Green UN Units Beat Back Attack

Filipino And American Replacements Stand Firm In Bloody Assault

SEOUL, Korea (UP) - Fresh American and Filipino infantry replacements beat back the biggest Communist attack of the year west of Chonwon today in a desperate battle for control of three strategic hills.

More than 400 Chinese were killed or wounded in the fierce six-hour battle.

The 17th regiment of the 45th division and men of the Philippine 19th Battalion combat team absorbed the initial shock of the 3,500 man Red attack.

In the air, American Sabre jets shot down one Communist MIG-15 fighter over the North Korean capital of Pyongyang in a dog fight with five of the Russian-built planes.

Lt. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, commander of the 1st Corps, said the comparatively green newcomers on the western front met the mass Chinese attacks with the "cold steel" of bayonets.

The American and Filipino foot soldiers repulsed the hordes of Chinese in the bloody battle which marked the Reds' 21st futile attempt to recapture the strategic heights wrested from them by the 45th Division 10 days ago.

O'Daniel said the American replacements were ready to "attack or repel any Chinese offensive." He predicted they would make the Reds "pay a crushing cost" for any offensive.

The Reds moved in behind a heavy artillery barrage which poured 60 shells a minute on defending United Nations forces.

Scraping U. S. soldiers climbed out of their foxholes and took on the raising Reds in hand-to-hand combat with grenades and bayonets. B-24 bombers came in low over the battle area to bomb Communist concentrations.

This main enemy attack, a pincer movement designed to cut off the hill positions, lasted four hours, but the Reds jabbed back in lighter probes for two more hours.

Many of the G.I.'s in battle for the first time, fought like veterans and O'Daniel said the replacements in his corps "made an outstanding record."

One Out Of Ten Found Unfit For Military Duty

WASHINGTON (AP)—Just about one out of every ten men classified in the draft is turning up as unfit for military duty.

Selective Service reported yesterday that of 12,416,129 youths, examined from 1948 up to last April 30, a total of 1,443,315 had been classified as 4-F. That's 11.6 per cent.

Both the healthiest and unhealthiest showings were made outside the Continental United States.

Among the states, South Dakota made the best showing—only 3,895 of its 55,277 registrants classified 4-F, a 6.5 percentage.

The highest rate of rejections for military duty in the states was in South Carolina—with 40,963 out of 191,700 for 21.4 per cent.

Enlisting Policy Now Permanent

WASHINGTON (AP)—If you're about to be drafted, you can join the service of your choice—provided you do it before your induction notice arrives.

That's been the case for several months, but yesterday the Defense Department made it an official, permanent policy.

For the past year, the services have been suspending—from month to month—an inter-service agreement which prohibited men from volunteering for service after they had their pre-induction physical tests.

The Army is now the only service depending on the draft for men.

Summer Arrives Today, With Much Of Country Sweltering

By UNITED PRESS The first day of summer baked much of the country today but the Atlantic Seaboard and Great Lakes states enjoyed cool, spring-like weather.

Summer arrived at 6:13 a. m. EST when the sun reached its solstice—or climbed as far north of the equator as it can go.

Americans could look forward to 15 hours and 13 minutes of daylight to work or play in, the longest day of the year.

For the area south of the Ohio Valley and east of the Rocky Mountains the weatherman predicted high temperatures and steaming humidity.

The South and Southwest suffered in 90 to 100-degree heat yesterday and meteorologists warned "they could do it again."

Record Commended

The city of Greenville this week was commended by the American Automobile Association and the Carolina Motor Club for its outstanding pedestrian safety record during 1951.

Mayer Lester D. Page announced receipt of the award this morning and stated last year was the first year in his recollection that Greenville did not have a single pedestrian death.

The award was presented for excellence of pedestrian record, and reads: "Greenville, North Carolina is commended for its outstanding record of no pedestrian death during 1951 as reported in the American Automobile Association national pedestrian protection contest."

It was signed by J. E. O'Neill, president of the AAA, and C. W. Roberts, president of the Carolina Motor Club. Mayor Page said the award came to the local AAA office here, and was presented to the city this week.

Pactolus School Loses Its Fight

Failed To Meet Standards Of State Education Board

FACTOLUS—This small community will lose the high school that it fought so long and hard for.

The State Board of Education rung down the last curtain yesterday on 10 small schools in the State, the Pactolus School among them, since the schools did not have the average daily attendance of 80 pupils.

Several years ago the State Board took action to consolidate the Pactolus High School but citizens rallied around and finally received an extension which placed the school on probation for a number of years.

The small school failed to reach up to the standards put before them by the State Board and their number came up again. Die-hard citizens again sent a petition to the board asking for reconsideration. But to no avail.

Final action on the part of the State Board was taken yesterday. Pactolus High School students will go to Stokes School with the exception of a few who live in the Clark's Neck section and will attend school there.

Van Fleet Given Highest Military Honor Of Greece

WITH U. S. THIRD INFANTRY DIVISION IN KOREA—(AP)—Gen. James A. Van Fleet, U. S. Eighth Army commander, today was awarded the highest Greek military decoration—the Distinguished Medal of Honor.

The presentation was made by Lt. Gen. Theodoros Tsakalotos, chief of the Greek army general staff. He is visiting the Greek expeditionary forces attached to the U. S. Third Infantry Division.

Van Fleet headed the U. S. Military Advisory Group in Greece before coming to Korea.

Tsakalotos also presented nine other decorations from King Paul II of Greece. They included:

The Distinguished Military Cross, Order of the Knight, King George Battalion, one of Greece's highest awards, to Col. William T. Moore, Kinross, N. C., acting First Corps Chief of Staff.

Pravda Reporter Told To Get Out

ROME (UP) The Rome Correspondent of Moscow's Pravda, organ of the Soviet Communist Party, was under orders from the Italian government today to leave the country "in the shortest possible time."

The expulsion orders were served on Olga Tchetchetkina last night. They informed her that she was no longer welcome in Italy because of a series of "disparaging" dispatches she had sent.

Among her recent dispatches was one referring to Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, who made a three-day visit to Italy this week, as "Gaulleter Ridgway."

midity was in store for the Gulf States and the lower valley of the Mississippi River. But for other portions of the nation the first day of summer spelled relief from a spring heat wave.

A canopy of cold air hovered over the Great Lakes and New England and sent cooling breezes into the Middle Atlantic area and North-Central states.

There was little likelihood that the cool air would bring any relief to the warmer portions of the country.

"It's been where it is for two or three days and now looks like it's going to stay for quite a while," a forecaster said.

The mercury dipped to 45 at Buffalo, N. Y., yesterday and even topped 66 degrees.

Failed To Go Along With Administration Policies, Governor Says; Put Off His Dismissal As Long As He Could

RALEIGH (UP) - David S. Coltrane was asked to resign as assistant director of the budget because of his failure to go along with the "Go Forward" philosophy of the present administration, Gov. Kerr Scott explained.

The governor said, in a lengthy statement issued yesterday, that Coltrane's delays of projects for which appropriations had been made cost the state "millions" of dollars as prices on building materials went up. Scott said he first got the idea of relieving Coltrane at the last session of the General Assembly.

But, the governor said, he "could not bring myself to do it" until this month. The governor cited the addition to the Agriculture Building saying delays and price increases have prevented starting work on the structure, which was approved before the start of the Korean war. And he said Coltrane "has permitted his vision and acts to become warped by constant pressure and has thus destroyed his usefulness in carrying to fruition a program of progress and service to the people."

Exits Barred To Owen Lattimore

WASHINGTON (UP)—The State Department has barred Owen Lattimore from leaving the country until it nails down a report that he had planned a trip to Russia.

The department said late yesterday it took the "unusual" step as a "precaution" against the possibility of Lattimore deliberately violating the strict ban against travel behind the Iron Curtain.

It said the action was based on an "official allegation" that the controversial Far Eastern expert was making arrangements to visit Russia even though he did not have a passport.

Lattimore said last night at his home in Baltimore:

"I suggest they should investigate the evidence, whereupon they will find out there isn't any evidence since I have no plans to go to Russia or any other country now or in the foreseeable future. I haven't booked passage anywhere."

Lattimore, a Johns Hopkins University professor, has been under heavy congressional fire for his connections with the much criticized Institute of Pacific Relations.

Pinay Risks His Political Life

PARIS (UP)—Premier Antoine Pinay risked the life of his government last night to save Foreign Minister Robert Schuman from resigning under National Assembly pressure.

Angered by a motion by one of Gen. Charles de Gaulle's deputies during a debate on French policy in Tunisia, Pinay threatened to resign himself—which would end his government—if Schuman were forced to quit.

The Gaullist motion that the "foreign minister was not competent to handle government policy in Tunisia" was then defeated 274 to 227.

tures ranging around the 90 mark but considered it a respite. During last week's heat wave every weather portion in the state reported 100 degrees or higher.

The hottest spot in the nation was Presidio, Tex., with a 110 reading, and Kansas and Oklahoma burned in a protracted heat wave.

In St. Louis, Mo., weatherman Harry F. Wahlgren almost lost his faith in meteorology when a heavy rain caused the temperature to drop from 93 to 60 in one hour.

Wahlgren was checking an instrument called a telethermograph when the needle suddenly dipped below the new reading of 60 and shot downward to 45 degrees in a matter of minutes.

He ripped the cover off the machine works and found a short circuit. Wahlgren adjusted the device and the needle climbed back to 90.

Drawing Of Planned New Church

West Greenville Presbyterians have recently secured the architect's drawing of the new church which will be officially organized tomorrow night. Estimated cost of an educational building and sanctuary amount to $45,000. A date for starting construction of the church has not yet been set.

Trial Is Set For British Spy Case

New Charges Lodged Against Young Radio Operator

LONDON (UP) - The state charged today that a British Foreign Office radio operator betrayed government secrets to the Russians over a period of three months and had been found with a "highly dangerous secret" document.

Four new charges of obtaining secret information and giving it to the Russians were lodged against William M. Marshall, the 24-year-old defendant, at his second hearing in magistrate's court.

The court denied Marshall's appeal for bail and ordered him held for trial next Thursday under Britain's anti-espionage law. No indication was given of the type of information involved, other than that it might be useful to an enemy.

Marshall, whose job was to transmit both coded and open messages to British missions abroad, was arrested in a park a week ago as he kept an appointment with Pavel Kuznetsov, second secretary in the Soviet embassy here.

Kuznetsov also was named in the additional charges filed today. However, as a diplomat he is immune to prosecution.

Magistrate Clyde T. Wilson denied bail after Prosecutor J.S. Bass charged that Marshall had been found in possession of a "document containing highly dangerous secret information."

"It is true that the document is now in the hands of the police," Bass said in opposing bail, "but the contents may remain in the accused's mind."

Brazilian Towns Terrorized By Prison Escapees

Rio de Janeiro (AP)—Troops, Air Force planes and boats rushed today to the aid of three Brazilian coastal towns terrorized by 400 heavily armed escaped convicts, press dispatches reported.

The convicts yesterday smashed their way out of Anchieta Island Prison, where some of Brazil's most desperate criminals are jailed.

The reports gave this account of the escape: The prisoners overpowered their guards, seized their weapons, including machine guns, and escaped to the mainland in stolen boats. One prison warden and an undermanned number of guards were killed in the uprising.

The convicts landed near the coastal towns of Ubata, Sao Vicente and Saraguatuba, about 180 miles from Sao Paulo City in Southern Brazil.

Unborn Child Is Not Wanted By Either Parent

CHICAGO (AP) - An unborn child, expected next week, is not wanted by either parent, Superior Judge George M. Fischer was told yesterday.

The expectant mother, Mrs. Marjorie Stegert, 25, who has a separate maintenance suit pending against Frank Stegert, 25, asked that custody of the unborn child not be awarded to her.

Her husband, partner owner of a restaurant, announced promptly that he didn't want custody. However, Judge Fisher ordered him to pay his wife $20 weekly, plus hospital and medical bills connected with the birth.

Judge Fisher continued the hearing until after the birth and said he thought the mother might change her mind once she sees the child.

Divorce Bill

WASHINGTON (UP) - The Senate today passed legislation to guarantee that valid divorces granted in any state will be legal in all others if they meet specified demands.

The bill potentially affects millions of divorced persons whose decrees could be considered valid in one state but not in another.

The measure now goes to the House.

Reds 'Startled' By Bit Of History

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—The United Nations started Communist truce negotiators today by telling them that Russia had endorsed the same principle of voluntary repatriation of war prisoners which the Reds now reject.

Maj. Gen. William K. Harrison, chief U.N. negotiator, reopened the stalled truce talks after a three-day recess with the statement that the Soviets had promised Germans and Hungarians during World War II that they would not have to return home if they did not wish to do so.

Harrison said afterward that the Communists seemed "surprised" by his statement.

Harrison, who forced the recess, proposed another "indefinite" suspension, but North Korean Gen. Nam Il insisted on another meeting tomorrow.

"The Communists here have repeatedly insisted that voluntary repatriation is 'illegal' and violates the Geneva Convention."

Water Failure Is Explained Due To Faulty Valve

A number of homes in Greenville were without water for a short time last night due to a valve failure on a Pitt Street water main.

Utilities Superintendent Martin Swartz reported this morning that homes on Second Street between Pitt and Evans streets, and Pitt Street between First and Third streets, were without water from approximately 8:30 until 10 o'clock last night.

Swartz said the difficulty stemmed from a valve failure in the main on Pitt Street. He disclosed the faulty valve was one of the few original valves installed when Greenville's water system was first put in around 1905.

The valve was repaired and service continued around 10 o'clock.

Lost All Five Children In Fire

WHITTIER, Calif. (AP)—Five children—the entire family of an orange picker and his wife—were burned to death today in a residence fire.

The four-room house in East Whittier burned to the ground, the blaze having gone too far before firemen arrived.

The victims were the children of Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Negrete. They were Daniel, 12; Dolores, 8; Anna Maria, 6; Antonio, 4, and Marie Helen, 2.

Town Rocked By 2 Curious Boys

VALLEY STREAM, N.Y. (UP)—Two curious 11-year-old boys who wondered what would happen if a midget fire-cracker exploded in an empty 2,000 gallon gasoline tank, found out yesterday.

New Church Will Form On Sunday

Presbyterian Group To Formally Organize Sunday Evening

The organization of a new church will be held Sunday night when Presbyterians in West Greenville meet at the Curb Market with a commission appointed by the Albemarle Presbytery.

The new church will be named the West Greenville Presbyterian Church and it is expected that there will be at least 50 charter members to form the new church.

The commission meeting with the charter members has been appointed by the Albemarle Presbytery and is composed of the following: Rev. Leonard Toppling, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church here; Rev. J. Woodrow Hassell, executive secretary of Home Missions of the Albemarle Presbytery; Rev. Harold Dudley, general secretary of the Presbyterian Synod of North Carolina; Withers Harvey, clerk; and W. Earl Stokes, ruling elder of the First Presbyterian Church.

The group which plans to form the new church has been meeting in the Curb Market for the past two and one-half years. They started as a Sunday school and chapel of the First Presbyterian Church and remained the same since then.

Rev. Toppling has been conducting the Sunday service for the West Greenville group at their meeting place the first and third Sundays at 10 o'clock every month. They have been sponsored by the First Church.

Building plans for the exterior and interior of the new church have been approved and the group anticipated erecting the new church on the corner of Myrtle and Skinner Streets.

Construction of an educational building will cost approximately $25,000 and the sanctuary will cost another $20,000. Some funds are available for the new church but the beginning date for construction has not been set.

A picnic supper will be served at the Curb Market Sunday afternoon at 6:30 and each family who attends is asked to bring a basket supper.

Babson Sees Compensations In America's Present High Taxes

By ROGER W. BABSON BABSON PARK, Mass.—Now that the first half of the year 1952 is nearly over, income tax reckoning still leaves in its wake a raft of questions. For instance, if someone should ask about the effect of income taxes on profits, the answer would seem to be obvious. Taxes bite into profits and apparently bring about slimmer margins between sales and costs. Business tries, however, to make up for this shrinkage in profits by expanding the volume of sales.

There are also other "silver linings" to the cloud. I hate high taxes as much as any reader does, but we should realize that indirectly such taxes may have certain advantages: (1) High taxes make us all work harder. (2) As high taxes are hardest on retired people living on a fixed income, these higher taxes are forcing many of them to again become producers. (3) High taxes should make us all more interested in electing a better government. (4) High taxes may result in increased gifts to churches, hospitals and charities.

Even "excess profits" taxes have certain compensations. For example, at maximum rates, seventy-seven cents of every dollar of excess profits may go to the government in taxes. But if the corporation decides to spend what would go into its excess profits for research, advertising or employing more salesmen, it could do so advantageously. Every dollar of such outlay would then cost the corporation only twenty-three cents. Companies in a position to make use of these "thrifty" dollars might better maintain buildings and expand sales efforts.

Taxes and the Stock Market Now, with some degree of certainty of earnings at the level where excess profits begin, there might even be a reflection thereof in higher prices for the company's shares. What would be the position of the stockholder in such a case? The higher stock prices might bring about long-term capital gains if more of the earnings are later converted into dividends.

By spending money that otherwise would go to taxes, the competitive position of the company would be improved. It should have an advantage over competitors who do not have excess profits for expansion of business out of tax money. Excess profits may well increase the advertising in newspapers and magazines.

Union And Steel Spokesmen Again Fail Reopen Talks

Officials Hold Brief Secret Session As Production Slows Down

NEW YORK (UP) - Union and industry officials made another unsuccessful attempt yesterday to reopen negotiations aimed at settling the 30-day steel strike, it was learned today.

With the nation's defense and civilian production slowly grinding to a halt, representatives of Philip Murray's 650,000 CIO steelworkers and top leaders in the industry met here secretly in an effort to get the negotiations going again.

But after several talks during the day, the situation was "right back where it started" and the meetings ended abruptly last night, a reliable union source said.

Industry officials said after the break up of White House-sponsored negotiations earlier this month that only the union shop issue was holding up a settlement. However, the union contended then that the wage pattern still was not satisfactory.

Neither union nor industry leaders would indicate over what issue yesterday's talks collapsed.

Murray, president of the CIO, was in New York and participated in the abortive talks. The union leader will deliver an "important" speech to a mass meeting in Gary, Ind., Sunday, and union sources said he would discuss yesterday's meetings then.

The latest failure of union and industry to get collective bargaining machinery in operation gave weight to reports President Truman soon would use the Taft-Hartley Act to halt the crippling strike.

The law provides for a 60-day anti-strike injunction. Mr. Truman has said that he did not want to invoke the law because the union postponed its strike for 90 days before finally walking out.

The Senate has approved a "request" that the President use the Taft-Hartley law. The House postponed until Wednesday a vote on the request.

Mayor Endorses Tag Day Project

Mayor Lester D. Page announced this morning that the Negro Civic League will put on a "tag day" in Greenville Saturday, June 28.

Mayor Page reported that all proceeds from the drive will go toward the establishment of Negro Little League baseball in the city and also to development of a park at South Greenville School.

"I heartily endorse the project," the mayor said, "and request that the people of Greenville support the drive, because it for a worthy cause."

Sever Relations With Czechs

CARACAS (UP) - Venezuela broke off diplomatic relations last night with Communist Czechoslovakia.

Action action followed by one week the severance of Russian-Venezuelan relations. The government said the Czechs subsequently obeyed all Russian orders.

Will Fight Almost Certain Soviet Veto For Neutral Investigation Of Germ Warfare Charges; Malik In Key Position To Hamper Effort

By BRUCE W. MUNN United Press Staff Correspondent UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UP) - The United States voted today to battle procedural red tape and an almost certain Soviet veto to force a Red Cross investigation of Communist germ war propaganda charges.

U. S. Ambassador Ernest A. Gross submitted a resolution yesterday calling on the United Nations Security Council to request the international committee of the Red Cross "and such other experts as it may select" to investigate the germ war charges on the spot in Korea and report their results to the council as soon as possible.

Gross requested a meeting specifically to "consider the following new agenda item: 'Question of request for investigation of alleged use of bacteriological warfare.'" The Security Council complied with his request and scheduled a meeting for Monday afternoon.

Gross said he would demand that the council take action on his request as soon as it completes debate on the Russian proposal to appeal to all countries—especially the U. S., which has not done so—to ratify the 1925 Geneva Convention outlawing bacterial warfare.

But Soviet Delegate Jacob A. Malik, council president for June and a master of delaying tactics, had a procedural gimmick with which to block the American move if he chose.

The council already is working on the agenda proposed by Malik and approved by the group when the germ debate began last Wednesday. That worksheet lists the Geneva question as the first item and a Russian proposal to admit simultaneously 14 countries—five Soviet satellites and nine Western-backed states—to the U. N. as the second.

Malik could be expected to insist that the agenda, as approved, be followed. Pursuing the tricks he used to tie the council in procedural knots when he delayed action on the agenda was for the entire month of August, 1950, the Russian was likely to prevent debate—or at any rate a vote—until his presidency expires July 1.

"We have witnessed for months now," Gross said in presenting his resolution to the council yesterday, "an international campaign, sponsored by the Soviet Union and designed to sell the world on the false and wicked lie that the U. S. is waging bacteriological warfare in Korea."

"Action by the Security Council is necessary to prevent the charges of bacteriological warfare from continuing to poison the relations between states and to obscure the historic and decisive influence of the U. N. action in repelling aggression in Korea."

Britain May Aid Seaway Project

LONDON (UP) - Britain may come to Canada's aid in building the St. Lawrence Seaway because of the United States' refusal to help.

Informed sources said Canadian High Commissioner Norman Robertson has been consulting British government and industrial representatives on possible British assistance.

However, the situation is complicated by Britain's own shortage of steel and the demands of rearmament.

Strange Passage

By William Lynch

Chapter 11

His brain still somersaulting at the immensity of his crime, Gardiner made fast time back to Number Thirteen, where he stood opposite the house for a few minutes in order to discover if Melisande had returned in his absence. Then, with a few long, unhurried steps he was across the street and within the house itself.

His first sight of the untidy room brought a great wave of fear and loneliness but instinct told him that he must cast out panic and set about removing all traces of Melisande's presence in the lower room.

There was neither haste nor panic in his cold and deliberate survey of the places where Kate had sat and drunk. Beginning with the table, he carefully washed Kate's glass, taking care to remove any trace of rouge from the rim. His own glass he filled to the brim. With a quick swallow he returned to the ash-tray and selected the red-tipped butts and these he painstakingly crushed out, and the residue of paper he burned to ash. His own cigarette butts he left untouched. From a cupboard he took a vaporizer and soon the room was filled with the acrid smell of fly-spray and no longer was there the lingering aroma of sauté-colognes. He was finally satisfied that no trace of Kate's occupancy remained. He took his glass, then, and sat in the armchair, the better to scrutinize his handiwork and adjust his mind to the new set of conditions that the evening had brought.

The main thing to keep in mind was that it probably would be some time before Kate's absence from the neighborhood was remarked on. As far as he knew, she had neither friends nor relatives; certainly she had never mentioned them. Some said her father was still alive and was a laborer on the wharves, but nobody apparently had ever spoken to him. A week, before she was posted missing, by that time any marks of strangulations should have disappeared from her throat.

There remained the possibility of somebody stumbling upon the body lying in Wade's Hole. If this were to happen tomorrow or within the week the police would be bound to examine the possibility of murder and in this process every man on the waterfront could conceivably become suspect, including, of course, himself.

This dubious state of affairs called for another drink.

The thought flashed into his mind that if he were to become chief suspect then it would be due to this single concrete fact—his long association with Kate. It could be that somebody had known Kate was visiting Thirteen that night. If the police were to come into possession of such a fact then why should he take trouble to deny it? Sure, he'd been here—in fact, they'd had a few drinks. Was Kate upset to learn that he'd just been married? Quite upset. Quite drunk, also. She might have been capable of anything.

Suicide, even.

But he decided to continue denying having recently seen the woman, until such time as the police convinced him that they had evidence to the contrary. Following this, it would be a comparatively simple matter to protest that he did not wish to risk offending his new wife by publicly acknowledging an association with Kate.

Whichever way he viewed it he was without doubt that the police could never sheet home a charge of murder.

By way of tapping a good night's work, Gardiner gradually succeeded in convincing himself that Kate's timely passing had not only redeemed the unhappy past, but at the same time cleared the pathways of the future for himself and Melisande. This was indeed the first year of grace. Life began. Now, and the past was as dead as the thing that lay crumpled in the mud and debris of Wade's Hole. In the light of tonight's hectic events, who would make so bold as to say that the past was inescapable and that only the blameless knew the warmth of the sun? He was more than ready for Melisande when she came. At her knocking he swung open the door and caught her tightly in his arms. "I was lonely," he said.

"Why, Paul. Had I known that I'd have stayed at home," Melisande sniffed the heavily-laden atmosphere of the room, and grimaced.

"Fly-spray. And not an open window."

With which she went around the room opening all the windows. Then, impulsively, she ran towards Paul, who was back in his chair, and took up her favorite position at his feet.

"If you were to be lonely, darling, why did you talk me into going to the theatre? I'd have much rather been with you, you know."

"I know," Gardiner gently stroked her hair, thrilling at its soft texture. "I'd no idea I'd be lonely, Sandy. Also, I had to work."

"Did you work, then?"

"No."

"Why not?"

"I told you. Chronic loneliness. It's a curse."

"That's strange, coming from you."

Ballard's X Roads

Rev. C. D. Patterson preached on "Victorious Christian Living" at Ballard's Church Sunday morning. There were 80 present for Sunday school and the following received perfect attendance awards: Christine Bryant and P. J. Eika, 3 year awards; Robert Earl, William, Janie Reed, Nicholas, Peggy and Wilbur Gray Barber, 4 year awards.

On last Sunday Mr. Mack Ross was honored at a surprise Father's Day dinner by his children, who arrived at his home on Sunday morning with picnic lunches, intending to serve that way, but due to the rainy weather it was served in the dining room in buffet style. The menu consisted of fried chicken, ham, sandwiches, potato salad, a variety of pickles, slaw, many kinds of delicious home-made cakes and pies. Tea and lemonade was served as drinks.

Present for this occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Ross and family of Greenville, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Ross and Dianne, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Fluke and children, and Mr. and Mrs. Warren Gurganus and family of Farmville, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Joyner of near Winterville, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. James of near Greenville, and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Briley of near the home.

Mr. Ross received several nice and useful gifts. Two daughters, Mary and Doris, who live in California, were not present.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hart spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hart at Carolina Beach. They were accompanied by Miss Hagar Hart and Misses Margaret Andrews and Jo Ann Thomas of Farmville, who remained for a week's visit.

Louis Holoway of the U.S. Army left Monday for Ft. Hood, Texas, after spending a leave with his mother, Mrs. Mamie R. Holoway.

Mr. and Mrs. Pilkinton and Mr. and Mrs. Barber of Smithfield were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Mack Ross Thursday of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Hyman of Tarboro announced the birth of a son, Clifton Reginald III, in Edgcombe General Hospital on Thursday, June 11. Mrs. Hyman is the former Virginia Crawford of Ballard's.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Hunsucker and son Richard of Winterville were Tuesday afternoon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Crawford.

Mrs. E. H. Roberson and sons, Earl and Bennie, of Raeford are visiting Mrs. Annie Flanagan this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Fluke announce the birth of a son at Pitt Memorial Hospital on Tuesday, June 17. Mrs. Fluke is the former Helen Ham.

Bell Arthur

Mrs. C. U. Nichols was hostess and presided at the June meeting of the C. W. F. of the Arthur Church.

The meeting opened with the group singing "Jesus Calls Us" followed by the devotional taken from the book of Acts on "The Conversion of Paul," given by Mrs. Nichols.

The program was the last two chapters in the book "Beginning at Jerusalem" and was very interestingly given by Mrs. J. B. Nichols, closed with a prayer.

At the business session, Mrs. Jack Smith was elected president, Mrs. Fred Caraway vice-president, and Mesdames G. T. Tyson and Earl Hemby were re-elected to serve as secretary and treasurer. The new officers begin their duties at the July meeting.

Plans were also made for a supper that the group were serving to the men of all the churches in the Hookerton Union district.

Mrs. Deshaides announced that the Sunday School picnic would be at White Lake on Thursday, June 19, with the Roundtree and Eden Sunday Schools. After the benediction the hosts assisted by her daughter, served sandwiches, cookies, roasted nuts and iced Coca Cola.

The Arthur Christian Church was host to the laymen's group from all the churches in the Hookerton Union on Wednesday afternoon, June 17. They were invited to meet first at Mark Smith's fish pond for swimming and fishing and then to the church for a program and a supper to be served by the C.W.F. group of the church.

The Arthur Christian Sunday School had their annual picnic at White Lake on Thursday, June 19, with the Roundtree and Eden Sunday Schools.

Margaret Fields Weds S.S. McKeel

WALSTONBURG—Saturday afternoon, June 14, at 4:30 o'clock Miss Margaret Fields, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Dalton Fields of Walstonburg became the bride of Sam Stuart McKeel, son of Mrs. H. Connor McKeel and the late Mr. McKeel of Walstonburg.

Rev. Key Taylor of Windsor performed the double ring ceremony before a background of white gladioli, fern and lighted candles. The pews were marked with white gladioli and ribbon.

The traditional wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Carlos H. Walston, pianist, of Walstonburg.

Attendants of the bride were Miss Rebecca Hayes of North Wilkesboro, maid of honor, a former college room-mate; bridesmaids, Miss Evelyn Fields and Mrs. Billie Hardison, sisters of the bride, and Miss Hazel McKeel, sister of the groom. They wore identical dresses of pink cotton lace, of ballerina length, trimmed in pink faille cuffs and belts, with matching fitted caps and pink linen shoes. They carried arm bouquets of American beauty roses entwined with ivy.

Attending the groom as best man was H. T. Herring Jr. of Walstonburg, and ushers were Luther Whitely of Burlington, Mack E. Smith of Greensboro, and Billie Marlowe of Walstonburg.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a dress belonging to a college classmate. The dress was made along fitted lines with a lace bodice, pointed at the neckline with a Queen Anne's collar. The sleeves ended in points over the hands. Her fingertip veil was of illusion trimmed in seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of Stephanotis.

The bride's mother wore a turquoise dinner dress with cream elbow length gloves and a fitted hat. Her corsage was of cream roses. Mrs. McKeel, mother of the groom, was dressed in a pink crepe dinner dress with matching sheer gloves and a corsage of pink roses.

Reception. Immediately following the wedding a reception was held on the spacious lawn at the home of the bride's parents near Walstonburg. After the bride and groom had cut the first slice of cake, Mrs. Phillip Corey of Fountain served the wedding cake from one end of the table and Mrs. J. C. Gardner of Walstonburg served lime ice from the other end. The table was covered with a cut work linen cloth centered with an arrangement of white glads, lilies, feverfew and baby breath. Assisting in serving was Misses Carolyn and Janice Jones and Ann Fields. Presiding at the register were Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Herring Jr.

For her going away the bride wore a navy silk faille dress with navy accessories.

Mrs. McKeel is a graduate of Greensboro College and will receive her Master's Degree from Peabody College in August. Mr. McKeel is a graduate of the University of North Carolina and did graduate work at Columbia University and now holds a position with the Greensboro Daily News in Greensboro, where they will make their home.

Luncheon Mrs. Phillip Corey of Fountain and

On Wednesday evening from nine to twelve Miss Maude Lee in a charming and unique manner entertained in honor of her house guests, Misses Fitzgerald, Wilson and Creel of Dunn.

The guests were welcomed by Mrs. S. T. White and Miss Mary Higgs, who introduced them to the receiving line which consisted of Miss Lee, Tom Hutchins, Miss Fitzgerald, Tom Dupree, Miss Creel, Avon Cromartie and Miss Wilson.

From the receiving line they were ushered to the punch bowl which was gracefully presided over by Miss Laura Carter of Wilson with Burney Warren and Miss Mattie Moye King with Bascom Wilson.

Master Larry James and Miss Edith Lee distributed dainty place cards after which the players repaired to their respective places. An exciting game of hearts dice was soon in progression.

The color scheme throughout the home was red and green. Pot plants and spring flowers were used in profusion. Hanging vines festooned with nasturtiums added beauty to the decorations.

After several progressions a delicious repast was served.

Near the midnight hour the guests which were more than a hundred in number, expressing their appreciation for the pleasures of the occasion, soon bade the hostess adieu.

St. James Church To Hold First Sunday Service

St. James Methodist Church will hold its first Sunday worship service tomorrow in the library of the Greenville High School.

The pastor, the Rev. Edwin L. Earnhardt, will preach on the topic, "Living Bread and Dead Bones." The service will begin at 11:15 a.m.

For the past two weeks midweek services have been held in various homes in town. Tomorrow marks the first time that a Sunday service has been held.

The church is the outgrowth of several months planning on the part of many who have felt the need of a church in the eastern section of the city. Already more than two dozen people have attended the weekly meetings, and all interested persons, whether Methodists or not, and whether residents of the eastern part of town or not, are cordially invited to worship with the group on Sunday.

Local Veterinarian At Summer Session During Past Week

Dr. Joe Bateman of Greenville attended the 51st annual meeting of the North Carolina State Veterinary Medical Association at Atlantic Beach, Morehead City on June 16-17.

At the annual summer session, Dr. Bateman heard the noted dog and small animal specialist, Dr. Leon F. Whitney of Orange, Conn. discuss the veterinary profession and its relation to small animal practice. Also appearing on the program was Dr. Ed Chambers, specialist in dairy and beef cattle.

In addition to the two featured speakers, panel discussions were held on various subjects.

At the business session, Dr. J. W. McKee of Hickory was installed as president for the coming year.

Sextuplets For Potato Plant

A flourishing Irish Cobbler white potato plant on Aulander Harrison's farm, Route 8, Greenville, gave birth to sextuplets. They were all joined in the manner of Siamese twins.

Strength for the Day

HUMANITARIAN—GREAT AND SMALL
Recently I received an appeal from an organization for the blind and the letter was signed by Helen Keller. It started me reflecting on the unbelievable heroism of this woman, the extent to which she had overcome a number of difficulties, any one of which would have been a death blow to ninety-nine people out of a hundred. Rising above all her handicaps, Helen Keller has become one of the truly great of her generation. It is pleasing to think of the eternal reward which must be ahead for that marvelous person when the time comes for her to end her earthly ministrations.

Albert Schweitzer is another whose heroism should cause us to remove our hats and stand in quiet reverence. Kagawa, the Japanese minister and social worker who has spent his life working in the slums of Kobe, is another whose name must be writ large on the list of heaven's favorites.

Yet there are people with just as noble hearts as any of these three, who are never known outside the circle of their own home. We are not to consider as heroes only those who do some conspicuous humanitarian service, which astounds and awes all who behold it. God loves, and He always has loved, people who do big things. And sometimes the people who have done the big things have been little and inconsequential people.

Campaign Promises; Fact Or Fiction?

Campaign promises are becoming more numerous by the day as hopefuls for the Democratic and Republican nominations begin the home stretch race for the conventions.

One of the most interesting promises, pocketbook-wise, at least, is the assertion of Senator Robert Taft that he will pledge a 15 per cent tax cut if elected President.

If such a promise were to become a reality, it would be a very pleasant change for the American people. But just how it would be accomplished... other than the generality of cutting public spending... Taft has not said.

For a long time The Reflector has taken the position that Federal spending should be cut, and cut drastically in the non-essential brackets. In this realm of spending, the cuts should be made to the bone, but we do not believe the Federal budget should be arbitrarily slashed just to reduce the Federal spending by a specified figure coinciding with campaign promises. Such action would be shortsighted and perhaps disastrous for the United States, just as the present policy of wholesale waste of the taxpayers money is shortsighted and perhaps in the future may prove disastrous.

These campaign promises from every candidate and every hopeful must be viewed with a skeptical eye. They should not be taken, hook, line and sinker, by the voters without first considering their possibilities, their ramifications and their consequences.

The closer convention comes, the more promises will be made, and chances are the promises will become more tantalizing. But the public must keep its guard up to distinguish between the sincere, well-founded, practical promises, and those which are made just to gain support for a particular candidate.

Too many campaign promises are projected no farther in the future than election day. They are made to be broken. That is the kind of promise for which the people of the United States have no use in this year which indeed is a crisis for the nation. The people want and need officials with sound, practical platforms which can be carried out for the betterment of the government, the nation and the people.

There's The Chance Truman Will Be In

In spite of President Truman's more-than-luke-warm denials that he has any designs on the office of President after his present term expires, the rumors persist that a last minute "draft Truman" maneuver may crop up at the Democratic convention.

Surely there are enough "light horses" in the race for the Democratic nomination to make good chances for a dark horse to pull into the race and into the lead after the convention begins.

We hope President Truman stands by his repeated statements that he is not a candidate and will not be a candidate for the Democratic nomination this year. We believe it will be better in the long run for Mr. Truman, the Democratic party and the nation. Even so, the possibilities of a Truman stampede at the convention cannot be ruled out.

Truman's recent outspoken demand for a renewed fight for his civil rights program could well be attributed to a campaigner with a definite office in mind. Individuals and groups are taking it upon themselves to urge the President to change his decision and seek reelection. Many other loyal Democrats are delighted with the prospects of a wide open fight for the nomination on the convention floor without President Truman as a candidate.

Nevertheless, it should be remembered that peculiar maneuvers are executed in the game of politics when they are least expected. It still cannot be said with absolute certainty that Truman will be out of the presidential picture come election day.

National Whirligig

Every Saturday this veteran Washington newspaper correspondent devotes his column to answering readers' questions of general interest on national and international politics and personalities. Questions may be sent direct to Ray Tucker at 608 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Md.

WASHINGTON—"What are the reasons for the Republicans' charge that the Truman Administration, especially Secretary Brannan, defeated Tom Dewey in 1948 by 'rigging' farm prices?" inquires M. J. of Gastonia, N. C.

Answer: The facts behind this indictment are that a sharp drop in the New York governor's popularity in the farm areas toward the close of the campaign coincided with a violent decline in farm prices which did not seem warranted by ordinary market and business conditions.

Corn fell from $1.78 a bushel in September to $1.38 in October and $1.21 in November. Hogs went from $27.40 in September to $24.70 in October and to $21.80 in November. Those changes meant a billion-dollar loss in farm income.

TIP—Ordinarily, such a downturn would lose votes for the party in power, since it is responsible for farm policy. But, on a tip from Brannan, Truman devoted almost all of his "whistle stop" speeches in agricultural states to blaming the GOP for this development. He maintained that the 80th, Republican Congress was responsible for a lack of adequate grain storage space.

Agriculture prescribed the conditions under which commodities benefiting from government loans must be stored. When farm prices started falling, the farmers rushed to hoek their products with Uncle Sam, thus holding them for a possible price rise later.

Brannan refused to make the loans, according to Senator Alken, on the ground that there were insufficient facilities for proper storage. He had sole authority for deciding what was proper.

CONFIDENT—Republican farm experts, based on post-election inquiries, say that commercial storage space was only 60 per cent filled at the time. And the commercial facilities available then were far more adequate than the holes in the ground in which the government has stored farm surpluses since that time.

Although Governor Dewey's staff was informed of this situation, he was so confident that he took no notice of it. As a result, he lost such normally Republican states as Illinois, Ohio, Wisconsin and Iowa by an aggregate majority of about 60,000. Their electoral vote would have won him.

DISCREDITED—Truman hurt other people with these tactics, in addition to the GOP. He discredited political pollsters generally, for almost all had predicted a Dewey triumph. As an explanation rather than a "me too" alibi, here is what happened:

Statisticians Gallup, Roper et al made their final canvasses before the decline in farm prices began to gallop downward, and before Brannan turned down applications for loans. Washington correspondents had returned East to cover the last few weeks of the campaign, and did not bump into this politico-economic trend.

Several of my newspaper clients in farm states wrote me that "the farmers are acting up," but there was not sufficient evidence that they would desert Dewey so determinedly and in such wholesale numbers.

AFFILIATIONS—"What are the religious affiliations of the various presidential candidates, including President Truman?" asks Mrs. R. L. of Houston, Tex. "While I do not think we should elect public officials on the basis of how they worship, I find that many people are interested in this question."

Answer: Almost every denomination is represented. The range would have been broader had Senator Herbert Lehman agreed to stand as New York Democrats' favorite son and head of the Empire State political holding corporation.

General Eisenhower's family belonged to the Methodist Brethren of Christ. He called himself a Protestant, but gives no specific denomination. Brother Milton, president of Penn State, is listed as an Episcopalian.

Senator Taft is an Episcopalian. Interestingly enough, there was considerable outcry when his father, a Unitarian, was elected president because this sect does not believe in the concept of the Holy Trinity.

INCREDIBLE—Governor Warren of California and General MacArthur do not identify themselves with any denomination. Warren is a 33d degree Mason and a Shriner. MacArthur says: "I have utter and complete confidence in a merciful God."

President Truman, Kefauver, Kerr and Stassen are Baptists. Vice President Barkley and Senator Russell are Methodists. Harriman is an Episcopalian, McMahon a Catholic, Humphrey a Congregationalist, and Stevenson a Unitarian.

Incredible as it may seem, the denomination having a member in the White House usually gains a few temporary adherents at Washington. There are quite a few people who like to say that they "worship at the same church as the president." They shift their religious stance with each change of administration.

Selected Short

MARYSVILLE, WASH., GLOBE: "If we are to remain a sovereign state, with sufficient taxable area to support and develop our state as an entity, we must oppose the encroachment of Federal reservations, directly and indirectly. Our great resources can all be developed wisely and well without setting aside areas in the state as Federal reservation, which is the ultimate aim of the proposed CVA, and now CBA."

GRESHAM, ORE., OUTLOOK: "It is common knowledge that the amount taken by the Federal government from corporations in taxes today is far greater than the amount the corporations are permitted to retain for distribution as dividends and for the maintenance and expansion of plants. How long can industry go on furnishing jobs, absorbing wage increases, and still meet such rapidly rising tax obligations?"

SCOTTSDALE, KY., NEWS: "Somewhere there must be a limit fixed to both taxes and to foreign aid expenditures. We cannot indefinitely continue raising Federal taxes and giving away money at a constantly increasing rate. For the sake of everyone in this nation, Congress must select limitations and pass laws that will prevent reckless administrations from exceeding those limitations."

ANAHEIM, CALIF., BULLETIN: "Long ago America rejected the cartel system of Europe, and set about vigilantly to stop the growth of business monopoly wherever it threatened. It is apparent that the monopoly power of labor unions is no less a danger to our national security."

A New Kind Of Fire Alarm

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Today's column is a continuation of yesterday's, which is to emphasize the informality and humor that goes with every meeting of Alcoholics Anonymous. The story came about when a member of the local group, a local "guy" of 35, told me that in all of my writings about AA, I had not told the exact procedure of a meeting. This girl gave me a story from one of AA's publications that gives an example of how a typical chairman might start a meeting.

"Ladies and Gentlemen, I wonder if the new people who are here for the first, second or third time would please raise their hands... That's fine. I'll ask the old-timers to please make themselves known to the new people and try to see that they have a good time. As you know, AA groups have two kinds of meetings, open and closed. The closed meetings are for alcoholics only, but tonight is an open meeting, so everybody is welcome. If there are any newspaper reporters here I just want to remind them that they can write anything they like so long as they don't use anybody's name. You've got to respect us on that because some people are funny; they used to mind being seen in the Hotel Metropolis so drunk they couldn't stand up, but they're still a little bit sensitive about being seen sitting down here cold sober... "Maybe you think we have some fancy test that can tell you whether you are an alcoholic or not. But we haven't. The only person who can decide whether you're an alcoholic is yourself. If you want a little helpful hint I'll tell you something I heard Fanny J. say at a meeting a couple of months ago: when anybody stops boasting about how much he had to drink the night before and starts lying about it, there's maybe just a little bit of a chance that he's getting to be one of us. But that's up to you... "Some people are able to get the AA program while they still have their jobs and their wives and their homes, but there are others who don't seem to be able to quit drinking until they've lost everything. That gives rise to the saying that there are high-bottom drunks and low-bottom drunks. But remember what was said by one of our founders: The difference between the high-bottom drunk and the low-bottom drunk is that both are lying in the gutter but the high-bottom drunk has his head on the curb... The speech of the opening chairman goes on to illustrate a point that he has not yet shown: AA's inject a great deal of humor in a lot of their meetings. The things they have done in the past are so gruesome that we have to laugh at them. In telling their experiences they can be frank, resting assured that some other member of AA has had an experience that will equal or top theirs. And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

FAMOUS—The fellow walking along Raleigh's Fayetteville street early Thursday morning did not look like a nationally famous character. He was and is. He did look like a fairly prosperous farmer from eastern North Carolina. He is. He acquired nationwide fame a few days ago when a picture taken of him shaking hands with General Eisenhower in New York and committing his support to the general was published all over the country. The man was Joel A. Johnson of Four Oaks, Republican candidate for commissioner of agriculture on the state ticket, and fourth district delegate to the Republican national convention in Charlotte next month.

MAIL—Delegate Johnson joined a group of other Southern delegates for a conference with Eisenhower in the Big City. He told the general that he had not previously made up his mind, but that after talking with him he was ready to pledge his convention vote. It was a natural for publicity men and photographers—a North Carolina tobacco farmer joining up with Ike. When the news picture got distributed, it was a natural for the letter writers, too, and Johnson said when he got home he found a stack of mail a foot high and every mail delivery since has added to the stack. Letters have come from all over the country; a lot of them from North Carolina.

TWO-SIDED—In most instances there is no way to tell whether the writers are Democrats or Republicans, but many of the missives state that they are traditional Democrats who want to vote for Ike this time. Johnson believes most of his correspondents are Republicans.

and some of them are very emphatic in their comments. He estimates that the ratio of approval and disapproval of his commitment is approximately two-to-one. Some of the one-third who criticize and condemn his course are pretty mean about it. "I've been called everything from an angel of salvation to the prince of devils working for the damnation of America," he said.

SURPRISED—Certain it is that some of the newsmen who covered the Republican fourth district convention at Asheville on March 17, when Joel Johnson was chosen as a delegate, and the State Republican convention in Charlotte next day, where the full state of delegates was completed, were surprised at his positive commitment for Eisenhower. Just as certainly some strong Taft supporters who voted for Johnson as a delegate were disappointed. Impression was general at the district and state conventions that he was in the Taft column, although every attempt to obtain a public statement of his position failed.

DEFLECTION—Two or three other delegates who had been counted for Taft have recently come out publicly for Eisenhower. Taft is likewise reasonably sure of a majority of the Tarheel vote, but his margin is less than had been expected. Opinion among both Democrats and Republicans with whom your reporter has talked is that the growing Eisenhower sentiment is due to belief that many Democrats would vote for the general but for no other Republican candidate. It is not hard to find experienced political observers who think Eisenhower can carry North Carolina next November.

DOUBTFUL—Majority opinion

ion, however, is that the prospect of Republican victory in this state is no more than a hope, based upon a very insecure foundation. It is remotely possible that enough emotional prejudice might be aroused over positions of the respective party platforms and candidates on compulsory FEPC and sending an ambassador to the Vatican to bring about repetition of the 1928 prejudicial attitude, which took North Carolina away from Democratic Al Smith and gave its electoral vote to Republican Herbert Hoover. If the Republicans carry North Carolina this year it will be for emotional rather than political reasons.

CREDIT—D. Robert Graham, chief of the credit union division in the State Department of Agriculture, can tell a story that will refute charges that North Carolina discriminates against Negroes on account of race more effectively than the proud stories of equality in educational opportunities. It is a story that adds proof to the claim that segregation is for the best social and economic interests of all races. This is not the time nor place for detailed account, involving a lot of figures, including number of members in the various credit unions and the multimillion dollars of capital belonging to and working for these members.

POLICY—Neither is there space here for detailed explanation of how credit unions operate. Very briefly summarized, with chance of error admitted, credit union is a mutual cooperative venture in which a number of people with common interests pool their surplus money to operate a fund from which members can borrow to

What Other Papers Are Thinking

STEAM-ROLLER, CUT-THROAT TACTICS (Herald-Examiner, Chicago)
As far back as the recollection of the writer goes, there has never been a pre-convention political campaign that can match the present Republican battle between Taft and Eisenhower for utterance and unscrupulous tactics. Because of his long-time status as Mr. GOP, Senator Taft is in position to command loyalty from the Old Guard in his party. The entry of General Eisenhower into the light for the presidential nomination has aroused Taft and his followers to the point where they will spare no effort to see that Eisenhower and his followers are not given a break—to the point of refusing to seat delegates favorable to Eisenhower, even though duly and legally elected by the voters, because they are new converts to the party—they are not "real Republicans," according to the Old Guard Republicans. Within the Democratic party, such tricks have not as yet been resorted to, although the Old Guard in that party is showing an eagerness that they may resort to underhand strategy in their efforts to keep Kefauver from becoming the nominee. The conventions at Chicago, both to be held in July, may well see new depths of political cunning reached by both parties. What effects such tricks will have on the vote to be cast in November, it is entirely too early to forecast. It might even result in a smaller vote for either or both of the candidates, if the electorate—the man or woman who puts the ballot into the ballot box—become disgusted with the underhanded tactics of the men who run the two parties.

Business Today

Over-high prices was the reason most frequently given by department stores for the poor 1951-52 fur season in a survey by the National Retail Dry Goods Association. Next most frequent reasons were poor styling and exaggerated advertising resulting in loss of customer confidence in all fur offerings. The excise tax was also blamed.

To the question, "How can fur departments correct these conditions?" stores gave these answers in the order of frequency: 1. Better advertising, eliminating price comparisons and stressing values above price. 2. Good-public relations programs to restore confidence in furs.

3. Better merchandising, including rounded inventories, selective buying and better service. 4. Lower prices.

5. Better styling. 6. Better trained personnel. Stores surveyed said that better markets and more emphasis on style and fashion would improve profits.

Considerable optimism about fall sales was expressed. All but one reporting store said that small furs, which sold well this spring, would continue good in the fall. The substantial lower cost of furs and greater diversification of coat styles also brought predictions that fall volume would be improved. The Federal Trade Commission ban of fictitious and exaggerated price comparisons will also improve the market.

Mink was again voted the most popular for fall selling, followed by muskrat, black and grey raccoon. Others mentioned, but less frequently, were Alaska seal, squirrel, beaver, mouton, let-out muskrat, let-out marmot, blonde shade furs, guano, opossum, plucked otter and nutria.

TANNERS TO SURVEY 1953 COLOR SWATCHES
Manufacturers planning to correlate apparel colors with the official colors selected by the Tanners Council for spring and summer 1953 can obtain swatch books at cost from the Council, 411 Fifth Ave., New York 18. SAME LIQUOR COSTS $2.18 OR $12 A BOTTLE

There was a spring in the Old Promoter's game leg (the one that stopped a bullet in the Spanish-American War) when he conducted his weekly invasion of this office. "Just had a drink of $12-a-bottle liquid velvet," he said. "I visited a corporation executive to discuss a little promotion, and he put two bottles of liquor on the desk and asked me if I wanted a drink of the expensive or the cheap kind.

"I didn't dig that, because both were the same brand, selling for $6. Then he explained. One is bought with company money for entertainment purposes, and because it only costs his company $2.82 out of pocket. The other he bought himself. He said, 'I've got to earn more than $12 before taxes to have enough left to buy a bottle.'"

HOLDS ADVERTISING A CONTRACT COST
The government should pay a fair share of advertising costs on production contracts, H. F. Cork, of Westinghouse Electric, told the National Association of Cost Accountants.

Without advertising, mass production facilities would not be possible, he pointed out, and because the government shares in the benefits of these facilities in defense contracts, it should pay part of the costs. Similarly, he said, the government should pay a share of product research and development.

NEW BOOK DEFINES ADVERTISING TERMS
Some 600 terms used in advertising are defined in "Advertising Terminology," by H. Victor Grohmann, veteran advertising man.

Definitions range from "bullpen" (the section of an ad agency where comprehensives are rendered) to "comprehensive" (a layout showing how a completed "strip show" (a radio serial) to "hitchhike" (a spot announcement squeezed in before). It also includes such esoteric terms as "aspect ratio," "balloping," "bleed page," "flag," "ligature," "moviola," "nemo," "ribbon mike" and "fifteen and two."

The book is published at $1 by Mr. Grohmann's agency, Needham & Grohmann, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York 20.

SHORTENER: A belt shortener for retailers is being produced by Baker-Rite, Malden, Mass. Operated by hand, it cuts down long belts and punches new buckle holes.

DECORATIONS: Pictures for reception rooms and lobbies are being painted on translucent plastic and illuminated with fluorescent tubes at each side by Helms Products, Inc., Grand Rapids, Mich. Pictures and lights are hermetically sealed.

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK — (AP) — Ladies, there are storm signals in the news hinting that except what is rising in value today everything will be.

Are wives over-inflated? Should they be put under controls? These issues have been raised by two recent items of interest to every thoughtful woman, and by that, of course, I mean every woman:

1. A British judge, granting a divorce to a husband whose wife ran off with another man, cut the husband's claim for damages from $700 to $210, and said:

"Her value to her husband was diminishing from year to year because of disagreements."

2. Dr. Samuel W. Stevenson, a Virginia professor, describing women as "the arch foe," called for a new St. George to emancipate American men and give them four new freedoms, to wit:

"Freedom from nagging, freedom from backslapping, freedom to relax in old clothes after a hard day's work, and freedom from indignation."

Observing with sad hilarity that men no longer deserved the title "mice" as women are afraid of mice, he said "we have become worms."

It is high time, the good professor added, that men force the restoration of the word "obey" in the marriage ceremony. He thinks men also ought to decide when they need a haircut, pick their own clothes and their wives' hats, and decide whether "the Joneses are to be kept up with or not."

But this was his most revolutionary idea: "No woman, married or single, shall be permitted to speak of her intuition until she has kept in writing (for one year an accurate account) of all her snap judgments and has compiled a record of at least 60 per cent accuracy."

The average wife would leap at this chance to show Dr. Stevenson up. Any woman instinctively knows enough about double entry bookkeeping to prove her intuition is at least 99 per cent correct; not a lame 60 per cent.

Nor can we see many wives getting thin from worrying over the professor's bugle call for a male rebellion in America. If husbands have become worms in this country it is through sheer laziness, the abandonment of masculine responsibility to the philosophy of "Let the little woman do it." Such worms are unlikely to turn in revolt. They don't want any man's authority. They'd rather go on being spoiled and petted.

But that British judge's decision is an entirely different matter. It strikes at the very heart of women's theory of power. Does any wife want it written in the lawbooks that her value decreases "from year to year because of disagreements?" It is an uneasy precedent.

Husbands might start going in to court, saying: "Judge, I want a divorce, and don't give me any nonsense about alimony. My old lady and I have had so many disagreements she isn't worth a plugged nickel, and I hereby give her away free." Wives have just the opposite view. They figure the tears they give a man during their best years have a real dollar value to him. "Why, if it weren't for the arguments I gave my husband we'd both have ended up in the poorhouse three weeks after the honeymoon." Is the way they'd sum it up. And it is certainly true that many a husband does need a wife with a permanent rave to keep him from making bankruptcy a habit.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS
WASHINGTON — Miss Mildred English, a Georgia schoolteacher who speaks German with a Southern accent, brings back an encouraging picture of progress in the democratic education of youth in Western Germany. For the past 18 months Dr. English, on leave as professor of education at the Georgia State College for Women, has helped plan and supervise educational activities in the American zone in Germany preparatory to turning them over to the German people under the recently signed peace contract. She also worked with educators in the British and French zones.

Part of her work was to expand the program of educational service centers to more than a dozen German cities. She had helped set these up under the sponsorship of the American military government in Germany from May, 1946 to May, 1948. These centers serve as lending libraries and study places and provide educational films and equipment as well as meeting places for workshops for parents and teachers. Miss English also helped Berlin women form an association for cultural exchange and aided in a program to make kindergartens in Germany a part of the "public school" system.

"Our chief concern has been the university student and youth of that age that grew up under Hitler, and with the young teacher groups whose education and training was interrupted by the war," Dr. English said. As a result of the educational projects carried on in occupied Western Germany, she said, many youth organizations are planning meetings on their own this summer to combat Communist propaganda toward their rank and file.

"We feel confident our educational projects influenced them in this direction and they will carry forth the ideals we tried to teach them," Dr. English explained. Most of the youths who grew up under Hitler, she said, feel the dictator let them down. They see hope in the democratic way of life and are encouraged by American willingness to give them a chance at it.

Dr. English has returned to the Georgia State College for Women in Milledgeville. She described herself as a "Southern-er-al-bare," since she was born at New Bern, Tenn., was assistant superintendent of schools at Raleigh, N. C., for 11 years and has brothers living in Texas. She collects children's books from all corners of the world and owns a copy of Red Riding Hood in modern Greek.

The Year Is 1884, And Old Sparta Is A Social Center

Long Since Discontinued Social Hop Was Festive Highlight For Eastern Carolinians

By JESS POINDEXTER
Reflector Staff Writer

The year is post-Civil War 1884 — the date October 17 — and in towns along the banks of Tar River the social season is at its height.

Armed conflict between North and South ceased 19-and-one-half years ago this month and the war that pitted kin against kin was ended. Since that time Yankee occupation troops have returned home and military districts have become counties once again.

The bitter bloodshed left by not-too-far distant bloodshed have been diluted by the passing of two decades — and slowly returning prosperity. Today, for miles around "horse and harness" is being polished to a fine lustre because tonight is the Old Sparta Hop.

Festive Occasion

The annual Social Hop at Old Sparta was discontinued many years ago, as more and more connecting highways were cut between other rapidly growing towns — bypassing and reducing the prestige of the once-bustling community known as Old Sparta.

Invitations to the Old Sparta Hop were doubtless highly regarded, because it was attended by people from a large area — Greenville, Penny Hill, Tarboro, and even Washington. Held at Pitt's Hall in the community for which it was named the Old Sparta Hop must have been a colorful event.

Recollections of the occasion were vividly revived last week when an old letter containing an invitation to the hop — both dated 1884 — was found in a vase by Mrs. Frank Taylor of near Greenville. Both were well preserved and legible. The letter was written by J.R. Moore and addressed to Miss Lou Cummings.

Leap Year

As quoted, the letter reads, "... since you have previously accepted my invitation to attend the hop I expect no further answer and will arrive for you at 7 o'clock. It being Leap Year I will turn the horse and buggy over to you and accompany you to the dance. The couple concerned in the correspondence were later married and became the father and mother of Mrs. Frank Taylor (the former Miss Louise Moore of Pinetops), and Mrs. Mary Moore Dunn of Greenville.

"It is not difficult to imagine a crisp fall night the silence broken only by the muffled hoofbeats of a slim sorrel as he trots free-reined before a shiny buggy containing a sparking couple. It was the day of bustles and full skirts of high-quarter shoes and mustaches — truthfully a revival of the ante-bellum gallantry of the Old South.

Pitt's Hall

The setting of the Social Hop in Old Sparta — Pitt's Hall — is still standing there and is reputed to be nearly 100 years old. The hop was held on the second floor of the building that floor being flanked on both sides with shuttered windows.

Managers and honorary managers at the Social Hop held October 17, 1884, bore names of families prominent throughout this area then and now. They made arrangements for the annual affair and presided over the festivities—and they led the figures.

For the Social Hop in 1884, managers were J. B. Cummings, W.S. Cummings, William Manning and William Savage. Honorary managers were Dr. C. W. Eagles, E. L. Moore, Dr. M. B. Pitt and L. W. Reasons. All were well known citizens of Pitt and Edgecombe counties.

First Settlement

Dr. Jeremiah Battle, in historical writings published at the University of North Carolina in 1811, described Sparta as being the first permanent settlement in Edgecombe County "probably settled at the mouth of Town Creek prior to 1720."

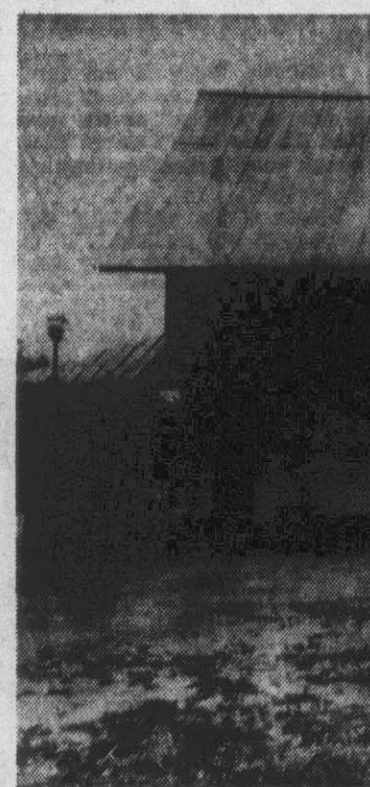

Located on the Old Stagecoach Road leading from Hillsboro to New Bern, what is now known as Old Sparta also became the first postoffice in Edgecombe County. But strangely enough the community was not known as Old Sparta until many, many years after its founding sometime prior to 1720. It was called simply Sparta. Seemingly authentic reports indicate that Sparta came to be known as Old Sparta only after members of the N. C. General Assembly from that area discovered there was another town named Sparta in the state — Sparta, the county seat of Alleghany County in the western part of North Carolina. They petitioned to have the official postoffice changed to Old Sparta because it had been established first.

Old Sparta

The town of Old Sparta is located about 20 miles directly West of Greenville on the banks of Tar River. Inhabitants there say it was once a thriving transportation and shipping point, accommodating both riverboats and heavy freight wagons. Barrels of turpentine, bales of cotton, goods and fertilizer were shipped in and out of the bustling river-side community.

Old Sparta had 13 stores, three saloons and three such buildings as Pitt's Hall, where touring vaudeville troupes presented stage performances to robust teamsters and riverboat crews. It has been estimated that as much as $250,000 worth of business was transacted there in six months and after making fortunes, many people moved to other parts.

But that varied exemplification of prosperity has long since vanished, leaving Old Sparta just a small rural crossroads basking lazily in the warmth of the Summer sun — holding a nostalgic memory of the golden days of another era.

Reputed by local citizens to be nearly 100 years old, Pitt's Hall at Old Sparta was once the colorful setting for the annual Social Hop, which was attended by people from all over Pitt, Beaufort and Edgecombe counties. But the grandeur of those golden days for Old Sparta has been lost through the years, and what was once a bustling shipping point on Tar River is now just an isolated rural village—existing with only faint recollections of the era that marked its prosperous past.—(Reflector Photo by Jesse Poindexter.)

Portrait Of Late Pitt Educator Is Given To Mt. Pleasant High School

High tribute was recently paid to a former Pitt County man, the late Moses T. Moye, when a portrait of him was presented to the Mount Pleasant High School.

The late Mr. Moye served as principal of the Mount Pleasant Schools from 1947 until his death November 19, 1951. The portrait was given to the school by Mrs. Moye.

The educator was born in Pitt County near Farmville September 3, 1896. His parents were the late Abram J. Moye and Cora Edwards Moye. He was educated in the Farmville Schools, State College, Atlantic Christian College, and George Peabody College where he received a Master's Degree in June 1947.

Presentation Made

In making the presentation of the portrait to the high school following his baccalaureate sermon, Mrs. Moye stated, "I hope that its presence will have an uplifting influence and will be a constant reminder of the ideals and principles for which he stood."

The gift was accepted by Mayor Roy Webster, school faculty member. "Mr. Moye, in his dealings with both faculty and students, displayed unusual patience and sympathetic understanding," said Webster. "He endeared himself to his associates and, by his accomplishments and example of life, has left a rich heritage. The school mourns the loss of such a capable leader."

McAllister Receives Portrait

An enlarged portrait of Moye was presented to the McAllister Elementary School in Mount Pleasant by the students in a ceremony in which various speakers again paid tribute to the personality and character of the deceased educator.

Rev. Thomas Hoffman, pastor of St. James Evangelical and Reformed Church, read the scripture lesson and then paid high tribute to the life, character, and work of the late Moses Moye.

C. A. Pitt, Cabarrus County School Superintendent, spoke briefly concerning the significance of the portrait. He dwelt upon some of the characteristics of Mr. Moye who "had the love, honor, and respect of the community which he served."

Sue Foll, student at McAllister, read a short biographical sketch of the deceased. Paula Foll, another student, presented the portrait after several remarks about his life and contribution to the community.

Betsy Moore of Durham, niece of Mr. Moye, unveiled the portrait and Paula presented it with this last-remark: "We know that its presence here, and each loving glance we give it, will inspire us to a greater determination to follow him and to pattern our lives after him"

The portrait was hung in the newly constructed Moye Memorial Cafeteria at the elementary school.

Active in Groups

Moye was a member of the Christian Church, the Charity Lodge, Lions Club, and a member of various local, state, and national organizations.

Before coming to Mount Pleasant, he taught in the Wilson County, Hartsboro, and Windsor Schools.

Students of the McAllister Elementary School in Mount Pleasant admire the portrait of the late Moses T. Moye, former native of Pitt County. Students presented the portrait to be hung in the Moye Memorial Cafeteria at the school.

Synod Secretary To Address New Church Meeting

Rev. H. J. Dudley, D.D., general secretary of the Synod of North Carolina, will speak tomorrow night at the organizational meeting of the West Greenville Church when the church charter members meet at the Curb Market.

A group from West Greenville, who hold Sunday services in the Curb Market, are planning to organize a church for which plans have already been drawn. Rev. Dudley will also speak at the 11 o'clock service at the First Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Dudley is a native of Richmond, Virginia, and is a graduate of Hampden-Sydney. After coaching at Woodbury Forest School, he later graduated from the Union Theological Seminary. He received his Doctor of Divinity Degree from Southwestern Presbyterian College.

REV. H. J. DUDLEY

He has served at churches at Lynchburg, Virginia, Kinston, Wilson, and Birmingham, Alabama. While at Kinston he was one of the organizers of the Coastal Plain League and managed the Kinston Baseball team.

A sports enthusiast, Dudley played baseball, football, and basketball in high school and college. So marked was his baseball ability that he was signed as catcher by the St. Louis Cardinals and was sent to Syracuse, New York in the International League for the season 1926.

He gave up baseball because of his objection to Sunday games and his decision to enter the ministry. He played with "Pepper" Martin and Eddie Dyer, former manager of the World Champions, St. Louis Cardinals, and was managed by "Bert" Shotten, former manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Dr. Dudley has served as chairman of the Recreation Committee of the North Carolina Council of Churches, and chairman of the Subcommittee on Church Recreation of the North Carolina Recreation Commission. He was the first president of the North Carolina Recreation Association, the first state organization of its kind in America. He organized the North Carolina Church Recreation Workshop in 1946. During 1948 he was the editor-in-chief of Recreation Review, the official magazine of the North Carolina Recreation Society.

Dr. Dudley has also served as chairman of Home Mission Committees in Birmingham and Albemarle Presbyteries. He is also the first person to hold the newly created office of general secretary of the North Carolina Presbyterian Synod.

Winterville's Town Hall Is In Business

WINTERVILLE — After several months of work, the old town hall of a Roman brick front, stucco sides, and plate glass windows, was finished.

Around April 15, Mrs. Riley Cox took over as full-time city clerk, replacing J. L. Rollins who had served the city as a part-time clerk for almost 25 years.

In July of last year, the town fathers decided that town affairs had become too heavy for just a part-time clerk so a full-time clerk was considered. At the same time the town board decided to remodel the old building and install modern equipment. The cost of remodeling was included in the city budget at once.

L. I. Rouse of Winterville was hired to begin on the remodeling, which began in December. In March a new building, constructed of a Roman brick front, stucco sides, and plate glass windows, was finished.

The clerk's office in the newly renovated building is furnished with new and modern equipment. A new desk, business machines, and other necessary items were added, which included a machine for the town's new system of billing for light and water. Included in the building is a new office for the mayor.

Renovated Courtroom

In addition to more space for the clerk and mayor, a small courtroom was built which was furnished with a number of movable chairs, making it serve also as an auditorium.

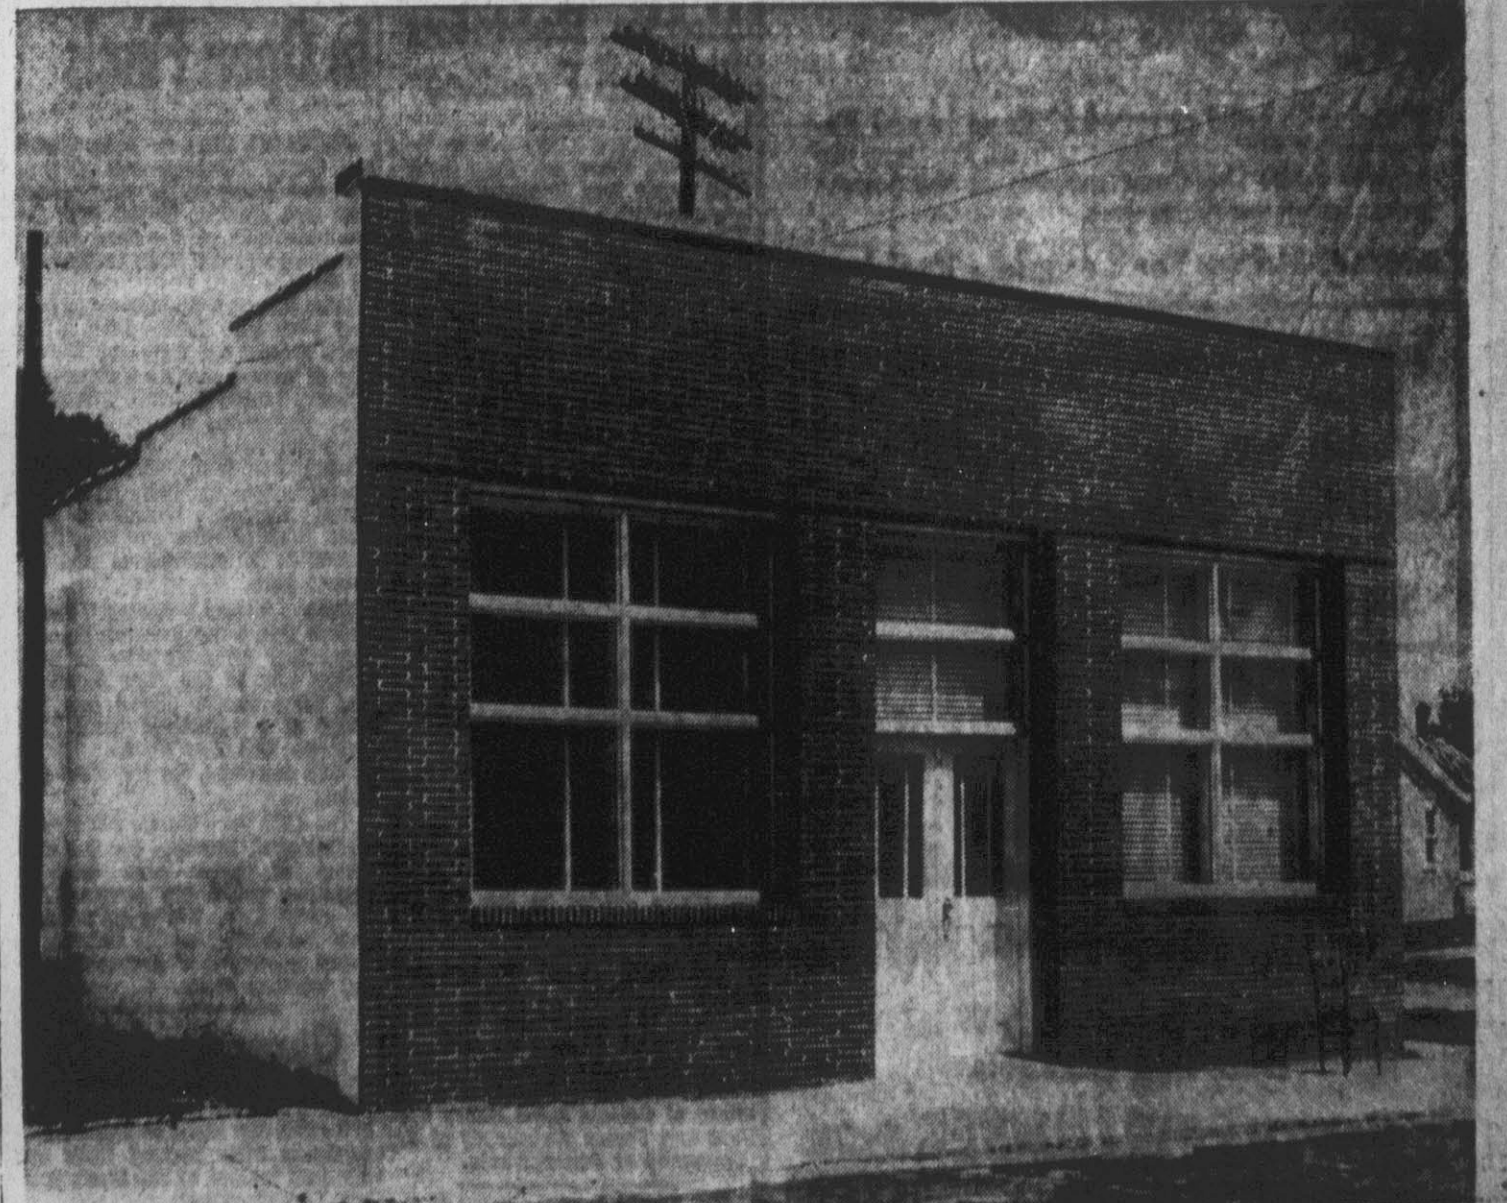

The jail was fixed up too with reinforced walls and walkway around the cells. Plumbing in the jail also underwent improvement. The cost of the new building in which city business is carried on around the cells. Plumbing in the Winterville citizens claim they are proud of the new city hall which is one of the newest constructions in the town.

Police Officer J. E. Buck, who is also superintendent of water and lights in Winterville, has a newly furnished courtroom in the new town hall in Winterville. Remodeling of the jail was also included.

Mrs. Riley Cox, new full-time clerk in Winterville, sits in a modern office, furnished with completely new and modern equipment. Mrs. Cox began her duties as full-time clerk as soon as the building was finished.

Construction on the remodeled city hall in Winterville was finished around March 1 after several months of work. The building was remodeled with Roman brick front and stucco sides.—Reflector Photos by Roy Hardee.

East Wins First Contest In 10th

Greenville's Johnny Thomas Singles With Bases Loaded In Tenth Frame To Score Winning Run

By MELVIN LANG

FARMVILLE—A bases-loaded single in the 10th inning by Greenville's Johnny Thomas sent Tommy Cole home with the winning run here last night as the East All-Stars took a 4-3 victory over the West in the first annual All-Star Game in the semi-pro Bright Belt League.

Thomas' single broke up what had been a tight game from the very first inning. The West had taken the lead in the third, only to see the East tie it up in the bottom of the third. The losers went out in front in the fourth, but the East came back with a singleton in the sixth. It looked as if the West had won when it went ahead in the eighth, but the East scored again to tie the score.

The game winning rally came about in the bottom of the tenth inning as Cole, regular shortstop for Greenville, opened the frame with a booming blow to right centerfield which bounced past the fielders for a three-bagger. Manager Pete Piestrak, also field leader for Farmville, elected to have pitcher Pete Hardison walk the next two men, Barry Jones and Peck Stokes, in order to pitch to Thomas.

The first pitch thrown to the Greenville player was promptly lost over the shortstop's head, sending Cole home with the run to break up the game. His hit was the first of the night for Thomas, who had popped up, grounded out twice, and struck out in four previous times at the plate.

First blood in the game, first of his kind for the Bright Belt, came in the top of the third for the West. Fremont's Bob Frederick walked and went to second as Joe Hines, Farmville pitcher who started the game, singled. Frederick stole third base and rode home on a one-bagger by Ronald Percise.

The East scored in its half of the third on a triple with two men out by Dudley Whitley of Pinebluffs and a single by Cole. A single by Jake Carter, a walk to Millard Webb, and another singleton by Frederick produced the second West run in the fourth.

Cole walked in the sixth, stole second and went to third, when the catcher threw into centerfield, and came home with the tying run as Stokes singled. The West went back in the lead in the eighth as Lyman Laughinghouse was safe on an error on the first baseman, was sacrificed to second by Charlie Westbrook, and came home on a single by Pete Stuart.

The East tied it up again in the eighth as Barry Jones tripled, and

Favorites Sidetracked In PGA; 16 Competitors Left

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — There were a few familiar names still in the PGA battle today as 16 survivors of Friday's slaughter of favorites settled down to the decisive 36-hole matches in the pros' private golfing party.

There were Gary Middlecoff, a new member of the lodge; Vic Ghezal and Bob Hamilton, both former PGA champions; and such well known journeymen golfers as Jim Turnesa, Roberto de Vicenzo, Fred Haas Jr. and Chick Harbert.

But, as you looked over the rest of the list, one by one, the big question arose: Who the heck is he?

One after another, the golfers who have been drawing the headlines during the preliminary stages vanished from the scene yesterday when the match play started with Friday's two 18-hole rounds.

Calling the roll, Sam Snead, the defending champion shooting for his fourth PGA title, Lawson Little, medalist Dutch Harrison, two-time PGA winner Denny Shute, Johnny Palmer, Claude Harmon and PGA President Horton Smith all went down.

Lew Worsham, who beat Snead in the famous playoff for the 1947 open championship, did the trick again on the 19th hole.

Worsham was one of the first to go down in the second round which also saw the elimination of former PGA Champions Jim Ferrier and Chandler Harper, Lloyd Mangrum, ex-open champion, Jack Burke, Marty Furgol and Dave Douglas.

Haas who hadn't been doing too well along the tournament trail lately, knocked out Worsham on the 18th hole.

Harbert stamped himself as a red hot contender yesterday when he was 10 under par in his two matches.

Par at the Big Spring course is 36-36-72.

Maxim, Robinson Slacken Practice

NEW YORK (UP) — With light limbering exercises, Joey Maxim and Sugar Ray Robinson finished training today for their "battle of Champions" at Yankee Stadium Monday night.

Meanwhile, the ticket sale boomed so lustily that box-office men predicted a $500,000 gate.

Maxim, light heavyweight ruler, and Robinson, middleweight champ will break camp tomorrow.

Browns, Senators Play In 18-Inning Statement, 5-5

Giants Try For Seventh Victory

Greenville Giants will be attempting to break even in the win-loss column when they take on the Sharpsburg Tigers tonight in Guy Smith Stadium at 7:45.

Several new players have been added to increase the strength of the Giants. Manager Whitely Price is looking to have more defensive strength than at any time this season.

Expected to start the contest for the Giants are: Morris, cf; Thomas, ss; Winston, 3b; Clemmons, c; Belamy, 2b; Harris, lb; Carr, lf; Gray, rf; and Walter Wells or Leroy Smith on the mound. Wells is a southpaw while Smith is a righthander.

Sharpsburg is reported to have a strong club. Rocky Mount, a team that tied Greenville, went down to an 8-5 defeat to Sharpsburg. Their club is strong, both defensively and offensively.

Andrew Clemmons and Frank Winston are leading the team at the present time with .350 and .345 averages, respectively. The Giants' hitting has improved considerably in the last few weeks.

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP) — Baseball's newest curfew law came in for a howl of protest today from weary but still enthusiastic St. Louis Brown fans, who were deprived of sitting in on a history-making event when an 18-inning battle with the Senators was called a 5-5 tie at 1:04 this morning.

The finish provided but frustration and the game will have to be played in its entirety since the league rule on games suspended by a curfew throws out all extra-inning battles.

The game did wind up as the longest tie-battle in night game history in the majors. But it proved nothing else, except that whenever the Browns and Senators get together this year, things are likely to be tedious.

The rules provide that no inning can start after 12:50 a. m. local time and the Browns wound up their 18th at bat at 1:04. Ageless and indestructible Satchel Paige went 10 scoreless innings and gave up five hits before Dave Madison took over to hurl the 18th.

What was remarkable about it was that on June 3, the same teams had battled 17 innings in Washington as Paige finally came through with a 3-2 decision, just inside the curfew. In 1951 there was a 19-inning battle in which the White Sox topped the Red Sox.

The White Sox battled to an 11-inning, 8-5 victory over the Yankees decided on a three-run homer by Sam Mele. The win put Chicago three games out of first place. It was Chicago's first triumph over the Yankees this year, after seven defeats.

The Indians snapped a six-game losing streak against Boston, 9-2, as Bob Lemon pitched five-hit ball and got three hits, including a home run. Jim Fardley and Larry Doby also homered.

The Athletics topped the Tigers, 3-1 at Detroit on the eight-inning and Ferris Fain drove in the marginal runs with singles.

Things were a little calmer, but not much, in the National League as the Dodgers and Giants both won struggles. Brooklyn stayed five games in front by topping the Pirates 5-4 in the last of the ninth on a two-run inch-hit homer by Shotgun Shuba, while Whitey Lockman plunked a life drive double into center in the 10th to give the Giants a 4-3 victory over the Cubs.

The Braves made 10 runs in the sixth to top the Cardinals, 12-7, even though the losers bounced back to score all their runs in the seventh. Robin Roberts pitched the Phils to a three-hit, 3-1 victory over the Reds as Del Ennis supplied a two-run homer and Hank Edwards ruined Roberts' shutout with a Cincy homer.

Little Leaguers Guests At Special Church Services

The Little League Baseball teams together with their managers and families and the City Recreation Commission will be the special guests of the First Presbyterian Church this Sunday morning at 11 o'clock to hear the Rev. H. J. Dudley, the guest preacher for the service.

Dr. Dudley was signed as catcher by the St. Louis Cardinals and was sent to Syracuse, N. Y., in the International League for the 1926 season. He played with "Pepper" Martin and Eddie Dyer, former manager of the World Champions, St. Louis Cardinals, and was managed by Bert Shotton, former manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Dr. Dudley has served as chairman of the Recreation Committee of the N. C. Council of Churches, and chairman of the subcommittee on Church Recreation of the N. C. Recreation Commission. He was the first president of the N. C. Recreation Association, the first state organization of its kind in America.

Dates Released For N.C. Little League Play-Offs

Dates for the Little League play-offs, both district and state, were announced by State Director Warren Carroll this morning.

Carroll, who has just returned from a meeting in Williamsport, Pa., with Little League commissioner Carl Stotz, stated that the district tournaments will get underway during the week of August 4. The North Carolina championship tournament will follow the next week.

With 43 leagues in North Carolina this summer, Carroll has made arrangements to have eight district play-offs before the state tourney. The state had only 23 leagues last year.

Greenville, Rocky Mount, Farmville and Williamston are all placed in District One. All of the towns have but one league, except Rocky Mount, which is operating three Little Leagues.

Winner of the eight-team state tournament will participate in the regional tourney, tentatively slated for August 18, 19 and 20. Seven states will be represented in the regional, extending from North Carolina to Florida. North Carolina is in section one, South Carolina is section two, Georgia is section three, Florida is section four, Alabama is section five, and Tennessee-Kentucky will make up the sixth section. One club from each section will play in the regional tourney for the opportunity of going to Williamsport for the Little League World Series on August 26-30.

Sites for the tournaments have not been decided yet. Carroll stated this morning that a meeting for everyone who is interested in Little League in any manner will be held at the local armory Tuesday night at 8 o'clock. If the strong desire the meeting express a strong desire to have the District One and state tournaments held in Greenville, efforts will get underway immediately toward that end.

Wading Weather In Open Finals

CHICAGO (UP) — Betsy Rawls and Betty Jameson will struggle 36 holes today in a combination golf and wading match with the championship of the 23rd annual Women's Western Open tournament at stake.

Miss Rawls, a 24-year-old pro for one year who holds down a Phi Beta Kappa key from the University of Texas, downed a three-time winner, Louise Suggs, Carrollton, Ga., yesterday, 2 and 1 in her semi-final scrap.

Miss Jameson, who won the championship in 1942, tripped a young amateur, 19-year-old Barbara Romack, Sacramento, Calif., 4 and 3, to advance toward her second title.

Both victors posted medal scores five over par for the distance they went, 17 holes for Miss Rawls and 15 for Miss Jameson. But Miss Rawls played the distance in a rainstorm while Miss Jameson had clear weather, though soaked fairways, for her final two holes.

The 6,520 yard Skokie course was waterlogged Tuesday for the first round of match play when a nightlong storm left casual water on every hole. Yesterday's round saw the same puddles forming in every fairway and promised wading weather today.

Tom Boys Plays In Tennis Finals

WEST POINT, N. Y. (UP) — Top-seeded Tom Boys of William and Mary and Cornell University Junior Gilmore Rothrock were scheduled to meet today in the final round of men's singles in the Eastern Interscholastic Tennis championships.

The final round of women's singles matched top-seeded Edith Sullivan of Framingham Teachers and Virginia Dumas of Alabama. In the final round of men's doubles, top-seeded Ben Bishop and Ed Stern of Colgate met Henry Clifford and James Whitmore of the University of Pennsylvania.

The biggest bats are found in the Old World tropics and are popularly called flying foxes. They have a wingspread of about five feet.

Giants Play Here With Sharpsburg

Greenville's Giants play Sharpsburg here Saturday night in a semi-pro Negro baseball game.
The game is scheduled to start at 7:45 in Guy Smith Stadium. Sharpsburg has not been played by the Giants, but a good contest is in the making when the two clubs meet.
Greenville has improved steadily since the opening of the season a few weeks ago. They were stopped in their last outing, 12-7, by the Kinston Greys.

One of the least known, and best locations for dredging for sea shells is off the Gulf coast between Pennsylvania and Panama City, says the National Geographic Society.

Divining Rod For Finding Moonshine

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UP)—Police Capt. Robert E. Lee used a five-foot steel spike yesterday as a "divining rod" to find buried moonshine whisky.
Suspecting buried whisky at an illegal still, Lee drove the spike into the ground at various spots until he struck glass. A little digging uncovered 24 half gallon jugs of whisky.

RECORD RECOGNIZED—KALAMAZOO, MICH.—(UP)—Mrs. Charles W. Postok was honored by the First Evangelical-United Brethren Church, for not having missed Sunday school in 21 years.

Capital, Energy And Freedom Stressed As Keys To Progress

Capital, energy and freedom as key factors in achieving a high standard of living in America were stressed by Henry W. Calvert, Southern Division Director of Education for the National Association of Manufacturers, at a conference on business education at East Carolina College Friday.

Approximately 100 people participated in a morning program in the Flanagan building and a luncheon meeting in the college dining hall. Those present included business men and women, teachers and prospective teachers of business education, and others.

The conference was sponsored by the East Carolina department of business education, and the program was given under the direction of Dr. E. R. Browning, department head. "Emphasizing Democratic Ideals" was the general theme of talks by Calvert, President John D. Messick and Alumni Secretary James W. Butler of East Carolina, and a group of business men and teachers of business education who participated in a panel discussion.

Declaring that "today's schools are good schools," but that "we need better schools," Calvert presented ideas on "The Responsibility of American Education to Business." We are traveling, he said, a "two-way street," for, he explained, while education has a responsibility to business, business also has a grave responsibility to education.

Calvert gave a 14-point program outlining the responsibility of education to business "as business men see it." He emphasized the obligations of education to give to the world men and women who recognize "that character and integrity have no substitute"; to teach the worth of the individual and the ideal of individual acceptance of duty; and to emphasize the importance and the dignity of work and the values of competition.

Education, he continued, should provide vocational instruction, encourage research as an aid to technological progress, and give training in good citizenship. It should help preserve and enlarge the benefits of our American way of life, he said, by inculcating "pride in our history, traditions and principles." President Messick opened the conference Friday morning with an address on "The Future of American Ideals."

After tracing the growth in the nation of democratic principles and practices, he pointed out that American aims must include the extension of our freedoms, our rights and privileges, to other nations of the world. He advocated world organization as a way to world peace.

The East Carolina president discussed the development in recent times of the ideals of world brotherhood and of peace based upon understanding and cooperation among nations. He analyzed briefly the philosophies and the political principles of such leaders as Woodrow Wilson, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Winston Churchill, and outlined the "New Bill of Rights" advanced by the National Resources Planning Board.

Listing the basic freedoms which should belong to all men, he said, "We must demonstrate not only our belief in these great objectives but do what we can to make them a part of the life of every American. And in making them a part of the life of every American we must educate and indoctrinate in the world principles of a broad brotherhood that will include the acceptance in principle and action of these concepts for all people of all nations now inhabiting the earth."

"There is no such thing," he said, "as isolation of one nation from all others or from any others any longer." He advocated educating children "first as citizens of the United States and secondly as citizens of the world."

"Our own security and welfare can be upheld," he declared, "only upon the acceptance by other nations of those democratic principles for which we stand."

In a panel discussion of "Practicing Democratic Ideals in Business," David J. Whitchard III, managing editor of the Greenville Daily Reflector, and Bernice Turnage of the Turnage Co. Inc., Farmville, stated the point of view of business men; and Mrs. Paul J. Clark of the Grimesland High School and Frances Hogwood of the business education faculty of Coker College, Hartsville, S.C., that of teachers.

Alumni Secretary Butler, describing "What It Means To Be An American," was principal speaker at the luncheon. Being an American, he said, does not depend on one's status in life but "is a matter of faith and beliefs."

meet emergency needs. Small loans are made on personal signatures only, larger amounts require endorsement or security, and all applications are passed upon by designated officials or communities.

NEGROES — The credit union idea is general throughout the nation. There are more wholly Negro credit unions in North Carolina than in all the rest of the country combined. Some of them are small, several have capital in excess of $100,000 and there is one with more than $300,000. One of the chief problems facing these unions is to find competent trained accountants and bookkeepers to handle the "mechanics" of the business. To supply that need, Bob Graham is now working with Shaw University at Raleigh and other Negro colleges in the state on inaugurating both regular and short courses in accountancy. Young men and women trained in these courses would be creditable not only for credit unions, but for responsible positions in insurance companies, banks, manufacturing and merchandising firms of which North Carolina had a great number owned and operated entirely by Negroes. Details of this overall story will be filled in later.

He commented briefly on Congressman Herbert C. Bonner's bill for unification of purchases by the Army and Navy and Air Force. He also explained why filibustering is possible in the Senate and not in the House of Representatives. "In the Senate," he said, "there is unlimited debate and no daily adjournment, while in the House debate can be limited, and there is a daily adjournment."

Miss Patsy Smith, daughter of Exchange George Smith, and winner in the recent Jayce beauty contest, was a special guest of the club. She will compete for the honor of being "Miss North Carolina" in Winston-Salem. She entertained last night with a reading, a review of her talent skit presented at the "Miss Greenville" contest held here recently.

President Bill Riggs presided over the meeting.

Funeral Sunday For Mrs. James L. Little

Mrs. Mary Thomas Little, 74, widow of James L. Little, died in Pitt Memorial Hospital in Greenville at 7:10 o'clock Saturday morning after having been critically ill for several days. Funeral services will be held at the Chapel of the S. G. Wilkerson & Sons Funeral Home at 3:00 o'clock Sunday afternoon by the Rev. Leon Russell, pastor of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, assisted by the Dr. Wallace Wolverton, Rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church. Burial will be in Cherry Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Little, daughter of the late James Washington and Mary Emma DeJarnette, was born and reared in Nashville, Tenn. She came to Greenville as a public school teacher and was married to James L. Little in 1899. She was a member of the Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church and a life member of the Woman's Society of Christian Service. She was a Charter Member of the End of the Century Club. Mr. Little died in 1942.

Surviving are two sons, James T. Little of Greenville and Robert G. Little of Columbia, S. C.; 3 grandchildren; three sisters, Mrs. F. Searcy Green, Mrs. L. P. Bellah and Mrs. W. S. Bearden, all of Nashville, Tenn.

Last Rites Sunday For Mrs. Laughinghouse

Mrs. Anna Laughinghouse, 78, widow of J. H. Laughinghouse, died at her home near Cox's Mill at 10:45 o'clock Friday night.

She had been an invalid for ten years and critically ill for three weeks.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Chapel of the S. G. Wilkerson & Sons Funeral Home at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon by the Rev. D. A. Windham, Free Will Baptist minister of Greenville, assisted by the Rev. J. C. Griffin, Free Will Baptist minister of New Bern. Burial will be in the Henry Jordan Williams Cemetery near Cox's Mill.

Mrs. Laughinghouse spent all her life in the Cox's Mill community and was a member of the Black Jack Free Will Baptist Church. Her husband, J. H. Laughinghouse, died in 1929.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. R. E. Adams of the home and Mrs. W. C. Evans of Cox's Mill; a son, F. G. Laughinghouse; 11 grandchildren; and 7 great grandchildren.

Jack Spain Talks At Exchange Club

By CHESTER WALSH
At the Greenville Exchange Club's supper meeting at the Woman's Club last night, Jack Spain, Pitt counsellor who has been in Washington, D.C., many years, was the speaker.

Spain, who directs Senator Clyde R. Hoey's staff of seven assistants, gave an interesting description of the work. "We receive an average of 300 letters a day, and at least 25 of them are addressed to 'Governor Hoey. All letters are referred to me and the personal message are referred to the senator," he said. Nearly all letters are answered the same day.

Senator Hoey leaves his office for congressional meetings daily about 10 o'clock. He is a member of the powerful Finance and Agricultural committees. Sometimes the senator is tied up for 10 or more hours in committee meetings. In the meantime, Spain takes care of the correspondence, greets visitors to the office and attends to requests for information for folks back home. "After 12 years in the National Capital I still have my southern drawl," Spain said.

He commented briefly on Congressman Herbert C. Bonner's bill for unification of purchases by the Army and Navy and Air Force. He also explained why filibustering is possible in the Senate and not in the House of Representatives. "In the Senate," he said, "there is unlimited debate and no daily adjournment, while in the House debate can be limited, and there is a daily adjournment."

Miss Patsy Smith, daughter of Exchange George Smith, and winner in the recent Jayce beauty contest, was a special guest of the club. She will compete for the honor of being "Miss North Carolina" in Winston-Salem. She entertained last night with a reading, a review of her talent skit presented at the "Miss Greenville" contest held here recently.

President Bill Riggs presided over the meeting.

Confirm Swedish Aircraft Shot Down On June 13

STOCKHOLM (UP) — A Swedish DC-3 "Flying classroom" which disappeared over the Baltic Sea June 13 was shot down, informed sources said today.

The sources said that experts who examined a rubber raft from the missing ship had concluded the plane was shot down. An unarmed Swedish Catalina flying boat which was searching for the DC-3 was shot down by Russian jets Monday.

The experts' report was said to have been handed to the government and the Swedish defense staff today. However, a spokesman refused to comment on reports that the examination showed the DC-3 had been shot down.

A full report of both incidents will be ready shortly, the government said. The Soviet government has indicated it considers the affair closed.

Musical Program For Kiwanians

Musicians by the Conway Trio featured the Kiwanis Club's weekly supper meeting last night, with Dan Sutton as accompanist. Tige Gardner had charge of the program.

The Conway — Kervin, Ed and John — sang some of the old songs and a hymn, and used as an encore "Because."

Judge Dink James, who recently attended a convention of the National Savings and Loan League in Washington, D. C., made an interesting short talk about financial matters. His quotations of excerpts from speeches by nationally known men reflected improved financial conditions and the effects of the Office of Price Stabilization regulation of ceiling prices for commodities.

President Milo Smith announced that the Kiwanis meeting scheduled for July 4 will be held the evening of July 3, at 6:30 p.m.

Guy V. Smith and Dr. John O. Reynolds had birthdays and they donated a dime for each year of their age to a worthy Kiwanis fund. Guests included Herb Ridgeway of Raleigh and Art Cunniff of the Daytona Beach (Florida) Kiwanis Club.

Secretary Dave Moore read messages from the club's two delegates, Dr. Austin D. Bond and Dr. Elmer Lanchette, who were in Seattle, Washington, attending the Kiwanis International Convention.

Fabulous Victim Of Robbery Is Finally Nabbed

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — Millionaire Lavere Redfield, charged with evading a subpoena to testify at the trial of the person accused of robbing his home of $1,500,000, said today, "I didn't even know my presence was desired."

Redfield was arrested in Sebastopol, Calif., yesterday after a search of two weeks and was brought here to face U. S. Commissioner Francis T. J. Fox on the federal bench warrant issued against him.

The commissioner set Redfield's bond at $50,000. The Nevada millionaire told Fox that he could raise the money "in a minute, but it is not my desire to make bail."

Redfield was held in the county jail last night and was to be taken to Carson City, Nev., today. He said he had no objection to testifying at the trials of those charged with the burglary of his Reno, Nev., home but, "I didn't even know my presence was desired."

Prisoner Shift At Koje Is Quiet

KOJE ISLAND, Korea (UP) — Some 6,000 North Korean war prisoners were moved from Compound 606 into other compounds today as the United Nations continued its program of breaking up Communist prisoners into smaller groups.

A spokesman for Brig. Gen. Haydon L. Boatner said the move was carried out in an "orderly manner."

Goldfish Gulping Revived In Bar

HOLLISTER, Calif. (UP) — Goldfish gulping, a requisite for social acceptance on college campuses during the 30's, has been revived—in a barroom.

A tavern owner here reported today he had restocked his barroom goldfish bowl with 40 new fish after patrons began gulping them to win $5 bets.

Lengthy Docket Friday In City's Police Court

By CHESTER WALSH
In Police Court Friday, Judge Charles H. Wheabee found Elbert M. Boyd guilty of driving a motor vehicle while drunk. He dismissed an action against Boyd charging careless and reckless driving for lack of jurisdiction.

The court fined Boyd $100 and costs and recommended that his driver's license be revoked for a year. The defendant gave notice of appeal to Superior Court.

In the case of Willis B. Murphy, charged with driving a motor vehicle while drunk, Judge Wheabee continued prayer for judgment on payment of $100 and costs. The defendant gave notice of appeal to Superior Court.

The court found Willie Eugene Carr, Negro, 2007 South Pitt Street, guilty of assault with a deadly weapon on his father, Alfred Carr. The warrant charged the defendant with assault with an oil lamp, but the victim said he did not believe he hit him with the lamp, but some blunt instrument.

Willie Carr was given 30 days in jail, suspended on payment of $20 fine, court costs deducted. The court order provided that he is to remain away from the premises of Alfred Carr, his father, and is not to attempt to harm any occupants of the house. Also, the court order provides that the defendant is to pay $20 doctor's bill for his father.

A farmer paid Carr's fine and costs and hired him to work in tobacco.

Solicitor Eli Bloom brought out the information that Carr had been in Police Court before, and that former Judge J. W. H. Roberts had ordered that the Carrs not have any deadly weapons in their home. Judge Wheabee ordered Carr to turn into police an old pistol and a shotgun.

Johnny L. Parkerson had two cases against him. For having defective brakes and improper lights on his car, the court fined him $15.

Melvin G. Hamm paid $15 for having an defective exhaust pipe and $20 for careless and reckless driving.

Careless and reckless driving: J. D. Gurganus, prayer for judgment continued on payment of $25, court costs deducted. The court order provides that he is not to drive a motor vehicle for two weeks.

Pete Hooks, Negro, defective brakes, prayer for judgment continued on payment of $20, court costs deducted.

James Earl Belcher, Negro, larceny of $7.65, 60 days on the roads, only 30 days if Belcher pays Joseph Austin same day of trial.

Worthless Check: L. R. Joseph, 90 days in jail, suspended on payment of court costs and $400 to Harry York. The defendant was allowed time in which to make payments.

The town of New Salem, Ind., where Abraham Lincoln once lived, literally disappeared, says the National Geographic Society. Many of its log buildings were dismantled and carried to a nearby town.
