for the team has been purchased and a practice session will follow the meeting. Manager Dennis Norris is especially interested in attracting new players and everyone attending the meeting will be given an opportunity to win a position on the team.

Phils Hope For Early Return By Curt Simmons

CLEARWATER, Fla. (UP)—An enthusiastic Manager Eddie Sawyer said today he believes it's "possible" that returning Army sergeant Curt Sim monswill be the Philadelphia Phillies' starting pitcher in their opening home game of the season, April 18, against the Boston Braves.

The Phillies' skipper made his hopeful prediction after hearing that Simmons, now stationed in Germany, will be heading home for discharge soon after April 1.

The word, which might turn out to be the most important baseball news of the spring if southpaw Simmons can quickly regain his pitching form of two years ago, was that Sgt. Simmons would be sent to a port of embarkation in Europe, April 1, and would be back in "civvies" in just a few days.

"Once he is in a baseball uniform, it will be only a short time before he is ready to pitch," said Sawyer hopefully.

"His youth, plus the fact that he pitched considerable ball in the Army last year and has always kept himself in the very best of shape, should enable him to pitch in at least 10 days after his discharge.

It is possible that he may be ready to start the season, or at least to pitch the opener at home, April 18, against the Braves.

Earl Harrist Doing Well In Last Chance At Majors

By RALPH RODEN
(AP Sports Writer)

Earl Harrist, a slim 31-year-old righthander, is making good in what probably will be his last chance to stick in the major leagues.

Harrist, a knuckle ball artist, has turned in some fine pitching for the "new" St. Louis Browns. At the moment he is counted on for relief chores, a job he previously performed for Washington and the Chicago White Sox in 1948.

Earl's chief claim to fame to date is the two no-hitters he pitched for Syracuse of the International League in 1945. This feat earned him a promotion to Chicago. He toiled for the White Sox in 1947 and after dividing the 1948 season with Chicago and Washington, returned to the minors.

He was drafted for $10,000 by the Browns from Oakland last fall, probably upon the recommendation of Brownie Manager Rogers Hornsby. He won 16 games for Oakland last year and impressed Hornsby, who was pilot at Seatlte.

The Browns, behind the stout pitching of Ned Garver and Harrist, turned back the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4-2, at San Bernardino, Calif., yesterday. Harrist was touched for both Pittsburgh runs in the ninth.

The Chicago White Sox exploded for five runs in the ninth inning to down the Cleveland Indians, 8-5, at Tucson, Ariz. Rookie George Wilson, once with the Boston Red Sox, broke up the game with a three-run homer off recruit Gerald Gahr.

Home runs also figured prominently in the New York Giants' 9-6 triumph over the Chicago Cubs at Phoenix, Ariz. The victory was the Giants' seventh straight.

Bobby Thomson, Al Dark and Whitey Lockman homered for the National League champions to wipe out a 4-0 deficit. Ron Northey poled a round-tripper for Chicago in the seventh against Sal Maglie to end Maglie's streak of 19 scoreless innings.

The Baltimore Orioles of the International League turned back the Philadelphia Athletics, 5-3, at Hollywood, Fla.

Other scheduled games were rained out.

Feller Works

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Bob Feller has quit "taking it easy" in exhibition games. The result: impressive.

Until yesterday, Bob was following his early spring training schedule of pitching in relaxed style to limber up the arm. Then, against the Chicago White Sox, he bore down for the first time.

In four innings, with a crowd of 2,795 cheering him on, he shut out the Sox on three hits and struck out one.

'Fixed' Contest To Be Played As Cage Experiment

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — Occidental College and Los Angeles State will play a basketball game tonight in which the object is to score a fixed number of points, instead of beating the opposition within the prescribed time limit.

The innovation, the brain child of Los Angeles State Coach Sax Elliott, is designed to remedy last quarter stalling and fouling tactics which have been so noticeable this season. Results of tonight's experiment will be wired to Seattle, where the National Rules Committee is in session.

Elliott made survey of the scores registered by 20 leading teams and found 64 points to be the average winning score, so that will be the winning total tonight. When the leading team hits 16, 32 and 48 points, it will mark the end of the first, second and third quarters.

Elliott says playing to a fixed number of points will eliminate stalling. "There's a point in stalling, to run out the clock," he said, "but none if the goal, is a number of points. Present rules make it very difficult for a trailing team to beat a stall in the final quarter."

WILMINGTON, N. C. (AP)—Springtime in this port city means flowers and birdies. The flowers will be furnished by the citizenry, with azaleas occupying the featured spot. The birdies will be the product of the golfing gentry in the $10,000 fourth annual Azalea Open, sports feature of the annual Azalea Festival.

This usual top prize of $2,000 will be the target of such handy gents with a club as Lloyd Mangrum, Sam Snead, Bobby Locke, Cary Middlecoff, Tommy Bolt, Doug Ford, Jim Ferrier and, in fact, just about every winter tour regular with the exception of Jackie Burke. The Texan, who won four in a row in recent weeks, is sitting this one out in preparation for next week's Augusta Masters.

One 18-hole round will be played daily through Sunday over the 3,795-yard Cape Fear Country Club course, a par 72 layout.

Texan Henry Ransom set the event record of 276 in winning the 1949 inaugural. Two years ago veteran Dutch Harrison posted a winning 280. Continuing the gradual hike in scores, Mangrum's 281 was good for top money a year ago. The Chicagoan escaped a four-way tie by a single stroke. Jim Turnesa, Ed Furgol and Ferrier were knotted for second spot at 281.

Recent rains have the course playing long, with winning score expected to be about 280, eight under par.

Vic Seixas Leads Semi-Final Play

MIAMI (UP)— Top'seeded Vic Seixas, the lanky ex-Air Force pilot from Philadelphia who heads America's singles rankings, was favored to enter the semi-finals of the Miami Invitational tennis championships today by defeating Sid Schwartz of Miami.

Wisconsin Political Air Filled With Suspicions

MADISON, Wis. (UP) — The political air in Wisconsin was charged with suspicion today as the three Republican candidates stepped up their campaigning with only five days left before the primary next Tuesday.

All seemed wary of any more "surprise moves" like the one Harold E. Stassen pulled when he announced that half his delegates would vote for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower on the first ballot at next July's national GOP convention.

Sen. Estes Kefauver, only Democrat on the presidential primary ballot for his party, ignored the electioneering by-play among the Republicans for the time being and concentrated his attacks on Republican Sen. Joseph McCarthy.

Before leaving for Nebraska, which also has an April 1 primary, Kefauver told a Milwaukee audience that McCarthy's "tactics" were not helping the country at home or abroad. The Tennessee senator said that he did not "like the idea of smearing and I don't like the idea of McCarthy."

Sen. Robert A. Taft, speaking in Madison, took a swing both at Stassen and Gov. Earl Warren of California.

"In one case, the delegates seem to have abandoned their candidate and in the other, the candidate seems to have abandoned his delegates," Taft said.

He referred to Stassen's unusual action and the fact that Warren delegates have said they will cast their convention votes for Eisenhower if Warren does not win the nomination in Wisconsin.

At Portage, Wis., Taft called Warren and Stassen "hybrid" candidates and said he could not see how anybody could vote for them "when they don't know who they are voting for."

Stassen himself, when asked whether he was considering a vice-presidency on any future Eisenhower ticket, said he was "engaged in a strong campaign for the presidency."

Warren brought his family into the dairy state for the first time last night.

Accompanied by his wife and two daughters, Honey Bear and Dorothy, he arrived in Janesville, but he kept silent about the heated fight between Taft and Stassen.

It appeared that although Stassen's move was irregular, there would be no action taken to oppose it.

Hot stars like the sun are believed to maintain their heat by the conversion of hydrogen into helium, the same process that may someday be used in a hydrogen bomb.

the record. Rumor has it that a lot more is going on off the record. It is commonly talked, for example, that when the primary campaign is over George Richardson, who was appointed to replace Dr. Earp as highway commissioner in the fourth division, will resign and Earp will go back on his old job. Also, that Able Upchurch, who resigned as public relations director for the State Highway and Public Works Commission to take over the publicity job for Hubert Olive's gubernatorial campaign, will go back to his former berth with the highway set-up. It will be remembered that Upchurch's "resignation" from a state job to handle publicity for Senator Frank Graham two years ago turned out to be simply a leave of absence for duration of the campaign.

CERTAIN —Discussion of what may happen, and the underlying reasons for what has happened, is speculative. It is of factual record that the State of North Carolina goes into its biggest road building work season with a highway commission so decimated and riddled by politics that the road program is bound to suffer. Three of the ten division commissioners who have held office since May 1, 1949, and whose experience is greatly needed to complete the job are avowedly more concerned now about getting votes for themselves and their chosen candidates than about building roads. There is ample evidence that several other commissioners are giving more attention to political activity than to road building, except as road building fits into the political scheme as laid out by the administration. Such conditions have been common in many states, but it is a novel experience for North Carolina. Because of its novelty it is interesting, and is adding zest to the current primary campaign. One of the issues in the present campaign is whether that is to become the permanent policy of the state, or whether North Carolia will revert to its long established policy of keeping politics out of road building to its tics out of road building to greatest degree possible.

British Curtail Textile Imports

LONDON (UP)—Britain has curtailed textile orders from other countries, including the United States, in order to curb a slump that has put thousands out of work, the government has announced.

Peter Thorneycroft, president of the Board of Trade, told the House of Commons yesterday that unemployment in Britain's textile industry has reached 5 per cent compared with 2 per cent in other industries.

He said the government has halted orders from abroad and is placing all possible orders at home. He described the textile recession as world-wide.

Winding Up Case Against Sutton

NEW YORK (UP)— The state was expected to wind up its case against Willie Sutton and Thomas Kling today.

Sutton and Kling are being tried in Queens County Court on charges of robbing a bank of nearly $64,000 two years ago.

The bank manager, Robert Hoffman, testified yesterday that when he arrived at the bank on the morning of the robbery, Sutton met him, gun in hand, and chided him for being late to work. Hoffman identified Sutton in court as one of three men who robbed the bank.

Sutton's attorney, George W. Herz, refused to disclose whether he will put Sutton on the witness stand.

Wednesday Police Court Features Traffic Cases

By CHESTER WALSH

In Police Court Wednesday, Judge Charles H. Whedbee found Ira Garris, farmer, Route 1, Greenville, guilty of three charges of motor vehicle law violations—driving while drunk, careless and reckless driving, and driving without an operator's license.

The court imposed the following sentences on the defendant:

Driving while drunk, six months on the roads, sentence suspended on payment of $200 fine and court costs, and he is not to operate a motor vehicle for 18 months.

Careless and reckless driving: Three months on the roads, sentence to run concurrenly with the driving drunk sentence. This sentence is suspended on condition that Garris pay into the court for the Pitt County Board of Education for damage to a county school bus. It also provides for the defendant paying doctors' or medical bills for any of the school children in the bus at the time of the collision.

Driving without an operator's license: The court fined Garris $25 and costs.

In the case of Edward O. McQueen, Negro, the court found him guilty of failure to yield right of way and gave him 60 days on the roads, sentence suspended on payment of $15 on court costs. The court ordered that McQueen not drive a motor vehicle for nine months, unless he pays $100 for property damage resulting from a collision. It also provides that he is to remain of good behavior for a year and not violate any law.

Eight motorists were up on charges of speeding: Jesse W. Morris, William O. Baldwin, William Barnes, each fined $15; Tony Morotto, $20; Arthur F. Seabeneck and David L. DeHaven, each $15; Waverly C. Parrott, 30 days in jail, sentence suspended on payment of $25, and the court ordered that he is not to operate a motor vehicle for 90 days; Avalon W. Swain Jr., $15.

Farmers' Day In Farmville Will Be Held On April 23

FARMVILLE — Farmers Day will be held here Wednesday, April 23. Plans are being made for a more elaborate program for the day's celebration.

A parade, with brass bands and commercial and educationa. floats, will feature the annual event.

A prominent speaker, yet to be named, will discuss a subject of public interest in the afternoon.

A beauty contest with pretty girls participating will be held at night. The contestants will be featured in the parade and feted during the afternoon at a luncheon sponsored by women's organizations.

The warehouse will be decorated in holiday colors. Commercial and industrial firms will have displays in booths. Schools and civic and other organizations will have special exhibits. Cash and merchandise prizes will be awarded to winners.

The Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade and the civic and other groups in the city are cooperating to make Farmville's "Farmers' Day" a bigger and more entertaining event for farmers and their families in this part of Eastern Carolina.

Dramatic Club Elects Officers

Lloyd Whitfield of Kinston will serve for the second year as president of the Teachers Playhouse, students dramatic club at East Carolina College, as a result of recent elections held b y the organization. With other new officers, he will direct the work of the club during the 1952- 1953 term.

A junior at the college, Whitfield has participated in the work of the Teachers Playhouse since he entered East Carolina three years ago. At present he is a member of the cast and the technical director of the production of "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer," six performances of which are scheduled for April 2-9. He is also sports editor of the "Teco Echo," weekly newspaper published by students at the college.

Other officers chosen by members of the Teachers Playhouse for the coming school year are Mary Anne Oates of Faison, vice president; Bobbie Caldwell of Wadeville, treasurer; Percy Wilkins of Benson, recording secretary; and Carolyn Clapp of Greenville, corresponding secretary.

Attending Nat'l Music Meeting

Robert Craft of Beulaville, student in the music department at East Carolina College, is attending the Music Educators National Conference in Philadelphia this week.

At the national meeting, Craft represents the campus chapter of the organization. This group of students at the college includes approximately 25 members, who under the direction of Augusta Kuykendall of the faculty carry on during the school year a program of activities in the music department.

When New England farmers cleared their land, they often piled loose stones found in the fields at the edges of the fields as fences. Thouands of miles of these stone fences are still in place.

Aboriginal residents of Easter Island called it "Rapa Nui" —"The Big Paaddle", presumably in memory of the long canoe trip which brought the first people to the island.

Chapter 40

Nick Walker's heavy figure appeared from the adjoining pantry. He was carrying two of the unlighted candles in holders. "We'd better get these placed around," he said.

Doctor Clark followed him with more of the candles.

Moe looked at Johnny, then disappeared toward the front hall and the stairs. The doctor and Walker went into the living room. Johnny continued into the conservatory and found Kay with the nurse. The dog, Michael, was lying on the tile floor.

The two women had been talking. Kay got to her feet quickly. "Tell me," she asked tensely. "how much more does Mother remember? Is she going to be all right, Johnny? Is she? Moe said you've been with her for an hour." She talked breathlessly and fast. Her eyes were the deep green of fresh limes.

Johnny patted her arm. "Stop worrying, child," he said. He turned to Karen. "I was looking for you. Irene's coming downstairs, but I don't like to leave her alone."

"I'll go right up," the nurse said, starting to leave them.

"Karen?" said Johnny.

The nurse turned. The cool, efficient manner there had been in her when he'd first met her, had disappeared. Her wide-set dark eyes were friendly now. "Yes?" she asked.

"Were you in my room anytime yesterday? Were you looking for something?"

Kay caught her breath, gave a slight start." "Johnny!"

He was looking at tall Karen.

"Yes," the nurse said frankly.

"Why?"

"I wanted to be positive who you were."

"Who I was?"

She nodded. "You see, I was employed as more than a registered nurse. J. T. Smith employed me through Doctor Clark. They are close friends...Well, Kay's Uncle Thomas asked me to be sure to check up on you when you arrived here. He was so worried about Irene, and it was my duty to see that nothing happened to her. I was to make positive that you were the right person."

"I'll be darned," Johnny said. "That's the first time I've ever been investigated."

"Karen said, "I found your credentials in your room." She smiled again. "You certainly have a fine reputation. Some of those papers ...one from the headquarters bureau in New York..."

Johnny waved his hand. It was one of the few times he ever looked ill at east. "Come on, Karen," he said quickly, "go upstairs and get Irene."

She nodded and left them.

He said, "Come, let's get everyone together in the library." He took Kay's arm, guided her toward the large connecting living room in the front of the wide house. The storm, outside, seemed to hold the mansion in a world set apart.

But Kay looked at him, bright interest in her eyes. She had paused a moment before continuing into the living room.

"Johnny! Does she know? Has she remembered? Is she going to be able to tell us what happened that...night?'

"I'm not sure," he said truthfully. "But things are coming back to her."

"Does she remember the book?"

"I... didn't remind her of all of it," he said slowly. "Yes, I think she does. Do you know who Marie is?"

Kay met his eyes, puzzled.

"Marie was your mother, in the book she was writing."

"And who was Bart?"

"Your father... only years ago, when they first met."

Kay stared. "Tell me the rest, Johnny!"

"No," he said.

And Kay was trembling.

Johnny said, "Let's get it over with . Come on."

They found Nick Walker and Doctor Clark in the long library across the center hall. Johnny wondered what was keeping Moe Martin. He also wondered about young Ralph Dunkirk, and asked the girl.

"He had to leave," Kay said. "The storm will mean calls for service at the garage." She moved her shoulders uneasily as a particularly loud smash of thunder shook the house.

Nick Walker, getting up from a chair, picked up two glasses from a tray and handed them to Kay and Johnny. "Drink hearty," he said. "It looks like we'll be stranded here for awhile."

Moe came into the library.

Instantly Johnny noticed that he was upset. Moe always had a worried manner about him, but this was different. He caught Johnny's eye and made an imperceptible motion of his head. Johnny Saxon stepped over to the coffee table as though to get his partner a drink. Standing there together, Moe told him quietly:

"It wasn't there."

"I told you the gun was right under the pillow..."

"I know you did, and I looked everywhere else, too."

Johnny quickly put his glass down on the stand. "I'd better.."

The woman's scream reverberated through the house. It was followed by everal more quick, short, frantic cries of terror. Then it stopped.

Kay, across the room, cried, "Johnny!"

Nick Walker yelled, "It's Irene!"

The lights went out.

AGE LIMITS LIFTED

VANCOUVER, B. C. — (AP) — A preliminary report by City Personnel Director B. H. Peterson showed Vancouver has hired three persons over the age of 40 since the city council opened age limits for civic employment. He believes older men and women will be more stable in certain jobs.

AYDEN COLORED NEWS

There will be revival services held at the Morning Star Holiness Church beginning Monday night, March 31, and lasting through the week.

The revival will be conducted by the Elder E. E. Isler of Kinston. Brother Johnson, a blind guitar player of Philadelphia, will accompany Rev. Isler and help with special music.

The public is cordially invited to these services and it has been suggested that each person attending bring a friend.

Elder William Dixon is pastor of the church.

Wilson's Weekly Bulletin

from the RECTOR KITCHENS

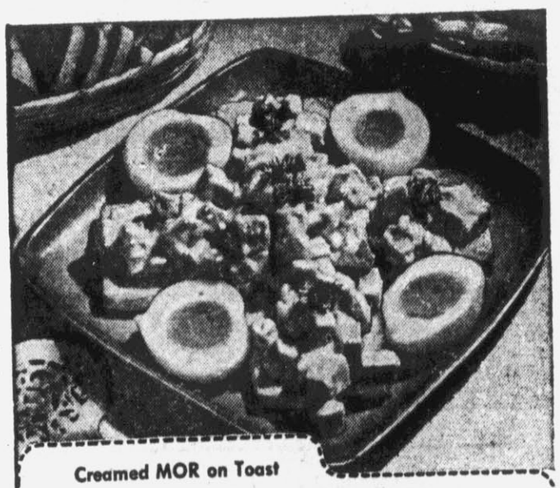
As an aid on a busy day, an economy special with an upper-bracket flavor, serve hickory-smoked sugar-cured Wilson's MOR, that marvelous, new, smoky-flavored sandwich meat.

Worthy of Note

This tasty, tender, economy meat is versatile. It can come to the dinner table, too. Cream it tastily on toast and garnish with any fruit that blends with its sweet and smoky, ham-like flavor. Here's a platter of beauty and flavor, yet one full of good, high-quality protein nutrition, too.

Another day make MOR-meat into something new in a stew. Sweet onions, potatoes and carrots are delightful vegetables to add. So are green beans, limas, celery and in fact any vegetables that accent MOR's temptingly good hickory-smoked and sugar-cured flavor.

Keep your kitchen supplied with MOR! Your family will enjoy its new and different flavor-lift on the menu.



Creamed MOR on Toast

Prepare a smooth cream sauce as follows:
Melt:
2 tablespoons Wilson's Certified Margarine or Clearbrook Butter
Remove from heat. Stir in:
2 tablespoons flour
When smooth gradually stir in:
1½ cups milk and few grains pepper keeping mixture smooth. Stir and cook until smooth and gravy-thick. Add contents from:
1 can Wilson's MOR, cubed
Serve hot over toast squares. Use parsley and canned peach halves to garnish. Serves 4.

Stocks And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP) — Oils and rails led stocks higher on increased volume today.

The list started firm on moderate volume following yesterday's late rise from early lows. The upturn was seen as largely technical coming after a series of dull declines. Traders were still worried over the outcome of steel wage negotiations, market men said.

Oils made the best advances. Texas Pacific Land Trust hit a high at 192 up 8 points and then yielded two points of the rise. Shell touched 80 1-2 up 3 1-4; Amerada 220 up 2 3-8, and Kern County Land 44 3-4 up 2. Phillips, Cities Service and Atlantic Refining gained a point or more.

U. S. Smelting, large holder of Texas Pacific Land Trust, rose 2 1-2 points.

Northern Pacific, termed a well-oiled railroad, rose 2 1-4 to 84 1-4. Santa Fe and Union Pacific rose more than a point each. Colorado & Southern issues were active with the common at a new high of 58 up 3.

Some chemicals, metals and special issues gained more than a point. Zenith was up nearly a point in the televisions. Steels and motors ruled steady.

Packard featured in volume, helped by an opening block of 14,200 shares.

The French also have been demanding the recall from Paris of Justice Minister Salah Ben Yourself and Health Minister Mohammed Badra, who went to Paris in January to ask United Nations intervention in Tunisia. These two men, fearing arrest, remained in hiding most of yesterday, then headed for exile in Cairo.

In order to keep Pitt County green we must do all we can to prevent forest fires which take toll of the best timber each year. Be careful where the lighted match is thrown. A ladder for farm homes is important too.

During a series of outlook meetings held in each section of the county, points stressed by the Negro County Agent were: a garden on every farm, one or two brood sows, a milk cow, two if possible, plenty of chickens, a good pasture and all farm families increase their food and feed production.

The County Agent brought the idea to the farmers that they should harness every foot of idle land and put it to work by growing a pasture, or raising peas or soybeans.

A tractor school was held on Fred Corey's farm, in the Ayden community, Thursday, March 27, at 1:30.

Surviving are her husband, Willie Ebron; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Council of Robersonville, Rte. 1; a sister, Mrs. Gladys L. Little of Stokes; eight aunts, two uncles.

Burial will be in the Council cemetery.

The Pitt County Negro schools will have their annual Elementary Musical Festival at Grimesland Friday night, March 28. Schools participating in the festival are High Smith, Haddocks, Clemmons, Post Oak and Simpson.

Demo Leaders In Shopping Tour For Compromiser

WASHINGTON (UP)— Democratic leaders are shopping around for a "good compromiser" who can avert a party split over the civil rights plank in the 1952 platform, it was disclosed today.

Their choice will be chairman of the committee which will draft the party's platform at the Democratic convention in July.

A well-informed party official said a search is under way for an administration Democrat who works easily with the Southerners.

Another party strategist said it can be assumed that the chairman will be picked from the ranks of Democrats "who want to unite the party."

The objective will be to frame a platform which will appease the Southerners, who oppose President Truman's civil rights program, without completely repudiating that program.

A still broader objective is to avoid a party rift like that which cost the Democrats the electoral votes of four Southern states in 1948.

The platform committee drafted a civil rights plank acceptable to the Southerners in 1948.

However, a convention floor fight led by Hubert H. Humphrey, now senator from Minnesota, led to the adoption of a much stronger plank in the final version. Some Southern delegates walked out and formed the States Rights party.

Anti-Truman Southern leaders have made clear that a more acceptable platform is one of their demands for 1952. However, they will not be content with agreement on that count alone.

A major Dixie revolt still will be likely if Mr. Truman should be renominated.

Mr. Truman ends his Key West vacation today and returns to Washington, where he will make a political speech Saturday at the Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner.

Democrats here are expecting a "give 'em hell" speech, aimed at the Republicans, with no clue to his 1952 plans.

White House press secretary Joseph Short had a cryptic "no comment" for a copyrighted report, published by the St. Louis Post Dispatch, that Mr. Truman is trying to persuade Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois to become the administration's candidate for president.

Stevenson himself put a damper on the report last night when he said "I cannot seek and will not seek the Democratic nomination for president." He did not elaborate.

Republicans, meanwhile, headed into a new squabble over whether the April 15 New Jersey primary can be regarded as a test of strength between Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Taft tried to withdraw from the primary on grounds that Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll violated a promise of neutrality and threw the state GOP organization behind Eisenhower.

Driscoll denied the charge, but Taft ordered his headquarters closed and decided against conducting a campaign.

State officials at first cooperated with Taft's move to take his name from the ballot, but reversed themselves yesterday and did not press for a court order to insure Taft's withdrawal.

As a result, the Ohioan's name will appear on the ballot along with Eisenhower and Harold E. Stassen.

Campaigning in Wisconsin for the presidential primary there next Tuesday, Taft declined to comment on the New Jersey situation.

Request Closing More Airports

NEW YORK (UP)— Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle's airport commission, named by President Truman to investigate air traffic in the New York area following three plane crashes in Elizabeth, N.J., killing 199 persons, has been asked to close LaGuardia and Idlewild International Airports.

The proposal was submitted by the Council for the Elimination of Air Crashes in Queens County. Both airports are in Queens count.
