Beauty Titlist And Runners-Up

Surrender Signed By Convict Clique

Michigan's Governor Bows To Demands But Mutinous Convicts Remain Holed Up In Cellblock Until Assured Of Big Dinner Tomorrow

By DON BALL
United Press Staff Correspondent
JACKSON, Mich. (UP) — Mutinous convicts at Southern Michigan Prison signed a formal surrender today but refused to come out of their besieged cellblock with eight guard hostages until a dinner "fit for a king" is served them tomorrow.

To save the lives of the guards, some of them held at knife-point since Sunday, Gov. G. Mennen Williams bowed, to 11 demands by the 171 felons for "reforms" at the prison.

Although the surrender was signed today, end of the mutiny was delayed until tomorrow by the caprice of their psychopathic ring-leader.

Earl Ward, 28-year-old criminal, psychopath, added the price of an "abundant meal of steak, ice cream and appropriate trimmings" for giving up. His reasons for delaying the dinner and the end of the worst riot in Michigan prison history were not known.

But one of the mutineers, who sneaked out to find a "nice, warm, snug little cell," said Ward was "enjoying the publicity."

"He said he thinks he ought to be in Hollywood," commented Kenneth Moore, 26, who took advantage of the excitement in the release of the third guard hostage to make his escape.

"Most of them want to give up in this right now," Moore said. "But Ward goes around sticking out his chest saying 'we'll wait 'til tomorrow.'"

Moore came out behind a stretcher carrying guard James Atkins, 43, who suffered a nervous collapse from his hostage confinement.

Ridgway will close his occupation headquarters and transfer the reins of government to the Japanese next Monday, when the peace treaty goes into effect.

The supreme United Nations and United States commander in the Far East soberly assessed the threat of renewed Communist aggression in Asia.

He made these points:
1. A Korean armistice may increase the danger of attack on the nations around the rim of Red Asia. "It would free the major part of Communist military forces for such uses elsewhere as Communist leaders might wish to make of them," he said.

2. Soviet and Soviet-controlled forces in the Far East have been "greatly augmented since the start of hostilities in Korea."

3. Communist forces now based in eastern Siberia, Manchuria and North Korea, one to four flying hours from Japan, "have a capability of major offensive action against Japan. This capability for offensive action, particularly by air and sea, can be exercised with relatively little advance warning. What the intentions with respect to its exercise are, remain unknown."

4. The United Nations' stand in Korea has been a direct defense of Japan. It has "resulted in preventing the development of the much greater threat to Japan of having Communist military power, especially air power, established throughout the Korean peninsula and separated from the vital areas of Japan only by the straits of Tsushima."

5. "The independence of Japan and of the Republic of Korea are of vital concern, not only to the United States, but to the entire free world."

Ayden Girl Wins In Beauty Event

Crowned Queen Of Farmers Day; 14 Entries For Title

FARMVILLE — Charlene Smith, Ayden High School Senior, was crowned Queen of the Second annual Farmer's Day celebration here last night before an audience which crowded its way into the Monks warehouse for the highlights of the evening's activities.

The popular senior competed against a field of 13 other lovely candidates for the coveted honor, which carried with it a $100 cash award for first place.

A judges panel of three Wilson men debated more than one hour in rounding out the final selections which started with 14 contestants, narrowed down to seven semi-finalists and then to the three finalists. From the last three the tough job of ranking the young ladies in first, second and third place came in.

Runner-up honors went to Dorothy Ann Fulford, of Route 2, Farmville for second place. Miss Fulford was sponsored by the Farmville Home Demonstration Club. She received a $50 cash award.

Third place went to Miss Anne Harris of Fountain, who was sponsored by the Future Homemakers Club of Farmville. Third place carried a cash prize of $25.

Miss Smith was sponsored by the Ayden Lions Club and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Smith of Route 2, Ayden.

The 1952 Farmer's Day Queen was crowned by Jackie Jones, the 1951 Queen who reigned over the beauty contest before turning over her crown and scepter, the symbol of the reigning queen to Miss Smith.

Judges for the contest were: Littlejohn Faulkner, former Wilson mayor, Jim Fulghum, city editor of the Wilson Daily Times and Russell Arnold, head of the Art Department at Atlantic Christian College in Wilson.

Mayor Walter Jones served as master of ceremonies and presented each of the three top winners with their awards.

Shipping Raided By Planes, Ships

SEOUL, Korea (UP) — Allied planes and ships sank or damaged 23 Communist junks today in an attempt to interrupt movement of enemy supplies by sea.

Allied fighter-bombers roaming the North Korean West Coast sank seven junks and splintered six others in the Yellow Sea. On the East Coast, the marauding cruiser U.S.S. Manchester and the destroyer U.S.S. Buck sank four junks and damaged six.

U.S. Sabre jet pilots sought enemy jets near the Yalu River Manchurian border, but found none.

On the ground, Allied soldiers reported scattered Communist patrols and probes across the front. There were no major actions.

One U.N. patrol came under heavy fire from dug-in Chinese northwest of Yonchon on the western front. The patrol called in Allied tanks, which teamed with artillery in the rear to hammer the enemy outpost.

The patrol estimated 12 Communist soldiers were killed and 60 were wounded.

Centralized Airport Is Discussed

Movement For Eastern Carolina Air Center Brought To Local Attention

A movement for a central major airport to serve Eastern North Carolina came to light at a meeting held in Greenville last night.

The meeting was attended by representatives of the municipal governments of Greenville, Wilson, Rocky Mount and Tarboro, members of the Pitt Board of Commissioners, Jaycee representatives from the four cities and other interested citizens.

Ray Bandy of Rocky Mount, who presided at the meeting, told the group the movement started in Rocky Mount where it gained the support of the airport authority of that city and the municipal government. In an earlier meeting Wilson officials endorsed the movement in conjunction with Rocky Mount, and last night Greenville and Tarboro officials were brought into the picture.

The proposals as it now stands is for the four cities, and perhaps other towns in the area to be brought in later, and the counties of Pitt, Nash, Wilson and Edgecombe to join together to establish a central airport which would serve the entire area. It was pointed out that the present movement is an exploratory endeavor to ascertain whether the cities and counties involved would be interested in such a central airport, and to determine the cost of constructing and maintaining a central airport, and what sort of traffic load could be expected if the airport is established.

After considerable discussion F. P. Hendrix, chairman of the Pitt Board of Commissioners, moved the group consolidate "in an effort to get a central airport and continue to work to get the support of city and county governments for the project." The motion was seconded by a Tarboro representative and carried by the group without a dissenting vote.

Under the proposal, Bandy said, it would be up to the local governing bodies to determine whether local airports would be retained or abandoned if the central airport is established. "If we get the central airport, the airlines will be the least of our worries," Bandy stated, and added that conferences already held with representatives of the Civil Aeronautics Administration indicated they would look with favor upon the establishment of a central airport in the eastern section of North Carolina.

Mayor Lester D. Page of Greenville, and Pitt Commissioner Brown Hodges and C. C. Harris said they were favorable to the central airport proposal, and Greenville Alderman R. E. Rogers termed the proposal "one of the best ideas I've heard in many years. I think our city would be in favor of it. We would work with you people in any way to get this thing accomplished."

W. H. Watson of Greenville, chairman of the Eastern North Carolina Jaycee committee, told the group Junior Chamber of Commerce organizations of Greenville, Wilson, Rocky Mount and Tarboro have been working on the same project for the past two months, and pledged the support of the Jaycee group in the movement.

He said the Jaycees from the four cities already have begun gathering statistics to determine the feasibility of the project.

Dan Hendrix, Greenville secretary, said the Jaycee inter-city committee working on the project.

The idea as explained at the meeting last night is to place a large central airport at some point as

Library Book Is Victim Of Flood

BISMARCK, N. D. (AP) — A patron notified the Bismarck Public Library he was unable to return a borrowed book because his home had been flooded by the Missouri River.

When last seen, he said, the book was going down the Big Muddy.

The title of the book: "The Dammed Missouri Valley."

C-of-C Raps Seizure Of Steel Plants By Truman

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Chamber of Commerce of the United States charged today that President Truman violated three articles of the Constitution when he seized the steel industry to head off a strike.

Chamber President D. A. Hulcy made the charge in testimony prepared for a Senate Judiciary subcommittee which opened a formal investigation into the "legality" of the President's action.

Meanwhile, government and industry lawyers squared off for the second round of their court battle over the bitterly-disputed seizure.

Federal Judge David A. Pine granted a hearing today to five steel companies seeking a preliminary injunction which would have the effect of turning the plants back to their owners.

On a third front, the House took up a Republican-sponsored motion for a special investigation to find out whether the Wage Stabilization Board exercised its powers by recommending a union shop for the steel industry.

Rep. Leo Allen (R-Ill.), sponsor of the motion, accused the wage board of "grabbing for power" which it was never given by Congress. He predicted approval of the proposed investigation.

Momentarily inactive were three congressmen involved in the seizure controversy — the Senate Banking and Labor Committee and the House Judiciary Committee.

The latter has pending before it two separate GOP-sponsored resolutions looking toward impeachment of Mr. Truman.

Article 1 of the Constitution, in taking over the steel mills, flouted Article 5 of the Bill of Rights, which forbids seizure of property without due process of law; Article 6, which prohibits payment of just compensation; and Article 10, which reserves to the people all powers not designated in the Constitution.

$31,000 Worth Of Old Bonds Are Retired By City

Checks In Mail Total $55,256; Also Cover Interest On Recent Issues

Greenville City Clerk H. H. Duncan this morning mailed checks totaling $55,256.25 to Guaranty Trust Company and the Bankers Trust Co. of New York, an amount he says will retire $31,000 worth of old bonds and pay interest on more recent issues.

The old bonds retired today are $5,000 worth of public and street improvement bonds issued in 1938, $6,000 worth of electric light bonds issued in 1948, $4,000 worth of water bonds issued in 1948, $2,000 worth of sanitary sewer bonds issued in 1948, and $14,000 worth of electric light bonds issued in 1949.

An amount necessary to retire the old bonds, plus interest, made up $35,153.75 of the total $55,256.25 paid the bank. The remaining $20,102.50 is interest on current outstanding utilities bonds, for which interest rates range from two-and-one-half percent for long term bonds, to six percent for short term bonds.

The city clerk reported that the city and the utilities commission have retired $154,000 worth of bonds during this fiscal year. "Interest on bonds is paid every six months," he said, "and some bonds are set up on a retiring principal payment set-up."

Duncan disclosed that the city retires a set number of bonds each year through a long-range investment system.

Critical Point In Korean Parleys

Negotiators Apparently At New Crossroads In Talks

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP) — Truce negotiators apparently reached a critical point in prisoner exchange negotiations today.

Allied and Communist staff officers met for one hour and 10 minutes. They recessed twice, the first time they have called more than a single recess in one day.

A recess usually is called because one side wants to consider a new idea submitted by the other.

It was not disclosed which side asked for the recesses. All developments were cloaked by a news blackout.

Communist newsmen outside the conference tent said they knew nothing about the recess, but reported earlier that the U.N. has submitted a new list of prisoners omitting the names of captives who do not want to return to China or North Korea.

Radio Peiping described the list as a "nasty trick" and attacked the U.N. command for "revealing" the revised list in violation of an agreement not to disclose details of the confidential sessions.

In a neighboring conference tent, Allied and Communist staff officers again accused each other of not wanting to reach an armistice.

These officers, discussing how to supervise a Korean truce, met for 43 minutes. They made no progress.

Honesty Plea By GOP Candidate

THOMASVILLE (UP) — North Carolina's Republican candidate for governor took verbal swings at two of the principal aspirants for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination here yesterday as he made a plea for "honesty and integrity in government."

Herbert F. Seawell Jr. of Carthage, speaking at a civic club luncheon, said it has been reported that Hubert E. Oliver "advocates hot and cold running water in the homes of all farmers."

"The only way I can compete with that will be to advocate that the water be iced," Seawell said.

Revenue Bureau Set To Enforce Gambling Tax

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Internal Revenue Bureau is planning to get tough with gamblers who do not buy wagering tax stamps, it was learned today.

Present rules say a gambler must buy a stamp from the government within a month after going into business.

A new ruling, now under consideration, would require the professional bet-taker to have a stamp the day he opens shop. At present, a stampless gambler can skirt the law by claiming he has just started operating and has not gotten around to signing up with the tax collector.

With a look into the future, Scott said the next thing to be developed in North Carolina was the use of water resources.

He reported that the school building program was moving along fine.

Club was present.

Truman Reveals Big Stick Applied In Foreign Policy

Recognition For Safety Record

Governor W. Kerr Scott (left) is shown as he presented Farmville's Chief of Police L. T. Lucas, with a safety award for the city at the Farmville Farmers' Day event held yesterday. ## Estimated 5,000 Attend Festivities

Parade, Special Events And Entertainment Included In Farmers Day Program; Numerous Prizes Are Awarded

By MURIEL SHOTWELL
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE — An estimated 5,000 persons attended the Farmer's Day festivities here yesterday which included a spectacular parade, special events, and entertainment.

Farmville celebrated its second Farmer's Day with one of the best parades ever held in the eastern part of the state. The 15-minute parade featured beautiful girls, decorated floats which drew much attention from the spectators, clowns, and five bands.

The parade began at 1:30 and was led off with two convertibles in which rode Governor Kerr Scott, George Ross of the Department of Development and Conservation, Congressman Herbert Bonner, Senator Paul Jones, Dr. John D. Messick, and Henry Johnson.

They were followed by the Camp Lejeune Marine Band. Other bands participating were East Carolina College, Goldsboro, Tarboro, Franklin and Farmville School bands.

Float prizes were awarded when the crowd followed the parade to Monks' Warehouse. The Farmville Furniture Company received a first prize of $50.00 for the best decorated float; The Turnage Company was awarded $30.00 as second; and Eason Motors came in third with a prize of $20.00.

Other Prizes
A number of special prizes were awarded during the evening entertainment from firms and businesses in Farmville. Ben Hardison of Farmville won an electric range refrigerator, F. W. Satterwhite won a Westinghouse Laundromat, and Mrs. Jane Andrews won a radio.

H. D. Davenport of Farmville, Route 2, won a prize for having the largest family (seven) present at the Farmer's Day event and three men, J. T. Bundy, Bob Hinson, and Willie Tugwell, were awarded prizes for having sold tobacco on the Farmville Market for the longest.

J. T. Bundy also won another prize for being the oldest man present at the event and J. T. Taylor of Greenville ran Bundy a close second. Emma Jones of Lizzie was the oldest lady present. C. T. Young's three-week-old baby won a prize for being the youngest person present.

Two Cherry Point Marines whose homes are in Massachusetts were given prizes for coming the farthest to attend the event.

John Gladson, 312-pounder, was the heaviest person present and a six feet three-inch Marine was the tallest person that could be found in the crowd. A 29-inch adult was the shortest person at the event.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Warren Brandt were the newest newlyweds at the celebration and J. T. Bundy took another prize, this one for being married the longest (53 years).

Fred Carraway of Arthur and Miss Christine Smith of Fountain owned the oldest mules (23 years old) and Bill Jones owned the oldest car, a 1930 Hupmobile.

Special Entertainment
Following the parade, the Camp Lejeune Marine Band gave a half hour concert in Monks' Warehouse and the Farmville Band gave a concert at the beginning of the evening entertainment.

A stage show and special acts were put on by the Bar X Boys Rusty Williams Dance and Comedy team, and Herman Joseph and his accordion. The Bar X Boys played for round and square dancing at the last event from 9:30 until midnight.

The Farmer's Day celebration was sponsored by the Farmville Chamber of Commerce.

Says Ultimatum Forced Stalin Out Of Iran And Fleet Kept Tito Out Of Trieste; Disclaims Any Thought Of Press And Radio Seizure As A Lot Of 'Hokey'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Truman said today he once forced Premier Stalin to move out of Iran by sending him an ultimatum.

The President also told a news conference there was a time when Yugoslavia decided to take Trieste, but that he ordered the Mediterranean Fleet into that area and there was no march on Trieste.

BULLETIN
WASHINGTON (UP) — The White House is considering naming a board of prominent citizens to decide whether the steel industry's case for over-the-ceiling price increases is justified, it was learned today.

Truman spoke of these incidents in discussing his powers generally and specifically his seizure of the steel industry.

He said the President has very great inherent powers to meet emergencies developing that require action.

Coming down to more recent events, the President said there has been what he called a lot of hokey about seizure of the press and radio as a result of his last news conference.

On last Thursday, Truman was asked this question:
"Mr. President, if you can seize the steel mills under your inherent powers, can you, in your opinion, also seize the newspapers or the radio stations?"

The President replied that under similar circumstances, the President of the United States has to act for whatever is for the best of the country. That's the answer to your question, he added.

In reverting to the matter today, Truman said the thought of seizing the press and radio never occurred to him.

He went on to say he seized the steel industry because this country is in the midst of the greatest emergency it has ever had.

It was then he told his news conference:
"That in 1945 he had to send an ultimatum to the head of the Soviet Union to get out of Persia (Iran). They got out, the President said of the Russians, because we were in a position then to meet the situation in that area."

Later, the President went on, Yugoslavia decided to take Trieste. He said he thought that was 1946.

He said he not only ordered the Mediterranean Fleet into that area, but told Gen. Eisenhower to send three divisions to northern Italy.

Setting his jaw firmly, Truman commented there was no march on Trieste.

The President was asked whether he sent a personal message to Stalin delivering an ultimatum on Iran. The President said the ultimatum went through regular channels.

"Was it an ultimatum in the sense that you fixed a time limit for the Russians to move out?" a reporter asked.

The President said they had a day certain (sic) in which to get out. He said he did not recall how many days were involved.

"Did Stalin reply to you in any written way?" a reporter pressed.

Truman said, he (Stalin) got out of Persia.

Asks Financing Of Civil Defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Truman urged Congress today to furnish $50 million dollars for civil defense during the next fiscal year, saying "We cannot afford a penny-wise, pound-foolish attitude."

He warned in a special message that the nation now has only "the skeleton of a good civil defense organization."

In closing, Scott reminded the people to vote for the man who is interested in the masses and not just a few people. He urged the people to give careful consideration to their next choice.

The governor was introduced by Arch Flanagan, chairman of the program committee, after which Scott presented a certificate to Farmville Chief of Police Lucas for not having an automobile fatality in the city limits since 1939.

Mayor Walter Jones introduced several men who were on the speaker's platform. They included Congressman Herbert Bonner, Dr. J. D. Messick, Paul Jones, J. E. Winslow and Hugh Winslow, Alex Adams, and Alton Evans.

Governor Scott was entertained at a barbecue luncheon at the Farmville Country Club at which members of the Camp Lejeune Marine Band and Cherry Point Ball Club were present.

Ridgway Reaffirms Japan To Have U. S. Protection

TOKYO (UP) — Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway pledged today on the eve of Japan's independence that "Japan can and will be defended against any attack."

The statement, made in an exclusive interview with the United Press, was the most unequivocal assurance yet given the Japanese as the Allied occupation nears an end. Aligned with the West and technically at war with Russia and Red China, Japan faces an uncertain future.

Mrs McGinnis Hostess To Ladies Of The Round Table

On Tuesday afternoon, the Round Table met at the home of Mrs. Howard McGinnis. A profusion of spring flowers, artistically arranged, added charm to the home. Especially attractive were the lovely roses and lilacs.

Upon arrival, the members were served a delectable dessert plate, with coffee. The hostess was assisted in serving by Mrs. J. E. Winslow, Mrs. D. S. Spain, Mrs. Herbert Hadley and Miss June Haddock.

Following a delightful social hour, the incoming president, Mrs. Charles Horne, presided over the business meeting. Standing committees gave their report, and routine matters of business were dispatched.

The highlight of the afternoon was the discussion of the Williamsburg Restoration, ably led by Mrs. D. L. Moore.

The scope of the Restoration is national in character. It presents to the nation an authentic picture of Colonial America. To restore a city founded three hundred and sixteen years ago, was no small task. Preservation as well as Restoration was necessary, for Williamsburg, the capital, held a place of distinction in the life of Virginia and all the other American colonies. Its tradition was enhanced by association with the names of great leaders of the colonies—George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Patrick Henry, Peyton Randolph and Edmund Pendleton are only a few of the patriots who helped make the history of Williamsburg.

The Restoration was the dream of Dr. Goodwin, rector of Bruton Parish. He interested John D. Rockefeller Jr. in the project. After some twenty-five years of arduous labor, ninety buildings have been restored. The undertaking, in which architecture, archaeology and documentary research were combined, was a stupendous task. Libraries in England, France and Spain yielded valuable data. The "Fremont's Map" provided invaluable, as did valuable information in the Huntington Library in Santa Monica, California.

Aside from the restoration of the buildings and their authentic furnishings, the landscaping and gardens presented a mammoth task. The underlying motives in the landscape design of the restored grounds have been to preserve the essentials of what was there in the 18th century; to achieve simplicity and formality that were characteristic of that period. The present trees and shrubs are the same varieties that were used at that time.

The servants quarters, enclosed by a pale fence, are hedged in by purple lilacs and shaded by flowering red bud and old mulberry trees.

The keynote of the entire project has been accuracy. Throughout the entire endeavor, the State of Virginia, as well as North and South Carolina, co-operated with the research workers, and hence valuable information was obtained. Especially co-operative were the Historical Societies, and the response of the public at large was most gratifying to the research workers.

The foundation stone of William and Mary College was laid in 1695. Here, according to tradition, was held the first meeting of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, which was founded by students of the College of William and Mary on Dec. 5th, 1776.

Following this excellent treatment of the most interesting subject, Mrs. Moore showed pictures of many places of interest. A lovely picture of the crowning achievement—the Governor's Palace—was greatly admired.

Following the discussion on the Restoration, Mrs. C. E. Oakley gave the word study and the "bit of spice." Mrs. Charles Horne concluded the program with a timely event.

Mrs. Ficklen Hostess To Thalian Club

Mrs. L. S. Ficklen was hostess to members of the Thalian Book Club on Tuesday at her home on Lewis Street.

Upon arrival the guests were served a two course luncheon at tables appointed with spring flowers as centerpieces. Other floral arrangements of flowers added a decorative touch to the home.

Following the luncheon Mrs. Ficklen presided over the business. A new slate of officers was installed for the coming year. They are: president, Mrs. B. B. Sugg, Jr.; vice president, Mrs. Dan Wright, secretary and treasurer, Mrs. N. O. Van Nortwick, Jr.; and librarian, Mrs. Tom Webb.

Mrs. Charles Gaskin, program chairman, held a discussion relative to the club's program plans for the next year. No definite plans were made at this time, however.

A report from the club's representatives on the Book Club Day committee was made. It was announced that members planning to attend the luncheon had to make their reservations by Saturday, April 26.

As this meeting was a business affair entirely, there was no program for the afternoon. Guests present for the meeting were Mrs. Bancroft Moseley and Mrs. P. K. Anderson.

Woman's Club Notice
The Woman's Club is celebrating its 35th anniversary on Sunday, April 27th.

In observance of their birthday, they are holding an open house at the club on Sunday afternoon between the hours of 4:00-5:30 p.m. The public is cordially invited to attend the social affair.

Twenty-Five Year Plus Club To Meet
The Twenty-Five Year Plus Club will meet tonight with Mrs. H. B. Ragdale.

Clio Book Club
Tuesday afternoon Mrs. H. L. Rivers, Club Sponsor, was hostess to the Clio Book Club at her home in Brook Green. The beauty of her home was enhanced by attractive arrangements of spring flowers. After a short business meeting presided over by the president, Mrs. Jake Hadley, the hostess served a delicious salad course. The books were distributed and the club adjourned.

In Appreciation
We wish to express our sincere thanks and heartfelt appreciation for the beautiful floral offerings and the kind words of everyone who helped to make our burden lighter. We pray for God's richest blessings upon everyone for their kindness. Mr. and Mrs. Huel Crawford and Family

Redmen Notice
A regular meeting of Withlacoochee Tribe No. 35, Improved Order of Redmen, will be held Friday night at 7:30 p.m. There will be a barbecue supper and degree work. All members and candidates who have not been initiated are urged to attend.

Trip To Hawaiian Islands Related At Athenaeum Club

Mrs. Owen Marshburn was hostess to members of the Athenaeum Book Club at her suburban home, "Andalusia," on last Tuesday at 1:00 p.m.

The home was lovely with many unusual floral arrangements, many of which were dried arrangements of things which Mrs. Marshburn had brought to the United States from Hawaii. On the table in the dining room which was covered with a pink linen luncheon cloth, was a unique centerpiece formed from bamboo stamens and flowering pink dogwood. On auxiliary tables throughout the living room and den were small floral centerpieces.

At the conclusion of the two course luncheon, which was served as soon as the guests assembled, a brief business session was conducted by Mrs. D. J. Whitchard, Jr. Mrs. Ty Wagner read a timely article on "The Real Meaning of Mother's Day."

Mrs. Marshburn, who presented the program for the afternoon, told of her recent six weeks' trip to the Hawaiian Islands. She traced the itinerary by plane and boat to the colorful greeting which all visitors receive from the natives, who shower them with leis and entertain them with the native dances as the boat docks.

In her travelogue account of her experiences while there, she told of the customs, habits, and general life of the inhabitants of Hawaii. She followed her diary record as she told of the places she went and gave an interesting account of the plant life of the islands, showing many picture cards in color and pasting specimens of some of the native flora of the islands.

Mrs. Marshburn had brought back many items of interest which she passed among the club members. Materials of all kinds, small pieces of furniture and bowls made of the wood of the monkey pod tree, leis in various colors, exotic dried flowers and other articles were specially interesting to the guests.

Mrs. Marshburn's account of her trip was well received and each one felt a better understanding of life in the romantic Pacific islands as a result of her talk.

Special guests for the afternoon were Mrs. H. G. Haney, Mrs. John Messick, Mrs. Leighton Blount, Mrs. J. H. Waldrop and Mrs. Helen White Hawes.

Mrs. L. McGowan Funeral In Tennessee

Mrs. Ruth McGowan, 31 wife of LeDrew McGowan, died at Pitt Memorial Hospital in Greenville at one o'clock Thursday morning.

The body will remain at the S. G. Wilkerson & Sons Funeral Home until Friday morning and then will be carried to Maynardville, Tenn. for funeral and burial.

Mrs. McGowan spent most of her life at Maynardville, Tenn. and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Greenlee. Since her marriage to Mr. McGowan on April 16, 1931, she had made her home in the Porters town community of Pitt County. She was a member of the Missionary Baptist Church in Maynardville.

Surviving are her husband; an infant son; her parents; a sister, Mrs. Lee Barnes of Maynardville; and three brothers, Donnie, Swan and Roy Greenlee, all of Tennessee.

Safety Record Is Claimed At H-Bomb Plant

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UP)—The Atomic Energy Commission said today another world's safety record for the construction of the Savannah River H-bomb plant in South Carolina.

From March 12 through April 12, all employees at the plant, including subcontractors, worked 6,121,979 continuous man-hours without a disabling injury.

The duPont record was ended by a finger injury, the overall record by a head injury.

Both figures far surpassed the former world's safety record of 4,826,763 hours, set at the Savannah River plant last Jan. 30.

Weasel Unhurt But Stock Dies

ORILLIA, Ont. (UP)—Farmer E. A. Colt scattered poisoned bread and chicken on his farm to catch a weasel that had been raiding his henhouse.

He said today that so far the bait has killed his dog, her six pups, one cow, 19 chickens, three pigs, four skunks, three tame rabbits and two raccoons. No dead weasel has been found.

Bland-Moore

Nature never smiled more beautifully on a marriage scene than she did for the one witnessed in Memorial Baptist Church Wednesday night. Skilled hands lent their aid in making the interior of the church in keeping with nature's touch without and the artistic decorations in green and white of the rafters and choir gallery made a fitting background to the beautiful wedding scene that was witnessed.

An hour before the time for the marriage people thronged the church and it was soon filled to overflowing. It was near quarter past nine o'clock when the first note from the organ under the touch of Miss Lillian Carr hushed the subdued conversations in the audience and all looked expectantly for the scene that had brought them thither.

As the bride party waited in the vestibule, Mrs. W. L. Hall sweetly sang "I Love You Truly." This was followed by the "Bridal Chorus," delightfully rendered by a double quartette.

When the bridesmaids and maids of honor reached their places, the music quickly changed to Lohengrin's "Here Comes the Bride" and the beautiful bride, Miss Lillian Moore, entered with her father, Mr. W. M. Moore. She wore an exquisite dress of white satin with crystal and pearl trimmings and carried a bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley. As they approached the groom, Mr. D. H. Bland of Goldboro, and his best man, Mr. W. E. Stroud of Goldboro, came through the choir door. They met in front of the altar and the couple advanced to where stood Rev. C. M. Rock, pastor of the church, who in a beautiful and impressive ceremony, spoke the words that made them man and wife and joined for life two happy hearts.

Mr. and Mrs. Bland left on the midnight Norfolk Southern train via Norfolk for New York and other cities followed with the congratulations and good wishes of a great host of friends.

Minstrel Draws Large Audience

The Greenville Kiwanis Club's 10th annual minstrel show, produced under direction of Eli Bloom, drew an overflow audience at Austin auditorium last night.

The minstrel will be presented again tonight at 8:15. Proceeds of the show are for the Kiwanis Club's underprivileged child fund. Tickets will be available at the door.

"The minstrel is a $3 show," a former member of a nationally known band said last night. "It is a credit to Producer Bloom and to the Kiwanis Club. The scenery and costumes are elaborate. The songs and dances are sparkling and the end men jokes drew waves of applause last night," he added.

Tige Gardner, popular minstrel man, starred in the show last night, and Guy Smith, who has been in all of the minstrel shows, was in the cast in colonial costume. Eli Bloom as interlocutor received generous applause. Cecil Ellington, instrumentalist and Margaret James, vocal soloist, were features of the show.

Numerous college boys and girls were in the cast. Producer Bloom thanked Kiwanians and college people for helping to make the show a success.

After tonight's show Kiwanians and members of the minstrel cast will have a buffet supper at the Rotary Building. This will take the place of the usual Friday night meeting.

Goods are carried up the Rhine to Switzerland at about half the cost of land transport.

$4 Million Blaze Hits Waterfront

VANCOUVER, B. C. (UP)—A roaring fire which blazed a path of destruction across the Vancouver waterfront ruined property worth at least $4,000,000, fire department officials said today.

Flames crumpled a $2,500,000 grain-loading terminal and gutted adjoining warehouses which, with their contents, were valued at $1,500,000 yesterday before the fire was extinguished.

The fire spread so rapidly that the 1,200-foot dock was ablaze from end to end within 30 minutes after the first alarm was sounded.

About 39 tugs and fishing vessels fanned out in all directions as the fury of the fire increased. Then a fireboat chugged in and put out the flames.

"That fireboat hit that fire like Niagara Falls," Fire Chief J. E. Shaw said.

Pumping 20,000 gallons a minute from its six high velocity nozzles, the 80-foot, red-hulled fireboat cut the flames away from the banks of concrete grain elevators.

"Those grain elevators could have gone off like atom bombs," civil defense co-ordinator F. V. Pearkes said. He had ordered the public out of a five-block surrounding area because of the blast threat.

Once the flames menaced 23 tons of nitrate and sodium chlorate stored in warehouses, but a team of 20 sweating stevedores heaved the 50-pound bags aboard relays of trucks which hauled the chemicals away.

Daylight Saving Time To Start Again Next Sunday

By The Associated Press
Daylight saving time will start again Sunday for many millions of folks who will turn their clocks ahead one hour.

DST is popular in many urban areas—more time for golf and gardening and other summer recreation, and a boon to considerable industrial production.

But most farm folks refuse to tinker with the clock and disturb their dawn-to-dusk rhythm of feeding, milking and tending crops.

An estimated 65 million people live by DST, and about 80 million don't.

Daylight saving time will last five months until the last Sunday in September, the 28th this year. In general, DST goes into effect at 2 a.m. in New Jersey, it's midnight. It has scattered friends in West Virginia, perhaps 10 per cent of the state. Louisville, St. Louis, Butte, Mont., Mandan, N. D., and Los Alamos, N. M., are the only cities in those states using it.

Most popular in the industrial Northeast, it is officially approved in some 22 states and by the federal government for Washington, D. C., workers. Surrounding areas in Maryland and Virginia go along. Daylight time is used throughout the following states or in nearly all of their major cities, mostly by local option:

Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, District of Columbia, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Nevada and California.

Twelve Plays To Be Given Today At Drama Event

CHAPEL HILL (AP)—The second round of productions at the state drama festival at the University of North Carolina today included 12 plays.

The program included eight plays by city high schools, one by a junior college, two by senior colleges, and one performance by a children's theater.

All productions are being staged in the Carolina Playmakers Theater and by Saturday night 350 young dramatists from all sections of the state will have participated. The festival, which started yesterday, is sponsored by the Carolina Dramatic Association, headed this year by Mrs. Julius H. Rose of Greenville. This is the 29th annual festival.

Byrd Undismayed By RFC Revival

WASHINGTON (UP) — Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.) said today his bill to abolish the Reconstruction Finance Corp. "still has a good chance" of Senate approval.

The Senate, after three hours of heated debate and parliamentary maneuvering, voted 39-36 last night to send the measure back to committee.

Earlier, Byrd had won tentative approval of his bill to liquidate the RFC and transfer some of its functions to other government agencies. The 42-37 vote caught administration forces with a damaging number of absentees.

Led by Democratic Leader Ernest W. McFarland and Sens. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.) and John J. Sparkman (D-Ala.), they fought desperately for more than two hours to gain enough time and votes to send the entire question back to committee.

Byrd's temporary victory came on a motion to substitute his bill for Fulbright's measure to lighten up RFC administrative procedures and loan standards. Chairman Burnet R. Maybank (D-SC) of the Banking committee named Fulbright, chairman of an RFC subcommittee, to hold hearings if necessary — on the question.

Fulbright, who headed the sensational 1950-51 RFC investigation said he had no definite plans yet. The Senate, by voice vote, ordered the committee to report by June 2. But the committee is not bound to bring back either the Byrd measure or Fulbright's original bill.

Just Bums
WASHINGTON — (AP) — Ray Tweeffort, a Fifth Avenue tailor, contends America's men "have become a nation of bums and slobs because of slovenly dress."

He's upset particularly by the soft-collared shirts worn by so many officials and diplomats.

"When we took the starch out of our collars we took the starch out of our backbones," Tweeffort told a reporter after attending a business conference here.

"Morals, manners and etiquette have disappeared," he declared. "Men go without hats and ties. Women rush to work wearing babushkas, looking like Russian peasants. Ugh!"

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLAS

ENEMIES SOMETIMES A COMPLIMENT
How old are you? This is not an impertinent question. If you tell me the number of enemies you have, I can pretty well judge your age. For we begin making enemies as soon as we have to decide on principles and policies.

In the care-free days of youth, when little responsibility rested upon us, we could make friends in whole-sale lots and keep them with a wholesome mixture of sincerity and glamor. But as we approach the forties, we begin to make enemies. We come to the place where we have decided on issues, and our decisions often hurt our friends. The result may be that they are no longer our friends. As the years go on and responsibility increases, we find that very often we have to decide on what is right as over against what is pleasant. Furthermore, we were foot-loose and fancy-free in youth, but others are now involved in our decisions. Life gets more complicated with the passing years.

So if you are 45 and have started to make some enemies—in your business or in your social group, or anywhere else—don't let it weigh too heavily upon you. In youth we are prone to judge a man by his friends, but when youth is succeeded by maturity, the better measurement of a man is to measure him by his enemies.

Is Any Weapon Of War Humane?

We can not help but take with a grain of salt the world-wide discussion of the humanness of the atomic bomb as a weapon of war.

Truly, is war in any form humane?

Should we quibble about the weapons in a movement whose whole purpose is division, death, destruction, and conquest?

Since the introduction of dynamite and gunpowder, the world has discussed the humanness of methods of warfare. The discussion probably goes back to the advent of the bow and arrow.

When we come down to brass tacks, a people or a nation is going to turn almost any trick or weapon it can on its enemies for the sake of self-preservation. War is horrible no matter what weapons are used. There is no getting around the fact.

Yet it is more horrible to destroy people in a sudden blast of an atomic bomb or to starve them slowly in filthy prison camps or in the debris of their bombed out homes? Is it more human to obliterate a hillside with a great explosion or burn out pill boxes one by one with flame throwers?

War in any form is not a pleasant thought. Neither are the weapons which go hand in hand with war. Those facts notwithstanding, the international relations of the world for the past four decades have found their basis in war or threats of war.

No nation is composed of bloodthirsty beasts who wait impatiently to crush the life of their fellowmen regardless of nationality. But each war through the centuries has become more terrible than the one before.

The United States had the atomic bomb which it used with reluctance in 1945 and brought a quick end to World War II. It took many lives, but we doubt it caused more suffering and loss of life than would have been caused had the island-hopping tactics with conventional weapons continued until Japan was overrun by Allied troops.

As a nation the United States still has the atomic bomb and other more terrible explosives. So far the very fact that we have the horrible weapon has been sufficient to prevent another world-wide war by aggressors. Yet if the time comes when mere threat of the weapon is not sufficient to stop a conflagration, we must resolve once more to put the weapon to use.

We Can Kill The Coase With Big Debts

In spite of the fact that The Reflector wants to see as many rural homes as possible in Eastern North Carolina have electrical service, we are firmly of the opinion that the Greenville Utilities took the best possible course for the city in not going any farther into debt in the present rural electrification program.

We have been and still are among the foremost proponents of rural progress. Yet good judgment and sound business sense can not be sacrificed on the altar of progress. It would be killing the goose which lays the golden egg.

There is definitely a limit to the amount of indebtedness into which a business—be it municipally or privately owned—can go and still stay on a good, sound footing. The Reflector feels that the city has reached the point where the indebtedness of the utilities should not be increased.

The current project of rural electrification will cost the city of Greenville approximately $457,000, the majority of which already has been borrowed from the Rural Electrification Administration and the remainder will be forthcoming from the same source shortly. To run the present project an additional 17.52 miles as proposed to the commissioners would cost the city another $42,000 or thereabouts. While that is not a large percentage of the whole project, we certainly think the Utilities Commission, under the present circumstances, is justified in not making further extensions on borrowed money.

It is true that some 78 consumers in the area east of Vanceboro would have to wait somewhat longer before they can obtain electrical service from the Greenville lines. But by the same token, the city has gone in debt $457,000 to carry electrical service to 1,058 other rural families in Pitt, Craven and Beaufort Counties in the past few months.

The commission should not be condemned for not continuing indefinitely to spend borrowed money at such a rapid rate. Indeed we believe the commission should be commended for finally getting around to the first stages of an austerity program which long has been needed.

For too long a time the Greenville Utilities has been depending too much on borrowed money. It is time the utilities set about to get more done from its revenue and rely less on dollars which are obtained by placing more mortgages on what Greenville already has.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—President Truman has finally unveiled his program for keeping wages, income, employment and general business activity at their present boom levels after government spending on rearmament and the "cold war" fails to one-half or one-third of the present annual outlay of $60,000,000,000 a year.

It consists of continued "crisis" spending of billions a year for the "development of backward nations"—the so-called "point four" program.

This method of stimulating production, domestic consumption and exports will be the successor of such artificial but periodically successful panaceas as WPA, PWA, AAA, lend-lease, war costs, postwar rehabilitation of the UNRRA variety, the Marshall Plan and now the Mutual Security expenditures.

MISSED—Mr. Truman disclosed his future schemes at a news conference for 400 newspapermen attending the annual convention here of the American Society of Editors.

But the importance of his revelation was missed because of greater concern over his declaration that, in his opinion, he could seize newspapers, radio and television facilities under the same authority he invoked in taking over the steel plants.

From an immediate, bread-and-butter standpoint, his recipe for staving off economic collapse four or five years hence, after the present spending spree, equals in significance his proposed violations of constitutional guarantee on behalf of private property and the freedom of expression.

POOH-POOHED—Incidentally, this is the first time that any government official has even entertained the idea that the United States would be in a bad way, perhaps worse off than in 1929, if it were not for emergency expenditures.

In the past, such figures as Leon H. Keyserling, chairman of the Economic Advisory Committee, have pointed out the warnings of a serious depression when federal cash runs out.

They have maintained, as did Herbert Hoover in 1928, that we have reached a "new and permanent plateau of prosperity."

LEGACY—In the opinion of politico-economists, President Truman will hand a more dubious legacy of permanent prosperity to his successor than Calvin Coolidge naively did to Hoover in March of 1929. For there is no assurance that the next president, future Congresses or the American business and industrial community will share Truman's faith in the economic soundness of "point four."

So far Capitol Hill has appropriated only a few paltry millions for this purpose. Private investors have not rushed forward to pour money into undeveloped areas, where there is no assurance that their properties will be safe from expropriation, confiscation or anti-foreign legislation.

JEOPARDY—American and British enterprises involving billions of dollars are now in jeopardy in many of the countries listed by the White House as possible "point four" beneficiaries—Iran, Egypt, North Africa, China, Guatemala, Ecuador, Bolivia and elsewhere. The worldwide uprising against so-called "capitalist" nations as fomented by the Communists, does not provide a favorable climate for public or private shipment of funds overseas.

Even under the most propitious circumstances, it is doubtful if Congress will show the same generosity it did toward Roosevelt-Truman requests of this nature since 1940. During that period the United States loaned or gave away a total of $89,252,000,000 to foreign nations—an annual average of about $7,500,000,000.

Oddly this is only $400,000,000 less than Truman has asked for the 1953 appropriation for W. Averell Harriman's Mutual Security Administration.

GENEROSITY—Of the 1940-1952 gifts and loans, $30,000,000,000 went to England. About $10,700,000,000 was advanced to Russia. The sum of $7,400,000,000 was given to our World War II enemies—Germany, Japan and Italy.

The results of this American generosity are not striking. Our financial aid has not saved England from near-bankruptcy. Russia might have succumbed to Hitler save for our help, but she is now our mortal enemy.

Despite our efforts to revive them, Berlin, Tokyo and Rome have taken strange ways of showing their gratitude toward us. They are demanding a high price for siding with us instead of with Russia.

REMINISCENT—Truman's optimism contrasts sharply with the deep but unexpressed concern of private and public economists, including members of the Federal Reserve Board. They regard "point four" as a political adventure that will never pay off in dividends to the American economy. They advance the very reasons listed here.

On the cars of veteran observers at Washington, the president's economic song is reminiscent of Coolidge's remark that, "if there is going to be a depression, it will come on Hoover's time, not mine."

The "Sleeping Mexican" Of Yesterday—

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

"Tonight," I said to Wife Rachel last night, "I'm going to write my column before I get too sleepy. That bridge hand has been a jinx to me. All three stories I wrote about it had a glaring error. But at least the errors weren't so great that the readers couldn't see through them."

Rachel suggested that I forget about those errors, and also forget about writing like a bridge expert. Naturally, after making three errors I had to agree with her.

Without ever realizing that we had hit upon a column idea, W.R. and I walked around the yard after supper and expressed our appreciation for a rather strange condition: We are thankful that we are not rich, but have hopes of being that way some day.

It all started when we were raving about the elegance of our yard. There are plenty of yards in Greenville that are more attractive than ours, but of our all-time five years of marriage that has been our first Spring that we have had a yard that we could call our own. Like most so-called home-owners, we are making our monthly payments, but when you are buying that way you have the privilege of calling it your own.

People who marry and have a home waiting for them when they return from their honeymoon are lucky in many respects, but they miss a great deal because they lack appreciation for what they have.

The joy of gaining item after item on the long list of "wants" is one of the greatest thrills a family can encounter. Suppose somebody made an effort to give me all of the "wants" on the list. If

I said I would turn them down it would be the biggest lie I ever told, but since I have not found the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow I will continue to have a great deal of appreciation for possessions as they come.

This system we have of free enterprise is what keeps us all hoping for fortunes, and realizing that we have a chance to gain them. Taxes are too high, especially for the little fellow, but I wouldn't mind having left what the taxpayer has who complains about having to fork out 50 per cent to Uncle Sam.

After all, every one of us has plenty to be thankful for, all the way from the elegance of a front yard to the privilege to participate in free enterprise.

And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

BEGINNING—Nobody knows when the good roads program began in North Carolina. There is some evidence that the Raleigh colonists on Roanoke Island in 1586 were concerned about roads through the forests. Long before that there were Indian trails and trade routes marked out. At Dunn the other night Candidate Hubert Olive limited his commendation of road building to the "last three years."

The administration of Governor Kerr Scott—who has picked Olive as his choice for the next Governor. State conscience was aroused more than a century ago by Dorothea Dix to care for mentally sick persons, and there have been general hospitals for longer than 100 years. Candidate William Umstead at Dunn on the same program with Olive went no farther back than 1945 in reference to hospitals, the beginning of the administration of Governor Gregg Cherry, whose campaign was managed by Umstead—who also had a large hand in writing the present medical care commission law. It is significant that, regardless of the agreed-upon starting point—if any—both candidates favor continued expansion of the road and hospital programs.

TELEVISION—It is conceded that television showing of crime commission hearings made Senator Estes Kefauver a national figure and started him on the road to the White House. What part TV will play in the national and state campaigns this year is doubtful, but it is certain to be very potent. Hubert Olive is a handsome man and very photogenic. Early in his campaign he signed up a lot of good television time, and the "shows" are now in progress. William Umstead is not so photogenic, and his natural shyness caused him to discount TV as a publicity medium. Some of his folks are wondering if he was smart, because the television presentation of the League of Women Voters panel discussion in Charlotte proved both candidates to be effective, through that medium. One thing is for sure: It takes money to get on TV screens. Costs for time start at $40 a minute, scale down for long programs. Additional charges for "services" make a 5-minute TV show over North Carolina stations run about $250 each.

CONCENTRATED—The only TV station in the state now are at Charlotte and Greensboro. To get on both calls for approximately $100 a minute, and the audience is limited mainly to the Piedmont area, (cause reception east of Raleigh and west of Rutherfordton is generally unsatisfactory. It is true that the heavy primary voting strength of the state is concentrated in that same area, and the candidates for Governor apparently think the case is justified.

PUBLICITY—Both candidates recognized the changing conditions affecting political campaigns. Organization beginning at precinct level is still the most effective method, but candidates for all offices from President to constable concede that modern communication facilities have increased the value of individual appeal. Information is that in the North Carolina campaign, Candidate Olive will make far greater use of television and direct mail. Candidate Umstead will rely more on newspapers and radio to supplement his advertising. Choice of publicity media was carefully made, and was grounded in the fact that Olive's supporters think he is more photogenic and Umstead's supporters think he has a better radio voice.

ORGANIZATION—Neither of the candidates overlooks the importance of organization. Umstead apparently puts more store by that phase of campaigning. To date he has perfected organizations in two-thirds of the counties, while Olive has announced managers in less than 20 counties. Manager Carlisle Higgins for Umstead says that working units will be set up in all of the 100 counties within the next two weeks. Manager R. E. Earp for Olive is quoted as saying he will have managers or steering committees in more than 75 counties by May 1.

LAST LAP—With lists closed for county offices and legislative candidates the campaign is going into the final lap. Lines can be drawn now without danger of local candidates incurring opposition by reason of taking a stand for one or the other of the statewide candidates.

ROUND-UP—Secretary of State Thad Eure has sent report sheets to every county board of elections chairman asking for a report on candidates filed for the General Assembly. It will probably be the middle or last of next week before all these reports are in and a complete list can be made. Unofficial preliminary information is that there are about the usual number of legislators seeking re-election, and that the majority sentiment of the 1953 General Assembly will be substantially the same as in the several recent sessions. Some stalwarts will not be back. For the first time in many years there will be a former speaker of the house or president of the senate in the legislature. Also several very able youngsters whose rec-ers think he has a better radio voice.

After all, every one of us has plenty to be thankful for, all the way from the elegance of a front yard to the privilege to participate in free enterprise.

And I thank you.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

The cheapest part of the wage increase to steel workers will be the pay increase itself. That will come to less than half a billion dollars a year.

Part of it, it seems at this writing, will come out of shareholders' profits and part from government, since any drop in steel's gross earnings will cut tax revenues. The rest of it will come from consumers. Sooner or later they will pay higher prices for things made of steel. They will pay not only the per-ton increase eventually allowed but also the higher mark-ups that quite naturally occur everytime an article changes hands from raw material to ultimate user.

Then we will hear from John L. Lewis, who can reopen the coal miners' contract on sixty days notice. The steel pattern will undoubtedly influence the thinking of Mr. Lewis and the miners. Railroad workers are already insisting that their pay demands, pending ever since the government took over the railroads, be acted upon.

Demands for higher wages are in various states of negotiation in aluminum, brass, oil, ship building, aircraft and farm machinery industries. The steel workers' pattern will figure strongly in ultimate decisions. The auto workers have a contract until 1955, with "raises tied to the cost of living, but gains in higher ratios will make them restless.

And in thousands of other kinds of plants—and in shops and offices, too—there will be fresh insistence on higher pay, closed shops and annual wage guarantees. Steel has set the pattern for other labor regularly since the end of the war and there is no reason for thinking it will not happen again.

Another round of higher wages will mean higher prices for manufactured goods, then higher prices for farm products under parity programs, and higher costs of living.

All this is not to say that the steel workers should not have their raise. Perhaps they deserve it, perhaps not. What they are really asking for is not more money but a larger share in the total production of goods and services. That is what other labor groups are seeking—in fact, all of us are. Under our present economic and monetary system, the only way to do that is to get more money. For a while, the added money commands more goods. Then prices rise and we go through it all again. TAX-SLOWED SALES. FLEX PRIVATE BRANDS.

The decline in liquor sales resulting from higher taxes has boomed private brands in non-monopoly states. These are the brands that carry the retailer's own label and profess to be bottled expressly for him. Nobody is quite sure what "expressly" means in this connection.

In most monopoly states, retail prices are fixed by state laws or by action of wholesalers who simply cut off suppliers of popular brands from price-cutters. But a dealer can set his own price in his own brand. When sales are slow, as they are now, he can push his own brand at bargain prices. When sales are brisk, he can move his bargains under the counter.

Some of the quality brands are identical in quality with higher priced spirits—in some cases they are the same spirits, with only the label differing. And other private brands rate with limit in flavor.

CLEANING MEN ASK INFORMATIVE LABELS

The Federal Trade Commission is under new pressure to promulgate new rules requiring detailed labeling of blended fabrics. The pressure is being brought by dry cleaners.

All the new fibers create problems, many of them costly, for the cleaners. A fluid that works well on one garment may make another garment disappear. When a garment is made of a blend of two fibers, one of them may dissolve in a detergent.

Cleaning men say they know, or can find out, just what cleaner can be used on almost any fiber, but they are darned if they can determine fibers accurately, since many synthetics have been created deliberately to resemble natural fibers. What the cleaning men want setting for is a permanent label telling fiber content.

SAUCE FOR THE GOOSE

IT'S FROZEN, TOO

Speaking of selling home freezers with offers of food at less than retail prices—as we were the other day—some California food retailers are fighting back. They are offering freezers under the prices asked by the food-plan dealers.

OLIVE OIL OUTPUT

HIGH, DEMAND SMALL

Both Spain and Portugal report bumper olive oil production. Spain's output is expected to be the highest on record and Portugal's, while not setting a new record, is double the 1950 crop. They are having a hard time selling it. American inventories, built up when it looked like war, are still very high.

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK — (AP) — America has learned to live with the atom bomb.

The final proof of this was the televising of the latest explosion in Nevada.

There was a mixed reaction to the A-bomb's video debut. Taken purely in terms of sound, many viewers found it less awe-inspiring than the vocal chords of Milton Berle.

"It looks like a closeup of Jimmy Durante," one spectator observed. Others felt it still had a long way to go before it would seriously rival Arthur Godfrey. And some, who dined in the demonstration late, mistook the gigantic smoke puff for a new kind of cigaret ad.

But the mere fact that millions of housewives could sit in their living rooms and calmly watch an atom bomb burst shows how much the public has lost its fear of this frightful weapon.

Even five years ago a show of this kind might have stirred up a storm of protest. People had an unreasoning panic about the atom bomb then. Many parents objected to radio discussions of it, saying it created hysteria in their children.

At that time the bomb was actively feared as an instrument that could and might well be expected to wipe out civilization. It would be interesting to know how many families bought remote mountain hideaways, or secretly stored food caches in caverns against the possibility of the outbreak of a disastrous world-wide atom war. It was done.

One reason is that five years ago it was accepted as a certainty that a new war would be heralded by a rain of atom bombs. But fighting has gone on for 22 months in Korea without the employment of these vast-destroying bombs by either side. Hope is growing that they never may be used again in anger.

Another reason for the more sensible approach to the problem of the atom bomb is the fact that the population has become adjusted to an atmosphere of prolonged crisis. You can't remain tense forever. People who live on the edge of a precipice gradually get accustomed to it. Potential danger is always frightening at first. But after a time it merely becomes an annoying bore.

Children no longer have nightmares over whether an atom bomb will fall. They have been taught in school what to do, and it's just another kind of fire drill to them. But they are better prepared for such a disaster than their parents.

Most grownups still haven't taken the trouble to learn what precautions to follow. They are simply tired of the whole subject. Getting killed by an atom bomb is more and more accepted as a possibility. The same category as being hit by lightning or getting hit by death by a horse. It might happen, but meanwhile a man has to get up and go to work every day and take his chances.

Atom bombs are getting stronger and more numerous as the scientists go on quietly exploring the mathematics of extinction. But the average man today has worn out his worry. He figures he will probably go on living and that no matter what happens, the earth will go on spinning through space and it always has, meeting a fresh dawn every day.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — Smart young socialites in the nation's capital are doing the baião-pronounced "buy-e-on"—a native dance of northern Brazil, introduced by Senhora Mello Franco, wife of the Brazilian charge d'affaires. She tells me the dance is currently not only the rage of Rio de Janeiro but has caught on in Paris.

A young couple from Brazil exhibited the intricate steps at a recent Embassy party, then taught the dance to a popular night club dancing team. Now the samba fans are switching to the baião with enthusiasm.

It's really an old dance, well known in northern Brazil, but it's only been popular in Rio in the past couple of years. Senhora Franco explained, "Today it's even more popular than the samba, but the rhythm is quite different—a little faster. Brazilians don't like to make an exhibition of it. We let others get it going. In Paris, the baião is really a la mode, and many popular songs have been written and recorded for it. 'Baião in Paris,' written about a year ago, is very popular."

Trick Memories No Sure Sign Of Genius In Child Prodigies

By ROBERT MUSEL
United Press Staff Correspondent
LONDON (UP)—If your five-year-old kid can't even give the square root of 437,526,613 in 30 seconds, don't worry about him. He may be better off playing baseball or fighting with the boy next door.

Fred Barlow, who used to be a famous stage musician, has just completed an investigation of mental prodigies—youngsters who composed music in the nursery, studied Greek and Latin with their building blocks, played chess or displayed mathematic wizardry in the cradle.

His conclusion is that if your infant's first word is something like "paradimethylaminobenzaldehyde" you ought to rush him to a psychiatrist and start him over again on "da da" and "ma ma."

Barlow got interested in prodigies because of his stage act in which he did by mnemonics (memory aids) many of the arithmetical and memory feats achieved instinctively by prodigies. He has written them into a book "Mental Prodigies."

"The first thing you learn" said Barlow, "is that the ability to figure, or even a good memory, is not necessarily accompanied by intellectual acuteness, nor does the growth of memory, of necessity, accompany intellectual advancement."

"Brains do not enter into the matter of counting and education has frequently destroyed the gift. Again—and I am generalizing—you get the impression of a lack of balance on the part of many of these prodigies. They cannot have it every way."

In Barlow's collection are two actual morons. One of them, a Belgian now 26 but with the mental age of a child, was asked to give the square of 888,888,888,888 and in 40 seconds said: 790,123,456,789,121,876,543,209,876,544 (it's correct).

Barlow found another calculating genius in a school for the feeble minded in Britain. He was officially an imbecile except in his ability to multiply long rows of figures instantly.

Among others in Barlow's gallery: Christian Heineken, a German known as "The Infant of Lubbeck," talked a few hours after birth and by the age of three had memorized much of the Bible, a formidable amount of history and geography and spoke Latin and French. He predicted his own death which took place at the age of four!

William James Sidis, an American, read and wrote at the age of two, spoke French, Russian, English, German, Latin and Greek and lectured to professors on the fourth dimension. However, he was earning only $14 a week at 25 and died in 1944 at the age of 46.

Not all prodigies lose their fights or die early or unhappy, however.

Ampere, who measured electric current, and Gauss, who made many mathematical discoveries, both started at three; Mozart was composing at five. Thomas Babington Macaulay, John Ruskin, John Stuart Mill and Blaise Pascal all were child prodigies.

George Bidder, one of Britain's greatest 19th Century engineers, was another who retained his powers to the end.

Two days before Bidder's death at 73 a friend said he was going to calculate how many light waves strike the eye in a second—taking the velocity of light at 190,000 miles a second and the wave length of the red rays at 36,916 to an inch.

"Don't bother to work it out," replied Bidder. "The answer is 444,433,651,200,000."

Says U. S. Fun Menaces Culture Of Japanese

TOKYO (AP)—A Japanese book dealer says "this Americanism is destroying Japanese culture."

Saburo Matsumura, says Tokyo had 1,500 second-hand stores before the war and only 830 now. He says the business is near collapse.

He blames two American importations, pin-ball machines and commercial radio. "Nowadays," he says, "they don't bother to read, but just tune in foolish commercial radios or play pin-balls like morons."

"Some of my colleagues bowed to it and switched to the pin-ball business, and they paid back all debts in three months."

Air Force Offers Commissions To Many Specialists

The Air Force is now offering direct commissions to fill openings for 1,500 critically needed specialists, Col. T. K. Fountain, commander of the local Air Force Reserve Unit, announced today.

Qualified specialists are particularly in demand in communication, procurement, control and production, special investigation, legal, weather, psychological warfare, engineering and scientific fields.

Officer shortages also exist in many additional specialties, Colonel Fountain explained.

Dependant upon the individual applicant's age, education and experience, the direct commissions being awarded specialists in grades ranging from second lieutenant to lieutenant colonel. Selected applicants will be ordered to active duty by June, 1952.

Applicants for the various officer specialist openings are required to possess at least a bachelor's degree along with further qualifying experience in his particular field.

A limited number of engineering students graduating this Spring, however, will be offered appointments as second lieutenants. An overall quota of 336 engineering student second lieutenant appointments is available for the months of June, August and October.

Engineering student second lieutenant appointments will be required to attend officer's basic military base at San Antonio, Texas, followed by additional technical training.

Former military personnel who have served a minimum of six months as officers, or in the three top enlisted grades, however, will not have to attend the basic military course.

Col. Fountain reported that information regarding the specific educational and experience requirements for these various Air Force specialist fields may be obtained by contacting Capt. Jack Crook, 701 Capital Club Building, Raleigh, North Carolina.

Takes Another Poke At Royster

RALEIGH (AP)—The race for governor grew livelier yesterday as R. E. Earp, campaign manager for candidate Hubert E. Olive, leveled another blast at Fred S. Royster.

Royster is an assistant campaign manager for candidate William B. Umstead, having joined his staff Monday. For the second straight day, Earp took a poke at Royster. He claimed that Royster was a big factor in defeating a bill in the 1949 General Assembly which would have reduced warehouse commission fees paid by burley tobacco growers.

Royster, veteran legislator who was recently nominated without opposition to the state Senate, is a leading tobacco warehouseman and president of the Bright Belt and Middle Belt Warehouse Association. He said he would have a statement later in reply to Earp.

Royster was chairman of the House Agriculture Committee in the 1949 Legislature. The bill to which Earp referred would have reduced from 4 per cent to 2½ per cent the warehouse commission paid by burley growers.

Earp said that Royster indicated when the bill was introduced that he would give it "a fair hearing."

"Instead, he buttonholed members of the committee and lobbied day and night against the bill to give relief to the burley growers," Earp declared. "When the time came for his committee to vote, the committee held a one-hour session. Mr. Royster took 55 minutes to argue against the bill. He considerably left the other five minutes to the introducer. His committee, swayed by Mr. Royster, gave the bill an unfavorable report."

Shelley Winters Says She'll Wed

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Actress Shelley Winters says she'll probably marry Italian actor Vittorio Gassman in July.

But the bosomy actress won't set a definite date for the ceremony because she's afraid it might become a "three-ring circus."

The marriage must wait until Gassman is free from his Italian wife. Miss Winters and Gassman plan to fly to Juarez, Mex., in the next few days to confer with his Italian attorney and draw up papers for a Mexican divorce, the actress said.

Taft-Eisenhower Battle Is Moved Into Western Arenas

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Taft-Eisenhower battle shifted toward the West today with the rival camps still squabbling about the New York and Pennsylvania primary results.

Fifty-seven more delegates to the Republican national convention will be chosen at four state conventions later this week.

Arkansas — with 11 GOP delegates — holds its state convention tomorrow with one of the chief contenders, Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, as the keynote speaker.

Saturday conventions will be held in Colorado (18 delegates), Utah (14), and Arizona (14).

Taft told reporters that his prospects in all four states "look pretty good." He said he expects to get seven and perhaps more of the Arkansas delegates.

The campaign organization working for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower conceded Taft an edge in Arkansas and Utah, but hoped to emerge with an even break or a majority from the four states as a whole.

Taft and Eisenhower forces disputed the results of Tuesday's primaries in which New York Republicans elected 90 national convention delegates and Pennsylvania named 60.

The Ohio senator told reporters that he can count on about 25 of the Pennsylvania delegates now. He believed no more than 19 would follow Sen. James H. Duff (R-Pa.), one of the national Eisenhower campaign leaders.

Taft said the remaining Pennsylvania delegates are "pretty well in Gov. (John) Fine's camp," which means they are positively uncommitted.

Eisenhower supporters made no specific claims on the Pennsylvania delegates and insisted that no accurate estimates could be made yet. They predicted that the size of Eisenhower's majority in the preferential vote would swing delegates to him.

Taft was not entered in the preferential vote.

In New York, the Eisenhower organization claimed 85 delegates and conceded only one to Taft, leaving four uncommitted. Taft believed 17 would support him.

In other political developments: 1. W. Averell Harriman brushed off congressional demands that he resign as Mutual Security Administrator now that he has become an active candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Chairman James P. Richards (D-SC) of the House Foreign Affairs Committee made the demand, which was promptly seconded by some Senate Republicans.

But Harriman replied that it is "a common and well accepted practice for men holding public office in the country to seek nomination for other offices."

2. Taft made public a series of statements from retired military and naval leaders, endorsing his call for a complete "re-appraisal" of U. S. defense strategy, with greater emphasis on air and sea power.

The endorsements came from Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, Adm. Louis E. Denfeld, Adm. Harry E. Yarnell, Lt. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, Lt. Gen. Harold L. George, and Gen. Hanford MacNider, among others.

3. Sen. Richard B. Russell (Ga.), a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, said in a speech at Altoona, Pa., that "hucksters of hysteria" are trying to curtail American liberties in the name of fighting communism.

He called for "tolerance and mutual understanding" to prevent "hatemongers" from stirring up trouble between Americans of different races and creeds.

Fewer Veterans Now In Colleges

The number of World War II veterans in North Carolina attending colleges and universities dropped 37 percent between March 31, 1951, and March 31, 1952, Ernest Elliott, officer-in-charge of the local VA office, announced this morning.

Over the same period, however, the total number enrolled in correspondence courses increased 11 percent. "Total number of veterans in GI training of all types declined 33 percent during the 12 month period ending March 31," he said. "VA employees of the North Carolina regional office engaged in handling the education and training work decreased 44 percent over that period."

According to Elliott, the deadline for commencing GI training courses was July 25, 1951. World War II veterans already in training before that date were permitted to continue the completion of their courses.

On the employment side, a total of 216 employees were engaged in handling education and training work a year ago, but by March 31, 1952, that number had been reduced to 122. Due to further declines in this program, the number of employees engaged in handling the education and training program will be reduced to 95 by May 31 of this year, Elliott reported.

About 3.3 million tons of grapes will be produced commercially in the United States this year.

Fishermen's Car Dunked In Lake

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A father and son who went fishing recently ended up by fishing their car out of Leawater Lake at Piedmont, Mo.

The empty car rolled into the lake after its brakes gave way. And it came in handy that Dan J. Howard's son, Harold, is a U. S. Coast Guardsman. With the combination of a chain, a tow-truck and a motorboat, they finally dragged the car out.

East Carolina Loses First Night Game To Kinston, 6-5

Farmville Loses 14-11 Game As Marines Pull Triple Play

By MELVIN LANG
Reflector Sports Writer

FARMVILLE — Cherry Point's fighting Flyers came roaring back in the sixth inning here yesterday afternoon to score five runs and went on from there to hand Farmville a 14-11 Farmer's Day defeat before a capacity crowd.

The five runs came with the aid of but two safeties—both singles—as Farmville's pitchers obliged the visitors with four bases on balls and the infield committed two very costly errors. George Dennis started the scoring spree by reaching second base on a two-base error by second baseman Millard Webb, and Stan Zuchowski continued the parade by working starting hurler James Hardison, a former star pitcher for Farm Life High School, for a walk. After Dennis had moved to third on a passed ball, Herb Holstein fled out to deep centerfield, scoring Dennis with the ninth Cherry Point run and breaking an 8-8 stalemate.

Another walk to Eli Marichich put men on first and second base, but lanky Stu Stewart quickly relieved matters by singling home both runners. At this point, Johnny Kovalchick took over the mound chores for the Red Sox and promptly delivered a free pass to first to Art Remma. Stewart attempted to steal second base, and when catcher Ralph Britt's throw to third went into left field, both runners scored.

Sox Hit Hard

Although the Flyers won by a 14-11 score, the Farmville team hauled down the batting honors for the afternoon. Shortstop Castellote collected a pair of doubles and a one-bagger in four times at bat for the Sox, and leftfielder Streeter Tugwell slammed out three singletons to go along with a three-run homer in five attempts. Sam Stell completed the extra-base parade with a three-bagger.

After falling behind to the tune of an 8-4 margin in the first three and a half innings, Farmville knotted the count in the bottom of the fourth with a four-run rally. Hardison led off the frame with a walk and Castellote was struck by a pitched ball Webb singled to score Hardison, and came home himself a few seconds later as Tugwell slammed the ball over the 320-foot marker in left field.

Triple Play

Shortstop Eli Marichich almost singlehandedly saved the day for the Flyers a short while later as he started a triple play to end the frame. After pitcher Tommy Petkavich had walked Sam Stell, Charles Grykin came in to hurl for Cherry Point. On his first delivery, Manager Pete Piestrak banded a line-drive straight at Grykin, hitting the Marine moundsman on his right thigh, almost knocking the little fellow off his feet. Under the supervision of team managers Al Wright and Marty Vasquez, he was soon able to continue in the game.

Britt cut at his third delivery, sending a line fly to Marichich at short, who quickly tagged second and threw to first base. Stell was caught flat-footed a few feet from first to complete the lightning fast play.

Byrd Goes Distance; Loses In The Seventh

Pirates At Home This Afternoon; Go To High Point And Elton This Weekend; Next North State Home Game Is Monday

KINSTON — The Kinston Eagles of the Professional Coastal Plain League put the stops on the East Carolina College Pirates here last night and edged past the Pirates 6-5. A crowd of 563 watched the game in Kinston's Grainger Park.

Sophomore righthander Jimmy Byrd, former Grainger High School (Kinston) ace, went the distance for the Bucs. He gave up 12 hits to the Eagles, including consecutive doubles in the seventh inning which gave the Eagles their winning tally.

Third baseman Benzla led off that seventh inning with a two-base hit to deep leftfield. He scored easily with what proved to be the winning run when his double was followed by one by shortstop Gaudel. After those two base hits, it was all over but the shouting.

With the entire team shaky in their first night game of the year, East Carolina got into a hole early in the game. The first four men up got base hits off Byrd and when the smoke had cleared, Kinston had a 3-2 lead. They added a single run in the second inning but the Pirates came back with two runs in the fourth to tie the game up at 4-4.

The Eagles moved back into the lead with a single run in the fourth frame but East Carolina refused to roll over and play dead. They came back with a single run in their half of the sixth inning. Except for the final seventh inning, Byrd had the Kinston team pretty much under his control though there were some tense moments in the game before the Eagles could get their winning run.

Of the nine hits gathered by the Pirates, three went to freshman third baseman Gaitler Cline. Cline pounded out three singles in four official trips to the plate. John Hamilton, sub catcher, got into the game in the late innings but he still had enough time to get to bat twice and collect two hits.

Three of the Eagles got more than one hit off the righthanded Byrd. Centerfielder Pasquinnell and leftfielder Chestnut each got two hits but the big bat for the Eagles belonged to firstbaseman Johnston.

Greenies Play

Greenville's Greenies will take on their second opponent of the infant season tonight when they journey to Farmville for a Bright Belt League scrap with Stantonsburg.

The game was originally scheduled to have been played in Stantonsburg yesterday afternoon, but was moved back until today by mutual agreement of the participating teams. Game time is set for 7:45 in the Farmville baseball park.

Greenville lost its first two games in the league to Farmville last weekend, and will be seeking to hit the victory trail for a change.

REFEREES RESCUED

SINGAPORE. — (AP) — Unorthodox wrestling in Singapore rings — repeated manhandling of referees by angry matmen — has necessitated the drawing up of hitherto unknown rules.

Wrestling impresario Wally Oakes announced that referees will in future commence counting immediately when a wrestler refuses to break a hold. If the wrestler does not obey at the third count, a disqualification fall will be awarded against him.

Saigh To Surrender To Federal Marshal

Coastal Loop

ST. LOUIS (UP)—Fred Saigh Jr., president of the St. Louis Cardinals, will surrender on a five-count indictment in income taxes evasion charges and post $2,000 bond today at the United States marshal's office.

Earlier, the 47-year-old Saigh placed his baseball future in the hands of Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick and Warren Giles, president of the National League.

Saigh predicted he would be cleared of the charge but said that he will be "guided completely by the recommendation" of Frick and Giles as to whether he should continue in baseball.

Frick has the power to order Saigh to sell his interests in the Cardinals.

Saigh, 47, was indicted by a federal grand jury Tuesday on five counts of tax evasion, totaling $49,620 for the period 1946 through 1949. If convicted, he could face a maximum sentence of five years on each count.

"I can only ask in all fairness that the public withhold final judgment until that time," said Saigh.

"I am only asking in all fairness that the public withhold final judgment until that time," said Saigh.

Women Golfers Play In Wilson

The East Carolina Ladies Golf Association met Tuesday, April 22, in Wilson.

Sixty-five women participated in the meet, which was played on the Wilson golf course. The condition of the course and the ideal weather helped the golfers to card the lowest scores of the current tournament.

Frances Stevens of Rocky Mount and Frances Johnson of New Bern won the low gross honors with scores of 87. Jeanette Almore of Washington was second with an 88. Jane Sauve of Greenville had a 92 for sixth place.

Marilyn Roney of Greenville won a blind bogey. Other prizes were given for low net, low number of putts, most birdies, highest score.

Only three Greenville women participated in the matches. They were Jane Sauve, Marilyn Roney and Evelyn Warner.

Next week the golfers go to New Bern for the final match in this series. On May 2-4 the top 32 women will meet in Kinston for the championship playoffs. The weekly matches have been entirely medal play, but the playoffs will be match play.

Seeded Players Have Soft Matches

HOUSTON, Tex. (UP)—The eight top-seeded players in the River Oaks Invitational tennis tournament meet in quarterfinal matches today after streaking through comparatively soft preliminaries against collegiate stars and lesser known amateurs.

Philadelphia's Vic Seixas, the nation's No. 1 amateur, meets Charles Hare of Chicago in the key match. Hare is a transplanted Briton who once performed on the king's Davis Cup team.

Art Larsen of San Francisco meets Billy Talbert of New York, Herbie Flam of Beverly Hills, Cal., plays Gardner Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla., and Tony Vincent of New York takes on Dick Savitt of Orange, N. J., in the other quarterfinal play.

YESTERDAY'S STAR — Bob Cain of the St. Louis Browns won beat Bob Feller and Cleveland, 1-0, in a double one-hit classic to pitch the Browns into first place in the American League.

Double One-Hitter Goes To Bob Cain; Bob Feller Loses

By FRED DOWN
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—Skinny south-paw Bob Cain's revenge was sweet and complete today but only after he and the St. Louis Browns had shaded Cleveland's fabulous Bob Feller, 1-0, in a double one-hitter in the major leagues in 35 years.

Not since May 2, 1917 when Fred Toney of Cincinnati and Jim (Hippo) Vaughn of the Chicago Cubs matched no-hitters for nine innings had two rival pitchers come so close to no-hit immortality in the same game.

The Reds won that famous duel of yesterday, 1-0.

It required the spectacular duel to steal the spotlight from another astonishing event: The victory, seventh in eight starts for the Browns, moved them into first place in the American League race.

The failure to pitch a no-hitter last night hardly weighed heavily on Cain's mind. For him, the victory was enough to make up for the fact that he was the victim of the third no-hitter of Feller's career—a 2-1 Indian triumph over the Detroit Tigers last July 1.

For Feller, there was the heart-breaking thought of what might have been. For little Bob Young's leadoff single in the first inning—which rookie leftfielder Jim Fridley misplayed 1-to-a triple that led to the game's only run—spoiled his bid to become the first pitcher in baseball history to hurl four no-hitters.

Feller shares the current record of three no-hitters with Denton (Cy) Young and Lawrence J. Corcoran.

Feller, however, could gain some consolation from the fact that he increased his major league record for one-hitters to 11, three more than Addie Joss, another Cleveland immortal, pitched.

The hit that ruined Feller's no-hit bid and also led to the run that beat him was a line drive to left center field by Young, the left-handed hitting second-baseman, in the first inning.

Fridley had no chance to catch the ball on the fly but misplayed the bounce and it went past him to the left field wall for a triple.

Marty Marion then hit a boundary wide of third base which Al Rosen fumbled, Young scoring and Marion reaching first base safely. The run was scored as earned, although Rosen was charged with an error, because an official scorer can assume a putout only at first base.

Cain faced only 12 Indians in the first four innings but lost his no-hitter when first-baseman Luke Easter lined a sharp single to right center field to open the fifth inning. Rosen followed with a walk but Fridley popped out and Ray Boone hit into an inning-ending double play—one of three the Browns turned in.

Defending Champ Faces Stranahan

PINEHURST, N. C. (UP)—Defending champion Hobart Manley Jr., is expected to face the stiffest threat to his bid for a second straight North and South Amateur golf championship today when he plays co-medalist Frank Stranahan in the featured quarter-final match.

Co-medalist Frank Stranahan of Flushing, N. Y., meets Ben Goodes of Reidsville, N. C.; Billy Joe Patton of Morgantown, N. C., the third co-medalist, plays H. H. Haverstick of Lancaster, Pa.

From cellar to attic is a far cry when it comes to finishing job. Good paint may cover a multitude of sins downstairs, if properly applied, but when you get up under the rafters of an unfinished attic you have to provide something to put the paint on.

This is where wallboard comes in. It's economical, easy to install and takes virtually any kind of paint.

Since no wet plaster is involved, this type of construction is called "dry wall."

There are four types of dry wall material: plywood, fiberboard, hardboard and plasterboard. All are available in large sheets or in smaller pieces for extra rooms in an attic fast work as soon as framing is in place and suitable insulation installed.

Plywood can be obtained plain or finished. You can get it with beautiful finishes in hard wood veneer, actual sheets of walnut, mahogany and other rare woods permanently bonded to the surface as it is on fine furniture. This can be used for paneling rooms—a library, or den—with luxurious effect.

Ordinary fir plywood provides a truly flat surface for painting and is especially valuable as a flooring under asphalt tile, rubber, vinyl or cork tile. No loose or uneven boards are going to cause "seams" to wear in such floors.

The various fiberboards, consisting of vegetable fibers compressed into solid sheets, are popular wall coverings because of their relative cheapness. They are sound and heat insulators to a good degree and they're light weight and can be decorated or left natural.

Hardboard is an interesting material. It's made out of wood fibers pressed into hard sheets without grain that can be sawed, nailed, filed or screwed. You can get this plain or decorated, including plastic for kitchen paneling, or in an embossed finish form like leather.

Plasterboard, which includes the widely used gypsum wallboard, is virtually prefabricated plaster. It provides a wall with a good fire rating and suitable for painting or papering. Some plasterboard can be had with a wallpaper facing already applied in wood grain or floral patterns. Or you can get it with a reflective insulating foil backing.

Gypsum wallboard is more easily scored along a dimension line and then snapped off than it is sawed. This method of cutting to fit saves much time. When the board is snapped the surface paper on the underside is cut at the crease and the broken core is sanded smooth.

In handling plaster board, care should be taken to avoid breaking or damaging the paper surface on the finish side. Face the finish side up when cutting and use care when driving nails and dimpling nails so as not to break the paper.

Four penny finishing nails are used in applying these panels. Space the nails 4 inches along panel ends; 6 inches along intermediate studs.

Because of the spreading use of gypsum wallboard and the similarity in handling joints in all wall paneling, the technique of concealing joints is worth some attention. A careful job can result in complete obliteration of all joints, whether painted over or wallpapered.

The first step is to spread a special adhesive into the channel between panel with a broad putty knife, covering the channel to a depth of about a 16th of an inch. Perforated reinforcing tape is then embedded in this cement pressed firm under moderate pressure. Excess cement on each side of the tape is then wiped clean with the broad knife.

The embedded tape should be allowed to dry for about 24 hours. A second coat of adhesive is then applied to a width about twice that of the knife. Edges are feathered, the surface is smoothed as much as possible without leaving knife marks and this is dried for another 24 hours. Then a very thin coat is spread 2 to 4 inches wider than the second coat. When dried this is sanded very lightly with fine sandpaper.

All nailhead dimples are spackled with the same special cement, available from dealers in gypsum board, and they are sanded smooth.

Corners are taped and cemented in the same manner as flat surface joints, with the tape folded lengthwise.

The more care used, the better decorating surface results.

Robinson Union School PTA Sponsors Banquet

WINTERVILLE—The Robinson Union School PTA sponsored a Mother-Daughter-Father-Son Banquet Tuesday night. Approximately 150 attended the event. Some of the banquet was the school auditorium, and as guests entered they were presented spring favors and escorted to their designated seats. Serving was conducted by the PTA committee.

The program of the evening consisted of the formal opening of the P. T. A. by President David Henderson, followed by remarks from Rev. Sam Hembry. Mr. Moses Kennedy served as toast master. Special features of the evening included a talk on "Mother-Daughter Relationship" by Mrs. Reno W. Gilliam and a film "Family Life" by Mrs. Amelia Capehart, county agent of Pitt County.

This feature picture was concerned with Child Guidance in which complex problems arise that require certain influences which will lead to a happy, safe, comfortable and understanding environment. These complexities so often have to be dealt with individually because of certain reactions to each situation that arises.

Prizes were given to mother-daughter and father-son being closest resemblance. The winners were Mrs. Mattie Mobley and daughter, and Mr. James Daniels and son of Winterville, N. C. Mr. Ruben Payton was the oldest father present, Mrs. Lucy Worthington, the oldest mother present. Mr. Troy Knox was the youngest father present, Mrs. Doris Fleming, the youngest mother.

The elementary choral club, under the direction of Mrs. L. J. McManus, rendered three selections.

Several guests were present from Greenville.

Band Leader Is Claiming Rights To Shrimp Boats

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Orchestra leader Ben Pollock sought $200,000 damages today from two composers he said based their hit song "Shrimp Boats Are A-Coming" on a melody he wrote in 1936.

Pollock filed suit yesterday against composers Paul Mason Howard and Paul Weston and the Walt Disney Music Co.

He said in the Federal Court action that he had played his tune frequently in Howard's presence and accused the songwriter of using it for the hit tune he wrote with Weston.

Pollock asked that the copyright on the song, held by the Disney firm, be declared void or transferred to him.

Churchmen Rap Houston Fiesta, But It Goes On

HOUSTON, Tex. (UP)—The University of Houston's annual Frontier Fiesta was condemned by Baptist churches today, but students continued their celebration anyway.

A resolution describing a downtown parade ballyhooing the fiesta as "immoral" was adopted unanimously by delegates to a Houston meeting of the Union Baptist Association, representing 117 churches, yesterday.

Flores in the parade, the resolution said, "glamorized saloons and liquor and gambling." The association also condemned the "brief" costumes worn by coed can dancers who pranced in the parade.

Peron Blames 'Capitalists'

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UP)—President Juan D. Peron said last night an international conspiracy "organized by capitalistic interests" is directing a rumor campaign in Argentina.

Peron told labor delegates at the Labor Ministry that the "capitalistic interests" were buying newspapers and radios "to say we are savages or little less."

CAB Inquiry For Forced Landing

DALLAS, Tex. (UP)—The Civil Aeronautics Board opened a public hearing today at Dallas into the forced landing March 26 of a burning Braniff Airways plane at Hugoton, Kan.

One woman was slightly injured when she jumped from the plane after it landed in a Kansas wheat field near Hugoton. All other passengers and crewmen were evacuated before the plane was destroyed by fire on the ground.

Mona Freeman Is Seeking Divorce

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UP)—Screen actress Mona Freeman sought today to end her 6 1/2 year marriage to auto dealer Pat Nerney.

The actress filed suit for cruelty in Superior Court yesterday, charging Nerney with mental cruelty. She did not explain the charges.

Miss Freeman asked the court to approve an agreement requiring Nerney to pay $75 a month for the support of their four year old daughter, Mona.

More Research

CHICAGO — (AP) — W. P. Hedrick, tobacco marketing specialist of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture, says the federal government should increase its appropriations for research work in tobacco production.

Hedrick advocated this in a talk yesterday at the annual convention of the National Association of Tobacco Distributors. He said the North Carolina Farm Bureau wants Congress to boost its appropriations by $300,000 for all types of tobacco research. Current appropriations total about $500,000 a year, Hedrick said.

"An increased expenditure is certainly justified," Hedrick asserted, "by government's huge annual take in tobacco taxes." He pointed out that the government's receipts from tobacco taxes last year totaled $1,350,000.

Estes, Ike Win In Campus Poll

WILSON (UP)—Students at Atlantic Christian College here like Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee and Gen. Dwight Eisenhower for top spots on the Democratic and Republican presidential tickets in November.

Results of a campus presidential preference primary showed Kefauver sweeping to a victory on the Democratic side, polling 127 votes to 13 for runner-up Sen. Richard B. Russell of Georgia, 12 for Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois and two—both write-ins—for President Truman.

Hot Spot

WASHINGTON (UP)—Awed House members reported today that the "big shot" atomic blast in Nevada melted the desert sands over a radius of 500 yards from ground zero.
They said the heat generated by the test explosion Tuesday was so intense that sagebrush was set afire three miles away from the point directly under the bursting A-bomb, or Ground Zero.
Rep. Melvin Price (D-Ill.), a member of the joint congressional atomic committee and one of five House members who watched the Yucca Flat explosion from a trench three and a half miles from the target, said one building believed in a "safe" zone was burned to the ground. He estimated it was more than two miles from Ground Zero.

Marciano Draws Suspension From Maine Board

AUGUSTA, Me. (AP)—Unbeaten heavyweight Rocky Marciano has dropped a decision to the Maine Boxing Commission.
The commission last night tagged the title aspirant from Brockton, Mass. with a 30-day suspension for "deception" in his recent Maine barnstorming tour.
The ban will become effective May 12, the day after the Rock fights Bernie Reynolds in Providence, R. I.
The commission said the suspension is effective in every state but New York.

The action resulted from four exhibition bouts in which Marciano's 18-year-old brother, Louis (Sonny) Marchegiano, sparred with him under the names of Pete Fuller and Tony Zullo.
Although no action was taken against Sonny, the commission said the AAU would bar him for five years from sports it controls. The commission cleared him for school-boy athletics.

Lewiston fight promoters Sam Michael and John S. Rogers, who booked the tour, drew six months suspensions, effective immediately.
Promoters Chick Hayes of Portland, William Cyr of Bangor and Albert Parent of Rumford were censured.
Marciano denied deliberate deception.

Surrender . . .

The state bowed to the prisoners' "reform demands" in a final "bargaining session" through the bars of besieged Cellblock 15 between Deputy Warden Vernon Fox and Ward.
Earnest Brooks, state corrections commissioner, said there was a "good possibility" that the mutiny would end some time today.

Colored News

but you can't depend on the acts of insane men."
Deputy Warden Vernon Fox, who negotiated the final settlement in a post-midnight talk through the bars of the Cellblock 15 office, said Ward gave no reason for delaying the surrender and release of the prisoners until Friday morning.
In staging the final truce ceremony, Ward allowed only Fox to approach the barred window.
Prison officials, handling the moody Ward with kid gloves, agreed, Fox a professional psychologist, is the most popular of the prison officials.

He talked with Ward for 30 minutes. Ward then allowed three cameramen and a newsreel photographer to come forward and take pictures of the actual signing.
Standing in the background behind Ward during the parley that apparently brought an end to the worst prison rebellion in Michigan history was "Crazy Jack" Hyatt. Ward's second-in-command who was thought to have seized the reins last night when Ward refused to settle.

Prison officials were at a loss to explain Ward's return to power, unless it was simply that the uprising against him was staged in order to bring things to a head.

Tension, which had mounted to a nerve-breaking intensity after "Crazy Jack" supposedly deposed Ward and shouted over the prison telephone, "Ward is down and I'm in charge now," suddenly broke.

Officials who had been without sleep for days retired for a few moments' rest.
The Detroit Free Press planned to rush 300 copies of its final edition carrying the story to the prison so the convicts could read about their agreement themselves.

The 11-point manifesto, drawn up by the highly-intelligent, if unstable, Ward, had "no reprisals" as its main point.
Other items called for such reforms as better segregation of homosexual inmates, hiring of more trained personnel, elimination of "favoritism" in dental appointments, better medical treatment, admittance of counselors to disciplinary cellblocks, elimination of alleged "brutality" by guards and a liberalized parole system.

Officials admitted that many of the reforms were badly needed.

Message From Moscow Heard

MINTO, N. D. (AP)—Pete Mastel, a shortwave radio fan, was mentioned over Radio Moscow recently.

Mastel wrote Radio Moscow asking for a complete list of frequencies and times for English-language broadcasts. He also requested information about a giant bell in the Kremlin. Mastel's father had visited Moscow before World War I and described the bell as large enough to "drive a team of horses in through a rack in the side, turn around and come out again."

Radio Moscow soon replied by mail and over the air. Mastel was told the Czar Bell still stands in the Kremlin. "In the Soviet Union," I Petrov of the letters department said, "items of historical significance are carefully preserved."

Centralized . . .

nearly equi-distant as possible from each of the cities involved so the central airport could adequately serve the eastern area of the state.
Another meeting of the group is slated to be held in Wilson the week of May 5 at which time city and county officials will be invited to discuss the proposal further. Bandy said he will seek to have a representative of the Raleigh-Durham airport authority at the meeting to discuss the project with the Eastern Carolina representatives.

Before the meeting adjourned, Bandy was authorized to continue as temporary chairman of the group until a permanent organization is formed.

Ayden Girl . . .

Each of the contestants had to come from a rural community of less than 2,500 population to be eligible.

Preceding the evening's activities, the beauty contestants were the guests of the Farmville Chamber of Commerce at a supper held at the Girl Scout Hut. The supper was served by the Junior Woman's Club.

Each of the girls was given a purple orchid by the Chamber of Commerce, to be worn with their evening dress.

Complete list of the entries in the Beauty Contest are: Barbara Lewis of Maclesfield; Susie Winstead, Box 78, Maclesfield; Dorothy Ann Fulford, Route 2, Farmville; Lela Mosley, Box 13, Fountain; Vivian Carol Aldridge, Route 1, La Grange; Joan Atkinson, Route 1, Greenville; Madeline Albritton, Box 252, Snow Hill; Joyce Sutton, Fountain; Anne Harris, Fountain; Charlene Smith, Route 2, Ayden; Joan Eason, Hookerton; Betty Reese Suggs, Route 1, Snow Hill; and Emmogene Craft, Pinetops.

Truman Predicts Demo Triumph

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Truman predicted today that the voters this year will elect a Democratic president who will carry on his efforts for world peace.

The chief executive at his weekly news conference declined to forecast who this successful Democratic nominee might be.

The President did indicate strongly, however, that at a date of his own selection he will come out for a specific Democratic candidate.

Drama To Retain Sunday Showings

ASHEVILLE (UP)—The Cherokee Indian drama "Unto These Hills" will continue Sunday performances this season despite church protests, its board of trustees said today.

The board of trustees of the Cherokee Historical Association said previous commitments made it impossible to comply with requests from Baptist groups to discontinue Sunday performances for the coming season.

The meeting was held at Raleigh James Barbecue House.

PROGRESS REPORT
RALEIGH (AP)—More than 6,000 miles of secondary roads have been paved under the state's $50-million-dollar program, the Highway Commission said today in a progress report.

Chapter 20
Felix Tarson had watched the arrival of Melody in town, her visit to the law office and her subsequent departure. Not until she had started back for the ranch did he venture to call on the colonel.

"Well?" he asked, without preamble. The colonel rubbed his hands together unctuously.

"She is not only willing, but anxious, to cooperate," he nodded. "I dropped various hints which will, I trust, bear fruit."

Felix nodded, turned and went out to the street again. For a moment he hesitated. Then, deliberately, he headed for the dress-making shop of Nancy Neilson.

She was busy at her sewing-machine as he pushed open the door. For a moment there was a startled expression on her face as she looked up, but he saw, as he had hoped, that the shop was empty of customers.

"Is there something that I can do for you, Mr. Tarson?" she asked.

Felix helped himself to a chair, sprawling negligently. It was funny, he thought that he'd never before noticed how really pretty Nancy Neilson was.

"I want to have a talk with you, Nancy," he said. "Sit down. And you used to call me Felix." Nancy hesitated, then resumed her own chair. She looked undecided.

"I don't like to talk about some things," Felix added, and hesitated as a sudden, completely new and startling idea leaped unbidden into his mind. For a moment he considered it, talking mechanically.

"I reckon you were pretty much hurt, Nancy—the deal Steve gave you," he added. "It was raw. But, so far as I'm concerned at least, it has some good connected with it. The fact is, I figured Steve had the right of way around here, so I stayed away. Now that he's out of it—well, that gives me the right to come around."

Nancy caught her breath. The implication of his words was clear enough, but this side of his nature was a complete surprise to her.

"Like I say, I've kept clear where it seemed the field was closed," Felix went on. "Folks have remarked that I never went out with any girls. Under the circumstances, I didn't want to. But—well, I'm being pretty crude and blunt about all this, I guess, and abrupt, maybe, but what I'm doing, Nancy, is asking you to marry me. We can wait a while, if you like."

"This is rather sudden," she said. "When did you think of it, Felix—after you came in here?"

Felix stared, his jaw slack for a moment. Here was unlooked for fright as well as beauty. Maybe he had really been overlooking something.

"Don't you believe what I just told you, Nancy?" he demanded. "No, I don't believe you," she retorted. "I know the Tarsons pretty well. You're not like Matt, but if you're really interested in me, you'd have tried your luck before now."

Felix's interest was growing. The idea had been new, seeming to promise to pay off if he could put it over. Now he found himself thinking of Nancy Neilson as a human being, and rather more than just a girl. He grinned disarmingly.

"It sort of strikes me that both of us have been some mistaken about each other," he said. "Maybe I made a mistake. But I did figure it wouldn't do me any good to come around. I see I was mistaken where Steve was concerned. Kind of a blow to your pride, I suppose, the way he did things, same as it was to Matt's. But it was just your pride, wasn't it—not your heart?"

"I think you're pretty well right, there," she agreed. "I'm sure glad it was that way," Felix declared. "For I meant it, Nancy. How about marryin' me?"

"What you really want of me, Felix, is something which I'm supposed to have—but don't. Everybody thinks that I control the company that holds the Mortgage on Diamond R. You came in here in the first place to ask me about that. Then you decided that it might be a simpler and better deal if you could get me to marry you—on the rebound, as it were. So I don't particularly appreciate the compliment. But you'd be badly disappointed. I don't have anything whatever to do with that mortgage. If I did, I'm not at all certain that I'd cooperate with you. But since I don't, that relieves you of all obligation. Under the circumstances, of course, you would not be at all interested in marryin' me."

She finished, proudly, swinging her back to her machine, turning her back squarely on him. That, to her mind, closed the interview.

Felix came awkwardly to his feet then stood for a moment, fumbling his hat, uncertain what to do or say. With sudden clarity of insight to equal her own, he looked about the little shop, seeing it with new eyes. It was cheerful and pleasant, but the stock of goods was small and poor. Here was no evidence of wealth, no plaything for an idle moment.

He had believed that she controlled that mortgage, was supposed to own it. Since she did not—then she probably had no real money anywhere, no heritage at all save the pitifully meagre amount which had enabled her to buy this shop and make a bare living from it. She had been too proud to tell anyone that her father had sold because he had no choice but to pay his creditors, and that, far from being rich, she was desperately poor.

Felix stared at her with a strange look in his eyes. Then, still awkwardly, he crossed and touched her, almost fearfully, on the shoulder.

"You had me sized up right, all the way, Nancy," he said with unexpected honesty. "That was what I wanted. But—hang it, Nancy, I was a lot more right than I knew. I don't need money—the Tarsons have plenty now. But I've found that there's something I do need. I'll be comin' back—and I hope you'll think that over, what I said. It still goes. I'll be proud to marry you—if you'll have me."

(To be continued)

College Band To Present Concert

The Concert Band of East Carolina College will give its annual spring program Tuesday evening, April 29, at 8:15 in the College Theatre, according to an announcement by Herbert L. Carter of the faculty, director.

As special attractions, the program will present Charles Armstrong of Elizabeth City, trombonist, and a trumpet trio composed of Rollins Mims of Henderson, Clyde Straughan of Rocky Mount, and William Hobbs of Raleigh.

Members of the band will be dressed formally for their spring concert, always a popular program among music lovers on the campus and in Greenville and surrounding areas. Last year the group played before a capacity audience in the College Theatre.

Next Tuesday's program will open with Bruckner's "Apollo March" and will include other spirited marches by Sousa and K. L. King. Richard Strauss's "Death and Transfiguration," a symphonic poem; selections from Handel's "Water Music Suite," "Elisa's Procession to the Cathedral" from Wagner's "Lohengrin"; and John Morrissey's sprightly "Carnival Day in New Orleans" will be played during the evening.

Recently under Mr. Carter's direction, the college band has appeared in concerts on High School Day at East Carolina and at the Williamston and the Tarboro schools.

Speckled trout have returned in large numbers to many Ontario lakes, according to a report by the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests.

AP SPEAKER:—Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, Gen. Eisenhower's chief of staff at Shape, delivers the main address at the Associated Press annual luncheon in New York. Gen. Gruenther told the editors and diplomats from NATO nations that the western nations still lack the necessary forces "to stop a determined Soviet attack" in Europe, but that they would be considerably stronger in another year. ## Prefer Finding Husbands In U. S.

HARTFORD, Conn. —(AP)—Travel note for you girls who are taking the grand tour of Europe this summer: have the answer ready because the Continental swains will pop the question. Two West Hartford girls, Mildred Ann Cohen and Rhoda Marcus, turned down 10 proposals of marriage. The proposals were in six languages, but somehow the girls got the "pitch." Sometimes it was by signs and gestures—one tried thumping his manly chest.

But after all the flowers, perfumes, tears and hand-kissing, they said they preferred the frank American approach "by a magnificent margin."

Wilson's Weekly Bulletin

from the RECTOR KITCHENS

A Good Meal any time of day is Wilson's Certified Corned Beef Hash! Sliced and fried as rounds for breakfast... casserole for luncheon with poached eggs on top or served for supper as meaty and mighty good Hash 'n' Biscuits (see recipe below) Wilson's Certified Corned Beef Hash always wins praise and friends. And deservedly so because it's the hash with TASTE appeal.

Plenty of tender, meaty and mighty good corned beef is blended with bits of quality Idaho potatoes, then it is mildly seasoned and savored in the dependable Wilson way. Why, Wilson's Certified Corned Beef Hash is so tasty you can even dilute it with water and still have a hash to serve on hot biscuits that's fit for a king.

HASH 'N' BISCUITS

Cook together until savory but not browned:
2 tablespoons Wilson's Certified Bacon drippings,
Certified Margarine or Wilson's BAKE-RITE
1 medium onion, chopped fine (scant 1/2 cup)
1 clove garlic, minced fine, and
3 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper

Bake with contents from:
1 can Wilson's Certified Corned Beef Hash
mixed with

in casserole topped with rich, feathery baking powder biscuits* (either cut as rounds or laid in strips). Bake 25 minutes at 400° F. Serve hot to 4.

*Use 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1/4 cup BAKE-RITE, 1/4 cup milk and mix in the usual way with your lightest touch.

Ice Water Treatment Of Taft Bloc Could Well Be Ike's Secret Weapon

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — There's probably nothing so galling as the ice-water treatment, which is what Eisenhower has been giving the Taft people.
He hasn't much hair left, and they may be able to muss it before this is over, but they haven't been able to do it yet.
Not even with the 21 questions which they've now produced and to which they "demand" an answer from the general. He's ignored them.
Asked if he thought the general might answer, one of his closest advisers here laughed. "Why should he?"
This must make sense to the general's advisers since he's been doing pretty well by keeping his mouth shut.
While everyone knows he's an internationalist in foreign affairs, few have any idea of where he stands on the multitude of current domestic problems.

HEEL, NOT SO ROUGH:—Sandra Bradley, 5, learns with consternation that neighbor Art Farrar's new Brown Swiss heifer has a rough tongue for hand feeding. Farrar, of Fayetteville, Tenn., has been instrumental in bringing the hardy dairy cattle breed to the state. (AP Wirephoto).

Nevertheless, he's rolled up big votes in several states, which might indicate that in troubled times silence brings its own reward.
It might also mean a lot of people like and trust him without knowing exactly what his domestic thinking is, and no matter what it is.
The general will be placing all his hope for the nomination on exactly that point if he remains quiet until the Republican convention in July.
It will be ironic if he succeeds that way over Sen. Taft, who has been doing just the opposite for years. "Lying on every subject."
These times are so troubled that many people have almost violent opinions on a host of subjects.
The man who steps up and speaks his piece, like Taft, may make friends but is bound to make enemies, as Taft has done.
The general has been able to avoid this unpleasant fate in the midst of his quietness.
But he wouldn't avoid it long if he attempted to answer the 21 questions the Taftites threw at him.

One is likely for Eisenhower to answer: "Do you approve of the firing of Gen. MacArthur?"
There are some other beauties in the list. For instance: "Are you for an increase or reduction in social security benefits?"
If he says he's for an increase he may win friends among old people but make enemies of those opposed to paying higher taxes so old people can get higher benefits. If he says he's for lower benefits, he gets the old people on his neck.
He may be able to continue right on, to convention time—and get the nomination—without saying more than he's said so far.

Taxis Pay Way For Education

NEW YORK (AP) — Two children of taxi drivers are having their way paid to college by their dad's boss.
Daniel G. Arnstein, president of two taxi firms, recently presented his fifth annual scholarship covering all college expenses for both undergraduate and graduate work.
One winner, Miss Gloria Jessie, plans to study medicine while Donald Rosenberg will concentrate on aeronautical engineering. Each is 17 years old.

Stern Penalties In Liquor Trial

In the third day of criminal court here yesterday, Judge John J. Burney imposed long suspended sentences, stiff fines and confiscated the automobile of a Negro man and two Negro women convicted of violating the liquor laws.
Found guilty in jury trial of illegal sale of liquor, Louis Smith, Jessie Mae Best and Charity Elizabeth Best were issued the following judgments by Judge Burney: Louis Smith, two years on the roads, sentence suspended provided he remain on probation for two years and pay a fine of $250 and one-third of court costs; Jessie Mae Best, 12 months in jail to be worked at the Women's Division of State Prison, sentence suspended provided she remain on probation for five years and pay a fine of $100 and court costs; and Charity Elizabeth Best, two years in jail to be worked at the Women's Division of State Prison, sentence suspended provided she remain on probation for five years and pay a fine of $100 and court costs.
The automobile was ordered confiscated and sold.
Convicted by a jury of aiding and abetting in illegally transporting non-tax-paid whiskey, CONNIE Tyson, Negro, was sentenced to 12 months on the roads, sentence suspended provided he be of good behavior and not violate any law for two years and pay a fine of $100 and court costs. Judge Burney ordered his car confiscated and sold.
Zeno Ward, Jr., Negro, who Monday was found guilty of assault with a deadly weapon instead of the more serious charge of assault with deadly weapon with intent to kill, was sentenced to 12 months on the roads.

DEER KILLED; DRIVER UNHURT:—The 200-pound doe in foreground was killed but Lynde Heathe, 33, driver of this upended truck, escaped without a scratch after his vehicle collided with the deer at Bassalboro, Me. Indicted for fraud, the case of acquitted yesterday of dog mutilation charges but both were returned to jail under new charges.
George Sprouse, 40, was freed of charges of cruelty to an animal but he was arrested on a bench warrant charging him with making whisky. The Negro, 16-year-old Clarence Buster Carson, was charged with perjury after officers testified that he had changed his story several times. He testified yesterday that he saw the white man cut out a hound's tongue last Nov. 26.

Impeachment Bloc Isn't Confident Of Results

By LYLE C. WILSON

United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP) — Some of the Republicans who would impeach President Truman or cut off funds with which to administer seized steel companies are acting in self-defense in a peculiarly personal way.

A few of them will admit it. More of them will concede that impeachment of Mr. Truman is impossible.
The self-defenders are trying to protect themselves from blistering mail and telegrams from back home. Some sections of the American public took the steel seizure in stride and some cheered it on—the union leaders, for example.
A very considerable number of citizens, however, saw in Mr. Truman's seizure of the steel industry a gross and dangerous violation of the constitution. The violation would be in the lack of any legislative act authorizing the President to order the seizure.

These citizens belabored their congressmen and senators to "do something." The idea was to do something which would assert the complaint that Mr. Truman had reached far beyond the bounds of legality to take an action which only could be authorized by act of Congress.

The protesting mail from back home said Congress should assert itself, defend its constitutional position as one of the three co-equal branches of government.

One rather substantial partisan argument has been made against the effort to compel Mr. Truman to release the steel industry by forbidding the use of federal funds for its administration.
It is that such action would do more than release the industry. It would get Mr. Truman off a hot spot. Anyt' g that happened thereafter easily could be charged to Congress regardless of the merits of the charge. And Mr. Truman is mighty handy at indicting Congress with the public and making the indictment stick! The presidential election of 1948 was a good example of that.

Now that Congress has tried, but so far failed, to end the seizure by withholding funds, harried legislators may reply to complaining constituents that they did their best.
That will not decide the question whether Mr. Truman did or did not violate the constitution. A suit by the steel industry ultimately will determine the Supreme Court's judgment of that. There are persons here who hazard a guess that Mr. Truman can expect friendly treatment from a Supreme Court he and FDR created.

Eisenhower May Talk In Asheville

CHARLOTTE — (AP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has tentatively accepted an invitation to speak in Asheville.
Dr. Furman Angel of Franklin said yesterday he received a letter from the general consenting to speak in Asheville if he is nominated for the presidency at the July 9 GOP convention. The invitation was extended at the suggestion of James Baley, State GOP chairman.

Auto And Train Crash; Boy Dies

VINITA, Okla. (UP) — A train crashed into an automobile stalled on the tracks in Vinita and killed a two-year-old Indiana boy as his mother tried desperately to snatch him from the car.
Patrick L. Riland, son of Mrs. Martha Riland, 33, of South Bend, Ind., died of a skull fracture and internal injuries received when the Riland automobile was hurled more than 100 feet by impact of the collision.

ATTACKS GI MORALS:—Mrs. Tamaki Uyemura, 62 (above), head of Japan's YWCA, in a letter appearing in a Japanese magazine, appealed to Mrs. Matthew B. Ridgway, wife of the supreme commander, asking her to ask the general to bar GI's from Japanese brothels and "isolate immoral U. S. troops." (AP Wirephoto via radio from Tokyo).

Scarritt College Visitor Speaks In Chapel Service
Betsy Ewing, alumni secretary for Scarritt College for Christian Workers, Nashville, Tenn., spoke Tuesday at the weekly chapel service at East Carolina College. "Christian Life Service As a Vocation" was the topic of her talk before students at the college. At present Miss Ewing is visiting Methodist Student Centers and various college campuses in this area. The purpose of her tour is to present opportunities for graduate study and training in Christian service. While in Greenville, she was a guest at the Methodist Student Center and was entertained by the Wesley Foundation, organization of Methodist students at East Carolina. Her program here included talks to the Wesley Foundation Council and at a vesper service at the Methodist Student Center, and a series of conferences with students at East Carolina.

Palmerston, Ont. (AP) - When Ivan Birk plays the bagpipes, a vacuum cleaner provides the windpower. Birk got the idea after he used the vacuum cleaner to blow his player piano. He recently was invited to join a pipe band. "I soon discovered that it was too much for me to read the music and wiggle my fingers and keep the thing blown up-all at the same time. So I hitched up the vacuum cleaner. That took the blowing job off my mind and left me free to concentrate on the other two. The result is that I can now play 'The Barren Rocks of Aiden' by heart and the opening notes of the 'Bonnets of Bonnie Dundee'."

Air Force Base Flooded As Missouri Crest Breaks Dike

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UP) — Yellow floodwaters flowed 10 feet deep over the $3,500,000 Sherman Air Force Base today as the crest of the Missouri River bore down on jittery Kansas City.

River experts and engineers expected the full force of the Missouri's greatest surge to strike Kansas City's 47-foot levee system late today but insisted the city's 600,000 inhabitants were safe.

Upstream at Leavenworth, Kan., where the mammoth air base was under water, the scene was tragic. The river battered through the dikes last night and ended a futile nine-day struggle by mud-covered soldiers to save their air field.

Floodwaters gushed through a gaping hole in the south levee, inundating the runways and lapping at the hangar windows. But the north dike, which engineers had believed would crumble first, held.

Every valuable piece of equipment, including plane and equipment, had been removed from the sloping air field, but an Air Force spokesman estimated flood damage at $1,000,000.

As the "Mighty Mo" surged southward, the even-mightier Mississippi River battered at soggy and weakened dikes at Sabula, Ill., 30 miles upstream from Davenport.

Hundreds of National Guardsmen and civilian volunteers fought leaks in the dikes and citizens prepared to flee, should a major break occur.

"It's natural for Kansas Cityans to be apprehensive," said Col. L. J. Lincoln, of the U. S. Army Engineers, but "there is no reason for alarm. Preparations have been made for every eventual, and there is nothing in sight to fear."

Kansas Cityans listened to his consoling words, but those who were victims of the $400,000,000 disaster wrought by the Kansas River last night wondered.

"They told us there was nothing to fear last summer, too," one of them commented. "And look what happened."

While there was assurance on every side that Kansas City would take Missouri's crest in stride, there was nevertheless renewed night-long activity along the miles of the levee system.

Thousands of troops, engineer experts, civilian personnel and sightseers worked — and watched — as the river mounted ominously.

By early morning, engineers said, work adding some six feet to Kansas City's protective system would be completed.

Residents in the St. Joseph area, meanwhile, were assured the long crest of the Missouri, which has caused an estimated damage of $53,000,000 from Rulo, Neb., to its mouth, had definitely passed.

There also was a fall of the river reported at Atchison today.

Kansas' fifth industrial city still was waging a winning fight and the river had left from a high of 32.5 to 32.2.

There was encouragement in the weather report. Observers in Kansas City said the skies were clearing, that almost no rain fell last night in the critical areas.

Eight Will Face Flogging Charges

LAKE VIEW, S. C. — (AP) — Eight men will face assault and battery charges in the Dillon County Court of General Sessions in June as the result of the flogging of a man and his wife last Oct. 19.

They were ordered bound over for trial at a hearing before Magistrate A. E. Carmichael here yesterday. They each posted $100 bond.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Church testified the men took them from their store, tied them to a tree near the Little Pee Dee River and flogged them, telling them they were punished because they operated their store on Sunday and did not go to church.

Four of the eight are facing trial in Whiteville, N. C., next week on charges growing out of flogging incidents in Columbus County. They are Jack Ashley, former Fair Bluff, N. C., police chief, who testified for the state yesterday; Early Brooks, 44, another former Fair Bluff police chief; his son, Bobby, and Harvey Bartfield, of near Mullins. The other defendants are Troy Gerald, E. H. West, Everett Rogers and English Cook.

Floats And Bands Highlight Farmville Parade

High-stepping bands and brilliant colored floats highlighted the second annual Farmville Farmers' Day celebration held yesterday. A crowd estimated in excess of 5,000 people was on hand for the parade and beauty contest, and heard an address by Gov. W. Kerr Scott. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee).

ords in 1949 and 1951 gave promise of real service to the state are not seeking re-election. To offset that loss some oldtimers with records dating back two decades, but who were not here during the past two sessions, will be on the job and a great many of the men who did valiant service in the past two or three legislatures are likely to be back.

HAZARDS — Many of these candidates face opposition in local primaries and almost certainly some of them will fall by the wayside as result of county voting. The situation with respect to some particular issues, such as a state-wide vote on liquor and a trend toward larger spending for so-called "social services" rendered by the state, may be changed a bit. Such changes, if they develop, will follow a general pattern. There is no reason, on basis of incomplete preliminary reports from the 100 counties, to think the 1953 legislature will "go crazy" to greater degree than its predecessors during the past half century. That observation will stand up, regardless of who is elected Governor or which of the several candidates for the General Assembly in the 100 counties and 50 senatorial districts are nominated in the May 31 primary.

Body Of Nash Farmer Is Found

WILLIAMSTON (UP) — The body of Arthur Glasgow, missing since April 4, was recovered from Gardner's Creek here yesterday.

The 31-year-old Nash County farmer disappeared about two weeks ago after he left three fishing companions to go out alone in a boat after dark.

Employment Off In Textile Plants

RALEIGH (UP) — Employment in the North Carolina textile industry dropped 2,200 in March because of high inventories and few new orders, the State Labor Department reported today.

Decreases of 1,900 in furniture and 600 in lumber industries and slight decreases in cigaret manufacturing laps were also reported during the month, statistician Clarence H. Pritchard said.

However, to offset a large drop in non-agricultural employment, the contract construction industry picked up 4,400 workers as substantial amounts of new construction were authorized.

The department listed 76,900 workers in contract construction work last month, an increase of 23.2 per cent over the March, 1951, level when only 62,400 construction workers were employed in the state.

The overall decrease in non-agricultural employment was 2,000 for the month, Pritchard said.

Average hourly earnings of the state's 417,500 factory workers remained unchanged at $1.20. Weekly earnings dropped slightly to $46.08 because of a half-hour decrease in the average factory work week.

Carbine Williams Day Is Planned

FAYETTEVILLE (UP) — Local residents planned to celebrate "Carbine Williams Day" here today, honoring the inventor of the Army carbine.

The world premiere of the movie "Carbine Williams" will be held tonight. The movie concerns the life of David Marshall Williams, of Godwin, who invented the weapon while serving a road term at Calumet Prison Farm.

Wendell Corey, who plays the movie role of Capt. H. T. Peoples, former warden at Calumet Farm, Williams and his family, Peoples, are several Hollywood celebrities are expected to attend.

Business Students Hear Greensboro Man At Meet

The American business system and how it operates was discussed by Charles T. McNary of Greensboro before business education students at East Carolina College Tuesday evening of this week.

The occasion was the annual conference in business sponsored by the college Commerce Club and the Sea Scout Chapter of Piquette Pt., national business education fraternity. While on the campus, Mr. McNary was entertained at a dinner attended by officers of the two organizations and faculty members of the business education department.

At the conference held in the Flanagan auditorium, Alfred L. Smith of Greenville, president of the Commerce Club, introduced Mr. McNary, who is personnel director of Blue Bell, Inc., manufacturers of men's and boy's work clothes.

In showing how American business is organized and managed, Mr. McNary used a series of charts. He stressed such ideas as the profit motive as chief incentive, individual initiative, competition with others, investments by large numbers of people, and the creation of more and better goods to meet the needs of the public.

The accomplishments of our system, he said are shown by the progress of the last hundred years. In this period, he stated, American business has discovered more raw materials for manufacture, developed more efficient buildings, equipment, and tools; and greatly increased production.

The American competitive system and the freedoms enjoyed in this country have enabled American business, he said, to surpass that in various other countries.
