

Wholesale Assault Aimed At Greenville Annual Budget

Mayor Says City Cannot Provide Money To Meet Departmental Requests; Income Well Below Sums Sought; Board Will Meet Next Week

By JESS POINDEXTER Greenville citizens are being alerted by disclosures indicating there will definitely be a series of serious cuttings at the city hall sometime next week.

Mayor Lester D. Page said this morning all estimated revenue for the coming year totals only $461,259.76, and that is just a tentative figure.

However, the wholesale assault will not be aimed at any city official but at Greenville's 1952-1953 budget, which requests from department heads as swelled to $435,682.71.

This year's budget was only $369,396.73, as amended by officials at the beginning of this fiscal year last July.

Mayor Lester D. Page said this morning all estimated revenue for the coming year totals only $461,259.76, and that is just a tentative figure.

"We realize next year's budget must, of necessity, be substantially increased over this year's," the mayor stated, "but it is inconceivable that we can provide money to meet requests of the various departments—we won't even collect that much in revenue this year."

Additional Not Included Mayor Page disclosed that supplementing the $435,682.71 requested by departments, the fire department has asked for an additional $40,000.

"The more than $40,000 for the fire department is to go toward purchase, renovating and outfitting the new sub-station in West Greenville; a new fire truck and equipment; and eight new men for the department.

That amount specifically includes expenditures of: $15,000 to $18,000 for a new pump; $21,840 in salaries for eight new firemen; $840 for increases to two captains and two lieutenants to be promoted; $10,000 to $14,000 for new sub-station; $1,500 for 1,500 feet of new hose; $1,000 for two-way radios; and $500 to uniforms for eight new men.

Mayor Page said those additional expenditures will bring the Greenville Fire Department up to specifications recommended by state underwriters and put it in top shape.

"Of course that money could be classified as permanent expenditures and need not necessarily be considered operational expense," he asserted.

Department Requests City departments, amount received this year, and amount requested next year—in that order—are: administration, $12,338.12, asking $15,039.19; clerk's office, $17,224.44, asking $17,350.20; police department, $101,745.22, asking $111,543.70; and fire department, $36,598.77, asking $41,885.32.

Street department, $100,103.92, asking $122,882; sanitation and health, $3,902.77, asking $6,080; library, $6,975.33, asking $12,355; insurance, $10,009.31, asking $12,400; donations, $960, asking $960; building and grounds $23,861.34, asking $24,669.30; miscellaneous, $7,382.06, asking $7,550; and recorder's court, $7,860, asking $8,175.

Not Waiting

BONN, Germany—(AP)—Under Russian tutelage, Communist-led Czechoslovakia has steadily increased its armed forces to 22 'first-class' divisions, the West German government reported today.

The government information bulletin also said most of Czechoslovakia's heavy industry had been converted to arms' production and that the big Skoda Works at Pilsen had been renamed the 'Lenin Works.'

The Czechoslovak regular army is reported to include 15 infantry and two armored divisions. These are supplemented by the state security units, the 'National Security Troops,' large frontier guard forces and elite units of the People's Militia, amounting to 22 divisions all told.

The bulletin was issued as Communist East Germany was reported to be whipping together a new Red Wehrmacht to threaten the West while the free world was to walk probably two years for West German manpower to plug the gaps in Europe's defense.

Marine Problem Before Truman

Giving Leathernecks Strength Now In Truman's Hands

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Truman, who once scathingly referred to the Marine Corps as "the Navy's police force," today faced the problem of whether to sign legislation giving the Leathernecks new strength and voice.

Congress tossed the problem on Mr. Truman's desk when it completed action yesterday on a bill increasing the authorized strength of the Marine Corps and making the commandant a "part-time" member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The legislation, which has been in the legislative mill for two years, was deliberately tailored down by a Senate-House conference committee to avoid a presidential veto.

The measure provides that the corps will have not less than three divisions and three air wings, with a maximum peacetime strength of 400,000 men. It establishes no minimum strength for Marine manpower, as set forth in earlier versions, thus allowing the Defense Department to maintain the three divisions at less than full strength.

When Rep. Gordon L. McDonough (R-Calif.) suggested two years ago that the Marines be represented on the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Mr. Truman replied that the "Marine Corps is the Navy's police force and as long as I am President that is what it will remain."

The President's now-famous letter also accused the Marine Corps of having "a propaganda machine that is almost equal to Stalin's."

Japanese Pilots Allowed To Take Refresher Course

TOKYO (UP)—Japan plans to let its wartime pilots, grounded since the surrender seven years ago, take refresher courses, it was learned today.

Press reports said the National Police Reserve has asked American troops in Japan to lease it 100 American planes, most of them small training craft. The planes also would be used as part of Japanese defense force.

A police reserve official said the training program would begin July 15 with 26 former Japanese Navy and Army Air Force officers attending. It was understood that U.S. forces in Japan will help in the program.

During the occupation, the Allies banned Japanese flying activities. The Japanese Peace Treaty of April 28 contains no restrictions on either Japanese civil or military aviation.

Predict Request For Use Of Taft Hartley Measure

Administration Leaders Claim Lack Of Votes To Stop The Move

WASHINGTON (UP)—Republican leaders predicted that the House, by a "sizeable margin," would join the Senate today in "requesting" President Truman to invoke the Taft-Hartley Act to halt the steel strike.

Administration leaders conceded they did not have enough votes to stop the move.

Meanwhile, the National Production Authority announced that the striking CIO United Steelworkers had agreed to an emergency plan to ship finished steel from 132 selected warehouses and plants to be used for military goods.

Administration sources said that if both houses of Congress hand Mr. Truman a virtual mandate to use Taft-Hartley, he probably would have no alternative but to do so.

Mr. Truman told his news conference yesterday he is considering invoking the Taft-Hartley Act's provision of an 80-day anti-strike injunction against the 650,000 striking steelworkers despite his distaste for such action.

But he emphasized that Congress can only advise him what to do—it can't force him to invoke the law.

The Taft-Hartley "request" took the form of an amendment to pending legislation to extend wage-price controls.

The House met two hours early today in hope of completing action on the bill by nightfall.

The Senate put the Taft-Hartley amendment in its controls measure after Mr. Truman made an unusual personal appeal to a joint session of Congress to tell him how to deal with the steel strike.

Mr. Truman asked for authority to seize the steel industry. But the Senate beat down four separate proposals to give him seizure powers.

"And a fifth proposal got short shift in the House yesterday when it was ruled out of order as an amendment to the controls bill.

NPA sent a telegram to the steel companies involved informing them of the shipping arrangement reached between the union, NPA and the Office of Defense Mobilization.

This means striking workers will go back to work and man 35 warehouses and 97 mills throughout the country to move defense steel which was ready for shipment when the strike began.

Pitt County Man Killed In Mishap

FARMVILLE—Charlie Floyd Moore, 53 year-old white man, was killed here yesterday, raising the fatal accident total in the county this week to two.

Moore, whose address was listed as the Davis Hotel here, was killed around noon when a truck owned by the Thurston Motor Lines and driven by Johnnie Lee Buck 25 year old white man of 1205 Industrial Ave., Wilson, backed over him.

The truck was backing into the alley behind Williams Grocery Store when Moore crossed the alley. The rear hind wheels of the truck knocked Moore down, and ran over his legs, crushing them. There was no body injury above the waist.

The victim was rushed to Pitt Memorial Hospital and died there. Coronor Griffin Rouse said Moore probably died from loss of blood and shock. He said the driver of the truck would not be held responsible and no inquest would be held.

Moore's death makes the second fatality for the county in the past two weeks and the sixth for the year.

Red Complaints Of Germ Warfare Is Labeled Big Fraud

Greek Delegate To UN Says Russian Charge As Phony As Stockholm Peace Appeal; Malik Still Avoids Korean Claim

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UP)—Greece told Russia today that its demand for support of the Geneva protocol prohibiting germ warfare is as fraudulent as its discredited Stockholm peace appeal.

Greek delegate Alex Kyrou made the comparison with the Communist-sponsored appeal, which attacked hundreds of thousands of signatures, as the United Nations Security Council began its second day of debate on germ warfare.

Soviet Delegate Jacob A. Malik precipitated the debate on Wednesday in a surprisingly-mild speech which avoided direct mention of the Red propaganda charge that United States troops have used germ weapons in Korea. Instead, Malik limited himself to asking: "Will the U. S. ratify the Geneva Convention," which the Senate refused to endorse after this country signed it with 47 other countries in 1925.

"The Soviet delegate," Kyrou told the Security Council, "will not be able to deceive any thinking person as to his intention and the aims sought by his innocent-sounding appeal. It is reminiscent of a certain Stockholm appeal, and we cannot help but hear the fluttering of the wings of that hapless dove."

Kyrou agreed with U. S. delegate Ernest A. Gross' proposal that Malik's appeal be sent to the U. N. disarmament commission, but asked that Gross not press his proposal before Russia's germ-war propaganda charges could be debated fully in the council.

"An exhaustive debate may help clear the dangerously polluted atmosphere," he said concerning the charges. "We can hope that a more sober attitude may prevail in the Soviet ruling circles."

Most observers agreed that Malik was attempting to drive a wedge between the United States and Britain, since the British had signed the protocol with reservations.

Gross condemned the Malik proposition as a "fraud" and accused the Soviet Union and its satellites of spreading a "false and malicious campaign of lies."

Although the Reds reported an "impartial" group of Communist jurists had investigated charges the U. S. had waged germ warfare in Korea, they refused to permit U. N. Red Cross representatives to make an on-the-spot inquiry.

Reds Accuse Sweden Of Shooting First

Russia Charges Sweden Lying On Plane Incident; Rumored Fleet Movement In Baltic Disproven

STOCKHOLM (UP)—Swedish warships and planes searched the Baltic off the east coast of Sweden during the night and this morning because of a report that Russian warships had been sighted, the defense staff announced today.

The area concerned is east of Stockholm and north of Sweden's Gotland Island, in waters where a Swedish air force DC-3 "flying classroom" plane disappeared one week ago. Sweden believed Russian fighter planes shot it down.

"An unconfirmed report that Russian warships were operating in the Baltic, north of Gotland, within the area where the missing Douglas DC-3 is believed to have disappeared, prompted a search during the night and on Friday morning by units of the navy and air force," a communique said.

"The result of the search was negative."

A spokesman said the search was made because Sweden was naturally "interested" in any report of foreign warships close to its shores.

Russia accused Sweden of lying today and insisted that a Catalina flying boat which was shot down by Russian MIG-15 jet fighter planes fired on the Soviet planes first.

A Soviet note said Sweden's contentions the Catalina neither was armed nor violated Soviet territory "contradict the facts and are void of all foundation."

The note rejected Sweden's protests against the downing of the plane and simultaneously demanded this country cease violating the Soviet Union's frontiers.

The new chapter in Sweden's deteriorating relations with the Soviet came in the midst of these other developments:

1. Sweden announced its naval and air forces would continue their regularly scheduled maneuvers and training trips in Swedish and international waters. It said all units have "routine orders" to use "armed force in self-defense."

Two Red Planes Downed In Korea

Sabre Jets Hit Two Out Of Four Old-Fashioned Planes; Red China Accuses U. S. Of Blocking Truce

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—American Sabre jets caught four old-fashioned propeller-driven Communist planes crossing the Manchurian border today and shot down at least two of them.

The other two LA-9s were heavily damaged, but escaped across the Yalu River border into Manchuria.

The flight of six Sabres spotted the LA-9s coming out of Antung Manchuria, and crossing the Yalu at 4,000 feet, apparently on a training mission.

The Sabres pounced, knocking two of them down in the first firing pass. The others fled straight down in an attempt to sneak over the border at tree-top level.

Credit for one of the kills went to a first lieutenant who did not want his name mentioned for family reasons.

Ground fighting centered on two newly-won hills southeast of Kumson on the central front. The Communists tried in vain to dislodge the Allies. An estimated 200 attempted to storm the hills yesterday.

The Reds used six self-propelled guns in both of today's assaults. They fired 4,744 rounds in the second attack, more than half of what they expended over the entire front in 24 hours of fighting.

The Reds also made an unsuccessful attack on the three-knobbed hill west of Chorwon, held by 4th Division troops. Enemy probes were repulsed on other areas of the front.

The first battalion of the famed regiment of the British army arrived in Fusan and will disembark tomorrow.

The Black Watch, dubbed the "Ladies from Hell" in World War I, came to Korea from Germany. Queen Mother Elizabeth is colonel-in-chief.

MUNSAN, Korea (UP)—Red China accused the United States today of blocking a truce in Korea to keep war production going.

China's radio Peiping unleashed a propaganda barrage as Allied and Communist negotiators prepared to resume the stalemated truce meeting at Panmunjom tomorrow.

The United Nations, forced a three day recess Tuesday to give the Reds time to reconsider their position.

Peiping said Sen. Robert A. Taft, candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, "revealed" the so-called American motive for not wanting peace.

"He said that the Americans should block a peace in Korea until arms production starts rolling," Peiping said.

"To this purpose, American negotiators are even afraid to sit down."

Mr. Gen. William K. Harrison, chief Allied negotiator, urged the Reds at Tuesday's meeting to think over the U. N.'s "final and irrevocable" offer of April 28.

In that offer, the U. N. expressed itself flatly against sending back anti-Communist prisoners to the Red side. This issue of voluntary versus forcible repatriation is the one stumbling block to an armistice.

Also expelled from the CIO union were Sam Baron, Canadian director of the AFL union; Charles Serrano, former vice president of the TWU; Lewis M. Conn, former North Carolina state director; Ben Manney, former manager of the TWU joint board in Passaic, N. J.; and Emanuel Boggs, former manager of the TWU joint board in Danville, Va.

Ready To Arrest 50 Klansmen In Flogging Cases

State Prepared To Wind Up Prolonged Investigations In Floggings

WHITEVILLE, N. C. (UP)—State authorities prepared to arrest 50 more former klansmen today in the last five flogging cases of an 18-month reign of hooded terrorism in North Carolina.

Solicitor Clifton Moore, who yesterday obtained 25 indictments in 10 other cases, said the new arrests will wind up state investigation of this coastal area.

A grand jury of Columbus County farmers and small businessmen returned a total of 38 true bills against the 25 men, including soft-spoken, pudgy Thomas L. Hamilton, imperial wizard of the Carolinas klans.

Authorities said their victims were frightened men and women, both white and Negro, who were spirited from their homes at night and whipped with belts in ritualistic ceremonies of the Ku Klux Klan.

Hamilton, former grocer of Leesville, S. C., now free under $10,000 bond, was charged with ordering the floggings of two victims, Woodrow Johnson, a white mechanic, and Evergreen Flowers, a Negro woman.

The new indictments also named two former deputy sheriffs, Horace Strickland and Roy Carter, and Joe Hardis, former exalted cyclops of the disbanded Whiteville Klavern.

Moore said captives were being served "promptly" on all 25 and a special term of the Columbus County Superior Court was being arranged to try them next month.

Several of the 25 were already under bond.

"With the arrests already made," Moore said, "this will wind up the 10 floggings under investigation by state officials. And we hope to have completed grand jury action on the additional arrests by the time the court session begins."

"Our goal is to clear up the last of these cases by the end of July or the middle of August. The back of the Klan in North Carolina is definitely broken."

Federal authorities, who launched the series of arrests early this year, are at work on three cases in which defendants are charged under the Lindbergh kidnap law with taking their victims out of the state.

Arrests have already been made in one of the federal cases, authorities said they are ready to make arrests in the second, and the third is still being investigated.

Consider Buying Foreign Planes

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States announced today it is considering buying airplanes from European member nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The plan would involve use of U. S. Mutual Security funds to buy planes directly from European makers, chiefly for use by European nations, instead of sending aid in the form of U. S. planes.

Outlay Is Far Less Than President Said Was Necessary; Military Aid Economic Help Included; Original Bill Sharply Cut By Congress

WASHINGTON—(AP)—President Truman today signed the $6,447,730,700 foreign aid bill.

The amount is 18.8 per cent less than he had declared was the minimum necessary for next year.

The cuts were imposed by a Congress which voiced support for the principle of foreign assistance but sharply criticized some aspects of the President's program.

This measure merely authorizes the expenditure of $6,447,730,700 in effect setting that total as a ceiling for military and economic assistance during the fiscal year beginning July 1. The actual appropriations still have to be voted, with the possibility that the whole question of foreign aid may be debated again.

The authorization bill fixes a limit of $4,896,424,500 for world-wide military assistance and $1,551,306,200 for various types of economic aid.

The President had requested $5,426,000,000 for military and $2,445,200,000 for economic help. So the bill's total is $1,468,750,200 less than the President asked.

Military aid is to consist almost entirely of such war implements as guns and tanks.

In addition to the war equipment provided in the measure, the Defense Department is authorized to ship a maximum of one billion dollars worth of arms from its own stocks. The difference is that this equipment would be financed from regular defense appropriations instead of the foreign aid program.

The purpose is to maintain a cut of a little over one billion dollars while giving defense officials authority to send more equipment abroad to meet any emergency.

Various types of economic aid came under the sharpest attacks in both houses. They voted cuts deeper than made by the committees.

The administration coined a new phrase, "Defense Support," to describe most of the economic assistance planned for Europe. Its spokesman said this did not continue the Marshall plan, which ended this year, but was intended to provide raw materials needed to stimulate European war production.

In Europe, small amounts of direct economic aid will continue to Spain, Austria and Yugoslavia. Spain is mentioned by name for the first time, although 100 million dollars in aid was previously voted for it.

Votes To End Control On Most All Consumer Goods

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House today voted to end price controls on virtually all consumer goods. The vote was subject to reconsideration.

By a vote of 146 to 88, the House decided there should be no price controls on items which are not rationed or allocated.

Controls also would be lifted on items which have been selling at below ceiling prices for at least three months.

At present no goods are rationed, and only a few metals are being allocated.

The effect of the amendment, if it remains in the bill, would be to remove just about all controls or force the Office of Price Stabilization to order rationing of things it wants kept under price ceilings. The amendment was offered by Rep. Talle (R-Iowa), and supported heavily by Republicans. Democrats almost solidly opposed it, but many were absent.

Russell Believes People Approve Tax Sacrifice

BROKANE, Wash.—(AP)—Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) said last night he believes the people are willing to make the present tax sacrifice to keep the United States strong.

On a swing through the West in his bid for support at the Democratic National Convention in Chicago, the presidential aspirant said he doesn't see how taxes could be reduced now without wrecking the rearmament program.

To cut taxes now would mean cancelling contracts for arms and "I don't think the people would approve of cancelling these contracts," he said.

WASHINGTON (UP)—British Ambassador Sir Oliver Franks was routed out of bed shortly after midnight last night when a three-alarm fire broke out in a storehouse on the embassy grounds.

Sparks from the fire floated over the embassy, but firemen said the brick Georgian building was never in danger of catching fire.

Textile Workers Union Ousts Big Former Leaders

NEW YORK (UP)—The Textile Workers' Union of America (CIO) formally expelled George Baldanzi and five other former leaders of the organization yesterday.

Baldanzi, one-time director of a CIO organization drive in the South known as "Operatic" Dixie, and the other five men had bolted from the TWU to join the rival United Textile Workers (AFL).

Now heading the AFL union's organizing drive, Baldanzi attempted unsuccessfully to wrest the presidency of the TWU from Emil Rieve at the union's convention last month.

Miss Oppelt, Miss Bryson Honored At Morning Party

To honor Miss Joan Oppelt, who will be married next week, and Miss Denny Lee Bryson, who will be married in July, Mrs. J. D. Messick entertained at a delightful morning hour on Thursday.

The home for the occasion was tastefully decorated with cut flowers and a formal bridal arrangement on the refreshment table in the dining room. An urn of deep pink gladioli was used in the hall, while in the drawing room the mantel was enhanced with a large brass mantel container filled with blue hydrangeas.

On the piano was a particularly lovely arrangement of mixed garden flowers in an antique cut glass and silver epergne.

The table in the dining room was covered with green satin overlaid with an organdy and lace cloth. The centerpiece was a bridal couple standing under an arch of maline and encircled with magnolias. From silver platters at either end of the table the guests were served iced drinks and party sandwiches, which carried out a green and white motif.

Other platters held assorted pastries, nuts, and tidbits served from an hors d'oeuvre tray. Mrs. J. H. Waldrop and Mrs. J. L. Oppelt, assisted by Mrs. Edgar Finck of New Jersey, Mrs. Helen Snyder and Mrs. K. B. Pace, served in the dining room.

The two brides-elect and the hostess greeted the guests at the door and invited them to the refreshment table. After being served, they sat around for an hour in informal groups and enjoyed a conversational hour.

Miss Oppelt and Miss Bryson were wearing gardenia corsages, gifts from Mrs. Messick, who also remembered them with wedding gifts in selected patterns.

Dine From Menu Of Animal Dishes

PARIS (UP)—Some 50 gourmets dined contentedly at the Vincennes Zoo today from a menu which listed such dishes as pale of monkey, jugged kangaroo, mounted giraffe neck and cold crocodile saute.

Missing among the invited guests were Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, Supreme Allied Commander in Europe, and Mrs. Ridgway, who were in Italy.

The feast was staged by the Seigneurs de la Fine Gueule (lords of the epicure). The society admitted that some of the jungle dishes were actually ordinary food in disguise.

Comer-Majette Rites Solemnized

Grimesland Girl Married In Formal Afternoon Rites

Bridal greenery, plumosa ferns and large standards of white gladioli and the soft glow of many cathedral candles formed a beautiful scene when the marriage of Miss Blanche Majette and Edgar Bernard Comer took place in the Grimesland Christian Church Saturday afternoon, June 14, at 4:00 o'clock. Officiating at the double ring ceremony was the Rev. C. G. Nickens, pastor of the Methodist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Majette of Grimesland and the bridegroom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. Sidney Comer of Dobson.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Miss Frances Carawan of Washington, organist, and Jack Currin of Clarksville, Va., soloist.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of duchess satin with high neckline and wide Chantilly lace bertha. The full skirt ended in a Cathedral train. Her fingertip veil of imported illusion was attached to a coronet of orange blossoms. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations showered with French carnations and centered with a white orchid.

Mrs. Neal Seegars of Goldsboro, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a lilac nylon net over matching taffeta. The gown had an embroidered bodice and matching pleated capelet. Her hat was made of lilac net. The matron of honor carried a cascade bouquet of pastel summer flowers showered with illusion and matching ribbons.

The bridesmaids were Miss Helen Jones Majette of Raleigh, cousin of the bride, Mrs. Bill Parish of Wendell, Miss Margaret McMillan of Wade, and Mrs. Brooks Beddingfield of Chapel Hill. They wore gowns like that of the matron of honor of pink and aqua nylon net with matching mitts and hats. They carried cascade bouquets of pastel summer flowers showered with illusion and matching ribbons.

Miss Claire Rosser of Whitakers was the junior bride. She wore a dress of duchess satin fashioned exactly like the bride's. Her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried a miniature bridal bouquet. Her attendant was Sammy Hauser of Fayetteville, nephew of the groom. He was attired in white coat and dark trousers.

Miss Kathy Comer of Mt. Airy, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl. She wore a floor length dress of white organdy with ruffles, a matching net hat, and carried a basket of pink roses.

Joe Comer of Salisbury attended his brother as best man. Ushers were Neal Seegars of Goldsboro, brother-in-law of the bride, Wilson Comer of Oxford, Frank Comer of Dobson, and Louis Hill Comer of Mt. Airy, brothers of the groom.

Honorary bridesmaids were Miss Mary Jane Ange of Grimesland, cousin of the bride, Mrs. Connie Adams of Angier, Miss Doris Broadhurst of Greenville, Miss Dottie Elks of Grimesland, Mrs. David Pope of Godwin, and Miss Pattie Daniels of Oxford. They wore pastel colored evening dresses and wrist corsages of spring flowers.

The bride's mother wore cream colored lace over lavender taffeta with matching hat and mitts. Her corsage was of pink roses. Mrs. Don Dickenson of Galax, Va., sister of the bridegroom, wore a white French crepe trimmed in rhinestones with matching accessories. Her corsage was of red roses. Mrs. Sam Smith, grandmother of the bride, wore blue tulle and a corsage of white carnations.

Immediately following the ceremony, the bridal party and wedding guests were entertained at a reception at the bride's home. Later in the afternoon the couple left for a wedding trip. For traveling the bride changed to a Navy silk shantung dress with navy and white accessories. She wore the white orchid corsage from her bouquet.

Mrs. Comer attended ECO and is a graduate of Peace. She has taught in Whitakers and for the past four years has been a member of the Clayton High School faculty.

Mr. Comer is a veteran of World War II. He is a graduate of A.S.T.C. and has an M.A. degree from the University of North Carolina. He has been teaching in the Durham

City School for the past four years. After August first the couple will be at home in Newport, where Mr. Comer will be principal of the school during the coming school year.

Out-of-town guests for the Comer-Majette wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Comer, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Comer and Mrs. John Comer of Dobson; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hill Comer and Kathy Comer of Mount Airy; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Comer of Salisbury; Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Hauser; Sammy Hauser and Lee Hauser of Fayetteville; Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Kesse, Louisa Kesse and Carol Kesse of Wheeling, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Rosser, Mrs. W. O. Rosser, Mr. Judson Rosser, Miss Janet Rosser and Mrs. J. J. Kutulus of Whitakers; Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Laing, Mr. Joe Majette and Miss Helen Majette of Raleigh; Mr. R. A. Majette of Como; Mrs. Charles Randolph of Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Adams of Angier; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Parish of Wendell; Mrs. Brooks Beddingfield of Chapel Hill; Miss Margaret McMillan of Wade; Mrs. David Pope of Godwin; Mr. Jack Currin of Clarksville, Va.; Mr. Wilson Comer and Miss Pattie Daniel of Oxford; Mr. and Mrs. M. Long of Durham; Mrs. Milton Cox, Mrs. Henry Carawan and Miss Frances Carawan of Washington; Mrs. Don Dickenson of Galax, Va.; Miss Doris Broadhurst of Greenville; and Mrs. Murray Lee Buck of Norfolk, Va.

Reception
Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Paul Majette entertained Mr. and Mrs. Comer, the wedding party and guests at their home.

Arrangements of pink gladioli and white tapers were used in the living room. In the dining room white gladioli in crystal containers carried out the bridal color scheme of green and white. White tapers tied with net and lilies of the valley were placed in crystal holders. Garlands of smilax were entwined around the flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Adams greeted the guests and introduced them to the receiving line. Miss Pattie Daniel directed the callers to the gift room. Miss Mary Jane Ange presided over the bride's register. Mrs. David Pope poured lime ice punch and guests served themselves to bridal cakes, decorated mints and salted nuts. Mrs. David Smith, Mrs. R. V. Howell, Miss Doris Broadhurst, Mrs. Bernie Weeber and Miss Dottie Elks assisted in the dining room.

Luncheon
On Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. Neal Seegars of Goldsboro entertained at a luncheon at Respos' honoring the Comer-Majette wedding party and out-of-town guests. Thirty-five guests found their places at the table by means of bridal place cards attached to blocks of sty-foam on which were mounted a bride's ring and a groom's wedding band. The centerpiece was a wedding cake encircled by garlands of smilax interspersed with gardenias. White tapers in crystal holders were placed around the cake.

After Rehearsal Party
Following the Comer-Majette rehearsal on Friday night, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lewis Wilson and Miss Orna Bliss Lewis entertained informally to compliment the bridal couple, their attendants, out-of-town guests and those who had entertained for Miss Majette.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson was beautifully decorated carrying out the bridal color scheme of green and white. Artistic arrangements of white gladioli, Queen Anne's Lace and feverfew were used throughout the home. The mantel in the living room was banked with magnolias interspersed with seven white tapers. The doorways were decorated with white wedding bells festooned with white satin ribbon.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson greeted the guests and they were invited by Miss Mary Jane Ange.

cousin of the bride, to register in the guest book which was showered in white satin ribbon.

The dining room table was covered with an imported cut-work table cloth, centered by a bride and groom in replica, hand dressed by Mrs. Wilson. A soft glow was cast over the table by tall green tapers tied with wedding bells. The bridal attendants drew tokens which were attached to white satin ribbons. The ends of these ribbons were tied with lappel vases which held miniature bouquets.

After the bridal couple cut the first slice of a three tiered wedding cake, which was topped with an original cluster of white wedding bells, tied with net and white satin ribbon sprinkled with rhinestones. Mrs. Neal Seegars, sister of the bride, served the wedding sake and Mrs. Don Dickenson, sister of the groom, poured the lime ice punch. The guests served themselves to decorated mints and salted nuts.

All members of the wedding party were given attractive gifts wrapped in white and tied with satin ribbon and lilies of the valley. These were gifts from the bride and groom. The hostesses presented the miniature bride and groom to the honored couple. They also remembered Miss Peggy Edwards and Mr. Tom Rowlett with a gift.

English Lady To Be Guest At BPW Meet

EILEEN PARKINSON

A friendship begun between a group of North Carolina women and a group of English women, during the international conference of Business and Professional Women's Clubs in London last year, will be resumed in part, at least, in June this year in New York and Boston.

Last year Mrs. Dess M. Gurganus, of Raleigh, a past state president of the North Carolina Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, headed a delegation to England, and when the Queen Mary reached Southampton, they were met by Miss Eileen Parkinson, International Relation Chairman of the British Federation. Miss Parkinson and her co-workers did much to make the American visitors feel at home and welcome, and the members of the North Carolina Federation have corresponded since that time.

In June another international conference will be held in New York with trips to Washington and Boston on the program. Each State has been asked to sponsor a foreign visitor, but North Carolina women decided not only to act as hostesses to an official "delegate" to be assigned them by the National Federation, but also to have as their guest Miss Parkinson, of Southampton, England. Sufficient funds have been contributed voluntarily by the members, including members of the local B. P. W. C., to take care of the expenses of Miss Parkinson and to sponsor the delegate.

Mrs. Lucy Rhodes Duncan, of Smithfield, and Mrs. Dess M. Gurganus, of Raleigh, have been appointed "observers" for the International Conference, and members from every club in the State are expected to attend the Conference, as well as their own National Con-

The Sin of Greed

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Exodus 20:17; Luke 12:15-21.

A man asked Jesus to speak to his brother that he divide his inheritance with him.

Jesus told a parable of a man whose land was so productive that he had no room to store his produce.

That night, however, God told him that he was soon to die, and who would then inherit the riches he had stored up in his barns?

Fear not for your daily needs, Jesus told His followers: "Seek ye the kingdom of God. Sell that ye have and give alms...

MEMORY VERSE—Exodus 20:17.

The Sin of Greed

"THOU SHALT NOT COVET ANYTHING THAT IS THY NEIGHBORS." READS THE MOSAIC LAW

Scripture—Exodus 20:17; Luke 12:15-21.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. THE LAST of the Ten Commandments reads: "Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's house, thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's wife, nor his manservant, nor his maidservant, nor his ox, nor his ass, nor any thing that is thy neighbor's."

The word covet is defined in the dictionary as "to desire, to long for, to crave, especially something belonging to another person." Almost everyone is occasionally assailed by this feeling of envy of another.

The woman who cannot buy a new dress feels a twinge of envy when she sees her well-dressed neighbor, or she may have that covetous feeling when she is invited to go through a friend's new and up-to-date house when and build great new ones. Then, said he to himself, "I will say to my soul, Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years; take, thine ease, eat, drink, and be merry."

Now there was nothing wrong about this man's decision to build new and larger barns to house his wealth. It was a wise, businesslike move. The fault lay in his selfish attitude toward his riches. He was going to take his ease, to "eat, drink and be merry," with no thought for anyone but himself.

That night, however, God told him that his soul would be required of him, and what good would his goods do him then? "So is he that layeth up treasure for himself, and is not rich toward God," Christ concluded the parable.

The problem of feeding, clothing and housing ourselves causes she has an old one which she cannot even modernize.

Little children have those same feelings when they see their playmates get new toys which they would like so much to have but cannot because Daddy and Mommy cannot afford them. It seems to them an injustice is being done them.

The majority of us cherish such unworthy thoughts from our minds and try to be glad of our neighbor's good fortune. The memory try to get the things they desire but cannot get honestly by plying them, which only brings trouble upon them.

Any newspaper daily records cases of uncontrolled covetousness that led some man or woman into the law court to be punished as a criminal.

Jesus comments on this commandment when, as He was preaching a solemn warning to His followers, he was interrupted by a man who asked Him to talk to his brother about dividing an inheritance with him.

Jesus refused to act as arbitrator in the case, saying, "Man, who made Me a judge or a divider over you?"

Then, turning to His following, He said: "Take heed, and beware of covetousness; for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth."

Jesus then told the parable of the rich man who had such an abundant harvest that he had no space to store it all. He therefore decided to tear down his old barns

The first all-star game in the history of the semi-pro Bright Belt League is scheduled to be played tonight over in Farmville. Some of the pro leagues have annual all-star contests, but others, such as the Coastal Plain, stopped having the annual contest because of various reasons.

This will probably be a good thing for the Bright Belt League, as several of the clubs need the money that will come from the gate receipts badly. Game proceeds will be split evenly among the six teams, and will be used as each club desires.

Several of the teams have announced their intention of using the money to pay for better umpires. Some of the umpiring seen in the fast semi-pro loop this year has been rather questionable.

Alvin Hooks, brother of the former Wake Forest star, Gene Hooks, is now playing with the Pineops team of the Bright Belt. Alvin, a standout on the athletic teams at Appalachian State for the last four years, graduated recently. He has been given an assistant coaching job at Appalachian, and will probably handle the Apps' jayvees next year. Gene is now playing with Springfield, Mass.

A former East Carolina student has made a remarkable showing in his first year of full-time coaching. Winnifred "Wimpy" Johnson, assistant coach to Stuart Tripp over in Ayden in 1950 while doing his practice teaching, took over the coaching reins at Bladenboro High during the last season.

While on a visit to Greenville last week, Wimpy said that his team at Bladenboro — football, baseball, and boys and girls basketball — all finished right at the top of the county standings. He is also coaching the Bladenboro entry in the strong Strawberry League. His impression of the Bright Belt League game that he saw while he was here was not very complimentary.

Sonny Russell is probably learning just what it means to have the responsibility of being a manager. Sonny has not had the same lineup for any game since taking over as boss of the Greenville Greenies. Pat Jordan, the second hurler for Greenville in the game Wednesday afternoon, showed a good fast ball. East Carolina coach Jack Boone is reported to have a lot of hope placed in the Aoshkie boy's right arm.

Kinston Manager Wayne Blackburn observed Friday the 13th by having only 13 players in uniform. It paid off as right-hander Artie Loan hurled a 3-0 win over Roanoke Rapids. The win came right in the middle of Kinston's march to first place in the Coastal Plain. Kinston High coach Amos Sexton and football player Hilby Turner are in Rex Hospital recuperating from recent illnesses. Sexton from an operation and Turner from a broken leg.

Harry Land was released yesterday morning as manager of the Rock Hill Chiefs of the Class B Tri-State League. Land was catcher and manager of New Bern last year, and moved to Rock Hill this season. The Chiefs were in seventh place when he was released outright.

A full week has passed and there has not been another shift in major league managers. For a while, it was fast and furious as Tommy Holmes was kicked out and Chevrolet Grimm was hired by the Boston Braves. Rogers Hornsby replaced by Marty Marion at St. Louis, and then Marion's suspensions.

Little League and Small-Fry John Painter, director of the Little League and Small-Fry Leagues here, states that players are few and far between for the Small-Fry teams. In fact, interest is at an all-time low at the present time and threatens to cause the league to cease operation. Little League is rapidly expanding throughout the country. There are now over 2,000 leagues in the United States, plus some in the Canal Zone, Alaska, and other U. S. territories.

The number of children attending the City Recreation Department's gatherings during the last six months increased over 7,000. Greenville has a good opportunity of having the district tournament for the Little League this year. It was held in Havelock last year. Greenville went into the semi-finals of the tournament.

Fishing seems to have reached an all-time high in the local communities. Reports are coming in from Morehead City almost daily of Pitt County fishermen going to the gulstream. Even more are going to other creeks, rivers, and lakes for their enjoyment. Let us hear from the rest of you. When you make a good catch, send us the details and we will be glad to print it. If some of you find a bait that is especially effective this year, send the name of it to this writer so that the rest of the fishermen may join you in your success.

Royal Crown Wins First Game, 10-7

Royal Crown scored four runs in the third inning yesterday and went on to take its first victory of the season by beating Greenville Mills 10-7 in the Men's Softball League. In the fourth Bobby Conway singled and Johnny Pollard walked. Dan Singleton was safe on an error, but Edwards popped out. Bobby Nunn came back with another single, as did John Conway. Wallace Conway grounded out and Cauby fanned to end the inning. Score by innings: Greenville Mills 3-0-11-7-9-2-8 Royal Crown 5-14-0-10-10-2-2 Jones and Clifton; Singleton and Nunn.

All-Star Game

FARMVILLE—Tonight is the time for the first Bright Belt League all-star game, scheduled for the local ball park at 8 p.m. Each club in the six-team league will have six players on the team rosters. Greenville, Ormondsville, and Pineops will play for the East, while Farmville, Stantonsburg, and Fremont make up the West. Garland Little of Ormondsville will manage the East. The opposition will be led by Farmville's Pete Plestrak. Nunn.

Fremont Takes 7-6 Game From Farmville

Red Sox Rally In Ninth; Tugwell Doubles 3 Home

FARMVILLE—A ninth inning rally by Farmville fell short one run here last night as Fremont took a 7-6 victory in the semi-pro Bright Belt League.

The victory was the second straight over Farmville for the Fremont team, which is currently in fifth place in the Bright Belt, but rapidly rising as the team improves. In the ninth, Farmville's straggler Tugwell doubled with the bases loaded to score three runs in front of him. The Red Sox were unable to bring Tugwell home to score, with Fremont taking the victory.

Teddy Barnes went the distance for the winners, allowing seven hits to the slugging Farmville nine. Roy Vick started for Farmville, but was relieved by Billy Lyles in the eighth. Lyles finished the game for Farmville.

Spurgeon Speight homered for Fremont in the seventh inning. Ronald Percise, Bob Frederick and Jake Carter each collected two hits for the winners.

The Bright Belt League All-Star game will be played here tonight in the Farmville Baseball Park. Each of the six clubs in the league will have six players performing with their respective East-West squad. Game time is set for 8 p.m. Farmville plays Ormondsville here Saturday night. The Red Sox travel to Cherry Point Monday night.

SEVERE EARTHQUAKE

TAIPEH, Formosa (UP) — A severe earthquake lasting seven seconds rocked Taipei and its surrounding districts at 12:45 a. m. EST today. There were no immediate reports of casualties.

Crew Captain by Pap'

Stroking the Harvard crew when the Crimson boat meets Yale in their annual regatta at New London, Conn., will be a rusty-hardened, six-foot-two youngster named Louis McCagg. Back in 1921, the Harvard crew was captained by another Louis McCagg — the proud father of the current Crimson captain. The meeting between Harvard and Yale this year will mark the 100th anniversary of the first race between the two schools.

McCagg has been the stroke in every race Harvard has had during the four years he has had in college, that is — he stroked the freshman crew in 1949 and moved into the varsity boat as a sophomore, ending up that year as a member of the Harvard crew which won the Grand Challenge Cup at London, England. McCagg began his rowing career at Middlesex School, where he also was named captain.

A native of Boston, McCagg will return to England next fall to enter Cambridge University as a recipient of the Lionel de Jersey Harvard scholarship for study at Emmanuel College. At Cambridge, he will occupy the rooms in which John Harvard lived during the 17th century.

Tommy Smith Hits Homer As Coupes Lose Contest

Despite the heavy hitting of Tommy Smith, the Coupes went down to a 6-2 defeat at the hands of the Wreckers in the Pony League game last night. Smith singled and hit the first home run of the season in his three times at bat. His four-bagger came in the first inning with Billy Gardner on base. Gardner had walked with two men out.

Three runs in the first inning won the game for the Wreckers. The runs were scored on a walk to Roger Bullock, singles by Ray Hardy and Selby Strickland, and successive walks to Angus Duff, R. L. Puryear and Garrett Folger.

Erskine Hurles No-Hitter As Giants Become Panicky

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—If anybody has an old spare miracle around, please pack it up and send it to Leo Durocher of the New York Giants, who will be glad to pay the shipping charges.

At a moment when the Brooklyn Dodgers were flying high today on the excitement of Carl Erskine's no-hitter and near perfect game, 5 to 0, over the Chicago Cubs, the Giants were practically in panic.

They were shaky in the field, they weren't hitting, they blew two games out of three to last place Pittsburgh, they dropped five full games behind the Braves, and they lost catcher Wes Westrum for two weeks with a broken index finger.

Yesterday, Durocher not only lost the ball game but his temper with it in an officially protested, 6 to 1 shellacking by the Pirates.

Little Murry Dickson held them to five hits as he won his fifth game, while New York handed Pittsburgh three unearned runs and got another mediocre pitching job from a supposed staff ace, Larry Jansen.

The Pirates made five runs, two on errors in a big third inning explosion when the Giants waged their protest as umpire Dusty Boggess over-ruled umpire Babe Pinell.

The Cardinals routed Howie Fox, who dropped his sixth game, in a five-run sixth inning to give Cloyd Boyer his third victory.

Hank Edwards' three-run ninth-inning home run presented relief pitcher Frank Smith with his fifth triumph for the Reds and tagged Boston's Sheldon Jones with his second loss. Ed Mathews hit his 10th homer of the season for the Braves.

Reynolds pitched his 15th straight complete game over a two-year stretch as he held the Tigers to seven hits for his eighth victory. Yogi Berra hit two homers and Hank Bauer also hit for the circuit as the Yankees made 12 hits.

Rookie Ivan DeLoach gained his third victory and his first major league shutout, a five-hitter in St. Louis. The Red Sox got the only run they needed in the first on a walk and a pair of singles by Dom

DiMaggio and George Kell.

Washington's Connie Marrero won his sixth game of the year with a three run rally in the ninth which singles by Jackie Jensen, Eddie Yost, and Mel Hoderlein, and a double by Mickey Vernon, were key hits.

Erskine, missing a perfect game only because he walked opposing pitcher Will Ramsdell in the third, faced just 28 batters as the Dodgers swept their three-game series with the Cubs on the right-hander's double blank job. They kept up their home run barrage with Roy Campanella, Carl Furillo and Andy Pafo hitting for the distance.

In other National League games, the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Philadelphia Phillies, 6-4, and the Cincinnati Reds defeated the Boston Braves, 7-4.

The New York Yankees made it two out of three from Detroit, topping the Tigers, 8 to 0, and staying 2 1-2 games ahead of the Boston Red Sox who also scored a shutout, 2 to 0, over St. Louis. Washington handed the Cleveland Indians their sixth straight defeat, 6 to 3, while the Chicago White Sox beat the Philadelphia Athletics, 5-4, after losing the opener of a doubleheader, 4-1.

Chapter 10
 Jeannie O'Bourke, her black eyes resolute and sullen, watched her mother move tiredly round the kitchen, stacking the dishes in the cabinet.

"I'll do that, Ma, in a minute." The old lady grunted and said: "Always you say that after I've finished the job. Any other girl would help her mother wash the dishes— But all you ever think about is boys." She paused. "Now for why are you puttin' your hair up like that?"

"Why don't you go to bed, Ma, and leave me hair alone. I'll do it any way I please." A sly smile creased her lips. "It makes me look five years older. That's what they all say, anyway."

"That's what all who say?"

"All the fellows."

Mrs. O'Bourke swished her drying cloth in dismay.

"One of these days, lassie, you're going to land in a heap of trouble."

"Oh, go to bed. I know what I'm doin', Ma. Brush my hair up at the back, please."

Mrs. O'Bourke sighed and caught the flung hairbrush.

"That's no way to hand your mother the brush, Jeannie. You are the worst mannered girl I ever seen."

"Manners ain't everything, Ma."

See if you can get all them straggly bits into place."

"Your mother had hair like this when she was sixteen," the old woman murmured as she deftly wielded the brush. "Look at it now. An' you know who made it like that. Don't you?"

"Now, you're not blamin' me because your hair's grey, Ma. Maybe Pop had something to do with that."

Mrs. O'Bourke rapped the girl's head smartly with the back of the hairbrush.

"You leave your Pop out of it!" The girl bridled.

"I've heard you say worse things than that 'bout Pop."

"I'm privileged. You ain't. There! Like a fillum star. Where're you off to tonight, Jeannie?"

"Out."

Mrs. O'Bourke sniffed.

"That's a great help, ain't it, now? Out, she says. Out could mean anything."

Jeannie twisted in her chair.

"Ma, why do you have to keep ridin' me like this? You open ev'ry letter I get, you swear at any boy I bring home an' you run squealin' to the playground man ev'ry time I stay out late. I just about hate this place, Ma, and you'd better lay off me or I'll clear out."

"There you go! Well, you do what you like, Jeannie, but I warn you you'll come to no good. You do what you like. I'm off to bed."

With which Mrs. O'Bourke dried the sink and went upstairs. The girl watched her go and then impulsively she sprang after her and kissed the old lady upon the cheek.

"Don't you mind me, Ma, I know what I'm at," she said.

Mrs. O'Bourke said "Goodnight!" and used the handrail to help propel her to the top of the stairs. At the landing she paused for breath.

"You be in before twelve, Jeannie," she called down.

The girl ignored the remark and skipped towards her own room on the ground level. There she wriggled into a thin dress and made up her face before the mirror. Within a few minutes she had left the house and was walking towards the row of poplars that lined the westernmost rim of Wade's Hole.

"That you, Jeannie?"

The figure of a lean youth detached itself from the tree shadows and stood within the circle of lamplight.

"Hullo, Barney!"

They clasped arms and strolled down the slope to where the shades of the area converged into almost impenetrable gloom.

The youth removed his coat and spread it upon the grass for Jeannie to lie on and then he stretched himself out beside her. Thus, for an hour, they talked in the serious way of adolescents.

"Barney, somebody's watching us!"

"The youth sat up, startled, and followed the direction of Jeannie's outstretched hand.

On the rim of Wade's Hole a figure was dully silhouetted against the sky. He stood with his back to the watchers, and his arms were held forward as though they supported a considerable burden of weight. They saw him bend forward slightly and stagger as the burden was projected outwards and downwards. Then he stepped back and savagely kicked at something that lay near his feet.

"You see that, Barney?"

"Yes."

"Who is it?"

"I can't make out. Probably someone dumping garbage." He paused. "Anyway, he's gone."

Suddenly Jeannie came to her feet and said:

"Let's take a look down there, Barney."

"Wade's Hole?"

"I'm curious, that's all."

"Alright, I'll go down. But it's a funny way to spend an evening out."

They circled the great pit until they found a break in its level edges and here they essayed the perilous descent, the lad leading and the girl handing desperately to his back-stretched hand. They spoke softly, for it was eerie down here in the deep shadows and already Jeannie was beginning to feel afraid.

They were about to give up, and scramble back to the surface when Barney's questing feet brought up against something soft and yielding. He made to step over the impediment when its outline caught and held his attention. He stooped down and ran uncertain fingers along the prone form.

"It's a woman," he said. "An' I think she's dead!"

"Oh! Barney, take me back. Quick."

"Take a look, Jeannie."

Jeannie looked with fearful eyes.

"It's Kate," she exclaimed. "The woman who lives at Five Ways."

'Tomcat Of Year' Plans To Attend A National Convention

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 WASHINGTON (UP) — I would like to nominate Toby Cuipepper Reedy as a candidate for "Tomcat of the Year."

Unless he comes down with catnip fever he likely will become the first tomcat in history to attend a national political convention.

His master, George E. Reedy Sr., plans to carry the big part-ersian, part-tiger feline along to the nominating sessions in Chicago next month. George is a Washington radio news commentator and will air his "Washington Exclusive" from the Windy City.

"Toby is going along as an observer," he says. "He knows more about politics than most politicians. My partner, Tris Coffin, and I plan to sneak Toby into those smoke-filled rooms you always read about from convention cities."

"We ought to get a lot of scoops that way. Toby tried to tell all of his friends in 1948 to put their money on Mr. Truman over Tom Dewey. That's how smart he is."

"Further, as an unofficial observer, my pet has few worries. He doesn't give a meow who becomes secretary of state, secretary of agriculture or represents us at the Court of St. James. As for the current crop of candidates, he likes Ike, he likes Taft, he likes Kefauver, he likes Russell and Stevenson and all the others who may pop up."

Toby is, indeed an unusual cat. He hit the news some time back there in his young tom days. A federal judge insulted all cats in general from the bench during a damage suit involving two cats and one dog.

Toby, with George as his ghost writer, penned a scathing note to his honor and his honor wrote right back with a long and touching apology.

The letter is framed and hangs in Reedy's office.

I don't know whether all cats snore, but Toby can let out the loudest "purr" I ever heard when he is cat-napping at the foot of the boss' bed.

He also holds the distinction of being deathly afraid of birds. The feathered creatures chase him into the house.

The other day a mocking bird dive bombed him. The kitchen door was closed and he sneaked under the porch and wouldn't come out for three hours.

George and Toby were rather pleased when Secretary of Interior Oscar L. Chapman's office issued four releases on cats. Two of them condemned the cats. These Toby and George ignored. A third said cats were fine mousers and that if we had more cats, we would have less mice.

The fourth was the best, though. It announced that President Truman had proclaimed a National Cat Week.

GREENSBORO (AP) — An AFL-United Textile Workers official has filed a $100,000 libel suit in Guilford Superior Court against the CIO Textile Workers Union of America and officials of the TWUA.

The suit was filed yesterday by Luther Carroll, manager of the Greensboro-Burlington joint board.

Why your life line is getting longer

Medical miracles are being worked with wonder drugs made from lowly molds

Lines on your hand... mold on your slice of bread... is either really important? While you may doubt the "life line," science no longer doubts the importance of mold.

But there are many kinds of molds. Some now are so important that they are being cultivated and treated with the greatest respect in spotless laboratories. Why? Because they are on their way to becoming "wonder drugs"—penicillin, streptomycin, and many others—that are ready to help lengthen your own life.

A COMPLICATED PROCESS—The production of these vital drugs has made medical history. Step after step of complicated processing is involved, many requiring the use of just the right solvents or chemicals to separate or retain the desired ingredients.

CLEANLINESS IS VITAL—During these operations everything must be protected from contamination. That's where stainless steel and specially compounded plastics become important. Stainless steels have strength... resistance to chemical action... ease of cleaning. The plastics are readily formed and can be kept clinically clean.

BASIC MATERIALS BY UCC—Solvents, chemicals, stainless steels and plastics are only a few of many materials produced by the people of Union Carbide for the drug industry. And this is but one of many industries in which UCC has a hand in helping make the things that bring a longer and better life to each of us.

The Most Powerful Gasoline Your Car Can Use!

Get Activated!

Today's more powerful engines require a highly complex gasoline to deliver their full power. There can be as many as 1500 different chemical compounds in a gallon of gasoline.

To select the best of these chemicals, and to arrange them properly to fulfill the needs of your car calls for the last word in refinery equipment and scientific skill. It is Shell's manufacturing policy to make "The most powerful gasoline your car can use." Shell activates gasoline by splitting and rearranging petroleum molecules.

The result—Shell Premium—the most powerful gasoline your car can use. See the Shell Dealer in your neighborhood.

Summer Course On Alcoholism Planned At ECC

Physiological, economic, sociological and other aspects of alcoholism, especially as they apply to the work of the health educator, will provide materials for discussion at a workshop to be presented at East Carolina College June 26-July 9 as part of the summer program of study.

Dr. N. M. Jorgensen, director of the department of health and physical education, will be coordinator of the workshop on "Alcoholism in Health Education." He will be assisted by a group of off-campus speakers who will visit the class as discussion leaders during the two-weeks course of study.

Such questions as Why do people drink? What are the effects of alcohol upon the human body? What is the relationship between alcohol and crime? What are the economic implications of alcoholism? will be considered during the workshop. Emphasis will be placed upon what benefits health education can achieve by contributing to a fuller understanding of such problems and by encouraging a scientific attitude toward the causes and effects of alcoholism.

The class will be open to seniors and graduate students, and may be taken for credit toward a degree and toward renewal of teaching certificates. Dr. Jorgensen has announced. Registration will be open to students through July 26. Meetings are scheduled from 1 to 4 o'clock each afternoon, Monday through Friday.

Chief of Police Guy Langston of Greenville, will be among speakers who will act as lecturers and discussion leaders. Among others announced by Dr. Jorgensen will be Judge Charles Whedbee of Greenville, the Rev. H. G. Haney of the Greenville Christian Church, and a member of Alcoholics Anonymous.

Carver Library

Vacation Days are reading days. Reading maketh a full man, writing, an exact man, and conversation a ready man. I would rather be a poor man with plenty of books than a king who does not like to read.

Our summer story hour was held at the Library Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock with 89 girls and boys present. The librarian welcomed the children to the library and encouraged them to read 15 books this summer and receive certificates.

Our guests were Mr. George Jenkins and Policeman C. Corbett who gave the children an enjoyable lecture on safety. He stressed to the summer readers the value of saving lives by obeying all traffic rules, walking and on your bikes.

Games were played and refreshments were served by Mrs. Anna White and the librarian. Punch and cookies.

After which the new reader signed membership cards and books were circulated to all who wanted to begin reading. 110 books were circulated.

Our Summer Story Hour will be conducted each Tuesday afternoon from 4 to 5 o'clock during the summer months and stories will be told by the readers and a guest story teller.

Miss Lucille Rich, elementary teacher at South Greenville school, will be our guest next Tuesday.

All children and adults are invited to use your leisure time wisely; visit the public library.

Sadie Sauter Not Involved In Case

In Pitt County Recorder's Court Tuesday the case of Catherine Caesar, teacher at South Greenville Negro School, against Belle Atkinson, librarian at Carver Library, charging defamation of character, was not pressed.

Catherine Caesar swore out the warrant charging Belle Atkinson with "attempt to ruin the reputation of a virtuous woman." Judge Dink James and Solicitor Horton agreed on throwing the case out of court.

Eight witnesses were listed on the warrant.

In Wednesday's news report of the court's proceedings, it was erroneously stated that Miss Sadie I. Sauter, teacher at Eppes High School, had the warrant issued.

Miss Sauter was named on the warrant as a witness for one of the parties, but she did not know anything about it, and was never notified by the sheriff to appear as a witness.

Republican Age Records Are Seen Likely To Fall

By ALEXANDER E. GEORGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer
WASHINGTON — It's a good bet that this year's Republican presidential nominee will be the oldest in that party's history.

Oldest of the G. O. P. standard bearers to date was Ohio's Benjamin Harrison, who was 68 when nominated for a second term in 1888. Senator Taft, General Eisenhower and Governor Warren are all past 60.

Taft will be 63 Sept. 8, Eisenhower 62 Oct. 14 and Warren 62 next March 10. Former Governor Stassen of Minnesota is a comparative youngster of 45.

The next President might be the oldest in the nation's history. General MacArthur, considered by some Republicans as a possible nominee in the event of a convention deadlock, will be 73 next Jan. 26, six days after inauguration day.

Vice President Barkley is the oldest potential nominee and President of them all. The Kentuckian, who has been in government service since Woodrow Wilson's first term as president, will be 78 Nov. 26.

If President Truman had decided to contend for and won re-nomination, he would have been the oldest nominee in the history of the major parties. He will be 68 May 8.

The oldest man ever to be president was William Henry Harrison, Whig, who became 68 less than a month before his inauguration. Harrison died exactly one month after his inauguration in 1841.

The old warrior of Tippecanoe rode his white horse from the White House to the capitol on a wintry inauguration day. He contracted pneumonia after standing in a raw wind for an hour while delivering his inaugural address.

Four contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination this year are well under 60. Senator Russell of Georgia is 54, Senator Kefauver of Tennessee 48, Governor Stevenson of Illinois 52 and Senator Kerr of Oklahoma 55.

Youngest of all the presidents was Theodore Roosevelt. He was 42 when he stepped up from the vice presidency after the assassination of President McKinley in 1901.

Youngest of all the major party nominees was William Jennings Bryan, the Democratic selection in 1896. Bryan was 36 when his "Cross of Gold" speech stamped the Democratic convention in Chicago.

Suppose Senator Humphrey of Minnesota should become the choice of a "headlocked" Democratic convention and then goes on to win election. Humphrey will be 41 May 27 and would be the youngest President in history.

RALEIGH — (AP) — The fate of seven small high schools was at stake at today's meeting of the State Board of Education. Two months ago the board members voted to consolidate 13 high schools in the interest of the over-all school program. Soon thereafter delegations began appearing, arguing for the retention of the seven.

The delegations presented figures and findings involving the schools which conflicted with the official information gathered by the board. In an effort to settle the disputes, the board delayed the proposed consolidations and ordered a new fact-finding committee to look into the matter.

The board may get around to adopting a new school budget and approving teacher allotments for the coming school year at its meeting.

Dark Horses Could Change GOP View

By ROBERT E. GEIGER
AP Newsfeatures Writer
WASHINGTON — A stable full of dark horses is ready to run for the presidential nomination of the Republican national convention—if given the chance.

Among them are Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, Paul Hoffman, businessman and former director of the European recovery plan, and Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Dewey, twice a Republican presidential candidate, has said he has been retired to the role of elder statesman, defined as a "politician who no longer is a candidate for any office."

Nevertheless, if a situation arises at the Chicago convention in which a dark horse is needed, it's almost a certainty somebody will trot out the Dewey colors.

Racket Buster
Dewey climbed to fame in the mid-30s as a racket-busting district attorney in New York City, winning convictions against 72 out of 73 defendants brought to trial. This broke up a network Charles "Lucky" Luciano, a kingpin of New York vice, who received a 30 to 50-year prison sentence and later was deported to Italy.

In 1940 Dewey was an unsuccessful contender against Wendell Willkie for the Republican presidential nomination. He won the honor in 1944 and again in 1948, being defeated first by Franklin D. Roosevelt and then by Harry Truman.

Dewey calls himself a "true liberal." In the present campaigning he has said he likes Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Dewey was born at Owosso, Mich., 50 years ago, the son of weekly newspaper publisher who was a distant relative of Adm. George Dewey of Manila Bay fame.

Boom In 1943
There were "Mac for President" clubs as long ago as 1943, when Gen. MacArthur was overseas. In 1948 he received some votes on the first balloting at the national convention.

The fact that MacArthur, now 73, was fired as U. S. and U. N. commander in the Far East last year became a political issue. Even before he landed in San Francisco he was called a 1952 presidential prospect. But MacArthur has said he is not a candidate.

Besides being one of the most famous military men in the world, MacArthur is a brilliant phrase-maker and orator. He was top man in his class of 93 members at West Point in 1903 and at 50 became the youngest chief of staff MacArthur.

He didn't make the grade, but is entitled to an orchid for effort. The others were certified as party nominees without a contest. They are Mrs. Grace Taylor Radenbough of Stokes and Mrs. Pat Kinsey of Transylvania, Democratic candidates for the house, and Mrs. Leslie T. Kountze of Caldwell, Republican candidate for the senate in the 28th district.

CHIVALRY — Point is, that while the women have the numerical strength to take over control of the party, the record of their participation in politics does not justify the privileges (?) which have been accorded them. For these privileges they are indebted to the chivalry of their mentors rather than to their own adventures in citizenship.

was born at Little Rock, Ark., the son of Gen. Arthur MacArthur. He has a son, Arthur, now 14 years old.

Senator Dirksen served eight terms in the House of Representatives, retiring in January 1949. He was nominated for the Senate a year later and defeated the Democrats' Senate leader, Scott W. Lucas.

In campaigns he has said the Democrats are leading the nation down the road to socialism and bankruptcy. He calls himself neither isolationist nor internationalist, he defines as taking "a moderate and realistic viewpoint."

Dirksen was a candidate in 1944 for the presidential or vice presidential nomination. He is 64 years old; was born at Pekin, Ill., where he still lives; is married and has one child. In World War I he served 17 months overseas and ranks.

Business Executive
Paul Hoffman quit a well-paid job as president of the Studebaker Corp. to become director of the European recovery program. Later he was named president of the Ford Foundation but now is on leave to help direct the campaign of Eisenhower for the GOP nomination.

Once Hoffman corrected a friend who called him a "Republican and a liberal." He said he is a "Republican and responsible." He explained a responsible man may find himself on either side of the mythical line that divides liberals from other classes of voting people.

While not an avowed candidate, Hoffman's accomplishments in business and his flair for statesmanship make him a qualified choice as a Republican dark horse. He made a name for himself as a "super-salesman," owned the Los Angeles branch of the Studebaker firm and in 1925 became corporation vice president.

The corporation went into receivership and Hoffman was named one of two receivers, working out a successful reorganization. He was made president in 1935.

Visitors To Williamsburg Will See Strange Flag Flying

By J. EDWARD GRIMSLEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — (UP) —

Visitors to this restored colonial city until the Fourth of July will see a strange flag flying from the cupolas of the 18th Century Virginia capitol and from standards along historic Duke of Gloucester street.

The flag looks like a hybrid between our own Old Glory and the British flag. Actually it's a combination of the familiar red and white stripes and the British Union Jack.

The Grand Union Flag, as it is called, was America's first national flag. It was the first banner to fly over newly-raised regiments of the Continental Army or to wave in the breeze from the masts of the ships of the young Continental navy. Now almost forgotten, the Grand Union Flag has been unfurled to help mark the 176th anniversary of the Virginia resolutions calling for American independence.

Origin Unknown
Unlike the Betsy Ross traditions surrounding the Stars and Stripes, the origin of the Grand Union Flag is unknown. It appeared on Jan. 1, 1776, at General George Washington's camp at Cambridge, Mass. It was flying from a 76-foot mast from a burned schooner, high enough to be seen by observers in distant Boston.

Three days later it was seen in Philadelphia waving from ships in the fleet of Commodore Hopkins when the fleet sailed into hostile waters. One of the ships displaying the Grand Union Flag was the Alfred, commanded by John Paul Jones.

The Grand Union Flag was adopted for use by the navy and it flew over forts and barracks ashore but it was never formally adopted by the Continental Congress. By April, 1776, it was shown on paper currency in South Carolina.

Hoisted Over Capital
On May 15, 1776, the "Union Flag of the American States" was hoisted over the Colonial Virginia Capitol here after the British flag had been hauled down.

The Union Flag was raised to mark the unanimous passage of the Virginia resolutions calling for separation from Great Britain. Historians say that when the flag was raised in Williamsburg it appropriately reflected the political thought of the time. M. M. Qualie, author of the book "The Flag of the United States" says that although the colonies had appealed for a redress of grievances they still considered themselves loyal subjects of the king.

Flag Symbolic
Thus the flag, with its alternate red and white stripes and the British Union Jack in the upper left hand corner, signified the colonies' loyalty to the crown and their new union among themselves.

The Grand Union Flag Continued in use until the Declaration of Independence, which ended the possibility of reconciliation and settled questions of loyalty. On June 14, 1777, the Continental Congress enacted the first legislation creating an American flag. A simple substitution of thirteen stars was made for the British crosses in the Grand Union Flag.

When European glassblowers closed down production during World War II, supremacy in fine handblown glass shifted to American shores.

Helicopter Air Mail Is Celebrated In Belgium

BRUSSELS (UP) — Europe's first regular helicopter air mail service run jointly by the Belgian post office and Belgian airlines, celebrated its "coming-of-age" this month.

It is 31 months, in September, 1950, since the first helicopter took off from Haren Airfield near Brussels on a round-Belgian collection and distribution trip.

Since then Belgians have become so accustomed to seeing the wasp-like machines carrying the "flying postman" hovering above their cities that they seldom look up.

The idea of pioneering the heli-post in Belgium came to Postmaster-general M. Pineaux two years ago after a trip to Peterborough, England, where he witnessed a maneuverably demonstration by helicopters. On his return he consulted Belgian Airlines (Sabena) and arranged for the purchase of two American-built machines.

Trip Of 230 Miles
Since then, six days a week, one of the two helicopters operating the service takes off from Haren on its 230-mile trip around Belgian cities. The machine makes ten stops en route at Brussels, Libramont, Liege, Tongres, Hasselt, Beringen, Herenthals, Turnhout, Antwerp and again Brussels. An average of 12,000 letters are picked up or deposited on the four and a half hour daily run.

The landing grounds, or "heliports" as the post office calls them, vary from football grounds to broad highways. The tight schedule provides for stopovers lasting only one minute except for the one re-fueling stop per trip, when seven minutes are allowed.

The slow-flying but highly maneuverable aircraft can operate in weather which would ground most orthodox aircraft and in many cases delay mail trains. During last winter, with its fogs, blizzards and freezing weather, the heli-post got through 95 per cent of its scheduled trips. In summer the efficiency rate is as high as 99 per cent.

Only One Accident
Only accident has happened fifteen days after the inaugural flight, a helicopter crashed into the River Meuse at Liege when its engine failed. The pilot swam ashore and the mail, carried in waterproof panniers strapped to the fuselage of the machine, was salvaged. The helicopter was back in service a few weeks later and is still flying.

Letters delivered by heli-post cost more than ordinary mail. In fact, thousands of Belgians whose mail has been carried by this means are not aware of it. There are no special stamps or postmarks to differentiate heli-post letters from those carried by ordinary transport.
