

Fire Sub-Station Go-Ahead Is Given By City Aldermen

Re-Modeling Plans Approved; Board To Request Action On Dangerous Underpass; Board Denies Market's Claim

By JESS POINDEXTER, Reflector City Editor. With an architect's estimate on alterations at the city's new fire sub-station set between $10,000 and $12,000, Greenville's aldermen last night gave the project the green light.

Meeting in its regular monthly session, the board was presented with remodeling plans drawn by a local architect to specifications requested and endorsed by Fire Chief George Gardner.

After inspection and acceptance of renovation plans, members of the board approved the entire plan and threw the project open for low bids, "subject to rejection of any or all bids submitted."

Railroad Underpass. Following discussion on the "far too numerous" number of truck wrecks that have occurred at the low railroad underpass on the New Bern highway in recent months, the board took positive action regarding that particular hazard.

All aldermen present voted to go on record as approving that a request be presented to the State Highway Commission petitioning that body to take steps to alleviate the "dangerous" situation existing at the underpass.

It was agreed that too great a monetary loss is being caused annually by collisions of trailers with a low-hanging underpass which is "entirely to close to the pavement."

The consensus last night seemed to be that the highway must be lowered or the railroad bridge raised.

Deny Claim. A letter from the Greenville Utilities Commission was read before board members at the meeting. The context of the letter reported a claim for damages totaling $912.40 filed by W. Vance Overton, local supermarket operator.

Overton claimed that amount for damages from meat spoilage which allegedly occurred during interrupted electrical service in July; an interruption he contends was caused by negligence on the part of the utilities commission.

The letter informed the board that the commission denied the claim, and asked that the aldermen: 1. take such action on the claim as they desire; and 2. inform Overton's attorney's of any action taken. The board voted to deny the claim.

Central Purchasing. Mayor Lester D. Page reopened discussion on a proposal he made several months ago to the board regarding centralized purchasing for all city departments. He reported the city has had such a system in the past and "it worked very well."

"If we can buy everything collectively for the entire city department purchasing independently, I believe we can save money," he contended. "I know we can save if we go about it in the right way."

The board voted to designate the major's office as the central purchasing agency, and have all department heads who wish to make purchases costing more than $10 clear requisitions through that office.

Building Restrictions. In view of controversies that have arisen recently regarding construction of industrial buildings bordering avenues in Greenville, the board laid down definite restrictions governing their settlement.

Aldermen voted approval of an order requiring that all new business construction along Boyd, Memorial and Dickinson avenues in the city be set back a minimum 50 feet from the center of the street.

On Police Chief Guy C. Langston's recommendation, which came after "through investigation" the board approved granting a taxi driver's permit to John H. Banks, 23-year-old Greenville citizen.

Extend Highway. R.B. Nelson of Robersonville appeared before the board and requested its endorsement of a highway extension toward Tarboro, which the board voted to grant.

According to Nelson, the highway would be an extension of N.C. 30 from its junction with highway 11 north of Greenville westwardly through Belvoir, Penny Hill and thence to Tarboro.

The lease on the Port Terminal property was discussed and it was brought out that although the property has been leased for some time nothing has been done with it. It was suggested that J. Nat Harrison, present leaseholder, be requested to meet with the board and explain the current status of the property.

Terms Expired. City Clerk H.H. Duncan informed the board that terms of office for two members of the zoning ordinance committee has expired. Aldermen approved the reappointment of Eugene West and Thomas Webb to that committee—West for a two-year term and Webb for one year.

Duncan also informed the board that Mrs. B.B. Sugg, whose six-year term has expired, has submitted her resignation from the library committee. Board members voted to leave the appointment open until next meeting "to wait for suggestions from the library committee."

Bill Riggins, president of the Exchange Club, appeared before the board and requested "on behalf of the club" use of Guy Smith stadium for a wrestling show to be held Saturday, September 27. Riggins explained proceeds from the affair will go to the club's hard of hearing program in Pitt County, and the board granted the request "free of privilege license tax."

Paving Petitions. A group of property owners along East Second Street petitioned the board to curb, gutter and pave the area of the street lying between Side Street and Summit Street. They termed the condition "an impossible situation and practically impossible in rainy weather."

Property owners agreed to pay two-thirds the cost of paving and the project was referred to the street committee for investigation and action.

A petition signed by property owners along Eleventh Street who agreed to pay all curb and gutter costs and two-thirds paving costs was read and approved. It provided for improvement of Eleventh Street from Cotanche Street to Anderson Street, and Anderson Street from Eleventh Street to Tenth Street.

Left Turns. In a discussion over paving First Street and connecting blocks of Evans, Washington and Cotanche streets, Mayor Page said, "It has been discussed by the street committee and members feel all areas should be paved for two reasons: 1. it will allow traffic of a left turn to come directly downtown; and 2. the streets are costly to maintain because of washing rains."

Board members approved the petition. A petition from property owners in the 600 block of East Second Street between Summit and Jarvis streets was approved when it was announced they have agreed to pay for all curb and gutter and two-thirds paving costs.

Alderman R.E. "Yank" Howell was absent from the meeting last night.

Young Poultry-Raisers Display Ribbons

Eisenhower Peace Plan Outlined in Philadelphia

Says First Step Is To Have An Administration The Public Can Trust, Then A Clear, Positive Foreign Policy

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—Dwight D. Eisenhower offered today 10 "steps toward peace" which, he said, would help end the Korean war and reduce the threat of further Communist aggression. "We are in that war because this administration abandoned China to the Communists. We are in that war because this administration announced to all the world that it had written off most of the far east as beyond our direct concern."

"The first step toward winning a peace that we can trust to endure is to establish in Washington an administration we ourselves can trust," he said. "We will win this battle for peace only after we have won the battle of Washington."

The remaining nine steps, he said, should be: 1. "A government that puts its trust in the people." 2. "Clear and positive goals" in contrast to "patchwork, crazy quilt operations."

3. "A strong system of Allies around the globe based on an enlightened self-interest of all concerned." 4. Aid by every peaceful means for the right of all to live in freedom with the pledge that "we shall never be truculent, but we shall never appease."

5. "Unwavering support of the United Nations." 6. "An America which is economically strong... that calls for an administration in Washington which refuses to put its trust in self-satisfied bureaucracy."

7. Adequate military strength while at the same time striving for permanent peace with "general disarmament." 8. "Imaginative and practical use of every other means for preventing war... it includes able diplomacy—diplomacy carried out by men of understanding, of training, and above all, of dedication to the cause of America and peace."

9. "In our own land we will root out of government those who would betray our system or abuse our confidence."

10. "We are in that war because this administration abandoned China to the Communists. We are in that war because this administration announced to all the world that it had written off most of the far east as beyond our direct concern."

Prizes Awarded In Poultry Show

Auction Following Show Brings $233.60 For 108 Pullets

Ten smiling Pitt County 4-H clubbers this morning pocketed $93 in prize money and stood by to see their 108 choice pullets bring $233.60 at public auction.

The first of its kind to be held in the county, the poultry show and sale was the culmination of the county-wide poultry chain begun in the county last February.

Of the nine pens containing 12 hens each shown, four were adjudged blue ribbon winners, three won red ribbons and three were declared white ribbon winners.

From prize money supplied by the Sears and Roebuck Foundation—which sponsored the poultry chain—blue ribbon winners were awarded $12 cash prizes, red ribbon winners received $9.00 cash and white ribbon winners pocketed $6.00 cash.

Exceptional Quality. Judges for the show were C. J. Maupin and W. C. Mills Jr., poultry specialists from N. C. State College. "Considering the fact that this is the first project of its kind in Pitt County, quality of the birds here today was exceptionally good," Maupin said.

At the auction which followed the show, pullets were sold by pens of 12 each and brought prices ranging from a low of $19.20 to a high of $36 per pen. All pullets sold this morning went to local people, and thus, will remain in the county.

In introducing the auctioneer for the sale, Amos Hudson of Grimesland, Maupin explained that today's show and sale was only one of 79 other such projects held all over North Carolina this year.

Pullorium Tested. All pullets were from Pullorium tested flocks, and were a certified grade of the New Hampshire Red "egg producing" strain. Maupin said. All were carefully selected from flocks which had produced egg laying records.

Blue ribbon winners were Henry Briley of Pactolus, William Harris of Belvoir, Ralph Tyson of Belvoir and Franklin Garris of Belvoir. Red ribbon winners were Harvey Campbell of Pactolus, Bobby Latta of Farmville, and Brunelle Bundy of Farmville.

White ribbon winners were Roland Murphy of Farmville, Margaret Stalls of Belvoir and John Davis of Pactolus.

UN Assembly To Face Problem Of Korean Deadlock

Stalled Negotiations To Be Taken Up; Marks Shift In U. S. Policy

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UP)—The deadlocked Korean truce negotiations will be brought before the United Nations General Assembly this fall in what constitutes a major shift in United States and British policy, high U. N. sources said today.

Diplomats indicated that the hopeless outlook for the Panmunjom parleys, now in their second year, had convinced Washington and London policy-makers that the time had come to bring powerful political pressure to bear on Red China and North Korea to persuade them to agree to an armistice.

The recognition by the U. S. and Britain that the prospects of the military negotiators in Korea breaking the stalemate have become extremely dim has forced them to reverse their previous stand against the U. N. discussion of the truce situation, diplomats said.

Early this year the assembly rejected a Soviet move to transfer the peace talks to the U. N. after the U. S. speaking for the unified command, expressed fears that it would be harmful to the progress of the Panmunjom meetings.

But the events of the last nine months have made it clear this situation no longer prevailed and it was necessary to appeal to the U. N. to help settle the Korean dispute.

Diplomats revealed that high level talks are currently being held here and in Washington between U. S. representatives and those of the 13 other countries with troops in Korea in an effort to evolve a suitable formula for presentation to the assembly, scheduled to convene Oct. 14.

Informants said no decision has been reached yet as to the form of presentation, but U. S. and British spokesmen indicated the Korean situation would come up for review by the assembly regardless of whether a truce is signed by the time the 60-nation body convenes.

Donate 118 Pints Of Blood In Drive

WILLIAMSTON—Martin County citizens answered the call of the Red Cross yesterday and donated 118 pints of blood, only two pints below the goal of 120.

Lucille Cowen, Martin County Red Cross secretary, said bloodmobile officials were very pleased with the response, especially since pledge cards were slow coming in. Martin County has been participating in the Red Cross Blood Program since 1951 and have met the quota every time prior to the last visit.

James S. Rhodes Jr. serves as general chairman of the program in Martin County and Edgar Gurganus is recruitment chairman. Mrs. Iverson Skinner was in charge of volunteer workers yesterday and Mrs. W. O. Griffin served as canteen chairman.

Nurses from the Martin County Health Department and other local nurses aided the bloodmobile crew yesterday at the blood center in the American Legion Hut.

WINTER MANEUVERS. NEW YORK (AP)—Tens of thousands of soldiers will battle the elements in earnest and each other in simulation next winter in the Army's second consecutive Operation Snow Storm at Camp Drum, N. Y.

South Atlantic Storm Heading Away From Coast; Ships Flee

MIAMI (UP)—An Atlantic hurricane bowled along a shipping lane off the Carolinas with increasing speed today, after sending an oil tanker scurrying full speed ahead of its 100-mile-an-hour winds. A wide swerve to the northeast had spared the U. S. mainland from immediate danger and weathermen predicted a farther shift toward the open sea, along with "considerable" increase in forward speed.

There had been no late report of the situation of the fleeing tanker Esso Knoxville, which in its last radio message said it was keeping just ahead of the raging winds. Another ship narrowly escaped the grip of frong winds late last night by scurrying toward shore. The weather bureau in its early advisory estimated the center of the year's second tropical storm about 500 miles east of Wilmington, N. C.

More Popular Sabres Destroy At Least Three As Enemy Tries Desperately To Halt Raid On War Plant; Van Fleet Reports Foes Have Over Million-Man Army Ready

NEW YORK (AP)—Republican Nominee Dwight D. Eisenhower has more support among the nation's press than any GOP presidential candidate in recent history, the trade publication Editor and Publisher says.

On the basis of questionnaires returned by 918 daily newspapers in an Editor and Publisher poll, newspaper support shaped up like this: Eisenhower, 75.16 per cent. Democratic Candidate Adlai Stevenson, 15.47 per cent. Independent or undecided, 9.37 per cent.

Folled by Editor and Publisher were 1,773 daily newspapers. The 918 which responded represented 51.78 per cent of those polled.

Truman Selects New Mobilizer

H. H. Fowler Named To Succeed John Steelman In Post

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Truman today appointed Defense Production Administrator Henry H. Fowler to succeed John R. Steelman as acting defense mobilizer since Charles E. Wilson resigned last spring during the dispute over the steel crisis.

In a letter to Fowler expressing appreciation for his acceptance of the job, Mr. Truman said that in the period ahead "there must be no let down" in the national effort to achieve defense production goals.

"The nation cannot be permitted to falter for a single day, month or season in the work of defense mobilization which is the key to peace and security for America and the free world," Mr. Truman said.

He added that early shortages in the defense production program are being overcome as a result of expansion of basic resources and facilities.

"We can take pride in the fact," Mr. Truman said, "that through a wide use of the priorities and allocations power, the nation has come through the period of severe material and facilities shortages without impairment of the civilian economy, despite the necessary diversion of the vast resources to the buildup of our military production and our mobilization base."

Fowler, 44-year-old native of Roanoke, Va., will take over as defense mobilizer next Monday. He will continue as defense production administrator until he can determine if that office can be merged with his new job. He said he would accept the new post only until the end of this year.

Caudle Again To Face Questions

WASHINGTON (UP)—T. Lamar Caudle, ousted assistant attorney general who has "talked freely" to House investigators, faced more secret questioning today on Justice Department handling of tax and criminal prosecutions.

A House subcommittee headed by Rep. Frank L. Chief (D-Ky.) recalled the big drawing attorney from Wadesboro, N.C., who was fired by President Truman last Nov. 16 for outside activities "incompatible" with his post as the department's chief tax prosecutor.

Meanwhile U. N. ground troops defending Bunker Hill, five miles east of the truce village of Panmunjom, beat off eight columns of attacking Chinese, killing or wounding more than 300 of them.

Skipper George H. Anderson of Halifax, Canada, reported by radio to the weather bureau that he was racing the 10,296-ton ship at its maximum speed of 14 knots to keep ahead of forerunning gales. Another ship, the Henry M. Davis, had a close brush with the storm last night, but managed to escape its main fury by darting to the west as the hurricane was swirling more than 300 of them.

Final Plans For Staging Pitt County Fair Rapidly Shape Up

Final plans are now being made for the Pitt County Agricultural Fair to be held during the week of October 6, according to an announcement made by J. Howard Moyer, president.

The 1952 event is offering more than $3,500 to the farmers of Pitt County for agricultural exhibits, livestock, and swine. W. C. Eagles is serving as general chairman of the exhibits.

The 1952 premium books are now ready for distribution and those interested in securing one of the books can do so by applying to the office of County Agent Sam Winchester, or the office of Mrs. Sue Brickhouse May, home demonstration agent.

Winchester and assistant county agent Claude Goodman said they expected the greatest livestock show ever presented at any fair in eastern North Carolina.

first big railroad show ever to appear at a fair in Pitt County. The fair will also present a High Act, afternoon and night, and a brilliant display of fireworks will be staged four nights during the fair.

Norman Chambliss, veteran fair manager, who is serving his fourth year as manager of the Pitt County Fair, said the people of the county can be assured that the 1952 event will be the greatest in the history of the fair.

"We are proud of the fine cooperation that is being extended by the agricultural people in Pitt County," stated Chambliss, "and we are going to do everything we can to justify our slogan, 'Pitt County on Parade.'"

State Funeral For Prominent Italian Diplomat

ROME (UP)—Count Carlo Sforza, 78, former Italian foreign minister and one of Italy's foremost diplomats for the past 50 years, died in a Rome clinic last night of plebitis.

Sforza had been confined to the clinic for more than a year. His wife and his son were with him when he died. He would have been 79 in three weeks.

He had been active in Italian foreign affairs with the exception of a 15-year period during the Fascist regime of Dictator Benito Mussolini when he was exiled.

After World War II he returned from exile and was selected by Premier Alcide de Gasperi as foreign minister. He resigned the post in July, 1951, because of ill health.

A state funeral will be held tomorrow.

Committee Appointments Read At Eastern Star Meet

Greenville Chapter 149, Order of Eastern Star, held a regular meeting on Tuesday, September 2, with Mrs. Thelma Maxwell, Worthy Matron, presiding.

The following chapter members who had been given appointments by the Worthy Grand Matron were recognized: Mrs. Louise Wells, Grand Representative to Virginia; Mrs. Keith Cain, District Chairman of Friendship and Good Will Committee; Mrs. Thelma Maxwell, District Chairman of Most Worthy Grand Matron's Project Committee. The Efficiency Chart for the new year was read and instructions from Worthy Grand Matron given. It was announced that class of instruction would be given by Past Matrons and Patrons on Tuesday night, September 9, at the Masonic Hall. All members are invited to these classes, especially all new members.

Mrs. Thelma Maxwell, Mrs. Ethel Allen, Mrs. Lillie Brier, Mrs. Betty Nobles and Mrs. Ruth Joyner attended the Rob Morris Day program at the Masonic and Eastern Star Home in Greensboro in August. These members took a gift to the chapter's guest, Mrs. Clem Buckner. Two letters were read from Mrs. Buckner expressing her appreciation and happiness in being adopted as a guest by the chapter. The chapter's Rob Morris Day program will be observed at the October 21 meeting and the Masons will be invited to this meeting.

The Worthy Matron appointed members to serve on Good Will and Friendship Committee, Rainbow Project, Library Committee and Scrap Book Committee. The chapter voted to serve the Scottish Rite dinner in October.

The charter was draped in memory of a beloved member, Sister Annie Scott.

Mrs. Maxwell announced that the District Deputies would make their official visit to the chapter on Tuesday night, September 16, and all members are urged to be present.

Reports From Memorial Fund At JC Meeting

The Junior Woman's Club met Wednesday night at the clubhouse with Mrs. Howard Gracia, president, presiding.

Club members were urged to attend the meeting of the Fifteenth District of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs to be held in Farmville on Sept. 24. A report from the Watson Memorial Fund Committee was headed by the purchase of an air-conditioning unit for the colored children's ward at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Plans were made for the annual Watson Memorial Fund Tag Day to be held on Saturday, October 4. Named for the late Dr. T. M. Watson, this fund is dedicated to the care and hospitalization expenses of underprivileged children of Pitt County and to the purchase of needed equipment for the children's wing at the Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Four new members joined the club. They were Mesdames Warren Aldridge, J. A. Jordan, Bill Alden and Tom Chapin.

Refreshments were served by Mesdames Thurman Dail, R. D. Harrington Jr. and Ed Harris, hostesses for the evening.

New Construction In Winterville Progressing Rapidly

WINTERVILLE — Several new residences are being constructed in the vicinity of Winterville.

With the increase in population over the past several years, housing facilities were limited, but the erection of many new homes has somewhat alleviated the situation. Sam McLawhorn and Richard Earl Worthington are both constructing new dwellings on Cooper Street. Two of the houses which are in the process of being built will be occupied by DuPont employees who have been transferred from Waynesboro, Virginia. Another new house on Church Street will be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Harold D. Weaver, presently living in an apartment at the home of Mrs. A. D. McLawhorn.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Runkel are building next to the J. L. Rollins home. They will move here as soon as their new home is completed.

Dr. Davis L. Moore Host At Supper To Kiwanis Officials

Dr. Davis L. Moore, a director of the Greenville Kiwanis Club, was host last night to the club's officers and directors at a chicken supper at Respass Brothers' Cafe, across the river.

President Milo Smith presided. Reports of the Underprivileged Child Committee and other committees were discussed. It is a custom for an officer or director to be host at supper to the group at monthly meetings.

In addition to President Smith the following were present: Dr. H. Glenn Hane, a past president; Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, vice-president, and David C. Moore Jr., secretary and treasurer. Directors present were John T. Barnhill, Bill E. Drum, Dr. Davis L. Moore, Dr. John O. Reynolds, Henry L. Andrews, Ted Ashworth, Dr. J. M. Barrett, J. C. Clifford Jr., and Chester Walsh, chairman of the Public Relations Committee.

Credit Women Elect Officers

Election of officers for the new club year, beginning in October, was of paramount importance to members of the Credit Women's Breakfast Club at their last meeting in August, held at the American Legion Dining Room Saturday morning at 7:30 p.m.

President Margaret Boykin presided, and after the routine business was disposed of, she called on the chairman of the nominating committee, Mrs. Lettie Bilbro, to present the slate for vote by the club. The following officers were elected:

President, Mrs. Eleanor Norris of Ormond Wholesale Company; 1st vice president, Mrs. Frances Cassick, Sinclair Oil Company; 2nd vice president, Mrs. Ruby Lum, H. White and Sons, Home Building and Loan Association, recording secretary, Mrs. Earline Coghill, White Chevrolet Company, Inc.; treasurer, Mrs. Edna Branch, Hendrix-Barnhill Company.

Mrs. Dorothy Copeland and Mrs. Lettie Bilbro were elected to the board of directors, and Mrs. J. E. Spilman was voted honorary member and co-advisor. Mr. Floyd Hendrix and Mr. Lyman Orman are new sponsors for the club.

Date for the installation of officers and the Annual Banquet will be October 16. President Boykin announced her committee to prepare for this event, the most important in the club year, and asked for a meeting of the chairman for Thursday night, September 4, to report their progress and coordinate plans.

Little Miss Sharon Sellers was a special breakfast guest. Door prizes were won by Mrs. Ruth Brady and Mrs. Edna Branch, and birthday gifts were received by Mrs. Catherine Walsh and Mrs. Cassie Sawyer. The meeting was adjourned with the reading of the Club Creed in unison.

District Governor Addresses Grifton Lions Club

GRIFTON—District Governor W. J. Dunn of Washington, N.C. was the speaker at the supper meeting of the Grifton Lions Club on Monday night in the school cafeteria.

Gov. Dunn was presented to the group after singing and the salute to the flag by president C. T. Jackson. He gave a word picture of the highlights of the International Lions convention held recently in Mexico City.

Reports were heard from various committees and a good attendance was noted for the evening's meeting.

St. James Church Notice Members of St. James Methodist Church will again meet at the high school for church school and worship services on Sunday.

Church school, with classes for the nursery, primary and juniors, intermediates and young people, as well as for the adults, will begin at 10:00. Morning worship will be held at 11:15.

In 1951 the average per capita consumption of butter was 23.5 pounds in Canada.

Book Club Of Grifton To Sponsor Project

GRIFTON—Mrs. Glendel Tucker gave an interesting talk at the Grifton Book Club meeting on Tuesday afternoon when she was hostess to the group.

Her talk was the final one on North Carolina, and the subject she discussed was "Legends." The ones she related were those of the coastal parts of the state and the mountains, and the ones which were particularly interesting were the ones of Rowan County on Peter Stuart Ney, the school master who was linked with the possibility of being Marshall Ray of France, and the Brown Mountain Lights which are seen in the vicinity of Morganton.

Mrs. H. P. Quinerly presided over the business discussion and heard a report of the committee, which is working out plans for the participation in the "Finer Carolina" program. The book club will sponsor the Better Home Improvements project in Grifton, and the town has been zoned for the purpose of contacting each home owner in the near future as to what has been done in the way of home beautification and what will be done before the contest ends in December.

Stress was made by the committee that all citizens be prepared to give a report when asked for it and to do all possible in making every minute count in working on this program of improvement.

Mrs. Tom Gower was elected chairman and Mrs. J. L. Tucker was elected secretary and treasurer for the coming two years.

Mrs. Tucker served lime ice punch, cookies and salted nuts at the social hour.

WCTU Opens New Fall Work With Wednesday Meeting

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union met at the home of Mrs. V. P. Scoville on Wednesday afternoon for the first meeting of the fall.

Mrs. C. W. Brown, president, opened the meeting by having all join in the singing of the hymn, "Lead On O King Eternal," after which Mrs. Lee Moore led in a devotional. She used as her subject, "How to Pray" and stimulated the thinking of the group with some remarks pertinent to the importance of prayer.

The Union reported that during the summer they had paid the expenses of a delegate to the Y. T. C. Encampment, which was held at Pfeiffer College, for a week of study and training. After reports from the different secretaries, the business meeting was adjourned. The hostess served iced drinks and waters during the social hour which followed.

Special Service Planned Sunday At Local Church

Sunday will be observed at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church as "Back to Church" Sunday.

In a letter sent to all members during the week, the pastor, the Rev. Leon Russell, states: "We have set aside next Sunday as the day for rallying our forces for the fall program. So much needs to be done and it cannot be done unless every member of every family is an active working and worshipping Christian."

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed in the Sanctuary at 9:30 a.m., after which members shall go to the Church School classes. A special sermon has been prepared for the 11:00 worship hour, when the pastor will speak on the subject, "God, Let Me Be Aware." Sam Northrup will sing as special music a solo by Malotte, "The Twenty-Third Psalm."

At the evening service at 8:00 p.m., Rufus Stark, young ministerial student, will bring the message.

Dinner Party For Children Given By Vanceboro Parents

VANCEBORO—Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Witherington entertained with a dinner party Sunday night in honor of their daughter, Miss Beverly Witherington and their son, Phil Witherington, at their home on College Avenue.

Miss Witherington will enter the freshman class at East Carolina College in Greenville Monday, Sept. 8, and Mr. Witherington will enter the United States Navy on Thursday.

Guests with the honorees were Miss Sybil Fillingame, Miss Peggy Bryan, Miss Janis Witherington, Miss Marlene Dixon of Norfolk, Va., Harold Ippock and Pfc. Shirley Bryan of Fort Jackson, S. C.

nothing about your name being Farrar! Why—Mr. Bennett! She smiled as coquettishly as though she were inviting him to escort her to her carriage. "You're going to take Blaine Shepley's place and bring me back that gold!"

Her bland assumption of his cooperation was so certain that Clay stared at her in complete amazement before he could gather himself for a reply. Then he exploded. "I've got a murder charge hanging over my head now, and if you think I'm going to complicate it with a little job of grave-robbing—"

"But that's just it," she interrupted. "You don't want that murder charge to come to rest on your shoulders right now, do you. But it might—if you don't help me!" "By God!" he said slowly. "I believe you mean that."

"I should think you'd be delighted, Mr.—Bennett," she said softly. "After all, it isn't every fugitive with a rope around his neck who has a chance to share a fortune while he's running away."

Suddenly he laughed. He had only been half listening to her words, for he was suddenly aware that Sally was an uncommonly handsome woman and that there might be far worse things than an alliance with her.

"Why," he agreed sardonically, "now that you put it that way, it may be that you're right. I've been thinking of going into the Santa Fe trade. If I'm going on the trail anyway, I might as well look for the treasure along the way. You're suggesting that we share it equally, of course?"

She studied him appraisingly, finding in his broad shoulders and reckless eyes the same vibrant threat and promise that had attracted her to Blaine Shepley. But it was far too soon for that.

"Equally? Well, we'll have to see about that. The question right now is whether or not you can find our friend Meisendorff's money. You've never been over the trail, have you?"

"I know about the Santa Fe trail is that it goes through about eight hundred miles of country that God made and then forgot—and there's a town named Westport at this end and a place called Santa Fe at the other. How about your map? Can you tell anything from that?"

Sally shrugged her white shoulders helplessly. "It doesn't tell me a lot," she admitted. "However," she fumbled in her reticule and brought up the soiled, crumpled scrap of paper that had already cost three men their lives. "Here it is."

Clay unfolded it slowly and studied it carefully.

"Did Shepley or Andre tell you anything at all about where this spot was located?" he asked.

"A little," she said, "but only a very little. Blaine said it was between the Arkansas and the Cimarron, at a place they call the Jornada del Muerto."

Clay grinned her, considering her information.

"The Journey of the Dead," he translated. "Well it has a likely sound, anyway. I'll inquire around a little and see what I can find out. In the meantime, I'd keep this out of sight."

She returned the map to her reticule and rose to her feet, straightening her skirt and her petticoats about her.

"It's all arranged then, isn't it?" she asked, smiling. "You are going to help me, and we'll both wind up very rich and famous in the new lands on the frontier?"

He bowed meticulously over her outstretched hand and smiled back at her as he lifted his head.

"We will undoubtedly wind up," he agreed, but whether we'll be rich and famous or only dead and forgotten before the winding's completed I'm damned if I know."

You could hear Westport Landing before you could see it, for even before it came into view around the wide bend of the Missouri the noise of men talking and shouting came floating across the water, occasionally and unexplainedly interspersed with sobs of gay, half-barbaric music.

Clay and Sally were leaning against the forward rail, watching the dark brown water that rushed by on either side between the towering, heavily forested bluffs on the left and the flat river-bottom land on the right, which ran back to smooth-topped, rolling hills on the north.

The schools of Robersonville opened for the 1952-1953 term on Wednesday, September 3.

A county-wide teachers' meeting was held prior to the opening on Tuesday, September 2, in Williams-ton. According to reports from the school principals and supervisors, everything is in readiness for the opening.

A new lunchroom has been provided for the Robersonville High School, which is modern in every respect and fully equipped. It has been designed to accommodate 800 students and is expected to relieve the lunchroom problem which has been prevalent for many years.

Members of the faculty of the Robersonville School are listed below:

First grade, Miss Minnie Cochran and Mrs. C. B. Martin; second grade, Mrs. Ella Dill Morrow and Mrs. Guard; third grade, Mrs. John Tyler and Mrs. John Walker; fourth grade, Miss Millie Roebuck and Mrs. Pitt Roberson.

Fifth grade, Mrs. Clara Woolard; sixth grade, Miss Hilda Sumrell; seventh grade, Mr. Marvin Everett and Mrs. Evelyn Cherry; eighth grade, Mrs. Irene Roberson and Miss Whitehurst; music director, Mrs. Selma Meadors.

G. B. Martin is principal of the Robersonville high school. Other faculty members are: home economics, Mrs. Queenie Warren; agriculture, John Dixon; social science, Kelly Abeyonnis; commercial, Mrs. Wiley B. Rogerson; math, John Roberson; health and athletics, Bob Lee; science, Ward Woolard; English, Mr. Whitehurst; music, Miss Jeanne Taylor; and librarian, Miss Richardson.

Mrs. Otis Woolard and Mrs. Mary Ann Perry Lands will teach at the Bear Grass school. Mrs. Irving Smith will be at the Everett school two days a week to teach music.

Mr. Murrow, the principal at Everett, will live at the Robersonville teacherage with his wife, who is filling the vacancy created by the death of Miss Louise Dixon, who had taught for many years in the grammar school.

Wins His Case By Flip Of Coin

DES MOINES, Iowa (UP)—An attorney defending himself on a charge of running a stop sign won his case by flipping a coin.

"Under the law of gravity the coin had to stop in the air before it started going back down," Richard D. Ellington told the judge.

"You didn't see the coin stop in the air. I think the test proves that I stopped at the sign, but so fast the officer didn't see me."

The judge agreed and dismissed the case.

Tarboro and the eighth district at Wilkesboro. Congressman Charles Deane's choice of Wilkesboro is significant. The idea is to carry the gospel of Democracy to the "heathen" Republicans, rather than make it easy for the already "safe" Democrats to attend.

MISSIONARY—Wilkes county is the extreme northwestern edge of the district, requiring more than 150 miles of highway travel from Laurinburg in Scotland county, the southeasterly corner, and about 100 miles from the seat of any county in the district certain to be Democratic in practically every election. Previous rallies have been staged at Wadesboro, Rockingham, Sanford, Monroe and other sure Democratic centers, or at Lexington which is borderline territory. This year Congressman Deane, who is an ardent "Missionary Baptist" is invading enemy territory. Wilkes county is traditionally Republican. So are the next two counties down the line—Yadkin and Davie. This year the Democratic rally is being taken to them, with expectation that the loyal party members in the southern end of the district will show up—and that some neighboring Republicans might wander by and be "converted."

Notice To FCX Members Of Annual Meeting

You are urged to attend the annual meeting of your Farmers Cooperative Exchange at the Memorial Auditorium in Raleigh Tuesday, September 9, at 19:30 A. M.

The HON. CLYDE R. HOEY, North Carolina's Senior Senator and a member of the powerful Senate Committee on Agriculture, will deliver the principal address. He will be introduced by the HON. HAROLD D. COOLEY, Chairman of the House Committee on Agriculture.

The HON. W. KERR SCOTT, Governor of North Carolina, will deliver the address of welcome.

The business session will include the annual report of M. G. MANN, general manager of the two associations, and the auditor's report.

At the close of the meeting, the traditional barbecue picnic will be served. Make your plans now to attend this important event. Bring your neighbors with you, so that we may have a large representation from our county.

Strength for the Day

CHANNELS OF POWER
The human mind and the human body are instruments across which great cosmic forces play. Thought does not originate in the brain. The brain is a physical organ which utilizes certain unseen forces in the production of thought and rational action. The very thing called life is a force which courses through our bodies; it does not originate in our bodies. Power is not in us; power comes from the outside and plays across or physical, mental, and spiritual capacities.
In other words, we are not dynamo; we are channels. Translated into spiritual terms, we are channels of the will and grace of God. And the will and grace of God are in turn mediated or passed on to us by the spiritual presence of Jesus Christ in the world. We can turn to this source of infinite power any time we will. It brings healing when we are sick, reassurance when we are frustrated and bewildered, self-restraint when we are tempted, solace when we are in sorrow, courage in seasons of pain, security when we are assailed by fears. Our physical and mental capacities are the channels through which this supernatural power courses, thus producing a purposeful and controlled way of life.
We are channels of God's supernatural power and grace.

Atlanta Hailed A Real-Life Republican

Atlanta, one of the "heart cities" of Dixie, really turned out to greet candidate Dwight Eisenhower Tuesday. The demonstration by those traditional Democrats for an avowed Republican must have been something to rock the imagination of professional political observers.
If the Atlantans were looking for a real campaign speech, they got it. If they wanted to see a great American, they saw him. If they wanted to see that rarity in Georgia, a Republican, they could see for themselves he wore no horns, no tail, no cloven hooves and didn't exhale lurid smoke and the brimstone their fathers warned them to expect.

In short, Ike Eisenhower provided a sort of one-man circus in as deep a portion of the Deep South as he could find anywhere. Press accounts indicate a favorable public reaction.

Perhaps the lesson is that Republicans would not hurt their cause by sending a few of their more able emissaries into the South. The reaction conceivably may induce Eisenhower to spend more than the two days he originally planned in talking to Southerners.

Americans have been long convinced that a real two-party system would greatly enhance practical government. Why not closer to home, too?

A Tonic For Those Growing Pains

Greenville is not the only city hereabouts that is feeling its growing pains in the municipal pocketbook as well as in other areas of activity.

In Kingston the city council has set October 14 as the day on which voters of that city will decide on four individual bond issues the city proposes to sell. The principal issue is in the amount of $1,095,000 to be used for power plant equipment and electrical line extensions. A $250,000 bond issue for extension of water lines, $255,000 for extensions of sewer lines, and $155,000 for recreation developments also will be decided by the voters who go to the polls.

Within the past few years, and particularly in the past several months, Greenville's need for additional funds for long range permanent improvements have been pointed out time and again. The Utilities Commission has presented to the Board of Aldermen a resolution pointing out the need for some $300,000 in funds to make improvements and extensions immediately needed for the city's water and sewer systems. The Commission did not mention a bond issue in its resolution, but from what other source could such an amount come? The Commission said funds from revenue were not now available for the projects.

The Recreation Commission of the city has presented the Aldermen with a resolution calling for the construction of two swimming pools which have been estimated in the neighborhood of $200,000. Throughout the city there is street paving which needs to be done, and Powell Bill funds are sufficient only to cover a small portion of the needed work. Then there is the problem of school facilities which are needed by the city system.

Greenville has been talking in terms of a new high school or a new junior high school for many years, but the project has never advanced beyond the talking stages.

It was a month ago that the Greenville Aldermen authorized the appointment of a committee to study all the long range needs of the city and bring recommendations to the board on procedure to meet these needs. Since that time we have heard nothing of the committee and there has been no mention of its functioning.

Greenville certainly has its growing pains and its financial problems which should be worked out through a carefully planned program which will put first things first. A carefully considered pattern must be mapped for the city to follow in providing the many things Greenville needs. Otherwise Greenville will continue operating hand-to-mouth needing new facilities and wondering where money will come from to provide them.

National Whirligig

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Stevenson-Eisenhower repudiations of powerful pressure groups on and off Capitol Hill will provide a November 4 test of whether the American people possess more independence and intelligence than the politicians have credited them with in the last twenty years. In off-the-record statements, both candidates endorse this analysis of their strategy.
The election will furnish an answer, perhaps, to the still undetermined question of whether the total adult electorate—fifty or sixty millions—will work for the national good as against the interests of small and selfish but vocal, well organized and financed lobbies at Washington.

The two men, in effect, are asking whether the American people are citizens of the United States or "captives" of self-seeking and divisive blocs.

CRITICISM—Although the Democratic nominee has raised this issue in more dramatic form than General Eisenhower, the latter has pitched his appeal on the same high level. Indeed, his refusal to descend to a lower plane underlies his advisers' criticism of his strategy. They insist that he tailor his campaign to the labor, racial and farm vote.

Moreover, as European commander during World War II, Ike resisted personal, political and military demands as demagogic and insisted as those to which a presidential candidate is subjected. Only when he was overruled by the White House, 10 Downing Street and the Pentagon did he subordinate his own judgments.

INADVISABLE—Finally, even if Eisenhower wanted to make the usual play to these voting groups which he says he does not—his opponent's frank warnings to the veterans, to organized labor and to state tideland oil interests, make inadvisable a contrary strategy.

With both candidates telling off the pressure boys, how they will fare on election day may depend on other and more nationally important factors.

INDICTMENT—Although there remain many other grave national problems to be resolved on November 4, it is doubtful if any other single action or attitude by the two men seeking the presidency in these difficult days has twanged a more thankful chord with the general public.

It is their best interests, so Ike and Adlai seem to feel, which have been endangered and short-changed by the favoritism shown during the last twenty years, largely for partisan, vote-getting purposes, to such segments of the population as labor, racial minorities, farmers and party cronies.

In a larger sense, too, Stevenson's hands-off notice to bloc-minded voters constitutes his most severe indictment of the man he has mentioned only once since he obtained the nomination—Harry S. Truman.

PRESSURE—Although there was some justification for Franklin D. Roosevelt's favoritism to these elements of the electorate, since labor, farmers and the colored race suffered most severely from the depression and a laissez-faire economic system, Truman has preserved the pressure process solely to win elections.

He has demanded Taft-Hartley repeal and Civil Rights legislation, although he knew that Congressional compliance was hopeless. And he has never lifted a finger to secure their enactment. His behavior during the steel strike was designed to compensate for his futility on Capitol Hill.

OUTWORN—At the Chicago convention, relying on Truman's successful use of these tactics in the 1948 campaign, the Moody-Williams-Harriman-Roosevelt radicals tried to reorganize the Democratic Party on the basis of political blocs. That they were rebuffed and discredited by the party elders suggests that their methods are outworn.

In this connection, it is noteworthy that Stevenson, in his Labor Day address at Detroit, gave no plug to Senator Blair Moody, although he faces a hard fight for reelection.

SINCERITY—In view of the Roosevelt-Truman surrender to these lobbies, it is natural that the voters show some skepticism toward present-day presidential pledges. But the comforting fact is that both candidates' records indicate their sincerity.
To the despair of backroom politicians, Stevenson got away with this kind of an anti-pressure program at Springfield. He forced a reduction in the outdoor appropriation for state fair advertising in the newspapers. He vetoed bills to increase pensions for teachers and the aged. He blocked funds for political highways and bridges. He opposed larger payments to veterans and to their organizations.

He refused to sign two politically explosive measures. One would have shortened the work week for thousands of state employes. The other, in the midst of communists-in-government revelations at Washington, would have penalized "reds" in what he regarded as an undemocratic manner.

REACTION—Adlai and Ike have used almost the same language in forecasting their reaction to pushing and shoving at Washington. Addressing the American Legion convention, the Democrat said he would resist their demands, if they were "excessive or in conflict with the public interest, which must always be the paramount interest."

Selected Short

BEREA (OHIO) ENTERPRISE—Quite regardless of who wins the election, government expenses will go on up unless defense promises and commitments are abandoned. Who dares do that?

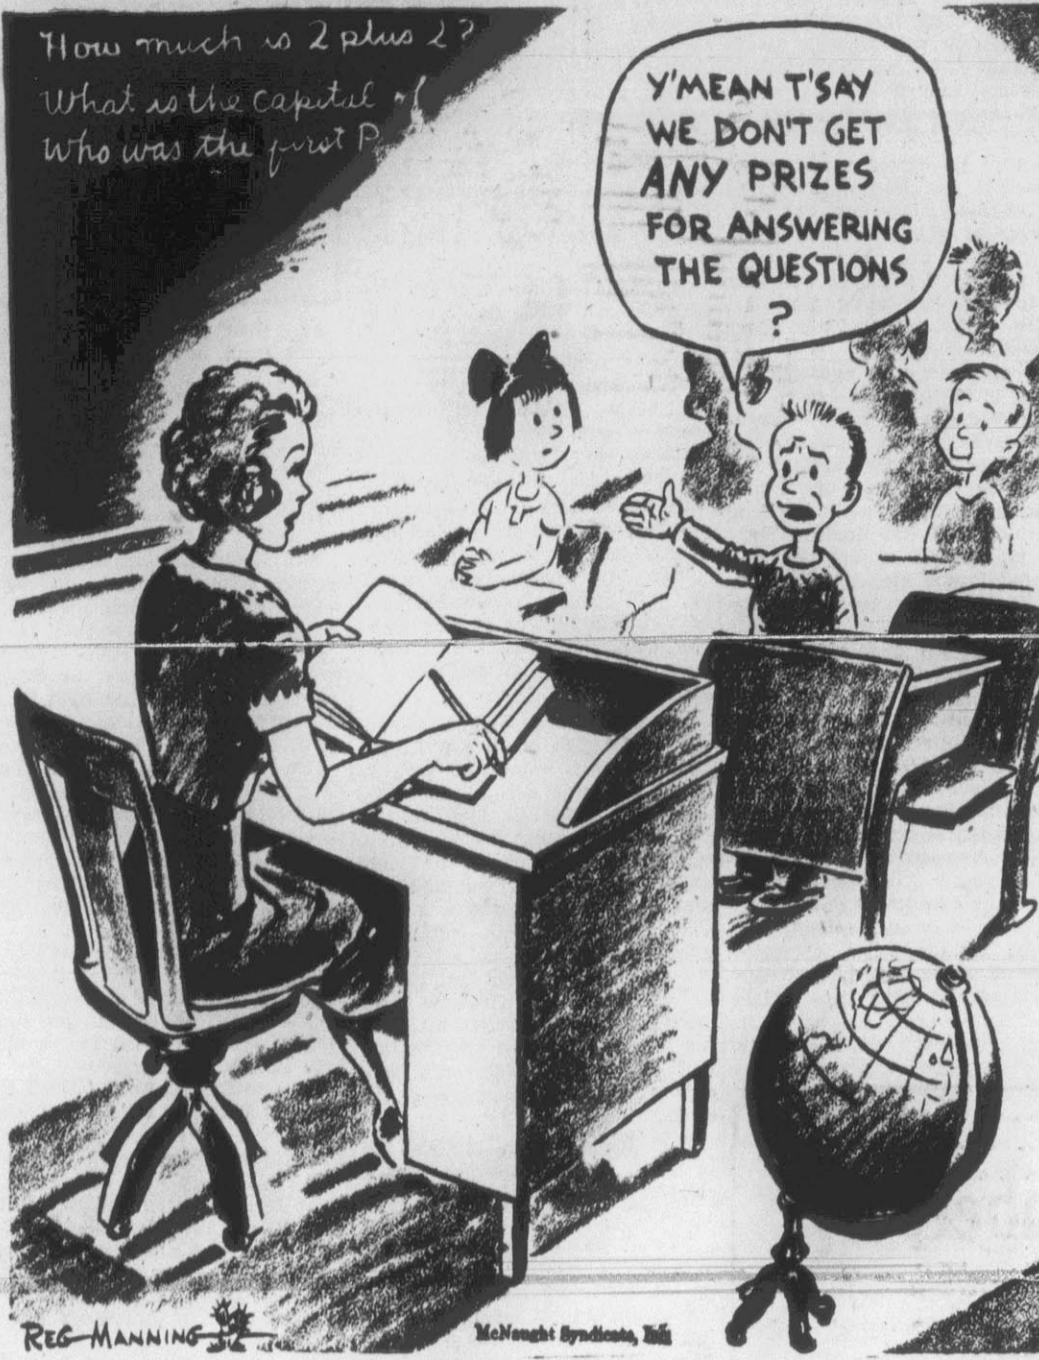

As for tax reduction, who lives and has seen it? Increase is inherent in Democracy, where can the Republicans cut and not bring on a depression?

Don't forget—this prosperity is the spending of your taxes.

MEMPHIS COMMERCIAL APPEAL—Old-fashioned good manners being something this country can do with a great deal of, we are glad to see a campaign—if it should be called that—developing on behalf of a comeback for courtesy. It is being projected by an Eastern group which calls itself Courtesy Unlimited. The sponsors hold doggedly to a theory that civility isn't dead, but merely dormant, and that, given the right sort of prod, it will come alive. Maybe so—we're willing to go along with that idea, reserving the right, of course, to say that it's going to take a deal of brooding.

Courtesy Unlimited intends to work through educators and in the fields of sport and entertainment. We suggest that they add the Parent-Teacher groups and the churches and the starting point for courtesy—the home—can be reached. It is in the home that good manners should be nurtured—between husband and wife—between children and parents.

Influence Of Electronics

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Every now and then I hear a former dyed-in-the-wool Democrat say he's going to vote for Ike in November. Of course you will remember that plenty of so-called Democrats voted for Dewey in 1948.

Last night I was enjoying television in spite of the snow on the screen and was surprised when they changed the schedule to carry Ike's speech from Convention Hall, Philadelphia. The ovation given Ike by the Republicans resembled the demonstrations that were carried on during the convention. Ike's wife Mamie was there with bells on and shared the reception of the ovation with him.

Last night's speech was good, but had the appearance of being read more than his speeches during the convention. Perhaps it was due to the telecasting facilities. In Chicago for the convention the telecasters had a gimmick that was located beside the camera with the printed speech in plain view of the speaker. Therefore, the speaker could be reading every word and it would appear to the television that he knew it by heart. Ike had no such gimmick last night, for he glanced to his text every few seconds. Since he has been on a speaking tour it is understandable that he hasn't had time to get so many speeches down pat.

There was no comparison in the audience last night at Convention Hall and the Convention audiences. Every seat was filled last night with a person who was hanging on to every word of Ike's speech.

He said, "There is only one issue in this campaign, and that's the mess in Washington!" He went on to say that he was delighted at the response he received on his visit to the South. "Thousands of Southerners," he said, "regardless of party, stand ready to give us support. They realize that Washington needs a new administration and a new policy."

"Our economy is a war economy. Our prosperity is war prosperity." He says we can have prosperity and peace under a Republican administration. "If a bus driver ran his bus into a ditch and killed your children," he says, "you wouldn't say that it was an understandable blunder and send your other children to ride with the same driver. You'd get another bus driver." And Ike insists that Washington needs a new leadership.

When the 1948 campaign started, Dewey was ahead all over the country by a great percentage. Harry S. gradually caught and overcame him. Ike seems to have the favor now. But will history repeat?

And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

WHAMMY—The identification and apprehension of speedsters and other traffic violators by means of a radar device which has been nicknamed the "Whammy," is becoming common in cities and towns throughout the country. The highway patrol is in process of installing the same type of equipment for use on the highways outside of cities. It is not unusual to see signs conspicuously posted near city limits in effect. So far as your reporter has seen or been able to learn about through official sources the only such sign on a rural stretch of highway is on US-29 two or three miles south of the Virginia border.

INSTALLATIONS—Col. W.B. Lentz, commander of the patrol, said the equipment is being installed and that when the job has been completed for all patrol troops signs will be posted at frequent intervals along the highways, certainly near the borders of other states, advising the public that the radar device is in use. However, it is the policy of the patrol not to enforce its findings very strictly against out of state passenger cars until ample publicity has been given to the proposal. The warning sign on U. S. 29, said Col. Lentz, probably got up first because the patrol in that immediate area had a man familiar with the operation of the gadget.

ENTRANCES—Two other State Departments are cooperating in a project for a different kind of welcome sign on main highway entrances into North Carolina. Large signs sponsored jointly by the Highway Commission and the State Advertising Division read: "Welcome to North Carolina, Variety Vacationland." The words "North Carolina" are in the adopted style of lettering used on all state advertising and highway maps, and are super imposed upon a background solid map. This is a comparatively new project and many of its features are frankly in the experimental stage.

COLORS—The boards at all entrances are the same in design, but different in coloring. It is admittedly a hard job to get colors that stand out amid the surrounding scenery without clashing with it, and with words that are legible for both daylight and night time reading. Further plans for the welcoming boards call for prominent location to attract attention of advancing motorists, and for drive-overs where travelers entering the state can stop for a brief look at road maps and to read certain brief historical and informative data on attractive matters.

BEHIND—Despite the developments of the past few years, North Carolina is still behind many other states in this field of activity. With a tourist business estimated at more than $200 million a year, and with more trucks registered in North Carolina than in any other state indicating the importance of commercial highway traffic, the responsible authorities are coming to recognize that more attention must be paid to the convenience and comfort of highway users. Good pavement is the first requisite, but it is not enough. Not only at entrance points but all along the tourist routes there need to be drive-outs, roadside tables, shrubbery trimmed from the right of way to permit view of the landscape and other facilities. Individual cost of these facilities is small, but in the aggregate the amount is large, and highway builders have been reluctant to divert money from paving to beautification. Other states, competing for the tourist dollar, are spending more to make their roads attractive as well as usable. The sole purpose of a road is to allow people to get from one place to another. There are contrasting ideas about whether emphasis should be on fast travel over straight roads, or more leisurely moving along through pleasing scenery. There are some folks who question the wisdom of heavy public spending for speedways designed to get traffic through the state as quickly as possible, rather than providing temptations for loitering along the way and spending some extra money.

DEMOCRATS—The North Democratic party launched a full scale campaign for votes in November this week. State headquarters on the first floor of the Sir Walter Hotel were expanded by taking over another room for an office and the Manteo room for a whole flock of typewriters.

As the campaign warms up more space may be needed. Right now the job is to get out a lot of letters to local leaders in the biennial war against Republicans. The first floor hall which has been sort of lonesome since the Unstead for Governor primary campaign headquarters closed the first of June has taken on new life.

RALLIES—The state headquarters has heard from more than half the congressional candidates approving tentative dates for the district rallies. In most instances the place and hour for the rally has not been determined. It is reasonably certain that the first district rally will be held at Williamston, the second district at

What Other Papers Are Thinking

RESPECTING RELEASE DATES (Rocky Mount Telegram)

Every newspaper worthy of the name considers a release date something almost sacred. In other words, one of the first laws of the newsroom is to abide by the date of release of a news story regardless of the time it was received. Hence, presidential messages and the like frequently are in the hands of the press hours before the message are delivered. Many newspapers have the messages set in type, corrected and all arranged for immediate publication—but not before the date specified for the message to be released, e. g.

the time of actual delivery. In this respect we were amazed recently to hear one of those newscasters with a sort of complex which causes him apparently to think that the whole world hangs on what he is about to say, blatantly announce that he had received an advance release of an address which one of the presidential nominees was to deliver several hours later and that said nominee at the time of his speech would say such-and-such. With that, the newscaster virtually recited the speech the candidate was going to deliver. That sort of thing rubbed us the wrong way. It's a reflection upon the integrity of those who handle the news for one to violate the trust that has been entrusted by those sending out the releases. We certainly hope this particular 'caster will be reprimanded severely for the act and that it doesn't happen again. We like our news fresh, but we still would like for it to happen before it is reported that it will happen thus and so. After all, anyone who makes an address has the right to change completely his text before time of delivery. Also, one never knows when illness or an accident may completely prevent delivery at all.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
Retailers had better learn to realize profits from present sales—in fact from any given level of volume—and not depend upon a continual expansion sales for profits, warns Raymond F. Copes, General Manager of the Controllers' Congress, National Retail Dry Goods Association.

That means stores must take effective measures to reduce their costs of doing business, and Copes offers one such measure. He calls it "Production Unit Accounting." Its aim is to uncover scientific management and industrial engineering techniques to be applied to all store operations—selling and non-selling—with special emphasis on increasing employee productivity. In this way, says Copes, total payroll cost may be reduced without impairing the customary department store services.

Production unit accounting is actually managerial or operating accounting aimed at finding the cost of doing work in terms that are constant and therefore comparable. Factories already use cost accounting techniques which present operating results in terms of standard dollars which have a constant value by definition, with the difference between standard and actual value shown in variance accounts. Copes wants stores to use some variation of this principle of standard pricing, so merchants have a basis for comparing costs of various operations with each other and from year to year. When a merchant knows what each one of the operations in his store costs, he can decide which are escapable and which not.

Current retail sales figures give weight to Copes' argument that merchants had better find out more exactly the cost of various tasks and services within their stores. Total retail sales in July were about six per cent ahead of last July which is not particularly rosy when you consider merchants had an extra trading day this year, and prices are higher.

SALES CAMPAIGN FOR SMALLER BUSINESSES
Banish the idea that sales campaigns are only for large sales organizations, one of the largest heating equipment producers (The Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Co.) recommends. The firm is putting on a big campaign for heating dealers. Incentive drives based on sales points can be used even by dealers with only one or two salesmen, this manufacturer declares.

SEES TV MARKET... IN SET-LESS VIEWERS...

People without television sets see TV programs almost as often as people who own them, according to a survey by one manufacturer (Meck Television, Inc.). The survey found set owners averaged 16 1/2 hours of viewing a week while non-owners averaged 12 hours at homes of friends and neighbors. The survey-takers conclude from this evidence that people who don't own sets are holding out because they haven't been able to get them yet, not because they aren't interested in television.

SEWING MACHINE... RIVALRY STEPPING UP...

The battle of the different types and brands of sewing machines is getting hotter. One of the leading foreign manufacturers (Necchi) whose zig-zag stitch machine has been making a hit with U.S. housewives, announces an entry in the medium-price machine market. The manufacturer is now offering a straight stitch machine to sell in the $150-$200 class. The company's zig-zag model was introduced only five years ago but has become the leading foreign-made machine sold here.

SHORT & SIGNIFICANT BUSINESS NOTES

Manufacturers' shipments of gas ranges are running ahead of last year by seven per cent with good sales expected this fall. Liquor and wine advertisers increased their use of newspaper space by a heavy 18 per cent last year over the year before. More cane feeding molasses will be used in commercial feed for cattle as the result of recent substantial price reductions, manufacturers say. Expenditures for new construction achieved a record total of over $3 billion in July, largely as the result of Federal spending and the expansion of public utility plants.

NEW PRODUCTS

AUTO REGULATOR: A device which fits on the exhaust manifold of a car engine is claimed to prevent sludge and conserve oil, according to the manufacturer (Continental Thermolite, Inc., 76 Southway, Brooklyn).

HEAT SYSTEM: A new forged-hot water baseboard heating system for homes has been developed (by Ball & Gosset Co., Morton Grove, Ill.).

BONDING METALS: Metals that can be bonded together simply by placing them along the area to be joined, have been developed (by American Silver Co., Flushing, N.Y.).

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK (AP)—Everybody has been picking on American teenagers so much lately it is a pleasure today to report they have a new defender.

She is lovely Diane Bell, 18, the "Miss Teen Age of Australia." Her reward for winning her title in country-wide competition was a trip to the United States, and it has been a wonderful surprise.

"I was told they would pour chocolate sauce over my roast beef here, and I'd never get a decent cup of tea," she said, laughing. "But it hasn't been that way at all. They also told me I'd meet nothing but bogdies and widgies over here, and I haven't met one."

A bogdie, she explained, is a jitterbug-crazy boy "who wears his hair curled and long and a sport coat two sizes too big for him." A widgie is a jitterbug-crazy girl "who wears vaseline in her hair, which is cut very short."

Diane said a majority of Australians "think the American teenage girl is very sophisticated, goes out every night with boys, drinks, smokes and paints her fingernails."

"I have found exactly the opposite. The girls here are sweet and natural. And your teen-age boys are just like the Australian cuts. It spoils their looks—reminds me of oenics."

"I love a boy to be courteous, and I found the American boys very courteous. I was thrilled."

As a matter of fact, she said, American boys are more attentive to a girl on a date than the boys in her homeland.

Diane thinks the delinquency of teen-agers everywhere has been over emphasized.

"There are a few naughty ones in every country," she observed. "Some feel their parents treat them as if they were too young and that may make them act too old."

Both Diane and her mother like the American teen-age girl's custom of dating different boys.

"I've only dated two boys myself," she said. "In Australia teenage boys and girls are much more keen on going steady. When a girl gets keen on her boy friend, she knits him a fine pale blue polo neck sweater with a white deer on the chest. Then she knits herself one just like it."

"They go along the street wearing these twin jumpers, holding hands, and then they are called a gruesome twosome. That means they are going steady—and for everybody else to lay off."

"I don't know who invented that gruesome twosome business—probably a boy."

Miss Bell was amazed that teen-agers here don't know the popular Australian dance, the powerhouse—"which is swaying to and fro, cheek to cheek. After an evening of the powerhouse, the boys take their girls out in canoes and race around the lake."

She likes the casual attire here—boy box, blue jean, and cotton shirts—but not for street wear. "An Australian girl dresses like that only for housework or a picnic."

Australian teen-agers don't care so much about hanging around "milk bars"—soda fountains. They are more sports-minded and like to "push off for the bush"—a day spent hiking in the country or horseback riding.

One of Diane's greatest adventures here was attending a baseball game.

"All the spectators got up, began booing, stomping their feet, and throwing cushions at the umpire," she recalled.

"A man stood up and said, 'Now we're going to have a real rharbarb.'"

"I thought that meant someone was going to bring on a dessert—and it did seem a queer time for dessert."

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—Though she lives alone and says she likes it, Miss Sadye Adelson will conduct a class in the Department of Agriculture's graduate school this fall for couples seeking the know-how to housekeeping problems.

The classes, which will be held every Monday evening, are modeled somewhat on those held in 1950, which then were attended by wives only. One fee of $18 will be charged each couple.

"More and more men are sharing jobs in the home, especially where the wife is also employed," Miss Adelson told the "If we can get them to discussing homemaking aspects, along with their wives, we probably will have some very stimulating meetings."

As before, enrollees in the class are expected to gather beforehand and decide what subjects they most want help with. Before it was budgeting, short cuts in getting the evening meal on the table after a day at work, the placement of household equipment so that it will be functional and easy to get at, the selection and care of clothing, home decoration and furnishing.

Experts from various government agencies and people from private industry were called upon to give lectures on the selected subjects. The 1950 group was especially interested in housing, according to Miss Adelson. Mrs. Lenore Sater, well-known chief of the housing and household equipment division of the BHNHE, conducted one class and later invited the group to visit her own new model modern home in nearby Maryland where she showed them the blueprints, discussed her problems, and plans for the home's completion.

"In our classes we are able to bring to homemakers practical angles that come out of the research conducted by experts in home economics," Miss Adelson said. Last time, the courses were conducted for credit and at the end an evaluation was made.

The Sport Reflector

By HERMAN HICKMAN

The North Carolina football season will get a royal kick-off when the Philadelphia Eagles meet the Chicago Bears in Duke Stadium at Durham this coming Saturday.

Football coaches from all over the state... high school and college... will be on hand, along with as many of their players as possible, to watch the graduated football stars do their stuff.

The football coaches will probably be hoping the old adage... a good reader often becomes a good writer... may be applied to the effect that... a good spectator may become a good player.

There's little doubt but what the game between these two pro teams will give the spectators a better conception of football the way football should be played, than will be presented anywhere in the state this year.

Football players and fans alike are sure to be impressed with the precision movements, timing, and businesslike way that the pros exhibit in the execution of plays. To the football lover it's actually a beautiful thing to watch.

Kittrell And Players Will Go

Coach Bill Kittrell and the high school team, who open the season at Morehead City Friday night, will travel to Durham Saturday, through the courtesy of the Booster Club, to take in the pro game.

The players are tickled pink by the opportunity afforded them by the Club, who are constantly encouraging and aiding Greenville High athletes in any way they can.

At the Booster Club's annual organizational meeting Wednesday night Kittrell told members, "This move on the part of the Booster Club to send the high school team up to Durham for the pro game has done more to boost team morale than I would have believed possible. They are really pleased and I think a little pleasantly surprised that someone is showing so much interest in them and high school athletics."

Kittrell told the members that this year's squad was young, light, and inexperienced in varsity play. "But," he continued, "the team is interested in football, they want to play and are eager to meet our opponents. As long as they keep that kind of spirit I'll be satisfied if we don't win a game."

A broad grin followed this remark as he continued, "However, I don't believe that will be the case."

Club member M. K. Blount asked Coach Kittrell whether or not the influx of midget and little league programs had begun to pay off in high school play as yet. Kittrell answered, "This year at least four of my starting team are graduates of the midget team. These boys who have participated in midget programs conduct themselves with remarkable control and assurance. They perform well under fire. They know what they are capable of doing and set out to do it. There are some great athletic prospects rising from the midget and Little League ranks."

Injuries Prevent Phants From Being In Top Shape For Opening Tiff; Morgan Is Sidelined For The Contest

The Greenville Phantoms travel to Morehead City tonight for the season opener in a slightly weakened state due to injuries to some key players.

Doug Morgan, first string fullback, is definitely sidelined for the opener with a hip injury. Freshman Ed Hal Edwards, who has nailed down a varsity slot, will see limited action due to a painful knee bruise. Tackle Boots Teel will also be used sparingly because of injuries. Leroy Quinn, first string end, has dropped off the squad and will not make the trip, leaving only two regular ends available.

Coach Bill Kittrell said, "The boys are in excellent spirits, they aren't concerned about inexperience or injuries they just want to get started playing."

Co-captains for the Phantoms this year are Jimmy Cheatham and Bobby Perry, seniors. Cheatham is the center on the offense and a stalwart linebacker on the defense. Perry runs from the halfback position and has the speed to go all the way if he finds an opening. Cheatham, Perry and Tommy Smoot, left tackle, are the only seniors on the team. The rest of the players will be returning next year.

The first home game for the Phantoms will come September 26 against Kinston in the Stadium. Coach Kittrell expressed the hope, "We open against Morehead City, then go to Edenton the next week, and Herford the following week. We will learn a lot during this period and when we come home to meet Kinston we should be ready."

Starting eleven:

Bobby Conway	RE
Dixie Hobgood	RT
Billy Arnold	RG
Jimmy Cheatham	C
Bobby Nunn	LG
Tommy Smoot	LT
Harold Edwards	LE
Bobby Langston	QB
Bob Howell	RB
Bobby Perry	LB
Mitchell Johnson	LH

Wallace's Runs Spark Tar Heels

By The Associated Press

A lot of Southern Conference football teams already have reached the rough work stage even though they have only four days of practice sessions under their belts.

Scrimmaging in one form or another was the rule rather than the exception yesterday at training camps throughout the conference area. And coaches generally were pleased with what they saw.

Bud Wallace was the running star in a short scrimmage at North Carolina in which only the top of offensive and defensive players took part. The entire Tar Heel coaching staff looked on as the unit now slated for most of the offensive work showed ability to move the ball.

Plenty of rough contact work was included in the first all-out scrimmage, a 2 1/2 hour affair, at South Carolina. Coach Rex Baright expressed general satisfaction with the performance. He noted that some of the 65-man squad made mistakes, "but that is to be expected this early in the season."

An hour-long head-knocking session at North Carolina State was featured by the running of half-backs Dickie Bethune and Bot Tacker. Bethune scored once on a 65-yard sprint and Tacker set up another touchdown with a 55-yard dash in which he reversed his field twice.

Maryland Coach Jim Tatum put his offensive squads through a two-hour session against makeshift defenses and announced he was "well pleased," particularly with the work of backs Chester Hamulak, Ronnie Waller, Dick Nolan, Ralph Felton, Ed Barritt and Bob Laughery.

Among the schools which didn't go in for any rough work were Duke, Davidson, Wake Forest, West Virginia and Richmond.

The Blue Devils stressed individual drills as quarterback Jerry Barger and halfback James Smith set out workouts because of injuries. Pass patterns were stressed at Davidson with quarterbacks Jack Carolina. Coach Rex Baright expressed general satisfaction with the performance. He noted that some of the 65-man squad made mistakes, "but that is to be expected this early in the season."

Farmville Wins 7-3 To Gain Series Edge

By HERMAN HICKMAN

Farmville slugged out a 7-3 victory over Ormondville here last night to gain a three-to-two advantage in five games played in the Bright Leaf League final playoffs.

A pitchers duel between Joe Hines and Vincent Jones ensued until the sixth inning with neither team being able to muster a scoring punch. Fast double plays by both teams cut off possible rallies in the early innings.

Carolina League umpires Lou Bello and Duma Bledsoe are proving to be great favorites with the fans. The colorful Bello draws applause from the stands with his emphatic gestures calling balls and strikes.

In Farmville's big sixth inning George Graybill, Bill Kennedy and Ralph Britt blasted successive singles and when the smoke cleared Graybill was in with the first run of the game and Kennedy and Britt were on third and first. Pete Piestrak then sent a roller to the shortstop who erred and allowed Kennedy to score and Britt to advance to second. "Sandy" Sanderson was hit by a pitched ball, loading the bases. Joe Hines grounded to short who made a nice play but the attempted double play was not in time to catch Hines and Britt scored on the play.

Hines and Britt were on the play. Paul Gay singled Piestrak across to end the scoring for the inning.

Farmville added a run in the eighth on singles by Sanderson and Hines plus an error by the Ormondville rightfielder. In the ninth Farmville scored two more runs on singles by Streeter Tugwell and George Graybill and three Ormondville errors.

Up until the seventh inning Ormondville was able to touch Hines for only one hit. In the seventh McLawhorn doubled and took third on a passed ball then rode home on Vince Jones' long fly to right field. Ormondville came back in the bottom of the eighth to score two runs on singles by Norman Clark and Tommy Cole, a walk, and a Farmville error. However, a quick double play from Webb to Kennedy to Sanderson cut off the Ormondville bid.

The two teams will not play tonight, but will resume the series Saturday night at 8 in the Farmville ball park. James Hardison and Norman Clark are probable pitchers for the important contest. Should Farmville win, the series would be over; if Ormondville wins the Saturday night game the seventh and deciding game will be played Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Small Fry Football Begins September 8th

By HERMAN HICKMAN

On the heels of fall's first cool breezes the scene changes. It's exit Little League Baseball.

Little League Football.

The Greenville Recreation Department, who is sponsoring the Little League's Football program, has announced that opening practice will be held September 8 at 4 p.m. in the Little League Park. All boys who will not reach their fourteenth birthday by January and do not weigh over 110 pounds, are invited to attend practice.

Recreation Director Warren Carroll urges all boys who plan to come out to bring as much of their own equipment as possible. Carroll stated, "Last year we had around a hundred boys out for the program and I expect there will be that many again this year. We don't have nearly enough uniforms so if the boys coming out will bring what they have and maybe talk some of the older boys, who no longer use their equipment, into donating their stuff to the Little League it would help a lot."

The aim of the Little League organization will be to develop worthwhile athletic skills and knowledge, through football activities, for the boys of Greenville.

Greenville will have a four team league. A system will be used to divide the players into teams as nearly equal as possible.

Rules of Eligibility

A. A boy shall not reach the age of fourteen before Jan. 1, 1953.

B. Any boy who does not weigh over 110 pounds.

C. A boy may weigh as much as 113 after the season's play begins.

D. Only boys that attend Greenville City Schools shall be eligible to play.

E. Every boy must have a physical O.K. from a doctor before he is eligible.

F. All boys must have a contract in the Recreation office 4 days before he is eligible to play. The contract must be signed correctly by all persons that are supposed to sign it, or the player cannot take the field.

Playing Rules

A. The rules of High School Federation Football shall be followed, except matter covered by the Local League rules.

League Rules

A. The game shall be divided into 4 quarters of 6 minutes each. There shall be a five minute intermission before the 2nd and 3rd quarters.

B. A fast whistle shall be used on the field of play. "Fast whistle-stop" play when forward progress is stopped—when a boy has been hit hard—when there is danger of several players hitting the ball carrier.

C. No hard solos or football shoes shall be allowed on the playing field. Tennis shoes are recommended; may have rubber cleats.

D. Every boy that enters this program and attends two thirds of the practice periods shall be allowed to dress and play a minimum of one quarter in each game in which his team is involved.

Miscellaneous Rules

A. All practice or exhibition games must be approved by the Recreation director. Any violation of this rule may disqualify a team from further participation.

B. Because of school loads, it is advisable that practice periods be cut as the season progresses.

Australians Maul U.S. Net Stars

FOREST HILLS, N. Y. (UP)—Four super-charged Australians threatened today to turn the 1952 U. S. singles tennis championships into the blackest in history.

Defending champion Frank Sedgman, southpaw Mervyn Rose and a pair of amazing 17-year-old juniors—Ken Rosewall and Lewis Hoad—bounced four seeded Americans out of the running yesterday and made their bids today for berths in the semifinals. Only one was certain to fail. Sedgman plays Hoad.

Since the first round defeat by Australia's Ken McGregor, that's been the only way to oust one of the stars from down under—pitting Aussie against Aussie.

Rosewall blasted Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, America's No. 1 player, in one of the most resounding five-set upsets ever seen at Forest Hills.

Hours later, Hoad, a blonde cluster who looks like a fullback, dusted off Art Larsen of San Leandro, Calif., the 1950 champion, in straight sets.

So today it is up to the aging Gardner Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla., and Dick Savit of Orange, N. J. to forestall the first all-foreign final since Fred Perry of England and Jack Crawford of Australia in 1933.

Mulloy plays Rosewall and Savit plays Hoad. In the other quarter-final, Straight Clark of Pasadena, Calif., and Hamilton Richardson of Baton Rouge, La., fight it out in the only bracket not involving an Aussie.

Rosewall proved terrific in the final clutch as he ground out a 3-6, 6-2, 7-5, 6-7, 6-3 triumph over Seixas. The scrappy little Aussie displayed a powerful all-court game and well-placed though not speedy service.

Mulloy gained the bracket opposite Rosewall with an easy victory over Philippe Washer of Belgium, 9-7, 6-1, 6-3.

Clark, down two sets to one, upset Herbie Flam of Beverly Hills, Calif., 4-6, 6-1, 4-6, 6-4, 7-5, while Richardson gained his berth with a 6-1, 9-7, 6-2 decision over Charley Masterson of Brooklyn.

Yanks Whip Shantz To Retain Margin

United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 5 (UP)—Charley Dressen, Brooklyn's manager, who is no stranger to panic, made it plain today that the Dodgers could become victims of a second straight pennant disaster if anything happens to relief Pitcher Joe Black.

"We could be in real trouble if he should have a bad stretch," said Dressen before last night's Brooklyn defeat, 6 to 5, in 11 innings at Boston. It was a significant loss because the Giants had beaten the Phils, 4 to 3, earlier, also in 11 innings, to move within seven games of the top, and because it was the first time Boston had topped Brooklyn this season—after 13 straight losses.

Black could have been distracted, too, because before the game he received a "screwball" letter from an anonymous fan which threatened his life if he pitched this week-end against the Giants in the Polo Grounds.

The Yankees stayed 3 1-2 games in front of the second place Indians in the American League race by pumeling the circuit's top pitcher, lefty Bobby Shantz, 12 to 2, while the Indians were winning a 2 to 0 decision from Detroit. Gil McDougald hit two homers and Gene Woodling hit three singles and a double. Alvin Reynolds breezed to his 17th victory.

Mike (Big Bear) Garcia pitched five hit ball to top the Tigers in a duel in which loser Bill Wright also gave up only five hits. However, one of them was Luke Easter's 25th homer and two others were a double by Birdie Boy Tebbetts and a single by George Strickland to account for the Cleveland runs.

Young Miller, gaining his fourth victory in six starts and his second shutout, got the run he needed for victory against loser Warren Hacker when Red Schoendienst, Stan Musial and Enos Slaughter singled in succession in the second inning.

Turner Starts Comeback Tonight

NEW YORK (UP)—Gil Turner, who claims he learned a lesson in his last fight with waterweight champion Kid Gavilan, will launch another drive for a title bout when he takes on lanky Bobby Dykes tonight at Madison Square Garden.

Turner, 21-year-old Philadelphia Negro, was favored at 8-5 for the 10-round bout, which will officially open the Garden's "winter season" fight schedule. It will be televised and broadcast.

In Dykes a tall, skinny Texar who now lives in Miami, Turner will be up against one of the shiftiest boxers in the game. But young Gil, who suffered his first defeat in 33 professional fights to Gavilan on July 7, is confident of starting a new victory skid.

"I'm going to be more aggressive than in the past," Turner stated earlier this week.

Stocks And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP) — Stocks declined fractionally to around a point around mid-session today in moderately active dealings.

Railroad shares as a group led the sell-off with a few pivots in this group showing losses more than a point. High-priced oil shares were also backward. Industrial shares were heavy.

The retreat, however, was orderly and sales in the first two hours of dealings totaled only 430,000 shares, compared with 500,000 in the same period yesterday.

In the carriers, Santa Fe slipped 1 1/8 points to 92 1/2. Denver & Rio Grande and Southern Railway were down a point each.

Texas Pacific Land Trust was the weak spot in the high-priced oil group with a loss of 2 points to 156. Continental Oil at 61 3/4 was off points.

Dow Chemical fell 2 1/8 points to 120 1/4 in a mixed chemical section. Steel shares moved downward under the leadership of Young-

Annual Church Youth Rally Has Last Service Tonight

The annual Youth Rally, which has been in progress this week at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, comes to a close tonight with a dedication service to be held in the Sanctuary at 7:30.

The Rally, which has drawn an average attendance of more than 100 young people of the city each night since last Sunday, has used for a theme the topic "Still He Calls." The Rev. N. W. Grant of Bethel has brought the message each night for the worship hour, after which the youth divided into discussion and study groups, according to age. Leading these were the Rev. E. L. Earnhardt, the Rev. Langill Watson and Billy Brown.

On Wednesday night Mr. Grant developed the thought that the Master is calling people today to face the truth. "We must be able to face ourselves as we actually are and be perfectly honest in self-analysis before we can serve Him as we should," said the minister. On Thursday night he spoke on the subject of a grateful heart. "We are told that it is more blessed to give than to receive," stated the leader, "and today more than ever Jesus is calling His followers to practice this."

The message tonight will stress the need to build a new world founded on spiritual concepts. At the conclusion of the sermon, the Rev. Leon Russell will preside at a communion service, at which time the young people will be asked to re-dedicate themselves to Christian service and to answer the Master's call.

Miss Peggy Brown, director of religious education at Jarvis Memorial, has been overall director of the Rally. Assisting her in planning for it were committees made up of members of the Methodist Youth Fellowship.

Police List 125 August Arrests In Board Report

Police Chief Guy C. Langston's report for August, submitted to the Board of Aldermen last night shows that Greenville police made 125 arrests during the month. Eighty-one of the arrests were Negroes-78 being males, three females.

Forty-four of the arrests were whites-44 being males. No white woman was arrested during August, the report shows.

The chief's report to the Board of Aldermen gives an analysis of traffic violations during August, as follows: Speeding, 7; reckless driving, 8; defective lights and brakes, 1; no observance of traffic lights, 4; and all other traffic violations, 7.

Accidents investigated, 37; dog complaints, 20; and general complaints, 312.

Cases known to police during August, 169; cases cleared by arrest, 125. Seventy-four per cent of the cases were cleared by arrest.

No 51 police car traveled 2,128 miles during August; No 52 car traveled 3,030; No 53 car traveled 7,923 miles; No. 54, car traveled 316 miles; Motorcycle No. 1 traveled 631 miles during the month. Motorcycle No. 2 traveled 463 miles. Dog catcher truck, 972 miles.

In his report to the Board of Aldermen last night, Chief Langston said he had been making a study of conditions where police officers have to work at night, in alleys and in the rear of business places to install electric lights on the rear of their buildings. Also, recommendations will be made to the Utilities Commission to install additional lights in obscure places.

Firemen Answer 24 August Calls

In the month of August, the Greenville Fire Department answered 24 calls for emergency service in Greenville and Pitt County.

The regular monthly report of Fire Chief George Gardner shows that in the month the department answered five box alarms, ten telephone calls, four fire alarms in the county and the rescue truck was called into service on five trips.

Fire losses for the month was $2,250.25, bringing the year's total to $53,814.47, Gardner's report shows.

New Assistant Named By Girl Scout Council

At a recent meeting of the Greenville Girl Scout Council, Mrs. J. Knott Proctor was elected Council Assistant to succeed Mrs. E. L. Henderson, who has served the Council for the last five years, but resigned the position July 1.

MRS. J. K. PROCTOR

The Council feels very fortunate in securing the services of Mrs. Proctor, who is well acquainted with the program of Girl Scouting. For several years, she has engaged in activities among the Greenville Girl Scouts. Besides serving as leader for Brownie troops for many years, she was Girl Scout Commissioner for three years. She has also held other offices in the Council.

For several seasons, Mrs. Proctor has been head of the Brownie unit and also assistant director at Camp Hardee, which is under the jurisdiction of the Greenville Girl Scout Council. As assistant to the Council, she will assist in promoting Camp Hardee.

Plans are now in progress for the initial meetings next week of all Girl Scout troops in Greenville. Several new leaders have volunteered their services while many of the old leaders are continuing as troop leaders.

Arrest Follows Long 'Try-Out'

Lonnie W. Davis, 25-year-old white man, was arrested around midnight last night and placed in city jail on charges of temporary larceny of an automobile.

Pitt County Deputy Sheriff "Duke" Andrews reported this morning Davis entered the P and S used car lot in Greenville on a pretense of trading automobiles.

Andrews said Davis drove away in the car to "try it out" and did not return. He was arrested at Haddock's Crossroads shortly before midnight last night.

Andrews, who made the arrest, disclosed the warrant for Davis was sworn out by Ed Patrick, co-owner of the used car lot. Davis was scheduled to be tried in Recorder's Court today.

Mild And Cool

The mercury rose to only 81 degrees at the Greenville weather station, and fell to the blanket-for-comfort level of 56 during the night. The temperature at eight o'clock this morning stood at 65 and rose to 79 degrees by noon today. This milder weather now pervading Eastern Carolina recalls that frosty nights are not too far in the future. The first light frost of last year was on the night of October 1.

Still Raided In Chicod Township

ABC officers seized and destroyed a 50-gallon "drum" still in the Chicod Township yesterday afternoon. The still was hot and had been in operation recently, but no operator was found at the site.

It was believed that they had been warned of the approach of the officers and had fled.

Six 50-gallon beer barrels with all of the still equipment was destroyed by the raiding force.

The still was located three miles east of Calico.

Officers making the raid were Jim Ward, Claude Manning, J. L. Taylor and Dick King.

Only one gallon of illegal spirits was destroyed with the still.
