Consider Specifying Terms For Annexing New Areas

By JESS POINDEXTER Reflector Staff Writer It appeared to be the concern of members of the City Planning Board this morning that the city should institute definite specifications to which new developments will have to conform before being incorporated into the city limits.

mitted a tentative policy to the board which he thinks, with amendments, will give the city a standard from which to work. "It should be the general policy of the city of Greenville to encourage growth and expansion only on a sound financial and planning basis," he asserted.

Rains Put Transplanting Into High Gear

The rain came, and local farmers took to the fields yesterday and today, to transform the barren fields into gardens of small green tobacco plants. The sorely-needed rain came just as some were beginning to plant their fields, out of necessity, because of the size of the plants. Above, workers on the Guy Sutton farm on the Farmville highway, are shown putting down their first plants of the 1952 crop. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee.)

Babson Takes Serious View Of Steel Seizure By Pres. Truman

By ROGER W. BABSON WASHINGTON, D. C. — Of all the dangerous and unforfeitable things which President Truman has done, the seizure of the steel plants is the most horrible.

Looking Into The Future

Another thought: Think of the danger of letting the President seize a newspaper which he would like to suppress! He could do this as well as seize a steel plant. He would only need to stir up the employees to demand an impossible wage increase, and then "the emergency" size and edit that newspaper! It is horrible to contemplate. Surely the labor ultimately happens to the steel case. I am now more convinced than ever that when the next big unemployment men Depression comes, it will be brought on by Labor Leaders.

DOOMROCK

BY ARCHIE JOSCELYN

Chapter 22
Immediately the conference was concluded, Steve headed for home, beckoning Burt McKee to ride with him. It had been McKee who had discovered this second cow and calf, and called it to the attention of the whole bunch of men. Their action of calling a Cattleman's Court was better than Steve had expected.

But with ruin staring him in the face, as the increasing tally of the round-up came in, it might be too late in any case. That was one worry. The other, which nagged even more insistently, was Melody. He had let her ride away this morning with the guff widening between them.

His hand touched the hard lump against his chest, and he flinched bitterly. Doomrock! It looked as if Indian Joe had known what he was talking about. It was like an ever-increasing weight, a millions hung about his neck. For a moment he considered throwing it away, then shrugged the notion aside.

McKee rode in silence, respecting Steve's obvious wish to be left alone. It was not until they reached the barn and were stripping the saddles from their horses that Steve turned to him in the cloistered silence and shadows of the big building.

"I've got a new job for you, Burt," he said. "You'll start first thing in the morning. I've had word from the round-up boss, over at Passover Ford. There's quite a few head of our stock have strayed there."

"I need the money, and there'll be a cattle buyer over there. So sell what there are, regardless of age, and bring the money back. I'll be maybe four or five thousand dollars, enough that it can make all the difference in saving the ranch."

"Sure, I'll tend to it," McKee agreed readily. "I'll head off south when I start, just in case anybody's interested."

"That's fine," Steve said absently.

He entered the house, his step echoing hollowly. Where was Melody, Steve wondered.

He heard her step then, quick and brisk at the outer door, and went to meet her. The next moment, without words, she was in his arms.

"Oh, Steve!" she said. "You did come! I hoped you would. I was out on the hilltop there, watching. But you swung in from the other way."

In his relief at having matters right between them, Steve gave no thought to her words. But they had come straight in from the round-up.

Steve's spirits revived with Melody on his side, he could lick the world.

She stood to watch him ride away the next morning, back to work. Almost hesitantly then, she turned her steps toward the bunk house, where only one man puttered around today. Lenny, Melody came straight to the point.

Tonight, with the placing of another half-score of warnings, the seed of fear would be well planted, watered by a dash of terror. Matt swung to one of his companions.

"Burt McKee is headin' for Passover Ford," he said. "He'll sell the Diamond cattle there and head should amount to several thousand dollars. Nobody's supposed to know. You sashay over there, Wesson. And see that he don't get back. Tend to it after he gets the cash."

"I'll tend to it," Wesson agreed. He dismounted to tighten his cinch. Casually, fending his employer's observation elsewhere, he bent and picked up the crumpled piece of paper which Matt had tossed to the wind. Then, nodding, he mounted and swung his horse to the north.

SOMETHING'S Missing

Tom has a ballbat and Joe has a mitt. They are two sturdy, normal, active boys, eager for a good time. But something is missing.

There is no ball. They can swing the bat in thin air all day long, and wave and pound the mitt. Yet all their motions are completely senseless if they have nothing to strike at or to catch.

You are a fortunate normal American, eager for a good time and happy life. But perhaps there is something missing in your life too.

Do you go through the motions of earning a living, clothing and feeding your family, finding entertainment, yet everything seems rather empty and senseless?

Perhaps then God is missing. Seek Him and your life will take on new meaning with vital purpose. "Seek and you shall find—"

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Neighbors And Old Friends Get Together In Farmville

Variety Of Events For Visitors In Celebration

By JESS POINDEXTER
Reflector Staff Writer

When more than 5,000 Pitt County farmers and their families assembled in Farmville Wednesday, they exemplified a Southern tradition as old as Capt. John White's controversial sixteenth century colony on Roanoke Island.

For years during and after the founding of the first permanent English colony in America at Jamestown in 1607, it was necessary for survival, and thus mandatory, for English colonists to adopt a closely-knit relationship in colonization.

In Farmville Wednesday afternoon and night, the immediate descendants of those persevering Anglo-Saxons from the isle of Britain came together, as they have for centuries in this area, for an annual farmers-day outing.

On that day kin met kin and friend met friend with genuine and hearty enthusiasm. Palms were clasped heartily during a celebration which brought those calloused-handed tillers of the soil together for the first time since last year, and probably for the last time until next year.

All day a variety of events kept farmers and their families occupied with, among other things, a band concert, a speech by Gov. W. Kerr Scott, a parade of marines, and a review of state and national dignitaries from this vicinity.

Governor Scott, Congressman Herbert Bonner of Washington and Dr. Paul Jones of Farmville joined with a score of others to parade before thousands of their constituents in that annual celebration. The fact that it was, in reality, a bona fide farmers day event, was indicated by rules of the beauty contest, which was won by Charlene Smith of Ayden. All contestants were required to be rural residents or from towns with less than 2,500 population. The winner of the beauty competition met those specifications, and countless others.

Climaxing all events presented Wednesday and Wednesday night, "Chief" J. L. Taylor of Greenville personally bore out his laurels as the oldest man present. Presenting his award in that respect, the 78-year-old Pitt County ABC officer conducted himself as would a man 50 years his junior. A past chief of police in Farmville for 20 years, "Chief" Taylor came home once again to circulate among his lifetime friends.

In an exemplification of the fact that old troopers never die, Taylor chose a former flame and led through a square dance that night. Resembling an old Carolina cavalier with his bristling mustache and graceful carriage, Taylor conducted more than 100 couples through a score of intricate figures.

And well into the night when visitors called it a "day," they retired to their homes to ready for this year's crop with the firm intention of returning again next year to attend a celebration which the town of Farmville has dedicated to them.

Miss Charlene Smith, Ayden High School senior, was chosen the 1952 Farmville Farmers Day Queen at the second annual event held in that Pitt community on Wednesday. Miss Smith received a $100 cash award for first place honors. She was sponsored by the Ayden Rotary Club. Second place honors went to Dorothy Ann Fulford, of Route 2, Farmville, with third place to Anne Harris of Fountain.

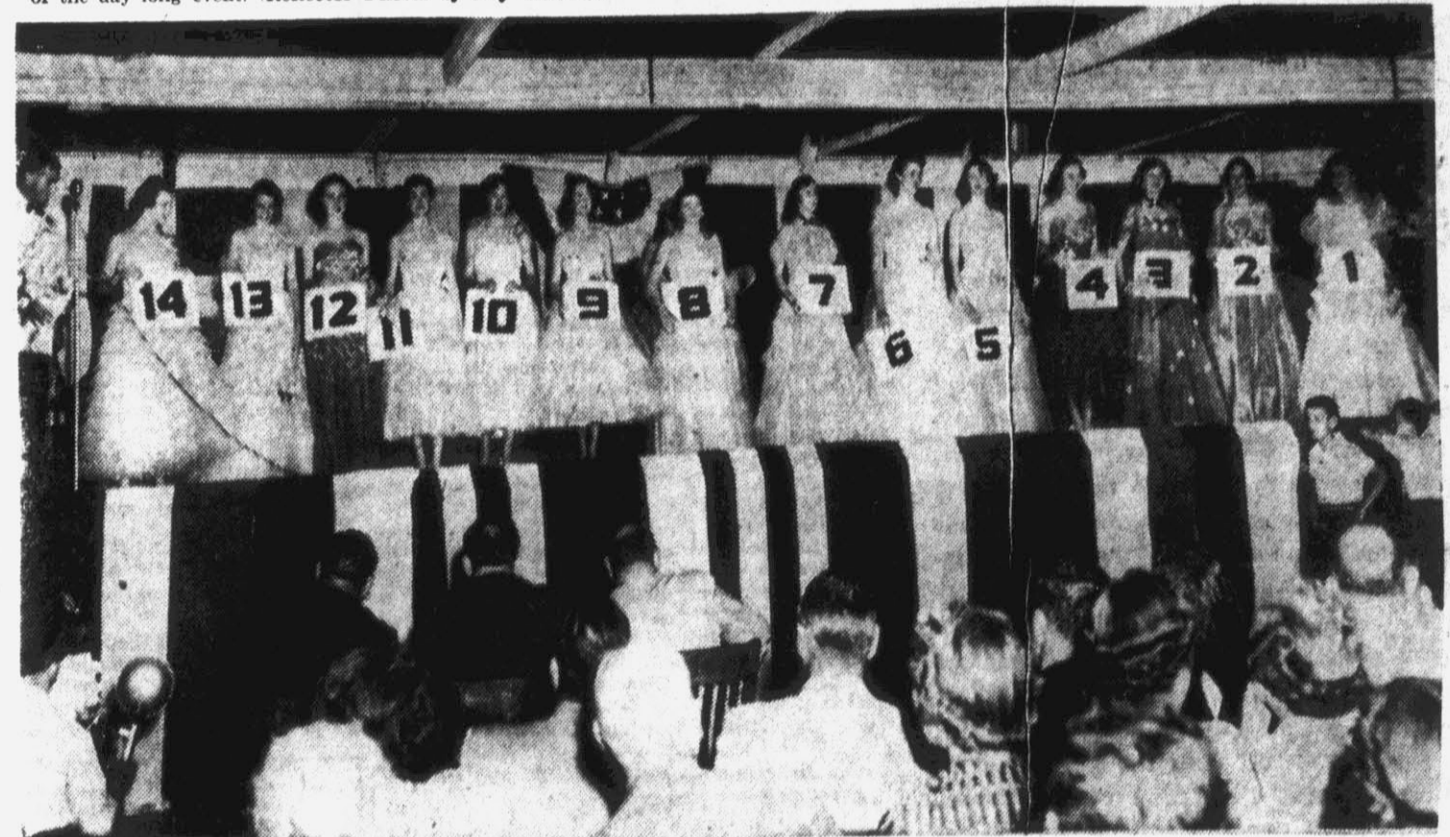

Part of the more than 5,000 people who participated in Farmville's celebration Wednesday are shown above in Monk's Warehouse, the center of the day-long event. (Reflector Photos by Roy Hardee).

Floats, bands and cheering crowds were all a part of Farmville's Farmers Day celebration. Above, three of the beauty contestants are shown riding on a float during the 40-minute long parade.

"Oh, look at that!" exclaims the little girl in the above picture. She became so excited during the parade that she just couldn't remain still. Her other companions look to see what has attracted her attention.

Highlight of the evening's activities was the selection of a 1952 Farm Day queen from an entry list of 14 lovely young girls from towns in the area. To be eligible the entry had to come from a town with a population of less than 2,500. The girls are shown lined up for the judges in the center foreground.

Gov. W. Kerr Scott (right) talks with Congressman Herbert Bonner of Washington. Scott spoke to the throngs attending the annual Farmers Day event following the afternoon parade. Bonner was among the many out-of-town visitors present for the occasion.

Cash-Basis Town Of Falkland All Set For Election

FALKLAND — This Pitt county town is all set for Election Day to be held here Monday, May 5. Mayor J. Frank Parker, Jr., who has held the office the past two years, is unopposed, will make a solo campaign for chief Burgess of Falkland.

Only two town incumbent commissioners have filed for reelection. They are J. E. Watson and Woodrow W. Wooten. J. F. Moore and J. Percy Stauch have filed for commissioner.

Since Falkland's charter was renewed by the General Assembly five years ago the town has made numerous improvements. During the last two years streets were paved and widened; a town hall was built; street lights were installed and a traffic signal light was placed at the intersection of highways 43 and 222.

At the last meeting of the Town Commissioners—April 7, purchase of fire fighting equipment was discussed. A committee was appointed to make plans for organizing a fire department for Falkland.

Incidentally, the Town of Falkland is free of debt, an official stated. The tax rate in Falkland will be reduced from 70 cents on the $100 valuation to 60 cents.

The question frequently is asked if there is another town or city in North Carolina, or the United States, that is operating on a 100 per cent cash basis. "That's what Falkland is doing," an official stated.

tion," responded Assistant Attorney General Holmes Baldrige, arguing for the government.
President Truman's words have been recently earning him a flood of headlines and editorial comment; now it would appear his minions are abetting the dubious distinction of pouring more fuel on the many controversies surrounding the presidency.
On previous occasions during President Truman's tenure of office, instances have been brought to public attention in which disregard of judicial opinions and congressional wishes were evident. There have been occasions in which the constitutionality of his acts, or those of his official family, were challenged; only the challenges were ignored or remain unsettled. His bullheaded conduct has made him suspect of harboring ambitious dreams of power exceeding even those vast legitimate powers conferred by the Constitution. The really shocking opinion of unlimited powers in the presidency, as propounded yesterday, lends credence to the thought that such an authoritarian philosophy of government has been considered in high circles.

In any event, and despite happy assurances of a new tenant in the White House soon, an earlier Reflector observation still holds water: that the constitutional duties of presidents be more clearly defined.

National Whirligig

Every Saturday this veteran Washington newspaper correspondent devotes his column to answering readers' questions of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent direct to Ray Tucker at 6508 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON—You may be interested in the tactics of the Eisenhower people in this state. Volunteers C. G. R. of Seattle, Wash. in a letter resembling many similar communications which I have received.

"Because our primary comes after the national convention, we do not vote on presidential candidates in the primary. Consequently, all the maneuvering for delegates comes at the state convention. That has been the custom for years.

COMPLAINT—This year, however, the Eisenhower supporters are putting on a fight in the present caucuses, whose only function hitherto has been the selection of delegates to the county conventions.

"This year, for its effect on public opinion, the Eisenhower groups have been trying to take over the precinct caucuses. They pack these with their own boys and girls, even inviting people never before identified with the party, including some Democrats." Together with many others in my file, this complaint boils down to the fact that the Eisenhower forces are conducting an aggressive campaign, refusing to abide by ancient customs and attracting new faces, where the state laws permit.

ASSET—Answer: As an old political reporter, I can appreciate the resentment of veteran party members and workers against this youthful, Eisenhower invasion. Indeed, since I know the older generation better than I do the later crop, I feel sorry for them. It is quite probable that certain hoary customs are being trampled on, together with some old toes.

But it seems to me that political organization for party success rather than personal aggrandizement, or even the victory of their personal favorite for the nomination, would welcome this influx of young voters, independents and Democrats.

If it is the appeal of General Eisenhower which arouses their interest and brings them into the fold, he should be praised and reappraised instead of condemned. His attraction to these groups appears to be his strongest asset.

STRENGTH—Every sign in the political heavens shows that the GOP needs new and more red blood, if it is not to die of dry rot. It has tried and failed with the Landons and Deweys, and even with an outsider like Wilkie.

Both major parties, history proves, gained new sources of strength only when they welcomed instead of rejecting popular figures. With the Republicans it was Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt. With the Democrats it was Grover Cleveland, Woodrow Wilson and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

C. G. R. and his group should remember that elections are won at the polls, not at conventions.

BENEFICIAL—"My fellow-workers and I," writes C. R. of Springfield, Mass., "would like some information and your opinion on the Taft-Hartley Act."

Answer: I think that the Taft-Hartley Act has been of great benefit to the average workman, even though it seeks to deprive management, the labor bosses and the government of absolute power which all have tried to gain at one time or another. It is an honest attempt to strike a balance among those three forces.

Department of Labor experts report that there have been fewer strikes since enactment of this legislation. It does not require any government statistics to demonstrate that the workman is better off now than he ever has been before.

Truman himself has invoked it twelve times, although he has evaded or sabotaged it when it suited him, as in the current steel dispute. He shows stubbornness rather than statesmanship on this issue.

The fact is that, save for political purposes, the statute is generally recognized as necessary and beneficial. Only certain politicians and high-paid labor leaders keep alive the agitation for its repeal. They would exhibit a greater sense of responsibility if they would accept Taft's offer to make it even more workable under the 20-odd amendments he has proposed.

PROJECT—Many readers have asked for more information on the Genisiat project, the waterway-power undertaking now being built in France and Switzerland with American funds. I described this peculiar operation in a recent column, and thought I had given all the pertinent details.

However, let a valued magazine entitled "Inside Michigan" recently carried a full-length article on this subject, and I understand that the editors will furnish reprints. Their address is Room 944, Free Press Building, Detroit, Michigan.

Officials deny that "counterpart funds" totalling $1,000,000,000 will be spent on the Genisiat project, which is more expensive and elaborate than the proposed St. Lawrence affair. They insist that the sum will not exceed $200,000,000 as the American taxpayers' contribution. However, even that amount would have built enough small dams, reservoirs and dikes to minimize the destructiveness of the recent Missouri River floods.

Moreover, from long experience, I am leery about all federal statisticians' financial figures.

REG-MANNING

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

This is chapter 34 in the story that I might call "Experiences of Parenthood," featuring my 19-month-old daughter, Nancy. This story proves that a child in the family will put to rest the ability of the parents to read the child's mind.

It all started one Saturday afternoon when Wife Rachel was on a shopping tour and I was in charge of Nancy. It was one of those times that every parent is very familiar with: the baby was cross, tired of the company of one parent, and refused to be content no matter what plan of entertainment that the parent might dream up. Consequently, the child fussed continuously.

WR walked in, gathers in the "poor little girl," comforts her by saying, with a very sympathetic voice, "Is the little baby cross? Does she want a peanut-butter and cracker?" That simple device immediately makes Nancy a happy girl when the poor Daddy had tried everything else in the book.

Rachel pulled this one me so many times that I was almost convinced that fathers are simply a necessary evil in the lives of their children, and have no idea how to take care of them.

But last night WR was in charge of Nancy and I was simply the innocent father, standing on the sideline, observing that Rachel was in the same boat I had been in. Everything in the world that a mind could manufacture had been offered Nancy, but she was sleepy and refused to surrender to her condition. Therefore, she was very cross.

At a time like this the parent doesn't stop to consider whether or not a child should have a certain item, but considers more whether or not that item would settle the child down. It occurred to me that a sip of Pepsi-Cola might do the trick with Nancy, and it did. Frankly, it almost made me feel like a Mother to figure out the remedy when the Mother herself didn't have it.

This is a form of competition that comes about between parents, and also a matter of helping each other out. It's almost a game to see who can come up with the right answer.

Many of the parents believe in letting the child fuss until it fuses itself out, but our point of view is that the child doesn't understand that she is sleepy and doesn't want to go to sleep, and therefore she deserves the consideration. No matter what you do, you'll be right in some cases and wrong in others. That's what makes the world go round.

And I thank you.

By LYNN NISBET

REPEATERS—Indications are that more than half the members of the 1951 House of Representatives will be back for the 1953 session. The first 84 counties to send reports of legislative candidates to Secretary of State Tard Eure showed 37 members of the 1951 house without opposition in the May 31 primary. Thirty-nine other members are seeking re-election against opposition, with big odds favoring more than half of them to win. Unofficial information from the 18 counties yet to report is that half a dozen of them will have unopposed repeaters. This situation makes almost certain the return of at least 60, or one half of the present house membership.

UNUSUAL—Checking of records for the past several sessions shows an average repeater list of 35 per cent to 40 per cent. The last session had 48 carry-overs from the 1949 assembly, which was exactly 40 per cent of the total house membership of 120. To have more than half the membership return it is unusual, but it is even more surprising that practically one-third of the former members are coming back without opposition in their home counties.

SHORT BALLOT—The Governor and the Lieutenant Governor are prohibited by the constitution from succeeding themselves. Among the eight other elective offices in the executive branch of government there is only one Democratic primary contest. Waldo Check, commissioner of insurance, is opposed by John Frederick of Charlotte. Very little interest has been around in the race, with Check virtually sure of re-nomination. Tard Eure, secretary of state, Henry Bridges, auditor, Brandon Hodges, Treasurer, Clyde Erwin, superintendent of public instruction, L. Y. Ballentine, commissioner of agriculture, Forrest Shuford, commissioner of labor, and Harry McMullan, attorney general, have been certified as Democratic nominees. They all have Republican opponents in November but their election is a foregone conclusion.

COUNTY—No tabulation has been attempted on candidates for county commissioners and boards of education, but information coming into Raleigh indicates more than usual activity in these local races. One long time observer of political trends commented the other day that it looks like the people are concerned about the bottom and the top, not bothering much about the middle level of government. From county offices the conversations usually jump to the national scene. This man had found more interest in President than in Governor among North Carolinians.

NEXT TIME—He confirmed your reporter's findings that in some instances, particularly in the congressional campaign, the folks are already looking to 1954. It was learned at Statesville the other day that several leaders are taking a small part in the current race for congress, because "Iredell will have a candidate two years from now," and effort is being made to weld the factions together so as to give the man solid support in 1954. There is evidence that some prospective future candidates in the second district are supporting Congressman John Kerr for re-nomination in the belief that this will be his last campaign and their chances will be better two years from now than if a new man were elected this year. It is highly probable that whoever goes to Washington this time from the twelfth district will have to defend his seat against strong opposition in the next election. The candidates are disposed to shoot the works for the current campaign, but many others are looking at possible hang-over effects.

SCOTT—Belief is general that Governor Scott is even now running for the United States Senate in 1954 to replace Senator Willis Smith. That belief is having considerable influence upon the present race for Governor, since Scott has publicly proclaimed his purpose to help elect Hubert Olive. The Governor insists that he is not running for anything, but a great many people think he will be a candidate two years from now and will have a right to expect Olive to pay back campaign assistance, in event Olive is governor then.

DIAMOND—The State Department of Agriculture is 75 years old, according to Mrs. Pauline DeCosta, associate editor of departmental publications. She has suggested to the powers that be the appropriateness of a "Diamond Jubilee" celebration sometime during the year, probably in connection with the State Fair in October. There could be a very interesting program built around the record of achievements by the department since its organization. Although the constitution of 1869 required the General Assembly to establish a Department of Agriculture, Immigration, and Statistics, the assembly apparently did not get around to the job until nine years later. And it was not until a con-emergency, even a permit will not be granted, so grave is the threat. That decree, however, is only temporary, and will be removed as soon as there is sufficient rainfall to justify that course. Meantime, as harassing as it may be, the restriction is intended merely as a safeguard against loss by property owners.

Vance county's forest ranger, Rufus Daniel, says that a fire tower is to be erected near Henderson this summer as a vantage point from which a large portion of the county can be guarded against forest fires. He says the material already is available and will be erected in the near future. Suspicious clouds of smoke can be observed for a distance of many miles, and when discovered the alarm can be given so that flames can be attacked without delay. Experience has shown that this facility has been the means of preventing serious damage in other localities, and it should reduce the menace in this area.

Forests are being steadily thinned over a large portion of North Carolina, and efforts at reforestation are not making the progress they should. That makes it all the more imperative that seedlings, and such standing timber as remains, be protected against hazards now and in the future.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

Spring cleaning of a lot of mailing lists is long overdue. In some instances, it is several years overdue.

Almost every business man is aware that others' mailing lists are in a sorry shape. He gets letters with wrong names and titles. Mail comes in with names of people who have quit or died. There is wasteful duplication. The writer, for instance, can tell exactly how many suits—five—he has bought from one firm. Every time he buys a suit, the tailor takes his name and address and adds it to his mailing list and each time the tailor sends out announcements, the writer now gets five, each separately addressed. This is no record, however. The best reports that another sends it twelve copies of each announcement.

There are other kinds of errors. A man named Plumber receives almost daily letters from companies offering tools, pipe and bathroom fixtures. This Plumber is a lawyer.

There are two reasons why mailing lists are not checked more often.

Size often becomes a fetish. Those in charge sometimes brag more about the length of the list than about the results.

The second reason is that it costs to check lists. But if a list is used frequently, wasted postage may soon be more than the cost of checking. The best approach is by testing. If a company has 6,000 names on its list, checking 600 at random will give an approximate percentage of nixes. The cost of the test can also indicate the cost of checking the entire list, and simple arithmetic will show whether it is cheaper to clean up the list or to keep on wasting postage and material.

Despite rises in postage charges, the cost of contents and handling usually far exceeds the postage. One mailing expert says that costs as little as 10 cents a unit are rare. They sometimes exceed $1. His estimate of the average is between 39 and 40 cents.

The biggest price of errors on a list may not be in material and postage, but in the fact that wrongly addressed mail duds mail as a tool. When a recipient is bothered by inappropriate mail, annoyed by misspellings and wrong titles, and insulted by the use of salutations intended for the other sex, he is inclined to ignore all but personal mail. Thus the errors of one mailer may mitigate against the effectiveness of another who keeps his lists clean.

N.P.A. KILLS ITS MAILING LIST
The National Production Authority has discontinued its mailings of orders and regulations to companies and individuals affected. The press, trade associations and other business organiza-

ENTIRE BUILDING FOR Hi-FI EQUIPMENT
A entire five-story building is being remodeled in New York exclusively for the sale of high-fidelity and audio equipment. Two floors will consist of sound-proof rooms for demonstration and display of high-fidelity amplifiers, loudspeakers, record changers and other acoustical equipment. It will cater to the growing number of hi-fi fans and to the radio, television and film industries. The company, Arrow Electronics, Inc., 82 Courtland St., says it will be the first store anywhere built exclusively for such materials.

NEW PRODUCTS
ANTENNA: A gaily colored ceramic television antenna, shaped like a sailboat, has been developed by Trivac Products Co., 1535 N. Ashland Ave., Chicago 22. Designed for indoor use, the mooring peg is actually the tuning condenser, and the boat's boom is movable, said to allow orientation of unit without need of moving the complete antenna.

GLOVES: Because work gloves with a protective coating of Vinylite resins are being made to fit either hand by means of free swinging thumbs, they are said to outlive four or more pairs of conventional gloves. Priced lower than rubber or leather work gloves, and said not to crack or peel, they have a fleecy lining, and are available in wrist or coated wrists in short or long gauntlet style.

SOLES: More air is being added to Neolite shoe soles by Good-year Tire & Rubber Co., Akron, O., to make them lighter in weight. This, it is claimed, is making walking easier and springier.

WASHINGTON LETTER
By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—Rachel Anderson, in smartly tailored tweeds, looks like the carefree young woman you might find on a golf course. Instead she has spent the past six years as a nurse in a southeast African leper colony.

A native of South Attleboro, Mass., Miss Anderson is back in the United States on furlough to prepare for her next assignment, at the Kanye General Hospital, set up about 12 years ago by the Seventh Day Adventists in Bechuanaland, South Africa. She has already spent some months studying tropical and preventive medicine at the Loma Linda, Calif., College of Medical Evangelists and hopes to get in some courses on midwifery at the Adventists' Washington Sanitarium Hospital.

At Malamulo Mission in Nyasaland, about 1,000 miles from her new post, she has been in charge of teaching nurses as well as helping with the care of the 300 leper patients and 100 outpatients who come in twice a week for treatment.

A cheerful, completely uncomplaining young woman with nice hazel eyes and a full, curly hair, Miss Anderson spoke with enthusiasm of her work with the lepers. "They are really quite happy, quite cooperative and content while in the colony," she told me. "They are interested in gardening, fashion baskets and mats and do a lot of brickmaking, by which they earn pin money to buy clothes and other things they need."

Recent use of sulpha drugs, she said, has in some cases produced remarkable recoveries. She said a chap named "Billie Billie" had almost lost his vocal chords through the dread disease but when treated with sulpha regained his voice after six months.

She was amused at the name "Billie Billie" but told me the colony's gardener had one more entertaining. "He was called Piano Pedals," she said.

Nurses and midwives are trained at the mission school so they can go out and take care of their own people. Nurses, most of them men, must have finished the eighth grade. Midwives are required to finish only the sixth grade, but must give government examinations. "They at least know when to call for help when emergencies arise," said Miss Anderson.

In their group of weeks in the United States, Vittorio has been introduced to baseball, hot dogs, the wild West, his foster mother's smug and amazed family—and ice cream sodas.

Vittorio, who had been holding up the interviewer with a toy six-shooter, lowered his gun. "Sodas," he said, making a dreadful face. "They are better in Italy. Imagine putting mineral water together with ice cream! Put up your hands again."

"He needs a hair cut," said Lady Berkeley.

Today, Vittorio, an undersized little Sicilian, is a movie star, the adopted son of a British nobleman and a Hollywood star, on the strength of a single film—as one of the best child actors since Jackie Coogan in "The Kid."

Americans, so far, haven't had much chance to see Vittorio in action, for the Italian-made film—Paul Gallico's "Never Take No For An Answer"—is just beginning to make the rounds of the smaller independent film houses in the larger cities. But the lad's acting created a sensation on the Continent and in London.

Vittorio's father was killed in World War II. After his mother's death, the dark-eyed, tousle-haired little boy was placed in a government orphanage. After that, he was adopted by the Countess of Berkeley, who has a home in Assisi.

Lady Berkeley, widow of the earl who died in 1942, is a handsome, white-haired woman in middle life who was born Mollie Lowell of Boston. Her American children by a previous marriage have grown up and have children of their own. After the war she adopted three little under-privileged war waifs. Vittorio's unexpected emergence as a theatrical star has considerably changed her life, too.

She talked about it during a recent visit to New York with Vittorio. Time, affection, good food and a happy home have almost entirely healed the wounds of the tragedies in the boy's earlier days, but the scars still show a little in the dependence of Vittorio on his foster mother.

"He is absolutely mad about cowboys and Indians," she said. "He likes baseball, but his heart belongs to Indians."

With his two adopted brothers, life was quiet and pleasant in Assisi when a party of film people called on the countess for help in making arrangements for filming the interior of famed St. Francis' Church. They told her of trouble casting a boy to play the lead role. When Vittorio wandered into the room, they decided in two minutes they had found the boy.

Two Collisions Here Last Night

Two collisions involving four automobiles within a block of each other last night, shortly after supper, resulted in $1,180 property damage and injury to one person.

Police reports state that cars driven by Robert W. Thompson, 1904 Chestnut street, and Lt. John C. Harrell of Camp Lejeune, collided at Dixon and Boyd avenues, shaken up but not injured. Both drivers claimed the green light, police stated. Damage to Thompson's car, $300; Harrell's, $60. No arrest.

Police arrested Joe Herman Beaman of near Snow Hill last night about 8:45 on the charge of failure to stop at a stop sign. The investigating officer said Beaman's car collided with a car driven by Mrs. Mary Skinner Wood of near Ayden. Damage to Beaman's car was estimated to be $300; the Wood car, $750.

Mrs. Wood was slightly injured. She went to Pitt County Memorial Hospital and left.

Thieves Flee As Prayers Voiced

NEW YORK (UP)—A Negro maid named Love Peace sent two would-be jewel robbers fleeing yesterday by advising them to "change your way of living."

The thieves entered a Brooklyn apartment and, pointing a pistol at the maid's temple, asked: "Where's the jewelry?" She began praying for their souls and the intruders left hurriedly, without the gems.

The maid told newsmen she was a follower of Father Divine.

'Loved' His Wife Killed In Brawl

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (UP)—A night club owner was free today of a charge of murdering the wife "I loved" who, he testified, often hit him in the face with a beer bottle and threw lemon juice in his eyes.

Ernest William Fisher said they engaged in a gunfight after his wife walked into the kitchen and told him, "You'd better give your heart to God, because I'm going to kill you."

"I didn't want to kill her," he testified. "I loved her." She was shot eight times.

Bowen-Rowlett Engagement Announced

Miss Hilda Carolyn Rowlett of Greenville is the daughter of Mrs. Clinton Boyd Rowlett and the late Mr. Rowlett. Her engagement to Ensign William Augustus Bowen, U. S. N. Senior Recital Set Monday For College Soprano

Alison Hearne Moss of Greenville, soprano, will be presented in her senior recital by the department of music at East Carolina College Monday evening. She will sing in the Austin auditorium at 8 o'clock. George E. Perry of the college faculty will accompany the singer at the piano.

A student of Gladys Reichard of the department of music, Mrs. Moss has been identified with a number of musical activities on the campus. In the presentation of Kurt Weill's "Down in the Valley" by college music students in 1930, she sang the leading soprano role in the opera. She is now president of the College Choir.

Mrs. Moss's program for Monday evening is composed of a varied selection of compositions in English, Italian, and German. Among her songs are "Voi lo Sapete" from Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana," Tosti's "La Serenata," Wagner's "Der Engel," two Schumann songs, and a closing group of songs in English.

Music featured the weekly supper meeting of the Greenville Exchange Club at the Woman's Club building last night. President Bill Riggins presided.

John Launares had charge of the program. He presented Miss Katherine Stephenson, Miss Carolyn Eisele and Miss Myrtle Manning, music students at East Carolina College. They sang and played.

The Exchange Club is planning to put on a "napkin sale" to help to finance purchase testing equipment to be used in local schools for testing children with hearing defects.

Woman's Club To Hold Open House Sunday In Observing Anniversary

By MARTHA S. FORBES The Woman's Club of Greenville is celebrating its 35th birthday on Sunday with an open house to be held at the Woman's Club between the hours of 4:00-5:00 p.m.

The party will be in celebration of the first meeting, which took place on Friday, April 27, 1917, at which time 87 members were enrolled and officers elected for the first year.

One week prior to the first formal meeting, on April 20, a large number of ladies met in the high school auditorium for the purpose of organizing a Woman's Club in Greenville, according to a newspaper clipping of the times.

At this meeting Mrs. Clarence Johnson of Raleigh was present to address the group of women on the purpose and method of forming a Woman's Club.

A committee of three was appointed to draft a constitution and by-laws for the club, and another committee of five members was appointed to nominate officers.

At its first meeting on April 27, the following officers were elected: honorary president, Mrs. R. R. Cotten; president, Mrs. M. H. Quinerly; first vice president, Miss Daisy B. Waitt; second vice president, Mrs. Lina Baker; recording secretary, Mrs. P. T. Anthony; corresponding secretary, Mrs. F. M. Wooten; treasurer, Mrs. Lulu Fleming; and auditor, Mrs. C. T. Munford.

There were four organized departments to begin with the work of the club. They were social service and civics, with Mrs. H. E. Austin as chairman; home economics, with Mrs. R. L. Carr as chairman; educational and health, with Miss Miriam MacFayden as chairman; and fine arts, with Mrs. Harry Skinner as chairman.

With the exception of the January meeting, which was held in the jury room of the court house, all meetings during the first year were held at the high school. There were a number of resignations from the club and also a number of applications for new membership before the club really got settled as a new organization.

From the very beginning the club was interested in improving sanitary conditions and in other civic causes which were beneficial to the town. One of their first projects, which they carried to a successful conclusion, was the "closing of the stores of Greenville at six o'clock during the summer months, so that the clerks might have longer recreation hours," according to the book of minutes of the first year's meetings. When this proposal was made, a committee was appointed to visit every merchant in town to ask him to accede to this request.

Another one of the first accomplishments of the club was the opening of the playground at the Grade School on Tuesday and Friday afternoons during the summer for the convenience of the children. They also worked that first summer on clearing the vacant lots in town and planting them in flowers.

During that first summer the home economics department held a "canning" at the home of Mrs. H. L. Carr, at which time many articles were put up in jars to be sold during the fall and winter as a money raising project of the club.

Committees were appointed to visit the stores and markets of the city to check on their sanitary conditions. They appealed to the Board of Aldermen about this matter, and they promised to enforce more strictly the sanitary laws of the city and to clean up the conditions of the markets.

Early in its formative period the club voted to federate with the State Federation. Mrs. H. E. Austin and Mrs. P. T. Anthony were elected as delegates to the State Federation meeting that first year, with Miss Miriam MacFayden and Miss Betsy Greene as alternates.

At one of its first meetings, the club adopted the rose as the club flower, and red and white were selected as the club colors. Merchants of the town were solicited for advertisements to help defray the cost of the yearbooks, and the committee which was appointed to see them was composed of Mrs. H. S. Raggsdale, Mrs. Rice and Mrs. Key Brown.

Another one of the accomplished projects of the first year was the parent-teachers meeting which was held on September 21. This was undertaken by the educational and health department of the club, under the direction of Miss Miriam MacFayden. The purpose of this was to give parents a chance to know their children's teachers and also the school board and commissioners. The meeting was reported as a success in every way and was largely attended.

Then as now the club was active in civic projects, originating many of them and cooperating in every way with the other city agencies. Always an active and alert group of women, it has continued its march of progress in the city and community and 37 years and fifteen presidents later, they are planning an opportunity for the public to join with them in celebrating their years of service to the people of Greenville.

In addition to Mrs. Quinerly, who was the first president, serving two years, other women who served as heard of the organization during the year have been Miss Miriam MacFayden, Mrs. H. S. Raggsdale, Mrs. E. B. Ficklen, Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, Mrs. W. I. Wooten, Mrs. S. M. Crisp, Mrs. E. L. Henderson, Mrs. J. H. B. Moore (second term of office), Mrs. Dink James, Mrs. C. G. Hilton, Mrs. Robert Lee Humber, Mrs. Vance Perkins and Mrs. R. R. Willmann. Mrs. J. H. B. Moore is current president of the group.

The open house on Sunday is sponsored by the club as a whole, with all the past presidents who are still living and residents of the city assisting in receiving. The committee which is planning the affair is headed by Mrs. S. M. Crisp.

An experiment with East Carolina Coach Jack Boone Tuesday night, when his Pirates squared tangles with the Kingston Eagles of the Coastal Plain League.

Boone has stated several times this year that he is interested in scheduling night games for East Carolina, and it is expected that he will use this game as a test of his possibilities. The Bucs played Kingston on its home field Wednesday night in East Carolina's first after-dark game, losing by a 6-5 score.

Kingston is predicted to have one of the strongest teams in the ever-strong Coastal Plain this season. The Eagles were purchased by the same group that owns the Durham Bulls of the Class B Carolina League and will be loaded with diamond talent.

If the fans turn out for this game and all goes well with the Pirates, Bucs fans had better prepare themselves for more games. The first big change in the schedule — if any — will probably take place next year.

East Carolina is currently the hottest team in the Eastern Division of the North State Conference, leading the pack with a 7-1 mark after yesterday's rained-out contest at High Point. The Pirates meet their biggest challengers, Elon, in their Christian's in the afternoon. The Pirates' Jimmy Byrd early in the league season, but was stopped by the Kingston right-hander in a return engagement in Greenville.

The Bohunk Trophy — that old wooden bucket symbolizing the athletic rivalry between Atlantic Christian College and East Carolina — will be at stake in the Pirates' next home game, Monday afternoon. The Bulldogs have been met twice before this year, with decisive triumphs being recorded in East Carolina's favor.

When Jack Coombs leaves Duke University as baseball coach at the end of the current season, it will mark the first time that any other man besides him has been at the helm of Duke's diamond fortunes in over 24 years.

Coombs, a former major league pitcher of standing caliber, has led the Blue Devils to several championships in the Southern Conference, with the latest one coming in 1951. His current squad, which features the playing and batting powers of Dick Great and Bill Werber, Jr., is one of the strongest in the Southern, and stands a good chance of repeating its 1951 honors.

The 69-year old coach will leave Duke on August 31 because of a school rule which prevents him from serving after the academic year in which he reaches his 69th birthday. Coombs came to Duke in 1929, after eleven years of coaching at other colleges including Williams, Princeton, and Rice Institute.

His record as a first-line hurler with the Philadelphia Athletics is one of the best in modern baseball. A shutout mark of 13 in 1910 still stands as a record in major league play. Besides the shut-outs, Coombs hurled 12 games in which he allowed but one run while winning a total of 31 games during the season. Incidentally, he won the second, third, and fifth games of the World Series that year against the Chicago Cubs.

According to the Associated Press, the only things that will have to cope with Coombs' wizardry after August are "all the fish in Texas." Coombs has a home in Palestine, Texas.

Coach Rocky Farley's Greenville High School baseball team seem's to have a hard time in getting started this year. The Phantoms have played only three games before today losing all of them.

Rocky Mount has beaten the local boys twice with the latest one coming only Thursday afternoon — while Elizabeth City ruined the Phantoms' Northeastern Conference debut last Tuesday. In that second Rocky Mount contest, Greenville took a 6-0 lead in the first three innings of play and seemed to be on the victory trail for a change, but the Class AAA Blackbirds took command of the contest from there on out and had things just about their way.

Greenville is rather short on experienced pitchers and is having trouble with its play on the field. The only moundsmen with previous game experience are Doug Morgan and Billy Edwards. Morgan lost both of the games with Rocky Mount, while Edwards was charged with the Elizabeth City defeat.

The Phantoms will open their home conference schedule next Tuesday when they play host to Roanoke Rapids.

Robersonville has made a strong bid in the Coastal Conference within the last two weeks, and had risen in the standings to tie Ayden at the time this was written.

Both the Rams and Tornadoes have identical 4-1 records within the Class A loop. Other than them, South Edgecombe is the only member of the league that has a mathematical possibility to take the championship. The Pinebluffs lads are currently in third place with a 3-2 mark.

Ayden beat Robersonville to give the Rams their only defeat, while South Edgecombe blasted the Tornadoes last Tuesday.

Fielding Errors By Phants Help Bears Win Game

Greenville and Ormondville were slated to square off against each other at Guy Smith Stadium tonight in the first of ten games scheduled between the two teams in Bright Belt League play this year.

The Greenies will be out to take their first win of the year after dropping their first two to Farmville's Red Sox, while Ormondville, winner of league play in regular season activity, is seeking its third successive victory of the young season.

Porter To Start
Manager Bill Swel is expected to start George Lee Porter of Aurora on the mound for Greenville. Porter, a right-hander who throws the ball across the plate with a sidearm motion, is a former professional hurler with the Kingston Eagles. He started as a pitcher in the semi-pro Beaufort County League last summer, and is expected to add a tremendous amount of strength to the Greenville mound staff.

Porter has not played with the Greenville team before this year. Swel stated a few days ago that he was giving the former pro a period to get into condition for playing, and it is thought that his arm will be in good pitching condition tonight.

He will likely be opposed on the mound by another former Coastal Plain player—Vince Jones, member of both the Kingston and Greenville entries in the pro loop, is one of the leading members of the strong Ormondville team. He pitched the Ormondville team to its first win of the season last Saturday with a 4-2 triumph over Pinebluffs.

NEW BERN — Greenville dropped its second game in a row because of a late inning rally by its opposition here last night, losing to New Bern's Bears, 9-2, in a Northeastern Conference baseball game.

The Phantoms, coached by Boy Farley, came from behind a 1-0 deficit themselves in the second inning and third inning to take a 2-1 lead which they held until the bottom of the seventh, when the roof fell in as New Bern pushed five runners across the plate.

Errors were frequent in the loosely played contest, especially on the part of the losing Greenville team. The Phantoms committed a total of 11 fielding miscues during the contest, with four coming in the big seventh.

New Bern Wins
New Bern won the contest in that same big frame, with the errors being the chief contributors to their cause. The first three men reached base on errors, two of them coming on attempted bunts. Rightfielder Benninghoff trotted across the plate with the tying run as the fourth New Bern batter attempted a squeeze play that worked as Greenville's Bobby Nunn was unable to tag the third base runner. Two singles and an error on the centerfielder, plus a hit batsman, completed the scoring for the Bears.

The Bears came back in the eighth to add three more runs to really sew up the contest. Another pair of errors by Greenville, one hit, and a stolen base were the big factors.

Billy Edwards, a small right-hander, started on the mound for Greenville. Edwards allowed all of the nine hits made by New Bern before going out in the bottom of the last inning with two away. He fanned 10 men during his term of activity.

Greenville plays at home in its first Northeastern Conference contest in Greenville Tuesday afternoon against Roanoke Rapids.

Everybody is cheering for the giddy St. Louis Browns. How about three runs and a tiger for the chippy Chicago Cubs.

A year ago the windy town ran a fever over its White Sox. The go-go Sox were the rage. Paul Richards was the reigning genius. Now the Sox are struggling along in sixth place. Wrigley Field interest is perking up.

The Cubs have carried their fine pre-season play into the regular season. With a 6-2 record they're within clutching distance of the lead, trailing Brooklyn by only one game.

Frankie Baumholtz has been a spring sensation. In yesterday's 7-3 win over Cincinnati, he rapped a triple and two singles to boost his average to .455. He hit safely in all eight Cub games.

Hank Sauer's home run and two runs batted in boosted him into a second place tie in both departments with three homers and 12 RBIs. Bob Rammazzotti, hitless yesterday, had been so hot at bat that he chased Mikis over to shortstop when he returned to the lineup.

Bob Kelly silenced the Reds with five hits for his first win while handing Ewell Blackwell his second straight loss. Blackley blew a 2-0 lead and reliever Niles Jordan didn't do any better.

Gerry Staley of the St. Louis Cardinals needed help from reliefer Al Brazle and solid hitting by Wally Westlake, Stan Musial and Steve Bilko to whip Pittsburgh, 6-4. The 28-year-old curver had a shut-out until the seventh. When the Pirates jumped him for two more in the eighth, Brazle came in.

Harry Simpson, who floundered with a .299 average in his rookie year, was the big noise in Cleveland's 5-4 victory over the White Sox. The fleet outfield capped a three-hit day by doubling home two runs in the last of the ninth to tie the score after Chicago scored two in the top half. Simpson then came home on Luke Easter's fly with the winning run.

Jaycees To Field Strong Team For League Activity

(This is the first of a series of stories that will appear on the teams in the Greenville Little League. The league will start on May 1th.)

An almost entirely veteran team will take the field when the Jaycees play their first game in the Little League this year, according to a statement made by Jaycee Coach Ford McGowan this morning.

The Jaycees lost only three players from last year's squad, which finished the second of the schedules in a tie for first place, only to lose the championship to the Elks. Those boys—Hudson Miller, Johnny Ed Arnold, and R. L. Puryear—will be hard to replace, but Coach McGowan seems to think that he will have a better team as a whole this year than he coached last season.

Most of the team fell in the 10-year-old bracket last year, and with the experience gained in their first season, they should be one of the stronger teams in the league. The Jaycees lost their first three games that they played when the league first started, but then regained their stride and won 11 straight contests before finally losing again. Their winning streak was one of the longest chalked up by the teams, enabling the Jaycees to finish in third place during the first half of the schedule.

McGowan says that the new positions for the starting nine are still wide open. Any player who is good enough to make the team will be welcomed, he went on to say.

The team will have a strong infield, both defensively and offensively. Heading the list is shortstop John Wesley Hudson, who will also double up on the pitching chores. Another boy who is a good fielder and will take his turns on the mound is Richard Earl Nobles. Nobles is expected to handle the first base slot when he is not on the hill. Both boys played with the Jaycees last year.

Second base is held down by Arthur Andrews, a hustling youngster who played the position for the first time last year. Tommy Cannon, who played for only a short while during the first season of Little League in Greenville, will start at third base.

Johnny Johnson will handle the catching duties for the 1952 team. Johnson is a 'very capable' 12-year old, who has turned in several exhibitions of good baseball during the current practice sessions and last year.

The only full-time pitcher who was with the club last year is Walker Lee Allen, who won five

Finalist Search For Third Title In North-South

PINEHURST, N. C. (UP)—Frank Stranahan of Toledo, O., and Frank Strafaci of Flushing, N. Y., each sought his third North and South Amateur golf title as they met today in a 36-hole final for the 1952 championship.

The muscular Stranahan, who won the tournament in 1946 and 1949, reached the title round by beating Mal Galletta of St. Albans, N. Y., 3 and 2 on the 34th hole of yesterday's semifinal.

Strafaci, the 1938-39 tourney champion, scored his fourth straight 1-up victory when he edged H. H. Haverstick Jr., of Lancaster, Pa., in a match that went the full 36 holes.

Defying a heavy rain on the morning round and an intermittent drizzle in the afternoon, Stranahan shot brilliant golf as he overcame a one-hole disadvantage at the halfway point to beat Galletta. The handsome Ohioan bogeyed only one hole all day and was six under par when the match ended on the 34th.

Stranahan evened the match by dropping a 45-foot putt on the 20th hole. He gradually widened his lead to 3-up after 33 holes, despite the fact that Galletta sank two 30-foot putts and holed out a 40-foot chip shot, all of which won holes for him.

On the 472-yard, par five 34th hole, Stranahan dubbed a drive which carried only 100 yards and ended up behind a pond. Galletta's second shot caught a trap, however, and he over-hit the green in shooting out to take a five. Stranahan, meanwhile, reached the green in three and two-putted to halve the hole and clinch the match.

Strafaci, the New York Metropolitan Amateur champion, had a two-hole lead on the morning round, but was overtaken by Haverstick on the third hole of the afternoon 18. The 35-year-old Strafaci again opened a 2-up advantage, but once more Haverstick battled back to even the match on the 25th hole.

FERGUSON SUIT AGAINST FORD SETTLED!

On April 9, 1952, the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York entered a final judgment, with the consent of all parties, which ended four years of litigation between Harry Ferguson, Inc. and Ford Motor Company and others. It was ordered and adjudged that:

- The sum of $9,250,000 shall be paid to Harry Ferguson, Inc. as royalties on Patents Nos. 1,916,945; 2,118,180; 2,223,002 and 2,486,257.
- Ford Motor Company shall not manufacture, after December 31, 1952, such tractors, and Dearborn Motors Corporation shall not sell any such tractors manufactured after December 31, 1952, as have
 - a pump having a valve on its suction side, as for example in the present Ford 8N tractor, arranged to be automatically controlled in accordance with the draft of an implement, or
 - a pump for a hydraulically operated draft control system for implement control and a power take-off shaft both driven by the lay shaft of the transmission, as for example in the present Ford 8N tractor, or
 - a coupling mechanism on the upper portion of the center housing, of the form employed in Ford 8N tractors manufactured prior to November 22, 1949; and Ford Motor Company and Dearborn Motors Corporation must affix a notice on any long coupling pins, manufactured by them, to the effect that the pin is sold only for replacement on 8N tractors made by Ford prior to November 22, 1949. This notice will continue to be affixed until October 25, 1966.
- The Ford Motor Company and Dearborn Motors Corporation shall have a period of time, expiring not later than December 31, 1952 in which to make these changes.
- All other claims and counter claims are dismissed and withdrawn on the merits. A copy of the consent judgment is available to anyone interested in reading it.

Rector Will Assume Duties At St. Paul's

Dr. Wallace I. Wolverton, U.S. Air Force (retired), will assume duties here tomorrow as Rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church. He has received Orders of Retirement from the Air Force which will be effective April 30. These orders complete 16 years of active, regular and commissioned service with the Army and Air Force. In July of 1950 he was on duty with the Fifth Air Force in Japan and Korea. While in Korea he was awarded the Legion of Merit for activities in the combat zone. In the early winter of 1950 he undertook a program of rescue and rehabilitation of a large number of war orphans in Korea. The program eventuated in the establishment of the nation-

Greenville, Selma Win Honors In Debate Event

The Greenville and the Selma high schools emerged as winners in the northeastern district contest of the State High School Debate Union held Thursday at East Carolina College. As a result of the debates here, the affirmative team of Greenville and the negative team Selma will compete this spring in state finals at Chapel Hill. Members of the two winning teams are Ginger Worthington and Betty Small of Greenville and Shirley Crabtree and Shirley Brown of Selma. Seventeen teams were present on the campus for the contest. Three rounds of debates were held on the query: Resolved, That All American Citizens Should Be Subject to Conscription for Essential Service in Time of War. Schools represented at East Carolina by debate teams Thursday were Bath, Chocoma, Farm Life of Vanceboro, Greenville, Morehead City, Rocky Mount, Selma, Scotland Neck, Chocowinity, Elizabeth City, Perquimans, and South Edgecombe. Members of the East Carolina faculty were judges in all debates of the three rounds. Members of the Jarvis Forensic Club, student debating society at East Carolina, acted as chairmen and time keepers for meetings held during the afternoon and the evening.

Entries From Grimesland And Bethel Garner Honors

High schools at Bethel and Grimesland received awards Thursday evening, April 14, as winners in a contest in typing conducted at East Carolina College for students in Pitt County schools. Sponsors of the event were the business education department and the college chapter of the Pi Omega Pi business fraternity. Sixty-one students representing ten schools competed. Among beginning typists, Ernell Wilson of Bethel received a medal for making the highest score among 35 contestants. The Bethel High School was awarded a gold loving cup for the highest average score made by all beginning typists from the school who entered the contest. Similar honors for advanced typists were won by Janice Cayton of Grimesland, highest scorer, and by the Grimesland High School for the highest average score in this event. Certificates of merit were offered in both the beginning and the advanced groups to the boy and the girl in each school who made the highest score. Those receiving certificates in the beginning group are Gene Harris and Viola Brown, Belvoir; Bobby Rollins, Bethel; Margaret Evans, Chocoma; Bert Warren and Grace Miller, Farmville; Phyllis Jackson, Griffon; O. J. Smith and Edna Carrow, Grimesland; Jean Knox, Pactious; Glenn Cherry, Stokes; and Wayne McGlohon and Margie Stocks, Winterville. Winners of certificates in the advanced groups are Doris Lee Salmon, Avden; Mary Lou Vainright, Belvoir; Audrey Griffin, Bethel; Gerald Davis and Doris Wilkerson, Farmville; Ruth Hoffman Griffon; Edna Bland, Stokes; and Donald Branch and Peggy Ann Dail, Winterville.

U. S. Radar Net To Involve Planes

WASHINGTON (UP)—America's air raid warning network is being extended by the use of radar-bearing "picket" planes, congressional sources disclosed today. The plan involves use of patrol planes carrying special radar equipment on flights from advanced U. S. bases—presumably including airfields in Alaska and Greenland. The purpose is to extend the range of the nation's radar umbrella far beyond the continental boundaries. The effectiveness of ground-based radar is generally limited because its waves move in a straight line and are blocked at the horizon by the curvature of the earth. The Navy used small "picket" radar ships toward the end of World War II to achieve similar extension of its air raid warning system. Ships ranging far north of the Okinawa beachhead gave the first warning of "kamikaze" raids from the Japanese mainland. Lt. Gen. Ennis C. Whitehead, until last summer head of the Air Defense Command, apparently alluded to the picket planes in testimony before the Senate preparedness subcommittee yesterday.

It was brought out that to completely install an adequate and proper drainage system for the property already in the city limits would require an outlay of between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000. The drainage problem is prevalent throughout the entire city. Superintendent of Streets C. K. Beatty reported.

No Definite Policy

Prior to the meeting this morning, Greenville had no definite policy for expansion. If adopted when worked out, the tentative policy discussed today will provide for more intelligent expansion in the future. Mayor Lester D. Page said the pressing problem at present is whether the city will develop the property after it is taken into the city limits, or whether the developer must take progressive steps in that direction before he is allowed to come in. The board agreed that the developer would have to meet certain requirements set up by the city before being incorporated. Opinions voiced this morning indicated that some policy will soon be approved with reservations for amendment. City Engineer Tom Rivins, City Planning Board Chairman Frank Little and Superintendent of Utilities Martin Swartz were designated by the mayor to work out specific plans and submit them to the board for further action.

NEW YORK (AP)—A $300,000 libel suit was filed in Federal Court yesterday against the authors, publishers and printers of the best-seller, "U. S. (Continued From Page Four) sitional amendment was adopted in 1944 that the Commissioner of Agriculture became a member of the Council of State as a full-fledged constitutional officer. BOARD — The department is under control of a board whose members are appointed by the Governor. Statutes relating to number of board members and their appointment have been changed many times, without seriously affecting their duties. The board has authority to enact ordinances with force and effect of law respecting activities of farmers and business firms dealing with farm produce and supplies. A meeting of the board has been called for May 1.

Thursday of next week—to consider numerous matters. One of the items may be plans for some kind of recognition of the department's 75th birthday. CURRENT Changes are more attention will be given to current and future matter than to past history. Operation of the test farms owned by the department and managed co-operatively with State College and Federal agencies will come in for consideration. So will several problems incident to tobacco curing, analyses of foods, feeds, seeds, fertilizers, soils and petroleum products—all of which come within purview of Board of Agriculture control.
