Gen. MacArthur Chosen Keynote For Nat'l GOP Rally In Chicago

Only Name Put Up
For Nomination; No
Speakers Against His Choice

CHICAGO (UP) — Gen. Douglas MacArthur was named today as the keynote speaker for the Republican national convention which will open here July 7.

The convention arrangements committee named MacArthur by a voice vote after his name was the only one placed in nomination.

A spokesman for the arrangements committee said there was a scattering of "no" votes but that the overwhelming preponderance of the committee voted "aye."

MacArthur's name was placed in nomination by G. Mason Owlett, national committeeman from Pennsylvania.

There were no speakers against the nomination.

Owlett called MacArthur "a great soldier, a great statesman, a great American."

"The speeches of his man have convinced American citizens that he is endowed with a religious fervor in his concern for the future of the country and of the world," Owlett said.

The slight opposition apparently indicated that the supporters of Gen. Dwight Eisenhower did not consider the keynote speaker's position important enough to warrant a fight against MacArthur, who is an avowed supporter of Sen. Robert A. Taft.

Earlier, J. Russell Sprague of New York, an Eisenhower man and member of the committee, said that "we'd take anyone who is impartial."

Walter Hallinan, vice-chairman of the GOP national committee and national committeeman from West Virginia, was chosen temporary chairman.

Rep. Joseph W. Martin Jr., Massachusetts, was recommended for the permanent chairmanship for his fourth consecutive term. Martin's selection was by unanimous voice vote. He was nominated by J. Carroll Reece, national committeeman from Tennessee.

MacArthur came out publicly before the South Dakota primary last week and voiced his support for Taft.

But Sprague admitted he had little chance to swing the pro-Taft committee away from MacArthur.

In New York, MacArthur's assistant, Maj. Gen. Courtney Whitney, said that MacArthur would not make a decision on whether to accept an invitation to keynote the convention until an actual invitation had been made to him.

However, those boomer MacArthur's selection described him as the "best orator in the Republican Party."

It customarily is the duty of the keynote to outline party policies. And the keynote speaker usually serves in the double capacity of keynote and temporary chairman, directing the work of the convention until a permanent chairman is selected.

Yesterday the committee voted to limit nominating speeches to 15 minutes and seconding speeches to four or five minutes.

Enemy Losses Reported As Low

SEOUL, Korea (UP) — Communist casualties for the first week in June were the lowest since mid-February, the 8th Army reported today.

The United Nations claimed 1,600 Communist troops killed, wounded or captured in patrol-type fighting that characterized action throughout the month.

Hail Again Lashes Pitt County Tobacco

GRIFTON—Hail, accompanied by heavy winds and rain, struck this section of Pitt county last night for the second time within five days.

The latest hailstorm extended from a point near Edwards' Bridge on Contentment creek to Honolulu and Epworth, leaving a trail of stripped and broken tobacco stalks for a radius of nearly 15 miles. From first reports of the storm it is believed that it did more damage than the first one, which fell last Thursday.

Grifton was not the only section hit as the storm moved around and over into Beaufort county. Lenoir county farmers near the Pitt line have also reported heavy losses from the downpour.

Jesse Quinley's farm, located about five miles from Grifton in the St. John's community, was the hardest hit of the farms reported this morning. An early estimate of the damage done to Quinley's farm, in which was planted approximately 35 acres of tobacco, shows that nearly 70 per cent of the crop was destroyed. The tobacco was not insured. Another farm belonging to Quinley with 10 acres of

Clark Favors Hitting Red China If Air Power Loosed

Declares Nothing New
In Letter From Communists;
Would Expect Enemy To Use
Air Force If New Offensive
Opened By Enemy

TOKYO (UP) — Gen. Mark W. Clark said today that if the Communists unleash their 1,000-plane air force in a new offensive, the United Nations should strike back "with no holds barred."

His statement, made to the United Press, implied clearly his belief that the U. N. should retaliate by bombing Chinese Communist territory.

"As for my personal opinion, in the event that he does strike with his full air strength, there should be no holds barred," Clark said.

The supreme U. N. commander said there was "nothing new" in the message sent him yesterday by the Communist high command in North Korea, and that there still was no military sign of an offensive in the immediate future.

But he said he had "reason to expect" that the Communists would use all available air power if they renew all-out war.

For the time being at least the truce talks will go on, Clark and his delegates in Panmunjom rejected the Red demand that they cut short the U. N.-declared three-day recess, but the talks will resume tomorrow as originally scheduled.

Clark told the United Press in an exclusive interview that he was preparing to answer the Communist letter "after closely studying the motives behind it."

The letter was signed by Gen. Kim Il Sung, North Korean premier and supreme commander, and Gen. Peng Te Hual, commander of the Chinese "volunteers."

Clark said it was his personal opinion that a Communist air offensive should be countered "with no holds barred."

So far the Reds have used their planes almost entirely to intercept U. N. fighter-bombers deep in North Korea. They have made no major effort against Allied ground troops or rear areas.

"If the enemy, as he has in his past offensives, attacks largely with ground forces and fails to implement his full air capability," Clark said, "it is likely our air operations will be restricted to Korea for the same reasons as before."

101 Degrees

It happened.
The temperature reached and surpassed the 100 mark yesterday by one degree. But, a little relief came last night though no rainfall was recorded. Low yesterday was recorded at 76.

The last high temperature was recorded at an even 100 last July 24 and there were only two days left last summer that the mercury reached 99.

High last June 9 was 98 and low was at 66 degrees. Half an inch of rain fell on that date last year.

The temperature was recorded at 79 degrees at 8 a.m. this morning.

Connally Jubilant Over Foreign Aid

Hails Final Senate
Vote As 'Great Day'
For Free Nations

WASHINGTON (UP) — Chairman Tom Connally of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today hailed the Senate's approval of the foreign aid bill as "a great vote and a great day for the free nations of the earth."

The Texas Democrat said the 50 to 11 vote by which the trimmed-down $6,431,249,750 mutual security measure was sent to the White House yesterday will encourage Western Europe to approve the West German "peace contract" and the six-nation European defense community.

However, administration officials noted the bill was trimmed nearly $1,500,000,000 below the amount President Truman said was needed for military, economic and technical aid to the free world during fiscal 1953, beginning July 1. They said it would require a "sharp and discouraging" slash in Europe's defense goals.

A top administration official said the reductions in the bill, which cut deepest into military and economic aid for Europe, will mean that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization cannot reach its 1952 goal of 50 divisions and 4,000 planes.

But Connally noted that the Senate went along with the administration and defeated a move by Sen. James P. Kem (R-Mo.) to write in an iron-clad ban against further aid to nations which trade with Communist or Red-dominated countries.

Connally also said the Senate's action expressed general agreement with the views expressed by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower before he stepped down as commander of the NATO army.

Russia Rejects Arms Reduction Scheme At U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UP) — Russia rejected today a Western proposal to limit the armed forces of the United States, the Soviet Union and China to 1,500,000 men while putting a ceiling of 800,000 on those of Britain and France.

Soviet Delegate Jacob A. Malik told the United Nations disarmament commission that Russia believes the proposal, promoted by Britain, the U. S. and France, "is a smoke-screen for a policy of arms" on the part of the West.

He said, however, that if the three Western governments actually intended to reduce their armed strength by at least one-third simultaneously with a decision to ban atomic weapons, "the Soviet delegation does not foresee any difficulties in the way of agreement on concrete indices about a reduction of arms and armed forces."

Mutilated Coins Collected Weekly

Also Slugs, Bits Of Wood And Washers
In Parking Meters

It is certainly a motley mass of mutilated "moola" which weekly falls from the minute maws of city parking meters into collectors' boxes.

Such artistic creations as hand-carved pennies, nickels and dimes are featured in the collections, but they are supplemented by slugs, washers, spur gasoline tokens and wooden discs laboriously whittled to coin size by some ingenious craftsman.

Those unorthodox devices collected by the city over a two-month period number approximately 500 pennies, warped by every conceivable assault from hammer blows to rifle bullets; 100 nickels and dimes with holes cut through the middle, or shaved around the edges; dozens of slugs, spur tokens and washers; and a half-dozen ice cream spoons shaved down.

Collectors say they amass about $3.50 per week in dimes, which do not even register on the meters, but they are for the most part damaged in some way. The meters are emptied every Sunday morning, and the warped coins and other articles are stored in the city vault.

The capacity of each meter, according to collectors, is approximately 250 pennies or 100 nickels.

NEW YORK (UP) — Actor John Garfield left his $100,000 estate to his wife, Roberta, according to his will filed for probate yesterday.

Garfield, 30, the rage to riches tough guy of the stage and movies, suffered a fatal coronary seizure May 21 while visiting in the apartment of Iris Whitney, an ex-actress friend.

The will, dated Dec. 24, 1951, directed that the residue of his estate after payment of debts and expenses go to Mrs. Roberta Garfield. It read in part:

"I give and bequeath to each of my children now born or born after the date of this will the sum of $1 each."

The Garfields had two children, Julie Garfield, six, and David, nine, both of whom live with their mother.

Explosion Levels Suburb In Milan

MILAN, Italy (UP) — An explosion ripped apart a three-story building in a Milan suburb today killing at least eight persons and burying 16 others in rubble.

Eight bodies were recovered and six seriously injured persons dug out of the ruins an hour after the blast. It was estimated at least 10 other persons still were trapped in the rubble.

A preliminary investigation by firemen and police indicated the explosion was caused by gas leakage. The cellar of the building was the distribution center for gas for the surrounding area.

Negro Leaders
Gratified Over
Action By Court

Climaxes Long Campaign
Against Segregation
In Schools By NAACP

WASHINGTON (UP) — Negro leaders said today they are "gratified" that the issue of racial segregation in public schools is now squarely before the Supreme Court.

The court's acceptance of two test cases at the closing session of its term yesterday climaxed years of effort by Negro groups to get a ruling on the long-standing dispute.

The appeals from lower court judgments in Charleston, S. C., and Topeka, Kan., will be argued orally before the high bench next fall. Then the court will hand down a written opinion.

In another action involving segregation, the court invalidated a 1948 bargaining agreement made by the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen with the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway. It ruled that the contract was illegal because it would set a group of train porters from their jobs solely on racial grounds.

Both of the school cases were started by Negro parent groups supported by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. Thurgood Marshall, chief counsel for NAACP, said they present a "clear cut" test of the constitutionality of segregation.

"We of course feel that the Constitution forbids racial segregation (in the public schools) and appreciate the opportunity to litigate the question in the true tradition of our democracy," he said.

Gov. James P. Byrnes of South Carolina, a former Supreme Court justice, has said his state may abolish its public school system if the Negroes eventually win.

In making its decision, the high court must either affirm or overrule the long-recognized "separate but equal" racial doctrine enunciated in 1896. It was then that the Constitution permits segregation of both races are afforded "equal facilities."

Siege Lifted On Russian Radio

BERLIN (UP) — The British lifted their seven-day siege of Soviet-controlled Radio Berlin today but the Communists barricaded the station for another eight hours before taking notice.

British forces removed barbed wire entanglements and ended the blockade they had imposed June 28, retaliation for Soviet isolation of Western-held "islands" in East German territory.

The radio station, though under Communist direction, is located in the British zone of West Berlin.

Battle Tempo Is Stepping Up

SEOUL, Korea (UP) — Swelled force of United Nations and Chinese Red troops clashed today in the fourth day of a sharp fight for an Allied-held strategic hill position on the uneasy Korean Western Front.

A U. S. Eighth Army briefing officer said "activity has increased all along the Western Front and that patrol actions are 'longer and more intense.'"

Fighting and shelling increased on the Central and Eastern Fronts, the officer said.

Price Hike For Beer Authorized

WASHINGTON (UP) — You soon may be paying a penny a can more for beer.

The Office of Price Stabilization today authorized wholesale price boosts for beer that could mean a one-cent retail jump on some brands in some areas.

Birthday Today For Young Duke

LONDON (UP) — The Duke of Edinburgh observed his 31st birthday today and gun salutes were fired to mark the occasion.

A royal 62-gun salute was fired from the Tower of London saluting battery at noon to mark the first time the Duke had been honored.

In Hyde Park the king's troop of the Royal Horse Artillery fired a 41-gun salute.

Thirty-One Prisoners
Killed, Some By Fellow
Inmates; Reds In Adjoining Compound
Surrendered After Watching
Bloody Fight

KOJIMA ISLAND, Korea (UP) — Tough American paratroops whipped 6,400 fanatic Communist war prisoners into submission today in a savage battle of tanks, bayonets, flame throwers and bare fists against primitive spears and arrows.

It was announced officially that one American soldier was killed when a spear severed a vein. Thirty-one prisoners were killed. Fourteen Americans and 139 prisoners were wounded.

Twelve prisoners died of spear wounds inflicted by their own fanatical Red commissars because they refused to fight, or tried to obey the Allied order to move out of Compound 76 into smaller 500-man enclosures.

The battle raged for two and one-half hours in Compound 76, center of resistance for the island's 80,000 prisoners.

Tanks and flamethrowers led the way as the paratroops surged through holes cut in the barbed wire around the compound. Communists were dug into trenches or barricaded in compound buildings.

A shower of stones, spears and arrows from home-made bows bounced harmlessly off three tanks which spearheaded the attack. Twelve other tanks with flamethrowers and 90-millimeter guns stood outside, their crews ready.

Confederate Rebel yell and the paratroop rallying cry "A-1-B-C-D-E" mingled with the screams and chants of defiant Communists as troops of the 197th Regimental Combat Team hit the Red lines.

The victory in Compound 76, Red headquarters, convinced nearly 12,000 prisoners in two adjoining compounds—77 and 78—that resistance was futile.

The troops moved 12,759 prisoners into the smaller compounds. They shifted 6,410 from Compound 76 and 6,349 from Compound 78. The 6,286 inmates of Compound 77, whose spokesman already has said they will obey, will be moved at 9 a. m. tomorrow.

It was announced only nine anti-Communists were found alive in Compound 76 and 78.

The paratroops seized 15 Red commissars, found a secret tunnel linking Compound 76 with 77 and captured "battle plans" the Communists had prepared for breaking out and escaping into the hills.

Many of the Communists apparently attempting to surrender, were killed by their own leaders. "The Communist leaders have done their best to goad us into using force," Brig. Gen. Haydon L. Boatner, camp commander who directed the operation splitting up the compounds, said.

"If there must be bloodshed, let there be bloodshed. After all, this is war," he said.

A paratrooper, Cpl. Walter Yanulovic, 33, Elizabeth, N. J. "It was bloody. We went in throwing tear gas and concussion grenades. The Communies in trenches in front of the buildings dared us to come in with bayonets and barehands."

"By God we did."

"We had to leap into and across the trenches to get to the main part of the compound. We couldn't use grenades because it was all mixed up."

"We fought them with bayonets and we fought them with fists. It was bloody."

Two other troops said they saw Communists who attempted to surrender spared by fellow prisoners. How many of the Communist dead were killed by Red fanatics was not known.

Yanulovic said he saw "about eight bodies hanging by their feet" in one building. He said they had been stabbed and beaten.

Some 6,000 Americans took part in the battle of Compound 76. The compound was the center of resistance for the island prisoners and held the 15 Red leaders who seized Col. Francis T. Dodd on May 7.

Charge Refugee Grabbed Whiskey

LA PAZ, Bolivia (UP) — Police have charged refugee ex-President Mamerto Urriolagoitia with taking $120,000 worth of whiskey and champagne from the Presidential Palace when he resigned and left the country a year ago.

The charge was contained in a three-count indictment which also accused Urriolagoitia of collecting double pay during 19 months as president and of concealing weapons and ammunition on his ranch.

Urriolagoitia was elected vice president in 1947 and became president in October, 1949, when Enrique Hertzog resigned in May, 1951. He surrendered power to a military junta which was overthrown this year by a revolution.

UMT Is Favored
By Local C-of-C
Over Draft Law

By MURIEL SHOTWELL
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Chamber of Commerce last night voted on two referendums, one of which calls for the establishment of a permanent universal military training program, presented them by the United States Chamber of Commerce.

The board acted on the referendum from the national chamber on how future needs for military manpower should be met. The referendum carried two proposals:

One, the establishment of a permanent system of universal military training to be put into operation as soon as the requirements of the Selective Service have diminished sufficiently to make manpower available for universal military training;

Two, to continue reliance on the present system of Selective Service for as long as it may be necessary.

The local chamber devoted considerable discussion to the two important proposals of the referendum before any action was taken. They weighed the pros and cons of each proposal, realizing that the nation must have military manpower and keep it.

When approving the first proposal the local chamber cited their reasons as having the safety of the nation in mind and feeling "that since young men will have to serve in the armed forces eventually, universal training is the best way."

The other referendum the local chamber approved was the dividing up of chambers of commerce into small divisions as it is now and appoint a vice-president for each division to serve as a representative.

The national chamber stated that because of its increased responsibilities, its members throughout the country should be brought closer together. The smaller divisions would serve in bringing the headquarters of the chamber closer to its members.

Beer Reports

A number of committees' reports were heard last night at the board meeting.

The Civics Affairs committee, headed by Hartwell Campbell, reported that the board's recommendations were presented to the Greenville Board of Aldermen at its last meeting. The recommendations were submitted to the city fathers first by letter and then attention was called to them at their meeting.

The committee asked for the establishment of a sub-fire station in West Greenville, use of parking meter revenue for use in establishing off-street parking lots, and for the establishment of public rest rooms if a survey finds they are needed.

The membership committee reported last night that eight of the chamber's members had voluntarily increased their dues to put the chamber in the position to render services expected of it. It was also reported that one member had been re-instated, and three new members have come into the local Chamber of Commerce.

Beauty Contestants In Rehearsal Tonight

A preliminary rehearsal for all entries in the Greenville Jaycee Beauty Pageant will be held tonight at 7:30 in Austin Auditorium.

Pageant Chairman Julian White announced today.

According to White, the rehearsal will not feature any talent presentation but is designed to familiarize contestants with the stage and sequence of appearance. "No special dress or props will be required tonight," he stated.

At a meeting of the steering committee last night, final instructions were given the various committee responsibilities in the pageant presentation. Tickets for the Thursday night event may be obtained from any member of the local Jaycee organization.

In addition to the parade of 11 of Pitt County's loveliest girls—displaying beauty of face and figure, and poise and talent—a dance will be held. Following the Austin Auditorium crowning of Miss Greenville, who will receive a $250

President Appears
Before Emergency
Joint Session Of Congress
In Making Appeal; Says T-H Law
Injunction Unfair
Now; Strike Negotiations Deadlocked

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Truman asked Congress today for a law authorizing the government to seize the steel industry and run it until the contract dispute is settled.

Mr. Truman, in an extraordinary personal appearance before a joint session of Congress, said a "properly drafted" seizure law can assure steel production, treat both parties "fairly" and encourage collective bargaining.

"I hope the Congress will act quickly," Mr. Truman said. "The issue of peace or war hangs in the balance, and steel is a vital element in the outcome."

"The issue is squarely up to Congress," the President said. "I hope the Congress will meet it by enacting fair and effective legislation."

Mr. Truman said use of the Taft-Hartley law injunction would be "grossly unfair" to the 650,000 striking United Steelworkers because they had postponed their walkout many times before finally striking June 2.

If, however, Congress wants to obtain an injunction against the strike, the President said, it should direct the President to seek such a court order without waiting for the appointment and report of a fact-finding board as required by the Taft-Hartley Act.

The Taft-Hartley approach, Mr. Truman said, would be "unwise, unfair, and quite possibly ineffective."

Mr. Truman went before the joint session 18 hours after the steel negotiations collapsed at the White House last night.

But while the nine-day-old strike of the 650,000 steelworkers went on, preparations were rushed to resume production at steel plants turning out the goods for the defense effort.

Acting Defense Mobilizer John R. Sizeman called government officials to a meeting to decide which plants should reopen to provide the critical needs of the Korean war.

CIO President Philip Murray promised last night that workers would return to the plants the government deems necessary to keep running to turn out war goods. The steel workers had walked out minutes after the Supreme Court nullified Mr. Truman's April 8 seizure of the industry.

Mr. Truman said "we cannot expect to get enough steel in this way to meet all of the essential needs of the defense program."

In asking for a seizure law, the president indirectly asked also for authority to raise workers' wages. Noting that the Constitution protects property owners during a period of government operation by "requiring that they be given just compensation," Mr. Truman said:

Armstrong-Worthington Bridal Parties Reported

Miss Betty Lou Worthington of Ayden, who was married on Sunday, was the honoree at a number of pre-nuptial courtesies last week prior to her wedding.

The entertainments which were extended in her honor were various luncheons, teas, suppers and card parties, at which she was remembered with gifts as guest of honor.

On Thursday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Caphart entertained at bridge for Miss Betty Lou Worthington, bride-elect. The party was held at the couple's home in Washington, N. C.

The house was attractively decorated in the bridal motif. Upon arriving the guests were served a dessert course. During the evening bridge was played. The high score prize went to Mr. and Mrs. Bill Stroud and consolation to Mr. and Mrs. Jim Abernathy. The bride-elect was remembered with ice bucket and was also given a corsage.

The following guests were present: Miss Worthington and Mr. Ivan Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Stroud, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Abernathy, Miss Sue Jackson, and Mr. Billy Jenkins of Ayden.

Buffet Supper
Mr. and Mrs. Bill Stroud entertained Miss Betty Lou Worthington, bride-elect, at a buffet supper on Friday evening. A delicious supper was served to the wedding party on the lawn of their home.

After supper croquet and horseshoe pitching were played.

Miss Worthington was remembered with a set of table silver.

Bridal Luncheon
On Saturday, Mrs. J. H. Whitaker and Mrs. J. H. Whitaker Jr. entertained at a luncheon for Miss Betty Lou Worthington, bride-elect, at their home on West Fourth St. in Ayden.

The house and tables were tastefully decorated in a bridal motif and a delicious three course luncheon was served to the following: Miss Worthington, Mesdames T. G. Worthington, J. R. Abernathy, W. S. Avant, David Finch, Pauline Taylor, W. A. Cade, Bill Stroud, Anthony Caphart, and Misses Kacey Blue, Mary Ann Carter, and Patricia Foy.

Miss Worthington was remembered with a place setting of her silver and also a corsage of flowers.

Bridesmaids' Tea
Miss Betty Lou Worthington entertained at tea for her bridesmaids at her home on Saturday afternoon at four o'clock. Iced drinks and cakes decorated to represent the bridal party were served. Miss Worthington remembered her bridesmaids with silver picture frames.

Supper Party
Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Armstrong, parents of the groom, gave a dinner for the Worthington-Armstrong wedding party on Saturday evening at Reapers-James Barbecue House in West End Circle.

Beautiful flowers were used as a centerpiece with accessory vases along the tables. Bridal place cards were used to mark the seating arrangement.

The honor guests were presented a place setting of silver in their pattern.

After-Rehearsal Party
Mr. and Mrs. James R. Abernathy entertained for the Worthington-Armstrong wedding party immediately after the rehearsal at their home on 3rd Street.

The home was decorated in bridal motif. Iced drinks and hors d'oeuvres were served to around 30 guests.

Wedding Luncheon
Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Worthington, parents of the bride, entertained for the Worthington-Armstrong wedding party at a luncheon at Hotel Kingston on Sunday prior to the wedding.

White flowers were used to decorate the tables in the Kingston Room. Miss Worthington was given a gardenia corsage for the occasion.

Local Artist Has Painting In Michigan Exhibition

James A. Walker, city art supervisor, is currently being represented by having a watercolor painting, "Quartette," accepted by the Michigan Water Color Society 1952 Exhibition.

The exhibition is being held consecutively at the Detroit Institute of Fine Arts, Museum of Art and Alumni Memorial Hall of the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

Mr. Walker's painting was also selected for the Michigan Water Color Society's traveling exhibition, the itinerary of which includes many Michigan and outstate galleries.

Mims-Stancill Vows Said In Mt. Pleasant Church

The marriage of Miss Mattie Brown Stancill to Spencer Rollins Mims, Jr., took place on Sunday afternoon, May 26, at 4 o'clock in the Mt. Pleasant Christian Church.

The double ring ceremony was conducted by Dr. Robert L. Holt, director of Religious Education at East Carolina College. Prior to the ceremony George Perry, teacher of piano and organ at East Carolina College, presented a program of wedding music consisting of "Air for G String," "Aria from Concerto 156," and "Jesus, Joy of Man's Desiring" by J. S. Bach.

"Second Movement from the Pathétique Sonata," by Beethoven, and "Beau Soir," by Debussy. Mrs. Herbert Carter sang "I Have Just One Song," and "The Cloths of Heaven" by Dunhill.

Ushers for the wedding were William Glasgow, Jr., of Rocky Mount, Tommy Mims of Henderson, Johnny Stancill and O. J. Stancill, of Greenville.

The bride and bridegroom entered the church together. The bride wore a ballerina-length dress of white chantilly lace over taffeta, with a shoulder length veil, which was designed and made by her aunt, Mrs. Offie J. Stancill. She also wore an orchid corsage.

The mother of the bride wore a navy blue nylon dress with navy accessories, and a corsage of white gladioli.

The bridegroom's mother wore a dress of blue and white linen with navy accessories, and a corsage of gladioli.

Following the ceremony the couple received in the vestibule of the church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Russell Stancill of Greenville. She is a graduate of the Greenville High School and at present is a student of East Carolina College.

Mr. Mims is the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Mims of Henderson, North Carolina, and received his B. S. degree from East Carolina College in February. He is now teaching summer school band at Greenville High School.

The couple toured the Western part of the state on their wedding trip. For traveling the bride wore a blue suit with white accessories and her wedding orchid. They are now making their home at 304 Pitt Street in Greenville.

Following the rehearsal on Saturday night, Mr. and Mrs. Offie J. Stancill entertained the bride and bridegroom at a cake cutting at their home in Hillsdale.

Girl Scouts Attend Dance

FARMVILLE—Mrs. W. R. Burke and son, Billy, entertained a group of Girl Scouts and their escorts at a formal dance at the hut Thursday night of last week.

About 40 boys and girls enjoyed the festivities of the evening. Miss Patsy Flanagan of Greenville, house guest of Miss Janice Atkinson, was an out-of-town guest.

A color note of pink, blue and yellow was carried in the lovely flower arrangements, the refreshment table decorations and the refreshments. Roses, larkspur, ragged robins, daisies, yarrow and hydrangea were used. Pink, blue and yellow lighted tapers on the mantel and the refreshment table furnished the illumination for the dance.

The refreshment table was covered with a white embroidered cloth, centered with a basket bouquet of flowers. The ends of the table were decorated with pink butterfly bows that were centered with blue ragged robins, yellow daisies and greenery.

Mrs. Sam Lewis and Mrs. J. M. Mewborn alternately presided at the punch bowl during the evening. A yellow fruit punch was served from a crystal punch bowl in which green leaves in moon and star designs were used.

During intermission sandwiches, brownies, doughnuts, potato chips, salted peanuts and pickles were served.

Masonic Speaker

W. H. White (above) of Sanford, Grand Master of Masons in North Carolina, will deliver the principal address at the annual meeting of the Fifth Masonic District in Grifton.

The annual meeting will be held Wednesday, July 2, beginning at 3:00 p.m. with a session of all lodge officers and other Masons.

A general meeting will be held in the evening at which time all lodges will make brief reports on activities. Grand Master White will bring a masonic address and message.

The lodges of the Fifth Masonic District include Farmville, Ayden, Bethel, Grimesland, Greenville, Robertsonville, and Grifton.

The arrangements for the meeting are being made by Sam D. Bundy, District Deputy Grand Master of the Fifth District, and Harry L. Gray, Master of the Grifton Lodge which will be host for the occasion.

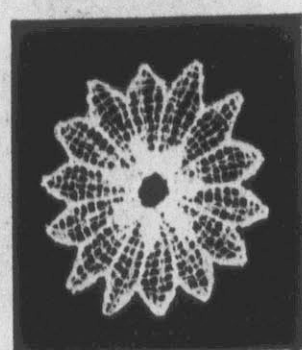

Accepting Teaching Assignment

Mr. and Mrs. Claude B. West Jr. of Greenville and Chapel Hill are spending a few days with Mr. West's parents here before returning to Chapel Hill for summer school at the University of North Carolina.

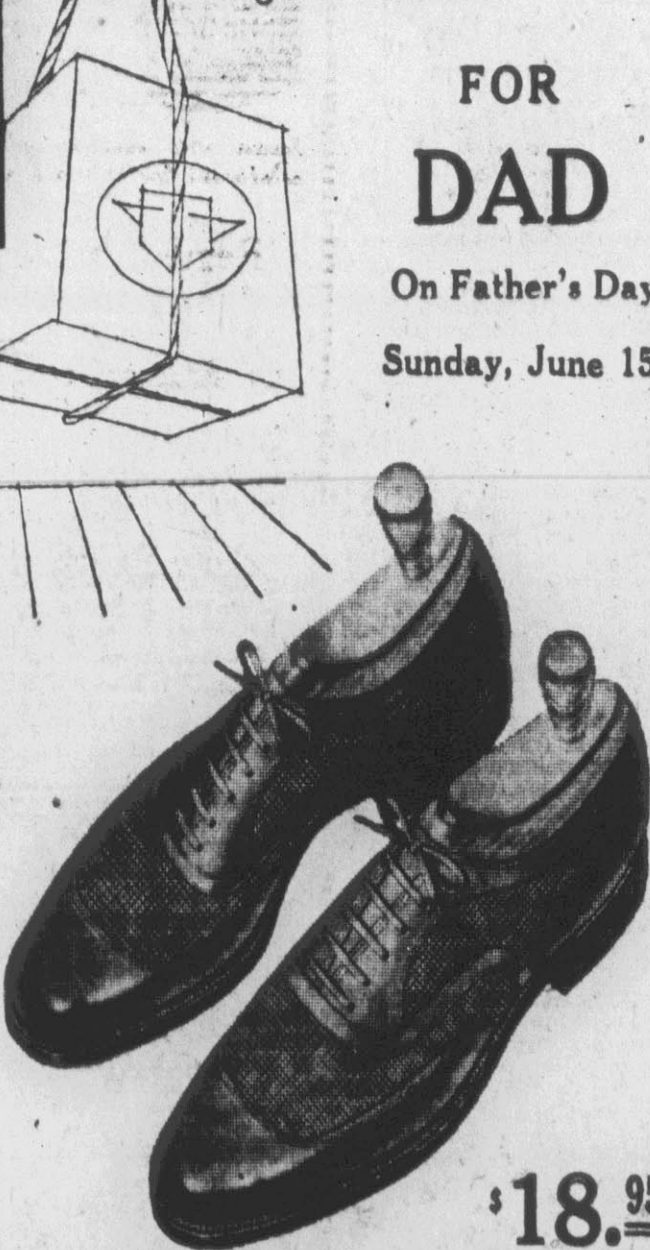

Mr. West has accepted a position as teacher of English and dramatics at the Lee H. Edwards High School in Asheville, North Carolina. Both Mr. and Mrs. West were employed by the Greenville City Schools during 1950-1951.

BPW Plans Thursday Picnic

Members of the Business and Professional Women's Club will use the picnic facilities of the Elm Street Park on Thursday evening, June 12, for a wisteria roast and monthly meeting, according to Gloria Blanton, president of the club.

"Please make your reservations today if you can attend," urges Miss Blanton. "The reservation committee would like to be contacted by Tuesday evening. Anyone of the following will take your reservation: Louise Carrigan at the Diana Shop, Susie Webb in the Alumni Office at the College, or Ruby Gaskins at the Watch Shop."

Using the International theme, "Ramparts We Build," the membership committee with Mrs. A. P. Baker, chairman, will show how the Greenville club can work through its membership. By cooperating with the 160,000 women in the 2,700 clubs in each of the United States and in the territories of Alaska and Hawaii, the theme of the year can be fulfilled.

Delegates will be elected to the State convention which will be held at the Washington-Duke Hotel in Durham on June 20-22.

The BPW Club is one of the Civic Clubs which have been cooperating with the City Recreation Committee in opening the Elm Street Park. The Club has appropriated four hundred dollars for the building of the picnic tables and outdoor fireplaces. It is therefore fitting that the first meeting of the new club year should be held in the new picnic area of the park, states Miss Blanton.

To Present Concert

The Middlesex Orphanage Concert Class will present a program at Hickory Grove Free Will Baptist Church on Friday night, June 13 at 8 o'clock. A very interesting program has been arranged, so plan to attend.

Ayden Girl Married In Sunday Rites

Miss Worthington Pledges Vows In Afternoon Ceremony

AYDEN — Miss Betty Lou Worthington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thebert G. Worthington of Ayden and Ivan Baker Armstrong, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Otis Armstrong of Raleigh, were united in marriage Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the Methodist Church.

The Rev. William A. Cade, pastor of the church, officiated at the double ring ceremony, which was performed amid a setting of palms, fern and baskets of white gladioli, snapdragons and gypsophelia.

Preceding the ceremony a program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Pauline Taylor, organist, with Miss Katherine Blue of Raeford as soloist.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her dress was designed of nylon tulle over satin, with a yoke of French illusion. The yoke was outlined with imported Chantilly lace medallions interspersed with rhinestones which were applied around the shoulders. Medallions of the same design were used on the upper part of the sleeves and on the calla lily points at the hands. The lace was used in a panner effect running up the bouffant skirt, across the hips and down into the cathedral train in the back. Tiny self-covered buttons were used in the back of the fitted bodice. She wore a three quarter length veil of illusion which was attached to a Juliet cap of the same. The cap was trimmed with the same kind of lace medallions which were on her gown. Her only ornament was a string of seeded pearls. She carried an ivory lace trimmed fan that her paternal grandmother had used on her wedding day, to which was attached her bouquet made of a white purple throated orchid and showered with lily of the valley and a wide antique satin bow and streamers.

Mrs. James R. Abernathy was her sister's dame of honor. She was gowned in a dress of green nylon net that was fashioned with a full skirt, tight crushed bodice of net over taffeta and fly panels on the side of the skirt which were trimmed with pussy willow puffs. A fitted stole of the net was used around the shoulders and she wore a bandeau of crushed net which was complemented with flowers and streamers on one side. She carried a fan edged with lavender lace and covered with yellow asters and purple Dutch iris and trimmed with a wide deep purple satin bow and streamers.

Miss Patricia Fry of Mt. Airy was maid of honor and was dressed similar to the dame of honor. She carried a fan like the one carried by Mrs. Abernathy.

The bridesmaids were Miss Anne Dover of Shelby, Miss Mary Ann Carter of Wallace, Mesdames William Stroud of Ayden and Anthony Capehart of Washington. They wore identical dresses as those of the honor attendants and carried fans covered with pink and lavender asters.

Miss Janice Avant, cousin of the bride, was flower girl and wore a dress designed like those of the other attendants with a pink bandeau in her hair and carried a pink basket filled with rose petals.

Lieutenant Ben Armstrong was his brother's best man and groomsmen were James Abernathy of Ayden, James Goodman of Concord, William Miller of Asheboro, William Steele of Raleigh and Fitz Caudle of Charlotte.

The mother of the bride wore an orchid lace and chiffon dress with accessories to match, and an orchid corsage.

The mother of the groom wore an aqua chiffon dress trimmed with lace and matching accessories, and an orchid corsage.

Reception

Immediately after the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a reception at the Community Club House to honor the bride and groom, the wedding party and members of the families.

Traditional green and white decorations were used for the reception, and the beautifully appointed table was centered with the wedding cake. Mesdames Elva Thorton of Lynchburg, Virginia, aunt of the groom, and William Avant of Whiteville, aunt of the bride, served at the cake table.

Miss Edith Thorton, cousin of the groom, also of Lynchburg, poured punch. Others assisting at the reception were Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Whitaker, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Armstrong of Hampton, Virginia, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Grogan of Canton, Dr. and Mrs. S. M. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Kilpatrick, Rev. and Mrs. W. A. Cade, Mrs. C. R. Tyndall, R. H. Worthington, Misses Jackie Little, Hannah Jackson, Barbara Worthington, Camilla Sumrell and Linda Avant.

Immediately following the reception the couple left for a wedding trip through the New England states. For traveling the bride wore a navy linen suit with navy and white accessories and the orchid lifted from her bridal bouquet.

The bride attended Converse College for two years, transferring to the University of North Carolina, where she was graduated this spring. While in college she majored in voice and primary education. She is a member of the Alpha Delta Pi sorority.

The bridegroom is a graduate of North Carolina having received his degree in Business Administration. He is a member of the Kappa Sigma fraternity. He served for two years in the Army Air Force. After their return from their wedding trip the couple will be at home in Anderson, South Carolina.

Out of Town Guests Present

Among those from out of town who attended the wedding were the following:

Mr. and Mrs. Fitz Caudle, Miss Edith McDonald, Mrs. Virgil White and William Steele, all of Charlotte; Mr. and Mrs. Ben Armstrong of Hampton, Virginia; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Newsome of Dunn; Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Sexton of Rocky Mount; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Troy of Richmond, Virginia; Mrs. W. H. Strength for the Day

BACK HOME AGAIN
FAITH ALL IMPORTANT

A great religious leader was once asked whether or not he felt that he was saved. His answer was, "No, I feel that I am damned, but the Bible tells me that I am saved, and I take my salvation on faith, regardless of how I feel."

This was a sound judgment. As we look at our moral failures, we are filled only with an infinite sense of discouragement. We compare our sinfulness with the righteousness of God; we even compare our behavior with the behavior of many people of our acquaintance, and the result is that we are ready to give up in despair.

But the very kernel of the Christian gospel is that we are saved not because of our worth but because of our faith. The only way we can have any moral worth is by the exercise of faith. Salvation is a gift of God. He is offering it to us. We may have it if we accept it. It seems utterly fantastic that God should forgive us our sins and accept us as dutiful sons and daughters. But the sacrifice which Christ endured in our behalf is what makes the difference. For his sake God forgives our sins and restores our relationship with Himself.

Such a mighty truth cannot be apprehended by the mind. It has to be taken on faith. But when we take it on faith, the result is that newness of life which the Bible terms salvation.

Politics And Police Work Just Do Not Mix

Now that the police department of the City of Greenville has been out of politics for almost two years, we sincerely hope it will remain out of politics, and that petty politicians let it remain out of politics.

Yesterday Mayor Lester D. Page said emphatically there is no foundation for the rumors saying he has designs on the position as chief of police of Greenville before his present term of office expires. The Reflector hopes the statement can be taken to mean that Mayor Page is not going to use the office of mayor as a political stepping stone to move back as chief of the city police department even after his present term as administrative head of the city government expires.

Such rumors have been widespread throughout Greenville, particularly since Chief of Police Guy Langston submitted his resignation to the board of aldermen last Thursday night. But the rumors themselves have been floating around longer than that. They first came into prominence prior to the city elections more than a month ago.

Mayor Page's statement clears the air for the next 12 months at least, but we hope the police department of Greenville can remain clear of political involvement even longer than that. As a matter of fact the Reflector would hate to see the police department ever again become entwined in a web of political strings.

For too many years the local police department was closely tied to the petty politics of the city. And the connection between politics and the police department, in our opinion, took a serious toll of the efficiency, harmony and effectiveness of the Greenville police department.

When Chief of Police Guy Langston took over the office in September, 1950, he was told by the board of aldermen he would have a free hand in the operation of the police department as long as the department operated on an effective, efficient basis. In the ensuing 20 months there has been much less bickering in the police department than was previously the case, and there has been a definite loss of the political air which in past years surrounded the Greenville police department.

In other words, in the past 20 months, in our opinion, the city's policemen as a whole—and as individuals with very few exceptions—have tended to their police work and left politics to other citizens of the city. That certainly is the way it should be.

Greenville's police system suffered too many years because the whole department was up to its ears in local politics. It was that way because, unfortunately, petty politicians forced the officers to play politics in order to hold their jobs. Admittedly there is nothing more detrimental to a police department than for it to be mixed up in politics.

Greenville's police department has gotten out of politics, and The Reflector sincerely hopes it remains that way. Even so, we are aware, as are many other people, that there are citizens in Greenville who wish to see the local police department again made a political football.

Any effort to bring about a return to such a state of affairs will only be hindering the progress of the City of Greenville.

It Was A Long Time Between Stitches

North Carolinians this week have witnessed another incident in which the wheels of correction for a bad situation did not begin turning until a great deal of damage—too much in fact—had been done.

For more than a month there has been trouble at Central Prison in Raleigh, and little or nothing has been done to get to the bottom of the trouble in that period. Wednesday 150 prisoners staged a strike, took 10 hostages, and bargained for better conditions with top prison officials.

Fortunately there was no violence in the uprising, but there very easily could have been. The lives of ten men were at stake, however, and those lives may have been sacrificed had not things smoothed over quickly.

In the opinion of The Reflector, the uprising could have been avoided had the prison officials begun looking into the conditions at Central Prison a month ago and made diligent efforts to get things straightened out before the uprising took place.

There will be an investigation now, and we hope that no more trouble comes from the state's prison in the future. But if the top officials do not stay more on their toes in regards to matters inside the bleak walls in the future than they have in the past, we can rest uneasily with the prospect for more trouble ahead in Central Prison.

A thorough investigation of conditions at Central Prison now, certainly will do some good if it is conducted properly, but it would have done much more good had it begun 30 days ago. It is our considered opinion that the recent uprising must be held as the responsibility of the prison officials who dilly-dallied too long before getting an investigation down to brass tacks.

National Whirligig

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—Senator Estes Kefauver's solid string of primary triumphs over pro-Truman holdouts, and especially his recent rout of the White House coat-tails in California and South Dakota, highlight the extremely important fact that Harry S. Truman is still a Pendergast politician. He prefers to deal with the boys in the back rooms of organization clubhouses.

In every contest where the young, reform and progressive elements of the party have clashed with political antediluvians, Truman has given direct or indirect support to the so-called politicians-for-profit only.

Not once has he sided with the individuals or factions who sense and proclaim the need for a rejuvenation and reeducation of the power-fat party to new deals and problems.

CONTEMPT—Truman insists that the old-fashioned machine, if oiled with sufficient grease in the form of federal subsidies and promises to certain special voting interests, can be cranked up for another successful presidential run.

His stand on this question, which involves the issue of governmental corruption and tawdry ethics at all levels—federal, state and municipal—divides the Democrats as violently as conflicting views on foreign policy separate the Republicans into Taft and Eisenhower advocates.

Truman's contempt for these bash and belligerent "interlopers" lies behind his persistent search for a candidate who can block a Kefauver nomination, including such a synthetic figure as W. Averell Harriman of New York and such a reluctant prodigal son as Governor Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois.

BEHAVIOUR—Truman's tatty-old and cheerio association with the less desirable elements of the party has been too deliberate and consistent to admit of any explanation save that he feels more at ease in their company than he does with their opponents and detractors. Here is a summary of the president's behaviour in conflicts between the two irreconcilable factions:

New York: Truman supported the Tammany opponent of Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. in the special Congressional election that first sent the Hyde Park youngster to the House.

He backed the Tammany entry against Mayor Impellitteri after he had named the edacious ex-Mayor O'Dwyer as ambassador to Mexico. He refused to recall O'Dwyer for examination, despite revelations that the diplomat's closest friends and police appointees were bigtime grafters.

Pennsylvania: Although Republican corruption at City Hall resulted in the election of Joseph S. Clark Jr., an able and honest public servant, as Mayor of Philadelphia in 1951, Truman plays along with discredited Democrats. He named James P. McGranery as attorney general, despite Mayor Clark's vigorous questioning of McGranery's ability and integrity.

HOSTILITY—Indiana: On the advice of Frank McHale, Truman named Frank E. McKinney as Democratic national chairman. So great was the stench of the McHale regime that, in 1951, the GOP won mayoralty contests in 72 Indiana cities, losing only 29. They regained Indianapolis, McHale's bailiwick. And only a few weeks ago McHale was defeated for re-election as Democratic national committeeman.

Tennessee: Truman's hatred of Kefauver is too well known to need further cataloguing. But he has carried his hostility to such an extent that he favors re-election of Senator Kenneth McKellar, an octogenarian who should have been retired many years ago. His opponent is Representative Albert Gore, one of the youngest and most brilliant members of the lower chamber.

California: Although trying to walk a political tight-rope here for fear of political embarrassment, the oil-wealthy Democrats, who rarely deliver victories, had Truman's backing when they tried unsuccessfully to keep Kefauver from winning the primary. James Roosevelt supported the Tennesseean, as did liberals generally.

BUDDIES—These documented case histories are sufficient to show where Truman stands on the basic question of a new and clean deal in American politics. But they can be reinforced by similar recitals referring to conflicts of no great national significance. Present-day Pendergasts are Truman's buddies, and he doesn't care who knows it.

It is not surprising that the Americans for Democratic Action, as well as other reform groups, are shying away from the man in the White House and his kind of politics and politicians.

The Communist Bill Of Riots

Somebody Told Me

By L. I. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

The Honorable Herbert Bonner, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.
Dear Mr. Bonner:

Here in the Fifth Congressional District you probably have thousands of people who write you letters complaining about something. Today I'm writing you to say that I'm just as dissatisfied about some things as everybody else, but there are so many more things that I'm pleased about that I intend to emphasize the pleasant things in this letter.

First of all, let me point out that I hate to pay excessive taxes as much as anybody else, but if it takes that to keep prosperity here, I'd rather do that than to see hard times. If government spending is the only way to keep adequate money in circulation, let's have it.

But if you want to be President, all you have to do is to think of some way to keep prosperity here without such high taxes. In fact, you could be the national all-time hero.

While writing you it seems natural to congratulate you on keeping in the Congressional seat for so many years. Let me ask you something, too. Back in the days when you were selling snuff did you ever think you would be a Congressman?

Frankly, I think the background of a man is incomplete unless he has been a salesman in a trade that involves seeing a cross-section of the American public. No doubt that background has helped many times in making your decisions in Congress.

There are several other questions I have:

(1) How often do you fall asleep in sessions of Congress? In school at the University I fell asleep during the duller lectures, and since Congress sessions are often dull, I have often wondered how you manage to stay awake during some of them, or do you?

(2) How can you muster the inspiration for so many speeches? And how often do you make the same ones?

(3) Like any walk of life, there are detestable people that you have to smile at. Exactly how many in Congress do you feel this way about?

Cordially,
Jack.
And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

VARIETY—North Carolina has capitalized on the catch phrase advertising slogan "Variety Vacationland" in telling the world about the many and varied facilities, both natural and artificial for a happy vacation. Several counties in the state can offer within their own borders a great many of these advantages.

A group of working newspaper men were given tangible proof last week that Burke county can qualify as a miniature epitome of the whole State in this respect. The newspaper folks were guests of the Morganton chamber of commerce for two nights and a day, during which they participated in a wide variety of pleasant doings—not the least of which was eating food of unexcelled quality and quantity in such different surroundings—as lakeside club, a mountain top picnic and a semi-formal banquet hall.

WORKERS—The Morganton folks played it smart and invited only working newspaper men, the fellows who write the stories and take the pictures. Other times they may have the big shot publishers and nationally famed editors. This deal was for reporters and photographers, and they got a thrill out of being treated like sure enough VIP's—very important people. They were not asked to do anything in return, not even to listen to speeches. But being working fellows they kept cameras clicking and notebooks in action most of the time.

ITINERARY—The party assembled at Morganton early Tuesday afternoon, motored to the eastern branch of Lake James and embarked on motor boats for a ride around the lake, winding up at the Duke Power club house in time to rest up for a steak dinner. The hosts went back home about 10 o'clock to let the guests get a good night's rest. They didn't know working newspaper men very well. Card tables came out, shirts came off—and most of the company got to bed between two and three o'clock. Some of them slept, while others tried to distinguish between the bass and tenor notes in the snoring. They were still arguing about it at breakfast.

FULL DAY—The next day started with a light breakfast of tomato juice, scrambled eggs and crisp bacon, honest mountain grits, buttered toast with strawberry jam, and a stack of hotcakes for dessert. Back across the lake and into cars for a trip to Linville Falls, Table Rock and Hawk's Hill mountains as seen from Wiseman's View, vantage point for the superb scenery of Linville Gorge. Then across the Burke county line for a few miles to Grandfather Mountain and a picnic lunch, and back to Morganton to rest up for the dinner that night, which was staged at Colonial Club. Incidentally, the resting time was utilized by most of the fellows for developing pictures in the borrowed dark room of the Morganton News-Herald or in getting off quickie stories to their papers.

ATTRACTIONS—The purpose of the tour was to show the visitors what Burke county has to offer in the recreational field. It did not purport to include agricultural and industrial development, in both of which Burke is outstanding. Lake James is the most easterly of the "mountain lakes," having all the characteristics of the others except lower hills around the shore. To keep one from forgetting that it is in essentially of the mountains, there is the spectacular formation of Short Off Mountain on one side and a medium high

What Other Papers Are Thinking

NAMES NOT THE ANSWER

(Greensboro Daily News)
North Carolina's teacher-training colleges for some reason or other just do not like to have the word teacher wrought unto their names.

For instance, what was all the years East Carolina Teachers College has already become East Carolina College. Now the board of trustees of Western Carolina Teachers College is requesting that its name be altered to Western Carolina State College. No word of proposed change has yet come from Appalachian State Teachers College, nor have the three Negro colleges of the state dedicated to teacher training given any indication that "teacher" has become an objectionable appellation with them. But, once a movement starts, it may be expected to spread.

To the Daily News it does not make much difference what these colleges at Greensboro, Cullowhee and Boone are called just so they do the job that is expected of them and turn out badly needed teachers for our public school system. We sincerely trust that their swing to a new name does not and will not mean that they are transferring their emphasis or neglecting to any degree the purpose for which they were established and the reason why the state has been pouring its tax money into them and their operation.

There can be little doubt that at Greensboro and Cullowhee at least the desire and aim are to become liberal arts colleges. Maybe this is as it should be, especially in view of Chancellor E. K. Graham's attack upon the state's teacher certification system and the role which schools of education as such have in its evolution and application. A utter general education, with less emphasis upon techniques and methodology, may well be part of the changing pattern which is required to assure more and better teachers, especially for the elementary schools where the shortage remains acute. That being the case, educational and legislative leadership will be doing well to study this whole picture so as to determine just where our state teachers colleges are heading and whether, under the changing pattern, they should be co-ordinated in some way into our university system.

What we are interested in is getting more and better teachers. So long as we move toward that goal names and mechanics are relatively unimportant.

SEVEN MILLIONS EXTRA
(Henderson Dispatch)

Even before Congress can enact the 1953 fiscal year budget, President Truman sends to Capitol Hill a further request for huge increases. His latest demand is for just under three and one-half billion dollars for the Defense Department on top of what has already been asked. Only last week he sent up a request for three and a half billion dollars for atomic energy development. Aggregate of the two items is approximately seven billions.

Were it not so serious, Mr. Truman's habit of requesting billions on top of billions would be comical. As for him, it seems there is no end to what he wants and that it is impossible for Congress or the people to keep up with what he asks. We doubt if he himself can. One may but wonder if next week he will ask for three and a half billion more and the week after that another similar helping, for something or other it has come to be a habit with him, and a habit that is terribly hard for him to break. Therefore, it becomes the duty of Congress and the country at large to break it for him. The President has no difficulty whatever in finding a place to lose in more cash when the thought strikes him.

Business Today

There is one nice thing about taxes: almost nobody pays his own.

Of course, all of us send in a few dollars to the Bureau of Internal Revenue once in a while or lose out a few pennies in excise or sales taxes. But all of us immediately lay it off.

Manufacturers reckon their taxes in calculating the price they set. Merchants include their taxes in their mark-ups. Workers insist on wages and salaries high enough to cover their taxes as well as the necessities and luxuries of life.

Simultaneously, those on whom the taxes have been shifted take steps to shift the shifted taxes, and so on endlessly. At each step, each tax becomes more deeply hidden.

A family with a $5,000 income pays certain taxes that are not hidden: income, real estate, excise, and sales taxes. Then it pays a lot more hidden taxes. When the family buys a car, it pays certain declared taxes, but in the rest of the price is part of the dealer's taxes and part of the taxes he pays employees; part of the manufacturer's hundred or so taxes and part of what his employees pay.

It doesn't end there. The manufacturer, in buying steel, copper and other materials pays, in the purchase price, part of the taxes of a long chain of taxes.

Don't forget that taxes are partly responsible for that $5,000 in the first place. The family wouldn't trade its services or its capital for less because it needs that much to pay taxes and pay for the taxed things it buys.

It has one consolation: the total contribution for direct and indirect taxes can't be more than that $5,000—at last not for very long.

This continual passing on of taxes makes it extremely difficult to determine just what share of any person's income eventually goes for taxes. Two noted economists, Rufus S. Tucker, of General Motors, and R. A. Musgrave, of University of Michigan, some time ago tried to find out. Their findings for incomes under $7,500 were closely parallel. Those with incomes under $1,000 pay slightly less than 18 per cent; those with incomes from $1,000 to $2,000 pay a little over 20 per cent; and those with incomes from $2,000 to $7,500, in the vicinity of 24 per cent. For those making more than $7,500, the Musgrave study indicated that 36.4 per cent went to taxes and the Tucker study, 44.7 per cent.

DRUGGISTS RECORDING PHONED PRESCRIPTIONS

The new Durham-Humphrey Act requires druggists to show proof that they have been authorized by doctors to sell certain prescriptions.

Doctors are notoriously forgetful about mailing druggists prescriptions after they have requested druggists by phone to fill them. So several druggists and recording machine salesman have hit upon the idea of attaching recorders to druggists' phones. It is also a safeguard against errors.

GLASS PROMOTION AGAIN IN OCTOBER

The "American Glassware Jubilee" will be promoted again this year, from October 8 to 11, by the Glassware Institute of America. The jubilee committee, room 1808, 347 Park Ave., New York 17, is preparing banners, displays, radio scripts, layout suggestions and advertising mats for use by retailers.

ISRAELI PRODUCTS IMPORTERS LISTED

A directory of Israeli products marketed in this country, with names and addresses of importers, has been published by the Jewish Economic Horizons. It estimates imports from Israel totaled $12,000,000 last year.

MAIL CATALOGS CALL FOR CHECKING

Competing retailers have more than usual reasons for getting copies of summer catalogs of the big mail order houses. Price cuts are fairly general; one company listed lower prices on some 36,000 items.

NEW PRODUCTS

CONTAINER: A plastic container for passenger car batteries is being introduced by Gould-National Batteries, Inc., St. Paul, Minn.

FOLDER: An electric office folding machine, only a little larger than a typewriter and said to be cheaper than hand-folding paper forms, is being introduced by Pitney-Bowes, Inc., Stamford, Conn. It will precession-fold up to 5,000 sheets an hour.

SPLICER: A self-timing device, said to permit critical, inaudible splicing of magnetic tape recordings without scraping, cementing, use of adhesives or loss of tape material, has been announced by Prestosel Mfg. Corp., 38-61 Queens Blvd., Long Island City, N. Y. Its operation principle is based on a combination of electrically produced heat and precise pressure, giving strong diagonal splices in 4-to-5 seconds, and splicer can be used for both addition and deletion of sound.

BRUSH: A self-cleaning plastic hairbrush is being manufactured by Hines, Ltd., Bromsgrove St., Birmingham, England. It has a movable plate on bristle side which may be raised on expanding pins, bringing loose hairs to the top for easy removal.

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK — AP — Children are superior to grownups because they have a greater sense of wonder.

Adults are always fretting about such dull topics as whether there will be another world war soon and who will be the next president.

Such prosaic cares never disturb the curly hair of my godchild, Nina. She is still a month away from her fifth birthday, and her world is such an exciting one I wish I could share it completely with her.

But I can't. No grownup can know the enchantment of a child's mind, because he loses the fresh joy of discovery. A child would like to know everything about everything, be flooded all at once with all the knowledge of the universe. Grownups have no such desire. Time and boredom too often build a wall around their minds.

They lose the will to learn. This puzzles children. They can't understand why grownups aren't as eager for information as they are.

Nina looks like an exclamation point and she is a living question mark. Queries pour out of her from dawn to dusk, searching queries of a little girl trying to decipher the magic of life.

What does a young lady "going on five" want to know? Well, her mother scotch-taped a piece of paper on the kitchen wall and scribbled down the questions Nina asked.

Here are a few from a two-day total:

"Why is at black when the fire goes out?"

"How do you get hungry?"

"Why does everybody in the whole world have to go to church and Sunday school?"

"Do you love us (Nina and sister) even when we are bad?"

"Do snakes come in houses?"

"Are there any lions and tigers in the whole world?"

"Why do people need lights?"

"If we ate something at someone else's house and you did not want us to, how would you know?"

"Why don't mommies go to school?"

"What color are crows' eyes?"

"How do people make people? How do people get in the whole world?"

"Why is there a moon in the morning?"

"How does your nose get dirty?"

"Why do we have two ears and not just one?"

"How do you get measles?"

"How do you forget?"

The mother gave me the slip of paper and suggested that, if I wanted to carry out my duty as a godfather, I might start in supplying Nina with the answers.

But after studying the questions, I put the paper in my pocket and decided to drop the project. What that child needs is five or six encyclopedias.

We went for a walk and Nina said:

"Hal, who turns off the fireflies after I go to bed?"

Before I could stutter out an explanation, she wanted to know if clouds ever fell on people and hurt them.

"No, they—" I began.

"But they must fall down sometimes," she said positively.

We strolled on in silence. I had an uneasy feeling that Nina thought her godfather was pretty dumb, considering her size. Anybody ought to know a cloud has to fall down sometimes. It just can't stay up there in the sky all the time, can it?

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — Mrs. Pèrie Mastia, U. S. minister to Luxembourg, who used to be the capital's No. 1 hostess, is back in town—but going to parties, not giving them. She's at her desk in the State Department from 8:30 a. m. until late every day but manages to shine at the numerous functions being given for her by the bigwigs she used to corral at her glittering affairs.

"I'm letting them do the entertaining this time," the oil-rich widow, who received her appointment to the picturesque little duchy in 1940, told me.

"I'm having a wonderful time." Even her old friends the Trumans put on a shindig for her at the White House. The minister of Luxembourg and Mme. Gailais are having a huge reception for her, and the capital's so-called "cliff-dweller" society is turning handsprings to do her honor.

Sharing the spotlight at a recent party was Ethel Merman, who in the musical comedy hit "Call Me Madam" depicts a "hostess with the mostest" who becomes American ambassador to the mythical duchy called "Lichtenberg." Nicknamed "Two-Party Pèrie" as a former heavy Republican campaign contributor who switched her support to Harry Truman, she has friends guessing again. She and the Eisenhowers have exchanged frequent visits in Paris and Luxembourg.

When I asked if she expected to return to the Republican fold said "That's politics." Then she added "We've been lifelong friends." Madame Minister will remain in this country until August, when she expects to return to Luxembourg, where indeed she is No. 1 hostess—especially for American GIs stationed in Europe, for whom she stages monthly parties.

At first only about 50 came, but now 1,000 come at a time," she said. She gives them hot dogs, ham, potato salad, cakes, soft drinks.

"And champagne, of course," she added.

"The legation is just like a beehive," a returning State Department officer once told me. "Actually the traffic is really astounding. In addition to the GIs, relatives, friends, acquaintances, fed by the famous first lady of party-giving."

However, Mrs. Mastia reiterates her desire to have Americans know she is "dead serious" about her job. "I fully realize my responsibilities and I'm trying to do my very best in representing my country

Social Security Benefits Reach New Maximum Of $80 Monthly On July 1

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON — (AP) — For many people 65 and older July 1 will be like the 3 o'clock school bell that let them out when they were kids.

After July 1 the Social Security pension reaches a new maximum of $80 a month. Many old people will retire then to collect.

Anyone now on pension or who retires before July 1 will never be entitled to the new maximum of $80.

The only ones who can get that much are those 65 or older who quit work after July 1 and fill the other requirements for getting the maximum. The present maximum is around $68.50.

There has been talk around the country that swarms of old people, now working, would quit after July 1. Social Security people here say:

The number will jump for a couple of months and then return to normal.

Officials in charge of the government's manpower program don't expect the increased retirements after July 1 to affect the total manpower picture much.

In case you've forgotten the background on these social security pension changes, here it is:

Congress increased social security benefits in the fall of 1950 when the minimum pension was $10 a month and the maximum about $45.

The increase was to be in two stages:

1. For those on pension or going on pension before July 1, 1952 the minimum was raised to $20 and the maximum to around $68.50.

2. Those going on pension after July 1, 1952 would never receive less than $20 and could, if entitled to it, receive as much as $80.

At the same time Congress laid down some rules for getting this $80 maximum:

If a person worked 18 months in a job covered by Social Security between Jan. 1, 1951 and July 1, 1952 and his pay was at the rate of $3,600 a year he could, by retiring after July 1, 1952, get $80 a month.

For this reason a lot of old people who might have retired sooner—who then couldn't get more than $68.50—decided to keep on working until July 1.

All that's been said in this story so far applies only to people who have been employed by others in these past 18 months.

For the self-employed people there was a slightly different rule: To be entitled to the full $80 a month, a self-employed person must keep on working till next

Jan. 1.

He could get some pension if he retired before Jan. 1, but not that new maximum of $80.

If you are uncertain about when you should retire or what kind of pension you should get, contact your nearest Social Security office. Even though you feel pretty sure you know all the rules but haven't checked over your particular case with the Social Security people, you might benefit by doing so.

That's because each person's case is just a little different from that of anyone else.

'Walkie-Lookie' TV Is Scheduled

NEW YORK — (AP) — The political conventions at Chicago this summer are expected to afford a job for a new television device. It's "walkie-lookie," next step up from the walkie-talkie.

Weighing only 46 pounds it is compact enough for one man to carry around and operate, much as he would an ordinary camera. The pictures being taken would be fed into the regular TV channels for relay.

Use of this gadget on the convention floor would enable the camera to get into spots impracticable for the larger and more cumbersome units.

Terrorists Still Menace Malaya

KUALA LUMPUR — (AP) — The leading British rubber planting body in Malaya declares that despite countrywide resettlement of squatters in areas free of Communist terrorists, there is no improvement in the situation.

The United Planting Association of Malaya, in its report for 1951, said planters still lived in continual danger and could not relax security precautions.

Without the "steadfastness and courage" of the planters, said the report, "the situation in the rural areas would have rapidly deteriorated to a state of savagery and chaos."

Family Bunches Five Birthdays

MANSFIELD, O. — (AP) — When the middle of May rolls around each year the Tryon family has to buy five birthday cakes.

The recent arrival of Deborah Sue Tryon marks the fifth birthday in four days. She was born May 18. The next day is the birthday of Bobby, 9, followed by the birthdays of the twin girls, Marlene and Charlene, 10, and Barbara, 20.

Deborah Sue is 40-year-old Mrs. Tryon's 16th child.

Messick Joining Education Meet

President John D. Messick of East Carolina College has accepted an invitation to serve as chairman of a discussion group on accreditation at the annual meeting of the National Commission on Teacher Education and Professional Standards at Kalamazoo, Michigan, June 25-28. The topic to be considered by the group is "Developing Accreditation as a Contributing Factor in the Continuous Improvement of Teacher Education."

Dr. Messick is at present a member of the National Accreditation Committee of the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education. The invitation to participate in the program at Kalamazoo recognizes his activities in the AACTE and his background of experience and knowledge in the field of accreditation of colleges of teacher education.

As a member of the National Accreditation Committee of the AACTE, Dr. Messick has been asked also to serve during the fall of 1952 as chairman of the evaluating committee for Wilson Teachers College, Washington, D. C., and as a member of a similar committee for George Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn.

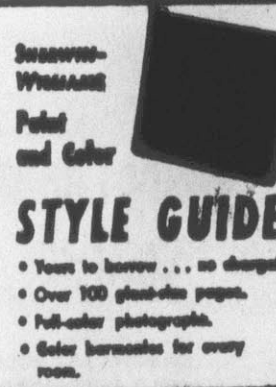

Appearance Has Little Bearing

ATLANTA — (AP) — Georgia's Court of Appeals recently held a Moultrie, Ga. man could recover $1,000 from an automobile dealer because a car the latter sold as a 1949 model actually was a 1948 model.

The dealer's defense: the physical appearance of the 1948 and 1949 models of the car (Hudson) varied so little that he was unable to tell them apart and honestly believed he was selling a 1949 model.

Taft Camp Says Wall Street Are Supporting Eisenhower

By RAYMOND LAHR
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP) — Sen. Robert A. Taft's campaign headquarters said today a poll of leading bankers and brokers showed that "Wall Street is for Eisenhower."

It said the Rogers C. Dunn survey polled 1,800 Wall Street financial leaders on their preference for the Republican Presidential nomination. Of 1,008 replying, 557 preferred Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and 421 favored Taft.

The statement was the first direct attempt by the Taft headquarters to pin the "Wall Street" label to the Eisenhower presidential campaign. Some of Taft's supporters have been following that line for some time.

Of the Dunn poll, Rep. Howard H. Buffett R-Neb., director of the Taft campaign speakers' bureau, said:

"Generally speaking, we do not put much credence in polls but this particular poll cannot be ignored. It shows clearly the truth of what we have been contending, that Wall Street is for Eisenhower and Main Street is for Taft."

Taft, meanwhile, laid out his own schedule of meetings with GOP national convention delegates. Eisenhower already is embarked on a series of talks with delegations from many states.

The Ohio senator told reporters that he intends to confer with New Jersey delegates in polls but this particular poll cannot be ignored. He said he expects to meet with Pennsylvania delegates at Philadelphia and Pittsburgh on still undetermined dates. Both the Eisenhower and Taft camps have strength in Pennsylvania's 70-member delegation, by a bloc of 25 or more looks to the still uncommitted Gov. John E. Fine for leadership. Eisenhower met yesterday with delegations from New Hampshire, Connecticut, Delaware and Massachusetts. Most of the 86 convention votes from those states are believed to be already in his column.

The general arranged more "get acquainted" sessions today with delegates from Alabama, Georgia and North Carolina, many of whom are now listed as pro-Taft. The United Press tabulation of GOP delegates, based on formal pledges and known first ballot preferences, gave Taft 468 and Eisenhower 399.

In other political developments: 1. The arrangements committee for the GOP convention met in Chicago today to select a keynote. Taft supporters, who appeared to be in undisputed control, boomed Gen. Douglas MacArthur for the job, despite demands from the Eisenhower camp for "someone impartial." MacArthur has long been identified as pro-Taft.

2. Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, talked to New Jersey party leaders in an effort to win Northern backing. Former Gov. Wm. Harry Moore promised Russell his convention vote, but other party leaders said the rest of the 36-member delegation would go to the convention "uninstructed."

3. Russell's headquarters announced appointment of an 18-member agricultural advisory committee to counsel him on farm problems.

4. Walter White, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People said in a radio interview here that Eisenhower's record on civil rights "is not good." He criticized the general's "inexplicable championship of states rights in his recent Abilene speech" and said "not even Taft goes that far backward."

The Sport Reflector

By MELVIN LANG

Action taken by the State Board of Education last week in which a new athletic code for public schools was established did not come any too soon.

Several of the schools in the State had begun to place a little too much emphasis on the inter-scholastic athletics, with classroom work dropping by the wayside. Athletics are a must for a well-operated school, but as in other things, too much is extremely bad.

North Carolina schools are now limited to only one football game, two basketball games, two basketball games, two tennis matches, and two golf matches per week. This should certainly be enough for any erstwhile athletes. This custom will not be strange for most schools, however, especially for those in Pitt County, as they have been working along this same line all the time.

The code also clarifies the eligibility requirements for a high school player, something that has needed to be done for a long time. Some schools have violated individual county and conference regulations for such a long time that it has become almost a habit and something to look forward to. Under the new system, a student must pass at least three courses, which have to include specified subjects, during each term. His eligibility will last for only eight semesters of 90-day terms after his entrance into high school, and can not play if he, or she, will be 20 years of age before April 1 of the school year.

Pitt County schools, with the exception of probably one or two, will not be affected very much by the code. Only three of the schools in the county, including Greenville High, field eleven-man football clubs, and they have, with very few exceptions, abided by the 10-game limitation placed on the schools for one season. Chisolm and Bethel plan to institute six-man teams this season.

The 20-games-per-season baseball limitation will not affect any of the county schools. Most of the teams are satisfied to play only 12 to 15 games a year, and only a few of them play that many. Nearly all of the schools had to shorten their basketball schedules last season to abide by the 20-game limit, and will not have too much trouble in following the same rule again this year.

The 20-game ban is for games after December 1, although schools which do not have football teams will be allowed six games before the first day of December.

And as for golf and tennis, Greenville is the only school to field teams in the two sports. They will have no trouble with the two-match per week arrangement.

Another rule, however, will affect some of the schools. A basketball team is allowed to play in only two tournaments during the school year, and only county, conference or state playoffs are allowed. Farmville's Coastal Gold Medal Basketball Tournament may run into trouble this year in arranging for teams.

All in all, Pitt County has had a fairly clean athletic system for several years. The county Athletic Association has done a good job, and the results from that supervision will pay off now that the State has decided to take a hand in the big-time operation of little-time sports.

Farmville's Rodney Heath seems to be just about taking the Bright Belt League into his family. So far this year Heath has won four games without a defeat, pitched a two-hit shutout, hurled a three-hit white-washing, fanned 17 men in a nine-inning relief performance after entering the game in the first inning with the bases loaded and none out and then retiring the side in order without a run, and tossed a neat no-hitter.

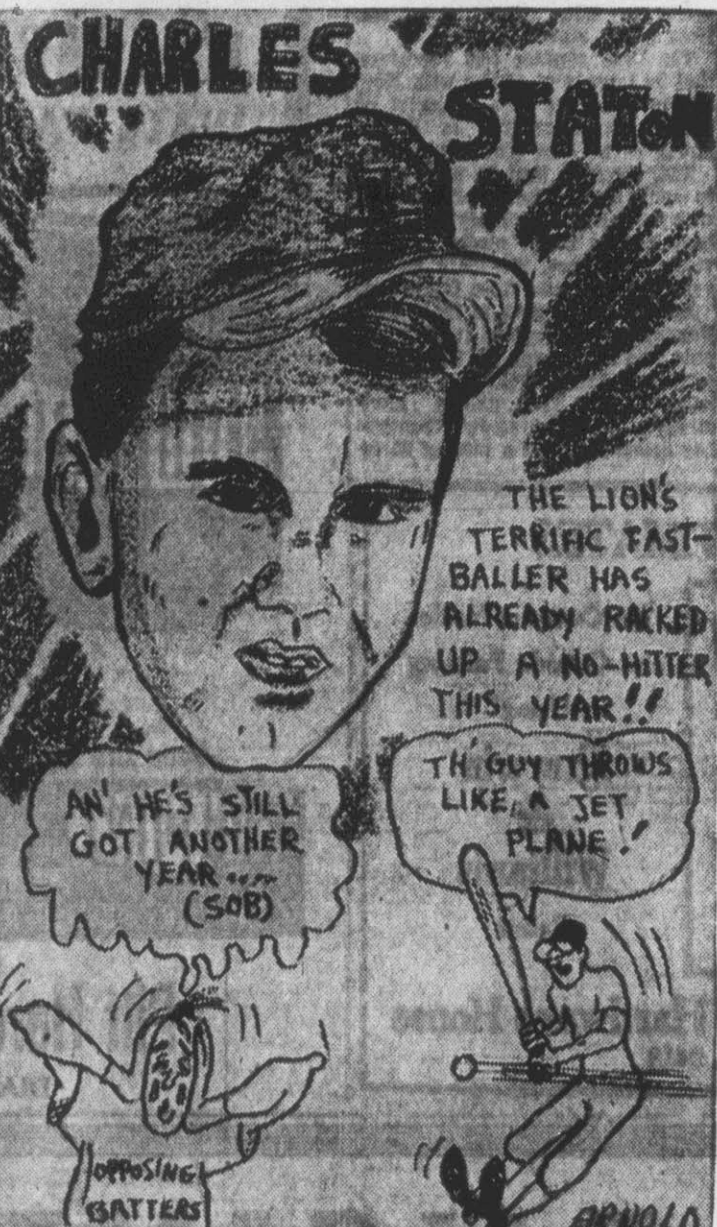

Heath was a regular for Coach Jack Boone and the East Carolina College Pirates this spring, but he seems to have really caught on fire in the Bright Belt after a good season with the Blues. He's a southpaw from Oak Ridge, where he was a teammate of Billy Joe Davidson, the Pittsburgh Pirate bonus baby. Wonder if the Pirates got the wrong man?

The Greenville Greenies have run into financial trouble several times this year, and it finally resulted in the loss of several key players. Several of the boys have informed the club officials that they have decided to play in the Beaufort County League instead of with the local team.

It has just about been left up to the fans of Greenville to see whether or not the Bright Belt League entry will continue. Attendance picked up slightly a few days ago, but it has fallen down again to an even lower status than at the first of the season. It's almost a disgrace that the city of Greenville cannot have a ball club of some description, even if it has to be a weak semi-pro team.

Little League Star Of The Week

Pint-sized Charles Station, fireball pitcher for the Lions Club, was selected today for the first "Little League Star of the Week" award. He made an appearance here last year, but his outstanding pitching ability rates another mention.

Station, who has a habit of striking out an average of nearly three men per game, has accomplished one of the rarest feats of the sport. He hurled a 5-4 no-hit game against the Kiwanis several days ago.

Brooklyn Stops Cards To Increase Lead In National

Dodgers Now Lead League By Five Full Games; Red Sox Strengthen Lead Over Idle Yankees

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP) — Stop the Brooklyn Dodgers — or give up. That was the rallying cry around the National League today.

The Dodgers, who left for a Western road trip 2 1/2 games behind the New York Giants, suddenly muscled into a commanding position, five full games in the lead and ready to take on all comers.

Last night they looked like dead ducks — until the seventh inning at St. Louis. Then they roared from behind as PeeWee Reese hit a two-run single to tie the score at 2-all.

And, in the eighth Roy Campanella clinched it with a two-run homer and Carl Furillo provided still two more runs with another homer to make it 6-2.

The Dodgers, who have lost only one game on their Western road swing, thus were in a better position than they were a year ago at this time when they had a 31-18 won and lost record. Today they were 35-11.

Stan Musial hit his seventh homer of the year to put St. Louis ahead at the start off pitcher Carl Erskine. Dick Sisler made it 3-0 with another homer in the second inning. That was the way it stood until the seventh when Brooklyn broke loose.

Rookie Joe Black, who has a phenomenal relief record, came in and protected the margin the rest of the way to gain credit for his second victory against no defeats.

In the American League, the Boston Red Sox increased their margin to a full game over the idle New York Yankees by topping the Detroit Tigers, 9-8. Boston came from behind twice, scoring the winning run in the sixth on an error by ex-Red Sox infielder Johnny Pesky.

Rookie Jim Piersall hit a two-run homer and set the pace by getting three of the 15 Boston hits. Walt Dropo hit his fourth homer since being traded from Boston to Detroit, and Don Lohndorff drove in five runs in a losing cause. Lohndorff hit a homer and two singles.

The Boston Braves, faltering through a Western road trip under new Manager Charley Grimm, managed to top the last place Pittsburgh Pirates, 3 to 2, as rookie Bob Thorpe and veteran Sid Gordon drove in all the runs.

Jim Wilson, one of the few dependable hurlers on the Boston staff, pitched five — hit ball to gain his fourth victory.

Bobby Del Greco hit a home run his first in the majors, for the Pirates while Thorpe delivered a two-run single to put Boston ahead for good in the second inning. Gordon singled in the third run in the seventh. Sam Jethroe reached base safely five straight times when he singled twice, walked twice, and was hit by the pitcher.

The other National League clubs were not scheduled. In the American League St. Louis at Washington were rained out.

Wally Post Sent To Farm System

CINCINNATI (UP) — Outfielder Wally Post was optioned to Milwaukee in the American Association today to make room on the Cincinnati Reds' roster for Cal Abrams, obtained from Brooklyn on Sunday.

Post had hit only .155 in 19 games with the Reds this season. His return to Milwaukee completes the recent deal in which the Reds obtained outfielder Willard Marshall from the Boston Braves.

Lions Beat Elks; Take First Half

The Lions clinched the championship of the first half of regular season play in the Little League yesterday with an 8-0 triumph over the Elks.

Charlie Puryear and Mack Roebuck pitched the Lions to their victory, allowing but two hits to the mound and went the first three innings, with Roebuck finishing up the six inning contest.

A single run in the first inning, with Maylan Edmundson scoring after he had singled, proved to be the clincher. The Lions added four more runs in the third inning. Puryear led off the third frame with a walk, and his teammates kept the rally going to insure the victory.

After Puryear's walk, Edmundson connected for the second of three singles for the afternoon. Roebuck walked, and after the next two men had been retired, Aubrey error. Bobby Pridmore was passed on four balls, but Steve Nobles fanned to end the inning.

Lucian BByran started and Merrill Bynum finished the game for the losers, both being tagged for seven hits. Bryan walked two men and fanned a total of five batsmen. Edmundson was the batting star of the afternoon with a perfect second sacker sacrificed.

Indians Purchase Majeski From A's

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Indians strengthened their bench today with the purchase of veteran infielder Hank Majeski from the Philadelphia Athletics.

Cleveland officially said Majeski came to the Indians in a cash deal and will be used for pinch hitting purposes.

They also pointed out that with Luke Easter subject to major league injuries, "Majeski could step over to first and Majeski could play third."

Majeski batted .302 for the A's last season and has a .285 mark so far this year.

V. C. Chemicals Win In Softball

V. C. Chemicals took a hard-fought 13-7 victory over Greenville Mills in the Men's Softball League yesterday.

A six-run outburst in the fifth inning provided the winning runs, as a late-game rally by Greenville Mills was cut short. In the fifth, Tom Boyd homered with one away, and Bill Moore followed him to first with a walk. Ott Alford then came through with another homerun to push across the second and third runs of the inning. After Billy Jordan had been retired, Joe Dudley and Jim Fedra singled in succession. Ray Heidenreich then connected for the third homerun of the inning.

Strange Passage

Chapter I
If the Town Planning Committee had its way Grover Street would have ceased to exist some ten or twelve years ago. How it had ever managed to escape total destruction when they were excavating the Harbour Bridge approaches is something nobody has ever been quite able to explain.

Perhaps the explanation is that Grover Street is not really a street at all, but a row of old houses packed together in a tight little arc, a kind of civic anachronism. There is a narrow footpath in front of the houses bordered with a very high, white, pulling fence, and beyond the fence there is a children's playground that abuts the great walls supporting the bridge approaches. At the rear of the houses there are rows upon rows of clothes lines.

No street, no gardens, no backyards, just a row of houses, carefully by-passed by the engineers of the bridge and existing in precarious isolation upon a mound of solid granite.

Paul Gardner's studio is the top story of Number Thirteen Grover Street, and it is said to have been once occupied by Governor Bligh during an embarrassing moment in Colonial history.

In the late afternoon of a November day a woman walked slowly along the footpath, studying the numbers on the doors. She paused at Number Thirteen and shook the sturdy knocker.

"Are you Mr. Gardner? I saw in the paper that you had a floor to let."

"Please come in. What is your name?"

"Melisande Brandon."

"Well, Melisande Brandon, it so happens that your information is correct. But I will submit to only an approved tenant."

Melisande asked what he meant by that.

"At present," Gardner said, "I am an artist. I work and live here. Do you play any musical instrument?"

"No, I don't play anything."

"You have no ambitions to play. It's the ambition more than the accomplishment that I dread."

"I haven't any ambitions, Mr. Gardner."

"Excellent! Now we can get down to business. The rent is thirty shillings."

"That appears reasonable."

Gardner scribbled a receipt and pocketed the money.

"I'll get back to Central and bring up my things. It's very nice and quiet and cool up here, Mr. Gardner. I think I'm going to like it very much. I might be tempted to sing a little. Would you mind?"

"Sing as much as you like," Gardner said, "but never between midday and five o'clock. That's when I usually work. And, by the way, there's just one other thing, Miss Brandon: I refer to what is commonly known as rules of conduct."

"Rules of conduct?"

"It may come as a complete surprise to you, Miss Brandon, to learn that I abominate that state of heavenly bliss usually associated with the recognition of rules of conduct."

"I don't follow you."

"You'll learn that I'm a completely amoral person—not to be confused with unmoral or immoral. I live in a moral vacuum. Naturally, I don't expect the same of my tenants. But this I do expect—that my tenants will respect my spiritual and moral isolation."

"I still don't follow you."

"That's excellent. It's the reply I expected—indeed, the reply I wanted. I can foresee no difficulty, Miss Brandon, providing you maintain your present attitude."

"But it's not an attitude," firmly declared Melisande. "I just don't know what you're talking about. I just don't know!"

Gardner smiled. "That's what I mean. Here's your key. Substantial, isn't it?"

Melisande took the key and weighed it in the palm of her hand.

"Almost like the key of a prison," she said, slipping it into her bag.

"I think perhaps this house has held many prisoners in its time," Gardner said. "Sometimes at night I fancy I can hear the victims crying out."

"Convicts?"

"No, not convicts. Convicts aren't the only people who wear balls and chains, Miss Brandon."

He smiled again. "But here we are, on unfamiliar ground again. Ring when you return and I'll give you a hand with your things."

"You're very kind. But I really haven't much luggage."

"Come, I'll show you the sunset before you go. It really is superb seen from here."

From where they stood watching the sun go down, it seemed as though an awful stillness had settled over all the earth, and only on the harbour itself were there any signs of movement as the shapes, sluggish ferry-boats crawled into the neat shore-floors and then crept out again upon open water, now delightfully tinted with the subdued colours of the sunset.

The Bridge cast its long grey shadow across the water and as the ferry-boats passed close by, the grey shadow rippled and convulsed with the sudden movement of the surface until it resembled a gibbering thing of a ghost-bridge, or a portrait still wet, with the new paint oozing down the ghastly canvas. In the distance a red-nothing-red-nothing lamp blinked out its sharp little staccato warning of rocks at low tide off Cremorne Point, and here and there impudent little flashes of light weakly stabbed the dusk as if impatient of the long, hot wait for the night. A thin veil of mist—or dust—spread evenly its mantle of battleship grey over the central waters and only along the edges was there a clear outline of the scene. Soon the veil moved outward in all directions, insinuating upon the foreshores, settling into the adjacent docks and streets, engulfing everything. Then quite suddenly they knew that it was neither mist nor dust, nor any kind of alchemy, but merely the going down of the sun.

Movie Producer Defends Ingrid

HOLLYWOOD (U)—Film producer David O. Selznick thinks actress Ingrid Bergman has been "persecuted enough" for leaving her husband to marry Italian director Roberto Rossellini.

"The public is with her," Selznick said in court yesterday. The film producer testified as a witness in a court battle between the actress and her former husband Dr. Peter Lindstrom, over custody of their 13-year-old daughter Pia.

Selznick, who brought Miss Bergman to Hollywood in 1939, was called to support the Swedish-born actress' plea that young Pia be permitted to visit her in Italy this summer.

Lindstrom has objected to the proposed visit on the ground that the child might be "exposed" to Rossellini, whom he has described in testimony as a narcotics addict "with a habit of living with mistresses."

Selznick said he could not comment on the subject of Rossellini's morals and did not believe Lindstrom was familiar with them. "Morals are no entirely a matter of sex," Selznick said.

But the producer said Rossellini was a "fine, talented man... something of a god in the South" and a "man with a bleeding heart for the poor."

He testified under direct examination that he found Rossellini and Miss Bergman "a most devoted couple" while visiting them in Rome and that the director "went out of his way to be a playmate with the children."

"Seldom have I seen an extraordinary fine relationship," he said.

Isaac Pachi, Lindstrom's attorney, cross-examined Selznick and cited a statement made on the floor of the U. S. Senate by Sen. Edwin C. Johnson of Colorado that Rossellini had been a Nazi collaborator and a narcotics addict with a German mistress.

Selznick retorted that Johnson made his charge under congressional immunity. He said reputations were being "maligned left and right" in the current "difficult times."

The producer said he did not think he should judge Rossellini after "hearing only one side."

He had been asked what he thought of a man, in this case Rossellini, having intimate relations with the wife of another man who had befriended him.

"That would be a blow to his reputation if true," Selznick said. Pachi asked Selznick if he knew that Rossellini, "while still married to Marcella de Marcaise, whom he wed... in 1936 and who bore him two children, was keeping a mistress known as Anna Magnani?"

"I don't judge people on gossip," Selznick said. "I don't know—not without the facts."

The diameter of the rim of Chubb Crater in Northern Quebec averages 11,500 feet. The circumference is 6.8 miles.

ARTHRITIS

I have been wonderfully blessed in being restored to health and active life after being crippled in every joint in my body and muscular soreness from head to foot. I had Rheumatoid Arthritis and other forms of Rheumatism, hands deformed and my ankles were set.

Limited space prohibits telling you more here but if you will write me I will reply at once and tell you how I received this wonderful relief.

Elections Board Awaits Requests For Second Vote

RALEIGH (UP) — The State Elections Board waited today for official requests for runoff elections in three of the state's 12 congressional districts and both terms of associate justice of the State Supreme Court.

The board's official canvass of the May 31 primary results yesterday confirmed the complete, but previously unofficial, returns it had released earlier.

The returns also showed a runoff can be asked in the lieutenant governor's race, but runner-up Roy Rowe of Burgaw has announced he will not seek a second contest June 28 with the winner Luther Hodges of Leaksville.

Runners-up in three of the other four races in which no candidate received a majority of votes have announced they plan to seek a second election.

But the board said it has received no official request so far. Board Secretary Raymond Maxwell said the requests must be filed by Saturday.

In the state-wide race for both the long and short terms of the Supreme Court, Superior Judge William H. Bobbitt of Charlotte announced earlier he would ask for a runoff if the canvass showed him entitled to one. The leader in the race was Superior Judge R. Hunt Parker of Roanoke Rapids who received 165,817 votes to Bobbitt's 142,907 for the short term, and 135,079 to the Charlotte judge's 109,476 votes for the long term.

In the 11th and 12th congressional districts the runners-up in the three-way races have also announced they will seek the Democratic nomination again.

Mayor J. O. Talley, Jr., of Fayetteville said yesterday he would ask for a second primary in the Seventh District. The official returns showed Rep. F. Ertel Carlyle edged Talley, 22,981 to 21,893.

In the 12th District George A. Shuford led Frank M. Parker by 15,128 to 12,305 votes, and Parker has announced he will ask for a second vote.

In the Ninth District, Graham M. Carlton trailed Hugh G. Alexander, 16,623 to 23,211, but 7,105 votes for G. Mark Goforth opened the way for Carlton to ask for a runoff.

The board also confirmed its earlier unofficial results in the governor's race. William B. Umstead won the nomination with 294,170 to Hubert E. Olive's 265,675. Manley Dunaway received 49,680 votes.

Those receiving degrees from this vicinity were: James Leon Patrick, Chocowinity, Master of Science in Agricultural Education; Richard Francis Harrison, Ayden, B. S. in Agricultural Economics; William Robert Harris, Robertsonville, B. S. in Agronomy; and Zane Grey Futrell, Stokes, B. S. in Poultry Science.

Larry Latham Hodges, Stokes, and James Lloyd Moore, Williams, B. S. in Agricultural Education; James Edwin Phillips, Fountain, and Aaron Calhoun Turner, Jr., Farmville, Civil Engineering; Vernon Douglas Kemp, Farmville, and John Sullivan Mayo, Greenville, Electrical Engineering; and James Marion Ward, Jr., Greenville Textiles.

Child And Family Conference Set

"Understanding Our Children" has been announced as the topic covering discussions and other program events of a conference to be sponsored at East Carolina College by the department of home economics Wednesday, June 25. Dr. Bessie McNeil, department head, will direct the conference.

Meetings will be held in the Flanagan building at 9 a.m. and at 2 p.m. Teacher members of Parent-Teacher associations, and others who are interested are invited to attend.

Dr. McNeil will open the conference with a discussion of "Mental Hygiene of the Preschool Child." Also during the morning, students in a class in Child Development will present a skit "Fresh, Variable Winds," dealing with the school-age child. The afternoon session will deal with problems of the adolescent. Dr. McNeil will speak on "The Adolescent and His Family."

At both meetings films illustrative of topics on the day's program will be shown. Informal discussions among those present will follow the talks by Dr. McNeil.

Production Drop For Maple Sugar

LANSING, Mich. — (AP) — The 1952 maple syrup production in Michigan has been estimated at 92,000 gallons, 5 per cent less than last year, the federal-state crop reporting service said recently.

Producers made only 6,000 pounds of sugar this year compared to 18,000 pounds a year ago.

SAW TO SUCCESS ALLEGAN, Mich. — (UP) — Randolph and Francis Hay, brothers who have been sawing together for 25 years, sliced through a 12-inch log in 27 seconds to win the crosscut sawing championship at the southwester Michigan field day. Their prize was a new cross-cut saw.

Rotarians Hear Report On Meet Staged In Mexico

Greenville Rotarians last night heard a brief report of the Rotary International convention from Wyatt Brown who just returned from Mexico City where the convention was held.

Brown, who flew to Mexico for the convention, told the local club members of the warm welcome the Rotarians received from Mexican officials and the people of Mexico City during the convention.

The people of the city were most gracious to the visiting Rotarians, Brown said, and he told of many instances in which individual citizens went out of their way to take the Rotarians on sightseeing trips about the city and extend other courtesies to the Rotarians.

Brown described the beautiful homes, gardens and parks seen during the tour of the city, and added that he was one of the Rotarians at the convention who was invited to a tea given by the Mexico City Boy Scouts.

In addition to the business sessions at the convention, Brown reported that colorful entertainment had been arranged by the people of the city. One night there was a folk dancing pageant in which people from various parts of Mexico presented folk dances from their native regions. The people who participated in the dances, he said, were natives of the various regions who had been training for the presentation for eight months prior to the convention. There were also converts of Mexican classical and popular music and other entertainment presented for the Rotarians.

Brown spoke briefly of the Rotarians from foreign nations he met at the convention, and also said he ran into some Greenville people while in Mexico City.

Stocks And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—The stock market turned very dull today when President Truman asked Congress for legislation for government seizure and operation of the steel industry.

The list had been depressed during the first half of the session with steel and rails bearing the brunt of the decline. There was no perceptible change in the mid-session prices after the Truman speech was released.

In the rails, losses of a point or more were set by Northern Pacific, Illinois Central, Denver & Rio Grande, Western Atlantic Coast Line, and Santa Fe. Steel losses ranged to more than a point in Wheeling and Republic.

Declines of more than a point were noted in American Telephone, American Cyanamid and Amerasia.

American Power & Light gained more than a point in a slightly easier utility group.

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Officials counting ballots in an election to determine if National Screw and Manufacturing Co. workers wanted to be represented by a union found one employee left no doubt about his feelings on the subject.

His ballot was marked: "Hell, no!"

Beauty Contest Entries

Another entry in the Jaycee Beauty Pageant is Miss Dixie Pauline Dupree, 18, of Tarboro. Third place winner in the Greenville Farmer's Day contest last year, Miss Dupree is sponsored by the Greenville Rotary Club. A graduate of Belvoir High School, she will present a song routine as her talent skill. Miss Dupree is employed by Bank and Trust Company in Greenville, and is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Dupree, Route 1, Tarboro.

An East Carolina College entry in the Jaycee Beauty Pageant to be held here Thursday night is Miss Martha Helen Benton, 19, of Fayetteville. Sponsored by Greenville Jaycees, she is a graduate of Fayetteville High School and is a sophomore at the college. Miss Benton will render a three-minute tap dance routine for her talent presentation. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Benton, Route 5, Fayetteville.

Minister Arrives For Organizing New Church

The Rev. Edwin Earnhardt, formerly of Charlotte and now making his home in Washington, North Carolina, has arrived in Greenville to organize and serve a suburban Methodist Church which will probably be located in the eastern section of the city.

Rev. Earnhardt is the son of the Rev. D. E. Earnhardt, Methodist minister of Washington and former president of Louisville College. His grandfather, the Rev. D. L. Earnhardt, was also a Methodist minister and was affiliated with the North Carolina Conference before it was divided into two conferences, after which he joined the Western North Carolina Conference.

Young Earnhardt, who was sent here several days ago by the Bishop of the area, was born in Durham 25 years ago. He is married to the former Dolores Roman of Chicago, Illinois, and they have one son, 18-months old Daniel Edward.

He was formerly in business in Charlotte, where he was employed as a television engineer with the Admiral Distributors. He received his education at Pfeiffer College where he took pre-engineering work and finished at the American Institute at Chicago. He served in the submarine service during World War II.

Rev. Earnhardt has been licensed to preach as a local minister and this fall will come before the North Carolina Conference for admission as a full minister. This is his first charge, and he comes to Greenville full of enthusiasm both for the people and the challenge which organizing a new church presents.

Several months ago a group of people from Jarvis Memorial met to discuss the feasibility of organizing a new congregation in the suburbs. They felt that the membership of Jarvis Memorial was fast outgrowing effective facilities and the need of a second congregation was great. It was decided by the group that they petition the Bishop to help them secure a pastor who could lead them in the formation of a new church. Rev. Earnhardt is the answer to the petition.

Although he is making his home with his father, he plans to move his family to Greenville as soon as possible. Until he establishes his home here he may be contacted in Washington, phone 392, or through Jarvis Memorial Church, from which he will work each day until other accommodations can be secured. He is spending his time during the day contacting interested in Washington, phone 392, or in later in the week of all who are concerned about the new church.

Rev. Earnhardt will be presented to the Methodist congregation at Jarvis Memorial on Sunday and hopes that he will be ready to hold his first service for the new group the following Sunday.

Anyone who desires further information about the matter may contact either Rev. Leon Russell, Tom Wilson or Van C. Fleming, Jr., who are co-chairmen of the committee for organizing the church.

Truman Asks...

But it was learned that when the talks collapsed, the President decided to go ahead with the request for seizure authority from Congress.

Mr. Truman emphasized that seizure should not be regarded as "a means of determining the issues in dispute between management and the union."

They will have to be settled, he said, by the parties through collective bargaining — which his proposed legislation would not prevent.

Laws Conflict In Window Stamps

NEW YORK (UP)—A new $5-10 automobile "used" tax caused some embarrassment among city officials today.

A new law forces the city's automobile owners to place stickers on their windshields showing they have paid the tax. But a state statute prohibits placing anything on windshields or rear windows.

The city asked the state for permission to have the stamps affixed

A movie distributed by the American Red Cross entitled "There is no substitute for Blood" was shown to the local Lions Club last night by B. C. Batterfield, county blood program chairman.

The movie, currently being shown to civic clubs in Greenville, traced the path of blood donation from its start to the time it was given to a person in need.

Batterfield stressed that half of the blood which is donated by Pitt County remains in a blood bank for use by the citizens in the county.

This means a ready source of any needed type of blood is always on hand for use in any emergency or can be rushed to the area in a matter of a short time, Batterfield pointed out.

Satterfield was introduced by George Brown who was in charge of the night's program.

Pete West was a guest of the club for the evening's meeting. Marvin Aldridge reported that the Lions Little League Ball club yesterday afternoon copped the first half championship in the Little League by defeating the Elks.

President Jimmie Harris presided over the meeting. A short board of directors meeting was held following the regular meeting at which time routine matters were discussed.

Spud Shortage Notwithstanding

AUGUSTA, Me., (UP)—The potato shortage didn't do a thing to milder's waistline.

Stanley Painter of the Maine Agriculture Department, said a survey of more than 100 women showed they gained an average of two pounds, six ounces eating substitutes during the potato famine.

Accident Victim In Second Wreck

DETROIT (UP)—Patrolman Paul Dryer got to the hospital the hard way.

Dryer was injured yesterday when his motorcycle was struck by an automobile. A patrol wagon taking Dryer to the hospital collided with another automobile. The patrolman's bumpy journey was completed by a patrol car.

Whale Steaks On Menu Of Hotel

SAN DIEGO, Calif., (UP)—Manager Carleton Lichty of the U. S. Grant hotel said he would add whale steaks to his menus to fight the high cost of beefsteak.

Lichty said the ocean tenderloin would cost the hotel's guests less than half as much as regular T-bone and porterhouse cuts.

Funeral Wednesday For Mrs. J. R. Heath

Mrs. Emma L. Rouse Heath, 70, wife of James R. Heath, died at her home near McGowan's Cross Roads at 10 o'clock Monday night. She had been ill for the past four years and critically ill for 12 weeks. Funeral services will be conducted at the chapel of the S. G. Wilkerson & Sons Funeral Home at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon by Mr. Will White, Minister of Jehovah's Witnesses, and burial will be in the Winterville Cemetery.

Mrs. Heath, daughter of the late Rev. Wilson and Nancy Lewis Lupton, was born and reared in Carlisle county. At the time of her marriage to Mr. G. B. F. Rouse in 1899 they were both residents of Beaufort county. They came to Pitt county to live in 1916, and Mrs. Rouse died in 1924. She was married to Mr. Heath in 1926.

Surviving are her husband, two sons, J. B. Rouse of near Greenville, and W. L. Rouse of Black Jack; two daughters, Mrs. J. B. Stokes of near Greenville, and Mrs. W. S. Caldwell of Cherry Point; five step-children, L. H. Rouse of Winterville; C. H. Rouse of McGowan's Cross Roads; Lester Heath of Winterville, N. C.; 21 grandchildren; seven great-grandchildren and two sisters, Mrs. Denie Peed of Washington, N. C., and Mrs. W. M. Brickhouse of Winterville, N. C.

Heber Joyner Funeral Service Held Today

Mr. Heber Joyner, 60, died at his home near Fountain Monday morning at 8:30 o'clock after having suffered a heart attack a few minutes earlier. Funeral services were conducted at the Falkland Presbyterian church Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock and burial was in the Falkland cemetery. The Rev. J. D. Ver Nelson, Free Will Baptist minister of near Paoctous, assisted by the Rev. Preston Ellis, Free Will Baptist Minister of Falkland, will officiate.

Mr. Joyner, son of the late Marshall and Fannie Brown Joyner, was born in Cartaret county and came to Pitt county as a small child with his family. He spent nearly all his life near Greenville and had lived in the Fountain community for the past seven years. He was a member of King's Cross Roads Free Will Baptist church and was a farmer.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Annie Waters Joyner, and a daughter, Peggie Joyner, of the home; two sons and a daughter by a former marriage; Ernest Joyner of Ayden, Morris Joyner of Greenville, and Mrs. Julius Worsley of Robersonville; nine grandchildren, one great-grandchild, three brothers: Emmett Joyner of Greenville; Marshall Joyner, of Winterville, and Walter Joyner of near Greenville, and a sister, Mrs. I. Allen of Greenville.

range in the near distance on another. It is first of a series of Duke Power project lakes on the Catawba river which extend all the way from Marion to Camden. Shore line recreation development has been slow, but dozens of motor boats play the waters and fishing is good. Less than half an hour's drive, mostly over paved road, takes the traveler from a boat on a placid lake to Wiseman's View from which he can look down 1,000 feet to where the Linville river appears to be a rippling brook, and across the gorge where Table Rock and Hawk's Bill tower above the unique formation known as Sitting Bear, a geological pile shaped like a bear reared up to watch for trespassers on his domain.

LINVILLE FALLS — Due to the transition from private operation to status as a side attraction of the Blue Ridge Parkway, famous Linville Falls were not open to the public. That has been and will continue one of the principal scenic attractions of the area.

FLOWERS — Mountain laurel and flame azalea bloomed in profusion along highway NC-181 and around Wiseman's View. Along the Blue Ridge Parkway and the lower slopes of Grandfather Mountain the purple rhododendron was almost at peak. On higher levels it will be at best during the next two weeks. Early summer ground flowers brightened the roadsides, while the variegated shades of green tree foliage provided attractive backdrop for the scenery. DIVERSITY — With towering peaks surrounded by forests and mountain flowers; one of the largest and prettiest mountain lakes; spectacular waterfalls and picturesque gorges; the spreading cultivated acres in the Duke farm at Quaker Meadows; the only school in North Carolina (Jonas Ridge) which has a nine months term running from April to December, instead of September to June — all within the northwestern one-third of the county — truly Burke can justify claim to being a miniature "Variety Vacationland."

FOLKS — Oh, yes, the folks count, too. The host party was headed by M. L. Riddle, president, and Mrs. Genie Bohler, secretary, and other chamber of commerce people; Miss Lillian Ross, county treasurer, and other officials. The guest list included one or two well known names like Carl Goerch of State Magazine; Hugh Morton of Wilmington and Grandfather Mountain, better known for his photography than for his recognized business ability, and John Hemmer of the State advertising division. But most of the guests were not famous, but just working reporters: John E. Jones of the Asheville papers; Henry Schofield of the Winston-Salem papers; W. C. Burton of the Greensboro News; Miles Hughey of the Charlotte Observer; Vic Reimer of the Charlotte News; Frank Dixon and J. D. Pitts of the Morganton News-Herald; Nathan Cooper of the local radio station, and your own reporter—who had as good a time as anybody.
