Overall Tentative Budget Adopted By Commissioners

1953 Budget Of $930,657.49 Given Preliminary Approval At First Meeting Of Pitt County Board Of The Fiscal Year; Subject To Adjustment

By JESS POINDEXTER Reflector Staff Writer Meeting in the first official session of the new fiscal year, the Pitt County Board of Commissioners yesterday adopted a tentative budget for 1952-1953. It totaled $930,657.49.

County Auditor Allan Powell said this morning the overall budget will be subject to adjustment before final approval is given by the board. The total tax levy this year is $531,000, based on a tax rate of 90 cents on each $100 of a county-wide $59,000,000 valuation.

At yesterday's meeting jury lists were drawn for the August mixed term of Pitt County Superior Court. They consisted of 60 jurors for criminal cases and 50 jurors for civil cases, Register of Deeds Blair Cox Wheelers reported today.

Hire Jailor The board approved the hiring of an assistant jailer to serve under present jailer W. C. Leggett. He is to be known as a "night" jailer, and will assist Leggett at the Pitt County Jail. Salary for the new jailer, O. Herman Wilson, was quoted as being "around $200 per month."

At the same time, Dr. Martin F. Hines of the State Board of Health appeared before the board with Willie Pate, county sanitarian, and discussed the rabies problem in the county. He cited the county's pressing need for a dog warden.

That subject has been under discussion for some time by the board and members voted to employ Willie Bell as dog warden "as soon as the program is organized locally." His salary is to be from $200 to $275 per month, and will be paid from the county dog tax fund.

Carb Market Sold The board approved the sale of the county's interest in the Carb Market to the city of Greenville. Quoted sale price is $4,000 plus all unpaid assessments. Chairman F. F. Hendrix authorized County Attorney W. W. Speight to draw up a need to the property on those terms. However, Speight is out of town at present and it was not definitely known yesterday when the transaction will be completed.

Dan Saeed and W. W. Speight were appointed to serve on the new airport committee on behalf of the county. They are to work with committees from four other counties who are attempting to establish a centralized airport to serve Nash, Wilson, Pitt and Edgecombe Counties.

The board named Robert J. Little of Grimsland to replace O. C. Stroud on the Pitt County Selective Service Board. Stroud, who was chairman of the board for 10 years, recently resigned. Little will be sworn in at a later date.

Reports from the various county departments were heard.

Demos Will Not Inject Prejudice Into Campaign

McKinney Pledges No Racial Prejudice Or Religious Bigotry In Democratic Party; Claims Will Condemn And Disavow Such Activities

WASHINGTON (UP) — Democratic National Chairman Frank E. McKinney pledged today that the party "will not inject racial prejudice or religious bigotry" into the presidential campaign. McKinney made the statement in a letter to six Protestant, Catholic and Jewish leaders who had urged him to call on "all candidates to take all necessary means to prevent any expression of racial or religious bias...and to condemn publicly and emphatically every occurrence thereof."

"The Democratic Party will not condone any such activity in behalf of any of its candidates," McKinney said. "It will vigorously condemn and disavow any such activity should it develop."

McKinney praised the religious leaders' plan to set up non-partisan non-sectarian committees to combat such prejudice in the campaign and said he was "sure that the Democratic National Committee will join completely in cooperation and support."

Vice President Alben W. Barkley meanwhile pooh-poohed any idea that his age is a handicap in his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination. The 74-year-old Veep told newsmen late yesterday that "I hope none of you forgets to mention my age."

"I would not reduce my age by one hour to become President of the United States," he said. "If there is anyone in this country who can outstrip me in fighting for the Democratic Party and good government, let him step up and complain of my age and let others keep silent."

Eisenhower in the Democratic camp: Steven Richard B. Russell said he would support Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois or Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee if either is nominated. But the Georgia senator told a news conference in Montgomery, Ala., that he might bolt the party "in a drastic case."

Such as the nomination of "an Alger Hiss or Henry Wallace." Russell said he definitely would not accept the vice presidential nomination.

2. Kefauver predicted to report in St. Paul that he will be nominated "on the fourth or fifth ballot." Gael Sullivan, Kefauver's campaign manager, announced that the Tennessee star will move his headquarters to Chicago July 13.

3. Averell Harriman said in Indianapolis that international tension probably will ease and taxes perhaps can be cut in two years if the nation follows the principles of the Roosevelt and Truman administrations.

GEMS STOLEN NEWQUAY, EGLAND (UP) — Thieves stole more than $3,400 in jewels yesterday from actress Gene Tierney, authorities reported. The gems were taken from her hotel room.

Democratic Party has well earned the doubtful distinction of being the war party of modern American politics. The death of World War I, of World War II and the Korean war render mute testimony. MacArthur was interrupted 71 times by applause and got an eight-minute stomping, whooping ovation from the 12,000 persons in the hall when he marched down the center aisle to take the platform. The general didn't wear his five-star uniform, as he has in so many of his public speeches in which he has attacked the Truman administration. He wore a blue double-breasted suit with a matching blue tie.

United Nations Asked Condemn Red Propaganda

U. S. Calls For Security Council Support Of Resolution Declaring Propaganda Is False And Without Substance

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UP) — The United States demanded today that the United Nations condemn Russia's germ warfare propaganda campaign and the Kremlin's "message of hatred" against the Western world. U. S. Ambassador Ernest A. Gross called for Security Council support of an American resolution declaring "without substance and false" the Communist charge that U. N. troops used germ weapons in Korea and condemning the Soviet practice of "fabricating and disseminating such false charges."

Russia's Jacob A. Malik has threatened to use the Soviet's 61st U. N. veto to block the resolution. "The resolution," Gross told the council, "will make it more difficult for the Soviet government to continue waging its campaign of propaganda, in whatever country its message of hatred. 'The members of the council can by their support of this resolution, show to the Soviet government the wisdom of dropping this campaign of falsehood, returning to the disarmament commission and getting back to work on a program to reduce the armaments of the great powers, and to eliminate those very weapons of mass destruction which it falsely accuses the U. N. Command of using in Korea.'"

Gross reminded the council that in 1947 Russia introduced, and the General Assembly adopted, a resolution condemning all forms of propaganda, in whatever country conducted, which is either designed or likely to provoke or encourage any threat to the peace, breach of the peace or act of aggression."

"splendid fighting speech." Gov. John S. Fine of pivotal Pennsylvania called it a "forceful indictment" of the last two Democratic administrations. There was some criticism that it was an isolationist speech which cast doubt on collective security as an instrument of national defense. Martin said he did not think MacArthur had been isolationist but merely reminded the country that Asia, as well as Europe, was important. Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon, an Eisenhower supporter, called the keynote address "a grand flop—the fadeaway is on its way."

Nurse At County Home Dismissed

Yearly Cotton Supply Plentiful Home To Be Without Services Of Practical Nurse Unless New One Is Employed; Board Upholds Action Of Superintendent

WASHINGTON (UP) — Farmers have enough cotton under cultivation to produce 14,500,000 bales this year, the Agriculture Department reported today. There were 26,051,000 acres in cotton on July 1, 93.3 per cent of last year's acreage. The department is forbidden by law to predict cotton production before August. However, with yields the same as last year and with average abandonment, the land now under cultivation would produce close to a 14,500,000 bale crop. The department estimated a 16,000,000 bale crop would be needed to satisfy current domestic and export needs. The acreage goal they held out for farmers was 28,000,000. Last year farmers planted 27,997,000 acres and produced 15,212,000 bales. Over the 10-year period 1941-50, there were annually 21,533,000 acres of cotton in cultivation as of July 1.

B. B. Sugg Hurt In Wreck Near Here Yesterday

WASHINGTON — Greenville tobaccoist B. B. Sugg Sr. was injured near here yesterday afternoon when the automobile in which he was a passenger was involved in a high way accident five miles south of here on Highway 17. Highway Patrolmen Wesley M. Boykin and R. E. Burton, investigating officers, stated that the Sugg car, driven by B. B. Sugg Jr., was traveling south on 17 at the time the accident occurred. According to the officers, a car driven by Gernsey Grayson Ashby, 24, of Portsmouth, Va., went out of control and went into a spin hitting the Sugg car which he pulled off onto the left hand shoulder of the highway. The patrol officers stated that Sugg told them that he observed the car going out of control and pulled off the highway in order to avoid an accident, but the car traveled across the road, colliding with the car.

Injured was B. B. Sugg Sr., who suffered a laceration of the forehead and a brain concussion. He was removed to Tayloe Hospital for treatment and was later transferred to Pitt Memorial Hospital by ambulance.

Ashby was charged with operating to the left of the center line. Damage to both cars was estimated at over $300. Neither Ashby nor his wife was injured in the accident.

Regarding food and produce available at the home, the welfare superintendent's report disclosed that six gallons of honey has been received (Continued on page twelve)

Two-Day Rain Brightens Outlook On Pitt Crops

Rain which has fallen on Pitt County during the past two days has brightened the outlook for Pitt crops which suffered considerably during one of the driest Junes in recent years. County Farm Agent S. C. Winchester this morning described the recent rains as "in the multi-million dollar classification," and said generally the rains will be "very beneficial to Pitt crops." Tobacco Specialist Sam Weeks commented, "We are mighty happy over the rain, and my guess is that it is fairly general. I've never seen crops quite in this shape before, and it is difficult to tell just how much the rain will help the crop. It is worth a whole lot to the farmers."

Chalks Victory In Final Fight With Congress

Congress Finally Adjourns With Battle Over A Billion-Dollar Atomic Expansion Plans; Truman Victorious

By VINCENT J. BURKE United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON (UP) — President Truman chalked up a victory today in what was probably his final fight with Congress—a billion-dollar battle over atomic expansion.

The economy-minded 82nd Congress finally adjourned since die last night after the House resolved its dispute with the Senate by giving the administration $2,898,600,000 for new atomic plants and equipment during fiscal 1953. The wrangle had delayed adjournment for two days.

Congress voted enough money for the Atomic Energy Commission to pay for completing all the new secret projects which the AEC plan to start in the next 12 months. The sum is $1,448,800,000 more than the House voted Saturday night and $808,000,000 more than its compromise offer which the Senate rejected.

The atomic agreement cleared the way for final passage of a $11,739,776,339 "catchall" bill which also carried $6,031,947,750 for foreign aid and $2,145,000,000 for military construction at home and abroad. It led to prompt solution of a second dispute which had held up final congressional approval of the only other "must" legislation—$584,061,600 for the Army Engineers' so-called "pork barrel" projects.

There will be no more lawmaking by the 82nd Congress unless Mr. Truman calls it back. There was no indication that he would. The 82nd Congress which convenes next January will deal with a new president.

Few legislators were on hand when the 82nd Congress rang down the curtain. There were only about 60 members on the floor when the House adjourned at 6:28 p. m. EDT. There were only two Republicans and 14 Democrats on the floor when the Senate quit at 6:41 p. m.

Fire Losses For June Are Low

During the month of June the Greenville Fire Department answered a total of twenty calls for aid. A breakdown of the summary shows that four were box fire alarms, 15 were telephone calls, one county alarm and four were rescue truck calls. Fire losses in the city for the month were low with only $2,090 in damages being reported by the Fire Chief's office. Of this amount, however, the fire loss suffered by the City of Greenville at Eppes High School is not included. Estimates of this loss have been placed as very small and was amply covered by insurance.

Total fire loss for the city during the first six months of the 1952 year thus now stands at $44,712.48.

Peiping Radio Announces Turning Down Of 'Face-Saving' Compromise Offered Reds Over Prisoner Repatriation; Communists Hurl Captured Flame Throwers And Tanks At UN Troops

PANMUNJOM (UP) — Radio Peiping announced today that the Communists have rejected a United Nations "face-saving" compromise formula for solving the truce deadlock over repatriation of war prisoners. The Chinese Communist broadcast appeared to be a flagrant violation of the agreement reached last Friday at Red request to keep progress of Korean truce negotiations secret until further notice. However, the U. N. made no immediate protest. The two sides met under a new blackout for 48 minutes today and called another session for tomorrow. A U. N. spokesman said only that today's discussion was "objective." Radio Peiping said a spokesman for the Communist negotiating team disclosed rejection of the U. N. compromise. The formula was presented by Maj. Gen. William K. Harrison, chief Allied delegate, last Tuesday. It called for the preparation of new lists of prisoners omitting the names of those who said they would forcibly resist repatriation. This would permit the repatriation of all "listed" prisoners. Peiping said the Communist spokesman rejected the plan as one to "take some administrative action to give a new status to those captured who refused repatriation, making them no longer prisoners of war. The Reds submitted a new plan of their own last Thursday. This also would reclassify prisoners and five South Koreans captured while fighting with the Communists the right to refuse repatriation, but deny it to North Koreans and Chinese.

SEUL, Korea (UP) — The Communists hurled captured American flame-throwers and their biggest concentration of tanks in more than a year against the United Nations today. U. N. troops gave up a hill to the enemy's flame-thrower attack, but repulsed the 14-tank armored assault farther west. Red infantry who sought to follow up the tank thrust were bayoneted or routed with rifle butts and even fists by the U. N. soldiers. The Communists launched their captured flame-thrower against a hill lost shortly before in a brief skirmish just west of the Pukhan River. They were also supported by mortars, submachine guns and heavy artillery. (Continued on page twelve)

Interest Of World Captured By GOP Political Convention

By HOMER JENKS United Press Staff Correspondent For the first time, an American political convention has captured the unfeigned interest of most of the rest of the world. The battle for delegates at the Republican national convention in Chicago is front-page and often bannerline news in newspapers from London to Tokyo.

Never before, in the opinion of most Europeans and Asiatics, have they had so much at stake in a party presidential race. And, like most Americans, they have taken sides in the contest between Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Sen. Robert A. Taft, with self-interest justifying their choice. Britain and Western Europe are in Eisenhower's corner. They know and respect Eisenhower for his leadership of the World War II invasion armies and the North Atlantic Pact supreme command. They believe that Eisenhower would keep American military and economic aid flowing to them if he won the presidency. They fear Taft would return the U. S. to isolationism, at least so far as Europe is concerned. The situation is reversed in the Far East. Gen. Douglas MacArthur still is revered both in Japan and in Formosa, all that remains of Nationalist China. If they can't have MacArthur, they would settle for the man MacArthur supports — Taft. Both, they believe, would see that the Far East isn't slighted for Europe.

Of all the nations, closely following the convention, Britain probably is the most interested. The U. S. embassy in London early took cognizance of this and prepared a 15-page booklet explaining the American electoral system. It has become a best-seller, with two editions already sold out. London newspapers, headed by the stately Times, are devoting both their news and editorial columns to the Republican contest. A Times editorial yesterday warned Britons that the Republican Party was in danger of being "captured" by its neo-isolationists and "Pacific-firers." It accused Taft supporters of "brazenly" using party machinery to win control of contested delegates. Even the Sunday newspaper News of the World, whose exploitation of sex and crime has boosted its circulation to a world record 8,423,113, shoved these aside to give top spot to the GOP convention.

French newspapers also played up the Chicago developments. The left-wing newspaper France-Tribune said the convention's choice "will influence... the policy of a power which has taken, and in which the rest of the world has confided, an overwhelming responsibility." West German newspapers are worried over the fate of Eisenhower, their favorite "son." One commented that Eisenhower's "Alice in Wonderland innocence" is no match for Taft's professional political know-how. Only Russia and her Communist satellites profess to be disinterested in the outcome of the race. They regard all American political leaders as war-mongers and "slaves of Wall Street."

Senator Taft Giving Ground As Convention Goes Into Second Day But Retains Control Of Credentials Committee; Battle Of Stolen Delegates Resumed

By LYLE C. WILSON United Press Staff Correspondent CHICAGO (UP) — Dwight D. Eisenhower's managers went all out today to parlay their first round victory on "fair play" Republican national convention rules into the general's nomination for president. Sen. Robert A. Taft was giving ground as the convention went into its second day. But the senator retained control of the convention credentials committee where the battle of the "stolen delegates" was resumed this morning.

The United Press counted 546 delegates planning to vote for Taft on the first ballot, 445 known to be in Ike's corner, and 215 still uncommitted or backing one of the dark-horse contenders. Needed to nominate: 604. Eisenhower had 668 votes yesterday on the rules showdown. Taft mustered 548 votes on that test. Eisenhower supporters claimed the vote represented the "high water" mark of Taft's strength, and said it exploded the senator's claims to enough strength for a first-ballot nomination victory.

Taft men retorted that the senator still has the votes to clinch the big pay-off, although some of them conceded privately that might not hold true if he should lose the contested delegates Eisenhower is trying to wrest from him. Gen. Douglas MacArthur key-noted the Republicans to battle last night in the first of the big attractions scheduled here. More speechmaking was scheduled for today's morning session. But it was difficult for delegates to concentrate on their war with the Democrats until they were through clubbing fellow Republicans with charges of intra-party fraud and thievery. "Schemers and planners," MacArthur called the party in power, and he reached way back to the Supreme Court ruckus of 1937 to show that Franklin D. Roosevelt began what the general saw as a trend toward the end of freedom for Americans. He cited the Democrats as the "war party" of the United States, reminding his listeners that World Wars I and II came in Democratic administrations, plus the deadly police action now current in Korea.

General Mac talked 50 minutes. The consensus was that his speech would not greatly change the shape of things to come in this convention. Former President Herbert Hoover is tonight's star and if the schedule is kept, Republicans will begin balloting on a presidential candidate tomorrow night. With the privilege of an elder statesman, Mr. Hoover said he hoped his remark tonight would raise the level of discussion here.

The platform committee was having some trouble with its civil rights plank, the key to the big Negro vote and an issue upon which both parties generally play a lot of politics. All hands apparently are agreed at least in principle on a foreign policy plank which endorses collective security and seeks to take some skin off the Truman administration. Some observers were counting Taft out of the presidential contest after yesterday's vote to change the convention rules. There were Taft delegates, however, among the 658 voters for the Eisenhower rules change whereas Taft's 548 supporters, barring half a dozen, perhaps, apparently will go down the line for him, at least on early ballots. Thus the vote was not necessarily a preview of the presidential balloting. Taft said hard-core showing of (Continued on page twelve)

Scout's Own Held At Camp Hardee On Sunday

Each Sunday at Camp Hardee, a Scout's Own is held which is planned and conducted by the campers themselves. The Intermediate group of the Cherokees held an impressive Scout's Own on Sunday, July 6, with all the girls gathered at the waterfront for the program.

For this occasion, the Cherokees chose as their theme, "God and My Country." After the group sang "America," Beth Spivey of Williamsonton introduced the theme with a talk on the meaning of "My Country" and its relationship to God. "This Is My Father's World" was then sung by the entire group. Joanne Parks of Greenville read appropriate scriptures followed by prayer.

Other features of the program were "What Our Country Means To Us" by Carolyn Spell of Arlington, Va., "Our North Carolina," an original poem by Bonny Rutledge of Ayden, "What Girl Scouting Means to Our Country" by Ann Mallard of Smithfield and a poem, "God Bless Our Country" by Ann Stallings of Smithfield.

"God of Our Fathers" was sung by the Cherokees as special music for the program and all the campers joined in singing "God Bless America" at the close of the program.

Willis-Laughinghouse Vows Spoken

Local Girl Wed In Methodist Church On Last Saturday

In an afternoon wedding of impressive dignity at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, Miss Jane Dail Laughinghouse, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles O'Hagan Laughinghouse, became the bride of Mr. Letcher Hardeeman Willis, son of Mrs. Heber Charles Willis and the late Mr. Willis of Orange and Rapidan, Virginia.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Leon Russell at half after five on July fifth.

Mrs. Paul Tull, organist, rendered a program of nuptial music which included Schubert's "Ave Maria," Debussy's "La Plus Que Lente," and "Melody" from Tchaikovsky's Sixth Symphony. Mr. Sam Northrup, baritone, sang "Ich Liebe Dich" by Grieg.

For her attendants, the bride chose her sister, Miss Lucille Laughinghouse, as maid of honor, and her cousin, Miss Helen Stokes. They wore identical ballerina length dresses of champagne net and lace, with matching bandeau and lace mitts, and carried cascade bouquets of American Beauty roses tied with wide matching satin ribbons that fell in long streamers.

Charles Willis of Lynchburg, Va. served as his brother's best man, and ushers were Carl Roberts and John Bazzare of Orange, Va., Stephen J. Harding III of Washington, N. C., and C. B. West III.

The bride, whose father is now stationed in Casablanca, French Morocco, was given in marriage by her cousin, Charles L. Stokes, of Goldsboro.

Her wedding gown of ivory Chantilly lace over white taffeta was made with a tight fitting bodice and tulle joined the lace to a yoke of illusion. The full circular skirt extended into a court train. Her two-tiered veil of French Illusion was attached to a Chantilly lace bonnet, embroidered in seed pearls, and she carried a cascade bouquet of white fluffy carnations centered with a purple throated orchid.

The mother of the bride wore a gown of blue lace with matching accessories and her corsage was of yellow roses. The groom's mother was gowned in embroidered blue silk shantung with matching accessories and wore a corsage of white roses.

Following the ceremony the bride's mother entertained at a small reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Stokes Jr., uncle and aunt of the bride.

The bride's table was covered in an imported cloth embroidered in white chrysanthemums and centered with a double silver candelabra holding burning white tapers tied with fern and white satin ribbons.

At one end of the table a three-tiered bride cake, topped with white wedding bells, held white satin ribbons running in sunburst design ending in tiny silver bells, which were later pulled by the bride party for the lucky charms in the cake.

At the other end of the table punch was poured by Mrs. Charles Stokes of Goldsboro. Misses Marty Hadley, Lois Tucker, Mary Ann Smoot and Mary Dunn Beatty assisted in serving floral mints, nuts and individual bridal cakes.

For traveling, the bride wore a Belgian blue silk shantung suit, with white accessories and the orchid from her bouquet.

The bride attended Woman's College of U.N.C. and graduated at East Carolina College, class of '51. For the past year she has been with the Department of Defense in Washington, D. C. She is the granddaughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. Charles O'Hagan Laughinghouse and of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Irving Young of New York City.

The groom attended Woodberry Forest and N. C. State College before serving a year in the Air Corps in the Pacific, and graduated at East Carolina College, class of '51. He is now manager of Clark Manufacturing Co. in Orange, Va., where they will make their home.

Pre-Nuptial Parties

Following the rehearsal on Friday night the bride's aunt, Mrs. Dail Laughinghouse Sr., entertained the bridal party and out-of-town guests at a garden buffet on the spacious lawn of her country home. The guests were served assorted sandwiches, ham, chicken salad and relishes. Punch was served from an attractive ice filled white garden wheelbarrow.

On Saturday at noon Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Stokes Jr. gave a luncheon at their home at Summer Haven for the bridal party and out-of-town guests. Baked ham, shrimp salad and accompanying hot dishes were served by Mrs. Dail Laughinghouse and Mrs. Charles Laughinghouse, mother of the bride. Punch was enjoyed on the beautiful lawn overlooking the Pamlico River.

Among the out-of-town guests here for the wedding were:

Mrs. H. C. Willis, Orange, Va.; Mr. Irving H. New Officers Elected For MYF District

Mary Jac Stevenson of Route 4, New Bern, has been elected president of the New Bern District of the Methodist Youth Fellowship for the coming year.

She was elected by the district council at their last meeting for this year, which was held on Sunday, June 22, and she will begin her duties in September.

Mary Jac is a member of the Beach Grove Methodist Church near New Bern. She has done outstanding work in her local church and in her subdistrict. Now she takes on a larger and more responsible job in her district.

Mary Jac will also serve next year as president of the New Bern Subdistrict. She plans a career in religious education.

The district is composed of six subdistricts. All subdistrict presidents are members of the district council and the district officers are elected from this group.

Andy Mason of Beaufort takes on the job of vice president. This is Andy's second year on the council. He is president of the Morehead-Beaufort subdistrict.

Shirley Shiver of Kinston will serve as secretary. Shirley comes to the council from the Kinston subdistrict.

McGee Creech from La Grange was elected publicity chairman. McGee serves as president of the Wayne County subdistrict.

Freddie Lilley from the Wharton Methodist Church near Washington takes the office of treasurer. He is the new president of the Greenville subdistrict.

These young people, together with the adult counselors, make up the district council. Rev. R. L. Bame of La Grange is the Director of Youth Work for the New Bern District.

The outgoing officers who have served faithfully through the year are: Joyce Boyd, New Bern, president; Charles Davis, Eureka, vice president; Mary Wells Edwards, Chocowinity, secretary; Andy Mason, Beaufort, treasurer; and Sara Moore, Kinston, publicity chairman.

Women In The Church

Miss Helen Dorcas Hall, Ph.D., of Pittsburgh, Pa., has been elected executive secretary of the Woman's Section, Division of Education and Cultivation, of the Methodist Board of Missions, with offices at 150 Fifth Avenue, New York City. She succeeds Mrs. Eloise Woolver who retired July 1. Dr. Hall will direct the missionary educational, organizational, and promotional program for more than 28,000 organizations of the Woman's Society of Christian Service throughout the United States. A former missionary to India, Dr. Hall has been a professor of sociology and assistant dean of women at State Teachers College, Indiana, Pa. She has degrees from Allegheny, Columbia, and the University of Pittsburgh.

Homes for widows and their children have been opened in Seoul, Taegu and Kyung Ju, Korea, reports the Rev. Francis Kriesler, Presbyterian missionary in Pusan. In Taegu a three-day class was held for forty widows who are qualified to teach in Bible clubs. They can now earn their living as Bible teachers and, at the same time provide an education for children who are not now in school. On Sundays a truck takes seminary students from Taegu to churchless villages.

Fifty-two young women and young men who will serve three years in Asia as short-term missionaries under sponsorship of the Methodist Church, and three regular life-term missionaries are now in six weeks of special training on the campus of Hartford Seminary Foundation, Hartford, Conn. They will take intensive studies in spiritual development, linguistics, and area orientation. The Rev. and Mrs. Charles H. Germany, missionaries on furlough from Japan, are deans of the school. The group, made up largely of lay workers aged 21 to 28, college graduates, will begin sailing in September for Japan, Korea, Malaya, the Philippines, India, and Pakistan. As teachers, social workers, nurses and technicians, youth leaders, administrative assistants, and ministers, they will help strengthen the regular missionary program. This is the fifth year in which the Methodist Church has chosen and trained young people for three-year missionary service.

C.Y.F. Notice
The Christian Youth Fellowship of the Eighth Street Christian Church will meet tonight at 8:00 at the home of Mrs. J. R. Carrington on East 11th Street. All members are urged to attend.

Birth Announcement
Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hart of Ayden announce the birth of a daughter, Deborah Burney, on Sunday, July 6, at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Hart is the former Audrey Burney of Grifton.

The Business and Professional Women's Club will meet at the Elm Street Park on Thursday, July 10, at 6:30 p.m.

Men Rob Station For Third Time

NEW YORK UP) WJohn D. Gorga, night attendant in a Manhattan filling station, thought there was something familiar about the two men who walked into the station office early yesterday.

When he saw guns in their hands, he remembered. Twice in less than two months the same men had held up the station, getting $75 the first time and $53 the second time. Di Gorga handed over $50 from the till, and when the robbers left he wearily called police.

CHAPTER 24

A new wave of terror hurtled across Melisande's tired brain. Was there no end to the tortures of this miserable night? But she was far too weary to resist now. "You're joking, Paul." It was all she could think of. "In my valise over there," Paul went on tonelessly, "you'd find a certificate of provisional discharge. I'm supposed to be alright now. But to-night, I wonder. I wasn't sane for Point Harvest tonight." "Why didn't you tell me about that—before, Paul?" "I thought it'd turn you against me. I was scared you'd not want to marry me." "You said you married me without love." "That's probably true." "It's hard to believe, Paul. Explain what kind of man you are, anyway?" "I wish I could answer that one. But I can't. I suppose I'm completely ego-centric. You were moral, sane, clean, steadfast. I was opposite of all those. So I married you. You'd lift me up. Others would have dragged me further down." "Katie?" "Yes. And others as well. But you were different." "Let's not discuss it any further to-night, Paul. We're both worn out and don't know what we're saying." Melisande shrugged and closed her eyes. "Danny got the mail from the launch while we were away," she said. "The papers are in the lounge. Also a small parcel for you. Good night." He lightly touched her forehead with his lips. Then he blew out the lamp and hurried towards the lounge.

He spread the papers before him on the floor. There were two morning and two afternoon editions. Commencing with the top-most edition he began a light search of every news item. The four newspapers completed, he went through them again, and yet again, gaining fresh confidence with each new reading.

They had not yet found the body of Kate. It was a comforting thought. The longer the body went undiscovered the less danger of the police suspecting what they were wont to call foul play. It was almost a week now. He hadn't seen today's edition, of course, but that would arrive with the launch to-morrow. Which brought his mind hurtling back to Dan Sale, the only unexplainable element in the entire business. It was the kind of thing Taylor would do—send him down here for a change and fresh air. But—coincidence!—it had to be Kate's father. Yes, that was it. Coincidence. It was thing one could never insure against—an allowable margin of error. Nevertheless, he would keep a watchful eye on Danny.

Now, he would sleep. The clock on the mantel chimed the hour of four. The first grey streaks of dawn outlined the windows of the lounge; and down by the bay some nocturnal fisherman was waking the echoes with the scrape of oars against complaining rowlocks.

As he made to leave the room, he remembered what Melisande had said about a parcel. What could such a parcel contain? Who would be sending it? There were several layers of wrapping and beneath all that a pink chocolate box. Puzzled, he removed the lid and stared down upon the faded, broken, wilted thing that lay embedded in a setting of cottonwool.

A white rose! His mind slammed back to the business of Wade's Hole and jerked to a stop upon the remembrance of this rose falling at his feet upon the edge of the drop and of his boot raised to kick the flower into eternity, along with the body of Kate.

This rose—! How could such a thing be? Kate was dead in Wade's Hole and somewhere close to her, the rose lay dead, too. Anything else was an absurdity.

There had to be an explanation of this faded flower. Had to. . . had to. . . had to. . .

Only Kate could have sent it. And Kate was dead.

Fresh argument. Kate was not dead. Which, was too bloody silly for words. But admitting even the most outrageous absurdity, if Kate were not dead, then why hadn't he already been arrested for attempted murder? They'd had almost a week.

Only one possibility remained—somebody else had sent the rose. The name of Taylor sprang to his tongue; but here again there could be no logical explanation as to why he should do such a thing. Taylor—being Taylor—would obey his first impulse to inform the police and let the social mechanism take its proper course.

One thing emerged clearly from the maze of uncertainty—he could not go on living with this rose—the uncommunicative, incoherent, obscure and altogether absurd symbol of a new and terrible danger.

Crossing to the bureau drawer he hastily extracted a sheet of paper and a pencil. Leaning heavily upon the bureau he wrote:

"Sandy. Have to return to the City urgently. Expect me back on to-morrow's launch. And quit worrying. Paul."

He left the note on the centre table where it was conspicuous against the dark wood. Within a few hours from now he would know whether Kate were alive or dead. There had to be knowledge of this, else reason would vanish entirely and that would be the end. There could be no other way. The rowboat would take him to the opposite shore, where there was a road.

Gardiner stood transfixed at the thought. There was no rowboat now! Suddenly he felt as though the walls of the world were closing in upon him, malevolently isolating him upon a narrow strip of forest.

"Up early, Mr. Gardiner, sir." Danny moved like a shadow into the clearing. A rifle hung carelessly from his left hand. They stood less than ten feet apart. "I thought I'd sit by the water. It looks cool down there." Danny's eyes smouldered over.

"You're carrying a rifle, Danny. . ."

"There was a fox barkin', over towards Forrester. Rare thing in these parts—a fox. I went after him."

Danny lowered the rifle butt to the ground and leant against the barrel.

"I sighted him. He went up along the valley. I came back for a fox whistle. Daylight's the best time to whistle 'em up. Like to come along?" "I may have to go to town." "You can't do that 'less we get the boat. Best to come with me." Danny got a fox whistle from the house and a rifle for Gardiner. (To be continued)

Mexican Doctors Fear Conversion As Employees

MEXICO CITY (UP) — Some Mexican doctors fear that continuing expansion of Mexico's multi-million dollar social security program may convert them into "mere employees of the government."

Dr. Alfonso Millan Maldonado, president of the Mexican Medical Confederation, said his colleagues are "deeply concerned by the constant extension" of the vast government security benefits system. "We are well aware that the day is coming when Mexican physicians will have to abandon private practice to convert themselves into government workers—mere functionaries," he said.

"We will collaborate only if we are furnished just economic compensation." Millan Maldonado said he has asked President Miguel Aleman to approve a program drawn up by the confederation seeking to establish minimum wages for doctors, job guarantees, better opportunities for study and self-improvement and other social benefits.

He said the confederation believes doctors should receive a minimum salary of $35 per month for one hour of work daily for the social security program. The health program provides free medical treatment and free medicines to all workers who contribute a percentage of their wages to the social security fund.

The record of any popular vote for electors prior to 1824 is so meager and imperfect that a trustworthy compilation would be impossible.

DANGERS IN EDUCATION

A young man who has spent a number of years working among college students—and who has been unusually successful—in making his final address before leaving to assume another position. With great conviction he stated that it is possible for men and women to go through college today and retain their Christian faith but that it is not probable that they will do so. He spoke of the classroom influences which often lead young people to forsake the faith of their childhood and henceforth regard it as naive superstition. He dwelt on the social pressures which are so overwhelming that multitudes of young people are overheard college years inducted into moral habits which render the living of a Christian life impossible.

Is education worth while? It certainly is, and both parents and children should sacrifice to the utmost to make a high degree of education possible. Education has become so secular and the homes from which many young college people come have become so worldly that it takes will power and the grace of God given without measure to get young people through college today without permanent damage to their future moral life.

The risk is worth taking. Courage demands that it must be taken, but the dangers are so great that both parents and children should realize these dangers before the college course begins.

Another War, Another GI Bill Of Rights

A new GI bill of rights for veterans of a new war has been provided by Congress.

Yet this GI bill is for veterans of a war which officially has not been called a war by Congress. It is for the veterans who served during the period of the mis-named "police action" in which American soldiers have been dying for more than two years.

The first GI bill of rights was for the men who served during the conflict in which names like Guadalcanal, Normandy, and Anzio became much too familiar in American households. Since then those names have been joined by Heartbreak Ridge, Seoul and Chosin which have come from a new war fought to a large extent by a new crop of fighting men.

Will there be a third GI bill of rights? When will it come, and what names will the memory carry when the veterans come home to claim their rights under the third bill? Those are questions we are reluctant to face, but they are questions which can not but come to the fore as one views the position of the United States in the world's turmoil.

For those who still doubt that the United States is tied up in a ruthless war, perhaps the action of Congress in providing the new GI bill will be evidence that the nation's law-makers are conscious that the current war is just as real as any war of the past— notwithstanding the lack of a formal declaration.

And where are we going with it all? This time the goal is truce and peace; not unconditional surrender as a prerequisite to the two ultimate goals as was the case a decade ago.

Caught in the web of muddled events though we are, the American people must keep their eyes steadfast upon the goal of freedom and peace, and hold to their principles and purposes to achieve the goals. In so doing the nation is bound to suffer losses as we know, but to desert the struggle for the principles and the goals would be to throw the very vitals of American democracy and freedom open to a death blow.

They Want To Keep Their Way Of Life

Over in Avon, in Dare County, the county commissioners have adopted a resolution opposing the proposed establishment of a national park on North Carolina's Outer Banks.

The action, which came as a surprise to most people, followed a public hearing in which the citizens of the area affected by the proposed project expressed their feelings on the matter. It is not often that we find now days in the nation—or in North Carolina for that matter—a group of citizens who turn thumbs down on a million-dollar-plus project in their own back yards.

The Council of State a couple of weeks ago approved a $618,000 appropriation to acquire land for the proposed national park, and the action is contingent upon a similar amount from federal and private funds. But the Outer Banks citizens say they prefer to do their own developing as they see fit, rather than having their islands turned into a national park . . . which of course would mean commercialization of their home baliwicks and a change of pace for the life on the Banks that for more than a century has ambled along with the tides, the moon and the sea.

Ocracoke Island, Hatteras Island and the lower part of Bodie Island are included in the proposed area for the park. The villages would not be included, but they could not help but be affected by the changes which would come about through the recreation and development of the park.

In a way we can not blame those people of the Outer Banks for wanting to keep the islands, their way of life the way it is and has been—unhurried, peaceful and quiet. As one Tar Heel writer described Ocracoke, it is one of the few remaining places in North Carolina where time sits down in the shade and fans itself.

Those who have visited the more remote Outer Banks are inclined to agree with that description.

In these days of rapid living, commercialization, turmoil and chaos, perhaps it would not be amiss to let the section remain as it is.

National Whirligig

By RAY TUCKER

CHICAGO—The problem of writing a Republican foreign policy plank acceptable to Senator Taft or General Eisenhower, or even to such a possible compromise candidate as Governor Earl Warren of California, should present no real difficulties to the GOP platform carpenters here, if they are more earnest for party victory than for satisfaction of personal ambition.

Although the two leading candidates' differences on this question lie behind their rivalry for the nomination, and have been ballyhooed by the Truman Democrats as sufficiently divergent to insure a Democratic victory, the plain fact is that a mere revision of the 1948 statement on this issue will solve all personal and factional disputes for Republicans of good will.

PRINCIPLES—Before describing and applying the 1948 set of principles to present-day conditions, it should be noted that the foreign policy plank of four years ago was written in the main by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, Ike's campaign manager at the convention opening here today in the stench of the world's most massive market for live cattle and ambitious politicians.

It should also be recalled that Senator Taft, runner-up to Governor Thomas E. Dewey, concurred in and approved the Bay State politician's handwork. Dewey, as the 1948 nominee, ran for president on that plank, with Warren as his running-mate.

Because of their "me, too" kind of campaign, they rarely referred to its affirmative pledges or to its denunciations of certain phases of the Roosevelt-Truman-Acheson conduct of foreign affairs.

NEGLECTED—This important question was neglected in the 1948 battle as it may be in the 1952 campaign. If General Eisenhower emerges as the nominee, for it is generally agreed that Ike and Truman are not too far apart on this issue.

As a matter of fact, save for such new factors as the "Korean police action" and intensification of the "cold war" with Russia, the Republican plank of 1948 might have been acceptable to the Democrats in that year. There was no essential difference in the two documents.

PLANK—The GOP's 1948 foreign plank endorsed the system of "collective security," as enunciated by Truman and Acheson, and as eventually implemented by General Eisenhower as commander of SHAPE.

In fact, it approved almost every effort of the Truman-Eisenhower combination for building a free world so strong that Russia, unless it stages all-out war before 1955—a possibility which Anglo-American military experts discount—cannot conquer the democracies.

It is no exaggeration to say that Ike was the visible and dynamic symbol of this Lodge-Taft-Dewey-Warren declaration. Therefore, save that it serves the convention designs of the Eisenhower faction, there is really no dispute between the two warring groups on this issue.

Recalling the Lodge-Dewey-Warren approval of the 1948 platform's key statement on foreign policy, it is pertinent to reprint the heart paragraph of that document.

It shows unmistakably that Bob and Ike and Earl—the top men in the GOP's presidential contest—do not disagree on foreign policy, despite pre-convention efforts to highlight a Taft-Eisenhower feud on this major issue.

POLICY—Here is what the Eisenhower faction wrote and the foreign policy plank on which they sought the presidency for Dewey and Warren in 1948, insofar as the handling of foreign problems, war and peace are concerned:

"America is deeply interested in the stability, security and liberty of other independent peoples. Within the prudent limits of our own economic welfare, we shall cooperate, on a basis of self-help and mutual aid, to assist other peace-loving nations to restore their economic independence and the human rights and fundamental freedoms for which we fought two wars and upon which dependable peace must build.

Wouldn't It Be Wonderful—

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Most of us have heard of Boys Town, Nebraska, the home of indigent boys and realize what a wonderful job is done there. But a better understanding of the wonderful plan comes from talking to one of the graduates of Boys Town, as I have done.

Pete Joly of Grifton has come home for the first time since he entered three years ago. At 17 he has won a scholarship to Yale Culinary School in New Haven, Conn., and will enter there in the fall.

When Pete's home was split up and he was in need of help Grifton citizens came to the rescue. Pete gives particular mention to W. T. Bissette, Sally McCarter, and Georgia P. Hughes. After their letters had arranged his enrollment, still more Grifton citizens chipped in on Pete's transportation ticket to Nebraska. If you could talk to Pete and see how ready he is to face the world, the effort to the Grifton citizens seems to have been repaid ten-fold.

This summer Pete will return to Omaha and work as a cook in the Blackstone Hotel. After his eight months in culinary school, he plans to go back to Blackstone again as a chef. The normal course at Yale is 16 months, but Pete's culinary training at Boys Town qualifies him for the advanced phase of training.

Pete started cooking at the age of six as a matter of necessity, but liked the job. When he arrived at Boys Town he was faced with many trade schools that were available in addition to regular high school: printing, auto mechanics, agriculture, horticulture, cooking, barbering, baking, wood work, pottery, sheet metal work, machine shop, shoe shop, tailoring and radio technician.

In his case the cooking trade school was a natural, and started actual practice the first day he arrived. But just in case he might want to change his mind later, he studied shoe making and typing.

Pete says the only requirement for enrollment into Boys Town is need. Boys who are victims of broken homes or abandoned may enter. Of course the school is supported 100 per cent by donations. Clothing and other necessary items are issued to the boys while they are there.

During Pete's enrollment there have been two boys who came in unable to speak English, from Spain and Italy. One boy was en route from Korea, but was killed.

Some of the donors to the cause are alumni themselves. Alumni chapters have been founded in Detroit, New York, Omaha, Kansas City and Chicago. Members of these chapters return to Boys Town every year for a family reunion.

Pete will be one of the active members of an alumni group before long. "I had a lotta fun there," he says, "and it certainly is a wonderful place." And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

NO GAME—Judge R. Hunt Parker, recently nominated for the office of associate justice of the Supreme Court, made it very clear to newsmen that he is not disposed to play games with either of the high offices involved in his moving up from the Superior Court to the Supreme Court. Wide publicity had been given to a story indicating that efforts were being made in the third judicial district to prevent Governor Scott from appointing a resident judge to replace Judge Parker when he takes over the associate justiceship. The purported plan was to have Judge Parker resign his superior judgeship more than 30 days before the November election so that the executive committee of the judicial district could place a candidate on the ballot to succeed him. The idea back of that plan is that such procedure would permit Governor Scott to appoint a judge for only about 60 days instead of for two years, as would be the case if Judge Parker resigned immediately after his election to the Supreme Court had been certified by the State Board of Elections.

EMPHATIC—Judge Parker was very emphatic in answering questions about his intentions when interviewed in the Sir Walter Hotel lobby Tuesday afternoon. "I have no intention of resigning," he said. He added that to resign one judgeship before the other became effective would destroy seniority rating for retirement benefits. At the risk of offending an eminent jurist, it must be stated that he was wrong about that. Tenure on the bench in order to acquire judicial retirement status does not have to be continuous. Incidentally, there is a lot of general misunderstanding about judges' retirement, which isn't retirement in the commonly accepted sense. More about that at a later time.

ALTERNATIVE—There is an out for those who want to prevent Governor Scott appointing a judge in the third district, provided Judge Parker is willing to play ball with them—which is doubtful. Parker has been nominated and will be elected on November 4 for both an unexpired and a full term on the Supreme Court.

SHORT—The so-called short term is for the unexpired part of the eight year term for which Associate Justice William A. Devin was elected in 1944. When Chief Justice W. P. Stacy died last September Governor Scott appointed Justice Devin to that post and named Itomous Valentine to the associate justiceship vacated by the promotion of Justice Devin. In the election this year Chief Justice Devin is a candidate for the unexpired term of Chief Justice Stacy which runs until 1958. Valentine and five others were candidates in the primary for the full eight-year term of Associate Justice beginning next January 1, and four also sought election to the unexpired portion of the term ending at that time. Judge Parker was nominated in the primary and will be elected to both. He can take the oath immediately upon certification of his election, which will be on Tuesday, November 25.

rights plank was adopted on the floor of the convention. This came after the Platform committee had given its report and this report contained a mild civil rights plank.

The same thing is likely to occur this year. Senator Humphrey of Minnesota led the fight for the strong plank four years ago. He'll likely do the same thing this year.

There is no indication right now that such a plank is a strongly controversial issue among the Republicans. But they do have a matter to decide and Mr. Taft and Mr. Eisenhower are vital cogs in the solution. Right now, our guess is that

Mr. Taft will get the nomination on the second ballot, or after the favorite sons have shown their votes.

Thus, our analysis right now is that the Democratic party faces its biggest test in the convention over issues, while the Republican test will come over men. Then the second place on either ticket would see a real fight develop, but that seems unlikely now.

The Republicans may have a ding-dong battle over the seating of delegates, but such matters concern mechanics rather than programs or platforms. And the seating of delegates will concern the candidacies of both Eisenhower and Taft.

CONFLICT—Research on this

This is Coney Island on Saturday night. A department store bargain basement sale is a surging mass of human flesh overhung by a pall of continual noise-organ music, pealing bells, campaign songs, chanted slogans, shouted greetings.

I rode down in an elevator with Rep. George Br. Jr., who has all but lost his voice rooting for Taft. He looked at the churning chaos in the lobby and whispereed hoarsely:

"Organized confusion is hard to find—but here it looks easy. Somehow out of this chaos a few days with a platform and a candidate. Behind the rattle-dazzle the real work is going on."

It is the candidates I feel sorry for—Taft, Eisenhower, Warren, Stassen, MacArthur. To be president of the United States is the toughest job in the world. But to try to be president must be even worse.

To many people here the con-

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
We have come a long way since the day Samuel Gompers dropped his last hand-made cigar for a union gavel. Old Sam was a great believer in "laying it on the line." He once said that the greatest wrong an employer could do was to fail to make a profit.

With that kind of philosophy, it would be a shock to the Gompers part of the wages of a large part of the working population consists of promises instead of dollars, even though the promises are as sound as the dollars.

As a nation, we have been in a revolution—so smoothly that most of us scarcely realize what has happened. Workers are being paid largely in cash. But the cream of their stipend is of another coin. Pensions.

Pension systems date to antiquity. It was the politicians, perhaps, who first regularized them on a broad scale. The pole needed a body of employed followers who would be content with their lot, to vote regularly and never try to usurp the powers of those who got them their jobs. Pensions were the answer. For years the appeal of jobs for city, state and national governments was the security: the protection against casual firings and a livable pension. Men who could have made fortunes as free agents drifted into the civil services.

The idea spread to a few businesses and, during the depression, to the body politic. It spread so far by the end of the war that the successors to Sam Gompers took it up in earnest. The first few high-rate, iron-clad pension contracts caused a 24-hour wonder in the press. The succeeding contracts were less exciting, but even more rigid.

And now, before most of us have realized what has happened, protection by pension has become a way of life.

Men, seeking jobs, ask what the pension provisions are. A job with a guaranteed pension after 65 at $70 a week is more desirable, in many eyes, than a job at $80 without "fringe benefits." Young men, a couple of years on a job, refuse to leave for greener fields because the pension rights they have gained are emerald enough for them.

There are hazards to pensions. While the funds guaranteeing most of them are in little danger of collapse, inflation could, some years from now, make a $125-a-month pension just enough for a bottle of old pop-skill. Again, many who cling to their jobs will be dead before their first pension check is due. On the other hand, many oldsters will live comfortable old ages because their government, their employers, their unions or themselves have established rights to pensions.

In addition to the millions under social security, there are an estimated 5,000,000 wage earners who have been brought under industrial pension plans. Pension benefits granted unions have in many cases been extended to other employees. In addition, there are some 4,000-600 persons who have city, state and federal pension rights. There are also thousands of corporation executives who have voted themselves pensions and thousands of other persons who have purchased pensions and annuities for themselves.

The reasons for this shift to pension-reliance is basic. I will try to explain it here tomorrow.

STUDENTS DESIGN NOVEL DISPENSERS
The packaging industry was criticized for failure to take full advantage of plastics by Harold Cohen, instructor at the Illinois Institute of Technology. He remarked that packagers have taken advantage largely of the transparency of plastics, neglecting its flexibility and color range.

To show what he meant, he presented the ideas of some of his students. They include the packaging of medical capsules in plastic strips so that one capsule may be torn off at a time; a box that ejects one capsule at a time, and a circular container with a day of the week indicated on each of seven compartments so that users can always tell whether they have taken that day's capsules.

NEW BOOK ANSWERS MAINTENANCE QUERIES
What is said to be the most comprehensive discussion of plant maintenance problems ever compiled appears in "Techniques of Plant Maintenance—1952," published by Clapp and Poliak, New York. The book contains the text of 36 papers by experts in the field and 717 questions asked and answers given at the annual Plant Maintenance Conference and show.

NEW PRODUCTS
EDGER: A gadget for electric razor users, said to give perfect sideburn edges, is being marketed by Hodock Mfg. Co., Fairport, N. Y. The razor is said to glide up and over the item, which is held over the ear at edge of sideburn.

CHESTS: Ventilated storage chests covered with washable quilted Koroseal have been introduced by Pearl-Wick Corp., 27-50 First, Long Island City, N. Y. Their steel-ribbed construction is said to permit cross ventilation even when full, eliminating odors and danger of mildew.

Hal Boyle's Column

Note to editors: Wilbur Peeble, the average American citizen, is attending the Republican national convention. He gives his first impression in the following letter to his wife:

By HAL BOYLE
CHICAGO (AP)—Dear Trullis Mae, Well, honey, the Republican convention menu right now is political smorgasbord. It is a banquet of bitterness, cynicism, faith, platitudes, principles, hope, ambition and yearning. It is a reach for politicians to get the support of the right people, and a reach for the right people to settle on the right politician—one who can lead them to rainbow victory after 20 years in the political dark.

I guess what everybody would like most here is a good dependable ouija board. But in politics there doesn't seem to be any reliable compass, and if there is an ouija board in town the Democrats are saving it for their convention.

I can't decide yet whether this is actually a political convention, a college homecoming, or a civil war. It is kind of all three rolled into one—with the candidates making faces at each other, and teenage supporters running back and forth with rival banners and yelling "Yeah Team!"

The biggest question here are: 1. "Who ya for?" 2. "Who d'ya think'll really get it?"

The convention headquarters are in the Conrad Hilton Hotel, a kind of civilian Pentagon. It is so huge there is a report one bachelor delegate, got into an elevator in the lobby with a young lady—and by the time they reached his floor he felt he had known her so long he up and proposed marriage.

The hotel is crowded from dawn until midnight with the two types of people you find at every convention—those who have something to do, and those who just come to view.

Hundreds simply mill around like cattle—until their feet get sore and their eyes glaze like zombies—picking up campaign literature, hoping for a glimpse of a favored candidate walking.

This is Coney Island on Saturday night. A department store bargain basement sale is a surging mass of human flesh overhung by a pall of continual noise-organ music, pealing bells, campaign songs, chanted slogans, shouted greetings.

I rode down in an elevator with Rep. George Br. Jr., who has all but lost his voice rooting for Taft. He looked at the churning chaos in the lobby and whispereed hoarsely:

Washington Letter

By JANE EAD
WASHINGTON—Helen Kirkpatrick calls me a top European figure by their first names and is known and admired by journalists in most of the world's capitals, where for 15 years she reported momentous events for American newspapers.

She's personal press aide to Secretary of State Dean Acheson and policy chief of the State Department's European Information Service.

A tall, willowy blonde, coolly efficient, Miss Kirkpatrick presides over an office in the new State Department Building—when she's in town. More frequently, however, she's off in Mr. Acheson's party to serve as liaison with the press on his trips to foreign capitals.

She accompanied him to Rome last November, to Lisbon in February, to Bonn and Paris in May. She was with the secretary on his recent trip to London where she sat in on his talks with England's Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and France's Foreign Minister Robert Schumann.

Born in Rochester, N. Y., a graduate of Dobbs Ferry School and Smith College, she first went abroad on a graduate fellowship at Geneva, Switzerland. Here she met many of the men who were later to become world-renowned figures. Mr. Eden is among her close friends. She was also a personal friend of Jan Masaryk of Czechoslovakia.

Later Miss Kirkpatrick returned to Geneva to work for the Foreign Policy Association and as a correspondent for the New York Herald Tribune in London in 1937 she started the weekly "Whitehall Newsletter," with a British journalist. "It had a fantastic circulation as a dissenting anti-Chamberlain publication," she said.

After she became a correspondent for the Chicago Daily News, Miss Kirkpatrick sold out her interest in the Newsletter. She covered the war in North Africa and Italy and went to Normandy at the time of the landings. Finally she became The News' bureau chief in Paris.

In 1946 she joined the New York Post as roving correspondent. "It was a fun-job," she said. "I could go wherever I wanted. Twice I visited Moscow, which gave me valuable background for my current job. I also got to India and Afghanistan."

She returned in 1949 to the United States and her first job was with the State Department as commentator for the Voice of America program.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

A DIFFERENCE

Washington Daily News
The pictures which the Democratic and Republican national conventions present are different in one distinct sense.

The big fight in the Republican convention will be among the two leading candidates, General Eisenhower and Robert A. Taft. The big fight in the Democratic convention will be the platform and its civil rights plank.

These statements might sound unusual to many people, but right now, we are of the opinion that Adlai Stevenson will get the Democratic nomination if he wants it. And we remember too well four years ago when the strong civil rights plank was adopted on the floor of the convention. This came after the Platform committee had given its report and this report contained a mild civil rights plank.

The same thing is likely to occur this year. Senator Humphrey of Minnesota led the fight for the strong plank four years ago. He'll likely do the same thing this year.

There is no indication right now that such a plank is a strongly controversial issue among the Republicans. But they do have a matter to decide and Mr. Taft and Mr. Eisenhower are vital cogs in the solution. Right now, our guess is that

Mr. Taft will get the nomination on the second ballot, or after the favorite sons have shown their votes.

Thus, our analysis right now is that the Democratic party faces its biggest test in the convention over issues, while the Republican test will come over men. Then the second place on either ticket would see a real fight develop, but that seems unlikely now.

The Republicans may have a ding-dong battle over the seating of delegates, but such matters concern mechanics rather than programs or platforms. And the seating of delegates will concern the candidacies of both Eisenhower and Taft.

BELK-TYLER'S OF GREENVILLE

The Sport Reflector

By BOB HILLDRUP

Gentleman Jim Piersall, the ex-Boston Red Sox player, is certainly the answer to a sports writer's prayer. Whenever the lack of copy is evident, Jim's latest antics are bound to make news.

Since being demoted to Birmingham less than two weeks ago, Piersall has already been thrown out of at least two games by irate umpires. Two of his latest capers include being thrown out of the game by a long-suffering ump for: (1) mimicking the umpire, (2) patting himself on the back at great length after making a sensational putout, and (3) playing catch with the scoreboard operator while the game was in progress.

To top it all off he called General Manager Joe Cronin in the middle of the night just to make sure that Cronin knew he was all right. As if getting out of bed in the middle of the night wasn't enough, the call was collect.

A certain player in the Carolina League a few seasons back went one up on even the great Piersall. Having been called out on strikes he whipped out a pistol, water, that is, and shot the surprised ump between the eyes.

When Piersall hears of that there'll probably be wholesale among Southern Association men in blue.

Writing movie reviews isn't exactly in the sports writer's line but a film that appeared in Greenville recently seems worthy of mention.

"The Winning Team," starring Ronald Reagan and Doris Day, was Hollywood's attempt to tell the story of one of the National League's greatest pitchers, Grover Cleveland Alexander.

First a quick look at the record book and then at the film. In the year 1913 Alexander took the league hurling championship by posting a mark of 22 wins against eight defeats. Envious as this record was, it only foreshadowed the things that were to come.

In 1915 he ran his mark to 31-10 and the following year hung up the seemingly impossible total of 33 victories.

In 1915 Alex established a National League mark with a 1.22 earned run average. Only Walter Johnson, the immortal Washington Senator, ever established a better record.

Despite the fact that he was constantly plagued with recurring pains from an old head injury, Alexander pitched brilliant ball until the first World War. The concussion of exploding artillery shells caused his condition to worsen until at last he left the big time in despondency.

Through Rogers Hornsby, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, Alexander got his chance to return to the big time. It was on this last fling that his greatness really shone through.

The Cards of 1926 were a group of old men and green rookies held together by Hornsby's fighting spirit. Into this setting stepped Alexander.

With Hornsby's fire and Alexander's steady pitching the Cards reached the top of the heap and found themselves facing Murderer's Row, the 1926 New York Yankees.

Twice in the opening games of the Series Hornsby called on Alexander's aging arm and each time the "old man" came through.

It was the seventh and deciding game of the series, the Cards leading by one run, the bases loaded and the Yankees' up and coming young slugger, Tony Lazzeri, at bat.

How Alexander came on in relief to strike out Lazzeri and retire the Yanks for the rest of the game is all recorded in Baseball's Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, New York, so that all may see a little of what "the guy that came back" was like.

In the screen version of Alexander's life, Hollywood has done a very creditable job of reproducing the story as it really happened. Actual baseball news reels have been skillfully blended to add realism.

The general photography made an interesting show for the baseball fan although it was obvious at times that a Hollywood star and a baseball player are members of entirely different species.

Doris Day, cast in the extremely difficult role of Mrs. Alexander, gave a standout performance.

In order to make the movie appealing to more than just the average fan, it was natural to have a certain amount of cooling and cuddling. This too was handled well, if the tears that flowed from the eyes of female Greenville High are any meter of measurement.

All in all it was a well rounded film and a tribute to the memory of one of baseball's greatest players.

Though the baseball season is nowhere near completion, Bobby Shantz, the A's diminutive left-hander, is already being mentioned for the Most Valuable Player award. Shantz has been something of a giant killer this year and is at present the possessor of a 13-3 mark.

Should the men who make the decisions see fit to bestow the award to Shantz, a more deserving recipient could not be found.

Nationals Favored In All-Star Contest

Week-End Fishing Party Has Good Luck

Injuries Weaken American Team In Today's Game

By Milton Richmond, United Press Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—The National League was an 8 to 5 favorite to beat an American League team hard-pressed for pitching strength today at Shibe Park in the 19th renewal of the All-Star game.

Slender southpaw Curt Simmons of the Phillies, who has won seven games and lost two this season, was scheduled to be the starting pitcher for the Nationals against rugged righthander Vic Raschi of the Yankees, with an 8-2 record, for the American.

Game time was 1:30 p. m. (EDT) Raschi, despite his fine record, was admittedly a desperation choice by Yankee manager Casey Stengel, who is guiding the American League team. Almost all his other hurlers were injured or tired.

The National League, however, had an array of well-rested pitchers to choose from.

"Our backs are against the wall," moaned Stengel. "I didn't know which pitcher to start. All I had was Raschi and Bob Lemon of the Indians. I picked Raschi, and I'm hoping I was right."

Leo Durocher of the Giants, manager of the National Leaguers, went into the game with a cheerful grin.

"I never had a chance to put a lineup like this on the field before," beamed Leo. "I'm not the least bit worried. We'll do all right."

A warm but cloudy day was predicted by the weatherman who said the temperature would be about 87 degrees at game time.

Some 32,000 fans were expected to pour into ancient Shibe Park as the Nationals, losers in 12 of the 18 previous All-Star contests, went after their third successive victory.

Stengel, who said he deliberated a long time before naming Raschi to start, wasn't sure who would follow him to the mound after he completes his three-inning stint.

"I imagine it'll be Lemon but I'm not positive," declared the grizzled grey-haired Yankee manager, who suffered through two defeats with the American League in 1950 and 1951.

"Lemon is the only pitcher we got that has any rest. Even Raschi worked nine innings against the A's last Saturday. I'm gonna keep my eye on Alie Reynolds when he warms up. If he looks okay to me, I might use him later."

Chief reason for the odds swinging toward the National was the inflamed right wrist being nursed by Reynolds and Bobby Shantz' doubtful status due to a chest pain suffered while hurling against the Yankees Sunday.

Far more definite than Stengel regarding his follow-up pitching selections, Durocher said that Simmons, who has won seven games and lost only two since emerging from the army early this season, will be relieved by Gerry Staley (11-6) of the Cardinals and Staley, in turn, would be followed by Bob Rush (9-6) of the Cubs.

The Cuban champ had been rated a comparatively light puncher because of only 24 previous knockouts in 98 professional fights. Always before he had sacrificed punch for speed. But last night, he turned the trick in reverse.

He let the terrifically aggressive 21-year-old Philadelphia Negro force the fighting in every round, and he set himself to punch with all his might whenever he thought he saw an opening.

The big opening came in the 10th round, when he landed a crushing left hook on the jaw of the challenger who had been guarding chiefly against rights. Turner's knees buckled and he hunched about the ring under a bombardment, but in the last 30 seconds Turner came storming back.

And the game youngster came out fighting in the 11th — but still

Greenville people who spent the week-end of June 28 at Morehead City really enjoyed good luck. Kid Gavilan Retains Welterweight Title

By JACK CUDDY, United Press Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—Welterweight champion Kid Gavilan, the speedster who suddenly turned slugger to knock out young Gil Turner, warned other 147-pound contenders today to watch out for similar explosives when he returns from a vacation in his native Havana.

"I'd like to give that Bobby Dykes the same treatment in September," said the dusky "Keed" who scored a technical knockout over previously unbeaten Turner at 2:47 of the 11th round last night before 39,025 in Municipal Stadium.

Dykes lost on a disputed split decision to Gavilan at Miami Beach last Feb. 5 in Gavilan's second defense of the crown.

The Cuban champ had been rated a comparatively light puncher because of only 24 previous knockouts in 98 professional fights. Always before he had sacrificed punch for speed. But last night, he turned the trick in reverse.

Olympic Teams Leave Idlewild

NEW YORK (AP)—Sixty members of the United States Olympic track and field team left Idlewild Airport this morning after their plane had been delayed several hours by mechanical difficulties.

The athletes will join other members of the team in Helsinki for the summer games. Early yesterday evening another group of athletes from this country left the airport following a day which saw them honored by a traditional march up lower Broadway to a City Hall reception.

Big Time Owners Make New Rule On Bonus Players

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—The honeymoon apparently is over for baseball's bonus babies who have been getting as much to sign a contract as many tried and true veterans are paid for playing the same/half a dozen years.

The major league club owners voted yesterday to establish a new bonus rule at the winter meetings in Phoenix, Ariz., next December, and a special committee, to be named by the two major league presidents and George Trautman, the boss of the miners, will draft legislation.

Commissioner Ford Frick, taking his firmest stand since being named to the post last summer, said that "something has to be done, and pretty quickly too, about this wild and crazy spending for players who may never even get into a big league ball game."

It was regarded certain that the club owners would give serious consideration to a proposal by Bob Carpenter, owner of the Phillies, who recommended a bonus player draft similar to the one in effect in the National Football League.

"I always have been in favor of bonuses, but some of these guys are getting too rough for me this year, the way they're tossing money around," Carpenter said. "Some of them don't even get started until they're offering the kids $50,000."

Local Horses Perform In Weldon Rotary Show

A trip to the Weldon horse show on July 4 was a very profitable one for Mrs. Hugh Winslow of Greenville. Her three entries, Captain Kal, Color Guard and Snow King all came home with first prizes.

The event, sponsored by the Weldon Rotary Club, is one of the state's leading horse shows.

Captain Kal won a 1st in the model class-five gaited division and took another 1st in the Open Fine Harness competition. He then finished out the day with a 2nd in the Fine Harness stake.

Captain Kal performed with Louis Badham of New Bern as driver. Color Guard, Mrs. Winslow's second entry, collected two second places and one first. The seconds came in the Model Class 3 Gait Division and the Amateur Walk-Trot class.

Color Guard finished off with a first place prize in the Walk Trot Stake with Roland Mayo up. In the first two events Color Guard was ridden by Hugh Winslow.

Giants Play Two

The Greenville Giants will meet the Warrenton Tigers tomorrow afternoon at Guy Smith Stadium at 3 o'clock. The game will be in honor of the convention of the Rough and Ready Fire Company which is being held here.

On Sunday afternoon the Giants will meet Pollockville at Guy Smith Stadium. Game time is 3 p.m.

Attendance Mark Set At Graham

By the Associated Press
A new low attendance mark for the Carolina League—only 99 spectators—was set last night at Graham as Danville defeated the Burlington-Graham Pirates, 7-5.

The previous low attendance of 115 was set June 16, 1949 for the Winston-Salem-Durham game at Durham.

Newcomer Sent To Burlington Team

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates of the National League have announced the signing of Roger Sawyer, 18-year-old left-handed pitcher, from Mt. Morris, N. Y.

Sawyer will report to the Pirates farm club at Burlington, N. C., in the Class B Carolina League.

'It's Not Like Korea?' Gen. Mac Asks Newsmen

CHICAGO (UP)—When Gen. Douglas MacArthur finished his keynote speech to the Republican national convention last night, he spotted Hugh Baillie, president of United Press, sitting in the press box below him.

The general cupped trembling hands to his mouth and shouted to Baillie amid the wild demonstration:

"It's not like Korea, is it?" Baillie covered the Korean war as a reporter while MacArthur still was supreme commander in the Far East, and accompanied him to Seoul shortly after that city was recaptured.

three times to rest or to wait until the wind died down. Stewart estimated today he wasn't jumping during seven of the 24 hours. He had to use his emergency chute twice in early jumps and his wife, who was watching, fainted the second time he had to use the spare after falling 200 feet through the air. Forty-nine of his 124 jumps were made in darkness, which is to his liking. His best series of jumps was 10 in 40 minutes.

Crowd Comes To See Family Get Son's Medal

OMAHA, Neb. (UP)—Hundreds of friends of a Mexican-American boy crowded into the new Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church yesterday to see his parents accept the Medal of Honor for the dead marine.

Mr. and Mrs. Modesto Gomez accepted the medal, the country's most highly prized decoration, on behalf of their son, Pfc. Edward (Babe) Gomez, who died when he threw himself on a hand grenade to protect his comrades. The Gomez family declined an offer to have the medal presented

Hits Freight Train With Mower

McKEESPORT, Pa., (UP)—Miss Louise May Reynolds was charged yesterday with driving a power mower while drunk and running it into a freight train.

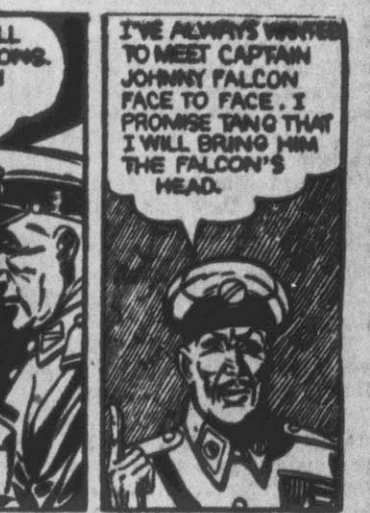

Miss Reynolds, who saw the mower in front of a hardware store, started the motor, and held on to the handle bars while it puttered toward the Baltimore & Ohio railroad crossing as a freight train

Approached

The train demolished the mower but Miss Reynolds escaped injury.

Record Making Jumper Plans to Stay On Ground

GRAND PRAIRIE, Tex. (UP)—A paratrooper who set a new world's record of 124 parachute jumps in a single day said today he planned to stay grounded for a while.

Tough, wiry Neal Stewart set the new record by an eyeful last night when he floated to his last landing at 11:49 p. m., just 11 minutes before his midnight deadline.

The 27-year-old daredevil from Birmingham, Ala., was a bruised and battered man with a headache after his ordeal. "I don't expect," he said in his soft drawl, "to do any more jumping for a while."

He hadn't eaten in 48 hours when he tumbled out of a small private airplane at 500 feet over Grand Prairie Airport for the 124th time last night. During the last five or six jumps, he said, his head hurt so "I didn't even know where the field was."

Stewart, who is on 30-day leave from Fort Bragg, N. C., also had little confidence his new record would stay long on the books. "He'll come back and beat it," the new titleholder said of Iowa stuntman John W. Swedish, an acquaintance, who set the old record of 123 jumps.

Stewart made his mark the hard way. During daytime hours yesterday, he jumped into 100-degree temperatures and often into wind gusts up to 23 miles per hour. The sun baked his plowed 100-yard-square landing area into hard lumps and a harrow had to be run over the section. He had to halt his marathon

Stocks And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—A somewhat firmer tone developed on the stock market at mid-session today after a minor decline during the early trading.

But volume continued to dwindle. Sales to noon amounted to only 370,000 shares, smallest for the period since last May 19 and compared with 420,000 shares in the same period yesterday.

At noon the industrial average showed a gain of a mere four cents, contrasted with a loss of 18 cents at the end of the first hour. The rails with a loss of 21 cents were just where they were at 11 a. m. Utilities doubled a three cent 11 a. m. loss.

The market was a practical duplicate of yesterday's. A few stocks moved outside a point area but the main list showed only fractional changes where issues weren't at the previous close.

Oils had a majority of the wide movers and they ranged between a loss of 3 points in Texas Pacific Land Trust and a rise of 1 3/8 points in Deep Rock Oil. Atlantic Coast Line, widest loser in the rails was down 1 3/4 points.

Du Pont gained nearly a point in the leaders. Steel slipped a bit. Motors were narrowly mixed.

New Slate Of Officers Of Lion's Club Are Installed

Installation of a new slate of officers who will head the activities of the Greenville Lions Club during the coming year was conducted last night by District Governor Bill Dunn of Washington.

Bruce Sugg Jr. was installed as the incoming president of the local club, succeeding Jimmie Harris who ended his official term of office with the meeting last night.

The complete slate of officers as installed last night are: First vice-president, Henry Swayne; second vice-president, Bill Speight; third vice-president, Ben Rouse; secretary-treasurer, Jimmy Warren; assistant secretary-treasurer, Dick Worsley; Lion Tamer, R. O. Everette; Tail Twister, Warren Aldridge; directors: Holly Van Dyke and Kenneth Mercer, with hold-over directors, Durwood Harris and Bill Watson.

President Sugg announced that it was the custom of the club to dedicate each year the official club book to an outstanding Lion and the 1952-53 dedication was made to W. H. Harvey. Harvey is the 1952 secretary of the North Carolina State Association for the Blind, was the third club president, a former deputy district governor and is currently beginning his 13th year with the Greenville Club during which time he has maintained a perfect attendance record.

Official Opening Set For New Gym At College

East Carolina College's new health and physical education building will be officially opened Wednesday, July 9, when open house will be held there from 7:30 p. m. until 9 p. m. Friends of the college are cordially invited to be present for the occasion and to inspect the new building and its equipment.

President John D. Messick, Business Manager F. D. Duncan, Dr. N. M. Jorgensen, director of the health and physical education department, and members of the staff and others will make up a reception committee to welcome guests in the main entrance hall. Students majoring in health and physical education will be present to show visitors over the building.

With the beginning of the second summer session, July 10, the health and physical education building will be put to use for the first time.

Letty Ann Styers Dies In Farmville

FARMVILLE—Miss Letty Ann Styers, aged 3, daughter of Thomas and Florence Styers, died at her home on Grimmersburg Street on Monday night at 10:30 following an extended illness. She had been confined to her bed for the past six months.

The body will remain at the Farmville Funeral Home until 1:30 Wednesday afternoon, at which time it will be taken to the Farmville Baptist Church to lie in state until the time of the service at 2:30. The Rev. Dr. E. W. Holmes will conduct the funeral service, and interment will follow in the Hollywood Cemetery in Farmville.

Lloyd Humphrey, Ed Ennis, Courtney Humphrey and Arthur Warford, Letty Ann's uncles, will serve as pallbearers.

Surviving in addition to her parents are one sister, Nancy Sue; one brother, Thomas Frank, both of the home; her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Humphrey of Kinston; and her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. T. O. Styers of Hillsboro.

Ike Managers . . .

548 votes was a guarantee of his nomination. Eisenhower said after adoption of the rules change that "the Republican Party deserves now to win the election in November."

Before the national committee last week and yesterday in the first convention session, Republican leaders labored each other as they strove to settle the controversy over delegate contests. It shifted today to the Taft-controlled credential committee where the key contests from Texas, Louisiana and Georgia were publicly debated again—this time before a nationwide TV audience. And even that will not be the end. The committee's rulings are bound to be appealed to the convention itself, perhaps tonight.

The rules change which set Taft back on his heels barred from all preliminary participation in convention proceedings those contested delegates who had been placed on the temporary roll call by an affirmative vote of fewer than two thirds of the national committee.

There are 68 such, but Taft cannot lose more than 42. Eisenhower could lose 16. The rules vote indicated that Taft will lose some, perhaps all, of his supporters who are vulnerable when the issue reaches the convention floor, although the credential committee, itself, was expected to side with him by a narrow majority.

The favorite son bloc shrunk in today's tabulation because Gov. Theodore McKeldin of Maryland released his 24 delegates, who promptly split, 18 for Ike and six for Taft.

MacArthur Calls . . .

The general's voice was almost a whisper as he said the Republican Party's "challenge to leadership" was to be found in an "aroused countryside" eager to march on a crusade for peace and security.

MacArthur said the Democratic leaders have trifled with free, competitive enterprise. They have established, he said, "the prerequisites of a socialistic, even later a communist, arbitrary controls on business and industry."

"This, he said, has been done by monistic state."

MacArthur said that destroys enterprise, taxation policies, and "discouraging adherence to the principle of private ownership of property."

Foreign policy, he warned, has "practically invited Soviet domestic policy."

He said "as tragically in error as has dominance over the free peoples of Eastern Europe through strategic dispositions of Soviet force at the close of the European war; we deliberately withdrew our armies from thousands of square miles of hard-won territory, permitting the advance of Soviet forces to the west to plant the red flag of communism on the ramparts of Berlin, Vienna, and Prague."

"We recklessly yielded effective control over areas of vast uranium deposits without which the Soviet might never have developed the threat of atomic power; we foolishly permitted the encirclement of Berlin by Soviet forces."

Reds Reject . . .

Although U. N. troops withdrew from the hill, they remained in the vicinity.

The tank attack was against another U. N.-held hill position in a valley southeast of Kumsong. The Reds threw 14 tanks—presumably Russian-built T-34's—into the futile attempt.

Six tanks pushed within 400 yards of the hill position, firing directly into the trenches.

The tanks stopped firing only to permit a Communist infantry platoon to storm the hill. A shower of Allied grenades met the attackers.

Those who reached the trenches were impaled on bayonets or slugged with rifle butts and fists. The U. N. similarly hammered back a company-sized attack which followed. U. N. troops estimated they killed 59 enemy soldiers.

THE POLITICAL DOPE

By POGO

CHICAGO—This mouse, named Hugo, who is an assistant House Detective at the Furlow Arms, says that Conventions are good for business. "We have all kinds of conventions here and we have all kinds of business," said Hugo.

There is one trouble that eats at the vitals of the merchants in town; the air is free. Hugo said that a number of people have pointed out to the businessmen that the elements are usually free and they have been told, "Well, we're one element that don't feel that way."

With all the people charging around, through and into hotels and similar places, it uses up a lot of air. Like those crowded rooms we were talking about yesterday. All those critters and machines and other conventional gear going full blast in a little room can cause a lot of smoke and all this combustion uses up the oxygen pretty good. Couple of fellows got worrying about the air and decided they would make little machines that would spruce up the used air so it could be used over again. This way they maybe couldn't sell a man any air but they could sure charge him for cleaning up the air he brought with him.

Hugo says these little contraptions are busy all the time. But if you look sharp you can see that there is a drawback. It must be that a man has to stop breathing while his air is being dusted off and sifted because there are a lot of gentlemen here (and some ladies) who look like they've been holding their breath for quite a spell. Maybe like laundry, your air doesn't come back right away. Some of the men claim that the air in the big Convention Hall is changed 72 times a day but it's hard to notice, so nobody ever bothers to count it. Easy come, easy go.

point disclosed several conflicts in statutory and constitutional provisions and even more discrepancies between the law and custom. The constitution, for example, plainly states that terms of executive and judicial state officers shall begin on January 1 after their election, and that they shall hold office until their successors have been elected and qualified. That carry-over provision takes care of the situation where officials are not inaugurated until several days after January 1. The constitution also fixes the time for convening of the General Assembly at noon on Wednesday following the first Monday in January after the election of the members. That means the General Assembly cannot convene before January 3 nor later than January 9. Next year it will be January 7.

STATUTE—The constitution says the terms of the Governor and other elective officers of the executive and judicial divisions shall begin on January 1 and the General Assembly shall convene on the Wednesday after the first Monday in January. But the statutes say that "on the first Tuesday after the convening of the General Assembly, the person duly elected Governor shall, in the presence of a joint session of the two houses of the General Assembly, take the oath of office prescribed by law and be immediately inducted into the office of Governor."

CUSTOM—The constitution and the statutes have been ignored by established custom as to time of inducting officials into office. The General Assembly has regularly

Highest temperature here yesterday continued to range in the upper 90s, with showers prevailing during the day.

The highest temperature here yesterday was 96 degrees. Lowest last night, 71, and at 8 a. m. today the mercury stood at 74.

Little more than one-third of an inch of rain fell during the last 24-hour period.

Highest temperature in the Greenville area yesterday a year ago was 89 degrees. Lowest that night, 59, and at 8 a. m. next day it was 73 degrees. No rain that day.

The sky here was overcast at noon today, with indications of more rain.
