If Elected, Would

Problems; Says

Are Key Issues Of His Campaign

ABILENE, Kan. (UP)—Dwight D. Eisenhower indicated today that if he is nominated and elected to the presidency he would probably reappoint Gen. Douglas MacArthur to a high post.

The general told newsmen that he had "no prescription" for bringing the Korean war to a successful end, but that the ideological situation makes retreat from present United Nations lines impractical.

Eisenhower also said he favors voluntary rather than compulsory regulation of working conditions between the races—in other words, a voluntary FEPC.

"What is your attitude toward the FEPC?" Eisenhower was asked by one of the questioners who really threw the question book at the Republican presidential candidate.

"FEPC—when you use those initials you are proposing a sort of shotgun question," Eisenhower replied. "But then he gave this answer:

"I have no objection whatever to stating my unalterable support of fairness among all American citizens. I believe that insofar as the federal government has any constitutional authority in this field, all of its policies should adhere firmly and without any qualification to that principle.

"I do not believe we can cure all of the evils in men's hearts by law. I believe we can do more by leadership and by getting states to do so than by making it a federal or a compulsory thing. I shall never cease to fight for that.

Eisenhower told his first political news conference that he had "tremendous respect" for MacArthur's intellectual and military ability.

"There is nothing that I would allow to bar me from seeking access to the finest brains," Eisenhower said. "If a man of his (MacArthur's) expert knowledge on Far East were available, I would certainly seek him out."

Peace and security, Eisenhower said in reply to a query on his idea of the "paramount issues" of the campaign, stand foremost before the people today.

"I do not believe our forces (in Korea) can carry through," Eisenhower said when asked how the Korean war could be ended successfully.

Eisenhower opened the news conference in Abilene's largest movie theater by stating again his position as a Republican. Some 350 newsmen attended the conference, and at the last moment arrangements were made to carry the questions and answers on a "live" television show carried by networks.

Eisenhower launched his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination yesterday with a nationally televised homecoming speech in which he criticized deficit spending, excessive taxation and said the Democrats have been too long in power.

Today he called attention to the statement of political principles and objectives laid down by the Republican leadership on Feb. 6, 1950 and said "I am in general accord with that statement of political philosophy."

Eisenhower said, "I have never voted any Democratic ticket."

That brought applause from a large group of backers who attended the conference.

Eisenhower declined to talk about Sen. Robert A. Taft on grounds that he is not going into personalities. He said he would support Taft if the Ohioan wins the nomination.

Asked about his own chances to win the nomination in Chicago next month, Eisenhower said:

"I haven't the slightest idea."

He declined to fix the blame for the loss of China to Communism on grounds that he was not going to indulge in personalities. "But I do know that the party in power at the time has to take its share of

Utilities Policy Of Expansion Is Set

Commission Adopts Policy Early Today Requiring Property Owners Or Developers Outside City To Pay Full Cost

Greenville's Utilities Commission late this morning adopted a set policy to govern extension of water and sewer mains in developments outside the corporate limits of the city.

The policy adopted by the board in substance will require the developers of property owners of areas outside the corporate limits of the city to pay 100 per cent of the cost of the installation of water and sewer facilities, and likewise require that the work be done under the supervision of the city utilities.

Action on the policy-setting move taken by the commission this morning brought to an end more than two months of investigation and study of the matter of extending city utilities lines outside the corporate limits of the city.

The complete resolution in its final form was not available at noon today because the board instructed city attorney R. B. Lee to prepare the resolution in final form to be presented to the city aldermen when they meet tonight.

In addition to providing that water and sewer lines extensions outside the corporate limits of the city must be fully paid for by property owners, the resolution also specified that after installations are made in compliance to the resolution, the tapping fees for water and sewer taps outside the corporate limits of Greenville will be the same as they are within the city.

In the past there has been a differential between the tapping charges within and outside the city with the charge for taps outside the corporate limits of the city being higher.

After adopting the set policy this morning, the board of commissioners passed another resolution as an explanation of the reasons behind their action. The motion made by Commissioners W. H. Woolard and adopted by the board, read: "It is the consensus of the board that it would like to participate or assist in the extension of water and sewer facilities outside the corporate limits, however, on the advice of our attorney, it is illegal for this board to spend city funds for such extensions outside the corporate limits, therefore there is no alternative other than to require developers of subdivisions outside the city limits to pay the full cost of such extensions."

The meeting this morning was a continuation of a special meeting held by the utilities commission last night to set a policy on water and sewer main extensions outside the city limits.

The proposal given consideration by the commission last night was prepared by the city attorney after a study of the situation by a committee composed of Commissioners John G. Clark Sr., J. B. Kittrell and Superintendent Martin Swarts appointed by the commission at a previous meeting. The proposal made last night would have required developers of subdivisions outside the corporate limits to pay approximately 75 per cent of the cost of installing water and sewer mains in such subdivisions.

No action was taken on the matter last night although it was discussed for more than two hours by the commission. The complexity of the proposal changed abruptly this morning, however, when city attorney Lee informed the commissioners that the state statutes prohibit the use of city funds for extending water service for domestic use only outside the corporate limits of the city. Lee said the statute permitted the extension of water mains for fire protection up to two miles beyond the city's corporate limits.

It was pointed out at the meeting this morning that other cities in this section have adopted policies similar to the one adopted by the Greenville commission. A spokesman who checked with other cities in this section shortly before the meeting today reported Wilson, Rocky Mount and Elizabeth City require property owners outside the corporate limits to pay 100 per cent of the cost of installing such facilities, and that Rocky Mount makes a 10 per cent higher charge for water outside the city limits than within the corporate limits of the city. Goldsboro requires property owners to pay for installation of facilities outside the corporate limits, has an extra charge of 50 per cent for water service outside the corporate limits of the city, and provides that one-half the income from water be rebated to such property owners for a period of eight years after they are taken into the corporate limits of the city.

All five members of the Utilities Commission were present at the meeting last night as well as Mayor Lester D. Page, three members of the board of aldermen and other interested citizens. Only four of the five members of the Utilities Commission were present at the meeting this morning at which the final policy was adopted. Present were Chairman Roy Martin, W. H. Woolard, Dr. K. B. Pace and John G. Clark. Commissioner J. B. Kittrell was not present at the meeting this morning.

The first day of summer school was devoted to registration, schedule arranging and a short meeting of each class. The summer session will last either six or 12 weeks, depending on the individual's scheduled class.

English, math and history for grades nine through 12 are being taught this summer. All of the teachers are regular Greenville High School teachers. They are Ward James, Frank Tootman, Deanne Haskett and Frances Smith.

The situation at the prison was reported peaceful today. Prison officials disclosed that two guards have been fired within the past few days. Their names were not revealed. One guard, officials stated, had been smuggling a drug "yellowjacket," to prisoners. The other guard was discharged for reporting to work drunk.

Three or four guards have quit in the past week as a result of recent violence at the prison.

Warden Robert A. Allen said the rebellion began shortly after 1 p. m. yesterday. The prisoners seized three guards and seven civilian foremen and locked them in the Industrial Building. They demanded that Walter Anderson and their grievances were outlined to them.

Allen said no violence was reported during the uprising, but the prison made preparations for the worst. Armed guards on the walls were given tear gas and other weapons. All State Highway patrolmen in the Wake County area were alerted on a standby basis. All prisoners were called to their jobs.

All industry in the prison, which houses about 800 inmates, came to a halt. All prisoners except those who took part in the demonstration were locked in their cells.

After he was released, A. T. Gaddy, one of the foremen, said: "Never felt so good to be free."

The three guards held as hostages were Ellis Waller, Arthur Lowery and Arthur Bradford. In addition to Gaddy, the foremen were L. R. Timpie, W. P. Green, S. S. Green, R. T. Harrison, D. K. Lagarde and Ellis Lassiter.

Denies Any 'Plot' For Candidacy

Truman Assails Stories He Plans Demo Coup; Silent On Eisenhower

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Truman today denounced as the product of warped minds a report that he is secretly plotting to capture the Democratic presidential nomination for himself.

The President told his weekly news conference that he would attend the Democratic national convention, but only as the retiring President and only after a new presidential nominee has been selected.

Furthermore, the President said that the 1952 Democratic nominee would not be the present occupant of the White House. He emphasized that the reporters could be sure of that.

A reporter told Mr. Truman that there had been several "charges" from Republicans recently that the President is secretly plotting to get the nomination.

This sort of thing, the President said, came from warped minds and represented what these people would do if they were in his position.

As for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's statement yesterday that one party has been in power too long, the President said that is up to the people to decide.

He declined to discuss further the Eisenhower speech on the grounds that he is not running the Republican pre-convention contest. He admitted deriving a certain amount of pleasure over the dispute between Sen. Robert A. Taft and Eisenhower over Eisenhower's record on air power.

Asked whether he thought Taft was correct in stating that American air power began to decline when Eisenhower was chief of staff, the President said he would not comment on the quarrels of the Republican Party. Although these quarrels pleased him very much, he said he did not want to get mixed up in them.

Eisenhower said Tuesday that he had backed a "no-group Air Force" but "we were whittled down." It was Mr. Truman who did the whittling, but that question did not come up at today's press conference.

Asked whether he thought Eisenhower had spelled out the issues yesterday at Abilene, the President said he frankly did not know.

He said Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), with whom he scheduled a meeting this afternoon, was correct in his belief that the chief executive would remain neutral in the race for the Democratic nomination.

Asked whether this neutrality would last up until the start of the Democratic convention or extend through the convention, Mr. Truman said with a slight trace of irritation that he was not placing any time limit on his actions. He recommended that reporters wait and see what happens.

His Own Surprise

Reflector Staff Writer

Chief of Police Guy C. Langston this morning handed in his written resignation effective July 1st, Mayor Lester D. Page, climaxing a two year term as Greenville's number one police official. Langston's resignation was not formally presented to Mayor Page as the Mayor was not in his office at the time the Chief called, it was understood.

Commenting on the sudden resignation submitted by Chief Langston, Mayor Mayor Page said, "It was a surprise to me, I thought they were getting along good over there and were doing a good job."

The official resignation was submitted around 11:30 this morning and prior to the regular business session of the local board tonight. The resignation read:

"Mayor Lester D. Page and Board of Aldermen:

"Please accept this as my official resignation as Chief of Police, city of Greenville, effective July 1st, 1952.

"I have enjoyed my work here and appreciate very deeply the cooperation extended to me by you and all members of the Greenville Police Department.

"My work here has been very educational and I hope in some small way I may have contributed to the welfare of the community, its citizens and the department with which I worked."

The resignation, if accepted by the board of aldermen tonight, will end a two-year term in office for Langston which began on September 1950, when Langston first took over the reins of the department.

Chief Langston, when interviewed this morning, stated that he was not prepared at this time to make any statement as to what duties he would assume after the termination of his office here on the first of July.

Langston came to Greenville as Chief of Police from New Bern where he was employed by the Highway Safety Division in this area.

Prior to that, the chief was with the North Carolina State Highway Patrol, stationed in Vanceboro, where he was employed by the Highway Patrol after he terminated his duties as Chief here in July. However, nothing official on this could be obtained from the resigning officer or the Highway Patrol office in Greenville, this morning.

Langston's resignation was accepted by the board of aldermen tonight, which was held at the Greenville Police Department.

Non-Communists Recapture Auto Plant;
No Enthusiasm For Walkouts

PARIS (UP)—Non-Communist workers drove Red strong-arm squads out of the sprawling government-owned Renault automobile plant today. They used their fists and swung their tools as clubs.

It was the second futile attempt to seize Renault by the Communists who were smarting because of the failure of yesterday's call for a general strike throughout France. Red squads moved into the Renault plant yesterday but fled out meekly when police riot squads assembled for a drive against them.

This morning the Reds came back. They cut electric cables and tried to seize control of the factory, stopping work in the smelting and casting shop, long a Communist stronghold.

They demanded that non-Communists quit work and join the Red demand for "immediate liberation" of jailed Communist leader Jacques Duclos, held on charges of plotting against the internal security of the state.

But the non-Communist workers rallied, barred entrances to many workshops and refused to enter the Red squads with fists and tools.

The Communist Party tried to rouse its apathetic followers to more effective action in a campaign to free Duclos.

Marseilles authorities said 1,300 railroad workers who went on strike yesterday in response to orders from the Communist-run General Confederation of Labor had been suspended.

Only two of the 240,000 employees of the postal, telephone and telegraph ministry failed to work, and both of them also were suspended.

Miss Stauffer Entertains For Brides Elect

Miss Dorothy Stauffer was a hostess at luncheon Tuesday at 1:00 p.m. when she entertained to honor Miss Carolyn Rowlett, whose approaching marriage is being celebrated.

Many arrangements of various summer flowers were used in the rooms where the guests were received by the hostess and her mother. White gladioli predominated in the decorations, with combinations of daisies and peonies used for variety.

Miss Rowlett and Miss Mary Smith, who has recently returned to her home from school at the University of North Carolina and who will be married later this month, were presented with white gladioli corsages upon their arrival.

The luncheon guests found their places at card tables arranged in the living room, dining room and sunroom. Each table was centered with a white candle in a silver holder, which was encircled at the base with panicles and streamers of white satin ribbon.

Following the course luncheon, which was concluded with a dessert of bridal ice in wedding molds and decorated cakes, the hostess presented Miss Rowlett with a combination waffle iron-sandwich toaster, and she gave Miss Smith a gift of a silver bon bon dish.

Greenville Couple Wed In California Chapel Ceremony

On Monday evening, May 26th, at 5:30 p.m., Miss Ruth Agnes Page became the bride of Lloyd Douglas Allen, U.S.N., in a simple but impressive candlelight ceremony solemnized at the Naval Chapel, San Francisco, California, by Chaplain R. L. Jenkins, U.S.N.

Prior to the wedding ceremony, the organist of the chapel played such selections as "Because," "Always," "Through the Years," and "I Love Thee." She played the traditional wedding marches and during the ceremony played "Ave Maria."

The bride, who was given in marriage by Chief Orville Louvar, U.S.N., wore an ankle-length dress of white chantilly lace over satin, fashioned with a high neck and long pointed sleeves. Her shoulder length veil was of silk illusion. Her only ornament was a string of pearls, gift of the groom.

Her matron of honor and only attendant was Mrs. Orville Louvar. She wore a street length dress of ice blue crepe, with matching blue accessories and a wide picture hat.

The groom chose as his best man Lieutenant E. M. Cox, U.S.N. The bride is the only daughter of Mayor and Mrs. Lester D. Page of Greenville. Movie Producer Scrubbing Floors

Hollywood (UP)—Walter Wanger, an intellectual, dignified movie producer, was routed out of his cell in the county jail before dawn today to scrub floors.

The white-haired mogul was handed a mop as he began the first full day of his four-month sentence for shooting the suspected lover of his actress wife, Joan Bennett, last Dec. 13.

Wanger was escorted late last night by his attorney, Jerry Geisler, to cell 10A2 with an inside exposure.

Wanger is accustomed to dining at LaRue's and wearing hand-tailored suits. But on the 13th floor of the Hall of Justice, he was just Prisoner 228487 in ill-fitting blue denim pants, shirt and jacket.

At 6 a. m. the 57-year-old producer, convicted of pumping two bullets into the groin of agent Jennings Lang, ate a breakfast of stewed fruit, oatmeal, bread and coffee with the 2,433 other prisoners.

Then he stood before a classification board that determined what kind of prison work he is best suited for.

He was scheduled to be moved to the prison honor farm 50 miles away at Castaic by late tonight.

Wanger, silent and solemn, refused last night to speak to hovering reporters, and Geisler only said:

"Mr. Wanger stated at the time he waived his right to trial by jury that he took this course of action because of his wife and children, and that statement stands today."

Geisler pumped Wanger's hand and said, "good luck."

"Goodbye, Jerry, thanks for everything," the producer said, and the bars clanged shut behind him.

With time off for good behavior Wanger's sentence can be reduced to 3 1/2 months. At the honor farm he will feed hogs, work in the fields or milk cows.

Harriman Relies On Party Tie-Up

LANSING, Mich., (UP)—W. Averell Harriman believes a stalemate at next month's Democratic national convention will net him the presidential nomination as a compromise candidate.

"I am confident the convention will accord me the nomination—eventually," he told a news conference last night, "although I do not expect to win it on the initial ballot."

In a speech before the Eleanor Roosevelt League of Michigan, the 60-year-old diplomat said the American people would support a candidate who will maintain "fair deal" programs "at home and abroad."

"Decreasing our foreign aid program or any weakening of our foreign policy now will only play into the hands of Soviet Russia," he said.

Harriman was referring to a House-Senate conference committee which Tuesday approved $6,448,000,000 in U. S. foreign aid appropriations after President Truman recommended $7,900,000,000.

He will judge the work of piano students on the high school and college levels and, through their performances, evaluate the work of their teachers. The piano auditions are held annually under the sponsorship of the National Guild of Piano Teachers, and a number of students of talent are awarded scholarships for further study of music as a result of their performances.

In New York City Mr. Carter will judge contests at the Manhattan School of Music June 7 and at the Carl Fisher Concert Hall June 8-14. He will be in upper New York state for contests during the week of June 15.

Tuesday Dessert Bridge Given By Mrs. A.C. Tadlock

Miss Carolyn Rowlett and Miss Dorothy Stauffer, both of whom will be married this month, were extended a courtesy on Tuesday night when Mrs. A. C. Tadlock entertained at bridge for them.

Mrs. Tadlock's home on Library street was decorated with flowers which emphasized a green and pink color note. Profusions of sweetheart roses and ivy were used in various arrangements to carry out the bridal motif.

In the dining room the point of interest was a miniature bride scene arranged before an improvised church altar which was arched with fern, gypsophylla and pink roses and lighted by pink tapers.

The refreshment tables were centered with single pink tapers in crystal holders which were encircled with ivy. Bridal tallies with soft pastel designs marked the places of each player, and the two honorees along with Miss Mary Smith, whose engagement has been announced, were given sweetheart roses made into shoulderettes.

Molded bridal ices and daintily decorated petit fours accompanied by iced fruit punch were served as soon as the guests had assembled. Mrs. C. B. Rowlett, Mrs. J. F. Bowen, Mrs. J. J. Stauffer and Mrs. Herbert Paschal of Washington were dessert guests.

During the game iced drinks and salted nuts were served. After several progressions the scores were tallied and Mrs. Jack Minges was awarded costume jewelry for high score and Miss Stauffer was given earrings as a consolation prize.

The honorees were remembered with gifts of silver from the hostess.

Fights Any 'Exposing' Of Child To Rossellini

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Dr. Peter Lindstrom vowed today to fight any attempt to "expose" his 13-year-old daughter by Ingrid Bergman to the actress' new husband, Roberto Rossellini, whom he described as a drug addict with "a habit of living with mistresses."

"I don't want the child exposed to Rossellini," the physician declared in court yesterday during a hearing on his custody fight with Miss Bergman, who left him for the Italian movie director after a much-publicized romance on the island of Stromboli in 1949.

Lindstrom was scheduled to testify further when the hearing resumes today.

He accused Rossellini "for all practical purposes" of running away with Miss Bergman and said he felt the girl, Pia, should be kept away from him.

"He seems to have a habit of living with mistresses while married to someone else," Lindstrom charged. "It has been quoted in the United States Senate that he is a drug addict and has been incarcerated at least twice."

The physician also said he had received reports that Rossellini sued for divorce from a former wife on grounds that he was under the influence of drugs when the wedding took place.

Lindstrom divorced Miss Bergman here in 1950 after she bore Rossellini a son. She now is in a hospital in Italy awaiting the birth of twins.

Miss Bergman is seeking to have Pia visit her in Italy this summer. The physician contends he is not opposed to having the girl visit her mother, but he wants them to meet outside Italy and without Rossellini present.

Superior Judge Mildred Lillie granted Lindstrom's request to take Pia to Pennsylvania, where he has accepted an appointment at a Veterans Administration hospital.

Miss Bergman's attorneys agreed to the move, and the court said California would retain jurisdiction

Frail Old Vets Of Confederate Army Disbanded

JACKSON (UP)—Two frail old "generals" watched the "party gals" from wheel chairs today amid rebel-yelling whoopla of a final reunion of the dwindling, officially disbanded, Confederate army.

Gen. William (Josh) Bush, 106, of Fitzgerald, Ga., and Gen. William D. Townsend, 107, of Olla La, seemed not to mind having the veteran organization of a once-powerful army dissolved by its sponsors.

"We'll have a gay old time," said Bush, rakish cigar smoker who still dances a jig and styles himself a "wolf in Confederate gray."

Townsend confined himself to an occasional feeble whoopee.

Except during the grand ball in their honor, they wanted to sit all day in the lobby of the Robert E. Lee Hotel and "look at the party Mississippi gals."

The action disbanded the seven survivors of General Lee's army was voted yesterday by the 57th annual convention of the Sons of Confederate Veterans.

"The past is past, long live the memories," said William Beard, SCV commander from Westfield, N. J. He pointed out the feeble survivors are "living in shadows" and no longer able to carry on an organization.

Until Bush arrived by plane last night, Townsend was the only vet on hand. Gen. John Salling, 106, of Slat Va., at the last moment found he was too feeble to come. The others were bedridden.

Tears welled in Townsend's eyes when Bush, greeting him for probably their last reunion, said, "How have you been, old buddy?"

"Fine," Townsend replied. "I'm sure glad to see you, old brother. We've sure been through some rough days together."

"Why didn't you meet me at the airport, you old rascal?"

"Well, I have to get around in a wheel chair," said Townsend.

"Don't have any use for those things myself," quipped Bush, seated in a wheel chair identical to Townsend's.

Townsend had just finished a fried chicken dinner and invited Bush to have some but Bush's wife wheeled him off to bed instead.

"Shucks," Bush grumbled, "I never have any fun."

Strength for the Day

BACK HOME AGAIN
THE GOOD AGAINST THE GOOD
One of the hardest things to do is to be patient with good people who are not good in our way. Their goodness may be genuine, but if it differs from whatever goodness we have, this difference often annoys us more than if these people were the perpetrators of downright evil.

In the field of politics and international relations, we get a vivid illustration of this truth. Both political parties in the United States have within them men of the highest integrity and ability. What is true in the United States is true in every other modern country. Patriots, regardless of their party, are always trying to achieve the same ends but they are traveling different pathways. And how annoyed we can get with people who are traveling pathways different from those of our choosing.

Within families and offices, in clubs and on college faculties, this situation exists in a way that often occasions scandal. Fine people keep hammering away at one another, unable to agree on the road they will take to reach some desired end. They agree on the end, but they cannot agree on the way to reach that end. They are good people but they are fighting other good people—not over ideals but over ways of attaining these ideals.

A Heartening Spectacle Of French Will To Fight

It is a heartening spectacle, the way the French government is matching blow for blow with the Communists in their attempt to cripple France's industry and transportation in protest to the imprisonment of the Communist leader in that country.

How long have many American people believed that France would be among the first to crumble under Communist pressure from within just as her armies did when the Nazis hit the Maginot line? How long has it been since the American people have taken a full glimpse of the fighting will of the French people at home against the Communist threats on their freedoms?

Nothing that has happened since World War II has done more to build up American esteem for the French people than the way the French government is matching toughness with toughness in the current crisis with the Communists in that country.

Not only is it heartening to see the French government is using strong-arm methods in dealing with Communists on their own ground, but it is likewise significant and encouraging to see that less than two per cent of the labor force of France has sided with the Communists now that the chips are down between the Communist organization and French government.

Perhaps we had too little faith in the French people. Perhaps we thought the Communist doctrine of deceit had gained more support than the present crisis shows. And as we view the situation as it progresses in France, maybe we have placed less confidence in the free people of other European nations than they deserve.

As The Reflector has said previously, in this battle the French government and its people must fight the Communists alone. And in our opinion they are doing a remarkable job which, if it runs its course as it has begun, may go a long way toward knocking the props from under a strong Communist movement in France.

An Honor That Is Well Deserved

The chest of Pitt County has swelled with pride with the naming one of its citizens as the "outstanding Father of 1952" in the United States by the Cincinnati Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Everyone in Pitt County who knows W. L. Mayo and his family, will heartily agree that no finer tribute to fatherhood could be found were the nation gone over with a fine tooth comb.

Fourteen college diplomas is a mighty big crop to raise on a 100-acre farm even in the rich tobacco land of Pitt County, but that is exactly what the Mayos are doing. So far there are seven college diplomas hanging in the Mayo house on the Belvoir road a few miles from Greenville, and there are seven more yet to come as the younger members of the family make their way through high school and colleges.

Raising and educating 14 children is certainly an outstanding accomplishment for any father, any family. It is difficult in these times of high farm prices, and certainly it was doubly difficult during the lean years when farm prices were at rock bottom. But through diligent, determined work, the Mayos, father, mother and all the children have pitched in to bring the crops from the fields, and in turn bring the harvest of diplomas home from several colleges in the state. They make a shining example of what can be done through hard work and determination even in the face of overwhelming odds and unusual hardships.

With his selection as Father of the Year Mr. Mayo will become a challenge to many young family men across the nation, as his life and his endeavors on behalf of his children have become a challenge and an inspiration to the people of Pitt County who have known him for many years.

Mr. Mayo's recognition is well deserved and his accomplishments indeed point to his own inner greatness.

Aggression Has Not Been Deterred

Will America see the Korean war through?
Is our enthusiasm for preventing and punishing aggression in the cooling-off stage?

Sure, the Communies have been driven out of South Korea and much of their own land laid to waste. They've lost a lot of blood, too; but their single-minded purpose of conquest has not been deterred and it's evident that given half a chance the Reds will again try a Russian-style blitzkrieg.

The enemy does not show signs of a sincere desire for an armistice; preferring, instead, to undermine the position and strength of their almost-conquerors. When the scales are once again preponderantly in their favor will they continue to heckle, reprimand and propagandize at Panmunjon... or will they drop their shallow pretense and swarm southward again?

More and more it becomes increasingly evident that the Eighth Army must either be strengthened enough to clean up Korea, or prepare to pull out. Our military strength should not be fruitlessly sacrificed. There is not enough such strength to dissipate it in a war which will not be settled with crushing an enemy or for attaining no tangible end.

Some day, perhaps soon, someone on "our" side of the fence must make a decision. In this case, the sooner the better.

National Whirligig

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—President Truman has just added a new member to his official household whose record at the Pentagon promises no improvement in a White House staff frequently rebuked in official Congressional reports for their unethical conduct. He will be "given house" along with such convicted influence peddlers as the Vaughans, Dawsons and Grahams.

The latest addition to the servitariat, which is undergoing expansion in anticipation of the presidential campaign, is Clayton Fritchey, a former New Orleans newspaperman. He was promoted to his new post after a relatively short service as head of the Public Information Office of the Defense Department.

CENSOR—His last official act in that job was to issue an order which was a deliberate falsification of facts fully known to him. It is one of the most barefaced dishonest documents to be attributed in a period when almost every official paper and utterance bear the imprint of partisan propaganda, or seek to conceal the truth.

Before giving the details of this fraudulent transaction, it should be noted that Fritchey has been responsible for almost all Pentagon publicity dealing with rearmament, the "police action" in Korea and the "cold war" against Russia. He passed on the question of what news should be given out or withheld, and the form in which it should be issued. He was the press censor.

Secondly, although he has not been assigned to any specific duties at the White House, his training and experience obviously equip him only to write speeches for administration spokesmen in the presidential contest, and to polish official statements on political and governmental subjects. He is not an expert in any particular field.

His past and prospective responsibilities, inasmuch as they concern the American people's right to information of vital importance to them, make Truman's choice of him an extremely important matter. It transcends the question of personalities.

MASSACRE—Although the reasons behind Fritchey's overnight shift from the Pentagon to the White House were recently hinted at here, it is necessary to review them briefly for an understanding of the sequel. They depict the Louisiana man as the kind of captain who is the first to desert a sinking ship.

Fritchey's Public Information office has been the target of another former New Orleans editor, Representative F. Edward Hebert. In the fields of newspaper work and government the two have been tending for years. As a member of the Armed Services committee and an investigator of military extravagance, Hebert singled out his old rival's office for financial massacre.

In the Defense Appropriation Act as passed by the House, the funds for the office of Public Information were cut from a requested $1,200,000 to a mere $312,500. This may necessitate an eventual reduction of 75 per cent of the men and women, officers and civilians, in that unit.

Instead of being executive editor of a large staff, Fritchey would become only a country correspondent, to use newspaper terminology.

NOTICE—Just before he ran off to his plucky post at the White House, where he will draw $15,000 instead of $14,600 annually, Fritchey notified almost 200 Public Information employees that they would have to look for another job after June 30. He sent them this notice:

"The curtailment of funds in the Office of Public Information by specific provision in the Defense Appropriation Act for the fiscal year 1953 makes it necessary to reduce the staff of this office."

INCREDIBLE—There is not a word of truth in this statement. It is false from beginning to end. There was no need to issue it except to try to discredit Representative Hebert and House colleagues who voted with him for the reduction of funds.

That a man responsible for such a falsehood should become the trusted publicity adviser, propagandist and secretarial performer at the White House is incredible. Here is why:

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Home cooking is always better than anything you can buy away from home, with one glaring exception: coffee. Everybody says that it's impossible to make good coffee in small quantities; that is, everybody except the Pan-American Coffee Bureau and the National Coffee Association. They say it can be done, and outline the following steps:

1. Measure your coffee and water accurately. The experts recommend two level measuring tablespoons for each three-fourths of a standard measuring cup of water. But you can adjust these proportions to suit your own taste.

2. Be sure your coffee is fresh and be sure you use the proper grind for your coffee maker.

3. Use fresh cold water just drawn from the tap. Warm water may give your brew a flat taste.

4. Serve the coffee as soon as possible after brewing. If you have to let it stand, keep it warm over very low heat.

5. Brew coffee at or near the full capacity of your pot. If you usually need only a cup or two, get a small pot; brewing at less than two-thirds of the pot's capacity will produce weak coffee.

6. Time your brewing consistently. Once you've found the exact time it takes to brew with your particular pot, stick to it for uniform results.

7. Never boil the coffee itself. Boiling extracts everything in the coffee that can be extracted, including some oils that will give your brew a bitter taste.

8. Don't re-use the coffee grounds. That's like squeezing an orange for the second time; you're likely to get those bitter oils.

9. If your coffee-maker uses a cloth filter, don't let it become dry; always keep it immersed in cold water — this reduces the amount of oils that cling to it.

10. Always keep your coffee pot clean. Scrub it with soap after each use and then rinse it with clear hot water.

What kind of coffee should you use? It doesn't matter, just try the various blends until you find one you like.

And I thank you.

CHANCELLOR — Retirement of Col. John W. Harrelson as vice president of the Consolidated University of North Carolina and chancellor of State College put a real burden upon the university trustees to replace him. Harrelson notified the board last week that he would retire on June 30, 1953. Already there is speculation about his probable successor, both as to names of individuals and type of man needed.

AGRICULTURALIST — For several years the leaders of farmer organizations and allied interests have been urging that when Harrelson retired, as it was known he would sometime soon because of his present 67 years, he should be succeeded by an agriculturalist. In support of that contention and before discussing names, the farm folks argue that the official designation of the school is State College of Agriculture and Engineering of the University of North Carolina, and that when first chartered as an independent institution it was North Carolina College of Agriculture and Mechanics Arts, commonly known as A&M. Yet every chief executive officer has been from the engineering rather than the agricultural field, whether the top official carried the title of president, dean of administration or chancellor.

ENGINEERING — The engineering group among alumni and friends combat the farmer's arguments about how fast North Carolina is developing agriculturally with statistics proving State College progress in engineering—particularly in textiles, Diesel engines and nuclear physics — as justification for continuing an engineer at the head of the college.

ADMINISTRATOR — A third segment, and perhaps the largest, holds to the idea that what is needed is a competent administrator and that identification with any trade or profession is of secondary importance.

if of any consequence at all. This middle group also contends that it matters little whether the new chancellor be a native of North Carolina. The main thing is to get the best man obtainable.

NAMES — So far discussion of names has been confined to members of the University faculty, mostly those at State College. From the engineering group mention has been made of J. H. Lampe, dean of engineering, and Malcolm Campbell, dean of the textile school. From the agricultural group has come suggestion of James H. Hilton, dean of agriculture, and—not connected with the college but a recognized friend — L. Y. Ballentine, state commissioner of agriculture; and Dr. R. F. Poole, president of Clemson College. As time moves on many additional names will be proposed to the trustee committee charged with nominating a chancellor, and the committee will face the task of weeding out three or four finalists from a possible list of a hundred or more.

ODDS — Speculative odds presently favor Hilton as most likely choice. He has proven his capacity both as a technician and as an executive. So have the others mentioned. The odds go to Hilton because of other recent developments. A few weeks ago he was offered the presidency of midwestern college at substantially higher salary than his State College figure, and after considerable deliberation and conference with the western group and Carolina authorities he declined the offer. That decision, taken in connection with Hilton's personal popularity and the known efforts to obtain an agricultural chancellor here, led to conclusion he had been given assurance of important support for the position.

OPEN FIELD — The field is open. The position can be filled only by majority vote of the trustees of the Consolidated University, and past record of that fine bunch of men and women justifies confidence that their final choice will be a competent man, whether he come from the farm, or factory or machine shop. In truth it makes no difference at all. Except that each profession has some pride in its own folks and likes to see them advance.

EXHIBITORS — A total of 953 exhibitors from 77 counties competed for prizes at the 1951 North Carolina State Fair aggregating $42,997.50—and took home premium money in the amount of $30,433.50. That is the gist of an analytical chart on the fair prepared by John W. Fox Jr., assistant manager and publicity director. In the compilation duplications have been deleted, so that the quoted figures represent actual number of exhibitors (eliminating duplications where one exhibitor entered in more than one department) and the actual number of counties with one or more exhibitors.

BREAKDOWN — The largest number of exhibits came in the women's department, where 379 entries were listed including culinary, clothing and house furnishings from 44 counties. Major share of the premium money ($11,993.00) went to 13 exhibitors of livestock from 47 counties. Further breakdown shows the following exhibits: Individual Farms, 10; 4-H Clubs, 12; Vocational, 7; Negro exhibits, 7; Home Demonstration Clubs, 6; Schools, 5; Field Crops, 104; Horticulture, 59; Plants and Flowers, 122; Bees and Honey, 12; Arts and Crafts, 18; Culinary, 228; Clothing, 156; House Furnishings, 136; Poultry, 46; Egg Show, 56; Dressed Turkey, 6; Dairy Cattle, 75; Beef Cattle, 19; Swine, 30; Sheep, 10; Ponies, 9.

COUNTIES — Wake County led all others in number of exhibitors with 305, and was the only county to have entries in every classification listed in the premium book. The 23 counties having no exhibits at the fair were: Alleghany, Ashe, Avery, Brunswick, Cabarrus, Caldwell, Cherokee, Clay, Columbus, Davidson, DeWitt, Dupont, Forsyth, Franklin, Gaston, Guilford, Halifax, Hoke, Jones, Johnston, Lincoln, Macon, Madison, Mecklenburg, Monroe, Montgomery, New Hanover, Onslow, Orange, Person, Randolph, Rowan, Salem, Surry, Swain, Tazewell, Transylvania, Warren, Wayne, Yadkin, Yancey.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

LET'S FACE FACTS

(Wilson Times)

Kid yourself if you will about the administration in Washington, what it has done and what it hopes to do, but face facts, too.

Repeatedly the Roosevelt-Truman administrations have indulged the system of free competition enterprise. But all their actions belie their words. What they really want is federal control of that system with the right to government bureaucrats to plan for the future. It's all wrapped up in profits. For of late there are more laws against making profits than against murder.

Let's see:

1. Government contracts are negotiated. That's the first blow.

2. Every three months prices are re-determined on contracts where profits are being made. Nothing is done where the contractor is losing money.

3. When the contract is completed, renegotiation takes place to squeeze the profits out.

4. There's the so-called normal income tax.

5. Afterward comes the excess profits tax which in some cases takes as much as 82 per cent.

6. The OPS formula restricts price increases if profits are more than 85 per cent of an industry average.

7. If you manage to escape all those, remaining is the Wage Stabilization board which will recommend spending your money for you.

It adds us to what? You may kid yourself if you please about the humanitarian aspects of the administration; but it's maneuvering to get a finger in the pie.

Are we traveling down the same road Britain did?

Overwhelmed by this victory, Bill entered Mike soon after in another top-flight metropolitan canine show. But Mike, still growing fast, had become underweight for his size. He placed fourth.

That has put Bill in a spot. He figures he let his dog down by entering him too soon in his second show, but he doesn't want to turn Mike over to trainers who see him as a potential best-of-breed champion.

"I'd like to see him win another blue ribbon," Bill said. "Just to make it up to him—to see he gets a square deal."

"But the handlers say they want a month to train him for his next show. Well, Schnauzers are

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

One of the biggest questions facing business today is the future strength of the farm market. Sales to farmers and their families appear to have dipped in the last few months. Whether they will pick up later in the year depends on many things. The most important of these are:

The farm price situation. Obviously, farmers are going to buy more things for their farms and families if prices rise, or if they believe they will. Prices rose 1 per cent between mid-April and mid-May, the Department of Agriculture reports, but they are still 3.8 per cent below a year ago and some show no signs of rising in the immediate future, notably poultry, eggs, cotton, wheat, oats and barley.

The size of coming crops. It should be remembered that price alone does not determine farm income. Often, though not always, good crops will produce greater total income than poor crops at higher prices. Crop expectations are pretty good at present, but the worst weather and insect hazards are ahead.

The rate of defense spending. Defense expenditures are the largest single prop under demand today. Even under the stretched-out plans, defense spending is scheduled to rise during the remainder of the year. There is strong possibility that spending may be speeded up. The stretch-out is under considerable criticism—too much butter and not enough guns—and the tense situation in Western Europe and the revelations that we are outnumbered in planes, guns and men in Korea may bring speedy revision of plans. This will swell employment and demand for farm products.

The farmers' attitude. Farmers, as a class are realists and are inclined to take a longer-range view of the future than the urban dweller. Their economic understandings are shrewd. If they have faith in good markets in 1952, 1953 and beyond, they will buy more farm machinery, equipment and household goods.

The political situation, in that it bears on economic outlook. Those who believe the results of the election will be beneficial will probably be inclined to buy, and vice versa. Those who have profited most from government supports will probably cut spending if it looks like change.

Overlaying this puzzle is another: to what extent is the farm market saturated? Obviously, there is not the urgent demand for autos, farm implements and other durable goods that existed after the war. Rural electrification, which opened up huge markets in electrical goods, is largely completed. There are, of course, vast amounts of durable and non-durable goods, travel and other services, and farm equipment and supplies that farmers would like to have. But the question of how much hard selling will be needed to make sales persists.

FOREIGN MARKET DATA AVAILABLE NEAR HOME

Every once in a while, a business man, wanting information on markets abroad, writes a letter to the American embassy or consulate in the area.

The answer, which may be received weeks later usually states that the information is available from the Department of Commerce in the United States.

Ergo, when a business man wants certain information about a foreign market, he can save time and postage by first inquiring at the nearest Field Office of the Department of Commerce, or at the Department itself in Washington, D. C.

CANADIANS EXPECT GOOD BUSINESS

The National Association of Purchasing Agents' survey committee reports on Canada: "The Canadians, with a better dollar than the U. S. A., have a much better general business picture. Production and order books are up substantially. Prices are holding better, though the trend is down. Inventories are lower. Employment rate is higher. Purchasing policy is somewhat longer range. They expect good business through the summer."

5-8-10 CHAIN TESTS SEEMING MEANINGFUL

At least one national five-and-ten chain is considering fighting back the supermarkets. Supermarkets in recent years have been adding housewares, novelties and other traditional five-and-ten items. Now a red-front chain, Woolworth's, is experimenting with a meat department in a Camden branch.

If it is successful, other branches of the chain may add chops and bologna.

PER CAPITA U. S. DEBT UP $1,297 IN 12 YEARS

The National Industrial Conference Board calculates that the per capita federal debt has risen from $387 in 1940 to $1,664 in 1952.

If it continues to increase at the same rate, the per capita indebtedness will be $7,558 in 1964. That will cost the average family about $1.50 a day just to pay the interest.

LIGHT—A six-foot, fluorescent street light, claimed to offer a steady, glareless light, has been developed by General Electric Co., Schenectady 5, N. Y. Light from four 100-watt lamps is reflected through a large, clear-plastic housing hinged to an aluminum hood, making rapid lamp replacement possible. The lamps are said to light within one second after being turned on, and not to blink or flicker.

EDIBLE SOY OIL, said to retain original vitamin contents, has been developed by Soya Corp. of America, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York. It is claimed to have a bland flavor, be rich in unsaturated fatty acids, and to be immunized against spoilage.

NEW YORK — (AP) — How much real democracy is there among dog lovers?

Quite a bit, according to bartender Bill O'Brien, who forked over $50 to a customer for a puppy that looked like a four-legged gray mop and has turned out to be a blue ribbon show dog.

I have written about Bill before. He's a big ex-Army sergeant who blew the alarm bugle at Pearl Harbor.

O'Brien is night maestro at Moriarty's midtown bar and grill, an establishment two doors from Toot Shor's that has become a rendezvous for newspapermen, dancers, singers, actors, and musicians.

One of his customers was Pat Hanrahan, an NBC electrician who often brought in one or two of the Schnauzer dogs he raises as a sideline.

"I just got out of the dog show," confessed Bill. He flatly bought a male pup from Pat for $50 and figured it was a real bargain as Schnauzers, a kind of long-haired German terrier, are growing in popularity in America and easily bring $75 to $125.

The 8-week-old 'ugly' puppy looked like a handful of dirty strings with bright eyes. Bill named him Mike Murphy.

"He grew so fast he was getting bow-legged and down in the hocks, so I began stuffing him with calcium pills," said Bill.

"But he had lots of spirit—he was no deadhead."

Mike Murphy perked up so fast, showed such carriage, that dogwise customers at the bar urged Bill to enter him in a dog show. At first O'Brien held off, thinking that such honors were for the pets of millionaires rather than bartenders.

But he finally decided Mike Murphy ought to have his chance in the world. He paid a professional handler a small sum to give him a week's training. Mike was entered in the Westminster Kennel Club Show in Madison Square Garden last February, which is the world series of dogdom.

Mike Murphy, on 8 months' old and still really a puppy, strutted out to win the first prize for Schnauzers.

Overwhelmed by this victory, Bill entered Mike soon after in another top-flight metropolitan canine show. But Mike, still growing fast, had become underweight for his size. He placed fourth.

That has put Bill in a spot. He figures he let his dog down by entering him too soon in his second show, but he doesn't want to turn Mike over to trainers who see him as a potential best-of-breed champion.

"I'd like to see him win another blue ribbon," Bill said. "Just to make it up to him—to see he gets a square deal."

"But the handlers say they want a month to train him for his next show. Well, Schnauzers are supposed to be one-man dogs, but Mike is friendly to everybody.

"If he is gone a month, he will no longer be my dog. It would be like giving up your own baby."

Washington Letter

WASHINGTON — Theodore R. Gardner started collecting bugs when he was knee-high to a grasshopper. Now he collects parasites that predators kill off insects that cost the nation untold sums annually in crop damage.

Brought up on a farm near Tolland, Conn., and a graduate of the University of Connecticut, Dr. Gardner has been an entomologist with the U. S. Department of Agriculture for 30 years. He is now in charge of biological culture in the Department's Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine.

He feels the use of natural enemies against insect pests will mean a big saving over insecticides which continue to rise in cost and have to be applied year after year. "Parasites and predators naturally increase their numbers along with the pests and in most cases do a pretty good job of keeping the pests under control," he told me.</

Jackson And Hardison Lead Greenies To 7-5 Victory

Herbert Waldrop Fires A Hole-In-One; Locals Win

While Greenville was trouncing Farmville in a Coastal Golf Association match yesterday, 7-5, one of the local players was showing the rest how to play golf the way it should be done.

Herbert Waldrop fired the first hole-in-one of his life while participating in the match. Playing with Dr. Billy Brown of Greenville, A. W. Smith of Farmville, and H. C. Outland of Farmville, Waldrop calmly dropped the ball into the cup on his first shot. What's more, Waldrop and Brown won the first nine holes of their match with Smith and Outland.

The ball with which Waldrop was playing will be mounted on a frame and given to him in honor of the hole-in-one. He will also receive numerous prizes from firms interested in golf.

Reynolds May was medalist in Greenville's easy triumph over the Farmville golfers, firing a 37-36-73 over the Country Club course. W. L. Allen shot a 34-40-74 for second hole, while Breell Webb and Ben Harrison both took 76's. Low for Farmville was Grayden Lyles, with a 77.

With only one more match remaining on its schedule, Greenville now stands a chance of tying for first place in the Coastal Golf Association's regular season standings. New Bern is currently leading the pack with only one defeat—at the hands of Greenville—and a tie with Tarboro. Kingston, as well as the local club, has lost three matches.

Kingston was scheduled to play New Bern yesterday and have another match slated for next Wednesday, giving the Lenoir County team a chance to force the team championship into a three-way playoff.

NCAA Tournney Starts Tonight

KANNAPOLIS (AP)—The NCAA District 3 baseball tournament opens here tonight with no "big" team dominating the four-club field.

Burke Drops Out Of Ardmore Open

ARDMORE, Okla., (UP)—Lloyd Mangrum golf's top money winner in 1961, became a solid favorite to capture the $15,000 Ardmore Open as first round play started today when Jack Burke Jr., withdrew because of a leg injury.

Burke, the leading money winner this year and the sensation of the summer tour, said an old leg injury began bothering him yesterday. He feared it might also keep him out of the National Open, which starts June 12 at Dallas.

The Ardmore event had promised a showdown between Mangrum and Burke in their race for top money honors in 1962.

Burke's misfortune gave Mangrum a wide-open opportunity to take up the slack.

There might be some other changes in the leading money winners if Doug Ford of Harrison, N. Y., Tommy Bolt of Durham, N. C., Jim Ferrier of San Francisco, Ted Kroll of New Hartford, N. Y., or Al Bessink of Chicago could barge into first place or finish well up the list.

Stage Late Rally To Beat Farmville Team

Greenville Wins Second Consecutive Game Over Red Sox In Bright Belt League; Play Pinetops Here Sunday

By MELVIN LANG

FARMVILLE—The booming bat of Dallas Jackson, combined with the strong right arm of Stancil Hardison, led Greenville's Greenies to their second consecutive win over Farmville here last night. The Greenies took the Bright Belt League encounter by a score of 7-5.

Red Benton went the distance for the losers and was charged with his second loss of the year. Greenville garnered seven hits, off his right handed slants, but bunched them in order to get results. Benton fanned five Greenies and walked two.

The game was delayed for approximately 20 minutes between the eighth and ninth innings because of light failure.

Greenville plays in Pinetops Saturday and comes back home Sunday for another Bright Belt League contest with the same opponent. The Greenies now have won six and lost 10 in the fast semi-pro outfit.

Russell stole second and Pat McCotter, who played a whale of a ball game in centerfield for Greenville, walked to fill the sack. Jackson immediately drove a hot grounder through the first baseman to push in Payne and Russell to knot the score. McCotter trotted home a few seconds later with the winning run as Mark Herring allowed Joe Hobgood's grounder to get past him at short, with Jackson coming in behind McCotter.

Both teams scored a trio of runs in the first inning as neither club could settle down. Ralph Britt, Farmville's catcher from Mt. Olive, belted a three-run homer over the leftfield fence with Paul Gay and Roger Thrift on base to produce the Red Sox's run. Greenville got its scores on two Farmville fielding miscues, a walk, and Jackson's two-bagger.

Farmville went ahead for the first time in the contest with singletons in the third and sixth frames. In the third, Streeter Tugwell was safe on an error by Bill Price, and after two men were retired, rode home on a double by Pete Piestrak. A walk to Gay and double by Mark Herring produced the other Farmville run.

Shantz Wins Eighth Game; Beats Tigers

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP)—His teammates call him the "garbage man" and Bobby Shantz, tiniest pitcher in the majors, says just "call me a physical freak." But plenty of competent authorities were calling him the best pitcher in the American League today.

The five foot, seven inch lefty for the Philadelphia As, who weighs just 150 pounds, won his eighth straight game last night 4-3, from Detroit. He retired 14 men in a row at one stage and pitched one-hit ball for the final five innings of his ninth straight complete game.

It also was the fifth straight victory for the oncoming Athletics as Eddie Joost supplied the big punch with a two-run homer, his third in six days, and his sixth of the year.

And Shantz, the "mighty molecule", still can't figure out how it has come about. He baffles the batters with an assortment of curves, knucklers, fast balls and a well-controlled change of pace. That's why the rest of the As call him the "garbage man"—it's for the stuff which he litters the plate.

Boston, with three of its new men—Hoot Evers, George Kell and relief pitcher Dizzy Trout—leading the way, took over first place again with a 13 to 11 victory over Cleveland, while the New York Yankees beat Chicago 6 to 3.

In the National League, Brooklyn moved two games ahead of second-place New York by defeating the Pirates, 7 to 4, while Chicago topped the Giants, 6 to 2.

The St. Louis Cardinals blanked the Boston Braves, 6 to 0 on Cloyd Boyer's four hits. And the Cincinnati Reds outslugged the Philadelphia Phils, 10 to 8, in a weird game in which each team had a seven run rally.

St. Louis at Washington in the American was rained out. Evers and Kell each hit two-run homers and drove in three runs apiece while Trout pitched steady relief ball to give Boston its triumph. Larry Doby drove in six runs for Cleveland with a homer, triple, double, and single.

Yogi Berra hit a two-run homer and a single as Ed Lopat pitched seven-hit ball for his second Yankee victory. Ray Coleman and Sherman Lollar hit second inning homers for Chicago.

Carl Erskine held Pittsburgh to nine hits, including Ralph Kiner's eighth homer and his sixth in 12 games, while Jackie Robinson and Duke Snider hit homers to supply Brooklyn's victory margin.

Bob Rush, bidding for his fourth straight shutout, felled when the Giants scored their only runs in the fourth, but he went on to win his eighth of the year. Hank Sauer hit his 12th homer for Chicago, increasing his major league lead.

The Reds put over two runs in the eighth to clinch their bat-feet with the Phils as Bobby Adams collected four hits and Grady Hatton drove in four runs, three on a homer. Willard Marshall, obtained yesterday from the Braves, also homered for Cincinnati and drove in one of the eighth inning runs with a long fly.

Poll For All-Star Contest Starts

NEW YORK (UP)—The coast-to-coast poll to determine the starting teams, pitchers excluded, in the 19th All-Star game between American and National Leagues at Shibe Park, Philadelphia, begins tomorrow.

Under All-Star game rules, the 16 stars chosen by the fans must play three innings unless injured. The pitching staffs and "reserve players" will be chosen by the rival managers, Casey Stengel of the New York Yankees and Leo Durocher of the New York Giants. The poll closes at midnight June 27 and the results will be announced on June 29.

Charles Rates Nod Over Walcott In Bout Tonight

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The fourth and most lucrative episode in the Jersey Joe Walcott-Ezzard Charles road series will be unveiled tonight with Charles rated a 2 to 1 favorite to make boxing history and become the first former heavyweight king to win back his crown.

Forecasts of fair weather for the 9 p.m. 15-rounder in Municipal Stadium, site of many historic events in sports, boosted promoter Herman Taylor's confidence that about 35,000 will pay $250,000 to see the scrap. Taylor said he already had $150,000 in the till and predicted a bumper last day sale.

The bout will be broadcast and telecast coast-to-coast with a 75-mile area around Philadelphia blacked out of the telecast.

With $175,000 paid for the radio-TV rights, this latest, and no doubt last, number in the three-year-old rivalry appears a cinch to eclipse the financial take of the other three stops in Chicago, Detroit and Pittsburgh.

It was in Pittsburgh last July 18 that the heavy fisted thick-skinned Walcott uncorked a perfect left hook to knock out the champion in the seventh round.

"I'll be out to knock him out again," said the 38-year-old Camden miracle man in his last public statement. "I've got his number and he knows it."

"He's got the title. I'll have to go after him and get it," said the solemn-faced and determined Charles.

Ezzard expects to weigh 191 pounds—heaviest of his career—at the weigh-in. Nearing 31, he has grown into a full-fledged heavyweight.

Walcott expects to weigh 194 or 195 tonight.

V.C. Chemicals Get Softball Victory Over Royal Crown

V. C. Chemicals staged a late-game rally yesterday afternoon to score eleven runs in the sixth inning to outlast Royal Crown, 18-8, in a Men's Softball League.

John Farley started the inning with a single, but was erased for the second out a few minutes later on a fielder's choice by Joe Dudley. Bill Moore was safe on an error, and Buck Roebuck singled. Both runners came home as Ott Alford slammed his second consecutive home run. Ray Heldenreich walked, followed by successive singles by Johnny Foell, Don Carson, Farley, Jim Pedra, and Joe Dudley. Moore doubled, and Roebuck singled again, sending the eleventh run across the plate. Alford ended the inning by flying out.

Royal Crown had taken the lead in the bottom of the fifth with a pair of runs, on a single by Porter, and walks to Edward W. Conway, and Wall.

Score by innings:
V. C. Chemicals 013 31(11)—18 16 1
Royal Crown 001 120—8 8 3
Alford and Farley; Edwards and Cox, Nunn (5).

Parents Given New Ideas On Discipline

By DAVID TAYLOR MARKE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Probably more advice is sought and given on discipline than any other aspect of child care. Most of the advice, however, is based on someone's theory of what ought to work, and it may turn out to be far from working for the particular family in the particular circumstances. There rarely has been an analysis of "discipline that works"—of the ways in which disciplinary questions are dealt with by the parents of average, well-adjusted children.

Now, however, Grace Langdon, well-known child development consultant and school administrator, and Irving W. Stout, professor of education at Southern Illinois University, have compiled the opinions of parents of 414 well-adjusted children. The authors point out in "The Discipline of Well-Adjusted Children" (John Day, New York) that the very fact that these children are well adjusted is all the evidence needed to prove the success the reporting parents had with what they said they did to bring them up.

One of the most notable characteristics of it all was the parents' enjoyment of the children and the love, trust, and confidence that pervaded all they did.

One factor children must learn to recognize early in life is that they cannot have everything they want. "The mother of a 7-year-old girl said that while the family income is adequate, still every childish wish cannot be indulged. The father added that he was glad it because children must learn to take some and leave some all through life.

Some parents spoke of discipline that comes "just naturally," children on shopping expeditions find they cannot buy everything they like in a store window, or that the clerk is busy and we have to wait.

Many parents emphasized that children just have to consider the people they live with. They enumerated such details as "everyone has a right to talk and that means keeping still sometimes." "The living room is for all to use and you have to make room for others' things." "Everyone has equal right to the radio and television." "There are five of us in an apartment and people above and below have to be considered and I mean they really do."

Consideration included care of possessions, too, the parents point out. Also, the consideration of the parents' rights. In one home, it was explained, everyone must get to meals on time so that Mother can get her work done. In another, the children understand that Daddy is entitled to some of Mother's time and that other children in the family have a right to parents' attention as well.

Among the many other factors in discipline noted by the parents were such things as "family rules are part of discipline." "There just has to be some order about living." "Money matters are always coming up and there is plenty to learn about them." "Everyone, including the children, naturally, have duties, because anything worth having is worth working for and we all have our jobs."

Parents realize, of course, "there are so many things to learn—for all of us." Some parents realize they know very little about children and have to grow with them. They learn patience on the one hand and the children learn to make allowances.

The question of punishment always comes up and parents have to give thought to what punishment is best. It means different things to different parents. To some it's something physical; to others it's an imposed penalty, physical or otherwise. To still others, it may be both, plus that which "comes from within when you know you have done wrong." But no matter what the punishment is, much depends on how it is done, they agree.

Eisenhower Lists Four Big U.S. Issues As He Sees Them

ABILENE, Kan. — (AP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, contending that the Democratic administration must be unseated, prepared today to spell out the details of the program he is advocating as a candidate for the Republican nomination for the presidency.

"One party has been in power too long," Eisenhower said yesterday.

The statement was contained in a major speech, on national issues, his first since he stepped out of uniform. In launching into the personal phase of his campaign, Eisenhower made four main points:

1. A call for cooperation between the "economic elements of our country."
2. The necessity of battling inflation, bringing the national budget "under control," and taking "the first step back to a sound dollar."
3. Taxation. "It becomes doubly necessary to see that waste, duplication and extravagance are eliminated."
4. The charge that there has been a "gradual absorption by the central government of functions that belong to local communities and to individuals."

The speech was delivered on the opening day of a riotous homecoming celebration for Eisenhower. The little town where he grew up, met him, en masse, near the site of his boyhood home yesterday, gave him a parade of floats illustrating his life, and set the stage for an address which was widely reported and televised. Eisenhower also urged continued cooperation with our Allies in the fight against communism and called for a foreign policy stripped of all "mystery."

Of communism, he said: "It has been a global threat, manifesting itself from the Far East to Europe in outward extensions throughout the vast periphery of the Soviet domain. Early in its course, China was lost to the free world in one of the greatest international disasters of our time—a type of tragedy that must not be repeated."

Regarding what many GOP leaders term the No. 1 charge in this year's political battle—corruption in government—Eisenhower said: "Political health is endangered if one party, by whatever means, becomes permanently or too-long entrenched in power."

"The almost inevitable consequence is graft and incompetence in remote and even in prominent places in government. Obviously, this is something that applies to-day. One party has been in power too long in this country."

Between 5,000 and 6,000 people braved a rainstorm at Eisenhower Park to hear the speech. The skies were grey and overcast all day. Shortly after the general finished a 25-minute-long talk, extemporaneous, on the site of the proposed Eisenhower museum, raindrops began to fall.

The rain held off until after he had finished, but the storm drenched the participants in the parade that followed.

Oldster Is Doing Right Well With Inventive Hobby

ALTOONA, Pa. — (AP) — For a Johnny-come-lately inventor, 70-year-old Joe Parks is doing all right.

His inventiveness turned to sports since he has been a sportsman all his life, as well as a poultryman and banker. In the last year he has filed seven patents with the Patent Office that apparently are new and different. Among them are:

- A leg fishing device that leaves the hands free for rowing.
- A noiseless anchor that won't scare the fish. The weight can be increased by adding sand or gravel.
- A fishing leader than can be retrieved from deep-hooked fish and another hook put on.
- A rear-view boat mirror for row boats.

$45 Millions Go To Highway Work

RALEIGH (AP)—Highway maintenance and betterment funds totaling 45 million dollars were allocated yesterday by the State Highway Commission to the 10 highway divisions for the next fiscal year.

The commission also approved low bids on new bridge and road improvement projects totaling $2,751,115.28, and presented the annual D. B. McCrary award for outstanding service to the commission. The bids call for 302.82 miles of work in 32 counties.

Allocation of the maintenance betterment budget is based on mileage, population and traffic. The 10 highway divisions will slice up: Eight million dollars for highway maintenance; 17 1-2 million for county highway maintenance; 12 million for highway betterments; five million for retreatment of asphalt-surfaced roads; and two and one-half million for maintenance of state highways and highway connecting links in cities and towns.

The 1951 McCrary award was given to George A. McKinley, 56, senior locating engineer for the commission. McKinley was chosen to receive the award for developing a method which simplifies highway surveying in broken terrain.

Pitt-Greene Electric Membership Meet Set

FARMVILLE — Manager Gilbert Whitley of the Pitt and Greene Electric Membership Corporation stated this morning that a record turnout is expected at the annual meeting Saturday.

All members plan to gather at the 14th annual membership meeting at 2:30 p.m. in the Farmville High School gymnasium.

Progress and financial reports, plus the election of seven directors to serve for the next 12 months will be on the program in addition to entertainment, refreshments, and prize awards.

Fourteen candidates have been nominated by the nominating committee. One director will be elected to represent each of the seven districts in the Cooperative's service area.

Entertainment will be by a trio composed of Eddie Murphy, master of ceremonies, comedian, and singer; Johnnie Holland, pianist; and Ruby Earle Riggs, vocalist. Murphy and Holland have performed in clubs around Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Detroit. They promise a program of hill-billy music.

Arrangements have been made for a supply of soft drinks as refreshments and many valuable attendance prizes will be offered.

'Exasperating' Hero Difficult To Handle

No. 1 Seat

PHIL NEWSOM

United Press Foreign News Editor
The man who is South Korea's greatest hero and at the same time one of its most exasperating figures is back in the news again. He is Syngman Rhee, president of the Republic of Korea.

His heroic proportions and his exasperating qualities are indivisible since they are expressions of the same idea—an independent and democratic Korea. He has fought for it for nearly 60 years and not even physical torture has swerved him from it.

As result, the Communists have promised to hang him if they catch him.

But even as a man with a Communist price on his head, Rhee has not hesitated to hurl thunderbolts at the United Nations who are his best friends.

He once threatened to carry on the war against the north Korean Communists alone if the United Nations compromised with the Reds on a plan which would leave a divided Korea.

And it is Rhee's singleness of purpose that has brought him into the news again.

He wants to take the election of a Korean president out of the hands of Parliament and put the decision up to a popular vote.

Parliament opposes him and the result is a political crisis, of concern to the United States, Britain and all nations participating in South Korean defense and the current Korean truce talks.

Underlying factor in the dispute is the fact that Rhee still is easily South Korea's most popular figure. On the other hand, his high-handed actions in what he believes are the best interests of the country have won him many enemies in the assembly.

If the vote is left to the assembly, Rhee cannot be re-elected.

Rhee's ancestry stems from Korean royalty, but throughout his life he has been both a revolutionary and a missionary.

First he campaigned against the Korean monarchy. For that effort he spent seven years in jail. It was in that period that he became a Christian.

Later, he came to the United States where in 1910 he won a doctor of philosophy degree in theology at Princeton.

In that same year the Japanese took over Korea and Rhee returned to campaign both as a missionary and to agitate against foreign influence. It wasn't long before he had to leave Korea again.

In 1919, a group of anti-Japanese Koreans named him president of what they called a provisional government. There followed many years of fruitless effort to get himself and his government recognized.

In fact, it wasn't until 1948 that South Korea held its first elections and Rhee finally won his recognition.

The tough old president can never forget his hard days as a revolutionary or the tortures he underwent in jail and it doesn't make him easier on his political foes now.

At one point in jail, his torturers mashed his fingers and drove lighted sticks beneath his fingernails.

Today, while deep in thought, he frequently blows absent-mindedly on his damaged fingers.

Holier-Than-Thou Pose By Reds Is Really Silly

By DONALD J. GONZALES
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP) — The exploits of one N. S. Timofeyev give a slightly silly cast to communism's holier-than-thou attitude toward graft in capitalist countries.

Timofeyev was a confidence man. His range was the Soviet Union. Russian press stories about him read like comic opera—except that they appear to be fact instead of fiction.

Timofeyev went up and down the USSR for five years passing himself off successfully as an expert engineer. He duped seven key Soviet industrialists, eluded the vaunted secret police, thieved 167,187 rubles, and built himself a house of government materials.

Moscow has told Timofeyev's story in an extraordinary article published by the Soviet newspaper Pravda (Truth). An issue of the newspaper recently received and translated here gives a play-by-play account of his swindles.

The story was illustrated with Timofeyev's picture, circled, flanked by photographs of six of the seven bureaucrats who tumbled to his true nature only after he had made fools of them. The caption is "Let's Become Acquainted."

American observers were astounded that the Soviet hierarchy would permit publication of quite so monumental a record of embezzlement. The Soviets presumably aired the case in line with their avowed practice of self-criticism.

But in so doing they permitted revelation of costly bureaucratic bungling and also disclosed that the Kremlin is worried about citizens of the "classless society" who still put personal gain above Communist principles.

The May 16 issue of Pravda reported that Timofeyev finally was found out and punished by being sentenced to 25 years in a corrective labor camp.

The fate of the seven industrial figures, who permitted him to make "hats" (Russian for "suckers") out of them, is not disclosed.

Timofeyev got tired of hum drum work back in 1947. Contrary to all Communist principles, he applied for work as a construction engineer in Ryzan Oblast (province), representing himself to be a man of construction trust who, Pravda said, no mean abilities.

He was hired by the chief of a "didn't take the trouble to check" Timofeyev's claims of great engineering experience and skill.

"For one and a half years he carried on his energetic activities and then abandoned the trust's hospitable hearth after having meanwhile grabbed 10,000 rubles of government money," Pravda said.

Next, he showed up at a lumbering enterprise in Kemerov Oblast. But "here he wasn't able to stay long because local militia inquired why he didn't have a printed passport. Therefore he had to run hastily and left behind a home he had built from materials taken from the lumbering trust."

The setback was temporary. Timofeyev sought and got appointment as chief of a construction administration in a lumbering ministry in Kostroma. "Here not even a month had passed when he took out of the cash register and placed in his own pockets 40,200 rubles."

Timofeyev pulled off the same stunt seven times in all, amassing a total of 167,187 rubles.

Addressing the seven officials bilked by Timofeyev, Pravda voiced this editorial point:

"You did not ask the simple and natural question—who is he?"

Your Bathtub Is Historical Piece With Traditions

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP) — We take the tub and the shower as things that have been with us forever—and it turns out that they have, almost.

A tantalizing little squib about the history of bathtubs sent me to the Library of Congress to look into the matter.

The idea of the bathroom goes way back to 3000 B. C., and credit goes to King Urinmar of Babylon. Articles in some of the old books make it clear that the king was a man who loved his bath, although he had no tub. His bath spot was primitive, to be sure, but it was big enough for a man to move around in. It was 15 feet square.

According to history, the old monarch would lather himself up and then ring for his servants, who would splash water on his back, letting it trickle onto the floor.

I have always been fascinated about why the old-time tubs and many of the modern ones slanted at the back.

One popular belief is that the old Romans thought it up. In those days, the head of the house was the only one ever to take a bath. After he finished with the soap, his wife would come in with a bucket of water and splash it on his back. The tub was slanted, it is said, so the water would not get all over the floor.

Another version is that the ancients like to sit in a tub of warm water and lean back and read.

Why nobody ever thought up the idea of putting a headrest on the back of the tub always had stopped me. I use a rubber inflated pillow, and you can patent the idea if you have the time.

Way back there, according to a piece in one book, people didn't bathe because it was considered unhealthy. Bathing did not become popular until the time of the ancient Romans.

They made a sort of holiday of it and the whole neighborhood would flock to the public bath and splash together.

At the beginning of the Christian era, some interloper thought up an unusual way to take a bath. It happened at Sak Kara, Egypt. This fellow wanted to lift the bones of King Amenemneet, who lived in 1300 B. C., from their red granite tomb. He was shouted down for a time, but our man finally won out and accor. g to historians, "the place where the King's bones had resided" made a very fine place to bathe."

After the fall of Rome, bathing as a popular pastime took quite a licking. A number of plagues broke out and everybody thought bathing was to blame. For a long time the law said "no baths."

Queen Elizabeth of Spain was said to have bathed only twice in her life. The first time was a pleasure. But the queen tried it again a couple of years later and is said to have come down with the sniffles. That did it. Never again.

N.C. Program Of Caring For Alcoholics Is Recent

Many people in this state are aware that North Carolina has a program for treating alcoholism as an illness but few know how this program came into existence or how to go about getting a person admitted.

In 1949 the North Carolina Alcohol Rehabilitation Program was conceived. The institution for the care of the fifty white male patients is at Camp Butler. It does not exist to provide custodial care for inebriates but offers a constructive program of treatment aimed at rehabilitation of the problem drinker. A person must volunteer for treatment and be sober when admitted. Admission hours are from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. No patients are accepted by court commitment.

The application must be accompanied by a social history and a medical history of the patient. The medical history is secured through the family physician. The social history is secured through the local County Welfare Department. It takes a few days for the social history to be prepared. This should be carried with the patient but admission can be made without it with the understanding that it is to be prepared and sent immediately. According to the Center's Medical Director the social histories are very important. They save time and furnish information the patient won't often admit at ment. first. The Welfare Department is requested to get a full environmental - educational - vocational background of each patient. With this information the process of treatment is much more effective. Application should be made by letter to the Medical Director, Center, Butler, N. C. A comprehensive fee of $72.00 is charged upon admission. This covers maintenance and treatment for 28 days and is not returnable if the patient leaves before his treatment is completed.

Old Car Hobby Is Revived As New Scavenger Hunt

PASADENA, Calif. — (AP) — San Gabriel Valley's Horseless Carriage Club has revived the old game of scavenger hunting.

Members think nothing of traveling hundreds of miles in hopes of getting a pair of nickel door handles for a 1926 Packard or a rumble seat lid for a 1906 Buick.

Those in possession of old car parts can swap them for something that goes on an early model they're reconstructing. Wives of the horseless carriage-men conduct their own scavenger game. They comb attics and auction sales for celluloid collars, old style shoes and picture hats to complete old-time wardrobes. Then, when they go for an outing in their horseless carriages they can dress the part.

Chapter 36
"You should be ashamed of yourself."

Jane, her eyes flashing, walked across the living room of Bruce Hall's house and sat down on the sofa. "You should be ashamed of yourself because Alice Cranby has been in love with you for some time. You became engaged, and because she thought she was going to marry you she turned down other chances she had. You men!"

"You love me," he said quietly. "Or so you like to think," she said calmly. "You know it isn't true, but still you like to think it is. It is your justification, isn't it?"

"I don't believe so." He rose and went to her. He drew her from the sofa and stood peering down at her lovely face. "You punish yourself unnecessarily, Jane, don't you? Why? I've often wondered about that."

"I am going back home," she said quietly. "Would I go back home if I were in love with you?"

He pursed his lips, considering. "Knowing your ally approach to life, I would say you would. You're in a tailspin, Jane Bancroft, an emotional tailspin. And it is so easy to prove I'm right."

She tried to free herself, warned by his tone, his suddenly ardent eyes. But he was strong, and he was determined.

"No!" she cried. But he had waited too long for this moment. For this moment he had worked to rid her of her attachment to George, and for this moment he had worked to make her understand that when you were a doctor or a nurse you always had a duty to your fellow man. Closer and closer he drew her, and in that moment he found the reward for all the trouble he had gone to in her behalf. As her lips responded to his, as her arms tightened about him, he found the answer to why he had waited so long to marry, an answer that caught him up, as it were, and carried him away at a giddy pace toward rapture, excitement, an all-consuming joy.

Laughing shakily, he released her and fell back a step. His eyes burned into hers. "You see? Do you see, you woman with a child's heart?" "No," she moaned. "No. No. I can't be. It wouldn't be fair. I won't go through it again, I won't. I won't, I won't."

He let her go. He was sure of himself and he was sure of her. She was a fighter. When she realized that he was the man she had been seeking all along, she would come back to him though ten thousand dragons barred her way.

"You're leaving?" Alice Cranby smiled happily. "Good. And I'll tell you something, Jane Bancroft: you won't regret it. My family is a very old and very influential New York family; they will find you all the work you can possibly use, I'll see to that."

"And the school?" the girl asked feverishly. "You must help George Poppleton."

Alice laughed. "One of the advantages of being rich, my dear, is that you can always secure competent guidance when you require it. I was so sure you would leave that I telephoned my lawyers in New York. They, in turn, consulted certain lawyers in Tuttleton, and the school stands now. It seems, you see, that it was built in an unrestricted zone and that now the Council cannot cause George to build elsewhere unless they compensate him for the expenses he has already gone to. Tuttleton's worthy citizens may have some money, but no one dislikes the school so much that they will pay a hundred and fifty thousand for the joy of seeing it closed down."

"Alice!" The woman smiled. "You know, I didn't like you when we first met. But now I do. Oh, and one thing more. It seems that you are being challenged to a swimming race, at a half-mile, no less."

"I told Ken I'd race him at three hundred yards."

"Oh, but this is with me, darling," Alice chuckled as a car drove into the camp and headed for the parking lot. "You see, it's a silly girl indeed who doesn't destroy the rival dream as well as the rival. You impressed Bruce so much one afternoon with your prowess as a swimmer and a fighter that—well, will you be ready in fifteen minutes?"

"That wasn't in the bargain," Jane, becoming more and more agitated as Bruce came out of the parking lot, backed away. "I have not the time."

"Oh, I considered that too, Jane. I think five hundred dollars would compensate you for your time, don't you?"

The girl stared at the money Alice took from her pocketbook. "Come, since you don't love him, you won't mind having him see that you aren't a superb athlete or an invincible fighter, will you? It is very important to me."

"I've never thrown a race in my life!" the girl cried indignantly. "How dare you!"

Alice blinked. "My dear Jane Bancroft, I have never bought a race in my life, either. The very idea."

"You think you can beat me?" Alice laughed. "I'm quite sure of it."

Closer came Bruce, and closer and closer. Jane, remembering the moment in his arms a few hours ago, took one wild look at him, then fled. When she appeared on the beach a half-hour later, the bugle was blaring and then an announcement was being flashed over the public address system to the effect that a big race was going to be run off once more in the blue, sparkling waters of Lake Champlain.

"You can lick her," Ken grinned, rowing Jane out to the starting float in the skiff. He glanced across the water at the winsome Alice Cranby, who was being rowed along by Mike O'Reilly. "Just keep it slow for the first quarter-mile, then put on the pressure. I know she's supposed to be good, but she certainly isn't in your class."

"Thanks," she hopped up onto the float and handed her robe to Andy Bullit. He scowled. "You would have been happy with me, Jane."

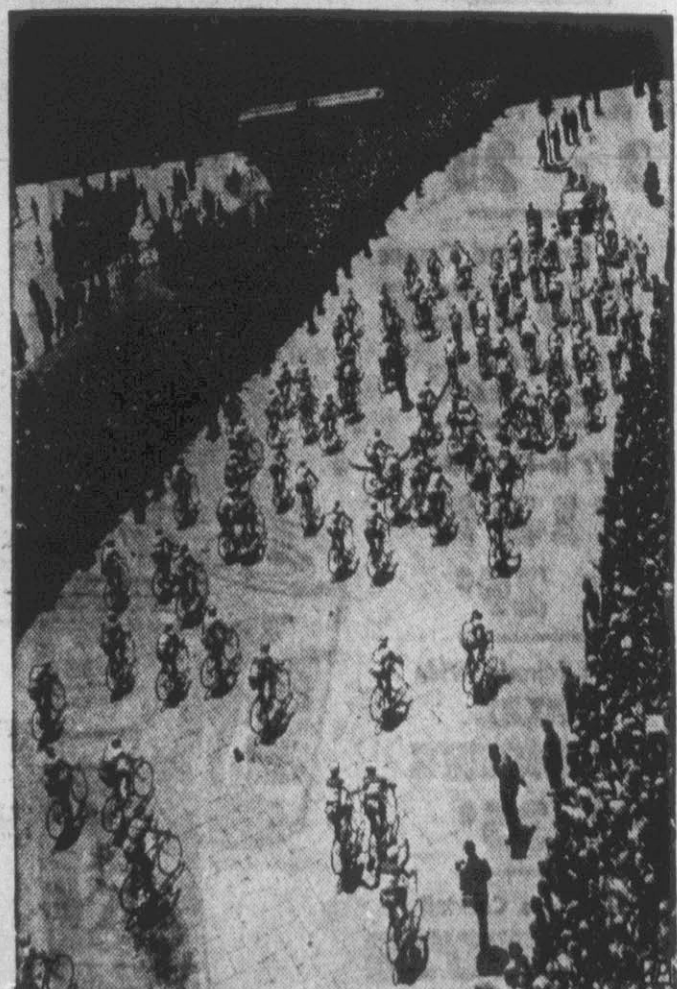

"I think not. Thanks for being interested."

Stocks And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP) — Industrial shares led the stock market higher today and reached their best average price level since April 11.

Railroad issues, which yesterday made their best advance since July 24, 1933, slipped a trifle on what was considered normal profit-taking. Utilities edged higher and were within less than 50 cents of a 20-year high. The railroad average registered a new 21-year top earlier in the day.

When the rails slipped back, traders turned their attention to other departments and to special issues. Several of the latter made gains. Rohn and Haas sprang seven points to 127 and Coca-Cola rose four to a new high at 113.

Several strong spots developed in oils. Barber sold at 91 1/2 up 2; Amerasia 303 up 1 1/4; and Shell 77 1/4 up 1 1/4.

First hour sales topped yesterday's total by 110,000 shares at equaled yesterday's 260,000 shares.

Tractor-Trailer Strikes Railroad Overpass

Heavy damage resulted yesterday afternoon when a tractor and trailer coming into Greenville on Highway 43 struck the railroad overpass just inside the city limits, ripping the entire truck body to shreds. The stainless steel truck was damaged to the extent of around $5,000, investigating police officer, V. C. Akert, reported. Neither the driver nor a sleeper in the cab truck were injured in the accident. The truck, operating out of Florida, and belonging to the R. C. Motor Lines, was only partly loaded and contained a load of metal awnings. They were slightly damaged. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee.)

Bethel Commissioners To Wipe Out Stray Dogs By House-To-House Canvass

BETHEL — The town commissioners here took action Tuesday night to eliminate stray dogs and see that all dogs are properly registered.

Mayor R. L. Martin said yesterday that as soon as a place to keep dogs could be found, a house-to-house canvass would be held to check dogs to see if they were listed on the tax books and to check for rabies.

The mayor said the large number of stray dogs in the community are a nuisance and they would be eliminated as soon as possible. The commissioners plan to have the city dog ordinance complied with.

The town fathers voted to keep the city hall open from 7 a. m. to 6 p. m. for business hours and not close for lunch. The city hall has been closing for lunch hours in the past.

The insurance committee announced that added protection has been given to the local firemen. The committee has been investigating the possibility of increasing the firemen's insurance benefits for sometime.

Added protection will be given to the firefighters per week in case of accident and more will be paid to a fireman's beneficiary in case of accidental death.

The board pledged their support to the Red Cross Bloodmobile when a blood center is set up in Bethel Tuesday to receive blood from donors.

Peron Sworn In For Second Term As President

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UP) — President Juan D. Peron, his blonde wife Eva at his side, made Argentine history yesterday when he was sworn in for a second six-year term as chief executive.

Despite an illness which has forced cancellation of some recent appointments, Mrs. Peron shared the spotlight with her husband as he took the oath of office and swore in a reshuffled cabinet.

Peron's second term was made possible by a 1949 re-writing of Argentina's 1853 Constitution which barred a president from succeeding himself. He took the oath of office for the second time yesterday afternoon to the cheers of loyal peronists and the boom of a 21-gun salute.

Peron was sworn in at a joint session of Congress.

First Quarter's Report Discloses $945 Profit

By JESS POINDEXTER

A summation of Pitt Memorial Hospital's operation and collection figures for the first quarter of 1952 shows the institution to be running at a profit for that period.

In a report to the county board of trustees declared Pitt Memorial in the black to the extent of $945.43 for the first four months of this year's operation.

As a result of the report, Chairman F. F. Hendrix said today, "The board of commissioners is highly pleased with the information released by the hospital board of trustees. They (the trustees) are to be congratulated for their exhaustive efforts to make Pitt Memorial a paying proposition."

Operational Report
According to the report submitted by the trustees, for the first two months of this year the hospital operated at a deficit of $6,617.61; but for the second two months the report showed a surplus of $7,563.04—resulting in a profit of $945.43 for the overall four-month period.

In January, with a patient load of 79, cash income was $33,067.78 and expenses were $34,773.11—showing a deficit of $1,705.33. With a patient load of 84 in February, cash income was down to $28,839.81 and expenses were $33,752.09—upping the deficit $4,912.28 for that month.

The patient load in March hit a high of 92, with cash income of $40,832.72 and expenses of $37,794.06, showing a surplus of $3,038.67. April was even better. With a patient load of only 69, cash income went up to $37,001.27 while expenses dropped to $32,476.90, leaving a surplus of $4,524.37 for April.

Overall Report
An aggregation of the first four months activity showed a total patient load of 324, cash income amounting to $139,741.58, and expenses totaling $138,796.15—leaving a surplus of $945.43.

J. R. Moye, treasurer of the trustees, stated that since the hospital opened February 1, 1951, more than 6,340 patients have been admitted. "Of the number of days devoted to treating those patients, between 18 and 20 percent of the total was dedicated to charity patients," he said.

"That is to say, patients who were unable to pay one dime and for whose treatment the hospital received only $8.00 per day for their time there," Moye added. Of this total amount, the Duke Endowment pays $1.00, Kate B. Reynolds Foundation pays 50 cents, County Welfare Department pays $5.00 (when money is available), and the Medical Care Commission, $1.50.

Employee Disposition
Moye further explained that the hospital has a total of 119 employees for all purposes. The disposition of those is: administration 10; dietary, 17; housekeeping, 12; plant maintenance and operation, six; nursing, 66 (includes 34 registered nurses, 26 nurses aides and six orderlies); medical and surgical, five; and x-ray and radium, three.

A hospital staff member said yesterday the number of employees is not constant and ranges from 119 to 125. She disclosed that the fluctuation is due to part-time help and hiring and firing. "The total number of employees also includes two resident internes," she said.

In remarking on the hospital's progress on behalf of the board of trustees, Treasurer Moye stated, "This hospital is a great thing for Pitt County, and it was to be expected that it operate in the red for the first three months of this year shows the average cost per patient, per day, was $13.77, which was slightly higher than for Pitt Memorial combined with the nine other hospitals in the study.

The five county-owned hospital had an average cost per patient, per day, of $13.70. Substantially lower were the private owned institutions with an average figure of $13.44 per patient, per day. The total average daily cost for the nine other hospitals and Pitt Memorial was $13.60.

Along with the hospital operational report for the first four months of this year, the trustees presented a study of the Pitt Memorial's expenses as compared with other similar institutions—both county owned and private.

Confined to January, February and March of 1952, the report dealt with the financial activities of nine other hospitals—five county owned and four private owned—ranging in official size from 37 beds to 125 beds. Pitt Memorial is classified as a 130-bed hospital.

The average number of patients per month for the first three months in the nine other hospitals went from a low of 33 for the smallest hospital to a high of 99 for the largest. For January, February and March of this year, the Pitt hospital had an average patient load of 85 per month.

In total number of employees compared with the official number of beds, Pitt Memorial ranked more favorably in that respect than either of the nine other hospitals. In fact, it was the only hospital in which the number of employees did not exceed the number of beds.
