Incorporating Subdivision Is Given Official Sanction

No Objectors Present For Second Public Hearing, Though Action Last Night Did Not Receive Degree Of Favor From The Board As At Its First Passage

By JESS POINDEXTER Reflector Staff Writer

At a second public hearing on the incorporation of College Court subdivision, the Greenville Board of Aldermen last night gave final official sanction to a motion that brought the development into the city.

The incorporation of College Court has been pending for more than a month, but final action could not be taken by the board until the proposition had been advertised four weeks and a second public hearing held. No one was present to object to the move last night.

However, the move for incorporation did not receive the degree of favor from the board that it did when it was passed several weeks ago. At that time it was passed almost unanimously over the strong opposition of Mayor Lester D. Page.

Not Unanimous The motion passed last night, but with a far from unanimous vote. Several members of the board refrained from voting, and prior to the final vote Mayor Page again reiterated his previous conviction that to take the property in unincorporated would be a mistake and an injustice to people already in the city.

"I want to call your attention to the resolution passed last night by the Utilities Commission relative to extending services," the mayor said. "They are without funds to make expansions and people who have bought lots in College Court need not expect an immediate extension of water and sewer facilities."

He further stated that there is a pressing need for a 300,000 gallon water tank in Meadowbrook development north of Tar River. The mayor explained that the tank is badly needed to bring fire protection in that area up to par. "For the safety of homes and businesses across the river, I think that project should take priority over any other," he asserted.

Purchase Fire Equipment Two bids for outfitting the new fire truck were reviewed by the board last night. The two bids received by Mayor Page were from American Fire Apparatus Company of Battle Creek, Mich., and John B. Division of Lansing, Mich.

American Fire Apparatus Company offered delivery within 150 working days after the arrival of the chassis, and John B. Division offered delivery 120 days after chassis arrives. Prices quoted were: American Fire Apparatus Company, $9,592.85; and John B. Division, $11,106.50.

A representative of the Battle Creek company was present and informed the board that if his equipment was purchased, he would install a 600 gallon booster tank and give the city a substantial reduction on the hose price.

The board voted unanimously to purchase the American Fire Apparatus Company equipment for $9,592.85, and in addition, 1,000 feet of two-and-one-half-inch hose and 300 feet of one-and-one-half-inch hose for $1,758.51. The company will deliver the truck back to Greenville free of charge.

Absent from the meeting last night were R. E. Howell and C. B. Mayo, chairman of the fire department committee.

Aldermen Face Money Problem

City Will Bear Burden Of Extending Utilities Services Into College Court If Such Action Taken Now

In taking College Court subdivision into the city unincorporated, the Greenville Board of Aldermen may have to provide the money for extending utilities services into that area—if they are extended immediately.

Following discussion on the motion to incorporate College Court, Alderman Robert L. Smith stated that perhaps the Utilities Commission and subdivision developer M. K. Blount could get together and work out some satisfactory plan whereby utilities could be extended into College Court. Smith voted for incorporation.

The situation was accentuated this morning when Utilities Superintendent Martin Swartz emphasized the provisions of the Utilities Commission's charter, which was ratified by the N. C. General Assembly and enacted into law March 6, 1941.

In response to Smith's suggestion at the meeting last night, Swartz said the Utilities Commission has no authority whatsoever to enter into an agreement of that nature with anyone. The commission asserted in a resolution passed Tuesday night that funds are not available for water, sewer and fire protection extensions into recently annexed areas of the city. Mayor Lester D. Page read the resolution to the board of aldermen before action on College Court subdivision was taken.

Truman Couldn't Resist Voicing Mock Fear That Taft May Be Out Of Race

Mr. Truman cancelled his weekly news conference today because most capital correspondents are in Chicago covering the GOP national convention. Press Secretary Joseph Short said the President had "nothing in particular to report" anyway.

But when Mr. Truman met Secretary of State Dean Acheson at the airport last night upon his return from a tour of Europe and South America, reporters asked him what he thought of the Republican show.

"I'm worried," the President said with mock seriousness. "It looks like my candidate is going to get beat."

Mr. Truman has said many times that Sen. Robert A. Taft is his "favorite" candidate for the GOP presidential nomination, meaning he thinks the Ohioan would be the

City's Tax Take Near Fulfillment

Through the month of June tax collections in the city of Greenville totaled $284,007.97, 95.1 percent of the total annual levy of $298,638.19. Collections for the month of June were $1,971.83, leaving 49 percent or $14,630 to be collected of the total levy. Collections in May were $7,504.03.

Total delinquent taxes dating from 1940 at the end of June were $23,063.69, setting the total of all outstanding taxes at $37,683.91.

Agencies Firing Many Employees

WASHINGTON (AP)—"You're fired" notices began going out to about half the 17,000 employees of the government's anti-inflation agencies today as result of the heavy tax Congress applied to appropriation requests.

Economic Stabilizer Roger L. Putnam said his program will be curtailed but he would "do the best he can with what we've got."

Van Fleet Is Told To Wage War

Clark Reorganizes Command As Front Line Action Warms Up

By FREDERICK C. PAINTON United Press Staff Correspondent SEOUL, Korea (UP)—Gen. James A. Van Fleet was ordered today to give up all his routine duties and concentrate on the most important job—fighting the Korean war.

In a major streamlining of his United Nations Command, Gen. Mark W. Clark announced creation of a "communications zone" command in Korea to take over a multitude of jobs formerly held by Van Fleet.

Clark announced from Tokyo that the reorganization "will permit Gen. Van Fleet to give his full time and attention to the vigorous prosecution of the United Nations military effort against Communist aggression in Korea."

The new command will include all Korean territory south of the combat zone. Commanded by Maj. Gen. Thomas W. Herren of Dadeville, Ala., it will operate and defend supply, evacuation, transportation, service and other agencies supporting the fighting units.

At the front, a savage North Korean counterattack drove U. N. forces from a newly-won hill on the eastern front early today.

U. N. troops had gained the ridge against little resistance, but the Reds, supported by 2,465 rounds of artillery and mortar fire, retook it just before dawn after desperate fighting.

The Allies estimated they killed 42 North Koreans and wounded 55. It was the second defeat in two days for Allied foot soldiers. On Wednesday, Chinese Reds won a hill from them on the eastern front.

In the west, tank-supported U. N. infantrymen attacked "Dagmar" hill northwest of Chorwon for two hours, then retired.

8th Army headquarters announced the 1st Marine Division is in action on the western anchor of the Korean front, including the fruce site at Panmunjom. The Leathernecks formerly were on the eastern front, around the Punch-bowl area.

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—Korean armistice negotiations entered their second year today with no agreement yet in sight on the sole issue blocking a cease-fire—the right of war prisoners to refuse repatriation.

United Nations and Communist delegates again debated the repatriation issue at a 40-minute secret meeting on the first anniversary of the start of their talks.

There was no ceremony or other observance of the anniversary of the attempt to end the war.

Wilt Is Striking Sweet Potatoes

Fusarium wilt, the scourge of sweet potato plants, has struck in Pitt County fields and caused at least 45 percent damage on one farm, County Farm Agent Sam Winchester reported this morning.

The field most heavily hit is a 10-acre plot of sweet potatoes on the farm of Alvin D. McArthur in Bell County. The farm agent said the first evidence of the disease in the county was reported June 20, but most of the reports were of isolated and not too severe damage.

McArthur's farm is by far the most heavily damaged in the entire county," Winchester asserted. "The effect of Fusarium wilt on sweet potato plants is to cause death soon after transplanting."

In fields where the wilt has already infested the soil, very little can be done to combat the disease. "However, some good may be accomplished by dipping roots of plants in a solution of ferriate or Semesan-Bel just before they are transplanted."

Winchester quoted Howard Garis, plant pathologist, as saying this year has been the worst on sweet potatoes of any year in the immediate past. Weather conditions, moisture and temperature has great bearing on the degree of Fusarium wilt infestation, he added.

Draft Calls For Pitt Scheduled

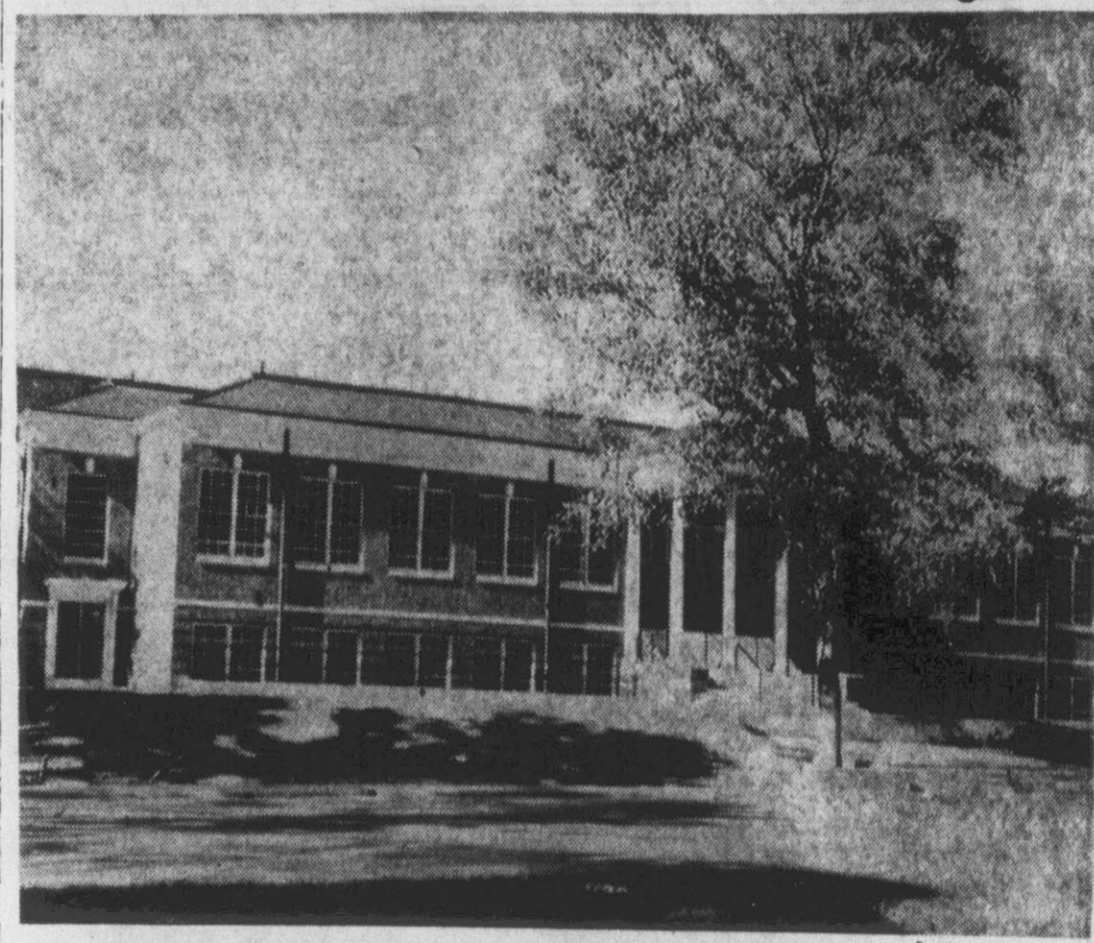

Selective Service calls for Pitt County for the month of August were released this morning by the board's clerk.

A pre-induction call for 37 men is set for August 14 and an induction call for 15 men is set for August 26. Another call for 37 men for pre-induction will be held this month.

Parade Features Annual Meeting N. C. Negro Volunteer Firemen End Convention Today

A parade through the downtown section of Greenville yesterday featured the second day of the 62nd annual convention of the North Carolina Negro Volunteer Fire Association.

Officers of the state association and units of the Greenville fire department and floats were in the parade. It formed at the armory and proceeded down Evans street to Dickinson avenue, thence to C. M. Eppes Negro High School, on West Fifth street.

Convention sessions were being held at Eppes High School. President C. R. Miller of Fayetteville presided over the sessions.

Fire drills at M. O. Menges Fire Tower in West Greenville, were features of the three-day firemen's meeting.

Wednesday's program included, in addition to the parade and fire drills a baseball game at Guy Smith Stadium and an oratorical contest at Eppes High School. Prizes were awarded winners. A dance at the school auditorium Wednesday night at 10 o'clock was the social feature of the convention.

Races with hose reels and hook and ladder teams featured today's convention program. The contests were held on West Fourth street, between Ford and Hudson streets. Valuable prizes were offered. Results of the contests will be published later.

The climax to the annual convention came today when a dinner was held at C. M. Eppes Negro High School at 1:30. Election of officers for next year and selection of the next place for the convention to meet were to be announced.

Grimesland Man Named To Serve On Draft Board

Robert G. Little of Grimesland has been named to serve on the Pitt County Selective Service Board to take the place of a member who recently resigned.

Little was recommended by a committee to the State Selective Service Board which passed on the recommendation. The new board member will be sworn in at a later date.

The new member is replacing O. C. Stroud, board chairman, who resigned last month. A new chairman of the board has not yet been named.

Classwork in Modern Building Starts With Second Summer Session; Formal Dedication Planned Later In Year

East Carolina College opened its new health and physical education building Wednesday evening of this week with an informal reception attended by approximately 800 people. Classwork will begin in the building tomorrow when the second summer session at the college gets under way.

A water show staged by a team of ten swimmers from the Wilmington YMCA under the direction of Adam W. Smith, YMCA director there, was a special attraction of the evening. Visitors also spent part of the evening in a tour of the building projected by students in the department of health and physical education.

Guests were welcomed by East Carolina President John D. Messick, Business Manager F. D. Duncan, Director N. M. Jorgensen of the department of health and physical education, and other college officials and faculty members.

President Messick announced during the evening that formal dedication ceremonies for the new building will take place later in the year. He introduced members of the health and physical education staff and others who work with athletic teams at the college. These included Dr. Jorgensen, Football Coach Jack Boone, Assistant Football Coach Clyde Biggers, Basketball Coach Howard Porter, Neil Stallings, James W. Butler, alumni secretary and sports writer for the college, and Paul Julian, dining room steward.

The exhibition of swimming, diving and water sports was presented in the handsome swimming pool on the first floor of the building. The team of young men demonstrated personal safety practices in water and life-saving techniques and illustrated by their performance the evolution of various swimming strokes. Underwater lighting of the pool contributed to the effectiveness of the show.

Construction of the health and physical education building began during the summer of 1950, and work has continued since that time. Much needed space for the work of the health and physical education department is provided, and equipment is both excellent and up-to-date.

A handsome brick structure, facing East Tenth Street, the new building is located on the East Campus near the college athletic field. Recently constructed roads connect the gymnasium with East Tenth Street and with other parts of the campus. A long flight of stone steps leads to the entrance, a portico fronted by six white columns. Three doors lead into the main lobby. Opening from this on either side are the offices of the health and physical education staff members and, facing the front doors, the main gymnasium, where the ball courts are located. In addition, the building includes three classrooms, three activity rooms, six dressing and shower rooms, a first-aid room, and a room equipped with a movie projector. Space for the entertainment of visiting teams is also provided.

The main gymnasium affords facilities for six badminton courts, three volleyball courts, and cross courts for basketball so that two games can be played at the same time. Synchronized scoreboards are placed on opposite walls.

Seating for 2,397 spectators is provided. These accommodations include 525 permanent balcony seats, 1008 stationary folding seats which can be reversed in position and be used for spectators at aquatic events.

For many the chief attraction of the new building is the swimming pool. The platform draft submitted to the convention promised to wage peace and win it, support collective security across both oceans, clean out the State Department, end corruption, let the states have main responsibility on civil rights, end "injurious" controls, and cut taxes.

Today's count of delegates was in sharp contrast to yesterday's 550 for Taft and 454 for Eisenhower. The figures tell the story of the swing toward Eisenhower. They measure the punishing effect of a rapid-fire series of decisions which deprived Taft of 45 votes from Southern states.

The Taft losses began yesterday when the credentials committee threw 13 contested Louisiana delegates to Eisenhower. But the big break came last night when the convention itself added 32 Texas and Georgia delegates to the general's total.

The credentials committee had ruled for Taft in the Texas and Georgia contests. But its finding was rejected, 607 to 531, in the Georgia roll call and by voice vote on the Texas showdown.

The Georgia roll call revealed the dominant strength of the stop-Taft coalition. The senator's managers surrendered on Texas.

Holds Commanding Delegate Lead And Hefty Boosts Slated Ahead; Stop-Taft Coalition Controls Convention; Balloting Expected To Start Tomorrow

By LYLE C. WILSON United Press Staff Correspondent CHICAGO (UP) Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower galloped toward the GOP presidential nomination today with a commanding delegate lead.

His lead was slated for hefty boosts before balloting starts from pivotal Michigan and other states. A stop-Taft coalition was in control of the Republican national convention. Nominating speeches will be cleared out of the way tonight.

Balloting is expected to start tomorrow but might get underway after tonight's speeches. For the first time Eisenhower was leading Sen. Robert A. Taft in sure first ballot votes and the lead was growing.

The latest United Press tabulation showed Eisenhower with firmly sewed-up first ballot votes 532 to 497 for Taft. The extra votes forecast from Maryland and Michigan would boost the general even farther toward the 604 nominating majority.

The Taft camp, however, claimed the senator will get 520 to 530 first ballot votes despite his loss of 32 Georgia and Texas delegates in last night's brawling contest on the convention floor.

Also apparently in the bag for Eisenhower were 32 votes from Michigan where he previously had been scored for only 11 sure ones on the first ballot.

Both Gov. Earl Warren of California and Harold Stassen said they are still in the race, and not thinking about giving their votes away. Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin of Maryland said his vote will be almost unanimous for Eisenhower on the first ballot.

Taft men were far from counting their man out, however, and favorite son candidates were hoping the two big "blows" would kill each other off and clear the tracks for a dark horse.

But as delegates headed toward the amphitheatre for the fourth day of the angriest GOP convention in 40 years, Eisenhower was riding the crest of a smashing victory in the "Battle of Stolen Delegates."

Whatever his backers were saying, Ike himself wasn't bragging about last night's delegate victories. He was asleep when his victories came and learned about them only this morning. Said the general:

"I never know what is supposed to happen. This is my first convention. I don't form conclusions. I just watch."

Stassen visited both Eisenhower and Taft today but insisted he is still in the race on his own. Don Dickey, floor leader of the 26-member Minnesota delegation, asked Stassen to pitch the 24 votes he controls to Ike on Ballot No. 1.

But Stassen wasn't budging, and neither was Warren, who told 76 delegates committed to him that he is staying in the top spot fight, "win, lose, or draw."

The platform draft submitted to the convention promised to wage peace and win it, support collective security across both oceans, clean out the State Department, end corruption, let the states have main responsibility on civil rights, end "injurious" controls, and cut taxes.

It also accused Mr. Truman of having "plunged us into war in Korea without the consent of our citizens...and carried on that war without will to victory."

"Like the defense plank, the foreign policy stand was regarded as a compromise of Taft and Eisenhower views. It declares that 'with foresight the Korean war would never have happened.'"

As part of its internationalist flavor, regarded as a concession to Eisenhower, it pledges continued support of commitments made of mutual security programs, and the foreign aid to make them effective. It also promises equal importance for the Far East and the West in foreign policy—a favorite Taft idea.

Swift Air Power Build-Up, Less Foreign Aid, No Corruption - - Is GOP Platform

CHICAGO (UP)—The Republican Party today unveiled a 1952 platform pledging a speedy buildup of U. S. air power, reduced foreign aid spending and "an end to corruption" in government.

The 4,800-word campaign document, sent to the convention floor for approval today, charged that the rearmament program is "disgracefully lagging" under the Truman Democratic administration. It called for the "quickest possible" achievement of a "completely adequate" defense force with emphasis on air power and atomic weapons "in abundance."

The foreign policy plank—a compromise carefully tailored to satisfy both Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Sen. Robert A. Taft—rejected isolationism and pledged GOP support of "collective security." But it said foreign aid programs can and should be conducted more economically lest the United States "bankrupt" itself trying to bolster its allies.

The GOP also promised to do away with "injurious wage and price controls" and to balance the budget so that "a general tax reduction can be made."

Republican policy-makers anticipated no serious difficulty in winning approval of the platform by the full convention.

But a watered-down civil rights plank, with no specific provision for a Fair Employment Practices Commission, drew rumbles of discontent from some Negro delegates. They hinted they might try to make a floor fight for a stronger plank.

The platform, approved in a 6 1/2-hour secret session of the GOP resolutions committee yesterday, also contains the following key points:

1. "More efficient and frequent" mail delivery.

2. A farm program aimed at full parity prices for all farm products in the market place.

3. In other words, high government supports for farm prices. The administration's Brannan Plan was roundly condemned.

4. State ownership of the tidelands, rich in oil.

5. Retention of the Taft-Hartley labor act with "such amendments, as time and experience show to be desirable and which further protect the rights of labor, management and the public."

6. Opposition to "all-powerful federal socialistic, valley authorities," and to administration efforts "to undermine state control over water use."

7. Expanded social security to cover "those justly entitled to it but now excluded," and "a thorough study of universal pay-as-we-go pension plans."

8. No censorship or "gay order" on letting the public know "what their government is doing"—a slap at President Truman's information security order.

9. Government reorganization as recommended by the Hoover Commission.

10. "An end to corruption, to oust the crooks and grafters...and to restore honest government to the people."

11. "Overhaul loyalty and security programs" to keep Communists out of government.

12. "Immediate" statehood for pro-Republican Hawaii, statehood for pro-Democratic Alaska "under an equitable enabling act," and "eventual statehood" for Puerto Rico, "Self-government and national suffrage" for the District of Columbia.

The defense plank was carpentered to please both Eisenhower, who favors "balanced" land, sea and air forces, and Taft, who wanted even more emphasis on "air superiority."

It warned that Russia may strike before the "disgracefully lagging" program is in high gear, and promised to develop U. S. preparedness "with utmost speed a force in being, as distinguished from paper plans."

The civil rights plank called for federal legislation to end lynching and poll taxes and to "further just and equitable treatment in the area of discriminatory employment practices."

Its failure to be more specific about FEPC was criticized by some Negro delegates, who regarded the plank as weaker than the party's 1948 stand.

At the same time, Virginia delegate Lester S. Parsons, filed a minority report on the platform.

Parsons said the civil rights plank "let the gate wide open" for compulsory FEPC which he opposes.

The civil rights issue caused the biggest fight in the resolutions committee, which okayed without change the foreign policy and defense planks, drafted by subcommittees.

The platform blistered the Democratic administration for having "evaded" and "flouted" basic duties and having "so undermined the foundations of our republic as to threaten its existence."

Yesterday a year ago, the highest temperature in this area was 89 degrees. Lowest that night 63, and at 8 a.m. next day the mercury stood at 74 degrees. No rain that day.

Victims Buried

LENOIR, N. C. (AP)—A common grave was dug today for a Caldwell County furniture worker, his wife and 12-year-old son—all victims of a triple slaying.
Funeral services for the three will be held near Ferguson in Wilkes County tomorrow.
Meanwhile, Coroner Marshall Kincaid and Sheriff George D. Greer have called the triple-slaying murder and suicide. They said W. Spencer Hamby, 50, shot his wife, Mrs. Vannie Fairchild Hamby, 47, bludgeoned their son, Zeke, and then shot himself at their home in Happy Valley near here.

U.S. Wool Fashions Get Global Acclaim

MODES of the MOMENT

By DOROTHY ROE

AMERICAN LOOK . . . Bright, casual tweed coat in deep orange, lined with gold-color wool jersey to match the softly draped dress beneath. Designed by V. J. Maxwell for the recent International Fashions in Wool showing at the Savoy Hotel in London. U. S. designers represented were chosen for trend influence.

STRICTLY U. S. A. . . . This two-texture suit designed by Bonnie Cashin has jacket of olive-green poodle cloth, bound in flannel to match the slim skirt, dyed to the exact shade. Brass buttons and cardigan cut complete the casual look typical of U. S.

A STAR IN STRIPES . . . Designer Claire McCardell uses multi-color striped wool jersey for this flattering dress with surplice top, whirling skirt, shown as typical U. S. fashion at international wool show.

LUXURY TOUCH . . . Lush "seal-cloth" fabric in Forstmann's virgin wool and extravagant cut made this "circle coat" by Monte-Sano a standout among U. S. fashions seen at recent international wool show.

Farmville Native Added To Office

A Farmville native, Tommy Moore Tucker, 31, will become Pitt County's newest deputy sheriff sometime in August.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson of Greenville made the announcement following the Pitt County Board of Commissioners meeting Monday, at which time the hiring of a new deputy was authorized.

The sheriff said this morning his department considered itself fortunate in obtaining the services of a man of Tucker's stature. "I think he will make us a good officer," Tyson asserted.

Unmarried, for the last two years Tucker has been engaged in the

Investigate Lye Assault Charges

Greenville police are continuing their investigation of the report that a Negro woman assaulted her husband while he was drunk with lye and then threw water on the prostrate man to dissolve the fiery fluid.

Officers investigating the case quoted David Woolard, middle-aged Negro, 403 Wyatt Street, employed by a lumber company, as saying his elderly wife, Bessie Williams Woolard, threw the lye on him after he fell from his bed.

The officers also quoted the man as saying he did not wish to prosecute his wife.

Woolard, police stated, thought vinegar would be good for a lye burn, and applied some to the injured part of his body. He learned that it was pepper vinegar. He worked a couple of days and was in such condition that a neighbor reported his plight to police.

Woolard was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment.

Detective Lt. M. E. Corbett and Detective N. H. Byrd are investigating the case.

HIGHWAY OUTLAWS

We are all annoyed by that chap on the highway who, if we happened to go a little too slowly to suit his fancy, or if we take our time getting out of the passing lane, or if we fall by a split second to respond to the green light, gives us the horn, an angry stare as he passes, and sometimes a few well-chosen profanities.

Some people have the idea that their right of way on the road is a right to do anything they want to do. Anyone who interferes with them is a public nuisance worthy only of contempt and abuse. Their anger under these circumstances always appears to have about it the righteous quality of a person who has been deeply and maliciously wronged.

There are people who go through life the same way. To disregard any of their pet policies is equivalent to violating a fundamental moral principle. Right is anything they want to do.

This was Hitler's philosophy. This is communistic dogma. It is bad enough in the councils of nations, it is worse on the highway. It becomes very hard to take in the office, the mill, or the household.

Don't start blaming your neighbor. Ask yourself whether or not this description fits you. It may by chance. And if it does, you're in trouble—with yourself, with your neighbor, and with the Lord.

Time For Some Sound, Far Sighted Thinking

What's to be done when we reach the bottom of the money barrel and there is still a lot that needs to be done in the name of progress and for the betterment of the community?

In a nut shell, that is just about the question the city of Greenville has been asking itself in recent months.

Are we just going to keep on asking the question, or is the city going to sit down and do some sound thinking and find a workable answer to the dilemma?

Since World War II ended, Greenville, like most every other city, large and small in the nation, has been going through a series of growing pains. During the war years the city's utilities plant, just as local business and manufacturing plants, was unable to replace old or worn out machinery. When materials were diverted from guns, planes tanks and shells to making equipment needed on the home-front, Greenville found its power and water plants needed much work . . . as a matter of fact some $2,577,530 worth of work was estimated and begun.

Two separate bond issues were voted by the people to provide some one and one-half million dollars worth of utilities bonds, and this new debt was heaped on top of the already existing indebtedness. Although five years have passed since the improvement project was begun, it still has not been completed, and lack of ready funds have hampered its progress.

Following the war, Greenville began bursting at the seams with new housing, and the city was pressed to keep up with the demands for extended utilities service. Gradually the building outstripped the rate of expansion until now the Utilities Commission has passed and sent to the aldermen a resolution saying some $204,000 needed for utilities expansion in four recently annexed areas of the city is not available, and probably will not be in the near future.

That indeed is a bad situation, but what is Greenville going to do about it?

If utilities expansions were the only thing the city needed, the problem would be bad enough, but add to that the needs of the city for school expansions, swimming pools, off-street parking facilities, and numerous other things, and an altogether more difficult picture begins to come into focus.

Will another bond issue afford the city even a partial solution to its problem? Just now are we getting our heads above water by paying off a portion of the bonded indebtedness which has been hanging over the city. Even with the portion of the indebtedness which has been retired, the city is in no position to float a bond issue of sufficient size to finance all the needed facilities in various fields.

It seems to The Reflector the city of Greenville needs a conscientious, far-sighted committee to make a thorough study of all the city's needs, and then recommend to the board of aldermen a sound way of meeting these needs as rapidly as possible without undermining the financial stability of the city government.

A Long-Sought Goal Is Being Achieved

North Carolina spent a great deal of money on its port facilities at Morehead City and Wilmington in recent improvement programs, and if any conclusion can be drawn from the recent report of the Wilmington port, the investment already is bringing good returns.

During the '51-52 fiscal year the Wilmington port handled a total of 4,525,000 tons of cargo—a 900,000 ton increase over the previous year. Even so, the port officials in their report said the traffic through the port is increasing in direct proportion to the volume of new industry locating in the area.

That being the case, it is logical to assume that the new port facilities are not only helping Wilmington to become a major port on the Atlantic coast, but at the same time, the presence of the port is attracting new industry to the area. The new industrial development is not only enhancing the standing of the immediate Wilmington area, but is helping the state as a whole.

The two-fold growth of the Wilmington port and industry in the area near the port can not be termed an isolated case. A similar trend is being noted closer home where the Morehead City port is also showing progress in the wake of the recent building and development program on its facilities.

For a long time North Carolina has been striving to gain a place of prominence for its seaports, and now it is beginning to realize the goal.

By RAY TUCKER

CHICAGO—Despite the seemingly advantageous and victorious issue of "Trumanism," which will be represented as cold-blooded, backroom, political handling of labor, farm and economic problems, widespread federal corruption, peak prices and taxes now and in the future, a tragic stalemate in Korea and in the "cold war" generally, GOP leaders here concede that they face an uphill fight in the 1952 presidential election.

An elementary acquaintance with mathematics underlies this fear, and neither the Taft nor Eisenhower statisticians are kindergarten kids when it comes to counting electoral votes.

Recognizing that the Chicago convention decides only the identity of the nominee, both the senator and the general are looking forward to November possibilities at the polls.

Whatever is said or done at Chicago will be meaningless, if the declarations and nominations here are not ratified by the voters four months from now. ADVANTAGE—Assuming that the Democrats patch up their intra-party split over Civil Rights, and the GOP-ers must count on that possibility, the "ins" are assured of 128 electoral votes from the Solid South.

Even if a few Dixie commonwealths desert their historic party, as they did in 1928 and 1948, the Democrats would advance to the Mason and Dixon Line with approximately 100 electoral ballots.

But the Democrats are conceded a heavy advantage in five, so-called border states, with an electoral total of 56. These states are Kentucky, Tennessee, Maryland, Oklahoma and Missouri.

If the southern and border areas vote in accord with their historic trend, the Democrats will corral 184 electoral ballots in that area, with 266 necessary for election.

Thus, they have to round up only 82 presidential votes throughout the rest of the country.

CLAIMS—Any three of four states can provide the "ins" with that batch of 82 votes. They are New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois and California. As a matter of mathematical fact, the combined electoral total of New York and Pennsylvania, if they go Democratic, would provide the necessary 82 ballots.

The Trumanites believe that they are sitting pretty in these four states, and frank GOP-ers here ruefully accept the enemy's claims. They admit that it will require a near-miracle to switch them to the Republican column.

MARGIN—Governor Dewey, for instance, carried New York by less than 100,000 four years ago. But he would have been snuffed under if it had not been for the 500,000 presumably Democratic or independent votes cast for Henry A. Wallace. Henry has promised, although his pledges are not too trustworthy, that he will be "regular" this year.

The GOP won in Pennsylvania by an extremely narrow margin in 1948. It would have had the Keystone State except for the vote which the machine turned out in and around Philadelphia.

Last year, in revolt against 67 years of incompetent and corrupt Republican rule, the once "corrupt and contented" City of Brotherly Love installed a Democratic reform regime in City Hall.

VOTE-GETTER—The Republicans here are convinced that Governor Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois will head the opposition ticket, barring an improbable draft of President Truman. In the event of a Stevenson nomination, they admit that they have small chance of carrying the convention city's state.

The GOP's scholarly and personable Stevenson is the best vote-getter the Democrats ever had in this state. He has the backing of both the Jake Arvel politicians in Cook County, and the "good government" group, which placed Stevenson in the state house at Springfield, and Professor Paul Douglas in the United States Senate as one of its ablest members.

And, despite his supposed shyness, Stevenson's friends here tell me that he craves the presidential nomination. If he is named, the GOP will cross off Illinois from their electoral slate.

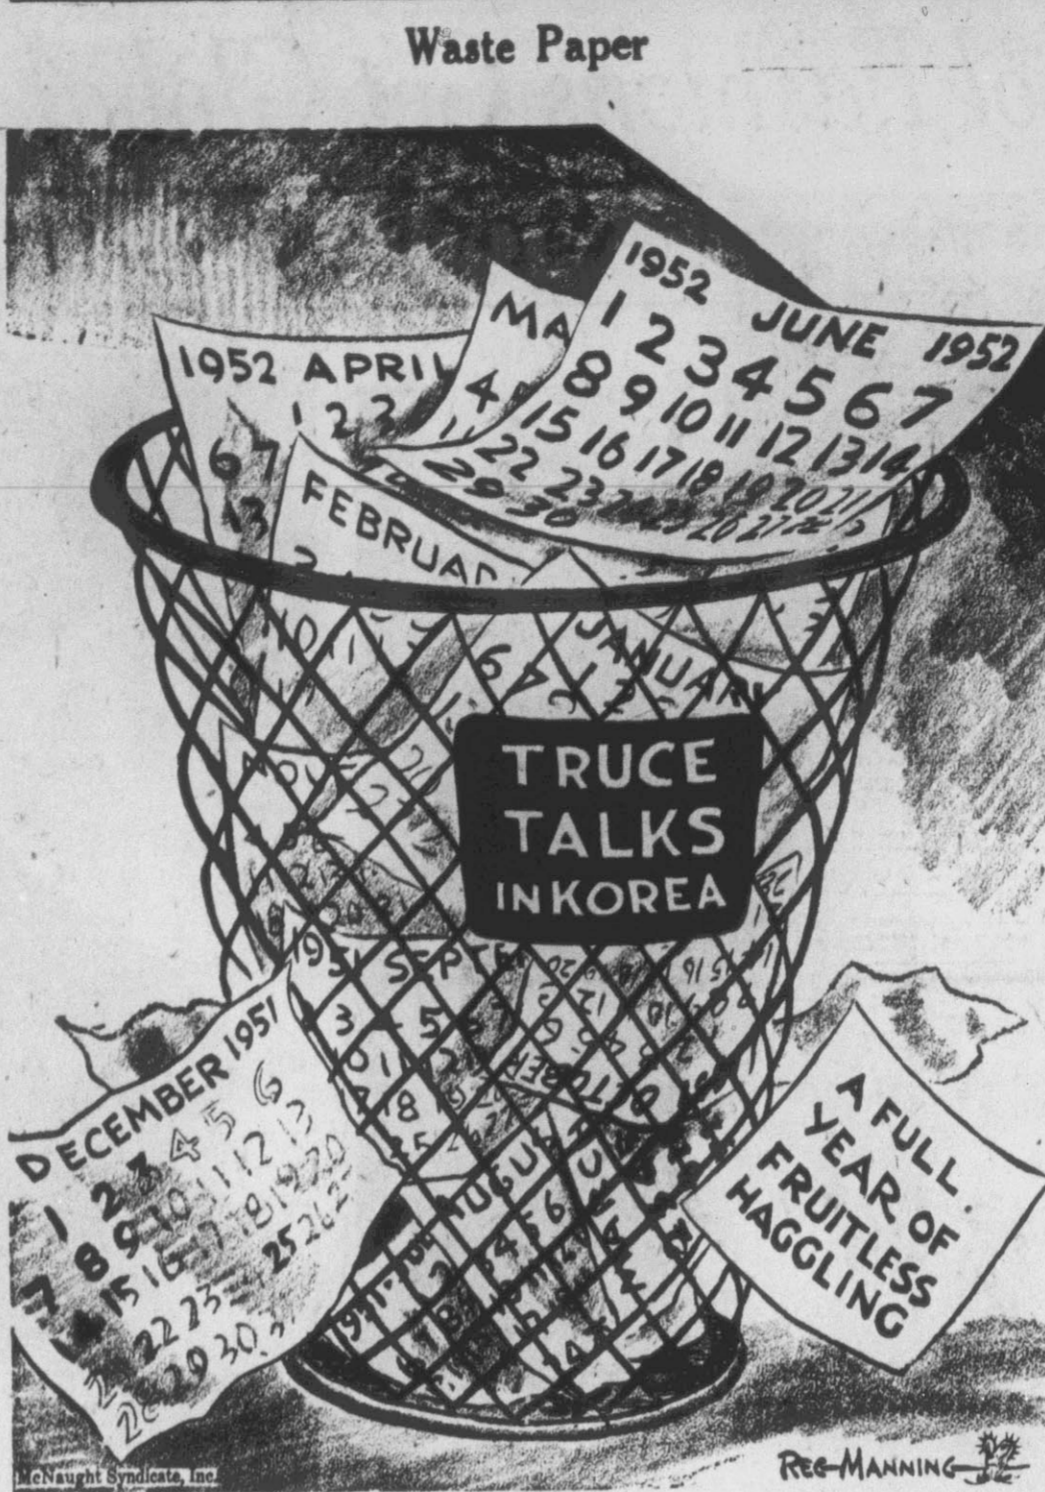

PROBLEM—California is the Republicans' problem child.

Governor Warren holds it in his hand by advocating a social and economic program which both Taft and Eisenhower Republicans regard as more radical than Roosevelt-Truman doctrines. He gets almost as many Democratic as Republican votes in primaries and election contests.

Nevertheless, although he was Governor Dewey's running-mate four years ago, and made an excellent impression because of his kindly personality and his lovely family, he could not carry the state for the GOP.

"Parents who take the trouble to rummage a bit in the minds of their teenage sons and daughters will find usually that these youngsters don't know Sir Walter Scott from Chaucer, never having heard of either. They will discover a surprising amount of contemporaneous information ranging from current social problems to a smattering of the theory of relativity. They may find their children better acquainted with the rudiments of algebra, chemistry and other concrete subjects than they were at a comparable age. Nevertheless, they will wonder if the child who can't repeat the opening words of the preamble of the constitution has not missed something that should have gone into his education before he was ready for college."—The Daily Oklahoman

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Any way you look at it, teaching school is a fascinating profession. The other day I was talking to a teacher who gave me a new slant on his job. Daniel Todd, who lived in Greenville until 1940, then moved out to Bell Arthur, had been teaching at New Hanover High School in Wilmington for the past two years.

Dan admits that the biggest problem facing a teacher is to come up with something every day that will interest students.

"That's right," I agreed with Dan, "there are so many things in school that are boring that it seems as if it would be impossible to find an interesting angle every day."

"It is hard," Dan said, "but to illustrate my point, name something that was not particularly interesting to you during high school."

Looking out of the window, I saw the trees and it occurred to me that the study of leaves left me cold, so I challenged Dan with that topic. Dan took off immediately with a discussion of the venus fly trap, a leaf that grows only within a 50-mile radius of Wilmington.

There is a substance in the venus fly trap that attracts flies, and when a fly lights on the leaf it snaps together, consuming the fly by digestion. Dan had won the argument, because he had given the subject of leaves an interesting slant.

In addition to teaching science, Dan taught remedial English last year. The class consisted of students with exceptionally low IQ's who had been pushed up in school to avoid their becoming social misfits. This class was an exceptional challenge to Dan, because he practically had to trick the students into learning.

One of Dan's most successful methods was the use of the Dick Tracy code. He set up a simple code, letting the number one represent the letter A, two B, and so on. The class began to send coded messages to each other, and this stimulated interest in reading.

Dan also worked out simple cross-word puzzles, using the parts of speech for words. And he had students with an inclination to draw make sketches to illustrate grammatical errors. For example, one student drew a picture of a house walking down the street.

To encourage the students to keep up in class, Dan used a point system. He gave five points for attendance, five for home work, five for class participation, and so on. Before the year was out, Dan had tricked many of these students into learning grammar.

And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

By LYNN NISBET

NEWSPAPERS — The newspapers of the United States, which are called upon to promote countless special "weeks" for varied and sundry causes, are planning again this year to observe a special week of their own. As usual, it will be the first week in October. The theme for this year's observance is "Your Right to Know—A Constitutional Guarantee," and the slogan for the occasion is "Your Newspaper Lights the Way of Freedom." Civic luncheon clubs and similar groups will again be asked to paramount services of a free press in their programs for that week. For many years Kiwanis International sort of carried the ball for newspaper week observance, but recently the burden in this part of the country has fallen upon the Elks Lodges.

PREPOSITION—There is great significance in the little preposition used in the slogan. Reams of newspaper and magazine copy have been written and millions of words used in oratorical dissertations about the American way of life, grounded as it is in individual freedom. Most other places in the world the expression would have to be that "Your Newspaper Lights the Way to Freedom." In the United States it is still possible and appropriate to say it lights the way "of" freedom. Despite efforts of some politicians and militarists to censor news and muzzle the press, and faced with the necessity of admitting editors and publishers have surrendered independence for temporary advantage, often more imaginary than real, the fact is that upon the whole the American press is free of control and consistently maintains the "way of freedom" for all the people.

ENDANGERED — The independent status of newspapers is menaced more by insistence of well-meaning people who pressure editors and newswriters to "color" comment for temporary expediency than by those who really think the press should be controlled by government. For that reason it is well that the newspaper folks once a year seize the opportunity to have their case presented to the public.

EVENTFUL — It was one of those meetings that just happen. Your reporter stopped to chat with a well known Republican leader on the street corner. Other casual passers-by joined in the gossip, and in a few minutes there were half a dozen of us, all interested in governmental affairs. There were widely divergent views as to what should be done — and who should do it. There was unanimous agreement on one point: The month of July, 1952, will go down in history as one of the most eventful periods in modern times; and that for a short time Chicago will assume a more important place on the map of the world than Washington or Moscow or London or Korea. Because at Chicago during July less than 3,000 people, functioning as delegates to the two big national party conventions will name the next President of the United States and to a considerable degree determine the course of world history for the next generation.

ELECTION — It was agreed that in some respects the actions of the approximate 3,000 delegates at the Republican and Democratic national conventions, in adopting platforms and nominating candidates for president and vice-president, will be more significant than the voting of some 60 million American citizens next November. That is because 604 votes out of a total of 1206 in the Republican convention can name the candidate of that party for President, and 616 out of a total of 1230 in the Democratic convention can name the candidate of that party. One of the nominees will be elected. Due to quirks in the constitution and election laws less than 3,000 people have actual voice in nominating major presidential candidates only 531 presidential electors have the chance actually to vote for the president who will head a nation of 160 million people and for whom some 60 million people are expected to cast "popular" votes. Due to further quirks these election law and constitutional quibbles, the convention delegates have more free choice than the presidential electors. So it comes about that July of 1952 is one of the most eventful months and Chicago the most eventful place in the present day world.

UNCERTAIN — Over against the certain significance of time and place are more uncertainties about candidates than has prevailed within the memory of most citizens now actively interested in governmental affairs. For the first time since 1920 both major parties are at sea about standard bearers and confusion is more confounding now than it was 32 years ago. Ever since the Civil War, except in 1920, the candidate of one major party or the other—frequently of both—had been pre-determined weeks before the nominating convention. In 1920 the nominations of Republican Harding and Democrat Cox were accidental results of deadlocks. It is not hard to find Democrats and Republicans now who think their parties are likely to have another accident happen to both. In fact, it doesn't take very diligent search to find particularly interesting in reading. Dan also worked out simple cross-word puzzles, using the parts of speech for words. And he had students with an inclination to draw make sketches to illustrate grammatical errors. For example, one student drew a picture of a house walking down the street.

To encourage the students to keep up in class, Dan used a point system. He gave five points for attendance, five for home work, five for class participation, and so on. Before the year was out, Dan had tricked many of these students into learning grammar.

Business Today

Fifty years ago today workmen were installing a curious arrangement of fans, pipes, coils and pumps in the Sackett - Wilhelms Lithographing & Publishing Co. in Brooklyn, where the old Judge and other magazines were published. Printers watched and offered bets that the contraption wouldn't work.

The company had been having trouble printing magazine covers. Colors wouldn't print exactly where they were supposed to. Tracing the difficulty, engineers found that the paper stretched or shrank between printing each color because of too much or too little moisture in the air. Willis H. Carrier, a partner in the Buffalo Forge Co. was called in and he designed apparatus by which the air was cooled in summer and warmed in winter, and by which moisture was added or reduced so that temperature and humidity were always constant.

The machine was turned on July 17, 1902. It worked and the color registering problem was eliminated. Dr. Carrier improved his designs and two years later was granted the world's first patent for "an apparatus for treating air." He found a waiting market in textile mills, where humidity control is important, and in 1908 he and his Buffalo Forge associates set up the Carrier Air Conditioning Co. of America. This was modern air-conditioning born.

This fiftieth anniversary year, the air conditioning industry expects, will be its largest, with sales around a billion dollars. But in the next fifty years, it expects annual volume to rise to five billion dollars.

The largest markets have been in factories, theaters, restaurants and ships. Booming now is the residential market. Window-type air conditioner sales are rising to new highs, and more and more builders are incorporating year-round heating and cooling systems in homes. Six months ago, builders rarely considered year-round air conditioning units in homes selling for less than $25,000. House & Home Magazine reports after a survey. Now they are going into houses priced much lower.

More than 190 manufacturing companies expect to share in the air-conditioning boom.

U. S. FOREIGN TRADE MAGAZINE STREAMLINED "Foreign Commerce Weekly."

edited by the Department of Commerce and published by the Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C., has been revamped.

Size has been increased, format changed, distribution speeded and prices cut. Domestic yearly subscriptions have been reduced from $9 to $3.50, foreign orders from $12 to $4.50, and the single-copy price lowered from 20 cents to a dime.

MORE MOVEMENT IN HOLIDAY DISPLAYS You'll see more movement, manikins and magic in store displays this Christmas.

Those three themes were the most popular at the Christmas show of the National Association of Display Industries in New York. While most of the displays offered dealers featured the traditional reds and greens of the Christmas season, many of the display materials were in softer pastels. As always, those gadgets employing motion attracted most attention. Manikins in plastic were also popular and a trend toward fantasy and interplanetary displays was marked.

It catalogs industrial directories issued by states, chambers of commerce and universities. Copies are available from the library for 25 cents.

MEN'S WEAR SALES AIDED BY NEW KIT Kits of promotional material to help men's wear retailers step up their advertising have been sent to 1,000 daily newspapers by the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association. In announcing it, Harold S. Hal Boyle's Column

EDITOR'S NOTE: Wilbur Peeble, the average American, is getting a closer look at the key problem of the Republican convention, as he tells himself in this letter to his brave wife at home, Trellis Mae.

By HAL BOYLE

CHICAGO—(AP) — Well, honey, you can quit worrying about who is going to be the Republican candidate for president.

I've got it all figured out. It's going to be Taft—or Eisenhower.

I can tell you—and it is no secret at that—the delegates are relieved to have that problem out of the way. Up until now they had been worrying about it. Like the rest of the country, it is a relief to have it solved.

All that is left now is to pick a vice presidential candidate and a platform the party can stand on without a guilty conscience. Of course, dear, there are some cynics who say you can't take any political platform seriously.

Their standard gag is: "A platform is just something a fellow stands on until he catches the train that will take him away to something finer."

So far as I can figure the Republican platform is against Democratic corruption. It is for an honest dollar, food four times a day, a happy life for everybody, and work for all. I figure a fellow can't figure out a better way to earn a living. It is also in favor of big crops for the farmer and a man marrying the girl of his choice, though not at the price of divorce or too much bad weather in the cities.

The platform is also for labor—but it doesn't go too far into the question of who is going to have to perform it. Naturally, a platform can't be too definite in times like these.

The delegates have been considerably cheered by the appeals by Gen. MacArthur and former President Hoover for a moral revival. They feel that the Republicans are four-square behind this crying need, and are cheerfully awaiting the moment when Bob Taft and Ike Eisenhower toss coins to see which will lead this great crusade against entrenched corruption.

I would say that the most heartening thing that has come out of this great decision to attack sin is the all-around agreement among Republicans here that it is a necessary move. But as to the leadership—neither Taft nor Eisenhower seems to want to toss the coin until he can cry "heads" and win either way. It isn't they are not dedicated men, and neither wants to gamble.

The only problem now left in the Republican convention is who is going to be vice president.

Well, Trellis Mae, believe it or not that is the $64 question—as people used to say in the old days before television started paying $5,000 for an average quiz show answer. There are at least fifteen politicians who want to be vice president, and the trouble is that the U. S. government only elects one, although even an ordinary restaurant has at least five.

Some cynics here feel that, in their earnest eagerness to head the great moral crusade, either Taft or Ike may make a delegate deal on the question of who is otherwise socially unacceptable to him.

Well, honey, I don't say these rumors are untrue. But I have noted a great willingness among the Republicans to resume national responsibility after 20 years, no matter what the price may be.

The odd thing about the GOP quarrel to pick its top political evangelist is the raucous laughter it is stirring among local Democrats. One of them said:

"You think the average man is excited about corruption? When did fellow ever vote against the butter on his bread?"

I reported this remark to a Republican delegate and he looked depressed.

"We are going to face that head-on," he said. "That is Taft is—or Eisenhower is. We are going to provide morality and butter both. I'm sure—I hope."

Well, dear, goodbye for now from Your loving husband,

Wilbur

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON — Whatever it is, agriculturally speaking, Miss May Coult can say it in six different languages. For the past 18 years her job has been to translate French, Foreign Agricultural Relations (OFAR) in the Department of Agriculture.

Her most recent work was a 64-page diary of the common used trade terms in the Cuban tobacco industry, published last April by OFAR for those working in the tobacco industries of all Spanish-speaking countries.

Miss Coult, a retiring, silver-haired woman, has built up a large collection of technical agricultural terms as references not usually found in standard dictionaries or not defined with the exact meaning found in the journals. These she has checked neatly in a card index. Her translations are also kept in dated folders filling many shelves.

One of her greatest thrills, she said, was translating from Latin a book published in Rome in 1651. It deals with "Medicinal Materials of New Spain." Two years ago Miss Coult translated five scientific reports by Italian researchers relating to mal secco, a tree-killing fungus disease of citrus plants. This publication gives English-speaking growers valuable data hitherto locked up in the Italian language.

Among other translations by Miss Coult are one on the culture and diseases of chinchona plants, used in making quinine; German studies on kenaf hibiscus and the values of kenaf, jute and abutilon fibers, and observations about roselle fibers and edible juices from a publication in the Indian archipelago.

Born in Auburn, N. H., Miss Coult grew up in a French-Canadian community. French was the first language she picked up. Latin came next, when she entered Pembroke Academy, which her grandmother and her father had attended.

"I guess I inherited my flair for languages from my grandmother," she said. "I have a textbook of hers in which someone wrote 'To Polly Sargent, a studious girl, born with a Latin lexicon in one hand and a Greek grammar in the other.'"

What Other Papers Are Thinking

(Wilson Daily Times) From general appearances, it looks as if the Republicans are willing to face facts. Rather than try to out-bid the Democrats on farm supports, they propose to fight controls in the belief that farmers would prefer less regimentation. It may not be the proper approach, but at least it's an honest one. It doesn't say we can do better than the Democrats, opening treasury doors for raids. It's not in keeping with what Dewey offered four years ago when, almost all down the line, he tried to out-bid the Democrats.

America became the great nation it is not because it followed socialistic programs, but because, through a healthy political climate, it gave everyone an opportunity. That some were able to take advantage of it better than others was logical. But in taking advantage of it they gave us our railroads, our steel companies, our oil companies, our automobile plants to say nothing of a lot of kindred enterprise. In all they account for 30,000,000 jobs, jobs that wouldn't be here if we had followed any other system.

Are we to prevent the making of similar jobs in the future? Will we through subsidies of one form or another go on underwriting a simulated better than others was logical. But in taking advantage of it they gave us our railroads, our steel companies, our oil companies, our automobile plants to say nothing of a lot of kindred enterprise. In all they account for 30,000,000 jobs, jobs that wouldn't be here if we had followed any other system.

Posse Ready For Fight To Death

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UP)—Police of two states were ready today for a possible death fight with the last of six Ohio fugitives still at large after two gunbattles, a jail suicide and a futile vow to die fighting.

Troopers ranging across North Mississippi captured five of the desperadoes who fled the state prison at Dayton, O., in a manhunt spurred by $7,100 grocery store holdup here.

The troopers twice met gunfire and in one skirmish slugs from a submachinegun peppered a patrol car. One captured man killed himself in his cell and another said he would have shot it out with police if he had not been caught asleep.

Detectives added legwork in Memphis crime alleys to the open country posse work in the hunt for John O. Evans, 33, last of the accused six jail breakers, auto thieves, holdup men, and federal fugitives.

"He'd be mighty stupid to stay in Memphis," said Patrol Cpl. A. M. Savage. "This town is full of stool pigeons and the detectives are checking them."

Evans, believed armed and well supplied with holdup loot, was identified as the "hitchhiker" who induced an unsuspecting farmer to drive him back into Memphis by posing as a stranded motorist.

The fifth desperado captured was Minor Sorber, described by Ohio authorities as a "master safe blow-er," who was found asleep in the open near Enid, Miss., using a sub-machinegun taken from the prison for a pillow.

"They never would have taken me alive if I hadn't been asleep," Sorber declared. "I didn't want to kill anybody but neither did I want to be taken back to Ohio state prison and I would have shot it out with them if I had gotten a chance."

Rex E. Peterson, 45, captured earlier by a Mississippi posse, slashed his wrists in his jail cell with a razor and died. Thomas Werckman, 25, carrying another submachinegun, was also taken alone.

The other two, John Cornette, 22, and Robert Jones, 26, were captured in a gunbattle. Cornette was wounded in the neck by police fire. In another chase a Mississippi patrol car was peppered with tommy gun shots.

Tarheel Health Status Bettered

RALEIGH (UP)—A report by the state health officer said today appropriations for public health work have been increased by some $800,000 per year during the Scott administration.

Dr. J.W.R. Norton said in a report submitted to Gov. Kerr Scott that the Department of Health has made more progress under the Scott administration than during any previous 10 years since its beginning in 1877.

Norton said that in years preceding the present administration, appropriations for public health work remained "practically static." But he said the 1949 legislature, under the leadership of Scott and legislative leaders, increased the figure from $350,000 a year to $1,150,000.

He said the 1951 legislature continued the scale of the present state health program, and added an appropriation of $86,500 for work among crippled children. The latter amount, Norton's report said, included $25,000 for the Asheville orthopaedic hospital.

During the present administration an additional $600,000 was appro-riated for the erection of a new building to be occupied by the State Board of Health.

Norton said during 1949 the last four of the state's 100 counties, Madison, Brunswick, Jones and Pamlico, were organized for public health work.

Silence Ordered After Wedding

PLAINFIELD, N. J. (UP)—Police warned prospective newlyweds today to leave church in a quiet manner after their wedding.

A leaflet ordered drivers in wedding motorcades, effective next Tuesday, to avoid "constant, incessant and unwarranted blowing of horns" because the noise disturbs other citizens.

Hearing Aid Is Part Of Loot

HOUSTON, Tex. (UP)—Police clerk Victor Kilman became exasperated yesterday while trying to question by telephone a woman who complained a tavern drinking companion stole $50 from her.

She couldn't understand all of Kilman's questions but calmed him when she added, as an afterthought, that the stranger also had stolen her hearing aid.

DESPAIR GRIPS HURDLER AFTER FALL:—A broken-hearted Craig Dixon, one of America's top hurdlers, stands amid his shattered dreams at Los Angeles after a fall in the 110-meter high hurdles robbed him of a place on the U. S. Olympic team and a trip to Helsinki. He hit the second-last barrier while running second to Harrison Dillard, the winner. Comforting him are Larry Houston (left), an official of the U. S. team and Cy Young, a javelin thrower and former teammate of Dixon's at UCLA. (AP Wirephoto).

NAACP Demands Stronger Plank

CHICAGO (UP)—The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People today demanded a stronger civil rights plank for the Republican platform than one proposed by the convention resolutions committee.

George N. Leighton, prominent NAACP official and president of the Chicago chapter, asked a floor fight for a plank supporting a Fair Employment Practices Commission "with teeth in it."

Leighton accused the GOP resolutions committee of trying to "lose in advance the Negro vote in seven Northern states" with a "two-faced" civil rights plank.

He charged the proposed plank's authors with "duplicitous and insincerity" and said they "cringed before the states rights bloc" by trying to reserve civil rights powers to the states.

Nicknames Used By The Ancients

CHICAGO (UP)—John A. Wilson, University of Chicago expert on Egypt, said today nicknames were used in the land of the pyramids more than 3,000 years ago.

Wilson said in a lecture that such monickers as "Red," "Baldy," "Big Head," "Sweet," "Lazy," "Happy," and "Gloomy" often were tagged on subjects of the pharaohs.

"One Egyptian with the dignified name of Ah-wmose was known as 'Tiny' and a woman named Nes-Ta-Nebet-Ishru was known to her cronies as 'Bony,'" Wilson said.

When a patrol leader asked an engineer to clear a certain area of mines, he barked this order: "I want the forward slope of Marilyn Monroe explored thoroughly."

Raise For Queen

LONDON (AP)—The House of Commons last night okayed a pay raise for Queen Elizabeth II, giving her 475,000 pounds ($1,330,000 a year) to run the royal household.

The decision hiking the royal budget 65,000 pounds ($182,000) over that of the late George VI came despite outraged demands by a score of Laborites that the ruler's purse be cut nearly in half—to 250,000 pounds ($700,000).

Winslow To Be Kiwanis Speaker

J. E. Winslow, nationally known farm leader and president emeritus of the North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation, will be the speaker at the Greenville Kiwanis Club Friday night at 8:30.

He will discuss the advantages of the tobacco referendum to be held in the state Saturday, July 19. B. B. Sugg made arrangements for the program. President Milo Smith will preside.

Construction In City Reaches The Million Mark

New construction in Greenville since the first of January has nearly reached the million dollar mark, it was disclosed this morning.

A report, based on the number of building and construction permits issued by Fire Chief George Gardner, shows that construction since the start of the new year now stands at $949,500.

At the present rate, new construction in the city will well exceed that of the record-breaking year which the city had last year.

During the month of June, eight new dwellings and two duplex apartment units with a valuation of $87,500 were constructed. A lone commercial permit for $900 was issued.

Repair permits, numbered two, and had a value of $3,800. During the first half of the 1952 year, a total of 69 new dwellings have been started along with 15 duplex apartment units, valued at $576,500.

Commercial dwellings number 14, valued at $372,800.

However, this amount of new construction does not include the many new warehouse units which have been constructed in the vicinity of Greenville since most of them are located outside the city limits and thus do not come under the building permit ordinance.

If all new warehouse construction was to be tabulated in the city construction figure then the figure would soar close to the two million dollar mark, the fire chief reported.

Neither is the vast expansion program being carried out on the campus of East Carolina College included in the half yearly summary of new building.

Two Boys Found At Well Bottom

WINSTON-SALEM (UP)—Marsh gas of "dead air" was blamed today for the deaths of two teenage boys at the bottom of an abandoned dry well near here yesterday.

The youths, Milton Gray Hudson, 17, and his brother, Irvin, 15, were pulled to the surface after a neighbor heard Milton's shouts for help. Efforts to revive them with resuscitators were unavailing.

The youths' younger sisters said the boys had been searching for parts for an old car on which they were working. Irvin had descended into the well on a rope while Milton was to pull him out.

When Milton saw his brother lying face down at the bottom of the pit he went down the rope and also was overcome.

Before he passed out, his shouts were heard by Mrs. John Harrington, a neighbor who was baking in her kitchen. Her husband and another neighbor removed the bodies.

The youths' parents were at a hospital with another of their six other children and did not learn of the tragedy until two hours later.

Growing Task Of Feeding World Before Farmers

GREENSBORO (AP)—The nation's decreasing farm population should gird itself now to the task of feeding a growing urban population, says a leading southern agricultural expert.

Speaking at a meeting of Negro farmers and homemakers here yesterday, Dr. Paul D. Sanders, editor of the Southern Planter, said only about 15 per cent of the country's population is now engaged in farming. At the same time the non-farm population is growing.

"A great increase in food production must be provided by those remaining on the farm," he said. "An increase in production is possible if we turn more to machinery, employ efficient farming methods, and put idle acres into production of grasslands for livestock production."

Lions Down Moose By 20-1 Score As Walks Give Game Away; Victors Tally Seven In Fourth, Eight In Fifth

Lions pitchers Roebuck and Puryear combined to hurl a no-hit game yesterday as the Lions downed the Moose 20-1 in Little League play. Puryear started for the victors and gave up a run in the opening frame. He walked three and hit one man. Mack Roebuck, the Lions' standout performer, was then called to the mound to set the Moose down for the rest of the game.

In posting the victory the Lions could collect only five hits. Aubrey Harrison collected two singles in five trips to the plate to lead the victors. The Lions started slowly, being held scoreless by Marvin Blount for the first two frames. They managed to tally three in the third and then sailed the game away with a seven run outburst in the fourth.

The Moose hurlers contributed to their own downfall by giving up 19 bases on balls.

The contest started at 3:40 and ended at 5:46, taking over two hours to play.

The game was the first of a scheduled doubleheader. The second contest, between the Jaycees and the Exchange, was called at the end of five innings with the score tied at 5-5. It will be replayed from the start at a later date.

Oldsters Tee Off In Western Match

CHICAGO (AP)—Two hundred golfers, 50 years old and over, from 28 states will tee off with varying degrees of zest today in the opening round of the two-day Western Seniors Golf Association Tourney. Six age brackets are listed for the 36-hole medal play meet, including 50-54, 55-59, 60-64, 65-69, 70-74 and 75 or over. James McAlvin of Chicago is the defending all-tourney champion, posting the best medal of all classes last year.

Tension Rising At Olympic Site

TODAY'S SPORT PARADE By OSCAR FRALEY United Press Sports Writer ENROUTE TO HELSINKI (UP)—It's calm and peaceful up here today and it makes you wish you could take some of it along for the Olympic games in Finland.

Usually, the Olympics can use a bit of serenity. And when the lads get to bouncing the ball up against the iron wall which runs along the border between Finland and Russia there isn't likely to be an exception.

For an event which was aimed at promoting international amity, the Olympics have produced more antagonistic action than a Killary fair with some of the best contests ignored in the record books. Enmity instead of amity too often has been the winner.

Baron Pierre de Coubertin, an idealistic Frenchman, started this business which today is taking athletes from all over the world on an odyssey to Scandinavia. The good baron set the wheels in action at Athens in 1896 and fractured feelings have been splintered hastily ever since.

You can bet your Sunday hat that National League hitters will agree with Connie Mack that Bobby Shantz is the best hurler in the American League.

Especially batters Whitey Lockman of the Giants, Jackie Robinson of the Dodgers and Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cards. These three in particular all got a chance to look at Shantz's offerings and all returned to the dugout by virtue of the strikeout route.

Little Bobby, who wasn't supposed to pitch because of a chest injury, set these three National League sluggers down in order to warrant a tremendous ovation from the Shibe Park gathering. Musial, who struck out twice in the rain abbreviated contest, was the only member of the trio to even foul a Shantz pitch.

Though the game only went five innings it was packed with excitement for thirty-odd thousand spectators.

Jackie Robinson strengthened his claim as the best second baseman in baseball by banging out a homer in the opening frame with the bases empty. And then there was Hank Bauer's tremendous drive that landed atop the left field bleacher roof and bounced away to parts unknown.

The American League's loss yesterday gave Casey Stengel a rather unusual distinction. For the last three years Casey has managed the New York Yankees to the World's Championship. By virtue of this feat he has automatically become manager of the American League team in the annual All-Star fracas. Though Casey has piloted the Yanks to victory for three straight years he has also been manager of the losing All-Star club for three consecutive seasons. Maybe he's saving his strategy for October again.

Tuesday's contest also put another record in the books. For the first time in 19 clashes between the two leagues rain caused an early termination of play. Never before has the mid-season classic been interrupted or postponed by inclement weather.

Although the hot weather of a couple of weeks back seems to have relinquished its hold on Greenville the thought of a swimming pool for the local inhabitants is still in mind.

Since the closing of the municipal pool in 1950 Greenville residents have been forced to wade in the heat. Now it seems that prospects for a pool are even farther away than ever.

Lack of finance was the main drawback to building a new pool after the closing of the old one and now with the freeze on building materials enacted by the government, Greenville's pool seems farther away than ever.

Greenville's old pool was a good one but as time went on and the city grew it soon became overcrowded. Now the need is more desperate than ever.

Swimming is a wonderful sport and in a city that has as fine a sports program as Greenville a pool is a necessity. When, and if, the time ever comes when construction can be begun at least two good sized pools should be constructed.

One pool should be built for white and one for colored. In the St. Louis Cards Have Pennant Hope

By JOE REICHLER AP Sports Writer The next two weeks should decide the fate of Eddy Stanky's St. Louis Cardinals.

Beginning tonight, the red-hot Redbirds take on Philadelphia, Brooklyn and New York in succession before closing out their home stay with Boston in an 11-game stand against the Eastern cities.

By then, the sizzling Cards may either have blown a fuse or have established themselves as a solid pennant threat on an even footing with the Dodgers and Giants.

Currently the hottest club in the National League, the Cards are riding high on a nine-game winning streak with 18 triumphs in their last 22 games. Wallowing in the second division a month ago, the Redbirds have pushed into third place, 9 1/2 games behind Brooklyn.

Stanky, though well aware of the Dodgers' healthy 13-game edge on the decisive defeat side of the standings, refuses to concede a thing to Brooklyn and New York.

"We've still got an outside chance for the pennant," he said. "We're going good right now. There is no reason why we shouldn't continue. We picked up four games on the Dodgers in a little over a week. And we're going to pick up more ground. This race isn't over by a long shot."

Stanky's optimism was based on the fact that his team has shown it can beat the Dodgers. The Cards hold a 6-5 margin over the league leaders. Only the Giants have an advantage over them, that by the narrow 7-6 edge.

The Cards' sudden surge has been a team affair with nearly all regulars sharing the credit. But the man most responsible, even more so than Stan (The Man) Musial, has been Enos (Country) Slaughter. The 36-year-old warhorse, who refuses to bow to age, is enjoying one of his best seasons.

The fourth leading hitter in the league with 314, old Country has been using his bat with devastating effect in the past two weeks. He's driven in nearly half of his 49 runs during that time and he has driven in five runs in each of three days.

Musial, of course, has maintained his steady, league-leading 333 pace and Peanuts Lowrey, Red Schoendienst, Solly Hemus, Del Rice and Dick Slater have contributed their share to the team's recent success.

Al Brazle (6-1), Gerry Staley (11-6), Joe Presko (5-4), Cloyd Boyer (5-4), Vinegar Bend Mizell (3-5) and Eddie Yuhas (5-2) have sparked on the mound.

Favorites Win In Tournament Play

GREENVILLE, S. C. (AP)—The South Carolina Open Tennis tourney continued into the fourth day of action today, with spectators wondering who the next upset victim would be.

The first major form reversal of the tournament came in yesterday's matches, as Sunny Sumner of Greenville topped second-seeded Ed Caviness, Goldsboro, N. C., in the junior singles division, 6-1, 9-7. Sumner was unseeded.

Other results yesterday included: Men's Singles: Dan McGill, Athens, Ga., defeated Moffatt Long, Greenville, 6-2, 6-3; Dick Rutledge, Coral Gables, Fla., defeated Clare Draper, Spartanburg, 6-1, 2-6, 6-0; Dick Kirchner, Donaldson Air Force Base, defeated Bob Watters, Spartanburg, 6-0, 6-2; Tommy Wyche, Greenville, defeated Ray Gould, Spartanburg, 6-2, 6-1; Carl McMahon, Greenville, defeated Bill Delaney, Greenville, 6-3, 6-1; Wilton McKinney, Greenville, defeated L. H. McIntosh, Clemson, 6-3, 6-3; Bill Ustead, Abbeville, defeated Jack Harris, Spartanburg, 6-3, 6-0; Sam Daniel, Columbia, defeated Frank Wood, Spartanburg, 6-0, 6-2; W. Corrigan, Greensboro, N. C., defeated E. M. Lander, Clemson, 6-1, 6-1; Julian Wade, Greenville, defeated Peyre Kennedy, Spartanburg, 7-5, 6-2.

Also, McKinney, Greenville, defeated McIntosh, Clemson, 6-3, 6-3.

Veterans Favored

SPRING LAKE, N. J. (UP)—Veteran netmen Gardner Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla., and Billy Talbert of New York were favored to win quarter-finals singles matches today in the Spring Lake tennis tournament.

Mulloy met Tom Lewyn of Scarsdale, N. Y., and Talbert was matched against Dr. Jack Geller of New Rochelle, N. Y., in the only matches scheduled today.

U. S. Delegation In British Open

ST. ANNE'S, ENG. (UP)—Three golfing greybeards headed a small U. S. delegation that took off in pursuit of pace-setting Fred Daly of Ireland today in the second round of the British Open Championship.

Willie Goggin, Gene Sarazen and Willie Hunter—all of whom have been playing golf for more than 30 years—wound up with surprisingly good scores among six Yank starters in yesterday's opening round as Daly stole the lead with a new course record of 67.

Goggin, a 46-year-old former PGA champion from Montclair, N. J., topped the U. S. group with a four-under-par 71. Sarazen, the 50-year-old gentleman farmer from Germantown, N. Y., and Hunter, a 60-year-old British-born professional from Pacific Palisades, Calif., each carded one-under-par 74's.

"24 FOR UNDERWOOD" CHICAGO (UP)—There were 103 roll calls at the Democratic national convention in 1924 at Madison Square Garden, New York. Each roll call vote started with the same phrase: "Alabama casts 24 votes for Oscar W. Underwood."

Studio Lot Again Razed By Blaze

BURBANK, Calif. (AP)—A second disastrous fire in less than two months raged across the Warner Brothers movie lot yesterday and one officer expressed the belief that arson was involved.

Studio spokesmen roughly estimated damage at 4 1/2 to 3-4 million dollars.

The fire swept in a giant arc through 25 studio back-lot acres, destroying nine streets of scenery ranging from Norwegian to Western.

Sheriff's Arson Investigator Ed Hatcher said there is "every indication" the fire could not have started accidentally, and must have been incendiary.

The blaze razed a storage shed containing a 30-year collection of some 2,000 acting props—Robin Hood crossbows, mummy cases, roulette tables, horsehair sofas, spears, swords.

It gutted and collapsed a corrugated iron hangar housing an undetermined number of planes used in movie scenes. Then wind-driven embers leaped a street and burned perhaps 200 acres of scrub oak and brush on a nearby mountainside.

Seeking Return Of $16,190 From Raleigh Woman

RALEIGH (AP)—The state is seeking to recover $16,190.88 from a 55-year-old Raleigh woman, who was acquitted last month of charges of embezzling funds from the North Carolina State College laundry.

Mrs. Arlesia D. McDuffie, former office manager of the laundry, was named defendant in a suit filed yesterday in Wake Superior Court. The state alleges that Mrs. McDuffie misappropriated the funds for her own benefit during a three-year period, Jan. 9, 1947 to Nov. 26, 1950.

The state also is asking recovery of $3,000 from the St. Paul Mercury Indemnity Co. of St. Paul, Minn. The company allegedly had executed the bond protecting the state against loss up to $3,000.

Pulled Alarm In Mailing Letters

DETROIT (AP)—Three fire engines raced to the scene when Herschel Johnson, a newcomer, tried to mail a letter in a fire alarm box.

Police released Johnson when he explained he comes from Phil Campbell, Ala., (pop. 533), where letters are mailed at the general store.

Wedding Songs Are Criticized By Churchmen

SYRACUSE, N. Y. — (UP) — Some of those favorite solos heard at weddings, such as "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly," have been sharply criticized by churchmen as "sentimental ballads" which glorify "only the romantic attraction of the marriage partners."

Even the traditional Wagner and Mendelssohn wedding marches are not in the best of taste, according to an Episcopal diocesan commission church music.

The commission, set up in the Episcopal diocese of central New York, wrote a memo on wedding music for clergy and choir directors as a guide for those who "deplore the elements of secularism in the musical practices of a religious service."

"In many cases the choice of wedding music is dictated by members of the wedding party inexperienced in appropriate musical standards and therefore willing to settle for bad precedents," the group said.

Too Theatrical
The report urged churches to avoid background music which "brings in a theatrical tendency and a most unwanted element of showmanship."

"In too many instances music is chosen to be played or sung which glorifies only the romantic attraction of the marriage partners without any attempt to dignify the new relation before God," it continued, listing "O Promise Me," "Because," and "I Love You Truly" as among the offenders.

"Even with ceremonies where the sentimental ballads are eliminated, there is present all too frequently music of light or trivial character played before the ceremony, or for the processions themselves," the report continued.

Not For Entertainment
Music whose purpose is merely to entertain the listener is not appropriate.

As for the Wagner and Mendelssohn wedding marches, they may have become "firmly entrenched" through traditional usage but, according to the commission, "they are both open to question for their secular feeling and origin, while also being difficult to process to."

They could well be replaced by "many fine pieces of organ music" which could "give new life and meaning to the procession," the report added.

The commission suggested turning to the hymnal for processional music, such as the "Praise my Soul, the King of Heaven" selected by Queen Elizabeth II for her wedding.

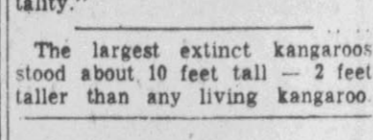

Others Suggested
"Hail Thee, Festival Day" was considered a "particularly fine choice" in the report. The group said "Love Divine All Loves Excelling" and "Ye Watchers and Ye Holy Ones" were "also worthy of mention here."

Bishop Malcolm E. Peabody, head of the diocese, commended the report, saying "the proposals are directed to churches of all types and to wedding parties which are either large or small."

The commission concluded that emotions as well as intellectual needs to be filled in a marriage service "can be done in a dignified way without maudlin sentimentality."

Bootleg Stills Bear Brunt Of New Crackdown

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal revenue agents bore down hard on moonshiners during May, seizing 804 stills valued at $325,807.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue announced today that about 700 of the stills were seized in the South, only one in Western states, and just a handful in Midwest and Northern districts.

The Alabama, Florida, Georgia and South Carolina districts produced the largest number of seizures — 368. Seized property was valued at $961,000.

Financially, the best haul was in the New Jersey-Delaware district—only six seizures, but the property was valued at $104,055.

Strange Message

By William Lynch

Chapter 26
Gardiner hung himself wearily upon the strip of sand.
"It's my opinion that you came up here during the night and took the boat away. Where did you hide it?"
"Now, why'd I be wantin' to do such a silly thing?" He stood. "Maybe we'd better get goin'. Mrs. Gardiner'll be wonderin' where you've got to."
"Is Melisande in this, too?"
"This what?"
"This conspiracy."
Danny smiled.
"I dunno why you call it that. It's supposed to be your honeymoon, isn't it?"
Gardiner resumed, speaking more to himself.
"It's a conspiracy to break me up. You're in it, too, Danny. You, Taylor—and God knows who else. Melisande, perhaps. Is Melisande part of it? That's something I'd like to know."
"It seems to me you've got a very vivid imagination," Danny said. "There's must be somethin' eatin' at your mind to make you talk like this. What is it?"
"Whatever the bunch of you are trying to do, you're only wasting your time. And you can pass the word on to Taylor. You can also tell him that we'll be leaving the cottage at once."
"At once?"
"Yes."
"Why, that's foolish, Gardiner. There's no way of gettin' out of here. You're as much a prisoner here as if you were in King's Bay. You never know what might turn up."
"Wait?" He came to his feet. "And what could—possibly—turn up?"
Danny rose with him, stood facing him, his eyes unwavering.
"Come Friday there might be some more—mail—for you."
Gardiner wilted but soon recovered and began to walk homeward.
"What do you know about my mail, Danny?"
"Nothing. Except that when I went into the house for the whistle I saw your note. There must be something in the mail to cause you to write that. Men don't leave notes for their wives in the middle of the night, unless it's pretty important."
"It was important, Danny. A matter of life and death."
Gardiner pondered this for the time it took them to traverse a hundred yards.
"Danny, I want you to believe me when I say that it's a matter of life and death—for me, for Melisande, and perhaps for somebody else, too."
"There's only one thing I want to believe about you, Gardiner," came the reply, quickly. "I want to believe that you're not a fit person to be alive."
"Why do you say that?"
"When I really believe that—I'll go lookin' for you to whistle me up a fox an' this time I won't be aimin' for his legs. You see, I won't be wantin' his pelt."
Gardiner was nowhere in sight when Danny arrived at the cottage. Melisande was there, however, hatless in the sun, her eyes troubled.
"Paul just got in, Danny," she said, quickly. "Where's he been? What's the matter with him? He won't talk to me."
"He couldn't sleep, ma'am." Danny said. "So we went fox-huntin'. Then we went to Point Harvest. But the boat was gone."
The girl plunged a hand into her dirndl pocket.
"I found this note."
Danny glanced at it.
"I saw it," he said. "But he couldn't go on account of there's no boat."
"What business would he have in the city to take him away so suddenly?"
"A man like Paul Gardiner can have strange business, ma'am."

Danny said, making to pass her by. She caught his arm.
"Oh, Danny, there's something wrong! Please don't go away. I want to talk to you." She led him towards the hammock. "Something happened to Paul last night. I found the wrapping from a parcel. What was in it, Danny?"
"I don't know."
"You're lying. Please don't lie to me. Is Paul in any kind of trouble? I want to help him."
"There's nothing you can do to help him, ma'am. Not now."
"What's he done?"
"That's all I can tell you, ma'am. Except I'd like you to know you have got nothing to fear. A wounded fox always makes for a safe place. This place isn't safe for him now."
Melisande shrank back and stark fear was pin-pointed in her eyes.
"He's in some kind of trouble, Danny. I can see it in your face. We've got to help him!"
Danny was unmoved.
"There's only one solution for the kind of trouble he's in. Maybe he'll find it himself. That's what we're hopin' for, anyway. I'd hate you to get caught up in anythin', ma'am."
"Paul's my husband. I happen to love him. I can't be taking sides against him. That's something you'd better understand right now, Danny." But her face was pale and the pin-points of fear were still there.
"Who are you, anyway?"
"My name's Danny Sale."
"Sale! Katie's father!"
"Yes."
"Then it's something about—Katie. What is it?"
"Maybe you'd better ask Gardiner."
"I will." She sat down weakly on the hammock. "John Taylor sent you down here, didn't he?"
"That's right."
"Why?"
"Fox huntin'. I'm an expert at it, ma'am. Mr. Taylor's got queer ideas about the technique of huntin' a fox. I don't altogether agree with him. But I promised I'd try it his way—first."
"You can drop the double talk, Danny. What's Paul done?"
Danny gently took the woman's arm.
"Thing I'd like you to do, ma'am, is get out of here as quick as you can. Your husband's headin' for bad trouble an' you don't have to get caught up in it. If you stay here you're crazy."
"No, I'll stay with Paul."
The other shrugged and made to walk away. "You see, I don't share Mr. Taylor's feelin's about you. I'm not aimin' to protect anybody, least of all Gardiner's wife. I expect you're as much responsible as he is. Only you didn't try to put a bullet through my guts."
(To be continued)

Replace U. S. S. Hobson With The U. S. S. Gwin

CHARLESTON (AP)—The U. S. S. Hobson, which went down in the Atlantic in April with 176, has been replaced in the Atlantic Fleet Mine Force.
The U. S. S. Gwin, a destroyer-mine layer, was recommissioned here yesterday to take the place of the Hobson.
First commissioned in World War II, the Gwin was credited with downing 16 Japanese planes and was awarded the Navy unit commendation.
Rear Adm. W. V. O'Regan, Fleet Mine Force commander, was the principal speaker at the ceremonies. He urged the officers and men of the Gwin "to apply yourselves diligently and faithfully to the task before you."
The first skipper of the Gwin, Capt. F. S. Steink of Washington, was a guest at the ceremonies.

Claims He Knows Who Will Win GOP Nomination

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Staff Correspondent
CHICAGO (UP)—I don't know yet who's going to win the GOP presidential nomination, but I met a man today who claims he does.
He's Perry Howard, a Mississippi Negro who is the senior member of the Republican national committee. He's sure that his "old friend" Robert A. Taft will be nominated on the first ballot.
Howard won't tell his age, which is considerable, but is proud to say he has been a member of the GOP national committee for 28 years running. His first convention was in 1912, and he hasn't missed one since.
Sporting an "I'm for Taft" tie piece, the oldest relaxed on a divan in his hotel suite and spouted a few things about his colorful career.
"It's a funny thing," he said. "I was for Teddy Roosevelt against Bob Taft's dad. But I'm right behind his son, Bob, and I don't see how he can lose out on the nomination or the election that follows."
Although he calls Mississippi his home, and represents that state on the national committee, Howard is a lawyer who practices most of the time in Washington, D. C.
He is perturbed about the voting in his home state. His goal in life is to "right the situation down there."
"My state," he said, "is the most backward of all of them in the matter of electoral discrimination against Negroes—particularly republican Negroes."
Howard is exercised about the fact that of 350,000 potential Negro voters in his state only a few thousand are able to cast a vote.
Howard is proud of the fact that he is a junior in the Howard clan.
His daddy was a leader in the House of Representatives in Mississippi during the post-Civil War reconstruction era, and took credit for sending Hiram Revels to the United States Senate—the first Negro ever to hold that honor.
Howard married the senator's daughter, the late Maggie Howard. The old fellow is a fine thrower of the American tongue.
About his man Taft, he says: "He has a fine mentality with the suavity of a modest maiden." So spake Perry Howard.

Three Husbands Come Onto Scene Following Death

RICHMOND, Calif. (AP)—A 60-year-old woman died in a hospital Sunday of heart trouble.
Shortly afterwards, Police Inspector Darrell Davis said, three men showed up and each said he was her husband. One of the three, Davis said, later committed suicide.
The officer said the woman was listed on the hospital's records as Dolly Clingenpeel, and her husband as James Clingenpeel, 63.
After her death, Davis said, Clingenpeel arrived to claim the body, followed shortly by Thomas Powers, 60, a Stockton railroad engineer, and W. H. Grist of Oakland.
Davis said that although Grist arrived to claim the body as the woman's husband, he later said he had filed divorce proceedings in Martinez in 1923.
But Powers insisted the dead woman was still legally his wife.
Davis said he went to Clingenpeel's home Monday to investigate and found the man's body on the floor of his garage. Davis termed Clingenpeel's death suicide from carbon monoxide gas.
Looking deeper into the tangle Davis said he found:
1. Born Ethel Hoyt, the woman

Plane Wreckage Sighted From Air

FAIRBANKS (AP)—Airmen have sighted the wreckage of an Air Force C-47 that vanished over interior Alaska last Jan. 12 after radioing it was "hopelessly lost." It carried five men on an instrument training flight.
A 10th Rescue Squadron plane crew reported yesterday the wreckage was located 45 miles southeast of Ft. Yukon in the Yukon River valley. It is about 150 miles north of Fairbanks.
A ground party was being sent to the scene.
The five men aboard the plane included Capt. Ernie Walker, copilot, 2943 Chapel Hill Road, Durham, N. C.

County Negro 4-H Clubs Win Honors In Contests

By CHESTER WALSH

June was an eventful month for members of Pitt County Negro 4-H Clubs. The Pitt County Negro 4-H members won numerous honors in county and state contests.

Pitt County 4-H clubbers at the recent Northeastern District Federation at Winfall, won a gold plaque for having the highest score in participation in 4-H events for the day. Twenty-one Negro boys and girls represented Pitt County in the following events:

Dairy food demonstration, Mattie Monk, Bell Arthur; bread-making contest, Daisy and Mozella Taylor, R-1, Winterville; boys' livestock judging team, Calvin Henderson and David Henderson of Winterville; dress revue contest, Deloris Artis, R-1, Vanceboro, and Carolyn Jones and Margie Fields of Farmville, Barbara White of Fountain, and Shirley White of R-1, Greenville; style show, Calvin and David Henderson of Winterville, Benjamin Gorham and James Harris of Farmville, and Joe M. Gardner, R-3, Ayden.

The Pitt County Negro 4-H Club members also made a wonderful showing at Camp Reedy Creek, June 16-20. Eighteen boys and girls from here were present. A teacher leader and the assistant home and assistant county agents, Margaret H. Wade and Talmadge T. Mitchell, were there. Pitt County 4-H club members at the camp were: Shirley White, R-1, Greenville, Carolyn and Sylvia Jones, Deloris Artis, Benjamin Gorham, James Harris and James Moore of Farmville, James C. Cox and Samuel Cox, R-2, Ayden.

Radie Tucker, R-1, Winterville, Samuel Thompson and Ayres Gray, R-3, Greenville, James Lewis and Edward Earl Lewis of Greenville, and Mrs. Christine Lewis, teacher-leader of the Post Oak 4-H Club. The week's camping activities included recreation, educational courses in art, farm management, record keeping and electricity.

Allie White, R-1, Greenville, Pitt county delegate, attended the Wildlife Camp, sponsored by the Federal Cartridge Company and held at Camp Reedy Creek State Park. The week's activities included nature study, soil and water conservation, phases of forestry and insect study. Miss Inell Grimsley, R-3, Ayden, was chosen as one of the six North Carolina delegates to attend the Fifth Regional 4-H camp at Tuskegee Institute, Tuskegee, Alabama. She is the second Pitt county Negro girl to win this honor. She was selected on the basis of her 4-H Club work. At present Miss Grimsley is 4-H State health champion, 4-H Council president and is outstanding in leadership in community work in Pitt County. The camp at Tuskegee was attended by delegates from 19 southern states and three foreign countries. Her trip was partly financed by local Home Demonstration and 4-H Club councils.

Talmadge T. Mitchell, Negro assistant farm agent, and Margaret H. Wade, Negro assistant home agent, submitted reports of June activities.

Mild Betting On GOP Convention

NEW YORK (UP) The "smart" money along the Gay White Way was going to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower at 7 to 5 over Sen. Robert A. Taft today, as Broadway's book-makers reported mild betting on the outcome of the GOP national convention.

In Philadelphia a big operator said "it's been 6 to 5 and pick 'em here for the last four days.

That means the bettor puts up $6 to the bookie's $5 and picks either Taft or Ike.

HALL'S NAME CHANGED
 CHICAGO — (UP) — The name of the convention hall, located at Halsted and 43rd streets next to the vast Union Stock Yard, recently was changed from International Amphitheatre to Chicago Convention Building & International Amphitheatre. The building is the site of the annual international livestock exposition.

Lion's Club Accredited With 245 Activities

Membership of the Greenville Lions Club during the official club year which ended June 31st were credited with carrying on a total of 245 separate activities during that time, Past President Jimmie Harris announced today.

Harris in making the announcement stated that the record of the services and activities conducted by the local club has been officially returned from the National Lions Office, giving the club credit for its work.

The past president, who stepped down as the number one officer in the progressive club at the installation of new officers for the Club Monday night, praised each and every one of the local Club for their part in helping to make the club's record such an outstanding one during his term of office.

Among the more outstanding activities which the local club sponsored either solely or in part was sponsorship of the recreation fund drive for the Elm Street Park with its goal of $20,000 of which more than $5,000 has already been raised and Easter Seal Campaign for crippled children which netted $1,500. The club assisted in the TB Seal drive, Community Chest Drive and the Blood Bank Drive.

In addition, the club assisted in the annual Farmer's day event, sponsored a Little League Ball club and assisted in the organization of the Griffon's Lions Club.

These activities were in addition to the regular club projects with the blind in which expenses for needy blind persons were paid for by the club. The one big item in the work with the blind was the paying of $1,057 on the salary of a case worker for the Blind.

Transportation for 104 persons was paid for by the local club as well as eye examinations for 143 persons and 71 pairs of glasses.

TRAFFIC TOO TOUGH
 NAUGATUCK Conn. — (UP) — Police got tired of dodging traffic. For protection against careless drivers, the city installed a booth on the curb at a bush intersection. Instead of standing in the middle of the street, the officer on duty stays in the booth to direct traffic.

Board Of Inquiry Is Investigating

CHARLESTON (AP) — A Naval board of inquiry is investigating a shooting in which the estranged wife of a Navy officer was killed, the officer and another man wounded.

A Navy spokesman said last night that Lt. Comdr. William P. Maners was being held under guard at Naval Hospital here while the investigation proceeds.

Mrs. Ann Lipscomb Maners, a 24-year-old brunette, was shot to death at a suburban home in Rusesdiale, about 10 miles from here Monday night. Edmund B. Gregorie Jr., 31, was shot twice in the chest and once in the hand.

County Police Chief, Julian T. Williams said the 40-year-old officer shot his wife and Gregorie and then turned the pistol on himself.

Gregorie underwent an operation at Roper Hospital here last night. His condition was reported as fair. Maners was on leave from SHAPE headquarters in Paris, the Navy spokesman said. He is expected to recover.

Williams said Mrs. Maners and Gregorie were employed at the Charleston Navy Yard. The Maners had been separated about seven months, he added.

THE POLITICAL DOPE

Delicacies Not Preferred Over Prepared odds

By POGO

CHICAGO — A snow goose was thrown out of the convention yesterday after trying to prove that he was a delicacy from Canada. He had a pretty bigger story to tell. He believes that there is a diabolical plan by "Outside" interests (he did not mention names) . . . a diabolical plan to subtly sway both parties and thus gain control of the realm.

"Have you noticed," asked the Goose, "have you taken mark that the cost of newspaper has gone up?"

It is the opinion of the Snow Goose that any editor will think twice about running a lot of stuff about a candidate with a long name. Short-named candidates will get all the mention and so will be elected. The goose thinks that, as time goes on, the trend in newspapers will be to print all things in a series of grunts or other suitable monosyllables.

She says look at the way the magazines have gone. First short news magazines were the rage . . . then the news and the pictures were reduced . . . so that you are able to read the news for a dime (all you can understand for a dime) in less than ten minutes. A recent movement by a bunch of impatient mid-digits to produce a postage stamp magazine called "Pst!" with nothing in it at all has been temporarily abandoned for lack of suitable material. But, according to the Goose, the trend is clearly indicated.

In these days when news is so often very bad, it is the opinion of a small group of pigeons, newspaper fanciers all, that a real enterprising publisher may yet bring out a small completely blank newspaper which will, of course, not give out any news and will be entirely speechless. It would be great in a convention year, says the Snow Goose.

WITH FIRST MAINE DIVISION in Korea — (UP) — Members of the first battalion of the First Marine Regiment prefer "heat-and-serve" food, dehydrated soups and pre-cooked preparations over sweets and other confections, according to a survey.

Although Marines are kept healthy with chow from the galley, or when necessary from "C" rations, they still like to have delicacies occasionally which are not provided in regular rations.

Cans of chili, soups, tuna, sardines and meat sandwich spreads were rated high on the preferred list.

Pepperoni was listed as favorite among meat items. It may be kept for long periods without danger of spoiling. When a Marine wants a midnight snack, he can slice a piece of the Italian sausage and eat it without any preparation other than peeling off the covering.

Cheese Welcomed

Other cherished gifts from home are sharp cheese and cheese spreads. A box of crackers will make sandwiches when crackers cannot be obtained from a field galley or from "C" rations. In the way of liquids, "Instant" cocoa has top rating, followed by tea bags and bouillon cubes.

As far as fruit is concerned, the Marines voted canned orange juice in first place. Second choice was tomato juice. Dried apricots and prunes make excellent dishes when stewed in canteen cups with sugar cubes added.

For the sweet tooth, hard cookies and "heavy" cake, such as fruit or raisin cake made without milk are ideal to send because they will not become spoiled or stale en route.

They Like Fudge

Chocolate fudge and hard candy are the most appropriate confections. However, servicemen in Korea receive daily PX rations of chocolate bars and other kinds of candy. "C" rations provide one confection daily. Cigarettes are also included in PX and "C" rations.

Items other than foodstuffs which are generally needed include candies, or perhaps, a flashlight with extra batteries and bulbs, and stationery. Often those things can be bought in the PX but the man on the front line is usually not able to get to an exchange until his outfit goes into reserve.

If sent by air mail, the package will be received in about eight or nine days. If air mail is too expensive, a parcel post, which takes about a month to reach Korea, can be sent at moderate rates. A fee of "special handling" will assure fast service and good care of the package.

TEAM COMPLETED

— Grandpa John D. Moran sent out a five word message to relatives at the birth of his ninth grandson: "I've got my baseball team."

AFTER FLIGHT FROM TITOLAND:—Three Yugoslav mechanics who seized an airliner while on regular flight from Zagreb to Pola and set it down at Foligno, Italy, shave in Foligno at their hotel the morning after their flight. Left to right are Josip Tirk, 22; Vilim Inkrit, 33, former pilot in the Yugoslav air force who took over the controls of the plane, and Bogdan Zligic, 28. The trio, seeking political asylum, remained in Italy as the other 19 passengers and five crewmen, who made the unexpected visit to Italy, left with the plane for Yugoslavia. PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT

We want a public accountant to represent us in this area. We are a financially responsible company rendering a service to banks in connection with bank loans. The work required would supplement present activities, open up new contacts that should prove profitable even though they might not always produce business for us. Work required would be sales calls on bankers, certain inspections in connection with service installations and some clerical work. Compensation would be commission on sales plus a fee for other work. This is an interesting sideline for a man engaged in his own business having his own office. We furnish leads, promotional literature and all necessary cooperation. We want a man whose past experience, personality and qualifications can assure us of dependable, competent, dignified representation. Submit outline of your business career, education, etc. All replies in strict confidence. Write "P. O. Box 408, Greenville, N. C." 8-3f

Five Charged With Plotting

HAVANA (UP)—A Havana University law professor and four other persons faced charges today of sedition and plotting to assassinate Fulgencio Batista.

The charges were filed by the Cuban army's intelligence department, which handed the five over to a civil court for trial. The court ordered the group released pending the trial.

The intelligence department said the group was headed by Prof. Rafael Garcia Barco, one of the founders of the opposition Cuban People's Party and a leader in the student revolt against the late dictator Gerardo Machado in 1933.

The men were said to have turned over to Aureliano Sanchez Arango, an exiled anti-Batista leader, a set of photographs of anchorages along a beach where Batista normally spends weekends.

Once known as the "celery city" because it produced the major portion of that crop in Michigan, Kalamazoo now harvests only one-fourth of the state's annual yield of the vegetable.

Newsboy Stamp Will Go On Sale

WASHINGTON (UP)—A stamp honoring newspaperboys will go on sale in Philadelphia on Newspaperboys Day, Oct. 4.

Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson announced today that the first day sale will coincide with meetings in Philadelphia of the International Circulation Managers' Association and regional circulation managers.

The stamp shows a newsboy delivering newspapers. A torch at the youth's right symbolizes free enterprise and a group of homes in the background depicts the average residential community.

Peace Pact Backed By Japanese Poll

TOKYO (UP)—Seventy percent of Tokyoites were satisfied with the Japanese peace treaty signed in San Francisco last September, according to an official public opinion survey here.

The opinion poll was conducted by the prime minister's office covering 1,000 men and women between the ages of 20 and 59.

The results indicated that some 70 per cent considered the peace treaty satisfactory for a defeated nation. Twelve per cent found it unsatisfactory even for a defeated nation and the remainder not satisfactory but acceptable.

Elephant Ordered Off Circus Truck

LAFAYETTE, O. (UP)—The Ohio highway patrol said today it seized an elephant in a non-political move because the ponderous pachyderm was throwing its weight around.

Patrolmen ordered Lane, a three-ton elephant performing with the Mills Brothers Circus, off a truck from Dayton, O., yesterday because it overloaded weighing scales.

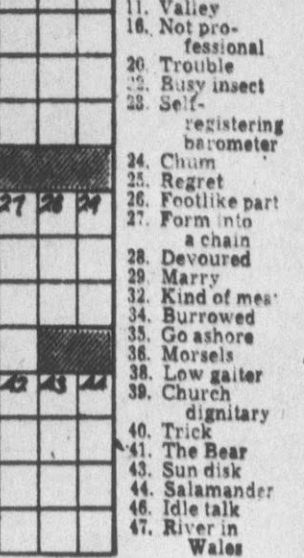

He Has To Think This One Over

TAMPA, Fla. (UP)—Florida Beverage Commissioner John A. Montgomery thought he knew the difference between a bar and a table until he heard about Chuck's Lounge at Madiera Beach.

Complying with a state ban on Sunday bar sales, Montgomery said, Bob Hogan sold drinks across a table placed at the end of his bar.

NOT HIS FAULT
KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UP)—A Knox County man was freed of assault charges when he testified that his wife's losing several teeth in a family quarrel was not "on-tired" his fault. Roy T. Ford told the court that Mrs. Ford's teeth were not actually "knocked out" as she had charged. "I pulled them out because my hand was in her mouth and she was biting me," he said.

Stocks And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Stocks developed a firmer tone at mid-session today under the leadership of oil shares.

Oils registered gains ranging to more than a point. Chemicals improved. Chrysler, yesterday's weak spot, rallied a fraction. Steels were about steady. Utilities ruled steady. Several special issues were bid up a point or more.

The turnabout reflected a strengthened technical position brought on by yesterday's decline, market men said. They said the list behaved fairly well under pressure in the last hour of the previous session.

Atlantic Refining touched off the oils when it opened 4,500 shares at 34 3/4 up 2 3/8. It continued active and held most of the rise. Kern County Land and Shell Oil also were strong spots.

Rails turned an early decline into a small rise. Small gains were noted in such issues as Allied Chemical, Bethlehem Steel, Santa Fe, Kennecott, Lockheed, Pennsylvania Railroad, Southern Pacific, United Aircraft, and U. S. Rubber.

Reception Opens New Gymnasium

The new health and physical education building was opened last night when a reception was held. Here a portion of the attending crowd is sitting in the bleachers of the main part of the building. The modern swimming pool is shown in the foreground. (Carolina News Bureau Photo).

Sanitation Violations Result In Issuing Of Warrant By Page

A 65-year-old Greenville man was arrested yesterday for failure to comply with the Sanitary ordinances of the city on a warrant taken out by Mayor Lester D. Page. The arrest was the first to be reported for an infraction of the sanitary ordinances since the sanitation drive got under way in the city several years ago as a crackdown on unsanitary conditions in the city came into the limelight.

Arrested was Henry Tripp of 110 Martin Street, Greenville.

He was charged with failure to comply with City Ordinance Number 17, which calls for connection of water and sewer in all places of the city on two counts. Mayor Page this morning stated that he took out the warrants after being informed by sanitation inspector J. C. Waldrop that Tripp had failed to comply with orders to install sinks and toilet facilities in two places owned by him. Mayor Page further stated that on June 18 he wrote a letter to Mr. Tripp advising him that he had been informed by the sanitary inspector that he (Tripp) had refused to do as instructed by Waldrop and that he would like for him to come to the mayor's office and discuss the matter. Otherwise, he would have to issue a warrant for his arrest on possible proper regulation of the temperature of the water.

Equipment of the building includes many types of supplies for ball and other games, a trampoline, "horses," parallel and horizontal bars, a large assortment of mats for tumbling, mirrors for corrective work, stall bars, and other standard supplies for a gymnasium.

The Wright building has been headquarters for the health and physical education department at East Carolina for a number of years. Crowded conditions and inadequate equipment here hampered the work of the department. The new building, with its excellent pool and ball courts, and its attractive, well-lighted classrooms and activity rooms, is a much-needed addition to campus educational facilities.

The Wright building will continue in use as a main auditorium for student assemblies, college entertainments, and other gatherings on the campus. Classrooms there will also be used, and part of the building, according to plans, will be used as a student union.

Unemployment In Tie-Up Mounting

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Unemployment resulting from the great steel strike of 1952 will be close to 1,100,000 next week unless there's an unexpected break in the paralyzing nation-wide shutdown throttling the industrial heart of America.

A big spurt in unemployment will come when Chrysler Corp. closes virtually all of its extensive Michigan operations. The corporation says the shutdown will affect about 68,000 workers although 14,500 will be recalled to take inventory. The Chrysler shutdown comes as another blow to the big state of Michigan, where auto production has been cut 70 per cent. An estimated 100,000 workers in Michigan have been affected by the steel strike. Ford Motor Company already has shut down its assembly plants across the nation and General Motors has laid off thousands in its huge factory network.

In addition to the 600,000 steelworkers idle, another 220,000 in allied industries have been laid off as a result of the strike. While there's no sign of an end to the strike, called June 2, the CIO United Steelworkers awaited word from the industry on a proposal to agree to resumption of iron ore production.

New EC Gym . . .

The pool measures 35'x75'. It is tiled in an attractive design of white, green, and black. Skylights above the pool admit natural light, and underwater lighting adds to the beauty of the pool. Four stairs within the pool and two diving boards have been built for the convenience and enjoyment of swimmers.

Two spiral stairs lead from the area near the pool to basement dressing rooms for men and women. A boiler room in the basement makes LEADERS — The Republican situation is somewhat less confused on the surface than the Democratic. The big show is between Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio and General Dwight Eisenhower of Pennsylvania. Latest tabulation by the Associated Press gives Taft 478 votes, Eisenhower 395, five favorite son candidates 129, uncommitted or in dispute 204—with 604 needed for nomination. Compared with seven Republican candidates having pledged votes, the Democrats have 19 candidates with votes pledged. Top man is Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee with 246. Runner-up is Senator Richard Russell of Georgia with 114 1-2.

SOLE-CARD — While the Republican situation is less confused on the surface, that street-corner caucus mentioned a few paragraphs back concluded that in case of a convention deadlock the Democrats might be in better position. The Democrats still have Harry Truman to fall back upon, either as the candidate or as a tremendously influential supporter of a candidate. The Republicans have no such authoritative leadership.

Pilots Lost To 'Fear Of Flying'

ATLANTA (UP)—This year of a serious epidemic of polio in Texas has found the state at its lowest ebb in years throughout most states in the southeast, according to a United Press survey.

The only exception was Mississippi, where the state board of health has reported 187 cases this season, in contrast to 80 by this time last year.
