Red Negotiators In Korea Send Note To General Clark

Apparently Jolted By Three-Day Recess Action Declared By UN Truce Team; Enemy Propaganda Claims Action Delaying Armistice

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—The Communist high command today asked the United Nations to come back to the truce table and go "all out" to settle the prisoner of war issue and achieve peace in Korea.

The Reds, jolted by the U. N. declared three-day recess in the truce negotiations, sent the note to Gen. Mark W. Clark, supreme U. N. commander.

It was signed by North Korean Premier Gen. Kim Il Sung and Gen. Peng Teh Hui, commander of the Chinese "volunteers" fighting alongside the North Koreans.

Peking paper gave the first word of its contents, a few hours after Communist liaison officers handed it to the Allies at Panmunjom and before its receipt was acknowledged by Clark's headquarters.

The note recognized that "the only deterrent to smooth deliberations... is the problem concerning repatriation of prisoners of war."

It continued:

"In order to realize an armistice in Korea, as being desired by all the people in the world, we consider it imperative that both sides should go all out to settle this outstanding issue."

"Both sides have already agreed on the point on guaranteeing that all prisoners of war will not be used again in the battle so as to enable them to return to a peaceful life back home, and this with a view to settling the prisoner of war questions on a reasonable basis."

"In order to put into effect this guarantee, our side has repeatedly proposed the most practicable plans."

Allied observers here immediately noted that the "practicable plans" put forth by the Communists have been completely unacceptable to the United Nations.

The prisoner talks are snagged on the issues of forced repatriation. Only 70,000 prisoners held by the Allies have said they want to go back to communism. The remainder of the 169,000 former soldiers and civilian internees have declared they will return, and the U. N. has declared it will not force them to go.

"If the United Nations has sincerity toward the truce talks," the note said, "the United Nations delegation should come to Panmunjom and resume the talks."

Rowe Rules Out Second Primary

Concedes Lt. Governorship Nomination To Luther Hodges

RALEIGH, N. C.—A retired textile industrialist, who made his way from mill worker to company vice president, has won the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor.

Luther Hodges of Leaksville was assured of the nomination, tantamount to election, when Roy Rowe of Burgaw announced over the week end that he will not ask for a second primary.

Rowe, a veteran legislator, came in second in the race. Hodges led the four-man field by about 75,000 votes but failed to gain a clear majority by almost 25,000 votes.

Rowe's decision left only one statewide race in which a runoff election would be held. The runoff election would be between the six-man field for associate justice of the State Supreme Court, but failed to gain a majority.

Judge William H. Bobbitt of Charlotte, second high man, has indicated he will call for a second primary in that contest. He said Rowe's withdrawal could not influence his plans.

Rowe said he felt he could win the nomination in a runoff, but added, "I cannot in good conscience permit my personal ambition to take precedence over my loyalty to the Democratic Party. Second primaries are never conducive to party harmony."

Of Hodges, Rowe declared: "He will serve the people well."

Uranium Supply Is Reported In West Germany

BONN, Germany (UP)—The West German government has been notified that substantial uranium fields have been discovered in the black forest mountains, reliable sources said today.

The sources said the fields were sufficient to meet the needs of West German atomic research for scientific purposes.

The discovery was reported to have been made in an area listed in a secret protocol to the six-nation European Army Treaty as "non-exposed" to immediate reach of the Red army.

Up to now the richest German uranium fields have been within the Soviet zone.

Russell Avers He Is Only Demo Candidate Who Can Defeat Ike

WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. Richard B. Russell of Georgia claimed today that he is "the only Democratic candidate that can beat" Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for the presidency.

"There is no question in my mind that if I get the nomination I can be elected president," Russell said in a copyrighted interview with U. S. News and World Report.

Russell based his claim that he could beat Eisenhower — or Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-O) — in the presidential race on the assumption he would get solid support in the South.

Polls taken in the 13 Southern states, he said, "show that I am the only Democrat who can carry all of those states against Gen.

Two Injured As Auto Hits House

Admitted To Hospital! Four Others Unhurt In Second Wreck

Two persons received serious injuries early Saturday night when their automobile went out of control and rammed into the back porch of a house at Bell Arthur.

Patrolman B. H. Jackson, investigating officer, reported that a car operated by Palmer Carman, 40, of Route 1, Farmville, left the highway near Young's Store and traveled a total of 105 feet, striking at the intersection of the Stantonburg and Bell Arthur highways.

Palmer and Penny Lee Carman of Route 1, Snow Hill, occupants in the car, were taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment.

Palmer Carman received lacerations about the face while Penny Lee Carman was treated for a broken ankle, lacerations of the face and neck.

Jackson charged the driver with careless and reckless driving.

Still a third occupant in the car, whose name was not known, was thrown from the car but was not injured. The car was demolished.

A car overturned near Pacolus around 11:30 Saturday night but the four occupants of the vehicle escaped without injury.

The driver was listed as George Bell, 19, of Route 4, Greenville. No charges were placed against him by investigating officer Jim Davis.

Facing Charges Over Handbills

KINSTON, N. C.—(AP)—Harold Stroud of Kinston faces trial in Leon County Superior Court on charges of violating the Corrupt Practices Act by distributing campaign handbills designed to appeal to race prejudice.

Warrants charging Stroud were signed by Attorney Jesse A. Jones. The trial is scheduled for the court term beginning June 23.

The handbills allegedly were passed out during the recent gubernatorial campaign. The action is believed to be the first brought in North Carolina for alleged violations of laws covering political campaign literature.

The handbills showed a photograph of Hubert E. Olive, defeated by William B. Umstead in the primary, with a group of his Buncombe County campaign workers, one of them identified as a Negro. They were signed: "Worth Hinton — Four County Committee For Umstead."

Both Mayor Worth Hinton of Zebulon and Umstead campaign headquarters denied knowledge of the circulation of the leaflets.

Jones said he was not representing any group in bringing the action, but did it on his own because "I knew it wasn't right the minute I saw one of the handbills."

Restrictions On Home Building, Buying, Relaxed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government today relaxed its restrictions on how much you must pay down to buy a new house.

Under the new program, effective Wednesday, purchasers will be allowed to make down payments 20 to 50 per cent less than those now required under Regulation X which has been in effect nearly two years.

On the least expensive houses, down payment requirements were cut in half. On the most expensive, they were reduced 20 per cent.

The relaxed controls program means that only 5 per cent will be needed in down payments on some houses and that the maximum required will be 40 per cent.

Final Rehearsal By Koje Guards For Big Effort

SOBERLY Watch Preparations For Breaking Up Compounds

KOJE ISLAND, Korea (UP)—American paratroopers armed with flamethrowers and tear gas grenades staged their final rehearsal today for the break-up of rebellious Communist prisoner compounds.

"Operation Split-up" is expected to start tomorrow.

The troops dug emergency trenches outside the compounds today but prisoners who were digging similar chest-deep entrenchments yesterday did not turn a shovel to the captives watched soberly as men of the 187th Airborne Regimental Combat Team double-timed in and out of a practice compound.

Paratroopers will be backed by tanks when they start breaking up the compounds which now hold as many as 6,000 prisoners each, into more manageable groups of 500.

They put on a half-hour show to whose inmates kidnapped Col. Francis T. Dodd, former camp commander in full view of Compound 76, mander, on May 7.

No. 76 was picked for the first move in the break-up because it is the center of resistance for the 80,000 prisoners on Koje. Its dispersal will set the pattern for the other 16 compounds.

It holds "sumo" leaders who were moved there during negotiations for Dodd's release and refused to leave. They probably will be arrested and isolated.

Prisoners in Compound 66 displayed six North Korean flags today in the first show of defiance in several days but quickly put them away when ordered to do so by Canadian guards.

The prisoners, all North Korean officers, were using the flags during a foot race. Guards told them to get them out of sight within 15 minutes and they complied.

Guards have been searching outside 66 for possible escape tunnels but have found none.

The flamethrowers will be used to burn down flimsy prisoner installations that no longer will be needed. One of the battlefield's most feared weapons, they can also be used for persuasion if necessary.

Chief Langston Announces Resignation Is Withdrawn

Steel Accord Is Whispered Near

Informed Officials Hint Settlement May Be Reached Today; Senate Puts Off Legislative Action Until Tuesday

WASHINGTON (UP)—Top government officials predicted the steel strike would be settled today — barring a last-minute hitch on the bitterly-fought union shop issue.

Informed officials said the CIO United Steelworkers and the basic steel industry were "just about agreed" on a contract calling for a straight wage increase of about 15 cents an hour and fringe benefits of seven or eight cents an hour more.

As presidential assistant John R. Steelman called three-man bargaining teams from each side back into joint session this afternoon for the fifth day, informants said major snags appeared to be the type of union security the steelworkers would get and the effective date of the contract.

An early settlement would take the pressure off administration leaders in the Senate, who have been waging a delaying action to ward off Senate interference in the dispute.

It would also remove the last remaining roadblock to senate action in extending the Defense Production (controls) Act.

The Senate today put off action until tomorrow after President Truman warned that "fratricidal" interference in the steel dispute might upset a settlement.

The president wrote Chairman Burnet R. Maybank of the Senate Banking Committee that union and management steel negotiators appeared on the "verge" of agreeing to a new contract.

Sen. Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.) injected the steel controversy into the Senate debate last week when he proposed an amendment calling on President Truman to use the Taft-Hartley Act "immediately" to end the strike. Administration leaders, jockeying for time to avoid a showdown on the Byrd proposal, action on the controls bill until today in the hopes there might be a break in the steel dispute.

The wage contract terms for settling the dispute were expected closely to approximate recommendations the Wage Stabilization Board made last February.

Negotiators, it was learned, are considering several types of union security arrangements, with considerable emphasis on the so-called General Motors plan. This provides that present employees of a company are not required to join the union to keep their jobs, but all new employees have to join.

Other issues still to be disposed of were the length of the contract, with some pressure for a two-year agreement with a one-year wage re-opener, and retroactivity for wage increases.

Will Submit Annual Letter Requesting Appointment For Another Year; Mayor Page Denies Stories Rumored Behind Original Reasons For Letter Of Resignation

By JESS FONDEXTER, Reflector Staff Writer

Barring unforeseen and "certainly unexpected" developments, Guy C. Langston will stay on as Greenville's chief of police for another year.

In a joint interview with Mayor Lester D. Page this morning, Chief Langston disclosed that he will submit a letter to the mayor today formally requesting that his letter of resignation be withdrawn. "Along with the letter I will also submit my annual letter requesting appointment for another year," the chief said.

During the interview, Mayor Page stated that rumors have been circulating to the effect that he (the mayor) planned to resign as mayor and have the board of aldermen appoint him chief of police. "Those rumors are absolutely unfounded and all speculation in that regard is totally false," the mayor declared emphatically.

Will Serve Term

"It has never entered my mind to attempt to replace Chief Langston," Page asserted. "I was elected by the people of Greenville to serve two years as mayor and I fully intend to serve the entire term. Chief Langston is doing a fine job as chief and I certainly have no designs on the office at the present time."

The mayor further reported that a personal rift between him and Chief Langston has been rumored. Both Page and the chief agreed that any speculation along that line is groundless, and there has never been any major disagreement of any kind between them relative to the department or on a personal basis.

Mayor Page explained that after Langston resigned last Thursday morning, the two discussed the resignation and concluded that a personal rift was definitely not the reason for the chief's action. Both said they hoped today's official statement will serve to dissipate further rumors in that regard.

Friends For Years

Rounding out his second year as head of the Greenville Police Department, Chief Langston said today he and Mayor Page were friends when he (the chief) came here and are still friends. "We have been friends for years as I knew Langston for years before he came to Greenville," the mayor added.

Chief Langston said, "I also knew Mayor Page before I came here as chief, and I had a great deal of respect for him as a law enforcement officer—and I still maintain that respect. I have had the cooperation of his office since he went in as mayor and he has assured me of that continued cooperation."

When his resignation was presented to the board of aldermen Thursday night, the board gave Chief Langston a rising vote of confidence and voted to table any action for a period of one week "to give him ample time to reconsider." Today's action will probably be favorably accepted by the board, officials said.

Blood Collection Slated Tuesday

More Than 175 Donors Pledged For Bloodmobile In Bethel

BETHEL—More than 175 donors have signed up to give a pint of blood here tomorrow and more donors are expected to send in pledge cards today.

County blood program chairman B. C. Satterfield and Bethel donor recruitment chairman Julian Smith scheduled the donors Saturday who have already signed donor cards but anticipate 25 or 30 more pledges to come in.

Satterfield stated that at least 200 donors are needed to be scheduled to insure the quota of 150 pints for the temporary blood center which will be set up in Bethel tomorrow.

The county chairman said he was very pleased with the response of Bethel citizens and felt sure that the quota will be reached. "We are also expecting citizens of surrounding communities to come in to the blood center tomorrow and give a pint of blood," said Satterfield.

The center will be set up at the elementary school. Volunteer work and other types of aides.

L. R. Fisher To Succeed Rosser

Appointed By Gov. Scott To Succeed Col. L. C. Rosser

RALEIGH (UP)—Capt. L. R. Fisher prepared today to take over the Department of Motor Vehicles, following his appointment by Gov. Kerr Scott, and to eliminate what the governor called "squabbling" among members of the state highway patrol.

Fisher received his appointment yesterday afternoon. The present head of the state's motor vehicle division will succeed Col. L. C. Rosser, whom Scott dismissed effective June 15.

Scott fired Rosser last week, a week he began by dismissing Patrol Commissioner T. C. Johnson. Both men supported William B. Umstead in the state primary elections May 31 despite the governor's declaration that he expected his top appointees to support Hubert E. Olive.

Scott also asked for the resignation of the assistant director of the budget, David S. Coltrane. But Coltrane, appointed for a four-year term, has not indicated whether he will resign.

'Dirty Work In Texas' Charged By 2 Competing GOP Factions

By RAYMOND LAHR, United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Bitter accusations of dirty work in Texas bounced back and forth between today's chief contenders for the GOP presidential nomination, many politicians are still betting that he might accept a convention "draft."

But some of these are beginning to have doubts whether Kefauver can be "stopped" at the convention, unless he is at least slowed down somewhat beforehand.

The United Press tabulation of delegates already chosen, based on formal pledges and known first-ballot preferences, gave Kefauver 251, Foreign Aid Administrator W. Averell Harriman 95 1-2, Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), 85, with 397 1-2 uncommitted and 172 still to be chosen.

Two Slightly Wounded In Gun Play During Weekend

Tempests flared as hot as the weather in Pitt County over the weekend and as a result, two men were slightly wounded by gunfire.

A delayed action shotgun duel near the Beaufort County line Saturday night was more explosive than damaging to its participants, when Gus Keys and Herbert Bones, both Negroes, shot it out with buckshot.

The only casualty was Keys, who was struck a glancing blow on the head by one wild shotgun pellet. Officers reported that the two men became engaged in an argument over some work they had been doing and it led to the shooting.

According to reports, the affray took place only a few hundred feet from the Beaufort County line. Both men were placed in Pitt County Jail under $200 bond each. They will be tried in County Court tomorrow.

A second shooting was reported to have happened on highway 264 near Port Terminal. Investigators stated that Anthony Coward, Negro, had the end of his little finger blown off from an assault with a pistol. Coward told officers he was standing in his yard when two Negroes rode by in a car and opened fire on him with a pistol.

The offenders were not identified and an investigation is being continued, officers said.

Women In The Church

Under auspices of the Methodist Church, Miss Freddie Henry, professor of religious education at Scarritt College, Nashville, Tenn., is now in Africa on a special nine-month assignment to consult with missionaries and with African Christians in developing plans for the Christian education of children. Her studies and conferences will carry her into the Belgian Congo, Angola, Portuguese East Africa, Southern Rhodesia, and Liberia, in which countries the Methodist Church has extensive missionary work. A native of South Carolina, Prof. Henry was educated at Columbia College (S.C.) and at Northwestern University.

When the judges named by the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. to examine more than 400 new hymns submitted in a contest for a hymn to be used to mark the 150th year of Presbyterian national missions had completed their task, it was found that the winning manuscript was from the pen of Mrs. J. Hudson Ballard, of Novato, Calif., a former newspaper woman who is the wife of the professor of psychology of religion in the San Francisco Theological Seminary. In addition to writing the words, Mrs. Ballard composed a new tune for the hymn. The words are entitled "Pioneers of Christ," and the tune is named "Shedden Jackson" in honor of a famous pioneer Presbyterian missionary to the Far West and to Alaska. The hymn was premiered in New York when the assembly held its recent 150th session, and it will be widely used in the denomination's churches during the year.

She calls herself a "displaced American missionary nurse." Miss Isabel Hemingway, R.N., was born in North Carolina, the daughter, grandchild, and great grandchild of missionaries of the Congressional Christian Churches. Her mother now lives in Washington, D. C. Miss Hemingway was educated at Oberlin College and the Philadelphia General Hospital. From 1923 to 1950 she was a nurse in China; after her hospital there was burned by communists she served with UNRRA and with UNICEF in medical and relief projects. She returned to the U.S.A. when missionaries were unable to work longer in communist China, and now she has been assigned by her Church to begin a new medical work in Turkey.

She was so glad to find the money, which had been missing since last Dec. 19, that she decided not to take action against the "thief."

Film On Red Cross Blood Collections Shown To Club

A film, "There is no Substitute For Blood," was shown to the members of the Exchange Club Friday night by B. C. Satterfield, general chairman of the Pitt County Red Cross Blood Program.

The film depicted the Red Cross method of obtaining, storing, and distributing vital human blood from volunteer donors throughout the nation.

The film showed Red Cross doctors and nurses assembling all the necessary equipment at their headquarters, and driving to the local temporary centers where volunteers help them unload and set up the center.

Prospective donors are seen being carefully examined to see if they are in good health and can donate blood. The donors are given blood tests and then served orange juice to raise the bloodsugar content.

The actual process of taking the blood lasts only a few minutes. Part of the blood is made into blood plasma which will keep indefinitely and is used by the armed forces in areas where raw blood is not obtainable.

Exchange Dr. W. H. Pott commented on the blood program's use in Pitt County. According to Dr. Pott, about 70 percent of the blood collected is used by the armed forces and about 30 percent is made available for use in civilian hospitals.

A local bank is kept at the Pitt Memorial Hospital which is serviced through the Norfolk center. Special emergency types of blood are rushed to hospitals in this area by state highway patrol.

Dr. Pott explained that by using the local bank immediate blood transfusions can be given free of charge to patients in a matter of minutes where formerly relatives and friends had to be rounded up, typed, and processed, taking up to half a day.

"A healthy individual can give a pint of blood every three to six months with no harmful effects," stated Dr. Pott.

Bowen-Rowlett Wedding Held

Sunday Ceremony Followed By Small Home Reception

In an impressive ceremony of picturesque loveliness, Miss Hilda Carolyn Rowlett and Ensign William Augustus Bowen, United States Naval Reserve, were united in marriage Sunday afternoon, June eighth, in the Eighth Street Christian Church, with Dr. H. G. Haney performing the double ring ceremony.

For the service, the church had been tastefully decorated with bridal greenery, plumosa ferns and large standards of white lilies and gladioli. The soft glow of many cathedral candles lighted the wedding scene.

A program of nuptial music was rendered by Mr. George Perry, organist, with Mrs. John Moss and Mr. Sam Northrop as soloists. Mr. Perry's selections included "Clair de Lune" by Debussy, "Ave Marie" by Arcadelt and "To a Wild Rose" by McDowell. During the exchanging of vows, "At Dawn" by Cadman, "Trauerlied" by Schumann and "I Love Thee" by Grieg, were softly played. "Through the Years" by Vincent Youmans was sung by Mrs. Moss and Mr. Northrop sang "All for You" by Bertrand-Brown. At the close of the ceremony "O Perfect Love" was softly rendered as a benediction.

To the strains of the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin, Mr. Charles P. Gaskins, Mr. Hogan Gaskins, Jr., and Mr. John Howard, all of Greenville and Mr. Henry Turner of Asheville, as ushers, entered the church and took their places at the altar.

The bride chose as her matron of honor her sister, Mrs. Charles Perkins Gaskins, and her maid of honor was Miss Betty Ann Young of Durham. They wore ball-length gowns of ditsy blue net designed with a satin panel edged with tiny buttons. The strapless bodice had an attached Queen Anne stole and they wore matching accessories. They carried arm bouquets of garden flowers in pastel shades tied with blue satin ribbons to match their gowns. The bridesmaids were Mrs. C. B. Rowlett, Jr., sister-in-law of the bride of Bethel, and Miss Peggy Edwards of Grimesland, who will in June become the brides sister-in-law. They were also gowned in ditsy blue net and satin, made identical in style to that of the honor attendants and carried similar bouquets.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Thomas C. Rowlett, wore a wedding gown of candle light bridal satin, made with a tight fitting bodice and off the shoulder portrait neckline with oertha of rose point lace. Her tight fitting sleeves ended in calla lily points. Her very full skirt fell into dramatic spread of train, and her veil of French bridal illusion fell from a halo of plaited illusion, caught with pearlized orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley centered with a white orchid and lightly showered.

Joseph Francis Bowen Jr. attended his brother as best man. Mrs. Rowlett, mother of the bride, wore a gown of aqua lace, with matching accessories and an orchid corsage. Mrs. Bowen, the groom's mother, was dressed in green silk organza with matching accessories. She, too, wore an orchid corsage. Mrs. Lottie Simmons, grandmother of the groom, wore navy blue sheer with white accessories and an orchid corsage.

Mrs. Bowen is the attractive and talented daughter of Mrs. Clinton Boyd Rowlett and the late Mr. Rowlett of Greenville. She has always lived in Greenville and received her education in the city schools and East Carolina College. Her charming personality has won for her a host of friends wherever she is known. Ensign Bowen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Francis Bowen of Greenville. He is a graduate of Greenville High School and received his B. S. Degree in Commerce in 1951 from the University of North Carolina, where he was president of Beta Gamma Sigma honorary fraternity. He is also a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Lambda Chi Alpha social fraternities.

After a short wedding trip, Ensign and Mrs. Bowen will make their home in Philadelphia. For traveling Mrs. Bowen changed to a costume suit of mauve silk shantung with navy accessories and orchid corsage.

Reception
Immediately following the ceremony, Mrs. Rowlett entertained informally for Ensign and Mrs. Bowen, their wedding party, the immediate families and out of town guests at her home on East Fourth Street.

Arrangements of deep pink larkspur and peonies were used with white tapers as mantel and table decorations in the hall and living room, where the receiving line was formed. In the dining room all white flowers were placed in silver containers on the table and buffet, and both floral arrangements were flanked by white tapers in silver holders. The punch table was decorated with a miniature bridal cake topped with a bride and groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hodges, Jr., greeted the callers at the door and introduced them to the receiving line. Misses Sara

Adams, Jeri Lassiter and Ann Wilkerson poured limo tee punch and guests served themselves to cheese straws, bridal cakes, mints and salted nuts.

Pre-Nuptial Luncheon
On Friday at 1:00 P.M. Miss Betty Ann Young, who was maid of honor for the bride, entertained the wedding party and families at a luncheon at the home of Mrs. Reid Perkins.

Guests were seated at a large table in the dining room and at auxiliary tables in the living room. Each table was centered with an arrangement of mixed summer flowers, with shaded larkspur predominating. The bride elect was presented with a corsage and a gift, as were two other brides to be—Miss Mary Smith and Miss Peggy Edwards.

Mrs. C. B. Rowlett and Mrs. J. F. Bowen served the meat and salad course from small serving tables in the dining room. Assisting the hostess at the luncheon were Mrs. Reid Perkins and Miss Virginia King Perkins.

On Saturday at 1:00 p.m. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gaskins and Mrs. C. B. Rowlett, Jr. entertained for the wedding party and out of town guests at a luncheon at the home of the Gaskins.

Card tables centered with small perennials of cut summer flowers were arranged for seating the guests after they had served themselves from the dining room table. Here the centerpiece was a large arrangement of pastel flowers, and Mrs. C. B. Rowlett and Mrs. J. F. Bowen served the entree and salad from places at either end of the table.

On Sunday the wedding party was again entertained at luncheon when Mrs. Gertrude Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Whiteford, Sr. and Mr. and Mrs. Farrell H. Gray were hosts and hostesses.

The bride and groom and their attendants were seated together at one large table, and the other guests were seated at similar smaller tables, all of which had bows of assorted summer flowers as centerpieces.

After-Rehearsal Party
Following the rehearsal on Saturday night, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Bowen entertained on the lawn of their home on Rotary Avenue to compliment the bridal couple and their attendants.

Candles in hurricane globes on tall wrought iron standards were used throughout the garden for illumination. Mr. and Mrs. Bowen welcomed the guests at the entrance to the garden, and standing beside them were the bridal couple. On the back lawn the cake table and punch table were arranged in a garden setting and were decorated with bowls of pink larkspur and gladioli and garlands of smilax. Mrs. C. B. Rowlett, Jr. and Mrs. Lee Folger presided over the punch bowl, and after the bridal couple had cut the first slice of the three tiered cake and favors were drawn by their attendants, the guests were served by Mrs. Charles Gaskins.

Refreshments were also served in the house, which was charmingly decorated with various flower arrangements. The table in the dining room was covered with a net cloth laid over green satin and caught up at the corners with tiny sprays of lily of the valley and satin bows. Its centerpiece was an imposing assortment of white gladioli, lavender larkspur and fern in a low silver bowl, on either side of which were tall single candlesticks with white tapers. The buffet was similarly arranged with ropes of smilax encircling the bowl of flowers and triple candelabra and falling in streamers to the corners of the buffet. In the living room the mantel was banked with a long bowl of pastel sweetpeas and candles in crystal holders tied with ribbon were at either end. Approximately 75 guests were received during the evening.

Ruritan Clubs Stage Joint Meet Friday

PACTOLUS — Approximately 50 Ruritans from the Pactolus and Stokes communities attended a joint meeting of the two clubs here Friday night and heard District Governor Ernest Slack of Pinetown discuss the benefits of Ruritan fellowship.

Another speaker at the joint meeting of the two clubs was James W. Butler of Greenville, alumni secretary of East Carolina College, who discussed briefly the growth of the college and the $100,000 Pitt County Foundation for the college. District Governor Slack praised the Stokes and Pactolus clubs for their fine spirit of fellowship, and said he wished every Ruritan club in the district would make a practice of inter-club meetings several times each year.

"The members of Ruritan and people of the rural areas are blessed with the great outdoors," Slack told the group, "and we are able to serve God in the most beautiful scenery of nature." Slack said fellowship means good will and brings about community service, and as such is one of the foundations of Ruritan. He urged the club members never to forget the church. "We should remember it as the buttwark of our country," Slack stated. "We are a Christian people living in a Christian American and we should believe in God and believe in fellowship with God; and in so doing we grow in fellowship with our fellow men."

Ethel Merman Is Planning Divorce

MEXICO CITY, (UP) — Broadway star Ethel Merman planned to fly to Juarez today to bring divorce proceedings against her second husband, Robert D. Lewitt. Attorney Paul O'Dwyer, brother of U. S. ambassador to Mexico William O'Dwyer, will accompany her to Juarez. The singing star of a number of Broadway musicals said the Juarez City Council had assured her she would have her divorce in two days.

Miss Merman said she would ask for the divorce from Lewitt, from whom she has been estranged for about a year, on grounds of incompatibility. They were married in 1941.

President Jack Tripp of the Pactolus club presided at the meeting, and after a brief business session the meeting was turned over to Program Chairman Noel Lee Jr. The members of the two clubs voted to play an inter-club softball game Friday evening, and a three-man committee from each club was appointed to make arrangements for the next joint meetings of the clubs.

Guests at the supper meeting in the Pactolus community building were Ernest Oullifer, past district governor of Ruritan, Earl Ferguson, James Butler and Dave Whitehard.

BACK HOME AGAIN INFLATION

We pretend to be terribly disturbed over inflation, but as a matter of fact most people like it. It gives them an exhilarating sense of being richer than they really are. Those dollars come in than came in ten years ago. Of course they do not buy as much. Furthermore, after we look at them and touch them, we send a great many of them down to Washington. So the feeling of prosperity that inflation gives is largely illusory.

Some people suffer from a chronic inflation of moral character. This is a round-about way of saying that they consider themselves better than they really are. "What's the matter with me? I drink a little, but not too much. I gamble a little, but never enough really to damage my bank account. When I lose my temper once in a while, but everybody does. As for church, I go when I feel like it, keep my dues paid up, and, confidentially, I think I am a lot better than many of the people who never miss a Sunday."

How familiar are all these expressions. The guy who talks this way is the victim of inflation—of his ego and particularly of his estimate of his moral worth. He is not so important as he thinks he is. What is more to the point, his moral life is a bit shabby and this in spite of his complacent self-esteem.

Watch out for inflation.

Will The Commissioners Shirk Their Duty Again

Greenville Aldermen once more have requested the Pitt County Commissioners to call for a complete revaluation of property in the county to remove the glaring inequities which now exist and have existed for too many years on the county's tax books.

If the County Commissioners have the best interest of all the people of Pitt County at heart, they will heed this second call for a property revaluation and not shrug it aside as they did a little more than a year ago.

Pitt County has not had a complete revaluation of property since 1937, and on every hand there are evidences where property values for tax purposes vary too widely percentage-wise in relation to actual values to make the present system of taxation fair to all the citizens of the county.

It is obviously unfair for some citizens to pay taxes on 10 per cent of the actual value of the property they hold while others are paying taxes on 30 to 50 per cent—or even more—of the actual value of their property.

Naturally there are people in Pitt County who do not want to see a completely equitable revaluation of property in the county because they realize they will have to shoulder more of their proportionate load of the county's expenses.

There will be opposition to a movement for a property revaluation. Yet it is the obligation and responsibility of the county commissioners to do everything in their power to see that the county government is run on an honest, efficient basis, and that every citizen of the county pays his proportionate share of the taxes necessary to support the county government.

As the tax valuations of Pitt County now stand, with all the inequities, the tax system is definitely unfair.

The county commissioners have given tentative approval to the county's budget for the coming fiscal year, but it is not too late for them to revise the budget before its final adoption.

The Reflector strongly urges the Pitt County Commissioners to include in the new budget money to begin a complete, effective revaluation of all the property in Pitt County.

The fair-minded citizens of the county are demanding a revaluation, and they have just grounds for doing so. If the County Commissioners are anxious to live up to their responsibility to guard and promote the best interests of the citizens of Pitt County as a whole, they have no choice but to call for a complete property revaluation at the earliest possible date.

Flood Is Still A Sorely-Needed Item

This country needs more blood.

It isn't enough to just talk about blood donations... they must be made, and that On Tuesday, the people of Bethel will is something that only an individual can decide upon and do. Thus far, not enough individuals have felt the call strongly enough.

Generally speaking, there is an awareness on the part of some citizens as to the importance of giving blood. Others are shrugging it off as just another "stunt".

If the mothers and fathers, the wives, brothers and sisters of Pitt County's servicemen were to make up their minds that this was a part of their responsibility to the man in uniform, it would be a monumental display of blood-giving. Such an action is not inconceivable.

Latest estimates of blood collections over the country indicate that only minimum requirements are being met today. Not enough to make up for supplies taken from the stockpile of plasma remaining from World War II; not enough to cope with civilian emergency needs and the needs of servicemen in Korea should that conflict be stepped up into a faster tempo.

Add this thought, too:

There is no stockpile to meet the exigencies of a third world war should that disaster come our way. Such an emergency would not only find us without blood supplies, but the machinery for gathering and processing of the vast and necessary quantities of blood is only in a rudimentary stage.

contribute to the visiting bloodmobile. We hope, too, that people from surrounding communities will volunteer so that the collection unit will not depart with empty flasks. On the last occasion the bloodmobile visited a Pitt community, The Reflector recalls with pride that some Greenville citizens made a special point to make a trip to offer their pint of blood.

We need many more people with that sense of zeal for the common welfare, for the difference that means life or death to someone dear or a stranger.

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Although Ellis Arnall proved himself an able statesman as governor of Georgia, he has succumbed to the disease which has afflicted even more illustrious part-time predecessors at Washington during the Roosevelt and Truman Administrations. Only a few strong men, like Bernard M. Baruch and the ousted Charles E. Wilson, kept themselves immune.

Price Administrator Arnall responds easily to the oppressive atmosphere and partisan pressures of the Capital in a re-election year when Democratic fortunes appear to be shaky. Therefore, he exercises his controls over living costs present and future as a party politician rather than as an economic referee. So did such former price czar as Leon Henderson and Paul A. Porter.

As evidence of the ballot-box importance of this post, it may be significant that neither Roosevelt nor Truman ever gave it to a distinguished, experienced and nonpolitical economic expert. It has always been handed to one of the party faithful.

LARGESSE—Arnall has lifted ceilings on numerous everyday articles, especially food, on the sole ground that they were selling below the federal minimum. He also cites the plentifulness of supply and assurances of continued full production.

On the other hand, he has increased prices on foods for certain producers who were making no outcry for such unexpected generosity. He has distributed this largesse at a time when inflationary factors, under Truman's Midas-like touch, may hike the general price structure at any moment.

It is still touch-and-go whether the more serious threat is inflation or deflation, with the odds favoring the latter.

In such a situation, economic authorities agree, it is no time to rock the boat in any direction.

SAFEGUARD—It is true, as Arnall notes, that customer resistance has held a select group of prices at below-ceiling levels, despite White House invitations and incitations for customers to unpaper their wallets. In view of bargain-sale offers and heavy hawking power, the failure to buy perplexes the politico-economic experts in the Truman Administration.

Nevertheless, this restraint affords no justification for Arnall's lifting of ceiling restrictions. They were established originally to exert a permanent downward pressure on all living costs. Controls were not supposed to be manipulated so as to affect buying habits and tendencies. They were meant to be a safeguard rather than a stimulant.

What Arnall has done is to remove or weaken this psychological influence on producers, retailers and customers. He has given the "buy" sign for a quick upward trend.

CONCERN—Arnall apparently shares Truman's concern that economic stagnation between now and November will jeopardize the Democrats at the ballot-box. So, while the White House strives in every way possible to make money plentiful and accessible, through easy borrowing and credit schemes, Arnall manipulates price levels so as to stimulate purchases, production and employment.

In this connection, it is interesting to note that some Democratic politicians are mentioning Arnall as a vice-presidential possibility, especially if his fellow-Georgian, Senator Richard B. Russell, should head a revolt against a Truman nominee and platform.

Arnall is a Roosevelt-Truman "liberal." He has definite and justifiable ambitions, according to his friends, and the Democrats ever conquer their complex against nominating a man from Dixie for the two highest offices.

MANEUVERING—Arnall's abolition of ceilings on raw cotton is, perhaps, the surest evidence of his political maneuvering. His staff experts recommended against this action on economic grounds and crop prospects, but he overrode them. He had to do so because he had promised several southern senators to free this key product from controls.

The price administrator had said earlier that he would not remove controls, if conditions pointed toward the need for reimposing them later. Since the August carryover of cotton will be only about 2,500,000 bales, one of the smallest ever record, prices may go so high that ceilings will have to be applied later. Any number of factors, including reports of smaller plantings and production in July and August, would skyrocket prices.

POLITICAL—But cotton is a political as well as an economic product in the south. Its price may determine how many large and small growers will vote in November. And it is that objective, presumably, which Arnall has in mind. He certainly did not seek to inflate cotton prices on behalf of Dixie's two presidential contenders, Senators Russell and Kefauver, for they are on the White House blacklist.

Indeed, it is significant that, although Arnall had promised numerous southerners in Capitol Hill that he would remove the ceilings, he did not issue the formal order until it was too late to help either Russell or Kefauver in the Florida primary.

But, as some cotton experts warned him, he will have outsmarted himself—and the Truman wing—if his political manipulation of these ceilings results in such a price rise that he will have to reimpose controls before the November voting. And this same thought applies to many other commodities he has freed of price-fixing practices for political reasons.

VIOLATION—Was the firing by Governor Scott of Parole Commissioner T. C. Johnson and Motor Vehicle Commissioner L. C. Rosser in direct violation of the election laws? Several eminent lawyers express opinion that the action was a violation of the law, despite other statutory provisions purporting to give the chief executive sufficient authority to fire these officials without cause other than his own displeasure with their services.

STATUTE—The election laws are embraced in Chapter 163 of the General Statutes, Section 201 of Article 22 in that chapter reads: "It shall be unlawful for any person holding any office, position or employment in the state government, or under and with any department, institution, bureau board, commission, or other state agency, or under and with any county, city, town, district, or other political subdivision, directly or indirectly, to discharge, threaten to discharge, or cause to be discharged, or otherwise intimidate or oppress any other person in such employment on account of any vote such voter or any member of his family may cast, or consider or intend to cast, or not to cast, or which he may have failed to cast, or to seek or undertake to control any vote which any subordinate of such person may cast, or consider or intend to cast, or not to cast, by threat, intimidation, or declaration that the position, salary, or any part of the salary of such subordinate depends in any manner whatsoever, directly or indirectly, upon the way in which such subordinate or any member of his family casts, or considers or intends to cast, or not to cast, his vote at any primary or election. Any person violating this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punished by fine and/or imprisonment, in the discretion of the court."

PLAIN—The sentence construction of the foregoing statute is clumsy and repetitious, but its meaning is plain. No exception is made for the office of governor, and several lawyers interpret the law to put the same restrictions upon the Governor as upon other officials.

REASONS—It is explicit in the act authorizing appointment of the commissioner of motor vehicles and implicit with respect to paroles commissioner that the Governor is not required to give any reason or explanation for discharging them. His formal letters notifying them of their removal do not assign any reason. But in numerous semi-public statements at press conferences and elsewhere, Governor Scott has said he felt his "key" appointees should play on the team and support the candidate he personally wanted for the governor—or resign. He clearly intimidated if these key men did not go along with him he would expect their resignations or, in the few instances where he had full authority, he would fire them outright.

UNSTATED—About half the key men chose to ignore the Governor's request, and publicly announced their support of William Utsumoto for the next Governor, although Scott wanted them to back Hubert Olive Johnson and Rosser were in this group. So were Dave Coltrane, assistant director of the budget, and George Ross, director of conservation and development. Governor Scott has exercised his prerogative in firing Johnson and Rosser, and is reportedly seeking some way to get rid of Coltrane and Ross, whose appointments were for a definite term instead of "at the will of the governor."

It is commonly accepted as fact that the firings are due to the votes which these men cast or failed to cast in the recent primary. Governor Scott almost said that, and certainly implied it, in several public statements. So it is that many legal authorities think his actions come within purview of the election laws, and clearly violate the law.

REMOVAL—One intriguing feature of the developing overall situation is that it might be possible under the law for a superior court judge whom the Governor had appointed to remove the Governor from office in the event of his conviction of violating the statutes set out in two paragraphs above.

PUNISHMENT—G. S. 163-207, enacted by the 1949 General Assembly, the first legislature of the Scott administration, reads: "Any public official who shall be convicted of any violation of the provisions of Article 21 or Article 22 of this chapter, in addition to the punishment provided by law for such violation, may be removed from office by the judge presiding at the trial and shall be ineligible to hold any other public office until his citizenship is restored as provided by law in case of conviction of a felony, and for a period of two years in case of conviction of a misdemeanor." Again, there is no exception or special consideration for the office of governor.

DISTURBING—Nobody expects that Governor Scott will be indicted and convicted on this issue, although the legal possibility is recognized. Many people are seriously concerned about the effect of recent and proposed changes in the law.

"Do we realize that in this country we are evolving a form of capitalism which is as distinctively American as apple pie?" said the president of the New York Stock Exchange in a recent address. "For within the frame work of our democracy, ownership of the tools of production has gradually spread until today the owners of industry are numbered in the millions. Capitalism for the few has given way to capitalism for the privileged million."

"In America we practice a political democracy, a democracy for the people. We are surely creating a people's capitalism, capitalism for the people."

"We at the New York Stock Exchange are convinced that when ownership of our great corporations is shared by most of our people, that ownership will cut out forever the gangrene of Socialism and Communism in America. We believe that a nation of shareowners, a nation of capitalists if you will, can be the chief strength of the system in which we believe."

He told the story of a Czech engineer who made a dramatic escape from Communist oppression and is now employed by an American toy company. The engineer visited the exchange and learned with amazement that he was free to buy shares in the toy company. The man was cheered from the floor of the exchange, and in response said, "I am very surprised and happy to know I can become a part of this. The Communists told us these people were our enemies and here they are cheering for us."

It is the American destiny to become a nation of capitalists. That means a nation in which economic freedom will be forever preserved, and all the other great freedoms with it.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

There is never unalloyed optimism in the apparel industry. The prevalence of pessimism has become a sort of industry-wide joke. When sales are slow, manufacturers blame retailers and their stylists. When sales are good, there is always a bit of wailing because they are not better. And when there is a run-away demand, as there was in January and February last year, many cry that they are only discounting future sales. And how right they were then.

Therefore, if it cannot be reported that there is optimism in the apparel field right now, it can be noted that there is considerably less pessimism.

Buyers for stores began their trek to New York last week in search of Fall lines. Visitation is expected to reach a peak this week. And around the show-rooms there is a feeling that the Fall season will be better than fair and something less than excellent, anyhow.

Initial orders have been encouraging. At many of the show-rooms, orders were reported to be 15 per cent above a year ago. Considerable fill-in buying for summer and heavy ordering for back-to-school wear was reported.

One reason for the lessened pessimism is the conclusion that much of the garments stock-piled by consumers last year are now worn out or at least out-dated.

The out-dating is expected to be polished off by sharp changes in styles. Manufacturers are emphasizing the "Fall 1952 Look" and they are hoping that retailers, with the manufacturers' assistance, will promote it so strongly that few women will dare to rally forth in 1951 raincoats. It is only a hope, however, at this stage.

The industry is encouraged by other factors: total personal income continues high; employment, after setting a new May record last month, is growing; construction also set a new May record, and defense spending is expected to spur.

There are two less-general factors: shoe orders have been rising and textile mills are beginning to reject less-than-cost orders, which they had been taking to prevent even greater losses resulting from idle plants.

BLIND SAVE COSTS

A number of businesses with bulges in certain production operations are finding that institutions for the blind can be very useful.

Plants sometimes have seasonal needs for the assembly of small parts, for annual or semi-annual collating of mailing pieces, or once-in-a-while performance of other tasks which those with defective eyesight can accomplish, sometimes better than full-vision persons.

Institutions undertaking such work usually charge going wage rates. But such subcontracting profits businesses in other ways:

NEW YORK (AP)—Diary notes by a pavement Plato: Lucky Joe College!

Graduation day means the end of midnight party raids on sorority dormitories for Joe, but this year he has compensations.

In the past his sheepskin diploma has just been a dust-catching souvenir. But in 1952 it is the open sesame to financial success.

The world isn't waiting for Joe College to build a better mouse trap before beating a path to his door. It is beating his door down in the hope he can build any kind of a mouse trap.

Big business scouts have been standing in line to pick off the cream of the college graduates, offering them $400 a month and up to start.

Usually I write a letter of advice to the June graduate. But not this year. Not after reading of one bright young fellow who is bringing into a $10,000 a year post.

What most older men would like is a letter of advice from him on how he did it. Ten thousand dollars? Even professional baby sitters don't make that kind of money today.

But many a Joe College is going to have to postpone accepting the golden offers that come his way. There is an earlier bid for his services put in by an elder member of his family—Uncle Sam.

There is a story going around about an old-fashioned husband who thought his wife was spending too much time watching television. He put his foot down and flatly forbade her to turn the set on during the day.

The following evening he came home and caught her sitting in front of it. He bawled her out. The next evening when he arrived she was dusting the house like crazy. But, suspicious, he touched his palm to the television screen. It was still warm—she had just switched the thing off. Sternly he bawled her out again.

"I came home a little early the next night," he said. "And guess what? There was my wife down on her knees in front of the television set blowing on the screen like mad and trying to cool it off."

Speaking of problems with womenfolk, a friend of mine had one with his very young daughter.

She had joined the Brownies—the knee-high version of the Girl Scouts—but after a while decided she wanted to get out.

"Well, honey, if you really feel sure you don't want to belong any more, just quit," said her father.

"It isn't that easy," said the little girl, dolefully. "They let you keep the blouse and skirt—but they make you rip the buttons off."

The father had an eerie vision in savings in organizing staffs of temporary workers, in payroll bookkeeping and tax accounting, in eliminating disruption of regular staffs, and in conserving executives' time.

WORLD RICE CROP FAILS TO GAIN

The world rice crop for the year ending in July will be about the same as for the last two years the Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations reports.

Since the war, the acreage planted to rice has been increased 5 per cent, but total production has not increased, due to poor weather and the use of marginal land.

MISSISSIPPI WINS U. S. PUT-TAKE

Federal taxes are a sort of put-and-take game, but some states do much better than others. An analysis of federal grants-in-aid and related payments to local governments, and federal payments to individuals for relief and other aid, compared with federal tax collections in each state show some surprising variations, the National Industrial Conference Board reports. For instance, Mississippi gets back 90.3 per cent of the amount of federal taxes collected, while Delaware gets only 2.2 per cent.

UNPAID POSTMEN GET OFFERS OF CREDIT

In every section of the country, alert business men created good will when the ghost failed to walk for postal employees last week. They were not paid because the necessary appropriations were held up by the Congressional deadlock on the necessary legislation.

Many banks announced interest-free loans to postal employees; business volunteered thousands of dollars in loans to postal welfare funds from which employees can borrow, and thousands of stores, including many who never grant credit, invited post office workers and their families to charge purchases.

It was a fine gesture and a smart one because postal employees, within limits of their earning power, are one of the best classes of credit risks.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—Now we add Mrs. Alben Barkley to the list of possible new first ladies. Her husband, the vice president, has tossed his hat into the ring for president.

I asked the comely, blue-eyed brunet wife of the "Veep" what she thought of the prospect. Her answer, "no comment," was reminiscent of the stock reply she dealt reporters when rumors began to fly over her approaching marriage to Mr. Barkley in 1949. "Politics is his province," she added. "I will let him do the talking for the family."

The former Jane Hadley, the St. Louis widow whom the now 74-year-old Veep met on a cruise down the Potomac and wed after a whirlwind, highly-publicized courtship, is now more immediately concerned with her daughter Anne Hadley's wedding to Weldon Beahrdt. She was addressing invitations to the ceremony, set for June 28 in the Veep's home at Paduch, Ky., when I called. She was also deep in preparation for the graduation of her younger daughter, Jane Hadley, from the Holton Arms school here.

"These things are about all I have time to think about just now," she said.

As wife of the vice president, Jane Barkley has met with ease and grace the demanding pressures of the role in the Capital's busy official and social life. She and the Veep enjoy parties and are in constant demand, but despite her heavy schedule, homemaking is a primary interest. Last year, because of her talents in this field, she was named "Outstanding Woman of the Year" by the Home Fashions League of Washington.

Mrs. Barkley, 40, was born at Keytesville, Mo. and grew up in Sedalia, Mo. She won the state high school medal in French. She spent a year in Switzerland and a year in Rome going to school. She later entered Washington University, hoping to study law, but dropped out after a year to marry Carlton S. Hadley, who died 14 years later.

She was vacationing in Washington in July 1949 as the guest of Clark M. Clifford, then special counsel to President Truman, and Mrs. Clifford, when she met the Veep. Her wit and beauty won his heart, and he didn't let the fact she was some 34 years his junior hold him back one bit.

The Nice Long Vacation

Chapter 29

He broke off, looking disconcerted as Aunt Harriet came into the room to announce: "Young man, you were not invited to dinner. Kindly take your things and leave."

"Aunt Hattie!"

The woman sniffed. "What can you say to him to make amends? Only marriage would do that, and you are not in love with him."

"She is," insisted William Dunbar. "She is."

"I beg to differ with you," said Aunt Hattie, taking him by the arm and escorting him to the hall. "My niece is engaged to marry a certain Dr. Bruce Hall and—"

"AUNT HATTIE!"

William halted, his mouth agape, looking at Jane who came charging into the hall.

"Aunt Hattie, you have no right to say such things. You must not hurt people!"

"But wouldn't it be even worse to marry a man you didn't love?" inquired Aunt Hattie. She turned and smiled gently at William.

"I'm sure you wouldn't want that, would you?"

He didn't answer in so many words. He simply studied Jane's face a moment, then got to his feet from the closet and left.

"You were cruel!" the girl snapped.

The woman shrugged. "Is the table set?"

"And that lie about Bruce!"

The bell rang again, but this time Aunt Hattie answered it.

"Hi," said Bruce Hall cheerfully. His face red from the cold, he stepped briskly into the hall.

"Nice of you to invite me, Miss Bancroft. Hello, Jane."

"Hello, Bruce."

He laughed as he removed his things. "You could be a bit more cordial. I made a long trip just to see you. If it hadn't been for you I would still be basking in the sunshine of Southern California."

"I—I—"

Aunt Hattie sighed. "Dinner is ready, if someone will just set the table. Jane, wake up!"

Bruce followed the girl into the dining room, grinning from ear to ear. "I'm very good at this sort of thing. I was raised by a very strict aunt who wanted things just so. So I learned; glory, how I learned. You're looking well."

The girl almost dropped the bone china she had got out of the china closet. "You have no right to be here."

"I received an invitation to dinner from your aunt. Naturally, I accepted. I always travel three thousands miles or so for dinner, didn't you know?"

"You're not being funny."

"Nor are you being helpful, darling."

"I'm not your darling. You were supposed to marry Alice."

"Yes, so I have been told." He took her by the hand and led her out into the living room. "Alice told me a great many things. It was most interesting. I didn't know that people were that silly. You know, you will have to stop being silly now that you are going to be a doctor's wife. It would never do for you to be silly where we're going."

"I am going nowhere," she said, staring at him, confused, bewildered, happy and terribly, terribly sad. "I am staying here. I have a job now, as a nurse. And Aunt Hattie and I are very happy."

"Alice is happy, too," he said with a faint smile. "It seems that she and Andy Bullit needed consolation, so they both have been consoling one another in New York. As a matter of fact, it was announced early last week that they are going to be married at Christmas. Nice, don't you think?"

She was utterly speechless for once.

"Life," he said, sitting down beside Jane again, "is a challenge. Do we have the strength to do the things with our lives that we want to do? Are we courageous enough to accept love, to marry, to bring children into this unhappy world? And are we decent enough to help those who need help? There is the whole sum of it in a paragraph. You love me. Are you brave enough to say good-bye to all the heebie-jeebies and marry me as a woman of twenty-nine ought?"

"I'm twenty-five, Bruce Hall."

"Liar."

"Besides, it wouldn't work out."

"Suppose you let me be the judge of that." He looked at his watch. "As a matter of fact, angel, you'll have to make up your mind pretty quick. I'm scheduled to take over a little community hospital in Alaska on the twenty-fifth of next month. I have all sorts of things to do before then. Tomorrow, for instance, I must be in Chicago to discuss things with the rich gentleman who is backing the institution."

"Alaska?" Her voice was a squeak.

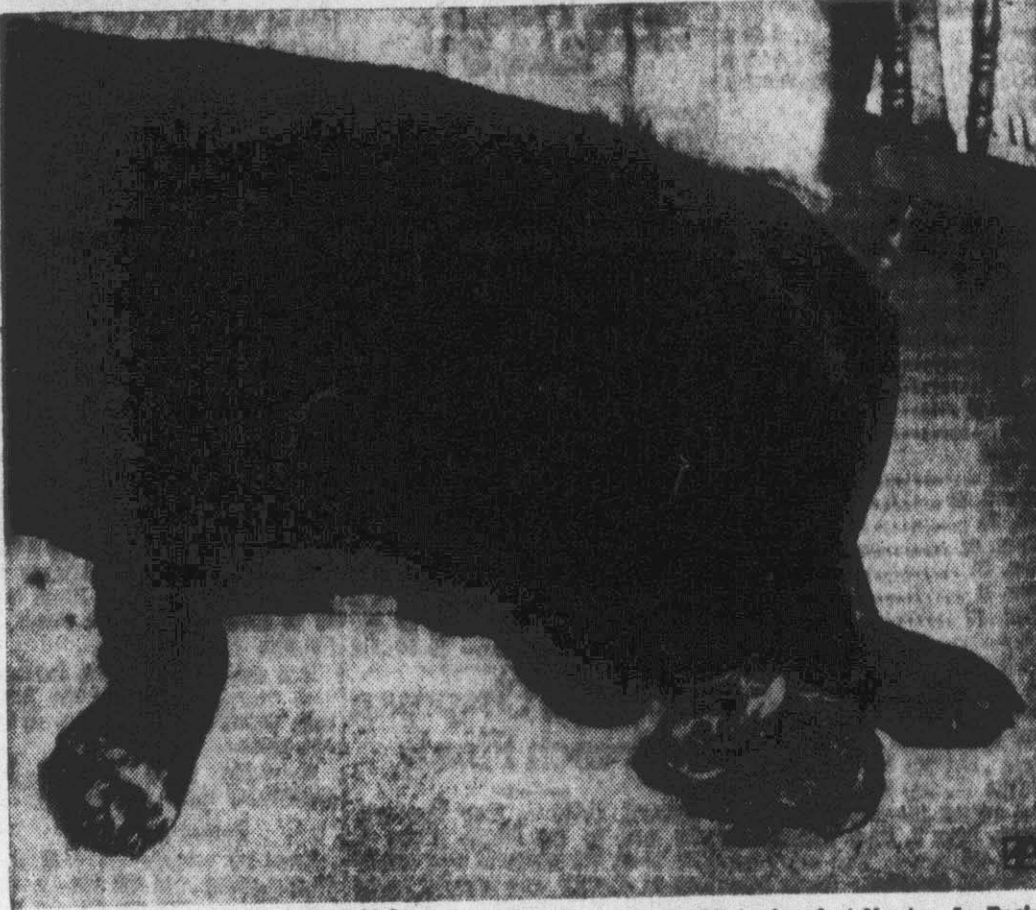

"It's America," he said warmly. "It's the new America. There's a place for us there, for everyone who thinks in terms of helping people and, yes, of helping their country. It is a challenge, too, a challenge I am going to accept. You and I would be very happy there, I think."

The door opened and Aunt Hattie came inside. "Well?" she demanded. "Well?"

Jane looked down at the tips of her shoes. Alaska! Just the thought of going to America's last frontier filled her with excitement. "He wants me to go to Alaska," she said in a small, troubled voice.

"He wants me to leave you alone here."

"Naturally. Who would want a person like me around? Well, I won't cry over you, if that's what's worrying you."

"But you'll be alone."

"Alone?" Her aunt was frankly astonished. "Alone in this town where I have spent my life. Where I have made so many friends? Young lady, you are much too conceited."

"Then I may go, Aunt Hattie? I may?"

Aunt Hattie didn't answer. Bruce, with a cry of joy, had surged up to take her into his arms, and Aunt Hattie always made it a rule never to speak when people weren't listening. "Waste not, want not," she often said, and she certainly had no intention of wasting words on people who were utterly deaf.

"From the beginning," whispered Jane, her face rosy. "Oh, from the beginning my darling."

"I know," he said. "I knew on the trail that night. Happy?"

She laughed, a song in her laughter. "So very, very happy; my angel."

Bible Words to Live by

JOHN 3:16 — "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

This verse is my favorite because it is so comprehensive. It is almost a miniature of the whole Gospel. It expresses God's love, his gift of Christ and the hope of redemption. While it seems to be voicing only the personal aspect of our faith, it is set in the social framework, and I like to think of that verse hanging like a picture on the walls of our minds.

More On-The-Farm Storage Facilities Required For Pitt

Pitt County agriculture is in definite need of increased on-the-farm storage facilities, according to J. L. Wilson, chairman of the county PMA committee.

"Adequate farm storage," Wilson declared, "is an important part of farm and crop planning, and such expanded storage construction is within each reach of our farmers."

The PMA chairman pointed out that Commodity Credit Corporation guaranteed loans are available through the Pitt County PMA committee to finance up to 85 percent of the cost of storage facilities of sound construction and suitable capacity, strength and design.

Wilson explained that approved storage facilities will be needed by producers who avail themselves of farm storage price supporting loans, or purchase agreements, on 1952-crop peanuts. "This year's peanut price support program will enable farmers to hold peanuts under loans and purchase agreements and do a better marketing job," he said.

He emphasized that in that way, producers can take advantage of any seasonal market price increase above the guaranteed support price.

"Now, while crops are in early season growth," the chairman said, "is an ideal time for every farmer to give thought to his farm storage needs for the months and years ahead. If he's in need of additional storage, a CCC-guaranteed storage construction loan may meet the need."

Wilson explained that such a loan will cover most out-of-pocket costs for a storage building except the cost of labor usually employed on the farm. A loan may be made for a period up to five years, at an interest rate of four percent per annum, and money from the loan will be available to the farmers when the storage structure is completed, inspected and approved by the county committee.

Meanwhile, the farmer may use a committee-approved storage loan commitment to borrow from an approved lending agency, or he may obtain his loan direct from CCC.

Wilson urged all Pitt County farmers to visit the county PMA office and discuss their on-the-farm needs.

Greenies Drop Two Games To Pinetops In Bright Belt

May Beats Allen On 37th Hole To Win Championship

Reynolds May and W. L. Allen battled down to a sudden death Club Championship tournament out at the local Country Club course yesterday before May finally won the title with a par on the 37th hole.

It was the third time that May has taken the title, having won it two times previous to this. Allen, who held the record for the most championships won by any one local golfer, was after his fifth crown.

May led at the end of the first 18 holes of the scheduled 36-hole match, leading Allen, 2-up. Allen came back strong yesterday, however, and had five birdies and four pars on the first nine holes to erase May's margin, and go ahead himself, 2-up. He had a five-under par 31 for the nine holes.

At the beginning of the last nine, Allen increased his margin more by winning the 28th hole with a birdie. May started his comeback then, winning four of the remaining eight holes.

The champ took the 30th with a birdie after halving the 29th. May and Allen then won both the 31st and 32nd, and May then won both the 33rd and 34th. Allen came back to take the 35th hole, but May ended matters by winning the last hole.

After forcing the match into a sudden death playoff, May took matters in his own hands then and won the 37th hole with a par.

There are bands on most fish scales which are much like tree rings, dark bands indicating winters, when food is short.

It is estimated that American Indians must have cultivated the corn plant for about 5,000 years.

Maxwell, Chapman In French Finals

PARIS, (UP) — Billy Maxwell, who was in the fourth grade in 1939 when his opponent was champion of France was favored today to beat Dick Chapman of Pinehurst, N. C., in the All-American 36-hole final of the French Amateur golf tournament.

The powerful, 22-year-old United States Amateur champion from Odessa, Tex., reached the finale yesterday when he over whelmed John Plant, British champion of Egypt, 6 and 4, and then beat Kenneth Thom of Great Britain, 1-up. The 41-year-old Chapman, meanwhile, defeated Billy Shields of Albany, N. Y., 5 and 4 in his morning round and topped defending champion Robert Knowles of Brookline, Mass., 2 and 1.

Heath Hurls No-Hitter As Farmville Wins 10-2 Game

Farmville-Rodney Heath, a slim southpaw hurler that has set his sights on breaking almost all pitching records in the semi-pro Bright Belt League, came a step nearer his goal Saturday night.

Heath, a regular on East Carolina College's nine, hurled nine innings of no-hit ball against Stantonburg to win for his Farmville teammates, 10-2. His wildness in the second and eighth innings enabled Stantonburg to push across one run in each frame.

In previous games this year the Oak City native has hurled shutouts twice, including a two-hit 12-0 job over Ormondsville and a three-hitter against Fremont. He has appeared in five games this season, winning four of them. In his other appearance Heath was forced to retire at the end of the sixth inning because of illness. He had fanned a total of 66 men in the five games.

Streeter Tugwell led Farmville at bat in the game, pounding out two doubles, a triple and a single in five times at bat. Millard Webb collected two for two, while Mark Herring picked up a three-bagger.

Farmville also won Sunday's game after spotting Stantonburg a 9-0 lead, winning by a 15-9 score. Sandy Sanderson was the leader in Farmville's 13-hit batting attack, with two singles and a triple in four appearances at the plate. Herring doubled twice, while Joe Hines collected two safeties in two times up.

The winners used three pitchers in the game. James Hardison of Farm Life, started but was knocked out in the big five-run third inning. His relief, Red Benton, fared a little better before having to leave the game in the fifth. Joe Hines came in to finish up and get credit for the win.

The double victory put Farmville back into first place in the Bright Belt, lowering Stantonburg to second place.

Farmville plays Fremont here Wednesday night at 8 o'clock.

Airliner's Bar Becomes Nursery

NEW YORK (UP) — A double deck Stratocruiser droned toward London today with 106 women and children and one miserable man passenger.

As he boarded what was believed to be the largest transatlantic commercial flight in history, Frank Braun of Philadelphia asked: "Do you have a bar on this plane?"

When a crewman said the bar had been converted into a nursery, Braun, who was accompanied by his wife and two children, moaned: "What the hell am I going to do?"

Cab Carried Duo To Police Doors

NEW YORK (UP) — Cab driver Bennie Chietoro smiled when the man and woman signaled him to pick them up.

Chietoro recognized them as the pair who only a few minutes earlier had held up a Bronx liquor store yesterday. He purposely made a wrong turn and delivered them to a police station.

Dave Douglas Is Ardmore Winner

ARDMORE, Okla. (UP) — Dave Douglas insisted today "I'm too pooped to think about winning the National open," after climbing up and down the Arbuckle Mountain foothills for four winning rounds in the Ardmore Open golf tournament.

Douglas, tired but confident calmly played it safe to bogey the final hole yesterday for a 34-38-72 that gave him a one-under-par 72-hole total of 279 and a two-stroke edge over E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, the host pro.

"I knew I could double bogey that one and win, so I played it safe," Douglas said as he finished one three-hole back of Harrison, who had just posted a 34-38-72 for a 81.

Douglas picked up the regular PGA $2,400 first prize money, plus a $3,000 bonus donated by oilman Waco Turner to the winner, plus $135 as his share of the $5,956 Turner kicked in as "added money."

Saw Ten States In Lecture Tour

WICHITA, Kan. — (AP) — A 39-year-old Australian newsman is back at his Wichita typewriter, after a four months' lecture tour in ten states—Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, Utah, Missouri, Texas, Mississippi, California and Colorado, as well as Kansas.

Ralph Wilson Reid showed motion pictures of Australia—in black and white and in color — exhibited native Australian weapons, and tossed boomerangs all over the map.

Reid and his family flew to Wichita from Australia in September, 1948. They came here for special training for their oldest boy, John, now 10. Encephalitis, following measles, had left John physically active but retarded, unable to speak or understand.

John's still making good but slow progress at the Institute of Logopedics.

E. P. McCarthy-Heyzer, who did research work in Calcutta before coming here, claims to have seen, in company of other witnesses, the "trempendous" footprints of the Snowman.

C. W. F. Hold Meeting
The Christian Women's Fellowship held the final meeting of the year on Monday afternoon with Mrs. Lloyd Smith presiding. The meeting was opened by singing "Jesus Calls Us," and Mrs. A. C. Turnage gave the invocation.

Reports were given by the various committees and Mrs. R. D. Rouse, Sr., read notes from the guests at the annual Christian Home for the birthday gifts which the group had sent.

Mrs. C. L. Ivey introduced the program for the afternoon which dealt with home life. It was entitled "I Can Give You These Things," and was a dialogue between a mother and her great-grandmother, who came back to give invaluable assistance and advice to help erase the fears of her daughter's approaching marriage.

Mrs. Lloyd Smith had the part of the great-grandmother and Mrs. Ted Albritton was the mother. Mrs. R. D. Rouse, Sr., gave the devotional.

Mrs. Howard Moye, in a very impressive manner, conducted the installation service for the new officers and Mrs. Smith gave the prayer of installation.

Group Four hostesses for the afternoon served strawberry ice cream pie and salted nut during the social hour.

Mrs. G. A. Newton and Mrs. R. L. Corbett were Wilson visitors Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Tripp left on a trip Sunday morning for Detroit, Mich. They are planning to come back by New York. Mrs. E. H. Oakley accompanied them to Indiana.

Mr. and Mrs. Julian Smith and son, Richard, of Greensboro, came Wednesday to visit with Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Smith.

Miss Mary Torne Tyson, of Richmond, visited Wednesday through Sunday with her mother, Mrs. C. A. Tyson.

Lieut. Chester Langley, of Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md., spent some time at his home here.

Mrs. Skinner Willoughby was a Wilson visitor Thursday.

Mrs. Edward May and Sons, Alfred and Robert, attended the graduation exercises at Flora MacDonald College in Red Springs last Monday. Miss Elsie May returned with them to spend the summer.

Among early Anglo-Saxons a bridegroom was given a shoe by the bride's father and custom dictated that he strike his bride on the head with it to prove he was master.

Mystery Blast Behind Curtain

BERLIN (UP) — An anti-communist news agency said today that at least 13 persons were killed and 30 injured in an explosion at a Soviet Army testing ground at Penemunde on the Baltic.

Neither the date nor the cause of the explosion was given by the agency, known as "Information Bureau West." Penemunde was the site of the Nazis' V-1 and V-2 rocket testing station during World War II.

Preparing For Germ Warfare

ALBANY — (AP) — New York State is mobilizing animal, crop and insect experts under a civil program to protect food and livestock against possible germ warfare.

Measures have been taken to spot and stamp out animal and plant diseases that might result from enemy biological warfare attacks.

The program objectives include investigation and research, immediate surveying of newly reported outbreaks of plant or animal disease, and the development of special methods of detection.

The quality of milk is largely determined by federal marketing orders, state milk legislation and municipal health departments.

Stocks And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Trading lightened and the stock market narrowed today after last week's active spurt.

Sales to noon totaled 520,000 shares compared with 670,000 shares on Friday in the same period. Up to noon 860 issues were traded, against 910 in the Friday deals.

Prices moved up early in the session and held small gains at mid-session except in the utility division which lost a few cents on average.

Oil stood out as the strong spots. Most of the best gainers were among the group outside the list used for the averages and hence did not sway that component.

Amerasia rose 4 points to 211 1/2 and Barber Oil hit a new high at 97 up 3 1/2 points. Shelly and Texas Pacific Land Trust held gains of a point each. Jersey Standard rose a point and then eased slightly from the high.

Steel firms on anticipation of an early settlement of the strike. Motors held steady slightly under the previous close. Rails ruled firm. A few outside the average group gained more than a point, including Northern Pacific, and Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis. Metals, chemicals, and electronics held firm.

Mountain Slide Fatal For Four

AOSTA, Italy (UP)—Four persons were killed here today by a landslide which threatened to cause a flood in the Bionaz valley near the Swiss border.

The landslide tumbled down the slopes of Mount Luseney, near Bionaz, and across Buthier Creek, which flows into the valley, a lake more than a mile wide had backed up this morning.

Officials ordered villages in the valley evacuated because they feared the water would push through the tons of earth across the creek and inundate the villages.

Dr. R. L. Hildrup Addresses Club

The speaker of the evening last Friday at the Kiwanis Club meeting was Dr. R. L. Hildrup of the History Department of Mary Washington College, Fredericksburg, Virginia, formerly of East Carolina College. Dr. Hildrup recounted many changes in Greenville noticed during his eight years of absence. He said that the last eight year period has also been a time of extraordinary changes throughout the world. These changes are putting the American ideals and institutions to a stern test. He outlined the differences in our system of government and ideals which had made it possible for us to rise to a place of great leadership and influence in the world and warned against trifling with these fundamental advantages to make some temporary gain. He thought that America, to continue strong and be worthy and effective as a leader, must adhere to its fundamental historic principles.

Dr. Hildrup, who is teaching at the summer school at the college here was presented by Dr. John O. Reynolds, who was in charge of the program. President Milo E. Smith presided. The attendance prize was won by Roger Collins. Arthur ("Pot") Johnson and Jimmy Mellon, two Circle K Club boys from East Carolina College were guests. Sympathy of the club was expressed to Kiwanian Ed Tyler, it being reported that Mrs. Tyler's brother and his mother-in-law and one of his children were killed by an explosion in their home at Vallejo, California a few days ago.

The Club voted unanimously to commend Chief Guy Langston for his work in Greenville and to express its hope that he would continue with the Police Department.

Doctor Injured In Auto Accident

Dr. D. L. Moore of Greenville, and his family, were injured slightly in an automobile accident early Saturday night near Concord while they were on vacation.

Dr. Moore, his wife and one of his children were shaken up, and bruised in the accident which completely demolished their car. Dr. Moore was brought home by ambulance yesterday and is in the Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Reports this morning said that the doctor was "resting pretty well."

Manuscript Has Gone With Wind

ATLANTA — (AP) — Only a few of the many thousands of pages that made up the manuscript for the record-breaking novel "Gone With the Wind" remain in existence. Stephens Mitchell, brother of the author, Margaret Mitchell, disclosed recently that after Miss Mitchell's death her husband, John R. Marsh, burned most of the manuscript in accordance with her wishes.

The few remaining pages were stored in a vault to be used in the event of any legal questions arising as to the authenticity of authorship. The original manuscript has been sought by many libraries and Miss Mitchell didn't want to leave any personal belongings in existence after her death.

Mitchell said this feeling of his sister's about personal possessions even applied to the family home on Peachtree Street, now occupied by himself. She had requested that it never pass outside the family so after Mitchell moves in the near future it is to be torn down. Marsh's death this year left Stephens Mitchell as his sister's heir.

Salvaged Enough Evidence From Drain For Case

A jar of "white lightning" went down a Greenville drain early Saturday night, but officers salvaged enough of the "high proof" stuff to place Julia Taft and James King, both Negroes, in the city jail.

Along with a small amount of bootleg booze, officers seized 15 pints of taxpaid whiskey at 714 Ford Street. One officer stated that as they approached the house a jar of white liquor was poured down the drain, but enough was left in the jar to provide proof of its contents.

The two Negroes were placed in city jail in default of $200 bond each for appearance in Recorder's Court this morning. The arrests were made by officers of the ABC force, county sheriff's department and the city police department.
