249 Degrees Go To College Grads

Conferred In Ceremonies At East Carolina College This Morning As Final Event Of 43rd Annual Commencement; 51 AFROTC Students Commissioned

East Carolina College conferred degrees this morning on 249 graduates of the fall, winter, and spring quarters of 1951-1952.

President John D. Messick of East Carolina presided at ceremonies conducted in the Wright auditorium as a closing event of the 43rd Annual Commencement at the college. Dr. A. Hollis Edens, president of Duke University, was principal speaker at the graduation exercises.

Candidates for degrees included 24 for the master of arts, 195 for the bachelor of science, and 20 for the bachelor of arts. Both the master's degree and the bachelor of science degree are conferred by East Carolina upon those completing courses preparing them as teachers. Thus approximately 92 per cent of this year's graduates have done work in teacher-training at the college.

North Carolinians, who make up most of the 1952 graduation class, number 234 men and women. Fifteen of those receiving degrees are from the states of New Jersey, New York, Virginia, and West Virginia. Fifty-two North Carolina counties are represented among the graduates.

Commencement exercises this morning began with an academic procession of faculty members, graduates, and special guests of the college. As participants, dressed in traditional caps and gowns, moved into the Wright auditorium, the East Carolina Orchestra, directed by Dr. Kenneth N. Cuthbert played the processional.

A program of special music included an arrangement of Psalm 150 sung by the Women's Chorus under the direction of Dan E. Vornholt and the solo Franck's "O Lord, Most Holy" by Gladys Richard of the college faculty, soprano.

Recipients of scholarships and awards given annually at commencement were announced by Dr. Messick. Alice Billard of Wilmington received the Alexander B. Andrews Scholarship, which goes to a junior or senior woman student with a superior record in scholarship and leadership in campus activities.

Cecil Winslow of Hertford was given the John B. Christenbury Memorial Trophy. This award goes annually to a senior who is a member of a varsity athletic team and who has been outstanding in leadership, scholarship, and service to the college.

Aldred Wetherington of Silverdale received the Thomas Clay Williams Memorial Award presented by the college chapter of the Phi Omega Pi fraternity. It is given to the graduate with the highest scholastic record for four years of work in the department of business education.

Hilton Biggs of Williamston was the recipient of the James Fenly Spear, Jr. Memorial Award to an outstanding student majoring in the department of science.

During the morning's exercises, fifty-one students in the Air Force ROTC at East Carolina were commissioned as second lieutenants in the U. S. Air Force Reserve. Dr. Christine Wilton, faculty member of the science department,

Offers Challenge To Graduates On Their Principles

Rep. W. H. Judd Advises Listeners To Take Stock Of Themselves And Times

Dr. Walter H. Judd, Congressman from Minnesota and former physician-missionary in China, challenged 249 graduates of 1952 at East Carolina College Sunday to "take stock" of themselves and of their times and to choose the principles on which to build their lives.

Dr. Judd spoke at services conducted in the Wright auditorium Sunday morning as part of the 43rd annual commencement exercises at the college. Approximately 1500 people were present. President John D. Messick of East Carolina presided at the services, and Dr. Robert L. Holt of the college faculty gave the invocation.

The Hon. Herbert Bonner, Congressman from the First North Carolina District, introduced Dr. Judd as a "Christian gentleman" and a statesman whose ability and integrity, combined with his knowledge of the Orient, have made him an influential member of Congress, especially as a member of the Foreign Affairs Committee.

Dr. Judd based his sermon on the Epistle of the Apostle Paul to the Philippians, 3:13-14. He stressed the value of choosing one's way of life and of looking toward the future with firmness.

Living, he said, "in a twilight zone" between the world of the past and the world of the future, we face today a conspiracy to destroy what we believe in. The people in the Kremlin, he stated, intend to win, he stated. They will win, he continued, unless we follow a vision and out-work and out-endure them.

You have a chance, he told the graduates, to decide what is to come out of this twilight zone. A new day is dawning, he said, "one into which you can be driven by default or one which you can choose."

Urging them to "press toward the mark," he defined the goal in religion as the kingdom of heaven, and in politics as world organization on the basis of law and order.

A four-fold "prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus" was outlined by Dr. Judd for the graduates. The "prize" for the individual, said Dr. Judd, includes a sense of self respect and responsibility; a sense of usefulness to others; a sense of God's approval; and a sense of fellowship with an "on-going group" trying to build for men a better life in a better world.

Greenville Man Named N. C. Jaycee 'Man Of The Year'

Lester E. Turnage, Jr. of Greenville Saturday was named Jaycee "Man of the Year" at the annual North Carolina Jaycee Convention in Charlotte.

The cherished Distinguished Service Award was presented to Turnage at the annual awards luncheon early in the afternoon. The 29-year-old Greenville insurance and real estate agent earlier this year had been named local Jaycee's "Man of the Year."

Participating in a virtual "host" of civic activities during the past year, Turnage has been termed "the most progressive worker for civic improvement in the city." He was presented the coveted award as a climax of the awards luncheon held as the annual convention neared its end.

Approximately 25 clubs were represented at the convention and more than 1,000 Jaycees and their wives were in attendance. Also announced at the luncheon were names of clubs winning honors in the 27 divisions of Jaycee activity. More than 90 entries were submitted from the clubs represented.

Marrried to the former Miss Janet Chesnut of Vincennes, Ind., the local award recipient is a former native of neighboring Farmville. The couple have two children, David, four, and Sue, two. Turnage attended Farmville High School.

Big Inheritance Is No Surprise To 17-Year-Old

BRADENTON, Fla. (UP) — A $2,500,000 inheritance came as no surprise to 17-year-old Frederic Mueller.

"I really don't feel any different at all," said the high school junior yesterday. "I always knew I was going to come into a lot of money when my grandmother died."

"I can't even say I feel happy. It wasn't even a surprise." Frederic flew here with his mother from their home at Honolulu, after learning of the death last week of his grandmother, Mrs. O. B. Mueller.

Mrs. Mueller's husband, owner of a brass works at Port Huron, Mich., willed $2,000,000 to Frederic to be held in trust while his widow was alive. Mrs. Mueller's will left an additional $500,000 to the boy.

Oil Settlement Believed Nearer

DENVER (UP)—Nationwide settlement of the walkout of 90,000 oil workers appeared in sight today as sporadic reports of contract settlements kept coming in from across the country.

However, O. A. Knight, president of the CIO Oil Workers Union, the largest involved in walkout, indicated it would be some time before all the plant-by-plant negotiations were completed.

Asked if the strike was nearing an end, he said, "It all depends on the attitude of the companies."

Another union spokesman commented that "settlement is in sight — and has been ever since the Wage Stabilization Board put the lid on." The lid was the 15-cent ceiling the board put on the wage increase the oil workers could get early last week.

He said one of the principal delaying factors in the way of final settlement was the company-sponsored move to limit reopening of contracts for renegotiation for one year.

Most of the 22 CIO, AFL, and independent unions were demanding that the contracts be subject to renegotiation after six months.

Southern Demos Promise Fight ADA Strategy

North-South Schism Grows Following Pronouncements At Liberal Meet

WASHINGTON (UP) —irate Southern Democrats promised today a bitter end fight to prevent the party's national convention from being "captured" by the militant Northern liberals organized under the banner of Americans for Democratic Action.

The North-South schism, which Democratic National Chairman Frank E. McKinney has been trying desperately to close, gaped wide open again in the wake of the ADA's week-end meeting here.

Taking its cue from President Truman, who spoke to the 700 cheering delegates Saturday night, the ADA convention unanimously adopted a resolution opposing any "compromise" on the civil rights issue which led to a 1948 walkout by Southern Democrats.

The self-styled "non-Communist liberal" organization also blasted talk of a Democratic "harmony" ticket with Illinois Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson as the presidential candidate and Georgia's Sen. Richard B. Russell in the vice presidential spot.

The ADA said it cannot accept "any ticket on which liberalism and reaction are combined for the sake of artificial 'balance'."

The ADA declined to endorse any presidential candidate at this stage of the race, on the grounds that the situation is "extremely fluid" and "there is no reason to suppose that all possible candidates have declared themselves."

Backers of Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn) won a limited victory, however, when the convention said that any candidate seeking ADA support must "be committed to the elimination of corruption in our political life."

Russell declined to comment on the ADA's slap at his candidacy, but other Southern Democrats bridled at the suggestion that a labor-liberal coalition may dominate the party convention.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender (D-La.) told a reporter: "It is possible that this crowd will be able to select a Democratic candidate who will go down the line with their position. If that happens, I think it is possible that there may be a third candidate carrying the banner of Jeffersonian democracy."

Gov. James F. Byrnes of South Carolina, who warned last week that the South might bolt the party again if an "offensive" civil rights plank is nailed to its platform, said he had nothing to add to his previous statements.

Another influential Southern leader, who asked that his name be withheld, commented that ADA members "seem to think they're running the party, but we'll see about that."

will be presented as opposing further Federal encroachments on individual freedom; County To Have 60 Votes In State Convention; Candidates Recognized At Meeting

By JESS POINDEXTER Reflector Staff Writer

Following lengthy debate, Pitt County Democrats Saturday voted unanimously to adopt a resolution protesting the insertion of a compulsory FEPC plank in the national party platform.

Meeting in convention at the Pitt County Courthouse, delegates from the county's 12 precincts voted to approve the resolution and instructed that it be presented before the state convention in Raleigh Thursday, May 22.

The resolution was passed in Greenville Precinct No. 2 Saturday, May 10, at the precinct meeting there. When presented Saturday the resolution attracted a certain degree of criticism and debate, but was passed on a strong note of unified approval.

As passed in the precinct meeting and presented Saturday, the resolution reads: "On this the 10th day of May, 1952, the Democrats of Greenville Precinct No. 2, meeting in assembled session as authorized and directed by the custom and rules of the Democrat Party, do hereby resolve that they go on record as being opposed to the inclusion of a COMPULSORY Fair Employment Practices Commission plank in the National Democratic Platform. Be it also resolved that this resolution be presented to the Pitt County Democratic Convention on May 18, 1952."

In explaining the resolution to the gathering, Attorney Sam O. Worthington of Greenville said, "As I see it, the resolution is designed to merely put us on record as being opposed to putting that plank in the national party platform when time comes to draw it up. In so doing, we are assuming it will be included as advocated by President Truman." He added privately that he saw no reason at all why the resolution should not be adopted.

Pre and Con D. J. Wheeler, Jr., editor and publisher of The Daily Reflector, told the convention, "We want to make it clear that the resolution is in no wise concerned with the race issue. It is not a race question. We simply feel that the time has come to halt further encroachment upon individual freedom and private enterprise by the Federal Government." He added that the resolution is not opposed to FEPC from a voluntary standpoint but is definitely a protest against the compulsory aspect of the tentative bill.

Opponents of the resolution's adoption said they thought both the North and the South opposed the bill and did not want it passed. "But at this time the party needs all the strength and unity it can possibly obtain," one opponent stated. "The adoption of this resolution will only serve to emphasize the issue. It isn't the people that we mean but what people think we mean." He added that by the time it gets to the public it will probably be grossly misinterpreted.

Passed Unanimously County Executive Committee Chairman John G. Clark of Greenville instructed precinct delegates to regroup in small units and discuss the resolution before voting — every precinct vote by precinct. When the balloting was completed, every precinct in the county had cast a favorable vote for adoption.

The final vote was 348 in favor, none against. The Pitt County delegation will present the resolution before the state convention in Raleigh Thursday.

Even after the convention adjourned, spectators split up into small groups to discuss the measure but as Chairman Clark said, "Whether you pass the resolution or not, we want and plan to present a unified front when we go to Raleigh."

Pitt Has 60 Votes The chairman reported at the beginning of the meeting that by virtue of the total 9,965 votes cast in the last General Election for governor, Pitt County has 60 votes in the state convention. "Our strength in Raleigh is based upon our vote for governor, as we get one delegate for every 160 votes cast."

The number of delegates each precinct has, as based upon their vote for governor in 1948, is: Ayden, five; Beaver Dam, two; Belvoir, one; Bethel, four; Carolina, two; Chocod No. 1, two; Chocod No. 2, two; Chocod No. 3, one; Chocod No. 4, two; Falkland, two; Fountain, two; and Farmville six.

Greenville No. 1, one; Greenville No. 2, five and one half; Greenville No. 3, two and one half; Greenville No. 4, two; Greenville No. 5, three and one half; Greenville No. 6, three and one half; Greenville No. 7, one; Grifton, three; Falcous, one; Swift Creek, two; and Winterville, four.

Candidates Recognized "It has been the custom for many years to recognize our candidates for county offices," Clark asserted, and he asked them to stand for recognition. They were: Senator Paul Jones, and representatives Sam Worthington and Frank Kilpatrick, all running unopposed; Fifth District County Commissioner M. Brown Hodges and his opponent, R. Guy Jackson.

Re-Elected

At Saturday's meeting of the Pitt County Democratic Executive Committee, John G. Clark (above) of Greenville was unanimously re-elected chairman for the next two years.

For 12 consecutive years Clark has served as chairman of that key party organization in Pitt County. Also re-elected by unanimous vote at Saturday's meeting were Mrs. Curtis Spencer of Black Jack and Gilbert Peel of Greenville.

Mrs. Spencer was named vice-chairman and Peel was elected second vice-chairman and treasurer of the group. Both have also served several consecutive years in their respective offices.

of the Naval Academy." Joy himself nominated Harrison as his successor, Ellis said.

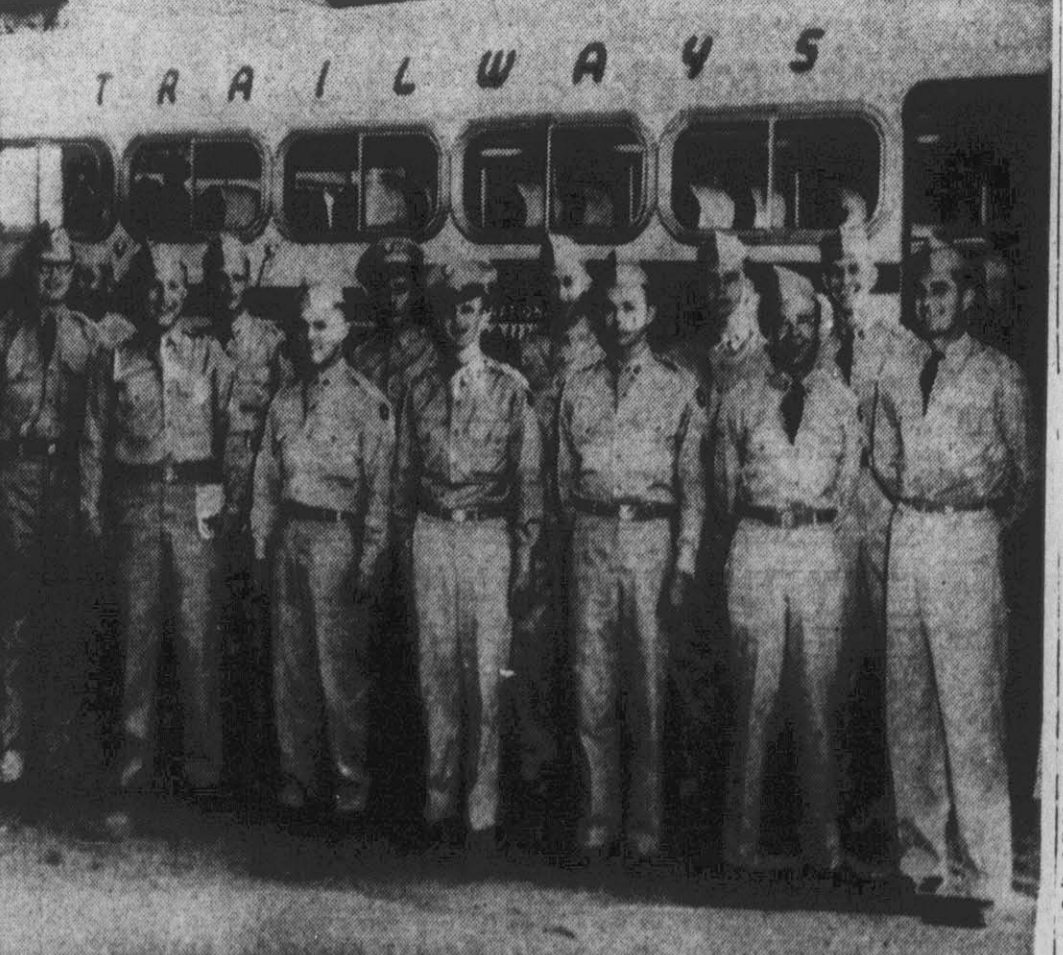

Joy is the only one remaining of the original five-member U. N. delegation that began negotiating with the Communists last July 10. All others have been reassigned.

Harrison, already a member of the U. N. truce team, also is deputy commander of the 8th Army. He joined the delegation Jan. 23.

Joy told newsmen after today's truce session in Panmunjom that the Communists have switched their line on screening prisoners only because K did not turn out the way they hoped.

They made their turnaround, he said, when it became known that only 70,000 of the 160,000 prisoners held by the Allies want to return to communism. The Reds, he said, had counted on a much greater number coming home.

For the occasion the house was decorated with profusions of flowers, with roses, peonies and yellow lilies predominating in the reception hall, drawing room and sunroom. Mr. and Mrs. Linwood Worthington were at the front door to welcome the callers and introduce them to the receiving line. In the receiving line were Henry Oglesby of Washington, D.C., president of the Alumni Association; Mr. James Butler, Alumni secretary, and Mrs. Butler; Dr. J. D. Messick, president of the college, and Mrs. Messick; Mrs. Ruth B. Garner, recipient of this year's Alumni award; and Miss Emma Hooper, member of the East Carolina College faculty who presented the award to Mrs. Garner during the morning Alumni meeting.

Program About Photography At Aries Book Club

The Aries Book Club met on last Thursday night with Mrs. Astor Richardson, club president.

New club books for the coming year were distributed by Mrs. W. Z. Morton Jr., chairman of the year-book committee.

The president expressed for club members regrets at the resignation of Mrs. Paul Powell, who soon leaves Greenville to make her home in Detroit.

Mrs. Leo Jenkins presented the program for the evening, which was a discussion of photography. She passed around several interesting pamphlets on movie cameras, the new film-o-sound, tips on color movie making and tips on editing and titling home movies. She explained the latest techniques on movie taking and she showed several film strips which had been taken by members of her family. The home movies, all in color, showed the arrival of Vice President Alben Barkley at the Greenville Airport two years ago; May Day at East Carolina College, 1950; her children at play in the oak tub; home scenes snapped inside her house; in the yard and in the swimming pool. She also ran a film of the Stephen Bartlette family which was made while they were living in Richmond. Her final film was a strip showing club members during one of the classes in first aid, which was taken in the fall.

The hostess served a dessert course with coffee to members and Mrs. W. W. Smiley, club sponsor, and Mrs. O. W. Eakes, mother of the hostess, guests for the meeting.

As the seniors entered and found their places marked by favors at a special table in the center of the room arranged in the class colors of blue and white, each was introduced by Principal E. P. Blair. Seated with the seniors, and presented by Principal Blair also was the class advisor, Mrs. L. P. Taylor, and the mascots, Kathy Lancaster and Clarence Lee Gault.

Mrs. J. E. Hellen, president of the association, gave the welcoming address, with Miss Inez Moore's class president responding. A short history of the Betterment Association was given by Mrs. E. P. Blair, followed by a delightful program presented by the Margaret Rose School of Dance of New Bern.

Rev. Sydney Matthews of Washington, a former rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, made a short talk and Principal Blair paid tribute to the accomplishments of the association and thanked its members for their splendid cooperation. The Woman's Betterment Association is one of Waneboro's oldest civic organizations.

Refreshments of block ice cream, individual cakes decorated in the class colors, mints and lime ice punch were served to approximately 200 persons.

Supper and Dance

The Grade Mothers of the Senior Class entertained with a buffet supper and dance in honor of the seniors Thursday night at the Woodman Hall. Sharing honors with the graduates were Mrs. L. P. Taylor, class advisor, the mascots, Kathy Lancaster and Clarence Lee Gault, their parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Lancaster Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Gault, and members of the high school faculty. The hall was decorated in the class colors, as was the refreshment table. During intermission refreshments of assorted open face sandwiches, salted nuts, mints and punch were served.

Grade Mothers are Mesdames F. G. Lancaster, B. L. Witherington, Maude Bryan, Rance Buck, Albert Morris, Frank Lane and Lawrence Wilson. Mrs. E. P. Blair, wife of the high school principal, also assisted the Grade Mothers with the entertainment.

Kiwanians Hear Musical Program

By CHESTER WALSH
Dr. Karl V. Gilbert of the music faculty of East Carolina College and family provided the program of music for the Kiwanis Club Friday night.

Dr. Gilbert played a violin solo, "Romance," from Violin Concerto, by Wieniawski. David Gilbert, his son, flutist, played "Ariosa," from Cantata 156, by Bach. Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert and David, as a trio, played "The Trio," by LeClair, for flute, violin and piano.

George Perry of the music faculty of East Carolina College, had charge of the program. President Milo Smith presided.

Secretary David C. Moore, Jr., called attention to the meeting of delegates to Carolinas Kiwanis District meetings of divisions 4, 5, 6, and 7, at Raleigh on May 22. Clubs in those divisions will be represented. Claude Hellman of Baltimore, president of Kiwanis International, will be the speaker. The meeting will be held at Sir Walter Hotel at 8:30 p.m.

Kiwanians Dr. Austin D. Bond, of East Carolina College faculty, and Dr. F. Elmer Lamsche, are delegates to the Kiwanis International Convention, to be held at Seattle, Washington, June 15-19.

Al Harrington of Burlington, and C. Dwight Garrett, Circ K officials, were guests of the club. Dr. John O. Reynolds announced that four Circle K Club members will attend the Kiwanis International Convention in Seattle. They are C. Dwight Garrett of Greenville, Roy F. Creech of Snow Hill, Cotton Klutz of Goldsboro, and Bob Robinson of Cool Springs, Ga. Robinson, a past president of Circle K Club, will appear on the Kiwanis International Convention program as a speaker.

David Clifford, a guest, won the attendance prize last night.

Three Kiwanians, A. C. Howard, W. G. (Blue) Dunn and J. Bryan Brown had birthdays and they each donated a dime for each year of their age.

Members of the Greenville Exchange Club will conduct a door-to-door sale of napkins Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

Money derived from the sale will be used to buy an audiometer, an instrument for testing the hearing of school children in Greenville and Pitt County. The Exchange will offer the napkins in five-box packages for a dollar each.

The Exchange Club is buying the audiometer. It will be used to test the hearing of school children. School and health officials say many children with defective hearing are backward in school. "If they are given treatment, nearly all of them brighten up, and become better scholars," President Bill Riggins stated.

Network Set Up For Hitch-Hiking By Servicemen

CHERRY POINT — Just as the propeller, so long synonymous with aviation, has given way to the "Jet Age", so has another accepted custom, although of not such a scientific nature fallen by the wayside here at the Marine Corps Air Station, Cherry Point, N. C.

In a new directive from the Sixth Naval District, "The Thumb" has been replaced with an extensive and more practical set of pickup stations for use of servicemen exclusively.

Stretching all the way from Florida up the east coast to New York, are found a series of well lit stations bearing the sign for all to see: "Official Servicemen Pickup". With these placed strategically on all main highways and intersections, the servicemen now finds "hitch-hiking" certainly a more pleasurable and rapid means of getting home on weekend passes.

Not only has this set of stations made traveling easier, but it also has reduced the hazardous practice of stopping to pick up Marines at busy and unprotected spots along the highway, which recently has been the cause for many accidents.

And so with the coming of the jet, television, atomic energy, and all the wonders of the new age, Marines here at Cherry Point welcome this small but important innovation in "hitch-hiking".

Strength for the Day

By EARL L. DOUGLASS
CAPACITY FOR CHOICE

Why did God create man with a capacity to make moral choices—a capacity which is so often used against divine interests?
Don't ask me that question, for I cannot answer it. And I advise you not to address this question to the Almighty, for, although He can answer it, I am sure He won't. The "whys" of creation are locked up in the mysteries of God. We had better accept this as a fact and make the best of it. Why God ever created anything is such a mystery that all other mysteries pale beside it.

But this we are justified in concluding—God is all-wise and all-powerful. If an all-wise and all-powerful deity created a situation in which His will can be contravened, then this must be to some good end. In the face of divine mystery, we must trust. It does no good to ask questions.

But observe the example which God has set before us. He allows man to have choice. Man may choose evil and reject good. He may choose to go to hell and reject the opportunity to go to heaven. God allows this. With such an example, how careful we should be about trying to arrange other people's lives. God allows us choice—we must accord the same right to others.

We Picked An All-State Winner

Greenville's civic organizations really picked a winner last January when they chose Lester Turnage as Young Man of the Year for 1951. Their selection and judgment was endorsed Saturday afternoon when Turnage was recognized as North Carolina's Young Man of the Year at the annual convention of the state's Jaycees.

This tribute to good citizenship was earned the hard way; the honoree having devoted a great deal of his time and much hard work for Greenville's people. He is a young man who has never refused to take time off from his daily task of making a living for himself and his family to aid in any way possible the never-ceasing program of making Greenville a better place to live. His activities covered a wide field, providing inspiration and example to co-workers and to people on the sidelines.

It seems that nearly all phases of community betterment work have enjoyed the Turnage touch, from Sunday School work to the Boy Scouts; from the Pitt Legion post to the County Red Cross Chapter; from recreation projects to civic beautification, and many others. In none of these fields was Lester Turnage a passive participant, but held posts of responsibility and did yeoman work in them.

Unquestionably, Greenville has benefited by the activities of this young man, and we hope there has been another indirect benefit . . . that of his example and inspiration to future civic leaders.

Taking the long view, the honors accorded Lester Turnage do not make up for the sacrifices he has made in the name of good citizenship. His greatest reward, and the grounds for most satisfaction, is in the knowledge that he has contributed to making Greenville a better home for himself and his family to enjoy in future years.

Ignoring The Issues Is Inviting A Coup

This is the year, political wiseacres say, when the Americans for Democratic Action are scheduled to assume leadership of the Democratic Party.

Strategy for the coup was probably tipped during the weekend, when the group staged a dinner at which President Truman spoke in Washington. The heart of the political tactics to which ADA members subscribed most enthusiastically was the repeated demands for going beyond the 1948 Democratic platform in social welfare proposals.

In essence, the liberal faction of the Democratic Party is planning to push for even more "liberalism" at the national convention by platform writers and by candidates for presidential nomination. If their influence is as great as has been ascribed to them in the past, they have a good chance to impose philosophies of federal power and welfare-ism outside the accepted thinking of the majority of Democrats.

The ADA is pretty cocky over its prospects.

Their national chairman, Francis Biddle, said: "This convention will be a preview of the Democratic national convention. The liberal-labor coalition in ADA will here and now determine the Chicago convention ground rules for candidates and issues in 1952." The convention did approve a program which Governor James Byrnes has warned would leave no room for the South in the Democratic Party.

Refusal by more conservative Democrats to accept this challenge on the excuse that it will "hurt" party unity is pure political cowardice and, an open invitation to the ADA to take over without a struggle. Any reluctance on the part of Democrats, in the South, in the North, in the East or in the West, to face up to issues must be combated. It is an issue worthy of positive action on the precinct, county, district and state levels. Ignoring the ADA challenge will not heal any divisions among the Democratic Party ranks, but turn existing cracks into canyons.

The answer to super-liberal aspirations of the ADA is in how the groundwork for the national convention is prepared on local and state levels. Such an attitude was apparent at the Pitt County Democratic convention, though only one positive recommendation was adopted. The next step will depend upon the forthcoming state Democratic conventions.

Harmony within the party is desirable. We can't very well hope to win this year's national elections with bitter dissension in our ranks. But if the chain of events is such that proponents of increased federal welfare-ism gain control of the Democratic Party, perhaps it would be in the national interest to shatter the ties with them that give them strength they are not properly entitled to call their own.

It's too early yet to plan a party bolt. But it is not too early to contemplate the actions that would force such a break in Southern political traditions and the results it would incur. Formation of a new political party, or the "casting out" of the super-liberals as false bearers of the Democratic Party label; and the possibility of alignment with the more progressive elements of the Republican Party are all steps to be cautiously considered by true Jeffersonian Democrats.

Thomas Jefferson is probably turning in his grave these days over the amazing changes that have been taking place in the political doctrines he helped formulate.

National Whirligig

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—With the presidential election only six months away, the labor-union government at Washington is confronted with more major industrial disputes than have faced any recent administration at a time when uninterrupted production is so vital to national welfare and security. Along with the Korean stalemate, the "cold war" and excessive taxes, that is today's most important and prophetic political reality.

Although the steel controversy occupies the public mind, labor troubles involve such other key defense industries as the railroads, aluminum and allied minerals, petroleum, communications and electrical equipment. Another problem may soon threaten in the coal fields.

Civilian and defense operations have had to be curtailed at home and abroad. So far, Truman has not been able to settle these disputes. To all practical purposes, the government is helpless.

LOP-SIDED—This strange situation, climaxing 20 years of an overfriendly labor government, is having the expected adverse reaction among legislators, judges, industrialists, the politicians and voters generally.

Such a paradox may easily result in stronger laws, judicial decisions and party actions which will establish a less lopsided relationship between big labor and big government.

In view of Truman's troubles, the two parties may come to the conclusion at Chicago that they have to pay too high a price to buy this vote with platform promises. Truman's generosity certainly has not made more comfortable his White House lot. Even Franklin D. Roosevelt, years ago, cried out: "A plague on both your houses!"

The politico-labor alliance has helped to keep the Democrats in power for twenty years. It is true. But it may also help to drive them from Washington next November.

PRESSURES—The next president, whether he be a Taft or an Eisenhower, a Kefauver or a Stevenson, may reach the same conclusion.

Even without the pressures of labor's current demands on the White House, and the seeming ingratitude of the union bosses, it is probable that none of the presidential potentials will surrender to this political bloc as Truman has done. None of the important candidates has approved his seizure of the steel plants. Politicians note ironically that the unions presently plaguing the administration are headed by the two leaders who have been the exclusive beneficiaries of presidential generosity—William Green, president of the AFL, and Philip Murray, who heads the CIO. It is their men who have stepped or threatened to halt national defense production and services.

On the other hand, John L. Lewis is comparatively quiescent, although he has been heavily fined and penalized in other ways by Truman. John L. believes from experience that government-labor truce is disadvantageous to the workers in the long run. In one of his current publications, he reiterates his belief that they should never marry. He is happy over his divorce.

SHOWDOWN—The deepest imprint of the current labor crisis has been made on the legislators on Capitol Hill. Only the more radical members, spokesmen for the Americans for Democratic Action, now approve the result of Truman's coddling of the unions. Their mail reflects the voters' objections to his steel deals. Congress has repeatedly rebuffed Truman's efforts to repeal the Taft-Hartley Act. Now, it seems to be in a mood to strengthen the law which he refuses to utilize.

It is doubtful if Congress will enact such a measure at this election-eve session. Members will first want to observe the effect of the steel seizure and Truman's claim of "inherent powers" on the electorate.

But if the GOP wins next November on this and related issues, and especially if it carries the House (an anti-Truman coalition already dominates the Senate), Philip Murray may regret the day when he challenged Uncle Sam to a showdown.

DILEMMA—Next the president took over private property under self-assumed and self-claimed power, and sought to impose his own wage scales and working conditions during the period of alleged emergency. If he can do that to an industry, he can do it to every farm, business, individual and labor union by insisting that their activity or product is essential to national welfare and security.

In simple essence, that is the dilemma as a majority in Congress see it. And the legislative body plans to enact a labor-management law that will end this threat to individual liberty once and for all.

Around Capitol Square

By LYNN NISBET

F. O. B. Young Democrats, the term including members of the Young Democratic Clubs and all Democratic women regardless of birth dates, want "F. O. B. at Destination" delivery of honors in the party organization.

In business parlance that means the shipper pays the freight and guarantees arrival of the goods to the consignee. The YDC and women do not want to pay the freight by taking the active interest in political affairs that would assure them much larger voice in party councils.

EXAMPLES—Some years ago the women obtained inclusion in the Democratic plan of organization the provision that either the chairman or vice chairman of precinct, county and state committees must be a woman. At the most recent session of the state committee women were further "protected" by revision of the plan so as to strengthen the requirement that one-half the members must be women. Subsequently the Young Democrats had written into the plan provision for the state YDC president to be an ex-officio voting member of the overall state committee. At the recent YDC meeting at the Winston-Salem there was some off-record talk about demanding that the regular state convention select one or more delegates to the national convention from YDC membership ranks.

LAZY—This is the lazy and easy way to get recognition, and because it has worked in the past there is disposition on part of women and young folks to rely upon continuing the process instead of pitching in and taking what they want—which they can very easily do if they want to put out the energy. Some of the older men in the party are frankly getting tired of having these appeals for special consideration come up every time the organization Democrats get together. Simple mathematics prove that the women have the latent power to make their opinions felt.

MAJORITY—Among North Carolinians of voting age there are approximately 35,000 more women than men. Assuming the division of about two-thirds Democrat, one-third Republican, as indicated by recent election returns, there are between 20,000 and 25,000 more women than men eligible to vote in Democratic primaries and participate in party conventions. That works down to a county average of 200-250, meaning that in several of the larger counties Democratic women outnumber Democratic men by more than 1,000. Why should they beg for special favors, when they have that much power to take over?

YDC.—The Young Democratic Clubs are in somewhat different position. Certainly a majority of active Democrats come within the age group of eligibility for YDC office holding—21 to 40. Most of the younger folks who take part in YDC affairs also participate in general party activities. Therefore, a request for special designation of someone elected by the YDC, when the same members have equal right to vote for other committee members and delegates, is pleading for unearned favoritism, and in effect asking for double-voting privileges.

POOR GRACE—Some of the protests about not getting their pro rata part of party honors come with poor grace. At the YDC meeting, advertised as a state-wide rally, there were not more than 100 bona fide YDC members. In several precincts from which have come cries of women not being named on the local committee, it has been ascertained that not a single woman attended the precinct meeting last Saturday. Most of the precinct meetings attracted less than a dozen men, so it would have been an easy matter for a few women to take control. There is little to be gained by complaining because the few men did not see fit to give the women something the women did not value enough to come and get.

REMEDY—The younger men show more disposition to do something about the situation than do the women. There is only one woman candidate for the State Senate, which has 50 seats, and only three for the House of Representatives, with 120 seats open. Figures are not at hand on ages of men candidates, but it is known that a substantial number—probably more than half the total—are below the 40-year limit for YDC office-holding. And young folks are really moving in on the congressional delegation.

YOUTHFUL—Among the congressional candidates Lawrence Fountain in the second district, Hugh Alexander in the ninth, and Fank Parker in the twelfth are right close to the 40 year mark. Tom Sawyer in the sixth and Joe Tally in the seventh are far below that mark, while Graham Carlson in the ninth hasn't reached his 30th birthday. These fellows have the right idea. Instead of sitting back and asking that recognition be served on a silver platter, they are marching up to the counter, picking out what they want, and paying for it by their own efforts.

PROSPECTS—In every instance these youngsters are facing competition from older, more experienced and deeply entrenched political operators. The same is true of a great many of the candidates for the General Assembly. Information bathed in

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

While there are many areas in which unemployment is at distress levels, there is a broad and worsening shortage of skilled manpower.

In regions where there are many defense plants, the demand for engineers, draftsmen and skilled craftsmen is so high that wage stabilization rules have become a joke. There are cases of men finally coming back to the plants from which they started at greatly increased ratings and pay.

The Department of Labor estimates that of the 2,300,000 additional workers needed for defense production before the end of the year, a large percentage will require training. W. F. Patterson, director of the Department's Bureau of Apprenticeship, says the dearth of experienced workers in the labor market is so great that state agencies and industry should intensify training programs. He said the shortages of draftsmen is "alarming," and the shortages of molders and core-makers, patternmakers, aircraft and engine mechanics, shipriggers, splitters, boiler-makers, blacksmiths, heat treaters, wire weavers and ten other categories of skilled labor are almost as serious.

Expansion of the natural gas industry will require 2,500 new supervisory and management employees during the next ten years, F. O. Rouse, manpower consultant, told the American Gas Association recently. Fewer than half the number of engineers needed in industry and government will be graduated by engineering schools during the next five years, he added. As a consequence, industries will have to develop its own technical and management talent to survive, he added.

Meanwhile, the colleges have been well raided. June engineering graduates are almost 100 per cent up, many at higher pay than their teachers. Most accepted positions last year; talent scouts are now working on the winter and 1953 summer crops.

Some bits are available. ANNUAL REPORT—The most unorthodox annual report for 1951 is that by Motorola. It is a folder that opens up to 22 by 34 inches and all the information is conveyed in four-color cartoons.

The center spread is a cartoon of a western town at round-up time and the essential facts appear as signs on store fronts. The $8,300,000 tax bill, with grim appropriateness, is on the undertaker's parlor. There are no tables of figures, except those painted on a sign in another cartoon, and these show the company's profit-sharing fund has grown to $10,582,000 since 1947 and that an $800 contribution is now worth $5,061.

Built into the folder are two dials which, as turned, show what happened during each month of 1951, and what the company's figures are on a one-man-business basis. The only non-cartoon bit on the folder is a photo of boyish-faced Robert Galvin, executive vice president.

2 MILLIONTH PATENT IN PUBLIC DOMAIN
The 2,000,000th U. S. patent has just expired, the National Patent Council announces. It was a patent on an adaptation of pneumatic tires to rail travel and was issued to Joseph Ledwinka, assigned to the Budd manufacturing company.

Patents expire in 17 years and this and the 1,999,999 patents issued before it may now be used by anyone "without royalty."

SPORT SHIRTS RISE TO 70 PERCENT TOTAL
Of shirts produced in March, 70 per cent were sport shirts, the National Association of Shirt, Pajama and Sportswear Manufacturers reports. That is the highest ratio sport shirts ever reached.

Of the sport shirts, 48 per cent were cotton and 51 per cent rayon, compared with year ago ratios of 44 to 56.

INFLATION HEDGE IN FRENCH BONDS
France is not going back to the gold standard, but it is winking in that direction. A new French bond is redeemable in francs, but the redemption value will be determined by the free-market price of the gold Napoleon at maturity.

The same idea has been suggested by American economists, but has not found favor in Washington. The economists have proposed savings bonds of which the redemption value would rise and fall with the purchasing power of the dollar.

NEW PRODUCTS
PLEATERS: Adjustable drapery carriers with deep-fold pleater forms are being introduced by Artforge, Inc., 2320 S. Western, Chicago for the installation with screws of standard window frames. Slipping pleater forms through hems of drapery and hooking onto cranes is said to eliminate the need for hooks, weights, pins or stiffening.

Hal Boyle's Column

By CYNTHIA LOWRY (For HAL BOYLE)

Each Memorial Day my thoughts turn to a young Air Force pilot from Texas, who died did more for international relations than most of us do in a lifetime.

He died in the skies over a tiny farm village north of Paris during the closing phases of the war. The Germans were still occupying France and Remy, and one summer's day they slid a trainload of nitroglycerin onto the village siding.

The Resistance sneaked down of the target to the Free French, and three American planes came over on a bombing mission. The first plane scored a direct hit, and when the third plane, piloted by the Texan, roared in low, the plane received the full impact of the explosion.

The plane crashed in the front yard of the Norman farm owned by the Baroness and her husband, a well-to-do old baroness who was sheltering a household of Paris relatives. The blast of nitroglycerin killed some 400 Germans as well as a number of villagers, and wrecked many farm buildings and pock-marked the old church in the center of the village for eternity.

But when the plane crashed, the Baroness and her brood ran from the house and braved the flames of the plane to pull out the pilot. They wrapped him in the white silk of his parachute and took him in the house. Then the Germans came and ordered the burial.

I came to Remy to visit the old lady after the Germans had been driven from France and the Allies were driving beyond the Rhine. Greetings were scarcely over when she took us to the village graveyard beside the pillared stone church to introduce us to the man all Remy knew and protected as "The American."

His grave was in the very heart of the little cemetery, surrounded by the resting places and small stones marking of generations of French peasant farmers. Later, the best-kept grave in the cemetery—neatly bordered with pansies, and carefully trimmed and cultivated. The whole village, said Madame proudly, joined together to take care of "The American's" grave, even some of the villagers who had been crippled by the explosion.

But to me, it was the marker of The American's grave which told of Remy's care. It was the twisted, warped propeller of his plane, rearing up grotesquely and like modern abstract sculpture in the simple old graveyard.

And, painstakingly and amateurishly inscribed on its glittering metal, was his name and all the other information, including his blood-type, copies, letter, number for number, from the young man's dog-tags, the only identification they had.

My hostess, tears in her eyes as she relived the story, told me excitedly how the people had hidden the propeller until the Germans left, and how one of them had worked in secret to mark it. As soon as the Germans left, he had buried the propeller among their own people. Later, after the Americans and British and French came to France, she wrote to the boy's parents in Texas, and they in turn wrote back, enclosing pictures of the

What Other Papers Are Thinking

TWO CAMPAIGNS (Asheville Citizen)

Candidate-for Governor William B. Umstead and Candidate-for Governor Hubert E. Olive are striving to outdo one another in proving exclusive devotion to various causes of social and economic welfare.

Mr. Umstead reminds Mr. Olive that he (Mr. Umstead) is the forefront of the health and medical care program in North Carolina—and where was Mr. Olive? And Mr. Olive, for his part, is critical of the Umstead record on support of legislation for the tobacco farmer.

Two years ago this May two candidates for the United States Senate were up in a raucous campaign in which social and economic conservation was the major issue. This May the gubernatorial campaign seems to revolve around competing claims to social and economic liberalism.

In both instances, we assume, candidates thought they were reading the minds of the voters. But North Carolina—how she do change! And isn't she wonderfully incoherent!

LOOSE FIGURES (Wilson Times)

In the conflict between labor and management, figures are thrown around loosely. Labor frequently includes fictitious profits, where industry doesn't.

For example, a company requiring steel in normal times would keep a 30-day supply on hand. Since Korea, however, many have tried to step that up to a six-month supply. If they were lucky enough to do it and if, too, in the meantime, the price of steel advanced, the company made a profit on its inventory. But is that a real or a fictitious profit? Labor calls it real; industry does not.

Last year the corporate income of the nation was $44,800,000,000. Of that, however, the government got $26,700,000,000 in taxes. It left only $18,100,000,000 for stockholders and expansion. The former $8,600,000,000. Now, let's apply the labor formula to all that. If those corporate profits total to $30,000,000,000, the government would collect $3,890,000,000 in taxes, for it collects an average of 60 per cent.

But fancy what a drop of that size would do to labor! It would entail layoffs on a large scale. It was only six years ago that corporate profits were running at the level of $20,000,000,000 a year. Again adopting labor's position, "you make the money, so pay," what would labor's attitude be if they dropped to that level again? For common-sense tells that that inventory and a bank balance aren't one and the same thing. You can't pay payrolls with inventory. Labor, however, insists on calling inventory profits and demands a share. When, as can happen soon, business gets back to a 30-day inventory, taking losses rather than profits on what it has on hand, will labor say, "you don't make money; so you won't have to pay me as much." Are we or are we not living on a two-way street?

LOOK TO YOUR LEADERS (Williamston Enterprise)

From the beginning of time the favorite alibi of a man, a nation or a race, for going astray has been the defection of the leader. He was the one to blame. He was the sin. The others simply followed.

But that is one alibi that won't hold water in a democratic society. For where the people determine upon their leader—he is their servant—their representative.

Whether a corrupt or dishonest leader is in authority he stays there with the consent of those who placed him in such a position—or which is most usual, through their indifference.

David Harum said, "You can't have an honest horse race until you have an honest human race." And you can't have honest and honorable leaders unless the honest and honorable people will get out and put them into power and help them in every way to carry out their appointed tasks.

The crying need of the world today is leadership—in international relations, in national affairs, in local offices—and in all branches of our daily life. Good leaders are hard to find because the task of conscientious, honest, objective leadership is a difficult, thankless one.

As a people we are too apt to put up with mediocrity rather than to get out and bestir ourselves to find men who can properly represent us. We are too easily taken in by a glib tongue and easy confident manner.

What we must do is to remember that our leaders represent us—they are the embodiment of the things for which we stand, of the principles in which we believe. We must be as sure of their integrity in all things as we are responsible. Let us look back them wholeheartedly, in action as well as in speech—for we are responsible. Let us look to our leaders.

A couple of years ago, I went back to Remy to see the Baroness and to see the graveyard. I went to the cemetery first. The grave had been a patch of green grass. The Americans had taken "The American" a way back to his own country.

Then I called on the Baroness. In the front yard where the plane had crashed, in the middle of her formal garden, was a small cross and a vase of fresh flowers beside it. Inside the room, was a framed picture of The American.

They have not forgotten him in Remy. Tourists don't come to the village; most of the people have never met Americans. But because of the young pilot from Texas, dead these eight years, they like us.

Washington Letter

By NADEANE WALKER (For JANE EADS)

PARIS—Mamie Eisenhower is a retiring woman who firmly refuses to talk to reporters. Some of her friends and relatives, Mrs. Eisenhower would have preferred a quiet, private life to a goldfish-bowl existence in the White House. The beautiful, 14-room villa at Marne-la-Coquette, near Paris, will be only the most recent of a series of homes she has had to leave regretfully behind her.

Mrs. Eisenhower suffers from a heart condition which, while not dangerous, obliges her to be cautious.

She keeps a birthday book for her three grandchildren and five godchildren. She gave her husband a putting green as a housewarming present when they moved in after six months in a Versailles hotel.

Mamie Eisenhower, in high heels, is nearly as tall as her husband. She has large, dark eyes in a rather pert face, and always wears her graying dark hair cut quite short and in bangs in front to cover a small bald spot or receding hairline on the forehead, it is said. She usually wears suits or boxy, loose coats in her public appearances.

Born Mamie Geneva Doud, daughter of a wealthy western meat-packing family, she was married to Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1916. Her age is apparently a military secret. One of their sons died in infancy, and the other is Maj. John Sheldon Doud Eisenhower, of Fort Knox.

While the General is a bridge fan, Mrs. Ike does not canasta. She, like her food, reads autobiographies and who-dun-it, is fond of both popular and classical music, has given up gardening, but spends any spare time knitting for friends and grandchildren.

If Ike elected, there will still be a piano player in the White House, for Mamie plays a bit herself, although she is modest about this accomplishment.

The Eisenhowers' Gettysburg, Pa., farm, purchased when they could not have lived in Colorado, was almost certainly the summer White House and favorite family residence if the General should become the President.

The Nice Long Vacation

By William Neubauer

Chapter 11
The following week saw the first great influx of summer campers. Thanks to Mr. Forsythe's superb direction and the hard work done by every member of the staff, all was in readiness for them. The squalls of delight which came from the women campers and the grins of their husbands, brothers and boy friends rewarded everyone who had taken a part in whipping Camp Joy into shape. Even Jane, who was now more preoccupied than ever with her dream, her eternal dream, felt rather proud of herself as the business of helping people to have enjoyable vacations got off to a flying start. Looking across the mess hall at Evelyn, one night, she forgot that her tent-mate was angry with her and smiled and nodded. Evelyn simply sniffed and averted her eyes, but that didn't perturb Jane in the least. After supper she followed the girl along the path to Officers' Row and sat down beside her on the bench overlooking Lake Champlain. "Nice evening, don't you think? You know, there was once a time when I was always humbled by the magnificence of an evening sky. Then I got to thinking. I suddenly realized one day that I like the sky, was a part of the whole Creation and therefore, in a broad sense, the equal of the sky in majesty, in beauty, in purity."

Evelyn's eyes flashed. "The word purity is ill-advised, I should say." She twisted on the bench. "I was never so surprised in my life. You never impressed me as being the sort who would make love to another woman's husband. Strange, I felt from the very beginning that you were one of the finest girls I'd ever met."
Jane sighed. "You're terribly young, aren't you? Black is black and white is white. But how nonsensical! Very often the end justifies the means."
Evelyn, her face pale, rose to her feet. She was so angry she quivered. But when she spoke her tone was steady. "All week long I've been trying to decide what to do. I'm not a tattletale. But on the other hand, I'm not a girl who can condone such behavior. I won't live with you any more."
"As you choose," Jane hitched up her slacks. "Do I move out or do you?"
It caught Evelyn completely by surprise. She had hoped that somehow she could bring Jane Bancroft to her senses. But this! She sat down, shaking her head. "You haven't a shred of decency in you, have you? You live for yourself alone. To the dickens with me or with his wife or with anyone who stands in your way or tries to bring you to your senses." But Jane, being human, could endure just so much. "I think I should remind you, Evelyn, that you're poking your nose into something that doesn't concern you. But if you wish to tell Mr. Forsythe, you may, and if you wish to move out of the tent, you may do that, too. As for the rest—well, to be perfectly blunt, I am not interested."
Headless of the girl's outcry of rage, she turned and struck off along a path that led up toward a little hill that gave one a grand view of the vast purple and flame lake. Here, where Evelyn couldn't see her, she gave expression to the agitation which had been churning through her almost from the first moment she had seen George Poppletton again. She didn't bother to wipe away the tears, either. A long time ago she had discovered it was wiser to let them flow unchecked. When she reached the summit at last and sat down, she had the view she had wanted and the beauty of nature as she had wanted, and the peace and quiet and the opportunity to think that she had wanted.

all. The same man, except that now he had a wife and didn't seem quite as eager for the Army nurse's kisses as he once had been. She bit her lips, feeling furious with him. Five long, long years, and all that he had been able to say was that he was in love with the English woman he had married! She marveled now that she had been able to control the impulse she'd had to slap his face. Never had she been so angry with a man as she had been then. If it had not been for the desperate longing within her, her sharp, aching need of him, she would have abandoned him to the horrible fate he had prepared for himself. But at the back of her mind had been the knowledge that he had never, never known what was best for him. The salty tang of his kiss still seemed to linger on her lips, the warmth of it still seemed to course through her body. The memory of that brief moment of rapture had the effect of putting an end to her tears. Suddenly her vision cleared, suddenly the great lovely world before her came back into focus. Startled, she half rose, then sank back onto the grassy slope she had found to sit on. "You walk very quietly," she said to the tall, wiry man who was standing under a spruce, looking at her. "Have you Indian blood in your veins?"

George Poppletton. She remembered him as he had looked that day last week when he had come to Officers' Row with Mr. Forsythe. She had been afraid that he would have changed so much since the last time she had seen him in France that she would scarcely be able to recognize him. But that hadn't been the case at

Greenies Win In Wild Game Saturday, 19-9

Pete Stuart Homers Sundays To Give Stantonburg 5-3 Win; Total Of 28 Walks Issued In The First Game

By MELVIN LANG

Greenville jumped on four Stantonburg hurlers here Saturday night to pound out a one-sided 19-9 victory within the Bright Belt League. Stantonburg took the second game of the series yesterday 5-3, as a fifth inning home run by Pete Stuart.

Nine runs in the second inning paved the way for the Greenies win Saturday night. Simon Hardison was the big noise of the inning, leading off with a single. Hardison sent four runs home in the same frame by slugging a pitch off pitcher Vick over the right-field fence, 240 feet away, with the bases loaded.

Hardison was the leader in the 14-hit attack garnered by the winners. He collected three singles, a home run, a walk, and was struck by the pitcher in six times at bat, and scored five runs.

George Porter started on the mound for Greenville, and had a shut-out working until the sixth inning. Porter lost his control in the sixth frame and issued four bases on balls. Porter walked in one run, turned in another on a wild pitch, and allowed the third run to come in when he missed the base on an attempt for the third out at first base. B. E. Ricks relieved him and promptly walked in the fourth run of the inning.

A home run in the fifth inning by Pete Stuart, former infielder for Wilson's Tobs, broke up Sunday's game between the same two teams, and gave Stantonburg a 5-3 victory. John Allen Corbett and Luther McKee were on base when Stuart slugged out his song blow.

Jack Boykin went the distance for the winners, allowing but four hits over the nine-inning route. Boykin held the Greenville team to single runs in the third, fourth, and fifth innings.

Greenville took the lead in the third with a singleton. October Troy Sears walked with one out, and moved to second on an infield out by Stancil Hardison. Instead of stopping at second, Sears continued on to third and Fern Bissette, Stantonburg first baseman, threw wild in an attempt to catch him at third base, with Sears scoring.

Greenville goes to Fremont Wednesday afternoon, and returns to Farmville Saturday night. Farmville comes to Greenville Sunday afternoon.

Nats Take Second As White Sox Lose, 2-1

By CARL LUNDQUIST

NEW YORK (UP)—Bucky Harris can't tell any more who will be in his starting lineup until after he meets the morning train. But the little boss of the Washington Senators was making a fine bid for manager of the year honors today with players who have just come over from other clubs.

The Senators were the American League's "best bet" to finish last in the pre-season calculations, but now it looks as if they not only could stay in the first division but battle some of the contenders right to the finish.

Harris, whose proudest boast is that "I never finished last in 28 years as a manager in the big leagues", now has his Nats in second place and hustling for a chance to overtake the leading Cleveland Indians.

The team appears to be much stronger than at the start of the season after deals in which he got outfielders Jackis Jensen and Archie Wilson, and pitcher Frank Shea from the New York Yankees, outfielder Jim Busby from the Chicago White Sox, and pitcher Lou Sleater and infielder Fred Marsh from the St. Louis Browns.

Sleater was his newest hero. In his first start yesterday, he vindicated Bucky's judgment. Sleater pitched a solid eight-hitter to top White Sox ace Saul Rogovin in a duel, 2 to 1.

Washington made both of its runs in the first inning on Jensen's single and steal, Mike Vernon's double and Pete Rummell's single.

Thereafter Sleater projected the margin. Chicago rebounded to win the second game, 6 to 4, breaking loose with four runs in the first inning on a pair of two-tally homers by Al Zarilla and Eddie Robinson.

The split left Washington 2-1-2 games behind Cleveland. The Indians divided its doubleheader, winning a 6 to 0 decision behind Mike Garcia's nine-hit pitching after Bobby Shantz of the Philadelphia A's took the opener, 2 to 0 with a three-hitter.

The Browns topped the Yankees, 4 to 3, when Clint Courtney singled with the bases loaded in the ninth to give them their third straight triumph in the final inning.

But the Yankees put on a home run spree to win the second game, 8 to 1.

Boston topped Detroit, 7 to 4, on the margin of Vernon Stephens' three-run homer.

The Brooklyn Dodgers moved half a game ahead of the idle New York Giants in the National by defeating the Chicago Cubs, 7 to 1.

The St. Louis Cardinals edged Philadelphia, 4 to 3.

The Pittsburgh-New York and Cincinnati-Boston doubleheaders were rained out.

CHAPEL HILL (UP)—The University of Maryland has won its second straight Southern Conference outdoor track meet, successfully defending its title here despite winning only one first in the 15-event competition.

The top Maryland performers in the 28th annual event Saturday were Morty Cohen and Dick Lentz. Cohen retained his broad jump title and Lentz tied with Ben Lankford of Virginia Tech for first in the high jump.

No records were broken.

Snead Holds Off Middlecoff And Wins Tournament

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y. (UP)—Siammin' Sammy Snead added $3,000 to his bank account today for a resounding victory in the Palm Beach Round Robin Golf tournament and announced he'll pass up the next stop on the tournament trail, the Colonial Open at Fort Worth, Tex.

Snead, who withstood a terrific finish by Gary Middlecoff to win the Palm Beach yesterday by just two points, will return home to White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., because his wife is expecting their second child.

But Middlecoff, the Memphis, Tenn., dentist who stole Snead's thunder on the final round by gaining 12 points, announced that he'll be going on to Fort Worth for the playing opening Thursday. Middlecoff won the Colonial last year.

Snead was not particularly happy over his Palm Beach victory—he disgustedly called it "the worst I've ever played to win a tournament."

Under the complicated scoring in this meet, each player in the 16-man field played five rounds—meeting every other player once.

In each round, he received "plus" or "minus" points according to the number of strokes he was ahead of or behind each rival.

Snead headed into the final round with a plus 57 score, while Middlecoff had a plus 43. Snead finished with that 57 points, while Middlecoff came roaring up to finish with 65 points.

Duke Players Win Honors In Big 4

DURHAM (UP)—Duke baseball players won both pitching and batting championships in the North Carolina Big Four this year for the second time in a row, loop statistics showed today.

Righthander Bob (Dix) Davis, a senior from Pottsville, Pa., posted a 5-0 record for the season to win mound honors.

Benny Cavaliere, the small senior from Norristown, Pa., hit 3-0 in 11 games to take the batting crown.

Duke also won the team championship with a season record of 10 wins and two losses.

Farmville Shells Norman Clark In Winning First Game, 12-0; Take Easy Victory Sunday By The Score Of 8-3

FARMVILLE — Rodney Heath hurled two-hit ball here Saturday night for Farmville's Red Sox to hand Ormondsville a 12-0 defeat as his team-mates shelled right-handers Norman Clark and Doug Bruton for 15 hits.

Farmville also won the second game of the series by placing all of its scoring in two innings Sunday afternoon in Ormondsville, finally winning out 8-3. The second win enabled Farmville to move into first place in the fast semi-pro Bright Belt League, one and one-half games in front of Ormondsville.

Saturday's Game Heath and Farmville's batting power were the big story in the Saturday night win. Besides limiting the Ormondsville crew to only two hits, Heath fanned 12 men and walked but two.

Millard Webb led the winners at bat with three for five, while catcher Ralph Britt collected a triple and a single in three times at bat. Paul Gay also tripled for Farmville. Dan Meekins and George Graybill garnered Ormondsville's hits-both doubles.

Five runs in the bottom of the sixth decided the final outcome. Gay led off with a triple and came home on a double by Webb. Streetcar Tugwell walked, and Ralph Britt then doubled. Gaiter Cline singled, and Pete Piestrak finished up the inning with a single also.

A crowd of over 700 people attended the game.

Sunday's Game A home run by Paul Gay in the fifth inning proved to be the winning tally in Sunday's game. Three other runners had already scored when Gay tagged his four-bagger.

Besides Gay's batting, Farmville's Cline and Piestrak collected three singles in four times up Webb also tripled.

Red Benton hurled the win, going all the way for Farmville. Benton allowed seven hits, but kept them well scattered and was never in serious trouble after the fifth inning. Farmville blasted his opponent, Vince Jones, for 13 hits.

In the fifth, W. C. Sanders walked, Cecil Heath singled, and Benton walked to load the bases. Webb then doubled to clear the bases, but was thrown out himself when he tried to stretch his two-bagger into a triple.

Farmville Wednesday night. First Game Score by innings: Ormondsville 000 000 000—0 2 4 Farmville 000 005 07x 12 15 1 Clark, Bruton (8), and McLawhorn; Heath and Britt.

Second Game Score by innings: Farmville 000 040 400 8 13 1 Ormondsville 100 200 000 3 7 4 Benton and Britt; V. Jones and McLawhorn.

11-Inning Tie In Coastal Plain

Goldsboro and Wilson still have to decide who won their last Coastal Plain League game.

The two teams battled to a 0-0 draw for 11 innings last night, when the game was called on account of curfew. Goldsboro outlast Wilson, 9-7, and even loaded the sacks with none away in the 10th, but couldn't bring a runner home.

New Bern, the league leaders, kept a firm grip on the top spot with a 7-2 over Kinston.

Pactolus And Chicod Seniors Win Reader's Digest Association Award

Two seniors in the county schools, both class valedictorians, have been awarded the annual award of the Reader's Digest Association.

Faye Heath of Pactolus High School, and Patricia Ann Stanley of Chicod High School were given the award by their successful school work which gives promise of attaining leadership in the communities.

The two seniors will receive an honorary subscription to The Reader's Digest for one year and engraved certificates from the editors, "in recognition of past accomplishment and in anticipation of unusual achievement to come."

The Reader's Digest Association has presented these awards yearly in senior high schools throughout the United States and Canada to the highest honor student of the graduating class.

The awards were made possible through the cooperation of R. D. Picklesimer, Pactolus School principal, and Fodie Hodges, Chicod School principal, and their teaching staff. The girls were selected by their scholastic achievements to receive the award which is designed to stimulate scholarship, citizenship, and continued contact with good reading after graduation.

Woman Injured In Auto Accident

AYDEN — A freakish auto accident last night resulted in injuries to a Gritton Negro woman, Patrolman Bill Whitehurst reported this morning.

A car operated by Bryant Hooks, Route 2, Gritton, went into a ditch while traveling a rural road between Hanrahan and Scuffleton, pinning Mrs. Geneva Hooks between the car and a side of the ditch.

Whitehurst says the driver told him he lost control of the car when the right front door of the auto-mible opened and his wife asked him to close it. As he leaned across Mrs. Hooks to close the door, the driver cut the car into a ditch.

Geneva Hooks was removed to a Kinston hospital where she is being treated for a broken arm and possible other injuries.

The accident occurred about 9:30 last night, about four miles south of Ayden. No arrest was made, and none of the other occupants of the car were injured. Only slight damage resulted to the vehicle.

NEW YORK (UP)—Stocks rose slightly around mid-session today in exceptionally dull dealings. All sections joined in the modest upswing. Improvements were limited to small fractions. A number of leaders held unchanged. Dealings in the first two hours were highly restricted. Sales in that period totaled only 300,000 shares, compared with 430,000 last Friday.

Douglas Aircraft managed to move out of the narrow range. The stock rose 1-4 points to 54 3/4. Other aircraft manufacturing issues also tacked on small gains.

American Hawaiian Steamship was also a bright spot. The issue improved a point to 53.

Elsewhere, steel shares held steady. Bethlehem Steel at 47 3/4 was up 1-8 and U. S. Steel was unchanged at 37 7/8. Automotives were the same. Railroads were virtually unchanged. Utilities were featureless.

Market Is Damaged By Fire Sunday Morning

An early-morning fire Sunday, which could have offered a serious threat to business places in uptown Greenville, was quickly brought under control after a 30-minute battle by Greenville fire fighters.

Nichols market, operated by Dick Nichols on Fourth Street was heavily damaged by the early morning blaze which was not discovered until around seven o'clock Sunday morning.

Firemen arrived in short order to find smoke pouring out from the front and back of the structure. Hose lines laid in quickly, one to the front and a second to the back, subdued the flames which were contained in the center of the building.

Firemen, upon closer examination of the burned area of the building, theorized that the fire must have had its origin from either electrical motors around the meat department or from electrical wiring.

While only a small portion of the building was actually damaged by the fire itself, heavy damage resulted to the stock and furnishings from the intense heat, smoke and water which was poured into the building to quell the blaze.

While the fire was prevented from spreading to any of the other buildings adjoining it, the buildings occupied by Cox's floral company and the Sam Morlon office supply store suffered from the heavy smoke which filtered into the buildings between the walls and roof.

Nichols could not be reached for any comment as to the loss suffered or whether it was covered by insurance or not.

It was understood that the building will be reopened around the first of the month, since it will take that long before the necessary repairs and restocking of the store can be complete.

NOMINATED—Albert F. Nuffer, 57, career diplomat and specialist in Latin-American affairs, has been nominated by President Truman to be U. S. Ambassador to Argentina.

Slowly Puts Pressure On Koje Island

TOKYO (UP)—Secret findings of a U. S. Army board which made an on-the-spot investigation of the Koje Island prisoner of war revolt were handed up to Gen. Mark W. Clark's headquarters today.

At stake in the investigation were the future army careers of two American generals — Brig. Gen. Francis T. Dodd, the camp commandant who was kidnapped and held hostage for four days by Communist prisoners, and Brig. Gen. Charles F. Colson, who obtained Dodd's release by grant embarrassing Communist demands. Clark already has repudiated Colson's concessions.

The investigation of the prison mutiny ended as Brig. Gen. Haydon L. Boatner, who succeeded Dodd and Colson respectively as camp commander, predicted he could put down any new disorders among the more than 70,000 dihard Reds on Koje without further bloodshed.

Boatner said he plans to be "stern, strict and fair." He said he has laid out a schedule for gradually clamping down on the prisoners' abuse of privileges and violation of the Geneva Convention.

Clark's headquarters announced that a new board here would review the findings and the accompanying recommendations of 8th Army commander Gen. James A. Van Fleet, and would send it to Washington.

The investigation in Korea was headed by Brig. Gen. H. K. Kellogg, of El Paso, Tex., who said his group "went into every detail of the Dodd incident."

Although Clark gave Colson, of Charleston, S. C., a public spanking by saying he had "exceeded his authority" in the deal he made for Dodd's release, the investigation was described emphatically as "not a court martial."

Dodd now is being treated for "gastric disturbances" at a hospital near Seoul. There was no announcement of his condition.

On Koje, Boatner told United Press war correspondent Wendell Merick that new disorders could be expected.

"With more than 70,000 hysterical, neurotic prisoners, it's almost certain there will be minor incidents," he said. "But I positively believe, hope and pray I will be able to reestablish control without any bloodshed."

Boatner's hand was strengthened by the arrival of 3,000 battle-toughened paratroopers of the 187th Airborne Regiment Saturday. But his men still have not entered compound 76 where Dodd was held, and Communist banners still fly over the compound.

The ancient cities of U. S. Nippur, Kish, Babylon and Nineveh all were located in the Tigris and Euphrates valleys in what is now Iraq.

STOKES—Post Oak School presented 18 high school graduates with ribbon-decked diplomas at graduation exercises held here Wednesday night.

The girls, dressed in white or gray dresses of like patterns, and the boys in dark suits with white shirts stood out on their class-color decorated stage.
