Towns Of North Korea 'Warned'

United Nations Says Civilians Of 78 Communities Told To Escape Coming Raids; Four MIGs Shot Down In Aerial Battles Covering Wide Range Of Activity

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—The United Nations announced today it has warned North Korean civilians to clear out of 78 towns marked for attack by its warplanes.

The bold new move was designed to save needless loss of civilian lives even though it alerted Communist air power and anti-aircraft guns for coming raids.

Lt. Gen. Glenn O. Barcus, commander of the 8th Air Force, said American B-29 superfortresses have dropped more than 1,500,000 warning leaflets over the designated target areas.

"The United Nations Command Air Force must destroy all Communist military supplies and installations," the leaflets read, "and it knows where they are."

Barcus said the allies also are broadcasting the names of the target towns at regular intervals over Radio Seoul up to the time U. N. planes reach them.

Two of the 78 towns already have been hit. Sinchon and Yonan, in the Haeju Peninsula area, were attacked after leaflet and radio warnings.

Nearly 50 B-26 light bombers dumped their loads on Yonan last night, but darkness prevented an immediate evaluation of damage.

Sinchon was attacked Wednesday and Sunday nights.

Far East Air Force officials said Communist concentration points warned of impending attacks included areas around Pyongyang, Chinnampo, Komyong, P'yonggang, Sarwon, Sinanju, Chongju and other important cities, along the main supply routes from Manchuria.

The Communists are using the areas for military supply, personnel and equipment concentration point Barcus said.

"Communist military chiefs have jeopardized the safety of their civilian populations by converting cities and towns into military areas and by compelling civilians to work there," the Air Force said.

Leaflets addressed to heads of families said, "If the Communists will not let you leave, send your families to safety."

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—United Nations jet planes, flying protective cover for fighter-bombers attacking targets across North Korea, shot down four Communist MIG-15 jets and damaged six others today for their biggest toll of enemy planes in a month.

The 10 MIGs were destroyed or damaged in five separate aerial duels this afternoon, one of them between a flight of F-84 Thunderjets and eight MIGs. The slower F-84 seldom tangled with the MIGs.

The Thunderjet-MIG duel occurred between Hadju, located at Sarwon on the 38th parallel, and Sarwon, about 35 miles above the parallel.

8th Air Force officials did not disclose the exact location of the fight, but it was further south than the MIGs' usual cruising zone.

Today's battles marked the first time in months that the MIGs have ventured so far from their Manchurian sanctuary on the other side of the Yalu River.

The last big claim made by Allied jet pilots was on July 4 when they shot down 12 MIGs probably destroyed another and damaged five.

While the F-86 Sabrejets were at work, fighter-bombers attacked all across the Korean peninsula, hitting scattered targets.

Sabrejets took part in four of the five air battles today, and the fifth occurred when a flight of MIGs bounced on Allied Thunderjets.

Beating Schedule For Framing Of Pacific Alliance

Foreign Ministers Agree To Hold Interim Conferences By Aides, Deputies

HONOLULU (UP)—The United States, Australia and New Zealand moved ahead of schedule today in their conferences to establish a solid defense perimeter against aggression in the Pacific.

Top diplomatic representatives of the three nations, pioneering in a historic pact, hurried through the first day of executive sessions yesterday by unanimously adopting a three-point agenda and agreeing to set up a security council which will meet annually.

Foreign ministers of the ANZUS countries agreed that the council also would be strengthened by interim conferences between their aides and deputies.

The inaugural session of the Pacific Mutual Defense Treaty Conference opened at Kaneohe Marine Air Station on a unified note. An American spokesman said no points of disagreement had arisen.

Secretary of State Dean Acheson, Australian External Affairs Minister Richard G. Casey, and New Zealand's T. Clifton Webb hurried into discussions on organization of the council.

The speed with which the diplomats progressed was indicated when they unexpectedly jumped agenda items and discussed point after point in a survey of situations of common interest.

The conferences were to be resumed today at 3 p. m. EST.

No amplification was made on each of the three points on the agenda established by the foreign ministers. They were listed as:

- 1. Organization of the council. 2. Relations with other states and regional organizations. 3. A survey of situations of common interest.

The delegates promptly agreed on two items of council organization at the inaugural session, then switched unexpectedly to item three.

Ike Delivering Speech To VFW Meeting Today

DENVER (UP)—Dwight D. Eisenhower will fly to Los Angeles today to make his first speech since winning the Republican presidential nomination.

His associates said the speech, to be delivered tonight before the 53rd annual encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars at about 9 p. m. EST, would be non-political in nature.

But it was apparent that anything the GOP nominee says will be construed as having political significance.

The VFW will award Eisenhower its first annual Bernard M. Baruch medal. This award is to be presented each year to the person who "has made the greatest contribution to the cause of American unity and world peace."

Eisenhower's brief speech will be in response to this presentation.

NEW CITY MANAGER ELIZABETH CITY (AP)—Falmadge Hyman, who has been the city's engineer for the last three years, was named city manager at a meeting of the City Council today.

Coal Shutdown Threat Again Posed By John L.

UMW Boss Gives Operators Sept. 30 Deadline To Negotiate New Contract; Believed Out To Match Or Surpass Steel Gains

WASHINGTON (UP)—John L. Lewis was set today to shut down all major branches of the coal industry simultaneously at midnight, Sept. 30, unless the operators provide a substantial wage boost for his 475,000 miners.

The United Mine Workers president served notice on anthracite producers and Southern coal operators yesterday that he is terminating their present wage contracts on that date. He previously had fixed the same deadline for Northern soft coal companies.

Lewis did not indicate immediately when he plans to open contract negotiations with the anthracite industry, which mines hard coal for home burning, and with the Southern (soft) coal Producers Association. Nor did he give any inkling of what his wage demands will be.

He has already held two days of secret bargaining talks with Harry Moses, president of the Bituminous Coal Operators Association which represents about half the nation's soft coal output. The Moses group includes Northern commercial mines and the so-called "captive" mines owned by the steel companies.

Informed sources said it was safe to assume Lewis is out to get as much or more than the 21-cent "package" increase recently won by the CIO steelworkers.

He may also ask the operators to increase their present 30cents-per-ton payment to the miners' welfare fund.

Arnall Believed Ready To Resign

WASHINGTON (AP)—Price Stabilizer Ellis Arnall was reported today as likely to turn in his resignation to President Truman tomorrow.

Arnall was not immediately available for comment. Only last week he told a reporter that his departure was not imminent but that he planned to leave before long.

While Nicholson was being hunted by Sheriff's officers after the shooting he came to Greenville and turned himself in to the Greenville Police department where he was held for the Sheriff's department.

Calling Bluff Of Red Negotiators

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—The United Nations called the Communists' bluff today.

Maj. Gen. William K. Harrison, chief Allied truce delegate, asked the Reds to let Allied war prisoners in North Korean camps receive parcels of food, medicine and clothing.

The request will show whether the Communists were sincere in their acceptance last month of the 1949 Geneva convention on the treatment of war prisoners.

CRASH KILLS FOUR MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Four persons including two teen-age boys, were killed last night when a troubled C-46 twin-engined airplane dived 200 feet to earth at the Miami International Airport.

All aboard were killed.

Two Democratic Senators Predict South Will Hold

Long And Green Claim Ike Won't Swing One State In The 'Solid South'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two Democratic senators predicted today the South will remain solid this November despite evident Dixie dissatisfaction with the Democratic platform.

Sens. Russell Long of Louisiana and Theodore F. Green of Rhode Island said in separate interviews they believe Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Republican presidential nominee, won't win a single Southern state.

Eisenhower has counted heavily on breaking into the South to offset the national preponderance of Democratic registration over Republican.

Both senators discounted the likelihood of any bolt in states where opposition to the platform's civil rights declarations is running strong.

Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois, the Democratic presidential nominee, told a news conference at Springfield, Ill., yesterday he thinks the platform's civil rights plank is a good one. It pledges the party in general terms to work toward the establishment of equal rights, including fair employment practices.

But Stevenson gave those who have been working to get his name on the ticket in every Southern state some encouragement when he said he thinks it is dangerous to limit debate in a democracy and is not certain he would favor a change in the Senate rules.

Critics have charged that a Senate rule requiring 64 of the Senate's 96 votes to end a filibuster makes it impossible for Congress to act on controversial civil rights measures.

The party platform urged modification of this rule but Southerners oppose any change.

In Richmond, Va., Sen. John Sparkman, Stevenson's vice presidential running mate, said in an interview that the question of establishing a Fair Employment Practices Commission (FEPC) is left to legislative bodies.

Sparkman, who helped draft this section of the platform, noted there was no specific mention of FEPC in it.

This explanation may not be enough to avert a possible blast by South Carolina Democrats when they reconvene their state convention tomorrow to discuss the party's Chicago convention results.

Although Gov. James F. Byrnes has remained silent since the Chicago meeting, there were indications the South Carolinians may get behind the Stevenson-Sparkman ticket despite any platform criticism.

Byrnes was one of those who held out against the watered-down party loyalty pledge at Chicago. Stevenson said he had no plans to see either Byrnes or Sen. Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, another loyalty pledge opponent.

Asylum Is Asked By Polish Envoy

CHICAGO (UP)—Sigmund Fabisiak, Polish Consul General here, revealed today that he has resigned from his post and appealed to the U. S. State Department for asylum in this country.

Fabisiak said he wrote a letter to the State Department on Aug. 1 announcing his resignation as consul to Chicago as of the date.

When his letter became known to the Polish Embassy in Washington, Fabisiak said, Ambassador Joseph Wietewicz ordered him to return to Poland as soon as possible.

"But I don't want to go back," Fabisiak said. "I want to stay here and I have asked your State Department for asylum."

Fabisiak said he did not know for certain what would happen to him if he returned to Poland.

"I can't truthfully say that I know my life would be in danger," he said. "I've been away from Poland too long to know exactly what conditions are there."

"But I know that I would be forced to go on serving a system of government that I cannot give allegiance to. I don't want to go behind the Iron Curtain."

Fabisiak said he decided to quit his post when the new Polish constitution went into effect July 22.

"The constitution is a travesty of justice," he said. "Three-fourths of the population is deprived of the right to vote. It clearly places a minority in control of the state."

"I am in complete disagreement with that type of political system. All freedom is gone in Poland and the nation is under the domination of a foreign power."

"Under that condition, I cannot truly represent the interests of Poland here. Everything that is being done by the new Polish regime is a copy of what is being done in Russia."

Fabisiak said he didn't know how he would support himself, his wife, and their two daughters, aged 14 and 7, if he is permitted to stay in this country.

Dry Weather To Cost Pitt Farms Around $10 Millions

Agricultural Agents Report Estimates Tobacco Loss Over $6 Millions; Corn Crop Badly Hurt, With Subsequent Loss In Livestock Production

Dry weather during the past several months will cost Pitt County farmers in the neighborhood of $10,000,000, county agricultural officials estimated yesterday.

The estimate was contained in a report to the county commissioners by County Agent S. C. Winchester and Assistant County Agents B. J. Weeks and C. J. Goodman.

The report said the tobacco loss in Pitt County this year "could be figured at $6,000,000 on the 30,000 acres" of tobacco under cultivation in the county. The figure was arrived at on the basis of the estimated yield of 1,200 pounds per acre of tobacco this year in Pitt compared with a yield of 1,475 pounds in 1951, due to unfavorable weather and its accompanying hazards of black shank, nematodes and other crop diseases.

"Several farmers throughout the county have lost tobacco in the field as a result of root knot and meadow nematode injury," the report stated. "A two weeks period of extremely hot and dry weather caused the damage resulting from nematode injury to be more noticeable."

It was pointed out in the report, however, "some farmers have provided moisture for their crop by using irrigation equipment. Some are using their farm ponds to an advantage, others with irrigation equipment are using nearby streams as their water supply."

In terms of dollar loss tobacco has been the hardest hit of Pitt County crops during the dry spell, but percentage wise, the corn crop in Pitt County has suffered more than tobacco. And the loss of the hard-hit corn crop is expected to be reflected in a similar loss in livestock production in the county.

The written statement of the agricultural officials said, "Estimates as to the damage to corn in Pitt County from unfavorable weather runs from 35 to 50 per cent, indicating that our average yield may be cut back to as low as 20-24 bushels per acre. On the basis of this our dollar loss in corn would run $1,750,000. But the set back in our livestock enterprise would be equally as costly."

Adding the estimated $6,000,000 loss of the tobacco crop, the $1,750,000 loss in the corn crop and a $1,750,000 loss in livestock, the total estimated loss to Pitt County by the dry weather comes to $9,500,000.

Frightened When Sight Restored

WALNEY, Eng. (UP)—Joan Hornby, her sight restored after being blind for 17-1/2 of her 18 years, found the world a frightening place today.

"The first horse I saw terrified me," she confessed. "And aren't houses big!"

"I was horrified when I saw my first double-decker bus. It seemed to be coming straight at me."

Of the first meal where she could see what she was eating, Joan said:

"That fried egg for breakfast looked horrible. I couldn't eat it. And the Swiss roll at tea-time was revolting."

Doctors believe the shock of a boiling hot bath into which Joan stepped during a visit to her sis' is home here last week restored her sight.

Nickel Beer Is Business Boon

MANDAN, N. D. (UP)—The nickel beer is here to stay.

Tavernkeeper Joe Wetzstein featured a five-cent beer during a recent three-day local celebration. Business boomed.

Wetzstein said today the special price will be continued daily between 3 and 6 p. m. He's afraid it would hurt business to up the price again.

Truman Casts Vote In Primary

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP)—President Truman voted today in Missouri's hotly contested Democratic primary before flying back to Washington for the resumption of engagements cancelled by his recent illness.

He cast his ballot for State Attorney General J. E. (Buck) Taylor for the U. S. senatorial nomination. Taylor's opponent is Stuart Symington, former Truman Air Force secretary, National Security Resources Board chairman and RFC administrator.

Rotarians To Sponsor Visit Of Bloodmobile To City August 22

Greenville Rotary Club last night voted to sponsor the visit of the Red Cross bloodmobile here on Aug. 22.

After hearing the request from B. C. Satterfield, Pitt Chairman for the bloodmobile program, members of the civic club pledged their efforts to secure 200 donors who will give one pint of blood each when the bloodmobile visits Greenville.

The temporary blood center will be set up in the basement of the Methodist Church, with a canteen which will be operated by volunteer workers from members of the Greenville Service League. The coming of the bloodmobile August 22 will be its eighth visit to the county since January.

Dr. Fred Irons, Dr. K. B. Pace, Wyatt Brown and Howard McGinnis praised the blood program which has been instituted in Pitt County, and pointed to the invaluable service the program has rendered to local citizens by supplying Pitt Memorial Hospital with blood for the use of the people of the county.

It was pointed out during the meeting that on recent visits to Pitt County, the bloodmobile has fallen short of its quota of 150 pints of blood per visit, and unless the quota is filled at the August 22 visit of the unit, Pitt may be dropped from the program.

During the six months Pitt County has been participating in the blood program, more than 300 pints of blood from the regional head-quarters have been sent to Pitt Memorial Hospital for use there by patients. The blood was donated to patients at no cost; a spokesman pointed out, but had the blood been purchase at the going price of $28 a pint, it would have meant Pitt County citizens would have paid approximately $10,000 for the blood used locally since the county has been participating in the program.

Pledge cards for blood donations were distributed to Rotarians following the meeting to be signed by prospective donors, and to be returned to the club at the next meeting.

"With the cooperation of the Rotary Club and other civic clubs in the city, I think there is no question that Greenville will meet its quota during the August visit of the bloodmobile," stated Satterfield. "As a matter of fact, we must meet the quota and even go above it if the county is to keep the services of the bloodmobile," he asserted.

N. C. Farm Leaders In Vital Talks

Plan Follow-Up Action When State Is Included Among Disaster Areas

RALEIGH (UP)—Top agricultural officials here went into conference today as the department of agriculture in Washington planned to designate North Carolina as a drought disaster area.

State Farm Home Administration Director J. D. Slack will attend a meeting of Southern farm leaders in Atlanta tomorrow to seek emergency loans to drought-stricken farmers.

State and federal officials decided yesterday to ask Agriculture Secretary Charles Brannan for the disaster designation.

State Grange Master Harry B. Caldwell, who sat in on the meeting, said some co-operative agencies are already preparing to handle any feed that might be allotted on an emergency basis.

A disaster designation entitles farmers in the area to apply for emergency government loans, Slack said. His agency would handle the administration of such lending.

Slack said a "considerable" number of Tar Heel farmers already have inquired about the loans. He added that they would only be made when a farmer can show he cannot obtain financing otherwise.

He said the decision to have the entire state declared an emergency area was taken because every county in the state has suffered "to a greater or less extent."

The entire state has never before been declared a drought disaster area although a number of counties have been declared disaster areas because of the cotton crop failure.

With the disaster designation lower freight rates may be made available on badly needed commodities, such as hay for winter livestock feed, which must be imported.

State officials said many livestock farmers have been short of grazing this summer and have been forced to use next winter's feed supply during the present emergency. As a result, farmers in some counties, such as Watauga, Davidson, Rowan and Iredell, already are forming pools to place cooperative orders for hay from midwest states which are reported to have bountiful hay and corn crops this year.

Losses from the two-month drought in North Carolina have been set at $200,000,000, including $100,000,000 to tobacco, the state's chief money crop.

Girl Disappears In Mid-Atlantic

HOBOKEN, N. J. (AP)—A pretty 18-year-old art student disappeared from the liner Veendam in mid-Atlantic after leaving a note expressing despondency, a ship's officer said when the vessel docked here today.

The girl, Patsy Ann Partridge was on her way from England with her family to visit an aunt in Short Hills, N. J., when she was reported missing at 9:30 a.m. last Wednesday.

Evidence Eaten, Case Dismissed

DETROIT (UP)—Judge Paul E. Krauss dismissed larceny charges against Mrs. Mary Domogala, 46, because of lack of evidence.

A store detective told the judge he saw Mrs. Domogala steal eight wieners while she was shopping. "Where's the evidence?" Krauss asked.

"There is none, your honor," the detective said. "She ate it."

Uneventful Meeting Of County Commissioners Held Monday

Pitt County commissioners held their most uneventful meeting in many months yesterday.

The meeting which adjourned shortly after noon, consisted principally of reports from various county departments, and the drawing of jury lists for the civil terms of Pitt Superior Court the weeks of September 8 and September 22.

During the meeting the commissioners voted to purchase a new cook stove and a new refrigerator for the Pitt County home to replace present equipment at the home. In his report on the county home, Welfare Superintendent K. T. Futrell said painting has been done in the kitchen, bath rooms and some other places in the building, and new bath tubs have been installed on the north side of the building for white inmates.

Milk is adequate at the county home, the report said, and "only about 8-10 eggs daily according to the matron." The report said the home has an abundance of vegetables now and the fall crop for greens is being planted.

The population of the county home as of July 31 was 24. Only one person, a 64-year-old Negro man was admitted to the home during July.

During the meeting yesterday, members of the board of commissioners visited the courtroom of the county courthouse to view places recommended for repairs.

Investigators Think Third Vehicle Cause Bus Wreck

WACO, Tex. (UP)—Investigators checked a theory today that an unidentified automobile caused the worst bus accident in history, a flaming catastrophe that killed at least 28 persons.

Two buses, one loaded almost to capacity, collided head-on near here and burst into flames yesterday. Twenty-five persons were injured, two critically and bus company officials said "two or three persons" were still missing.

One investigator said he was "beginning to believe" that an unknown motorist, who did not stop at the grisly accident scene, may have caused the two Greyhound buses to crash.

The buses collided just before dawn at the top of a hill seven miles south of Waco. Both drivers were killed.

The northbound bus was on the wrong side of the road.

"It is possible, but strictly conjecture, that something could have shown up in front of the northbound bus," W. B. Stallings, Greyhound general claims agent, said.

"It looked like some sudden emergency confronted one of these boys Highway marks and the position of the buses indicated the northbound bus was across the stripe," Stallings said.

F. Patras, Greyhound maintenance manager at Fort Worth, said he found no evidence of mechanical failure in either of the buses. He said he was "beginning to believe another vehicle was involved, a vehicle which was not hit and did not stop."

While officers attempted to learn the cause of the accident, the grisly task of identifying the dead began.

"Eastern Carolina's Shopping Center"

N. C. Literature To Be Exhibited In Conference

A feature of the English Conference of the North Carolina English Teachers Association, being held at East Carolina College Thursday will be an exhibit in the field of North Carolina literature.

The exhibit will show samples of early literature of the state, North Carolina literary works that have received leading awards, including the Guggenheim and Pulitzer prizes, and other special recognition, and examples of research by North Carolinians in their own literature. The exhibit will be held in the English Club room in Austin Building.

The conference will be directed by co-chairmen, Dr. Lucille H. Turner and Miss Lois Grigsby, both of the East Carolina College English department.

Included in the exhibit will be the First Anthology of North Carolina poetry, published about the time of the Civil War; the old novel, "The Land of the Sky," by Christian Reid, and from which the Western North Carolina area took participants in the session.

"A Survey of North Carolina Creative Prose from 1900 to 1940" will be presented by Miss Katherine Hinson, high school English teacher in Charlotte, and now spending the summer at her home in Kinston, followed by Miss Mamie E. Jenkins, retired faculty member of ECC, now residing in Raleigh.

In the afternoon, the panel on "The Use of North Carolina Literature in High School and College" will be composed of Mrs. Mary Tom Sphangos, teacher of English in the Smithfield high school, speaking on "A Panorama of North Carolina Literature"; Dr. James E. Poindexter, member of the Literary Commission and the English Department of ECC, "North Carolina Literature in College"; Miss Edna Nicholson, teacher of English in the Greensboro high schools, "A Unit in North Carolina Literature"; Frank Toothman, teacher of English and Science in the Greenville high school, "North Carolina Literature in the High Schools."

The summary and evaluation of the conference will be made by Richard Waiser, a former English instructor in the Greenville high school and now in North Carolina State College English Department, Raleigh.

Teachers and students of literature and members of book clubs and literary groups have been urged to attend the conference, Dr. Turner said today.

Clark Calls For Political Action

"If the little man doesn't take more interest in his government, then the politicians will take over our government," declared John Clark, delegate from the First Congressional District to the recent National Democratic Convention, in speaking to the Greenville Lions Club last night.

Clark lashed out freely against the manner in which the Southern states were treated at the recent convention and the manner in which various resolutions were "railroaded" over the opposition of the Southern Democrats.

"It was disgusting to see the people from the North picking on the South for voting as they had in the past, doing so according to their beliefs," Clark declared.

Then Clark outlined the events leading up to the National Convention telling the local civic club that two delegates were selected from the First District, which is made up of 14 counties at the State caucus held in Raleigh.

He praised candidate Stevenson as a "man who has no known ties with any one, and is a great man in every way. At no time did I hear

Extra Feature

New General For U.S. Third Army

WASHINGTON (UP) — Lt. Gen. Alexander R. Bolling, Army Intelligence chief since August, 1950, will become commanding general of the 3rd Army with headquarters at Ft. McPherson, Ga., sometime this month.

The Army said Maj. Gen. William A. Beiderlinden, acting commanding general of the 3rd Army since last May, will return to his duties as its deputy commander.

Bolling served in Europe in both World Wars I and II. He is a native of Philadelphia.

Guests of the club last night were C. H. Bass of High Point, Will Currie, Ed Carter, and John Clark.

Strength for the Day

HOW CAN WE STOP IT?

Communism is a religion—a religion in reverse. Its priests are commissars. Its high priests are the Politburo. Whereas a true religion requires righteousness of its members, this diabolical religion requires unrighteousness of its members. The true Church is holy, that is, apart from the world. This false religion stands over against the world also; not to do it good but to beat it into submission.

In recent months we have been witnessing all through the country the motion picture, "Quo Vadis." Here we have witnessed the extent to which the early Christians were willing to suffer for their faith. But communists are willing to suffer likewise. The Christians suffered for the Lord Jesus and because they are members of his invisible spiritual empire. The communists are willing to lay down their lives for the dictatorship of the proletariat. Christ came that men might have life and have it more abundantly. Marx came that millions might have death and that a few with heavy hands might take the souls of the mighty. Jesus was the divine Son of God; Marx was the most earthly son of diabolical forces, which may ruin the human race unless checked.

And communism will be checked, not so much by armies as by the removal of conditions in backward sections of the world which enables this false philosophy to thrive. Communism is a religion in reverse.

New "Extras" For Tar Heel Vacationers

North Carolina's citizens and visitors are receiving a new highway attraction this month... four new roadside parks being completed in the state.

One of the new parks, which completes the state's first program of six such areas, is over in Craven County between Vanceboro and New Bern. The roadside parks were planned two years ago to provide six stop-over points for motorists who want a nice place to eat a picnic lunch, or just rest a while in the cool shade. Now that the first program of six roadside parks has been completed, the state highway commission and the department of conservation and development should have gained enough experience to push ahead with more roadside parks to meet the needs of the millions of tourists who are traveling North Carolina's highways.

As a Variety Vacationland, North Carolina is growing in stature and prestige with each passing year, and new sections of the state are developing into vacation areas. The little "extras" such as roadside parks which are being added by the state are making North Carolina a more desirable vacation spot both for its citizens and for visitors from other states.

Ups And Downs, Hemlines And Family Budgets

Good news is spreading through the land for the men of America.

Their wives are turning up their noses at the new "new look" which appeared in Paris fashion shows last week. Noted designer Christian Dior who dropped hemlines drastically six years ago, and played havoc with family bank balances in America displayed during the week-end new models with hemlines two-and-one-half inches lower than the present fashion.

For a couple of days the American males were sweating it out. Would the women-folks really go for this new look again?

Well, the reports are coming through now, and the ladies are saying "No" to Dior's lower hemlines. That will mean the little lady perhaps can make her last winter's suits and dresses do again this year—with the usual exception of a few new ones here and there, of course. It will not be like cleaning out the whole closet as was the case in too real a sense in 1947 when Dior caused the stampede on family budgets.

Reaction to Dior's new fashion experiment by Ilka Chise, a frequent entry on the best-dressed lists brought encouragement to the men: "Skirts have been up down so many times I don't care. Surely women have enough intelligence to adapt lengths to their own figures now." Maybe the average housewife feels the same way. Let's hope so for the sake of the family budget.

But don't be too confident men. The little lady always retains the right to change her mind.

Off To A Good Start In The New Year

Pitt County's new fiscal year is slightly more than one month old, and the county commissioners are well on their way to filling two pressing needs which confronted Pitt on July 1.

The commissioners have hired a new health officer with an impressive list of qualifications and recommendations to fill the important post which has been vacant for many months because of the illness of Dr. T. G. Baanight. The health department has been one of the weak links in the county departmental organization for a number of months; but with the assumption of duties by the new health officer September 1, there should be a marked improvement in the functioning of the department.

Public health is an item which is of the utmost importance to every citizen of the county, and an item which must not be neglected if the county's welfare is to be given first consideration.

The commissioners, while they have by no means resolved the question, are making progress with the matter of a revaluation of property in Pitt County. The county has not had a revaluation of property in years, and the glaring inequities among the valuations now on the tax books have been pointed out time and again to the commissioners.

From time to time during the past two years, the commissioners have given passive consideration to the matter of a complete revaluation, but until recently there was little sign of progress toward that goal. Recently, the commissioners apparently have been taking the matter seriously and are in the process of making a thorough study of the revaluation programs being carried on by other counties in this section of the state.

When these studies are completed, we hope the commissioners will take the necessary and sorely needed action to call for a complete revaluation of property in Pitt County by a group of outside experts.

There are many things Pitt County needs which as yet have been untouched, but if the commissioners continue to make through the year the type progress they have made during the first month of the new year, they will have a record of which Pitt County will be proud.

National Whirligig

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—The Republicans' earlier confidence that the nomination of General Eisenhower would enable them to ride gaily and effortlessly into the White House has been shattered by the Democrats' counterattack under Stevenson-Sparkman leadership.

It is doubtful if public sentiment has ever been so fluid and undetermined in the wake of the major parties' convention. It puzzles the mind-readers in both camps.

In nominating Ike, the GOP made obeisance to the five millions of non-partisan independents they must enlist in order to out the "ins." They counted on his demonstrated military and diplomatic ability, his integrity, his non-participation in domestic wrangles, to attract millions who had not voted in 1948, or who had preferred Truman to the onerous and defeated Dewey. He was the "new face," replacing grim-visaged professionals.

SUPPORT—Most of all, perhaps, they relied on nationwide support from lazy Republicans, honest Democrats and on-the-fence groups, whose only interest in the 1952 contest would be to "drive the Missouri gang" from the White House.

Ike's generous and tolerant nature, together with Truman's unpopularity, buttressed their belief that the military hero could shift at least six southern states into the Republican column.

QUANDARY—The Democrats' selection of Stevenson has altered that rosy picture, as even the hard-headed Republican strategist admit. His record as chief executive of a great state, his anti-corruption activities in graft-ridden Illinois, his reluctance to run, and finally, his moving acceptance address, have slowed what might have been an emotional stampede to the soldier.

It is, perhaps, correct to say that the Stevenson selection has not detached voters from Ike as yet. But it has raised doubts in their minds on the question of making a choice until they have seen and heard both men in action. The most frequently heard comment, and the most descriptive of this large unorganized voting group's quandary is:

"I had planned to vote for Eisenhower—for any Republican—but now I don't know. If I were sure that Stevenson would get rid of the Truman gang, and give us an administration that did not sell out to a few selfish interests for the sake of votes, as in the steel strike, I might change over."

"But Stevenson has got to prove to me that he will fire the Vaughans, Dawsons, Achesons and the whole caboodling bunch Truman has around him. I know that Ike will."

ALBATROSS—Eisenhower, however, has his own flock of unlicky albatrosses. His close associates at Denver still worry that the biggest and blackest bird—Tom Dewey—flapped his wings and crowed so triumphantly at Chicago like Truman, he must be unloaded somehow, or the Middle and Far West will become dubious territory.

Another recognized difficulty is the former European commander's supposed lack of knowledge of domestic problems, especially financial and monetary questions. Even before he was nominated, such an old friend and colleague as "Honest Abe" Harriman expressed regret that Ike was so ignorant on the most elementary, domestic questions.

This may become one of the most effective arguments against the GOP nominee. Even if he answers hostile sallies honestly and well, there will follow the retort that their content consists of only a synthetic accumulation obtained in a few months from cram sessions with advisers at Denver.

For these and other reasons, the political pendulum that had been swinging likewise so violently, has halted pending the hour when both must unveil and reveal themselves by themselves.

SERIOUS—It is understood that none of the religious faiths having iron-clad laws against divorce will comment or take any stand on the question, for that would be tantamount to interfering in American politics. Moreover, many members of those sects differ from the hierarchy's hard-and-fast attitude.

But divorce is a rather serious matter with many individuals. It is the paramount matter with some. It could lose votes for Stevenson, even though he seems to have been the victim rather than the villain. Anyway, the Democratic high command named him after full consideration of the problem.

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

August 5, 1952
The Villains of the World
USA
Dear Folks,

This letter is addressed to you in general because one of you is guilty of setting a bad example. My daughter Nancy, who will be two in September, will not consistently say "Please" or "Thank you."

Every neighbor we have, and we are thoroughly familiar with all of their manners, never fails to extend to everybody every courtesy possible; therefore, we can eliminate our neighbors entirely from the "guilty" group. It must have been elsewhere that Nancy heard somebody fail to say "Please" or "Thank you." She had to catch this awful habit from somebody except us or the neighbors.

It's almost too obvious to mention, but you can rest assured that our own backyard was in order before we went out on a limb and wrote you this letter. Even when W. R. and I are in ill moods, we bow and scrape to each other and express every courtesy known to man, and probably some unknown, in order to rest assured that Nancy will follow suit. Yet, it seems to fall to rub off on her.

To keep us from giving up entirely, she will slip in an occasional spurt of encouragement. When we least expect it, she has manners. For a while we considered the possibility that the words "Please" and "Thank you" were too hard to pronounce. That theory died with a thud one day when she started talking about paprika, a day after we had mentioned the subject. If she can remember a seasoning that we didn't even ask her to, she can certainly remember to have manners. There's only one reason, and And I'll thank you.

BUILDINGS—The commerce and industry committee of the state board of conservation and development devoted a good part of its time at the recent Morehead City meeting discussing the problem of providing sites and buildings for industrial plants. A sub-committee was authorized to further study the matter and report back at a future meeting. The discussion brought out information that many manufacturing concerns, from outside as well as from within the borders of North Carolina, would begin operations if they had adequate buildings, but that in some instances either because of insufficient capital for the whole project, or because the management wanted the locality to have a stake in it, the industry required that the community furnish the building. Just how far the state or any political subdivision like a county or a municipality should go in this direction is an open question. If private local money can be found the situation takes care of itself. It is highly doubtful that the colors would sustain revenue bond issues or that investment bankers would buy local issues for such purpose.

REAL ESTATE—That is one of the less bothersome problems in the overall activities of government with respect to real estate. The C&D board met another phase of it in declining to sell portions of the commercial fisheries headquarters tract at Morehead City for a Presbyterian church on one side and an outdoor theater on the other. Admittedly, the State does not have immediate need for the land, but the community would not like to see the title from all the people to one or two special interest groups. That identical phase of the whole problem comes up at almost every meeting of the state board of education, and frequently is before other state boards and commissions. And while there are more requests to buy land from the State, there are frequent proposals of private owners to sell to the State for future buildings, parks or forests.

HOUSING—A matter that gives state officials far more concern than any other angle of the real estate business is housing for state members and employees of the several institutions. Successive advisory budget commissions have wrestled with that question for years without finding a satisfactory answer. At almost every institution visited, college or hospital or correctional school, since the housing shortage developed in the depression years, the budgeteers are told that the institutions simply cannot obtain or retain personnel to carry on the work unless they can offer reasonably adequate living quarters. The trend at public institutions seems to be the reverse of that at industrial plants. The old feudal type "mill villages" have disappeared from the map. Instead of company ownership of houses the trend has been definitely toward individual home ownership of the employees. While industry was moving in that direction, State institutions have moved toward greater concentration of professional and salaried employees in public-owned homes and apartments.

PERQUISITES—There is an involved and complicated question of how the value of living quarters and other perquisites offered by the State institutions can be related to the matter of equality in compensation. That problem has become acute since the impact of federal taxes on personal income has been felt. In former times the difference between a fixed cash salary and a smaller salary with "room and board" represented only the estimated value of room and board. Under present conditions, of withholding taxes on cash payments of salary and probably not withholding from "perquisites" the differential is very much wider.

TAXES—Further discrepancies occur by reason of the fact that State owned houses are free of local ad valorem taxes, while privately owned property must pay county and municipal levies. Therefore, public housing is in direct competition with taxpaying housing for the patronage of industrial employees. It is a Hydra-headed problem any way you look at it.

FARMS—Then comes the problem of institutional farms. Each of the mental hospital units has a farm. Several of the educational institutions have, and most of the correctional schools. Operation of the farms is justified—or sought to be justified—by three or four arguments. Chief among them in frequency of presentation and in

What Other Papers Are Thinking

PICKING OUT CANTALOUPE (Greensboro Daily News)

Some of the editorial brethren about the state have gotten around to the seasonal topic of how to select a good cantaloupe.

Without giving them a short answer, were disposed, on the basis of what expert testimony we have been able to secure and our own household's experience, to advise that there simply isn't any formula for guaranteed results.

We got in touch with the Guilford County farm agent and the Negro home demonstration agent at A. and T. College, and both came up with the same answer. We don't know any way that can be counted upon. Try to get a cantaloupe that is firm and healthy-looking, advised the former. Look for one that's firm all around and a little bit soft on the ends, admonished the latter. At the other end of the telephone in both instances it was agreed that "we wish we knew how."

Various amateurs to whom we have talked were just as uncertain and unassuming. Some said they picked by color, others by smell and still others by texture, and quite a few in combination. Varieties of cantaloupes of course had their champions; just get a Rocky Ford, an Emerald Gem or some other favorite variety and you'll be all right.

A native Scotland countian, born and raised in the state's cantaloupe country was perhaps a little more specific than anybody. "I don't know as I can tell you how to tick a good one," he declared, "but I can tell a good one when I see it." He did stress that the melon should be "netted" and that it should "not be green but straw colored between the nets." This particular connoisseur "lowed as how there is all the difference in the world between the vine-ripened cantaloupes and those which are pulled for shipping. The latter may turn yellow but they never get sweet and luscious like those which are not pulled prematurely.

All in all, you just have to take your chances with cantaloupes. And to show you what a sorry picker we are, with our very seriousness fitting somewhat into a formula, those that we think look best turn out worst and those that look worst or scrawniest turn out to be most flavorful.

Business Today

There may be a lesson for other kinds of landlords, as well as hotel owners, in changes that have just been completed in one of the larger New York hotels.

The management first made an analysis of just what it was getting from each square foot of space. It found out quite a few thousand of them weren't paying their way. Then it set out to do something about it.

First it shrank the space used by executives. A 20-by-30-foot office on the mezzanine might put the importance of an assistant manager or a controller, but it didn't swell the profits of the hotel corporation. Accounting, personnel and linen supply rooms were put in smaller space.

Into the space gained it moved a private club from one of the upper floors and converted the old club rooms into guest rooms. A waste area in one of the hotel dining rooms was leased to a luncheon club.

When the hotel was built, a number of rooms for maids had been constructed because in those pre-union days it was customary for them to sleep in. These were converted into the guest rooms. Now the hotel is converting an unused swimming pool and Turkish bath into rent-paying space.

A total of 10,000 square feet has been reclaimed and accommodations provided for 150 more guests. The renovations cost $75,000 and are expected to increase the hotel's revenues by $150,000 a year.

A landlord or a lessee doesn't have to have a hotel to apply these principles. There are hundreds of establishments in which non-productive space could be converted into revenue-producing areas.

The problem is not always obvious. Sometimes space can be gained by transferring records to cheaper storage space or by moving certain departments into low-cost space elsewhere. A number of large corporations have moved accounting and billing research, record-storage and other departments out of town at savings so large that the cost of direct wire connections is insignificant.

In retailing, there is a greater awareness of the necessity of making every square foot produce revenue. Despite that, very many stores have areas that could be used more profitably, perhaps to carry a new line.

COMPANIES LIKE EXPORTS, BUT NOT VERY MUCH. Mill & Factory magazine takes a mild view of the importance of exports. It conducted a survey among industrial firms of all types and found that 86 per cent of the firms responding sold 10 per cent or less of their products in export markets and 92 per cent replied that sudden loss of export trade would have little or no effect on operations. On the other hand 27 per cent said that exports are essential to maintaining full employment; 32 per cent said that exports were necessary for future well-being, and 42 per cent are planning to increase export operations in the next two years.

PRICE GRYPATIONS CUT BURLAP MARKET. On April 6, 1951, burlap prices reached an all-time high. Demand was high, supply was short because of the difficulty in getting the fiber from Pakistan, where it is grown, to Calcutta, where it is milled; speculators were inflating the price and the government of India collected a heavy export duty.

American users, constituting the largest market, began using substitutes. Some began experimenting with kenaf and other fibers; others switched to cotton or paper. Then the bottom fell out. The Indian government cut the duty in half and warned dealers they were losing the American market. Today prices are the lowest they have been since the start of World War II.

Worrying India most is the fact that it may never regain part of the market high prices lost. Many of those forced to use substitutes now find them satisfactory.

TWO "AIDS" PUBLISHED FOR SMALL BUSINESS. The Small Defense Plants Administration has produced two new "aids for small business." They are leaflets on "Reducing Accident Costs Through Safe Working Conditions," and "Sharpening Certain Metal Cutting Tools Used in Machine Shops." They are free at SDPA and Department of Commerce field offices.

NEW PRODUCTS BINDER. An aluminum interlocking dowel, said to fasten wood or metal without use of glue, screws, nails or bolts, has been designed by Interlocking Metal Dowel Co., 7725 Brookline Terrace, Richmond Hts., Mo. It is said to permit assembly or disassembly of furniture in 30 seconds, save shipping and storing costs, and eliminate need for rungs, corner and leg bracing.

SHINES: A product said to give house plants a life-time dust-free shine is being marketed by Schultz Co., St. Louis, Mo. Containing schlorophyll, it is said to aid growth, can be easily applied, dries and shines instantly, and will restore lustre to artificial leaves as well.

this crew of corner cavaliers. But somehow time tamed them, and when I did grow up they didn't seem clever and gallant and reckless. They just seemed like sad lost men desperately trying to forget their insecurity. Had they changed, or had I? Anyway, I never got to be one of them—a real Saturday night sport.

Hal Boyle's Column

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—There is a period in the lives of most boys when they want to be a cowboy, a fireman or a cop.

When I was that age I had a different ambition. I wanted to grow up and be a "Saturday night sport." It seemed like life could hold nothing finer.

You don't see many Saturday night sports anymore. Like the village blacksmith, time has passed them by. But to me they will always have a memorial glamor, because they were the heroes of my childhood.

Just what was the Saturday night sport? Well, he was the forerunner of the cake-eater, the drugstore cowboy, and the modern-day corner wolf. But he was much more than these. He had a flair, an aura of temporary splendor about him—the nonchalant air of a dead-game guy ready for any adventure.

During the week the Saturday night sports of my childhood were just ordinary fellows grubbing out a living. One was an undertaker's assistant. One was a grocery clerk. One worked in a cleaning shop. Another had a steady job with the city.

But on Saturday night they crawled out of the cocoon of the commonplace. They met at the corner barbershop and took turns lolling in the chair like millionaires while Verne, the barber, gave them the works—shave, haircut, massage and tonic.

All the time they kept up a line of rapid-fire chatter, knowing inside stuff about baseball, babes, and politics. I was selling newspapers on the corner then, and I used to love to come into the barbershop and sit quietly and listen to them.

Every once in a while one of them would toss me a nickel for a two-cent paper and say, "That's all right, sonny, keep the change." It wasn't the three-cent bonus that thrilled me although in those vanished days a fellow of my years didn't sneeze at a three-cent tip. It was the offhand magnificence with which they did it. J. P. Morgan couldn't have shown more aplomb in buying a yacht.

When they were all barbered and shined, these corner dandies would nudge each other and say: "Well, sport, let's go out and paint the town a new color." This rather puzzled me, because when I woke up the next morning the town was still the same color. On the way to church I always stopped off at the barbershop for a shoe shine, and the Saturday night sports would be gathered there again.

They were dapper in their Sunday suits, straw hats and two-tone shoes, but they had a tired look around the eyes.

"Well, sport, what kind of a night did you have?" they'd ask each other. And to hear them talk a fellow'd think one of them had been drinking champagne with Theda Bara, the vamp queen of the silent screen.

They were wonderful liars. To brag was all right according to their code. The one thing a fellow didn't do was complain. If you had hard luck, well, sport, that's life.

I worshipped these Saturday night sports, and could hardly wait to grow up so I could join parties in the Capital were talking the "party line" in the Capital these days, but it's purely social, stretching out along Embassy Row.

Ambassador Tran Van Kha of Annam, recognized Vietnam and Mme. Kha were among those entertaining recently a reception. The ambassador, who was received by President Truman July 1, speaks little English, his attractive wife none, but both speak fluent French, a common language among diplomats here. Their son Henri, interpreted into English for them. Mme. Kha has beautiful diamonds and a fabulous collection of jade jewelry. The Khas and their young daughter, Susan, have left to spend a month in Vietnam.

Another interesting affair was the cocktail party given by the Korean Ambassador and Mme. Yang. The delegate from Hawaii and Mrs. Joseph R. Farrington were honor guests. The ambassador met the Farringtons in Honolulu where he practiced medicine for 28 years before coming to Washington last year. The Yang's children, Sheila, 12, and Channing B., were born in Honolulu, and Dr. Yang once attended the University of Hawaii there. The guests were served with the Korean dishes arranged at the buffet. Fry included a spicy cucumber and beef dish called Pool-Ko-Ki.

There was much entertaining during the visit of Prince Abdullah Al-Faisal Al-Saud, Saudi Arabia's minister of public health and minister of the interior who flew from his air-conditioned palace in Mecca to visit U. S. hospitals, medical centers, schools and public works projects. The handsome, colorfully-garbed prince is the grandson of Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia. He made his first visit to this country in 1945.

Cocktails were not served at the party given by the Saudi Arabian ambassador, Sheikh Asad Al-Faqui, due to religious beliefs. But exotic dishes like roast lamb stuffed with spiced rice, rilled cabbage leaves filled with rice, salads and cold meat seemed to satisfy everyone.

Among other shindigs these dog days in the Capital were the parties given by the Pakistan Ambassador and Mme. Mohammed Ali, who were "pekhoras" or fritters made from spices, powdered chipped pea flour and ground vegetables were a delicacy, and the huge reception given by the Chinese Ambassador, Gen. Wang Shu-Ming.

of Conway, S.C. are spending a few days with her mother, Mrs. L. B. McCormick. Mrs. Davis is the former Anne McCormick.

Bethel Firemen At Convention

BETHEL — Three Bethel firemen left this morning to attend the North Carolina Firemen's association convention being held in Greensboro for three days beginning today.

Firemen making the trip are: Delton E. Perry and Walter Gray, who are official delegates, and George Abeyunis, assistant Fire Chief of the Bethel department.

The trio will return to Pitt County at the close of the meeting on Thursday.

Rotary Club Hears Talks On Festival And Politics

Rotarians heard two brief talks here last night, one on the Farmers Tobacco Festival to be held in Greenville August 12 and 13, and one on the national Democratic convention.

Bancroft Moseley, chairman of the festival this year, praised the farmers of Pitt County as "the group that made Greenville what it is today," and urged Rotarians to join wholeheartedly in the entertainment of rural families in Greenville during the festival.

"If our fall is prosperous, we will have a good year," Moseley said, "and it is the farmer who makes your business good." The speaker cited agricultural progress made by rural families during the past half century by pointing out that in 1900 it took two farm families to support one family in town; but now, with improved methods, one farm family can support eight families in town.

The speaker outlined briefly the long list of activities planned for the Farmers Tobacco festival. Highlight of Tuesday's entertainment will be the beauty pageant at which a rural girl will be chosen Miss Bright Leaf of 1952 and will win a five-day stay at the Escape Hotel in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Spencer Mims and his Collegians will provide the music for the beauty pageant, and Herb Gupton and his orchestra will play for the dance following the pageant.

On Wednesday there will be a parade, afternoon and evening performances by well known hillbilly bands and personalities.

In the second talk of the evening at the Rotary Meeting, Dave Whichard, managing editor of The Daily Reflector who attended the Democratic convention in Chicago commented on a few of the highlights of the convention.

Whichard praised Senator Russell of Georgia as the most capable man in the race for the Democratic nomination, and asserted the Georgian had widespread support from delegates outside the South, he stated. He said the unit rule used in the convention by many state delegations prevented Russell from picking up two or three votes from several delegations which he would otherwise have received in the balloting.

Whichard said practically every Southern delegation was prepared to swing its votes to Stevenson in the event it appeared the Harriman-Kefauver coalition might get the nomination. As it happened, he pointed out, the Harriman-Kefauver group could not muster enough votes to pose a serious threat to Stevenson on the third ballot, and the Southern states stuck by their first choice for the nomination, Senator Russell.

In explaining the polling of many state delegations during the balloting, Whichard said on the second ballot it was done to prevent a switching of votes from one candidate to another by individual delegates; and on the third ballot the polling of delegations for the most part was done to give party leaders time to work out the vice-presidential choice after the nomination of Stevenson for president was practically assured.

At the meeting last night, vice president Badger Johnson presided in the absence of President Knott Proctor. Guests at the meeting were Bill Taft, Dr. John Wooten, B. C. Satterfield and Herman Hickman of Greenville and Arthur Smith of Shreveport, La. Hal Edwards of Ayden was the only visiting Rotarian at the meeting.

40 Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR August 5, 1912

Miss Gretchen Parker returned Monday evening from Kinston.

Mrs. E. W. Harvey and child returned Monday evening from a visit in Reidsville.

Miss Ruth Cobb returned this afternoon from Beaufort.

Scuppermons will be along soon.

In two weeks the tobacco market will be open and everybody should be hustling.

It is easier to sink the ship of state than to raise it. Hence the importance of having the right crew.

Tomorrow Governor Wilson will be notified of his nomination for the presidency, quite sudden, being as how the nomination was made no longer ago than July 2. But his speech of acceptance will be something worth waiting for.

Two Cars Collide Near Falkland

FALKLAND — Two cars collided near here yesterday afternoon causing considerable property but no serious injuries to the occupants.

Cars driven by Vernon Little, 18, of Route 1, Fountain, traveling east on Highway 222 at a reported speed of 15 miles per hour when it was struck from behind by a car operated by Joseph Walter Harris, 42, of Falkland.

Patrolman Delton E. Perry of Bethel, investigating officer, stated that Little was making a left hand turn into a private drive at the time the accident occurred.

An estimated $300 damage resulted to the Harris car while over $150 was caused to the Little car.

The accident occurred around one o'clock near Dupree's Cross Roads, in front of the Wiley Anderson residence.

No charges were made.

GIRLS IN NO HURRY

SINGAPORE (UP)—In the first six months of this year only three marriages of girls under 15 years took place at the Singapore registry. There was no last-minute rush by teen agers to marry before the ban on marrying under the age of 16 came into force on July 1.

Milder Weather

The highest temperature in the Greenville area yesterday was 91 degrees. Lowest last night 72, and at 8 a.m. today the mercury stood at 86 degrees. No rain.

Yesterday a year ago, the highest temperature here was 98 degrees. Lowest that night 72, and at 8 a.m. next day it was 78. Light shower that night.

GYPSIES MAKE WHOPPEE
LISBON (UP)—A two-day, non-stop gypsy wedding feast held on the moors near here polished off 50 roasted lambs, 400 pounds of almonds, 240 bottles of beer, 50 bottles of anise and 100 gallons of wine. Three hundred gypsies flocked here from Spain and other parts of Portugal for the wedding of 15-year-old Tullia Vaza Da Sa and 19-year-old Jose Prudencia, whose parents are wealthy.

LAND OF APRICOTS
BERKELEY, Calif. (UP)—California apricots accounted for 85 per cent of all those grown in the United States and from 35 to 40 per cent of the world's supply, according to the University of California college of agriculture.

The American market was "cornered" for the first time in 1666 when Frederick Philippe created a shortage of wampum, burying several hogheads of it to force users of this medium of exchange to pay higher prices for it.

The Sport Reflector

By BOB HELDRUP

Today is the day that Little Leaguers in Greenville, Rocky Mount, Williamston and Farmville have been looking forward to.

At five this afternoon the Rocky Mount Americans and the Farmville entry will kick off the District I series. This series will decide which team will represent the district at the state playoffs in Wilmington later this month.

Little is known about the various teams that are here to compete. It is believed, however, that the Rocky Mount entries, one from their American League and one from their National League, will be the teams most likely to give Greenville trouble.

The various citizens connected with the Greenville Little League have worked hard to make this tournament a good one. Many words of thanks should go to all those connected with the entire project.

There is going to be some of the best baseball ever played in Greenville at the Little League park this week and those fans that aren't on hand will really be missing something.

Greenville plays its first game tomorrow afternoon at 3 against the Rocky Mount Nationals. At five tomorrow Williamston, which drew an opening round bye, will play the winner of this afternoon's Rocky Mount American-Farmville game.

Football is in the air and it won't be long before the teams, high school, college and pro, take to the gridiron. Within the next several weeks the call to action will be given by several area high school clubs. It has been announced that Kinston, the team that stomped the Greenville Phantoms soundly 40-6 last year, will be one of the first clubs to begin operation.

Speculation is already being heard on the Big Four season in Carolina this year. Present odds seem to favor the Duke Blue Devils with a neck and neck battle shaping up between Carolinas.

State and Wake Forest.

This coming fall will see the Southern Conference performing with two less clubs than before. Both Maryland and Clemson have been suspended from the conference for playing bowl games unsanctioned by the rest of the league. The ejection of these clubs leaves the south with three top notch independent gridiron schools.

Virginia, a long time abstainer from Southern Conference play, is the only major southern independent. The Cavaliers last year had one of the nation's better ball clubs. They romped through the season losing but one contest, a stunning upset to Washington & Lee.

This year the Virginians are favored in all but one contest. The one game that is rated a toss-up is with Duke. The Blue Devils up in Durham from Charlottesville on even terms last fall in Durham but in the final period the Cavaliers emerged victorious.

Many people have wondered why Virginia does not belong to the Southern Conference. The reason, as we understand it, is because of the help that is given football players.

At the time the disension arose between the Cavaliers and the rest of the conference, the signing of a paper was required by all member schools.

This paper stated that the schools that signed would not give aid to their players beyond a certain limit. Rather than sign and continue to help their players beyond the limit allowed, the University refused.

Their argument was, in effect, that all schools "paid" their players and that rather than lie about it, they wouldn't sign. The Charlottesville administration was not denying that they gave more help than was allowed to their athletes, they just felt that it wasn't right to say you weren't and then have everyone go ahead and do it anyway.

Raschi Wins Eleventh Straight As Yankees Conquer Senators By 1-0

New York Loses Five In Row On Late Road Trip; Longest Losing Streak Since Stengel Named Manager

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP)—The baseball burial society which each year about this time digs a neat grave for the pennant hopes of the New York Yankees once more could wind up with a big hole in the ground, latest events indicated today.

Once again the Yankees have come back to life, leaving their mourners without a corpse. There had been signs of a real crack-up during their current road trip when they dropped five games in a row for the longest losing streak during the four-year administration of boss Casey Stengel.

Then, in a manner befitting three time world champions, they rebounded to win a Sunday double header from the Browns, took a seemingly endless train ride to Washington and got there just in time to go out and score an outstanding 1 to 0 victory over the Senators last night.

Quick Vic Raschi, with fire in every pitch, struck out eight batters, gave up only six hits and wound up with his 11th straight victory.

They wound up with a 3-1-2 game margin over the second place Indians, which isn't a relaxing lead at this stage of the race, but considerably better than the half-game margin they enjoyed over the same team at the corresponding date in the 1961 campaign.

The Yankees still have three more games to play in Washington and they have no picnic in store when they return home Friday night to play the fourth-place Red Sox, whom they lead by 4 1/2 games. But even though Washington is tough, the Yankees have beaten them seven out of 10 times this year, including last night's thrasher.

Loser Bob Porterfield deserved a better fate. The only Yankee run was unearned, coming in the sixth after catcher Mickey Grasso fumbled a topped grounder by Hank Bauer.

It marked the fourth 1 to 0 defeat for Porterfield this year and the sixth loss he has suffered in which his mates were shut out.

Tonight as the teams resume a full program after a day in which the Yankee-Senator game was the only one scheduled, the Indians play two at Chicago, while Boston must face bitzy Bobby Shantz, hottest pitcher in the majors, who will be going for his 20th victory against just three defeats at Philadelphia. The Tigers and Browns meet at St. Louis in the other game with Detroit shooting to get out of last place and push St. Louis there.

In the National League, the Dodgers, once more 6 1-2 games in front, take on the Giants in the Polo Grounds in what now shapes up as an anti-climactic series.

The Phillies, trying to catch the third place Cardinals, play a double header at Boston, while St. Louis opposes the last place Pirates at Cincinnati.

In an exhibition clambake at Boston last night in which they did everything but sell quilts for charity, the Red Sox topped the Giants, 1 to 0, on Johnny Lipon's homer. The Reds topped the Indians, 7 to 5, in another exhibition.

Brigham Young created, in 1868, the Zion's Co-operative Mercantile Institution, which became the country's first department store.

Olympic Fighter Plans To Retire

HELSINKI (AP) It took a coach's threat, a set of fixed grocery scales and a lot of steaming hot baths to make Norvel Lee the outstanding boxer of the 1962 Olympic Games.

The tall Negro light-heavyweight from Washington, D. C., is taking home a giant silver trophy as a symbol of that honor, awarded him after America's sweep of five ring championships.

"And it's a great way to end a career," said Pete Mello, the U.S. coach.

"I told Norvel he should now hang up his gloves. He's 27. Norvel said, 'anything you say, coach'."

"You know, Lee was beaten in the first round of the Olympic trials back home," Mello continued.

"This was heavyweight, of course. Lee is a four-time national champion and three-time Golden Gloves heavyweight champion. He was outpointed by a boy named Floyd Willis, who later lost to Ed Sanders."

"It appeared for certain he would be lost to the team. He was ready to go back to Washington from Kansas City. I told him not to worry. He would be on the team."

YESTERDAY'S STAR
By UNITED PRESS
Quick Vic Raschi, who pitched his 11th straight victory, 1 to 0, for the Yankees over the Senators, giving up only six hits.

By LEO H. PETERSEN
United Press Sports Editor
HELSINKI (UP)—Russia served notice today that it was out to achieve its Olympic objective by winning the 1956 games at Melbourne, Australia — and judging from their performance here, they may attain it.

As a matter of fact, the surprise of the 1952 games here was the unexpectedly strong showing made by Russia and the other five Communist countries.

The Russians revealed they will keep pressing the International Olympic Committee to adopt officially the European point scoring system used by Russia. It differs from the unofficial American system in that it awards only seven points for first place instead of ten. Otherwise, it is the same, five for second, four for third, three for fourth, two for fifth and one for sixth.

However, the U. S. won the 1952 games under both systems.

One of those impressed by the performance of the Russians was Brutus Hamilton, coach of the U.S. track and field team.

"They have come a long way," he said. "They are in perfect physical condition and it is evident they are coaching under American field tactics—probably from motion pictures—but they have done a thorough and efficient job of it."

The flaw Hamilton saw in the Russian performance was that their track stars "did not make the most use of their speed."

"They showed they had the speed all right, but they don't know those little tricks that make the difference between victory and defeat. For instance, they do not pace themselves as well as our boys. They also aren't as good as we are on saving ground and in sticking out the chest in hitting the tape."

"But it won't be long before they'll overcome that. It surely should be interesting at Melbourne because the rest of the world, as well as Russia, is catching up with us in track and field."

Sneed Looks To Thursday's Play

By CHARLES CHAMERLAIN
CHICAGO (AP)—A beaming Sam Sneed, his lost confidence restored, looks eagerly to Thursday's start of golf's most fantastic money chase the $90,000 "World Championship" at Tam O'Shanter Country Club.

First award in this 72-hole scramble of leading pros is $25,000, an unprecedented golf payoff that sets Sneed and all the rest straining at the leash.

"That bankroll will cause a lot of choke-ups," said Sneed. "A 277 might be good to win. Right now I'd settle for 275, sit back and collect all the bets."

Sneed was feeling chipper. Yesterday he scampored through a downpour that struck while he was on the eighth hole for a fourth round 65. This gave him a 271 total to breeze to victory in Tam's All-American Tourney.

His 17-under-par tally was good for the $3,420 first prize with an eight stroke edge over Tommy Bolt. Bolt, the peppery Durham, N.C., pro who led Sneed by one stroke entering the finale, faded to a closing 74 for 279 and $21360.

Little Leaguers

The Little League District I tournament opens this afternoon at 5 p.m. at Little League park. The opening contest will be played between the Farmville entry and the Rocky Mount Nationals.

Greenville will play its first game tomorrow afternoon at 3 p.m. against the Rocky Mount Nationals.

BILLY SERMONS

Rugged Billy Sermons, the Jaycees' hard hitting rightfielder, has slugged his way to the top of the heap of batters. His .521 batting average is the second best in the league and his two homers are also second best. As far as fielding is concerned, there is no better outfielder in the Little League.

Twice this week Sermons has won crucial games by slamming home-runs. It was his 220 foot homer over the high center field wall that won the deciding game of the championship series.

Billy is a big boy compared to others in the League, but he displays grace and agility when chasing flies. He has extraordinary reflexes as his terrific batting eye proves.

Sermons seemed to be swinging for homers every time he came to the plate last week. In those two games in which he slammed four-baggers, he tied team mate, Kluta Fisher, for homerun honors and both times Fisher homered after him to keep his lead.

Billy Sermons is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Sermons who reside on Student Street.

Farmville Plays

Farmville will play the Cherry Point Flyers tomorrow night at 8 at the Farmville park. This is the rubber game of a three game series.

James Hardison is slated to pitch for the Farmville club.

Beginning with tomorrow night's game, there will be a contest scheduled for the Farmville park every night this week.

Jo Ann Rooke Receives Award In Talent Show

Jo Anna Rooke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Rooke, of Sunset Ave., Greenville, took second place in the Kiwanis Club's amateur night last Thursday.

Young Miss Rooke entered the show by virtue of having won out in various talent contests held at city playgrounds this summer. She was entered in the under 14 classification.

During the last week of the city playgrounds celebrated "Pet and Animal" week. Bubble gum contests and ping pong playoffs were also held. The winners in the various competitions were:

Pet show—
Third Street—Alvin Leonard
14th Street—Wayne Sugg
River Park—Audrey Murray

Bubble gum—
Third Street—Jerry Drum
14th Street—Gail Coley
Cotanche—Bill Hardy

River Park—Bobby Winters and Esther O'Grady

In the city-wide ping pong tournament the winners were:

Judy Ballance, Butch Saleed and Jerry Drum, all from Third Street; Bobby Nunn, from Cotanche; and Jane Ward and Marvin Garrett from Eppees.

You Can Whisper - and Be Heard!

We should like to have you come in for a ride in a Golden Anniversary Cadillac. And when you do, we hope you will just sit back and relax . . . and listen!

And what will you hear?

Well, you'll hear the soft sound of the wind as it slips past the streamlined body . . . and, possibly, the quiet ticking of the electric clock.

But aside from these—you'll hear almost nothing. In fact, you'll find you can actually whisper—and be heard by your fellow-passengers!

We want you to experience this because nothing speaks more eloquently or more convincingly of motor car quality than—silence!

It tells you, first of all, that here is automotive engineering at its superlative best. For such silence of operation can only come when every phase of the car's performance is in perfect harmony.

It speaks of precision—for only the greatest accuracy in design and construction can result in such remarkable freedom from vibration.

It is a testimonial to fine craftsmanship—to quality materials—and to scientific styling.

And, of course, this marvelous quiet foretells many of the pleasures and satisfactions you would enjoy as the car's owner. It promises rest—and relaxation—and peace of mind . . . and a minimum of upkeep expense.

So why not take our suggestion—and come in and drive this beautiful Golden Anniversary creation? Let it tell you its own wonderful story through the things you cannot hear!

Women In The Church

Four prominent Washington, D.C., churchwomen are visiting United States Air Force installations in Europe for instruction conferences with local Sunday school teachers. These Protestant women were welcomed by Maj. General Charles Carpenter, chief of Air Force Chaplains. In their 65 day visit the women will hold a series of conferences at each installation to train Sunday school teachers in the latest methods. This is the first religious program of this type to be set up. The women are Mrs. F. Nelson Schelegel, Evangelical and Reformed Church; Mrs. Josephine E. Kyles, A.M.E. Zion; Miss Sally E. Chesser, Methodist; and Mrs. Edward Bodholdt, Presbyterian. A contingent of Catholic women will conduct a similar tour.

An institute for Methodist settlement house and community center staff and board members was held recently on the campus of Scarritt College, Nashville, Tenn. Mrs. Mabel Wagner, executive secretary of the Bureau of Urban Work of the Woman's Division of Christian Service, was in charge. Workshops were conducted in personnel policies, volunteers, public relations, camping, and program. Speakers included John McDowell, executive secretary, National Federation of Settlements and Neighborhood Centers, New York; Dr. Charles Laymon, minister, Columbus, Ohio; and William Kaufman, secretary of the Mobile (Ala.) Community Chest. More than 140 attended.

Methodist churchwoman Miss Edna F. Bair, of Phillipsburg, Pa., edits and publishes a daily newspaper "in keeping with her Christian ideals" and she makes a success of the venture. Crime news is played down, local juvenile delinquents are not mentioned by name, few court cases are featured. On the other hand, Miss Bair, whose father was a singing evangelist, differing from the national average of 1 1/2% of the editorial space for church news, devotes 10% to this cause. Because she does not believe them to be in the public interest, she turns down lucrative liquor and Sunday sports and entertainment advertising. Her principles apply also to the news columns. "We have been particularly careful to omit the type of pictures and stories that might be harmful to our younger readers," she says.

Cool Scents For Summer Necessary For Daintiness

By BETTY CLARKE
AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor

Smart girls will carry perfume sticks in their purses during the warm weather. It is a major task to try to keep fragrant on hot days. Strenuous exercise—tennis, golf, swimming—make perspiration glands go to work with extra zing.

Many a girl has retired to an out-of-the-way spot at a garden party or wedding because she fears offending people when her clothes become drenched with perspiration. Her deodorant and anti-perspirant have failed her at the moment, perhaps, but a couple of quick squirts of perfume or a fragrant stick which can be quickly rubbed along the arms, forehead or hands could keep her dainty and carefree until she gets home.

A carefully chosen fragrance can be a wonderful boost on a hot day. It is wise to steer away from heavy, sultry scents, however, as these are likely to prove too overpowering for summer taste.

Stick colognes are easy to use—one new one has a base which can be turned like a lipstick so that the cologne emerges, ready to be applied. Because they can't spill, stick colognes make excellent travelers—can be tucked in purse, weekend bag, or glove compartment of the car or in glove locker or desk drawer.

Here are a few tricks to help you look and feel cooler:

1. Apply stick perfume on palms of hands. It imparts a delicate fragrance.
2. Cool and scent the scalp with toilet water. Follow the line of your part with cotton-soaked toilet water. The alcohol will help eliminate stickiness and hair will be sweet-smelling.
3. When feet are hot after a hike or tennis match, take off shoes and apply toilet water to the feet, especially between the toes.

Many girls keep a bottle of their favorite cologne in the ice-box, pour it on a cloth and then place it over forehead and eyes when they are ready to take an afternoon nap. This is a wonderful pick-me-up particularly on vacation, a scented interlude in between an active afternoon and an evening date.

A 10-story steel-skeleton building, erected in Chicago in 1885, was the first "skyscraper."

Boys who swipe panties should be slapped by their aunts—

(Or father or mothers or cousins). That just about sums up the way red-blooded college boys feel about playful young men who create scenes by invading lingerie. Says handsome 19-year old freshman Charles Pawley of the University of Miami, who just has been elected "Mr. Formal" in national contest: "I guess the rest of us must defend the handful of boys who make college seem like a nursery school college boys like to have fun but not all of them act like idiots."

Charles thinks stunts such as goldfish eating, Mohawk-Indian hair cuts and pantie snatching get far too much publicity because so few students actually go in for that type of amusement.

He is happy about his "Mr. Formal" title, if for no other reason than to show that some young men are mature. He won as the result of contest held on more than 100 college and university campuses throughout the nation. Boys from each school submitted pictures in formal attire to a local group who picked a winner and then passed them on to a national board of judges consisting of fashion editors of newspapers and magazines. Says Charles:

"Read all the silly things you like about college boys, but when it comes to dressing up for a dance most of them can outshine their elders. A poll of college boys will prove they know what to wear even if they don't always have the clothes."

Charles recommends a white jacket for after-6 wear during the summer with a black, plaid or maroon cummerbund matching handkerchiefs are worn except with the black band which requires a white handkerchief.

Young men welcome formal wear today, he says, because they no longer are saddled with stiff shirts. Even the semi-starched pleated shirt is not required, and an ordinary-type white shirt with "lay-down" collar can be worn with a formal jacket. Patent leather shoes need not be worn, he says; ordinary black shoes are just as fashionable. Opera pumps are still worn with tails and white tie.

Charles has his own ideas on what a girl should wear when he takes her to a formal dance. He prefers a ballet length full skirted strapless evening dress.

He has several reasons for his choice. He finds long dresses are annoying to both girl and boy. She trips over her dress and so does the boy. And girls can never seem to dance with perfect ease when they are worried about their gowns being stepped on, he says.

Another reason he likes the shorter length dress is because "if a girl has pretty ankles and feet she should show them." He likes attractive evening shoes too, and doesn't see why a girl goes to a lot of bother selecting a lovely pair of evening shoes and then hides them with a long skirt.

Charles, who is getting a screen test and a $500 savings bond as a result of winning the "Mr. Formal" contest, says he prefers long hair to the poodle cut but "it depends on the girl. Some girls look prettier with short hair."

Although he is classified 1-A for military training, Charles expects to get a chance to do some Hollywood work at least on vacations while he is attending college. He manages to squeeze in some modeling jobs, which help keep him in small change. Why? So he can dress up more often and take the girls dancing, of course.

7 PENNIES WORTH NICKEL
WASHINGTON (AP) — A judge ruled that seven cents are worth a nickel if the pennies are placed on top of a parking meter. A motorist without a nickel to pay for parking, stacked seven pennies on a meter. He received a parking ticket but it was dismissed by the judge.

Clark To Speak At VFW Session

John G. Clark, delegate from the 1st District of North Carolina to the Democratic National Convention, will be the guest speaker at the regular supper meeting of the Charles Gray Morgan Post 7032, VFW, to be held at the Post Clubhouse at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, August 7.

All members are urged to be present to hear Clark discuss the highlights of the 1953 Democratic National Convention.

Mrs. Sewell To Address Bureau Here Thursday

Mrs. Charles W. Sewell, former Administrative Director of Associated Women of the American Farm Bureau, will be the principal speaker at a meeting of the Pitt Farm Bureau Thursday night.

The meeting will be held at 8 o'clock in the County Courthouse. Prior to the meeting, Mrs. Sewell will be honored at a dinner at the East Carolina College dining room.

A spokesman for the bureau stated that Mrs. Sewell is a world renowned traveler and speaker. "She is proclaimed by many as one of the most enthusiastic and inspiring speakers of our time," stated the spokesman.

LOST WEEK-END
LONDON (UP) — A truck driver parked his loaded trailer on a residential street, put red lights around it and left for the weekend. The result: The trailer sank to its axles in the street; the weight broke two water mains; residents of the neighborhood went without water for 12 hours; a wrecking crew worked for five hours to remove the 30-ton trailer and a road gang had to be called out to repair the street.

Ocean Ships Sail Into Great Lakes

MONTREAL (U.P.)—More than 40 specially-built ships are operating direct shipping service from ports in Europe up the St. Lawrence River to inland ports on the Great Lakes.

Nearly all of them were built since World War II exclusively for use as "ocean lakers" to serve Canadian shippers.

Shippers at lake ports said it eliminated the need for cargo to be transhipped at Atlantic or St. Lawrence ports. That way cut down transportation costs and worked out at lower prices for many things brought to Canada from overseas by ship.

A federal government survey showed that this season eight shipping companies were operating 41 vessels on regular, scheduled liner-berth sailings. They operated to and from the United Kingdom, northwest Europe and the Mediterranean. It was expected there also would be about 10 to 15 other, chartered, voyages during the summer months.

The lake ships cannot operate in winter because most of the St. Lawrence River, gateway to the Atlantic, is frozen over from around Christmas until halfway through April.

The biggest of the ocean lakers has a deadweight of no more than 3,100 tons and most average about 2,800 tons.

They don't have the graceful lines of conventional deep-sea craft. They have to be specially designed to pass through the canal lock system, and yet large enough and seaworthy enough to make the Atlantic crossing. To increase cargo capacity, the builders forsake normal lines of ocean-going ships and the hulls look blunt and square.

(Continued from page four) effectiveness is the training or therapeutic value of farm work for the patients or pupils. Next in importance is the claim that the farms are essential, particularly at the hospitals, in order to assure a certain and constant supply of milk and vegetables. Then there is the contention that the institutions can grow produce cheaper than they can buy it. That last argument is discounted, because it implies government competition with private enterprise for profit. Whether the institutional farms actually guarantee supply of fresh produce that would be unobtainable otherwise is a question for the economists and budgeteers. So far as the training and therapeutic elements are concerned the final word should be left to professional in charge of the institutions, and responsibility for the rehabilitation of the people under their jurisdiction.

COMPLEXITIES - It is easily understood that the trustees of the institutions, the members of the budget commission, and other state officials are accountable to the people for their administration of public affairs do not face a simple proposition. It is more complex by reason of its public stewardship angles. Decisions as to whether to sell or buy land, whether to build or not to build factories and dwellings, cannot be made solely on basis of economies, nor solely on basis of the best interest of the institution immediately involved. Numerous phases of general policy, the effect of precedent and the peculiar needs of each separate unit must be considered together. It is a big job that has been given to the members of the various boards and commissions—a job for which they receive almost no monetary compensation and infrequent appreciation.

School Lunchroom Managers Gather For Workshop; Nearly 125 Register

A workshop for school lunchroom managers and supervisors began here at East Carolina College Monday afternoon with near 125 registrations from central and eastern North Carolina.

Co-operating agencies include East Carolina College, the State Department of Public Instruction-School Lunch Section and the Distributive Education Section, the State Board of Health Nutrition Section, and the Food Distribution Branch of the U. S. Department of Agriculture Production and Marketing Administration.

Plans for the workshop were outlined in the first session Monday afternoon by Mrs. Sabrie W. Reid, Northeastern Area Supervisor of the School Lunch program, who is co-chairman of this session with Miss Christine Herring, Charlotte area supervisors.

Other members of the workshop staff include Mrs. Kathryn Woodard, Asheville area supervisor; Miss Sara Taylor and Miss Emily Cobb, Raleigh area supervisors; Miss Sarah Burton Jenkins, Queens College, Charlotte, consultant; Miss Dorothy Youland and Miss Marie Pfunder, nutrition consultants of the State Board of Health, Raleigh. Classes will continue through Friday afternoon, with three 90-minute courses daily, followed by a group assembly each afternoon.

Mrs. Reid said classes in food preparation will be conducted by Mrs. Woodard, Miss Taylor and Miss Cobb, with Miss Jenkins as consultant. The food handling service course will be directed by Miss Herring, and the menu planning and nutrition classes will be directed by Misses Youland and Pfunder.

The present workshop series is first of a three-year program with courses set up on a progressive basis, Mrs. Reid said.

Says Eye Tests Cut Car Wrecks

CHICAGO (UP) — Automobile accidents could be reduced five per cent annually by careful checking of drivers' vision, a vision expert says.

The reduction would save 67,000 motorists from death or injury, according to Prof. D. J. Moffie, director of North Carolina State College's occupational vision research division.

Moffie told a Midwest Safety meeting that he based his estimate of five per cent on results of driver vision examinations conducted by the North Carolina highway safety division.

In its tests the division used an "ortho-rater," a scientific instrument for measuring basic visual skills. The examination is required of all applicants for drivers licenses in his state, Moffie said.

He said the ortho-rater testing program had been used by industry in job selection and placement procedures.

Driver Fined On Reckless Count

FARMVILLE — A two car collision at Seven Pines near here Sunday afternoon resulted in one driver being charged with careless and reckless driving and heavy property damage to the cars involved.

Patrolman Bruce Jackson of Farmville, investigating officer, stated that a car operated by Bobby C. Joyner, 18, of Route 3, Walstonburg, rammed into the rear of a car operated by Frank Dickens, 21, of Route 1, Greenville as the Dickens car was attempting to make a right turn into a yard.

The force of the impact turned the Dickens' automobile completely around and caused the Joyner car to turn over several times, landing back up on all four wheels.

Joyner was charged with careless and reckless driving and was tried in Farmville City Court Monday morning and found guilty. He paid $25 and cost of court and the court recommended that his driver's license be revoked for a period of 12 months.

None of the occupants of the two cars was injured.

The White House was the first building erected by the government in Washington, D.C., and was modeled after the Irish palace of the Duke of Leinster.

Housewife Knew

ALBUQUERQUE (AP)—University of New Mexico scientists got out their Geiger counters, their laboratory equipment and their microscopes.

For days they studied the mass of black, porous material sent to them as the possible remains of one of the mysterious green fireballs. It was sent to them by a Macon, Ga., school teacher who said it apparently landed on her sidewalk in liquid form.

Finally, desperate, Dr. Lincoln La Paz, head of the university's Institute of Meteoritics, showed the stuff to his wife, Mrs. La Paz looked and sniffed and then proved:

You can puzzle a scientist but you can't fool a housewife when it comes to burned toast.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BARNUM, AP Real Estate Editor

With the weather getting hot as blazes we're all wishing we could keep our houses cooler in some simple and efficient way. Electric fans, window fans, attic fans seem to be selling faster than hot cakes. Still the sun beats down on the roof and we begin to think of insulation—or better insulation. Why not? It works in the sides of refrigerators and modern kitchen ranges. It ought to work better in houses.

Insulation is one of the most misunderstood and misused of all modern building materials. In some cases it has done far more harm than good. But you can't always blame the insulation itself. The way it's installed is usually the crux of the problem.

Engineers of the National Bureau of Standards in Washington have found that even architects and builders do not always understand all of the principles involved in the function of insulation. The result is that it's often installed in the wrong places, or in the wrong way, or wrong form and we have trouble.

Letters to this department tell of paint blistering and peeling off of outside siding in less than a year, wallpaper discoloring in patches, structural timbers rotting and houses filled with the odor of mildew. In virtually all of these cases insulation problems were involved.

To make insulation work you have to stop heat from passing. Since heat travels by three means, you have to check all three. These are (1) radiation, like the sun's rays; (2) conduction, as through the handle of an iron pan, and (3) convection, or circulation of warmed air.

The so-called vacuum bottle keeps liquids hot or cold for long periods because it does all three of these things. Its shiny surfaces, inside and out, check radiation by reflecting heat rays. The space between the inner and outer shells of the bottle checks conduction, because when one surface becomes warm its heat can't travel across the space by conduction. And with the space sealed, convection, or circulation of any air is minimized.

One reader, faced with a re-roofing and insulating problem, recently wanted to know if it wouldn't be a good idea to lay aluminum foil over his old roof and then put the new shingles on top of all modern home builders. And you can't keep it dry without an absolute vapor seal on or near the inner wall. A vapor barrier against the cold outer wall only increases condensation, soaks and negates cellular insulation and causes structural troubles.

Parisians Don't Note Own Parks

PARIS (AP)—Paris has a parks and gardens system unique among world capitals—and Parisians appreciate it less than anybody.

This is the disillusioned opinion of the man who looks after Paris' 7,400 acres of gardens and parks. Robert Joffet, conservator-in-chief of the city's green spaces, thinks little Parisians should be taught flower and tree appreciation in their schools, and he is ready to supply material for the courses.

Tourists grow lyrical over Paris' chestnut trees, but ask Joffet what is the Parisian's favorite tree, and he shrugs: "Frankly, they hardly know one from another. The French haven't a proper love of flowers, and they don't respect their parks and gardens."

Nevertheless, Paris has slightly more than one tree for every 10 Parisians, and the parks people every year put out one new plant for every two Parisians.

LOST THEIR HOMES

PUSAN, Korea (AP)—The Korean government estimates one-half of South Korea's 20 million people have been forced from their homes by the war. It says 40 per cent of the refugees are suffering "extreme hardships."

Outdoor Course Comes To Close

Twenty-one teachers were enrolled for the First Outdoor Education Laboratory which began at Crabtree State Park on July 21, and continued through Aug. 2, under sponsorship of East Carolina College, the North Carolina College of Public Instruction, and the North Carolina Resource-Use Education Commission. Scholarships for the course at Crabtree Creek Park were made available through the National Wildlife Federation and the Biltmore Garden Club.

Dr. Charles G. ... Department of Health and Physical Education of East Carolina College was assisted by Resource-Use Commission staff members, including Dr. Richard L. Weaver and Taylor Dodson, North Carolina Department of Public Instruction, and William Hammett, of the Wildlife Resources Commission, in directing the course. Numerous representatives of resource agencies assisted in the instructional program of the laboratory during the last week of the course. The program emphasized work in forestry, wildlife, geology, soil and water conservation, study and ornithology. Special techniques for teaching outdoors and directing school camps were demonstrated.

Nationalists To Admit Refugees

HONG KONG (AP)—The Chinese Nationalists have agreed to let 446 Chinese refugees from the Communists, now in a refugee camp here, go to Formosa.

They will be the first group of such refugees to be allowed on Formosa by the Nationalist Ministry of Defense this year. They include students, business and professional men, and a few former Chinese generals and officers of lower rank.

Many Apply For Record Of Birth

NEW YORK (AP)—The Department of Health, swamped with requests for copies of birth records, warned residents planning trips abroad to apply for certificates three weeks in advance of procuring passports.

An average of 1,600 requests for certificates has been coming into the bureau weekly. The demand is so heavy it sometimes takes two to three weeks to issue certificates.

Lightning Takes About 300 Lives As Annual Toll

NEW YORK (AP)—Lightning takes about 300 lives a year, says the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. in a warning that summertime is the period of greatest danger.

About one-fourth of all the deaths from lightning occur among persons who seek shelter under or near trees, say Metropolitan statisticians. After striking a tree a bolt may flash sideways or it may run along the ground killing anyone in its path.

Some of the activities lightning victims were engaged in when struck were: lurching in a wooded area, playing baseball in an open field, fishing in boats on open water, working in fields, gathering in the family washing from clothesline attached to trees, standing on a porch or swimming.

ANCIENT THEATER
DAMASCUS, Syria (AP)—An ancient Roman theater, parts of which are complete, and in good condition, has been discovered in Palmyra. The Syrian antiquities department also announced the discovery of the tomb of an ancient Palmyrene family. The tomb contained statues of members of the family and other objects of archeological importance.

Believes Pyramid Still Hides Its Biggest Secret

CAIRO, Egypt (UP)—The Great Pyramid of Cheops at Giza, one of the "seven wonders" of the world may not really have been built by the Pharaoh Cheops, one researcher thinks.

He suspects that perhaps behind the massive stones of that pyramid may be a sealed and yet undiscovered chamber which will reveal the true identity of the builder of the greatest edifice of its kind in the world to serve as his tomb.

The answers to his questions are likely to bring to light truths and treasures so far unsuspected by even the greatest Egyptologists, says Kenneth C. Dick, a free lance.

He is so intrigued by the fact that the "so-called" Pyramid of Cheops has an internal arrangement different from any other pyramid, that he even suspects it was not built by the ancient Egyptians at all but possibly by some other ancient people who conquered Egypt.

Dick is in Egypt to attempt to unfold what he thinks is the hidden story of the Great Pyramid. He says Egyptology needs "a lot of straightening out" and is convinced that some of the greatest treasures of ancient Egypt are still to be found. He said:

"I cannot accept the theories advanced in the past about the identity of the man who built the Great Pyramid because they are based on mere assumption and do not rest on conclusive evidence. In fact, there is not a symbol available—not even on a vase, a sarcophagus or a scarab—to say that Cheops was the builder. Yet there has been no one to challenge that assumption.

"I am not trying to tear down theories evinced before me, but to reconstruct the facts. In the process of doing this I must pull out a few loose stones and some Egyptologists are bound not to be pleased. But for progress sacrifice must be made."

The sandy-haired, 39-year-old archeologist draws a clue from the sarcophagus lying in the "king's chamber" of the Great Pyramid. He said:

"That sarcophagus is a puzzle. Here is a tremendous monument, and in it the lowliest sarcophagus of these times you can imagine. It does not lend itself to the magnificence of the monument. Its crudeness indicates, rather than may have served to bury a monkey but certainly not a king."

Has One Theory
What is now known as the "king's chamber" was perhaps originally designed by the genial builder of the pyramid as a pressure chamber to relieve part of the weight of the colossal monument on the limestone floor where on it stands, Dick said.

He believes it is very likely that a sealed and undetected chamber may be found within the pyramid worthier perhaps of being called the "king's chamber" than the present one, and with a sarcophagus more fitting to receive the body of a king than the present "stone box."

Dick asked the research departments of 16 American engineering firms, "as well as the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission at Oak Ridge," by what means they could detect a new chamber in the pyramid.

"They stated that no known instrumentation has yet been devised that will detect the presence of sealed chambers on so large a scale," he said.

Dick has arranged to undertake the detection of the new chamber with a group of French scientists from an engineering firm in Paris. He said their main tests will consist of electro-magnetic readings into the granite and limestone of the pyramid.

Words Confusing To Secretaries

NEW YORK (AP)—If you would like to be considered an ideal boss by your secretary, you should avoid slurring the spirants and fricative consonants when dictating.

Alexander L. Sheff, director of the Speedwriting Institute, says such consonants are apt to be in words which give secretaries the most trouble during dictation. These consonants are characterized by a continuous sound such as "th," "f," "s" or "v."

Such words as "freeze," "loath," "breath," "clothes" and "disburse" are likely to be confusing to secretaries.

Monday's Cases In Police Court

By CHESTER WALSH
In Police Court Monday, Judge Charles H. Whedbee found Roy Ray Beachum of Grimesland guilty of disorderly conduct and using vulgar and profane language in the Colonial Store on East Fourth Street.

Witnesses testified that Beachum, looking for a package of groceries his wife had left at the front pay station in the store, threatened a clerk and chased him with a meat cleaver. The incident occurred late Saturday afternoon, July 26, when the store was crowded with customers. Policeman V. C. Ackert took Beachum into custody and ended the excitement in the store, a witness testified.

The man's package of groceries was found at the front pay counter. He had been looking for them at the rear counter.

Judge Whedbee gave Beachum 30 days in jail in each case. The court ruled that sentences would be suspended on payment of $50 and costs for disorderly conduct and $25, costs deducted, for using profane language.

The court's judgment also placed Beachum on probation for a year, and he is not to violate any law during that time.

The court order further provided that he is not to be seen in the city limits of Greenville for 90 days. The judge allowed Beachum time to go out and raise the money for his fines and costs. He had not paid up at 4 p.m.

E. Nora Spellman, Negro, was found guilty of assault with a deadly weapon (a knife) on John Randolph Jr., Negro. She was given 30 days in jail, suspended on payment of medical bills for Randolph, payment of court costs, and she is to remain of good behavior for six months.

Charlie Barrett, Negro, was found not guilty of assault with a shotgun. Gentry Dixon, Negro, assault with a deadly weapon (a knife), was given 30 days in jail, sentence to be suspended on payment of $20, costs deducted, and the court ordered that he is not to harm or molest Pearl Fleming or Nellie Smith, Negroes.

James Burney, Negro, larceny of eyeglasses, 30 days in jail, sentence suspended on payment of costs and he is to turn in the eyeglasses or pay $35 to Rosie Lee Best, Negro. Willie J. Bishop, Negro, assault on a female (a pistol), on Katie Belle Richardson, Negro, 60 days, suspended on payment of $50, costs deducted, and his probation period was extended a year.

John Randolph Jr., Negro, drunk and disorderly, 30 days.
Mack Farrow, Negro, drunk, $10.
Emmanuel Smith, Negro, no operator's license and defective brakes, $25 and costs. The two cases were combined.

Gasoline Drink Has Drawn Ban For Ethiopians

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP)—Ethiopians drink gasoline to the point that the Ministry of Public Health is really alarmed.

"Gasoline is poison and inflammable and should never be drunk in place of medicine," the Ministry declared. The warning branded those who "persuade others to drink gasoline and those who allow themselves to be so persuaded" as criminals.

The desire for gasoline as a potion is due to the widespread Ethiopian custom of eating raw meat. This, in turn, has caused the people to be widely affected with parasitic stomach worms.

The Health Ministry recommends a substitute made from berries for gasoline addicts.

Mexico Feeling Tourist Slump

MEXICO CITY (AP)—The tourist business, which puts the butter on Mexico's daily bread, shows signs of withering under European competition and high prices here.

Even with the big Rotary and Lions international conventions, tourist entries are only a few hundred above last year's average. There was also a momentary slump in the tourist business immediately after the disturbances following the recent presidential elections.

Any falling off in the tourist business would be a serious threat to Mexico's economy and would force Mexico to cut down on her purchases abroad.

HELL'S HORSEMAN

BY WILLIAM HOPSON

Chapter 17
That evening along about dark, Buckner's Crossing lay like a sprawled black box.
Inside the former station's main room, three lamps glowed brightly, two from the mantel above the huge fireplace and another from back of the short bar the squawman had built. There was a fire in the fireplace tonight, not because of the cold but because Black Jack Caswell preferred his coffee that way. Ro Rundert stared moodily into the small fire from his position by the mantel. Dutch Saunders ate noisily from a plate of fresh beef brought by Buckner's Assiniboine squaw, and a half-dozen riders lounged about, drinking whiskey and taking life easy.
Caswell looked at Rundert and chuckled complacently.
"Ye look sorta low, Ro," he observed.
Rundert shifted his position to the other hip and grunted. "Can't get that gent out of my mind," he admitted. "He plugged McBain cold on the train. Mack got on about seven or eight miles from Carson's place. Must have had something to report. I reckon, for he signalled me. Then he spots this Edmonds gent and goes for his gun. Edmonds plugged him cold. You reckon Ramson was suspicious of me all along and had him aboard that train as a sort of bodyguard to see that nothing happened to the girls?"

"Ye talk like a younker," Black Jack grinned. "If he'd a suspected anything of the like you'd have been dead by now—shot without warning."
"Talk, talk, talk" cut in the Dutchman's voice from the small table where he sat alone. "Vy you all don't shut up?"
"Why don't you shut up, Dutchle?" chuckled Black Jack. "Ro is plumb worried."

Buckner moved over by the fireplace, the flames showing up the gray streaks in his coarse, once black hair.
"I've been thinking," he said. "Naw!" ejaculated Caswell. "I know who your man is." "Vell?" demanded the Dutchman.
"I saw him that night last fall. He gets plugged and Carson packs him out; shot all to pieces. He was heading for King Ramson's ranch. He was coming back to take over the job he was hired to do last fall—wipe you out. That's your man, and, Ro, you're mighty stupid not to have known it before now."
They were staring at him and it was quiet in the room. Rundert's face was hard, frozen. The ice broke in a single whisper: "Montana! So that's who it was!"
The whisper trailed off into silence.
"It's him, all right," Rundert suddenly almost snarled. "And I'll bet money Belle and Helen knew it. I'll choke it out of them!"
He looked less the dapper gunman now. "I reckon I'll go in and see how they're coming along," he sneered.
He tossed the contents of his cup into the fireplace and placed it on the mantel, turning on a boot heel and heading for a door that led off into another part of the building. Buckner reached behind himself brought up a shotgun from back of the bar and stepped outside the back door. A chain rattled, and he quieted the huge mastiff that rose with a growl. He slipped the hasp from its collar and circled the corral. But all seemed quiet and he returned, leaving the mastiff free.

Rundert was still in the other room looking down at Helen and Belle. The new owner of what once had been King Ramson's vast domain looked up coldly.
"For an Easterner, you're not doing too bad," Rundert said.
"Somehow, Ro," Belle said. "I guess I'm not too surprised at you turning renegade. But it still seems a little far-fetched Always the player for big stakes, eh?"
"How are you feeling?" he grunted, ignoring the jibe.
"As well as could be expected considering the rough treatment we've had. We gave you a pretty good race, too, after Montana threw you off. What a pity we couldn't have gotten back to Dad with the story."
"So it was Montana after all?" he grunted, his eyes blazing.
"Yes," she admitted quite calmly. "And it wasn't until after we got here tonight that I overheard some of the riders talking. It seems they had been in town when Austin clashed with you in a saloon. Shall I go on?" she finished mockingly.
"No," he grunted.
"So the great Road Runner backed down?" she jeered at him. "The odds were a dozen to two and you wouldn't play it out. I think I always have felt that you were scum, Ro. That underneath that flashy outside of yours, you were a four-flusher. I guess it's why I never consented to marry you."
"You won't get the chance now," he said; and then he told her about Ramson and the man's plans for stealing back his ranch; that the sale to Forrest had been a part of a well-planned scheme. It was his turn now and he was brutally merciless.
Belle Ramson listened, her face slowly changing color. She wanted not to believe. She wanted to cry. "Liar!" in his sneering countenance. But the words wouldn't come. It was all too perfect. Too many little things that had seemed unimportant now fitted together in stolen stock! She had known instinctively that his profits on bought cattle could never be quite so large. But he was King Ramson, her father.
Her shoulders sagged and she broke down. Helen's arm went out around her shoulders.
"It's true," Belle whispered slowly, brokenly, over and over again. "It's true, Helen. My father hired that cold-blooded outlaw killer Montana to spill blood for money's with us? So that's why he rode out with us? Yes, I see now why he tried to get us away from Black Jack and the Dutchman God, what a blind fool I've been!"
She began to weep softly and Helen Forrest held her close there on the bed, the stronger of the two.
Outside in the night, the big mastiff began to bay

Man Surrenders Boat To Tarpon
FERNANDINA BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Man and fish changed places in a recent incident along Florida's Buccaneer Trail.
A giant silver king tarpon hooked
by W. J. Richards, Jacksonville, fan-tailed up out of the water and landed squarely in another fisherman's small boat.
The other man - whose name

Goes Deep Into Raising Animals
LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Retired railroader George Russell,
79, has gone into the animal business.
On his acre of land, Russell raises turtles, pheasants, squirrels, peacocks and even a raccoon.
Many of the animals were given to the former railroad man by friends.
The raccoon, Tootsie, came to the Russell backyard after a tri-wife said she couldn't live in the same apartment with it.

Family Shares All The Breaks

CENTRALIA, Ill. (AP)—A mother and daughter have been sharing their breaks—first one arm then another.
Shirley Underwood, 11, of Centralia broke her right arm in a fall from a horse. A few months later her mother, Dorothy, 29, broke her left arm at a skating rink. Her cast was barely off when she slipped on her own rug and broke her left arm. Three days later Shirley - with the same horse at the same place as before—fell and broke her left arm.

Defeated Troops Settling Down

TOKYO (AP)—A 22 year-old Japanese from Okinawa reports the 164 last-ditch troops from the vanquished Japanese army had settled down among the Okinawans and made their homes on the island.
Asao Wataguchi said on a recent visit to Japan that the army survivors wanted him to inquire about war pensions and disposition of the remains of Japan's war dead still on the island, which has become a major American base.

Store Boasts Of Costly Coffee

DANVER, Mass. (AP)—A store which not too modestly admits to having sold the most expensive cups of coffee in the world is a highlight of this town's 200th anniversary.
The drug store in which three armored truck guards sipped coffee while their truck was looted last March has hung a huge counter-top of a coffee cup in front, inscribed: "The Home of the 100,000 Cup of Coffee."
