Tentative Budget Of Pitt Wins Approval

Commissioners Okay $60,969 Increase Over Current Outlays And Retain Present Tax Rate; Higher Tax Valuation Expected To Cover Enlarged Expenditures

Pitt County Commissioners last night gave tentative approval to a budget of $641,329.49—an increase of $60,969 over the county budget for the current fiscal year which ends June 30.

In spite of the $60,969 budget increase, however, the commissioners are holding to the 90-cent tax rate which Pitt County has had during the current fiscal year.

The tax valuation for the county this year is up approximately $4,000,000 from last year's valuation, and at the 90-cent rate, it will mean a revenue increase of approximately $64,000 for the county. The commissioner estimate the other $6,000 increase in revenue needed to meet the tentative budget will come from increased profits from ABC stores.

The county's budget for the current fiscal year which has less than a month to run is $580,360.40.

A brief look at the budget departmental breakdown shows the general fund up from $223,712 this year to $242,819.50 for fiscal year 1953; the county home up from $18,352 to $20,122; outside poor and relief up from $33,935 to $37,750; social security fund up from $107,985 to $112,745.99; the health department up from $59,586 to $65,246; debt service up from $185,000 to $147,780; the hospital fund up from $27,500 to $28,580; and the county school fund up from $74,290.40 to $285,566.

The new budget which received the tentative okay from the commissioners last night will mean a $410 per month pay raise for the majority of the county employees. There was no across the board percentage salary increase policy adopted by the commissioners in making the new budget, but for the most part, Pitt's employees will find their pay checks $10 per month higher during the new fiscal year than during the current fiscal year.

The commissioners sat in a four hour special meeting last night devoted most of the time to a review of the requested budget for the county welfare department. The commissioners met jointly with the county board of health and Welfare Superintendent K. T. Futrell. The commissioners gave tentative approval to an item in the welfare department budget which would provide $8,300 for hospitalization of emergency cases not normally anticipated by regular welfare department clients, and $4,310 for the payment of accumulated unpaid hospital bills charged against the department.

The commissioners made it clear to the welfare department last night that it is to make every endeavor to operate within its budget, particularly in regard to the money budget.

Seven MIGs Shot Down Over Korea

Two Others Damaged In Blazing Sky Battles; Sabres Enjoy Numerical Superiority In Defending Fighter-Bombers

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—American Sabre jets shot down seven Communist MIG-15s today and damaged two more in two blazing dog-fights over Northwest Korea.

Sixty-four F86s tangled with 28 MIGs that were trying to intercept United Nations fighter-bombers on rail-cutting and supply attacks.

It was the biggest one-day bag since April 21 and one more than were destroyed all last week. The 7th Air Force's MIG total for the war was boosted to 361 destroyed, 38 probably destroyed and 507 damaged.

Six MIGs were destroyed and two damaged when 36 Sabres slashed into a formation of 16 MIGs trying to sneak by the screening Sabres and attack fighter-bombers.

The seventh was downed when 12 MIGs fought 28 Sabres. Action ranged from 2,000 feet to higher than seven miles.

Maj. Felix A. Asia Jr., of Eugene, Ore., told this story: "We were giving fighter bombers close over a rail target, when a lone MIG came in low and made a firing pass up through a flight of F-84 Thunder jets."

"I tacked onto him right away and started firing as soon as we were clear of the F-84s. My burst caught him in the wing and he started smoking."

"I was still after him when I saw another MIG heading for the fighter-bombers. I swung around, nosed into him and fired one burst. It must have shaken up the pilot because he ejected immediately."

Eight Have Entered In Beauty Pageant

More Entries Expected Today And Tomorrow; Jaycees Announce Park Construction Plans For Following Week

Final preparations for the Miss Greenville beauty pageant, to be held here June 12, were discussed last night at the meeting of the Greenville Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Julian White, chairman of the beauty pageant committee, reported eight contestants already entered in the event, and said other entries in the contest are expected today and tomorrow. The contestants in the pageant will be judged on beauty and talent, and the winner of the title "Miss Greenville" will represent the city in the Miss North Carolina beauty pageant in Winston-Salem later this summer.

With the title Miss Greenville will go a $250 college scholarship in addition to several hundred dollars worth of valuable gifts which have been contributed by Greenville merchants. Following the beauty pageant in Austin Auditorium on the East Carolina campus, a dance in honor of Miss Greenville and the other contestants in the pageant will be held at McGowan's warehouse on Ninth Street.

Tickets for the pageant and the dance are now being sold by members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and Chairman White requested all members of the club to turn in their unsold tickets not later than noon Thursday.

The Jaycee building committee for the recreation building at Elm Street park last night announced that plans have been made to begin construction work on the building next week. The Elm Street park committee recently made $1,000 available to the Jaycees to begin work on the building which has been assigned as the organization's part of the development project for the park.

President Charles Horne announced the Jaycees will pay the round trip expenses of Mrs. W. L. Mayo next week-end when she accompanies her husband to Cincinnati where he will be honored as the nation's outstanding father of 1952 by the Cincinnati Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Guests of the club at the meeting last night were Walter Stewart and Bill Roney.

Approve Loan To Buy Tobacco

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Export-Import Bank yesterday approved a 10-million-dollar loan to the West German government for the purchase of American tobacco. The bank previously had indicated it would reject the loan application but Rep. Harold D. Cooley and Sen. Clyde R. Hoey urged it to reconsider.

Ike Rules Out Fight With Taft

Implies Agreement With Many Of Taft Stands; Would Support Him

ABILENE, Kan. (UP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower ruled out a fight with Sen. Robert A. Taft for the Republican presidential nomination and keyed his campaign today on defeating the Democrats and "socialism."

The retired five-star general, now fully in the political swim, wound up a two-day visit to his home town and the basis for his campaign during his first political speech, his first news conference and subsequent talks with Republican delegates to the July convention.

He took a stand on at least half-dozen major issues, allied himself solidly on the side of the Republicans and solidly against the Democrats.

Fundamentally, he said, he was in "general accord" with the Republican stand in the mid-term elections of 1950 which started the basis difference between the parties was the fight of "liberty versus socialism."

By so doing, he implied agreement of a sort with his arch-rival because Taft had a big hand in shaping that policy.

And Eisenhower went on to disavow even more flatly any fight with the Ohio senator by saying he would support him should Taft win the 1952 GOP nomination.

Taft, speaking in Cincinnati, however, said that Eisenhower seemed for the most part to have "dealt in generalities" with "some implications as to a position on various important issues—but not very definite commitments in these implications."

Eisenhower was firm in his attitude toward the Democrats and said he would bend every effort to defeat them if he won the GOP nomination.

He said the federal government need a thorough cleaning out by a party not committed to the system developed over the last 20 years—the period the Democrats have been in power.

Denies Guilt Up To His Execution

RALEIGH (AP)—A Negro laborer, described as quiet, hard working and a good provider for his wife and four young children, was executed at Central Prison today for the brutal murder of a 65-year-old white widow.

John Andrew Roman, 30, was led into the prison's tiny gas chamber shortly after 10 a.m. He was calm as he was led in by guards but struggled briefly while a mask was being placed over his face. He was pronounced dead nine minutes after the gas was released at 10:05.

Although the State Supreme Court had stated evidence in the case pointed "unerringly" to his guilt, Roman asserted to the last he was not guilty of the slaying of Mrs. Beulah Miller Hinshaw at Lexington last Aug. 12.

Prison Chaplain William H. R. Jackson said Roman denied his guilt this morning.

"He maintained they had an innocent man," said Paroles Commissioner N. F. Ransdell who interviewed Roman earlier this week.

Prison Warden Robert A. Allen said he talked to the doomed man late yesterday. "He said he had no ill-will against anybody," said Allen. Allen said Roman had eaten sparingly for several days and declined his breakfast this morning.

Atom Scientists Leave Nevada Testing Ground

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UP)—Atomic scientists packed up their equipment and began moving out of their Nevada proving ground today, with a South Pacific atoll apparently the next stop on their atom-bomb testing schedule.

The Atomic Energy Commission wound up its 1952 series of tests at the desert firing range yesterday with a tower detonation seen 735 miles away near the Canadian border.

Test manager Carol Tyler said the test was "particularly good" from a scientific standpoint, but he added the AEC was unable to tell "at this point" when it would be possible to hold another series of tests in the desert.

It was reported here that the scientists would head for Eniwetok in the South Pacific soon for another program of nuclear testing, but Tyler said no definite date had been set.

Aldermen Vote Incorporate New Subdivision Into City

Board Shelves Resignation By Langston For One Week

Voice Unanimous Confidence In Police Chief; Ask Reconsideration; Establishment Of Fire Department Sub Station Approved

At their meeting last night, members of the Greenville Board of Aldermen gave Chief of Police Guy C. Langston a rising vote of confidence and agreed not to accept his resignation "for the time being."

Earlier in the day Chief Langston had submitted his resignation to Mayor Lester D. Page, and it was presented to members of the board last night. The mayor said the resignation—which is to become effective July 1—came as "a complete surprise" to him.

After hearing the chief's resignation read, the aldermen approved a motion which stipulated that Chief Langston be given a week to reconsider his action. The motion further read: "If at the end of that time he still desires to resign, his wish will be granted."

Expressed Appreciation
Rounding out his second year as chief of police in Greenville, Langston expressed his appreciation to the board for their vote of confidence, and stated that he will give the matter sincere consideration before making a final decision.

A letter from the Otis Elevator Company was read which informed the board that the charge for servicing the police elevator will be increased from $25.00 per month to $34.00 per month—some the first of the fiscal year which begins July 1. The board approved the increase.

It was approved to advertise delinquent taxes in The Daily Reflector. City Clerk H. H. Duncan announced that many have been paid since the last meeting but disclosed that a great deal of money is still uncollected. Names of delinquent taxpayers will be published.

Approve Fire Station
The board approved the plan of purchasing the county's interest in the city-county curb market on Chestnut Street for the purpose of establishing a fire sub-station in west Greenville.

A report of the fire committee disclosed that the board of county commissioners has offered to sell the county's half interest in the property to the city for $4,000. Members of the board authorized the purchase and gave the "go ahead" to the fire station project.

Mayor Page had previously stated that for around $10,000 he thought the city could convert the property into a permanent and satisfactory sub-station. "Otherwise property and building would cost the city between $50,000 and $100,000," the mayor said.

Awning Ordinance Passed
A petition appeared before the board and requested that the board classify aluminum awnings and state how high they must be from the sidewalk, and how far in from the curbline. City Attorney Lee reported that no reply has been received from the attorney general's office relative to whether they are permanent fixtures or not.

The board voted to repeal an old ordinance and enacted the following ordinance in its place. It reads: "All framework of awnings extending over the sidewalks of the city, or any part of a sidewalk, shall not be less than seven feet, six inches above the sidewalk, and the flap shall not be less than seven feet above the sidewalk."

"Provided, however, that awnings constructed of metal, wood or other solid materials shall not be less than seven feet above the sidewalk; and provided further, that no awning shall extend nearer than two feet to the curbline of the street nearest the awning."

Off-Street Parking
Representatives of the Merchants Association and the Chamber of Commerce were present at the meeting last night relative to their resolution regarding off-street parking. They said other cities have adopted permanent off-street parking lots and they not only relieve congestion but are beginning to pay revenue as well.

"This is a big project, and it will require a great deal of thought," Mayor Page told the group. He ordered that the finance and street committees meet with representatives of the groups soon with a plan for off-street parking.

The board voted to waive the customary $50 tax on dances held within the city for the Jaycee Beauty Pageant and dance to be held here, June 12. All proceeds from the enterprise will go to the fund for development of Elm Street Park.

Raise For Aldermen
A tentative proposal to raise members of the board of aldermen's salary was presented by Alderman Howell. He said several surrounding cities had been contacted, and nearly all of them pay more than does Greenville.

Hail Cuts Wide Swath In Pitt Tobacco Fields

Claude Berney, farmer of the Ayden section, was hard hit by a hail and wind storm which struck there yesterday around six o'clock. In the above picture Berney is shown displaying one of the battered tobacco leaves which was ripped from the stalks by the hail. Nearly eight acres of his 1952 crop was totally destroyed. Many other farms in the section were also hard hit. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee)

Losses Range For Some Farmers Runs High; Hail, The 'Size Of Golf Balls,' Hit Prior To Wind And Heavy Rains

AYDEN—Hail, one of the tobacco farmers' worst enemies, unleashed its destructive force upon farms in the Ayden community late yesterday afternoon leaving in its wake losses ranging from moderate to 100 percent.

A driving rain, whipped along by a brisk wind and accompanied by a heavy fall of hail ripped a patch estimated at around three miles square along the Gum Swamp road. Nearly twice this amount of area was believed to have been affected by the storm's path but was not as hard hit as the first.

One of the hardest hit farms belonged to Claude Berney, who lost 7.7 acres of his 1952 crop to the elements.

Berney this morning estimated that his entire crop is a total loss. It was covered by insurance, however, he stated.

Hail described as being the "size of golf balls" fell prior to the rain and wind around the Berney farm. The period of hail lasted for around one-half hour and then the heavy rain set in for nearly two hours.

Other farms affected by the hail around Ayden were the Miller Manning farm with 26 acres. (First reports indicated that the loss there would run around 50 percent and was covered partly by insurance.)

Len Cannon, with 30 acres, estimated as to damage not known yet; the W. L. Bissette farm with 26 more acres. Also hit were the Bill Johnson farm where 15 acres were affected and William Rouse with eight acres. Damage was also reported to the Lester Garris and Joe Dudley farm.

The crop lost by Berney was one of the best in the area; some of it nearly three feet in height. It was first set out in the latter part of April.

Re-Tested 4-F Men For Army

WASHINGTON (UP)—Selective Service reported today that re-examination of 4-Fs is producing "substantial numbers" of men reclassified 1-A and available for military service.

From Jan. 1 through March 31, the agency said, 9,638 men who had been rejected previously for military service were reclassified 1-A. That was almost 28 per cent of the 34,810 men re-examined.

The figures were carried in the agency's monthly newspaper, "Selective Service."

Board Overrules Disapproval Voiced By Mayor; Long Debate Involves Extending Utilities Services Outside City, Or Incorporate And Assume Burden

By JESS FOINDEKTER
Reflector Staff Writer
Going unanimously against the strong opposition of Mayor Lester D. Page, the Greenville Board of Aldermen last night voted to incorporate College Court subdivision into the city limits.

In one of the longest meetings in many months—and after an hour of heated, see-saw debate—the nine members of the board bodily overruled Mayor Page's voiced disapproval of the measure and approved incorporation.

But before final action was taken on the proposal, two main questions stood out in the lengthy argument—namely, 1, whether to extend water, lights and sewer service into an area outside the city; or, whether to incorporate the area and let the city assume responsibility of extending utilities into the development?

Ruled Illegal
The possibility of extending utilities into College Court subdivision without the developer or property owners paying the entire cost was described as "very remote" last night by Utilities Superintendent Martin Swartz.

"According to City Attorney Raleigh Lee—based on a ruling by State Attorney General Harry McMullan—a city cannot legally take taxpayers' money and spend it to extend water and sewer lines outside the city limits," Swartz explained.

The utilities superintendent called for the adoption of a resolution approved by the Greenville Utilities Commission earlier yesterday which provides if effect property owners or developers of areas outside the city limits be required to bear 100 percent of the cost of extending water and sewer facilities into those areas.

Reviewed Request
Seemingly with that in mind, developer of College Court subdivision M. K. Blount then asked that the property be brought into the city limits. "A developer simply can't go out and put in utilities at his own expense and then have the commission take them over in the future at no cost to the city," Blount stated.

The developer added, "I feel the city will benefit from this project as it has from many others. If you bring it in, the city will get revenue from water and lights, and an additional allocation of Powell Bill funds for street improvement."

Appearing with Blount and a delegation of lot owners in College Court was Louis W. Gaylord, Sr., Greenville Attorney. Speaking on behalf on the College Court interests, Gaylord quoted Rock Springs, Brookgreen and College View as being similar if not identical with Blount's subdivision. He asked that College Court be brought in "with a long range view in mind—that view which makes towns and cities grow."

Mayor Disapproved
In voicing a stern disapproval of the request for incorporation, Mayor Page asserted that he was not concerned with personalities, but with what will be in the best interests of the people already in Greenville.

"There are many houses which have been in the corporate limits of Greenville for sometimes that as yet do not have those facilities," Page emphasized. "There is no conceivable way of putting water and lights into College Court without depriving many people already in the city limits of identical service."

The mayor further explained that College Court subdivision is not fully developed. "We are burdened every time we take in a raw, partially developed piece of property," he declared. "City taxpayers—many of them who do not have conveniences themselves—are paying for developing someone else's property."

Alderman J. E. Waldrop opined that Blount's development is in "a little different category" than others in that it has been pending

Farmers Day Event Given New Title By Steering Committee

Greenville's annual Farmer's Day event had its name changed yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the steering committee in charge of staging the gala two days of activities to be held in August.

After considerable discussion the committee voted to call the festival this year the Farmers Tobacco Festival instead of just plain Farmers Day as has been the case for the past three years.

But so far as the program is concerned, it will still be the day of days for farmers and rural families in this section of Eastern North Carolina. The program for the Farmers Tobacco Festival is being built around entertainment for the rural families who come to Greenville to join in the festivities. The committee yesterday officially set the dates for the Farmers Tobacco Festival this year as August 12 and 13. Although the program for the festival has not been worked out by the steering committee, the activities are expected to begin the afternoon or evening of August 12, and continued through the day and evening of August 13.

A contract has been executed with professional decorator Jack Finch for the decoration of the warehouse in which many of the festival activities will be held, and likewise for the decoration of the streets in the downtown section of the city.

A committee was appointed yesterday to look into the possibilities of staging a parade as a part of the festival occasion. The committee is composed of Jack Wallace, chairman, Ben Rouse, B. B. Drum, and Dr. John Reynolds. The steering committee also specified that the concession stand would sell drinks at the regular five cents price, and as a safety measure required that drinks be served in paper cup rather than in bottles.

Steering Committee Chairman Bancroft Moseley announced that another meeting of the committee will be held next Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the office of the Chamber of Commerce.

Pilot-Training Accident At Local Airport

An Air Force training plane nosed-over upon landing at the Pitt-Greenville airport yesterday afternoon when its pilot applied his brakes too quickly in making a landing. Witnesses said the plane nosed over and for a few seconds looked as though it would topple on its back. The above picture was taken minutes after the mishap, with spilled gasoline seen on the ground. The crash truck and a fire truck from Greenville stood by in the event of fire. The pilot's name was not disclosed, but it was understood he was one of the French cadets training at Stallings Air Force Base at Kinston. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee)

1,500 Pennies In Loot Of Robber

GRIMESLAND—An obviously insatiable desire for money of any description so possessed a thief here Wednesday night that he added to his burden of sin and loot by loading himself down with 1,500 pennies.

Pitt County officers are searching for a chain-smoking, candy-chewing character in a new white shirt who might be flourishing a profusion of pennies, nickels and dimes and packing a 32 calibre pistol.

According to officers' reports, a prowler — as yet unapprehended — broke into J. P. Wilson's store here Wednesday night and absconded with 20 cartons of cigarettes, three boxes of candy, seven white shirts (size unknown), $15.00 in pennies, $12.00 in nickels and dimes and a 32 calibre pistol.

Wilson discovered the break-in about 6:30 yesterday morning when he came down to open the store and found that the lock on the front door had been twisted off. Deputy Sheriff Jasper Lee Mills said today, "The robber stole all the money in the place, even the pennies," the deputy stated.

An investigation was conducted by Deputy Mills and S. B. Dorsey of the Greenville Police Department. The investigation is being conducted.

Audio-Visual Aids To Be Discussed At Conference

Science teachers of the state have been invited to attend Thursday, June 12, at East Carolina College a conference on the topic Synchronizing Audio-Visual Aids with Laboratory Experiences in Science.

Dr. Charles W. Reynolds, director of the college department of science, will direct the conference and will participate in the program offered during the day. The meeting will be held in the auditorium of the college science department in the Flanagan building. The program will begin at 9:30 Thursday morning and is scheduled to close at 12:30.

Dr. Christine Wilton of the East Carolina department of science and Dr. Ed J. Carter, director of the college Bureau of Field Services, will appear on the program with Dr. Reynolds. Discussion will deal with the use of audio-visual aids in the development of specific teaching situations in science.

Dr. Reynolds will demonstrate the use of films strips, and Dr. Carter, of opaque projections. Dr. Wilton will discuss the use of models and charts useful in the laboratory. Those attending the workshop will have also an opportunity to visit the college greenhouse and to discuss the values of such a project to a school program in science.

Workshop In Health Education Is Staged

Twenty-four teachers, school supervisors, and prospective teachers are now participating in a workshop on health education which is being offered at East Carolina College June 3-13.

Dr. Charles G. DeShaw of the college department of health and physical education is coordinator of the ten-day course of study. Assisting him are consultants from the North Carolina School Health Coordinating Service and from other state health organizations.

Discussion and activities of the workshop focus attention on the teaching of health in the public schools. Needs of both instructors and pupils and materials and methods effective in the teaching of health are among major topics being considered by those enrolled.

Mrs. Annie Ray Moore of Raleigh, health educator with the School Health Coordinating Service, has been on the campus, for several days this week assisting Dr. DeShaw with the organization of the course. Others representing the same state agency who will visit East Carolina and participate in the workshop include Dr. R. M. Pink, who will discuss mental health, and Helen Stuart, who will act as consultant on physical education.

Norman Gaskill of the North Carolina Tuberculosis Association, Raleigh and Sabina Reid, supervisor of the school Lunch Program for the Northeastern District of the State Board of Health, nutritionist in the same area, will also meet with students in the workshop.

Among activities planned for the course is a field trip during which students will visit the Health Center of the Pitt County Health Department in Greenville.

Local Girl Married In Tennessee

Polly Gibbs Weds Medical Student In Nashville Rites

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Miss Pollyanna Gibbs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Gordon Gibbs of Greenville, N. C., was married on Sunday afternoon, June 1, to Luther Edwin Miller of Decatur, Miss., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Andrew Miller, also of Decatur.

The marriage was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Baxter on Compton Avenue in Nashville, Tenn. Dr. Harold J. Purdy, pastor of Belmont Heights Baptist Church, read the marriage vows following a program of nuptial music given by Mrs. George McCleod, pianist, and Miss Mary Catherine Abington, vocalist. Readings were given by Miss Marian Preston.

For the wedding occasion an altar of honeysuckle vines and blossoms were arranged before the mantel in the drawing room, the shelf of which was arranged with white gladioli flanked by burning white tapers. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, Mr. Gibbs, was attired in a ballerina model of imported white swiss organdy fashioned with an empire bodice characterized by a standing collar. The long sleeves ended in embroidered points over the hands and the full skirt blended with the pointed swiss guipure. The chapel-length veil of tulle was caught to a band of shirred organdy. The bride carried a white satin heirloom Bible marked with a cluster of gardenias showered with Stephanotis.

Miss Nell Elizabeth Hunter served as the bride's only attendant. She wore a ballerina model of dusty pink organdy and her flowers were a nosegay of carnations.

John Waggoner served as Mr. Miller's best man.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Gibbs wore a model of ice blue lace over matching taffeta. Her flowers were a shoulder arrangement of pink roses. Mrs. Miller, mother of the bridegroom, wore a navy blue sheer dress accented by a shoulder bouquet of white roses.

A reception was given for the guests following the ceremony. The bride's table was centered with a tiered wedding cake encircled with gardenias and flanked by white tapers burning in silver candelabra. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Baxter, Miss Betty Ferrell and Miss Laurella Owen.

Mr. Miller and the bride left immediately following the ceremony for an extended wedding trip after which they will make their home at 2606 Capers Ave., Nashville, Tenn. For traveling the bride wore a linen suit in a luggage shade and used brown accessories.

Guests from a distance who were there for the wedding, in addition to those mentioned above, were Miss Mary Alice Gibbs and Miss Naomi Gibbs of Greenville, sisters of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Miller of Carthage, Miss., and Mrs. Lamar Spivey and Miss Ruth Anne Spivey, of Decatur.

The bride was graduated from Mars Hill Junior College in Mars Hill, N. C., and from Meredith College in Raleigh, N. C.

Mr. Miller was graduated from Millsaps in Jackson, Miss., and is a student in the School of Medicine of Vanderbilt University.

Americans Teach Industry Skills

FREGENE, Italy. — (AP) — In this beach resort, American industrial experts have recently completed a school course to train teachers for higher output from Europe's factories.

It is the first school of its kind in Europe. Nine Americans, one Austrian and one Italian directed classes. Twenty-five production "students" from Austria, Germany, France, Italy, Holland and Denmark attended.

These lessons will be carried to foremen in demonstration plant projects throughout Europe. The program aims at more production by reducing waste and inefficiency.

Strength for the Day

BACK HOME AGAIN
AN ORDINARY WARDEN
People ought to know more about Bill Claudy—the Reverend Bill Claudy, Warden of the North Carolina State Penitentiary in Raleigh. Claudy is a combination of jobs and titles, isn't it? Yes it is. But when Bill Claudy was a young minister just out of seminary and serving a church in Pittsburgh, he became greatly distressed over juvenile delinquency and over the fact that the Church seemed to be doing very little to check the spread of this plague. So Claudy consecrated himself to work among prisoners, and today he is the warden of the two largest penal institutions in Pennsylvania. He regards his work as distinctly a Christian ministry.

Claudys had many disappointments in his attempt to make men better, but he has had triumphs which are almost beyond belief. An illiterate juvenile became, under Claudy's direction, an unusually well-educated man. After about ten years in prison, he was released on parole, married a devout Christian girl, later went to the war, and returned with a hero's record and now conducts a flourishing poultry business in Pennsylvania. Another prisoner became a fine student and a devout Christian and is today an evangelist in one of the mid-western states, doing a remarkable piece of religious work.

Claudys believes in men—and in God as their Creator and Redeemer through Christ.

That Distasteful Game Of Official Head-Rolling

With the Democratic primary over in North Carolina, Governor Kerr Scott seems to be going into full swing with his unbecoming, distasteful game of head-rolling among top officials whom he appointed.

The Reflector thinks the tactics presently being used by Scott to remove from office men who dared to go against his political dictates are indicative of the headstrong attitude of Governor Scott to carry his point at any cost. It is likewise, we believe, an indication that in his original appointments—at least some of them—Scott looked for political henchmen rather than the most capable possible men to handle important posts under his administration.

With only a few months remaining in the life of Scott's administration, it seems to us that unless something is radically wrong in the individual departments of the government, the state would be better off for even mediocre men to remain at their posts with which they are familiar for several more months rather than bringing in new people who will have to move out again before they learn the ropes of the office which they will head.

Last we be misunderstood, it should be made clear that The Reflector is not taking up for specific department heads in Scott's administration. There are many who in our opinion should have been removed long ago, because they have not done their work the way we believe it should have been done. At the same time we hold firm to our position that refusal to follow the political dictates of the governor is not sufficient reason for the dismissal of department heads.

The Reflector shares the view of Col. Rosser who was dismissed yesterday by Governor Scott. Rosser pointed out that he has cooperated with Scott in "every way with the exception that I reserved to myself the right of every citizen to vote for the candidate of their choice." That right should be held in high regard and diligently respected by any individual who is interested first and foremost in good government for the people.

Apparently Governor Scott has no respect for that right as Rosser stated it.

Mr. Eisenhower Is Off To A Good Start

For the record, let it be said that Candidate Eisenhower made a tremendously appealing initial appearance at Abilene.

His opening address could be understood by everyone for what it was: a generalized opinion on national affairs.

Mr. Eisenhower's press conference on Thursday must have been a joy to his supporters and a disappointment to followers of other candidates. He spoke his mind as simply and interestingly as can only a man who is unafraid of exposing convictions to the world.

As a general, Ike knew what press conferences were like. As a private citizen exposing his political faith to the people, he knew that the frankness of the questions carried with them more than the usual dangers of alienating blocs of potential supporters.

A disinterested reporter, seeking only answers to a few of the critical issues, could play havoc with ambiguous or evasive replies. There were approximately 200 reporters at the Abilene press conference yesterday.

And though the news stories covering that event by two press services were written by objective-minded newsmen, still their reports conveyed something of the freshness, hope and frankness of the Eisenhower personality. Should Ike continue to elaborate upon his political faith and press his campaign with the vigor of his original two appearances, he will be virtually unbeatable.

His greatest fight remains awaiting him at Chicago. The actual election appears now to be anti-climactic to the struggle for nomination. Republicans don't like to be reminded they are definitely a minority party; and that to win they must have a candidate that can swing the majority of independent voters as well as a portion of the Democrats. An Eisenhower could do that. A Taft would have a difficult time against the united strength of a powerful Democratic Party machine.

With the passage of time we expect Ike to answer more and more of those barbed questions upon which he has been silent while observing the proprieties of a military man. To date the great complaint of his rivals is that Eisenhower was winning without saying anything about his beliefs and opinions on domestic issues. It will take time for him to oblige them on that score; the field is too broad for pat answers and snap judgment. Each of the many political issues, both Democratic and Republican, must be dealt with in such a manner that it is clear in the public mind just how Candidate Eisenhower sees it.

If he does as well in the future as he has at the onset of his campaigning, the "I like Ike" chorus will have many millions of voices.

National Whirligig

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Behind Truman-Eisenhower optimistic reports on growing American military strength in Europe, Korea and the United States lies a deep but unacknowledged concern among Pentagon realists over the serious slowdown in anti-Russian rearmament at home and abroad. With ideal fighting weather approaching, the promised coalition of democratic forces amounts to "only a paper army."

General Eisenhower's survey of western capabilities in conferences with the Joint Chiefs of Staff emphasizes that fact. He found his colleagues severely critical of the small-like progress which the United States has made since the start of the two-year warfare in Korea.

His New York friends, including Bernard M. Baruch, have warned of politico-economic delays in the domestic output of weapons, especially planes and tanks.

GRAVE—Eisenhower himself admits that he was able to build only the framework of a defense structure. His contribution to allied efforts overseas was mainly psychological, and psychology does not win battles.

Unlike President Truman and Secretary Acheson, he sees a long and hard road ahead before the pact incorporating Germans in an international defense organization have any battlefield importance.

Meanwhile, should the peace talks in Korea break down, the situation there will be far more grave than Washington has informed the American public. We will be outmanned, outgunned and outflanked.

FACTS—General Mark Clark's forces may hold the line at the 38th parallel against a foe two-and-a-half times as powerful, numerically. But the casualties among American troops, who constitute more than 80 per cent of the U.N. defenders, will be terrific. Our only battle-trained veterans in uniform would be badly mauled.

Mid-year progress reports reveal that, under the current program, the United States and its even weaker allies will not be ready to wage even a successful defensive operation against the Russians for three years. These alarming facts have been pushed abroad, and, of course, they are known in the Kremlin.

DIVISIONS—Despite official pronouncements to the contrary, military experts say it is still true that Moscow's armies could sweep to the channel ports within three or four weeks. The allied soldiers now spread out from the Baltic to the Balkans are sufficient to serve as only a thin skirmish line. Worst of all, there are now no reserves to reinforce this delaying and holding unit.

As of today, there are only seventeen United Nations divisions, plus one regiment of Norwegians, Dutch and Danish troops, scattered throughout that whole area.

The six American and four British divisions are crack and well-equipped outfits, although few have been tested in battle. There are five French and two Belgian divisions along the northern sector.

STRENGTH—Our supposed atomic superiority, which is credited by Churchill with having staved off a Soviet assault, might not avail us in this sort of contest.

For one thing, the Russians are now in a position where they could retaliate with atom bombs and artillery. Secondly, it is questionable whether our European allies would agree to the use of this weapon on their own soil.

For all the official satisfaction over the enrollment of Turkish, Greek and Yugoslavian troops on our side, Stalin has sufficient strength to keep them at bay without weakening his drive into Western Europe.

Despite the alarming nature of this survey, it describes a situation which no sound military authority denies.

QUESTION—The important question now is whether these hard truths will be sufficiently impressed upon the American people in the forthcoming campaign. In view of his background and associations, nobody could arouse the public and the politicians from their present apathy and complacency more dramatically than Eisenhower.

He knows that every Pentagon request for funds and men and weapons was reduced sharply by the White House until the North Koreans attacked two years ago. With the Joint Chiefs of Staff, he recalls the scrapping of the supercarrier, and Truman's insistence on only 48 instead of 70 air wings. He is aware that for six months after the outbreak of the "police action" in Korea, the president failed to place the nation on a semi-war footing.

It is recognized that, while in uniform, Ike could not protest against this series of tragic blunders. But now that he seeks the Republican nomination and is free to talk frankly, his political and military associates believe he could help himself and the country by letting us have the truth.

Man With A Horn

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

June 6, 1952
Mr. J. Knott Proctor,
Postmaster, City of Greenville, N.C.

Dear Mr. Proctor:
Just in case you look upon the Post Office here in Greenville as a place of business, this letter is to correct that misunderstanding and propose a plan for changing your operation. Mr. Proctor, you are running the social center of Greenville!

Two trips to the Post Office daily will average taking one hour out of my working days, but let me emphasize that I have never yet been there that I didn't have a friendly chat with somebody.

Frankly, I think everybody in Greenville should have the opportunity to visit the Post Office twice a day. The friends you make there constitutes one of the joys of life. Also, if you are a business-man you can sell there, if you like to gossip you can pick up information there, and if you're a snob you can snob people there.

My plan would be this: Take one per cent of the money the government wastes in one week, and build us a Post Office here in Greenville that will cover one entire city block.

Then cut out city delivery. Take one day's government waste out of every year and you can pay the box rent for everybody in Greenville for 10 years. Locate this Post Office as centrally as possible, and furnish it with plush furniture.

Be sure that the plan for construction includes a huge porch, adequately furnished with the most comfortable porch furniture available. Equip the P. O. with a fountain, specializing in coffee and lemonade.

With this plan, Greenville would become nationally famous as the town in which everybody knows everybody, and where most people have friendly chats. This plan would also raise our morals. Likewise, everybody would know everybody's business, and behavior would become more necessary.

In case we would have a tendency to associate only with people who have boxes close to ours, I recommend that the boxes be switched around every month. In the process of finding his new box, a person would make a few more friends.

This plan would also discourage people, which most of us are doing too much of. I realize that it will probably take you a few weeks to put this plan in operation, but I am anxiously awaiting its completion.

Cordially,

Jack

And I thank you.

NON-LEGAL—The statewide primary held last Saturday was one of the cleanest in many years. At the time this is written no complaints have been heard from any quarter about improprieties or violations of the law around the polling places. Raymond Maxwell, secretary of the state board of elections, said that for the first time since he has been on the job—and that goes back more than 20 years—the election day passed without a single call reporting infractions of the law. At the same time, he agreed that perhaps not a single precinct in the state met statutory requirements for physical arrangement of voting booths, ballot boxes and official election records.

IMPRACICAL—The law books set out in detail just how the booths, boxes and tables for the officials shall be arranged. It is required that a place be roped off to assure 20 feet within the voting area and to keep the loitering public at least 50 feet away from the ballot boxes. Actually many of the voting places are in rooms less than 20 feet long and not more than that far from a public sidewalk or street—over which the election officials have no control. Obviously it is impractical, if not impossible to comply with the law in physical arrangements.

Despite that failure, it is the opinion of most observers that, except in rare instances—which usually are caught and publicized—elections in North Carolina are conducted in full spirit with the spirit of the law. This being true, most people refer to the act as non-legal, rather than as rangements of election furni-illegal, which means it is not so much positive violation of the law as just failure to fully comply. And, it further seems, most people are not much concerned about the matter. They know that crooked officials can rig an election with boxes 20 feet behind a rope, and that honest officials can protect the rights of voters to an untampered secret ballot without any rope at all.

PATHEPIC—The office of the Governor in the southwestern corner of the capitol is likely to be a sad and pathetic place for the next seven months. That has always been true of the governor's office between the nomination of a new Governor in May or June and his inauguration in January. The retiring chief executive is recognized only for such purposes as wholly official action is required. He is still the only man in the state who can grant a pardon or commutation or parole to a prisoner. He is the only man who can issue a commission as a notary public or a state office requiring a commission from the Governor. No member of the Congress can be seated without a commission from the Governor of his state.

UNOFFICIAL—For all these purposes and for appointments to vacancies which might occur in state offices before January 1, Kerr Scott is still Governor. For most of the unofficial duties pertaining to the governor's office, such as making speeches at the dedication of public buildings, crowning queens of beauty festivals, and other off-duty activities, "Governor" Umstead will get the call. Incidentally, there is debate question whether most of these invitations come under the head of honors or burdens for the governor-nominate—but he has to respond when called upon. There is nothing new or different in this situation. So far as official duties are concerned the governor's term runs four years from January 1 after his election. The demands for unofficial honorary services run four years from his nomination until his successor is named. That has been true of every governor in recent times and in virtually ignoring Governor Scott the people of the state are not picking on him. They did the same thing to Governors Cherry and Broughton and Hoey and Ehringhaus et cetera. The conditions may be somewhat accentuated this time, not because of any conscious desire on part of the people to by-pass Governor Scott, but because of the exigencies of practical politics.

UNIQUE—Governor Scott is in a situation which no predecessor has faced. Heretofore the retiring governor, certainly that was true from the days of Max Gardner through Gregs Cherry, have had good personal and political relations with their successors. So it was that persons desiring appointments or favors from the new governor found it advisable to bespeak the good offices of the retiring executive. It was known that Governor McLean was satisfied with Max Gardner as his successor, that Gardner was pleased with Ehringhaus to follow him, that Ehringhaus quietly helped Hoey, that Hoey put in a plug for Broughton, that Broughton lent a hand to Cherry, and that Cher-

What Other Papers Are Thinking

OF CORONERS' JURIES

(Greensboro Daily News)

From Pittsboro comes report of one of these cumulative instances which are always causing us to look askance at coroners and their functioning in North Carolina.

The Pittsboro chief of police reportedly encountered an intruder in a downtown building, grappled with him on the stairs and shot him to death after a struggle in which the intruder, a Negro, attacked the officer with a knife and slashed him five times.

In line with news dispatches there is no question as to the justification of the shooting. The police chief acted in self-defense and in discharge of his sworn duties. But that is not the point to this piece.

Virginia, have already done.

Why did the coroner have to get in on the case and, if he did, why all the rush? A coroner, as we understand the law, is charged with determining cause of death where cause is unknown.

Yet in case after case Tar Heel coroners move in where cause is clearly and indisputably known. Coroners have no authority to exonerate anybody; yet they very frequently do. Innocence or guilt of any citizen must be determined by due process of law, which stimulates trial by a petit jury and not a coroner's jury. Of course a coroner's jury's findings should have no effect whatever upon the solicitor, the grand jury and/or other law enforcement agencies, but too often, we fear, they do.

But if or when a coroner's jury does act, why such haste as was shown at Pittsboro and as has been shown many other times, especially in cases where officers are involved in the cases under inquiry, over the state? The Pittsboro police chief got his man about 2:45 a.m. By 6 a.m., dispatches relate, a coroner's jury had heard such evidence as could be so quickly mustered and exonerated him. And that is entirely too hasty for justice under any name or guise.

It is such cumulative cases as this which make the Daily News go on wondering why North Carolina doesn't give more serious consideration to supplanting coroners with medical examiners as many other states, including

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

There are some soft spots in the economy but there are even softer spots in business morale. In some circles pessimism has become fashionable.

The soft spots are not unimportant. The long-expected pick up in textiles has not occurred. Many appliance plants have suspended work or are operating on shorter weeks. Some soy bean crushers have closed mills. The National Association of Purchasing Agents says production was cut back in March and orders declined. Factory employment in mid-April was 410,000 less than a year earlier. Industrial production declined in April and May. The Federal Reserve Board reports, although part of it is attributed to strikes. Some, but not all, auto dealers complain that the Spring boom has not yet arrived, even though credit controls have been lifted.

All those factors are depressing, but they do not constitute a depression.

As a matter of fact, despite those indicators, statistics indicate that business on the whole is very healthy.

To wit: Construction contracts in April were one sixth greater than in April, 1951, according to the Federal Reserve Board. Its figures show that while department store sales from January 1 to May 24 were 5 per cent under the same period last year, for the four weeks ending May 24 they were up 2 per cent. Total sales by retailers in April were 3 per cent above last April, according to Department of Commerce figures. Commerce calculated that manufacturers' sales in April were 2 per cent above a year ago. Even though manufacturing employment was down in April, total employment was 200,000 above a year earlier. Cash dividends paid by corporations in April were 2 per cent higher than in April 1951. Chain and mail-order sales in April were a whopping 11 per cent higher than a year earlier, although an extra selling day and late Easter influenced the figures.

The forecasts are good, too. The Department of Agriculture expects a record food production this year at "relatively stable" prices. Defense spending, which rose to $4,200,000,000 in April from an average of $3,750,000,000 during the first three months of the year, is predicted to go higher.

Admittedly, it is a strange situation in which so many lines have dipped while general totals have moved higher. But these are strange times anyhow.

6 OIL CORPORATIONS IN DOZEN LARGEST

Few people outside the realm of finance could name the dozen largest American manufacturing corporations and even many of them would stumble.

National City Bank has just compiled a list of the 100 largest, based on their reports of total assets at the end of 1951. Here are the leaders, in order of their size, and their assets in millions of dollars:

Standard Oil of New Jersey, 4,707; General Motors, 3,672; U. S. Steel, 3,141; Standard Oil of Indiana, 1,801; Socony-Vacuum, 1,792; duPont, 1,599; (and some place in here, Ford, with assets of $1,488 million on Dec. 31, 1950); Texas Co., 1,548; Bethlehem Steel, 1,542; Gulf Oil, 1,512; General Electric, 1,460; and Standard Oil of California, 1,366.

Westinghouse ranks 13th, with $1,004 million in assets and all the rest of the giants are worth less than a billion.

SELL 6-INCH RECORDS

One to seven minute recordings of famous voices of the past are building traffic at a New York music store. The records are six-inch discs and they have been transcribed by Wagner Research Corp., 150 W. 58th St., New York, from old cylinder records, movie sound tracks, uncopied radio transcriptions and other recordings. Voices include every president since McKinley, Babe Ruth, Albert Einstein, Rudolph Valentino, Churchill, Stalin and Lenin.

SUPERMARKET PRIZE:

STEER ON HOOF

With almost one new supermarket opening every day, enterprisers are hard put to calling attention to openings. But Rufus Jamerson did it in a big way—850 pounds big—at Tampa.

He displayed a prize live steer of that weight near the entrance and announced it would be given away to a lucky customer.

The animal will be butchered free for the winner, or he can keep him as a pet.

FROZEN: Frozen lemon concentrate in tubes is now being offered by Golden Citrus Juices, Inc., Fullerton, Calif. Tubes are said to contain equivalent of juice of twelve lemons when reconstituted with six parts water.

NEW PRODUCTS

DEODORANT: A chemical to destroy odors that emanate from pests trapped between walls after extermination is being marketed by Kilgore Chemicals Division, 312 N. Fairfax St., Alexandria, Va. The product is also available in aerosol deodorant bombs.

LIGHT: A lamp with a non-conductive phenolic plastic cylinder has been designed by Cable Electric Products, Inc., 234 Daboll St., Providence 7, R. I., for automatic lighting of closets. Switch may be easily mounted flush inside a door. Opening the door turns on the light and closing turns it off.

Hal Boyle's Column

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—Ester Van Wagoner Tufty, Washington news-woman, had just begun an account of her recent experiences in Korea before a banquet group of bankers' wives when a chorus of terrified squeals stopped her cold. This was followed by a round of laughter, then another outburst of squeals from another group of ladies. A mouse was in the house.

Ester, a majestic blond, who has called the affectionate nickname "The Duchess" among her colleagues in the press corps, maintained her poise. "This is more disconcerting than Korea," she laughed when things quieted down, "but since the mouse seems to have gotten safely away, it goes to show there isn't a cat in the crowd."

That broke the ice, and Esther says the talk—one of many she's given since her return—was the easiest of all to make. An intrepid reporter, one of the first of American newsmen to become an accredited war correspondent during World War II, Mrs. Tufty had gone to Korea to write a first-hand account of the military Air Transport Service's handling of the returning of wounded GIs from the battlefield to hospitals near their home towns.

While in Korea she attended the truce talks at Panmunjom, got an exclusive interview with General Van Fleet, head of the Eighth Army, and was "talked at" by Communist correspondents, an experience which miffed her no end. "The Communists seemed to concentrate their irritation of the day on me," she told me. "They took pictures of me right under my nose and from every other possible angle. I wanted to swat them, but held myself in check. But, come the revolution, I'm going to be high on the list to show them what I really feel."

Mrs. Tufty, whose youngest son, Jimmie, 21, a senior at Michigan State College, may one day have to go to Korea himself, says she feels much less unhappy about it now she's had a close-up of the way our young men are treated there.

"Our officers have a better conception about conserving manpower than any others in the world," she said. "Our boys have a better chance of coming home alive than any soldiers in any army in any war."

Mrs. Tufty wears a uniform with a blue and white "UN War Correspondent" patch on her hat. When she went to the UN truce talks she wore another patch, in black, with "UNC (UN Correspondent). Traveling to the way front, where the climate gets considerably colder, she wore battle boots "big as gunboats, hardly designed for graceful maneuvering," and "longies".

One of the things Henny does to brighten a dull world is to send a weekly gag to a circle of buddies across America.

"Anything to get a laugh, and let people know you're alive," he said.

One week he mailed out dollar bills with a sign saying, "Hold on to this green piece of paper. It may be worth a gollar someday."

From Miami Beach he dispatched perfume bottles full of sand bearing the label: "This cost me $30 a day to sit on. Thought you might like some." From the Thunderbolt Hotel in Las Vegas he mailed pairs of four-inch-square dice "for near-sighted craphshooters."

To be a professional comic today, Henny says, you have to have nerve and gall, a great memory, and the ability to take stock jokes and give them a twist that makes them sound alive. You have to be equipped to joke on any subject.

Mixed Reaction To Ceiling-Lift

RALEIGH (UP)—North Carolina farmers could hardly conceal the gleam at the OPS removal of Irish potato price ceilings, but housewives had their fingers crossed today.

Farmers and wholesalers promised one thing: Potatoes are coming back to the corner grocery and you won't need to patronize a black marketer to make a potato salad.

Wholesalers here freely predicted that the price of spuds will sky rocket during the next few days. But B.O. Johnson and W.A. McKnight, both wholesalers, said they think the incoming crops will help bring the price back somewhere near normal.

Elmer Mathews, manager of a wholesale produce company here, said the price will taper off after a short time.

"It will take a few days for people to get over the feeling they're getting something special," Mathews said.

Matthews estimated that potatoes have been selling on the black market for about 10 to 12 1-2 cents a pound. He predicted the price may go above that figure for a time, but will then decline.

At Elizabeth City, farmers and produce sellers could scarcely believe the good news.

VFW Convention Starting Today In Charlotte

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Members of the North Carolina Department of Veterans of Foreign Wars opened their annual encampment here today.

Approximately 2,500 delegates, including members of the auxiliary, had registered before the first business session this morning.

Today's principal speaker was Dr. Harold D. Meyer of Chapel Hill, consultant to the North Carolina Recreation Commission.

Included in the three-day convention program are a golf tournament, a beauty contest and the annual banquet tomorrow night.

A memorial service will be held Sunday morning and the encampment will end following election of a final business session Sunday afternoon.

TV Theaters In U. S. Number 60

NEW YORK (AP)—At latest count, approximately 60 theaters in this country have been equipped for large screen television. For the most part, the projectors are used for sports events like championship boxing matches, with an admission being charged.

The next step would be its conversion for color television, which is not quite as ticklish a problem with the big screens because of the talent with engineering know-how available to install and operate.

N. C. Escapee Is Caught In Texas

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—A convicted murderer who escaped from a North Carolina prison in 1951 is being held here following his capture by FBI agents.

Albert Roy Turner, 45, was arrested by the FBI agents in an El Paso tourist court yesterday. He was ordered held under $5,000 bond and a hearing will be held when a warrant arrives from Asheville, N. C.

A local resident recognized Turner, 30 pounds lighter since his escape and with his hair dyed, from a description sent out by the FBI. Turner, a native of Spruce Pine, N. C., had a criminal record dating back to 1927. It was in May, 1949, while driving a truck that Turner was stopped by Deputy Sheriff Max Daniels or Avery County, N. C. Turner was charged with grabbing the deputy and holding him on the running board of the truck, then pushing him off after the vehicle gained high speed. Daniels died a few days later from a broken neck.

Turner later was captured in Georgia, returned to North Carolina and convicted of murder. He escaped Aug. 8, 1951, from a Whittier prison camp where he was serving an 18-year sentence.

He had been driving for a tourist agency since his escape, he said, making several coast to coast trips before settling in El Paso last October.

Normal Weather In Tobacco Belt

Weather conditions over the section which is served by the Greenville Tobacco Market are reported to be normal.

In a crop report released today by W. L. Whedbee, supervisor of sales of the Tobacco Board of Trade, the weather conditions are reported as fair. However, due to cool nights and somewhat dry weather, some of the April tobacco is beginning to button out low.

Plants which were transplanted at least one week earlier than last year's crop advanced somewhat rapidly at first.

Stands are reported very good and the last few nights have been much warmer which will be beneficial to the growing crop. "With favorable seasons from now on out these plants should produce a good yield," stated the supervisor. He said further that what is needed now is warm nights and more rainfall.

Housing will begin in the section in about two weeks and will become general over the territory in about three weeks from this date.

Whedbee said the crop at present is satisfactory and with favorable weather conditions will provide this section with a quality crop for the 1952 season.

Of the 92 elements, only about 30 occur in nature in a free state.

SINGAPORE (AP)—A British radio manufacturing company may get the contract for erecting Thailand's first television transmitting station — the only one in Asia.

An American radio firm was also said to be interested in the television contract. The British representative said Thailand had set aside $200,000 for the project. Work is expected to begin next year.

Glamor Gals Are Invading Italy

ROME (AP)—Glamor girls from many nations are invading the Italian motion picture industry. Foreign film players find little difficulty in getting screen work, since there are few labor restrictions in the Italian film industry. Knowledge of the Italian language is not important in making films here since the final sound track is dubbed in by Italian-speaking actors.

Because the United States recently amended its income tax laws, which no longer requires citizens living abroad for 18 months or more to file income tax statements, American film players have more take-home pay by working for less money in Italy.

'Influence' Selling Is Rife In Russia

By DONALD J. GONZALES
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP) — IVAN Ivanovitch has a Russian slang word for what we call influence-peddling and wire-pulling. The word is "blat". Moscow admits that Ivan has frequent cause for fretting about "blat" in high Communist circles. Some Soviet citizens don't fret about it, however. Instead, taking a cue from their superiors, they practice it. The Soviet hierarchy doesn't advertise its citizens' sins in the news it produces for foreign consumption. The Communist theme for foreign ears and eyes is that everybody in the Soviet Union works loyally for the better life promised by Marx, Lenin, and Stalin. But the Soviet press, as disclosed by samples received and studied here, is sprinkled with proofs that the non-Communist world has no monopoly on "blat." The Soviet labor newspaper, Trud, recently reported that it used to pay to know the right people at mine No. 9 of the Skuratov Coal Trust. Miner N. Krasikov wrote that Comrade Kachanov, the mine director's chauffeur, got a bonus while "it is difficult to find underground workers" on the bonus list. And when the director's fund was "overspent by 23,000 rubles... he liquidated the debt at the expense of the bonus fund." Krasikov's complaints were aired at the same time the USSR information bulletin distributed by the Soviet embassy in this country was saying that "more than 2,000,000,000 rubles were paid to miners in bonuses during the past three years alone." The information bulletin also reported that the Soviet Union pays careful attention to the welfare of its teachers "and builds houses for them at state expense." The newspaper Zvezda has a different story for its readers about housing built for teachers at the village of Poki, near Molotov City. It said the manager, Comrade Sitko, did not issue "a single permit to teachers" but "himself occupied one of the apartments." The Soviets continually stress the advantages they provide workers in the form of health and rest homes. But in Lithuania, the Soviet control chief complained that the chairman of the trade union workers distributes health and rest permits "as he sees fit... to friends of his." G. Ibrahimov, a citizen of Tadzhikistan, complained to the editor of his local newspaper about the "dead" automatic telephone installed "for the convenience of workers at Stalinabad." "Workers are sent out every month to these dead boxes hanging on walls, not to repair them," he said, "but to take out the money dropped into them by trusting citizens." Pravda figured there was more "blat" than romance in the marriage of a 45-year-old man to an elderly actress. The man wooed her to solve his personal housing shortage, Pravda said, because she was entitled to live in a house

Persons and Property

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buscher

Scripture—Exodus 20:15; Luke 16:1-12; 19:11-16, 45-46.

Jesus told a parable about a rich man who found his steward had been cheating him. Calling the man to him, he asked that he give an account of his stewardship, and dismissed him from his service.

The dishonest steward wondered how he could live without his job, so he called together those who owed his master money and told them to halve their debts so he could collect the other half, and live in his customary manner.

A rich publican, told by Jesus that he would abide with him, threw himself at the Master's feet, saying that he would give half his goods to the poor and return all moneys that he might have taken unjustly.

Jesus, seeing that the temple was being used for money transactions, cast out both buyers and sellers, telling them they were making the house of prayer into a "den of thieves."

MEMORY VERSE—Exodus 20:15.

Persons and Property

JESUS TAUGHT THAT ONE WHO IS FAITHFUL IN SMALL MATTERS WILL ALSO BE FAITHFUL IN GREAT ONES

Scripture—Exodus 20:15; Luke 16:1-12; 19:11-16, 45-46.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL.

CONSIDERING the great increase in crime in our modern world and in our own beloved country, it seems that the Ten Commandments, as given to the people of Israel by Moses in olden times, have particular significance today.

The fundamental law of Moses was "Thou shalt not steal." That is a definite statement which applies alike to petty thieving, to men and women in public office who pilfer from the taxpayers by falsifying their accounts to enrich themselves, and to those who openly rob banks, pass worthless checks, burglarize homes, or snatch purses from unprotected women or men.

The ingenuity displayed by dishonest persons who scheme to live by robbing others could, if put to good uses, instead of evil, enrich the world.

The parable that Jesus told of the dishonest steward while He was in Perea, is a little puzzling in its ending, but Jesus clarifies it trust the true riches?

"And if ye have not been faithful in that which is another man's, who shall give you that which is your own?"

The next verse is not included in our lesson, but it seems so applicable to its moral: "No servant can serve two masters... ye cannot serve God and mammon."

Another rich man was the publican, Zacchaeus, who lived in Jericho. As Jesus was passing through, you will remember, Zacchaeus, being a man of small stature, climbed a tree the better to see Him. Jesus called him to come down, and told him He was planning to stay at his home that night.

Zacchaeus, thrilled at this news, climbed down swiftly and told the Master, "Behold, Lord, half of my goods I give to the poor; and if I have taken any thing from any man by false accusation, I restore him fourfold."

Looking at this man who had acquired riches in the service of Rome by collecting taxes from

by His after remarks.

A rich man found that his trusted steward had been cheating him. Calling the man to him, he asked for an accounting, and dismissed the man from his service.

Apparently not at all sorry for his dishonesty, the man pondered about his jobless situation, and conceived a smart trick to further cheat his master and to give himself a means of living easily. He was too used to good living to dig, he reasoned, and too proud to beg. These were his excuses.

"So he called every one of his lord's debtors unto him, and said unto the first, How much owest thou unto my lord?"

"And he said, An hundred measures of oil. And he said unto him, Take thy bill, and sit down quickly, and write fifty."

To another he made much the same proposition and both agreed. The lord knew about this tricky dealing and actually commended his one-time steward for his sharp practice. He thought he had acted wisely.

From then on Jesus draws a lesson from this parable: "He that is faithful in that which is least is faithful also in much; and he that is unjust in the least is unjust in much."

"If therefore ye have not been faithful in the unrighteous mammon, who will commit to your his countrymen—possibly wrongfully on some occasions, Jesus told him, "This day is salvation come to this house, forasmuch as he also is a son of Abraham."

"For the son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost."

Training in honesty in the home sets the pattern for a boy or girl's after life as a good or bad citizen. If parents excuse, or are even pleased, when a child comes back from the store with more change than he should have because of some mistake on the part of the clerk who waited on him; if it is thought "cute" to manage to get by the driver without paying the fare when riding on public transportation, it sets a pattern that may eventually land the child in prison for larger crimes.

Jesus' righteous anger at the people who were buying, selling, doubling cheating at times, in the court of the temple is part of our lesson. Driving them from the place, Jesus said sternly, "It is written, My house is the house of prayer; but ye have made it a den of thieves."

Honesty is not only "the best policy," but, practiced in our daily lives in even the smallest of our transactions, it is one way in which we can help to make our beautiful world a better place in which to live.

Factolus School
Group Appears
At Board Meet

A delegation from Factolus appeared before the State Board of Education yesterday, along with other small school representatives, to ask that the school not be consolidated.

In May the State Board consolidated Factolus High School, as they did other small schools in the state, because of the low attendance which the board declared did not merit operation for another year.

The Factolus school has been on probation for the last three years and the attendance has not risen enough in those years to continue operation.

11:00 a. m.—Worship every second and fourth Sundays.
7:30 p. m.—Worship every second and fourth Sundays.

The group which appeared yesterday was the smallest delegation present. They asked the board to let the school operate another year. The high school there has been condemned and the citizens declared they would provide new classrooms and then bring the school up to the minimum.

Factolus school graduated 10 students this spring and had 88 enrolled. Enrollment for next year is reported to be around 75.

The effect of the delegations on the state board was reported to have been little but the members seemed to be disturbed over the contradictory figures concerning enrollment. The figures cited by the delegations contradicted official figures which the board acted on in May.

The board promised the delegations to delay action and aim up the situation again. In the meantime school officials will go once again into the communities to collect new facts and figures.

If the board makes its May action on consolidation of the Factolus School final, most of the students will be sent to Stokes School next year, with the exception of those living in the Clarks Neck area who will go to Grimesland.

The Sport Reflector

By MELVIN LANG

Greenville's entry in the Coastal Golf Association, although not quite as strong as in recent seasons, are in the thick of things more for the team championship.

There is a strong possibility that Greenville, Kingston and New Bern will finish the regular season in a three-way stalemate. Both Greenville and Kingston have lost three matches during the long campaign, while New Bern has suffered only one defeat, coming at the hands of the local golfers. However, Kingston and New Bern played each other Wednesday and have another match on tap next week, and if Kingston should win both of them, the playoffs would begin New Bern also has a tie on its record with Tarboro.

The match with Farmville out at the local Country Club course allowed Herbert Waldrop of Greenville an excellent opportunity to show his golfing ability. Playing in a foursome in the tournament with Dr. Billy Brown of Greenville, and H. C. Outland and A. W. Smith of Farmville, Waldrop shot his second hole-in-one in 25 years of golf.

Waldrop's hole-in-one came on the 130-yard No. 3 hole. His first one-shooter came about 15 years ago, on the old course which stood just behind the spot where the present Country Club course is now.

Championship matches for the CGA start on June 21st in Clinton. The matches will run over two days, Saturday and Sunday, on the Clinton course.

Finals of the Club Championship Tournament in Greenville will be played Saturday and Sunday. Everett Webb and Reynolds may well battle it out for the title in the championship flight. Other flights are nearly completed, and the results will be announced Monday.

Work on the Elm Street Park project is rapidly progressing, and will soon be completed, at least for partial usage. The outdoor fireplaces are completed except for possible trimmings, and some of them have already been used by the public. Parking areas, to be used jointly by fans at Little League and Small-Fry baseball games and occupants of the park, have been staked out and will soon be completed.

Going along hand in hand with the park construction, dugouts and the playing field are nearing completion for the Small-Fry League field. The field is located directly behind the Little League park.

Greenville has a golden opportunity to win the State Pony League Championship in its first year of operating a league. Besides Greenville, Raleigh is the only city in North Carolina which has a Pony League in operation this year.

All-Star teams from Raleigh and Greenville will meet in a playoff series after the close of the regular season for the state title. The site of the tournament, which will probably be held during the last week of July or the first of August, has not been decided yet. If the people of Greenville would like to have the tournament held here, start working toward that project right now.

The winner of the state tournament will go to Charleston, S. C. for the regional playoffs. Washington, Penn., and the nation series, is the next stop for the winner in Charleston.

Harvie Ward is being paged all over the United States after his crushing victory in the finals of the British Amateur. One of the latest bids came from Wilson's Jaycees for their Amateur Golf Tournament on June 13.

Ward won the tourney year before last, but was eliminated by Bill Stalls in the semi-finals of last season's affair. Stalls, former linksman for East Carolina College who has now turned pro, went on to the finals only to lose to Ed Gravelly of Rocky Mount.

The Jaycees are hoping that Ward will want to get a chance for revenge, as Gravelly will also be in this year's tourney. Stalls year because of his professional status.

Other golfers expected to enter the event are Ben Gooden of Reidsville, and Billy Joe Patton of Morganton. Arthur Ruffin and Hubert Walston will be among the hometown contenders.

Arnold Hurls 1-Hit Win In Pony League

John Ed Arnold hurled one-hit ball and fanned 11 men last night to pitch his Wreckers teammates to an 11-1 win over the Sedans in the Pony League.

Arnold issued 12 bases on balls, however, to keep himself in constant trouble throughout the contest. He walked four and uncorked a wild pitch to force in one run in the third, and walked three men and gave up a single to Sam Nixon for the second Sedan run in the fourth frame.

Four runs in the second inning actually gave the Wreckers their winning way. After Ed Wilkerson had walked to lead off the inning, Arnold singled. Roger Bullock reached first via an error on the second baseman, and Selby Strickland singled. Bob Jenkins and Pat Sawyer were retired, but Ray Hardy singled. Jerry Drum fanned to end the big frame.

Blue Man Leading Belmont Entries

NEW YORK (UP)—Blue Man, the stretch-running colt who won the Preknex after running third in the Kentucky Derby, was expected to head a field of eight three-year-olds today when the entries close for Saturday's $100,000 added Belmont Stakes.

Also expected to pass through the entry box — each for a $1,000 fee — were the names of Armageddon, Sub Fleet, King Jolie, Master Fiddle, Golden Gloves, One Count and Olympic.

If eight go as expected, that will make it the richest running of the Belmont in the 86-year history. The mile and a half classic will be worth a total of $120,500, the winner netting $84,400. Counterpoint earned $82,000 in his stirring victory over Battledfield a year ago.

Jersey Joe Retains Heavyweight Crown

Charles Loses In Tame Title Fight

Officials And Sportswriters Disagree On Who Won Rounds; Charles Thought He Won Bout On Points

By JACK CUDDY

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—Jersey Joe Walcott — the ring's praying, punching 38-year - old "Miracle Man" — will be able to risk his heavyweight crown again in September because his showmanship and his fighting heart enabled him to win an upset unanimous decision over younger Essard Charles.

Snorting blood through his nose like an irate bull in the late sessions, Walcott not only captivated most of the 21,599 fans last night in huge Municipal Stadium, but he also captured the votes of the three ring officials in his first defense of the crown.

Had 30-year - old Charles been more aggressive and more showily savage, he might have become the first ex-champ in ring history to recapture the heavyweight crown. But he let the father of six children "take the play away from him."

A majority of 38 boxing writers polled at the ringside thought Charles had won the fourth meeting of the two Negroes. Twenty-one favored Essard; 17 picked Walcott. But the temper of the ring officials was indicated by judge Buck McTiernan of Pittsburgh, who said, "You can't take a man's title away on such a close fight as that."

McTiernan favored Walcott eight rounds to seven. Judge Pete Tomasco of Philadelphia also scored it very close for the champion, 7-6-2. And Zack Clayton of Philadelphia, the first Negro ever to referee a heavyweight title fight, had Walcott ahead, 9-6.

Clayton warned Charles six times during the bout for low blows but he took away no rounds.

The United Press favored Charles 9-8-1.

Charles, the 11-5 favorite, was deeply disappointed; but he did not criticize the officials. He said, "I thought I had won, but they didn't vote for me. So I have no alibi." It was a good fight, and it produced the second largest gross receipts in Philadelphia's ring history — a gate of $210,313 and a television - radio fee of $175,000. Each fighter, getting 30 per cent of the net proceeds, should receive about $100,000.

The early rounds were fought at such a terrific pace that it seemed some one would be knocked out before the half-way mark. Stocky, bull-shouldered Walcott was clearly superior in the first half of the fight, and he made a game stand in the later stages.

His performance had been so appealing that he was given a grand ovation when the decision was announced.

Walcott, 196 - 1-3 pounds, who knocked out Essard in Pittsburgh last July, let his lighter rival force the fighting in most of the rounds last night.

But Charles was so sluggish at 191½, the heaviest of his career, that his forcing was slightly less than thrilling in some sessions. And Walcott's smashing right-hand and left-hook counters took the play.

In fact, Jersey Joe staggered Essard in the second, third, fifth, sixth and ninth sessions. There were no knockdowns but it seemed in the third that Essard might go down.

Charles staggered Jersey Joe in the 12th and had him bouncing off the ropes several times in the 13th.

It was Essard, however, who suffered the wounds. He was gashed in both brows and had a cut under his right eye. Moreover, he had moises above each cheek. Jersey Joe was practically unmarked.

Manager Felix Rocchicchio said Walcott was willing to defend his title in September against the winner of the proposed match between Harry (Kid) Matthews and Rocky Marciano. After the September bout, Jersey Joe will go on a world tour.

Kiwanis Win By 8-2 Score Over Elks Yesterday

Five runs in the third inning gave the Kiwanis an easy 8-2 win over the Elks yesterday in the Little League.

In the third, Kelly Baughill led off with a single, followed by consecutive walks to Bryce Cummings and Burke Stancil. Lanny Berry was safe on an unsuccessful fielder's choice, as was Don Wilkerson. Jimmy Rogers singled to keep the scoring moving. After Lynn Jorgensen had been retired, Billy Cox was walked and Bob Edwards singled. Barnhill walked in his second attempt at the plate, and the side was retired a few seconds later, but not before the damage had already been done.

Ben Wade Hurls Fifth Victory By Beating Pittsburg, 2-0; Giants Lose To Chicago

By CARL LUNDQUIST

United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—Dodger Manager Charley Dressen is no mathematical genius, but no one was willing to argue today the soundness of his pre-season formula that he'll get a lot farther in the pennant scramble with five 15-game winners, than with two or three who can win 20.

That was the path of progress for Brooklyn today. Right now it looks as if there wouldn't be a 20-game winner on their staff, whereas last year Preacher Roe at 22-3 and Don Newcombe at 20-9 made the grade, although the Dodgers won no flag.

Yesterday, Rookie Ben Wade won his fifth game and his first big league shutout, 2 to 0, over the Pittsburgh Pirates as the Brooks collected 14 walks and made the most of six hits.

Wade gave up five hits and struck out six. Carl Furillo singled home the winning run off Rookie Ron Kline in the seventh.

The New York Giants fell three games behind the leading Brooks while the Chicago Cubs moved to within 1-1/2 games of the slumping New Yorkers by defeating them, 3 to 1.

Paul Minner pitched a seven-hitter for the first victory of his career after seven straight losses to the Giants.

In other National League games the Cincinnati Reds again topped the Philadelphia Phillies, 5 to 3, while at St. Louis, the Boston Braves trimmed the Cardinals, 8 to 3.

In the American League, Cleveland again regained first place from Boston by shutting out the Red Sox, 5 to 0, on Early Wynn's four-hitter.

The New York Yankees made it in a row over the Chicago Sox, 6 to 4, while at Philadelphia, the Detroit Tigers walloped the Athletics, 12-2.

The St. Louis Browns and Washington Senators had an open date.

Harry Perkowski won his fifth game against two defeats, while the Reds presented a well-rounded 11-hit attack in which every starter got at least one hit and Bob Berkowski and Bobby Adams got two.

In the National League's only night game, the Braves staked Warren Spahn to a seven-run lead in the first inning, driving Cardinal rookie Ed Yuhas to cover. Sid Gordon hit a homer for Boston in the first. Spahn gave up only six hits for his fifth straight victory.

Johnny Sain pitched seven-hit ball in which he gave up only one earned run, a homer by Al Carrasquel, and also drove in the tying and winning runs with a long single for the Yankees fifth. It was his fifth victory against two losses. Wynn became the fourth pitcher to shut out Boston this year as he followed the precedent of teammate Mike Garcia, who blanked the Red Sox Tuesday in their home park for the first time in two years. Al Rosen made three hits for the Indians.

Marlin Stuart pitched five - hit ball as the Tigers broke loose with two five-run outbursts to trim the As in the American League's only night game. Gerry Friddy and Walt Dropo hit homers for Detroit.

Charles Dudley Leads Carolinas

ASHEVILLE (AP)—The annual Carolina Golf Association Tournament moved into the semi-final round here today minus the defending champion and with a couple of darkhorses making strong bids for the title.

Up among the heavy favorites was Charles Dudley of Greenville, one of South Carolina's top amateurs. It was Dudley who put the skids under defending champion P. J. Boatwright of Aiken in yesterday's 36-hole quarterfinals, one-up.

Today, Dudley went up against Jack Crist Jr., of Charlotte, who yesterday turned in probably the finest round of the tournament so far.

The young Charlotte player shot a two-under par 33 on the outgoing nine in the afternoon round and wound up with a stunning 5 and 4 victory over Erwin Laxton, also of Charlotte.

In the other semi-finals match, Tommy Langley of High Point met R. R. Shelly of Hendersonville.

Langley defeated Cy Girard of Gastonia, 3 and 1, in the afternoon round of the quarterfinals, and Shelly dropped Richard Tufts of Pinehurst, 3 and 2.

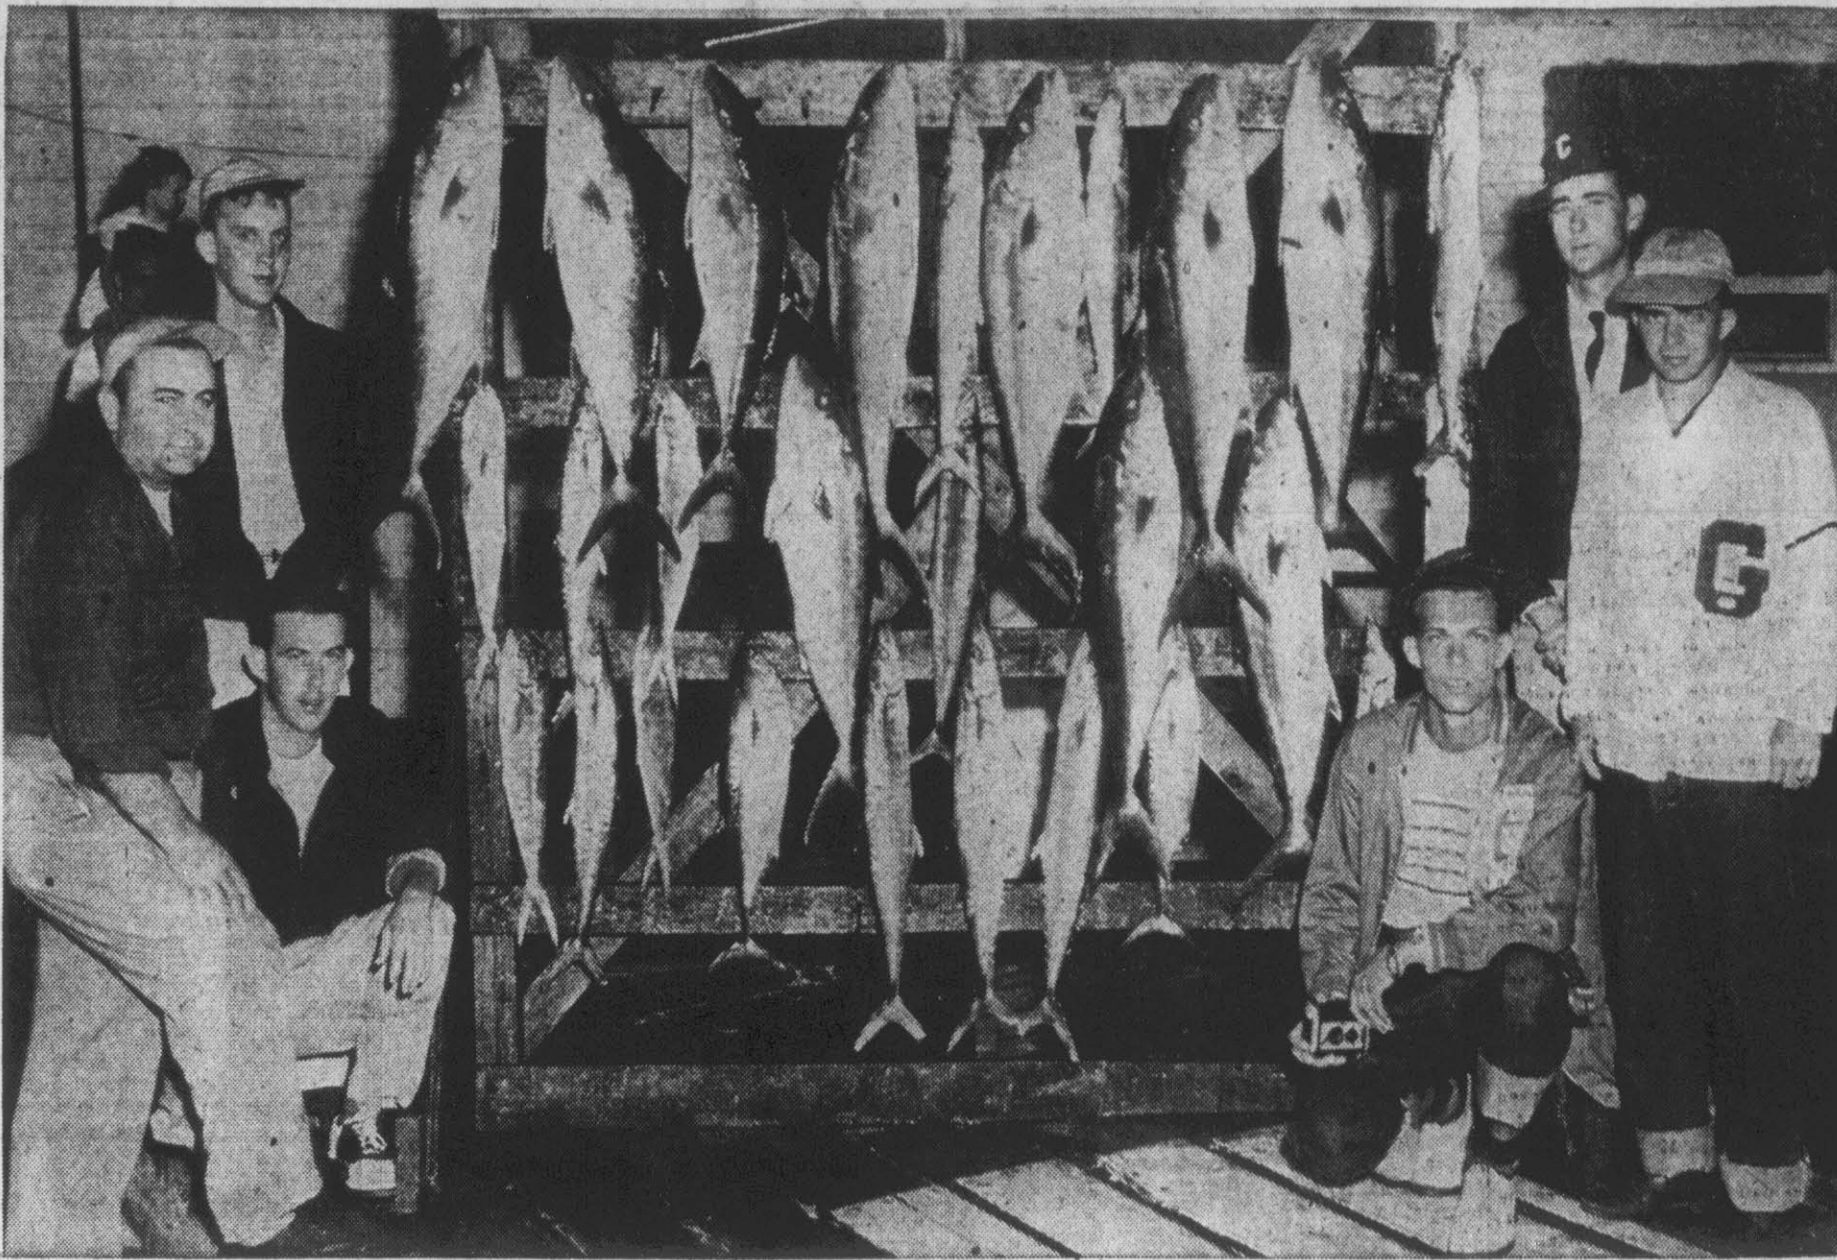

The finals will be held over 36 holes tomorrow.

French Amateur Opens Play Today

PARIS (AP)—The French Amateur Golf Championship got under way today at the Morfontaine Course north of Paris with a field of 85 including 19 Americans, from nine nations shooting for the top prize.

Bobby Knowles, a member of last year's American Walker Cup team, is the defending champion and was scheduled to get into action in the second round against L. Evans of Great Britain. He drew a first round bye.

Wagner-Waldrop Pounds As Royal Crown Loses

Wagner-Waldrop pounded out 17 hits and a 19-5 victory over Royal Crown yesterday in the Men's Softball League.

The winners jumped on pitcher Edwards for three home runs and seven doubles in taking the easy victory. Rausch and Minges both slammed out a four-bagger and double to lead Wagner-Waldrop at the plate. Perry also homered for the winners, while Scott, Odum, and Whitford slammed out a double apiece. Toothman doubled twice.

Conway homered for the losers in the free-hitting game. Porter also doubled for Royal Crown.

Two runs in the second inning proved to be the clincher for Wagner-Waldrop. Scott walked to open the frame, and Odum was safe on an error. Morgan singled, and Rausch popped out. After Minges was safe on a fielder's choice, Perry gained life on another error. Feed grounded out to end the inning.

Toothman went the distance on the mound for the winners and allowed nine hits. Edwards also went the route for the losers.

Auto Racing In Wilson Sunday

WILSON—The modified or "hot rods" will be racing again this Sunday on the Wilson, N.C. racetrack. Fully sanctioned by NASCAR and sponsored by the Wilson Post of the American Legion, the auto races will take place on the half-mile dirt track.

Chief interest this Sunday will be in the Chevrolet to be driven by Jimmy Thompson of Concord. This car uses five carburetors and has been clocked at Daytona Beach at 109.73 miles per hour. Also competing for the prize money will be Wilbur "Speedy" Thompson driving his Blue Goose Special; L. L. "Smoky" Smith of Goldsboro; Mel Oldham of Norfolk who won last Sunday's races at the Harnett Speedway in Fayetteville; Don Hope of Tampa, Florida; Bob "Fireball" Roberts of Daytona Beach; Banks Simpson of Concord and many others.

The Wilson track has been greatly improved with the construction of strong retaining fences. Time trials in Wilson start at one p.m. and the heat races are scheduled to get under way at 2:30 p.m. Eastern Standard time.

Work is going forward on making the huge covered grandstand even more comfortable with the addition of large electric fans. Promoted by "Cigar" Haddock of Greenville, N.C., the races are expected to draw an even larger than usual crowd this Sunday. These races are held every other Sunday afternoon in Wilson and, in the event of a rain-out, rain checks are issued which are good for the next racing Sunday's events.

High School Regulations Made By State Educators

RALEIGH (AP)—After months of debate, the State Board of Education yesterday adopted a code to regulate athletics in the schools.

At the same time the board delayed a decision on another thorny problem, the consolidation of a number of small high schools.

The athletic code is scheduled to become effective at the beginning of the fall school term. Dr. Clyde A. Erwin, state schools superintendent, will have the job of administering and enforcing the code.

In supervising athletic programs, the Board of Education will not be responsible for financing coaching salaries, accident insurance and medical examination, and sports equipment.

Action on requests for the continuation of a number of high schools scheduled for consolidation was delayed to give school officials a chance to check information presented yesterday by delegations which appeared to plead for the schools.

Figures on attendance and future prospects differed in many respects from those gathered by a panel of school experts, the board said. At its May meeting, the board adopted the report of its small schools committee recommending the consolidations.

The athletic code sets up eligibility requirements, limits the number of games in each sport, and post-season games except county, conference or state play-offs are banned.

Among the major provisions:
1. To compete, a student must pass at least three courses each term; he may play for only the eight consecutive semesters of 90-day terms after entering high school; he may not participate if he will be 20 years old by April 1 of the school year.

2. The following games limits are set: During any week—one football

Giants Play Here Saturday Night

Greenville's Giants and Washington's Globetrotters square off at Guy Smith Stadium next Saturday night in what has been termed a "revenge match."

In an earlier meeting of the two Negro clubs, Washington took a slim victory. Manager Whitty Price stated earlier this week that his Giants are going to really try to win this one.

In order to strengthen their cause, Greenville has added several new players. Leading the newcomers is Twille Bellamy, former two-time all-CIAA football and baseball player with Shaw University. Bellamy, a second baseman, is expected to lend a lot of power at the plate for Greenville.

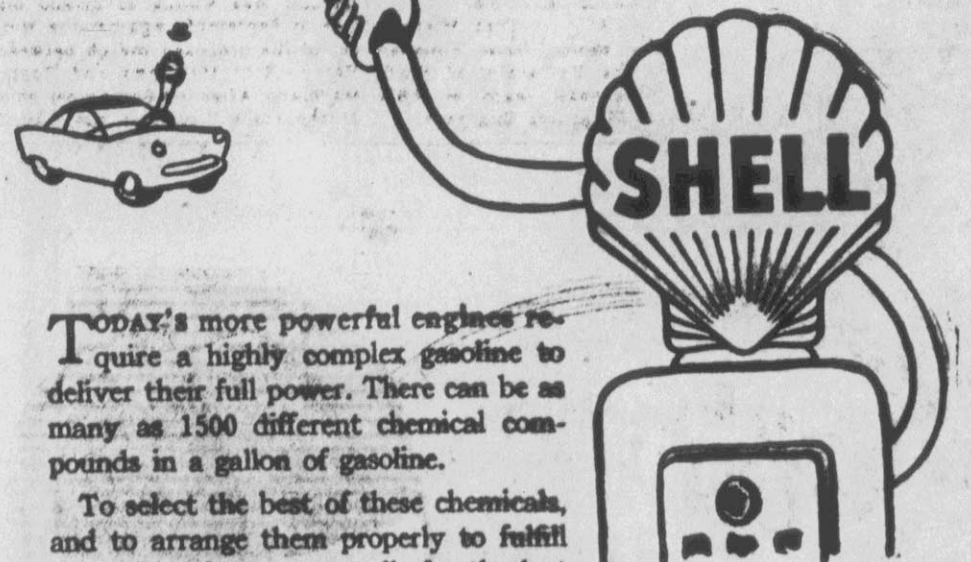

Greenbacks Pass Out In Ardmore

Ardmore, Okla. (UP)—A greenback-happy field took out in pursuit of pacesetter Roberto A. Vienzo in the second round of the Ardmore Open golf tournament today with a 10-dollar bill beckoning at each of Dornick Hills Country Club's rolling greens.

The bronzed Argentine champion, whose chief claim to fame in this country comes from the 1951 Palm Beach round Robin and Inverness Four-ball titles, was two strokes to the good with a five-under-par 31—65 shot yesterday.

With sponsor Waco Turner and his wife waving oil-begotten banknotes in their faces, the pros were really in their glory, picking up $10 for each birdie, $5 for each stroke that bettered par and the day's leader tacking on another $100.

The Most Powerful Gasoline Your Car Can Use!

TODAY's more powerful engines require a highly complex gasoline to deliver their full power. There can be as many as 1500 different chemical compounds in a gallon of gasoline.

To select the best of these chemicals, and to arrange them properly to fulfill the needs of your car calls for the last word in refinery equipment and scientific skill.

It is Shell's manufacturing policy to make "The most powerful gasoline your car can use." Shell activates gasoline by splitting and rearranging petroleum molecules.

The result—Shell Premium—the most powerful gasoline your car can use. See the Shell Dealer in your neighborhood.

Chapter 27
Lovely in her white bathing suit, Alice stepped forward and kissed Jane on the cheek for the benefit of the audience gathered along the shore. "You idiot, she was an alternate on an Olympic swimming team."

Again Jane winked. Then, a thousand and one disjointed thoughts swirling through her mind, she swung back into her easy, powerful stroke and concentrated on the race.

"She'll lose," thought Andy Bullit with a certain satisfaction. He had seen Alice Cranby race before. She was remarkable in that she could swim very rapidly for quite a long time, and her victories had usually been achieved as she was achieving this one: by building up so big a lead that she could hold on to some of it even when, at the end of the race, she tired badly. She'll lose. And then? He glanced across at Bruce Hall's face. "Perhaps all hadn't been lost. Perhaps—"

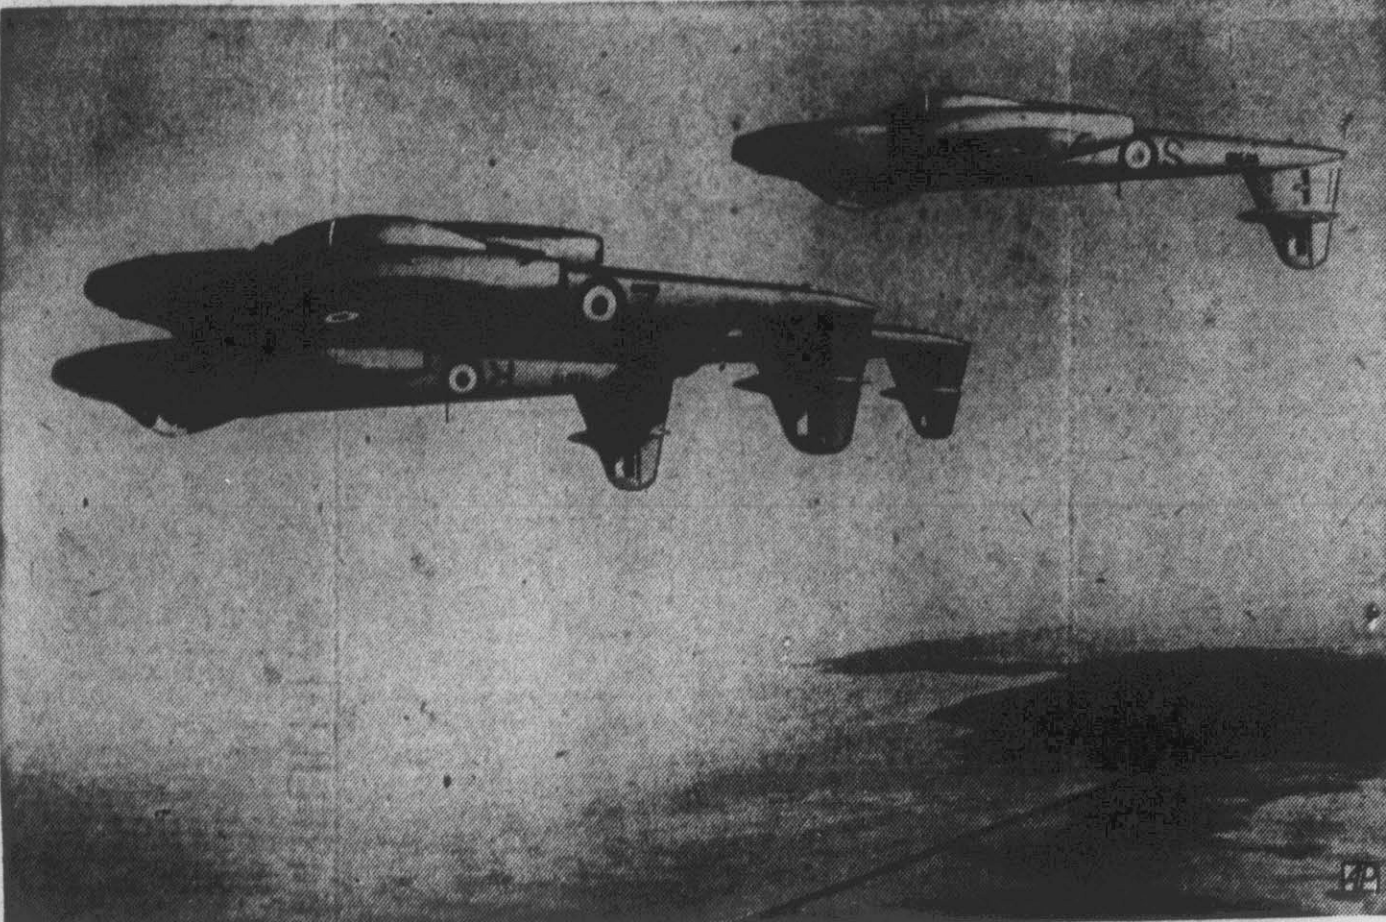

At the halfway mark, however, Alice, looking back over her shoulder, was surprised to discover that she hadn't lost her rival. Startled, she swung around and quickened the beat of her strokes, but when she wheeled around the pole she was dismayed to discover that Jane Bancroft was still moving along easily, only a few yards in her rival was moving steadily forward, building up a lead which would be difficult to overcome when legs and arms began to tire. "You idiot, she was an alternate on an Olympic swimming team."

Again Jane winked. Then, a thousand and one disjointed thoughts swirling through her mind, she swung back into her easy, powerful stroke and concentrated on the race.

"She'll lose," thought Andy Bullit with a certain satisfaction. He had seen Alice Cranby race before. She was remarkable in that she could swim very rapidly for quite a long time, and her victories had usually been achieved as she was achieving this one: by building up so big a lead that she could hold on to some of it even when, at the end of the race, she tired badly. She'll lose. And then? He glanced across at Bruce Hall's face. "Perhaps all hadn't been lost. Perhaps—"

At the halfway mark, however, Alice, looking back over her shoulder, was surprised to discover that she hadn't lost her rival. Startled, she swung around and quickened the beat of her strokes, but when she wheeled around the pole she was dismayed to discover that Jane Bancroft was still moving along easily, only a few yards in the rear.

And fear gripped Alice Cranby's heart, a horrible fear that made her cry out: "I'll give you five hundred to drop out."

There was no answer.

And now Alice, afraid that she would make a fool of herself before Bruce of all persons, did a very unwise thing. Instead of venturing herself with the lead she had enjoyed and was enjoying and conserving her strength for the final bitter run toward the goal, she increased her speed.

Alice, her arms wearying, looked back over her shoulder and almost cried with fury and fear. "A thousand dollars!" she called. "Jane, please."

Still there was no answer.

There was no longer confusion in Jane's mind or in Jane's heart. She had played the idiot long enough. She had hurt too many people to hurt Bruce. If the dream could be destroyed, then let it be destroyed. But his wife would have won her victory, not bought it. She passed the girl still several hundred feet to go.

"You devil!"

Alice, weeping, cursing, swung her arms furiously. And for a moment she was even with Jane again—but only for a moment. "Ken!" roared Mr. Forsythe, running down to the shore. "The launch! Quickly, the launch!"

No one paid much attention to Jane Bancroft swimming home the winner with a lead of at least two hundred feet to spare.

"She's drowning! She's drowning!"

"She'll be all right."

Evelyn Moore stepped with a smile into the tent and sat down on Jane's cot. Unprepared for such a long race, Jane, too, was more or less spent, but she could at least raise her head and smile. "She was a fool, you know. She might have defeated me if she had simply been content with the lead she'd already built up."

"Mr. Forsythe is furious with her. He told her he expects her to leave the camp as soon as she's able to walk."

"But why?"

"You know why," Evelyn said severely. "When she came out of it she was still trying to give you a thousand dollars to let her win the race."

"The fool, the stupid fool."

"Bruce was sick. I never saw such a sick face."

Jane, groaning, sat up. "I must talk to him. He mustn't make a mistake. She's lovely and good and kind and rich. She'll make him a wonderful wife."

Evelyn smiled. "The end of the summer and the end of the hee-bee-jeebies. Jane, I'm so proud of you!"

"There's too much unhappiness in this world. I won't be the cause of any more unhappiness."

"Stop talking like an idiot."

"I'm a nurse. I'm not supposed to go around hurting people forever. I'm going home. I'm going back to Aunt Hattie and Pittsfield and all the wonderful happiness I had before the war. You hear? He must marry her. She'll be able to help him. Don't you see?"

"I certainly do not."

Jane lay down again. It didn't matter. She herself saw, at last, and that was what counted. William Dunbar would not be hurt any more, nor would George or Leslie or Ralph Jowett or Andy Bullit or Aunt Hattie or anyone else who knew her and liked her.

"They'll be happy," she said softly, just when Evelyn was sure she had fallen asleep. "You'll see, they'll be very happy..."

Tornado Alarm Service Planned

JACKSON, Miss. —(AP) — Mississippi's highway patrol and the Jackson Weather Bureau have blueprinted a plan for a statewide tornado warning network. The nature of tornadoes makes it impossible to predict where they will strike until the familiar and dreaded black funnel appears, and then too often, it is too late.

George Fish, meteorologist in charge of the Jackson Bureau and Col. T. B. Birdsong, director of the Mississippi Safety Commission, have devised a warning system that will use the highway patrol's nine radio stations as relay points. Highway patrolmen will be instructed in how to spot and recognize the severe thunderstorm activity that usually precedes tornadoes. They will be given a regular course in weather observing. The patrolmen will report storms to the nearest radio relay station. This information will be radioed to the Weather Bureau which in turn will have it broadcast over local radio stations in the storm area.

A HAMMER HEAD will stay on its handle for good if you fasten it this way. Shape the handle end to fit snugly in the hole in the hammer. Cut two shallow grooves in the handle end as shown—each a quarter-inch wide and three quarters of an inch long. Cut two strips of sheet metal to fit the grooves. Sharpen an end of each strip to point and bend at right angles. Force prongs into wood at the bottom of the grooves. Force the hammer head on and bend strips over for clinch.

Sub-Depot For Blood Is Established In Bertie

An emergency sub-depot for blood has been established in Bertie County for hospitals to receive blood. Mrs. Walter F. Taylor, Red Cross official, reported after attending a conference in Windsor last week.

The Pitt County Chapter official attended the Tidewater Regional Blood Center Coordinating Committee meeting when the establishment of the sub-depot in a Bertie County hospital was announced by Ben M. Jones, administrator of the Tidewater Regional Blood Center in Norfolk, Va.

to be delivered by airplane. He stated that Civil Air Patrol Squadron Three in Norfolk had secured a newer and larger plane and were willing to make "hedge-hopping" trips to three or four North Carolina communities on a regular established schedule. A complete blood donor list is kept in the local chapter and other chapter files and Jones spoke briefly on the importance of this. He stated that sometimes in special diseases blood not more than an hour old is needed.

"Since it is impossible for the center in Norfolk to comply with such a request," Jones explained, "it is up to the local chapters to use their donor lists to make contact with the donor of the proper type and RH factor and dispatch the donor to the hospital where fresh blood is needed." He cautioned, however, that the chapter should be sure that the donor understood why it was necessary for the hospital to draw blood. Jones pointed out that this is another service of the Red Cross.

Stocks And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Strength in individual shares featured a moderately active and generally higher stock market today.

Atlantic Coast Line met profit-taking and fell nearly three points to bring down the rail average slightly. This issue had been an early leader in the rise which carried rails to a new high for more than 21 years.

Most other rails ruled firm with Northern Pacific spurring as much as Atlantic Coast Line fell. That issue no longer is included in the list making up the rail average because of its wide fluctuations caused by its oil interests.

Oil shares furnished the really strong features. Shell Oil led at 49 7/8 up 3/4; Barber Oil 33 1/2 up 1/4 and a new high; and Texas Pacific Land Trust 17 1/2 up 1/4. Others ruled steady to firm.

Gains of a point or more were noted in Monsanto in the chemicals; Zenith in the television; American Smelting and Kennecott in the metals; and Allied Stores in the mercantiles.

Elsewhere small gains dominated as traders prepared for a possible settlement of the steel strike over the weekend.

to the Pitt County Board of Commissioners for possible action.

As passed last night, the resolution reads: "Whereas, many inequities have accumulated during the long period of years since Pitt County has had a county-wide property revaluation, this board does hereby request and petition the county board of commissioners to provide a revaluation of property in Pitt County at its earliest convenience."

"And further, this board recommends that the county commissioners employ for the revaluation some firm from outside the county, and a firm that specializes in this kind of work." The resolution received the unanimous approval of the board.

More Cigarette Consumption Is Seen For Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department predicted today that users will smoke more cigarettes during the 1952-53 tobacco marketing year than this year's record 421 billion.

This forecast was based upon the assumption that employment and consumer income will remain high.

But exports of cigarette-type tobacco are expected to be a little lower, the agency said.

Domestic use of flue-cured tobacco in the current marketing year ending June 30 will be the largest of record, and that of burley probably will be a near record.

The department said the increased use of cigarettes is being offset to some extent by a decline in use of smoking tobacco used in pipe and hand made cigarettes.

Exports of unmanufactured tobacco in the current year are expected to total about 575 million pounds, farm sales weight, an increase of 7 per cent over the previous year.

"Export demand will be weaker in the 1952 crop marketing season," the department said, "because Britain and some other British Commonwealth countries will be buying less. Imports are being cut as one of the measures to halt the drain on gold and dollar reserves of the Sterling Area."

The department said the 1952 crop season average prices for are expected to be fairly near those of this season.

ry quietly supported Scott. In all of these instances the retiring governor had some right to think his successor would listen to suggestions. It is different now. Months ago Governor Scott did the unusual and proclaimed that he was putting the full force of his influence behind Hubert Olive for governor. At that time and on numerous occasions since he declared his lack of faith and confidence in William Umstead.

OUTSIDE — The people of North Carolina did not concur in his profession of lack of faith. To the contrary they demonstrated their faith and confidence in Umstead by rolling up a substantial majority vote for him last Saturday. That vote cannot be construed as showing lack of confidence in the integrity or ability of Hubert Olive. It was a vote for Umstead, rather than against anybody or any idea or philosophy of government. Fact remains, however, that Governor Scott's open stand and emphatic statements have put him, since the primary, more definitely on the outside of things than any previous retiring chief executive in a generation has been. That is why the governor's office, always a sad and lonely place for the last few months of the administration, will be even more lonely this year. Governor-nominate Umstead will be besieged, as all former nominees have been, by people wanting jobs or favors of some kind. But Governor Scott will not be bothered by these seekers after preferment, because it is a lead-pipe cinch that Governor Scott cannot help anybody with his successor.

As presented last night, the proposed calls for an increase from $140 per year for each alderman to $300 per year each. The proposition was referred to the finance committee for discussion. The committee is to report back at the next meeting, which will be held sometime this month.

The board granted a tax permit to William Foust, Negro, Chief Langston reported that Foust has no criminal record and the request was unanimously approved.

Street and Drainage

A petition from property owners along North Clark Street was read. It requested that North Clark Street be paved. The property owners are to pay two-thirds of the cost of paving and the city one-third. The request was approved.

The question of drainage on East Second Street came up but no action was taken. A request to have Eastern Street paved was also discussed but again no action was taken.

All nine members of the board were present for the torrid — in more ways than one — meeting last night.

District Officer Speaks To Lions

GRIFTON—Speaking to the Lions Club at their regular meeting on Monday night, District Gov. Harry Woodruff of Roanoke Rapids gave an interesting talk to fellow Lions.

He used the word Lions, building a slogan from this that would do for all to use in making a better club, community and world. "Liberty, Intelligence, Our own well being as well as our neighbors. Neglected opportunities, Safety of our nation."

President Clifton Jackson presided at the business meeting which followed the supper served in the school cafeteria and presented the speaker and recognized Lion O. E. Dowd, International Councilor, of Greenville.

More Funds Allocated For Park Development

Approximately $500 was appropriated last night from Elm Street Park Development funds to carry the work on the park further into reality.

Funds have already been appropriated for the laying of the foundation of the activities building and the purchase of playground equipment. The committee appropriated $1,000 last month for the beginning on the activities building and about $1,200 for playground equipment which has arrived.

The newest appropriations included $100 to seed the area and around three of four hundred for four artesian wells to be drilled near the fireplaces.

Finance chairman Jimmy Harris said this morning that the project is well underway and will be finished this summer except for the activities building of which there are not enough funds to complete the work.

The Jaycees have charge of the work on the building and will begin laying the foundation next week. The organization is attempting to raise money as they go along with the help of the park committee. Further solicitations and appeals will be made through the newspaper and radio for enough funds to complete the building. Between $10,000 and $12,000 is needed.

Enough money has been raised to carry on other work such as the construction of fireplaces, ping-pong tables, golf putting green, and other work. The tennis courts have been packed and graded and the asphalt will be poured next
