Hill Attack Costs Reds Heavy Loss

Battalion - Sized Assault Beaten Back In Fierce Encounter; Enemy Probing Attacks More Pronounced; Communist Truce Negotiators Reminded Of Fruitless Delay

SEOUL, Korea (UP) - Communist troops suffered heavy losses today in an unsuccessful attempt to knock the American 45th Division off three knobs of a hill west of Chorwon.

The Reds preceded their battalion-sized attack with an artillery and mortar barrage which the American defenders avoided by sucking down into their foxholes.

But they emerged in time to blast the attacking Chinese with machine guns, rifles and grenades in a battle that lasted from shortly after midnight until just before dawn.

The Reds left many dead to mark their attack and retreat. American ground line communications were knocked out during the fight, but the 179th and 180th Regiments kept in contact through the night by radio.

Six other Red probing attacks were launched Sunday and early today on the western front, one of them east of the truce talk village of Panmunjom, two west of Yonchon and the others west and north-east of Chorwon.

At sea, the American destroyer Buck surprised 75 Red troops unloading boxes on a siding near the sea at Koko and killed or wounded 50 of them while knocking out three of the cars.

In Tokyo, the Navy disclosed that two U. S. minesweepers were hit by enemy shell fire recently while poking into Songjin harbor on the northeast coast of Korea. There were no crew casualties or serious damage to the ships, the Swallow and Murrelet.

In air fighting Sunday, American jets shot down three MIGs and damaged a fourth. Among those credited with the kills was Maj. Lt. James F. Law, 76, Statesville, Calif., who became the 17th jet ace of the war in getting his fifth MIG.

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—The United Nations warned Communist truce negotiators today that they are prolonging a "bloody and profitless" war by refusing to accept Allied armistice terms.

Maj. Gen. William K. Harrison, senior Allied truce negotiator spoke for seven minutes of a 22-minute truce meeting in which no progress was made. He said it was "comprehensible" the Reds would not accept the final U. N. proposal or agree to a re-screening of prisoners.

"You must realize that you are choosing between and honorable armistice and the continuation of a bloody and profitless conflict," he said. "You have chosen to see Korea laid waste and used as a battleground."

"You have chosen to direct your captured personnel at Koko to endanger their lives to further your nefarious schemes. The pages of history will bear incredible testimony to this fact."

Bus Line Operator Is Example That No Obstacle Too Difficult

By JESSE POINDEXTER, Reflector Staff Writer

An uneducated, half-blind Greenville Negro learned last week the State Supreme Court has guaranteed his right to continue operating a business he struggled nearly 30 years to develop.

In a precedent-setting decision, North Carolina's highest court last Wednesday ruled that Ed Fleming, Greenville, owner and operator of Fleming Bus Company, may continue to haul charter parties on his buses.

Fleming got his start in 1925, when he bought an old school bus and converted it into a passenger carrier. He began to transport members of his race to Sunday picnics and to various beaches. He continued that service through the years until he now carries schools, 4-F clubs, lodges, choirs, Sunday school classes and church groups.

Companies Protested. The fight to disenfranchise Fleming, of his charter service began when four large bus companies—Atlantic Greyhound, Queen City Trailways, Carolina Coach and E-shore Transportation—protested before the N. C. Utilities Commission his right to haul charter parties.

On October 24, 1950, the utilities commission denied Fleming the right to transport charter parties on his buses in the future. Through his attorneys the Greenville Ne-

Second Youth Is Charged Today In Bank Robbery

Young Veteran Of Korea Ordered Held On $10,000 Bond After Hearing

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — A 19-year-old veteran of the Korean War today was ordered held in bond for Federal Court trial on charges of handling some of the $44,000 stolen from an Angier bank six weeks ago.

Pvt. Will Roger Arnold, a paratrooper with the 82nd Airborne Division of Ft. Bragg, was the second Lillington man arrested in the robbery. He was ordered held in $10,000 bond for trial at the term of court opening in Raleigh Oct. 6.

FBI agents who arrested him Saturday testified at a hearing here today that Arnold told them that two days after the robbery, James A. Murchison, asked for help in hiding something. Murchison has been charged as the lone wolf gunman who stuck up the bank.

The agents quoted Arnold as saying he went to his mother's home at Rt. 2, Lillington, got a pressure cooker, and drove Murchison around while Murchison transferred money from a black bag into the cooker.

The agents also said Arnold told that he had buried several thousand dollars given to him by Murchison for safekeeping in a glass jar behind his mother's house. The jar was found empty. Arnold said he had given most of the money back to Murchison.

The agents said Arnold had been spending beyond his means. He was unable to make the $10,000 bond ordered by U. S. Commissioner T. L. Hon, and was held in Cumberland County jail here.

Murchison, 23, a farmer and garage worker, was arrested last Friday night and charged with bank robbery. He waived preliminary hearing Saturday and was ordered held in $40,000 bond for trial at the Raleigh term of U. S. District Court opening Oct. 6.

Hot Weather Is Taking Big Toll

By UNITED PRESS. A thick, humid blanket of air hung over the eastern two-thirds of the nation today and death cut ever deeper into the ranks of the millions seeking relief.

At least 48 persons died in heat-caused accidents over the weekend, most of them drowning victims who died trying to escape the heat.

From the Rocky Mountains to the Atlantic Seaboard and South to the Gulf of Mexico the giant mass of humidity-laden air lay in stifling inactivity.

Temperatures in the high 90's were the rule with readings over 100 commonplace yesterday. The record temperature for the day was shared by two small Nebraska towns—Imperial and Lexington—where the mercury climbed to 109.

There was not a single weather observation station in all of Nebraska that reported a reading under 100.

gro appealed, and in the February term of Pitt County Superior Court Judge John J. Burney affirmed the ruling of the utilities commission.

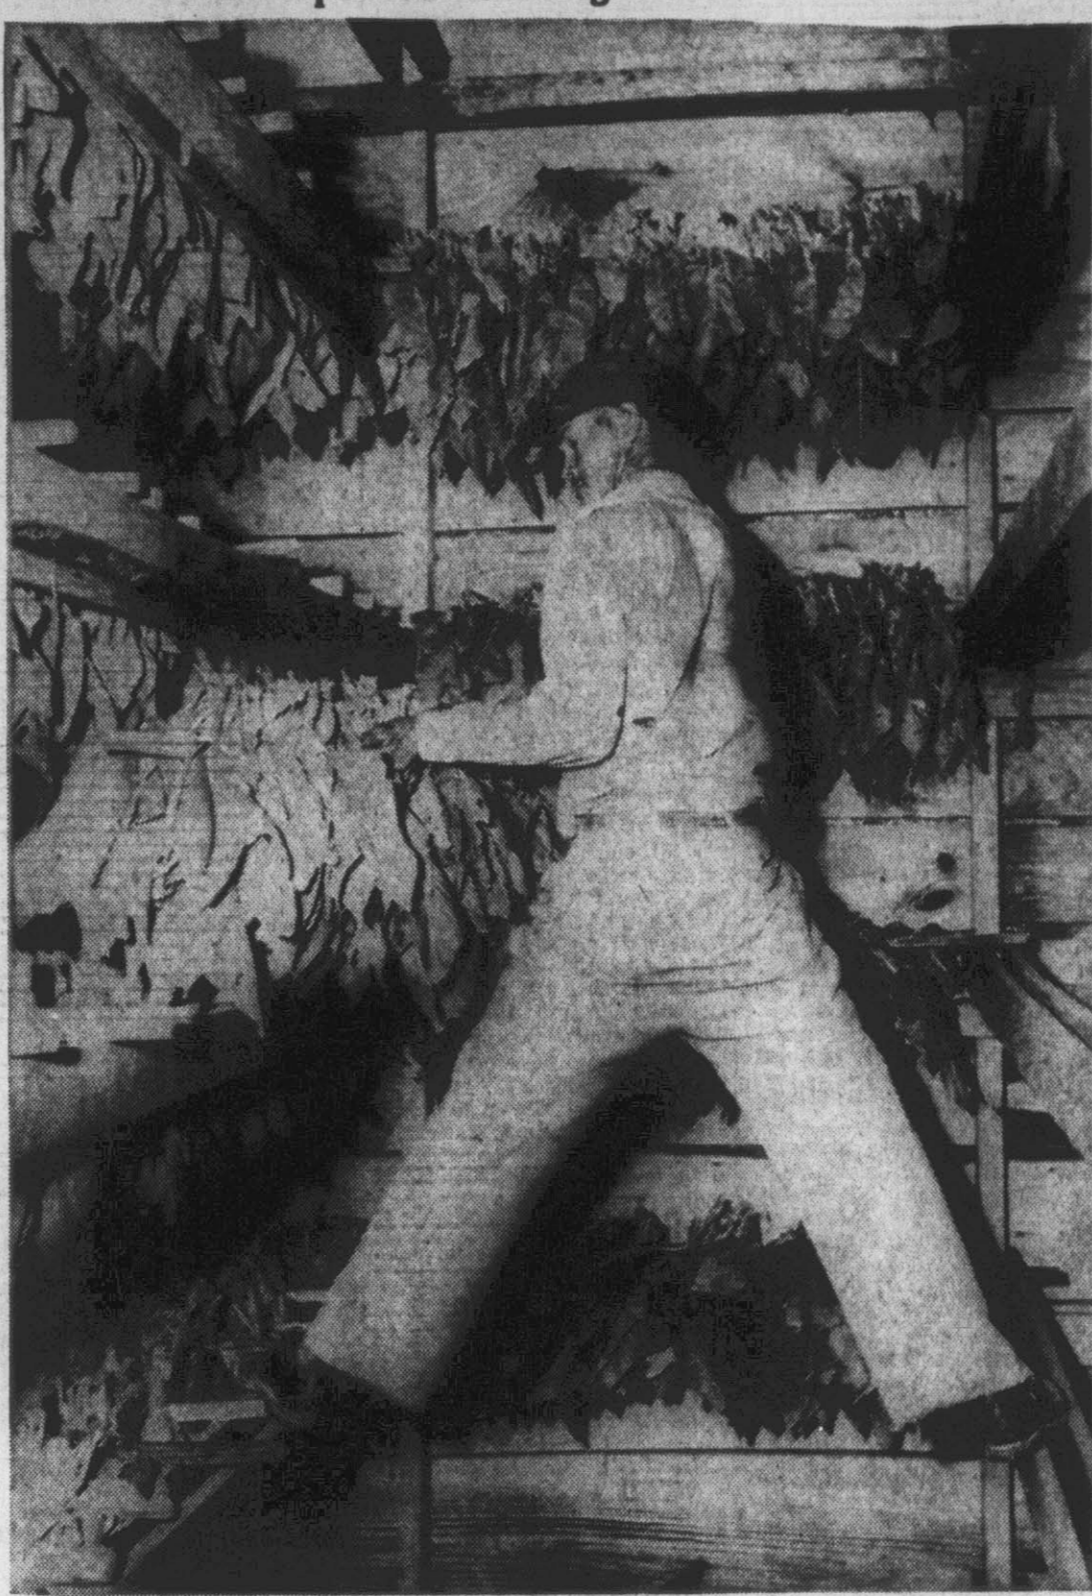

Reports indicate that none of the large companies seemed particularly concerned with Fleming's operations, but all were represented by counsel in the Pitt Court last February because the situation had taken on the aspect of a "test case" and would have far-reaching effect on similar cases in the future.

Immediately following Judge Burney's affirmation of the utilities commission's action in denying Fleming Bus Company the right to carry charter parties, Fleming's attorneys filed notice of appeal to the state's highest legal authority—the Supreme Court.

Last week in a strong opinion written by Justice E. B. Denny, the court sharply reversed rulings of both the utilities commission and Pitt County Superior Court. "The appellant (Fleming) has met the burden of proof in every essential particular," the opinion read.

"We hold that on undisputed evidence adduced in the hearing before the utilities commission and the facts found by the commission, which facts are amply supported by the evidence, the appellant is entitled as a matter of law to a contract carrier permit authorizing him to continue to op-

First Reported Housing Of Pitt Tobacco

Pitt County tobacco grower Roy Duff is shown participating in the first reported housing of tobacco in the county this year. Living about five miles outside Greenville just off the Washington highway, Duff reports that due to dry weather his crop is small and his first "pulling" did not yield a full barn. Although the season has been generally dry throughout most of the county, other Pitt growers are expected to begin housing their crops sometime this week.—Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee.

Chinese On Koje To Be Removed

KOJE ISLAND Korea (UP) — Brig. Gen. Haydon L. Boatner, commander of Koje Island's prison of war camps, has decided to move all Chinese Communist prisoners of war to the Korean mainland, it was announced today.

Boatner will move against Camp 602, which holds the Chinese, and two other compounds, 603 and 96, early tomorrow. No resistance is expected.

North Korean prisoners in Compound 96 will not be split up. They will be moved out only for the day while Boatner's soldiers search for clandestine tunnels, murdered non-Communists, secret weapons and the like.

Prisoners in 603 will be split up into smaller, 500-man groups as Boatner has done with other compounds on the turbulent island.

The Chinese prisoners have shown no signs of the arrogant contempt under which they held previous commanders on Koje. They were the first prisoners on Koje to learn Boatner meant business when he took command. He moved tanks and troops in to tear down Red flags and signs the Communists had hung.

ate as a charter and contract carrier on a substantial parity between his future and prior operation."

And ironically enough, Fleming's attorneys disclosed this morning that two of the lawyers representing the protesting bus companies were members of the 1949 legislature which passed the law regulating bus transportation system—provided, however, that those companies in business at that time could continue to operate. Fleming was in business many years before that time.

Built $95,000 Business. Although blind in one eye and unable to read or write, the local Negro bus owner in 27 years built an organization with assets totaling more than $95,000—and he has no debts. He confines his operations exclusively to and for Negroes, and has never transported any white people.

During World War II, the Fleming Bus company transported an average of between 300 and 400 people per day to work on defense jobs around Camp Lejeune and vicinity. After the war Fleming continued his charter service.

At present he operates nearly a dozen buses. In all his years participating in the transport business, Fleming has never been sued, none of his buses have ever been involved in an accident and none of his drivers have ever been indicted.

First Reported Housing Of Tobacco On Saturday

Crop Shows Effect Of Dry Weather; Tobacco Specialist Expects Many Growers Soon To Begin Annual Harvest

Once again the annual practice of housing tobacco is at hand in Pitt County.

What is believed to be the first housing of the year in the county—at least it is the first account reported—took place Saturday about 5 miles East of Greenville on land farmed by Roy Duff.

Residing in the vicinity of Eastern Pines Community Building, just off the Washington highway, Duff began tying up the first of his 1952 crop over the weekend.

In essentially the same predicament as most other Pitt County tobacco growers, Duff's crop has been hard hit by the prolonged dry spell of recent weeks. But that situation has been widespread over most of the county.

Duff said his crop is small due to dry weather and that he did not have a full barn. He also intimated that because of lack of rain, the tobacco pulled Saturday will probably not cure out very bright.

County Tobacco Specialist Sam Weeks said this morning Duff's housing Saturday is the first he has heard of in the county this year. He stated, however, that many growers will probably begin housing their crops this week.

In remarking on the heavy but short rain yesterday, Weeks said it was welcome change to farmers around Greenville, who have been plagued by dry weather for several weeks. "But we still don't know just how extensive yesterday's rain was," he explained.

Eighth Army's Big Ammunition Dump Blown Up

HAEUNDE, Korea (UP) — The 8th Army's biggest ammunition dump went up in a series of tremendous blasts yesterday, killing one American soldier, injuring 28 and leaving two missing.

Flames raged out of control early today, 14 hours after the first blast. Rockets streaked high in the air with arching trails of flame. Explosions so tremendous they rocked tank-bulldozers mingled with the steady clatter of smaller explosions from bullets and shells.

United Press photographer Jim Healy said some of the blasts looked like "miniature atom bombs." "Hundreds and hundreds of tons of ammunition are blowing up out there right now, looking like nothing I ever saw before," he said. "Often three or four rockets go off at the same time, concussion rocked me like a huge blast of wind."

"Pieces of shrapnel the size of a typewriter came spinning through the air and the road where my jeep was parked was littered with stuff."

Ridgway Arrives In 'Quiet' Rome; Reds Blocked

NATO Chief Heavily Guarded; Demonstrators Sternly Curtail-ed

ROME (UP) — Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway arrived in Rome today under an unprecedented guard of 50,000 troops and police who had orders to crush mercilessly any Communist demonstrations.

The angry Reds charged that the government put Rome in a "state of siege."

The new Allied supreme commander landed at Ciampino airport, accompanied by his wife, after a flight from Paris.

Heavily armed carabinieri, the crack federal police, guarded the entire airport and lined the runway on which Ridgway's plane landed. The entire 12-mile route to Rome also was lined with troops and police.

Cavalrymen on white horses patrolled the fields flanking the road. Precautions were further tightened after police seized five men as they tried to plant 20 pounds of dynamite under a bridge on the northern outskirts last night. Two men identified as Communists were arrested. The others escaped.

There had been no similar massing of security forces since 1948 when the Communists threatened a revolution because of an attempt to assassinate Red leader Palmiro Togliatti.

The government imposed an absolute ban on any kind of anti-Ridgway activity. Police blotted out with whitewash brushes anti-Ridgway slogans which were painted on walls during the night. Communists said "scores" of their men had been arrested for painting the slogans.

This afternoon Ridgway conferred with the defense and finance ministers on the status of Italy's rearmament and its needs in defense aid.

Communist "partisans of peace" at the 11th hour canceled a scheduled demonstration against Ridgway in Rome's Piazza of the Apostles yesterday. But 300 fully-armed police were on hand at the appointed hour.

"We are not relaxing at all," a police spokesman said. "The precautions will be maintained."

Pitt Countian Is Fatally Injured While Swimming

WASHINGTON — A Pitt County man, David Earl Nobles, 23, of Route 1, Grimesland, died yesterday from a broken neck when he dove into shallow water off a dock here.

He was removed from the water by two of his friends that were on the dock at the time of the accident.

Nobles was employed by the Mason Lumber Company at the time of his death and was a former employee of the Washington Daily Times.

Won't Get Post As Court Jester

LONDON (UP) Clive Vale, 17, got an answer today to his suggestion that Queen Elizabeth II appoint a court jester.

Vale had applied for the job, pointing out that the last English court jester died during the reign of Queen Elizabeth I (1558-1603).

A letter to Vale from the royal chamberlain said: "I fear the unsophisticated days of court jesters are incapable of revival. There is not the slightest possibility of a new appointment ever being made."

AIRPORT OPENS. NEWARK, N. J. (UP)—Newark's huge airport, closed four months ago following three crashes in near-by Elizabeth, reopened today over protests of fearful neighboring residents.

Calls UN Parley

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y.—(AP)—Russia's Jacob A. Malik today called a meeting of the United Nations Security Council for Wednesday at 3 p. m. (2 p. m. est) to discuss Soviet charges that the U. N. is carrying on germ warfare in Korea.

The Soviet Union thus apparently decided to air its charges of germ warfare in the Security Council after failing to obtain any action in the U. N. Disarmament Commission.

The United States and other U. N. countries have repeatedly denied such charges and have in fact challenged Malik to take such action.

Malik, June chairman of the 11-nation Security Council, also placed on the agenda of his new members. The great powers were asked by the U. N. Assembly in Paris to reconsider the applications of 14 countries. This step is in response to that request. There has been no change in the statement on new members.

Malik's decision to call this meeting recalled his dramatic series of council meetings in August, 1950, when the Korean War was the hot issue.

Ike Denies He Has All The Answers

But Promises Farm Editors He Will Seek Finest Advise-rs

DENVER—(AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower promised the nation's farm journal editors today that he elected president he would seek the "finest brains" in the country to help solve the problems of agriculture.

At an early morning breakfast meeting Eisenhower said that he did not pretend to have specific answers to all the specific problems that face America today.

Then he added: "The most I have is a determination, if the people want me for a higher duty, to approach the problems with the help of the finest brains in the country."

Then the general asked the editors to sit down with him some time and help him to understand all the problems that face the nation's farmers today.

He disclosed that he himself is a Hereford raiser—and expected to double his herd today.

"A partner and I have one very fine Hereford," the general said, "and tomorrow we expect an increase that will give us two."

The breakfast meeting was Eisenhower's first public appearance since he arrived in Denver yesterday afternoon for his final drive for the 1952 national presidential nomination.

The editors are members of the American Agricultural Editor's Association. They represent farm magazines and journals with a combined circulation of about 20 million. They are here on part of an annual tour of rural areas.

Big Newspaper Chain Endorses Gen. Eisenhower

NEW YORK — (AP) — The 19 Scripps-Howard newspapers across the country today endorsed the presidential candidacy of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The editorial urged the Republican party to nominate him.

"We like Ike," the editorial said, "because he is a natural and inspirational leader. He is a great man not only in America but throughout the world. He has wide and unique experience in dealing with the problems of peace and war. He has demonstrated rare administrative capacity. He radiates hope and contagious confidence in America."

Russell Formally Picks Up His Georgia Delegate Votes Today

ATLANTA (UP) — Georgia Sen. Richard B. Russell formally picks up his home state's 28 Democratic convention votes today and moves into the second place in the race for the party's presidential nomination.

The Georgia Democratic Executive Committee at the same time was expected to clear the way for a possible party bolt in event the national party's candidate or platform is unacceptable when it names a 72-man delegation to the Chicago convention.

Georgia's 28 votes will boost Russell's total of known pledged delegates to 114, according to a United Press tabulation. This will put him well ahead of New York's W. Averell Harriman, who has 95 1-2.

But Russell still will trail front-running Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn) who has 262 delegates. The Georgian predicted that by conven-

All Seven Crewmen Picked Up; Formal Protest Filed; Plane Was On Mercy Flight When Attacked, Searching For Another Plane Which Disappeared In Area

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UP) — Two Russian-type MIG-15 jet fighter planes shot down a Swedish flying boat today but seven men aboard were rescued from the Baltic Sea.

Two of the rescued men were wounded.

Armed Swedish air force planes, equipped with live ammunition, had been sent to join in the search for the unarmed plane and the men in it.

It was feared at first that there were no survivors of the attack on the Catalina flying boat over the open Baltic. But the Swedish air force announced this afternoon that all seven crewmen had been picked up by a German freighter, two of them wounded.

Sweden in a note to Russia charged flatly that Soviet planes had attacked the Catalina. The note was "a sharp protest against the act of violence committed by Soviet military planes against a Swedish military plane over international waters."

The Catalina was on a mercy flight when it was attacked. It was searching for a missing Swedish air force "flying classroom" plane which disappeared over the Baltic Friday with a crew of three and five radio students.

The entire country was shocked. Newspapers angrily denounced "Russian pirates" and their "unheard-of brutality."

Premier Tage Erlander summoned an emergency Cabinet meeting. He also summoned Russian Ambassador Konstantin Rodionov to his office and delivered a stern protest.

The crew of the Catalina reported to air force headquarters that the MIGs made seven attacks on their plane and hit it several times.

Before news of the rescue was received, search craft had spotted a color marker, three deflated life rafts and an oil spot 18 miles south of Finland's Aaland Islands, midway between the Swedish and Finnish coasts.

The wreckage of the first plane, a DC-3, also was found. It lay 60 feet beneath the surface of the Baltic and there was speculation it, too, might have been shot down.

Soviet warships have been holding maneuvers in the area. All aboard apparently perished.

The loss of the Catalina paralleled closely that of an unarmed U. S. Navy Privateer April 18, 1950 over the Baltic after it was fired upon by Soviet fighter planes. No trace of the Privateer or its crew of 10 ever was found.

Coincidentally, Sweden put on trial today seven members of a communist spy ring accused of handing Russia military secrets. It is the biggest spy trial ever held in this traditionally neutral country.

The Catalina radioed that it was attacked over international waters 30 miles off the Soviet-controlled island of Dago in the Gulf of Riga.

One message said: "Two MIG-15s making mock attack on us." Two minutes later: "We are being shot at with 20-millimeter tracer bullets. The fire is to the right."

Four minutes later: "We are hit several times."

"That was the last word from the Catalina, but a sister plane said it 'spotted an unidentified fighter plane flying at high speed far away.'"

The communique referred to the attacking planes merely as "two fighters of the type MIG-15" without specifying their probable nationality.

However, an air force spokesman said: "I never heard of anybody but the Russians and North Koreans using MIG-15s."

meeting today and to re-convene after the national convention to map Georgia's course in the November general election.

Mississippi and South Carolina Democrats plan similar action.

Russell, given a hand in selection of the Georgia delegation, requested that the state's entire congressional delegation be included.

The delegation is also expected to have something of a non-partisan tinge. James V. Carmichael of Marietta, one time anti-Talmadge leader who opposed the late Eugene Talmadge for the governorship in 1946, is expected to be named a delegate.

White Reichard Vows Spoken

Double Ring Ceremony Used

Miss Gladys Brightbill Reichard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard J. Reichard, 124 First Avenue, West Catawqua, Pennsylvania, and James Lawrence White, son of Sidney R. White, of Scotland Neck, and the late Mrs. Mary D. White, were married at 4 p. m. Saturday, June 14, in St. John's Reformed and Lutheran Church, Mickleys, Pa.

The Rev. Harvey T. Sell, pastor of the Lutheran congregation, assisted by Dr. Robert L. Holt, director of religious activities at East Carolina College, Greenville, performed the double ring ceremony. Mrs. James Smith of Columbus, O., was the vocalist; Paul O. Wavrek of Fullerton, Pa., was cellist, and Mrs. Irwin F. Eratzer of Mickleys, Pa., presided at the console.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride, who wore a white lace afternoon dress over white satin and carried a bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley with matching head dress, had Mrs. Robert Bair of Baltimore, Md., as her matron of honor, and her niece, Miss Ann Adele Reichard of Nazareth, Pa., as flower girl. The attendants wore yellow and green respectively and carried talisman roses with matching head dresses.

Cameron Bremseth of New York City, served as best man. The ushers were Sidney R. White, of New Bern, brother of the groom, and Robert B. Reichard of Nazareth, Pa., brother of the bride.

After a reception in the social room of the church, where music was furnished by Winfield Wavrek, violinist, Paul O. Wavrek, cellist, and Miss Eileen Wayrek pianist, with Mrs. James Smith, soprano, as vocalist, the couple left on a wedding trip to the New England States and Canada. In September they will make their home in Greenville.

Mrs. White was graduated from West Chester State Teachers College, West Chester, Pa., and received her master of arts degree from New York University. She is now a member of the department of music at East Carolina College. Mr. White, a graduate of Mars Hill College and East Carolina College, received his master of arts degree from Columbia University where he is currently completing the requirements for the degree of doctor of education in business education. He has been on the East Carolina faculty since 1948. Educational fraternities to which he belongs include Pi Omega Pi, Delta Pi Epsilon and Phi Delta Kappa.

the kitchen. The club members enlarged and added a number of cabinets. They also added a double sink and a larger refrigerator. Among the improvements that club hopes to make during the remainder of the year is the installing of a hot water heater.

The women say they are proud of the improvements that have been made since they undertook the project. The St. Johns club began a proposed continue on working on the interior of club building. The members made a quilt and sold chances on it. They worked several afternoons and contributed one cent to every patch they put in. Mrs. Sam Nelson of Grifton won the quilt and the club cleared $45.00.

The Mount Pleasant club women are improving their mail boxes as their community project for the year.

Falkland Home Demonstration Club members are working hard to raise money for a community building.

A number of the women made Brunswick stew and sold it, making $85.00. Others are selling cards, wrapping paper and stationery. Each year the Falkland club sponsors a card party and Bingo party to aid in the Cancer Drive.

Mrs. A. D. Leonard of the club recently moved into her new home and was given a house-warming party by the club and women of the church. She received many nice gifts.

Mrs. B. T. Nobles of the Renston-Nobles club has designed and made six quilts from feed bags. She dyed some of the white feed bags to harmonize with the printed bags.

Thirteen members of the Littlefield Home Demonstration club met recently at the new Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church, which is nearing completion. They cleared away accumulated rubbish from around the church and members' husbands helped with the heavier work. They brought a truck, tractor, hoes, rakes, and other necessary tools for a real clean-up job.

Women In The Church

Two Methodist women were honored recently in Mexico, each for over thirty years of missionary service in that country. They are Miss Mary N. Pearson from Boston, Mass., who began work in Mexico in 1920, and Miss Dora L. Ingram from Jackson County, Missouri, who began work in Mexico in 1919. They were presented with gold medals by Bishop Eleazar Guerra at the meeting of the Annual Conference of the Methodist Church of Central Mexico, held at Puebla in January. At the time of their retirement Miss Pearson was principal of the Methodist Deaconess School and Miss Ingram was a teacher in Union Evangelical Center, both in Mexico City.

Mrs. Ralph E. Diffendorfer, wife of the late president of the Japanese International Christian University Foundation, was a guest of honor in Tokyo recently at the dedication of the institution her husband worked for several years to establish. Following the dedication in Mitaka, Tokyo, the University opened a limited program of language study, research and service.

At no time since the outbreak of war in 1950 has the Young Woman's Christian Association of Korea ceased to function, say that organization's international leaders. When Seoul was first occupied, the National Y. W. C. A. office was set up in Fusan, from which contacts were as far as possible maintained with local Y. W. C. A.'s. Many of the latter plunged into emergency work with refugees pouring into their cities, until they too had to move south. Y. M. C. A. buildings have been destroyed, properties stolen, families scattered, separated or lost. The exceptions are the National and Seoul City Y. W. C. A. buildings which are reported still standing in the midst of devastation, though completely stripped and looted. Six Y. W. C. A.'s in cities and one in a rural area have now re-established their contacts with the National headquarters and two new associations have been organized. The Pusan Y. W. C. A. is helping in the large orphanage that the U. N. is operating on the island of Koje. Y. W. C. A. student groups have been reorganized in many places, including a group at Ewha Woman's University and in six secondary schools. Schools are held in tents, the pupils standing or sitting on mud floors.

Second Primary For N. C. Demos Awaiting June 28

RALEIGH — (AP) — North Carolina Democrats will ballot again on June 28 to complete the job of nominating candidates for state offices.

They will vote in a state-wide race for associate justice of the State Supreme Court, three congressional districts for U. S. representatives, and in 14 local contests for House and Senate members of the 1953 General Assembly.

The second primaries resulted when no candidate in the races received a clear majority in the May 31 primary. Saturday was the deadline for runner-up candidates in state and congressional races to request a run-off vote.

Superior Court Judges R. Hunt Parker of Roanoke Rapids and William H. Bobbitt of Charlotte will meet in the associate justice race.

In the Seventh District, incumbent Rep. F. Ertel Carlyle will be opposed by J. O. Tally Jr., mayor of Fayetteville. Hugh Q. Alexander of Kannapolis and Graham H. Carlton of Salisbury will be the candidates in the Ninth District, while George Shuford and Frank M. Parker, both of Asheville, will meet in the 12th District runoff.

Carlyle, Alexander and Shuford all led in the first balloting.

Three state Senate seats and 11 House positions will be decided in the local races.

Strength for the Day

BACK HOME AGAIN DON'T GIVE UP Discouraged? Yes, everyone becomes discouraged sometimes. Hardly a man or woman has not worked long and hard toward a goal and found at the last moment that all the work was in vain. Hardly a person has not made grand plans and then seen them collapse into nothing. We all get discouraged. The question is, "What are we going to do about it?" One possible answer is to keep right on being dejected—to feel sorry for ourselves, and sulk, and quit. But another answer is to get angry. Our troubles must have been caused by someone. We can probably bowl him out and jump on a few innocent bystanders, too, to ease our feelings. Or else we can try again, and keep hoping. Thomas Carlyle, the English author, had finished the second volume of his great work on the French Revolution. While friends had his only copy of the manuscript, a careless servant burned it by mistake. Carlyle was utterly dejected at his loss. He could have sulked and left the work unfinished. He could have cursed his friends in fury. Instead, he sat down to rewrite the lost volume, word by word, chapter by chapter, until it was finished and published—a masterpiece of his generation. Discouraged? The best remedy is to get busy and try again.

Once Again The Playgrounds Are Open

Greenville's kids are going to get a big new play toy this week. As a matter of fact, they are going to be getting several of them... in the form of playgrounds. Of course the playgrounds for the most part will be the same ones the kids have had in past years, but beginning Tuesday they will be opened for the summer months on a full time basis. The playgrounds will come equipped with all sorts of games and other items to pass the leisure hours of summer, and each will have a full time director as well. The playground directors have just completed an intensive training course, and are ready to entertain the youngsters, and help them entertain themselves. The facilities are ready and waiting. We hope the youngsters take advantage of them. Greenville's recreation program has come a long way during the past 15 months, and the people of the city are surely seeing the results of the $20,000 the city government has put into the program in the past 12 months. The city has more recreation facilities, more and better trained personnel, and the youngsters and adults alike are being offered by far the best recreation program the city has ever had. That's the kind of progress we like to see for Greenville. But the recreation program has not yet reached the point where the emphasis can be decreased. The city still needs a great deal in the way of recreation facilities, and only through the constant support of the city officials and the rank and file citizens can Greenville build the kind of recreation program it needs and should have.

Take Its Place As A Leader

North Carolina has every right to take pride in the efforts being made to improve the State's educational system, and the results which the efforts are bringing. Statistics of the Bureau of Census show the Tar Heel State ranked fourth in the nation in the per capita expenditure for its educational system in 1951, and likewise ranked fourth in total outlay for schools among the States of the nation. Time was, not too long ago, when we were still thankful for South Carolina to keep the Tar Heel State off the bottom of the heap in such comparison figures. But now North Carolina is setting itself forth as a leader not only in the South, but in the entire nation as well. During 1951 North Carolina spent for education $41.93 for each person in the State. The highest per capita outlay was made by New Mexico where $56.31 was spent for education for each citizen. In spite of the fact that North Carolina's total outlay of $171,117,000 for education was less than one-third that of California, the Tar Heel State still outstripped the gold-plated State in per capita expenditure.

New schools have sprung up throughout North Carolina in the past several years. Better facilities and better education programs are being offered for the youth of the State. Teachers' salaries have gone up, and teacher loads have been lightened gradually to afford better instruction for individual students.

At the same time the State is gradually developing its own program for meeting the educational needs for handicapped children and other exceptional children in public schools. But in this field, the ground work is just being laid. In practically every field of education, North Carolina still realizes its own shortcomings, and through its continued endeavors to surmount these shortcomings, the State can look forward to better educational facilities as the years pass.

One thing sure. With a continually improving educational system the State will enhance its economic standing by improving the economic potential of its people. And with better education will also come a better understanding by the people of North Carolina of their problems individually and collectively.

National Whirligig

By RAY TUCKER WASHINGTON—The military leaders in the Pentagon have quietly staged their swiftest and most ignominious retreat since the Battle of Bull Run in their conflict with Congress over establishment of a single and economical purchasing system of weapons amounting to more than $300,000,000 annually. It was only a few weeks ago that "the brass" loaded trucks with new, wicked and complicated weapons, hauled them to Capitol Hill and set up a "chamber of horrors" that made a circus collection of freaks look like perfectly normal people. The show was designed to prove that a single and coordinated procurement program for such superhuman monstrosities of death was out of the question.

MIRACULOUS An Armed Services subcommittee, headed by Representative F. Edward Herbert of Louisiana, was not frightened or awed. The "chamber of horrors," it was developed, consisted of weapons which are manufactured and fabricated in accord with the basic theories of our mass production machine. Although almost miraculous in their battlefield performance, they do not require miracle men to make them and buy them for the defense establishment. REFORM The measure the Pentagon tried so hard to defeat is entitled the "Defense Cataloging and Standardization Act." It embodies a reform which army, navy and air lobbyists have been able to sidetrack for many, many years on the ground that it would complicate rather than simplify their purchasing methods.

The measure simply provides that the three services codify and catalogue all their weapons, uniforms, foods and other essential articles. Then each would have a stockpile that would be uniform in price, similar in quality and usefulness and interchangeable. There is no reason, for instance, why sailors should wear different underwear than the A.D.'s bought for infantrymen and airmen, to use an extremely practical and elementary example. MILITARY Despite the Pentagon's spectacular exhibit, the measure was whopped through the House by an overwhelming majority. Aside from solid and business-like analyses of wasteful and extravagant military practices by the Hebert subcommittee, the floor debate was studied with criticism of the growing influence of the Joint Chiefs of Staff in civilian and diplomatic fields.

The invasion of politics by "the brass" was also noted, indirectly on the floor but violently in the cloakrooms. Such names as Eisenhower, MacArthur, Wedemeyer, Whitney, and lesser military figures, including both Taft and Eisenhower advocates, were mentioned irreverently. It was noted that Senator Lodge, Ike's campaign manager, was always pro-military, and that the Ohio Senator had numerous ex-officers on his advisory staff. It was pointed out that even Stassen had been a naval politician in World War II. REACTION Having excellent listening posts on Capitol Hill, the Pentagon soon learned of this adverse reaction to its influence around the White House and the State Department, and to its attempt to overawe the Hebert subcommittee.

So, when the Senate Armed Services Committee took the House resolution under consideration, there was no repeat of the "chamber of horrors" drama. A minor member of the Munitions Board showed up to tell the Russell group, most respectfully and even deferentially, that, save for a few minor changes, the Pentagon politicians favored enactment of the measure they have fought for so many years. With the passage of this measure, assuming that Truman signs it, military unification insofar as it represents savings of many millions a year, becomes an economic fact. It means a good break for the taxpayers.

BLOW The selection of General MacArthur as a Republican convention keynoter was a more serious blow to the Eisenhower cause than is generally realized. Although the deposed commander cannot deliver an unneutral talk, this new evidence of his tie-up with the Taft forces tends to equalize the contending candidates on a military basis. Ike, for instance, has been boosted as the ideal president during the "cold war" years ahead because of his grasp of problems connected with the waging of war. Another asset conceded to him is his diplomatic and administrative talents, as revealed during the war and postwar years. His abilities in these important fields are undeniable.

ASSOCIATION But there is not a military man at the Pentagon, including General Eisenhower's closest friends, who contend that he matches MacArthur as a strategist or tactician. And MacArthur's handling of the Japanese people and the imperial family, along with his many other tasks, testify to his accomplishments in such non-military lines. Both Taft and Ike have indicated that they would try to use "Mac" in the government, if they became president. But Taft got to the dismissed general first, and should reap more ballot-box benefits from their association. It deprives Ike of the argument that as chief executive, he could best run the "cold war" and the rearmament program. As Taft's defense secretary or chief of staff, "Mac" could fill the bill.

WADENA, MINN., PIONEER JOURNAL: "American visitors to Canada are finding that their dollar is worth 97 or 98 cents in Canadian money, whereas the Canadian dollar is now quoted at 102 cents, thus we see reflected in cold figures what happens to the currency of a country that goes in for socialism and paternalism such as we have been witnessing since the early days of the New Deal. The same thing happened over in England." ALMA, MICH., RECORD: "In 1920 Americans began working for themselves on February 26. Up to that time they had been working for the government in order to be able to pay their taxes. By 1940 the date had been advanced to March 27. In 1951 it was even later, April 28. This year it has been pushed up to May 19. Never before have Americans had to work so long to pay their taxes. Out of each hour worked, 23 minutes pay is taken by the government in direct and hidden impost." PETALUMA, CALIF., ARGUS-COURIER: "The break in the attempt to hold back inflation has been made, under government auspices. The government, which is supposed to represent the public, has been favoring one section of that public. And in the end the whole public pays."

Except on Monday nights, Monday is "silent night", leaving the visitors with nothing to do but rest. "Unto These Hills"—A Drama of the Cherokee, will be presented each week Tuesday through Sunday nights through July and August in the far-famed mountain-side theater on the slopes of the Great Smokies near the Indian village of Cherokee. This will be the third year for "Unto These Hills" and the reputation established in 1950 and 1951 assures larger attendance than ever. NEW — In another outdoor theater hearing, completion at Boone will be presented at the same times a symphonic drama built around the historic and legendary feats of Daniel Boone, titled "Horn of the West." And the exploits of the great missionary of civilization, Daniel Boone, will be shown on the Billmore estate at Asheville. The title of the Asheville play is "Thunderland."

ATTORCTIONS — Within a three day period it will be possible for the entertainment seeker to see some of the most magnificent scenes in the world visit Mount Mitchell and Grandfather, drive nearly 100 miles on the Blue Ridge Parkway and into Great Smoky Mountains National Park, and attend three excellent outdoor dramas. But Monday night in an empty spot. SUNDAY — Records for the 12 years of the "Lost Colony" show at Manteo and two years for "Unto These Hills" at Cherokee indicate that Saturday and Sunday nights are the most largely attended. Some of the preachers at Cherokee do not like the idea of Sunday showing, and they have protested the desecration of Sabbath tourists. So, there are some friends of the project who think it might be wise to cut out the Sunday night performance and add one Monday night, and make a real bid for the people who have nowhere else to go that night. The suggestion has not been very well received by sponsoring management of the drama and certainly will not be adopted this year.

BALANCE — There is a highly significant paragraph buried in the middle of some publicity material put out by Saint Mary's School and Junior College at Raleigh in furtherance of the current $300,000 building fund and endowment campaign. The paragraph reads: "It is a remarkable tribute to the value of private and church-related education that despite the enormous sums available for the maintenance and expansion of State educational institutions that there are presently 43 private colleges in North Carolina which enroll 22,000 students, or approximately 2,000 more students than are enrolled in the tax supported colleges and universities. We have plenty a very happy balance between private and State education in North Carolina." DENOMINATIONS — From the same source comes further interesting data on church membership in the United States, based on a New York Times story earlier this year. Twenty-three denominations are listed with aggregate membership of 77,400,000 — almost exactly half the total population of continental United States. More than one third of the total (28,634,878) is credited to the Roman Catholic Church. This listing includes all members of Catholic families, whereas the other denominations count membership on basis of adult and adolescent communicants. RATING — Four large Baptist groups of 15,732,000 for second place, 10,632,000 for second place, while three Methodist groups account for 10,632,000. Four branches of the Lutheran faith have 5,336,000, and Jewish congregations are given 5,000,000. There are slightly more than three million Presbyterians and about two and a half million Episcopalians. When the numerous small denominations are added, the conclusion is drawn that substantially more than half the population is affiliated with some church. Perhaps more important than the total number of church members is the fact that within the past 25 years membership has increased more than 50 per cent.

BUDGETS — State Departments and institutions in North Carolina are beginning work on tentative budgets for the next biennium, in anticipation of the visit of the advisory budget commission next month. Governing boards of counties and municipalities are more diligently at work on their annual budgets for the fiscal year beginning July 1. Almost everywhere these officials are finding larger revenue than they expected when present budgets were made up one or two years ago—but they are finding also that this increased revenue falls far short of meeting requirements for maintaining government services at current levels.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

NOW FOR SQUARE DEAL (Kinston Free Press) The State Supreme Court has overruled Judge Henry Stevens of this Judicial District and declared that the Kinston Tobacco Board of Trade was without authority in ordering certain tobacco companies to furnish a fifth buyer on the Finston market.

The decision does not come with any great surprise. We certainly did not believe from the outset that such authority would be vested in the Kinston Board of Trade or any other like body. In Associate Justice Valentine's decision he emphasized the fact that the Tobacco Board of Trade had assumed authority which rested with the State Legislature. This brings up a question—Does the State Legislature have the power to order Liggett & Myers Tobacco company, American Supply, Imperial Tobacco Company, Ltd., Lxpor Leaf Tobacco Company, Kinston Tobacco Company or any other company buying tobacco on the market, to put more buyers on sales than the management of these respective companies think should be engaged? We question in its final analysis whether such legislative enactment would be held constitutional and not an abridgment of the constitutional rights of the buying companies.

Kinston's situation now returns to its original status. That is—Do the tobacco companies buying on the Kinston auction floor propose to continue to DISCRIMINATE against the Kinston market? For many years the markets of Wilson and Greenville have had five sets of buyers and five full sales, while Kinston and Rocky Mount, the two other major markets in the Bright Belt, have had only four sets. For three years now Kinston has had four full sales and one rump sale going. If we recall correctly the rump sale in the 1951 season handled about 12,000,000 pounds of tobacco and the prices prevailing were comparable with those on the other four sales. It is not desirable, however, to continue year after year with a rump sale.

The discrimination for the past three or four years has been a glaring one for the simple fact that the Greenville market with five sets of buyers ranked fourth in the quantity of tobacco sold. Wilson has ranked first by virtue of the fact that it has had five full sales. Kinston and Rocky Mount, though having only four regular sales, have exceeded in volume the tobacco handled on the Greenville market. We submit that any 10 year old school boy can see that Kinston and Rocky Mount are being flagrantly discriminated against.

The Free Press for years has contended it would be better if the four major markets in this belt would cut their sales to four, thus extending the sales period over a longer time. This paper submits that a little more gradual marketing of the weed would give growers and buyers a better chance and it would certainly relieve the continued congestion which exists in the factory and re-drying plants—a condition which on several occasions has necessitated a marketing holiday in order that tobacco processing could catch up with purchases.

The Free Press believes that it would meet with the approval of merchants and business interests in Kinston if the number of sales was restricted to four, provided the competing markets of Wilson and Greenville were likewise restricted. At any rate there must be no let up on the part of the business interests, warehousemen and all interested parties in bringing pressure to bear upon the five

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER Business men in the Atlantic Coast, Deep South and Far Western areas will get a lot of unexpected visits from salesmen this summer. Salesmen's schedules are being arranged on a broad scale to avoid Chicago and a wide area around it during the conventions in July.

Chicago boasts that it has handled bigger assemblages of people before. Nevertheless, at this date it is almost impossible to get reservations in Chicago hotels in the salesmen's price range for before, during and after the convention dates. Milwaukee hotels in that bracket are also reported to be booked full and so are hotels in other cities within two hours traveling time. Even companies whose representatives travel by car and can stay at tourist courts are planning detour schedules. The courts may be full, too.

Difficulties in getting plane and Pullman reservations and the fact that Chicago business men may be preoccupied with the conventions or busy meeting and entertaining old political friends are also factors. Scaring away salesmen and other non-convention visitors is not likely to cost Chicago business anything. In fact, business men are betting $500,000 that the conventions will bring more spending than they keep away. They have subscribed that much to help finance the conventions.

The conventions will attract, in addition to the delegates, thousands of others: wives, reporters and correspondents, radio commentators, television commentators, technicians, political fans, speakers and a larger number of opportunists, some of whom the Chicago police would just as soon see stay home. The delegates and those engaged in press coverage will probably not have time to do extended shopping, but they will be spending many dollars a day for lodgings, services, food, refreshments, relaxation and cigars for filling rooms with smoke. But wives and many other visitors will have time for buying and Chicago merchants will probably make the most of it. Business men's $500,000 investment will return millions in added sales.

SDPA LISTING SMALL PLANT FACILITIES Small manufacturers wanting defense contracts or subcontracts should get in touch with field offices of the Smaller Defense Plants Administration or, if none is handy, with the nearest field office of the Department of Commerce. The SDPA is preparing lists of facilities available for use by procurement officers of the government and large prime contractors. The SDPA will give inquirers simplified forms on which to list their facilities.

Meanwhile, the National Association of Manufacturers has announced its twelve regional offices will act as clearing houses for small manufacturers seeking subcontracts.

ADS BEAT PRICE CUTS IN RETAILING CHICKEN Advertising has the most consistent and definite relation to sales of chicken, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics has found after a survey of poultry retailing. Better advertising is more effective in selling poultry than price cuts, the study disclosed.

Next most important factors, in the order of their importance, are prominence of display, appearance of the chicken meat displayed, and quality of the birds. In fact, low quality at low prices often result in higher sales than high quality at regular prices.

BREAK IN STREET A BREAK FOR RETAILER Stores across the country staged a "torture test" of foam rubber mattresses by U. S. Rubber, by laying them in the street and running a road roller over them. Results exceeded expectations in Marion, Ohio. After 70 rollings, the mattress was all right but the street began to break up.

The retailer, Schaffner's, rushed ads into newspapers saying, "We're awfully sorry!" but really didn't appear to be sorry at all. INTERESTING, IF NOT SIGNIFICANT, NOTES The Department of Commerce reports that a British East African exporter is looking for a market for dom palm nuts (or vegetable ivory), dried turtle meat and turtle oil. An Advertising Age reporter comes up with this scoop: the 10-cent size of a famous chocolate bar weighs 1 1/2 ounces; the nickel bar weighs 1 ounce. One of the big-four mail order houses is increasing its fall catalog circulation from 5,200,000 to 6,000,000. Benjamin H. Namm, veteran Brooklyn retailer, is urging stores to stage "Tag the Tax" weeks, during which all price tags would show the total of hidden taxes on the article. A seventeenth color has been added to the U. S. Army color card for zippers. It is Shade W, a taupe to match WAC skirts.

Hal Boyle's Column

By HAL BOYLE NEW YORK (AP) — Millions of American husbands are going forth now to play the nation's streams with rod and reel. I'd guess who's going along, too. Mama! The lady shepherd is a rising figure in the world's oldest sport. Just why is beyond me. I have become reconciled to the fact that baseball no longer could get by without the financial benefit of lady rooters. Lady wrestlers I can understand, as they get paid for their hair-pulling mayhem.

But the why and wherefore of the enormous increase in the number of lady anglers escape me altogether. Women are highly practical creatures, and if there is anything more impractical than dangling a line in a stream and waiting around for a fish to bite on it, please name it, I can't. Men know that fishing is an illogical business, of course, and that is why it has appealed to them for centuries. They enjoy romantic nonsense, and always have. The more senseless a thing is the greater appeal it has for many men.

Fishing is a perfect escape from reality for them, a chance to daydream under a summer sun, away from the cares of husbandhood and parenthood. And a fishing party made up of the right kind of fellows never even bothers to drop a hook into the water at all. They get out the jug and the cards and settle down happily to the real purpose of the trip. Anyone of the group who insists on fishing is shouted down by all as a traitor.

This, of course, is perfect fishing. Everybody has a swell time, including the fish, who pick up a few sandwich crumbs. Nobody gets hurt. Who really wants to catch a fish anyway? You do, have to lug it home, clean it—a messy job—and stow it in the refrigerator, where it smells up the rest of the food. If you hook a record size fish, the taxidermist charges you $2.50 to stuff it. You hang it on the wall then, where it catches dust until the day it falls off and conks one of your children on the head.

The entrance of women into fishing has changed it from an individual manly sport into a family industry. Papa may not care a hang whether he catches what is called a piscatorial prize, but Mama does. She didn't go all that distance for nothing. She wants to bring something home. She goes about the task as grimly as if her husband was a bachelor again, hidden beneath the surface and trying to evade her lure. "That is why I believe more and more women like to go fishing," one veteran told me. "Every time they haul up a wet, dripping fish it gives them the same thrill they get when they turn out to be better anglers than eerie, I tell you." This same old rascal has a theory also why women often first snared their man. It's their husbands. "A woman drops in her line and the fish swims up, looks at it and sneezes," he said. "Then he looks up through the water and sees staring down at him some frizzle-haired monster overflowing a pair of blue jeans. She is wearing dark goggles and her nose is covered with lumps of sunburn cream. "The fish break! out laughing. 'Ho, ho, ho!' This is something the other fish ought to see. He opens his mouth, and turns his head to call his buddies—and accidentally the hook swings into his mouth. "I suppose a million fish a year are caught just that way." Whatever the reason, Mama has her fish. That's all she cares.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS WASHINGTON — School children in other countries will be getting a fresh glimpse of American life as children in the United States see it in drawings and paintings now being selected to send to them. More than 6,000 drawings and paintings will be sent this year, to 18 foreign countries and the trust territories of Saipan, Palau, Ponape, the Marshalls and Truk through the international school art program. Sponsored jointly by the American Junior Red Cross and the National Art Education Association, the program is now in its fifth year and has grown steadily. Some 18,500 drawings and paintings have been sent broad through National Red Cross societies. In return children in a number of countries have been sending drawings and paintings that interpret their lives and interests.

The pictures are selected from thousands painted during the school year by junior and senior high school students and are judged by art educators for sincerity and interest rather than technical perfection. "Created solely by young people, without adult interference, they depict America through the eyes of her youth," Tom Devine, assistant chief of the Junior Red Cross explains. "They show contrasts of wealth and poverty; prairie, mountains and forest, city and farm. It is America depicted with the sincerity, originality and zeal of youth."

Subject matter ranges from country Saturday night square dances, baseball in the Bronx, ice hockey in Rhode Island, harvest time in Illinois, New Jersey slums girls on a bicycle trip, open-air drive-in theater, drum majorettes at a football game, soda fountain after school hours and a ride on a roller coaster. School and related activities figure prominently in the collections—art class, cafeteria, school bus, picnics, library corners, school dances, assemblies and games, as do community scenes and activities reflecting the life in some 2,000 different school communities. The point of view is frequently original and amusing and there are numerous self-portraits and caricatures. Recent titles give you an idea: "The Flag Raising at Poly High," "My Grandmother in her Kitchen," "Columbus Railroad Yard in the Afternoon," "The Barber Shop," "Cotton Picking in Oklahoma," "An American Auction," "TV," "General Assembly at Central High," "Oil Exposition Grounds."

Playground Program Scheduled To Get Underway Here Tuesday

The Greenville Playground Program will get underway tomorrow morning at 9:30 when the playgrounds open for the summer.

The playground personnel have gone through an intensive training institute which Warren Carroll, recreation director, said would enable the workers to be better leaders on the playground this year.

Carroll said he expected a very large summer program which will include arts and crafts, informal ball games, dancing, drama, storytelling, quiet and table games, active games, special events and other types of activity that participants are interested in.

The playground hours are from 9:30 a. m. to 12 noon and from 3:00 p. m. to 5:30 p. m. Mondays through Fridays. Each Saturday morning will be devoted to training sessions and making further plans.

Mrs. Betty Gordon will supervise the white playground areas and Luke Henby will supervise the colored playground areas. White playground workers will be: Joe Lupion and Nancy Howell, w. Greenville; Dorothy Brock, Fourteenth Street; Mrs. Frank Dudley, Third Street; Jackie Sears, Cotanche Street; Linda Whitehurst, Woodlawn; and John Painter and Sara Lee, Elm Street.

Colored workers will be: Eleanor Hagans, Riverside; Albert Hill and Francis Vines, Eppe; and Margaret Newton, South Greenville.

All children attending the playgrounds will be registered for the first few days. The playgrounds are open and each playground will be competing with other to determine the registration.

One of the most popular sports on the Greenville playgrounds is that old game of horse shoes. Here, participants carefully study the lay of the shoes at one point in their game.

Dr. Messick And Dean Jenkins To Join In Program

President John D. Messick and Dean Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina College will participate in the program to be offered at North Carolina School Week, an event arranged by the School of Education of the University of North Carolina and scheduled to begin Monday, June 16. The East Carolina president and dean will serve as chairmen of discussion groups included on the program for Tuesday, June 17.

Dr. Messick will lead a panel discussion on outdoor education. "The School Camp, Its Possibilities and Limitations" will be the topic to be considered.

Dean Jenkins and Earl Funderburk, superintendent of the Elizabeth City schools, are slated to serve as co-chairmen of a panel discussion on "Using Parents in a School's Program." While in Chapel Hill, Dean Jenkins will attend also a meeting of the North Carolina Advisory Committee on Educational Administration, of which he is a member.

Averell Harriman Sees Truman In Tour Report

By RAYMOND LAHR
WASHINGTON (UP)—W. Averell Harriman checked in at the White House today to give President Truman a report on his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The angular, 60-year-old foreign aid administrator, who has just returned from his second cross-country stumping tour, said he would also give reporters a fill-in after his talk with Mr. Truman this morning.

As the only Democratic presidential contender who has gone down the line for Mr. Truman's foreign and domestic policies, Harriman has high hopes of winning a presidential blessing for his candidacy at, if not before, the Democratic convention in Chicago next month.

Mr. Truman has so far remained carefully neutral in the free-for-all party fight to choose his successor. But he has hinted strongly that he will put in his oar before the convention gets around to actual balloting on a nominee.

Mr. Truman has made plain that he has a high regard for Harriman, who has held several high posts, including secretary of commerce, ambassador to Russia, and White House foreign policy adviser, under the Truman administration.

But some informed Democratic circles believe that the President as a practical politician, harbors grave doubts about the chances for nominating and electing Harriman because of his "Wall Street millionaire" background.

If Harriman picked up any delegate strength on his tours, it has not been made known in public declarations.

The United Press tabulation of delegate standings, based on pledges and known first-ballot commitments, showed Harriman today just where he was a month ago—with 95 1-2 delegates, nearly all of them from his home state of New York.

Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee leads with 252. It takes 616 delegate votes to win the nomination. In other political developments:

1. Sen. Robert A. Taft said he doesn't believe that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, his chief rival for the Republican presidential nomination, picked up "a single delegate" in his recent "get acquainted" meetings with various state delegations to the GOP convention.

In two television appearances Sunday, Taft stood firm on his claim that he already has "nearly enough" delegates to sew up the GOP nomination, and asserted that Eisenhower's homecoming has not had "the favorable results which his followers thought it would have."

2. Eisenhower returned to his wife's home town of Denver, and told a cheering crowd of 10,000 that "whatever happens, my wife and I are not going to worry." The retired general, who delivered his second major campaign speech on Detroit Saturday, plans to make his headquarters in Denver until the convention opens July 7, but will go to his birthplace, Denison, Tex., Saturday for another speech.

3. Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) bidding for Midwestern support of his presidential candidacy, met with North Dakota Democrats at Mandan, N. D.

Russell, with 96 Southern delegates already pledged to him, was expected to forge ahead of Harriman into second place today by picking up all of his home state's 20 convention votes.

Virginia's Democratic convention tomorrow may add another 28 votes to the Russell column.

4. Vice President Alben W. Barkley, who is "available" for the Democratic presidential nomination said in a Gannett News Service radio interview that he expects a "free and open contest" at the national convention.

He outlined his personal platform as support of federal aid to education, rural electrification, farm supports, flood control, soil conservation "and all those things that mean advancement in the standard of living of the American people."

5. Kefauver predicted in a television debate with Taft that continued prosperity, anti-inflation controls and corruption would be the three big domestic issues in the presidential campaign.

Taft agreed flatly with Kefauver on the issue of corruption, but forecast that the other main issues would be "big government" and "big spending."

Frogmen Assist Fishing Boats In Mediterranean

LONDON (UP)—Frogmen's movie shots of fishing trawls in action under water have provided much useful data on the action of trawls on sandbeds, a ministry of agriculture and fisheries spokesman said.

The shots taken by the frogmen were made into a film. The film will be released to interested audiences throughout the world.

Operations were carried out in the Mediterranean, in clear water flooded by sunlight, at depths of up to 20 fathoms last autumn.

Action of trawls used by British, Dutch, German, and Belgian vessels was observed. They were fitted to the ministry's research ship, Sir Lancelot.

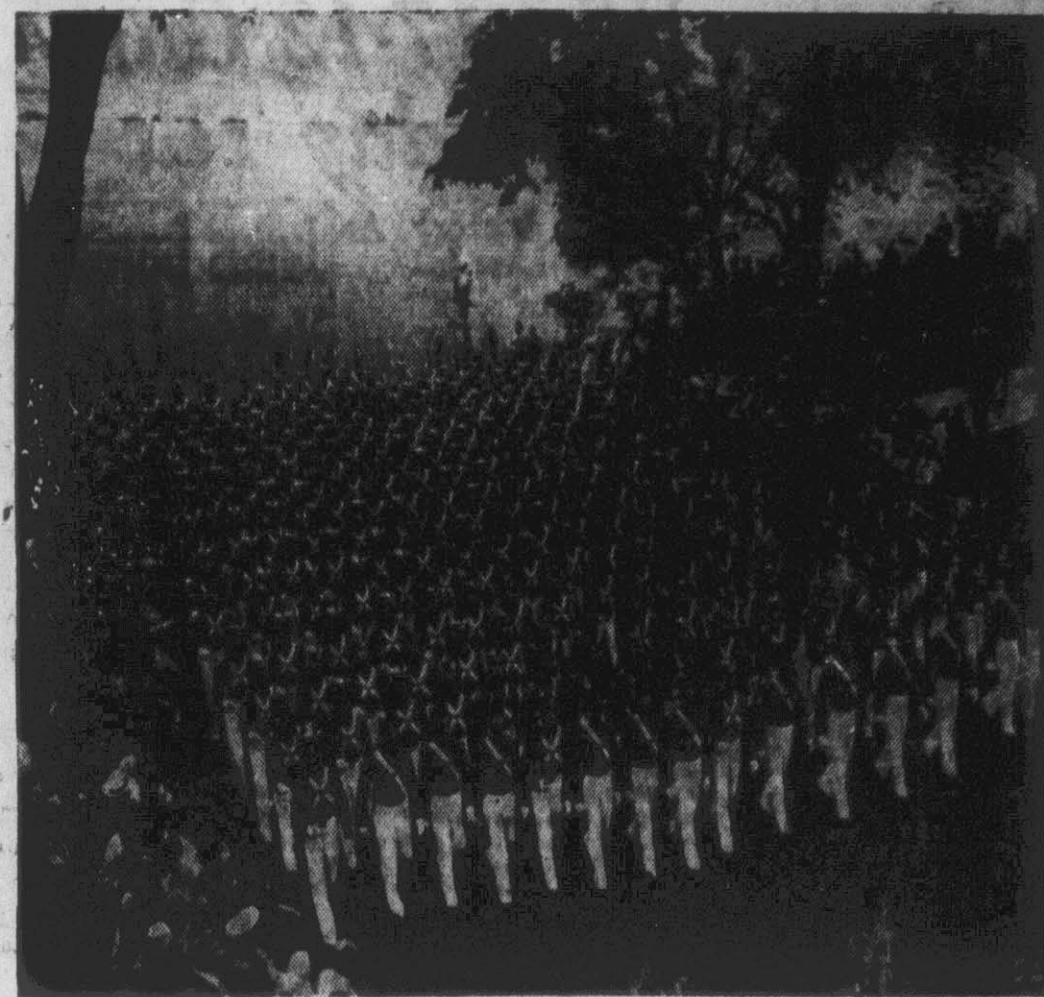

'Get-Tough' View For Car Drivers

JEFFERSON CIT., Mo. (UP)—Missouri has junked its antiquated drivers' license requirements and installed a new "tough" test for operators of trucks and automobiles.

There was a time when a man could stagger into a store or a bank and buy a license to operate a machine on the highways of Missouri. The new law eliminates that possibility.

An applicant now must be able to answer at least 20 of 100 important questions about driving. The license he earns through special tests conducted by the state highway patrol will be good for a year.

Busy Long Island Railroad Is Shut Down By Walkout

URGENT
By BARBARA BUNDUCH
NEW YORK (UP)—Striking Long Island Railroad engineers shut down the nation's largest passenger railroad today.

The flash strike stranded 300,000 commuters and thousands of returning weekenders and touched off one of the biggest rush hour traffic jams in history.

The Long Island is the only railroad serving the 120-mile-long island jutting into the Atlantic.

The City Board of Transportation put all available subway trains into service and ran extra buses for the feeder lines in Queens and Brooklyn.

Local Long Island bus lines switched their routes to shuttle travelers in a frantic relay between communities in an effort to reach the city.

Taxi drivers loaded up at fixed prices per head and thousands of private automobiles poured into the parkways in a colossal traffic snarl. The morning was hot and steamy.

The road's engineers went on strike at 3 a. m. EST in a long-standing dispute complicated by the recent settlement of the nation-wide rail dispute and the return of the roads from presidential seizure.

The company announced it had asked the Federal Mediation Service to notify President Truman of the situation, apparently in a move to seek a strike ban under the Railway Labor Act.

The 118-year-old Long Island, in federal receivership since 1949, operates more than 900 miles of track in Nassau and Suffolk counties and Queens and Brooklyn. It carries nearly one-fifth of all the commuter railroad passengers in the United States.

The road provides the sole link between New York City and hundreds of Long Island communities populated largely by commuters.

The railroad posted "service suspended" notices in all stations but most commuters apparently had learned of the strike before they left home.

The strike began officially when drill crews stopped moving trains at Jamaica Station. Trains "on the road" before the deadline finished their runs.

About 100 members of Local 269 of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers were told to quit work at 3 a. m. An additional 300 members received notice not to report for the day shifts, which start at 5 a. m. when the bulk of commuter traffic begins.

Michael M. McMahon, chairman of the Brotherhood's LIRR grievance committee, said the strike had been approved by James P. Shields, the union's grand chief engineer.

The railroad has drawn public criticism for its wrecks and inability to keep its trains on schedule in the past.

R. C. Maier, secretary of Local 269, said the surprise strike did not involve wages but concerned working condition clauses in a new contract.

Union representatives and company spokesmen had been meeting with federal mediators since June 6. No progress was made at the last conference, held Friday.

Greenies Win 17-12 Game But Forfeit Sunday Tilt

J. R. Brown Leads Saturday Victory As Greenies Outlast Nine-Run Last Inning By Fremont Team

Greenville outlasted a nine-run ninth-inning Saturday night to take a 17-12 win over Fremont. Fremont won a forfeited game yesterday when only eight players showed up for Greenville.

The game Saturday night was one that slowly built itself up from a close contest until it reached the proportions of a first class slugfest. Greenville batted around in the sixth to score six runs, but Fremont did even better. The visitors jumped on George Porter and Bill Sweet for eight hits and, with the aid of seven Greenville errors, scored nine runs in the last frame to cut margin to but five runs.

J. R. Brown, playing at third base in the game after previous experience at catching and in the outfield, led the 13-hit attack for Greenville with three singles and a double in five trips at bat. Brown, whose batting has been rather scratchy all season long, was easily the batting hero of the evening. Jack Carter of Fremont, with four singles in six attempts, was the only rival to come close to Brown.

Greenville won the game in the seventh inning with three runs. George McSwain, the Greene catcher, singled to lead off the frame, and moved to second on another single by Brown. George Porter, the winning pitcher, sacrificed the runners down. Wilbur Thompson singled to bring McSwain home, and Brown scored as the Fremont pitcher dropped a relay from the catcher after a passed ball. Thompson, who had moved to third on the play, came home on another passed ball with the winning run.

Greenville plays in Pinetops Wednesday afternoon and goes to Stan- tonburg next Sunday.

Hank Bauer Leads All-Star Poll For Rightfield Post

CHICAGO — (AP) — Hank Bauer, the New York Yankees' veteran outfielder who has never played in an All-Star baseball game, has taken a substantial lead for the American League's right field position in balloting for this year's squad.

Bauer has received a total of 33,191 votes a lead of 4,654 over Detroit's Vic Wertz, as votes were tabulated today for the 19th annual All-Star contest in Philadelphia July 4.

Hefty Hank was the third Yankee player to assume leadership in voting for the starting American League team. Other Yankees currently leading in votes for their respective positions are shortstop, Phil Rizzuto, 38,523 votes, and catcher, Yogi Berra, 36,779.

Hank Sauer, the Chicago Cubs' walloping left fielder, continues to lead all individual vote-getters. He has been named on 47,346 ballots.

Dom DiMaggio, Boston Red Sox center fielder, is second with 45,194, while Stan Musial, St. Louis with 44,157.

Julius Boros Is National Champ

DALLAS, Tex. (UP)—Bury, 32-year-old Julius Boros, a transplant of New England playing out of Mid Pine, N. C., predicted in advance that he would win the National Open golf tournament.

Last Friday night at the end of the first two rounds of the tournament at Northwood Club, Boros told his brother, Ernest — who is also a professional golfer — that he was going to win the big one.

At that time, Julius (The Moose) Boros was in fourth place, four strokes behind defending champion Ben Hogan.

Saturday morning, as the sun mounted toward the peak and temperatures headed for 98 degrees, Julius told Ernest:

"I've got two rounds in my system and today's the day I'm going to win this one."

With two one-over-par rounds of 71 already on his record, the fledgling pro put on one of the greatest displays of pressure golf in the 52-year history of the Open. He calmly went out in the morning to shoot a two-under-par 68 despite a double bogey, picking up six strokes on the faltering Hogan and taking over the lead by two strokes.

In the afternoon, with practically everyone waiting for the pressure to make him "choke up," the deliberate Connecticut Yankee again survived a double-bogey to post a 71 and give him a 281 total that eventually was to be four strokes less than his nearest challenger, Ed (Porky) Oliver of Lemon, Ill.

Little League Star Of The Week

It seems that 1952 is the Greenville's Little League's "no-hitter" year. There have been only two "Little League Star of the Week" features this year, but both players have accomplished the feat of hurling a no-hit contest. Lucian Bryan is today's star. Playing with the Elks, the little curv-ball artist hurled a 3-2 no-hitter against the Jaycees, striking out four men.

Errors and walks caused the former Jaycee player to lose his shut-out, but his perfect control of the Jaycees sluggers enabled him to win the contest. The game was only one of several good mound performances turned in by Bryan this year.

Bryan was a reserve infielder for the Jaycees last year and saw only limited action. With the aid of a tricky curve-ball, he seems to be going full-steam ahead this season. Lucian is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Bryan of 308 East 10th Street.

Farmville Sluggers Win As Red Sox Hit Five Homers

FARMVILLE — Farmville turned loose all of its batting power yesterday to sw-up Pinetops under a 15-0 score in a Bright Belt League contest. Pinetops won over the Red Sox Saturday night, 6-2.

Five homers in the seventh inning caused all of the trouble for Pinetops, as Farmville pushed across six runs. W. C. Sanderson, Mark Herring, Ralph Britt, Millard Webb and Bobby Gay collected the four-baggers for the league leaders, while Streeter Tugwell put in a double in the hitting spree.

James Hardison, from Farm Life, pitched the victory. Hardison allowed but four hits to the last place Pinetops team.

In Saturday's game both clubs got 13 hits, but Pinetops was able to make the most of their safeties off Farmville's no-hit ace, Rodney Heath. Horace Jefferson led the winners at bat with three singles in four trips at bat, while Alvin Hooks, star of the Appalachian State Teachers College athletic teams, picked up two singles and a triple in three attempts.

Tugwell led the losers with three hits, including a double and triple, in five times up while Pete Piestrak had two safeties.

Giants Blow 11-Run Lead As Cards Win 14-12 Game

Dot Kirby Opens Defense Of Title

TROON, Scotland (UP) — U. S. titleholder Dot Kirby of Atlanta opens her quest for the British Women's Amateur golf championship today in an All-American first round match against Pat O'Sullivan of Orange, Conn.

Ten American girls are entered in the six-day match play tournament on the hard-zaked, 6,500-yard Troon course. Seven of these are U. S. Curtis Cup players eager to atone for their upset defeat at the hands of the British at Muirfield, June 6 and 7.

"My girls are all fit and happy," said Mrs. Frank Goldthwaite of Fort Worth, Tex., non-playing captain of the U. S. Curtis Cup team who also is entered in the British amateur.

"They have a great deal of confidence and hope to avenge the Curtis Cup loss. We like the course."

America's five other Curtis cuppers all are favored to win first round matches. They are paired as follows: Mae Murray of Rutland, Vt., vs. Zara Bolton of England; Polly Riley of Fort Worth vs. Mrs. Phil Wylie of Scotland; Grace Dorn of Corvallis, Ore., vs. Doron of Cleveland, vs. Jean McCullough of Scotland, and Marjorie Lindsay of Decatur, Ill., vs. Joan Moreland of England.

Mrs. Goldthwaite is the only American to draw a first round bye. She will start play in the second round, which also will be played today.

The two other U. S. girls in the field of 108 golfers are Dot Kieley of Los Angeles, a former Curtis cupper, and Elaine Cranston of Pasadena, Calif. Miss Cranston drew the toughest opponent of the U. S. contingent when she was paired against Frances Stephens, who won the British title in 1949. Miss Kieley is pitted against Megan Coleman of Scotland.

An American has not won the title since Louis Suggs of Thomasville, Ga., did it in 1948. Babe Dirks-Zaharias won in 1947. Both have since turned professional.

Ed Rubinoff Set For Junior Title In Lawn Tennis

DAVIDSON, N. C. — (AP) — Ed Rubinoff, a game shotmaker from Miami Beach, Fla., who has filled the role of giant-killer in the Southern Juniors and Boy's Lawn Tennis championship, had his biggest job before him today.

Only one opponent stood in front of Rubinoff in his quest for the tournament's juniors crown. But that one was Jerry Moss, a fellow-townsmen and the pre-tournament favorite.

Rubinoff, unheralded when he entered the event Monday, continued knocking off seeded players yesterday. He disposed of seventh-seeded David Harum of Coral Gables, Fla., in straight sets, 6-2, 6-4, 6-2.

The top-seeded Moss found the going much rougher against Dudley Johnston, Jacksonville, Fla., No. 5 in the rankings. Johnston extended Moss the full five-set limit before yielding, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4, 2-6, 6-2.

In the boys' division, first-seeded Donald Dell of Washington tangled with second-seeded Mike Green, Miami Beach, in the finals. Dell eliminated Peter Cox, also of Washington, 6-0, 6-1, in yesterday's semifinals, while Green was downing Crawford Henry, Atlanta, No. 3 in the rankings, 6-2, 6-3.

Harum and Rubinoff met Moss and John Fraser of St. Augustine, Fla., in the juniors' doubles finals. The doubles championship in the boys bracket lay between Dell and Cox and Maxwell Brown and Charles Miller of Louisville, Ky. Dell and Cox defeated Bobby Germ of Miami Beach and David Houghton, Hollywood, Fla. 11-9, 6-4. Other doubles teams were idle yesterday.

Dot Kirby Opens Defense Of Title

Imagine a big league baseball team dissipating an 11-0 lead? Sounds incredible, doesn't it? It happened, though. No later than yesterday and by none other than the National League champions New York Giants.

Sunday produced lots of excitement as the New York Yankees increased their first place lead in the American League with two victories over the Cleveland Indians, the Boston Braves chilled the red hot Chicago Cubs with a double defeat and the Cincinnati Reds won their first game of the season from the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Nothing, however, matched the St. Louis Cardinals' feat in overcoming the Giants' 11-0 lead to win 14-12. The proud Polo Grounders gained a split by winning the second game, 3-0. But, oh, what a fit game! Leading 11-0 after four innings with ace Sal Maglie on the mound and losing the game? The Giants still can't believe it.

Yesterday the Redbirds, held runless for four innings, routed Maglie with a seven-run fifth, climaxed by Enos Slaughter's three-run homer. Three more runs off Hoyt Wilhelm in the seventh cut the Giants' margin to one run. Solly Hemus' lead-off homer off George Spencer in the eighth tied the score at 11-11, and Slaughter's single off loser Max Lanier in the same inning finally put the Cards in front, 12-11. Another homer by Hemus with one on in the ninth offset a Giant score in their half of the last frame.

The Yankee's opened up a game and a half lead in the American, thrashing the Indians twice, 8-2 and 4-3. Ed Lopat coasted to the first game victory. Bob Kuzava, making his first start, won the second. Bob Lemon and Steve Gromek were the losers.

The second-place Red Sox fought back for a split with a second game 3-2 triumph after Saul Rogovin had pitched the Chicago White Sox to a 7-2 win. Dick Gernert's first as put the Cards in front, 12-11. Another homer by Hemus with one on in the ninth offset a Giant score in their half of the last frame.

Missouri In NCAA

OMAHA — (AP) — Holy Cross sluggers challenge unbeaten Missouri tonight for the National Collegiate Baseball Championship.

With two smashing victories yesterday, the Crusaders narrowed the NCAA tournament field to themselves and the Missourians. Holy Cross eliminated Western Michigan 15-3 in the afternoon and came back last night to out-penn State, 15-4, from the double elimination tournament.

Pension Increase For Widows Of Deceased Vets

Effective July 1, widows of deceased veterans having dependent children will receive increased compensation and pension payments. That announcement was made today by Ernest C. Elliott, officer-in-charge of the New Bern VA office. The increased rates where applicable will be reflected in compensation or pension checks to be received at the end of July, Elliott said.

"The increases will be made automatically by the VA, without the need of any action on the part of widows and children," the VA officer stated. "Increases apply only to widows with one or more dependent children and to children of deceased veterans, but no increases were provided for widows without children or for dependent parents." Public Law 356, signed by the president May 23, provided among other things that the monthly compensation rates for 500,000 dependents of deceased veterans who died of service-connected disabilities and who served either during wartime or since June 27, 1950, will be increased by approximately 15 percent.

"In addition to this," he said further, "the death pension rates for approximately 92,300 widows and children of veterans of the Civil, Indian, and Spanish-American wars who died of nonservice-connected disabilities are increased seven and one-half percent by the new law, the increase being payable as in other cases."

Chapter 6

It was three weeks before Melisande found enough courage to re-visit John Taylor at the playground.

Snowball saw her coming through the gates and at the sight of her he emitted a howl of glee that threatened to disgorge his larynx, and came running, his padding feet several shades blacker than the natural hue of his skin.

"Hullo, Miss!"

"Hullo."

Snowball's fa shone eloquently with the pleasure of remembrance.

"You're the Miss who minded my tooth, ain't you, Miss?"

Melisande smiled and enquired after the subsequent fate of the tooth.

"Gave it to a kid for a conic agate an' a pecky."

Melisande nodded her approval of the transaction. "You're a smart kid, Snowball."

"Miss, do you take fits?"

"No, I don't think so. Why do you ask?"

"Well, there's a kid at our school takes fits—like this."

Whereupon Snowball instantly proceeded to demonstrate the epileptic evolutions of the afflicted one. This was accomplished by means of, firstly, a realistic rolling of the eyes, followed in turn by a series of sharp, pig-like grunts, a stiffening of the arms and legs, a falling to the ground, and a squirming and writhing finale that culminated in a kind of death-like trance. Melisande burst into loud spasms of laughter. Snowball swiftly came to his feet, breathing heavily from his display.

"Miss, can you climb trees?"

"I haven't tried in years."

"I can! Do you want to see me climb one now?"

"The trees aren't very big, Snowball. Would Mr. Taylor approve of you damaging the trees in the playground?"

Snowball waved a hand towards the office.

"Skipper's in there, drinkin' tea. He wouldn't see me, anyway."

So they called him Skipper. Not sir, or Mr. Taylor—merely Skipper. Trust kids to find a good word.

"Perhaps you'd better not. Skipper might be angry."

"Not Skip. He ain't ever angry!"

"That's a very good thing, isn't it—ain't it?"

Taylor appeared.

"Snowy, how much longer are you going to say 'ain't'—?"

"Good morning, Mr. Taylor."

"Good morning. What's Snowy been up to?"

"Nuthin', Skip."

Snowball continued to hover round expectantly, dismayed at the sudden curtailment of his tete-a-tete.

"Is this a new Miss, Skipper?"

"We don't know that yet."

They watched him vanish into the gymnasium, punching holes in the air as he went, and then John said:

"That's the kid whom Paul paints as a being without life."

For the first time Melisande turned and squarely faced the supervisor.

"What does Snowy himself think of the picture?"

"He's been awfully scared of Paul ever since—Ho ware you making out with your new landlord, anyway, Miss Brandon?"

Melisande permitted her gaze to play deliberately upon Taylor's questioning face.

"Skipper—Melisande hesitated and became confused.

"Oh, that! Kids just have to put labels on people."

"Skipper—what do you think of Paul? It's very important that I should know."

Taylor gently took her arm and steered her into his office.

"I'm glad we got round to that," he said. "Eventually, of course, I'd had to tackle you, Miss Brandon."

Melisande intently studied the toes of her shoes.

"I'm very fond of Paul."

"Paul won't marry you, Melisande. You might as well know that right away."

"How do you know that?"

"I expect you've met Kate—Why don't you ask her?"

"I have asked her. She says the same as you've just said."

The supervisor plunged deeper into the burnt-out bowl of his pipe. His eyes reflected tiny pin-points of perplexity.

The supervisor plunged a finger "Has it ever occurred to you, Melisande, that Paul might be insane?"

Melisande's face paled and her hands trembled.

"Yes, it has. Has there ever been—anything?"

"I don't know. But he's always impressed me as a man who lives in extremes of emotion—a man walking over a tight-rope."

Melisande left the playground—her mind in confusion. If what Taylor had said was only half-true she was headed for disaster. The supervisor was not the kind of man to make hasty assessments and, moreover, there was never a suggestion of malice. Of pity; yes—and quiet tolerance—but nothing more.

She entered number Thirteen and stood uncertainly. She glanced up suddenly and saw that Paul was standing carelessly at the top of the stairs, smiling down at her. He came slowly down and kissed her firmly on the mouth.

"Melisande," he said, "The fact is—Melisande—I've a sudden urge to take unto myself a wife. So I'm asking you to marry me WILL you?"

Melisande gulped and began to quiver. She looked into his eyes, but they were serious, and the blue in them was dark in the shadows of the room.

"Yes," she said, quietly, "I'll marry you, Paul. When?"

"To-night?"

"To-night—if you wish."

They were both quiet and embarrassed. It was Melisande who broke the spell.

"I'm awfully glad you asked me that, Paul."

"Why?"

"Because I was on my way to your studio to ask you the same thing."

"And if I had refused—what then?"

"Then I should have had to leave you. But why all this double talk? We're being married—"

Paul glanced up sharply.

"What's on your mind?"

"Nothing. There's no time for talk. A marriage has been arranged, and there's such a lot to do."

Military Road Is Being Built By Reds For Tibet

HONG KONG — (UP) — The Communists in China have embarked on an ambitious scheme for conquest of nature building a motor road from Singkiang Province to Lhasa, the capital of Tibet, according to the official New China News Agency.

Chinese Reds are braving nature and all hazards in attempting its construction. The official news agency claimed that "the People's Fighters" were doing fine thus far.

The agency claimed that roadbeds have been blasted through mountains up to Kanmu, a small town southwest of Chamdo, gateway to Tibet. The agency did not say when the road can be built to there. It is 500 miles from Chamdo to Lhasa as the crow flies.

Construction of the road through the rugged Tibetan country with mountains as high as 18,000 feet is adjudged impossible technically and physically, by the best engineering brains.

However, apparently because of its great military importance, the

The projected road is vitally important to the Communists in supplying their occupation army in Tibet and in consolidating control of the Lamaland.

The New China News Agency said construction of the road began last year and is now being carried on with no let-up.

Lives Sacrificed

The agency said tremendous difficulties, sometimes almost insurmountable ones, are encountered in the task and immense sacrifices in lives have been made.

The agency claimed, however, that "the People's fighters led by party members have surmounted all obstacles and are carrying on the job as only they could do."

It is noted that the mountains, rising abruptly to as high as 18,000 feet, have to be scaled and swift-running rivers bridged.

"The Peoples fighters" are laboring under impossible conditions of 20-slow zero weather which changed into a blistering summer heat in the middle of the day with frequent hail storms, the agency said.

Claims Pictures And Documents Supporting Reds

DARWIN, Australia (UP) — Dr. John Burton, a former Australian government official has returned from Communist China with films, photographs and documents purporting to back Red charges of the use of germ warfare by United Nations forces in Korea.

Burton, who formerly was permanent head of the External Affairs Department, described the films and papers as propaganda but said they should be examined nevertheless. He said he would turn them over to Australian scientists.

Burton spent 23 days in Red China and attended a four-day "peace" conference in Peiping.

INFLATION HITS BRIDGE

BRANTFORD, Canada — (AP) — The bridge over the Grand River cost $16,000 to build in 1908. Now the county council is putting in a new floor. Estimated cost of the floor alone is $16,000.

Shriners Converge On 'Gold Coast'

MIAMI (UP)—This fun city braced itself today for a visit by 60,000 of the nation's gayest frolickers as the Shriners opened their biggest convention here since fabulous 1928.

Already teeming with red-fuzzed funmakers wearing tropical "Truman" shirts, Miami made room for another 53 special trainloads expected by tonight.

Despite a tight lid on all forms of gambling the influx of shrifters was enough in evidence for Sheriff J. B. Henderson to issue the Shriners a warning to be wary of sneak crap and roulette games.

While the convention gets underway unofficially tonight with an extravaganza in the Orange Bowl stadium, the Shrine's hospital trustees held business sessions throughout the day.

They considered a program of rehabilitating the Shriners' 17 hospitals for crippled children. Chairman Galloway Calhoun of Waco, Tex., reported on new hospitals to be dedicated at Los Angeles and Salt Lake City.

The Shriners shipped in 300 horses for the parades with the camels, bands and marching units, stabling them at the Hialeah barns in the stalls of racing thoroughbreds.

PENICILLIN NOT FOR COWS
KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UP)—Penicillin-treated cows have no place in the dairy industry, according to several nationally-known cheese makers attending a University of Tennessee clinic. The dairymen concluded that antibiotics, especially penicillin, inhibit the growth of organisms used in developing cultured products.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UP)—The woman at the city's auditorium boxoffice window seemed puzzled when she tried to buy two tickets and Mrs. Jack Carley asked her what price she wanted and did she want them upstairs or downstairs to the opera, she thought she was in the bus station.

Wrecked, By Auto That Sped Away

The above car driven by Jane Clark Anderson, 21, was forced from the highway and into a ditch on meeting an out-of-state auto Saturday afternoon. Damage was estimated at around $600 by Highway Patrolman Jim Davis. Mrs. Anderson was not injured. Efforts to locate the vehicle which caused the accident have thus far been fruitless. Shooting Follows Quarrel Over A Night Of Roaming

A night-roaming husband early this morning shot his wife twice with a rifle after she caustically reprimanded him for staying out all night.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson reported today that McCoy Bonner, Negro of Shelmerdine community on the New Bern highway, shot his wife Katie through the side and thigh after an argument about his staying away from home all night. The sheriff gave both their ages as "about 40".

The shooting occurred around 6 o'clock this morning, officers said, and Katie was taken to a hospital in Washington. Her condition was described as "serious but not critical." The husband fled the scene and is being sought by officers. He had not been apprehended at noon today.

According to reports on the incident, McCoy came home shortly before 6 a. m. and he and his wife became involved in an argument about his late hours. McCoy grabbed the rifle and Katie ran into the yard, where she was shot twice by her husband.

The shooting took place on the T. C. Sutton farm and was investigated by officers of the Pitt-County Sheriff's Department.

Public Flogging Is Carried Out

WILMINGTON, Del. (UP)—John P. Barbieri, 30, flinching at every stroke of the cat of nine tails, received 20 lashes on his bare back today in Delaware's first public flogging in three years.

Barbieri, sentenced to the flogging after he pleaded guilty to beating Mrs. Belle Davis, 59, last April 18, made no outcry during the 45 seconds it took to carry out the sentence.

He walked from a small shed after the flogging to the prison infirmary where he will be a patient "for a day or two" while his bruises are treated. Then he will begin a six month jail sentence.

There was no blood drawn during the lashing by Warden Elwood Wilson, who delegated to himself the unpleasant duty of inflicting the lashes.

Wilson, who explained to reporters that "you can cut a man in two with this whip" said the flogging was made as "humane as possible by starting at the shoulders, working down to the waist and then up again" to avoid tearing at any particular spot.

Barbieri, previously convicted of beating his former wife, was led through a small tunnel to the work house courtyard where the lashing took place.

Only 20 persons, including an official party of six, were present as he was shackled to angle irons in a small shed and the sentence of the court read to him.

Wilson then stepped forward and administered the lashes 9 straight armed, without bending the elbow, with a whip of nine half-inch flat leather straps attached to half a broom handle.

Barbieri sagged several times as the lashing continued. Then he was led to the workhouse. Some welts and bruises were apparent.

Costly Collisions During Weekend

Two collisions of four motor vehicles in the city during the weekend resulted in $1,200 property damage. None of the occupants was injured, police reports show.

Property damage estimated at $800 was done when a car driven by R. Hans Scheller, 1101 Johnston street and a pickup truck driven by J. L. A. Carraway, Route 4, Greenville collided at Evans street and 11th street Sunday morning about 10 o'clock. Police arrested Carraway on the charge of failure to yield right of way.

Police estimated property damage at $400 when cars driven by Pauline A. M. Alexandra, college student and John B. Venters, Route 4 Greenville, Sunday morning about 8:40 at Evans and Third streets. Police arrested Venters on the charge of driving on the left of center of the roadway.

Arrest Bicyclist After Accident

Police arrested a bicyclist Sunday afternoon on the charge of driving while drunk after he collided with the rear end of an automobile.

Elmer C. Cox, who lives at 1202 Dickinson avenue, a police report states, collided on his bicycle with the rear of a car driven by Dacie L. Lynch, Route 4, Greenville, while it was stopped for a road traffic light.

The cyclist was considerably shaken up but not injured. The motorist was not hurt.
