Officials Might Meet In Effort To Settle Strike

Rumored That CIO Representatives And Steel Companies Will Meet

NEW YORK (UP) — Reliable sources said today that CIO United Steelworkers representatives will meet here this week with officials of at least two major steel companies in a new effort to settle the month-old steel strike.

The report was neither confirmed nor denied by spokesmen for the union, which has lowered a curtain of secrecy over its negotiating activities.

However, the executive committee of the American Iron & Steel Institute, which represents the "Big Six" of the steel industry, is scheduled to meet in New York tomorrow. This might be the occasion for a new effort toward agreement in the dispute which has idled 600,000 steelworkers and a growing number of workers in other industries.

Joe Molony, USW district director from Buffalo, N. Y., was reported to have met Monday with representatives of Bethlehem Steel Corp. They were said to have worked out an agreement on the union shop issue in the strike.

However, U. S. Steel Corp. has noted its firm opposition to the tentative agreement, under which employees would be required to join the union but could withdraw within 30 days of the hiring date.

A company official said yesterday that U. S. Steel would make no agreement taking away the "freedom of choice" by workers on whether they shall join the union.

Arthur Goldberg, general counsel for the union, was said to be "standing by" in New York to take part in any new settlement that might develop during the gathering of "big steel" representatives.

Bethlehem Steel Corp. and Republic Steel Corp. were reported to be interested in the compromise proposal on the union shop. Both of these companies will be represented in the industry pow-wow here this week.

Meanwhile, in Pittsburgh union negotiators pressed for further strike settlements with the smaller steel companies. About 30 of these with the union, lowering the number of strike-idled workers by more than 80,000.

13 Local Firms Awarded Certificates For Safety

Thirteen Greenville industrial and service establishments today were publicly recognized by the North Carolina Department of Labor for their achievements in the prevention of industrial accidents during 1951.

Mrs. Emily Hadley of Greenville, mercantile and service establishment inspector, representing the State Labor Department in this district presented the awards to officials of the thirteen Greenville establishments.

Local firms receiving the Labor Department's award were as follows: Carolina Dry Cleaners, College View Cleaners and Laundry, Inc., Concrete Products Company of Greenville, N. C., Inc., The Daily Reflector, Inc., Greenville Packing Company, Morton's Bakery, Ormond Wholesale Co., Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co., Inc., Rainbow Cleaners, Scott's Dry Cleaners, Standard Supply Company, Inc.—Greenville Branch, and Waldensian-Pitt Baking Company.

The Greenville plant of the National Carbon Company, a Division of Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation, received special recognition for virtue of having won an award for five consecutive years. "Their five year award was in the form of a mahogany plaque embossed with a bronze safety emblem. Through 1951 this firm had operated over a million manhours without a lost time injury, the last

Knott Proctor To Head Rotary Club

J. Knott Proctor, Greenville postmaster, was handed the gavel as president of the Greenville Rotary Club last night at the annual installation ceremonies for new officers.

Proctor succeeds Charles A. White who has been president of the club for the past year.

Other new Rotary officers installed at the meeting are F. Badger Johnson, vice president; Wendell Smiley, secretary; and directors Alton Barrett, Larry Brown, Sherman Parks, Sam Underwood and Erroll Webb.

James W. Butler, past district governor of Rotary, installed the new officers, pointing out the need for a continuation of the Rotary ideals of fellowship, understanding and help for others in Greenville and Eastern North Carolina.

"These ideals are what have caused Rotary to continue to grow," he said, "and Greenville has taken its place among the 7,539 communities of the world that have Rotary."

Butler praised retiring president White for his leadership during the past year, and told the members of the club, "the new officers are looking to you for the kind of support Rotary has had from year to year."

Before turning over the gavel to incoming president Proctor, White told the club, "It has been a pleasure, a privilege and an honor to be president of Rotary for the past year. He thanked the club for its cooperation during the year and expressed his appreciation for the good work of J. B. Kittrell, chairman of the program committee, U. Walker of the cuisine committee, Dave Whichard of the bulletin committee, Wyatt Brown, club reporter, and Secretary Wendell Smiley.

After being inducted as president of the club, Proctor pledged his best efforts for Rotary and added, "I need your advice and support, and I know I will get it."

Visiting Rotarians at the meeting last night were F. M. Kilpatrick and Gilbert Davis of Ayden and Ray Phillips of Washington.

Sen. Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma said last weekend that he has more "second choice" support than any other candidate and that he expects to win on the fifth or sixth ballot.

Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee also has predicted victory for himself on the fifth or sixth ballot.

With 257 delegates pledged to or known to favor Kefauver, he leads the big Democratic field but still has less than half the number required to win.

Russell, whose delegate count is now 134 1-2 in the United Press tabulation, said he expects about 300 votes on the first ballot and that he will climb thereafter.

Predictions that many ballots will be required reflected a widespread view among Democrats that the convention may be deadlocked by the first free-for-all Democratic race in 20 years.

The inspector emphasized the importance of plant safety programs as the best method of preventing industrial accidents—whether considered from the economic or the humanitarian point of view.

"Four points must be considered in the operation of effective industrial safety programs," Mrs. Hadley said. "First, top management must believe in safety; second, definite responsibility for such a program must be assigned to one person in each plant; third, a plan of safety operations must be set up and carried out; and fourth, accidents must be pin-pointed to discover their causes and to find the needed remedies.

The safety inspector also pointed out that good businessmen will attempt to prevent accidents both to save themselves money and to save their employees from suffering needlessly.

Bolt Threatened If Seats Denied Texas Delegates

Byrnes Advocates Leaving Convention If Lone Star Anti-Truman Delegation Not Recognized

HOUSTON, Tex. (UP) — Gov. James F. Byrnes of South Carolina said today he would advocate bolting the national Democratic convention if the party fails to seat Texas' uninvited but anti-administrative delegation.

Texas has 52 presidential nominating votes, making it the sixth largest bloc in the nation. South Carolina has 16.

Byrnes, a bitter foe of the Truman administration and a key figure in the Southern revolt, brought the North-South split to the forefront as the 44th annual meeting of the National Governors' Conference moved into its second day.

Two contesting Democratic delegations are going to the national convention from Texas, one pledged to support the party nominee and favorable to the Truman administration. The other, long hostile to the national administration, is "unpledged," uninvited and unbound.

Byrnes said that if the unpledged delegation was barred because of that reason, "I would advocate going along with Texas—walking or running, whatever you call it."

He said that if the national convention refuses to seat Texas on those grounds, it was logical to assume similar unpledged delegations from South Carolina, Mississippi and other Southern states would not be accepted.

Byrnes, championing the candidacy of Sen. Richard Russell of Georgia, predicted Russell would have "at least" 300 presidential nominating votes on the first national convention ballot.

Byrnes said he would be "surprised and disappointed" if Russell didn't.

Byrnes summarily rejected Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, reckoned as a potential presidential nominee, as an acceptable candidate.

Stevenson said yesterday that in his opinion civil rights were a problem that should be handled by the states. But he quickly added that if the individual states were "unable or unwilling" to accept the responsibility, the federal government should act.

Byrnes snapped that such a policy was compulsory and a "threat, I don't care how you sugar-coat it, that is compulsion."

The former secretary of state then carefully pointed out that he was speaking of "principles" and not "personalities."

Stevenson had announced he was not a candidate.

South Carolina will decide its course of action after both the Democratic and Republican national conventions, Byrnes said.

South Carolina Democrats, he said, would name electors to vote for the man and platform most nearly in accord with their views. He said this would mean sticking to the party line.

Byrnes said he would be "surprised and disappointed" if Russell didn't.

Truman Sees Gap In Mobilization Program With Weak Economic Controls; May Get Along Without Panic Buying

By MERRIMAN SMITH United Press White House Writer WASHINGTON (UP)—President Truman said today Congress opened "a dangerous gap in the mobilization program" by passing a weak economic controls program.

But he said the nation may get along if the international situation does not worsen, and the public refrains from panic buying.

Mr. Truman signed the bill yesterday. He explained today his reluctance to act was due only to the fact that the control powers would have otherwise expired last midnight.

The President said Congress must provide adequate appropriations for the stabilization agencies, or even the limited control program would collapse completely.

The new version of the Defense Production Act destroyed the existing wage stabilization system without providing a workable substitute, Mr. Truman said, and "thus, the Congress has opened a dangerous gap in the mobilization program."

The President conceded the new law has some virtues, particularly in its continuation of production and allocation provisions, and he noted some improvement in an amendment to ease limitations on foreign trade.

"Unfortunately, however, the new law weakens our ability to hold down prices and stabilize our economy," he said.

"At a time when our defense production is still expanding and necessarily contributing to inflationary pressures, the Congress has weakened price controls has limited the effectiveness of wage controls, has invited widespread abandonment of rent control, and virtually cancelled selective credit controls."

This, the President said, forced the administration "to take a serious gamble with inflation."

"This law gives the American people only very limited protection against the dangers of inflation," he said.

But, he continued, "if Congress provides sufficient funds for proper administration of this weakened act, and if we have no sudden worsening of the international crisis, and no panic buying, we may be fortunate enough to get through the next 10 months without serious damage to our economy."

The controls bill was "the target of every favor-seeking lobby of the special interests in this election year," Mr. Truman said, and the people "should be grateful" to Sen. Burnet R. Maybank (D-S.C.) and Rep. Brent Spence (D-Ky.), chairman of the House and Senate banking committees, for fighting "against great odds" to keep the bill from being a "total loss."

Mr. Truman objected specifically and particularly to the exemption of all fruits and vegetables from price control, provisions which may send up the prices of milk and fertilizer, widespread rent control exemptions and the weakening of credit controls.

The President pledged all federal agencies to do everything possible to combat inflation and admonished the public to give "full and unceasing cooperation" to the program.

The compromise legislation was rushed through the House and Senate.

Speculations Indicate Officials Discussed Stepped-Up Air Offensives Against Communists; Top-Ranking Officers Confer With Van Fleet

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—A delegation of America's top-ranking Air Force officials toured Air Force installations in Korea today, touching off speculation new and more damaging air assaults are being readied against the Communists.

The delegation was headed by acting Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Nathan F. Twining and Air Undersecretary Roswell L. Gilpatric. Accompanying them were six major generals from the Pentagon.

They conferred with 8th Army commander Gen. James A. Van Fleet, Lt. Gen. Otto P. Weyland, Far East Air Force commander, and Lt. Gen. Glenn O. Barnes, 8th Air Force commander. They visited both American and Australian air bases.

The party declined to see the press in Tokyo or Seoul. Public information officers said only that the purpose of the visit was to "inspect Far East Air Force installations in Japan, Korea and Okinawa."

But the visit, coming only a week after the United Nations' disastrous raids on North Korea's hydroelectric complex, gave rise to speculation the generals discussed preparations for a stepped-up air offensive against the Communists.

Meanwhile, the Air Force disclosed the U. N. lost 41 planes to accidents and enemy gunfire in June. The navy lost 26 and the 5th Air Force 15.

It was the heaviest toll of Navy carrier planes in four months. Eighteen were lost to enemy fire and eight from other causes. A spokesman said the slightly higher losses for June could be attributed to longer summer days which permit more sorties from dawn to dusk.

The 5th Air Force said F-56 Sabre jets shot down 18 Russian-built MIG-15 jet fighters and three propeller-driven Red fighters while suffering only one loss. Marine night fighters accounted for one more conventional Red fighter.

Allied planes killed or wounded more than 1,000 communist ground troops, the Air Force said.

The 8th Army reported U. N. ground troops killed, wounded or captured 2,999 Communist soldiers in the week ended June 28, of whom 1,836 were killed, 1,430 wounded and 83 captured.

Fighting Monday centered along the Heartbreak Ridge area of the eastern front where a battalion of Communist soldiers attacked U. N. positions. The Allies, supported by artillery, repelled the enemy.

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—The United Nations told the Communists at the resumption of armistice talks today there is a "face-saving" way out of the prisoner exchange deadlock.

A Red propagandist at the same time suggested secret sessions to work out a solution.

Maj. Gen. William K. Harrison, chief Allied negotiator, spent 20 minutes of today's 29-minute meeting—the first in four days—in a carefully prepared exposition pointing out both sides actually are close to agreement.

Harrison noted the armistice document has 63 paragraphs. Agreement has been reached on 62, except for minor details, he said. The one paragraph waiting solution is No. 51, covering prisoner exchange.

"It seems clear that if the prisoner of war issue is settled, an armistice is in sight."

Face-To-Face Debate Might Settle Question

By JAMES MARLOW WASHINGTON (AP)—We could all make up our minds better about the presidential hopefuls if they'd just have a nice debate, face-to-face, on television.

For instance, Sen. Robert Taft and Gen. Dwight Eisenhower in one debate and some of the would-be Democratic candidates in another.

Then, after the Democratic and Republican conventions in Chicago each pick a candidate, those two winners could debate on TV. Not just once. As often as necessary.

And none of the TV debates, before or after the conventions, would have to be 30-minute quickies. Instead, full dress debates, even if they took hours.

Concern Of U. S. Defenses Slows Up Lawmakers

WASHINGTON (UP)—Last-minute concern about the state of U. S. defenses slowed the congressional economy drive today as hurried lawmakers strove to complete action on nearly 400 catch-all bills worth of appropriations bills in time to adjourn Saturday.

The new emphasis on preparedness was reflected in the $46,000,000 military spending bill, which the Senate passed, 66 to 0, last night after adding $600,000,000 for the Air Force to continue building toward its goal of 143 wings by mid-1955.

A key Republican senator predicted that the economy bill also will be "element" on the next big preparedness measure to come before the Senate—a catch-all bill carrying funds for foreign aid, military base construction and expansion of the U. S. atomic program.

As passed by the house last week, it carried a total of $10,122,800,790 including $3,731,205,250 for new atomic plants. The latter figure represented a 50 per cent slash in administration requests.

Chairman Brian McMahon (D-Conn.) of the Congressional Atomic Energy Committee appealed yesterday to the Senate Appropriations Committee to restore the House cuts before it sends the bill to the Senate floor, possibly tomorrow.

He said the cuts "could grievously harm our atomic security."

The military spending bill went to a joint conference committee to iron out differences between the Senate version and the $46,207,177.55 measure previously passed by the House. Seven other money bills for the fiscal year 1953, which began today, already were in various stages of conference committee action.

Democratic Leader Ernest W. McFarland (Ark.) said the Senate would take up so-called "fair trade" legislation after acting on the twin German treaties today.

Crippled Father Saves Daughter From Drowning

HUGO, Okla. (UP)—A young father, whose legs have wasted away from a lifetime of paralysis, dragged himself into a lake to save his 10 year old daughter from drowning, but his eight-year-old son went under before the cripple could reach him.

Olen Petty, service station operator whose legs have been useless most of his life, forced himself to the lake bottom 10 feet below the surface repeatedly, but couldn't free the youngster from moss and brush in which he had become entangled.

Petty, his son Jessie Joe and daughter Lucille, were picnicking at the lake near here last night when the girl stepped into deep water while wading. Jessie Joe plunged into the lake in an attempt to save her and also slipped into water over his head. Neither of the youngsters could swim.

Petty dragged himself some 300 yards to the water when he heard their screams and managed to get his daughter to shore. He said Jessie Joe had already disappeared below the surface.

"I managed to get hold of his hair once," Petty sobbed, "but I couldn't pull him free of that brush."

City Hall Is Hot

The temperature in the city hall yesterday feiled a man who has been exposed to hot weather for many years.

Officials at the utilities department reported that an unidentified white man about 65 years old collapsed from heat exhaustion as he stood in line waiting to pay his utilities bill.

Purported to be an employe at James Brothers Lumber Company, the stricken man collapsed in a faint just as he reached the pay window. He fell to the stone floor, receiving a deep gash in his head as he collided with the hard surface.

Utilities employes moved him to a nearby couch and administered ammonia. He soon revived, and was able to leave the building under his own power, they said.

New Members Of Board Of Aldermen Are Installed

JIMMY WELLS As of today, the city of Greenville has two new aldermen — George Pugh and Jimmy Wells.

The two junior members of the board were installed in official ceremonies held at noon today in the aldermen's room at the city hall, where—barring unforeseen circumstances—they will sit for the next two years to assist in mapping city policy.

At the same time, two members who were re-elected to their seats on the board took the oath of office. They are Robert Elks and C. B. Mayo—both of whom have served several previous terms as aldermen.

Oath Administered In keeping with a custom of many years' standing, the oath of office was administered by Clerk of Superior Court D. T. House Jr. Mayor Lester D. Page presided over the meeting—the first of the new fiscal year, which begins today.

The two neophyte members of the board—and the re-elected incumbents—assumed their new duties as a result of the May 5 city-wide elections. In the elections, George Pugh unseated incumbent Alderman J. E. Collins by a vote of 566 to 543. Col-

Officer Deputy Chief To Clark

GEORGE PUGH LONDON (UP)—The Churchill government, under fire for its Korean policy, announced today that a senior British officer is to be a deputy chief of staff to Gen. Mark W. Clark, United Nations Commander in the Far East.

The announcement was made by Selwyn Lloyd, minister of state, in the House of Commons and Defense Minister Earl Alexander in the Lords. The statements came at the opening of a full dress Commons debate on Korea.

Lloyd and Alexander returned from an official visit to Japan, Korea and Washington to find the Conservative government under bitter Laborite attack because the Yalu River bombing raids were made without consultation with the British government.

Former Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee, leader of the Labor Party, scored a victory over the leftist wing of Aneurin Bevan prior to the debate.

At a morning caucus, Bevan denounced the Yalu River bombing as likely to widen the war. Members who attended said he introduced a motion which amounted to one of misconfidence in Attlee's party leadership. It was defeated by a vote of about 100 to 50.

Local Policemen Resigns Force

Clifton R. Howard, former Marine who has been on the Greenville police force since March 9, 1951, has resigned, effective July 20, Chief Guy C. Langston has announced.

Howard was in the Marine Corps during World War II and served until shortly before he was appointed to the Greenville police force. His record as a policeman in Greenville is excellent, the chief stated. He is a native of the Southwood community of Lenoir County.

Howard, it is understood, is going to work for the Imperial Tobacco Company at its Greenville branch.

Bridal Couple Honored At Red Oak Club

On Tuesday evening at Red Oak Club Building, Mesdames B. L. Tyson, Fenner L. Allen Sr., Joe Joyner Sr. and Jarvis Tripp entertained informally for Mr. and Mrs. John Kirby Allen, who were recently married in Charleston, S. C.

The guests were greeted at the door by the hostesses, Mr. and Mrs. Allen and Mrs. James Allen. Mrs. Kirby Allen was presented a corsage of wine-velvet glads and deep purple ribbons.

After greeting old friends, Mr. and Mrs. Allen were directed to the gift table which was centered with an arrangement of glads and gardenias, with white candles in crystal holders on each side.

The honorees were the recipients of many lovely gifts of crystal, china, silver and miscellaneous items.

The refreshment table was laid with a white linen floor-length cloth and was centered with an arrangement of white shasta daisies, glads and fern, flanked on either side with white candles in crystal holders which were tied with fern and white ribbons.

At one end of the table from an antique punch bowl with an arrangement of gardenias placed on one side, Mrs. Hazel Tripp served iced fruit punch.

A three-tiered wedding cake, topped with a bride and groom, was placed at the other end of the table. After the bride and groom cut the first slice, Mrs. F. L. Allen served the cake to the many guests present.

Mrs. Joe Joyner Sr., Mrs. B. L. Tyson and Mrs. Jarvis Tripp Sr. passed nuts and mints.

Best wishes were extended to the young couple who are making their home in Charleston, S. C.

Mrs. Allen was the former Marilyn Stanland of Tampa, Florida.

Bridal Shower For Miss Bryson

On last Thursday evening Mrs. E. A. Hendrix, Mrs. Paul Toll and Miss Carmen Dunn entertained informally to honor Miss Denny Lee Bryson, bride-elect of July.

The party, which was held at the home of Mrs. Hendrix, was a miscellaneous shower. As the guests arrived, they were introduced to several parlor games, in which they all participated. One of the most amusing was "Advice to the Bride," during which each guest wrote a bit of original advice to the bride, who in turn read them back to the group.

Some musical contests were conducted and other social games were enjoyed before the hostesses invited them into the dining room for refreshments.

The table in the dining room was covered with a white cloth and centered with an arrangement of white gladioli and baby's breath. On the buffet was a vase of hydrangea blossoms, and elsewhere in the home summer cut flowers were used.

Mrs. Toll poured fruit punch and guests served themselves to bridal cakes, nuts and mints. At the conclusion of the refreshment hour, Miss Bryson was given one end of a white satin streamer and told to follow it to the other end, where she found a basket of bridal presents, all beautifully packed, which the guests had brought as shower gifts for her.

There were 15 friends of the honoree present for the occasion.

OVERCONFIDENCE

HOUSTON, Tex. (UP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York warns that Republican overconfidence in the 1952 presidential campaign could be a "catastrophe."

"I'm a leading authority on that subject," the unsuccessful GOP presidential nominee in 1944 and 1948 said.

The Delaware River is one of the Nation's prime shipbuilding centers, with ways at Camden, Chester, Philadelphia, and elsewhere.

40 Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR July 1, 1912

Mrs. Ficklen Entertains
Mrs. E. B. Ficklen entertained last Friday afternoon at a delightful "porch party" complimentary to her guest, Miss Frances Jeter, of Bedford City, Va. The hostess and guest of honor met the guests at the steps and showed them to the hall where fruit punch was served by Mesdames E. B. Ferguson and L. C. Skinner. They were then presented score cards by Misses Douglas Arthur and Helen Laughinghouse and ushered to the spacious porch where eight tables were set for games, four for Euchre and four for Rook.

Sun flowers were much in evidence around the steps, hall and porch and the punch table was prettily decorated with nasturtiums, the punch bowl almost hidden in a bed of flowers. The table prizes were dainty boudoir caps and the cutting for them caused much merriment. The guest of honor's prize was a boudoir cap and all the visiting young ladies were allowed to cut for the visitor's prize, which was also a boudoir cap. After the presentation of the prizes delicious ices, cakes and mints were served by the hostess, who was assisted by Mrs. C. S. Carr and Misses Doris Overton, Minnie Exum Sugg, Helen Laughinghouse and Douglas Arthur. There were present about 20 out-of-town guests.

The Right Reverend Sebastian Snodgrass will tie the knot. Other members of the wedding party will be Bunyan Paine, Ephraim Strutt, Abner Tote, Leafy Green, Peoria Hunchy, Jehro Lost, Hepsibel Strong, Obidiah Strong, Osa Strong, Nola Strong, Virgie Lament and Ebenezer Tompkins. The organist will be Miss Witha Bang and the soloist is note other than Miss Gladiola Louder.

A reception will follow and refreshments will be served.

Circle No. 2 of Red Oak is sponsoring this entertainment and they hope a large crowd will attend the wedding. Proceeds will be used for a good cause.

School Officials To Meet At ECC July 2

Administrative officers representing various North Carolina public schools will meet at East Carolina College Wednesday, July 2, to discuss problems which arise in their work and to consider ways of improving instruction. "Pleasant Paths for Pupils" has been announced as the conference theme.

Dr. Edgar M. Finck, nationally known educator from New Jersey and a member of the summer faculty at East Carolina for several years, has arranged the program for the day and will direct the conference on public school administration. More than a dozen speakers representing varied groups and their points of view will participate in scheduled events, and others attending the conference will be invited to present their ideas on questions arising during the day.

The opening meeting will begin at 10:30 Wednesday morning in the Austin auditorium. A luncheon and program meeting in the college dining hall will close the conference.

Dr. William H. Cartwright, chairman of the department of education at Duke University, has been announced as principal speaker at the luncheon. His topic will be "Should Homework Be Abolished?"

Dr. J. K. Long, director of the East Carolina department of education, will serve as presiding officer.

Dean Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina College will act as chairman at a symposium which will initiate the discussions held during the morning. "Our New Athletic Code and How to Make It Work" will be considered by a group of seven speakers, including Taylor Dodson of the State Department of Public Instruction, Raleigh; George S. Willard Jr., principal of the Wilson High School; and Reynolds May, Greenville business man.

Others who will participate in the symposium are Mrs. Ester Draughon, Clinton, a parent; Warren "Sonny" Russell, Havelock, star athlete at East Carolina; Charles J. Howard, Wilkesboro, high school teacher; and Jimmy Allen, Garner, coach.

In a panel discussion on "Should We Have Failures in the Elementary School?" six educators will state various points of view. Speakers will be O. P. Johnson, County Superintendent of Schools, Kenansville; H. J. MacDonald, superintendent, New Bern; Vera Keech, supervisor, Tarboro; Mrs. Katherine Baker, elementary school principal, Rocky Mount; Fred Eason, high school principal, Elizabeth City; and Gertrude Styron, elementary school teacher, Morehead City.

Mrs. Sallie F. Tripp Dies In Vanceboro
Mrs. Sallie Fillingame Tripp, 65, died at her home near Vanceboro Tuesday morning at 4:45 o'clock. She had been in failing health for the past two and a half years and critically ill since January, 1952. Funeral services will be conducted at Holly Hill Pentecostal Holiness Church near Vanceboro Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock, and burial will be in the churchyard. The Rev. K. J. Little, Pentecostal Holiness Minister of Greenville, assisted by the Rev. R. H. Bradford, Pentecostal Holiness Minister of Vanceboro, will officiate. The body will remain at the S. G. Wilkerson & Sons Funeral Home and will be carried to the church one hour prior to the time of service.

Mrs. Tripp, daughter of the late William and Mary Lilly Fillingame, was born and spent most of her life in Craven County. She was a member of the Vanceboro Pentecostal Holiness Church and was married in 1910 to Rufus Tripp of near Vanceboro.

Surviving are her husband, four daughters: Mrs. Willie Edwards of the home; Mrs. David F. Fulcher and Mrs. Heber Wiggins, both of near Vanceboro, and Mrs. Neil Autry, Jr., of New Bern; a son, Elvin Tripp of near Chocowinity, 16 grandchildren; two great grandchildren; and a brother, Lee Fillingame of Vanceboro.

Funeral services were conducted at the Ayden Missionary Baptist Church Monday afternoon at o'clock by the Rev. W. H. Hollowell and burial followed in the family cemetery near the Stocks home.

In addition to her brother, she is survived by 3 sisters, Mrs. Thad Cannon and Mrs. Leonard Suggs, both of Ayden, and Mrs. Mae Barber of Maury.

Brains Of $1.5 Million Robbery Receives Term

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP)—Mrs. Jeanne d'Arc Michaud, 35-year-old self-styled brains of the $1,500,000 Redfield burglary, yesterday was sentenced to five years in prison by Federal Judge Roger Foley.

Mrs. Michaud probably will be sent to the federal reformatory for women at Alderson, W. Va. She will become eligible for parole after serving 20 months.

Judge Foley also sentenced two others involved in the bizarre burglary of La Vere Redfield's Reno mansion in February.

Leona Mae Girardo, 40, Reno, cocktail waitress, convicted of County had been living at Castle Hayne for the past ten years. He was a member of the Wrightsboro Baptist Church. He was married to Alma Fornes in 1924, and she survives.

Also surviving are a son, Wardell Crawford of the home, a daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Bordeaux of Jacksonville, Fla., three grandchildren, and three brothers: J. Huel Crawford of Greenville, J. D. Crawford of New Bern, and J. L. Crawford of Richmond, Va.

Funeral Services For Leslie Crawford

Funeral services for Mr. M. Leslie Crawford, 49, will be conducted at the Chapel of the S. G. Wilkerson & Sons Funeral Home Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock. His pastor, the Rev. Oral Wright, of Wilmington, N. C., will officiate, and burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery. Mr. Crawford died at his home at Castle Hayne, near Wilmington, Sunday night at eight o'clock after a long illness.

Mr. Crawford, a native of Pitt County, had been living at Castle Hayne for the past ten years. He

Local G.I.'s In Germany Finding It Like Home

ULM, GERMANY — Greenville soldiers serving in Germany with the 28th Infantry Division are finding the rolling hills of Europe much like their native state.

But it isn't quite the same, they agree.

Presently they are participating in a rigorous training schedule but have been able to find time to see the sights in Europe. Most of the North Carolinians have been in Germany since November 1951.

Their attitude was reflected recently by PFC James E. Collins Jr., a general clerk, whose wife, Helen, lives at 107 W. 13th St., and whose parents live at 118 W. Ninth st.

"The country is beautiful and looks a lot like North Carolina," he said, "but I will be very glad to get home again."

Besides Collins, Greenville men stationed in Ulm, Germany, include:

Sgt. Thomas G. Moore, a communications chief, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Moore, 285 Paris ave.; PFC Joseph Hathaway, a bazooka gunner, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Hathaway, Box 334; PFC Charles T. McLawhorn, an automatic rifleman, son of Mr. and Mrs. William McLawhorn, Route 1; Cpl. Leroy Campbell Jr., a squad leader, whose parents live at 1016 Evans st.; PFC Herman L. Heath, a mail clerk, Box 574; Sgt. Robert L. Brady, an assistant platoon sergeant, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence L. Brady, 202 W. Eighth st.; PFC Elliott M. Carrow, a field wireman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert H. Carrow, Route 3; PFC Herbert H. Branch, an assistant bazooka gunner, Route 2; Sgt. Will H. Heath, a medical aidman, 1002 Dickinson.

Tar Heel Sailor Injured In Blast In Singapore Bar

SINGAPORE (UP) — Police reported today that a Chinese and a Malayan had been arrested in connection with a grenade explosion in a Singapore bar in which four American sailors were injured.

A British civilian also was hurt when the grenade was hurled into the bar yesterday. About 30 other seamen escaped injury.

The sailor, enroute home from Korean service, had gone to the White House Bar yesterday on shore leave. One of the injured is Billie Joe Norman, (728 Groves St.), Hendersonville, N. C., who received leg injuries.

Conference At ECC July 3 On The Handicapped

Both the gifted and the handicapped child, with emphasis on what the teacher can do to serve their best interests, will provide material for discussion at the Third Annual Special Education Conference at East Carolina College Thursday, July 3.

Conservation of sight and speech correction and special problems arising in training the gifted child will be the areas of chief consideration during the day.

Mrs. Dorothy Perkins, speech therapist in the department of education at East Carolina, will direct the conference. Registration from 9 to 10 will take place in the Flanagan building and will be followed by the morning program. A luncheon in the college dining hall is scheduled for 12:30.

Dr. Leslie B. Hohman, professor of neuropsychiatry at Duke University; Marjorie A. C. Young, consultant in education for the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness; Mrs. Ruth Miller of St. Louis, Missouri, teacher of blind high-school students; Dr. John O'Neill, speech pathologist at Ohio State University and visiting professor at East Carolina, this summer; and Felix S. Barker, director of special education in the N.C. Department of Public Instruction will be among those who will appear on the conference program.

Dr. Hohman, principal speaker on Thursday's luncheon program, will be present on the East Carolina campus this week, as a consultant in a workshop on the brilliant and the retarded child conducted during the first summer of the department of education. Miss Young will also remain at the departments of psychology, health and physical education, home economics, and education.

The luncheon meeting Thursday will be held under the auspices of the East Carolina Chapter of the International Council for Exceptional Children. Mrs. Eula Greathouse of Rocky Mount, president, will act as chairman.

Topics to be considered Thursday and the speakers who will discuss them are: "The Gifted Child," Dr. Hohman; "The Secondary Student," Dr. O'Neill; "New Plans for Special Education in North Carolina," Mr. Barker; "Dramatic for the Blind Student," Mrs. Miller; and "Speech Correction in the Schools," a group of teachers and school officials made up of Mrs. Visor for Elm City and Wilson Greathouse; James Dunlap, supervisor for Davenport, Washington; Mrs. schools; and T.H. Gray, principal of the Winstead school.

The North Carolina Society for Crippled Children and Adults will be represented at the conference by Albin Pikulis, executive director; Mr. Carolina Caldwell, assistant director; and Mrs. Eleanor Mosher, director of field services.

Events of Thursday's conference will include an afternoon reception in the Flanagan building, during which a demonstration of the Massachusetts Screening Test for Hearing will be presented. From 9 to 10 in the morning the speech and hearing clinic now being conducted at the college will be open for observation.

Pitt Men Enlist Recently In Navy

Chief D. W. Watson, Navy recruiting officer for the Greenville area, this morning announced eight enlistments in the Navy during the past few days.

The chief said all men included in today's list have been sent to San Diego, Calif., for their "boot" training. "All men who enlist in the Navy during July will be sent to Bainbridge, Md., for the initial phase of their training," he stated.

Men from this area included in the list of enlistments for June are: Ayden — Warren Griffin Wilson; Bethel — Roy Ricks Andrews and Dallas Vernon Purvis, Jr.; Farmville — Charles Melton Allen and Eddie Randolph Allen; Greenville — Rudolph Mills and William Henry Adams; and Tarboro — Henry Wayne Webb.

Maureen O'Hara Headed For Reno

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Dublin-born screen actress Maureen O'Hara was en route to Nevada today where she will establish residence in order to divorce producer-director Will Price.

Lloyd Wright, her attorney, said the flame-haired actress will rent a home "somewhere near Reno."

After the required six-week period in Nevada, Miss O'Hara will file for divorce, charging Price with incompatibility, she told friends. She will ask for custody of their eight-year-old daughter, Bronwyn.

The Irish actress and Price were married in 1942. She has been married once before.

President Ready For Whistle Stop

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Truman prepared today to embark on a miniature "whistle stop" trip to Arkansas where he will extol the virtues of public power.

The President was scheduled to leave by plane at 3:30 p. m. EST for Little Rock. There he will transfer to a special train for an overnight journey into North Central Arkansas.

He will disembark tomorrow morning at Norfolk and drive to Norfolk Dam where he will participate in a brief dedication and inspection. He will motor through the town of mountain home to the new Bull Shoals Dam which he will dedicate with a major speech.

Returned To Cell After Weekend

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (UP) — John Sheridan, serving a six-month sentence in Marin County jail for defrauding an innkeeper, was back in his cell today. He took the weekend off for an unauthorized tour of San Francisco bars.

Sheridan was still wearing his jail uniform — with a large "P" painted across the back of his denims — when police picked him up on a routine drunk charge.

Jap Government Eases Controls

TOKYO (UP) — The government eased controls today on the sale of foreign-made automobiles, thereby dealing Japan's struggling automotive industry what may be its death sentence.

Foreign exchange available for importing cars was increased to $6,000,000 for the first half of the fiscal year 1952-53. If the allocation is the same for the second half, roughly 5,000 foreign cars will be imported during the year — about half the total of new cars and replacements required.

Already strapped with high production costs and high excise taxes, Japanese manufacturers will have to compete against Detroit's best. Many businessmen doubt they can survive.

Censorship Rules Are Suspended

BOGOTA, Colombia, (UP) — The Conservative government has suspended its new censorship rules that would have forced Bogota's two liberal newspapers to halt publication today.

Chief Press Censor Hernando de Velasco Alvarez said the new regulations will not be invoked pending further study.

They would have required each newspaper to submit material intended for publication to censors in the National Capitol Building, rather than to censors now stationed in newspaper offices.

Spokesmen for the newspapers El Tiempo and El Espectador had said they could not continue to publish under the proposed new conditions.

Courtroom Heat Forces Off Wigs

LONDON (UP) — It was so hot in London courtrooms yesterday that judges and counsel took the almost unprecedented step of removing their wigs.

The mercury reached 87 degrees at Kensington Palace. Air Ministry weather forecasters said the prospect was "continued fine and warm."

$300 Scattered Along Highway

ROMEO, Mich. (UP) — Mrs. Gordon Champion asked state police for help today in retrieving $300 she said was scattered along a stretch of highway between Imlay City and Lapeere, Mich.

She said she closed a car door on her purse and the money trickled out while she and her husband were driving the 15-mile distance.

On Guard For Bad Reading Material

DETROIT (UP) — The National Education Association was on guard today against indecent literature and pictures sold to the nation's school children.

The 5,000 delegates here for the 90th annual NEA convention approved a resolution yesterday "alerting" themselves against the sale of pornographic material after a warning by Ruth Snyder of the Los Angeles High School Teachers Association.

She said "objectionable material" was shipped by truck to centers for distribution among school children because its standards do not meet U. S. postal requirements.

TAFT VERSION OF TEXAS WRANGLE — Senator Robert A. Taft displays an advertisement in the New York Times as he discusses the tangled Texas Republican delegate situation at a news conference in Washington. The full-page ad, placed by the "National Citizens for Taft Committee," is titled "Here's What Happened in Texas." Gen. Eisenhower, Taft's chief rival for the Republican presidential nomination has charged there was a "steal" of Texas' 38 delegates to the convention by Taft forces. Taft said he wants to make a formal answer later to the charges. — A Wirephoto.

Strength for the Day

THE CONTINUOUS CONFLICT
Whose side are you on? Are you on the side of the angels or on the side of the demons? For perfectly sure that there is a distinct line of demarcation drawn at this point and that you must be on one side or on the other. You cannot straddle the fence.

Oh yes, it is true that all our good is mixed with evil and all our evil has some little amount of good in it. Yet the set of our lives is always clear and distinct. We are either with the angels or we are with the demons. Our lives are either essentially good or essentially evil. We are either on the right path or we are on the wrong path.

Neither science nor any other form of modern learning has been able to displace in men's minds the conviction that there is a vast struggle going on in the universe at the present time between the forces of good and the forces of evil. The power of human iniquity is too great to be accounted for only by the will of man. There is something else behind it. Likewise man's aspirations and his willingness to sacrifice can be accounted for only by the purposes and providences of a righteous and loving God.

St. Paul declared that we strive not against flesh and blood but against principalities and powers. This theological language means that evil is spiritual in its nature just as goodness is also of the spirit.

The Future Is Now Being Determined

Very soon now, two men, one of whom will be the Next President of our Republic, will be chosen at Chicago. This will mark a period of importance to Americans and to the world second only to the final elections in November.

The processes of bringing to the fore America's most capable candidates, the developing of issues which pose the most perplexing problems of the future conduct of government, the questions of world affairs . . . all are being accomplished that the public may make an intelligent decision.

The characteristics of our next President are pretty well established in the minds of Americans. Dominating them all, he will (we pray) be a God-fearing man, whose humility and deeply ingrained sense of justice will be a beacon for his fellow-Americans.

In our next President we look for unflinching courage, a man of innate honesty, a dynamo of intelligently directed effort.

Americans seek qualities in their President which only a paragon could possess. Perhaps we ask for too much. Certainly we are, all of us, looking for a pillar of strength upon which the burden of the responsibilities of liberty may rest.

All this is being decided; and more. The future of individual American citizens, the futures of millions of people outside our borders are being decided now and in the next few months.

Every citizen of our republic is sharing in the fateful decisions that are being made. Their knowledge, or lack of it, in public affairs, is playing its part. Their participation, or their abstinence, in political activities are equally affecting the future course of events.

These are truly momentous days in which we live.

Careful Planning May Avert A Farm Disaster

Tobacco farmers, just like any other group of business men, are reluctant to take a cut in their business. Yet it is better to anticipate such an eventuality and prepare for it than to have it come without warning.

Last week Carl T. Hicks, of Walstonburg, president of the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corporation, warned North Carolina farmers that a drying up of foreign markets for tobacco export may cause 25 per cent of the flue-cured growers to go out of business. He said unless some steps are taken to cultivate and perpetuate foreign markets for American tobacco, the 20 to 25 per cent reduction in exported leaf this season may not be a temporary reduction.

Hicks, in pointing the need for working out some means for purchasing more goods from foreign markets to be imported by the United States, has put his finger on one of the pressing problems of this nation in international trade. To be sure, foreign nations are anxious to continue importing American tobacco, but they are strapped for funds. Unless their own exports can be held at a reasonably high level, they cannot afford to import goods at the rate which they have been doing in the past. If the time comes when the United States has to depend solely upon its domestic market for the consumption of its tobacco—and many other products—it will of necessity mean that production will have to be reduced. Whether or not we realize the fact, the austerity programs which it has been necessary for foreign nations to impose to keep their economic heads above water could all too readily lead to a virtual disappearance of an export market for many American products.

At the same time, in view of the circumstances which the tobacco farmers face in the possibilities of a waning export trade, serious consideration should be given to the production of other crops to help make up for the revenue losses caused by smaller tobacco acreages, should that come in the near future.

If, as Hicks says, the time does come when 25 per cent of the present tobacco producers are forced out of business, they must have some other well established crops upon which to lean in order to avert a complete economic loss. The impact of such an eventuality can be held to a minimum not only by the utilization of the most efficient methods of tobacco production, but also by diligent efforts to develop profitable substitute crops in the predominantly tobacco sections.

National Whirligig

By RAY TUCKER
WASHINGTON—Senator William F. Knowland of California looks like a "natural" for the Republican vice-presidential nomination, whether the head of the ticket be Senator Taft or General Eisenhower. He appears to be the key piece in the puzzle of how to turn out the Democrats.

The handsome 44-year-old Oakland publisher has made an excellent record and impression on Capitol Hill. He is liked on both sides of the aisle. He is a hard worker and an effective speaker. He knows the Far West's problems—water, reclamation and conservation in general—as neither of the leading candidates do.

Indeed, a Knowland nomination is almost a Republican "must." Franklin D. Roosevelt's land-and-water program has almost converted this vast empire into Democratic terrain in national contests. Truman's share-the-wealth proposals appeal to elderly emigrants from Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, the Dakotas. Not even Governor Earl Warren, as Dewey's sidekick, could carry his own state four years ago.

Instead of trying to crack the "solid South," the GOP leaders to recapture the West.
LEADER—Knowland's great showing in the recent senatorial primaries, when he won both Republican and Democratic nominations, has removed him from the protective shadow of Governor Warren, his original sponsor. He will be a leader in his own right at Chicago.

Both Bob and Ike deny that they seek to seduce Knowland in the hope of making a deal for California's 70 delegates, now pledged to Warren. But since this big batch could easily determine the presidential nominee, strategists in both camps admit frankly that this consideration enters their minds.
A Knowland selection would give political balance and reinforcement to the ticket, no matter who heads it. Here is how party statisticians figure it from the standpoint of politics rather than personalities.

CHANCE—If Eisenhower becomes the Republican offering, it is believed that he has a good chance of sweeping the northeastern section. The forecasters allocate to him almost all the New England states, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland.

But he might run poorly in the Middle West, where his views on foreign affairs are not too popular. Nor has he yet formulated a farm policy that matches the Truman-Branman schemes in vote-getting power.
Senator Taft has promised to support Ike, if the latter backs him out. But the Ohioan's friends and organization workers may not overextend themselves on election day. They don't ring doorbells or haul voters to the polls for Tom Dewey.

ASSET—Under such circumstances, Eisenhower might have to compensate for these losses of electoral votes beyond the Rockies—the coastal and mountain states. Nobody could do him more good there than Knowland, in the smart politicians' opinion.

The Oakland man has another asset peculiarly essential to an Eisenhower slate. As a Californian, he has taken a deep interest in the crisis in the Far East, where Ike seems to have a blind spot. The senator advocates a more aggressive and constructive action in the Orient, and is not unsympathetic to the MacArthur viewpoint.

Finally, the Californian is under no obligation not to identify the Democrats regarded as responsible for the blunders at Yalta, Teheran, Potsdam and in Korea. Eisenhower may carry his reluctance to name names too far.

CONTRIBUTION—Oddly, Knowland's possible contribution can help Taft, if he should lead the GOP parade.

As the nominee, Taft would admittedly be weakest in the internationally minded East. His non-compulsory FEPC attitude and his Taft-Hartley sponsorship would cut into his city vote in New England, New York, Pennsylvania, possibly New Jersey.

But he should run well in the Middle West and in the farm states, many of which went for Truman by extremely narrow margins in 1948. Popular polls have shown him far ahead of Ike in most of this territory.
But he would need the so-called Knowland bloc of electoral votes for victory. With the addition of several GOP strongholds elsewhere, the combination might be enough to land him in the White House.

RUNNING-MATES—Finally, there are no towering eastern figures for second place on the GOP slate. Senator Lodge of Massachusetts and Governor Driscoll of New Jersey have been mentioned but they have become involved too deeply, personally and politically, in the Bob-and-Ike feud.

Moreover, although Ike deliberately emphasizes his Kansas background, he will probably be regarded as the eastern wing's product. Lodge and Driscoll do not fit into that picture. It is extremely doubtful if Taft would accept such avowed and vocal enemies as running-mates.

Hoarse And Buggy

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

PORT JACKSON, S. C.—When 150 men get together in the Army, there is one sport that predominates: shooting the bull. At the end of two days here at Fort Jackson I was hoarse from talking.

This is amazing, because at first it was hard to get the floor in the bull sessions. The only way I could get the floor long enough to get hoarse was to refuse to relinquish it once I got it.

The first week all of the stories were rich. At the beginning of the second week the quality began to slip, and toward the end of the encampment they had slipped into a category that can only be called corn.

It, Bobby Keys of Washington and I were almost put in the nut ward when we started playing peep-eye one day. Bobby was outside of the tent working on the flaps and I was inside. Before we realized what we were saying, the peep-eye game was in progress.

Bobby and I are both fathers of little girls, and that particular day we had daughters on the brain. From the peep-eye game we made an analysis of the game of hide and go seek.

Bobby's little girl hides in the same place every time, despite his efforts to encourage variety. Likewise, he has to hide in the same place every time. He plans to develop a new twist to the game when he gets home in order to give it more life.

At the officer's club one night we had a real knock-down and drag-out discussion on raising children. The main topic of discussion was centered around (1) let 'em cry in the crib, or (2) pick 'em up.

The forces were split 50-50, and after an argument of about an hour the forces were still split 50-50.

All of us are eating too much down here. Our commanding officer, Colonel Oakley Beland from Wilson, loaded his tray with everything he wanted, whether it was fattening or not. Just as he was getting ready to eat the mail orderly came in and handed him a letter from his wife. It began, "Be sure to watch your diet while you are down here." From then on he could hardly enjoy eating.

He had the feeling that his wife was standing over his shoulder watching.

We have been interested in accomplishing the mission of our training encampment, but there has been another mission in our minds every minute: returning home.

And I thank you

Around Capitol Square

PARK—Preponderant majority of expressed opinion which your reporter has heard or seen in print has been commendatory of the Governor and council of state for providing money to buy land for the proposed Cape Hatteras National Seashore Park. Protest has been voiced by some residents and property owners in the area to be embraced in the park, and from some others throughout the state who question the propriety of spending tax money for purposes of providing playgrounds.

For the most part, these persons who have commented agree with the reasoning advanced in support of the allocation, which is that the expenditure will be an investment—not only in culture facilities but as a source of increasing cash income to the state. The prospect was sufficient to justify the council of state in making available a total of $618,000 out of past, present and future contingencies funds to match private donations for acquisition of a million and a quarter dollars worth of land to be dedicated as a national seashore park.

HISTORY—The idea for the park is not new. The congressional act authorizing it was introduced by Lindsay Warren, now comptroller general of the United States, but then representative from the first congressional district in 1937. That was nearly ten years after the Great Smoky Mountains National Park had been projected for the other extreme end of the state, and two years after the General Assembly had authorized acquisition of land for the Blue Ridge Parkway, the 600-mile scenic route connecting Shenandoah National Park in Virginia with the Great Smoky Mountains Park on the Carolina-Tennessee line. The North Carolina legislature set up a seashore park commission which began to take options on land. World War II intervened, followed by an abortive oil boom in the area, and not a great deal has been done toward completing original plans. State and federal agencies have acquired title to some 8,000 to 10,000 acres toward the primary objective of 60,000. The maximum requirements have been reduced and the goal now is approximately 30,000 acres in Dare and Hyde counties, consisting chiefly of the islands of Hatteras and Ocracoke, with some units on Roanoke Island and the Kill Devil Hill-Kitty Hawk-Nags Head strip.

OBJECTIVE—The purpose is to put title to the area in the government for preservation of the last remaining unaltered section of coastal line in the United States, through co-operation of federal, state and private contributions, in much the same way as the Great Smoky Mountains Park was acquired and preserved through cooperation of Rockefeller contributions and tax moneys of the United States, North Carolina and Tennessee. Just as the Great Smokies area contains the best examples of primeval mountain wilderness, the Cape Hatteras area contains the best examples of primeval coastal conditions within the borders of continental United States. Proponents of the Hatteras project warn that time is growing short, that already the project is 20-odd years behind the mountain park deal, and that it is now or never for preserving the original features of the area.

PROBLEMS—It is not a simple operation to acquire title to 30,000 or more acres. The job cannot be completed in a few months. It has been going on already for 15 years. It should be remembered, too, that the legislation authorizing the state to appropriate title to lands needed for the Blue Ridge Parkway was ratified on January 23, 1935, and that after 17 years negotiations with former owners are still in progress, and construction of the Parkway is far from complete.

MORE ACUTE—Factors involved in acquiring land for the Hatteras Seashore project are different, and in many respects more complicated, than those involved in the Parkway acquisitions. One factor is the limited amount of money available, as contrasted with the practically unlimited availability of funds for Parkway right of way land. Another factor is the larger percentage of non-resident ownership of coastal lands calling for different legal procedure. A third, and perhaps most significant, difference is in the degree of private development of property desired for the seashore park. Because of these several factors some competent observers think that the availability of a million and a quarter dollars will be only about half enough to acquire the desired acreage. Question then to be posed will be whether to go along with less land in the park or abandon the whole project.

CONDEMNATION—It is unambiguously conceded that title to a large part of the land desired for the seashore park will have to be acquired through legal condemnation process. Such process can be harsh and unfriendly, or it can be by mutual consent in order to fix title and determine fair value. The 1923 act under which the State took title to Blue Ridge

What Other Papers Are Thinking

FEWER COLLEGE GRADUATES (Rocky Mount Evening Telegram)
The figures are out now. Those young men and women you saw in caps and gowns not long ago were part of approximately 1,186,000 boys and girls who left their high schools behind them. High school graduations are up this year, the figures show. However, the reverse is true of the collegiate picture, which shows a decrease with about 315,000 students wearing the caps and gowns this year in college commencement processions.

Whether from high school or college the male contingents at least are going into an uncertain world. The U. S. Office of Education guesses that only about 40 per cent of the 360,000 male high school seniors will plan to go to college as compared with 47 per cent of the boys in 1950. Others will be drafted or will get jobs while waiting for their number to come up.

There is no shortage of jobs this year for either high school or college graduates. College physicists, chemists and engineers are being rushed by hundreds of corporations with offers of up to $350 a month and many "fringe benefits."

However, the armed forces, which do not pay quite so much, have a higher priority on many of these young men. Having deferred them to complete their education, the Army will be quick to take advantage of the training they have acquired.

Looking to the future, the same corporations which ran after college graduates so hard are urging high school graduates to go to college and major in science or engineering. They point to a continuing shortage of men in these fields, continuing high rates of pay for neophyte scientists, technicians and engineers.

The 1,186,000 who graduated from high school this month are only 5,000 greater in number than last year's class. About 384,000 graduated from college last year, 70,000 more than graduated this year. The high school senior class makes up about one-half of the nation's population in that age group—about 18 years old.

Business Today

Small plants hoping to sell the world's biggest customer—the United States government—can save time, travel and headaches by asking the nearest field office of the Small Defense Plants Administration or of the Department of Commerce for a new 8-page leaflet, "How Small Plants Can Sell to the Federal Government."

There is nothing startlingly new in this leaflet and it offers no magic ways of landing a government contract, but it wraps up in one place most of the sound information on how to sell Uncle Sam.

Don't, it says, hustle off to Washington to ask the government buying information on exactly what you can make. Do ask for specifications if you are not sure your products can meet them. Do give each agency information on what your plant is making; experience on government contracts; size, type and age of plant; transportation facilities; number of employees; details on the experience and education of key personnel; history of the concern; financial status, and credit reference. Do be careful in making bids; you can be held to a losing price. Do follow instructions in submitting bids. Do notify agencies if you don't want to bid on an invitation mailed you, or your name may be taken off the mailing list.

There's a lot more. Better get the leaflet.

FRENCH WOULD TAG DOORS OF TRAVELERS
Ah, those trusting French! The French Government Tourist Office has patented tags bearing the words, "Come to France. Back in 10." They are being distributed to travel agencies who are expected to give them to clients planning trips to France. Too bad nobody told the French that such tags on American doors would be regarded as invitations to prowlers and burglars.

BUSINESS SPEAKERS COME ON FOR PROS
If your club will take a Chinese princess or magician at the regular price, it may get a banker thrown in free.

A large number of corporations have established or expanded speakers' bureaus, which offer executives for talks at clubs, societies and other meetings where their appearance will add prestige.

if not actual new business, to the corporation. Many of these appearances are arranged through lecture bureaus.

Because of higher travel, hotel and other expenses, many professional lecturers are demanding higher fees. When these fees exceed a club's budget, sometimes the lecture bureau agent will offer a deal: Take the agent's personal at the regular fee and get a big business shot at the following meeting free.

SHOE PRODUCTION EVEN WITH 1951
The shoe industry enters the second half of the year today just about even with 1951. Shoe sales and production lagged in January, February and March, but they improved in April, May and June.

As a consequence, the Tanners' Council of America estimate shoe production for the first six months at 251,873,000 pairs, compared with 251,811,000 pairs in the first six months of 1951.

LIQUOR SALES RISE CALLED TEMPORARY
The liquor industry, which has been campaigning for a reduction of the $10.50-a-gallon government tax on the grounds that actually less revenue is produced, has suffered a setback.

While sales declined each month from November through March, figures now show a rise in April. Sales in open-license areas were 27.5 per cent higher than in April, 1951. Undismayed, the Distilled Spirits Institute says the up-trend is temporary, caused by wholesalers and retailers' need to replenish stocks.

NEW PRODUCTS
XMAS: A cooling thought—Christmas! Decorative trees for that holiday are being manufactured of a plasticized material by Patented Creations, Inc., 17 East 42nd St., New York. They lie flat when not in use, and can be quickly opened into 17-by-19-by-2 inch trees, complete with 84 decorations.

TAPER: Better packaging at lower cost is said to be possible with an electric dial taping machine now being marketed by Forest Sales Co., 1133 Broadway, New York 10. Operated like a telephone, it is said to save time and money in dispensing tape.

RIBBON—Gift tie ribbon, made of viscose rayon bonded to a transparent cellulose plastic film, has been announced by Vistex Corp., 20 Canal St., New York. It is said not to slip or fray and will curl readily.

WASHER: A 12-pound table-type clothes washer is being made by Monitor Equipment Corp., Riverdale-on-Hudson, N.Y. Operating on a 115-volt 60-cycle alternating current, its belt-driven pulser propels air and soap through clothes. It may be equipped with a wringer and water pump.

PELLET: Two antibiotics, penicillin and dihydrostreptomycin, said to check many poultry diseases, have been combined in a pellet for implantation in fowl. Use of the pellet is said to reduce mortality and improve carcass grade at slaughter. Called "Streps," by Wyeth Inc., 1401 Walnut St., Philadelphia.

BLIND: A venetian blind with clear plastic bracket for rear auto window has been designed for automobile rear windows by Paramount Venetian Blind Co., 151 E. 126th St., New York. It is said to reduce headlight glare, protect upholstery and not to interfere with drivers' vision.

Hal Boyle's Column

By HAL BOYLE
A TOWN IN THE WEST (AP)—The problem of a tremendous number of intellectual children is how to deal bravely with a parent's ailment.

The father and the mother do their best for the children they love. But they leave no pattern of comfort behind if death suddenly grabs them.

One of the most common diseases of late middle age is the stroke—or the heart attack.

One stills the brain—at least partly. The other stills the heart pump, the valve of life.

The parent usually doesn't know his ADVENTURE INTO mystery because his children "know his adventure into themselves do not know.

Every family must have a man like Jim, a man at the peak of his powers who is suddenly stricken and becomes helpless, so far as the use of his muscles is concerned.

The great hidden drama in many American families is what they do with a man who suffers a stroke. Usually the women of the family begin to make him their prisoner by babying him.

That is Jim's problem. He must go ahead inflect his views and personality on a world in which he cannot run and play—but in which he has some responsibility.

Such is the twilight goal of power for many men and women who wield responsibility, and who have suffered a stroke.

has known before. You have to escort him over the ridge of difference. You have to build a bridge of love between what he was and what he must be. No matter what he was before.

The thing I always remember about people who have had strokes is that they appreciate it if you understand them.

Washington Letter

(First of Three Articles on Summertime Perils)
By JANE EADY

WASHINGTON—Vacation time is playtime for young America, but it's also a time to get in trouble. Many tragedies result from carelessness.

Boys have more accidents than girls, says Dr. Carl J. Potthoff, director of first aid for the American Red Cross. "An extensive survey shows seven times as many drownings among boys as among girls between the ages of 15 to 19, and seven times as many fatal accidents from firearms," he said.

"Also, there are six times as many deaths from falls among boys as among girls."

The Red Cross figures some 4,000 Americans will drown this summer. Drowning is second only to automobile accidents as cause of death among persons 5 to 24. Many drownings are not connected with swimming but result from wading and stepping into holes and channels, trying to cross streams by stepping onto half-submerged logs, stepping off from stone to stone in swift waters.

Richard L. Brown, assistant director of water safety, cautions also against playing on makeshift rafts or old boats. Places that were shallow at last season's end may be deep this year. The old diving spot may be filled with rocks or other debris.

Even a skilled swimmer should not swim alone in an area where no help is at hand and no one should venture out in any kind of boat without knowing something about it, Mr. Brown says. Here are other tips:

If not well, you should have your doctor's OK before going swimming. Don't go into the water immediately after meals or when tired. Always come out before you get tired or chilly. Don't attempt a long swim the first time in.

Scientists To Study Life On Kon Tiki Atoll This Summer

NEW YORK (UP) — A team of eight scientists will make an ecological survey this summer of Raroia Atoll, where the famed voyage of the Kon Tiki expedition ended in 1947.

Biology is a branch of biology dealing with the relations between organisms and their environment.

The atoll will be familiar territory to at least one member of the expedition — Dr. Bengt Danielsson of Sweden. He was on the Kon Tiki when it wound up on the Raroia coral reef. He later spent 18 months there doing anthropological research.

All the Swedish scientist's seven companions on the trip will all be Americans, headed by Prof. Norman D. Newell, professor of geology at Columbia University. The expedition will start from Tahiti, will be the third in a series of five.

FRENCH HELP OUT
From Tahiti, the scientists will make the 400-mile trip to Raroia in the Goelet, a diesel-powered schooner furnished by the French administrative authorities. Raroia atoll belongs to Tuamotu Archipelago in French Oceania. It is 10 miles wide and 25 miles long, with a native population of some 300 primitive Polynesians.

Planned by the Pacific science board of the National Research Council, and financed by a grant of the U. S. Office of Naval Research, the expedition will stay three months on Raroia. The ecological survey, which will investigate the plant and animal community in relation to its environment, will be the third in a series of five. The series seeks to "sample geographically and culturally different parts of the Pacific."

Prof. Newell said co-operation of the French administrative authorities on Tahiti is whole-hearted. In return, he will undertake to comply with a French request for advice on how to improve the pearl fishing industry, which was formerly the chief one in the area. It has been replaced by coconut production, for copra.

The industry is now under attack by swarms of rats on the atolls, which currently ruin 30 percent of the coconut crop. Newell will conduct studies on the rodents' breeding and feeding habits with a view toward their extermination. Most of the time, Newell and his associates will be exploring the waters of the 100-foot deep lagoon and the ocean immediately outside the reef. They will dive from whaleboats, provided with outboard motors, and according to Newell, will spend two-thirds of their investigating time underwater.

Although the waters around the reef contain sharks, eels and rays the expedition's chief expects no trouble. He said the undersea probes will be protected by the plume of bubbles ejected by compressed air gear strapped to their backs. The divers will use improvised underwater cameras, as well as movie and still cameras to record on land their daily operations.

While the other scientists pursue their special investigations Newell will concern himself mainly with the origin of the atoll. Why it is there and what changes it has undergone are questions to which the Columbia geologist will seek answers.

Life on Raroia, said Newell, will be nearly all work, with little social contact with the Polynesians, except for anthropological study. The scientists will live in thatched huts built by the natives. They will supplement their canned food diet with fish from the Polynesian nets and with breadfruit and papaya.

Baggage Charge Blocked By ICC

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Interstate Commerce Commission today blocked a plan of most railroads east of the Mississippi to charge for the carrying of checked baggage, regardless of weight.

The plan had been scheduled to go into effect at midnight tonight. But the commission ordered a suspension until Jan. 31, 1953, pending an investigation.

Such action had been asked by the Georgia Public Service Commission which said the plan is counter to the traditional practice of carrying a reasonable amount of baggage, usually up to 150 pounds per ticket, free. The railroads had planned to charge 25 cents for each piece of hand baggage and 50 cents for each trunk.

Certified Check Found In Street

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UP) — A piece of paper fluttering on the sidewalk caught the attention of Rodney L. Reams.

Reams found it to be a certified check for $26,858.38. The check had been issued by Joseph E. Segran & Sons, and was payable to the collector of internal revenue.

Reams notified the embarrassed distilling company. A woman employee had dropped the check after taking it to a bank to have it certified.

Strange Origin For Common Term

ALBANY, N. Y. (UP) — The state commerce department says the expression "doing a land office business" originated in Batavia, N. Y.

A group of Dutch capitalists bought more than 3,000,000 acres of land west of the Genesee River from Robert Morris in 1796 and established the Holland Land Office in 1815.

They were so busy selling land that the expression became synonymous with business prosperity, the department said.

FIRE-ROOFING NEEDED
NEW YORK (UP) — The National Fire Protection Association suggests that women's and children's flimsy garments should be fireproofed to cut down approximately 1,000 deaths and 10,000 injuries yearly from combustible wearing apparel. More accidents are caused by carelessness with loose billowing garments than by the so-called "torch sweaters," the association said.

The Sport Reflector

By BOB HILLIARD

While the weather in "these here" parts has been getting the blame for most everything recently, it now has a rather unusual black mark against its record. It seems that Turkey Tyson, the manager of the Rocky Mount Leafs, has filed a protest because an umpire deliberately held up a game between Rocky Mount and Goldsboro for a period of ten minutes between the fifth and sixth innings.

The umpire's reason? It was too hot. Voting for the nineteenth annual major league All-Star game has been completed. The game of games that pits the best in the American League against the pride of the National will be played in Philadelphia on Tuesday, July 8.

A look at the records of the annual affair since its institution in 1933, shows that the American League has been victorious 12 times in 18 contests. More than 100,000 people have paid over $1,336,000 in attendance fees and by so doing have contributed to many worthy causes.

The last two contests have seen a rejuvenation of National League power. At one time the game threatened to become a farce as the Americans monotonously thrashed the National League representatives. For five consecutive years from 1944 through 1949 the younger league methodically laid it on their older brothers. The last two years, however, have seen the Nationals come roaring back.

Started on a shoestring as the brain child of a Chicago newsman, the game has mushroomed into a colorful drama filled classic that has become as much a part of baseball as the pennant races themselves.

The spotlight of sport will soon be focused on the international Olympics to be held at Helsinki, Finland. This year's game will be as hard fought and exciting as ever but this time there will be an air of tension similar to the one that prevailed when Germany was the host nation prior to World War II.

Back in 1936 when Hitler was raving and ranting about his theories of master race and Aryan supremacy, a lithe American Negro by the name of Jesse Owens upset the apple cart and proved, not only to Hitler but to the world, that a man's athletic ability did not vary with the color of his skin.

This time there is no Jesse Owens but the situation will be the same. Instead Adolf Hitler, Russia and her satellites will be represented. This will mark the first time that the Soviet Union has ever competed in the Olympics.

For the last several years the U.S.S.R. has been making claims in the way of athletic supremacy. The Russians have even gone so far as to say that the game of baseball was invented by one of their own race, a certain Abner Douboudayski. The name, of course, could have no possible reference to Abner Doubleday, American.

With the joking aside this still appears to be one of the most hard fought competitions ever to be held. The entire world will have an eye on the proceedings and, needless to say, the victor, be it East or West, will be out to make the most of his laurels.

Although each nation will be competing individually, it still shapes up as a possible battle between the Communist and Democratic regimes.

Politics in sport is a bad thing and yet this added incentive should prompt some of the most outstanding competition since the origin of the modern Olympics back in 1896.

The Rocky Mount Leafs has signed another Negro pitcher, Lafayette Stallings, a native of Nash county, is expected to get the starting assignment against the Kinston Eagles tonight. Charlie England, Rocky Mount's first Negro, is at present attending college in New York.

Indians And Yanks Take Most All-Star Positions

By ED SAINSBURY United Press Sports Writer CHICAGO (UP)—The Cleveland Indians and world champions New York Yankees occupied more than half the positions on the 25-man American League All-Star team completed today by Manager Casey Stengel.

Cleveland placed seven players and New York had six on the team that will meet the National League All-Stars at Philadelphia, July 8. Each will have three starting players, chosen by fans in a nationwide ballot.

Stengel, who picked the pitchers and reserves for the American League squad, nominated only six pitchers, one less than did Manager Leo Durocher of the National League.

The Yankees pilot selected two from his own team, Vic Raschi and Allie Reynolds; two from the Indians, Mike Garcia and Bob Lemon; Leroy (Satchel) Paige of the St. Louis Browns and Bobby Shantz of the Philadelphia Athletics. Shantz is the major league's leading winner with a 13-2 record.

In addition to starters Bobby Avila at second base, Al Rosen at third base and Dale Mitchell in left field, the Indians will be represented by catcher Jim Hegan and centerfielder Larry Doby.

The Yankees, who placed catcher Yogi Berra, shortstop Phil Rizzuto and rightfielder Hank Bauer as starters, also had outfielder Mickey Vernon.

The remaining two starting players voted by the fans were first baseman Eddie Robinson of the Chicago White Sox and centerfielder Dom DiMaggio of the Boston Red Sox.

Other players picked by Stengel were third baseman George Kell of Boston, second baseman Nellie Fox and outfielder Minnie Miñoso of Chicago, outfielder Vic Wertz of Detroit, first baseman Ferris Fain and third baseman Eddie Joost of Philadelphia, and third baseman Eddie Yost and outfielder Jackie Jensen of Washington.

Stengel chose Manager Al Lopez of Cleveland and Indians Coach Tony Cucinello as coaches, Ted Lyons of Detroit and Alex Kellner of Philadelphia as batting practice pitchers, Charley Silveira of New York, batting practice catcher, and Bob Bauman of St. Louis, trainer.

The starting lineup must play three innings and then Stengel can make whatever substitutions he wishes. However, no pitcher may go more than three innings, except that the pitcher in action, should a game go extra innings, can continue.

DiMaggio, with five previous All Star appearances, was the veteran on the squad with one more game than Kell. Raschi has been in three games and Lemon in two. Players on the squad for the first time were Garcia, Avila, Rosen, Bauer, Mantle, Yost, Paige and Jensen.

The American League has won 12 and lost six in the annual All-Star series, but the National League has won the last two games, the first time the senior circuit has been able to win two in a row.

Wilmington Given State Tournament At Little League Directors Meeting

Greenville Receives But One Vote For Tourney Site As League Directors Meet In Greensboro Last Night

GREENSBORO—Wilmington will be host to the 1952 North Carolina State Little League tournament to be held from August 11-14, it was announced here last night at a statewide directors meeting.

The choice of Wilmington as the tournament host brings to a close the speculation that the four-day event, involving eight clubs, would be brought to Greenville.

Wilmington received a total of 17 votes as top candidate for the Little League honor, while Greensboro polled ten directors. Greenville was able to muster only one vote in favor. The Greensboro representatives immediately moved that the selection of Wilmington be unanimous.

No action was taken on the sites for the eight district tournaments to be held in the state, so Greenville still has an opportunity of having a tourney in its modern league-specified park. State Director Warren Carroll probably will announce the sites of the district events within the next few days.

Greenville, in the same district with Rocky Mount, Williamston and Farmville, is almost assured of having the tourney. However, the other four leagues—Rocky Mount has two leagues competing—in the district are still in the running.

The Greenville representatives at the state meeting last night were instructed to ask for the state tournament as the result of a city meeting Friday night. However, they were also told to honor a promise made by some of the Greenville managers given to Wilmington at the district tourney last year in Havelock. Wilmington, which was in the same district as Greenville at the time, was given the promise of Greenville's support if by chance the Port City would like to have the state tourney this year.

Preliminary plans for a state Little League association were also contemplated by the state league directors at their meeting last night. The North Carolina division is a sanctioned member of the national Little League organization.

Winner of the state tourney will go to the Regional Five tourney, which will probably be held in Georgia or South Carolina. The regional champ will then represent the Southeast in the Little League World Series in Williamsport, Pa.

American Women Aim For Victory

WIMBLEDON, Eng. (UP)—Five U. S. girls aimed today for victories that would set up an all-American semi-final round in women's singles in the Wimbledon Tennis championships.

The United States was assured of one semi-final berth as a result of today's quarter-final round in defending champion Doris Hart of Coral Gables, Fla., and Mrs. Pat Todd of LaJolla, Calif., and the U. S. lasses were favored over their rivals in the other three matches.

Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., three-time winner of this title, was matched against Britain's Mrs. Jean Quertier Rinktel. U. S. champion Maureen Connolly of San Diego, Calif., faced Mrs. Thelma Long of Australia, and Shirley Fry of Akron, O., met Britain's Jean Walker-Smith.

The 17-year-old Miss Connolly was the biggest question-mark because of her strained shoulder, but Miss Brough and Miss Fry were solid choices.

The situation in women's singles was in marked contrast to the state of affairs in men's singles, where only one Yank—advanced to the semi-final round.

Final Trials For Olympic Swimmers

NEW YORK (UP)—The final trials for those hopefuls seeking berths on the U. S. Olympic men's diving team opened today with eliminations in the three-meter spring board event.

The diving trials will be staged during the next three days at the Astoria pool in conjunction with a water polo tournament, which will determine the makeup of the U. S. team for the Olympics at Helsinki later this month.

The first three finishers in each diving event will gain berths on the Olympic team, while the Olympic water polo squad will consist of seven members of the winning team and four of the runner-up team in the tournament.

Dr. Sammy Lee, an Army medical major who recently returned from Korean service, was the stand out entry in the diving events.

TINY BABY SURVIVES MERIDIAN, Miss. (UP)—Dr. Theodore Middleton delivered a one-pound, four-ounce baby girl to Mrs. Jac Zachry. The child survived, was fed with a medicine dropper and thrived.

Exchange Triumphs Over Moose By 14-2

Standings

Three hit hurling by Francis Nunn, plus an eight hit attack by his mates, enabled the Exchange to take a 14-2 victory over the Moose team yesterday.

Evans and Nunn, each with two hits, paced the Exchange attack. Only Allen Sugg and Stocks could manage safe blows for the Moose. The Exchange saved their big power attack until the final inning when two singles, a double and Nunn's triple created a six run spurge. Marvin Blount Jr. went the route on the mound for the losers.

Collins Wins On TKO Over Former Sparring Partner

BOSTON (AP)—Outspoken Tommy Collins of Boston today was a member of the group of boxing pupils who have humbled their tutors.

A sparring partner for Willie Pep not so long ago, Collins gained a decisive six-round technical knockout verdict over that former featherweight champion in their scheduled 10-rounder last night at the Boston Garden.

For three rounds Pep gave the Boston youngster a neat boxing lesson. While Willie was able to get battle from an angle, thereby getting away from Collins' stiff right hand, he was able to call his shots.

Pep plied up a lengthy lead during the first three sessions. Then Collins changed tactics and forced a face-to-face battle.

At 23, Collins is only the third victor over Pep in the latter's 166 professional engagements. Champion Sandy Saddler whipped Pep three and lightweight Sammy Angott once.

Collins weighed 130½ and Pep 126 3-4. The bout was neither televised nor broadcast and drew a 6,590 crowd with gross gate receipts of $17,445 and a net of $12,762.

Local Giants Play Strong Opponents

The Greenville Giants have three games on tap during the remainder of the week.

Playing against some of the strongest semi-pro competition to be found, the Giants will play a doubleheader with Sharpsburg on July 4. The first game of the twinbill will be played in Sharpsburg Friday afternoon, while the nightcap will be played in Guy Smith Stadium.

The third contest scheduled for the Greenville team is with the Brooklyn Cuban Giants here Sunday afternoon.

Rex Barney Quits, Will Try Again

OMAHA (AP)—Rex Barney of Omaha, who once pitched a no-hitter for the Brooklyn Dodgers, won't be playing for Newport News in the Piedmont League this year.

Barney has decided to give up baseball and has come home for the summer after asking to be placed on the voluntary retired list.

The St. Paul farm club of the Dodgers released Barney and assigned him to Newport News. But Barney decided to retire instead.

Busy Bobby

Bobby Shantz, the midget moundsman of the Athletics, is well on his way to join the select circle of 2-game winners. By the middle of June, the tiny left-hander had chalked up eleven victories, the last ten in a row. He beat the Yankees in his first start of the season and then dropped a decision to the same club a few days later. Since that time Shantz has been a ball of fire.

Shantz is first of all a great competitor. He literally throws his share of hitting, too. The men on the field behind him cannot help but play their best when they watch the scrappy little banlam rooster scratching every inch of the way in the pitchers' box. Bobby

Yankee Castoffs Perform Like Champs For Senators

Washington, by winning, moved to within four games of first place again, as the Boston Red Sox topped the leading Yankees, 4 to 3, on the four-hit pitching of rookie Dick Brodowski. The Red Sox moved to within 3 1-2 games of the top.

The Chicago White Sox also moved to within 3 1-2 games of the lead by defeating the Detroit Tigers, 7 to 2, as Art Houtteman suffered his seventh straight defeat. Cleveland, which was idle, held to fourth place, four games out and two percentage points ahead of Washington.

The National League also tightened up again when the New York Giants won 8 to 7 and 4 to 0 decisions in Boston while Karl Drews blanked the Brooklyn Dodgers for the Philadelphia Phillies, 4 to 0.

The Phils took over fifth place as St. Louis downed Cincinnati to sixth with a 7 to 4 victory, the 10th of the year for Gerry Staley.

The Chicago Cubs edged the Pittsburgh Pirates, 5 to 4 when Roy Smalley drove in all of their runs with a homer and a double.

Winston Churchill Determined To Remain As Prime Minister

By HOMER JENKS
United Press Staff Correspondent
Despite the rumblings against him in his homeland, Winston Churchill has no intention of stepping down as prime minister of Great Britain for at least another year.

Friends say the 77-year-old warrior is determined to remain at 10 Downing Street — residence of the prime minister — until after the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II next June.

In the meantime, he expects to deal with political uprisings against his virtual one-man rule of the Conservative Party as they arise. To the man who led Britain to victory in World War II, these are mere skirmishes that make his declining years more interesting.

He easily and quickly disposed of the latest muttering against him within Conservative ranks. It found its principal expression in the so-called 1922 committee, an organization of rank-and-file younger Conservative members of the House of Commons.

As usual, Churchill took the bull by the horns and appeared personally before the rebellious Tories last week. He answered their complaints and left the meeting in undisputed command of the situation and of the party.

To suggestions that he retire because of his age, he said he was prepared to do so whenever his mind or his health showed signs of failing. Neither has, he said. Moreover, he said, age alone is no criterion of ability. He is fond of recalling that William E. Gladstone still was prime minister at 85.

Others had contended the government was accomplishing so little it was losing the support of the voters, as evidenced in recent Labor Party victories in municipal elections.

Churchill conceded that the drastic economy measures he has been forced to institute to save the country from bankruptcy hardly could be expected to win votes. But he pointed out the government already has stemmed the chaotic drain on the nation's gold reserves. Moreover, the government is hard at work to restore the nationalized steel and road transport industries to private enterprise.

Churchill did heed proposals that Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, as his chosen successor, should get some experience on domestic matters, although he said Eden could not be spared from the Foreign Office at present, he gave him the additional job of chairman of

Acheson States American Troops Stay In Austria

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson said today American troops will remain in occupied Austria until its independence is assured.

He blamed Russia for the failure of the Big Four to write a treaty of independence. To a news conference, he said, "Make no mistake about it. Of the four powers in Austria, three want to go home."

Acheson is making a two-day state visit to this crossroads country of East and West. He came here from Berlin.

His visits to the two Communist-ruled cities are aimed at bolstering the courage of their people by reaffirming Western support for their objectives. In the case of Austria it is the completion of a treaty of independence, long blocked by Soviet delaying tactics.

Just before the conference Acheson called on Dr. Theodor Koerner, aged Socialist president of Austria, with a message from President Truman pledging that the U. S. would do everything within its power to restore "final freedom" to Austria.

Austria is still under four-power occupation. The U. S., Britain and France have a total of 25,000 troops and the Russians an estimated 40,000 in this strategic nation.

Acheson called on President Koerner in the latter's residence on the old Winter Palace of the Hapsburg emperors. A crowd of several hundred Austrians cheered Acheson as he drove up to the palace accompanied by U. S. High Commissioner Walter J. Donnelly.

With Koerner was Austrian Foreign Minister Karl Gruber. During the 15-minute call Acheson stepped onto the balcony overlooking the grounds of the palace.

Next the U. S. secretary of state paid a formal visit to Chancellor Leopold Figl and Vice Chancellor Dr. Adolf Schaerf. Both Figl and Schaerf recently visited in the U. S.

Acheson will take off tomorrow for Brazil, where he makes an official visit before returning to Washington.

Before leaving Berlin, the U. S. secretary had assured the Germans that "we shall remain in Berlin until we are satisfied the city is secure."

the Cabinet economic committee. Then the bald, stooped "old man" plunged back into more pressing affairs at a pace that kept his five private secretaries hopping.

He reminded them, "We shall regard any attack on Berlin from whatever quarter as an attack against our forces and ourselves."

ECC Professor Has Article In Professional Mag.

"We need good musician-teachers today, young people that choose teaching of music as a real opportunity for human service," says Dr. Kenneth Cuthbert of East Carolina College in an article carried in the current issue of "Pan Pipes," quarterly publication of Sigma Alpha Iota, national professional music organization.

"The Musician's Opportunity in Music Education" appears as the lead article in the May issue of the magazine. It emphasizes the advantages to the talented young musician of becoming a teacher rather than entering the crowded profession of a concert career.

Dr. Cuthbert joined the faculty of East Carolina last September. He has held various offices and committee appointments in national music organizations, and was elected last week as a vice-president of the American Symphony Orchestra League at its annual convention in Erie, Pa.

Leaf Officials Hold Annual Meet

HOT SPRINGS, Va., (UP) — A formula to spur lagging foreign markets for flue-cured tobacco may be advanced at the 52nd annual meeting of the Tobacco Association of the United States which started here today.

Officials said some plan may be offered by J. E. Thigpen, head of the tobacco division U. S. Department of Agriculture, in a speech before the association. Another principal speaker will be Michael More, vice president of the Foreign Trade Corp. of America.

The Leaf Tobacco Exporters Association will hold a one-day meeting here tomorrow.

The climate of the Azores is nearly ideal — 45 degrees at the lowest extreme and 86 degrees at the highest.

500 Driven From Homes In New York City Fire

NEW YORK (UP) — The first eight-alarm fire here in a decade raced through 11 tenement and factory buildings in the crowded Greenpoint section of Brooklyn today. More than 500 persons were driven from their homes. Damage exceeded a million dollars.

A watchman in an abandoned trolley barn, where the blaze started, Walter Robie, 66, was missing.

Six women were treated for shock and hysteria. One was hospitalized after fainting three times in the street. Ten firemen were treated for smoke inhalation and minor injuries.

Hundreds of women and children, many still in night dress and all clutching bundles or dragging suitcases, filled the streets. Four tenement buildings were swept into the spreading flames. Police evacuated others in a three-block radius of the blaze.

The fire was brought under control after three hours.

As flames leaped the streets in waves of black smoke, a neon sign continued to shine on one burning building. "Jesus Saves," it read.

A young mother, a child in her arms and another clinging to her nightgown, looked up as she hurried to safety.

"I hope so," she murmured. The fire was first discovered when a mass of flames burst through the roof and walls of the abandoned car barn, belching heavy smoke over the neighborhood. The building is being reconverted for use by a paper box manufacturer and was crammed with stored paper and cardboard cartons.

The flames leaped the street and set fire to an entire block. A wall of the two-story trolley barn collapsed into the street. Flying embers set minor roof fires over a wide area.

Four tenement buildings, a small hotel, a lumber yard, a glass works, a foam rubber manufacturing firm and a feather processing factory were set ablaze.

City and Coast Guard fire boats added their water power to some 55 pieces of land equipment.

Cases Heard In Monday's Court

By CHESTER WALSH
In Police Court Monday, Carl Bell, Jr., Negro, was found guilty of assault on a female and given 60 days in jail.

Judge Charles H. Whedbee suspended judgment on payment of $25 fine, costs deducted, and that he pay the hospital and doctor's bill of Grant Wilcox, Negro. The court's judgment also provides that Bell is to remain of good behavior for a year.

Joseph T. Gaskins, Negro of near Ayden, was found guilty of carrying a concealed weapon. The court fined him $50 and costs.

Dave Newsom, Negro, found guilty of temporary larceny of a truck, was given six months on the roads, sentence suspended on payment of $25 fine, costs deducted. The court placed him on probation for a year.

John B. Venters was found not guilty of driving a motor vehicle to the left of center of a roadway.

Pauline A. Alexander was found not guilty of failure to stop at a traffic signal.

Joe Louis Chance, Negro, was found not guilty of larceny.

Ernest Reeves, Negro, assault on a female, was given 30 days in jail, sentence suspended on payment of $15. The judgment also provides Rogers is not to molest or threaten Annie Brown, Negro.

In the case of Carl L. Fisher, tried last Friday, prayer for judgment was continued on payment of $5 on court costs. Fisher is not to operate a motor vehicle for 90 days unless he makes $50 payment for personal injury.

Ernest Reeves, Negro, assault on a female, was called and failed to answer. A capias instanter was issued for him.

James A. Jones was found not guilty of failure to give a hand signal.

Zebedee Hines, Negro, was fined $15 for assaulting a female.

Charles V. Dickens, was in court for the third time on the charge of disorderly conduct. Testimony was that he played his radio too loud at night and argued in loud tones with radio announcers. The defendant, a friendly sort of a fellow, came into court one time too many. The court ordered him to appear at the city jail next Saturday evening at 6 o'clock and that he shall be kept in custody until 8 o'clock Sunday morning.

TESTIFIES: — Actress Marilyn Monroe flashes a smile as she arrives in court in Los Angeles to testify in the trial of two men accused of using the names of famous screen beauties in come-on letters in a nude picture sales racket. The blonde actress denied she had ever written any of the letters, which offered pictures "in almost every pose imaginable" for sale. The defendants are Jerry Karpman 46, a photographer, and Morris Kaplan, 32, a salesman.

Strange Passage

By William Lynch

CHAPTER 13

The plan he'd finally decided upon was rather too intricate for his own peace of mind. The thing to do was to inform the police of what happened that night at Wade's Hole and close the case with the arrest of Gardner on a charge of suspicion. It would be easy to do that, too easy. He preferred his own plan: but if it didn't work out he was in a devil of a spot, he told himself for the hundredth time.

Troubled beyond all measure, he walked slowly to Number Twelve, the home of the O'Bourkes. Jeanne was at home and alone. He entered the house and began to question her again. The girl had set aside her earlier diffidence and now appeared to take pleasure from the drama that had availed into her young life.

"Jean," he began anxiously, "going back to the night at Wade's Hole—there's no doubt in your mind that there was a man standing there—?"

"I told you before, Barney, and me both saw him. It was like I've told you. He dropped something into the Hole. It was this that made me want to take a look."

"You actually saw him throw a body into the Hole?"

"Not a body, exactly. We saw him chuck somethin'. We found Katie after. So it must've been Katie he chucked in there."

"Did you recognize the man? Was he big or small?"

"Bout your own size. We only seen his back. He came in 'went all in a minute."

"Then you and Barney investigated. That right?"

"Yeah, Barney seen it first."

"You didn't mention it to anybody else?"

"You were the closest."

"You came straight to me?"

months ago."

"I gather that Mr. Sale didn't approve of Mr. Gardner."

"I'd say he was pretty mad about it. I don't blame him, neither. Gardner's a wolf."

"The police are standing by at the hospital," Taylor reminded, "waiting to get a statement. But with a bit of luck I'll get a word in with Katie first."

Suddenly Jeanne's eyes brightened.

"It's Gardner, isn't it? Paul Gardner! That's the bloke. You think it's Gardner who tried to fix Katie. But you can't do nothin' about it because you're wantin' to protect the pale-faced doll who he just married. That's it, Skipper." She paused for breath. "So you've sent them down to your house so's you'd know where they were, an' the chances are you've sent Katie's old man after them."

Unbridled admiration lit up her face. "You're a cute bird, Skipper—mighty cute. What's more, you want Mr. Gardner to think Katie's dead. I dunno what you plan to do after that—but, it's just like a book, isn't it?"

"It's probably more implausible than a book," Taylor said.

"Maybe. But whatever happens to Mr. Gardner he's got it comin'."

Katie isn't a bad sort. Seems to me Katie's the kind of girl who's gotten herself into bad company some time or other."

A strange feeling of exhilaration caught hold of him as he walked away from Number Twelve and boarded a bus to the hospital.

OK To Use Rails For Derby Trip

NORFOLK, Va. (UP) — Norfolk and Southern Railway officers, given a vote of confidence by stockholders, had complete approval to carry out their policy of using company funds to attend the Kentucky Derby.

At a special meeting of stockholders here Saturday, a move to oust the present board of directors was voted down. Stockholders voted instead to remove the two directors who started the ouster move.

The stockholders also adopted a resolution okaying use of funds for trips by railroad officers to the Kentucky Derby. The resolution follows hearings on the railroad's administration conducted by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The ICC is investigating to determine whether officers used railroad funds "for purposes not necessary to the honest, economical and efficient operation" of the railroad.

Company officers testified that expenses to the Derby were authorized because the Derby is a meeting place for railroad officials and an opportunity to solicit business.

The stockholders voted 113,85 shares to 60,262 to reject a resolution that called for reducing the present board of directors from 18 to 11 members.

The resolution was the first point in a three-point plan which would have removed the present board and elected a new one.

After the plan was rejected, the stockholders approved a resolution asking the next meeting of the directors to remove Perry N. and Harry C. Selheimer of Philadelphia from the executive committee. The Selheimers led the move to remove the present board.

Stockholder Fred G. Harrelson of Yanceyville, N. C., offered a resolution, which was adopted, assuring officers and directors of "the complete confidence of the stockholders" and congratulating the management on "its splendid record of performance."

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UP) — Lester Fox, who has driven 175,000 miles in 35 years without getting a traffic ticket, got one this year for going 40 miles an hour in a 30-mile zone. The day after getting the ticket, Fox got a five-year safe driving award from the Soil Conservation Service, where he works.

MEMORIAL TO VANISH
WEST CARTHAGE, N. Y. (UP) — A maple tree planted more than 30 years ago to honor the World War I dead from this community will be cut down. A severe electric storm damaged the tree beyond repair. It is one of two planted by the local American Legion Post. There are many species of kangaroo on New Guinea, but none are larger than fox terriers.

Blind Couple Led By Dogs To Altar

CHICAGO (UP)—It was "four on a honeymoon" today for Mr. and Mrs. Paul Neukom. The blind newlyweds arrived in Chicago with the seeing-eye dogs that led them unerringly to the altar. Both dogs were in formal dress when Neukom and his 19-year-old bride, Peggy, were married in the First Baptist Church at Fort Wayne, Ind. yesterday. Lady Rikki, the bride's dog, wore a white satin harness and a pink carnation at her collar. Neukom's guide dog, Tex, wore a black satin harness and a white carnation as he waited at the groom's side. The bride, the former Peggy Wilson of Columbus, O., was escorted down the aisle by Lady Rikki and Peggy's grandfather, Sidney Wilson. Wilson walked at his granddaughter's left because the guide dog had been taught to keep to her mistress's right. The Neukoms will spend several days in Chicago and then go to a Minnesota resort for two weeks. The newlyweds were dinner guests of funnyman Jimmy Durante and caught his show at the plush Ches Pave night club. "When I heard about them kids, I said bring 'em up," Durante said. "Hell, I said, bring the dogs too. What a couple. They're terrific." Several radio and television appearances have been scheduled for the couple. Neukom, 30, gave the two guide dogs much of the credit for fostering his romance with Peggy. He said he paid a visit to the Pilot Guide Dog Foundation at Columbus "on an impulse." "I studied there and I liked the instructors so much I wanted to pay them a visit," he said. "If I hadn't, I never would have met Peggy."

IVEY COWARD SAYS NOW THAT termite season is at its peak you are cautioned to beware of fly-by-night extermination operators. This type of operator will be seen in our community more frequently at this season, and since they are not permanent residents of this community their guarantee many times is worthless as they cannot be located if trouble or defective extermination develops. It is our experience that we have many times been called in to repair work done by such operators. Have your extermination business done by local men who give you a service bonded guarantee. Your local exterminators are on 24 hour call every day and are in business to give you service. Call Ivey Coward for free surveys and estimates on any extermination problems. July 1-7

Pay Increase For Civilian Workers

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army-Air Force Wage Board today announced pay increases for 38,000 civilian employees of the two branches of the armed services. The increases, all for hourly-paid workers, ranged from three cents to 23 cents an hour. The largest group affected are 16,723 workers at Army and Air Force installations in the Salt Lake City, Utah locality. These hourly increases were also announced for workers at the following localities: Fayetteville, N. C., 1,452 Army and Air Force employes, three cents after May 14. Charleston, S. C., 891 Army employes, eight cents after May 8.

Together Twins Perish In Fire

EASTON, Mass. (AP)—Four-year-old twins - Priscilla and Edward Greenleaf - perished in each others arms last night as they huddled in an attic closet to escape the flames that swept the upper part of their two-family home. Mrs. David Regan, their mother, said she had put them to bed in their second floor apartment a short time earlier. She said the twins had talked about a toy train that was stored in the unlighted attic and "they must have gone up to the attic to play with their train." Firemen said a mattress had caught fire in the attic and then spread to two cans of paint, causing them to explode.

Tavern Closed After Shooting

CHARLOTTE (UP)—Authorities closed the books today on a bizarre tavern shooting that left a former Golden Gloves boxing champion and a truck driver dead and a pretty mother of three children in a hospital with five bullet wounds. Edward Patrick Greene, 40, Hamlet truck driver, died in a hospital Saturday of a self-inflicted bullet wound, police said. They blamed a jealous rage for

Stocks And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Industrial stocks led the market higher today as they climbed slowly but surely toward a new 1952 high.

Around mid-session, the industrial average was 92 cents higher at 278.18, just 22 cents below the 275.00 high made on Jan. 22. Rails boosted their average to 108.01, coming still closer to the March 11, 1931 figure of 108.47.

Sales for the initial two hours totaled 590,000 shares, slightly ahead of yesterday's 560,000 total.

Gains in the stocks included in the averages generally ran about 1-4 or 1-4 point, but a number of wider advances came in issues such as Motorola, up to 1 5/8 to 79 1/2, following yesterday's announcement of a planned two-for-one stock split.

Barber Oil featured the oils with a rise of 2 3/4 to 108. In the rails, Texas & Pacific Railway stood out with a two point gain to 106 and Southern Pacific with a gain of 1 1/4 to 83-3/4.

Douglas had a gain of 1 1/4 to 65 1/4, Aluminum of America rose 1 1/4 to 81 and Johns-Manville ran up 1 1/4 to 75 1/4.

No Complaint

No complaint was heard about the weather prevailing in the Greenville area last night and today. Sleep was comfortable under covers last night, the first time since June 14.

The mercury did not get to the 100 mark yesterday. The highest recording here was 95 degrees in the afternoon. Lowest last night 66, and at 8 a. m. today it was 71. A brisk northeast wind was blowing during the forenoon today.

Yesterday a year ago, the highest temperature recorded here was 99 degrees. Lowest that night, 74, and at 8 a. m. next day the mercury stood at 78 degrees. Light drizzle of rain fell that day.

Review Of Clinic Given At Meet

An outline on the Education Conference to be held at East Carolina College on Thursday of this week was presented to the Greenville Lions Club last night by Miss Kay Van Nortwick.

Miss Van Nortwick, a speech clinic worker at the college, outlined the program which will be open to the public on Thursday.

For the past five weeks the speech clinic has been operating at the college where a trained staff of workers have been working with 20 students who have various speech defects.

This will be only a part of the program which will be held Thursday, it was pointed out, with special sessions devoted entirely to work with the blind, cripple, deaf and other retarded persons.

Nationally famous workers in all of these fields will be present to the conference Thursday and will talk on their various fields.

The session gets under way Thursday morning and is scheduled to close around 4 o'clock in the afternoon. A noon-day luncheon will be the highlight of the session, it was pointed out by the speaker.

Various classes of the speech and hearing clinic will be open for observation and a hearing testing group will be shown to the persons attending the conference.

Miss Van Nortwick was introduced by Bruce Sugg Jr.

Following the regular meeting a short board of directors meeting was held.

Playground Activities

It's all in knowing how. That's what Malcolm Griffin (left), winner of the bubble blowing contest at Woodlawn Park, could very easily tell the other youngsters. Griffin was able to blow his bubble larger than any other competitor, although he finished the contest the same as the others—with a sticky face. James Hudson, one of the more active participants in the city recreational program, is shown in the picture on the right in one of his antics while taking part in the playground activities at Woodlawn. Hudson is a leader among the children at the center.

Models in the fashion show held at Woodlawn Park last week are shown in the above picture. Each girl on the playground dressed in her mother's wearing apparel for the show. The other eight playgrounds in the city recreation program have also had shows during the past week.

However, he said, "We have in our custody prisoners of war whom we cannot return to you without repudiating our basic principles."

He was referring to the U. N. stand on voluntary repatriation—allowing prisoners to return to the Communist side only if they are willing to go.

The "face-saving" part of the U. N. final offer of April 26, he said, provided that prisoners who do not wish to return to communism be reclassified. He suggested that new lists to be handed over when an armistice is agreed upon exclude their names.

Thus, the Reds in effect would get back all "prisoners of war."

North Korean Gen. Nam Il did not reply directly to Harrison's statement. He simply repeated that the Communists want the return of all 170,000 prisoners now held. Of the total, all but 70,000 have told the U. N. they would forcibly resist repatriation.

It was the first meeting since the Allies called a three-day recess last week to allow the Reds to think over their position.

While the meeting was in progress, British Communist spokesman Alan Winnington, who floats many "trial balloons" for the Red side, suggested, "We can't get anywhere with public meetings."

There was no immediate U. N. comment on the chances of new secret meetings. Such meetings were held early in May to give the two sides an opportunity to discuss the prisoner subject without having to make propaganda. No progress resulted.

Both sides agreed to meet again Wednesday at 11 a. m. (9 p. m. EST Tuesday).

Says Congress . . .

Informed sources said Mr. Truman accepted the measure only because Democratic congressional leaders told him, in effect, that he was lucky to get it, and that there was no chance of pushing a stronger version through the House and Senate.

Under the new law, wage-price controls will remain in effect until next April 30, but federal rent ceilings will end Sept. 30 except in "critical defense housing areas" or cities whose local governing bodies request that they be continued until April 30.

Mr. Truman had asked for a full two-year extension of wage-price controls, with "strengthening" amendments.

Principal ways in which the new controls law differs from the old one include:

1. Fresh, canned, frozen and dried fruits and vegetables, which represent about 20 per cent of the average family's food budget, are now free from price controls.
2. Wage controls no longer apply to farm workers, engineers, architects, certified public accountants and persons earning less than $1 an hour.
3. The government lost its authority to impose controls on installment buying and bank credit.
4. Price officials said hotel and restaurant meals probably will go up because the act provides higher ceiling prices for hotel supply houses.
5. Cigarette and milk prices also may rise in states where federal ceilings are lower than state minimum price law.
6. The present Wage Stabilization Board will be abolished at the close of business July 29. In its place a new board will be created on which labor, management and the public will continue to have equal representation.

(Continued from Page Four) Parkway right of way was a sort of compromise, in that determination of value and compensatory payment came after title had been acquired. Legal authorities which that such procedure could be used for acquisition of property for the Hatteras Seashore park. At the same time, these legal advisers see no reason why legal processes should not be conducted in friendly vein.

PROGRESS—It is axiomatic that individual rights and privileges must yield to demands for the common welfare as progress moves forward. This fact has been illustrated many times recently in appeal made to the state board of education to "save" little high schools. It is apparent almost every time the highway folks want to change the right of way of a main road. Cherished traditions must yield to the increasing demands for progressive common good. Mountaineers of the unteeth generation hated to give up their homes for the Smoky Mountains Park of the Blue Ridge Parkway. Outer-bankers just as genuinely hate to give up their ancestral homesteads and isolated game preserves.

TIME—Two things should be kept in mind. One is that the governments of the United States and of North Carolina cannot, and do not wish to, take property from private owners without reasonable compensation. The other is that while the mills may grind exceeding fine they grind slowly. Outer Bankers have no reason to fear they will be evicted forthwith from their premises, and up-staters have no reason to think there will be a developed seashore park for their visiting next summer.

There is reason to believe that eventually, due to foresight of statesmen from 1930 through 1952, there may be within the borders of North Carolina two major national parks preserving the primeval features of mountains and
