Policies For Extension Of Utilities Service Reviewed

Handling Of Requirements For Service Outside City Limits Discussed; Swartz Outlines Recommendations; Board Appears Likely To Adopt General Program

New policies to govern the extension of water and sewer service to areas outside Greenville's corporate limits were discussed by the local Utilities Commission last night.

The proposed policies were discussed at length at a special session attended by three members of the commission, but definite action on the new policies was postponed until the next regular meeting of the commission.

If the new policies become effective, the developers or property owners of sections outside the city limits requesting sewer service would become the property of the materials and installation of sewer lines, the work would have to be done under the supervision of the city utilities, and the sewer lines would become the property of the utilities when they are connected to existing lines of the city.

For water service outside the city limits, the property owners or developers would have to pay 75 per cent of the cost of the materials and installation of the water lines, and these lines likewise would become the property of the city when service is begun.

Spokesman for the utilities said the fact that water lines are revenue producing was taken into consideration in requiring the developers or property owners to bear only 75 per cent of the cost of new water lines outside the city limits. Since sewer line produce no revenue for the utilities, the spokesman said, the developers or property owners in sections outside the corporate limits will be required to bear the full cost for sewer facilities.

The matter of a definite policy covering water and sewer extensions outside the city limits has been under consideration by the Utilities Commission for some time, and at a recent meeting Superintendent Martin Swartz was instructed to make a study of policies followed by other cities and towns, and to make recommendations to the board.

In presenting his recommendations last night, Swartz told the board "after making our study of other towns, and after conferring with the League of Municipalities, this is a standard policy as we have found it."

Members of the commission said some definite policies covering water and sewer extensions outside the corporate limits of the city have become necessary because "the demands being made on the city."

Although the policies are not yet in their final form, commissioners present at the meeting last night seemed to favor only minor changes in wording before the policies become effective. The policies as recommended stated that no water or sewer line extensions would be made except to areas immediately adjacent to existing lines of the city.

Major points in the policy governing sewer extensions outside the city limits stated:

1. "The interested party requesting sewer main extension must make a contribution equal to the net cost of construction, which includes: taps.

2. "Before any streets are paved the interested party must make a contribution equal to the net cost of the construction of all mains and laterals for each lot, including manholes, before paving is laid, whether connected or not to the city sewer system.

3. "Before extending any service into areas for future development, or now being developed, we must have a plan map giving permanent location of streets, including permanent grade, curb or valley gutter line and property line covering the entire area."

Pitt Commissioners Vote Keep 'Incentive Pay' For Registrars

Yesterday, for the second consecutive year, the Pitt County Board of Commissioners voted to pay the county registrars a 10-cent per name fee for each person they register outside official registration hours.

County Democratic Committee Chairman John G. Clark and Elections Board Chairman J. H. Harrell appeared before the board and requested that such a plan be adopted "to stimulate more interest in voting."

Van Fleet Doubts Reds Want Truce

But General Opines His Troops Can Out-Fight Or Out-Sit The Enemy; Communist Newsmen Says Talks At Deadlock Stage

PANMUNJOM, Korea, (UP)—Gen. James A. Van Fleet said today that "apparently the Reds don't want an armistice." A Communist newsmen said the truce talks "appear to be entering the most crucial deadlock since they began."

Van Fleet, commander of the 8th Army, said his soldiers "can either outfight them or outsit them."

The gloomy statements from both sides were made as senior delegates at Panmunjom adjourned after a 15-minute meeting with no indication of progress toward solution of the three major deadlocks holding up an armistice.

They agreed to meet again tomorrow for their seventh plenary session.

Van Fleet told a French agency correspondent:

"The 8th Army is ready for anything. Apparently the Reds don't want an armistice and haven't wanted an armistice."

"The point of view of the Communists is more political than military. I have been disappointed about their delaying of the armistice talks in spite of their announcement of last year which was accepted in good faith to achieve peace."

He said the Communists would be to blame if the talks fail.

His statement was made in Seoul after a brief front-line inspection of United Nations troops.

Van Fleet reiterated his confidence in the U. N. truce negotiators and praised their "patience and diplomacy."

The official Chinese Communist radio at Peking meanwhile broadcast a dispatch from Alan Winnington, London Daily Worker correspondent covering the truce talks, in which he said the talks appeared to be approaching their most serious crisis.

Winnington said the recent brief sessions "seem to indicate" that "the Americans" refuse to compromise on the prisoner issue. He apparently intended to point up the distinction between the Americans and the United Nations as a whole.

An official United Nations spokesman said it was "obvious" no agreement had been reached today. But he said the chief delegates had held their first "extemporaneous" discussion since the Communists turned down a U. N. "package proposal."

Brig. Gen. William Nuckols, the spokesman, said the impromptu exchange was "brief." It followed the reading by North Korean General Nam Il of what appeared to be a prepared statement.

"There has been no variation from the cool impersonal nature of the meetings, which has been characteristic throughout," Nuckols said.

The negotiators are stalemated on questions of prisoner exchange, a U. N. proposal banning airfield construction, and Red nomination of Russia as a "neutral" truce inspector.

Pactolus Group Offers Petition To Retain School

Present Seven Arguments For Operating School Before County Board

By MURIEL SHOTWELL Reflector Staff Writer

Pactolus citizens came to the aid of their slowly dying school yesterday by submitting a petition to the County Board of Education to be re-submitted to the State Board of Education.

The State Board announced last Friday that the Pactolus High School, along with the Arthur School, would be consolidated next year with other schools due to their low daily attendance average which falls below 60. In 1949 the State Board recommended that the Pactolus School be consolidated but the school was given a three-year extension which terminates this year.

Five members of the Pactolus School District, Committee, N. C. Simmons, M. D. Baker, Wesley Johnston, and Noel Lee, Jr., appeared before the county board yesterday morning before the school was given a three-year extension which terminates this year.

The petition submitted by the five men stated seven specific reasons why the school should continue operation. The spokesmen asked that the county board contact the state and for the allotment of three high school teachers.

The county board agreed to submit the petition to the state board for consideration.

The petition stated that the majority of those served by the school wish the school to continue operation, the new building is an asset to the community, the school is badly needed because the attendance next year will total approximately 79 students, and other reasons.

Unless the State Board of Education makes reversals on the matter, Pactolus high school students will be sent to Stokes with the exception of a number of students who live at Clark's Neck. Those in the Clark's Neck area will be sent to Grimesland.

The board yesterday let the audit contract to John C. Proctor of Greenville, low bidder. The board's record and accounts, the county wide school fund, and the special district funds will be audited.

In place of Luther Garris, who turned down the appointment of school district committeeman for the Belvoir-Falkland district, the board appointed Roy Jones to serve on the committee.

Fuel Restriction Cuts Piedmont Airline Flights

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Piedmont Airlines today reported that the government order curtailing gasoline consumption has caused it to discontinue two daily flights from Charlotte.

Piedmont cancelled the flight leaving here at 11:45 a. m. for Asheville and Louisville, Ky., and the flight leaving here at 12:30 p. m. for Fayetteville and Wilmington. Three daily round-trip operations are being continued on these routes.

Other commercial airlines serving Charlotte reported regular schedules are being maintained at least temporarily.

County School Budget

The auditor disclosed that the board will begin studying the budgets this week and will probably approve them with certain changes at the next monthly meeting. The only budget submitted yesterday was the Pitt County Maintenance School Fund. The tentative budget for county schools calls for an appropriation of $240,000 for next year—an increase of more than $13,000 over last year's budget. That amount is approximately 50 percent of the total annual tax revenue.

Expenditures from tax levies in five county school districts were approved. They are in Greenville, Chatham, Crisp, Belvoir-Falkland and Winterville. With the exception of Winterville, these requests were for tax levies for next year. The Winterville request covered an expense of $1,000 for installing a sewer line this year.

The board adjourned early yesterday afternoon.

George Pugh Unseats J. E. Collins In Aldermanic Race

Steel Production Is Nearing Normal In Waiting Period

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Senate Judiciary Committee today questioned Federal Judge James P. McGranery, attorney general-designate, on his views about the nation's loyalty program.

McGranery said he was opposed to the idea of an attorney general's list of subversive organizations when it was first broached several years ago.

But, he said, as attorney general he would continue the practice of compiling such a list now.

Sen. Homer Ferguson (R-Mich) brought up the matter, noting that McGranery was in the Justice Department about the time the first list was compiled.

"Basically, I did not approve of the listing," McGranery said. "I thought it would be pretty high-handed to leave it up to one man."

At the time, he explained, he felt such a list should be drawn up at the direction of Congress, making the procedure a "policy of the government—not just one man."

'Some Types' Of Munitions Short

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Army said today that "ammunition is plentiful" in Korea, although hand grenades and some types of cartridges are being rationed to front-line troops.

Officials made public a special communique from Far East Command headquarters in Tokyo on the ammunition situation. They said the communique was issued to answer press reports of an ammunition shortage, and that it arrived at the Pentagon, "by coincidence," just after Gen. J. Lawton Collins testified before a Senate subcommittee yesterday.

Collins, Army chief of staff, said that certain types of ammunition "have been rationed in Korea because production still does not equal normal battle expenditures and World War II stocks either have been exhausted or approached exhaustion."

The communique did not contradict Collins' testimony, but it gave a somewhat different explanation for the ammunition rationing, and emphasized the overall adequacy of supplies. It said:

"Ammunition is rationed, but allocations are considered adequate in the present tactical situation. It is rationed to save money and maintain an ammunition reserve. That is a normal military precaution."

With direct reference to some reports published in this country, the communique said:

"It is not true that the amount of artillery ammunition in the hands of front line units permit the use of artillery only in emergencies. The 8th Army fires much more ammunition daily than the Communists do."

The communique mentioned specifically 45-caliber pistol ammunition and hand grenades, and said there was no shortage of either except for "occasional temporary shortages of hand grenades."

Newcomer In City Politics Wins By Narrow Margin Of 566 To 543; Incumbent Robert Elks Edges Johnson By 86 Votes; Total Vote Of 1,159 Is Recorded

By JESS POINDEXTER Reflector Staff Writer

With a total of 1,159 votes cast, the 1952 Greenville municipal elections held with such vigorous activity yesterday are history this morning.

When the debris of grimy campaign cards and tally sheets was cleared away at polling places last night, political neophyte George Pugh had unseated incumbent fourth ward Alderman J. E. Collins by the narrow margin of 23 votes. The final tabulation showed 566 votes for Pugh, 543 votes for Collins.

Close Race

It was a battle right down to the wire for the third ward seat, with incumbent Robert Elks defeating J. E. Johnson by a vote of 575 to 489—a difference of 86 votes. The other two candidates for the board of aldermen both polled more than 800 votes each, as neither had any opposition.

Leading the entire ticket, as far as votes were concerned, was Jimmie Wells, another newcomer to city politics who ran unopposed for the fifth ward seat. Wells polled 881 votes, 42 more votes than the next highest candidate—C. B. Mayo.

No Contest

Running without a contest from the second ward, C. B. Mayo collected a total of 839 ballots marked in his favor. At one time during the campaign, Mayo was opposed by A. B. Stallworth, but Stallworth withdrew several days ago to devote all his time to his business.

In keeping with the revisions made in Greenville's election laws last year, each voter in the city was authorized to vote for one candidate from each ward, regardless of the voter's ward residence. The two newly elected candidates, Wells and Pugh, will assume their seats on the board of aldermen the first of the next fiscal year, which begins July 1.

Appreciates Trust

Jubilant over his election last night, Pugh said, "I appreciate more than I can express the confidence and trust Greenville's citizens have placed in me. I will exert every possible effort to maintain the highest type of municipal government during my term as a alderman."

Pugh also expressed his thanks to the many friends who "have worked so hard and so successfully on my behalf."

Defeated candidate Collins congratulated Pugh on his election and voters for their support in the past. I enjoyed serving as alderman for the past four years and have tried to do my best."

Balloting By Wards

Results of yesterday's balloting for each candidate in each ward are:

Second ward candidate C. B. Mayo; first ward, 167; second ward, 233; third ward, 134; fourth ward, 128; and fifth ward 171, for a total of 839.

Third ward candidates Robert Elks and J. E. Johnson; first ward, Elks 107, Johnson 99; second ward, Elks 123, Johnson 137; third ward, Elks 106, Johnson 81; fourth ward, Elks 115, Johnson 83; and fifth ward, Elks 124, Johnson 88. Totals are Elks 575, Johnson 489.

Fourth ward candidates George Pugh and J. E. Collins; first ward, Pugh 120, Collins 94; second ward, Pugh 130, Collins 140; third ward, Pugh 101, Collins 94; fourth ward, Pugh 132, Collins 97; and fifth ward, Pugh 83, Collins 128. Final vote, Pugh 566, Collins 543.

Fifth ward candidate Jimmy Wells; first ward, 176; second ward, 233; third ward, 134; fourth ward, 128; and fifth ward 171, for a total of 839.

Crippled Carrier Wasp Reaches Port; Sailors Tell Of Tragedy

NEW YORK (UP)—The crippled aircraft carrier Wasp steamed into port today with 61 shaken survivors who told tales of horror, courage and rescue in the mid-Atlantic collision which sent the USS Hobson to the bottom with 176 men.

Most of the rescued crewmen were asleep the night of April 26 and did not see the Wasp knife into their smaller escorting warship. The officers and men who saw the crash from the Hobson's flying bridge hinted they were requested to withhold their eyewitness accounts until they testify before a naval board of inquiry.

But the men who were plucked from the oil-covered waters that closed forever over their trapped shipmates had plenty to tell of the heroism, bravery and seamanship of Wasp crewmen who saved them from the worst peacetime disaster in modern naval history.

Lt. William A. Hoefer Jr., of Thomaston, Ala., the surviving senior officer aboard the Hobson, said he was standing on the bridge with the ship's commander and several junior officers when the Hobson rolled "almost 90 degrees" under the impact of the Wasp's bow.

"I thought I was standing on the deck," he said, "until I turned a flashlight down at my feet and discovered I was standing on the windshield."

"The sea swept up on us in a moment and I found myself washed out alone. I tried to find the captain, but neither I nor anyone else ever saw him again."

Hoefer said "in loyalty to the Navy" he will give them first his story of what happened in detail.

The Wasp limped into port, anchored in Gravesend Bay, completing a 1,500-mile journey from the scene of the crash, 700 miles off the Azores.

The battle-torn carrier had a 75-foot saw-toothed rip in its bow which on several occasions forced the ship to travel stern first to keep heavy seas from sweeping in.

But the Wasp went into its emergency berth this morning bow first, flags flying, and its Marine band playing a rousing version of "Anchors Aweigh."

Seamen and marines snapped to salute as the colors rallied up the lines of the valiant warship.

Capt. Burnham G. McCaffree, with tears flooding his eyes, spoke words of sympathy to his crew and the Hobson men. He said he was unable to offer a full and detailed story on why the Hobson and the Wasp collided because of "my limited knowledge of the events leading to the tragedy."

Rescued Hobson crewmen gave their individual experiences in the rescue.

Arthur M. Schmidt Jr. New York, said he was asleep in his bunk. He landed in oil and water and a locker fell across his back so that he could not rise. The ship sank and a huge air bubble brought him to the surface.

He said there were normally 75 men in his sleeping compartment and only one other man got out. The rest were trapped in the forward compartment of the ship.

James B. Price Coaldale, Pa., also was asleep. The water was up to his waist in his after compartment by the time his feet hit the deck. He struggled through an escape hatch and said "I reached for a life jacket from the faint of the Hobson. It floated into my hands just as she went down."

Miss Collins Honor Guest At Shower

Miss Aelf Collins, bride-elect of spring, was honored on last Thursday night when Miss Peggy Cox entertained for her.

Various arrangements of mixed flowers were used to decorate the rooms of the home. The table in the dining room was laid with a white crocheted cloth which was placed over silver foil. The corners were caught up with silver wedding bells. In the center was a large arrangement of white anemones in a silver bowl, flanked on either side by silver candle holders with white tapers. A miniature wedding scene was used around the table.

During the evening the guests enjoyed many games. One of the most amusing was the writing in the bride's book of things to remember. Later in the evening the hostess brought in a large basket for Miss Collins, which contained shower presents from the guests. Miss Collins was given china in her selected pattern by the hostess, and Miss Ruth Page and Miss Janet Waters, whose engagements have recently been announced, were also remembered with special gifts of china in their patterns. All of the brides-elect were given corsages.

A tempting dessert course was served at the conclusion of the games hour.

Discussion Group Compares Propaganda

Final Meeting For Year Held Thursday

For the final meeting of the season, the International Relations Discussion Group of the Woman's Club and the AAUW met at 701 East Fifth Street last Thursday evening.

Because of its current prevalence and omnipresence, the topic presented for discussion was "The Nature and the Pressure of Propaganda." Dr. Walter S. Krausnick opened the discussion with an analytical approach to the subject. He stated that very early in life people are subjected to the influence of propaganda. The radio, the press, the churches, the schools, and business enterprises—all employ methods for the propagation of doctrines, principles, and ideas. It was pointed out that even the great American "Bill Board" is a form of propaganda.

Dr. Krausnick defined propaganda in its broadest term as anything that is related to the process of influencing people. A method that is employed to get across a point of view whether it be clever deceit or the truth, may influence the thinking and the actions of others. It was pointed out that an examination of existing evidence will indicate that there is poorly executed propaganda as well as adroit propaganda.

According to the moderator, the most successfully manipulated techniques are based on the human interest angle which play up to the home, the family, taxation and the like. The message is generally related to some important need or fear, also slogans and "catch phrases" are commonly included. Frequently the statement of "an expert" is quoted for added psychological effect, or a value-laden word, such as "the American Way of Life" is included for its emotional appeal.

With the realization that so much propaganda does exert pressure, the problem is that of recognizing and evaluating these appeals. The apathetic public should be prompted to be more discerning. The citizen might well be educated to seek the truth and to search for solid facts rather than to accept "in toto" all that he hears and sees. An interesting comparison of the interpretation and the definitions of propaganda evolved during the discussion by the members of the group. This informative meeting concluded the activities until the next meeting scheduled for September.

Other nominations can be made, up to 15 days before the meeting, by petition signed by at least 15 members of the organization. During the meeting nominations from the floor can be made.

The nominees from each district receiving the highest number of votes at the annual meeting will be elected to the Board of Directors of the Pitt and Greene Electric Membership Corp. for the coming year.

Nominations made at the committee meeting May 3 were: District One—J. C. Parker, Route 1, Fountain and C. B. Phillips, Route

Chief Langston To Address Government Class At College

Greenville Police Chief Guy C. Langston will address Dr. Kathleen Stokes' student government class at East Carolina College tonight.

The meeting will be held in Austin Auditorium at 8:30. The speaker will discuss "Policies and Problems of Modern Police." He will spend part of the time allotted to answering questions propounded by students or the teacher.

Langston has had considerable experience in law enforcement in North Carolina. He held an important position with the Kinston police department. He was a member of the State Highway Patrol and later a staff member of the North Carolina State Highway Department's Division of Safety before coming to Greenville as chief of the police department. He was a major in World War II and saw service in the European theater of operations.

Fighter-Bombers Concentrate On Red Rail Lines

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—Wave after wave of Allied fighter bombers swept over North Korea today in a daylong effort to paralyze rail traffic around Suncheon, a vital junction in northwestern Korea above Pyongyang.

Jets and propeller-driven planes of four fighter bomber wings roared into the Suncheon Valley, cratering the tracks in 118 places in a five mile stretch.

Other planes splashed napalm and dropped bombs elsewhere in North Korea, destroying supply buildings, supply and troop shelters and gun emplacements.

Sabre jets searching for Communist MIGs found only two. They fired at the enemy planes, but missed.

On the ground, activity was "scarce and light." Twenty-seven enemy soldiers were killed in a 12-minute fight west of Chorwon and artillery claimed 46 others.

Predicts Video To Soon Cover All Parts Of U. S.

NEW YORK, (UP)—All of the United States will be in a television range in four more years and international television will be realized in five years, RCA Chairman David Sarnoff predicted today.

Sarnoff made the predictions in a report to Radio Corp. of America stockholders at their 33rd annual meeting here today. He reported on many new electronic developments, including a "walkie-lookie," a war-time portable radio development. Sarnoff said early models of this invention may be used for the first time in television broadcasts of the political conventions this summer. The instrument is described as no larger than an amateur movie camera and weighs 46 pounds.

The walkie-lookie needs no wire to the mobile unit. The operator carries a TV sending apparatus and aerial on his back and holds a camera which can be taken to spots inaccessible to a regular TV camera.

Mental Patients Escape Prison

LIMA, O. (UP)—Two young mental patients, armed with knives and icepicks, kidnaped a guard at the Lima State Hospital for the criminal insane here last night and escaped in a stolen car.

The patients, one of whom was described as "dangerous," kidnaped a second man a short time later as they switched cars and sped on to Cleveland.

Neither of the kidnaped men was injured seriously although the prisoners, who were sent here for robbery from Cincinnati, threatened to kill their victims.

The hospital identified the fugitives as Floyd Keith, 23, and Neville Slusser, 24. Keith was called the leader and a "dangerous man."

Officials said that the patients kidnaped Wilbur Hardin, Jr., a guard, and after binding him, they used him as a hostage to get out of the main gate.

Hardin said that after the pair had threatened to kill another guard if he didn't open the gate, they forced Hardin to drive his car toward Cleveland until it broke down. There the men let Hardin go but overpowered Ralph Warnecke, 24, whom they forced to drive the car at the point of a knife.

Police said the escapers tossed him out of the car near Cleveland. He was treated for minor bruises.

Harin said that Keith and Slusser flashed a knife and icepick and tied him until Ira McBride, 62, the night guard, came on duty. Then they forced McBride to go with them to the main gate where he was forced to let them out.

Named To Post With N. C. Firm

A former resident of Greenville, Charles N. Briley, was named assistant secretary-treasurer of Southern Engineering Company at the recent annual meeting of stockholders and directors in Charlotte.

Briley is a certified public accountant at the company's home office in Charlotte, which is located on a 12-acre site known as "Little Pittsburgh." That firm supplies the Southern area.

After graduating from the University of North Carolina in 1943, Briley spent a short time in the Marine Corps and then joined the Charlotte office of Haskins and Sells. He remained there until May, 1951, when he went with his present firm.

The Charlotte accountant was born in Greenville and was graduated from Greenville High School. He is the brother of S. E. "Hugh" Briley of 1007, West Fourth Street, Greenville.

"E" is by far the most-used English letter, one count showing the proportion of 126 'E's to 90 'T's', the next most-used letter.

Strength for the Day

By KARL L. DOUGLASS
FELLOW-TRAVELERS
We all have a great deal of contempt for the so-called fellow traveler. He is neither a communist nor a patriotic defender of democratic principles. He lives under the benefits of democracy and enjoys them to the full, but his loyalty is to a variety of liberalism which quickly spills over into disloyalty to his country. The fellow traveler is a parasite. Or, to change the figure, he is a guy who refuses to pull his weight in the boat.

Very well. Now transfer this over into the realm of the spirit. There are fellow travelers in the Church. They show up once or twice a year at services and make a token contribution to the upkeep of the Church and its work. But one would hardly call them Christian in any sense of the term. They love the world and its ways. They are fascinated by "the delectations of riches and the lust of other things."

The political fellow traveler is a parasite. What about the religious fellow traveler? It appears to me this way: If there is no God, then people—including myself—waste a lot of time and money on the Church. But if there is a God, He is not, I am sure, satisfied with anything less than the best I am and have. He has no place in His eternal plan for "fellow-travelers."

We're In The Boat With Ole Man River

The people of Eastern North Carolina have known it for a long time and have done little about it. It is just one of those things we have never gotten around to because Mother Nature made it so easy for us to follow the line of least resistance . . . at her expense and ultimately our own.

The Reflector has reference to the pollution of rivers and streams in the eastern section of the state. The practice may have been expedient financially, but it has been costly to this section at the same time.

For as long as most people can remember, cities and towns in the eastern section of the state have been pouring the sewage of thousands upon thousands of people into nearby rivers and streams. Industries have pumped waste products into the rivers and streams for years—it has been just a matter of course. As a result, practically every river in this section of the state is contaminated.

The United States Public Health Service has recommended sewage and waste treatment projects to curb the river pollution in the eastern part of the state. The recommendations were made on the basis of information gathered by the federal public health service and the State Stream Sanitation committee. Like every other sort of improvement, these projects will cost the municipalities and industries money, but in the long run it will be money well invested by the people who live in this section of the state.

If river pollution were an isolated condition in this section, the problem would not be so bad. But the U. S. Health Service listed nine river basins and the North Carolina coastal area as polluted. The Tar river was right there on the list as most people who live near the river would expect. The Roanoke, Chowan, Catawba, Neuse, Cape Fear, Yadkin, Broad and Pee Dee were there too.

What will be done about it? Perhaps nothing. Perhaps the people feel they have gotten by for hundreds of years by abusing the rivers we use, and another hundred will make little difference. That may be the attitude municipalities and industries take toward the problem of stream pollution, but we surely hope not.

It will take time to clean up the rivers in the eastern part of the state, and the people of Eastern North Carolina should wait no longer before steps are taken toward the goal of having clean, unpolluted rivers and streams in the Coastal Plain.

Will The Scales Be Thrown Out Of Balance?

While the off-again-on-again steel strike is off again—at least until May 12—the nation watches, waits and speculates on the decision of the Supreme Court on President Truman's seizure of the steel industry.

In its ruling Saturday, the Supreme Court rebuffed the President by voting 9 to 0 in favor of an order that the government can not increase the wages of steel workers while the industry is under government control. President Truman had said earlier the government would be ready to grant a raise early this week if some settlement was not reached between the union and the industry.

Thus the first order came as a direct slap at the President's off-base position taken in the steel case. Whether the Supreme Court will rule Mr. Truman's action in seizing the steel mills unconstitutional, we can only wait to see. We hope they put the President back in line with the law of the land, and point out to him in no uncertain terms that the President, just like the legislative and judiciary as well as the common people, must obey the supreme law of the land.

It must be kept in mind that the Supreme Court, as it now stands, is composed of men who have been inclined to favor the New Deal and Fair Deal philosophy of a very elastic constitution . . . elastic in that the executive has been able to grasp and hang on to more sweeping powers than ever before in the history of the nation with the exception of wartime emergencies. If the Supreme Court rules in favor of Mr. Truman's action on the basis of "inherent powers" of the president, the constitutional government of the United States will have suffered a severe blow. A dangerous precedent will have been set which will bring the chief executive closer to a possible dictatorship than ever before in the nation's history.

Should the Supreme Court rule in favor of the President, it will throw the theoretical balance of power between the executive, legislative and judiciary far to the left in favor of the executive. It will drastically subtract from the weight carried by the legislative—the peoples' direct voice in the federal government—and throw additional weight to more highly centralized power in the hands of the executive.

That, indeed, the United States does not need. It would jeopardize freedom and liberty from within the government, just as those two vital factors are now being threatened by outside forces.

National Whirligig

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—The practical politicians' fear of retaliatory action by a few organized minorities strategically situated in decisive voting centers has become so great that only two candidates in the 1952 presidential free-for-all have dared to take a strong stand in opposition to their demands. They are Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio and Senator Richard B. Russell of Georgia.

The disproportionate ballot-box power of these largely urban elements, which was built up during the Roosevelt-Truman regime, may decide the identities of the two parties' nominees at the July conventions and the winner in the November election. They will be invisible but influential delegates at the two Chicago gatherings.

OBJECTION—It is a tribute to their dictatorial role that the principal objection against the nomination of Senator Taft is embodied in the assertion that "he cannot get the labor vote."

Similarly, their grip on the politicians is recognized in the almost unanimous opinion that, despite his many qualifications, Senator Russell cannot obtain the support of racial elements in the cities of the North and West.

The only entry who so far stands four-square in favor of these minorities' legislative demands is Governor Earl Warren of California. Maintaining that he is merely abiding by the GOP's 1948 platform, he advocates creation of a Fair Employment Practices Commission with compulsory powers and amendment of the Taft-Hartley Act so as to meet organized labor's objections.

UNACCEPTABLE—The two leading Democratic lights, now that Truman is unavailable, appear to be Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee and W. Averell Harriman of New York. There is still hopeful talk of Governor Adlai E. Stevenson, and Vice President Barkley is frequently mentioned as an outside possibility. Senator Kerr is in the race just for the fun of it, even though he may not know it.

Kefauver says that he prefers a voluntary or state-enforced FEPC, but promises to accept a compulsory alternative, if it is written into the platform. It is his willingness to compromise which makes him unacceptable to the backers of Senator Russell of Georgia. The Tennessee is also vaguish on Taft-Hartley.

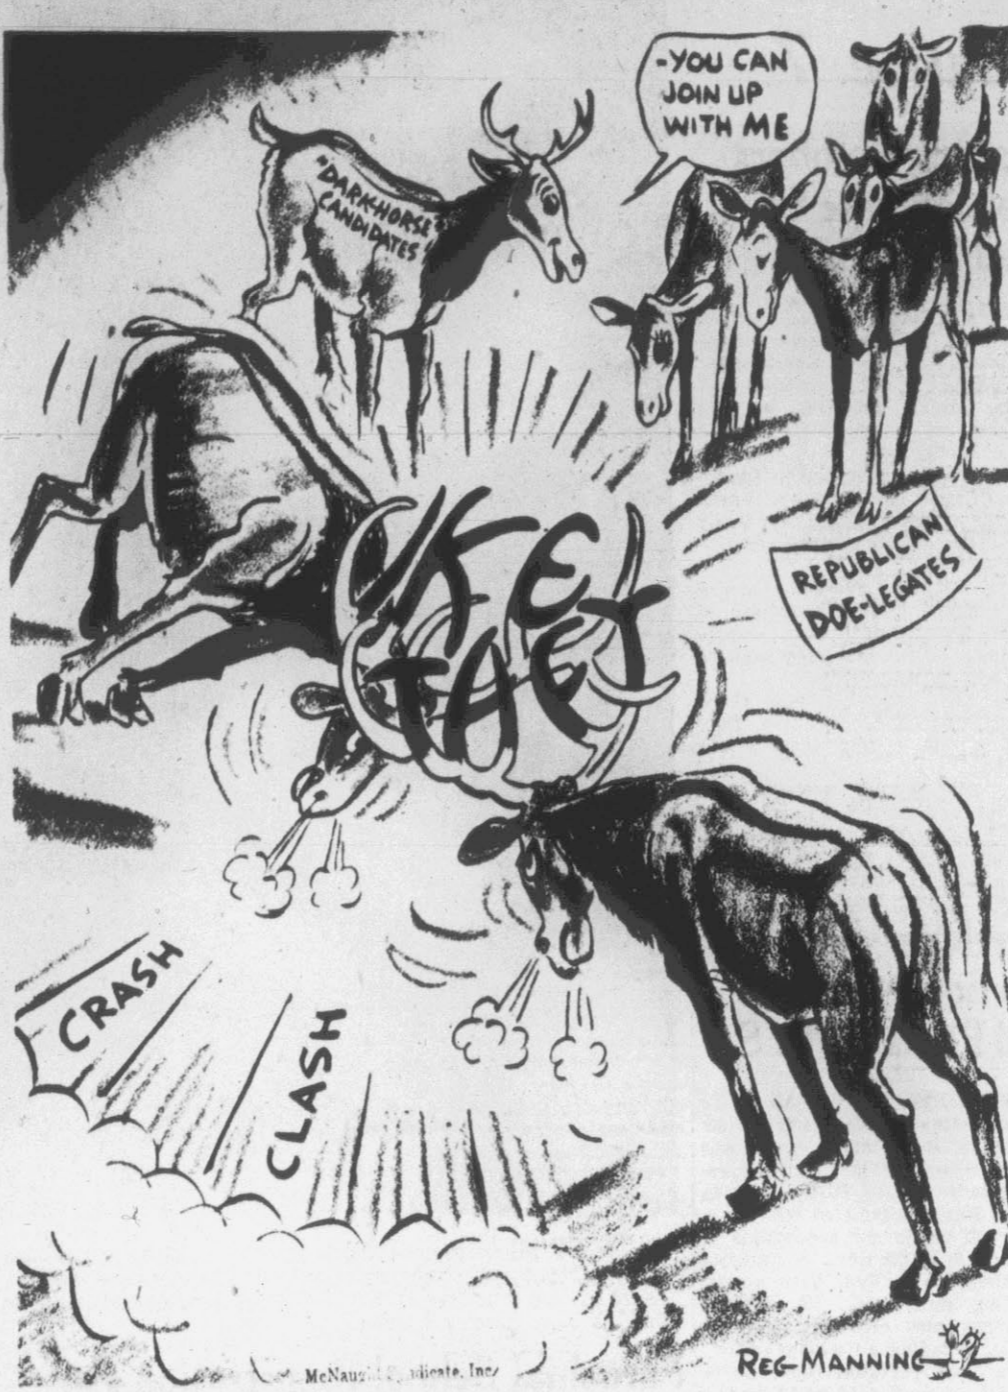

WABBLING—Harriman, as the Truman favorite, should be all-out for a federal FEPC and T-H repeal. But it is known that his distinguished sponsor in the White House is as willing to retreat on both these issues in order to prevent a party split as he was in 1948 on civil rights, and the New Yorker would raise no serious objections. He is not a fighting man.

Kerr, of course, is wiggling and wabbling on every issue, as anybody who has heard him on recent television programs must recognize. He is for aid to Europe, an ambassador at the Vatican, an FEPC, a labor-management law and for everything else that some people are for.

However, he always concludes his positive assertions with a "but," and an "on the other hand." In short, he is for Kerr, home and mother, and the United States.

MISGIVINGS—General Eisenhower may yet make public his views on these questions, but so far he has withheld them. Nor have his promoters here reached an agreement on how they think he should handle them. Final decision will await his return to this country in June.

In Case Their Horns Lock—

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

This week's Look Magazine includes an interesting report on the future of television, now that we will soon have 600 more stations like the ones we have now, and probably 1400 ultra high frequency stations. Present set owners will have to buy a converter, for about $50, in order to receive the new UHF signals.

The interesting point brought out in this article, which is written by Millard C. Faught, is the tremendous cost of television. Back in 1949, figuring 1,000 stations on the air, arranged in 40 networks and programming only 70 hours a week, half network and half local programs, Faught said TV would cost $1,740,352,500 a year. In order to pay for the advertising, merchants would have to sell $80 billion worth of goods.

Those figures turned out to be far under the actual cost, as much as 300 per cent in some cases. That's why in some areas there are many old movies shown on TV instead of expensive programs.

The Look writer says that when TV expands it will be impossible to support several national networks on advertising alone. Actually, even if this comes about, there is nothing for the owner of a TV set to get upset about. There are several plans under experimentation for the set owner to pay for entertainments that come into his home. The sponsored programs would still be free, of course, but there would be others, that TV audiences are not allowed to see now, that he could pay for.

One company has invented a gadget that is placed on the TV receiver, for which the home viewer buys a punched card and places it in the gadget in order to unscramble a jumbled broadcast of one of the to-be-paid-for programs. There are several other plans. One is to have a coin box on the TV set.

If this should come about, actually it should be a very worthwhile thing, even from the standpoint of the person who pays. Just think of the entertainments that are kept off the screen in order to keep the box office up. These programs could be paid for in the home and there would be no reason for the freeze. The best and newest movies could come in, say for $1 for the entire family. You could invite the neighbors in, and maybe even bring the cost down. Football, baseball and basketball games that are kept off now could be televised, and the gate coming from the vast TV audience would make the grandstand crowd look small. Millions of people could see Mary Martin in South Pacific. People who like it could see the opera. And with such a big audience, the price would be small. If this does come about, it will still be a break for the televiewer. And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

PAINS—Although North Carolina as an organized State is more than two centuries old, much of its trouble now is occasioned by growing pains. Taxes collected by the State for services provided out of general fund revenue have jumped from about $10 million to $175 million within the memory of a majority of the people now paying these taxes, but demand for services has grown faster than money to provide them.

ILLUSTRATIONS—Statistics on increased appropriations for education, health, agricultural and economic research have been published so often that such items no longer have news value. Some other illustrations of the effect of "growing pains" are not so well known, but cause as much or more concern to those charged with administering state affairs. The State Highway and Public Works Commission faced some of these problems at its meeting the other day, when admittedly justifiable requests for additional roads could not be granted for lack of funds and because of necessity to adhere to policies previously adopted. Meeting on the same day the State Board of Agriculture and the State Board of Education had even more perplexing problems presented for their consideration. Just as the advancing ideas of transportation have outdistanced the money invested in the rutted mudholes that served for roads in that era, the new program for public schools has taken the one-room log school house off the bill and embalmbed it in the pages of history. Numerous illustrations can be cited of the transition of roads and schools, but two or three items from the minutes of the Board of Agriculture meeting last Thursday suffice to prove the point. Each of these items has a surface simplicity and without some of the background data the problem looks like it would be easy to solve. The background stuff includes increasing demands for service, additions, cost of operating even at present scale, and intermingled complications with other governmental agencies and private enterprise.

POND—There was the case of a man who wanted to build a dam across a stream that runs through a state-owned test farm in Edgecombe county. Backwater would cover several acres of state land. The farm needs water for experiments in irrigation and the man offered the water in return for rights to build the dam and inundate the land. It looked like a good trade until a neighboring citizen who owns money from fishing privileges in his lake protested the state going into partnership to put him out of business. Then there was another problem when a fertilizer company wanted to buy a strip of the state test farm in Iredell county for a packaging and distribution plant. The state wanted to co-operate, but again tax-paying citizens who had money invested in homes and other business nearby protested the location of a fertilizer plant at their door.

ZONING—Both these situations, like many having to do with proposed location of school houses and hospitals, run into the overall question of restrictive zoning of property for special uses. That in turn involves the narrow dividing point between exercise of police power to protect individual rights and general welfare. Admittedly individuals cannot claim the same full rights in congested communities that they have without question in isolated places. It is equally true that undue exercise of police regulatory powers destroys initiative and tends toward a socialist state.

TAX FREE—Another important consideration is the increasing acquisition by government agencies of property that has been paying taxes but which comes off the tax books as soon as title passes to the government. Estimates have been made—but are not immediately at hand—of the aggregate tax-loss to counties and cities in this state by government acquisition of real estate. A member of the Raleigh city council thinks that the land occupied here by the state capitol and office buildings, State College, Dix Hill Hospital and other state institutions has a market value in excess of $50 million. Other tax-free colleges and hospitals would add $10 million to that estimate—but he concedes that every city of comparable size has that situation to deal with.

INCIDENTAL—He also concedes that incidental benefit from the state departments here probably more than offset the tax loss. The fact remains, however, that other taxpayers in Raleigh have to maintain the fire and minuted by men of the same political faith.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

FOR ALL THE PEOPLE (Sioux City Journal-Tribune)
Most Americans have forgotten the days when a president of the United States, although having been elected by one political party was nevertheless the representative of all the people. He was a man of dignity, this president of yesterday, who placed his high office above the level of bitter partisan politics.

As a result he was respected by both parties, and that fact was reflected abroad, giving the United States prestige internationally. Such men were Theodore Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson, Calvin Coolidge, Herbert Hoover. And while men of varying political faith differed in principle with those presidents, they respected them as honorable officials who lived up to the high office they occupied.

During the last 19 years, however, the two men who served as president resorted to different tactics. They made it clear they represented not all of the people but only those people who voted in the democratic ticket. Franklin Roosevelt at election time always took occasion to tear into the republicans, accusing them of little short of treason for failing to dopt his new deal philosophies.

In making appointments to the Federal courts, Mr. Roosevelt flooded the benches with democrats rather than striving to keep some sort of a political balance in that important branch of the government. His example was followed diligently by Harry Truman, the result being a heavily-loaded Federal Judiciary dominated by men of the same political faith.

President Truman's "howling out" speech at the Jackson day dinner in Washington the other night largely was a bitter denunciation of all republicans whom he accused of being "fakers trying to pull the wool over the people's eyes, phony propagandists and friends of the 'special interests'."

Those are harsh words. They lack the dignity one somehow expects from a president of the United States.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
Atomic energy developments, in addition to producing quiet homes, a new cigar filter and the promise of fission-powered engines, is also opening a vast new frontier for industry. Development of atomic energy focused attention on the so-called rare earths and led to new methods of refining them.

In a report on these rare metals, the research and engineering firm of Arthur D. Little, Inc., states that they can now be considered for use in industry. Some of them have been used—cerium has long been the active ingredient in flint lighters because it ignites easily—but further research may lead to many new discoveries.

Cerium, the commonest of the rare metals, improves aluminum castings and nodular cast iron. An alloy of cerium, magnesium and engine parts, may become the biggest cerium market, the Little organization says. It is better than rouge for polishing lenses in the optical industry, in non-darkening glass exposed to atomic energy, in the ceramic and textile industries and in the manufacture of Welsbach gas mantles.

Lanthanum oxide is used in optical glass and its isotope is useful in X-ray machines for testing metals.

Neodymium salts are used chiefly as a coloring agent in the ceramic and optical industries, in glass-blowing, as a filter in the bright yellow light of sodium.

Praseodymium and ytterbium salts are used in ceramics. Samarium can activate fluorescent phosphors. Gadolinium salts are strongly magnetic and one was first used to obtain close to absolute zero temperature.

Other rare metals include terbium, cerium, lutecium, thulium and dysprosium. "The metals should soon become more familiar," the engineers report. "As ways are found to produce them more cheaply they will become more generally available for scientific work and as their properties are better understood many industrial uses are likely to develop."

POSITIVE OF MORE BOOM, THEN BUST
This is the outlook for the next four years as given by Willard C. Wheeler economist for Anderson & Cairns, Inc., at the annual meeting of the Carpet Institute:

"Out of three general conditions—war, peace and a garrison state—we must assume a continuation of the garrison state policy. The current soft trend in business should begin to turn into strength before the end of the year.

"There will follow a good rise into 1953 and 1954.

"This will end with a considerable drop into 1955-1956."

Mr. Wheeler said this was not an opinion but "the computed projection into the future of the typical pattern of behavior of business which has repeated itself over and over in the past and is actually doing so right now."

TRAVEL ASSOCIATION FOR HOLIDAYS
The National Association of Travel Organizations is urging members to agitate for the "Monday holiday plan." Under this plan, all holidays except New Year's Day, Easter and Christmas would be celebrated on Mondays. These would be Presidents' Day, third Monday in February; Memorial Day, last Monday in May; Independence Day, first Monday in July; Veterans' Day, first Monday in August; Labor Day, first Monday in September; Columbus Day, second Monday in October, and Thanksgiving Day, fourth Monday in November.

This would reduce absenteeism and permit religious observance the day before, the association notes. It would also boost travel.

LIVESTOCK PROFITS HELD CAPITAL GAIN
Livestock men have been given a tax boon that is not shared by other farmers. Commerce Clearing House points out. An Internal Revenue Bureau interpretation holds that livestock held for draft, breeding or dairy purposes over a stated period is a capital asset and hence profits are capital gains, hence only 50 per cent taxable. Poultry is not included.

It is pointed out that the rule is retroactive, hence livestock men can claim refunds on taxes paid for the last three years.

BANK'S CHARGE PLAN MAY SPREAD WIDELY
Banks in all sections of the country are studying a charge account plan worked out by Franklin National Bank, Franklin Square, N. Y. Because the plan has been tested for a year with considerable success, it is likely that it will be used by banks elsewhere. The bank serves as the charge account for a number of small stores, permitting them to compete credit-wise with larger stores.

Store customers establish charge-account credit with the bank, just as they would at a department store. Then they may say, "Charge it!" at any store participating. A store sends charged sales slips to the bank once a day and the bank pays each store 95 per cent of the total. Then the bank bills the customers and collects. The bank takes any no-pay losses.

ENAMEL: A hard-wearing enamel, self-priming and odorless, has been developed by Sapolin Paints, Inc., 229 East 42nd St., New York in subdued-ustre, decorator colors for ceilings, walls, cabinets and trim work. It is said to resist steam, grease, grime, and over in the past and is actual-

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK (AP)—Is life too much for you? Has care got you down?

Since this is National Mental Health Week, now is as good a time as any to figure what to do about keeping all your marbles.

Statisticians estimate that one out of every 12 children born in America today will spend some part of his life in a mental institution. This is a frightening fact.

Going to a psychiatrist isn't the solution. There are only about 6,000 psychiatrists in the country. Even if patients kept their couches warm around the clock, there are too few of these professional mind probes to listen to all the people who want to tell their troubles. Also, getting to their ear is a bit expensive for the average person.

What is the answer? Well, let's look at the situation, and consider the possible remedies. There are two ways to go through life—enjoying yourself to death, or worrying yourself to death. Most people are firmly convinced they will never die of pleasure, and as a matter of fact, the very idea frightens them. So they slowly worry themselves crazy, or fret themselves gradually into a grave, borne down by the weight of accumulated disappointments and frustrated ambitions.

The big fallacy of the human race is that it is spendariff of its happiness, but hoards worry privately like a miser.

This is all wrong. You should, of course, share your happiness, not equally, you should share your worries. A happiness grows with sharing, a worry diminishes.

We've had share-the-work programs and share-the-wealth programs. What we need now is worries program. People plagued by similar emotional, physical or financial woes could band together on the same basis as the members of Alcoholics Anonymous, a signally successful organization.

Some folks might be reluctant to share their private worries with neighbors or friends. In that case they could team up with strangers who knew nothing about them personally but suffered the same problems.

The advantage of these share-your-worries clubs is that they would put each worry in its proper perspective. The thing about your own worry is that it always looks bigger to you than it does to everybody else.

in the world told his worries around, soon everybody would have something to laugh about.

That's the virtue of a national Share-the-Worries Program.

Once a man has something to laugh at—somebody else's woes—it is easier for him to see how silly it is to lose his mind on the treadmill of his own despair.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS
WASHINGTON: THE WAVES will be 10 years old on July 30. Like other women in the uniform of war-time military units, the WAVES have ceased to be a novelty and have become an institution.

Some naval officers were skeptical about taking women into the service when Congress authorized their enlistment and commissioning in the Women's Reserve of the U. S. Naval Reserve back in 1942. They were convinced that the business would end with the war. However, on June 12, 1946 they were made an integral part of the Navy, assured of the same advancement, security, pay, allowances and benefits as men. Currently, they are trying to boost their strength to 10,000 enlisted and 1,000 officers.

At first the Navy expected to enlist or appoint only 10,000 women in the Naval Reserve, but the WAVES were so successful that the organization has reached a wartime strength of 85,000. These were on duty in 900 shore activities through the U. S. and more than 4,000 were assigned to Hawaii. WAVES currently on duty outside the continental U. S. are in Alaska, Hawaii, England, Germany, Japan and France. Recently, Lt. Francis Stonesifer, of Charleston, W. Va., was assigned to the staff of the American Naval Attache at Oslo, Norway.

Captain Mildred McAfee Horton, former Wellesley College professor, was first Wave director. Capt. Joy B. Hancock now is Assistant to the Chief of Naval Personnel for Women.

The name WAVES, now a misnomer but a nickname that has stuck, originally stood for Women Accepted for Volunteer Emergency Service, a combination of words obviously chosen for its "salty" initial letters.

WAVES have acted in nearly every type of shore activity, including a stations, naval hospitals, district headquarters, navy yards and supply depots.

No WAVES were killed by enemy action during the war. One WAVES was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal, a few WAVES were awarded the Bronze Star and some got letters of commendation from the Secretary of the Navy.

May we say "thank you" to everybody who in any way helped with making our "May-Day" dinner a grand success! Your presence, your gifts of food and money, your fine cooperation, your hard work is truly appreciated. We had friends from Greenville, Winterville, Ayden, Mt. Pleasant, Farmville, Red Banks, Bethany, Reedy Branch, Falkland and many of our neighbors from Piney Grove who enjoyed this delicious turkey dinner with us.

One hundred twenty-six pounds of turkey, about five bushels of turnip greens, several pecks of Irish potatoes, um-teen hundred delicious hushpuppies, fresh strawberry shortcake with real cream, nine hundred rolls, delicious salads for everyone, pickles of all kinds, snapbeans, pickled pork, twenty gallons of tea and two gallons of gravy were served to the large crowd, estimated at about four hundred.

The money derived from this dinner on Sunday was the least of the pleasure received from serving it. The genuine good came from seeing the wonderful cooperation of those who helped—their fellowship together, their joy in serving and their willingness to help with any job—no matter how menial the task. We shall never forget the "dish-washing" crew of men who formed an assembly line outdoors in the sunshine and kept the clean dishes rolling back to the table. Our friend and regular attendant at our dinners, Mr. Herbert Waldrop, walked through the kitchen to speak to the cooks. He came in the back door and before he could get out someone had an apron on him and a dish towel in his hand! Just kidding, but it was such good, clean fun to laugh and talk and labor together to try to make our church and community a little better place in which to live.

When one looked at the long line of people who formed in front of the club building waiting to get in, you could tell that the Methodist, Presbyterian, Christian, Baptist and other churches of Greenville were well represented.

Some of our most wonderful help was from our small boys and girls who kept the tables cleared of soiled dishes. Many of our teen-age children helped to serve tea, take up tickets and in many other ways.

When the last dish had been put away, and everything left spic and span we felt like that truly it had been a wonderful day and one that we would never forget!

The New York State Thruway from New York to Buffalo is scheduled to be completed in 1954, according to the State Thruway Authority.

Take a new Cadillac home with you—use it with common prudence and give it reasonable care——and ten years from today, there should be many, many people anxious to drive it and call it their own!

The soundness of this prediction is attested on used car lots throughout America. Every day, buyers are taking possession of Cadillacs built before the war — and are doing so with pride and anticipation.

There are many and vital reasons for this enduring value of a Cadillac car.

First, of course, is quality. Cadillacs are built to the highest standard it is practical to enforce in the production of a motor car.

The watchword and the goal of those who design and build for Cadillac are one and the same—how good and how enduring can this car be made?

Year in and year out, the search for improvement goes relentlessly ahead.

Small wonder that the car keeps its youth and its performance—far, far beyond the normal span.

And then there is its sound and enduring beauty. Cadillac styling is a development—with continuous improvement and refinement. Older Cadillacs, of course, are not to be mistaken for the current ones; but, regardless of age, they are still Cadillacs—and are distinguished and dignified in their own rights.

And then, of course, there is the wonderful Cadillac name—which never loses its significance, no matter how old the car which bears it. Year for year and age for age, a Cadillac is always aside and apart from other cars.

It is not unusual for a Cadillac to pass through four or five or even six different families—each one owning it with pride and driving it with pleasure.

Think of this when you buy your next car. If you get a Cadillac—there can be no doubt that others will be eager to own it when it has served you the normal span.

Why not come in—and see and drive this wonderful car? We'd be happy to welcome you any time.

Little Leagues Open Play With Two Games Thursday

Giants Remain As Miracle Team Of Early Season Play

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP)—Leo Durocher is directing another "operation miracle" with his jaunty New York Giants, who ought to be charged with arson the way they're burning up the Western end of the National League.

These sure-fingered, strong-throwing, timely hitting guys have won seven straight games behind the most brilliant pitching in the majors.

In 16 games this year, the infield which Durocher said makes this "my kind of a team" has committed only two errors. The club has made only six errors in all, the other four having been committed by pitchers and catchers.

In their all-victorious sweep bitterly contested 3 to 2 decision from the Chicago Cubs yesterday, the only error committed was by Bill Rigney, a substitute shortstop, filling in at a game in Pittsburgh in the late innings.

The contrast is all the more striking when it is noted that the Boston Braves, the shakiest team defensively, have committed 39 errors thus far.

Yesterday's victory was a typical one. The Giants made only four hits but left Paul Minner, but it was all they needed behind perfect defensive play and the standard relief pitching of Montie Kennedy, the almost forgotten southpaw.

Kennedy took over for Jim Heath and pitched one-hit ball for 6 1-3 innings, holding the Cubs hitless for the final five.

Wes Westrum hit a homer after Dark singled for two runs and the winning tally came when Minner erred on a bunt by Lockman, after which Thomson tripled.

In the limited Monday activity, the aroused Washington Senators made it three straight over the St. Louis Browns, pummeling them to the count of 13 to 1, while the Cleveland Indians made it two in a row over the Boston Red Sox at Boston, winning 4 to 2 in 10 innings.

In the only other National League action, the Brooklyn Dodgers breezed to a 5 to 1 decision over the Pittsburgh Pirates in a rain-shortened, eight-inning game.

The brigade of ex-New York Yankees performing for the Senators came through for them in a 15 - hit thumping. Spec Shea pitched four-hit ball for seven innings and Archie Wilson and Jackie Jensen were big men at the plate.

Wilson batted in five runs on a double and two singles while Jensen banged a double and single. Ned Garver, 20-game winner for the Browns, was batted out of the box for the third straight time.

Ralph Branca pitched four-hit ball and struck out seven as the Dodgers sent the Pirates to their fifth straight defeat and the 15th in the last 16 games. Andy Pafko hit his seventh homer and Gil Hodges got his first.

The Indians put over three runs in the 10th on a homer by Bobby Avila, successive triples by Al Rosen and Ray Boone and a single by Dale Mitchell.

Ellis Kinder, pitching in relief after Rosen tripled off Mel Parnell, pulled a side muscle and may be out of action for some time. The Red Sox tried vainly to tie it up in their half of the 10th with four pinch-hitters. Clyde Vollmer hit a homer and Don DiMaggio doubled, but Early Wynn bore down and struck out Don Lenhardt and Walt Drope, gaining his fourth victory in relief for Bob Lemon.

Loss To Atlantic Christian Knocks Pirates Out Of Running For North State Conference's East Division Championship

WILSON—The same play which won Saturday's game with Guilford College yesterday cost the East Carolina College Pirates just about any chances they had of winning the North State Conference baseball title.

The Bucs lost to the Atlantic Christian College Bulldogs 6-5 when outfielder Boyd Webb let Scopy McCrary's seventh inning single skip past him in centerfield.

The Pirates had broken out of a post-Easter slump last Saturday afternoon—aided greatly by a play of almost identical nature. In that game last Saturday, Yoyo Yates of Guilford let Claude King's ground single get past him. The only difference in the plays was that King's blast came with three men on the bases and McCrary's came with two men aboard.

McCrary was the big man for ACC all afternoon. He banged out two of the six Atlantic Christian base hits plus a good game in the field. Two more of the Bulldog hits went to pitcher Gilbert Ferrell, who for the second consecutive game against East Carolina—had the Pirate batters eating out of his hand.

East Carolina's batting honors went to third baseman Galtner Cline, who seems to have his best days at the bat for the games with the Bulldogs. Cline smacked out two hits, one of them a terrific home run which cleared the rightfield wall with plenty of room to spare in the fifth inning. Pitcher Rodney Heath also got two of the nine hits given up by Ferrell.

The Bulldogs won the game with the three-run comeback in the seventh inning. Jay Clark started the fireworks with a single into rightfield. Jim Hebbe, hitting for Buddy Lane, was hit by one of Heath's left-handed pitches. Then, with Clark and Hebbe itching to score, McCrary came through with his hit to centerfield. Webb came in to field the ball which skipped right past him and rolled all the way to the centerfield wall, some 365 feet away from the plate. That was the ball game so far as scoring was concerned.

The Pirates had come from behind to tie the game with a two run scoring spurge in the third inning. Rodney Heath led off with a single to centerfield. After Cecil Heath popped out to Nick Siganos at second base, Webb came through with a hit to left-centerfield which went for three bases. Cline and Claude King followed with singles to chase Webb across with the second run.

ACC had gotten its first two runs in the first inning—with the benefit of a single base hit. They utilized three bases on balls, a stolen base and an error by Rodney Heath for those first runs.

After the third inning play by East Carolina had tied the game up, the Bucs moved into the lead with a pair of runs in the fourth. Jim Corbin was safe on an error by Ferrell and went to second on a sacrifice by Paul Jones. George McSwain bashed out a single which scored Corbin and scored himself on a single and an infield out by the two Heath boys in the line-up.

Cline's fifth inning home run completed the scoring for East Carolina and set the stage for Atlantic Christian's fireworks.

The Bulldogs warmed-up with a single run in their half of the sixth inning. With two men out, McSwain dropped the third strike on Larry Pittman and the Bulldogs outfielder raced to first before the Pirate backstop could retrieve the ball. Bill Price was walked and Pittman came in on a single into rightfield by Ferrell. That single run set the stage for the big climax to the game which came on McCrary's drive to centerfield in the seventh inning.

The loss by East Carolina gave Atlantic Christian an even split in the four game series with the Pirates this year. After the Bucs had won the first two contests, ACC came back strong to win the last two behind the curve ball slants of Ferrell. The victory yesterday also gave Atlantic Christian possession of the Bohunk Bucket until at least next basketball season. The Bohunk Bucket is the symbol of athletic supremacy between the two schools.

Moose Stand As Question Mark In Little League Ball

The Moose are one of the questionable teams in this year's Little League, with several boys back from last year.

The extent of their improvement after a rather dismal year last season has caused many of the rival coaches to scratch their head in bewilderment. At the present time, they could very well have a potential championship team, but Coaches Polly Williams and Bruce Koonce are noncommittal in their predictions.

They seem to agree on the fact that the Moose will not have any outstanding ball players, but will have a well balanced team. Pitching is their one pride and joy, however.

and they are high on their praises of Marvin Blount, Ebram Allen and Wesley Topping.

Ronald Nickols, an outfielder on the 1935 team, will take over the first base duties for the present team. Billy Sermons returns to handle second base territory, teaming at the keystone sack with Wesley Topping at shortstop.

Allen, Jimmy Jenkins and one of several other candidates will probably be the starting outfielders. Tommy Henderson, Joseph Blalock and Robert Taft are still trying out for the starting positions, along with several newcomers to the Moose ranks.

Former ACC Star To Pitch For Greenies

Howard Chapin, former pitching star for Atlantic Christian College, will be on the mound for the Greenville Greenies when they play Ormondville here Wednesday night in a semi-pro Bright Belt League encounter.

Chapin is head coach at Belhaven High School at the present time, and is a former manager of the Belhaven entry in the Beaufort County League. He informed Greenville Manager Bill Sweet last night that he would be ready to go against Ormondville.

The Greenies came into their own over the recent weekend, winning both game of series with Pinetops. George Porter, former pro hurler for Kinston, allowed but five hits while fanning 15 men and winning a 4-0 shutout Saturday night. But the real humdinger of the series came Sunday afternoon. The teams battled for 14 innings on pretty even terms before Greenville first baseman Sonny Russell connected for a roundtripper in the top of the 15th. Before the frame was concluded, two more Greenies had crossed the plate, giving the Greenville club a 4-1 victory.

Sweet is just about set with the lineup that started the two games against Pinetops. It consists of Burney Stevens at second, Russell, Fenner Boyd in leftfield, Simon Hardison in centerfield, Dallas Jackson in rightfield, Billy Price at shortstop, George Sauls at third, and Troy Sears behind the plate. Price collected the team's first homerun of the season Saturday night with a long drive over the scoreboard in left field at Guy Smith Stadium to give Greenville a working margin.

The opposition will be the best that the fast Bright Belt can furnish tomorrow in the Ormondville line. Manager Garland Little's team finished the season last year in first place, but were finally beaten by Farmville in the post-season play-offs for the league championship. They are right back to their old habits this year. Ormondville currently has a 4-0 mark in loop play.

Besides Little, one of the better pitchers on a strong mound staff, Ormondville boasts such standouts as Norman Clark and Vince Jones, all three of whom are former players in the Class D Coastal Plain League.

A shining array of batting talent is also to be found in the Ormondville lineup. Little and Clark are both good hitters, as is first baseman George Graybill, catcher Red McDaniels and second baseman Barry Jones. Marvin Hughes at shortstop and third baseman Dan Meekins are also potential hitters.

Game time is set for 7:45 at Guy Smith Stadium.

Bank Official Admits Removing $450,000 To Help Businessmen

PERTH AMBOY, N. J. (UP) — A kindhearted bank vice president admitted today he took $450,000 from seven large accounts to make loans to small businessmen having financial troubles.

William Horley, 50, a church leader and charity worker, unfolded the story of his embezzlement during a six hour session with Middlesex County Attorney Alex Eber that ended early this morning.

Then Horley, who was freed on $25,000 bail bond pending grand jury action, returned to the modest home where he lives unpretentiously with his wife, 18-year-old son and two daughters, aged 12 and 17.

"It's fantastic," Eber said. "Horley has the unfortunate characteristic of being a generous man. He was foolishly trying to help a lot of people who ordinarily couldn't get loans. So he personally loaned bank funds to them."

All of the money taken by Horley from the Perth Amboy First Bank and Trust Co. over a five-year period was covered by insurance, but Eber said he believed $150,000 could be recovered.

Eber said some of Horley's needy friends had repaid their debts while others had not.

"It doesn't appear at this stage that Mr. Horley used the money on either himself or his family," Eber said.

Horley, a tall, red-haired man who has lived in this community of 41,000 population all his life, was arrested last night and arraigned on a charge of embezzling "more than $100,000" only a few hours after the bank reported the shortage.

Eber said a total of $391,933.13 was misappropriated and Horley had made out a $65,000 bearer bond to himself for use in making security investments in an attempt to recover some of the lost funds.

Horley was accompanied to his arraignment by his lawyer, his wife and the Rev. George H. Boyd, pastor of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, which the banker had served as chairman of the church's trust fund.

Boyd stood by to console Horley later when Eber granted recesses during the long questioning.

The shortage first was discovered by Samuel C. Farrell, bank auditor, during a checkup after the bank had closed for the weekend. The bank's examiners were called into conference late yesterday.

In a statement said Horley, who had been with the bank since 1937, was cooperating with officials and their bonding company in an effort to recover some of the missing money.

Eber said Horley admitted investing $150,000 of the bank's funds in securities in order to make up his deficits. The investments were lost in the market, Eber said.

Horley's neighbors, who had known him as a leader in Boy Scout, church fund and Red Cross drives, were shocked.

Doughton Backs William Umstead

RALEIGH (AP) — Rep. Robert L. Doughton of the Ninth District has thrown his support behind William B. Umstead in the race for governor.

The 88-year-old legislator said yesterday in a statement prepared for a radio speech that Umstead would be "a great leader in the progressive and sound growth and development of our beloved state."

He said that in his opinion Umstead "has an outstanding program for building and serving North Carolina for a better tomorrow."

Doughton, who is retiring from Congress after this term, lauded Umstead's record as a congressman and a senator, especially on farm legislation. He added, "As a farmer, I am particularly impressed with the views set forth by this able man in the development and improvement of agriculture in our state."

Second Trial Of Accused Kluxers Gets Under Way

WHITEVILLE, N. C. (UP) — Trial of 13 accused nightriders on charges of kidnaping and flogging began today for a second time after a superior judge slashed through a legal entanglement with a series of rapid-fire rulings.

Judge Clawson L. Williams ruled yesterday the defendants were illegally indicted because of a local statute.

He then declared the statute invalid, picked a new grand jury that returned similar indictments and ordered a new special venire of 150 men summoned from another county to try the case.

Defense attorneys promptly asked Williams to quash the new indictments. They contended the new grand jury was illegally constituted because the judge had asked each juror whether he was or ever had been a member of the Klan. The motion was overruled.

The 13 defendants were indicted in the flogging of Woodrow Johnson, a Whiteville garage mechanic, last Dec. 8.

Solicitor Clifton L. Moore said the grand jury was studying new bills against 14 other former klansmen facing trial in connection with a wave of hooded terrorism in Columbus County.

Six of the 27 to be tried on state charges also must stand trial in Federal Court in Wilmington May 12 on federal charges of kidnaping in the case of a couple spirited into South Carolina and flogged.

Williams had some sharp words for legislators who passed the local statute providing for grand jury rotation. A flaw in the statute forced the court to throw out the earlier indictments.

"The legislature ought to keep its hands off the courts," he said.

Annual Pulitzer Prizes Awarded

NEW YORK (AP) — His novel of the wartime Navy, "The Caine Mutiny," has brought Herman Wouk the annual Pulitzer Prize for fiction.

The stage drama award has gone to Joseph Kramm for his play "The Shiraz," a story of an estranged husband and wife set in the psychiatric ward of a city hospital.

In the newspaper field, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch's exposure of corruption in the Internal Revenue Bureau has won that daily its fifth Pulitzer Prize, the most awarded to a single newspaper.

John M. Hightower, foreign affairs reporter of the Associated Press, received the annual prize for international reporting for "the sustained quality of his coverage of news of international affairs" during 1951.

Selections for the 1952 Pulitzer awards were announced yesterday by trustees of Columbia University.

Wives Silenced By Police Order

CHICAGO (UP) — Wives of Chicago policemen have gone off the air for good.

States Righters Missing In Alabama Demo Primary

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UP) — States Righters were missing from the ballot today as Alabama Democrats went to the polls to choose 26 delegates to cast the state's votes.

Little interest was shown in primary maneuvering since 20 one of the 41 candidates was pledged to any presidential aspirant and the state's entire slate of 11 presidential electors must back the national party ticket in November.

Only 18 of the delegate seats were contested, there being only eight contestants for eight delegate-at-large posts.

A threatened test of strength between the Rebel States Rights faction and the "loyalist" group was prevented by a U.S. Supreme Court decision.

The high court upheld a ruling by the loyalist controlled State Democratic Executive Committee requiring all electors to pledge their support to the national party ticket.

Alabama's electoral votes were cast for the States Rights ticket in the 1948 general election after the state's delegation to the Democratic national convention staged a walkout.

The States Rights faction, led by former party executive committee Chairman Gessner T. McCorvey of Mobile, has indicated it might name an independent slate of presidential electors if dissatisfied with the national party candidate.

The group met in Montgomery following the Supreme Court decision and adopted a "wait and see" attitude. McCorvey said his group would take no action until after the national convention.

Polls opened at 8 a.m. CST for the primary, which in one-party Alabama is actually an election. In addition to naming the convention delegation, the voters selected six congressmen and a number of state and local officers.

Warming Up

The mercury ascended into the 60s yesterday, the first time in more than a week.

Highest recorded by the local Weather Bureau yesterday was an even 60 degrees. Lowest last night, 57, and at 8 a.m. the mercury was at 67, and steadily rising.

Yesterday a year ago, weather here was in striking contrast to that prevailing here during the last 24 hours. Mrs. Carl E. Malden, local observer for the U. S. Department of Commerce, stated. Highest temperature here yesterday a year ago was 71 degrees. Lowest that night, 48, and at 8 a.m. next day it was 56 degrees. Light drizzling rain that day.

Medical Care Is Radio-Controlled

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (AP) — U. S. health officers here are getting used to doctoring by "remote control."

Skippers aboard the big tuna clippers, which run between here and South America, call the federal health men by radiotelephone when they have a serious medical problem aboard.

Recently, the doctors advised treatment for Fred Passeri, 50, who suffered an eye injury aboard a vessel off Lower California. George Fukuzaki, a fisherman, also received radio advice when he became ill recently when his ship was near Acapulco, Mexico.

Stocks And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Led by railroad issues, stocks edged upward around mid-session today in moderately active dealings. Despite the modest improvement in the carriers around noon, dealings were highly restricted. Traders generally waited further developments in the steel situation. Sales in the first two hours of dealings totaled 470,000 shares, compared with 340,000 in the same period yesterday.

In the carriers, Atlantic Coast Line was the bright spot with a gain of 1 1/4 points to 96 1/2. Fractional gains were noted in Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Chesapeake & Ohio and Southern Pacific. Southern Railway at 57 1/2 was up 1 3/8 points.

Amerasia Petroleum responded to a favorable first quarter earnings report. The stock jumped 5 points to 215. Other pivots in this group firmed.

Steel shares were quiet and mixed. Bethlehem Steel dipped 1-8 to 48 3/8 and U. S. Steel, ex-dividend, was unchanged at 38. Automotive stocks tacked on small gains. Utilities also firmed.

Flesh Was Weak But Voice Willing For Radio Show

CLEVELAND (AP)—The flesh was weak but the voice was willing in the case of band leader Ted Lewis.

The old maestro of the top hat and clarinet was told he would have to stay in St. Luke's Hospital two weeks for treatment of a stomach ulcer.

"But my show must go on," he protested. Whereupon he summoned a crew of phonograph technicians and recorded several of his nostalgic songs while sitting up in bed.

Last night, with a stand-in conductor leading his orchestra, the recorded voice of Lewis rang through the Skyway Lounge Bar where he collapsed last Sunday.

NATO Approves Full Guarantee For Defense Of West Germany

PARIS (AP)—The North Atlantic Treaty Organization today formally approved plans to give West Germany the full guarantees of Western defense machinery after agreement is reached on the European Army.

The action came in approval by the NATO Council of a proposed protocol to the treaty on the European Army. The idea had been approved in principle at NATO's Lisbon meeting last February.

The protocol binds NATO members to come to the support of any member of the European Defense Community (EDC) in case of attack. France, Italy, Belgium, Holland, Luxembourg and West Germany are participating in EDC.

Since all except West Germany are also members of NATO, and are already promised support in case of attack, the new NATO guarantee will in effect apply only to Germany.

To go into effect the protocol will have to be ratified by the member nations. No action can be taken on this until the EDC treaty is finally worked out. It had been hoped to initial parts of the EDC treaty last week end, but a last minute hitch developed and now no action is expected before late this month.

The protocol works both ways. Not only will West Germany be given guarantees by NATO, but in approving the EDC treaty, West Germany will agree to come to the aid of any NATO nation in the event of attack.

Members of either group may call for a joint meeting of NATO and EDC if they think that their territorial integrity, political independence or security are threatened.

Provision is also made for a joint meeting of the two groups if any one thinks that the combined existence or integrity of either organization is threatened. This clause is intended to bring group pressure to bear in case any nation wishes to withdraw. It is believed that the French insisted on this provision as a guarantee against the possibility of a West German withdrawal from EDC.

Oil Settlement Outlook Is Poor

DENVER (UP)—Union officials representing 90,000 striking oil workers denied today that a new settlement reached in California would preclude any nationwide agreement ending their six-day old walkout.

And even though the union lowered its wage demands from 25 cents an hour to 18 1/2 cents, hopes for large-scale settlement were generally not encouraging.

O. A. Knight, president of the CIO Oil Workers International Union, said the strikers would be agreeable to the lowered figure as a basis for settlements.

However, Knight said the "reported settlement (in California) has nothing whatsoever to do with the current nationwide strike of oil workers."

But there are a few encouraging signs on the negotiations level.

James J. Spillane, regional director of the U.S. Mediation and Conciliation Service in Chicago, said union leaders in the Chicago area had given indications of their willingness to "bargain on a raise between 18 and 22 cents an hour."

Meanwhile in Washington, the Wage Stabilization Board entered the dispute for the first time, raising the possibility of a presidential appeal to end the walkout.

The board's course of action was uncertain. It said only that it would study the issues. It had turned the case back to the oil companies and the CIO, AFL and independent unions involved two weeks before 90,000 workers went on strike last Thursday.

Opera's Best Lungs In Fabulous Battle

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UP) — Some of the Metropolitan Opera's mightiest lungs battle the stopwatch today in a breath-holding contest designed to deflate a "hollow boast" by soprano Lily Pons. The petite prima donna puffed out her chest to christen a new mobile X-ray unit here, and bragged "I can hold my breath longer than anyone else at the Metropolitan."

"What's more," she added, "I can sing for 13 seconds without taking in more air."

Miss Pons hardly had time to catch her breath before Metropolitan lungs all over town were working overtime in a collective attempt to prove her wrong.

Members of the troupe promised newsmen a display of breath holding last night that would turn a frogman blue in the face, but they were forced to call it off because of a party.

They said they would hold the contest today, "and we'll take the wind out of her sails."

Tenor Jan Peerce was scornful. "I can hold my breath one minute and 13 seconds with my mouth full of pebbles," he said. "A hollow boast."

"Add one second to that for me," said Norman Scott. "I can hold my breath one minute and 14 seconds."

"Poof!" exclaimed Jerome Hines. "I challenge her to a contest under water as well as anywhere else."

"Astounded" by the diva's declaration that she is the opera's top breath holder, Kurt Baum commented "I'm very famous for it, too."

The argument submerged again with Baum's statement that "I can hold my breath a long time because I was a master swimmer in Europe."

Another famous soprano, Dorothy Kirsten, took herself out of contention.

"I'll concede to Lily," she said. "She's a pal of mine."

VEPCO To Slow Roanoke Project

Richmond, Va. (UP)—President J. G. Holtzclaw of the Virginia Electric and Power Co. said today that construction work on Vepco's proposed $27,000,000 hydroelectric plant at Roanoke Rapids, N.C., may be slowed down or halted entirely.

Holtzclaw said the stoppage may be necessary until the Supreme Court reviews the long-standing dispute between Vepco and Interior Secretary Oscar Chapman over Vepco's right to build the dam. He said, however, that full details on the Supreme Court's decision yesterday to review the case and hear arguments next fall would be awaited.

Earlier Holtzclaw said Vepco was taking a "calculated risk" in proceeding with preliminary work at the Roanoke River site after Chapman had said he would appeal to the Supreme Court. The Federal Power Commission gave Vepco authority to build the dam.

Meanwhile, in Raleigh, the North Carolina Utilities Commission received a request from Vepco yesterday to issue 494,642 shares of common stock to be used to finance about $50,000,000 worth of construction.

LONG BEACH, Calif. — (AP) — Scott Anderson, 55, is one of the few men who have had an elephant sit on his chest and lived to tell about it.

"I wouldn't be here now," Anderson said, if a pal hadn't come to my rescue with a bull hook."

Job-Hunting Is Assigned To Alumni Groups

NEW YORK — (AP) — Uncle Sam is forcing college alumni associations into the job placement field, says Dr. George H. Estabrook, Colgate University's placement director.

By June, 1953, he says, the functions of the college placement office will be absorbed by the alumni office. At that time large numbers of college graduates will shift from uniform to mufti. The great majority of these men will be seeking their first contact with business.

Colleges and universities should set up co-operative alumni placement centers in the large cities to which the returning graduate can apply, he says. Some institutions such as Yale, Cornell and Colgate already maintain this service as a part of normal alumni relations.

Drying And Storing Of Small Grain Featured

A demonstration calculated to review a practice which costs Pitt County farmers $1,200,000 annually will be held Wednesday, May 7, at the Greenville Livestock Auction Market.

Beginning at 3 p. m., the demonstration will deal primarily with the drying and storage of small grain, especially corn. County Farm Agent Sam Winchester said today.

He reported that treating of grain will also be discussed.

"We want to urge all farmers who raise corn and small grain to attend the demonstration," Winchester emphasized. "It is time farmers in this county began to store grain and hold it for higher prices rather than selling it directly from the fields at a substantial loss."

According to the farm agent, Pitt farmers sell off their farms every Fall approximately 1,600,000 bushels of corn. "Prices usually run around $1.00 a bushel which means that $1,600,000 worth of corn is sold right off Pitt County farms almost as soon as it is harvested," he stated.

"If the corn should be held over until Spring and sold at the prevailing price of around 1.75 per bushel, farmers would realize an additional profit of $1,200,000 for that same crop," the farm agent disclosed. "Almost a million and a quarter dollars are lost each year by farmers who do not store their grain and hold it over until Spring."

The meeting tomorrow is the last in a series of demonstrations held in 10 counties throughout the state beginning April 28. "More than 90 percent of corn losses in the state are due to excessive moisture," Winchester said, "and the demonstration will feature a portable drying bin and drier."

Dr. F. J. Bell, extension small grain specialist, N. C. State College, will lecture on harvesting the crop. E. S. Coates, agricultural, engineering extension specialist at the college will discuss drying of grain, and John Curtis, grain marketing specialist, will discuss marketing.

Rotarians Hear Talk On Buyer-Seller Relations

Buyer-seller relations were discussed last night for the Greenville Rotarians by Mrs. Cora Powell, Executive Secretary of the Greenville Merchants Association. Rotarian Lyman Ormond who introduced Mrs. Powell told of her many civic activities as well as her trade association accomplishments which have extended to the state level.

At the outset Mrs. Powell mentioned the importance of the employee in the buyer-seller relation. In fact she said this employee role in the relationship could not be over-emphasized. It is the employee who makes the direct and indirect contact with the buyer.

The importance of the telephone in the relationship was pointed out. Handling of credit was indicated as an excellent opportunity for building better buyer relationships. The speaker elaborated when she came to the matter of advertising urging the criterion of honesty in every advertisement. She urged that honesty as well as cost concern one. Discounts and scarce goods came in for comment. In conclusion Mrs. Powell cited an overall code one might follow.

Guests of the Club were E. D. Carr of Charlotte, John Stator of Bethel and Dan Taylor. Dr. Paul Jones of Farmville was the only visiting Rotarian last night. Charles Huffstetter and Jimmie Brewer were greeted as Junior Rotarians last night. Charles White, Club President, presided. The program was presented by H. L. Ormond.

DOOMROCK

BY ARCHIE JOSCELYN

AP Newsfeature

Chapter 30

His darting glance had assured him that Steve's holster was empty, that he was weaponless. The caricature of a smile played around Matt's mouth.

"You thought you could take my girl, and get away with it! Everything's gone wrong since you came back to the Bend! But this makes it all right. You've no gun. But then, and fortunately, I'm not afflicted with principles or qualms, as my dear brother would be! He wouldn't have anything to do with putting our brand on your cattle, or burning out his neighbors! Not Felix! He's gotten cold feet and backed out on the whole deal, but I'm a Tarson! So now I'm killing you!"

Matt had worked himself to a killing rage, never a difficult task for him, but he was worried about those who pursued. He cast a glance over his shoulder, and that gave Steve the one chance he'd have.

He had no gun, but he still had the Doomrock! His hand jerked the bag loose from around his neck, and he threw as Matt Tarson's revolver came clear of leather.

Whether this was luck or a prank of fate, it wasn't as Steve had figured. Tarson fired as the stone hurtled at him. By chance the leaden slug caught the stone at point-blank range blasting it into a thousand pieces. When the gun lifted again there would be nothing to stop or deflect the bullet.

But the revolver thudded to the ground from a hand gone suddenly lax. Blood made a quick red spurt along his arm near the elbow, and Matt pivoted, terror replacing the triumph. He saw the other horseman, the gleam of sun along the rifle barrel, even as the roar of the gun reached them.

Matt turned and ran. He reached his dready cayuse and gained the saddle, spurting the jaded beast to a momentary spurt.

Other riders, those who had pursued for hours, were appearing over the edge of the horizon now, and already they had sighted their prey.

The next moment Melody, dropping the rifle as she dropped the bridle reins, was beside him with a swirl of flying skirts, gathering him protectively in her arms.

"I suppose you hate me," she said finally, her words muffled against his chest, even while the comforting tightness of his arms belied such an emotion. "But if you do—you can't hate or despise me any more than I do myself, Steve—I as good as sent Burt to his death—"

"We all make mistakes," Steve said gently. "And, if he understood, I don't think Burt would hold it against you. So far as I'm concerned, that shot which you look at Matt saved my life."

"You were right," Steve nodded. "This is a wild, savage land. I can understand now how you felt about it from the beginning."

"It is a wild country—but I was wrong, Steve." Melody lifted her head, looked into his eyes. This is a new land, one yet to be tamed and made fruitful. A land of opportunity. I'm going to love it, Steve—I do now, since it has given you back to me."

Steve's arms tightened.

"And to reward that best, fittingly," he said huskily, "we'll lose the land—"

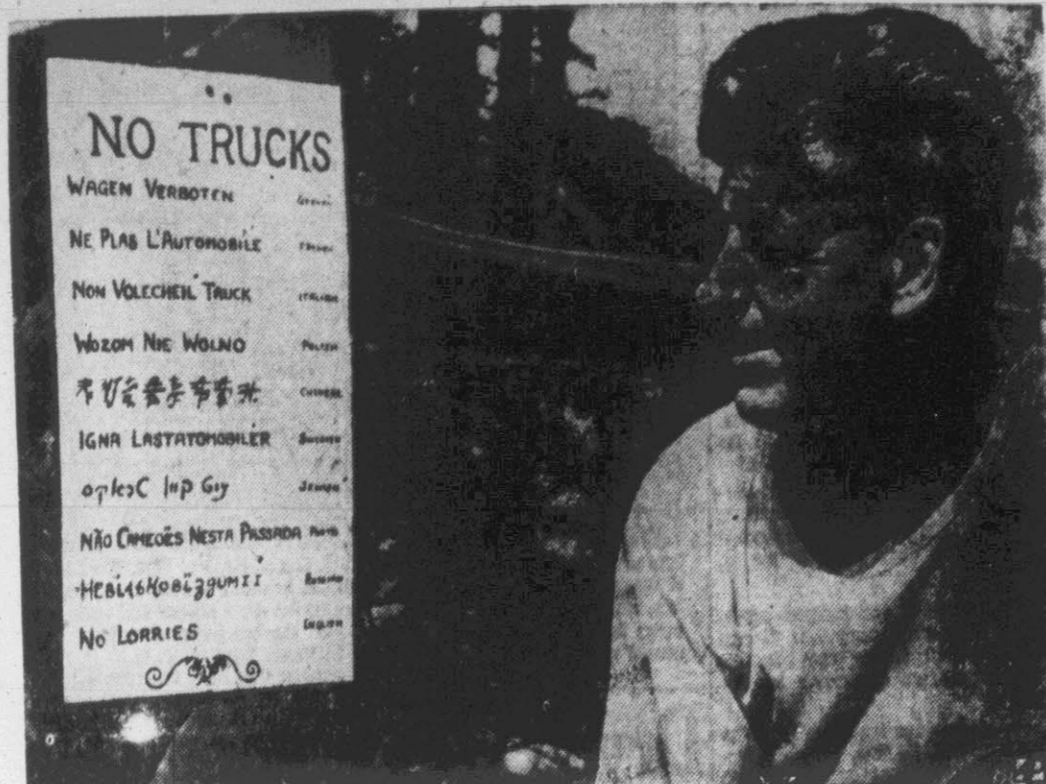

"No," she contradicted. "We won't. I arranged to pay off the whole thing, right away." She colored as she caught the look in his face. "You never asked me, Steve, but I have quite a bit of money of my own. And don't get that look in your eyes now! We're partners, aren't we?"

Again his arms tightened, more tenderly.

"I didn't make any mistake," she said. "We'll do big things, Sweetheart."

Felix Tarson shook his head, staring at the unfriendly circle of faces about him—men who had been his neighbors since the day he was born, but who, he realized now, had never been friends of the Tarsons.

I expect that you're in the right of it," he agreed quietly. A lot of cattle have been misbranded with the Tarson iron. Men have been murdered, robbed. Steve Russell, perhaps, killed because of last night's stampede. As I say, you are in the right of it. I won't argue.

PLAIN ENOUGH — To warn drivers, Carrol E. Geisler posted "No Trucks" signs in 16 languages barring them from his Newington, Conn., driveway. Chinese came from laundry ticket.

I'm one of the Tarsons. I stand with the Tarsons."

Reckon you're convicted out of your own mouth," Kriebels nodded.

He hesitated, doubtful of his own judgment. Then the line broke and surged, men exclaiming, questioning, as Melody and Steve rode up. Not until minutes later did anyone think of their prisoner.

Then Kriebel exclaimed, almost in regret as he turned.

You still here, Felix? I figured you'd cut and run for it—same as Matt done!"

Felix shrugged.

At least, Steve is still alive," he pointed out. And I'm glad of that, but nothing else has changed."

"A lot has changed," Steve said quietly. "Matt told me, today, that you're putting to have anything to do with putting the Noose brand on other cattle. Felix, or with the campaign of terror against your neighbors. Those were his ideas. You've spoken for peace and worked for it. I have a notion you'll be a good neighbor, from now on—that the rest of us will look to Noose when we need a friend."

Felix blinked rapidly, his face worked. He took a diffident step forward.

"You mean," he asked, "that you're giving me a new chance? Steve, I—I'd admire to shake hands—to really be friends."

"That goes double," Steve agreed. "The Doomrock is gone." Men looked at him curiously, not understanding the meaning in such a cryptic sentence. Felix Tarson swung to face them.

"As everybody knows, there's twice too many young stock wearin' the Noose brand," he said. "When we get them rounded up again, we'll correct that according to the losses of each outfit. I—I guess that's all I've got to say at present, since you're giving me a new chance, I'll see you all later. Right now," he turned with decision in his step. "I've got business in town! Something that won't wait!"

AP Newsfeature

Some young adults are just natural organizers or club joiners—one reason why so many letters to this column frequently begin "How can I start a..." or "where can I join a..."

When you get a letter which says specifically... I want to join a bowling club or a sewing club or a cooking club or even something indefinite like a social club, you know the youngster is on the right track. It shows young adults who are moody, feel in the need of companionship and ask "how can I join" without any idea of what or who is connected with the organization.

When you are contemplating joining a club ask yourself 1) Does the purpose of the club suit me and 2) Do I approve of the people who belong?

As suggested in Your Club Handbook" by Nancy McDowell, the purposes for which clubs are formed include the following: (1) To learn new skills (2) To practice and perfect old skills (3) To exchange ideas (4) To serve others (5) To further a cause or way of life (6) To have fun.

Miss McDowell suggests that if you want to make good use of your club-joining, that you analyze whether you are interested in the artistic, mechanical, literary, outdoor or other aspects of club life. Some groups which can help you in deciding where your best interests lie include: religious organizations, museums, hospitals, your grange, community council, neighborhood centers. If it is a school club in which you are interested you can be helped to decide by the club adviser or sponsor, guidance teacher or counselor, school newspaper student government representatives, bulletin boards, etc.

If you can't find a club which appeals to you, why not organize other people who share your interests, and start your own club?

It is not difficult. You begin by having an ice-breaking party, gathering all the interested young people together and discuss informally, the goal of the organization-to-be. After the preliminaries a constitution can be written or a less formal set of rules established. Often a list of rules covering lateness to meetings, back us and committees is all that a small organization needs to help govern them. Rules that might be suspended or changed completely should not be included.

Some clubs have bylaws only, listing under each topic all the things that relate to it. Many clubs omit a preamble and have 12 separate articles like this: (1) Name (2) Purpose (3) Membership (4) Officers (5) Meetings (6) Amendments.

As your club progresses, you will want to ask yourself whether 1) you want others to join (2) whether you offer cooperation to other groups (3) Are we asked to help in other community or school projects (4) Can we get help for our new projects.

Committees should be appointed to carry out the club's projects. Committee members either volunteer, are appointed by the president, are suggested by other club members or are elected by the entire club. Every member should have fun (and responsibility) of being on a committee some time.

Miss McDowell points out that frequent complaints from club members are that a group just doesn't have ideas, or that everybody wants to do something different. The club program should be needs and interests of the majority. If you are interested in what your group is doing, you should agree with the schedule.

Here is a list one club made of the qualifications its president would need: be able to remain neutral when differences arise, be dependable, have a sense of humor, be co-operative, make himself understood, not be a snob, like the job of president.

The maintaining is agreeable if you are going to belong to a club. You don't have to be wishy-washy and never give a clear-cut answer when voting.

Air Force Lists Air Commander Among 'Missing'

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—Col. Albert W. Schims, deputy commander of the U.S. 91st Fighter Wing, disappeared in an air battle with Communist fighters over North Korea on May Day, the Air Force announced today.

It listed Schims as "missing in action." He was presumed to have been shot down.

Seeking a rescue, Allied war planes yesterday shot down six Communist fighters, four of them MIG-15 jets, probably destroyed a fifth and damaged another.

Four MIGs were destroyed in a dusk battle between 30 American Sabers and 12 MIGs over MIG Alley. Earlier, the Sabers shot down two propeller-driven Red planes and damaged a MIG-15.

Only patrol activity was reported along the ground front.

Airplane Landed On North Pole

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UP)—Air Force C-47 has made the first landing in history at the geographic North Pole.

The landing was made Saturday after a 135-mile flight from T-3, a floating ice island in the Arctic.

The flight was made to carry out scientific observations of ocean depth and gravity field strength in the polar area.

METERS HIS DOG

LINTON, Ind. (UP)—Onlookers chuckled as an unidentified man here led a large black and white dog to a parking meter, tied the dog's leash to the meter, put a coin in the slot and walked away.

Gambling Stamp Ruled Illegal By Judge In Hearing

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — A federal court declared here today that the $50 gambling tax stamp and registration of gamblers is unconstitutional.

The decision by Judge George A. Welsh is expected to be appealed directly to the U.S. Supreme Court by the government.

Welsh ruled against the stamp fee and the furnishing of information to the Internal Revenue Bureau in an opinion sustaining a motion for dismissal of a criminal information against Joseph Kahriger, 38. Kahriger is one of 16 persons charged with failing to register as gamblers.

Judge Welsh's decision, which commended the "high purposes" of the act, termed illegal the provisions calling for payment of the $50 stamp fee, registration with the collector of internal revenue listing the place of business and posting there the government certificate showing that the registrant is engaged in gambling.

Welsh also said the listing of names of employees is objectionable because it makes gamblers informers for the state.

The decision held that the 10 per cent tax on gross income of gamblers, also included in the law's provisions, is constitutional "though it might be unwise."

Judge Welsh said that requiring gamblers to give information of themselves and their employees is self-incriminatory and also imposes punishment on those who violate state laws.

The jurist also ruled the law is discriminatory because it is aimed at bookies and numbers operators but does not cover other types of gamblers, such as bingo operators and those who run pari-mutuel machines.

"When the act departed from the field of taxable legislation and went into the field of morals and invaded the sanctuary of state control, it then became and now is the subject of judicial inspection," Welsh said.

However, the jurist praised the "laudable and even holy purposes" behind the legislation "to curb a present and growing evil."

"In the purpose of the act and the delegation of bureaucratic powers to create revenue or to constitute a host of informers?" Welsh asked.

He said the $50 tax actually is a penalty in the guise of an attempt to raise revenue.

The decision was the first interpreting the legality of the law by any federal court.

Secret Police In East Germany 'Retaliate'

BERLIN (UP) — Informed sources said today that Communist secret police have begun rounding up hundreds of known anti-Communists in Thuringia in retaliation for the slaying of an East German Red leader.

The East German news agency Adn reported that Alfred Sobik, identified only as a Communist party official, was beaten to death last Wednesday at a May Day meeting in Obergera in the East German province of Thuringia.

The agency charged Sobik was killed by two anti-Communists after he tried to stop them from shouting pro-Western slogans broadcast by the American - operated radio station in Western Berlin.

Over-Specialization Trend In Medical Fields Decried

PINEHURST, N. C. — AP — The executive secretary of the American Academy of General Practice today denounced what he described as a "trend toward over-specialization in medicine" and declared that corporate practice of medicine by hospitals threatens the system of medical practice in this country.

In a speech prepared for delivery before the annual convention of North Carolina Medical Society, Mac F. Cahal also had caustic criticism for socialized medicine.

"Our system of medical practice will function properly only if each family has a family doctor as a health consultant and adviser," Cahal asserted. "But there is an unmistakable tendency of hospitals to invade the practice of medicine through the medium of employed physicians."

"There are spokesmen for the hospital world who have stated frankly that hospitals should take over the practice of medicine, the hospital corporation collecting fees for services rendered by a full-time, salaried staff. Such a system would destroy the personal relationship between doctor and patient and retard medical progress."

On socialized medicine, Cahal said, "The questions of voluntary insurance versus specialized medicine involves the basic issues of free initiative versus government planning — questions on which the American people are divided."

"After thirty-five years of limited, socialized medicine, the people of England have now completely socialized health services in a system of nationalized medicine. The result has been medical chaos and financial bankruptcy of the system."

Cahal contended that voluntary health insurance plans and charity were sufficient to provide people in the United States on all its income levels with adequate medical care.

Tonight, the convention delegates will attend the president's dinner, the top social affair of the three-day meeting. President Frederick C. Hubbard of North Wilkesboro will deliver his annual address and Dr. John W. Cline, president of the American Medical Association, will speak on "Medicine in the First Half of the Twentieth Century."

The convention ends tomorrow following a joint meeting of the society and the State Board of Health and a final business meeting.

Expect Russians To Leave Japan

"But for the time being," foreign office spokesman Akira Miyazaki added, "we are not taking any steps to force them to leave."

Russia refused to sign the San Francisco Peace Treaty and still is technically at war with Japan.

Dog Saved By Third Victim

NEW YORK (AP) — Skippy almost went to the gas chamber as a three-time loser.

The 2-year-old white fox terrier was on trial before a health department officials accused of biting his third victim. All seven members of his owner's family turned out to tell the judge how Skippy had saved their lives by awakening them when fire broke out in their home last December.

The latest "bite victim" admitted he had really only been scratched. Skippy went free.

Red China Beating Propaganda Curbs

By JACK JAMES
United Press Staff Correspondent
HONGKONG — (UP) — There is no TV in China, radios are scarce, telephone and telegraph services are sketchy, newspaper are few and most people can't read anyway.

The Chinese Communists nevertheless are able to get their propaganda message across with speed and efficiency.

Hinterland farmers, in isolated villages connected with the outside world only by the paths atop paddy dikes, are for the first time learning about the "friendship" of Russia, the "atrocities" of UN troops in Korea and the "persecution" of minority groups and "peace loving" people in western countries.

In the set and stilted phrases of Communist propaganda, they are getting the first news they ever had.

To do this mammoth job, the Communists have mobilized their sketchy services and the energy of party members.

Postal Service Used
The entire postal system, always one of the most efficient public services in China, now has the job of handling circulation for the major official newspapers. Postal workers deliver papers, collect subscriptions and canvass for new readers. In rural areas, where illiteracy is high, they organize "reading groups" where illiterates meet regularly with a leader who reads and explains the news from the party newspaper.

In more isolated areas where regular delivery of newspapers is impossible, the "blackboard newspaper" is simply a slate at the local party headquarters, which is equipped with a radio. Each evening, Radio Peking carries a voice speed. It is copied on the blackboard newspaper and read aloud to the crowd which gathers.

A recent official announcement said that in east China alone, more than 100,000 blackboard newspapers have been set up, "bringing millions of formerly isolated readers into close touch with the affairs of the nation and the world."

Official reports say that 1,550,000 propagandists are engaged in work of that type. Individually and in groups, they are assigned to up-country villages and towns, or in some cases they're given circuit-riding assignments — territory which contains several small communities. Some of these propagandists are called "reporters," not because they report to the government, although they do that too, but because they report "to the people."

The duty of a reporter, according to the Peiping Peoples Daily, is to "interpret the policy of the Party and explain the governmental instructions to the people outside the Party."

"He is responsible," the Peoples Daily said, "for their receiving the right interpretation of current events."

Reports from Canton said that in December, when five Canadian nuns were tried for the deaths of children in the orphanage they operated there, few people in the city failed to hear of the trial. The proceedings were broadcast over the Canton radio and every radio owner in the city was told to place his radio in the window next to the street, and turn the volume on full.

Airliner Crash Fatal To Eleven

OSLO, Norway (UP) — A chartered Norwegian airliner crashed and burned on a mountain slope 120 miles southwest of Oslo last night, killing 11 of the 29 persons aboard.

Police identified the dead as eight passengers, all members of whaling crews returning from the Antarctic, and three of the four crew members. Ten survivors were injured seriously, but the remaining eight suffered only minor hurts.

First reports of the crash were given by six survivors who staggered in to a mountain farm about six miles from the crash scene, near Drangedal.

Two thousand volunteers from Drangedal and adjacent farms were mobilized to bring the remaining survivors to a hospital.

WANTED TO DRY OUT
HAMMOND, Ind. — (UP) — Police listened politely when a man stumbled into the city hall and implicated himself in a murder charge of drunkenness. "I had to do something to get in out of the rain," the man said later.
