Parents are urged to cooperate in this undertaking by encouraging their children to attend.

Current Plays Reviewed At Aries Book Club

At the concluding meeting of the current year for the Aries Book Club, the members heard a delightfully entertaining program concerning recent experiences in New York.

Mrs. M. L. Starkey, who "covered" the city in two and a half days, gave a detailed account of the many places she had visited and the shows which she had seen while there in the late winter. She told about the television shows she attended, among which were "The Show Goes On," "The Big Show" with Tallulah Bankhead and the Arthur Godfrey show. She also reviewed a musical which she witnessed, "Top Banana," with Phil Silvers.

Mrs. Starkey also visited Radio City Music Hall, many outstanding restaurants and the Metropolitan Opera House. In her humorous and diverting fashion, she related many experiences which had occurred to her while there. She also briefly reviewed four current Broadway favorites, for which she was unable to obtain tickets. They were "The Shrike," the Pulitzer prize winning play; "Guys and Dolls," with Isabel Bigley and Robert Alda; "The King and I" with Gertrude Lawrence; and "Call Me Madam" with Ethel Merman.

Mrs. John Reynolds was hostess for the meeting and special guests were Mrs. Lloyd Bray and Miss Marilyn Henaghan. The parlors of Wilson Hall, where the group met, were decorated with sprays of flowers and refreshments of strawberry ice and cookies were served.

Mrs. Astor Richardson, president, presided. A motion was made and carried that the club order its books for the coming year through the Carver Memorial Library, to which a gift of the books would be made at the conclusion of the year.

The Emergency Committee reported on the handkerchief shower which was sent to Mrs. Paul Powell upon her departure for Detroit, where she will make her home. Also it was reported that a card of sympathy had been sent to Mrs. James Davenport. The newly-assembled scrapbook was on display for inspection by members.

New year books were distributed and during the evening the members designed their own covers for them.

Sunday Installation Will Add To Church's Staff

Miss Venetia Cox of 126 North Harding Street will be installed Sunday as the Parish Visitor for St. Paul's Episcopal Church. This new position on the church staff was created in a recent meeting of the Vestry, and Miss Cox was endorsed to fill it.

"Miss Venetia," as she is affectionately known in Greenville was graduated from Salem College in 1911, and from St. Faith's Training School for Deaconesses and Church Workers, in New York City in 1916. During her training at St. Faith's, she did the work of a "sponsor Deaconess" in the Diocese of Western Massachusetts.

In 1917, she went to China as an educational missionary, and served in the Diocese of Hankow in Central China. During the war years, she continued her work while a refugee in Western China. She made many trips on the famous Burma Road.

Since her return to this country in 1950, she has lived in Greenville and has been active as a laywoman in St. Paul's parish.

She will be installed Sunday with appropriate ceremony and will assume her duties in middle June.

Funeral Set Monday For William L. Moore

Mr. William Lewis Moore, 56, died in Tayloe Hospital in Washington at six o'clock Saturday morning. He had been in failing health for the past 2½ years and critically ill for one day. Funeral services will be conducted at the Chapel of the S. S. Wilkerson & Sons Funeral Home Monday afternoon at four o'clock. The Rev. C. G. Nickens, Methodist Minister of Grimesland, will officiate, and burial will be in Greenwood cemetery.

Mr. Moore, son of the late Stanley Mack Gilbert and Annie Elks Moore, was born and reared in Pitt County near Grimesland. He was married to Leona Hardee of near Grimesland in 1925. He was a painter.

New Church Opens Doors Sunday

Modern Edifice Marks Big Step By Local Society

By ROY HARDEE

Sunday will mark a mile stone in the history of the Greenville Christian Science Society when its members on that day occupy for the first time the newly-completed church building located at the corner of Fourth and Meade.

The modern edifice will be a far cry from the first meeting place of the local Society, which was organized in the 1890's.

According to records offered by the society, the first meeting of the society was held in 1889 and interest was created by a music student from Boston who was visiting here. Though the name of the person is not known it has been traced that it was through the girl's sister that the first meetings were held and meetings of the infant organization were first held in her home.

As the number of members increased the group would transfer to a larger residence until they were faced with the problem of a regular meeting hall in which to assemble.

Organization of a Sunday school did not take place until 1933. Within a year after the organization of the Sunday school the group moved its meeting place to Pythian Hall located at 317 Evans Street with the first service being held there on Easter Sunday, 1934.

In March, the Mother Church recognized the society as a branch and two years later the Church moved to the Woman's club building which the Church turned to after its growth, was built on the former location of the first meeting place of the organization when it was started.

Shortly afterwards came the opportunity to buy the building formerly occupied by the Universalists, located at 1006 Dickinson Avenue, when that denomination disappeared from the active roll in Greenville.

First service was held in this building on December the 12th, 1937.

Following this advancement, the society promptly instituted Wednesday evening services.

Aided by a grant from the Trustees under the will of Mary Baker Eddy, the members finished paying off the debt on the building in 1945.

Started last June, the new building was delayed in construction by an acute labor shortage which put the structure behind schedule for several months.

Now ready for occupancy, the brick building will be used for the first time this Sunday when regular services will be held.

Seating around 135 persons, the building is far superior in many ways to the old structure formerly occupied by the Society on Dickinson Avenue.

Included in the new plant is a force hot air heating unit, two reading rooms, a organ, toilet facilities and a spacious auditorium.

Finished in asphalt tile floor and white walls the building is an imposing structure not only the outside but the interior as well.

Hanging colonial lights, for the main auditorium, are the only items missing to date from the building and these were scheduled to have arrived this week but were delayed.

Two large Sunday school rooms (the old church had only one) will be ample to take care of the ever increasing growth of the society which has moved steadily forward since its infant beginning in the 1890's when the first meetings of the organization were held in the private homes of the few members which made up its ranks.

Holiday Traffic Deaths High, Real Rush Ahead

By UNITED PRESS

More than 100 persons were counted dead in highway crashes today with the biggest crush of traffic yet to come in the holiday weekend.

One death occurred almost every 15 minutes as sunny skies lured city dwellers into the open for the first long weekend of the season.

Altogether, the nation counted 159 accidental deaths — 112 in traffic, 22 by drowning, seven in airplane mishaps, and 18 in miscellaneous accidents.

The National Safety Council predicted that 310 persons would die in automobile crashes by the time the holiday period ends at midnight Sunday.

They expected the rate of deaths to hit its peak Sunday evening when millions of drivers wheel their vehicles onto roadways for the journey back to homes and jobs.

The weather was kind to most of the country. A band of showers extended along the Atlantic coast southward from New York and another shower belt stretched from Michigan to the Texas Panhandle. But elsewhere only scattered clouds were reported.

At Audubon, Ia., 20-year-old Jo Ann Allwood of Kansas City was killed as she and her fiancé, Airman Charles G. Lewis of Ayrshire, Ia., drove to be married. The car went over a bridge into a creek. Lewis, who received only minor injuries, said he fell asleep at the wheel.

Richard Woods, 37, Vinton, Ia., was severely injured when he walked out of a holiday cabin at 1 a. m. Friday and rolled 600 feet down a bluff in the dark.

A weird hazard faced travelers on U. S. Highway 66 between Chicago and St. Louis.

A phantom gunman, believed to be insane, fired at motorists from his own speeding car. At least three such incidents were reported.

Eighty-two persons died in traffic during last year's one-day Memorial holiday. The worst Decoration Day weekend toll in history was recorded in 1950 when 334 died on highways and other types of accidents brought the total to 677 deaths.

Police Hunt Cat And Human Aide

ARLINGTON, Mass. (UP) — Police were on the lookout today for a tomcat that apparently uses a human as an accomplice.

Police said their only clue to the theft of a dozen bottles of milk from a super-market was a report from a man who said his two big dogs were driven away from the scene by a ferocious cat.

Cool Friday

The highest temperature in the Greenville area during the last 24 hours was 74 degrees, an unseasonable level.

Lowest temperature here last night was 61 degrees, and at 8 a.m. today the mercury stood at 63.

Drizzling rain. Yesterday a year ago, the highest temperature here was 84 degrees. Lowest that night, 58, and at 8 a.m. next day it was 68 degrees. No rain that day.

Navy Has A New John Paul Jones

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (UP) — John Paul Jones will go to sea next week.

The Naval Academy said Midshipman Jones, who will be commissioned as an ensign June 6, is the first graduate to bear the proud name of the Navy's "Father." Jones, of Elido, O., is not a descendant of the Revolutionary War hero.

BURGGLARS, BEWARE!

LUMBERTON, Miss. — (UP) — The Lamar County jail at Purvis is becoming used to men who made the same mistake—trying to burglarize Montgomery's service station here. The total has reached five. All were captured by Deputy Sheriff John Moon. He lives next door to the station and is "a light sleeper."

Three Auto Accidents In Pitt County Friday

The State Highway Patrol reported today that three automobile accidents marred Pitt County's Memorial Day yesterday with heavy property damage but no injuries sustained by the motorists.

A car driven by Chester Don Worthington Jr., 16, of Route 1, Greenville overturned near Cox Crossing around one o'clock yesterday afternoon on the slippery highway, Patrolman Paul C. Whitley reported.

No charges were brought against the driver, Whitley stated. The car had slick tires and the driver overturned on the wet highway the officer stated.

Damage to the car was reported at around $1,000.

A second single car accident late yesterday afternoon occurred near Ballards Cross Roads on the Willow Green Highway.

A car driven by Snodie Hardy, 28, of 113 Boyd Avenue Greenville, failed to make a curve and overturned. Heavy damage resulted to the car, Patrolman O. L. Macaulon said.

Hardy who was not injured, was charged with speeding 70 miles per hour and will be tried in Farmville Court Monday.

A charge of failure to give a hand signal was placed against a driver last night as the result of an automobile accident near Farmville.

Patrolman B. H. Jackson reported that a car driven by Lee M. Dupree was attempting to make a left turn when a car operated by Johnnie D. Davis, of 819 Chestnut Street Kinston, started to pass. To avoid an accident the Davis car was forced off the highway into a ditch, causing moderate damage.

Jackson arrested Dupree for failure to give a hand signal.

More Fingerlings To Stock Local Streams

Hundreds of bass fingerlings are shown as they are dropped into the water of Chicod creek by Game Protector Joe Teel and Ray Mackenzie, Pitt County Wildlife Club president. In addition to some 4,000 bass stocked recently, more than 15,000 rock were also released near Falkland as well as in Tranters creek. The fish were produced at the State Fish Hatchery located near Fayetteville. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee).

Last week the Wildlife Resources Commission began stocking bass and rock in the streams and rivers in Pitt County. In the above picture, County Game Protector J. O. Teel is shown with a net which is being filled with some 4,000 bass which were later placed in Chicod creek. The fish measured an average of two inches each. Witnessing the stocking is Pitt County Wildlife Club President Ray Mackenzie and an official of the Wildlife Commission. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee).

Rev. Russell To Be At Methodist School Session

Rev. Leon Russell, pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, will attend the statewide school for Methodist ministers of North Carolina at Duke University, Durham, June 2-6.

Bishop Paul Garber, presiding bishop of the Richmond (Va.) area, will discuss "Protestantism in Totalitarian countries." Bishop Costen J. Harrell, presiding bishop of the Charlotte area, will discuss "The Bible." Other clergymen prominent in Methodist circles will appear on the program.

Rev. H. E. Spence of Duke University is dean of the school. Dr. Lillian Pope, dean of the Divinity School, Yale University, will be the daily platform speaker.

Ecuador Holding Election Sunday

QUITO, Ecuador (UP)—Ecuador will elect a new president and Congress tomorrow with the continuation of President Galo Plaza's New Dealish program the main issue at stake.

Plaza is not seeking re-election, but Modesto Larrea Jijon, candidate of the government's six-party alliance has promised to carry on his program if elected. Nearly 450,000 are eligible to vote.

Strength for the Day

CRAB GRASS AND EVIL CONDUCT
Crab grass is the bane of everybody who likes a beautiful lawn. In recent years all sorts of commodities designed to eradicate crab grass have appeared on the market.

However, the very best insurance against the ravages of crab grass is to have a lawn of thick, healthy grass and to see to it that this is well taken care of at stated times, with proper fertilization. Over a period of years, thick, healthy grass will crowd crab grass off the lawn.

"But," you may ask, "has this column switched from religion to gardening?" Not at all, but what holds true in the eradication of crab grass holds true in the eradication of a lot of evils which assail our souls. The best insurance against sin is a life so filled with love, religious faith, and loyalty to certain beloved people that the baser impulses cannot get started.

The best way to handle crab grass is not to let it get started or to crowd it out with a growth of good grass. And the best way to handle the sin problem is not to let little evils get started; or if they do, to crowd them out with a vigorous growth of things which are undeniably good.

Another Hand Of International Poker

The world faces another crisis, which like many others in the past several years, could possibly touch off another world war.

It is nothing new. We have faced the situation many times before as the ruthless Communists under orders from Moscow have pressed their luck hoping the free world would back down in the face of threats. This time, however, the threat is coming as a double-barreled action.

The Communists are again pushing for complete control of Berlin as a retaliatory measure for the pact signed between Western Germany and the Western World. At the same time there is the real and serious threat of a new outbreak of heavy fighting in Korea, designed to divert the United Nations attention and armies from the European problem.

In the minds of the free world, it is pretty well decided that we can not allow Communism to enslave either Europe or Asia if the rest of the world is to remain free. Either continent, or nations within either, would merely be used as stepping stones for further efforts for world domination by the Communists.

Russia has set up its no-man's land along the Western border of Soviet Germany. Another card is on the table in the war of nerves. Yet the face of the card, as is the case when it is played by Russia, is down. It is another bluff.

The free world can afford to give no more ground to Communism. Too long we have given too much to them to avoid another war. Yet the more we give for the sake of peace, the more they demand for the sake of world conquest. There must be a stopping place where we are willing to gamble between war and the broken peace we have known since 1946. Otherwise we may find that the Communists will gain without a conflict the world domination which they seek.

In scattered instances where the United States and its allies have met the Communist toughness with the toughness of our own, we have seen the Communists falter and step back a pace or two. We have long since learned that the only language they understand is the language in which they speak—military power.

In Germany and in Korea now, new military threats are being made. The free nations must stand ready to meet these threats with military power of their own. The time for concessions on the part of the free world is past. If new concessions are made, they must be on the part of the Communists.

The One France Must Fight Alone

France has an opportunity to deal a heavy blow to the Communist fanatics who are seeking to ring down the Iron Curtain around that stalwart nation of the Western bloc. The world will watch with interest to see whether the opportunity is taken or allowed to pass.

Jacques Duclos, the top man in France's Communist party has been arrested in connection with the bloody riots which rocked the country in protest of General Ridgway's arrival in Europe. The French government is demanding that Duclos be tried under the statute which provides up to five years imprisonment for those who act against the internal security of the nation.

If the French government can force the trial of Duclos without causing itself to fall apart—as it has done more times than we care to remember since World War II—the Communist organization will have been dealt a blow in that nation.

On the other hand, with the hold the Communists already have on France's economy, it is going to be difficult for the government to press its charges unless it has a stern determination to follow through and cope with the consequences which result. If Duclos escapes court action, or even if he is tried on lesser charges, which seem possible, the Communists will have won another victory against the hard pressed French government.

This is one battle against Communism which France must fight without aid from the United States. And the way she fights the battle may be an indication of how willing France is to fight Communism without Uncle Sam at her side.

National Whirligig

By RAY TUCKER
Every Saturday this veteran Washington newspaper correspondent devotes his column to answering readers' questions of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent direct to Ray Tucker at 6006 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON—"Has Senator McCarthy," inquires R. T. G. of Longmeadow, Mass., where I once picked up a high schooler, "proved unequivocally in a single instance his charges that certain government employees were red?"

CHANGE—Answer: I do not think he has, and I am sure that the record will bear me out. That does not mean that his efforts have been negligible, however.

Hundreds of employees have been fired or "allowed to resign" because of the public interest and indignation he aroused against the coddling of fellow-travelers at Washington. Otherwise, they might have been kept on the payroll.

McCarthy has forced a complete change in the Truman Administration's handling of this problem. Whereas Truman once branded these and other charges as a "red herring," he has become a red baiter. Watch the forthcoming decision of the Subversive Activities Control Board on the question of whether the Communist Party and its front organizations must register under the alien registration law.

ATTITUDE—"Is it true," asks the same reader, "that Senator Taft approves of McCarthyism," and that this approval is harming Taft's campaign for the presidential nomination?"

Answer: Taft has equivocated on this question. He tried to give the impression that he disagreed with McCarthy's unfair and high-handed tactics, but that he supports the Wisconsin senator's basic objective.

As to whether this attitude hurts or helps Taft, that depends on the reaction of a majority of the electorate. It's probable that the break is about fifty-fifty, judging from Congressional and my own correspondence.

BOSS—"Why, please," explodes H. L. H. of Houston, Tex., "do responsible journalists persist in fixing the blame of Yalta on Franklin D. Roosevelt, while that great man, Churchill, goes unmentioned? Churchill was far more seasoned in world affairs and he was also a well man, whereas F. D. R. was on the death trail."

Answer: This is a perplexing but challenging question, although I think there is an explanation. After all, the United States was the dominant and decisive power in the war. F. D. R. was the big boss insofar as relations with Churchill and Stalin were concerned. The Prime Minister recognized England's great debt to the United States.

Roosevelt, as Elliott tells us in his memoirs, had sided with Stalin against Churchill in every conference where the three met. Perhaps Winnie thought that the Roosevelt personality and concessions at Yalta would persuade "Uncle Joe" to be a good, postwar boy. Therefore, he let F. D. R. call the tune.

BAMBOOZLED—Churchill may also have had his nationally selfish motives. He may have figured that, by granting Stalin certain rights in the Far East, he would persuade Russian and Chinese Communists not to endanger Britain's $2,000,000,000 investment in that area, extending from Shanghai to Singapore.

If this was Churchill's idea, he was bamboozled as completely as F. D. R. was. Despite London's recognition of Mao Tse-tung, British business men, industrialists and exporters are now pulling out of China with a terrific financial loss and with a disastrous blow to the prestige of western civilization.

SUPPORT—"To settle a small bet among close friends," writes W. J. of Shelton, Conn., "can you tell me which presidential candidate received the majority of daily newspaper support in the 1936, 1940 and 1944 elections?"

Answer: My newspaper experts tell me that President Roosevelt had the bulk of newspaper backing in 1936 for the last time. He had done a remarkable job of recovery by that year, although the implications of many of his reforms were not recognized. Moreover, it was not until after this one-sided contest—London carried off Maine and Vermont—that F. D. R. introduced his bill to pack the Supreme Court.

In 1940 and 1944, my informant tells me, most of the American press supported Wilkie and Dewey, respectively.

SALARY—"A Philip Murray told us over the radio," says Mrs. J. A. S. of Houston, Tex., "how much salary Ben Fairless and other steel executives get. How much does Murray get as the steel union president? Where does his union invest its money?"

Answer: Murray gets $25,000 and expenses. His union's $10,000,000 of assets are invested as follows: $8,000,000 in United States bonds, $1,000,000 cash and $1,000,000 in two attractive real estate properties at Washington, including a fine office building half a block from the White House.

HOOD RIVER, OREGON, NEWS—"In this, the greatest tax collecting year in the history of the world, the United States Federal government is claiming to be exacting much of its 'extra tax dollars' from the rich. This can't be true. The 'little guy' is suffering. The Oregon Business and Tax Research reports if the U. S. government took all the taxable income in excess of $6,000 from all individuals that would raise less than $6,000,000,000."

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., INDUSTRIAL PRESS: "We cannot understand why the leaders of organized labor have not been able to recognize their duty to their members and the American public. We believe that any intelligent worker knows that what he and every other American needs most is a decrease in the cost of living instead of an increase in pay. Why the leaders refuse to see this is a mystery."

DENVILLE, N. J., HERALD: "I really surprised us to read in the New Jersey Power & Light Company magazine that if the Company had been given its tax bill for the year 1951 it would have been able to provide FREE electric service to every residential customer for five months of the year."

Return Of Ike

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Today's column is a tribute to Washington, N. C., but starts with the fact that D. J. Whitchard III, the Reflector's managing editor, spent last week in New York at the Columbia University Cost and Management Seminar of the American Press Institute.

Twenty-seven newspapermen from 17 states sat around a big table and talked about newspaper problems. During the session one of the newspapermen asked, "Is there anybody here from North Carolina?" Dave said he was from Greenville. "You are?" the man exclaimed. "I'm from Little Washington."

When Dave and I were talking about his trip we hesitated when he told about the man from Little Washington and decided that he was the only Washington native who ever called it Little Washington. Most of the citizens from down there prefer to call it the Original Washington.

This particular man, Mat Goldberg by name, has an important position, that of Circulation Director of the New York Times. It's nothing unusual to find that a man with an important job is from Washington. Here are a few others:

Herbert Bonner, our Congressman. Lindsay Warren, the Comptroller General of the United States. Cecil B. DeMille, probably Hollywood's most famous producer.

Robert T. Ross, Congressman from the Fifth Congressional District, Queens, L. I., New York. (R. T. Jr. lives in Greenville).

Murray Hamilton, Broadway star who hit the big time with his brilliant portrayal of Ensign Pulver in "Mr. Roberts," the play that took Henry Fonda from Hollywood to Broadway.

There must be many more famous people from Washington, because it seems to be a common occurrence. There must be something in the water down there that brings fame.

Of course the people of Washington will admit their slip when they missed out on the chance of locating East Carolina College there. The site now known as Washington Park was considered by the college.

The keen rivalry between Greenville and Washington is a joy to everybody, when their side is winning. Right now we seem to be out-progressing them, except in the field of celebrities.

And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

By LYNN NISBET

DEAD END—Have you voted? When the hands of the clock touch the 6:30 line tonight the next Governor of North Carolina will have been chosen, majority of the membership in the General Assembly will have been determined, and the die will have been pretty well cast as to all other state and local officers. For months the candidates have been doing the talking, or having it done for them by managers and volunteer supporters. Today is the time for the voters to talk—with a cross mark on the ballot—and make their talk count.

After 6:30 tonight it will be too late. It is true that the officials will not be formally elected until November, out as to all statewide offices and majority of district and county positions, the vote in today's primary will be conclusive. So for all practical purposes the last chance the average citizen has to express his choice will end at 6:30 today.

RETURNS—More detailed and elaborate preparations have been made to gather and publish returns of Saturday's primary than for any previous election in North Carolina. The principal news gathering agencies like the Associated Press and the United Press have alerted regular and stringer correspondents to get on the job early and work fast as ballots are counted in the more than 2,000 precincts. Supplementing the services of these major agencies, majority of the newspapers and radio stations have set up their own facilities for collecting returns. All of the neutral collectors will work in close co-operation with headquarters of the candidates for Governor, Congress and others which have instructed local managers to phone in reports as rapidly as possible.

TIME—In view of this comprehensive system for gathering returns most observers believe that while final reports may not be available until Monday or later, it will be possible by 10 o'clock Saturday night—perhaps earlier—to get a clear picture of the trends in most contests of importance. One experienced hand at gathering and publishing election returns over a period of many years says he thinks the "trend" will be definitely established within two hours after the polls close—which will be 8:30 Saturday night.

ORDER—The speed with which the news agencies can publish returns will depend to considerable extent upon the order in which precinct election officials count the ballots. It is expected that majority of the precincts will count the state ballots first, because there is more general interest in statewide offices; and the congressional candidates are on the state ballot. In a few counties not in congressional districts with heated contests and where county commissioners or legislators take precedent in local interest, the state ballots may be left to the last. If the count is close on early returns, as to governors the deferment of the state ticket in a few counties might delay establishment of definite trend until later.

INSIDE—The job of cleaning the outside walls of North Carolina's century-old capitol building is about finished. The old house looks good. Contrary to fears expressed by some people when the idea of cleaning it up was first broached, the granite lost none of the characteristics of dignity and stability. Actually the natural figures in the stone have been brought out and there is a look of clean old age instead of slovenliness. The cleaned outside is in such striking contrast to the grimy interior: the board of buildings and grounds

What Other Papers Are Thinking

TWO SIDES

(Washington Daily News)
The medical profession has been accused of a lot of practices which are contrary to the ideals the layman has of the doctor's responsibilities.

The profession itself has been responsible for much of the criticism leveled at it. There have been many times, we are sure, when doctors x-rayed a man's pocketbook before they x-rayed his broken bones.

There have been times, we are sure, when some person lacked adequate medical attention on account of inability to pay the bills.

Through centuries doctors have been looked upon as the physical saviors of life. The public has always associated the profession with the saving of life rather than the making of money. In the past years the public has been inclined to look upon the profession more and more as a group of rich individuals more interested in the money picture than in the life saving picture.

We have given this observation by way of explanation. And we admit that some of the criticisms directed at doctors have been deserved. But there are two sides to the picture, and the other side never is shown fully.

Doctors are called upon on many occasions to pay for medical bills of patients which they should not have to pay.

Right here in the Pamlico area we read every week where a cutting scrape has taken place and one or more victims are placed under the care of a doctor. In a vast majority of these cases, the doctors never get one cent for saving a life. And the life they have saved in incidents like the above are acts of mercy occasioned by the fire in men's hearts to bodily damage to another.

To be more specific suppose that John Doe engages in a fight and is cut severely. He is taken to a doctor or to a hospital. An operation is necessary, and blood plasma at $3 a bottle must be given the patient. A bed, food, and doctor's care are necessary and he is given all these things. He gets well, and he has created a medical bill of several hundred dollars. He has no money which is usually the case when cutting sprees take place. There is no one to pay the bills. And the doctor at least is out of the cost of the blood plasma, food, and medicines which he administered.

Does not that picture present a side which the public often is forgotten by the general public? And what is the answer?

To the first question, it surely gives us an insight into a situation, while not wholesome, does exist. As to the answer, we are not prepared to say. We know no immediate answer. The long-range answer, of course, may be to so educate people that they will cease to use brutality. But that answer is of no help right now.

A doctor cannot turn away a dying man. He will treat him and help him back to health only to see that man later refuse to make any efforts to pay the bill.

There are two sides, and we should look upon both sides when we become too critical. Yet, if a doctor would let a man die because that man couldn't pay the bill this newspaper and the general public would condemn that doctor for fare-well. And he would deserve it. But he also deserves to get paid for at least what he actually has to take out of his own pocket to get that patient well. And the public is inclined to look with a certain sympathy upon a doctor who has to bear the bill for a man injured in a drunken brawl.

It is not all one sided, not by any means.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

One of the most puzzling problems facing retailers today is whether to stay open evenings and, if so, how many evenings a week. This was apparent from the importance placed on the subject at the convention of the National Retail Dry Goods Association in New York this week.

Of 600 department and special stores surveyed, 78 reported they had added night openings in the last year and 50 said they were contemplating such a step. Walden P. Hobbs, store executive of Consolidated Dry Goods Co., Springfield, Mass., said. Three-quarters of the stores are open at least one night a week, with Mondays most popular. Thursdays a close second, and Fridays a poor third, he added. Saturdays, Wednesdays and Tuesdays followed in that order.

Retailing is now in a period of revolution, not evolution, Richard D. Elwell, management consultant, McKinney & Co., New York, said. During this revolution, he asserted, the principle that the customer is always right is of vital importance and while costs of night openings must be weighed against advantages, what the customer wants is the determining factor.

The trend to more night openings was challenged by Jerome F. Bernoudy, secretary controller of Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney, Inc., St. Louis. He conceded that openings of one night a week both accepted and profitable, and said that extending night openings "is simply another part of our campaign to force the public to change its buying habits, or buying psychology, and that, until its attitude changes, we can go on adding hours and expenses without making any noticeable dent in his attitude."

As a controller, he listed 26 additional costs for additional night openings, ranging from increases in payrolls to abuse of employee discounts by part-time employees.

Among the delegates, the general sentiment appeared to be that each store should carefully calculate its gains and losses before instituting additional night openings, and that each store should plan what its program will be if competitors add night openings.

SPAIN RUSHES SPUDS TO U. S. Markets

Spain, which has already sent some old potatoes to spud-famished America to the profit of the Spanish growers, has sent a shipment of new potatoes. A shipment of 45,000 bags will arrive next week. More are reported to be on the way, racing the new American crops, which will come to market in July.

FARM MANAGEMENT NOW A BANK FIELD

A large number of banks — in central Illinois, at least — are now operating farms as agents of the owners. Mary Laughlin Green writes in "Current Economic Comment," a University of Illinois quarterly. The first farm department in an Illinois bank was established in 1920, Miss Green discovered. Eight or more banks added them during the depression, but World War II gave the trend its greatest impetus.

These bank departments also manage farms as trustees and guardians, and advise bank officials and clients on agricultural politics, government controls and soil conservation.

FOOD, DRINK TAKE THIRD OF EXPENSES

This is where the consumer's disposable dollar went last year, according to Department of Commerce figures. Food, 29 cents; housing, 10.5 cents; clothing and footwear, 9.7 cents; health and beauty aids and miscellaneous, 5.7 cents; auto and parts, 5.2 cents; gas and oil, 2.7 cents; household operations, 4.9 cents; alcoholic beverages, 4 cents; public transportation, 2.8 cents; tobacco, 2.3 cents; recreation, 1.9 cents; personal services, such as laundry and cleaning, 1.9 cents; medical, dental and all other services, 10.5 cents, and durable goods not otherwise classified, 2 cents.

PROMOTER WOULD ORGANIZE THE UNPAID

"I am," announced the Old Promoter, "organizing a union."

"On the other side of the economic fence now?" we asked. "Not necessarily," the O. P. said. "I'm organizing a union of tax collectors — not the salaried ones, but the others — the millions of business men who are unpaid tax collectors for the federal, state and local governments. Once we are organized, we'll present our demands. They are fair enough: $1 an hour, the official government minimum wage; time and a half for overtime, which Congress has adopted in principle; 3 per cent commission, a lot less than many companies pay, and modest retirement benefits. Those demands are so fair and reasonable, I don't think we'll have to strike to get them. Our strength is great. Every business man is a part-time collector, and the liquor, cigaret, auto, appliance and jewelry people work overtime at it."

GARDEN FOR GROWING PARLEY ON WINDOW SILLS, a waterproof window garden is now being offered by Benton-Kirby, Inc., Milwaukee, Wisc. Seed for the curly variety is already planted, and the addition of water is all that's needed to start its growth.

Hal Boyle's Column

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK — (AP) — Ever hear of a man being made a buck sergeant in the American Army by popular demand?

Father Frank Woods, an Irish priest who spent 17 years as a missionary in Korea, holds that unique honor. He also holds the American Medal of Freedom, awarded for his work with front-line troops.

"But every GI in Korea should have been given it before me," he said Thursday before boarding the liner Mauretania for his native Ireland. He sailed with five other Far East missionaries to attend the election of a new head of their order, the Columban Fathers.

Father Frank, ruddy-faced, graying man of 48, became the best-known chaplain in Korea as a result of his legendary battlefield exploits.

Shortly after the U. S. troops landed in Korea, the stocky priest volunteered his services. Because he was a non-citizen, he was told he couldn't be put on Uncle Sam's payroll as a chaplain.

That made no difference to Father Frank. For more than a year he served without rank or pay with the Second Infantry Division, an outfit that saw some of the hardest fighting of the Korean campaign.

Carrying a rifle himself for his own protection, he went on dangerous patrols to act as interpreter. He gave the last rites to hundreds of American wounded men. Sleeping with the officers, eating with the enlisted men, he became the most popular man in the division.

Once, after a fire fight, he called on a wounded Korean in a rice paddy to surrender. To his startled surprise 70 fully-armed, unwounded Korean soldiers hiding in the paddy rose to their feet, their hands lifted.

Division officers finally began to worry about Father Frank. They didn't want to lose him. "They watched me like hawks," he said. "They wouldn't allow me to go on patrols anymore, or even get up-front."

After a year of combat duty, Father Frank returned to his Korean parish. Before he left the division he happened to comment that he thought being a sergeant in the American Army was about the finest job in the world.

The next day an order was posted on the headquarters bulletin board unofficially promoting him to the rank of "buck sergeant." Every soldier in the company immediately signed his name to the order, and Father Frank at last had rank—by popular demand.

The priest says he wants to return to Korea and would like to join the American Army. He adopted nearly 20 years ago.

"They are good fathers," he said slowly. "I have no hesitation in saying that. With them I saw mankind at its best. Charity predominates in the lives of men."

who share the buddy system in war.

"It was rough, tough, and dangerous — but I'd go back tomorrow if I could."

Father Frank feels that the arrival of American forces in Korea saved "civilization and Christianity" from Communist destruction.

"They are on the frontline of Christianity today," he said. "Beyond their patrols there is no Christianity except underground."

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — While Dr. Clarence R. Decker, assistant director of the Mutual Security Agency, is talking with mission chiefs in the Far East his energetic wife plans to acquaint herself with women's problems there.

Mrs. Decker is a writer and active in club and civic affairs of Kansas City, Mo., where her husband is president of the University of Kansas City. She is paying her own way to accompany him to the Philippines, Formosa, the Associated States of Indo-China, Burma, Thailand and Indonesia. Upon returning from a two-month trip, the Deckers will be in Washington until the end of the year. Dr. Decker, who is responsible for summing up American aid programs in the six Far East countries, is on sabbatical leave from the young university which he helped to build up.

Mrs. Decker says she got an idea of how important it is actually to talk to people when she and her husband were members of the Town Meeting of the Air team on its round-the-world seminars in 16 capitals in 1949. When she returned from that junket, "The World We Saw," which is used in schools throughout America. With her husband she also has written "Wives of the Prophet," a novel about John Smith, the Mormon.

Mrs. Decker, Missouri-born but a graduate of the University of Illinois, made seven trips to Europe between the World Wars. She is a member of the Kansas City Board for Planned Parenthood, the League of Women Voters and the American Association of University Women. She has little time for much else.

"It's a full-time job being the wife of a university president," she said, "especially when that university is only 20 years old and growing."

During the war the Deckers took in eight Nisei Japanese students as helpers and not only gave them an education but paid them for their work. "It worked like a charm," she said. "Now we have two or more students with us all the time—a local and appreciative staff of young people."

The Nice Long Vacation

By William Neubauer

AP Newsfeatures

Chapter 22
It was early the following week that she met Alice Cranby, the girl Bruce was supposed to love. There was a hall from the path outside the tent, and when Jane poked her head out to see who it was she found herself looking into the deep brown eyes of one of the loveliest natural blonde women she had ever seen. "I'm afraid Evelyn is over at the dispensary. You'll find her free if you require her, Miss—Miss—? I'm Jane Bancroft, recreation director of a sort."

"Of course." The woman held out a strong, friendly hand. "I'm Alice Cranby. Bruce has told me about the glorious triumph you scored for Division A. Poor Andy Bullit. I'm afraid he had better stick to his brokerage business."

"He was out of condition," Jane said absently, deciding, after all, that she didn't especially like Alice Cranby.

"Oh, is there a hike scheduled for this morning? I'd enjoy a brisk walk."

"Mr. O'Reilly will lead it out of camp in fifteen minutes. You just have time to get into some sensible clothes."

"Some what?" Alice looked down at her sports dress and sports shoes, then studied Jane's rather forbidding face. "Say, am I wrong, Miss Cranby, or have you suddenly decided that you do not approve of me?"

"Approve of you? But why should I have any opinions, one way or the other, about you? I've just met you, Miss Cranby."

"Errr," laughed Alice, who usually couldn't be dismayed, "isn't it cold all of a sudden?"

Shrugging, she turned and struck off towards the barracks-like recreation building from which all the hiking trips emanated. And Jane, who had been planning to lead this particular hike, hurried across the camp to the line of tents near the lake which formed the male Officers' Row. She found Mike. "You're taking the hike this morning," she told him abruptly. "Mike, what do you think of Alice Cranby? I just met her. She strikes me as being as awfully strange girl."

"Huh?" Honest Mike stared at her. "But she's one of the finest customers we have the honor to be getting here. Whist, don't tell me you and the little darlin' have been havin' at one another!"

"It's just that I don't think she's the sort of person a man like Dr. Hall should marry. Not that it is any of my business, but—"

He shook his head. "How a girl can be so nice one minute and so downright black-hearted the next—are yez daft or something?" He rose, his face a study in confusion. "Is it that ye're in love with Bruce Hall?"

"I am not in love with anyone." The very thought of her being in love with Bruce Hall made her laugh. "I simply think a doctor's wife should be a woman who understands the problems of the poor, the working people. And Alice Cranby simply reeks of money. Can you imagine her going off with Dr. Hall in a snowstorm to succor some person living in a shanty?"

"She's been doin' her share of good, O'im thinkin'." Distressed because it was necessary to disagree with the one person in the camp who had truly befriended him, Mike went up the steps of the big platform into the tent. He came out in two minutes, carrying a canteen and a little first-aid kit. "I'll be goin' down to lead the hike now, I'm thinkin'."

"I'm thinkin'." She rose, her eyes dancing. "Mike O'Reilly, you're learning to speak perfect English."

"It's what I'm thinkin', as is important, Miss Bancroft."

He left with quick, powerful strides of his short legs, his hair flame against the background of green trees.

Ken Wensloff was talking to Jane. He broke off as an automobile horn tooted behind them. Startled, he looked over his shoulder and rose to his feet. "Hey!" he bawled. "You're not supposed to park there."

"Oh?" Talk, broad-bellied William Dunbar read the sign Ken was pointing to, then displayed his large, perfect teeth. "Well, then, young man, suppose you park it where it should be parked."

Ken became indignant. "I happen to be the life guard here, not an errand boy. Furthermore—"

"Park it," said a voice behind him, a voice he scarcely recognized. Whirling, he met Jane's brown eyes, then scowled. "At least someone around here ought to say please."

"Park it." Rising, Jane went to William Dunbar and shook his hand. "How interesting to see you again, William. How in the world did you get your father to agree to let you make the trip?"

"I'm afraid my father was in no position to keep me in Crestview." He waited until Ken had driven off, then stepped forward with a determined air and caught her into his arms and kissed her before she could quite make herself believe that weak William had the nerve to do such a thing.

She stepped back, disconcerted by this new approach. "Have you had a quarrel with him?"

"Well, he did threaten to disinherit me. But do you know it isn't very important? All that matters is that here we are again, the two of us." His gentle eyes all but caressed her face. "You look very well. You seem to be living more in the world. What happened?"

"Nothing." She turned in time to see Mike O'Reilly strike off across the trail up ahead, a Mike O'Reilly followed by fifty or sixty persons. Then, impulsively, she took William by the hand and pulled him after her toward the girl who was bringing up the rear of the column of hikers. "Miss Cranby, may I present Mr. William Dunbar? You two should have much in common. William is a bank vice-president. Miss Cranby—perhaps you'll be able to discuss stocks and bonds and taxes, high taxes, with him?"

"On the double!" roared Mike up ahead. "On the double!"

"But—"

Zeal, Know-How Get Potato Fete Over Difficulty

ELIZABETH CITY, N. C. (UP) — Zeal plus "know how" that remains a trade secret got the annual Albemarle Potato Festival underway at this coastal city today despite rain and a nationwide spud shortage.

Four tons of precious tubers, guarded 24 hours a day since national guardsmen trucked them in, lay peeled and sliced in 10 big vats filling a block of Main Street for a daylong giveaway to an expected throng of 30,000.

For a while the vanished potato market and lateness of Albemarle Sound crops caused serious embarrassment to festival sponsors who had lined up 30 bands, 38 floats and a queen.

Without disclosing their sources, distributors rounded up the truckload, however, with enough to spare for a 100-pound air express shipment to potato-famished Idaho, along with a telegram twitting Gov. Len Jordan.

Off-duty Navy and Coast Guard cooks fried the spuds in soybean oil in tribute to the late State Sen. W. T. Cullpepper, developer of an extraction process in 1915. His widow was on hand to receive a commemorative scroll.

The climax of parades, band concerts and baton twirling contests, however, was the crowning of blonde Jennette Merrell, 14, of Poplar Branch, N.C., as queen.

Billy McDowell, festival president, said guarding the spuds was no joke. A new twist of the celebration is the fact that the 1952 local crop — once a leading money source — is not only late but light.

"They are actually stealing them in the fields," McDowell said. "They go into the fields and pull them up by the vines, ruining rows and rows of them that way."

Three guardsmen were kept on duty from the time the spuds were piled into mounds on the courthouse square Wednesday until they were sliced and transferred to the vats, when police took over.

Washington (UP)—Cities listed as "critical target areas" soon will have emergency pipeline in case an enemy attack disrupts their water systems.

The civil defense Administration announced today it will store 450 miles of pipeline units in these cities this year. The pipes, handled by 15-man crews, can be swiftly laid on the ground to draw water from streams, lakes and reservoirs.

CDA said 32 storage locations near potential targets have been chosen thus far for the stockpiling of the emergency pipelines. They were not listed.

Washington (UP) — The Weather Bureau said today its 30-day outlook for June calls for temperatures to average below seasonal normals over most of the northern half of the nation.

"In the Southeast and extreme Southwest," the bureau said, "above normal temperatures are predicted but elsewhere in the South temperatures not far from seasonal normals are anticipated."

Abundant showers giving more than normal rainfall are expected over most of the country living between the Rockies and the Appalachians.

Those who are ready

Alert, keen, with eager steps and heads held high in confidence to meet the future, our graduates stream out from the portals of high schools, colleges, and universities. A new life of opportunity commences today for all who have received their diplomas.

But are they ready for life? Schools, although of great value to any youngster, cannot guarantee success. A diploma simply states a required course of study for a specific degree has been satisfactorily completed.

In addition to formal schooling our young people must have a more complete preparation with which to face the challenges and disappointments of life. They need the Church and home working together to strengthen their moral and spiritual fibre.

Ward Wins British Amateur By Defeating Stranahan

Ward Steadily Takes Wider Margin To Win

Ward Appears Jumpy As Both Men Play Wild Golf; Stranahan Unable To Over-take Big Lead In First Turn

PRESTWICK, Scotland (AP)—Young Harvie Ward of Tarboro, N. C., spiked Frank Stranahan's bid for a third British Amateur Golf championship today when he trounced the Toledo, Ohio, millionaire, 6 and 5, in the scheduled 36-hole All-America final.

The 26-year-old Southern brokerage salesman, former winner of the U. S. Intercollegiate crown, shook off an early case of putting hitches to finish with a spectacular streak of birdies and pars.

He was four under four's—the golfer's yardstick of excellence—from the 14th through the 27th holes.

PRESTWICK, Scotland (UP)—Harvey Ward of Tarboro, N. C., held a 2-up lead over Frank Stranahan of Toledo, O., today at the half-way point in their 36-hole match for the British Amateur golf championship.

After 18 see-saw holes, during which the lead changed four times, Ward charged into the lead with birdies on two of the last three holes.

Stranahan, a two-time winner of the tournament, was bidding to become the first American ever to win the tournament three times. But only Ward's poor putting on the first nine and equally poor driving on the opening holes of the back nine enabled the Toledo star to stay close to the 26-year-old North Carolina player.

Ward missed putts of one, two and three feet and one 18-incher on the first nine. He was in bunkers or the rough on the first four holes of the back nine.

Stranahan took advantage of Ward's poor tee work to build up a 2-up margin at the 13th hole but fell behind at lunchtime as Ward birdied the 14th with a six-footer and won the 17th with a par four while Stranahan fumbled in the rough on both holes. Stranahan needed a 45-foot putt to halve the 18th in three.

The morning round was played in cool, sunny weather.

Ward and Stranahan played some of the worst golf seen in the tournament in the first round.

They played before one of the smallest crowds to watch the final in many years. Only about a thousand spectators watched the Americans struggle in and out of the roughs and bunkers.

Ward was trembling after his poor putting exhibition on the first nine but improved after the 14th. While his driving and approach shots sharpened, Stranahan's game failed completely as he spent the last three holes in the rough.

Greenies Will Play Off Today

Third place Ormondville tangles with Greenville's fourth place Greenies today and tomorrow in a two-game series in the semi-pro Bright Belt League.

The two clubs have met only once before this year, with Ormondville taking an easy victory in a game played in Greenville's home park. The series is expected to provide some of the best games to be seen in the league over the weekend.

Victory for Ormondville in the contest would almost be a sure advancement for Manager Garland Little's team in the Bright Belt standings. At the present time, Ormondville is only one-half game behind Farmville and Santeeburg. The last two clubs are tied for first place honors in the league with identical 11-4 marks, while Ormondville has a 10-4 record.

Fourth place Greenville does not have an opportunity to advance in the standings as a result of the two games, but victories would narrow the margin between the Greenies and Ormondville to only two and one-half games.

Neither team has released its starting lineup nor starting hurlers. Ormondville is expected to start with the usual players that have been used in previous contests, however. If so, Manager Little will have George Grayville, Barry Jones, Dan Meekins, and Marvin Hughes in the infield, with James Ray McLawhorn catching. Little, Norman Clark, and Bruce Meadows will probably start in the outfield.

For Greenville, it will probably be Red Sauls at third base, either Joe Hardy or Bill Price at short, Virgil Payne at second, and Dallas Jackson at first. Troy Sears is the catcher. The outfield will have Joe Hobgood, Simon Hardison, and Penner Boyd or Jim Corbin.

Greenville Men Successful In Gulfstream

Ruttman Sets New Speed Record As He Wins Race

By ED SAINSBURY

United Press Sports Writer
INDIANAPOLIS (UP)—The big payoff awaited bulky Troy Ruttman today for his record setting time for victory in the 36th annual 500-mile Memorial Day race.

Ruttman, a 22-year-old Lynwood, Calif., pilot who has driven in this annual clash of high powered racers for four years, cracked across the finish line with an average speed of 128.922 miles per hour, shattering the record of 126.244 set by Lee Wallard in 1951 when he gained the checkered victory flag.

Ruttman's success, in a race in which the speed record fell at every mile post but the first, took luck as well as a heavy foot. Bill Vukovich, a 33-year-old Fresno, Calif., pilot making his second appearance here, apparently had first place wrapped up. But only 20 miles short of the end, Vukovich slammed into the wall on the north-east turn and went out of the race.

Vukovich's luckless ending gave Ruttman his chance and the eventual winner, who had held first place three times during the 200-lap grind, came on to win handily. Ruttman was sure to pick up some $24,300 at the victory banquet tonight, $20,000 for finishing first and $4,300 for leading in 43 laps, at the rate of $100 per lap. Vukovich will receive $15,100, all in lap prizes, as he paced the field for 151 laps.

It was likely that Ruttman would gain much more than that figure too. For only a year ago Wallard was guaranteed no more than $20,000, and he received from the speedway an augmented purse of $63,612.12.

Ruttman, because he failed to lead the race for as many laps as Wallard did a year ago, won't equal his record-setting payoff, but he will haul in the biggest share of this year's prize list. The total was expected to be about $215,000, surpassing the 1951 mark of $207,650, the previous record.

The race was marred by only two crackups as the fastest field in history rolled to the fastest overall speed in history. In addition to Vukovich's unfortunate end, the European racing champion, Italy's Alberto Ascari, spun out after 40 laps when the right rear wheel of his car collapsed.

Only when Ascari's car was whirling, and when Vukovich was in danger, was the yellow caution light on, slowing the field to 80 miles per hour. Luckily both drivers escaped injury and their cars suffered only slight damage.

Ruttman, at 22, was the youngest driver in the field, and at 245 pounds on a frame over six feet tall, he was the biggest by far.

Pancho Gonzales Leads Pro Tennis

CLEVELAND (UP)—Richard (Big Pancho) Gonzales, although seeded No. 3 today was regarded as the man to beat in the week-long international professional tennis tournament, which starts tonight.

The 24-year-old Californian, who did not compete in the event the last two years, entered the $7,500 meet with a pair of impressive titles to support his claim. He won the national indoor meet in Philadelphia during the winter, and several weeks ago defeated Francisco Little Pancho Segura for the national hardcourt title.

Top seeding in the tourney went to defending champion Frank Kovacs, who upset 1950 titlist Segura last year. Director Jack March rated Segura second.

Former national champion Don Budge, seeded fourth, was the tourney dark horse. But Gonzales, although admitting that the curly-haired star "still is one of the best," said that Budge did not have the stamina of former years and tired after two or three sets.

Bynum Wins One-Hit, 5-0 Victory Over Exchange

Merrill Bynum tossed a one-hit, 5-0 victory over the Exchange club for his Elks teammates in Little League competition yesterday.

Bynum walked five men in the game, but was tough in the clutches as he fanned three and received errorless support by the Elks.

Bob Arthur walked in the second to start the winning rally and successive doubles by Milton Harrington, Bob Bilbro and Oscar Stoneham produced three runs. The Elks added another pair in the fourth on another two-bagger by Stoneham.

Minoso, Hodges Lead Batting In Double-Headers

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP)—Chicago was on the move today in the major leagues — the Go-Sox were going again and the Cubs were coming with a rush — Bob Rush, that is.

It was a great day for the Windy City as both teams made a breeze out of holiday doubleheaders. The White Sox moved into the first division for the first time since May 3 by bowing over the pace-setting Indians at Cleveland, 7-2 and 3-1. Minnie Minoso made practically a personal production of it by hitting three homers to supply the margin of victory in both games.

And the Cubs, strengthening their hold on third place, double-whack the fourth-place Cincinnati Reds 7-6 when Hank Sauer drove home the winning run with a single in the ninth, and 11-0 when Rush pitched a two-hitter and retired the first 20 batters in order.

In his last four games Rush has given only 29 hits, struck out 30 and walked 17 batters in 55 innings. Yesterday, he struck out 10 and walked none. The Cubs made 15 hits to make his job a simple one in the nightcap.

Minoso, practically playing on one leg, made fans wonder what will happen when he gets well, when he returned to action after missing 12 days of play and hit a three-run homer in the first game with the score tied, then lapped two more in the second.

Manager Paul Richards cautioned that Minoso wasn't sound yet and that he might not be able to play regularly in the eastern trip that starts today in Boston. As for Minnie, he passed things off by saying "I didn't do so good — I only got three hits."

The Dodgers twice topped the Braves, 5-4 and 11-2, to move with in half a game of the Giants, who divided with the Phils by losing 3-0 to the Pirates yesterday.

St. Louis (UP)—Lloyd Mangrum, whose golf strokes are like taps on a cash register, held a three-stroke lead in the Western Open tournament today with a 36-hole total of 138.

Tommy Bolt of Durham, N. C., who was all even with Mangrum after a first round 68, Bolt skidded to a 73 yesterday and now is second with 141.

Sam Snead, the pre-tournament favorite, added a 75 to a first round 72 to wind up with 147, seven over par and nine off the pace.

Meyer outduelled Max Lanier in Philadelphia, the Phillies, getting all their runs in the seventh on triples by Willie Jones and Connie Ryan, a double by Smokey Burgess, and a single by Russ Hulse.

Jansen, winning his fourth game, handed Robin Roberts his second loss against seven victories.

In a weird second game which went 0-0 for eight innings, the Cards made three runs in the ninth and then Pittsburgh popped up with four to win. Three of the Pirates runs came on a homer by pinch batter Joe Garagiola.

Shantz, striking out 11 and holding New York scoreless after Mickey Mantle homered in the third, achieved his eighth victory and his seventh straight at Yankee Stadium when Dave Philley singled home the winning run. Hooper held New York scoreless until the ninth in the second game.

Eddie Yost's three-run homer gave reliever Tom Ferrick the Washington victory in the opener at Boston, but the Red Sox came back to win the second and move within a game of first-place Cleveland with a rally in the fifth.

Detroit gained its second game triumph with three runs in the 12th, two on a single by Don Kolloway, who drove in four tallies for the game. The Browns won the opener in the ninth as Joe DeMaestri doubled in the deciding run.

EARNED RUN AVERAGE
CHAPL HILL — Billy Lore, University of North Carolina pitcher from Smithfield, gave up only seven earned runs in 42 innings this season. He had a 3-1 record for the year.

Armyworm Can Be Beat By Early Preparations

Pitt County farmers today were urged to make preparations to treat their fields for control of the regular armyworm in case of widespread attacks by the destructive caterpillar.

County Farm Agent Sam Winchester declared this morning that while infestations are not extensive in any specific area, growers are urged to examine their fields immediately and at frequent intervals thereafter.

"If stripping of leaves is evident, farmers should check the base of the plants at the ground level," the farm agent instructed. "The reason for this is that the caterpillars hide during the day and feed late in the evening."

Worms Migrate
Winchester explained that fields having heavy, dense foliage are most likely to be infested. He emphasized that corn or other crops near grain fields should be watched closely for migration of the worms. Grass in fence rows and along the roadway is often stripped when the pest develops in such areas.

The adult stage, the armyworm moth, lays its eggs in heavy, dense, grassy undergrowth. When the worms first hatch they are very small, but in a few days they will develop into worms one-half inch long. Worms one-half inch long will feed from a week to 10 days.

Winchester reported that a poisoned bait, spread late in the evening at the rate of 15 pounds to the acre will be effective. It is made by mixing one pound of paris green pounds of wheat bran (one half the bran may be substituted with sawdust).

Broadcast Evenly
Mix one pint of molasses with two gallons of water and stir into the bran mixture, then add sufficient water to make a crumbly mass which can be spread by hand. In spreading, broadcast evenly throughout the infested areas and be cautious not to leave it in piles.

Spread all the bait each day. There will be no harm to wildlife if spread properly, the farm agent asserted. The mixture may be used where dust or spray equipment is not available or where insecticide residue may be a hazard to crops.

Capitol Square

is now faced with necessity of extending the operations. A contract is being worked out for cleaning the granite in the corridors and around the rotunda. The extra cost will run about $500, but opinion seems rather general that it ought to be done.

CONTINUING — The situation affords another illustration for the oft repeated adage that "One thing calls for another." When stone the walls and floors in the corridors are cleaned, the columns and granite facings inside the offices will show up mighty dirty by contrast, and it may be appropriated to carry on the project throughout the offices. That will make the whole cleaning job cost something more than $5,000. For a building that would cost more than a million dollars to construct now, and has not been thoroughly cleaned in 110 years, the price does not appear unreasonable.

BACKFIRE — Another instance in which a job grows bigger as part of it is accomplished is the current campaign for a $300,000 building and endowment fund for St. Mary's School and Junior College at Raleigh. The Episcopal school for girls is about the same age as the State Capitol, dating back to 1824. The present drive for funds is the most pretentious ever undertaken by the school, and in one respect it has sort of backfired. Publicity incident to the solicitation for funds has attracted attention to the present advantages at the school, with result that applications for enrollment next year are coming in faster than dollars for the expansion program.

GRATIFYING — The prospect of more girls to care for than ever before is giving the St. Mary's administrators some concern, but on the whole they are very happy about it. They regard the requests for enrollment as evidence of increasing interest in non-tax church-related colleges, which in turn means that more people are able to give a few hundred dollars will be disposed to do so. Another way to say the same thing is that it is an example of the "vicious circle" in reverse, because this circle is exactly the opposite of vicious.

City Recreation Director Addresses Kiwanis Club

By CHESTER WALSH

Warren Carroll, city recreation director, and 14 members of the Kiwanis Club's Little League baseball team were guests of the Kiwanis Club at its supper meeting last night.

Jimmy Brewer and John Barnhill had charge of the program. President Milo Smith presided.

The recreation director said: "In recreation, it is our job to keep the youngsters on an even keel. We have learned that a well trained boy becomes a well trained man, and he is qualified to meet life's problems face to face, and then do his part to solve them for the good of the community."

Carroll complimented Barnhill for his good work at Elm Street Park, and he expressed appreciation to the people of Greenville who are providing it for the youngsters.

When the Little Leaguers stood up on chairs to be introduced by John Barnhill, the nearly 100 Kiwanians and guests gave them a rousing reception. Little League guests were: Gene Byrd, Jack and Kelly Barnhill, Billy Cox, Bobby Edwards, Don Wilkerson, Jimmy Rogers, Bryce Cummings, Burke Stancil, Lanny Berry, Coleman Ruffin and Godfrey Oakley, Jr. Burt Aycock and Len Jorgensen were unable to attend.

Warren Carroll received considerable applause when he told the Kiwanians and guests that a recreation program brings parents and children closer together. He complimented Sonny Walker, coach of the Kiwanis Club's Little League team, for his good work.

Three Kiwanians who are former professional baseball players, Guy V. Smith, Ed E. Rawl and Herman Duncan, were especially hospitable to the Little League players at the meeting.

Rev. E. W. Holmes and President Glasgow Smith of the Farmville Kiwanis Club, and Herman Ginter of Columbia, S. C., new assistant manager of J. C. Penny & Company's store here, were guests.

Kiwanian Tom Wilson had a birthday and donated a dime for each year of his age to a worthy Kiwanis fund.

Secretary David C. Moore, Jr., reminded that Coach Howard Porter of East Carolina College and Kiwanian John Barnhill had done some good work for the Little Leaguers while Coach Sonny Russell was away.

Secretary David C. Moore, Jr., reminded that Coach Howard Porter of East Carolina College and Kiwanian John Barnhill had done some good work for the Little Leaguers while Coach Sonny Russell was away.

When the Little Leaguers stood up on chairs to be introduced by John Barnhill, the nearly 100 Kiwanians and guests gave them a rousing reception. Little League guests were: Gene Byrd, Jack and Kelly Barnhill, Billy Cox, Bobby Edwards, Don Wilkerson, Jimmy Rogers, Bryce Cummings, Burke Stancil, Lanny Berry, Coleman Ruffin and Godfrey Oakley, Jr. Burt Aycock and Len Jorgensen were unable to attend.

Warren Carroll received considerable applause when he told the Kiwanians and guests that a recreation program brings parents and children closer together. He complimented Sonny Walker, coach of the Kiwanis Club's Little League team, for his good work.

Three Kiwanians who are former professional baseball players, Guy V. Smith, Ed E. Rawl and Herman Duncan, were especially hospitable to the Little League players at the meeting.

Rev. E. W. Holmes and President Glasgow Smith of the Farmville Kiwanis Club, and Herman Ginter of Columbia, S. C., new assistant manager of J. C. Penny & Company's store here, were guests.

Kiwanian Tom Wilson had a birthday and donated a dime for each year of his age to a worthy Kiwanis fund.

Germ Warfare Has Propaganda Priority

By JACK JAMES

United Press Staff Correspondent HONG KONG — (UP) — Bacteriological warfare charges against the United States have been given top priority in the international propaganda program of the Chinese Communists. There is every indication that it is successful from their point of view.

Specific rebuttal from top western scientists and from China's most famous epidemic fighter, Dr. Wu Lien-teh, has not stopped or even embarrassed the Chinese propagandists.

Their campaign is still buttressed with exhibits which have been proved "fabricated," descriptions of methods which have been called ineffective, and by statements that are considered questionable at best.

Spread to West

The campaign is not confined to China and North Korea. It has been endorsed by such western scientists as Frederic Joliet-Curie. It has been supported by published findings of such organizations as the International Commission of Democratic Lawyers and the American crime of germ warfare.

A recent release of New China News Agency said that "all student organizations and science institutes in the world" were receiving "documentation and evidence on the use of bacteriological warfare." This propaganda program was sponsored by the International Union of Students, which has a branch in China.

Science organizations in China have written letters of appeal to similar groups in Europe and America asking them to protest the alleged use of bacteriological warfare methods in Korea. The fact that western scientists have discredited the charges as "fabricated" brings only a counter statement that such rebuttal could be expected from "imperialist" scientists.

"Confessions" Printed

One of the most recent phases of the campaign has been publication of "depositions" from two U. S. airmen captured by Communist troops after being shot down over North Korea. The two men, first lieutenants Kenneth K. Enoch and John Quinn, purportedly attended a special school in germ warfare methods and carried out raids over North Korea.

The earliest bacteriological attack described by Communist propaganda agencies prior to the purported confessions of Quinn and Enoch occurred Feb. 24 in North Korea. Quinn was captured on January 13, Enoch on January 30.

The Communists are leaving no methods or medium unused in this campaign. Recorded "confessions" of both Quinn and Enoch have been played over Radio Peiping. Every organization in China from science groups to peasants associations has issued statements condemning the alleged use of germ warfare tactics.

When it is first formed, the human embryo is less than a hundredth of an inch across.

Charges Endorsed

The American - edited China Monthly Review, still published in Shanghai, has printed articles endorsing the charges. Another magazine, China Reconstructs, a slick-paper bi-monthly designed for overseas readers, has also accepted the charges without reservation.

There is evidence that the charges are being increasingly accepted abroad. Trades Union delegations from western countries who visited Peiping for May Day celebrations were all conducted through the exhibit of dead insects and broken bombs which has been prepared in Peiping.

Visitors to Moscow's recent "International Economic Conference" who continued on to China also saw the exhibit.

Romance Hinted For Young King

SIENA, Italy (UP)—King Baudouin I of Belgium was in Italy today for what many believed to be a formal introduction to Italian Princess Margherita with the ultimate objective of marriage.

The bespectacled 21-year-old monarch traveled by train from Brussels to Florence yesterday, then motored to this mountain resort town last night with his stepmother.

Reports from Rome said that Margherita had left the capital for Naples, but no one would be surprised if she should turn up in Siena.

Eisenhower . . .

(Continued from page one) The general said yesterday that his retirement from active duty will become effective today—actually at midnight.

He is expected to report to President Truman in person during his stay in Washington. "On Tuesday night," he said, "I will take off my uniform. Then I will assume the privileges of an American citizen."

Those privileges naturally include the right to discuss political issues freely for the first time since his supporters began campaigning to win the Republican presidential nomination for him.

Although he presumably would be free to do so, Eisenhower still is not expected to make any all-out campaign for the nomination.

Taft Backers Predict Gain In 2 State GOP Conventions

WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. Robert A. Taft's supporters predicted gains for the Ohioan today in conventions in New Mexico and Virginia.

Republicans name 14 delegates to the GOP national convention at the New Mexico convention and four at large delegates at the Virginia convention.

Taft backers claimed a substantial majority going into the New Mexico meeting, although county and district conventions have been closely divided and a heated contest appeared to be shaping up.

Virginia Republicans already have elected 17 national convention delegates in district conventions.

Eight favor Taft, one supports Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and eight are uncommitted. The Eisenhower camp believes a majority of the full delegation will be uncommitted and that most of these votes will go to the general.

The pro-Eisenhower faction of the GOP in Georgia also chose four delegates-at-large at a state convention today. The Taft faction already has completed its 17-member slate.

Like Louisiana and Texas, Georgia Republicans will send rival delegations to the national convention to compete for seats.

Eisenhower will arrive here tomorrow from Europe to report to President Truman, Defense Secretary Robert A. Lovett and the Joint Chiefs of Staff. He will doff his uniform Tuesday and leave the same day — as a civilian — for his home town of Abilene, Kan., where he will deliver a homescoming speech Wednesday.

David S. Ingalls, Taft's campaign manager, and Gail Sullivan, campaign director of Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), swapped verbal blows with Eisenhower headquarters yesterday.

The general's headquarters invited all Republican convention delegates to meet with Eisenhower and "get his views." An Eisenhower spokesman who would not permit use of his name said last night he had been misunderstood when he announced earlier in the day that the Eisenhower national headquarters would pay the delegates' expenses.

Ingalls charged that the plan "comes pretty close to bribery." He said the invitation "is only one example of the money poured by Wall Street" into the drive to put Eisenhower into the White House.

Sullivan called the plan "gross bribery in the best tradition of the Republican Party," and "a brazen attempt to buy support." He demanded an investigation by the Justice Department to seek possible "violation of the Corrupt Practices Act."

Wes Roberts, executive director of the Eisenhower headquarters, retorted that "the Eisenhower national headquarters is not paying any delegates' expenses."

Student Legislative Session Slated In Municipal Court Room On June 3

Douglas Mitchell, president of the Greenville High School Chapter of the National Forensic League, announced today plans for a two-session student legislative assembly in Greenville's Municipal Court Room, June 3rd. The opening session will convene Tuesday, 2:00 p.m. All high school students present at that time will be seated.

Each may introduce one bill or resolution. The second session is scheduled for 7:30 Tuesday evening.

All high school students of Eastern Carolina are eligible to participate in this student congress that will be patterned after state and national legislative sessions. The first resolution on the agenda is one favoring world federal government.

Several experienced student congressmen and some newcomers have accepted invitations to participate. This practice congress is the last event planned by the local forensic club members for the 1954-55 school year. R. B. Starling, adviser for the Greenville High School Chapter will serve as adviser for the legislative sessions.

More Truckers Are Arrested

CHOCOWINY (UP) — Two more truck drivers faced charges of violating potato price ceilings today after highway patrolmen and agents of the Office of Price Stabilization operated a roadblock near here last night.

"There were so many spectators we should have sold tickets at the roadblock," OPS agents said.

Before contact with white men, many Eskimos ate nothing but meat.
