Orders Count In House On Control Bill Killing; Party Leaders Agree

Democratic Leaders Want Roll Call On Vote Tentatively Wiping Out Controls; Present Law Expires Monday

WASHINGTON UP)—Democratic leaders, with an eye on the November elections, ordered the rebellious House to stand up and be counted today on its tentative votes to kill price controls.

The final outcome was in doubt. Republican and Democratic leaders agreed the roll call votes — on which each member's vote is recorded—would be "close."

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON (UP) — The House voted tentatively today to end federal rent controls Sept. 30 in all but "critical defense housing areas" or where local governments specifically request them.

By a 144 to 113 teller vote the provision was approved as the House's amendment-riddled controls bill moved toward final passage.

As the House's amendment-battered bill moved toward final passage, it was stripped of virtually all economic controls except those over strategic materials and rents.

The present controls law expires at midnight Monday. A Senate-House conference committee will be assigned to work out a compromise between the House's "decontrol" bill and the Senate bill which would extend all economic controls for eight or 12 months with comparatively minor changes.

Price Stabilizer Ellis Arnall said last night it would be better for Congress to "kill" wage - price controls entirely than to enact a "fake" controls program, weakened and crippled by amendments.

The crucial House rollcall votes were slated on an amendment by Rep. Henry O. Talle (R-Ia.) which would end nearly all price controls at midnight Monday by limiting ceilings to items which are either rationed or allocated, and an amendment by Rep. Graham A. Barden (D-NC) that would repeal outright all remaining price-wage curbs on July 31.

The Talle amendment was tentatively approved 146-88 Friday, and the Barden amendment 118-87 yesterday.

House Republican leader Joseph W. Martin, Jr. voted against the Barden amendment, but many other Republicans and many Southern Democrats supported it.

The GOP-Southern Democrat coalition controlled the chamber yesterday in the absence of scores of Northern Democrats who normally support the administration. Absenteeism by electioneering members was so rife that less than half of the chamber's 435 members were present to vote on several key tests.

The Senate bill would extend wage-price-rent controls for eight months and credit-allocation curbs for one year with comparatively few changes.

The House bill, on the other hand, would let all credit curbs expire June 30, and give the government a choice between removing controls over use of scarce materials in civilian production or raising tariff barriers against foreign products.

The House bill would continue the government's present program of granting special loans and tax amortization to industry as inducements to expand defense production facilities.

Bright Belt To Meet To Set Its Opening Dates

To Consider And Recommend Dates For 1952 Tobacco Season

RALEIGH (AP)—The sales committee of the Bright Belt Warehouse Association planned to meet here today to consider and recommend opening dates for the 1952 flue-cured tobacco auctioning season.

The group was scheduled to hear several tobacco buyers and representatives of farm organizations express their views on the opening dates and number of selling hours per day on the five flue-cured belts.

The five-member sales committee will make its recommendations to the Bright Belt Association's board of governors at a meeting here tomorrow afternoon.

The board of governors will set the opening sales dates and hours of sales per day for the following flue-cured belts: Georgia-Florida, North and South Carolina Border, Eastern North Carolina, Middle North Carolina, and Virginia and North Carolina Old Belt.

Sales Committee Chairman J. C. Eagles Jr. of Wilson said the board of governors is expected to study further an action it took several weeks ago to increase from 300 to 350 pounds the maximum weight per pile of tobacco.

Eagles said the action has drawn objections. Some tobacco men voiced the opinion the sale of larger piles would boost volume of sales and make it necessary to curtail selling time to avoid overtaxing redrying plants. It was also pointed out that warehouse laborers objected to handling such heavy piles.

The South Carolina Warehouse Association has set July 28 as the opening date of sales for its markets. This association, which includes all South Carolina markets except Mullins, the state's largest, withdrew from the Bright Belt Association last year.

Execution Date Set For Collazo

WASHINGTON (AP)—Aug. 1 was set today as the execution date for Oscar Collazo, the Puerto Rican who tried to kill President Truman nearly 20 months ago.

Collazo, unsuccessful in appeals from conviction of murder of a White House guard, was brought into U. S. District Court and told of the time fixed for him to die in the electric chair.

The little Puerto Rican fanatic, neatly dressed in a brown suit and wearing a red tie, never uttered a word during the brief proceeding before Judge F. Dickenson Letts.

Leo A. Rover, court-appointed chief counsel for Collago, asked "for a little more time," but Letts denied the plea.

Rover said friends of Collazo want to appeal to President Truman for clemency.

Only the President could now save Collazo from the chair.

Claim Russell Is Gaining Strength

Manager States Russell Making 'Steady Headway' In Support

WASHINGTON UP) —Supporters of Sen. Richard B. Russell claimed today that the Georgia Democrat is gaining strength for his presidential bid on his Western tour.

Sen. Edwin C. Johnson, Russell's campaign manager, said the Georgian is making "steady headway" seeking convention support. The Colorado Democrat said: Russell, has "built a lot of good will" for his campaign bid.

In one of the most important appearances of his campaign to date, Russell was scheduled to deliver a nationwide radio speech at 9:30 p. m. EST tonight from Denver.

Another Western Russell booster, Sen. Pat McCarran (D-Nev.) told newsmen that Russell has been gaining strength on the Western trip. McCarran predicted that Russell will build his delegate total to near the 500 mark by the third or fourth convention ballot.

It takes 616 delegate votes to get the Democratic presidential nomination.

Russell predicted yesterday that he will get 300 votes on the first convention ballot. Thereafter, he said, he will increase the total until he walks off with the nomination.

Informed political sources said Russell's Western gains have been largely of the "second ballot" variety—commitments to vote for Russell after previous commitments to other cdidates have been discharged.

In Arizona yesterday Russell suggested that Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn) repudiate his campaign manager, Gael Sullivan, for Sullivan's recent statement that supporters of Russell, Illinois Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson, and Mutual Security Administrator W. Averell Harriman were plotting to insure Stevenson's nomination.

"The statement was made merely to bolster Kefauver's failing campaign," Russell said. In a Phoenix speech, Russell also attacked "efforts of extreme liberals to take over the Democratic party.

Meanwhile in New Orleans, Kefauver appealed for Louisiana's 20 national convention votes. There were strong indications he would get them if Russell is eliminated or withdraws from the race.

The Tennessean said he is "aware of the delegate support in Louisiana of Sen. Russell, but if Russell is not nominated, I hope the delegation will support me, and I believe it will."

Water Off Tonight

Water service in all areas of the city lying north of Tar River will be suspended for a period of approximately three hours tonight, Utilities Superintendent Martin Swartz announced this morning.

Swartz explained that the interruption will begin around midnight and probably last until 2:30 or 3 o'clock. "It is necessary to suspend service so that workmen may tie onto a 12-inch main which runs from the water plant to First and Greene streets," he said.

Water was off for a short time in some sections of the city Friday night and again last night. The superintendent said necessary repairs accounted for the interruptions, but they were made rather late in the night so as not to affect too many people.

NATO Charges Prisoners Killed

PARIS (AP)—The North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) charged today that war prisoners in Soviet hands are being systematically killed off by forced labor in Russia and Northern Siberia.

In a lengthy analysis of the fate of millions of Europeans and Japanese captured by Soviet armies during World War II, NATO declared it is impossible to know exactly how many of the estimated three million still in Soviet hands at the end of 1946 are still alive.

"It is likely," said the NATO report, "that most of the three million 'missing' prisoners have filled common and nameless grave pits along the new Trans-Siberian Railway."

It said that at the end of 1946 some two million Western Axis prisoners—Germans, Italians, Hungarians and some French—and about 800,000 Japanese were working in Central Siberia on the new northern link of the Trans-Siberian Railway which runs from the middle valley of the Volgato to the northern tip of Kaje Baikal.

Truman Ready To Play 'Tit For Tat' In T-H Act

House Joins Senate In Asking That Labor Law Be Invoked At Once

WASHINGTON UP) —President Truman was reported ready to play "tit for tat" with Congress today by rejecting, for the moment at least, its request to use the Taft-Hartley Act to end the 25-day-old steel strike.

The House joined the Senate yesterday in asking that the labor law be invoked to clear the way for an 80-day court injunction against the walkout by 650,000 steel workers. Congress had previously rebuffed the President by rejecting his request for powers to seize the steel mills.

A high government official said Mr. Truman would not invoke the Taft-Hartly law until next week, if then.

He declined to say, however, whether the delay had any connection with a report from Rep. Charles A. Halleck (R-Ind), that a steel settlement is expected within a week.

However, another government official said there is "growing pressure" on Mr. Truman to use the Taft-Hartley Act as soon as possible.

Mr. Truman has said he is not sure a court injunction would end the walkout. He also feels that the union has complied with the spirit of the law by voluntarily holding off strike action for more than 80 days.

Meanwhile, Price Stabilizer Ellis Arnall warned it would be a "mistake to capitulate" to the steel industry's demand for an above-ceiling price increase.

Arnall reiterated on a television program last night that the companies have no more than $3 a ton coming to them under the so-called Capehart Regulation. He added that he would stick to that "whether they squeal loudly or whisper in a low voice."

He said other administration officials had offered $4.50 a ton during the dispute, but described the move as "an effort to buy off the strike."

Industrial layoffs continued to mount because of the extended strike. By the weekend, some 55,000 automobile workers will be laid off, including 7,000 Chevrolet employes due to be idled today. More than 45,000 coal miners and 25,000 railroad workers were already out of work due to the growing shortage of steel.

Despite Halleck's optimistic prediction of an early end to the strike, union and industry spokesmen reported no change in the situation since secret negotiations broke up the week before last.

Look Into Alleged Irregularities In Henderson County

RALEIGH—(AP)—The SBI is looking into alleged election irregularities in Henderson County, SBI Director James W. Powell reported today.

Powell said the request for the probe came to him from the State Board of Elections through the Governor's office. He added that SBI Agent Claude Davis of Asheville is handling the case and has been on the job for about a week.

The Henderson County board of elections on June 6 removed Zeb V. Kilpatrick as registrar of Hendersonville's Southwest precinct. It accused him of permitting voters to register up to the night before the May 31 primary—13 days after the registration books had been closed.

President Calls Off Conference Because Of Heat

WASHINGTON—(UP)—President Truman today cancelled his afternoon news conference because of the hot weather.

He called it off out of consideration for newsmen as the Weather Bureau predicted a high of 98 degrees.

The room in the old State Department building where Mr. Truman customarily meets reporters is not air conditioned.

Allied Truce Negotiator Stymies Red Delegates

Korean Report Before Cabinet

General Harrison Hammered At Reds Over Repatriation Of Prisoners; Nam Il Stammers Under Heat Of Remarks; Intends To Make Best Of Red's Situation

PANMUNJOM, Korea UP) — Chief Allied truce negotiator Maj. Gen. William K. Harrison had Communist delegates stymied today for the first time in the long hassle over repatriation of prisoners.

Harrison hammered at the embarrassed Reds without letup at today's 35-minute armistice meeting, demanding a satisfactory explanation of how they could oppose voluntary repatriation in Korea after Russia had introduced the principle during World War II.

Top Communist representative North Korean Gen. Nam Il stammered under the heat of Harrison's pointed remarks and the American general indicated he intended to make the best of the Reds' precarious position.

For the first time in recent months, Harrison refrained from asking for a recess of the long-stalemated truce talks. He repeatedly had said that further meetings were useless until the Reds were ready to come up with new proposals on the POW problem.

Harrison told newsmen after the meeting that he had the impression Nam Il "doesn't like the present situation" and that the Communists' truce defenses were "a little bit confused."

The U.N. armistice chief emphasized repeatedly that Nam, in insisting on forced repatriation of all Red prisoners, was disagreeing with the Soviet Union.

Russia offered German and Hungarian troops voluntary repatriation in 1943, Harrison pointed out, and a Soviet publication as recently as last year endorse. the Soviet stand as "humanitarian."

"Is it possible that you are condemning the Soviet declarations?" Harrison asked the Reds.

Nam protested that the U.N. was taking the Russian World War II offer "out of context" because it was applied to surrounded soldiers and not to men already captured.

PUSAN, Korea (UP)—A 70-year old Korean patriot who said he tried to kill the Emperor of Japan 30 years ago, confessed today that he plotted the unsuccessful attempt to assassinate President Syngman Rhee.

Aging elder statesman Kim Shi Yon admitted to police that he was responsible for the abortive attempt on Rhee's life, and said he would try it again if he had a chance.

"If the president were here I would kill him," police quoted Kim as saying in his jail cell.

Kim, a veteran legislator who spent 30 years in prison for his fight for independence from Japanese rule, is a member of the Korean Democratic Nationalist Party, Rhee's principal opposition in his fight with the National Assembly.

Police said the conspiracy to kill Rhee as he addressed a public gathering Wednesday was directly linked with the Nationalists. The pistol did not fire. Kim was arrested along with fellow assemblyman Noh Ki Yong.

The aged patriot's reputation as a fighter for Korean freedom during the long Japanese occupation of Korea was recounted by pro-Rhee assemblyman Lyuh Woon Hong.

Try Radio Man On Spy Charges

Operator Committed In Britain On Four Charges Of Spying

LONDON UP) — Britain will try on spy charges a young radio operator in the Foreign Office who is accused of betraying his country's secrets to a Russian diplomat.

William Martin Marshall, 24, was committed today by a magistrate for trial on four charges of passing to a member of the Russian embassy secret information "useful to a potential enemy" and of possessing a "dangerous" document whose contents may have been disclosed to Russia although the British recovered it.

Prosecutor JA.. Bass disclosed at today's hearing that the diplomat, Pavel Kuznetsov, second secretary at the Soviet embassy, was arrested with Marshall June 13. But the diplomat was released because of his diplomatic immunity.

Marshall, who worked at the British embassy in Moscow for a year before returning last December, had access to coded information at the Foreign Office transmitting station at Hanslope, England. He admitted that he knew his work was classified "secret."

Before Marshall was committed to trial, four secret witnesses testified privately for the state in an hour - long closed session. The courtroom was cleared of newsmen and spectators, including Marshall's parents, "in the interests of the state" while they testified.

The prosecution has given no hint of what the "highly confidential" information was which Marshall allegedly passed on to Kuznetsov.

But it presented a statement by Marshall which described at least eight meetings with Kuznetsov —a cloak-and-dagger tale of missed connections, whispered telephone calls and hasty sessions on park benches or at cafe tables.

The statement also told of Marshall's friendship for Russia and how he and Kuznetsov had "much in common" and "usually found ourselves in agreement" in their thoughts.

The Soviet embassy said Kutnetsov still was in London. The Foreign Office has indicated it will demand Kuznetsov's recall — if the charges against Marshall are proved in court.

Bass said in a diary found on Marshall gave the dates of his meetings with the diplomat.

Polio Outbreak Not Yet Sized Up

RALEIGH (UP) — Officials of the State Health Department said today it is too early to state that there will not be an oubreak of polio in North Carolina this year, but they called present indications "very encouraging."

Dr. John H. Hamilton, assistant state health officer and director of the laboratory of hygiene, said the rate of incidence is averaging about one case a day in the state, and that two cases were reported yesterday from Greene County.

Alexander Reports Satisfied With Korean Situation; Thinks Briton Should Have Deputy Commander In U. N.

By W. G. LANDREY
United Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON (UP)—The British Cabinet heard today an eye-witness report on Korea from Defense Minister Earl Alexander and discussed demands which Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden will present to U.S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

Amid an uproar here over United Nations bombing of Yalu River power plants in North Korea, Alexander reported on his tour of the Korean battlefront, his talks with U. N. commander Gen. Mark Clark and his conferences in Washington.

Official sources said Alexander and Minister of State Selwyn Lloyd had brought back special recommendations which Eden could be expected to make to Acheson.

U. S. Ambassador to Moscow George F. Kennan, reported to be disturbed by increasing anti-American feeling in Moscow, was to arrive by plane to inform Acheson of his impressions of the Soviet capital.

Reliable sources said Alexander is satisfied with the military situation in Korea, but thinks Britain should be represented by a deputy commander in the U. N. Command.

The sources said Britain also favors immediate creation of a special U. N. political advisory group to warn of political repercussions in Europe and the Far East of such operations as the Yalu power plant attacks.

A Foreign Office spokesman said today the list of bombing targets in Korea agreed to in Washington last year by former Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison included the Yalu power stations but that the agreement "provided for a quite different set of circumstances."

Those circumstances, he said, were either a strong Communist air attack on U. N. forces, a breakdown of the armistice talks or a breach of the armistice after its conclusion.

Former Labor Defense Minister Emanuel Shinwell, winding up Commons debate on American bombing of the Power stations, indicated last night Britain had forced the recall of Gen. Douglas MacArthur from Korea.

The debate ended in a stand-off when the Labor Party did not call for a vote of censure against the Churchill government. However, the Laborites made it clear they may yet push for a showdown over Korea when a full report from Alexander and Lloyd is presented Tuesday.

"When there was a prospect of MacArthur taking action which exceeded his authority and which was resented not only in this country, but in the United States, we took effective action," Shinwell said.

LEAVE FARMERS ALONE

WASHINGTON—(UP)—President Truman asked the armed services today to stop soliciting recruits from among farm workers who are deferred from the draft for necessary production.

Mr. Truman also signed an executive order providing for temporary deferment of essential industrial apprentices.

Committee Slashes 25 Percent Off Administration Request

By REX CHANEY

WASHINGTON UP)—The House Appropriations Committee today slashed 25 per cent from administration requests totalling $13,750,688,280 for foreign aid, military construction, atomic expansion and other items.

The $10,282,532,030 which the committee okayed will be spent or in large part obligated during the 1953 fiscal year which starts next Tuesday.

The committee, serving notice that it is determined to save money wherever possible, cut the military construction program by $805,968,600, the Atomic Energy Commission's request by $1,706,000,000, the emergency-born agencies such as the Civil Defense Administration by $579,920,000, and the foreign aid program by $250,120,000.

Here, in brief, are the amounts allowed by the committee:

Defense Department $2,187,889,840; Atomic Energy Commission, $1,485,000,000; Emergency agencies $81,690,000; Mutual Security Administration, $6,275,940,750; Labor-federal security, $10,537,750.

In cutting by more than half the funds requested by the Atomic Energy Commission for a big expansion program — the biggest ever planned by the AEC — the committee invited the commission to come back later if it needs more money.

But the committee insisted that the AEC be prepared to present detailed specifications and plans for its building program if it expects to get the full amount.

In the cut in the military construction program, the committee said it did not want the Army, Navy, or Air Force to build "half a runway or half a hangar" in the expectation that Congress would supply the rest of the money to furnish the job.

The Air Force was criticized for "financial legerdermain" and 'phantom figures" in its original request for $1,538,000,000 in construction funds. After some haggling, the committee approved $1,200,000,000.

The Navy asked for $387,972,740 and got $386,409,840. The Army asked for $654,090,000 and got $600,090,000. The committee warned that it wanted no building of "plush" living quarters anywhere.

The committee allowed none of the $103,250,000 requested for the Economic Stabilization Agency saying funds for this agency would be supplied after Congress decides what to do about it.

The Civil Defense Administration which has experienced trouble in the past in getting money from the committee, found the situation unchanged. Its request for $600,000,000 was cut to $37,500,000.

The committee allowed the full $150,000,000 asked by the Tennessee Valley Authority for expansion of its facilities.

'Olo Sol' Continues To Throw Down Torrid Rays

"Old Sol" continued his relentless assault on Greenville and vicinity today, as torrid rays hitting Pitt County directly drove the noon temperature up to 102.2 degrees—the highest 12 o'clock reading recorded this year.

The highest daily temperature recorded in Greenville this year was reached yesterday, when the thermometer soared to 103 degrees.

Mrs. Carl E. Maiden, local observer for the U. S. Department of Commerce, said the temperature would go as high as 104 sometime this afternoon. The highest temperature recorded since the Weather Bureau was established was reached in the mid-1930's, when the mercury soared to 105 degrees.

Greenville citizens sweltered through the stifling heat of yesterday afternoon, and experienced little relief after sundown. The lowest temperature here last night was 79, an unusually high mark for the midnight-to-dawn period, Weather Bureau records show.

At 8 o'clock this morning the mercury stood at the 87-degree mark, and at 11 o'clock the temperature was 101 degrees. Shifting northeast winds were prevailing at noon.

Yesterday a year ago, the highest temperature here was 97 degrees. The lowest that night was 70 degrees and at 8 a.m. next day it was 74. No rain fell that day.

Candidates Break Out In Rash To Spread 'Band-Wagon' Fever

By RAYMOND LAHR
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — Republican and Democratic presidential candidates broke out in a rash of victory claims today in an effort to spread "bandwagon fever" among still-uncommitted convention delegates.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's campaign manager predicted in Denver that the general will win the GOP nomination on the "second or third ballot."

Sen. Robert A. Taft's campaign headquarters prepared a "conservative" tabulation claiming at least 601 convention delegates for the Ohio senator—just three short of the number required for nomination.

In the Democratic race, Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga) said he will have 300 delegates on the first ballot and will gain steadily thereafter until he wins the nomination. His managers asserted that he has gained strength rapidly during his current Western tour.

Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn) derided Russell's claim, and stood pat on his own forecast that "it will be Kefauver on the fifth or sixth ballot."

But the consensus of leading Washington political writers was that neither Russell nor Kefauver, but Gov Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois, was the most likely Democratic presidential nominee.

Newsweek magazine polled 50 of the pundits and found that 30 expected Stevenson to win the nomination despite his insistence that he doesn't want it.

Nine picked Kefauver, five named Vice President Alben W. Barkley, and there were three for President Truman, two for Russell, and one for Foreign Aid Administrator W. Averell Harriman.

The photo-finish quality of the GOP race was reflected in an almost even split: 25 of the writers guessed Taft would win, 24 thought it would be Eisenhower, one held out for Gov. Earl Warren of California.

A month ago, before Eisenhower returned from Europe, 35 of the writers pcked him to win, while only 11 placed their bets on Taft.

Eisenhower's manager, Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., (R-Mass), told reporters that Taft has suffered "great reversals" in the last few days, and now "knows that the jig is up." He promised a "very heartening" announcement for the general's supporters within a few days.

Taft followers here vehemently denied that the senator has lost ground, and showed no concern over Lodge's forthcoming "announcement."

In other political developments:

1. Eisenhower scheduled a major address tonight from Denver at 9:30 p. m. EST over the CBS radio network.

2. Taft devoted the day to catching up with Senate work and long-distance telephone talks with his regional campaign managers. He will go to Charlottesville, Va., tomorrow to meet with the state's convention delegates and deliver an evening speech.

3. Sen. Edwin C. Johnson (D-Col.), Russell's campaign manager, said the Georgia senator is making "steady headway" in gaining Western delegates. Russell conferred with New Mexico Democratic leaders today at Albuquerque.

4. Senate Democratic Leader Ernest W. McFarland (Ariz) invited a number of convention delegates from 15 Western states to meet with Sen. Robert S. Kerr (D-Okla), a Democratic presidential candidate, at Salt Lake City, Utah, next Sunday.

5. Paul E. Fitzpatrick, New York state Democratic chairman and leading backer of Harriman, said he is "positive" that Stevenson cannot be induced to take the presidential nomination. He said he wanted to spike rumors that New York leaders are wavering in their support of Harriman.

6. Sen. Homer E. Capehart (R-Ind) said Taft's outspoken foreign policy stand will win him the Republican nomination and "bring peace to the world." He attacked Eisenhower's foreign policy pronouncements as "vague generalities."

Wedding Party Luncheons

Among the last events which were given in compliment to the Paschal-Stauffer wedding party, families and out of town guests were two luncheons.

Mrs. Harvey Ward and Mrs. E. D. Larkins were hostesses at the Greenville Country Club on Tuesday at 1 p.m. to 18 guests, who were members of the wedding party and out of town guests.

Guests were greeted at the door by the hostesses and Miss Stauffer, who was wearing a corsage of asters presented to her by the hostess. They were invited into the reception hall, where a punch table had been arranged for the first course. Iced tomato juice was served from a crystal bowl decorated with summer flowers.

Later the guests found their places marked with bridal cards at a long table arranged on the porch. A white cloth covered the table, and a bowl of pink and purple asters interspersed with baby's breath and fern centered it. At the conclusion of a two-course luncheon, Mrs. Ward presented Miss Stauffer with crystal fruit glasses, while Mrs. Larkin's gift to her was a crystal cake platter.

Bridal Luncheon

Mr. and Mrs. J. Herbert Waldrop and Miss Lois Waldrop, who was an attendant in the wedding, entertained at a luncheon on Wednesday. Invited were members of the wedding party, out of town guests, families and house guests of the groom's parents.

Arrangements of pink and white gladioli were used entirely in the floral decorations in the rooms where the guests were received.

The bride and groom and their attendants were seated together at a large table in the dining room. It was covered with a green organdy and lace cloth and centered with a bride's bouquet of all white flowers with tulle and narrow satin streamers. On either side of the center bouquet were two miniature nosegays designed just like the large one. Asters, carnations and fern were used to compose these.

Card tables placed throughout other rooms were centered with a similar flower arrangement.

Ham and creamed chicken was served accompanied by tasty side dishes. The dessert course of sherbet in scooped out watermelon topped with assorted fresh fruits was served from silver platters encircled with bridal corsages.

Formal Wedding Unites Couple

Dorothy Stauffer Weds Mr. Paschal In Christian Church

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Ann Stauffer, daugnter of Mr. and Mrs. John Jacob Stauffer of Greenville, N. C., to Mr. Herbert Richard Paschal Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert R. Paschal of Washington, N.C., was solemnized on Wednesday, June 25, in a beautiful 8:00 o'clock formal ceremony. The vows were pledged before the bride's pastor, the Rev. H. G. Haney, in the Eighth Street Christian Church in Greenville.

An impressive nuptial setting was formed by lighted cathedral candles in wrought iron candelabra, entwined with Western cedar, used before a background of emerald greens, palms, plumosa and huckleberry. Tall floor baskets of white gladioli were used with the greenery to complete the bridal setting.

At the altar was a wrought iron white priedieu decorated with Western cedar and nosegays of gladioli florets. On either side was a single candelabra with tall cathedral candles. On these were garlands of white gladioli and huckleberry.

Lilies and huckleberry were used on the choir curtain, and bouquets of white asters marked family pews.

Mr. George Perry, head of the music department at East Carolina College, presented a beautiful program of nuptial music prior to and during the ceremony. Included in Mr. Perry's selections were the invocation and offertory from "The Marriage Ceremony" by Dubois; "To a Wild Rose" by MacDowell; "Ave Maria" by Bach-Gounod; "Be Thou By Me" by Bach; and "Ave Maria" by Schubert. The Wagner and Mendelssohn Wedding Marches were used as the processional and recessional offerings.

Just before the entrance of the bridal party Mrs. John Moss, soloist, sang Youman's "Through the Years" and "Because" by D'Hardelot. As the benediction Mr. Sam Northrop soloist, sang "The Lord's Prayer" by Mallotte.

The bride was escorted and given in marriage by her father. She was radiantly beautiful in a handsome wedding gown of imported Chantilly lace. The gown, cut along flattering princess lines, was worn over heavy white bridal satin. The moulded lace bodice featured a deep rounded neckline edged in lace flower petals, with a high yoke of sheer illusion. Her fitted long sleeves extended over her hands in lace frills and the back of the waist was fastened by miniature lace buttons extending from the neckline to the waistline.

The full luxurious skirt was designed with lace side panels gathered at the hipline, bordered in a charming lace frill, and extending into a sweeping, full length cathedral train. Her full veil of imported illusion, falling the entire length of her train, was attached to a dainty headdress of Chantilly lace studded with pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white nylon tulle, phalaenopsis, valley lilies and a white orchid, tied with white bridal satin.

Mrs. Dorothy C. Morrow of Virginia Beach, cousin of the bridegroom, was matron of honor, and Miss Lois Waldrop of Greenville was maid of honor.

They wore attractive gowns of heavy white lace over two tones of green satin and nylon net. The strapless bodice was of gathered soft green nylon net, finished at the waistline with a deeper green crushed sash tying at the back in a large bow. The extremely full bouffant skirt was made with an underskirt of darker green satin with a second skirt of lighter green nylon net completed at the bottom by a permanent pleated ruffle. The top skirt was of lovely heavy white lace. Green net stoles complemented their costumes. The honor attendants wore pumps in matching green shade, and halo bands in matching net and ribbon.

They carried colonial bouquets of pink sweetheart roses, orchids and pink nylon tulle, tied with pink satin.

Bridesmaids were Miss Lytle Batchelor and Miss Frances Bendall of Greenville, Miss Betty Anne Young of Durham and Mrs. William A. Bowen of Greenville and Philadelphia.

The bridesmaids wore gowns identical to those of the honor attendants in two shades of pink satin and nylon net under an overskirt of white lace. Their stoles, halo bands and shoes matched their costumes and they carried colonial bouquets of green nylon tulle, roses, asters and painted daisies, tied with green satin.

Little Miss Judy Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Clark, was flower girl. She wore a dainty short white organdy trimmed in lace with a wide nile green taffeta sash. The dress was worn over white satin ruffled with lace. Her head band was of matching lace and she carried a white basket filled with pink sweetheart roses.

Herbert R. Paschal served his son as best man. Other groomsmen were Robert Eugene Peele of Roxobel, N. C., Duncan James Sinclair of Laurinburg, N. C., Thomas A. Fetzer of Davidson, N. C., Jake Stauffer Jr., brother of the bride, and Edward N. Rodman of Washington, N. C.

With their formal evening suits they wore boutonnieres of white carnations.

Mrs. Stauffer chose a formal gown of mauve rose chiffon complemented with Chantilly lace for her daughter's wedding. She wore matching accessories and a white orchid corsage.

Mrs. Paschal wore a formal rose beige chiffon gown with Chantilly lace bodice and peplum extending to the floor at one side. Her accessories were of lavender shade and her corsage was of hybrid orchids.

Immediately following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a reception at the Greenville Country Club.

Later in the evening the couple left for a wedding trip through the New England states, planning to stay over at Cape Cod. For traveling the bride wore a Dan Millstein original silk shantung suit in a shade of dusty rose. Her hat, shoes, and bag were of navy blue and she wore the white orchid lifted from her bridal bouquet.

Mrs. Paschal attended Mary Washington College and East Carolina College. She will graduate from the University of North Carolina in the spring.

Since the announcement of her engagement in the spring she has been extensively entertained at prenuptial functions in Greenville and Washington.

Mr. Paschal received his B.A. degree from Wake Forest College in 1950 where he was a member of Phi Beta Kappa scholarship fraternity, Omicron Delta Kappa leadership fraternity, "Who's Who" in American colleges and universities, and the Kappa Alpha social fraternity. He has done graduate work at the University of North Carolina and has been employed during the past year by the N. C. State Department of Archives and History. He will enter graduate school to major in history at Chapel Hill in the fall where the couple will make their home.

Out-of-Town Guests

Among the out-of-town guests attending the wedding and reception were Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Spoolman and Miss Nancy Spoolman of Windsor; Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Burns, Mrs. Maude Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Peele Jr., Mrs. Evie Barnes, all of Roxobel, N. C.; Mrs. John R. Covington, Virginia Beach; Mrs. Spurgeon Rawles of Franklin, Va.; Mrs. Horace B. Knight of Whaleyville, Va.; Mrs. Carrie Peele of Warsaw; Miss Becky Upchurch, Raleigh; Mrs. Tom Fetzer, Davidson; Lee Adams, Goldsboro; Miss Jessie Flythe of Rocky Mount.

Mr. and Mrs. Braxton Lucas, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Barnes, Mrs. George W. Barnes, Mrs. Ben Hackney, Mrs. Joyce Gregory, Miss Eleanor Lamm, Ben C. Barnes, and Billy Gregory, all of Lucama, N. C.; Miss Isobel Boomer, Mr. and Mrs. Haywood Ferrell, Miss Judy Ferrell, Miss Janet Ferrell, all of Wilson; Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Caudle, Miss Mary Lea Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fulton, all of Greensboro; Miss Joan McCutcheon of Lincolnton, and Mrs. C. B. Rowlett Jr. of Bethel.

Also a large number of friends from Washington were present.

Paschal-Stauffer Reception

Following the Paschal-Stauffer wedding Wednesday evening, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Stauffer, parents of the bride, entertained at a brilliant reception at the Greenville Country Club.

Guests were greeted at the patio entrance by Mr. and Mrs. Sam Northrop and Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Young of Durham. The doorway was marked by a floor standard of white gladioli, while auxiliary tables placed on the terrace held bud vases of pink roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Waldrop introduced the receiving line which was formed in the club's reception lounge. The hall was outstanding in its traditional bridal motif. Mantels were banked with Western cedar and in the center of each mantel a large spray arrangement of white gladioli was used. A lighted candle arrangement was used on either end of the mantels to complete the setting.

Receiving with Mr. and Mrs. Stauffer were Mr. and Mrs. Herbert R. Paschal, parents of the bridegroom, the bride and bridegroom, the Rev. and Mrs. H. G. Haney and members of the wedding party.

Mr. and Mrs. Eli Bloom showed the way to the bride's register, presided over by Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Bendall and Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Henderson. On the register table was a lovely nosegay of pink daisies while the bride's book was showered with florets and white satin ribbons.

The central table, laid with a handsome cloth of imported Chinese cut-work linen, held a large and lovely appointment of white roses and asters with the flowers extending into the massive silver candelabra with lighted white candles placed at each side.

Large silver trays holding decorated bridal cakes, green and white wedding ices and mints, dainty assorted sandwiches, salted nuts and chicken salad in pastry shells were served from the table by Misses Joan McCutchen of Lincolnton, Carolyn Clark, Lucy Hanniford, Dorothy Nell Henderson, Shirley Whitford of Washington, N. C., Janice Roberson Sarah Kirkpatrick and Ann Dunn.

The bride's table, holding the exquisite four tiered wedding cake, was covered in a matching cloth of Chinese linen. The cake, a lattice design, was a foamy white creation sprinkled with dainty pink and green sugar roses, and on the top tier was a miniature bride and bridegroom. White satin ribbons attached to wedding charms extended from the cake and were drawn later in the evening by the bridal party. After the reception hours, when the bride and bridegroom cut their cake, guests were served by Miss Mary Lea Smith of Greensboro. Lending additional charm to the bride's table was the lighted anniversary candle and a floral arrangement of sweetheart roses. The table was placed before a doorway outlined in Western cedar and white gladioli.

Mrs. C. B. Rowlett, Mrs. Dees Larkins, Mrs. Harvey Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Batchelor and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Kirby of Raleigh received guests at the punch table. Southern smilax encircled the double crystal punch bowls placed at each end of the table, which was covered in Chinese linen. The table also held a lovely design of sweetheart roses and fern.

Goodbyes were said to Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Tadlock and Mrs. Clara Roberson. Approximately 300 guests called during the appointed hours.

Strength for the Day

THE SCULPTOR AT WORK

We learn best by experience. The wise man can learn many things by the experience of others, to be sure; after watching the cat get singed by the stove, he does not have to touch the stove to see whether it is hot. But only a certain proportion of our experience can come second-hand. Even the wisest man must learn many things for himself, and the man who has never had any experiences has not lived.

This fact is the great compensation for many of life's hard knocks. If we emerge stronger from our difficulties, we have had at least some gain and not all loss. The boxer must face many sparring partners before he is ready for the championship match, and the harder the blows he can stand in practice, the better his chances of winning the real event.

Before you complain bitterly of the trials life has brought you, look first to see how they have profited you. Perhaps you are made of the stuff that requires hard blows to impress it. Modeling clay is more easily shaped than marble, but once shaped, marble may hold its form forever. Your greatest difficulties may become, if you will let them, the tools by which God shapes your life into a work of great strength and beauty.

Mass-Production Will Realize The Dream

When that new soil-conditioning chemical Krilium was first announced, The Reflector hailed it as a discovery rivalling the atomic bomb in its impact on the world at large.

After nearly a year, that first impression remains.

In remarkably short time the wonder-chemical has gone into production and is already on the market. Its claim to fame rests on the reputed transformation of problem soils (such as hard clay) into a loose, crumbly consistency. No actual plant food value is ascribed to the chemical, but some firms are adding fertilizers to the mixture.

Our early jubilation has been tempered by the knowledge that much more time must elapse before production can reach such a stage that it will be economically practicable to apply the chemical to a large crop area. The natural economies of mass production, we hope, will make this possible.

At present the soil-conditioning products are too expensive to apply, save on a very modest scale. But we will see the day when this will not be so; it is too important a discovery to be left hanging on the brink of fulfilling a world-wide need.

Those who look ahead have long feared a coming day when the shrinking available land for bountiful crops will not be able to feed the constantly growing population. Even today, in the midst of general well-being, there are millions of people who do not have enough to eat; more millions whose diets lack minimum requirements of minerals, fats, vitamins and proteins.

If Krilium, in field practice, lives up to expectations evolving from laboratory tests, the constant pangs of a hungry world could be forever eased. Vast areas of despoiled land, no longer fit for food production, can be reclaimed and turned to growing crops. Soils that are now losing their quality of loam-like richness can be revitalized and yield richer harvests.

Historical Society Needs More Citizens' Help

As the Pitt County Historical Society progresses in its organization, new people in the county are showing interest in the project which can provide Pitt with an asset it does not now have, and one which will become increasingly valuable as the years go by.

The accounts of Pitt County's past which have been set down by historians are sketchy. There are many missing chapters in the past of the county, and there is much information which as yet has not been dug out. Yet there is a wealth of material on the history of the county which is in the hands of individuals throughout the county that has never been compiled. From these hundreds of individual sources, a great deal of light could be shed upon the past of the county.

As each year passes, some of these old documents, papers, letters and other bits of information disappear, and can never be replaced or recovered.

Through the Pitt County Historical Society, the people of the county have an opportunity to compile this information at a central place so it can be pieced together into a comprehensive picture of the past. If a good job is to be done, it will take the interest and the efforts of a great many people in the county. It is a project in which lay people in Pitt who are interested in the history of their home county can take part and in so doing can receive a great deal of satisfaction by setting down for posterity a better history of the county than any of the present-day citizens have.

Since the Historical Society was formed here gradual, but gratifying progress has been made toward collecting valuable historical information on Pitt County. As more of Pitt's citizens take interest in the worthwhile undertaking, more historical information can be compiled, and a better history of the county will result.

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Farmer Brannan is up to his old tricks again!

The bald-headed Denver lawyer, who doubles as the most politically astute secretary of agriculture in history, is reaping rural votes for the Democrats with the same slick schemes that transformed an apparent Republican victory into a Truman triumph in 1948.

Should his stratagem succeed, thousands of normally Republican ruralites in up-State New York may vote for the Brannan candidate instead of their party's offering, whether it be Ike or Bob. Their support may insure that New York's important 47 electoral ballots go to the Democratic nominee, in view of the party's strength below The Bronx.

The GOP makes a mistake if it counts the Empire State as a sure thing, even though Eisenhower and Taft have strong backers there. Dewey would have lost it in 1948 save for the normally Democratic votes cast for Henry A. Wallace to the total of 500,000.

TIMING—The intriguing aspect of the latest Brannan conspiracy, as has been true of so many recent political uses—and abuses—of presidential power, is that it has economic plausibility. It can be and has been advanced as a step toward sound marketing of a major crop, with resultant gains to producers and consumers.

Many other Truman actions in this election year, such as seizure of the steel plants, can be clothed with a character of public need, although they are actually designed to curry favor with special voting interests.

But it seems strange that Brannan delayed any action on the pending problem until only a few months before the November balloting. From a partisan standpoint, his timing has been perfect.

TACTICS—The Denverite's current operations resemble his 1948 tactics so closely that it casts suspicion on all his present actions. Brannan does not try to harvest his political crops until they are ready to bring a high price on the vote market.

In 1948, for instance, Brannan did not advise Truman to veto the Republican measure alleged to have cost the farmers a billion dollars by reducing storage space for crops on loan to the government. He let the president sign it without even a demurrer. Then he taught Truman how to distort the meaning and purpose of the legislation so that this issue alone elected the man from Missouri.

In other words, Brannan made no attempt to protect the farmers' interest by warning against White House approval of the controversial storage statute. He preferred to let it become law so that his party could grow votes.

In the same way, he is now manipulating federal controls over agriculture to keep the Democrats—and Brannan—in office.

MILK—The seemingly regional and non-political problem underlying Brannan's 1952 version of 1948 strategy involves the rearrangement of prices and quotes in the New York-New Jersey, milk-producing areas. Here are the facts:

New York dairymen voted to accept federal milk control some years ago, but New Jersey preferred state regulation of prices. Under their separate setup, Jersey producers get two cents a quart more than the New Yorkers do, although the cost to consumers is no higher.

Should New Jersey be dragooned into the federal control system, Brannan will undoubtedly reduce the price differential, although not wiping it out altogether. He will also give Empire State producers a larger quota of the Jersey market. His authority is broad and czaristic.

Not to become too technical, the proposed change will profit the New Yorkers at the expense of Jersey competitors.

OUTCOME—At the insistent request of friendly New York dealers, Brannan agreed to hold hearings on the question. When they have been concluded in a month or so, he will issue his order for a rejiggering of the two states' milkshed prices and distribution system. His aides anticipate a pro-New York finding.

The Brannan ruling will then be put to a vote of the dairymen of the two states. But since there are 55,000 New York milkmen and handlers, as against only about 4,500 in Jersey, there is no doubt of the outcome.

With their friends, relatives and employees, 55,000 price-happy milkmen in up-state New York can roll up a lot of Democratic votes, especially as there is great resentment toward Dewey, an Eisenhower sponsor, in the farm areas.

DANGEROUS—Brannan's milk maneuvering may help to keep New Jersey in the Republican column. But that state has only 16 electoral votes, and they will probably go to the GOP nominee, anyway. Or so "Baldy" figures.

This factual exposition of how Brannan operates explains why top GOP-ers on Capitol Hill regard him as an extremely smart and dangerous politico, and why they will keep sharp watch on his "shenanigans" between now and November.

Selected Short

WASHINGTON, IOWA, EVENING JOURNAL: "Concern over the tax problem lies largely in the fact that the law of diminishing returns has set in. Put Federal taxes up another notch and the increase probably won't produce any more revenue. . . . Business can be taxed out of business. And that is precisely what is beginning to happen. The process can kill the goose that lays the golden eggs, and the tax goose is beginning to look pale around its eyes. 'Moderation in all things,' saith the sages. This applies to taxes, as well as cayenne pepper or chocolate candy."

WILMINGTON, N. C., STAR NEWS: "In Great Britain . . . the government will offer to sell the trucks back to the private investors, undoubtedly at a loss because the good will value of the former private companies lapsed. Investors likely will not be eager to buy. Principal reason is that a Labor spokesman announced in Parliament that if his party returns to power in the next election it will return long-distance trucking to public ownership. . . . Government ownership usually slips in quietly. But once in the door, it is practically impossible to dislodge it. Its sponsors craftily perpetuate it."

GREENVILLE, TEXAS, EVENING BANNER: "It is not our purpose to rush to the defense of the private power companies, or to plead the cause of public power operations. But we think the people are intelligent enough to decide what they want and what they do not want. And we are convinced that private enterprise has made this country as great as it is."

"There is only one road to solvency and that is to stop spending money we do not have"—Harry Flood Byrd.

FRANKLIN, IND., REPUBLICAN: "A government of law should be the friend of all men and enemy of none."

Where It Hurts

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

FORT JACKSON, S. C.—Two members of our Army Reserve Unit have been commissioned or warranted since their last tour of active duty. Second Lieutenant Dan Todd and Warrant Officer Junior Grade Clinton Joyner have risen from the ranks.

Since both were enlisted men last year when we were here, they have been kidded from every side about becoming "brass". The boys have accused Clinton Joyner of wandering around in the training area so he can get the feel of being saluted.

Sergeant First Class Alton Hardee is one of the reservists who is definitely interested in advancement. In a short while he jumped from Corporal to Sgt. First Class. Now the only man standing in his way is Master Sergeant George Johnson, who holds the job above him in the supply section.

Corporal Jimmy Warren of the West End Branch, Guaranty Bank, was counting out sheets in the supply section the last time I saw him. This proves that the Army is improving in the job of putting men in jobs they are suited for. Of course Jimmy said that the sheets are considerably heavier than the dollar bills he counts at the West nd Branch.

Mail call down here is one of the big items of the day. You would think that we had been in the South Pacific for two years, the way we clamor for the mail man. In charge of the postal section is Captain Gordon Berry, by far the most popular man in the unit.

Building a mail box two by two feet was one of the most important projects of the encampment. It was built by Hoover Avery and Clinton Joyner, assisted by Bob Smith, Roy Hardee and Jimmy Warren. Actually, Roy Hardee didn't help much, but he did take a picture of the operation. Therefore, the boys insisted that he get a plug, provided he will see that the picture is published.

Wearing civilian clothes during off-duty hours is quite a contrast to war days, when uniforms were required at all times. After duty you can't tell whether you're talking to a colonel or a Pfc. Often times the Pfc. looks like a colonel, and visa versa.

And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

By LYNN NISBET

SURPLUS—It has been determined that there will be a surplus of unappropriated money in both the highway and general fund accounts at end of the current fiscal year at midnight next Monday. Exact amounts will not be ascertained until all bills and commitments have been checked against appropriations. That will require several weeks. In round figures it appears that the highway surplus will approximate $11 million and the general fund surplus will be around $34 million. In addition to these amounts over and above legislative appropriations there are numerous instances of unexpended balances in budgeted allocations.

TRANSFER—In cases of cash balances remaining where spending was not as great as legislative appropriation or budgetary allocation the money can be transferred to other uses within the departmental or institutional budget, or upon request of proper authority it can be carried forward into the next fiscal year beginning next Tuesday—July 1. In some instances both transfer and carry-over provisions can be utilized.

SCHOOLS—That is what happened with respect to the $1,700,000 board of education money which is to be used to employ additional teachers and reduce the pupil load in the public schools. That deal required two distinct but related steps. The first step was to authorize carry-over of the unexpended funds which had been appropriated by the General Assembly for use of the State board of education in operating the public school system during the year now coming to a close. Next step was to transfer from all other functions of the State board of education the unexpended balances to the single purpose of paying teacher salaries. That step is in process of being taken and is assured. Kindred action two years ago made "surplus funds" available for increasing teacher salaries. This year it is being used to reduce pupil loads.

UNJUSTIFIED—The fear which has been voiced in some quarters that Governor Scott as director of the budget, and other boards comparable in authority to the State Board of Education, might use the carry-over and transfer of school funds as precedent for spending the entire accumulated "surplus" are without foundation of law or fact. The director of the budget, sometimes wholly upon his own authority and other times with consent of the advisory budget commission or council of state, has authority to transfer intra-departmental allocations. There is specific authority to reduce legislative appropriations on pro rata basis when revenue is not sufficient to meet them. There is no semblance of authority for the director of the budget, the budget commission, the council of state, or any other agency, to increase appropriations made by the legislature out of general fund money. If there is a surplus of revenue above appropriations only the next General Assembly can dispose of it.

HIGHWAYS—The surplus in the highway fund is handled differently. The statutes specifically empower the Governor as director of the budget, and presume concurrence of the chief highway engineer and approval of the highway and public works commission, to allocate surplus funds in the highway account. Pursuant to authority of the statutes, Governor Scott this week distributed $11,850,000 for sundry special projects. Traditionally these surpus highway funds have been used to meet unusual demands for justifiable special projects and to cushion rough places occasioned by differences in highway division concepts of most needed roads.

WISE—Upon the whole this overall system of administering public funds has approval of the people who pay the tax money into the State Treasury. Proposal offered in the last General Assembly to strip the Governor and highway officials of their prerogative in allocating surplus highway funds failed because of public sentiment against it. Efforts of the Governor last year to exceed appropriations for purpose of land around Capitol Square failed for the same reason. Popular approval of the customary practices in each instance transcended personal feelings, although personalities were involved in both. Some legislators who confessed personal dislike for Governor Scott vigorously opposed the attempt to divest him of control over highway surplus funds, and numerous citizens who are loyal supporters of Governor Scott could not follow him in his avowed attempt to exceed legislative appropriations for the purchase of land. In both instances there was evident desire to maintain provisions which have proven wise and sound rather than to subject State government to the whims of personal likes and dislikes.

PERMANENT—That is another way of saying that officials, including governors, assistants to the director of the budget and members of the General Assembly, are transient but that North Carolina as a political and governmental entity is permanent. A few officeholders and a limited number of their personal friends

What Other Papers Are Thinking

SUPREME COURT CHOICE
(Kinston Free Press)

The people of North Carolina will go to the polls next Saturday, June 28th, and express their preference between two splendid applicants for the vacancy of Associate Justice of the State Supreme Court.

In the first primary in a field of four Judge Hunt Parker of Roanoke Rapids, who has been on the Superior Court bench 20 years led. That was for the short or unexpired term. In the six man race for the full eight year term he also led. Judge William H. Bobbitt, a native of Raleigh, but a long time resident of Charlotte, was runner up. Although Judge Parker had some 25,000 more votes than Judge Bobbitt, the latter is exercise the privilege of citizenship and express themselves, exercised his right to call for a second or run off primary.

The Free Press recognizes in both Judge Parker and Judge Bobbitt, men of high caliber. Either one of them will grace the State's Supreme Court Bench with dignity and ability. This paper favored Judge Parker. For one reason it knows him intimately, has had occasion for 20 years to observe the fine work he has done on the Superior Court bench. It was gratified that he was given an overwhelming vote in Lenoir County for both the short and the long terms, scoring majorities in both races.

This paper as it has often said believes that in a primary election for the nomination of candidates that where one candidate secures a substantial plurality even though it is not a majority of the voters cast, it is well enough for the second man to withdraw and wait his turn later, although it is his right to call for a run-off.

The Free Press would call the attention of its readers in Lenoir and adjoining counties to the necessity of going to the polls next Saturday and voting. It can hardly be expected that as many voters would take the trouble to express themselves in this run-off primary as did in the first. Rarely is such experience had. But notwithstanding that fact the friends of the respective candidates cannot discharge their duties and exercise their franchise unless they go to the polls.

In any event this paper urges every qualified voter in the State

By ELMER ROESSNER

In the wonderland of income tax legislation, nothing has created more talk and interest among high-bracket executives than a plan for deferred pay raises proposed by Commerce Clearing House.

In essence, this is the plan: instead of giving an executive a pay rise, purchase an endowment policy to be paid in instalments after retirement age.

How this works out is explained in this hypothetic case: An official, aged 45, drawing $50,000 annual salary and filing a joint tax return with his wife, is offered a $10,000 raise.

If he takes it, he will pay $6,658 more in federal income taxes, leaving only $3,342 for himself. His employer would deduct the $10,000 from the corporation income, thereby saving corporate tax payments of $5,200 and leaving $4,800 as the net cost of the raise.

Suppose the company spends that $4,800 a year for an endowment policy payable in ten annual instalments after the employee retires at 65. At that time, the company receives the insurance checks, which are tax free until the full amount of the premium has been returned. The company agrees to pay the executive $23,000 a year for the 10 years following his retirement. This represents the tax saving to the company of $11,960, resulting from the deductibility of the $23,000 a year for federal income tax purposes plus the yearly proceeds of the endowment policy, $11,243, purchased by the company for $4,800 annual premiums.

The $23,000 paid the employee would be liable to $5,760 in federal income taxes at the present rate, leaving the executive a net annual income of $17,240 for the ten-year period. Thus, by giving up a net increase of $3,342 a year for 20 years, he will receive a net of $17,240 for ten years after retirement. In short, at a cost of $66,840, he will receive $172,400.

In addition, the insurance can provide, at no extra cost, a payment to the executive's heirs in event of his death before the age of 75.

The plan appears sound, but it has four relatively minor hazards: that the personal tax rates will change; that corporate rates will change; that the Bureau of Internal Revenue will find some way to offset the gains under present laws, or that Congress will tighten up the loopholes.

It also appears that any such arrangement should be entered into carefully because unless proper precautions are taken the tax advantages may be lost on a technicality. Good legal, accounting and insurance guidance are a must.

GOVERNMENT DESIGNS $600 BOX LIFTER

Busy little beavers in the Department of Agriculture have designed a lift for stacking cartons and boxes higher than a man's head. It costs about $600 and is powered by a storage battery. It is said to cut stacking costs to less than half and unstacking costs to about a fifth.

Originally designed for stacking apple boxes in warehouses, it is said to be practical in any warehouse or large store.

SLACKS PROMOTED FOR CLASSROOMS

"Wear slacks for class" is the slogan to be sounded by the Associated Pants Manufacturers of America as a back-to-school promotion late this summer. The association, through members, will offer dealers streamers bearing the slogan.

FRINGE BENEFITS ADD 5c TO EACH PAYROLL $1

For every dollar private industry pays out in wages and salaries, it pays 5 cents more in fringe benefits, the National Industrial Conference Board calculates. These benefits include employers' payments for private pensions and welfare funds, company payments for government old-age and survivors' insurance, contributions to state and federal unemployment funds, compensations for injuries and a few minor items. Back in 1929, suplemental benefits amounted to only one cent on the wage dollar.

BITS AND PIECES OF BUSINESS NEWS

Doughnut and dairy interests have united to promote dunking doughnuts in milk as well as coffee this fall. . . Thanksgiving turkeys will be abundant. Growers are exceeding earlier intentions so much the crop is expected to be 11 per cent above last year's . . . A financial prospectus written in simple, every-day language has just been published by the Dreyfus Fund, a mutual investment corporation. . . Government orders for photo and optical supplies this year are up 200 per cent over 1951, reports Robert E. Lewis, new president of the National Association of Photographic Manufacturers. But there will still be plenty for civilians, he adds.

Hal Boyle's Column

By HAL BOYLE

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. AP) — After the man lies down and dies, his house stands and remembers.

Sometimes strangers take over the house, and the man who built it is forgotten.

It has been the other way with Ernie Pyle. Thousands of strangers have passed through the small white cottage he built here as a refuge from his wanderings. But the more who come, the more Ernie Pyle is remembered.

Ernie at his death passed out of the stream of the world's news. But he has never lost his peculiar hold on the American heart. In death he still gives a feeling of quiet comfort to those who visit the little spot out of all the world he picked as his anchor against life's disaster.

He has a perfect memorial. His simple white clapboard cottage with the white picket fence around it - surely a tribute to his love of his Indiana upbringing - is now a city library. It has ten thousand books. The garage that Ernie turned into a guest room is about to be converted into a children's reading room.

I think Ernie, who had a lot of trouble but no children to give him the trouble that rewards, would like that. In his own childhood he didn't have so nice a place to go and read.

Ernie and "that girl" - his wife, Herry, - had slept in 800 hotels in six years and journeyed 250,000 miles when they chose to make a gypsy retreat here. One of the reasons was to give a shelter to the books they had gathered.

"We were like trees growing in the sky, without roots," Ernie wrote. "So we decided to acquire . . . a sort of home plate, that we could run to on occasion, and then run away from again."

Why did he choose Albuquerque as his traveler's rest? In a piece explaining why, he mentioned as another loved place, Honolulu, where he is buried today among the doughboys whose death he shared. But in life he gave this explanation for settling here:

"Our front yard stretches as far as you can see. Mt. Taylor, 65 miles away, is like a framed picture in our front window."

He mentioned also the friendliness here, the vastness, the rabbits that came out every evening, the quail on his lawn every morning, the meadow larks across the unpaved road that said things like "Your face is awfully pretty," and "Here comes the preacher."

The rabbits, the quail, and the view are partly gone. They paved the street by the house, built new houses across the road that hide the far-away mountain except in winter. But there are children across the way, and Ernie, I am sure, would prefer them to his mountain view.

Most of those who come to his former home today are children, eager for the dreams that books bring. But also some 10,000 adult visitors have come to see the unpretentious home that Ernie built. It has little souvenirs of him - his sunglasses, a Jo Davidson bust of his likeness, the dust goggles he wore in Tunisia.

But for some inexplicable reason the thing that stirs visitors most is the old ten - gallon cowboy hat he wore around the country in the days before he knew war.

"Most of the visitors are either boys who served overseas with Ernie or the parents of soldiers," said the nice, freckle - faced librarian, Mrs. Marian Flynn.

I thumbed through Ernie's own small cluster of books in the library, and found a sentence he wrote in London in 1941 that I have never forgotten:

"I could not bear to think that for me there might never, never be another spring."

If the Lord ever built friendship in a man, he put it in Ernest Taylor Pyle, dead at 44.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — Tomiko Araki, shy, 21-year-old daughter of Japan's new ambassador to the United States, is captivated by the beauty of the capital city, one of whose adornments, its herry trees were a gift from her native land. Miss Araki, a dainty jet-haired young lady with lotus-petal complexion, will be first lady at the Embassy, since her mother died two years ago, but she speaks practically no English Miss Araki explained those duties will be taken over by Mrs. S. Kami-Mura, wife of the new minister.

Described as a "real diplomat's wife," Mrs. Kami - Mura has lived in China and England, though, like Tomiko, she has never visited America. She is a talented hostess, speaks fluent English and plays golf and tennis, an embassy official said.

"I'm not particularly keen myself about parties and social life," Tomiko offered timidly through her interpretor. "My main interest is the study of music and I hope I will be able to pursue this course in Washington." A former student at Tokyo's Ueno Art University, she is a talented soprano and pianist. She said she favors the German classical music and sings German songs in Japanese.

In addition to continuing her music, the Ambassador's daughter expects to study English, which she was beginning to learn as a part of her regular course in Japanese schools. She and her father never converse in English, however, she said said through the interpreter, and she took no special training in in the language.

Though Miss Araki brought several exquisite kimonas to wear on special occasions, she wears the same kind of clothes American girls do and on her arrival in the Capital was dressed in a simple two-piece summer suit with short sleeves, a white blouse and white wedgies.

Though women in the new Japan have more freedom than before the war and the democratization program, and Japanese women were granted the vote in 1946, an embassy official says girls as young as Tomiko are not active in public life.

"We think of her as just like a little baby," the official told me. "Japanese young ladies are very reserved. They don't speak out about such things as politics and boy friends, like American girls do." He explained that Miss Araki is more interested in her music, sports, with ping pong, tennis and swimming her favorites.

At Least Ten North Carolina Votes For Ike

MARSHALL, N. C.—(AP)—Saying that the Taft forces' claims of GOP delegate strength in North Carolina were strictly to "encourage bandwagon psychology," State Republican Chairman J. M. Bailey, Jr., has claimed at least half the delegates for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Baley said that the claims by supporters of Sen. Robert A. Taft to the presidential nomination that the Ohio Republican had 18 of the State's 26 GOP delegates were "grossly exaggerated."

"At least 10 of the North Carolina delegates have publicly endorsed Eisenhower. Others are favorably inclined and he is gaining strength," Baley said. Baley is a delegate at large to the National Convention and has pledged his support to Eisenhower.

He added: "It is my sincere belief that a minimum of one-half of the North Carolina delegates will cast their votes for Eisenhower on the first ballot."

Greenville came out strong in the individual championship playoffs for the Coastal Golf Association held in Clinton last Saturday and Sunday.

Ercell Webb, one of the leaders from Greenville, was medalist for the qualifying rounds. Webb fired a 74 that first day, but faltered on the second round and came in with an 83. Graydon Liles of Farmville won the individual title for the CGA.

Liles ended the first 36 holes in a tie with George Wilson of New Bern. Liles won the crown by taking the first hole in a sudden death playoff.

Joe Exum of Greenville shot an 80 on the first day and came back with a 73 the second time out to take first place in the First Flight. Bea Harrison, also of Greenville, was runner-up in the Second Flight Hunter Keck, another Greenville linksman, finished first in the Third Flight.

Publicity has already begun for the high school all-star games to be played in Greensboro during the week of August 4 - 8. Sponsored jointly by the North Carolina Coaches Association and the Greensboro Daily News, school-boy standouts will participate in both football and basketball games.

A coaching clinic will also be held for the high school coaches, with instruction in football, basketball, track, and athletic training. Charlie Caldwell of Princeton and Art Guepe of Virginia will handle the football classes, while St. John's Frank McGuire will cover the basketball front.

Big name coaches will handle the remainder of the instructional classes. Track students will be under the direction of Carolina's Bob Fetzer and baseball under State's Vic Sorell. General all-around coaching will be taught by Bob Montgomerie of Duke.

Besides the instructional periods, an afternoon of golf, plus several social periods, will be offered to the coaches. The All-Star football game is scheduled for Friday night, August while the All-Star cage contest will be played on Tuesday night, August 5. The basketball game will be moved over to Winston-Salem.

Bobby Harrison, righthanded thrower for Greenville a few seasons back, is currently setting the Cotton States League on fire. Playing out of Meridian, Miss., Bobby had won 11 games without a loss when the last reports came in from the Class C loop.

Incidentally, Meridian is the home town of Fred "Pappy" Williams. Pappy, who managed here in 1949 and led the Greenville club to a playoff championship, is reportedly not playing this season. He played with the Cleveland Indians for one year in his only fling with the majors.

Bill Herring, former manager of Wilson's Tobs and at Goldsboro in the Coastal Plain, was recently released as manager of the Panama City team in the Alabama-Florida League. Panama City was in third place in the six-team Class D league. Herring was replaced by Carl Walker.

Another former Coastal Plain manager has his team in third place in the Georgia State League. Bull Hamons is leading the Vidalia, Ga. team, and is expected to have his team in the thick of the fire for the league championship. The Georgia State is another Class D League. Hamons managed both Tarboro and New Bern while here in North Carolina.

If any of the local baseball fans know the whereabouts of other former Greenville or Coastal Plain League players, please notify The Daily Reflector.

T. W. Carlisle, president of the Statesville club of the North Carolina State League, found a way to express his dislike to the league's umpires last Saturday night, but it didn't pay off in the long run.

When a dispute arose over the ball-strike count on Mooresville manager Jim Mills, Carlisle ordered Statesville manager Ed Sokol to have his team walk off the field in protest. Sokol complied with his boss and the umpires immediately socked a 9-0 forfeit loss on Statesville.

League president Walter Woodson Jr. announced yesterday that he had fined the club $200 for staging the walkout in the fourth inning of the game. A request by Mooresville for $610.10 to cover ticket refunds was not granted by the league directors, however.

Moral of this story: It just don't pay to argue with the ump!

Players in the Bright Belt League might take a lesson from the Statesville story. On several occasions this year, members of the various clubs have ridiculed the umpires of the Bright Belt, who are underpaid and oftentimes untrained.

However, it would be like knocking a stone wall down with your little finger to stop players from arguing with the umpires. What's more, it just wouldn't be a baseball game without it.

Oh, well, the umps are expecting it.

Fremont Wins 13-4 Contest Last Night

Five Runs Pace Fremont Scoring In Second Frame

The heat, the Fremont baseball team and past experiences were just too much for Greenville last night as the Greenies went down under an avalanche of Fremont runs, 13-4, in a Bright Belt League game.

Fremont scored at will in the drawn out ball game, as both pitchers took it easy in the hot weather. Five runs in the second inning proved to be the eventual winning tally for the visitors.

Wayne Hooks started the frame by walking, but was erased on a fielder's choice on a grounder by Jake Carter. Buster Thigpen singled, and both runners advanced when a fielder's choice on a ball hit by Roy Morton was unsuccessful.

With the bases loaded, Greenie pitcher Pat Jordan walked Parker Denning to force Carter home with the first Fremont run. Another walk to Glenn Smith brought Thigpen home. Edgar Hooks struck out for the second out, but Dave Lingle singled to score Morton. Denning came home on a single by Bob Frederick, and Smith scored when the rightfielder bounced the ball around.

Greenville had threatened to make a game of it by scoring three runs in its half of the first inning. With one away, Joe Hobgood walked but was cut down at second as Wilbur Thompson reached first on a fielder's choice. Sonny Russell singled, and George McSwain walked to load the bases. A single by Blainey Moye sent Thompson home with the first run, and Russell and McSwain scored on another singleton by Billy Lester.

Frederick homered in the seventh inning when he teed off one one of Thompson's pitches to hit the scoreboard.

Chuck Davey Wins Over Chico Vegar

DETROIT (UP)—Chuck Davey, the cunning ex-school teacher with an educated left hand, said today he's ready for big game — a shot at the welterweight crown.

A fifth round knockout Chico Vejar last night lifted high the spirits and also the prestige of the 26-year old Detroiter who owns a master's degree from Michigan State College.

It was his second victory over the 20-year-old New York University drama student from Stamford, Conn., in six weeks and once again body blows paved the way.

Davey now is within two, and possibly one, fight of a crack at the welterweight title currently held by Kid Gavilan.

A bout between Billy Graham and Davey is in the making with the winner advancing to a title match.

The stone arch bridge of New York State has been in constant use since 1760.

Heat, Maxim Combine To TKO Sugar Ray Robinson

NEW YORK (AP)—The glorious ring career of Sugar Ray Robinson may have come to an end in the blast furnace heat of Yankee Stadium—just two rounds away from victory over Light Heavyweight Champion Joey Maxim and a third jewel for his gleaming crown.

Steaming 103-degree heat melted the taut flesh off the lean middleweight king and burned out his resistance after 13 rounds of a valiant effort. He collapsed and the victory went to Maxim.

There was many an expert who felt that he had seen the last of the great Sugar Man.

The bout will go down in the books as a 14th round technical knockout for Joey—the bell had sounded to start the 14th—but everyone in the wilted crowd of 47,963 (gross gate $421,696) will credit the TKO to the steambox that was Yankee Stadium last night.

In the 12th, two rounds after Referee Ruby Goldstein became ill from the oppressive heat and was replaced by Ray Miller, Robinson appeared to wobble as he retreated from Maxim, now the stalker.

Suddenly the heat, the 15½ pounds weight handicap and everything else caught up with the sleek, poised Harlemite near the end of the 13th.

He let fly with a haymaker right that missed by a mile and fell flat on his face from exhaustion. As the round-ending gong sounded, he collapsed against the ropes in a neutral corner. His handlers quickly dragged him to his stool.

Moose Take Victory Over Kiwanians 4-1

Several days of desperation playing paid of for the Moose yesterday as they won their first game of the 1952 Little League season, beating the Kiwanians 4-1 in the second game of a doubleheader. The Lions won the first tilt over the Jaycees, 4-3.

Marvin Blount hurled one-hit ball to pitch the Moose to their initial victory. He lost his shutout in the second inning when he walked Ruffin and then wild pitched him around the bases.

Blount and Wayne Sugg blasted triples for the Moose while Tommie Cannon doubled.

Farmville Wins Contest; Signs Havana Pitcher

FARMVILLE—The heat, which made the temperature soar over the 100 degree mark yesterday afternoon, forced the Farmville-Pinetops baseball game to be called at the end of the seventh inning here last night.

At the time the game was called, Farmville was leading by the one-sided margin of 19-5. The Red Sox turned loose all of their batting power in the abbreviated contest, scoring almost at will off the slants of Pinetops hurlers J. D. Thorne and Stancil.

Millard Webb was the batting leader for the winners. Webb, Farmville second baseman, connected for two bases loaded three-baggers to bat in six runs. Roger Thrift collected two bingles in three attempts for Farmville.

The Farmville officials announced this morning that the club had signed a 19-year-old pitcher from Havana, Cuba. Joe Dominguez, who had pitched for Oak Ridge for the past two seasons, is expected to start for Farmville next Saturday night against Greenville in the Bright Belt League.

Dominguez posted a 1-0 record with Oak Ridge this season. He is a 185-pounder.

V. C. Chemicals Is Softball Winner

V. C. Chemicals, the pace-setter in the Men's Softball League, continued its slaughter of the other teams by trouncing Royal Crown, 17-1, in a game yesterday afternoon.

Two runs scored in the first inning actually won the contest. John Farley walked to begin the frame, but Tom Boyd and Bill Moore filed out. Ralph Pickelsimer doubled to score Farley, and came home himself on a single by Joe Dudley.

Johnny Foell, with a double and two singles, led the hitting for the winners. Tom Boyd also homered for the winners in the fifth inning.

Waldensian-Sunbeam won Tuesday's game over Greenville Mills, 7-3.

Sal Yvars Paces Giants To Win Over Cincinnati

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—Spunky Sal Yvars, the perennial wallflower of the New York Giant dugout, suddenly found himself in baseball's seventh heaven today and it took a long time considering the guy got his start in Valhalla, N. Y.

Yvars, overlooked so often during a six-year bench-warming career with the Giants that he sometimes wondered if Manager Leo Durocher knew he was on the roster, overnight became the "belle of the ball."

Right now, unless he gets hurt, he knows he is the only man on the team who will play every inning of every game and Durocher suddenly is mighty happy to have him around.

The burst of popularity developed when first string catching ace Wes Westrum suffered a broken index finger on his throwing hand last Thursday, Since big Ray Noble had been sent to Oakland, that left Yvars as the only available catcher on the roster.

Yvars went to work and the Giants crossed their fingers, hoping he wouldn't get his bashed up. He took charge brilliantly, steering the pitchers to five straight victories, throwing men out on steals and pickouts, and batted at a .350 pace with seven hits in 20 at bats.

Yesterday, as the Giants won a 3 to 2 series — sweeper with Cincinnati it was a single by Yvars which touched off the winning rally in the eighth. He came around to score on a sacrifice, an infield out, and Whitey Lockman's single. Don Mueller and Bob Elliott hit earlier Giant homers and Cal Abrams got one for Cincy.

Brooklyn stayed four games in front of the Giants by topping St. Louis 3 to 1, Carl Erskine following up his no-hitter against Chicago with a steady eight - hitter. Roy Campanella supplies the punch with a three run homer. Stan Musial singled for the Cards to make it 22 straight hitting games.

Boston made it three in a row over Pittsburgh, winning 5 to 2 on the five3hit pitching of Matt Surkont, who struck out nine. Sid Gordon paced the hit department with a homer and double.

The Cubs snapped their nine-game losing streak when Bob Kelly and Dutch Leonard combined to limit the Philadelphia Phillies to five hits and defeat them, 5-1, last night. Hank Sauer, Toby Atwell and Kelly each had two hits as Karl Drews lost his eighth game.

Manager Lou Boudreau, vowing to go with kids if his pain-wracked regular hurlers can't snap out of it, got a winning performance from Rookie Dick Brodowski in a 10 to 3 Boston decision over Detroit in which ex-Tigers George Kell and Hoot Evers hit homers and Kell added a two-run single.

Wimbledon Event Has Full Schedule

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—A full schedule of 16 third-round matches today separates the tennis players from the ribbon clerks in the Wimbledon Men's Singles Championship.

By evening, 16 of the world's best-conditioned players will have passed through the first half of an arduous two-week schedule.

The possibility is there will be eight Americans among their number, but several of them will have known they were in a fight today. One American is bound to lose in the match that brings together titleholder Dick Savitt of Orange, N. J., and his friend and fellow-countryman Harry Likas of San Francisco.

Savitt, with his greater experience and all-court game, has the edge.

Yesterday's matches brought no upsets, although two unseeded Americans fell by the wayside. Gene Garret of Los Angeles went down before the booming serves and drives of Ulrich, and Mrs. Baba Madden Lewis of Newtonvile, Mass., was eliminated by Mrs. Pat Todd of La Jolla, Calif.

Spain Wants Resitution For Discovering U.S.

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — Spain thinks maybe we ought to pay her back a little for discovering America.

What Spain wants besides money is to be recognized by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and become a full partner. That would open the gate for bigger trade in raw materials with us and the rest of Europe.

President Truman has signed the Mutual Security Act which authorizes $25,000,000 in new aid for Spain and carries over $100,000,000 already earmarked for the Franco government. Congress has not appropriated the money as yet.

The Spanish embassy has gone through the record and would like us to remember these things:

Monarchist Spain helped the American colonists with grants of money, arms and men to a degree "equalled by no other country."

Spanish diplomat Jose Antonio Vaca de Osma reports these interesting details of the story of Spanish aid in the war for American independence:

"Conversations between the Count of Aranda and the American representatives, Frank and Lee, produced a loan of what would amount to about $4,000,000 in these times. It was from the Spanish royal treasury. These funds were used to buy 216 bronze cannon, 209 mortars, 12,826 grenades, 51,134 rounds of ammunition, 700,000 pounds of gun powder, 300,000 muskets with bayonets, 4,000 tents and 30,000 military uniforms.

"The Spanish ministers Grimaldi and Floridablanca gave more financial aid by placing orders with Dutch banks in the amount of 605,000 pounds and for 120,000 pesos. Don Diego Gardoqui sent large shipments of army blankets from Bilboa. The royal treasury advanced 3,000,000 reales and at the same time 12,000 guns were sent aboard the ships Amphritrite and San Julian.

The Spanish embassy says that Spanish troops were placed at the disposition of the American leader George Korgan, commander of Fort Pitt. These troops drove the British out of the Mississippi area and occupied Saint Augustine in a joint maneuver with American boys.

ECC Staff To Remain The Same

All members of the East Carolina College faculty during 1951-1952 will return to their posts at the beginning of the fall quarter of the 1952-1953 term, unless they are on leave of absence, according to an announcement by President John D. Messick. No changes in the regular teaching staff are expected for the coming school year, he states.

"It's a mighty good feeling," said the East Carolina President, "to come to the end of the year and have no resignations or dismissals in a faculty of 110 people."

When asked how he accounted for the situation, he stated that a great deal of search and care is taken before a faculty member is employed at East Carolina. "Then an atmosphere of democratic freedom greets the teacher when he comes to the campus. This with a pretty good salary schedule helps to set the environment for happy living," he added.

President Messick voiced the belief people cannot do their best work unless they are happy, and they cannot be happy unless they are appreciated and given credit for all activities. "The campus," he explained, "is a veritable beehive of activity, and more motivation is realized when more credit and appreciation are given."

Chapter 15

It was two days before they departed for Berowra Waters. The tourist bus to the Waters left early on Friday morning. John Taylor was at Martin Place to see them off. The three stood around an untidy heap of valises and suitcases on the footpath.

"You won't know Paul after a fortnight up there," Taylor said.

"I don't know him now," Melisande laughed. "But maybe we'll get better acquainted in the bush."

"I'm looking forward to doing some landscapes," Gardiner said. "What's the scenery like?"

"Superb!" exclaimed Taylor. "And there won't be anybody to peer over your shoulder and ask silly questions, either."

Superficialities filled their conversation until it was time to step aboard. Gardiner assisted Melisande into the bus and stood with one foot on the running board, to have a last word with Taylor.

"If it's like you say, John, maybe I'll paint the house, too."

"Really, Paul, there's no need to. You see—"

"Now, don't get me wrong. I meant I'd paint a picture of the house." He paused. "By the way did you work out my dream yet?"

John Taylor turned away and examined the skyline.

"Yes," he said finally.

"And what do you make of it?"

"I'd say you were thinking of Kate quite a lot that night—"

"Is that all, John?"

"That's all for now," John stepped back from the footboard. "I'll keep in touch with you, Paul."

"Yes—please do that. And if you get any more theories about the dream, you'll let me know. Won't you?"

"Yes. I'll do that. Look after Melisande."

Gardiner gave out a slow smile that was more for himself than for his companion.

From within the bus, Melisande studied the two men reminiscently. She had never seen John Taylor's eyes so hard nor his expression so unfathomable. Suddenly she had a feeling that she didn't want to go to this place with Paul. For a moment she experienced the peace of John Taylor and something of his tranquillity and a little chill settled upon her mind at the thought of having to leave him. Then she recalled Paul's unhappy, insecure outlook, his unpredictable moods and the violence of his views, and she realized that she was being slightly unfair in her comparisons.

The simple and natural emotion of loving Paul was being complicated to the point where she was feeling numb and careless. She felt that she needed greater wisdom, more vigilance and keener insight before she'd be able to disentangle the knotted threads of her marriage and weave them into something intelligible and sensible. Paul was still a stranger to her, an intimate stranger, and perhaps time was all they needed to close-knit the pattern of their life together. Time and patience and love. There was an abundance of all three and they should eventually clarify the confusion of doubts and bewilderments that the last three days had brought.

John Taylor was smiling tenderly at her from the footpath. She smiled back and half-raised her arm in a good-bye gesture.

As the omnibus threaded through the city she kept telling herself that they were alone, now, just the two of them, herself and the intimate stranger who sat rigidly beside her, staring ahead into the traffic, and thinking.

Like Cassius, she thought, he thinks too much. She would give anything to know what drifted across his mind during these long periods of introspection, yet she daren't ask him. She'd asked him once and he'd snapped back with: "What am I thinking? My dear young woman, is there no privacy left?"

She hadn't been game to ask again, after seeing the unbridled indignation that had flashed into his eyes when he spoke. At the same time, she'd like to know. Sometimes it seemed as though he was the custodian of some gigantic secret that he was loath to share with anyone. Perhaps he was laughing at everything, airing his cynicism in the sanctuary of his own mind. Maybe he was merely brooding on the past. From hints he'd let slip in unguarded moments it appeared that the past emerged as something of a minor nightmare, blocking out happiness and creating only fresh melancholies. Perhaps if he talked freely about the past she'd understand him better: but he seldom mentioned it, and this reticence always brought a new train of wonderings to her own mind. You could know enough to gamble on a man's future she decided, but it was dangerous to take wild chances on his past.

When they reached Berowra Waters, towards the close of the day, the air was curiously still between intermittent puffs of hot, scorching wind. There was a feeling of storm across the Waters beyond the trees and the pleasant smell of rain. Black torn clouds scudded across the sky and the dull undersides of the willows were turning up.

"Nice weather for a honeymoon, darling," Paul said.

It was the first thing he'd said in almost an hour. As the launch traversed the bay he placed his arm round her shoulder and pressed her close. "It doesn't matter, does it?"

Melisande smiled up at him. She felt the color creeping into her cheeks at the touch of his arm and for the hundredth time she knew again the disappearance of her doubts and felt only the rich warmth of his physical nearness. This sensation ousted the entire misery of the journey and gave her fresh resolves. If it were to be a stormy voyage together it would be at least be exciting and dangerous.

Designers To Cover Bare Shoulders

(For PM's Wed. June 25)
By ELIZABETH TOOMEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP—Designers have thought up a lot of new ways to cover bare shoulders and do away with breathtaking bodices when autumn arrives.

Not that bare shoulders have been decreed old - fashioned, but they're just partially hidden by straps attached stoles and intricate lattice work in many of the after dark fall fashions previewed here this week.

Pierre Balmain, French designer who has created his first American collection, refers to the "decline of the strapless dress for informal and formal wear." The halter neckline is a Balmain favorite. He also uses narrow straps and embroidered and fringed triangular stoles to cover bare shoulders.

Oleg Cassini satisfied the mixed demands for modesty and daring by including a short black velvet dress with a removable white satin vestee which snaps out to leave a low cut neckline. For a completely demure winter season, there's an evening dress with a flaring white satin skirt, black velvet shirtwaist top and white satin choir boy collar designed by Cassini.

Fabrics and colors have changed more than styles the past few seasons. For fall the newest color combination is brown and black. The browns shade from a light putty color to a chocolate, and the brown-black outfits include daytime suits as well as formals.

One three-piece outfit to wear from daytime into evening in brown and black was included in Cassini's designs. He combined a slim black wool skirt with a brown taffeta strapless top and a tailored black and brown wool tweed jacket.

Hannah Troy used brown and black in a lace evening dress. Black coats, both velvet and wool, are lined with brown taffeta.

In two of the fall fashion shows held yesterday as part of the New York Dress Institute's press week, disappearance of the free swinging pyramid coat was forecast.

Slimmer lines, but fleecy wools, go into the newest cold weather coats. Oiriginala features a natural camel's hair coat buttoned snugly from neck to waist with tiny pearl buttons. The officer's coat, with a straight, double breasted front and alow-belted back, also is one of next winter's stules.

For those who like something completely different, Oirginala has made a coat with a trumpet Silhouette. It is a compromise between straight and fitted coats, with a slight inward curve just above the waist.

Silky brushed wools are more popular than the nubby poodle cloth weaves in new coats. One fabric creator calls the fabric afghan wool. The sleek wools have been created in two-tone effects—pale blue over brown and beige over brown.

NEW YORK (UP) — After the name of the late Dr. Benjamin Gruskin, the "man of pure science," comes that of O'Neill Ryan Jr., a highly successful salesman and advertising man.

Ryan was born in St. Louis in 1898, the son of a judge and law professor. He served in the first world war as a naval aviator and was graduated from St. Louis University in 1920. He then became a salesman.

By 1940 he was vice-president of J. Walter Thompson, one of the giants of the advertising industry, in charge of developing "new business." In 1941, he read Gruskin's "epoch-making" paper in the American Journal of urgery. It had been called to his attention by a friend.

He was interested and he became an intimate of the scientist who had taken out a "use" patent covering water soluble chlorophyll derivatives in 1938 and which he had assigned to the Lakeland Foundation.

He obtained an exclusive license from the foundation to develop products from the patents, paying on a royalty basis.

But he made not the slightest motion toward exploitation or any form of money3oaking. Instead he set Gruskin up in a new chlorophyll project at New York Post Graduate Hospital where the scientist worked happily through long days, and evenings played the piano for relaxation. Instead of planning chlorophyll advertising, Ryan listened to the piano-playing.

In 1941, Ryan took in Henry Stanton, another J. Walter Thompson executive, and they formed the Rystan company. Sometime later, needing more capital for research, they took in Mrs. C. Haskell Bliss, one of the Dodge heirs.

By 1943, Gurskin's sight was failing, his health was deteriorating. He died in Atlantic City in December, 1950. His professional colleagues say he died "penniless." But Ryan's friends say he pays the widow, Mrs. Irma Gruskin a substantial pensions.

In 1945, the Rystan company offered the medical profession its first product—a chlorophyll ointment under the trade name, "cloresium." In 1948, it offered the dental profession the first chlorophyll tooth paste. Both products were "ethical"—that is they were not advertised or promoted in any way to the public.

To this day, Rystan has engaged in no commercial exploitation of any kind. Ryan did not withdraw from J. Walter Thompson until December, 1950. Stanton still is with the firm. Ryan deplores the multiplication of chlorophyll products and their exploitation. He considers himself a chlorophyll apostle drives a green Ford.

In 1951, Rystan granted Lever Brothers an exclusive license, expiring next June 31, for the use of the Gruskin patent in dentrifices. Lever brothers launched "chlorodent, with what was said to be "the biggest advertising budget for a dentrifice in history," on January 1.

May Crack Down On Refugees To Prevent Abuses

BELGRADE —(AP) — Communistic Yugoslavia may crack down soon on political refugees particularly those from Italy — who shirk work in this country or spread pro-Russian propaganda.

The Belgrade newspaper Politika, reflecting the views of the government, called attention to the problem recently in an angry article denouncing a "minority" of such refugees abusing this country's "fraternal hospitality."

It was directed against both those who have fled the iron-fist Russian rule of the neighboring Soviet satellites and "especially" against refugees from Italy opposed to the administration of Prime Minister Alcide De Gasperi.

Old Locomotive Is A Party-Goer

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP)—Old 999 is busy going from party to party these days.

The old locomotive, spruced up in black and gold paint, is making appearances at fairs and community sesquicentennials and the like. She's still in her glory as she was before the turn of the century when she was queen of the New York Central.

Old 999 is the retired speed queen of the rails. Her record of 112½ miles an hour set back in 1893 still stands.

Postman Plans More Walking

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) — When the word got around that Jim Randall was retiring as postman after 21 years on the same route some of his friends got busy.

One woman, Mrs. Gertrude Van Arsdale, wrote some letters to those Randall served and later she spent two days walking his route. The result was a $452 gift to the 70-year-old postal veteran.

As for Jim, he plans to get another outdoor job. "I plan to keep on walking until I can't walk any more," he said.

Mutual Attitude Between Animals And A 'Friend'

PORTLAND, Me. —(AP) —Every week is Be Kind to Animals Week for Adolph B. (Junior) Bowens. And the feeling is mutual on the part of the animals.

"Junior" has hauled skunks from tin cans and flushed 'em out of culverts without any odorous consequences. He has walked up to a bristling porcupine and tied a rope around its neck and led it away. He has worked for the Animal Refuge League since he graduated from high school three years ago.

He has turned his mother's turkey-farm homeinto a virtual menagerie. He keeps a raccon, a pair of gray squirrels, a goat, a woodchuck, two dogs and two cats.

"I've been crazy about animals ever since I was big enough to walk," he said. "If people understood them there'd be no need for fear."

Stocks And Market Reports

NEW YORK UP) —Prices rose slightly on the stock exchange around mid-session today in moderately active dealings.

Industrial and specialty issues led the advance. The rise in the industrials moved prices in that group to their best levels since Feb. W. Rails currently are around their 1931 highs.

Rails were unsettled somewhat around mid-season when Santa Fe slipped 2 points to 90 despite an increase in its dividend.

Elsewhere, Atlantic Refining was a weak spot with a loss of 1 1-4 points to 32 3-8. Other oils firmed.

Outside of the main utility group, Standard Gas & Electric stood out. The $4 preferred rose 1-2 points to 95 3-8; its $6 preferred added a point to 172 1-2; and $7 preferred at 193 was up 1 1-2 points.

Steel shares rose irregularly. Chrysler and General Motors also tacked on small gains.

Out-Dated City Laws Discarded

Last Official Meeting Tonight

The Greenville board of aldermen will hold its last official meeting of the fiscal year tonight at 8 o'clock in the city hall.

City Clerk H. H. Duncan disclosed this morning tonight's meeting will be concerned with closing out all of this year's business. However, it will be treated as a regular meeting and all petitioners will be heard.

Duncan said another meeting will be held Tuesday, July 1, at 12 o'clock noon. "At that time, new aldermen George Pugh and Jimmy Wells are slated to take the oath of office," the clerk stated. Pugh and Wells were elected to the board in the May city elections.

Wells ran unopposed for the seat vacated by J. E. Waldrop, and Pugh defeated incumbent J. E. Collins in a close race. At Tuesday's meeting, the board will appoint heads of the various departments and their assistants.

The next regular meeting of the board will be held Thursday, July 3.

Has Pocketful Of Rattlers And Hair-Raising Tale

Greenville Alderman J.E. Waldrop today has a pocketful of rattlesnake rattles and a fine tale to tell his grandchildren as a result of a hair-raising experience at Atlantic Beach yesterday.

In company with nine other people — including three native guides — Waldrop was inspecting a tract of land near Salter Path which the Episcopal Church plans to convert into a camp site for church members.

According to reports, the group was making its way single file through a thickly-grown bushland. The men were led by a native guide and Alderman Waldrop was bringing up the rear. Just as Rev. James Dees — who was immediately ahead of Waldrop — TOOK A LONG STEP, Waldrop spotted a coiled rattlesnake between Dees' feet.

He called the guide and the snake was killed with a bushaxe. It was an exceptionally large speciman and had 11 rattles and a button on its tail. It was learned that all nine men had stepped over the snake without being bitten or even noticing it.

"I'm going to give the rattles to my kid for a souvenir." Waldrop said this morning.

are inclined to paramount individual prestige. Vast majority of the citizens and the taxpayers are not cnocerned about whether John Doe or Joa Doakes holds office, so long as government is administered honestly and with the purpose of serving the greatest good for the most people. Recurring surplusses and occasional deficits should be handled according to law and continuing rule, rather than left to the personal whims of temporary incumbents in official positions. The very fact that the incumbents are in power is proof that a majority of the people had faith in their individual ability and integrity. If mistakes are discovered in the choice of officials they should be corrected by changing officials, not by attempts to change proven policies to meet peculiar conditions.
