

Charge U.S. Kept Yalu Attack Quiet

Clement Attlee Tells House Of Commons That Attacks Will Lessen Chances Of Truce And May Touch Off Third World War; Speaks Before Tense House

By W.G. LANDREY
United Press Staff Correspondent LONDON (UP)—Clement R. Attlee charged in the House of Commons today that the United States deliberately kept Britain in ignorance of plans to bomb the Yalu River power plants in Korea.

Attlee said bitterly that the Yalu attacks will lessen the chances of a truce and may touch off a third world war.

The Labor leader, who as prime minister took Britain into the Korean war, made his statement in opening a critical full dress debate on Korea before a crowded, tense house.

The Laborites threatened a vote of censure against Prime Minister Winston Churchill because of the Korean situation. Defeat for Churchill would force his government's resignation.

Attlee said that Field Marshal Earl Alexander, Churchill's defense minister who arrived here today after a visit to Korea, apparently was kept in the dark about plans for the Yalu attacks.

"It is quite obvious that a raid of these dimensions could not have been mounted on short notice," Attlee said.

"It must have been decided before Lord Alexander left Korea—and yet he knew nothing about it. Now does not that seem to be very, very extraordinary?"

Attlee called the Yalu attack "the biggest single raid of the war."

"I think it will lessen the chances of an armistice and may lead us dangerously near to a general conflagration in the Far East and no one knows where that will stop," Attlee said.

Across the house from Attlee as he spoke were Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

Immediately on his arrival after an overnight flight from New York, Alexander had conferred with Churchill and Eden.

Attlee emphasized that Alexander, "the British minister of defense, holding a very high office," and at the same time "a very distinguished soldier visiting a command in which British land, naval and air forces are engaged," apparently was told nothing of the bombing plans.

Eden followed, opening debate for the government—and immediately expressed regret that Britain was not consulted or informed before about the raids.

So far as the government is concerned, there has been no change of policy in Korea, he said. "It is still our purpose to limit the conflict in Korea," Eden said. "It is still our policy to do everything in our power to obtain an armistice on fair and reasonable terms."

There were cries of "Oh, Oh!" from the Laborites when Eden said Britain was not consulted and some cheers when he said he regretted it.

But Eden continued to defend the attacks themselves on the ground that they are "perfectly legitimate military targets."

The Laborites threatened to try to overthrow the government with a motion to reduce Eden's salary—a technical move to force a straight confidence vote. As the vote would involve money under British parliamentary procedure a defeat would force Churchill's resignation.

Increase In U. S. Battle Casualties

WASHINGTON (AP)—Announced U. S. battle casualties in Korea reached 110,611 today, an increase of 640 since last week. This was the biggest increase for any week since last Dec. 12. The number killed was 127, making a total of 17,445. The wounded numbered 524, for a total of 80,666, while the missing list declined 11 to 12,506.

Says Overwork And Poor Health Cause Of General's Suicide

WASHINGTON (UP)—Army Intelligence officers blamed overwork and poor health today for the suicide of Brig. Gen. Francis G. Brink, foreign aid chief in Indo-China and Gen. Douglas MacArthur's former liaison officer.

The 58-year-old general fired three bullets into his chest late yesterday while alone in his Pentagon office. Officers in an adjoining room rushed in after hearing the first shot, but Brink had fired two more shots from his .38 caliber revolver before they could reach him.

Brink died in an ambulance a short time later while being taken to the Army's Walter Reed Hospital.

Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, District of Columbia coroner, said an autopsy would be performed to-

Ayden Man Killed In Truck Accident Near Goldsboro

Truck Driven By James Bowen Overturns In Ditch Early This Morning

AYDEN—A pre-dawn truck accident near Goldsboro this morning claimed the life of James Allen Bowen, 26-year-old Ayden native.

Accident reports today disclosed the truck being operated by Bowen, which was loaded with shelled corn, left the highway on a sharp left turn about 10 miles out of Goldsboro.

Instead of making a turn to the left, Bowen's vehicle went straight off the highway, passing between two trees and coming to an abrupt halt after running into a ditch. The heavy load of corn shifted forward, crushing the cab so badly electric torches were required to extricate the driver.

Bowen was alone in the truck and it is thought he was dozing at the wheel just before the accident, as there were no signs of brakes being applied. The victim was operating a truck owned by his uncle, Harvey Bowen of Ayden, and was being loaded closely by another truck also loaded with shelled corn. The accident happened between midnight and 1 o'clock this morning.

Bowen was married and was the father of a five-year-old daughter, Gladys. He had spent his entire life in the Ormondville community near Ayden, and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Bowen of that community.

Tobacco Clinic Set For Friday

Pitt County tobacco growers who have encountered unidentified plant diseases in their fields this year, Friday will get the chance to definitely determine what the diseases are.

Sam Weeks, county tobacco specialist, reported this morning a tobacco disease clinic will be held at the county farm agent's office Friday morning, June 27, from 9 o'clock until noon. At that time, tobacco disease specialist will be present to assist farmers with their disease problems.

The tobacco specialist disclosed that Howard R. Garris, extension plant pathologist at N. C. State College, will be in Greenville to diagnose diseases of plants brought in by farmers. "Farmers who are in doubt about certain diseases present in their fields should bring plant samples to the clinic for discussion and diagnosis," Weeks said.

According to Weeks, to insure definite identification farmers should dig up a plant from the infested area and carefully shake soil from the roots—keeping intact as much of the feeder-root system as possible. The root system should then be wrapped in wet paper or a damp burlap bag.

"Along with the plants," the tobacco specialist explained, "farmers should bring along information relative to variety, previous crop in field and percentage of plants affected in the field." Weeks said the clinic will be an excellent opportunity for farmers to find out diseases in doubtful cases, or where abnormal conditions are present.

Clinics of corresponding nature have been held in other counties prior to this year, but this is the first ever held for the benefit of Pitt County farmers.

Board Members Tour Department To Note Changes

New Additions To Clinic Room Noticed By Health Board Members

Board of Health members last night toured the local Health Department to note recent improvements before they got down to business matters.

Renovation of the department and improvements were noted particularly in the clinic room. Partitions have been built to set off small examination rooms which are equipped with an examination table, lamps and other necessary equipment.

Lead casing, on the door of the x-ray room has been installed and a dark room equipped adjoining the x-ray room. New scales, fans, and desks also mark an improvement in the health department in addition to separate desks for the public health nurses.

It was requested last night of the board members to further improve the clinic room by covering the wooden floor with some material which is easier to clean and more sanitary. The board agreed to put the request before the Commissioners who will ask for bids on the project if approved.

The board voted to secure the services of a laboratory technician offered them by the Carolina Dairy to help set up a milk lab. Milk samples from local dairymen are being sent to New Bern for analysis. It was brought out that the setting up of such a lab here would save time and would furnish fresher samples for examination.

The technician would serve in an advisory capacity in training personnel and helping to set up the lab of which the equipment is already available.

In the absence of a full-time health officer, Dr. J. M. Barrett has been serving the health department clinics and being on call in cases of emergency. The board appointed a committee of D. H. Conley, F. F. Hendrix and Dr. B. McK Johnson to meet with Barrett and work out some rate of compensation for his part-time work.

It was announced that the various department heads at the health department are carrying out supervision duties in absence of Dr. T. G. Basnight, the regular health officer.

Boll Weevil At Home In County

It seems the old boll weevil, who has been "just looking for a home" so long, has at last found one in Pitt County's fertile cotton fields.

County Farm Agent Sam Winchester said this morning the boll weevil is "out in numbers" all over the county. "We found weevil damage in every field we inspected," Winchester stated.

The farm agent declared there is a much more extensive infestation in the county at present than at the same time last year. "That is a good indication weevil damage to the Pitt County cotton crop will be a great deal worse this year than last," he asserted.

"We want to urge all cotton growers who have not already begun to treat for weevils to do so at once," the farm agent emphasized. Two recommended insecticides for boll weevil control are toxaphene and aldrin.

Both may be applied either as a dust or a spray, and both give a high degree of control, Winchester added.

Lioness Escapes; Roams Country

PERU, Ind.—(AP)—A 5-year-old lioness escaped from a crate at the Biller Brothers Circus winter quarters early today and roamed the countryside six hours before she was captured.

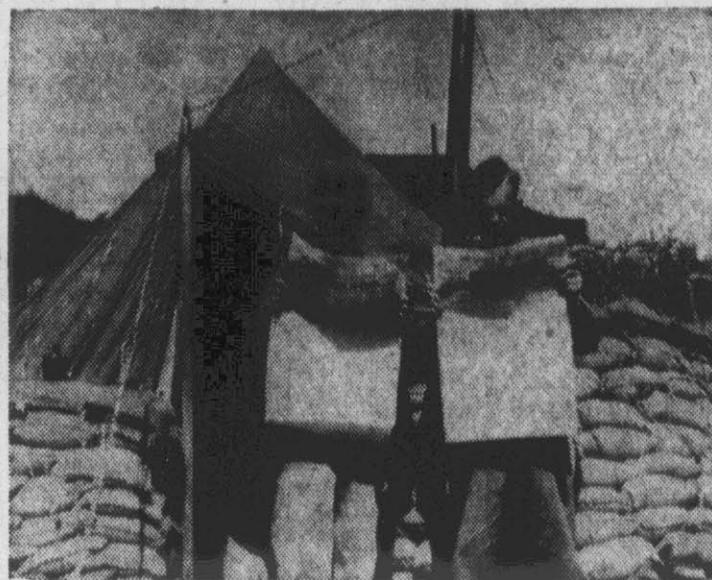

The lioness clawed a trainer and injured his wife before she was forced back into a cage. She was captured along a creek bank near the circus quarters.

Brink also is survived by a daughter, Mrs. W.W. Wells, of nearby Falls Church, Va. A family spokesman said Mr. and Mrs. Wells were "too broken up" to make any statement.

During World War II, Brink was a liaison officer between MacArthur, U.S. commander in chief in the Pacific, and Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, commander of U.S. Army forces in China.

Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army chief of staff, said in a statement that Brink "appeared tired and worn out" early this week. Collins said he had "issued instructions to the staff to see that he had a good rest before returning to Indo-China."

The Reflector Goes To Korea

That The Daily Reflector has become a popular newspaper among Pitt County servicemen and their buddies in Korea is indicated by the letter and picture received today showing two local GI's reading copies in front of their tent in Korea.

The letter to The Reflector came from M. Sgt. M. L. Wilkerson (home address not given) who sent a picture of Sgt. Max Ray Joyner and M. Sgt. Roscoe King, Pitt County men, reading The Reflector.

In his letter M. Sgt. Wilkerson said: "I am enclosing a picture I took of a couple of my buddies here in my outfit, the 987th A.F.A. Bn. in Korea. However they are gone now, so I would like for you to see that they get a picture of this when they get home. They are reading The Daily Reflector, and I want to tell it is a number one paper. I have read a lot of them since I have been here and will miss them as the boys are gone and with them the paper. They are left to right, Sgt. Max Ray Joyner and M. Sgt. Roscoe King, both of Greenville, N. C."

A check into The Reflector's file on Pitt County men in the armed forces showed Sgt. Joyner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Joyner of Greenville R.F.D. two, M. Sgt. King is the husband of Mrs. Roscoe L. King of 211 Jarvis Street, Greenville. Mrs. King said this morning, the last letter she received from her husband said he was on his way back to the United States from Korea.

Russell Bids For Ariz. Delegates

TUCSON, Ariz. (UP)—Sen. Richard B. Russell of Georgia made a bid for Arizona delegates to the national Democratic convention today after saying that Sen. Estes Kefauver should repudiate his campaign manager, Gael Sullivan.

Russell in a talk at Phoenix yesterday also cited what he called "efforts of extreme liberals to take over the Democratic Party." The Georgia senator breakfasted today with the strong Pima County, Democratic group, and was to continue by air to Albuquerque and Salt Lake City.

Russell said Kefauver should "repudiate" Sullivan, who last week told newsmen that supporters of Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois and Averell Harriman were planning a conspiracy with Russell backers that would lead to Stevenson's nomination.

"The statement was made merely to bolster Kefauver's failing campaign," said Russell. He said the charges that such a political conspiracy existed against Kefauver were "pure political fabrication" and asked Sullivan to make any such charges specific.

Russell said that he didn't believe the civil rights issue had been explained to the American people. "It's not a racial issue," he said, "but it goes to the heart of the American system."

Admitting that his stand on the fair employment practices program "may cost me some votes," he said he felt that most Americans were not in favor of the proposal, and that he believes, as it stands, it is unconstitutional.

Russell said that at first he had been awed at the thought of becoming president, but that after looking over the other candidates, "my humility began to shrink."

Primary Election Copped By Langer In N. Dakota

FARGO, N. D. (AP)—U. S. Sen. William Langer yesterday won re-nomination in North Dakota's bitterly fought Republican primary election.

It means Langer is virtually certain of winning re-election to his third Senate term next fall since Democrats seldom have any luck in this traditionally Republican state. Langer, who votes with the Democrats as often as he votes with the Republicans, turned back the challenge of freshman Congressman Fred Aandahl, who suffered his first defeat in four state-wide elections.

With 800 of the state's 2,296 precincts reporting, Langer had 40,197 and Aandahl 33,872.

All county offices in the Pitt County courthouse will be closed Saturday, June 28, Register of Deeds Mrs. Blair Wheelless announced today.

Committee Given Word To Begin On Parking Areas

Traffic Committee Authorized By Mayor To Investigate Possibilities

City traffic committee members were authorized yesterday by Mayor Lester Page to begin investigating possibilities of areas for off-street parking lots.

The authorization for such action came following a meeting of representatives from the Merchants' Association, Chamber of Commerce and the city traffic and street committees in the mayor's office yesterday afternoon.

Along with searching and investigating possibilities for off-street parking areas, the traffic committee was authorized to make preliminary negotiations with owners of areas which could be used for parking lots and report their findings to the Board of Aldermen for approval.

In discussing a number of ways in which the parking areas could be financed, the committee which met yesterday brought up the idea of leasing potential parking lots with the option of future purchase. If the parking lots prove profitable and of value, citizens might not object to floating a bond issue to purchase the lot, it was suggested.

When Mayor Page opened the meeting, he stated that the city was hard-pressed to meet the next budget because of added departmental requests and the most economical ways of financing off-street parking areas would have to be taken into consideration.

Several suggestions were offered and it was brought out that the development of parking areas should start off on a small scale and work up gradually to a large scale operation to fulfill the need of shoppers and business people. The need for a look into future needs of the city was also considered during the discussion.

A number of possible areas which can be turned into parking lots was another item of importance brought out. Several areas were suggested, such as the Blount property on Fourth and Washington streets, the Edwards property next to the Pitt Theatre, the north side of Sheppard Memorial Library grounds, and other areas.

Who would finance the development and purchase of the parking lots was discussed with a number of the group suggesting the merchants and a number suggesting the city. The final outcome of the question was that both the merchants and city take the burden, even though the merchants would benefit to keep business uptown and not scattered on the outskirts.

Other suggestions and ideas were offered but the investigation of possible sites were left up to the traffic committee and other committees which offered their services.

House Requests Truman Use T-H Law In Strike

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House joined with the Senate today in requesting President Truman to try to stop the three-week-old steel strike by using the Taft-Hartley law.

It wrote the "request" into a wage-price-control bill on which a final vote still must be taken, after refusing to "direct" the President to take injunction action.

The standing vote for the injunction "request" was 190 to 133. The "request" was embodied in an amendment offered by Rep. Smith (D-Va.). It was supported by most Republicans and almost all the Southern Democrats. Administration Democrats and some Republicans from big industrial areas voted against it.

Gun Aimed At President Rhee Of Korea Fails To Discharge

PUSAN, Korea (UP)—A 62-year-old man eluded his way within five feet of President Syngman Rhee at Korean war anniversary ceremonies today, aimed an automatic at the president's back, and pulled the trigger.

The gun failed to go off. National Police Director Yoon Woo Kyung grabbed the would-be assassin, Ryu Shi Tai, and hustled him away to a military police station.

Rhee, making a speech and obviously ignorant of the apparent attempt on his life, turned and admonished the scufflers behind him to "be quiet."

House Appropriations Subcommittee Votes To Cut Truman's Request In Half For A $3 Billion Atomic Expansion Program; Can Ask For More Later On

WASHINGTON (UP)—A House Appropriations subcommittee has voted to cut by more than 50 per cent President Truman's request for $3,191,000,000 to launch a big atomic expansion program.

Chairman Albert Thomas (D-Tex.) said the group approved an appropriation of $1,450,000,000, with the understanding that the Atomic Energy Commission could come back later and ask for more when it is prepared to present detailed plans and specifications.

"The whole thing is guesswork so far," Thomas said. "By the AEC's own figures, it only plans to spend $600,000,000 of this money in the next year."

"We'll commission's record of underestimating its requirements for money by 50 to 100 per cent, the subcommittee felt that this was all it could justifiably allow at this time."

He said the subcommittee had voted to allow the full $1,500,000,000 asked by Mr. Truman for expansion of facilities of the Tennessee Valley Authority. The TVA expansion is designed to supply additional power for the new atomic energy program.

The subcommittee's recommendations are subject to review by the full appropriation committee tomorrow.

Thomas said the subcommittee did not attempt to determine how much money is to be allocated to the various atomic plants at Oak Ridge, Tenn., Savannah River, S. C., Hanford, Wash., Paducah, Ky., and a projected new plant in the Ohio River Valley.

Thomas said the money could be distributed among a dozen installations if the AEC desired to do so. He said the subcommittee had written a limitation into the measure which would prohibit the AEC from starting any large-scale program until after it had obtained the money from Congress to complete the job.

Brawls Staged In Two Japanese Cities By Reds

TOKYO (UP)—Communist rioters hurled "Molotov cocktails" at police in Tokyo and Osaka today in noisy brawls marking the second anniversary of the Korean war. Several Americans were hurt.

In Osaka, the demonstrators threw acid at an American general and hurled gasoline bombs into an American housing compound at Itami air base. The rioters clashed frequently with police in Osaka and its suburbs.

Rioting in Tokyo broke in the Shinjuku section tonight after 3,000 North Korean sympathizers held a rally to protest an agreement giving the United States air bases in Japan and to oppose the Korean war.

The rally went off quietly enough despite inflammatory speeches and movies of previous riots. But the Communists became infuriated when they left the park where the rally was held and found strong police lines.

Scott Claims He May Be Senatorial Candidate In '55

GOLDSBORO (AP)—Gov. W. Kerr Scott said today that he might be a candidate for the U. S. Senate in 1955, opposing Sen. Willis Smith.

In an interview with the Goldsboro News-Argus, the governor said he was "plowing his furrow" winding up his administration, before making a final decision. He failed to elaborate further, other than to add he was "leaving the door open, wide open."

On leaving office in January, the governor quipped, "I'll quit milking the public and return to milking cows."

Most of the 80,000 persons packed into Pusan's public square to hear Rhee were unaware of the incident. U. S. Ambassador John J. Muccio was among those present.

A government spokesman denounced the incident as an opposition political plot to assassinate the 77-year-old president. Opposition sources retorted that the attempt was faked to give Rhee an excuse to tighten martial law and perhaps arrest more of his political opponents.

Only a few minutes after the incident, even before the name of the would-be assassin was made public, placards appeared on the streets charging it was a plot by the Democratic party. Rhee's chief opposition in his feud with the National Assembly.

Impressions

By MARTHA S. FORBES

Edgar Allan Poe was a master at the art of painting pictures by the use of words whose sounds were in harmony with their meanings.

In addition to being a great story teller whose plots unfolded in a gripping manner, his choice of words, the sounds of which produced desired effects of horror, suspense, tenderness, or whatever mood he wished to create, makes his writings fascinating to the oral reader. One of the most dramatic poems for sound effects which has ever been written, in my opinion, is the one penned by him entitled "The Bells." In this writing, you may recall, he mentions various types of bells and the use to which they are put. From the tinkling silvery bells to the deep alarm bells, he runs the gamut of the sound waves with his choice of adjectives to depict the tone and implication of each one.

The telephone had not been invented before he died, so there was nothing he could say about the bell with which most of us are most familiar. I don't remember statistics very well, but I believe that there are more phones per capita in the United States than anywhere else in the world. That must prove that we like to hear them ring.

There is an expectancy and more than a little hint of mystery about the ringing of the phone. One always wonders who can be calling.

Even though we are expecting a specific call from a certain party, there is a small question in the mind of the answerer before he says "hello" as to what response he will receive from the other end.

A phone ringing between midnight and dawn sounds more insistent, more demanding and more jangling than the same one ringing during the day. It seems to presage disaster or tragedy or death. The fact that so often when one staggers to answer a midnight phone bell, with fearful, hasty steps, the party at the other end of the line says pertly, "That's the wrong number," does not ease the quickened beat of the heart or the small nagging fear at the back of the mind. One turns away, very annoyed and yet still curious as for whom the call was intended and what message the party at the other end of the line had to convey.

One of the stock situations used by the creator of Dagwood is to have the phone ring while he is in the tub. Dagwood alone is not afflicted with this complaint, because it frequently happens to all of us who bathe at reasonable hours of the day or night. And invariably, if you hurry to drape a towel around you and dash to the receiver, the caller hangs up just as you say with exasperation, "Hello?" If you don't try to answer it, then you are plagued with the thought that it might have been a very urgent call. You stand puzzled for a moment at the quandary in which you find yourself, and then disgustedly decide to quit bathing and start dressing so you will be presentable the next time the caller rings.

Most people like to hear the phone ring. There is something comforting and friendly about the sound, especially if you are left alone a lot of the time. It is also, in a measure, an indication of a person's popularity or importance in the community. But nobody likes for the phone to call one away from a meal, a nap, a bath, a card game or a television show. At other times it is a rather pleasant sound.

Women have been unjustly accused of being telephone monopolists because they do so much of their visiting via the wires. They acquire much of their knowledge, especially about local citizens, the same way, and cook many an epicurean delight while talking to a friend who has just followed the "most delectable recipe." They sew, they rear their children, they shop and they do multitudinous other household jobs simply by employing the instrument that has become a necessity to our way of life.

But a man will do the same thing on a street corner, and if he was denied the privilege of the corner drug counter or the sidewalk meeting ground, he would be a worse offender as a phone monopolist than the woman, who has to use the wires because her work entails closer confinement.

Suppose all the phones in the nation were suddenly stilled. What would it be like? The peace of heaven? I doubt it! To me it would be more like the deadly stillness of a cemetery.

Mrs. James Terrell and daughter, Anne, of Bloomfield, Ky., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Carl Worthington and family.

A picnic dinner was served at the Free Will Baptist Church Sunday following the Sunday morning worship services.

The "Harmony Trio" of Goldsboro will render a program consisting of one hour and one-half of gospel music Friday night at 9:30. It is to be held at the Elementary School auditorium. The admission will be fifty cents for children and seventy-five cents for adults. All proceeds will be placed in the Free Will Baptist Church building fund for new Sunday School rooms.

Employees Enjoy Company Party

Employees of the National Carbon Company and their families gathered at Whitchard's Beach Saturday for a plant picnic.

Approximately 300 people took part in the outdoor program which included foot races for children of all ages; ping pong for men; softball for women; and boating and swimming for all.

Watermelons for the group were cut late in the afternoon and barbecue and fried chicken were served later. The program was arranged by a committee of employees which included the following: Floyd Nichols, Dan Bunting, John Whitchard, Fannie Coward, Mavis Porter and Blanche Jones.

The Negro employees and their families met at the same time at Griffin's Beach across the river.

ROOSTER IS GOOD MOTHER—Roland the rooster hatched out five baby chicks at Phenix City, Ala., and mothers them as well as any hen according to his owner, Aubrey Bishop. Roland, a black and yellow rooster who never had much luck at ring fighting, crowded a setting hen off her nest and sat on the eggs himself for three weeks until the biddies hatched. Roland plans to let Roland raise the chicks.—AP Wirephoto.)

Admittedly there is far too little interest in the second primary because there is only one state-wide race to be decided, and there is only a Greenville township race for constable to be decided on a local level here in Pitt. Nevertheless it is important that the voters in Greenville township make it a "peoples' decision" in the constable race. It is equally important that the voice of the citizens as a whole (not just a small fraction of the people) is heard in the final ballot on the Supreme Court race.

The obligation of following through with the election of officials still hangs over the people of North Carolina. It is an obligation which should be taken seriously in the interest of better government for the State as a whole.

Almost Two Years Late But Still Effective

The United Nations air attack on the huge power plants in North Korea came almost two years later than it should have, but this is one case in which it was better late than never.

As a result of the gigantic attack, which many had come to believe would never take place, approximately 90 per cent of North Korea's electric power potential has been knocked out at least temporarily. The blow also means a great deal of the Chinese industry in Manchuria will be without electricity until other sources can be obtained.

In spite of the fact that the five huge dams along the North Korean border were not destroyed by the air strikes, the destruction of the power plants is a major blow to the Communists. It served notice that the U. N. forces are no longer willing to spare the Communists a trump card in this Korean conflict, and at the same time, it was a show of air power in the area in which the Communists were known to have a great quantity of aircraft.

Two years ago when the American forces in Korea marched to the Yalu River, the Chinese, threatened intervention if the power plants in North Korea were taken over by the U. N. forces. The dams and the power plants were left intact by the U. N. forces, but the Chinese hordes poured down from the north anyway. Since that time the vast reservoir of electric power has been left unmolested in the hands of the Chinese while the power turned the wheels of Manchurian industry which pumped war materials into the Chinese in North Korea. Now the Chinese have been deprived of one of the great assets they had secured by bluff.

The blow at the North Korean power plants has carried the war to the Chinese on a limited scale, but it may serve as a stern warning to the Chinese that future attacks into hitherto unscarred territory may be forthcoming unless they buckle down to negotiating in good faith at the Korean truce table.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—The Bob-and-Ike preconvention struggle for possibly crucial delegates has now reached the stage where each side hesitates to adopt slugging or whining tactics that might make the nomination worth no more than a Truman nickel.

The Taft forces are making a strategic retreat from the bulldozing position which provoked charges that they had re-cranked the old 1912 "steamroller" responsible for William Howard's selection over Theodore Roosevelt. The senator's offer to compromise in the two-delegation, Texas row reflects his concern over a convention debacle.

BATTLE—The Eisenhower high command, with a few exceptions, are worried lest a floor fight against Taft's denunciation of convention committees and presiding officials, including Keynote MacArthur, may depict them as "cry babies" and "soreheads." They realize that they cannot afford to antagonize the GOP graybeards who rule the organization and its voting resources.

These new and unexpected developments can have great importance. Although the two factions will fight for their heroes to the last roll call, they are trying to keep in mind that the major battle must be won or lost in November, not at Chicago next month.

This rapprochement, if it may be so described, has been helped along by the discovery that the two rivals are not so far apart on such major issues as domestic legislation, foreign policies and federal finances.

Both men could run on the same platform without abandonment of basic principles, on the basis of Taft's general record and Eisenhower's recent speeches and interviews.

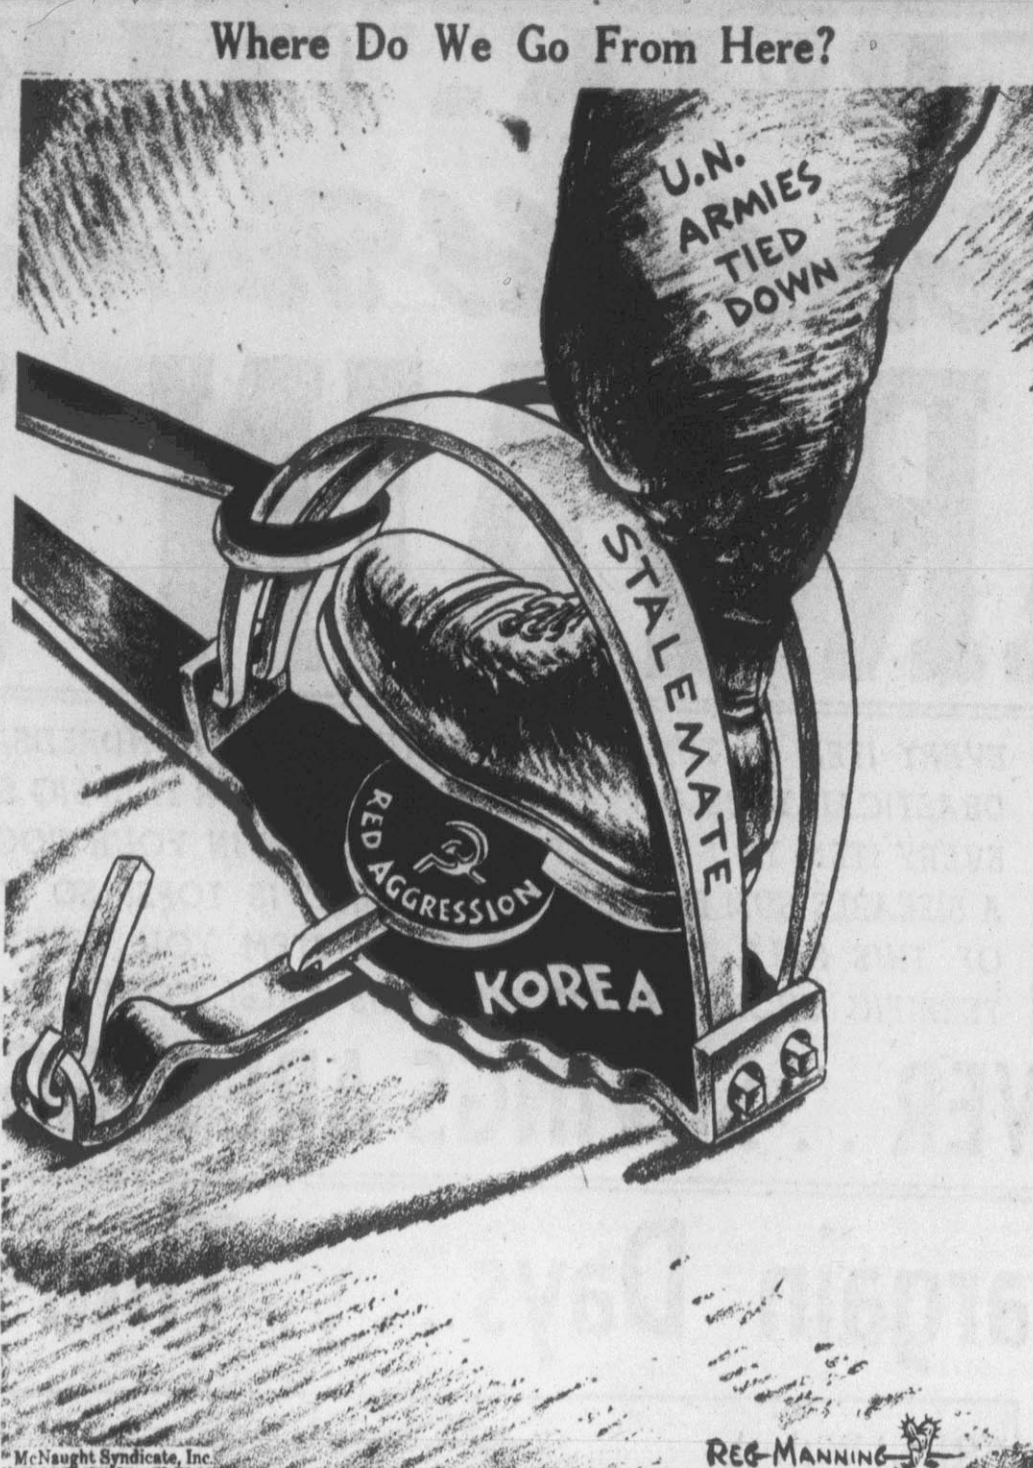

BOSSSES—Eisenhower, however, has accomplished the same purpose—namely, the collection of delegates—through use of different and more subtle forms of political power. His backers' methods are reminiscent of the system by which the late Tammany boss—Charles Francis Murphy—used to nominate governors, senators and judges in a "telephone booth" convention.

It owes the great majority of his delegates to the support of governors, local bosses and the state machines which they control solely because of their power to hand out juicy jobs, contracts and other favors. National and state chairmen hostile to Ike have been ousted simply by the backroom order of state executives favorable to the general.

As a minor sidelight, the Bob-Ike battle has developed into a contest for national political supremacy between the statehouse rings and the Capitol Hill faction. The governors and their henchmen expect to become the big party bosses, if Ike wins the nomination and election.

FICTION—At the moment Taft and Eisenhower are making sheep's eyes at Governor John S. Fine of Pennsylvania, whose decision may determine the nominee.

That Fine will be motivated solely by personal, political considerations rather than by high principles, is admitted by everybody who knows politicians—or Fine. He wants to ride a winner, and be a "big shot" in the next Administration, if it is Republican.

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

FORT JACKSON, S. C.—In the Army it is unusual for a First Lieutenant to complain to a Major. That's why I enjoyed beefing to Major Jimmy Davenport of Greenville, commander of the Greenville section of our Reserve Unit here at Fort Jackson.

En route to Fort Jackson on the bus I happened to be sitting beside Jimmy. It seemed to me that every hour on the hour Jimmy lit up a stogie. He claims that he smokes high-quality cigars, but that second-hand smoke was hard to take.

Having respect for Jimmy as a person, plus the importance of his Army rank, I endured this smoke for a number of miles before saying a word. Then I asked, "How many of those things have you smoked?"

"This is my third one," "Come on, now, Major," I said,

"I know you have smoked at least 20 since we left Greenville." As the morning progressed I became more and more accustomed to Jimmy's tobacco smoke, and when we arrived I told him, "You have proved to me that I'm more of a man than I had any idea I was. Anyone that can inhale your second-hand cigar smoke for 275 miles, and on top of that complain to the commanding officer is bound to be a man."

If you want an hour or two of solid entertainment, get Jimmy to tell you about some of his Army experiences. Beginning with his enlistment in the National Guard in 1933, Jimmy has tales to tell of many phases of Army life.

For example, Jimmy told us about the contrast between Fort Jackson now and in October, 1940, when he came here with the National Guard. Captain Worth Wicker was commander of the unit, and other officers were Ed Waldrop, Dan Wright and Happy Moyer.

Back in those days there were two buildings here, as contrasted to the hundreds here now. The men had to pitch tents and sleep on the ground for six months. There were no water works on the post and water was drawn from a fire hydrant on the outskirts of Columbia and hauled in. For washing facilities, the men had to buy pails.

By way of contrast, all facilities are available here now. When our unit decided to set up a separate day room, wash tables and chairs were drawn, coke and candy machines and a ping pong table. This was done in a matter of less than an hour.

And I thank you.

HANG - OVER—Most people will concede that hang-overs are the bane of their existence. Some folks drink too much alcohol and suffer hang-over pangs next day. Some eat too much and have indigestion. It has long been recognized that after effects of excessive drinking and excessive eating are very similar in physical characteristics. There are also hang-overs from excess indulgence in political activity. Again it is recognized that some persons can get just as drunk on politics as others can on alcohol, and also that some can get as groggy by over indulgence in political activity as their friends get by eating too much beefsteak. It would be a fine thing for everybody if there wasn't a morning after the night before in cases of excess drinking, eating and politicking. Unfortunately, it doesn't work out that way—and in every case there is another day, a day when accounts have to be reconciled and balanced. It is that unfortunate angle that the joyful period of drinking, eating and politicking usually is very short, the hang-over time for balancing accounts is generally long drawn out and often increasingly embarrassing. Still further fact is that most of the indulgence in time of excess is off the record, most of the activities, in time of penitence goes on the permanent record.

EXAMPLE—An illustration of the political hang-over is afforded by the court action in Lenoir county this week. Supporters of Hubert Olive for Governor in the late primary have procured indictments for the alleged illegal distribution of campaign circulars appealing to race prejudice, the purported purpose of which was to get votes for William Umstead. The incident has been blown up to big-time status and indications are that the trial scheduled to be held in Kinston on Wednesday will be of more than state-wide interest. And it may well have ramifications, which promoters of the particular event did not anticipate.

BACKFIRE—As your reporter gets the story, the main issue in the Kinston case is to fix responsibility for distribution of a circular tending to show that Candidate Olive was more friendly to Negroes in politics than the average Eastern North Carolinian. There is no specific accusation that William Umstead, victorious opponent of Olive for the gubernatorial nomination, nor his campaign headquarters, sponsored distribution of the circulars. No person having the same name as that appearing on the circular has been indicted, and at least one man of that name has disclaimed any participation in or knowledge of its printing and distribution. There is an even chance that the Lenoir county case may backfire against the folks initiating the lawsuit. It is of official record that the Olive headquarters distributed thousands of circulars carrying the statement that William Umstead endorsed heavy drinking. Everybody in North Carolina who knows anything about the two candidates knows that William Umstead is just as much opposed to the use of alcoholic beverages in any degree as Hubert Olive is opposed to Negro political domination of the State.

RESPONSIBILITY—The courts may have to determine responsibility for propagation of the circular designed to show that Olive is too much inclined to Negro supremacy.

premise. Official records and confirmed news stories during the campaign fix responsibility for the accusation against Umstead as an advocate of heavy drinking. Public opinion agrees that such charges are utterly without foundation in fact. From that premise it seems logical to conclude that if a court judgment is obtained in one case, precedent will have been established for a judgment in the other.

BILL PAYING—Another factor contributing to severity of hang-over headaches is that bills incurred during the exuberance of the party must be paid next day. In this respect, too, there is similarity in conditions following social functions and political campaigns. It is not pleasant to have to dig up money to pay for beverages and viands already consumed—or for votes that failed to get into the ballot boxes. But the bills have to be paid by somebody.

CROW MEAT—It is further true that often in addition to paying for the party which is over, an unpleasant phase of the hang-over is necessary to "eat crow" by having to apologize, tractically if not orally, for things said during the heyday of activity. All of these elements which plague the day after are more bothersome to life losers, but the winners are also embarrassed sometimes when reminded of commitments made or implied. Anyway you look at it there is a lot of similarity in the aftermath of a political campaign and the hang-over from a lively social function.

PROGRESSIVES—Henry Wallace separated himself from the Progressive party of which he was

What Other Papers Are Thinking

REDUCING THE LOAD (Kinston Free Press)

The action of the State Board of Education, with aid and approval of Governor W. Kerr Scott, in reducing the pupil load per teacher from 32 to 30 for the coming year will be applauded by all friends of education in the State. It has been hailed by educational leaders as the most forward step taken in education by the Scott Administration.

The reduction was made possible by the shifting of a surplus fund of some $1,700,000 from the 1951-52 school appropriations to the 1952-53 budget, making it possible to add some 1,000 teachers the reduced pupil load will make necessary.

The cut seems small, compared with the great need for even fewer pupils per class in the public school system but it none-the-less welcome. It will shift North Carolina from 47th place among the states, where it was next to 48th place Mississippi, and lift it to 43rd or 44th in the roster of the states for next year.

The real good will come in making it possible for teachers to give that much more time to individuals. The time gained will be small, but over the years it will amount to enough in many cases to prevent a slow student from falling his grade. It could also enable some good student to add points to a fine record, or even make it possible for a teacher to discourage a poorer one who was contemplating leaving school for some reason.

The progress of education is measured, in its final analysis, by the strides in which it advances the individual to useful and contributive citizenship. It stands to reason that teaching classes that liberally overflow with pupils throughout North Carolina, can contribute only a minimum to that progress for the individual. This latest move is certainly one in the right direction and one which will pay even greater dividends when it is possible to cut the teacher load even further.

Business Today

In the next few months almost every business man will be invited or urged to get a "register and vote" message or theme into his advertising.

The Advertising Council, a non-profit organization of advertisers engaged in public service efforts, is sponsoring a national campaign. It has published a 28-page campaign guide, including advertising material, and is distributing it to media, advertising agencies and public officials.

The Council has had considerable success already. National and local advertisers have taken up the campaign as a public duty. Metro politan Life is devoting its entire September magazine schedule to the drive.

The idea has considerable grassroots support. Without waiting for the Council, many local advertisers have included register and vote appeals in their displays.

The American Heritage Foundation, which is co-sponsoring the campaign with the Advertising Council, retained Dr. Ernest Dichter, psychological consultant, to advise it. He came up with the idea that most of the previous "get out the vote" campaigns were unsound. He said that urging people to vote by saying it is their duty and by talking about how few people vote is psychologically unsound. People do not vote because they are lazy or do not believe in voting, but because they feel they are out of things. "Make the idea of voting a pleasure," he recommended. "Glamorize the whole voting process."

Whether an advertiser elects (no pun) to share his time and space with the campaign, it may be a good idea for him to register and vote himself. If more business men voted—they are as bad as the rest—they might succeed in electing more business-minded men to public office.

To heck with Dr. Dichter—it's their duty. "CLUB" OPERATORS WARNED TO PAY TAX Internal revenue agents are warning business men that if they operate suit "clubs" or any other lottery form of merchandising they are just old gamblers as far as the government is concerned. And as such, they must buy Federal gambling tax stamps and pay a monthly tax of 10 per cent of the receipts.

ABSOLUTE GOVERNMENT IN OFFICE COSTS While the mass of government regulations is often blamed for the rise in business clerical and administrative costs, Richard F. Neuschel told the National Association of Cost Accountants that the chief cause is modern management's own demands on office operations. He said clerical forces have grown in ratio to production workers. The efficiency of most operations could be greatly improved if the problem is dealt with correctly, he said.

Hal Boyle's Column

By HAL BOYLE
LOS ALAMOS, N. M. (AP) — There is no cemetery here in the birthplace of the atom bomb.

That fact is a clue to the biggest defect of living in a government - built community that is ideal in many ways. As one of the 12,800 workers in this heart center of America's atomic weapons research puts it: "People come, people go. But nobody really feels it is home. Very few expect to die here, and I guess that is why there isn't any cemetery."

Los Alamos today is perhaps the most unusual community in the nation. When it was conceived in 1943 it was thought it would never grow beyond a population of 700.

Now it is a small city of nearly 13,000 scientists and technicians, sprawling over several mesas in an isolated, 86,000-acre, closely-guarded reservation in the Jemez Mountains of Northern New Mexico. It is still growing rapidly, and work is under way on a new 120-million-dollar laboratory.

The chief industry of this strange city is to develop better instruments for widespread atomic death, yet by most yardsticks of sociology it is a dream city.

There are no slums here. There is no unemployment. The city has a fine school system. It has wonderful recreation facilities, including a baseball field, swimming pool, ice skating rink, ski lift, and its own small symphony orchestra.

Unlike most other cities throughout the land, it has no major parking problem. The crime rate is unbelievably low. The intelligence level of its citizens is perhaps the highest achieved by any city in history. At least 280 have earned Ph. D. degrees.

There are more than 80 social and professional organizations. There are 14 organized church groups.

The happy shouts of children and the barking of dogs ring across the near, well-tended lawns all day long.

"We are famous for babies, dogs and bombs-in that order," one Atomic Energy Commission employe said. "This is a wonderful place to raise children, and we have one of the highest birth rates in the country."

"About 15 per cent of the population is under five years of age. The average age here is 25 - eight years younger than the national average, which is 33. There are only about 410 persons here over 60."

Why, then, isn't Los Alamos a perfect place to live? It is because the families here feel they dwell in a guarded fishbowl.

"No, not any more," one employe said. "The people have learned to live with secrecy, and it is no longer the shadow over them that it was a few years ago."

"As a matter of fact, those who live here now are about equally divided over whether they like or dislike it. There is a shortage of housing, and families have to wait their turn to move into the district which has the best homes."

This district is known locally as "Snob Hill" by those who don't live there.

Strength for the Day

DON'T LOSE THE KEY Have you ever lost your automobile keys? A young man was telling me recently how he slipped his keys into a pocket after he had driven to a distant bathing beach a few miles from his home. He discovered later that there was a hole in his pocket. It took him hours to get other keys and to get himself and his car back home.

There are people who have lost the key to right living. There is nothing very complicated about the lock, and a very simple key fashioned from right impulses, sincerity, loyalty, love, and faith will open the door of life and allow one to enter into a veritable treasure-trove. But some people just can't see it this way. They have to use the money key, or the liquor key, or the popularity-at-any-price key. And do those keys open anything?

Yes, they open Pandora's Box, enclosing all human ills. You remember, do you not, that box which Zeus gave Pandora and which she opened out of curiosity? The myth of Pandora declares that there was hope in the box and that this alone she prevented from escaping. But she allowed to escape every evil plague by which the soul of man can be assailed.

Don't lose the key. It's easy to do so, but if you do, happiness will depart with the losing. DON'T LOSE THE KEY.

Again Caught With Our Blueprints Down

After two years of war in Korea, the emphasis at home on military defense and mobilization, and greatly expanded military appropriations, it is surprising that the United States has fewer military aircraft now than it did at the beginning of the Korean conflict.

It would seem with the build-up of other military forces, the United States would have made substantial gains in the number of aircraft in service in the past two years. Yet the statistics show that the production has not kept pace with the losses in combat, accidents and obsolescence.

It must be taken into consideration, however, that in spite of the relatively few years between the end of World War II and the beginning of the Korean war, the United States had to practically start from scratch with its aircraft production in the face of the new emergency. Surely, we had made a great deal of technical progress in aviation during the intervening years, but there was little mass production of new types of aircraft which had been developed.

When the aviation branch of the military was called upon to put its fighting units into the skies, it had to send out the planes of the World War II variety. For practical purposes of combat, that's all it had.

The sad truth is that once more the United States is having to learn by experience that it takes a long time for new military weapons to progress from the blueprint stage. The numerical superiority of the Communists' aircraft is now undisputed. Yet we have been lucky that this superiority has not been exploited.

For the second time in a decade, the United States has been caught with its blueprints down. Even with all the talk about maintaining preparedness following World War II, we are just now beginning to fully realize just how unprepared we still are. With American production, the next 12 months should make a great difference in the balance of air power between the West and the East; but we cannot thrust aside the fact that it has taken two years to move into production on an appreciable scale.

A similar mistake of unpreparedness in the future could mean the difference of life and death for the nation.

The Obligation Remains To Be Fulfilled

It County citizens who think they filled their obligation to themselves, their obligations to themselves, their State and their neighbors by casting ballots in the first primary four weeks ago are mistaken.

Those who voted filled their obligations for the moment, but now there is a post yet to be decided, that it is the responsibility of all the voters—not just a few—to determine who will sit on the vacant seat in the State Supreme Court.

FICTION—At the moment Taft and Eisenhower are making sheep's eyes at Governor John S. Fine of Pennsylvania, whose decision may determine the nominee.

Peggy Edwards And Tom Rowlett Pledge Vows In Grimesland

The Proctor Memorial Christian Church of Grimesland, North Carolina, was the setting of a formal candlelight ceremony on Tuesday June 24, at five o'clock, when Miss Peggy Irene Edwards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Richard Rouse Jr., became the bride of Thomas Critcher Rowlett, son of Mrs. Clinton Boyd Rowlett of Greenville.

The Reverend G. H. Sullivan, pastor of the bride, officiated at the ceremony, which was preceded by a program of organ music and songs presented by Mrs. W. R. Hunnicutt, organist, and Mrs. T. R. Andrews Jr., soloist, both of Beineel, N. C. Mrs. Hunnicutt used as her selections "Evening Star" by Wagner, "Liebestraum" by Liszt, Ave Maria by Bach-Gounod, "O Promise Me" by DeKaven and "Through the Years" by Vincent Youmans. Mrs. Andrews sang "Because" by D'Hardelot and "I Love Thee" by Grieg.

As the couple knelt for prayer, Sam Northrop of Greenville sang "The Lord's Prayer" by Malotte as a benediction. The traditional wedding marches were used.

Lighted cathedral candles were placed against a background of bridal greenery consisting of western cedar, emerald greens and huckleberry with graceful floor baskets of white gladioli. Single candle holders were used on either side of the prayer altar which was decorated with western cedar, white gladioli and white satin bows. The pews for the immediate families were marked with bouquets of white asters and white satin ribbon.

Mr. G. E. Critcher served as best man for his nephew and groomsmen were C. P. Gaskins, J. C. Whiteford III, Dr. S. T. White, Ben Harrison, J. Knott Proctor Jr. and Connor Merritt, all of Greenville, N. C. Miss Nancy Proctor of Greenville attended as maid of honor and Mrs. C. C. Hughes of Greenville as matron of honor. They wore formal gowns of Nile green net over satin with headdress of nylon tulle and mitts to match, and carried arm bouquets of pink asters and pink sweetheart roses tied with orchid and Nile green satin ribbon.

Attending as bridesmaids were Mrs. W. A. Bowen, sister of the groom, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Leon Ellis of High Point. Junior maids were Miss Gay Hudson of Grimesland and Miss Barbara Rouse, sister of the bride. They wore dresses of Nile green net also and carried similar bouquets of orchid and pink. Master Bill Proctor of Greenville was ring bearer.

The bride entered the church with her father by whom she was given in marriage. Her wedding gown was of unforgettable beauty, fashioned of nylon net and lace with off the shoulder portrait neckline edged with lace, with tight fitting bodice and very full skirt, which formed a cathedral train, with which costume she wore long net gloves. Her bonnet was of illusion and lace applique, etched with sequins and simulated pearls, and had a tiered illusion veil edged with lace to match her gown that fell into full train. She carried a prayer book, a treasured gift from childhood, given to her by her mother, centered with a white orchid and showered with illusion and white satin ribbon.

Mrs. Rouse, mother of the bride, chose for her daughter's wedding a blue lace ballerina length dress with light blue hat, gloves and shoes to match and wore a purple orchid.

Mrs. Rowlett, mother of the groom wore a gown of aqua lace with matching accessories and also wore an orchid corsage.

Mrs. Rowlett was a graduate of Grimesland High School, attended Averett Junior College in Danville, Virginia. Hardbarger's Business School in Raleigh and received her AB Degree from East Carolina College. For the past 18 months she has been teaching in the city schools of Asheboro, North Carolina.

Mr. Rowlett was graduated from Greenville High School and attended East Carolina College and at the present holds a position with the Export Leaf Tobacco Company in Greenville.

After a wedding trip through the mountains of North Carolina, Mr. and Mrs. Rowlett will be at home in Greenville.

For traveling, the bride changed to a white costume suit with brown and white accessories and an orchid corsage.

Reception
 Immediately following the ceremony the parents of the bride entertained at a reception in the church parlor.

The reception room was decorated with white candles, assorted greens and large floor baskets of white gladioli. The refreshment table was covered with a green organdy cloth over white satin and centered with a crystal epergne holding an arrangement of white asters, Bristol fairy and long white candles.

Mrs. C. H. Spiggle and Mrs. W. A. Hudson greeted the guests and Mr. and Mrs. J. Knott Proctor introduced them to the receiving line, which was composed of Mr. and Mrs. Rouse, Mrs. Rowlett, the bride and groom and their attendants.

Mrs. W. F. Galloway and Mrs. Dan White served lime ice punch from crystal punch bowls at either end of the table. Mrs. Ben Harrison presided over the guest book, and good-byes were said to Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Wichard.

After Rehearsal Party
 Mrs. Tom Andrews, Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Andrews Jr. and Mrs. W. B. Soyars entertained informally the Rowlett-Edwards wedding party, families and out-of-town guests at a cake cutting on Monday night at the home of Mrs. T. R. Rouse in Grimesland.

After guests were greeted at the door by the host and hostesses they were invited into the dining room for refreshments.

After the bridal couple had cut the lucky slice of the three-tiered cake and favors were drawn by the attendants, Mrs. C. B. Rowlett Jr. served the other guests. Mrs. Rouse served bridal loaves and Mrs. Ethel Tucker served punch.

The table was covered with an Italian cut work cloth and centered with a crystal epergne filled with white and pink asters, Bristol fairy and long pink tapers.

Artistic arrangements of pink and white garden flowers were used throughout the home.

Approximately 60 guests were received during the evening.

Wedding Breakfast
 At noon before the wedding on Tuesday, the wedding party, attendants and out-of-town guests were guests at a wedding breakfast held at the home of Mrs. C. B. Rowlett.

Assisting as host and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gaskins and Mrs. C. B. Rowlett Jr.

The home was festively decorated in a bridal motif and approximately 40 guests were served a course breakfast.

Parents Vote To Sponsor Little League Tournaments

Final Approval Expected To Be Given At Meeting Friday Night; Tournaments Scheduled To Begin August 4

A large gathering of parents and interested persons last night voted to accept the offer of playing host to the district and state Little League baseball tournaments.

Final action on the tournaments is subject to approval when the complete details, such as arrangements for housing and feeding the guest players and fans, are known. The District One tournament, to be played during the week of August 4, will bring teams from three cities to Greenville, with an estimated 100 players. State competition will involve eight clubs and an estimated 138 players.

Greenville Little League president Marvin Blount, immediately following the accepted motion to sponsor the tournaments, appointed chairmen to several committees to look into the matter from a local viewpoint. The largest difficulty will hang on the housing and feeding arrangements.

The committees will report next Friday night in the final meeting of the pre-tourney discussions, and final approval or disapproval will be given then. The meeting will be held in the basement of the Presbyterian Church here at 8 p.m.

State Little League Director Warren Carroll, also city recreation director here, reported on his trip to Williamsport, Pa. last week, when he was given the state directorship by Little League Commissioner Carl Stots.

Carroll told the group last night, one of the largest of the year, that the national organization is pressing the principals of Little League to all the parents and managers. Sportsmanship, especially on the part of the adults, is the chief idea in the campaign.

Carroll stated that the North Carolina tournament will run over four days, scheduled to begin on August 11. Winner of the state tournament will qualify for the Regional Five Tournament to be held the next week. Region Five involves, besides North Carolina, the states of South Carolina, Florida, Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee and Kentucky.

District One clubs will play out of Rocky Mount (three leagues), Williamston, Farmville and Greenville.

Maxim Expected To Be Underdog

By JACK HAND
NEW YORK (AP) — Sugar Ray Robinson remains a solid 13-10 favorite to win his third boxing crown tonight in the once-postponed light heavyweight title bout with champion Joey Maxim of Cleveland.

Another hot soggy day, with a possibility of thundershowers toward night, was forecast for Yankee Stadium where the 15-round match is scheduled at 9:00 p.m., Eastern Standard Time. If it should rain, the fight would be shoved back to Thursday.

Despite many refunds, yesterday's net receipts ran about $10,000 ahead of cancellations, bringing the advance sale to $270,000. Jim Nogris, International Boxing Club president, predicted a gate of over $350,000 and 35,000 people.

Maxim did four miles roadwork in Central Park yesterday and sweated freely as he loosened up with five rounds of shadow boxing, bag punching and rope jumping at Stillman's Gym.

They didn't weigh Joey after the work but he scaled 174 1-2 in the morning. He says he'll come in under the 174 3-4 he weighed Monday

Ormondville Is Leader Of Bright Belt Standings

FARMVILLE—Ormondville took over first place in the semi-pro Bright Belt League here last night by edging Stantonburg, 5-2, with a five run outburst in the fourth inning providing the winning margin.

Jimmy Byrd went the distance for the winners, and kept the Stantonburg team under perfect control for most of the way. Byrd had a shutout working until the seventh inning when Stantonburg reached him for a single run. The Wilson County club added their second run in the eighth.

Red McDaniels led the fourth inning jaunt off the slants of right-hander Fred Pittman with a long two-bagger. McDaniels collected three hits in four times at the plate during the night.

Edmondson, Roebuck Lead Lions To 4-3 Decision

An unearned run in the sixth inning enabled the Lions to take a 4-3 victory over the Exchanges in the Little League yesterday.

In the sixth, Bobby Pridmore reached first on an error with one man out. Aubrey Harrison followed suit on an error on the third baseman. McKenzie, batting for Pridmore, walked to fill the sacks. Mack Roebuck then singled to score Pridmore with the winning run.

Roebuck and Maylon Edmondson were the stars in the Lions victory. Edmondson collected two hits and starred afield to lead the team in that department, while Roebuck went the distance of the game on the mound and allowed but five hits. He also belted a triple and two singles to aid his cause.

The Exchange team took the lead with singletons in the first, second and third innings. An unearned run in the third, with Billy Fields walking and going all the way round on errors, put the losers ahead for a brief time.

Dick Groat Misses Unassisted Triple Play By Only One Out

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP)—Two near misses by the rawest rookie and the litlest pitcher in the majors gave the second division Pittsburgh Pirates and Philadelphia Athletics small consolation today as both tumbled further off the pace.

Dick Groat of the Pirates just missed making an unassisted triple play. Bisy Bobby Shantz of the Athletics just missed winning his 12th straight game in a five-hit defeat that took no lustre off his record.

Groat, signed last week for $75,000 by the Pirates as he stepped off the Duke campus and into the Pittsburgh first string shortstop post, was within inches of the first unassisted triple play in the majors since May 31, 1927 in Boston.

With runners on first and second in the third inning, Groat took a liner by Earl Torgeson and stepped on second to retire the speedy Sam Jethroe.

He hesitated an instant to see if he could run down Bob Thorpe, realized he had little chance and threw to first to sacrifice glory for a sure out.

The Braves went on to win, 4 to 3, as George Crowe singled home the winning run in the ninth, nullifying a three-run eighth inning homer by Gus Bell.

At the other end of the National League, the New York Giants gained a game on the Brooklyn Dodgers and wound up found behind them by trimming Cincinnati, 3 to 1 and 7 to 4, while the Dodgers topped the St. Louis Cards, 6 to 0, then lost, 7 to 4.

The Philadelphia Phils whacked the puncheon Chicago Cubs, 6 to 0 and 2 to 1, to extend their losing streak to nine games.

In the American League, Shantz, in a duel with Early Wynn of the Indians gave up only five hits in defeat while Wynn yielded five in victory. But two of the Cleveland hits, a single by Bobby Avila and a homer by Al Rosen occurred in the third inning and the As never could catch up.

The Indians moved back to second, three games behind the New York Yankees, who lopped the St. Louis Browns, 8 to 3, while the Tigers retarded Boston 7 to 1, and Washington again punished Chicago, 6 to 2.

The Giants parlayed two unearned runs and a homer by Hank Thompson to give Jim Hearn the margin for his eighth victory against one defeat in the opener.

In the second game Bobby Thompson hit his 14th homer and a double and Bob Elliott conked a double and triple to give Hoyt Wilhelm margin for his fifth victory in a two-hit, six inning relief role.

Preacher Roe made it seven wins without a loss with a six-hitter in Brooklyn as Gil Hodges hit a three run homer and Duke Snider supplied two bases empty route clouts.

Kennan May Have New Slant On Red Intentions

By PHIL NEWSON
United Press Foreign News Editor
It seems a bit unusual that only about six weeks after George F. Kennan took over as U. S. ambassador to Moscow he is flying out again to confer with Secretary of State Dean Acheson.
Two possible conclusions come to mind at once.
One is that since Acheson will be conferring with the British and French foreign ministers in London and since the question of a four-power conference with Russia is among the subjects to be discussed, the U. S. secretary simply wants his ambassador to be acquainted with the proceedings.
The other is that Kennan—the U. S. diplomat best acquainted with Russia and author of the plan to contain communism—has something to report he won't even trust to the diplomatic pouches.
The latter idea is probably far-fetched. But Kennan is reported very disturbed by the increasing virulence of the anti-American attacks carried by the Soviet press and radio.
What's more, Washington is equally disturbed.
A United Press dispatch from Washington Monday said that the Russian campaign surpasses "even the wildest and most terrible" charges the Russians ever made against the Nazis in World War II.

American officials wonder, said the Washington dispatch, "if the Soviet people are being 'conditioned' for war with the U. S."
So far as Europe is concerned, the tinder box most likely to supply the spark continues to be Germany.
The state of nerves there may be judged from the fact that the Russians charged that American soldiers fired from a military train on a station master and a policeman at a railway station in the Russian zone just outside Berlin last Thursday night.
The "shots", an investigation disclosed, actually were exploding firecrackers tossed from the train by boy scouts on their way to a jamboree.
However, more serious and reminiscent of the tension-filled days just prior to World War II, have been the numerous incidents in Berlin itself.
There, Russian-led East German police have kidnaped West Berliners, an American soldier has been wounded by a shot fired by an East German policeman across the line of the divided city, Allied territory has been seized.
Barbed wire and log barriers have been set up along the line dividing East and West Germany, and any persons attempting to cross are threatened with being shot.
It could be that the Russians simply are withdrawing into their shell; that the Russian people are being told how happy they should be that they are not in the United States; that East Germany simply is being prepared as another Russian satellite inside the Iron Curtain.
But the spy trials in both Britain and Sweden; the shooting down of an unarmed Swedish plane over the Baltic and the continued charges of germ warfare and assorted atrocities against the United States do not add up to a reassuring picture.
Although it is not especially intelligent, the squirrel monkey has a brain which is larger in proportion than a man's.

Taft Picks His Battleline For Fight Over Texas

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP) — Sen. Robert A. Taft has picked the line beyond which he will not retreat in his dispute with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower over contested Republican national convention delegates.
Taft earlier overruled some of his advisers who wanted to seat, without hearing of any kind, the pro-Taft delegation from Texas. The senator held that both contesting Texas delegations should have an opportunity to appear in Chicago before the Republican national committee. The committee accepted Taft's view of it.
The dispute, therefore, will go the full route of inquiry from the national committee to the credentials committee and thence to the convention floor.
The first showdown of Taft-Eisenhower strength on the floor will be on a convention ruling made by temporary chairman Elihu Root in 1912 when Theodore Roosevelt was seeking to prevent renomination of President William Howard Taft, the senator's father.
Delegates sufficient to sway the convention either way were contested then, as now. Roosevelt's supporters failed to carry a motion which would have barred all contested delegates from voting on any matter relating to contested seats from any state.
When that motion failed, Root ruled that contested delegates who had been seated temporarily by the credentials committee would vote on all delegate contests other than their own. That ruling delivered permanent convention control to William Howard Taft's managers, and he was nominated. TR voted and Woodrow Wilson was elected president.
Senator Taft holds that Root's ruling was sound then and is sound now. He and his managers will attempt to sustain it in Chicago next month when Eisenhower's managers seek to have it reversed.
That was the position Taft took here this week in response to charges that his representatives stole the Texas delegation from Eisenhower. He does not plan to retreat from it.
Taft feels that reversal of the Root ruling would be an invitation to individuals in many states to create utterly phony delegate contests. These would be for the purpose of temporarily disqualifying a delegation from voting at all in the temporary roll call by which a convention is organized.

Chapter 14

"So much for psychology," Gardner gently chided. "Really, I'm quite disappointed in you, John. I fully expected to have you instantly disclose something that happened to me in the vacant allotment when I was six and a half."

"Paul, you're hopeless," Melisande cut in and there were twin red spots high upon her cheeks. "The errand, John, the errand."

"I came to offer you the use of my cottage on the Hawksbury River," Taylor said. "It's unoccupied just now, except for the caretaker, who lives in an outhouse. Would you care to accept it for a few weeks?"

"That's boy scout stuff," Paul story, too. What do you think?"

"About the dream?"

"Yes—the dream."

"I think it's probably tied up with something or other from the past. All dreams are, I understand."

"Not to mention the present and possibly the future," Taylor said. "However, I'll consult the dream book."

"When may we go down to the Hawksbury?" Melisande asked.

"Any time from now. The bus connects up with a launch, and after that you take off in a row-boat. Getting there's quite complicated. The house is completely isolated. Honeymoon paradise. You will like it."

For the next half hour they sat and talked about the cottage, and then Taylor left.

"My next visit isn't likely to be quite so pleasant," he said, departing; and from thence he thoughtfully walked towards Number Twelve, the home of Jeannie O'Bourke.

He'd wanted the girl to stay at home today. He'd important things to say to her and he wished that it could have been anybody else but Jeannie. A great fester of trouble was fast developing in his mind as he rapped upon the door. Mrs. O'Bourke appeared.

"Jeannie upstairs, waiting for you," the lady said.

Back at Number Thirteen the business of packing was hurriedly begun.

As Melisande moved round the room throwing garments into an open case she had a sudden feeling of revulsion about the district, the street, the house, this very room. For some unaccountable reason the license and the freedom that she'd come to associate with Grover Street began to descend upon her conscience with the weight of a steel anchor and she wanted to eschew it all and escape back to the normal forms. Maybe there was something to be said for luncheon with the vicar, after all, and croquet on the lawn. Sensitive to atmosphere, she'd suddenly sensed herself out of her depth, here, and a fierce longing to return to a comfortable situation began to possess her thoughts. It didn't occur to her that she was acting oddly. In fact, she told herself that it was not odd at all—though the events of the past few days did appear to her like a strange, new stage-play, with herself entirely foreign to her. She'd experienced many moods since coming to Grover Street, some gay, some melancholy, but this was the saddest mood of them all—this sudden recognition of the fact that she'd cast herself, unbidden, into an unfamiliar and unnatural role, and it shocked her now to realize that she was married to Paul Gardner, and this was one feature of the situation that was irrevocable and inescapable.

Paul fascinated her, of this she was certain. He had gifts of making the commonplace seem exciting and adventurous. She suspected that his chief artistry was with words and moods, and that he played with these as though they were palettes and brushes. It was ridiculous to think that she'd permanently taken this man into herself.

As she turned around she saw Paul standing silently behind her. He'd made no sound as he'd approached.

"You're worried, aren't you, Sandy?" he said, coming closer and smoothing her hair.

"I didn't hear you come down, Paul," was all she could think of to say just then.

"It's not too late to pull out, if you want to," he went on.

"What nonsense!"

"That's what you were just thinking, isn't it?"

"Ridiculous, Paul. You'd do better to help me with the packing."

Melisande managed to choke off her feeling of resentment. What right had Paul to intrude himself into her private thoughts?

With her hair hanging loosely round her face and her mouth sullen, she stood away from him and eyed him questioningly. She saw his nostrils quiver and heard his breathing suddenly become deep. His rich blue eyes sparkled with approval as he stretched out his arms and began to move in her direction. Melisande stood her ground, felt his hands creep round her shoulders. Then she closed her eyes submissively and felt the fierce pressure of his mouth. He released her and looked deep into her eyes.

Then he hurried back to the studio and she didn't see him again until it was time for lunch.

We keep complete individual records of each of our trucks and have found that Dodge is by far the lowest cost to operate. In fact, our Dodge costs us .6 of a cent less per ton-mile to operate than our next closest truck! This difference must be the result of Dodge's many economy features.

Furthermore, we've found that our Dodge "Job-Rated" truck will haul a full load of sand or gravel up hills that several of our other trucks won't take. Our next truck will be a Dodge.

Convention Hall Hot Air Situation Licked

By HARMAN W. NICHOL
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—Those political conventions in Chicago next month will be hot affairs, but the air cooling folks figure they have the situation licked.

Never before has a national political convention been air-cooled. And air-conditioning people admit it's pretty hard to calculate the amount of steam coming out of 12,000 persons.

But one outfit, the Carrier Corp., has made a stab at it. The Carrier experts, who provided the cooling system at the international amphitheater where the meetings will be held, have done some figuring.

They estimate that the body heat let off by the 12,000 persons per session would be enough to cook more than 15,000 hot dogs an hour. That would be more than enough hot dogs to make it once around the human hotplate, it is estimated, also each hour can produce enough heat to sizzle more than 16,000 16-ounce steaks.

The engineers have rigged up machines to control humidity as well as cooling comfort. They claim, by the way, that 12,000 people attending each session for a week would evaporate more than 26,000 gallons of perspiration, which is really sweating it out.

There will be a complete change of air every hour on the hour through the cooling system. That's going to knock reporters away from one of their best clichés—the one about the "smoke-filled hall."

The caucus rooms, though, likely will be smoke-filled and also awful hot. Also the press rooms.

Some of the ducts carrying air in and out of the place are so large that four sky-high modern basketball players could walk through the things, side by side, without crowding one another or stooping.

And how much heat does the human body throw out, anyway? Well, the experts say that each person in the hall will throw off heat at the rate of 550 British thermal units per hour. BTU means the amount of heat required to raise the temperature of one pound of water one degree Fahrenheit.

The British thought up the term, and our engineers use it, too. For non-engineer, the experts put it this way:
The 600,000,000 BTUs released in

Housecleaning Called For By A. Harriman

TACOMA, Wash. — (AP)—Averell Harriman called last night for a housecleaning among some Democratic elements in Congress.

"We the Democrats have a phony majority in Congress," he told a Pierce County Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner, "of men masquerading as Democrats."

He blamed these "phonies" for the defeat of several phases of President Truman's "Fair Deal" program. The Democratic presidential aspirant received a warm reception from the capacity turnout of 600.

He referred to Republicans as "grim old pessimists," predicted the total output of the country could be expanded by 100 billion dollars in eight years with 70 million persons employed, and declared America holds the initiative in the cold war with Russia.

NEW YORK — (AP)—Seaman Robert H. Rawlins, 43, won a Federal Court jury award of $65,000 yesterday because a hippopotamus he was assigned to feed bit off his right arm.

The incident occurred last summer when the hippo was being brought here from Africa for the Central Park Zoo aboard the freighter Africa Star. Rawlins used the ship's owner, Farrell Lines, Inc.

In the petroleum group, Kern County Land was a bright spot with a gain of 1 3/8 points to 55 3/8. Richfield Oil added 1 3/8 points to 71 and Shell at 81 1/2 was up 1/2 points.

Council Policy Plans Outlined At Scout Meet

Pitt District Committee, East Carolina Council, Boy Scouts of America, in session Monday night at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, outlined plans for carrying out council policies this summer.

Chairman J. B. Kittrell, who presided, led the discussion of Boy Scout activities. Howard K. Hunter, district Boy Scout executive, reported that eight boys of Greenville Troop 30 now are at Camp Charles, near Bailey. They are there for periods ranging from one to five weeks and for the purpose of camping and receiving special training.

While the Boy Scout District Committee was meeting in one room at the church, Boy Scout troop leaders engaged in a roundtable discussion of plans and projects for troops during the fall and winter months. Jack Dowdy of Greenville, district leader, presided. He reported that there is now more activity among Boy Scouts of Pitt District than in a long time.

Thirty-four sponsors of Boy Scout troops in the district are represented on the Pitt District Boy Scout Committee, District Executive Hunter stated. The committee meets once a month and the Boy Scout troop leaders have their roundtable discussions at the same time.

FEPC Bill Given Little Chance On Senate Floor

Washington (UP) — A watered-down fair employment bill was given little chance today of reaching the Senate floor before Congress quits for the political conventions next month.

But if it does, Sen. James O. Eastland said, "I am ready and anxious to speak as long as it takes to defeat it."

The Mississippi Democrat said the bill, approved yesterday by the Senate Labor Committee, is the "same thing" as the Fair Employment Practices Committee (FEPC), even though it has another name.

"They can't perfume it and make it sweet," he said. "It will never pass."

Another Southerner, Sen. Allen J. Ellender (La.) charged that sponsors of the bill are "using it for political purposes" by bringing it up just before the national party conventions.

The bill is sponsored by 16 Northern Democrats and Republicans, including Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (Minn.), author of the controversial civil rights plank in the 1948 democratic platform.

Ellender said Humphrey "wants to get a little publicity in case he tries it again."

Humphrey said the bill provides a new approach to curbing racial and religious discrimination in employment by emphasizing persuasion and by leaving much of the field to states and local communities.

"Every attempt has been made," he said, "to write a bill which meets every reasonable objection and yet provides enforcement and remedial authority."

The Democratic policy committee already has outlined a heavy schedule of "must" legislation.

Pilots Warned Of Flying Too Low

Police Chief Guy C. Langston said today one of his officers had contacted the pilot of a crop dusting airplane that had been flying too low over Greenville.

Police Capt. Raymond Rogerson talked with the pilot and warned him about flying too low over the city. Rogerson said the pilot assured him he would not do any more flying over Greenville.

Numerous residents of the city had complained to police about low flying planes, and a complaint came from the Little League baseball park.

Capitol Square

(Continued from Page Four) the presidential candidate in 1948, not long after the ill-fated campaign. But the party maintains a national organization and has scheduled a national convention to be held in Chicago next week—July 4, 5, 6. Plans call for adoption of a platform and nomination of candidates for president and vice president. Party headquarters in New York send out frequent news releases in which the Progressive party is pictured as the hope for America because it is the only party providing for amicable relationships between our people and the 250 million folks in the Soviet Union and 475 million in China. Paramounting these nations as most important for us to conciliate proves the leanings of the Progressive party to the communistic ideas. The Progressive party is not considered a serious threat, but it cannot be completely ignored.

Henry Wallace polled 1,137,857 votes in 1948 out of a total falling just below 49 million in the nation. That was 2.3 per cent for Wallace. In North Carolina he did better than double that percentage. Out of 783,209 votes cast for all presidential candidates, Wallace got 3915, just a shade less than 5 per cent.
