ROKs Hold Firm As Reds Poise For Major Assault

Massive Artillery Bombardment May Be Preliminary To Full Scale Smash At Allied Lines; Valor Of South Korean Infantry Wins Highest Praise

SEOUL, Korea (UP) — Valorous South Korean infantrymen held Capitol Hill tonight after slamming back four savage Chinese attacks that may have been intended as the start of a full-scale assault at the Allied line.

United Press correspondent Fred Panton reported from the front that there was speculation the Chinese intended a major assault because:

They used a record 48,000 round barrage of artillery and mortar shells in last night's attack.

2. They struck at the one-vulnerable Republic of Korea troops.

3. The ROKs captured some 3,200 rifle grenades which the Reds apparently intended to use for softening up Allied bunkers on the main line of resistance.

4. Intensity of the artillery barrage caused speculation by Allied officers that the Chinese had massed artillery of two armies in front of the ROK positions.

Defense and counterattacks of the South Koreans were described as among the most valiant of the war.

They were covered during daylight today by Allied artillery which pounded away while Communist counter-fire eased off.

Massed artillery fire of the Reds was described in field dispatches as a technique apparently learned from the Russians, who used it during World War II.

This morning's attack on the hill was the fourth since the Koreans recaptured it Tuesday night.

Soldiers of the Capitol Division's horseless "Cavalry Regiment" beat off the attacks by screaming Reds despite the fact they were stunned and shaken from a record 48,000 round barrage of artillery and mortar shells laid down in last night's attack.

One Red assault hit the hill, recaptured by the Koreans only 24 hours earlier, about 9:30 p. m. (9:30 a. m. EST Wednesday), but the defenders leaped from their foxholes and chased the Chinese down the slopes.

United Press war correspondent Frederick C. Panton reported from the scene that the South Koreans were almost foolhardy in pursuing the Chinese. He said they could have more easily stayed in their foxholes and cut down the attackers.

The second attack came at 12:30 a. m. (10:30 a. m. EST Wednesday). The Chinese gained the crest of the hill and both sides fought with grenades, bayonets, fists and rifle bullets until the Reds fell back and finally quit at 6:30 a. m. (4:30 p. m. EST Wednesday).

The two attacks cost the Reds 700 men killed or wounded. The fighting took place over a grisly, rain-drenched battlefield littered with the dead from seven days of unceasing battle.

Panton said he had "never seen anything like" the artillery barrage the Chinese laid down on the hill. Division officers said it was "fantastic" and at first refused to believe the count of 48,000 rounds.

"Incoming shells during part of the fighting were falling at the rate of 15 a minute on a single position," Panton reported.

The artillery barrage eclipsed the previous Communist record of 30,000 rounds set in their original and successful attack against Capitol Hill Saturday night.

Chinese troops surrounded Capitol Hill at one point of the attack early this morning, but a South Korean division sent reinforcements into the fight, dispersed the Reds and pounded them with artillery.

While the "Cavalry Regiment" was fighting on Capitol Hill, other South Korean soldiers recaptured Finger Ridge, two miles east, in a brief heavy mortar fire on the small position.

Ground fighting was relatively light in all other sectors.

The fight for Capitol Hill, as savage as any of the battles for Heartbreak and Bloody Ridges, Old Baldy, Gibraltar and Bunker Hills, was more than a battle between defenders and attackers. It symbolized the rise of the South Korean Army to a stubborn, dependable fighting force.

Reds Assert Prisoner Persecuted To Suicide

North Korean Delegate Writes Accusation To Gen. Harrison; Seven-Day Recess Ends, No Hope Of Parley 'Break'

MUNSAN, Korea (UP) — Communists accused the United Nations today of "persecuting to death" a prisoner of war who committed suicide on Kije Island Tuesday.

In a terse note to Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison, senior U. N. delegate to the Panmunjom truce talks, North Korean Gen. Nam II said:

"On September 9th your side again persecuted to death one of our captured personnel. I lodge with you a strong protest regarding this incident. Your side must bear full responsibility for such barbarous actions in thorough violation of the Geneva convention."

The man to whom Nam referred was found hanging in a Kije enclosure, apparently a suicide.

Nam has repeatedly accused the U. N. of "atrocities" in its treatment of prisoners of war. However, the U. N. has charged die-hard Communists have been ordered to create incidents to provide propaganda material for the Reds.

Meanwhile, Allied and Communist truce delegates ended another seven-day recess with little hope of loosening the prisoner of war deadlock when negotiations resume tomorrow.

But elsewhere in the world, diplomats suggested plans for a satisfactory settlement of the last obstacle blocking peace in Korea.

Secretary of State Dean Acheson said the United States wants a "meeting of minds" with friendly nations on how to resolve the

Russians Again Remove Barrier

No Explanation Of Relaxing Ban In German Sector

BERLIN (AP) — The Russians lifted their blockade of a highway strip between the American sector and the Allied border checkpoint at least temporarily at noon today to let an American military police patrol go through.

The M. P. jeep proceeded without being hindered by Russian sentries who had halted earlier patrols this morning.

U. S. authorities had no immediate explanation for the relaxation of the Soviet ban, imposed with the argument that the stretch of road in question is Russian zone territory in which armed Allied patrols have no right to move.

The Americans and British had used this road ever since 1945 to bring their relief teams to the Dreilinden checkpoint for border duty until the Russians imposed their blockade three days ago. They halted all daytime patrols but apparently withdrew their guard detail at night, thus enabling the night relief teams to go through unimpeded.

American officials speculated that the lifting of this restriction today may have been a result of U. S. High Commissioner Walter J. Donnelly's personal intervention with Soviet Gen. Vassily Chukov last Tuesday.

They were not certain of this, however, since there has been no indication from the Russians as to whether they will abandon their restrictions completely.

Kinston Police Charge Socie In Robbery Of Safe

One Of Two Marines Held By Local Jail Accused Of August 12 Theft

Herman J. Socie, one of the two accused killers of Greenville Police Officer Jesse E. Mills, has been charged by Kinston police officers with the safe robbery of a Kinston cleaning firm.

The warrant, charging robbery of the Rochelle Dry Cleaners on the night of August 12, four nights prior to the killing of the police officer, was served on the 19-year-old Marine Tuesday.

The laundry firm was robbed of more than $200 contained in a safe. The loot was found the next morning near Deep Run.

No trial date has been set for the robbery case, it was learned from Kinston authorities. If and when the case is called, it will depend on the outcome of the murder charge now facing Socie and his companion, Frederick L. Porcelli.

In the event that a death sentence is returned or a long prison term imposed in the murder case, then the case will not be heard, it was reported.

Positive identification came when Boyd succeeded in matching a sandblurred fingerprint on the safe with the fingerprints of Socie. While other prints were found on the looted safe, none could be identified as Porcelli's.

Isolationist Congress Can Not Bring Peace: Truman

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Truman said today that election of an "isolationist Republican Congress" will not mean peace by any means.

Taking up at his news conference Dwight D. Eisenhower's call for a change in administration, Mr. Truman said the change the general is talking about would not mean peace.

In answer to a reporter's question about whether he agreed with Eisenhower's recent statement that a change in administration is now the No. 1 campaign issue, rather than peace, Mr. Truman said that he did not.

He said that his administration has been working for seven long years for world peace and that he still was hopeful that it would be achieved.

He said that he based his statement that a Republican Congress, if elected with Eisenhower would be isolationist on the voting record of Republican congressmen.

Mr. Truman replied sharply to a reporter who asked if he thought such an "isolationist Republican Congress" would mean war.

The President said no, that he meant it would not mean world peace. He told the reporter not to put words in his mouth because he resented it.

The President also said he doesn't give a hoot what newspapers say about him and Democratic candidates in their editorials if they get the truth in their news stories.

He read a prepared statement pointing out that few newspapers had supported him in his successful 1948 campaign.

Mr. Truman said that the nation's "one party press," made matters "particularly" difficult for Democratic congressmen who could not get what he called a fair break in their local press.

He said that daily newspapers now are "big business and big business traditionally has always been Republican." He said that his main purpose in making the statement was because the "people must have both sides." But he conceded that he did not expect any switches in the political positions of newspapers.

Foil Kidnaping

BERLIN (UP) — German police rescued a West Berliner today from two armed Russian soldiers who attempted to kidnap him into East Berlin.

The Russians, armed with Tommy guns, invaded the British sector. They grabbed a West Berlin citizen and attempted to drag him across the border line into East German territory.

Two West Berlin radio cars, each containing three armed German policemen, raced to the boundary. The Russians fled across the line into their own territory.

Part Of Reward May Yet Be Paid

Ike's Aides Say Tour A Success

Chief Adviser Says Eisenhower In 'Tip-Top' Condition

NEW YORK (UP) — Republican campaign chiefs said today Dwight D. Eisenhower's first road swing was a "fighting and highly successful start" that would end "with a smashing victory for America in November."

Gov. Sherman Adams of New Hampshire, the GOP presidential candidate's top political adviser, said Eisenhower was in tip-top shape and would wage his campaign "at an increased tempo."

Other spokesmen close to the retired general agreed that Eisenhower relishes his new role as a politician to such an extent that he doesn't pace himself like most seasoned campaigners.

They said they now are faced with the problem of sparing Eisenhower's energy for the heavy schedule ahead.

Adams said Eisenhower's nine-day, 7,000-mile trip which ended yesterday proved affection for him was not bounded by sectional areas or by state lines.

"Everywhere, beginning in Atlanta and ending in Indianapolis, General Eisenhower was received by large and enthusiastic crowds," Adams said.

"People want a change: from the mess in Washington, whether they live in Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Arkansas, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Minnesota, Ohio or Indiana."

The theme of Eisenhower's first road trip and the states Adams referred to were those which the general had visited.

Eisenhower returned to his home on the Columbia University campus yesterday and will remain there until Sunday, working mostly on speeches. He will hit the road again Sunday for plane and train trips almost without interruption until election day.

Eisenhower's morning schedule today called for the filming of short campaign shows to be used on television during the next six weeks.

The general also had a luncheon date with Sen. H. Alexander Smith of New Jersey, who is seeking another six-year term.

In a whirlwind 90-minute visit to Washington yesterday, Eisenhower and Sen. Richard M. Nixon of California, the vice presidential nominee spoke of the rigors of campaigning.

The check for $10 was received from a firm as far away as War, West Va., whose donor said in a letter he saw an account of the crime in the newspapers. He stated in the letter he knew Mills personally and feels that he will be greatly missed by both his family and friends.

Huffstetler, who resides at 1402-A Chestnut Street, could not be reached this morning for comment on the pending reward. He reportedly dropped a casual remark that proved to be a crucial clue in the breaking of the Mills case, which had kept officers busy for more than a week prior to the two marines' arrest.

The pair were arraigned on charges of murder at the last session of Pitt County Superior Court and speculation has it they will be tried at the October criminal term. The court appointed two attorneys to defend them.

In a letter to the board of aldermen, Chief Langston commented on the "unfortunate" death of Police Officer Mills and reviewed the officer's record with the department prior to the murder. He termed Mills "an officer who gave his life in the service of this community."

"This report is one which I sincerely hope I will never have to duplicate," the chief stated in his letter to the board.

Immediately following the reading of the chief's letter the board of aldermen passed a resolution re-appointing two attorneys to defend them.

Dunlap Says Tax Bureau Is 'Clean As A Whistle'

DETROIT (AP) — "We now are as clean as a whistle, and we intend to stay that way," says the commissioner of the U. S. Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Commissioner John B. Dunlap made the statement yesterday in a speech to the National Federation of Federal Employees in convention here. He said he made it on the basis of examinations made under the bureau's reorganization program.

Dunlap said the program stressed rigid tests of character and qualifications for key operating officials. "These examinations," he said, "both by our bureau and by the Civil Service Commission are the most complete, detailed rigorous and exhaustive ever carried on in either public or private employment."

Missionary Tells Of His Experience In Japan And Encouraging Response

Dr. E. Norfleet Gardner, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Henderson, spoke last night at the Memorial Baptist Church here on his experiences in Japan during a preaching mission last year.

Dr. Gardner was one of seven Baptist ministers from the United States chosen to participate in special mission work in Japan.

"For thousands of Japanese since the war there has come new hope and new meaning through the church," Dr. Gardner said. "I found God in Japan, living among the Japanese people, among the questioning groups of individuals."

The speaker, who visited numerous Japanese communities during his mission, told of talking to Japanese businessmen about Christianity, preaching to workers in shops and in hospitals, and visiting in the homes of Japanese people.

"Those people wanted to know the attitude of the American people toward Japan, and the business people and other citizens of Japan wanted to know a way out of their plight and the answer to their problems, and through Christ many found it," Dr. Gardner said.

"Everywhere we went we discovered God among the business people of Japan, the school students of Japan, the distressed people of Japan. Japan has rebuilt materially, and is rebuilding spiritually."

A Japanese boy, Thomas Yamakarb, who will enter Wake Forest College within the next few days, accompanied Dr. Gardner to Greenville, and in measured words last night told of his experiences as a elementary school student in Japan during the years of World War II.

"We who were living in Japan had to save everything to send to the men in the field," the young Japanese said. He described the hardships of the Japanese people during the war years in the face of drastically short food rations, lack of clothing and fuel for heating homes, schools and businesses.

"These bad memories and enumerations have been working on our insides not to hate our enemies, but to strengthen our desire for peace. Most Japanese people seek the friendship of the people of the United States."

Another Japanese student who will enter the University of North Carolina this fall, and is visiting the Rev. and Mrs. J.A. Neilson for a few days, expressed her delight in being in the United States, and her appreciation for the friendship of American people.

Dr. Fink recently resigned as president of the Jersey Shore Savings and Loan Association and as a member of its board of directors to begin his new duties at Carlisle College. Before becoming an organizer of Jersey Shore, Dr. Fink was supervisor of the Toms River Schools.

Since his retirement as supervisor of the Toms River Schools, Dr. Fink has taught graduate courses in education each summer at East Carolina College.

Party Line Fight Looms Ahead In S.C. Demo Ranks

COLUMBIA, S. C. (UP)—An all-out battle between dissatisfied Democrats, or independents, and regular party Loyalists shaped up today following announcement that state campaign headquarters for Adlai Stevenson will open here Monday.

The announcement came last night from State Sen. Edgar A. Brown of Barnwell, state Democratic party chairman, who said "I don't think the people of South Carolina will soon forget what the Democratic administration has meant to the state in the past 20 years."

State Democratic headquarters will be on the second floor of the Jefferson Hotel here. "South Carolinians for Eisenhower" have set up headquarters on the mezzanine of the same hotel.

Brown has been in conference with Democratic leaders throughout the state for the last several days during which time plans for the state phase of the national Democratic presidential campaign were advanced.

The State Democratic Executive Committee authorized Brown to set up headquarters and conduct the campaign. Brown said section headquarters will be set up at other points in the state with plans going forward to conduct a campaign in each county.

Meanwhile, three independent Eisenhower officials were due to leave today for New York where they will confer with Republican campaign officials, perhaps with Eisenhower himself, and with officials of another independent group "Citizens for Eisenhower."

State Chairman Douglas McKay, vice chairman W.W. Reamer Jr., and State Director Samuel B. Moyle will attend conferences that may lead to recognition of "South Carolinians for Eisenhower" by the national GOP.

Nearly 100 state executive committee men and county Eisenhower chairmen attended a meeting here yesterday and heard McKay report on the progress of the campaign.

Malayan Vessels To Fly Emblem

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (AP)—Malayan merchant ships will soon be flying a Malayan ensign in accordance with a bill published in the government gazette.

The bill gives commissioner, Gen. Sir Gerald Templer, power to prescribe an ensign to be known as the national colors of a Malayan ship. Only Malayan citizens and shipping companies having their principal place of business in Malaya can make use of the ensigns.

Red Recruits Join Guerrillas

HONG KONG (UP)—An independent press report from South China says the Chinese Communists inadvertently recruited 100 men for the anti-Red guerrillas recently.

A dispatch to the Kung Sheung Daily News said river boats carrying 100 recruits for the Communist armies recently were seized by guerrillas as they headed up the East River to Canton.

The report said the recruits joined the guerrillas.

Some of the famous Roman roads were more than 40 inches thick. Oil chemists believe they can make from petroleum anything that is now made from coal, wood, plants or animals.

Billy And Eleanor Relaxing After Skirmish In Court

NEW YORK (UP)—Billy Rose and Eleanor Holm relaxed in separate corners today after a keenly-awaited courtroom skirmish that turned out to be a one-punch affair.

The next round in the celebrated marital battle between the millionaire showman and the curvaceous swimming star will be a court hearing Oct. 15 to decide how much alimony Miss Holm will receive under the separation decree she won yesterday.

Rose dramatically dropped his suit for divorce after two and a half hours of conferences in the chambers of Justice James B. McCall. His decision deprived a courtroom of reporters and spectators of what was expected to be the most lurid divorce trial in New York in 25 years.

Rumors immediately sprang up that either Rose or Miss Holm would establish residence in Nevada or some other state to obtain a divorce under laws less demanding than those of New York, where adultery is the only possible grounds.

The October hearing will determine whether Rose must continue to pay the $700 a week temporary alimony which Miss Holm has been receiving since last November. Rose has indicated he will try to have the figure reduced.

Miss Holm wore a smile of victory when she left the courtroom yesterday. Rose was less cheerful, but he aimed his resentment not at his wife but at her lawyer, Louis Nizer.

Nizer said that he regretted he did not have a chance to cross-examine Rose to "demonstrate the falsity, recklessness and ruthlessness of his charges."

Referring to Nizer as a "two-bit Disraeli," Rose blamed the lawyer for most of the grief between him and Miss Holm. He accused Nizer of trying to "scare me out of my day in court" by "smear and intimidation."

Solon Believes Federal Workers Need Pay Raise

DETROIT (UP)—Sen. Olin D. Johnston, chairman of the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee, says an increase in federal employees' salaries "is required by every realistic yardstick."

The South Carolina Democrat, in a speech Wednesday before the National Federation of Federal "prompt action looking toward such an increase."

The convention adopted a resolution declaring that more than 1,100,000 federal employees have quit since 1948, 400,000 of them during 1951, largely because of a "short-sighted, essentially wasteful and uneconomic" federal salary policy.

"This entails a heavy loss to the people and government of the United States in recruitment, training, and in the loss in competence and experience," the resolution said.

Underwriters To Meet Tomorrow

Pitt County Life Underwriters Association will meet at 12:30 tomorrow for its regular monthly meeting.

Judge Charles Whedbee of Greenville Recorder's court will be the speaker at the meeting. Riddick Revell, president of the Association, said all life insurance men are cordially invited to the meeting.

State Welfare Official Here

Dr. Ellen Winston, State Commissioner of Welfare, will speak here Friday when the Pitt County Welfare Board will be held to welfare officials and guests from Edgecomb, Lenior, and Martin Counties.

Dr. Winston will give a short address on the reasons behind the 1953 legislative requests and state and federal legislation will probably be explained. Following the address, an open forum for general discussion will be held.

More than 60 invitations have been sent out for the dinner meeting Friday night and K.T. Futrell, superintendent of the Pitt County Welfare Department, said from the response to invitations, the dinner would be well attended.

Arch Flanagan, chairman of the welfare board, will preside.

Former Teacher Wins Acclaim In Art Circles

In the column, "Washington Letter," written by Jane Eads, which appears daily in the Daily Reflector, mention was made yesterday of Mrs. Jane Love, a noted sculpture of Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Love is the former Jane Ruth Groom of Greensboro, who taught school in Greenville 30-35 years ago. She was a member of the faculty of the local high school, and is remembered by many local residents with affection and esteem.

She is the wife of a Bureau of the Budget analyst. She went to Washington in 1918 and has been active in art circles there. She has been a leader in a movement to gain recognition for local artists, many of whom are women, and helped to organize the Washington Sculptors Group.

In addition to her work in art and sculpture, she has printed volumes of poetry and is the author of many short stories. Jane Eads, in her column, pays tribute to her for her work among the art circles of the East.

ECC Student Party To Be Held Friday At Christian Church

The Eighth Street Christian Church is sponsoring a party for students enrolled at East Carolina College during the current year.

New students who are members of a Disciples of Christ Church or who show a preference for this denomination, as well as old students previously identified with the local Christian Church, are invited to attend.

The party, which will be a "get acquainted with your church away from home" affair, will be held at the church on Friday night of this week. A night of recreation, fun and fellowship has been planned by the student planning committee, and all students from the college who are interested in the church are cordially invited to attend.

Hours are from 7:30-9:30 p.m. The Rev. H. G. Haney is pastor of the church.

Bride Elect Of Fountain Feted

FOUNTAIN—Miss Joyce Sutton, bride-to-be of September 21, was the inspiration for a lovely informal supper given by Mrs. J. L. Peele and Mrs. Hardy Johnson on Friday evening.

Guests included members of the Young People's Class of the Fountain Presbyterian Church and the affair was held in the dining room of the church.

The tables were centered with bowls of late summer flowers.

The honoree was given a corsage of pink carnations and a lovely pair of figurines.

Guests for the evening were: Miss Joyce Sutton, Mrs. Jimmie Sutton, Miss Brenda Sutton, Miss Faye Moore, Miss Wilma Grace Owens, Miss Ernestine Mosley, Miss Barbara Dilda, Miss Martha Hardy Johnson, Billy Mayo, Mark Owens and James Owens.

Awards Won By The King's Daughters

The Patient Circle of The King's Daughters and Sons held the first fall meeting at the home of Mrs. Annie Washington on September 9. The group welcomed four new members.

Mrs. Margaret Scales, president, presided. Mrs. Leon Fleming presented the devotionals. The Rev. Leon Russell, who was introduced by Mrs. Clara Moye Shackell, gave an inspirational talk on Christian Service. Mrs. Shackell announced the following awards which were won by the circle for the year: an Indian headband for doing so much for the Indians, a 50-year citation plaque, a silver loving cup for achievements during the year, and $5.00 for selling the most subscriptions to the Silver Cross magazine.

The hostesses served a delightful sweet course after which the meeting adjourned.

The hostesses were Mrs. Washington, Mrs. Leon Fleming, Miss Lowe, Misses Nannie Evans, Mamie Chandler, Jane Hancock and Mrs. E. L. Baker.

Rural Home Is Lost To Blaze

FOUNTAIN—Fire destroyed a four room residence and furnishings of the kitchen of Herbert Jones of Fountain, RFD 1, Saturday morning about 7:30 o'clock.

The home was owned by Mrs. Minnie (Will) Gaynor, who lives in Fountain across the street from Fountain First Baptist Church. Mrs. Gaynor's daughter, Mrs. Hazel Harris, said the fire was caused by the oil cook stove exploding.

Mrs. Gaynor said the house was partly covered by insurance. She estimated the loss of the house at $4,000.

The Fountain Fire Department responded to the call but was unable to save the residence.

Graduates Honored
The Women of Hollywood Presbyterian Church entertained Friday evening at a dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ulan Cox honoring recent high school and college graduates.

Those honored were: Misses Pat Stanley, Betty Jo Carroll, Margaret Evans, Lila Sue Tyson, Janice Reiley, Willie Faye Worthington, Jean Mills, Betty and Peggy Worthington; Ola Forbes and Connie Baxter Singleton.
Rev. E. Lee Willingham was a special guest.

FAILURES?

Let me tell you the story of a man who had a brief career and who appeared to fail.
He lived in an obscure part of the world, was poor, spent most of his life in a despoiled village, worked with his hands until he was thirty years of age, then had a career which lasted only three years and ended with his being executed.

The man, of course, was Jesus of Nazareth. Time has dated from his birth. Why did he make such a tremendous impression upon the world, having as he did such an unimpressive background and so few opportunities?

He was the divine Son of God—that statement answers all questions. His message was perfectly geared to human needs. All the power of the spiritual world was at that time, and has been since, channeled through him to the human race. His resurrection broke the power of life's greatest enemy, death.

God does not need what men call opportunities in order to fulfill his divine will. He is fulfilling that will all the time. He chooses means which elude the scrutiny of man, placing his divine Son in a humble home of Galilean peasants and making him but a neglected preacher among people who had no ears to hear.

The ways of God are past understanding—now, as ever.

Something The Legislature Should Keep In Mind

Insurance Commissioner Waldo Cheek hit at one of North Carolina's most prominent shortcomings when in a talk in Greenville he criticized the state's policy of letting "any and every driver on the road."

The Commissioner was pointing out how the state's highway accident rate affects the automobile insurance rates in the state, and cited the two million dollar rate reduction of 1949 which was wiped out by a rate increase in 1951.

That North Carolina is guilty of being too lenient with its careless and reckless drivers who disregard the state traffic laws, is quite obvious to almost everyone who follows court proceedings. A fine is imposed on an offender here, a license is suspended there, but almost without exception those found guilty of traffic violations regain their legal status to operate motor vehicles in a relatively short time.

With an increasing amount of traffic on the state highways, there should be a constant tightening of the highway laws and the consequences their violation carry. Yet in North Carolina, there seems to be little done toward buckling down on highway offenders.

The increased accident rate is not only costing the citizens of North Carolina a heavier toll in loss of life and in property damage, but it is costing them more in automobile insurance rates. The General Assembly of the state should give serious consideration to the restoration of auto inspection lanes in the state, and other legislation designed to thwart the upward trend of highway accidents in North Carolina.

All Our Officials Shared In Blunder

The red faces down at Greenville's city hall over this abandoning of the partially completed parking lot are certainly justified. It is not only embarrassing to the city officials but humiliating to the citizens of Greenville to have such an unfortunate incident occur.

It is another example—although luckily not too expensive—of local officials going off half-cocked on a project with good intentions but lack of foresight and planning.

The crux of the situation was that the city of Greenville took for granted it could use the property of the Girl Scouts for a parking lot since the scouts had not used the property for some time. It seems that no one took time to get the scout organization's permission to use the property for a parking lot, although Alderman Heber Tripp, who gallantly accepted the responsibility for the blunder, said he talked to several scout officials about it and presumed it would be agreeable.

That may be the way for a municipality to do business. But we don't think so. If any city officials had taken time to check the property deed he would have found that the Girl Scout property in question was given the scouts only on condition it be used exclusively for scout activities, and if it is used for any other purpose it reverts to its original owners.

No one could reasonably expect the scouts to grant the city permission to use the property for a parking lot, for it would have automatically meant the scout organization would have lost its title to the property.

How much did the city sink in its parking lot project before it found the oversight? That at this point, so far as The Daily Reflector has been able to determine, is a matter of opinion. Mayor Page said he thought the city had spent something like $150 on the project. Alderman Tripp said he thought the cost would not run over $100. Superintendent of Streets C. K. Beatty said the city probably had $300 to $400 in the project when it was abandoned, but he did not know exactly. Well now, since the city operations is a business—not a haphazard experiment—it surely seems that some cost accounting would be had to show just how much a project—any particular project—costs the taxpayers of Greenville. If Greenville doesn't have such an accounting, it certainly should have.

In our opinion, the responsibility for the parking lot blunder can not be laid at the hands of any individual official. All Greenville's officials share the responsibility for the blunder.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—The American people are not spending themselves into the poorhouse, despite a recent government finding to that general unhappy effect.

The official report, which may mean a trip to the White House woodshed for Secretary Maurice J. Tobin, was issued by his Bureau of Labor Statistics last month. It created consternation in government, labor and Truman-Stevenson circles for fear of its politico-economic implications. It declared that the average family in 1950 spent $400 more than it received in income.

It flatly contradicted current pronouncements by economic experts in Secretary Charles F. Sawyer's Commerce Department and the Federal Reserve Board. Their statistics showed that savings were reaching new highs. It created doubts about Democratic orators' favorite theme that "The American people never had it so good."

EXPLANATIONS—Indeed, it provoked General Eisenhower to ridicule his opponent's contention that Administration policies had produced unprecedented good times. The Republican presidential nominee used it to support his declaration that his aim was to create a "prosperity not based on war."

Discussing the high cost of living at Little Rock, Ark., Ike referred to the official study of consumers' expenditures in 1950.

"Now," he said, "I'm not much in Washington, but for people like me—I tell you that it is still some bucks."

He also used the erroneous calculation to embellish the story which reporters have labeled "The egg and the yolk." One reason for the discrepancy between income and outgo, Ike continued, is that one egg carries 100 concealed taxes.

RECHECK—Now it develops that a belated recheck of the Tobin tables reduces the $400 total of supposed overexpending to a mere $62. BLS's crestfallen "experts" will soon issue a formal correction of its August estimate, to the satisfaction of Democratic politicians and their labor allies.

But even this figure becomes questionable, and the red ink dissolves into black, if other economic factors are taken into consideration. In fact, a careful analysis of this official, annual study raises the collateral question of whether this and similar government activities justify the millions of taxpayers' money lavished on them.

ABNORMAL—The BLS's original report failed to make clear that 1950 was an abnormal year, in that the outbreak of the "Korean police action" touched off a rush of buying in the wholesale and retail markets. Consumers were guarding against prospective shortages, remembering World War II days.

In the months before and after the invasion of Southern Korea, department store sales showed a 22 per cent increase. There was a similar demand for goods late in the year. The consumers were hysterical rather than normal. They also stored up with durable goods—automobiles, television sets, radios, washing machines, household equipment, etc.

Since there were no credit restrictions then, most of these purchases were made on the installment plan. It is obviously unfair and inaccurate to list as 1950 expenditures the bills which would not be paid for anywhere from 18 to 24 months. Only the amount disbursed in 1950 should have been itemized in the survey for that year.

DEBIOUS—The Tobin statisticians also treated insurance premium payments as disbursements. Most people figure that a fairly large proportion of their insurance investments represent savings, and they should be figured as such in any overall estimates.

A quick glance at the behavior of consumers in 1951 supports this theory that the 1950 figures are highly dubious guides to the economic status of the average American family. It suggests that they are not wastrels or thoughtless of the future of themselves and their families.

Retail purchases declined sharply after 1950 for reasons which Secretary Tobin may not care to admit. Prices became so inflated, due to the six months' delay in imposing controls, that the public trimmed its budgets. The 1951 boom in sales, which hit so many in the low income brackets, reduced their purchasing power. Finally, they had satisfied their sharpest and most immediate wants by their 1950 marketing.

GUESS-WORK—BLS researchers also concede that certain curious psychological twists tend to prevent them from obtaining accurate figures on consumer expenditures. They try to allow for these personal idiosyncrasies by "adjusting" their findings, but it is admittedly guess-work.

People in the low brackets are inclined to boast of their expenditures, even to exaggerate them. Those with incomes above $10,000 are extremely reticent, perhaps underestimating for fear of the income tax collector. They are less likely to be at home when a Tobin man calls, and the higher bracketers' wives are generally less informed on family finances. When both the husband and wife work, presumably earning a good income, it is almost impossible to find them at home.

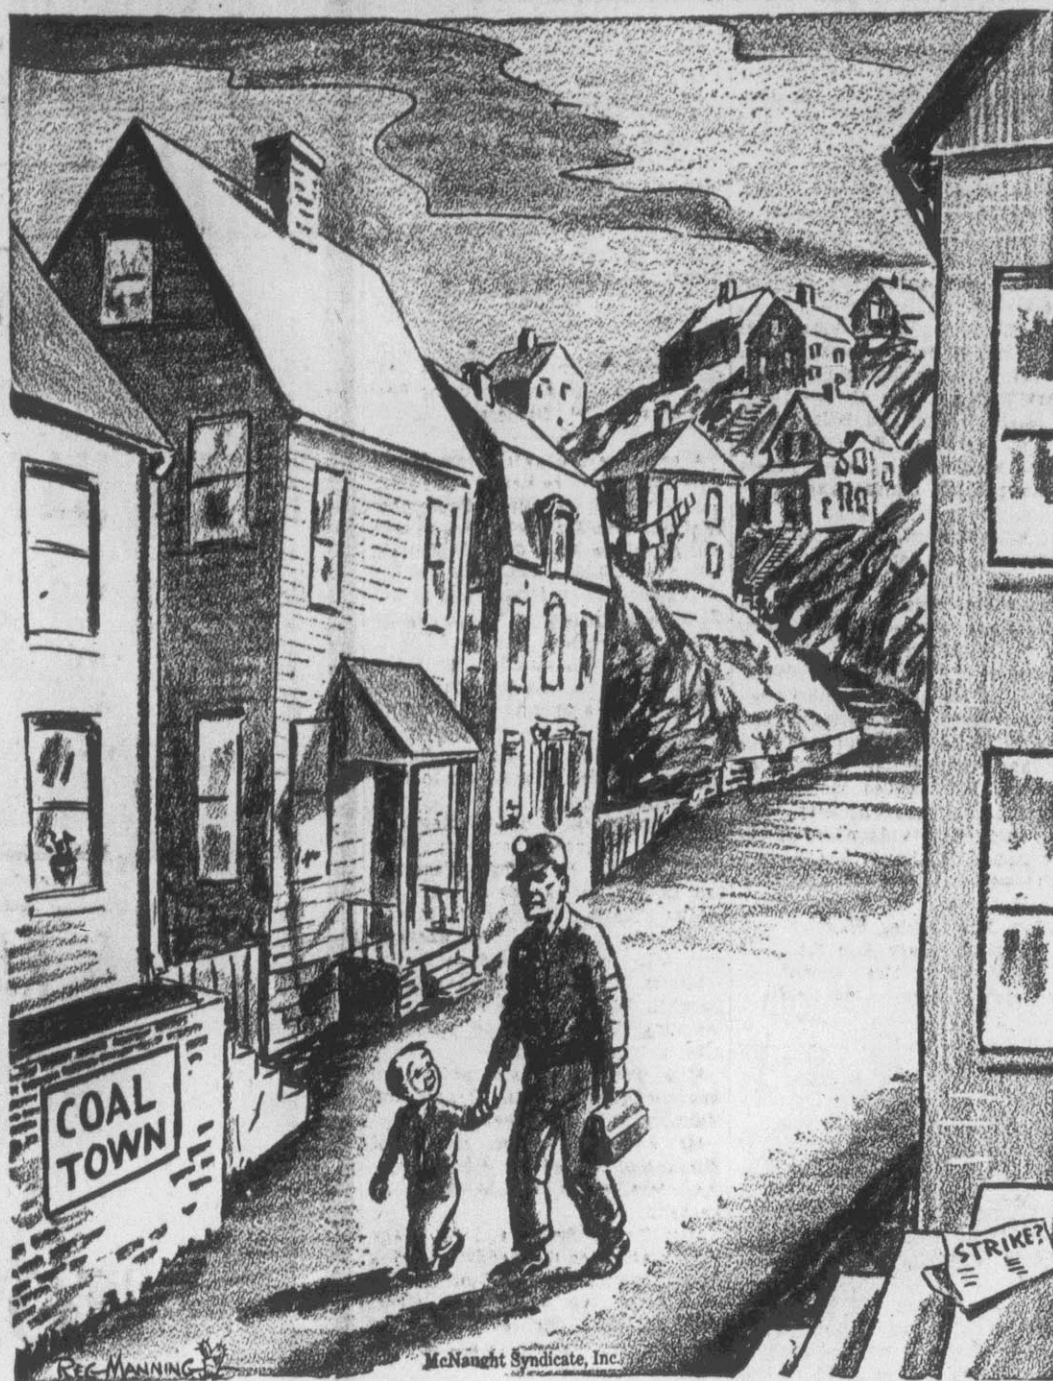

Thus, the individual poorhouse, as Hoover insists he did not say about "prosperity," is still "around the corner," and a distant corner at that.

Selected Short

EMPORIA, KANS., GAZETTE: "All of us today are suffering from too much 'taking away' and none of us like it. The next pay envelope, or pay check you receive will reveal what we mean. Take a look at the amount of Federal withholding tax which the government tells your employer must be 'taken away' from your earnings and the shrunken condition of your take home pay, and you'll join with everybody—even with the Democratic politicians, the big city machine bosses, the New and Fair Dealers, the Palace Guard and the social planners in hollering loudly, 'Don't let 'em take it away!'"

SOMERSET, PENNA. DAILY AMERICAN: "It is time that the line should be drawn between Americans who believe in individual liberty and those who believe in human slavery; those who believe in freedom and those who believe in governmental controls, those who follow the precepts of the Founding Fathers and those whose eyes turn towards Moscow."

Will There Be Any Christmas This Year, Daddy?

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) HOWARDS, JR.

Tuesday night at the regular meeting of one of Greenville's two Army Reserve units a film was shown called "Methods of Instruction." Two members of the unit, Captains Badger Johnson of Greenville and Charlie Terrell of Washington, could remember having seen the same film as early as 1942. The film was made back when officers were wearing brass on their epaulets.

The age of this film is what inspired me to write this column, for that fact illustrates the pace the Army set in education. As old as it is, the film stresses some points that have not yet been adopted by some schools.

There is a reason for our schools being behind the Army and that reason is spelled m-o-n-e-y. With unlimited funds during the war, the Army could produce all kinds of training films, employ an unlimited number of instructors and fat salaries if necessary, and supply any type of training aid that might be of value.

With unlimited funds the Army proved that an average man can be trained in a hurry. The same methods applied in our colleges could cut one year off the required time. And it is just a question of time before the colleges will have the desirable aids. East Carolina College has already taken strides in that direction and plans even more.

How about schools below the college level? This year school executives are probably too concerned about the overcrowded conditions to worry too much about visual aids. But some schools that have sufficient funds are already well equipped.

Even the Army did not have a remedy for the boring instructor, except their recommendations were to use the lecture as little as possible. In civilian life the lecture seems to be a necessary evil. The answer to elimination of the boring instructor is more money for teachers. If teaching paid enough money the jobs would be on a competitive basis and only the best qualified people could teach. What could be more important to any parent than the education his child gets? What is more important to us than the background we have?

Like anybody else, I complain about income taxes. But how about the school assessment? It seems like nothing compared to the average man's taxes. Why not increase the school assessment and use the money for better opportunities for those who have enough gumption to take advantage of them?

And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

FIGURES—Governor Kerr Scott told some 3,000 members of the N.C. Cotton Growers Cooperative Association and the Farmers Cooperative Exchange in the Raleigh auditorium Tuesday that he began his administration with a treasury balance of $13.5 million in the general fund account and would leave for his successor a balance of $35 million. He has made that statement several other times within the past ten days, coupled with further statements to the general effect that all the money spent during the present administration has been wisely used for the benefit of all the people of North Carolina.

The question of wise spending is one of opinion. Your reporter is disposed to go along with the Governor on his appraisal of the total effect. The money has been spent for the good of the people, although there is room for differences in opinion as to wisdom of some items.

FACT—The amount of dollars available at beginning of the present administration is not a matter of opinion. It is of provable fact by fiscal records in State offices. Where Governor Scott gets his figure of $13.5 million is puzzling to anybody who has checked the records. Nothing approximating that amount appears anywhere in the books. The records do show that on January 1, 1949, when the Scott administration began, there was a post war reserve fund of $30.5 million, which the 1949 General Assembly integrated into the loose general fund balance. The unallocated general fund balance on that date was estimated at $55,380,000. Admitting chance of error in official estimates, since the books were not completely balanced and closed, the amount could have been a few thousand dollars more or less.

There was available also at that time unexpended appropriations made by the 1947 legislature for permanent improvements in the amount of $48,114,860, and unexpended federal funds for matching purposes of $1,418,000. There is no guess work about those items. The thoroughly audited figures speak for themselves.

OPINION—How much balance Governor Scott will leave in the general fund account when he retires on December 31 (actually he may hold over until January 8, but accounts date from first of month) is a matter of opinion. The Governor's estimate of $35 million seems to be excessive. The amount, when books were balanced on June 30 was $38,621,568. Spending during the fall months always exceeds receipts, due to opening of schools and other extra expenses, while more than two-thirds of annual revenue comes in the spring, due to income tax payments in March and the fact that sales taxes for November and December Christmas business seldom reach the state coffers until January or February. Fact is, it has been necessary during the past few years for the State to borrow short term money to meet salary and maintenance payments during December and January. It might be necessary this winter to make short term borrowings without any detriment to State credit or any effect upon the real status of the general fund account. Almost certainly by end of the current fiscal year next June 30, which is also end of the biennial appropriation period covered by the last legislature, the treasury balance will approximate or exceed $35 million. But as of January 1 chances are it will be very small, if not in the minus column.

EXCESS—Further fact, proven by official figures in State offices, is that besides the general fund carry-over from previous administrations in the amount of $38,880,000 in addition to permanent improvement allocations, the Scott administration has issued bonds in the total amount of $32.5 million for general fund purposes—school houses and ports. The carry-over and bonds in general fund account, plus the carryover and $200 million bonds in the highway account, enabled the present administration to spend, during the first three and a half years of its tenure, $287,269,396 more than was collected during that time. It is expected that by December 31 the excess will go over $300 million.

WISDOM—Reporting of facts about the number of dollars found in the treasury by the present Governor and the number added by borrowing against the future has nothing to do with opinion respecting wisdom of the spending. There are those who sincerely think money has been spent too fast, and that actual value has not been obtained for every dollar. There are others, just as sincere in their belief, who agree with Governor Scott that spending has been wise and that even faster spending in face of rising costs would have saved the taxpayers a lot of money. Certain it is that buildings under construction now are costing more than the same buildings would have cost two or three years ago. Also roads being built now

What Other Papers Are Thinking

THE SOUTH A BATTLEFIELD (Henderson Dispatch)

For the first time since Reconstruction, or soon thereafter, States of the South are again a political battlefield in a presidential election, and the South, while appreciative, hardly knows what to make of it. We have for so many decades been taken for granted, and hence ignored by both major parties, that we are wondering what has happened.

General Eisenhower has been in three Southern States campaigning for the Republican ticket, which he heads. His organization leaders are described as elated by the reception he has received. Although some of the enthusiasm with which he was met undoubtedly stems from the fact that he is a great national military hero, it was not that alone. Some of it represented a yearning for a two-party system in this part of the country and the much talked of desire for a change. It would be a mistake, however, to assume that this means the GOP candidate will pick up electoral votes in these parts. He may, but this two-day trip does not assure it.

Republican leaders say Eisenhower will come into the South again, and will include North Carolina on his trip. That means, too, that Governor Stevenson will bring the Democratic campaign into this part of the country, and to North Carolina. So that the South is again a battlefield for the big political parties, and is wondering what it is all about.

It is too early yet to size up the situation accurately, but as of now there appear to be no absolutely sure signs of any Southern State dropping into the Republican column. This is not to deny that there is dissatisfaction, for certainly there is, and lots of it. But not enough to turn the trick for the general. Southerners are long-suffering and will submit to a lot of political nose-thumbing before kicking over the traces—period.

Business Today

There is a way of getting around the limitations on parcel post imposed by Congress. Some companies are using it at considerable savings.

Congress, in a law which went into effect January 1, put a limit of 40 pounds on parcels mailed in first class post offices going to the first and second zones and 20 pounds on parcels mailed in first class post offices going to third through eighth zones. Live fowl, live plants, trees, shrubs and agricultural commodities were exempted in deference to the farm vote.

However, Congress allowed second, third and fourth class post offices to continue to accept packages up to 70 pounds. Some companies in large cities have been breaking up shipments to keep within weight limits. This, however, involves extra packaging and the amount saved over express and trucking rates are small.

But other companies—and there is no telling how many—are simply trucking parcels to nearby second, third and fourth class post offices. It's legal, savings are considerable and it solves the problem for companies whose products cannot be broken up into 20 or 40 pound parcels. When the increase in business tends to boost a post office from fourth to third, or third to second classification, the small town postmasters are happy. But when the increase fails to do that, it simply means more work for the small office.

Express and trucking companies don't like it, because it means they are losing business they thought Congress handed to them on a platter.

Shippers don't like it, because, even though it provides a saving, the saving is reduced by the cost of trucking to a small post office. Taxpayers should not like it, because it increases post office costs. Parcels trucked from city to a suburb often have to be returned to the city by the post office before they can be put on trains for long hauls.

U. S. TELLS HOW TO CUT SELF-SERVICE COSTS

The Department of Agriculture will tell self-service store operators how to reduce operating cost. All they have to do is to write to the Office of Information Services, Production and Marketing Administration, U.S.D.A., Washington 25, D.C., and ask for "Some Improved Methods of Handling Groceries in Self-Service Retail Food Stores." It's free.

The report is the result of a study of methods and equipment used in 60 stores of two retail food chains in various parts of the country. It describes improved methods, equipment and layout for handling groceries which, it says, can increase the productivity of labor about 75 per cent over methods now widely used. A method of handling goods on arrival, for example, is said to increase from 120 to 260 the number of cases that can be handled in a man hour.

MANAGEMENT NEEDS
A JOHN LEWIS

Pity the boss. It is difficult for him to get a raise.

The American Management Association analyzed 500 reports to the Securities and Exchange Commission in the last year and found:

An average increase of more than 25 per cent in sales volume was necessary to produce an improved profit performance after taxes in the past year. Even when this increase in sales was made, management increased its compensation in only three out of four cases.

When this increase was not attained, management's compensation was reduced in half the cases.

While management salaries increased 5.3 per cent and contributions to retirement funds 11 per cent in 1951, cuts in bonuses gave management a net increase in compensation of 2.3 per cent.

A FEW IDEAS WORTH PASSING ALONG

Here are a few random retailing ideas:

A "name your own price" sale by a Louisville furniture store brought in more customers than last year's Christmas rush. The store reserved the right to decline offers, but most of the prices offered were fair.

A New York drug store includes a re-order post card when wrapping refillable prescriptions. Works fine.

A Lincoln, Neb., butcher coat fluorescent lights in his meat cases with red paint. It makes meats seem more attractive and, he says, reduces discoloration.

NEW PRODUCTS

RIBBON: Dispensers containing 10 spools of bright-colored ribbon for tying gifts are being introduced (by Hallmark, 417 Fifth Ave., New York). The containers have slots through which ribbon from the spools can be threaded for easy handling.

DRY: A silicone-based water-repellent chemical for fabrics has been introduced by Surface Protection Co., 16799 Euclid Ave., Cleveland 12). It is quick drying and may be easily applied by spraying or dipping. It is claimed that treated fabrics can be dry cleaned or laundered four or five times without renewing the application and that ironing will make the chemicals more durable.

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK (AP)—As the national political race nears its mid-campaign peak, more and more thoughtful people are turning to baseball.

Ask the man in the street today, "who do you think'll win?" Chances are he won't say Adlai or Ike. He'll reply: "The Dodgers" or "The Giants."

And in more and more homes, people are turning off political broadcasts and tuning in the baseball game. It's quieter that way.

The tensest situation of our times is the meeting between a Dodger fan who likes Stevenson and a Giant fan who favors Eisenhower under circumstances in which politeness forces them at least to say "hello."

At the start of the political campaign some people thought it cute to poll the guests on whether they thought the Republicans or Democrats would win. No hostess would do that today unless she wanted (A) to break her apartment lease, or (B) collect accident insurance on her furniture.

Some bartenders are now enforcing a new rule: "Positively no dry martinis served to customers talking politics. If you insist on doing so, you'll have to take a walk with me to the bar."

The theory that every man has a right to his own opinion is accepted now only if he keeps it to himself. The candidates will talk on for weeks yet, but for most voters the battle lines are already irrevocably drawn. As late as two weeks ago it was still saying, "well, at least the country is lucky in one way—they're both good men." Anyone who makes that remark today is likely to be regarded as a fence-sitter, coward, or an insurance agent.

Politics is particularly dangerous as a topic among women, and more women have political opinions this year than ever. No husband can shut them up in public either, unless he wants his wife to give him an ear callosities when she gets him alone.

As a matter of fact, most political talk at what-are-supposed-to-be-social gatherings now is between women, not men. Men realize pretty well it is too late to argue. Women never realize a thing like that, if they are really partisan. And do the ladies have claws in their vocal chords? They do, indeed: Strong men blanch at the sight of their wives arguing Ike against Adlai. A barb in every breath.

Their only consolation is the pleasure of seeing women criticize each other for a change, instead of attacking men-the-beasts. Politics now is even separating the boys from the girls. This small daughter told a suburban father the week:

"Well, I lost my new boy friend at school already, and I only had him two days."

"What happened?" asked her father.

"I found out he's a Republican," she said glumly. Then she looked up at him craftily and added: "Of course, I could get him back easy, Daddy, if you just liked Ike."

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—Housewives United organized a little over a year ago by a handful of Washington women to fight inflation and exchange ideas for meeting the family budget, has sparked similar movements all over the country.

It all began when a group of women decided to boycott high-priced beef and declared an "independence of the beef trust" on July 4, 1951, urging friends and neighbors to eat chicken and fish. Each woman called 10 others. They in turn called another 10.

"It was just a little letting-off-steam affair, but people took it more seriously than we had any idea they would," Mrs. Louis Wright, wife of the director of the Folger Shakespeare Library, and now the group's secretary, told me.

"Some suggested it should be a national movement, so we wrote friends and relatives in other states, and we began getting letters. We decided to stay banded together because of our common interests and common problems—it seems everybody is having trouble balancing her budget," she said.

Since they were only 20 minutes from Capitol Hill, Mrs. Wright and Mrs. Donald Detweiler, wife of an electronics engineer and chairman of the District of Columbia Volunteer OPS Committee, who had formed the group, decided they could keep an eye on what was happening as housewives' lobby. The next thing was to convince housewives they could help themselves.

"We're not proposing so much to let them to spur them on with the pooling of practical suggestions from as many as possible for immediate help on the day-to-day household budget," Mrs. Wright said. "We would be their reporter in the Capital and their companion in the kitchen."

Subsequently Housewives began sending out a mimeographed newsletter for which they finally had to ask a subscription price of $1. Some 600 of the latest issue are being mailed this month. Mrs. Wright doesn't know how many members Housewives United has, since the letter is often subscribed for by an entire group. Letters and suggestions have come from nearly every state, Hawaii, Alaska, Canada, even South Africa. "I see that you are doing what we are trying to do out here to combat our high cost of living. Our conditions are quite different from yours, as we have Indian shops and African servants, different foodstuffs and lower salaries. However, I feel sure you have some good ideas which we can adopt."

Flaming Onion Is Newest Weapon For Australians

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—The "flaming onion" is not something you would want in your garden. It was cultivated by the Australians expressly for the consumption of Communist soldiers in Korea.

The "flaming onion" is a rocket with a load of napalm-jellied gasoline in its head. It was designed by Flight Lt. John Smith of Newcastle, New South Wales, head of the Royal Royal Australian Air Force armament office. The napalm bomb scatters flaming jellied gasoline over a broad area.

Lt. Smith produced a few experimental models in Japan after several months of research. The "flaming onion" was given its first field test Feb. 8. Only recently have the Australians begun to use it in combat.

Soviet Turns To Used Car Sales

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet government has decided to participate in the used-car market for private car owners.

Moscow newspapers have announced that a special "commission store" for used automobiles has been opened here. The "commission store" is a retail outlet to which a person can go who has something to sell. An official appraiser puts a price on the item. The seller accepts the appraisal, he is given a receipt for the goods.

When the sale is made the seller receives his price minus a small percentage deducted by the commission store.

Until recently there was no commission store which would accept for sale a used privately-owned automobile.

The Sport Reflector

By HERMAN HICKMAN

With both college and high school football already in the air, just about everyone has lost interest in baseball except those people who are rooting for teams currently in minor league playoffs and the teams which are bidding for the first place positions in the two major leagues.

So far as the minor league playoffs are concerned, the one attracting the most attention in these parts is the Coastal Plain League series being conducted between Goldsboro and Edenton. The Jets squeezed into the playoff finals by getting past Kinston in seven games while Edenton had very little trouble in getting past Wilson in four games of the semi-finals.

The current series marks the first time since the league turned pro that a Goldsboro team has reached the playoff finals. There have been several instances where the Goldsboro clubs were in the semi-final round of action but never before had they gone to the finals.

The presence of the Jets in the series final might also be a small source of wonder to some fans who may have lost contact with the league during the summer months. The club, a St. Louis Cardinals farm club, started off slowly and were in eighth place until nearly June. Then, they started getting a little help from the Cardinals and began a consistent climb in the standings.

The Goldsboro club finished in fourth place after standing off a late surge by the Roanoke Rapids days.

Incidentally, with the exception of the manager and a couple of pitchers, the Jets didn't have a single player who started the season.

Tar Heels Have 105 Candidates Drilling

By LARRY DALE

UNION PRESS Sports Writer
CHAPLAIN HILL, N. C. (UP)—A huge crew of 105 gridiron bruisers is boning up on the soccer of the split-T formation at the University of North Carolina in a campaign to bring the Tar Heels from the abyss of two dismal seasons.

Coach Carl Snavely has abandoned the single-wing in the wake of a 1951 season that brought only two wins in 10 games and a 1950 season that netted three wins, five losses and two ties. Snavely's book on split-T plays is required reading for the new crew.

George Barclay, whose 1950 Washington and Lee team won the conference championship, has been imported to install the system that brought him outstanding success.

The four Snavelys has expressed a hope for a better record, and in contrast Barclay's forecast is wildly optimistic.

"I'll be disappointed if we don't win at least half our games," said Barclay.

Snavely modified even his "hope to improve" by noting that "the early forecasters correctly have listed us as underdogs in almost all the games on our very difficult schedule."

Barclay's biggest problem is to find the right man to quarterback the offense and the field is still wide open. Among the six mentioned most frequently for the spot, Carmen Annillo and Charlie Moten appeared to hold an edge.

Annillo, from Union City, N. J., is back as a junior after missing a year and is favored for his poised ball handling, clever faking and keen, quick passing. But coaches question his temperament for college football.

Robersonville Has Huge Squad

Forty candidates including nine lettermen are competing for starting positions on Robersonville Rams promising football squad this season.

All-Conference players Sonny James, fullback, and Maurice Everett, end, pace the returning lettermen.

Quarterback Billy Warren and center Julius Budacz have been looking good in early drills. Warren looks especially good in handoffs and pichtouts. Budacz has shown well on defense.

Coach Bob Lee's charges open the season Sept. 19 against Centerville High.

Bob Thompson To Be Editor Of Weekly Tabloid

HIGH POINT, N. C. (AP)—Robert L. Thompson, editor of the High Point Enterprise for the past 10 years, has resigned to become editor of the local weekly tabloid, The Beacon.

Thompson announced Saturday that he, Dave Neill and Ed Kemp, also of High Point, had bought the paper from Wade Renfrow. Neill will be president of the new company.

Thompson succeeded Capus Wainick as Enterprise editor. Previously he had served as chief of the Raleigh Bureau of the North Carolina Association of Staff Members and had been a staff member of the Associated Press and United Press.

He also served a year with the State News Bureau and was private secretary to Clyde R. Hoxby during Hoxby's term as governor.

son with them.

There's a fellow up in Burlington—a mail carrier by the name of Hardrock Simpson—who makes his living by running long distances.

Yesterday, he ran 36 miles, from Burlington to Durham, in six hours and 28 minutes. That's seven minutes faster than he made it last year but an hour and a half slower than his record time which was set several years ago.

The time yesterday was very good considering that he ran 48 miles on his birthday. That was Tuesday of last week, eight days ago.

Hardrock picks up some spare cash by running around baseball parks while doubleheaders are being conducted. He did it several times in the Coastal Plain League and in one park, he ran 23 miles before they could finish the two ball games.

East Carolina College will get the jump on every other North Carolina college football team by starting its 1952 season Saturday night. So far as we know, there are no other college games scheduled before next week and most of the schools plan to open up on September 27.

For those of you who are going to the game Saturday night, keep your eye on James (Algie) Faircloth. He's a freshman from Er-doth who backs up on the line on defense and plays center on offense. He needs a little polishing, but he's a real lover of contact work.

There are still some good tickets left. You can get them by contacting the athletic office at the college.

Eppes High Opens Here Friday Night

Nine seasoned first team gridders from last year's squad will lead the Eppes High Bulldogs against the Wilson Trojans in the season's opener Friday night at 8 o'clock at Guy Smith Stadium.

Pacing the veteran Bulldog squad will be Fullback Clarence Williams who last year made All-State mention and is a strong candidate for All-State honors this year. Williams also made baseball headlines this summer when he clouted four successive home-runs in a single game.

Rounding out the backfield will be Carlton Tucker, quarterback; Henry Dupree, right half; and William Jones, tailback, all of whom performed regularly last year. The Bulldogs are using a single wing attack this year, tailormade for Williams' power at fullback and Jones' triple threat ability at tailback.

Five returning linemen, Simon Hemby, tackle; Jay Brown, guard; Joe Wynn, center; Frank Streeter, tackle; and Ephraim Green, end, will provide a solid forward wall for the backfield stars.

James Holaday, end, and Lyman Price, guard, lettermen from last year, have won their starting spots and will complete the starting eleven.

A squad of 38 candidates has been working out since Sept. 1st, and many of the freshmen and sophomore newcomers will see action.

Among the newcomers showing up well in early drills are Zebbede Moore, wingback; Joe Anderson, fullback; and James Earl Lee, guard. Lee has attracted the coaches with his hustling during practice sessions.

Eppes' schedule for the season consists of nine conference games in the Eastern Division Class AAA competition.

This will be the twenty-first meeting between these two rivals. In previous meetings the Bulldogs hold an 11-9 edge over the Trojans.

Last year the Bulldogs won three, lost three, and tied one.

Coach Percy Daniels says of this year's team, "We have a much better team than 500 ball team and even with the tough schedule ahead I believe we will better last year's."

Motta's strong point is running but the Teaneck, N. J. candidate has made a solid reputation as a capable all-around team executive.

Dick Lackey of Shelby and Ernie Liberali of Philadelphia won their monograms in single wing and are running for a shot at mastering the split-T.

"They are all good prospects," said Barclay, who developed the great Gil Bocetti at Washington and Lee. "But we don't know yet which is the top man."

Lettermen are three deep at the offensive right and left halfback spots and a pair of experienced men are on hand for the fullback post.

"We are worried over whether our defensive backs are fast enough," Snavely said. He is anxiously seeking out talent to reduce the amount of double duty required of his offensive backs in the past two years, in an effort to overcome defensive shortcomings.

The problem is compounded by the fact that spring practice concentrated on the offensive plays in the new formation, leaving most defensive training until fall.

Annillo, from Union City, N. J., is back as a junior after missing a year and is favored for his poised ball handling, clever faking and keen, quick passing. But coaches question his temperament for college football.

Barclay's biggest problem is to find the right man to quarterback the offense and the field is still wide open. Among the six mentioned most frequently for the spot, Carmen Annillo and Charlie Moten appeared to hold an edge.

Phants Review Passing Offense

By WAYNE BISHOP

The Greenville Phantoms yesterday closed out their contact work for the week in drills at Guy Smith Stadium.

Emphasis in yesterday's drill was again placed on pass patterns and plays. Captain Bobby Perry, running from the fullback position, did most of the passing.

The offensive backfield, in drills yesterday had Bob Howell, James Speight, and Guy Smith alternating at the fullbacks; Perry at fullback; and Bobby Langston and Pat Sawyer alternating at the quarterback post.

In the defensive backfield which Coach Bill Kittrell used against Perry's passing, Mitchell Johnson loomed as top man while in the line end Vernon Wingate and guard Anwer Joseph did some good work.

The Phants will dress in full equipment for the workout this afternoon but they will limit their practice session to a review of plays and defensive formations.

The game with Edenton tomorrow will be the Northeastern Conference opener for both clubs. The Phantoms opened last week by knocking off Morehead City 7-0 while the Aces took a 19-6 defeat from the Goldsboro Earthquakes of the Eastern AAA Conference.

Both clubs will operate from the T-formation in tomorrow's game. This is the first season the Aces have used the formation.

Pirates Put Cap On Rough Work

An hour-long offensive drill last night put the cap on pre-season rough work for the East Carolina Pirates. The Pirates will open a ten-game schedule Saturday night when they play host to the Norfolk Naval Air Station Flyers.

The scrimmage last night was not marked by any exceptionally long runs but the Pirate backs did show an improvement in their ability to grind out consistent gains.

The more-than-50 football candidates at the college prepped for the scrimmage by running through a long dummy scrimmage and pass defense session yesterday afternoon.

The Bucs are expected to use drills scheduled for today and tomorrow as polishers for their attack. They will continue to review offensive and defensive maneuvers but will not have any more contact work.

Tickets for the gridiron opener are still available at the athletic office in the new gymnasium. They will also be on sale at the gate Saturday night.

Wrestling Match Plans Discussed By Lewis, Sponsors

Bill Lewis, huge 300 pound professional wrestling promoter and matchmaker, was in town yesterday making final preparations for the coming wrestling match in Greenville Sept. 27.

Lewis met with Exchange Club committee members Robert Moe, Dan Saeed and Ed Harris to make final arrangements for the coming charity event.

"I will try to get some women wrestlers, but I can't promise anything because they are in such great demand," commented Lewis. "The stadium will be a perfect place to hold the match."

The participants on the wrestling card will be announced some time next week. Meanwhile the Exchange committee is seeking some bleacher seats to erect opposite the grandstand to provide additional seating arrangements for an expected large turnout.

WESTPORT LANDING

By Homer Hatten

Chapter 19

The election of the train captain had been casual and informally set for that night, and after the evening meal had been eaten the men of the camp began to drift over to a clearing at the western end of the Grove.

Burl and Clay joined a group that was gathered around a tall, black-bearded, cadaverous trader whose voice bent down all opposition by sheer volume and persistence.

"I say the man for captain can't reasonably be nobody but Colonel Palmer," he howled.

Burl grinned at Clay.

"Well," he commented, "I won't say Palmer's not a good man. There, went on Burl, nodding toward a heavy-bodied, quiet-spoken man. "Personally, he's my pick. Knows the trail like a book and got a good, level head on his shoulders. Like to go across and get acquainted with him?"

They crossed the circle and Clay found himself shaking hands with Graydon and looking into a pair of shrewdly appraising light blue eyes that seemed well matched with the solid strength and steadiness of Graydon's handclasp.

Some of the men had rolled a barrel of whisky into the center of the clearing and knocked in its head. Some tin cups lined a stump beside it, and now a shout went up:

"Candidates to the center! All them runnin' for captain come forward for the votin'!"

Graydon grinned ruefully. "Here we go again," he said.

He walked slowly across the clearing and joined two other men who had also stepped forward into the center.

The lean, cadaverous man who had been haranguing the group in favor of Palmer stepped forward and faced the crowd.

"Who's he?" asked Clay.

Burl chuckled. "That's Windy Campbell. Fancies himself as a politician."

"Now, then, gents," Windy yelled, "all of you just sashay over there to the west side and come across here one at a time and cast your vote and then pass on across the clearin' to the far side. There's a drink of licker waitin' here for every man when he votes—an' we don't want nobody comin' through for seconds."

Over and over the ceremony was repeated, a ritual that finally developed a sort of hypnotic magnetism for Clay.

At first Palmer showed a steady this man who had presumed to threaten him publicly and attempt to dictate and control his actions. He lifted the cup of whisky in a mock salute to Buck.

"Why, Mr. Royle," he said lightly, "since you feel so strongly about it, it will be a pleasure to cast my vote for—Lang Graydon!"

As he spoke he hurled the fiery whisky straight into Buck's eyes and passed forward in the same instant. He saw the flash of the gun and heard its roar as a thin pencil of fire burned a path through the flesh of his shoulder. But by that time he had Buck's right wrist in an iron grip, and with a vicious twist he jerked it behind Buck's back, twisting and pulling up on it savagely. It was pain no man could endure, and Buck dropped to his knees, but it brought him no respite. Clay's hands were grappling hooks of steel, twisting, turning, pulling until he heard the bone crack in Buck's arm and felt it go suddenly limp in his hands.

Dimly Clay was aware that the entire clearing had turned into an arena of fighting, howling, blood-hungry men, but the rage was still on him. He stepped back and aimed a kick at Royle, but even as his foot swung in midair a pistol barrel descended upon his skull, a great wave of blackness swept up, encompassing him, and he collapsed across the body of his foe.

Check-Passer On List Of 'Wanted'

WASHINGTON (UP)—The FBI added a "glib-talking" passer of phony checks to its list of "10 most wanted" fugitives today.

It said 26-year-old Theodore Richard Byrd Jr., occasionally has used the proceeds of new check frauds to send cash or money orders to previous victims.

Byrd replaced William M. Martin on the "most wanted" list. Martin was captured in St. Louis Aug. 30, less than a month after he was put on the list.

Byrd, in more or less constant trouble since he deserted from the Navy in 1944, has been arrested for forgery, attempted rape and aggravated assault and battery, the FBI said, in addition to passing fraudulent checks worth more than $40,000.

A possible narcotics addict, he is probably armed and should be considered "dangerous," the FBI said.

In his check-passing operations in the Midwest and Southwest, Byrd generally has planned his phony operations with great care. He has posed frequently as an oil operator, a lawyer or a physician.

He uses bogus identification cards and has had special checks printed to bolster his poses.

Described by the FBI as a "tall, slender glib-talking individual," Byrd, a native of Oklahoma City, is reported to travel occasionally with his wife and infant daughter. He has been fined for illegal possession of narcotics.

"He deserves very neatly and is a smooth, impressive conversationalist," the FBI said.

Radio - Controlled Life Boat Is Displayed Today

MOBILE, Ala. (UP) — The Air Force unveils a new radio-controlled lifeboat here today with a demonstration showing how survivors of a sea disaster can be rescued by a pilot flying high above them.

It was to be the first public appearance of the model A-3 airborne rescue craft which can be dropped into the ocean, guided by radio to pickup survivors and then sent to the nearest beach by a control plane overhead.

High military officials gathered here for the rescue show in the Gulf of Mexico off Port Morgan. A group of volunteers from Brooklyn Air Force Base here were to be set adrift on a raft and "saved."

The lifesaving boat is carried like a bomb by an SB-29 plane, the search and rescue version of World War II's B-29 bomber. The craft is dropped by a huge 100-foot parachute which cuts loose and is jettisoned by an explosive charge when the boat strikes the water.

Simultaneously, the unmanned boat throws out a sea anchor which holds it in one spot until the radio operator in the plane takes over.

The operator first releases the stabilizing fins which steadied the boat during the descent. By radio, he frees the rudder guard, opens the engine air vents, starts the motor and releases the anchor.

The radio man in the sky then directs his boat to the men on the raft and stops it long enough for them to climb aboard. During the trip to shore, the rescued and their unseen rescuer can talk to each other by walkie-talkie radio.

The 30-foot boat is all metal, equipped with a four cylinder engine and can carry 15 men. It was developed by the Air Research and Development Command headquarters in Baltimore.

The control equipment was designed by the equipment laboratory at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Dayton, O., and built by Westinghouse Electric Corp.

The new lifeboat is expected to be in use throughout the Air Force by early 1953.

Indian Manganese Imported By U. S.

NEW DELHI (AP)—The United States received the overwhelming share of India's manganese ore exports during April, commerce ministry sources announced recently.

U. S. imports totalled 21,000 tons, with West Germany's 8,000 tons ranking second. Japanese imports reached 3,000 tons and the United Kingdom, 2,000 tons.

Average Mileage Of Cars Down To Below 'Pre-War'

NEW YORK (AP)—Traffic congestion, deteriorated roads and fear of accidents have reduced the annual average mileage in individual use of passenger cars to below the peak prewar rate, reports the American Automobile Association.

An analysis by the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads showed the average individual annual use of passenger cars for 1951 was 9,000 miles, compared with 9,942 in 1946. The 1950 total was 9,030 miles. Both 1950 and 1951 figures fell below the prewar peak travel of 9,285 miles in 1941.

Forecasts based on the six-month estimates for this year, it was reported, indicate the average may show a further drop before 1952 is ended.

Drought Dented

DALLAS (AP)—Heavy rains dented Texas' two-year-old drought today and continued in dwindling local showers as flood-threatened towns fought back surging streams.

But for most of the state the long, costly drought—estimated to have cost Texas farmers up to 400 million dollars—continued.

The downpours, centered in the hill country of Southwest Texas, smashed small dams and were blamed for loss of at least three lives.

But for the most part, they were too late to help the drought-stricken cotton and grain sorghum crops.

Little of the blackland cotton country of the state was touched by the rains that measured up to 11.57 inches at Fredericksburg in the heart of the goat and sheep country.

Late last night rushing flood waters isolated five towns in South Central Texas when once-shrivelled streams burst from their banks.

Potential Storm Area Is Watched

MIAMI (UP) — A 125-mile rain front, described by the weather bureau as "a small bubble of low pressure" advanced on the Atlantic coast today with the center near the Georgia-Florida border.

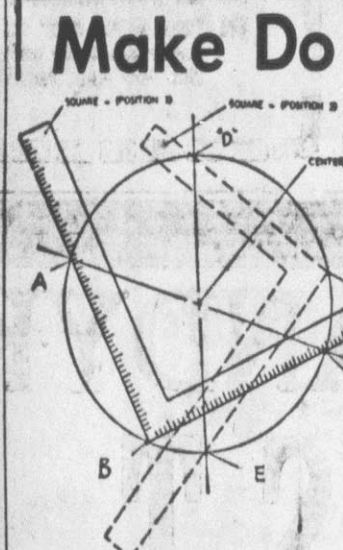

The Miami weather bureau had planned to send a hurricane hunter plane to investigate it this morning, but forecasters Leonard Pardee said it moved rapidly toward the mainland last night and offered no serious threat.

The highest winds in the "bubble" were about 25 miles an hour. It was moving west-northwestward and the winds were not expected to increase when it reached the mainland.

The entire Florida Atlantic coast received some rain this morning. Jacksonville, on the south side of the "bubble," had recorded .88 of an inch by 9 a.m.

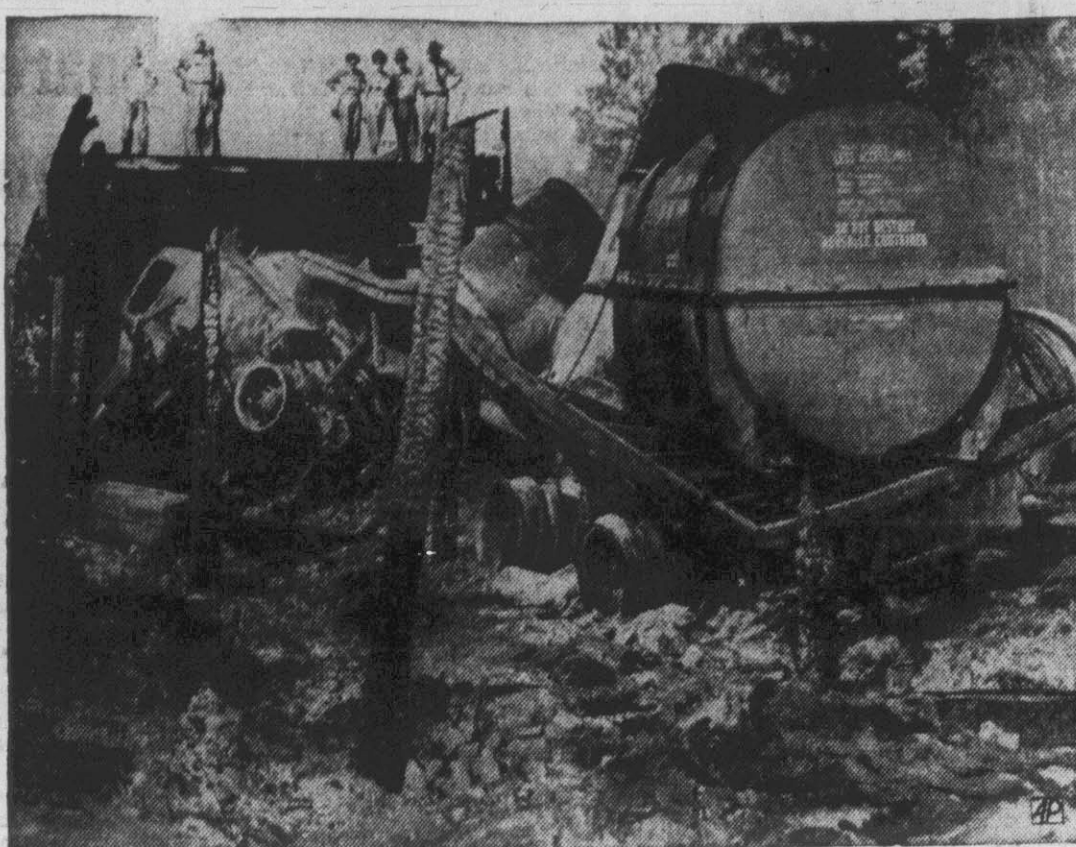

The weather bureau again hoisted small craft warnings south of Cape Hatteras, N.C., to Jacksonville for fresh to moderately strong 20 to 30 mile an hour easterly winds and rough easterly seas.

CARRIER BURNS THROUGH BRIDGE:—This trailer truck, loaded with five jet airplane engines, lies a smoldering ruin in a dry creek bed near Savannah, Ga., after it caught fire and burned its way through the bridge following a collision with two empty gasoline carriers. The drivers of the three vehicles involved miraculously escaped without injuries. Both of the gasoline tankers were safely removed. One of the tankers, when its engine stalled, was pushed from the bridge and away from the flaming wreckage of the third truck, by the second tanker. A 200-foot section of the bridge, located on U. S. Highway 25 five miles southwest of Ludowici, was completely consumed by the flames. (AP Photo).

Naval All-Time Athlete Succumbs

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UP) — Adm. Jonas H. Ingram, famed Naval Academy athlete who became one of World War II's outstanding naval commanders, died yesterday of a heart attack. He was 65.

Ingram was Allied commander of the South Atlantic Fleet in World War II and later commanded the entire Atlantic Fleet. He served as one of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's advisers at the Yalta Conference.

Ingram, one of the nation's most decorated military men, suffered a heart attack aboard a train enroute here Tuesday night from Culver, Ind. He died in the U. S. Naval Hospital here yesterday.

Ingram was awarded two Medals of Honor—one of the few Americans so honored—and also held the Navy Cross, three Distinguished Service Medals, Purple Heart and several foreign awards.

Ingram's athletic achievements still are legend at the Naval Academy at Annapolis. He was one of the Academy's greatest football fullbacks, captained the varsity racing crew and was a middle distance runner on the track team.

The first of three brothers to star in athletics at Annapolis, he was awarded the Navy Athletic Award as the best all-around athlete at the Academy.

After his retirement in 1947 as a full admiral, Ingram became vice president and director of Reynolds Metals Co.

Says Artist Son Of Noblewoman

ROME (AP)—An Italian historian claims to have found proof that Leonardo Da Vinci's mother was a Florentine noblewoman and not a peasant as historians have believed.

Maffio Maffii, Florentine historian, says the great 15th century artist and inventor was born of Albiera Degli Amadori, who later married Pietro Da Vinci, Leonardo's father.

Previously it has been assumed that Leonardo was the illegitimate child of Da Vinci and the peasant girl, Caterina, who later served in Leonardo's home as a housemaid.

Six Are Indicted For Tax Evasion

GREENSBORO (AP)—Federal indictments have been returned against six more North Carolinians charging them with evading income taxes totaling $190,525.52.

The indictments returned by a Federal grand jury convening in Rockingham this week were received here yesterday.

In a similar grand jury action last March, 21 prominent Tar Heels were indicted for income tax evasions totalling more than one million dollars.

Under indictment by the Rockingham jury are H.G. White of Raleigh, B.M. Newman of Henderson, Herbert M. Moore of Morganton, Albert Axler of Wilmington, John F. Archer of Mooresville, and Clyde Monroe Kelly of Durham.

Moore was charged with the largest tax evasion. He allegedly earned $154,276.75 during 1946-48 and evaded $79,832.41 in taxes.

Seven Children In One Family Struck By Polio

SCOTTSBLUFF, Neb. (UP)—A frightened mother today kept watch near the sick beds of her seven polio-stricken children and mourned for another child who died of the same crippling disease.

Six of the children were rushed to St. Mary's Hospital here a few hours after their 11-year-old brother Bobby Rogers, died of polio yesterday. The seventh child had been admitted for treatment earlier.

Their mother, Mrs. Frank Rogers, hovered near their rooms, waiting for word of their progress. The grieving mother could not see her children, however, because they still were in isolation.

Hospital attendants said she was "too overcome with grief to talk." The Rogers children played and quarreled in their hospital rooms unaware that their brother had died. The youngest victim, 5-month-old Frances, was "the best off of the lot," according to nurses.

"She laughs and coos and holds her own bottle," a nurse said.

Polio first struck the Rogers family Saturday at its farm home near Henry, Neb. Janet, 7, was taken to the hospital and placed in isolation then.

Bobby was admitted Tuesday night and was dead by 4 a.m. Wednesday.

A few hours later the other Rogers children displayed symptoms of the disease and were bundled into a battered Ford automobile and hurried here.

Albert Sheffner of Sidney, Neb., and uncle of the children, said they were all in good spirits during the drive to the hospital, except for 12-year-old Alberta.

"Both parents are pretty well broken up," Sheffner said. "It all happened so quickly," he said.

Fortunately, Bobby's brothers and sisters seem to have contracted lighter forms of the disease than that which struck the dead boy.

First 120 Miles Of Space Travel Seen As 'Hardest'

CHICAGO (UP)—A scientist said today the first 120 miles of space travel are the hardest.

Heinz Haber of the University of California at Los Angeles described the human problems of rocket travel to the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

Going up, mile after mile, this is Haber's view:

10 miles — Conventional aviation blends into actual space travel. Oxygen content outside is so low a human being would black out in 15 seconds.

12 miles — Barometric pressure drops so low that fluids would boil inside the body.

15 miles — Fuel combustion is impossible in atmosphere this rare.

13 to 23 miles — Cosmic rays become intense and dangerous to body tissues.

22 to 28 miles — Ultra-violet rays concentrate in perilous density.

50 to 60 miles — Weight vanishes. Psychological difficulties rise.

Difficulty may occur in walking, working. Optical illusions may occur.

85 miles — "The black of space is complete." The earth, reflecting the sun's light, is too bright to look at without hurting the eyes. Meteor traffic increases, a collision could wreck a rocket ship.

100 miles — Radiations generate intense heat. Temperatures zoom to 500 degrees. A man would collapse in three minutes if the ship's cooling protection system breaks down.

120 miles — The mechanical border of space is reached. From here on, the occupants of a space ship are on their own. The state of weightlessness can be maintained indefinitely.

Educator Doubts Long Complaint

BATON ROUGE, La. (U.P.)—A professor at Louisiana State University claims there were more teachers for fewer students in public schools during 1947-48 than there were 25 years ago.

Dr. Marlon B. Smith, professor of sociology, said, there was something wrong with press and radio reports of "overcrowded" public schools. Writing in the Journal of Educational Sociology, Dr. Smith said:

"A comparison of the growth of school enrollments in public and non-public schools of the United States, 1927-28 to 1947-48 shows a loss of public elementary school enrollment of almost 3,000,000 children."

Plan Survey Of Turnpike Route

RALEIGH (AP)—Surveys will be made by two engineering firms to determine the cost and feasibility of constructing a high-speed, toll turnpike from near Mt. Airy to the Gastonia area.

This was authorized yesterday by the State Turnpike Authority. If the toll road planning is found feasible, the first bonds to finance the construction will be offered for sale early next year, possibly in February. Actual work would start by the fall of next year. The cost is estimated at 200 million dollars.

The proposed turnpike would be approximately 125 miles long and roughly parallel to U.S. 29.

The firm of Howard, Needles, Tammer and Bergdorf of New York will make a survey to determine how much the super-road would cost. The firm of Cloverdale and Coldpitts, also of New York, was assigned to prepare data on how much traffic would use the toll road.

States Studying Water Resources

SPOFANE, Wash. (U.P.)—The Columbia Interstate Compact Committee has instructed an engineering subcommittee to study the effect that full development of land and water resources in up-stream areas will have on navigation and power projects downstream.

The compact committee, which has started work on a proposed compact between five north-west states on water usage, received federal status when President Truman signed a bill authorizing such a group. Representatives of Washington, Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Wyoming are on the committee.

Nervous People Advised To Rest

EVANSTON, Ill. (U.P.)—Dr. Walter C. Alvarez says nervous persons should get more sleep and avoid "blowing their tops."

Alvarez, former Mayo Foundation specialist, addressed a group of executives at Northwestern University on "How to Live with Your Nerves."

Alvarez, now a professional lecturer at the University of Illinois, said pain caused by nervousness is not imaginary.

"The nerves can greatly upset the function of a perfectly normal heart or normal stomach," he said.

Not All Farmers Share In Huge Crop Production

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is producing a record volume of crop and livestock products this year, but not all farmers are sharing in it.

In its September crop progress report, the Agriculture Department said livestock farmers in some sections of the South and Southwest face serious shortages of feed for their cattle and other livestock next winter because of drought damage.

The volume of crops indicated on Sept. 1 was close to the second largest of record, produced in 1949, the department said. The production of livestock products—meat, animals, dairy and poultry products and wool—will be the largest ever produced. As a result the combined production of crops and livestock products will set a new record.

A feature of this year's production is the fact that it is well balanced. That is, the prospective big production does not reflect record outturns of a few crops offset by small volumes of other crops. Only in the case of winter wheat and rice are production records indicated.

The severe drought which affected wide areas in the East and Southeast as well as the Southwest during July has raised concern among officials lest farmers be forced, by lack of feed, to sell off much of their livestock.

The new report said it had not turned out that way. Instead, livestock was said to have held up well, except in the very driest areas. Marketings have not been unusually heavy.

The vital hay crop was said to be turning out better than had been expected. The corn crop estimate was boosted 50 million bushels above the August estimate, putting it at 3,185,000,000 bushels or 8 per cent more than last year. The wheat crop remained virtually unchanged at 1,598,000,000 bushels, the second largest of record and 311 million bushels more than last year.

Survivors Enjoy Rest In Big City

NEW YORK (AP)—The 19 survivors of the shipwrecked Honduran Tanker Foundation Star enjoyed life in New York today.

Their ship cracked across the middle last week in hurricane-churned waves. Both sections of the vessel, which were being towed toward the mainland, sank yesterday off Cape Hatteras, N.C. The 19 survivors had been rescued last Saturday and brought here by the Norwegian freighter Emu.

Nine other officers and men were lost in the tragedy that began when the Foundation Star broke amidships off Charleston, S.C., in the backwash of a severe hurricane.

The survivors were given permission to remain in this country temporarily as "shipwrecked sailors." The men are mostly of Greek, Norwegian and Latin-American nationalities. They arrived here Tuesday night and after hospital examination were taken to Manhattan hotels.

Immigration authorities told them they could remain here 29 days on "shipwrecked sailor" status—the privilege accorded all shipwreck victims.

Students Oppose Consolidation

ROXBORO (AP)—Mt. Tizah High School students went on strike yesterday and refused to attend Helena High School under a new consolidation plan.

The 66 students of the school refused to board two buses which had been sent to take them to Helena High.

A spokesman for the students' parents said an attempt would be made to force the County Board of Education to allot enough teachers to maintain Mt. Tizah High. The school board had no comment.

War Guilt Feeling May Hinder Army

BONN, Germany (U.P.)—Failure of the Germans to understand the war crimes trials may upset all western plans for rearming this nation to assist in the defense of the free world against Communism.

A leading member of parliament deputies who normally support the government will vote against ratification of the West German peace treaty and the European army pact unless several hundred war criminals are freed first.

Leaders of veterans organizations have advised ex-soldiers to refuse to serve in a new German army as long as any German war criminals remain in prison.

German newspapers always refer to the "war criminals" in quotation marks to show that while using the allied definition, the Germans themselves do not believe the men to be criminals. Some refer to them simply as "prisoners of war."

Threat Seen Serious

Most observers believe the 20 or 25 rebellious government deputies will fall into line when the ratification vote is taken because they wouldn't like to overthrow their own government. However, the threat must be taken seriously, because 20 or 25 votes are enough to overthrow conservative Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's three-year-old government.

West Germany's new army of 12 divisions is to be formed around a volunteer cadre. It may be difficult to recruit these professionals as long as war criminals remain in prison.

Maj. Gen. George P. Hays, former deputy U.S. high commissioner in Germany and now commander of U.S. troops in Austria, warned several months ago that as a result of the German misunderstanding of the war crimes trials, and the allied denial to German soldiers of pensions, retirement pay and the right to wear war decorations, recruiting may be slow.

Won't Believe It

"I don't think young men of good position and family would want to choose a military career now," Hays said in an interview.

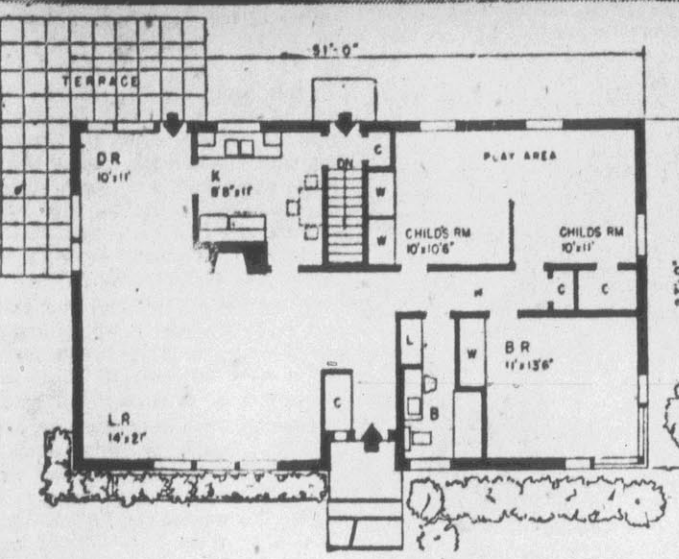

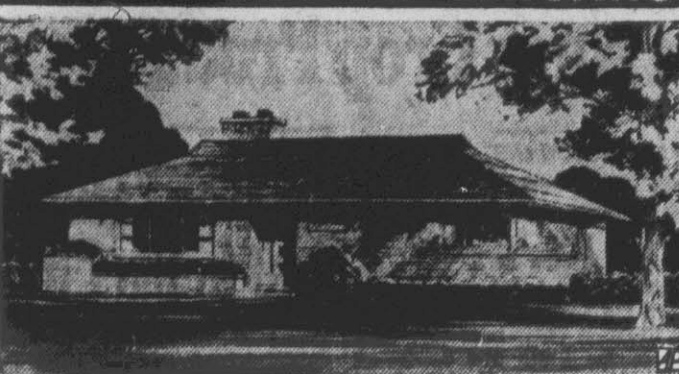

That is a startling development in a nation in which for generations the elder sons of all the best families automatically joined the officers corps.

The difficulty is that the average German simply will not or can not believe that his people committed war crimes. A large group of Germans refuse to believe the truth about the concentration camp, for instance, but are convinced the allies made up these stories after the war to justify the war crimes trials.

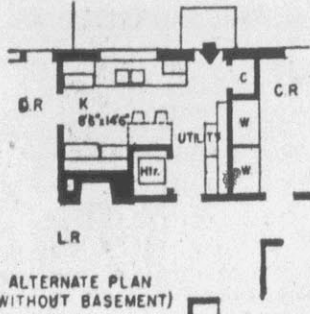

Anyway, the Germans argue, the allied soldiers in World War II and the United Nations soldiers now fighting in Korea were just as bad as any Germans were.

One Million Tar Heel Votes Viewed Real Possibility In Coming Election

By LYNN NISBET

RALEIGH—Most forecasts of the 1952 general election vote are that it will be the biggest in history, and might well reach or pass the one million mark. The optimistic prophets who look for such a big vote admit it will take some doing to get it out.

The one million figure represents less than half the potential in a population of more than four millions, but it will mean an increase of approximately 27 per cent over the total votes cast in the two most recent presidential and gubernatorial elections. The aggregate 1944 vote in the state was 790,554 for President and 759,993 for Governor. In 1948 the vote was 791,209 for President and 780,825 for Governor.

The last time North Carolina cast more votes for Governor than for President was in 1928, when the resentment against Al Smith induced many Democrats to "go fishing" with respect to the national ticket. However, several Democratic Governors have received larger votes than the party's presidential candidate. Gardner in 1928, Ehringhaus in 1932, Cherry in 1944 and Scott in 1948 outran the Democratic candidates for President in those years. Although Clyde Hoey in 1936 got more votes than any candidate up to that time, and J.M. Broughton in 1940 got more votes than any candidate for Governor in North Carolina history, both fell below the totals marked up for Franklin Roosevelt for his second and third terms.

Since elections are determined by majority and plurality of votes cast rather than the aggregate number, it may be of interest to study Democratic percentages. In 1928 the Democrats received only 44.6 per cent of all votes for President, thus giving the State's electoral vote that year to Republican Hoover over Democratic Al Smith. Franklin Roosevelt in his first race received 70 per cent of the total vote against Hoover; in 1936 he received 73.4 per cent against Landon; in 1940 he got his third term 74 per cent against William L. Wallcut; his percentage in 1944 dropped to 66.7 per cent over Dewey. Last time, in 1948, Truman's margin in the state was 58 per cent, with Republican Dewey coming up with 32.7 per cent. Righter Thurmond with nearly 9 per cent and Progressive Wallace with the rest.

That means the average Democratic vote for President in this state for the past six elections has been 64.5 per cent, the average Republican vote just about 35 per cent. The largest Democratic vote was the 616,141 given Roosevelt in 1936 and the largest Republican vote was the 348,923 for Hoover in 1928.

A further interesting speculation is that if the total Tarheel vote this year reaches a million, which is the reasonable goal of both parties and numerous non-partisan "get-out-the-vote" agencies, Eisenhower might well get more votes than any Republican candidate ever received in North Carolina, including Herbert Hoover in 1928, and still come no higher in the percentage scale than the six election average of approximately 35 per cent.

It may be of still further interest to note that in spite of all the ballyhoo for Willie in 1940 as having special appeal to dissident Democrats, he received 10,000 fewer votes than did Landon in 1936 and almost 50,000 fewer than Dewey in 1944. Arguments used in behalf of Eisenhower by North Carolina Republicans are very similar to those used for Willie 12 years ago, when the third term issue was played up as a Democratic weakness.

North Carolina voters this year will have only two national and two state ballots to choose between—straight Republican and Straight Democrat. In 1932 the Socialist party had a presidential candidate in North Carolina, who received 5,591 votes—about three-quarters of one percent of the total. In 1948 the State's Rights Democrats had a candidate who polled 69,652 votes or slightly under nine percent, and the Wallace Progressives polled 3,915, a little less than one-half of one percent. Only time in recent years there has been a third party candidate for Governor was in 1948 when the Wallace Progressive candidate polled 3,364 votes, or about four-tenths of one percent of the total.

Ike May Begin Naming Names

WASHINGTON (UP)—Dwight D. Eisenhower may drop his self-imposed campaign ban against naming names soon and make direct attacks on his political foes, a source close to the Republican presidential candidate said today.

Within the last week Eisenhower has been urged in private conversations to single out by name his Democratic rivals, Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson and Sen. John J. Sparkman, and also take pot shots at President Truman.

Those in contact with Eisenhower said he agreed to give the matter some thought. They expressed confidence he will take this tack as the campaign sharpens in intensity.

No Bells Ring, But Dries Ahead

JASPER, Ala. (UP)—"Dry" forces held a 2 to 1 lead in a liquor referendum here today although the church bells did not ring during the voting yesterday as announced.

A committee seeking to get out the vote on behalf of continuing prohibition announced the bells and chimes would toll reminders to church members to pray for the victory. But the Rev. A. Tillman Sprouse, pastor of the First Methodist Church, discouraged the plan.

"I will always be a prohibitionist," he said, "but the pulpit is no place to hash out a political controversy."

Auto Trip To Berlin Is Rife With Red Tension

By TOM STONE
AP Newfeatures.
HELMSTEDT, Germany—The Russians will part the Iron Curtain here, if your papers are in order, and let you drive the 100 miles to Berlin through Communist-controlled East Germany.

It is the most vital land link between the West and East, and the Soviets are the gate-keepers. No longer do the Communists permit U. S. military police to patrol the road to lend a helping hand to American motorists in distress. You're on your own.

At the American checkpoint near the border, MP's closely examine your papers so you won't have any trouble at the Russian road blocks.

"Don't take any pictures. Don't drive too fast. Be sure you have plenty of gasoline. And above all, don't turn off the main road for any reason," warns an MP.

In case your car does actually break down the Russian soldiers and East German people's police might help you. They might call the MP's to send you a tow truck. But again, they might not.

That's a risk you take to get a running glimpse of what life behind the Iron Curtain is like.

At the first Russian checkpoint a quiet, moon-faced Soviet soldier, sticks out his hand for your papers. You hand them over and hope for the best.

He turns sharply, marches into the checkpoint office and disappears. Through the office window you can see a picture of Stalin hanging on a wall. A Russian woman, dressed in military uniform, stares out the window at you. No smiles exchanged here.

She looks 100 per cent soldierly except for a pair of scarlet-red earrings that dangle from her ears.

In two or three minutes the other papers and motions a guard to lift the barrier. The barrier looks like an old-fashioned tollgate. It is painted red and white like a barber pole. You politely thank the soldier as he waves you through. But he must be deaf. He doesn't hear you.

So off you start on a two-hour drive through the Soviet-occupied East zone of Germany.

The road between here and Berlin is without a doubt the best marked highway in the world. Americans have greeted signs everywhere along the road pointing the way to Berlin. It would be hard to lose your way.

Nobody is taking any chances. A stray motorist could cause an international crisis. The road is good. It is a Hitler-built autobahn (super highway). The landscape is beautiful. In the fields East German farmers harvest their crops. Stacks of grain glitter in the late afternoon sunshine. In the distance the giant arms of a windmill turn slowly and gracefully in the gentle breeze.

Once in a while a farmer will pause long enough to turn and wave. But along the autobahn it is scarcely anything looks beautiful or friendly. Russian soldiers and people's police patrol the road constantly keeping a wary eye on travelers.

You begin to wonder if there is really enough gasoline in the car to reach Berlin. Perhaps a tire will blow out or the motor will stop cold. And it's beginning to get dark.

But the Communist propaganda signs along the road soon take your mind off such unpleasant thoughts. Some of the signs are amusing. Others are downright unneighborly.

"Am I go home," one of them says bluntly.

Others tell motorists how "free" and "happy" life is in the Communist East zone. They are the amusing ones.

Soon you've made it to the U. S. sector of Berlin. Whew! Who cares if a tire blows flat now? And it's dark. So what?

Actor Declared Most Successful Good Will Envoy

ROME (AP)—Tyrone Power has been Hollywood's most successful goodwill ambassador to Italy since the war, a Rome American News survey showed.

With the postwar upsurge in production both of American and Italian films here hundreds of Hollywood figures have come here.

The newspaper said that after Power, these nine Hollywood figures did the most to build good will for the U. S. film in Italy: Myrna Loy, Orson Welles, Marc Lawrence, Sam Zimmet, Anne Barnes, Gregory Ratoff, Eduardo Cinnel, and John C. Tubbs and Robert Taylor.

Power was commended for the way he "represented Italy bravely" by his friendliness, quiet dignified behavior and contributions to Italian charities.

Maryland Claims Ownership Of First Old Glory

Annapolis, Md. (AP)—Maryland claims to own the original "Old Glory."

The flag, thought to be the oldest in existence made in accordance with the June 14, 1777 Act of Congress, is on display in the Statehouse. That's the oldest state capital in daily use, and the flag claim relies on weekly newspaper that claims to be the oldest still published in the country.

The state Department of Information says the first reference to a flag "Old Glory" appeared in a 1781 issue of the Maryland Gazette reporting the battle of Cowpens. S. C. The term was attributed to William Bache, a Baltimore soldier who carried the flag at the head of the 3rd Maryland Regiment.

The same regimental flag is the one now under glass in the Statehouse. It was carried again by Bache's son at the Battle of North Point when the British invaded Maryland in 1814.

Fire-Proof Ship Has Much Wood

NEW YORK (AP)—Nearly three million board feet of lumber and wood was used in connection with the construction of the new passenger liner SS. United States, reports the National Lumber Manufacturers Association.

More wood was used in the construction of the liner, considered an all-metal ship, than is normally used in the construction of large all-wood vessels.

The wood was used for patterns, cranes, scaffolds and launching equipment. The United States is an all-metal ship.

Postman's Goal Is Endurance Run

BURLINGTON, N. C. (UP)—Postman Paul (Hard Rock) Simpson, 48, hoped today his improved speed is a step toward setting a new coast-to-coast running record before he retires.

Simpson, who keeps trim by sprinting on his mail route, yesterday ran the 34 miles from here to Durham, N. C., in six hours and 35 minutes, clipping 10 minutes from his 1951 time.

In 1928, Simpson ran 3,420 miles from coast to coast in 84 days. In 1929 he repeated the stunt in an unsuccessful attempt to break the record of 77 days.

Scotland Tries Sea Weed Crop

By ALVIN STEINKOPF
AP Newfeatures.

MUSSELBURGH, Scotland—Scotland envies California—it has better sea weed.

Sea weed is the basis of a promising new industry here. California seas weed, when snipped from the rocks to which it clings, floats to the surface. Scottish sea weed sinks, and fishing it up from the bottom is a lot of work for which no adequate tools have been designed.

But despite difficulties, Scotland's strangest and newest business carries on bravely and produces new revenue for the crofters (farmers) of the highlands.

In Aberdeen today it is possible to buy ice cream made partly of substances extracted from sea weed.

There are other surprising uses. The alginic acid of sea weed provides the agent which thickens custards. It stiffens textiles, notably the fabric under linoleum.

It furnishes the base for transparent films to coat paper. Treated another ingenious way, it makes soluble medical dressings, and swabs which a surgeon may leave in a wound. Alginic acid is being used for the manufacture of high grade cosmetics, and sea weed produces substances useful in compounding tooth paste.

Pressed another way, sea weed provides a pale green meal which cows eat with relish, and it is as good for them as spinach for children.

Scientists at a research institute here are confident that many more products will be devised. As the project is explained by F. T. Walker, head of the botanical division of the Institute of Sea Weed Research, the ocean is a vast repository of an infinite number of substances useful to man.

The difficulty is that in sea water they are so diluted that, with the exception of salt and a few minerals, they cannot be recovered economically.

But sea weed, by just growing, collects the minute quantities of many chemicals in the sea and deposits them in its cells.

Capitol Square

cost more per mile than the same kind of roads cost in 1949 and 1950. Those are facts that cannot be challenged. Questions about durability of roads and quality of construction in buildings come within the realm of opinion.

STATISTICS—Someone has said that "figures do not lie, but liars sure do figure." Another wag is credited with the statement that there are three kinds of liars: Plain liars, damned liars and statisticians. While the argument goes on among North Carolinians about the wisdom (or lack of it) with respect to excess spending during the past few years, statisticians of the U. S. Department of Commerce report that North Carolina has fallen behind other Southern States in the location of new industry, and the Federal Reserve Bank Board reports that while the average income of North Carolinians is rising, it is rising at slower pace than that of the nation as a whole or of the South as a section. These are things that must be given serious thought by North Carolinians who are concerned about the actual and relative advancement of their State.

Scientists Are Short In Britain

LONDON (AP)—Britain is running short of scientists, the Government's advisory council on scientific policy has announced.

Warning that there will be more jobs than scientists during the next five years, the council said in a report: "We are already beginning to lose some of our out going scientific men to American industry."

The report called for increased scientific educational facilities in Britain, both for the needs of government and industry. shorts arise

Major Speech By Stevenson In Los Angeles Scheduled Tonight

LOS ANGELES (UP) — Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson makes a major speech here tonight in which he is expected to enlarge on his theory that corruption is not a genuine issue in the presidential campaign.

The Democratic nominee hammered on that theme yesterday as he made the first whistle-stop tour of his campaign, an eight-stop swing down California's Central Valley.

Members of the Stevenson staff were highly secretive as to the actual contents of tonight's speech, however, advising reporters only that he would "tell the truth about the campaign and the future of the country."

But some of his advisers confided to friends that he would tackle what he does not think is a "real" issue — corruption.

The Illinois governor's advisers were well aware that the prime campaign issue in possession of the Republican opposition was corruption, based on congressional investigations and a series of grand jury indictments of internal revenue officials.

It was believed they felt his current 7,600-mile invasion of the West would be an ideal time to meet the corruption question head-on.

Stevenson said yesterday at San Francisco that he and Dwight D. Eisenhower, the GOP candidate, were in an agreement on anti-corruption and that he knew of no candidate running on a "pro-corruption" ticket.

In addition to his speech tonight at Shrine Auditorium, Stevenson will make a less formal talk at a mid-day luncheon. Tomorrow he will speak in Phoenix, Ariz., and Albuquerque, N. Mex., before returning to his headquarters at Springfield, Ill.

A crowd of more than 1,000 greeted the Democratic candidate when he arrived here last night.

Stevenson repeated charges that Eisenhower had "taken over" the Democrat's farm plank. After say-

Speech, Hearing, Other Tests For ECC Freshmen

Speech and hearing tests, given this fall at East Carolina College for the first time as part of an extensive testing program for freshmen and other new students, were administered this week to approximately 800 men and women.

Results will be used to determine whether students are in need of remedial work or medical attention, according to Dean of Instruction Leo W. Jenkins. Those who it is thought will benefit from remedial work in speech will be assigned to classes in speech at the college, where they will receive training designed to help them overcome their difficulties. Students with serious speech defects or hearing losses will be referred to medical authorities if treatment is considered advisable.

The speech and hearing tests were administered by faculty members of the education and the English departments.

All new students at the college will complete this week an eight-house testing program. Fifty-five faculty members are engaged in administering a series of examinations, including intelligence, aptitude, personality, English, mathematics, and other tests.

Results of this battery of tests will be used largely in guidance and counseling work at the college. English and mathematics tests are used by the departments concerned in organizing sections of freshman classes so that they will be homogeneous groups in regard to ability and training of students.

Stevenson is concerned with that program. In fact he's just about taken over my plank. In fact, sometimes I feel all of my planks have been stolen.

"Maybe the general will have trouble getting rid of the record — even if he does swipe our planks." He also referred to Eisenhower's support of Sen. William Jenner of Indiana during his Tuesday night speech.

"I was interested to see in his speech that my distinguished opponent included on his team certain people...who have called General Marshall — one of this country's greatest patriots — a traitor to his country," Stevenson said.

At Tulare, a cotton-raising center Stevenson turned to the Democrats' price support program and accused the Republicans of having difficulty "in recognizing foreign trade for this country."

"You can't be 'political' internationalists and economic isolationists at the same time," he said.

Tito Convinced No Soviet Attack For Near Future

SPLIT, Yugoslavia (AP)—Premier Marshal Tito says he is convinced the Soviets are not planning an attack on Yugoslavia in the near future. If it does come, he warns, it will spark World War III.

In an interview with a group of men, released last night, the Yugoslav leader emphasized his nation would resist any attack.

"We are ready," he said. "Our people cannot be bluffed." Tito described the chances of such a Soviet move as a "constant and latent" but not "imminent" danger.

He reasoned that Soviet aggression would bring on a third world war because, he said, the West was aware that Russian conquest of his country would mean Russian domination of the Mediterranean life line to the East.

In his answers, Tito showed confidence in the strength of his regime despite the hostility of his Cominform neighbors and economic troubles stemming from one drought in 1950 and another this year. He also made clear his reasons for believing the West would continue to send him military equipment.

"The question of defense of Western Europe depends to a very large degree on Yugoslavia, no matter what the propagandists say," he declared.

"We are very conscious of this and know very well that it is not a matter of indifference to the West whether Yugoslavia or the Soviet Union is sitting on the Isonze Yugoslavia's river boundary with Italy and the Adriatic."

Teachers Silent In Senate Probe

NEW YORK (AP)—Seven New York City public school teachers refused yesterday to tell Senate probes whether they had been members of the Communist party.

Each of the seven invoked the Fifth Amendment to the Federal Constitution, which protects an individual from being forced to testify against himself.

Sen. Homer Ferguson (R-Mich), head of a Senate internal security subcommittee investigating communism in the nation's schools, said:

"On that ground, I will recognize your right not to answer that question."

Ferguson recessed the two day public hearings here without setting a future date, but added: "This does not mean that we have closed this matter. We have received evidence that the board of education is taking certain steps. We can recess and allow it to make its investigations."

One of the teachers to testify, Meyer Case, a civics instructor, told the committee:

"Right now, if you went into the

Zoo Is Re-Modeled By Color Consultant

By GAY FAULEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (U.P.)—Turn a woman loose with an assortment of paint and she's apt to do something startling.

Bronx Zoo officials discovered that when they hired a woman to be their color consultant.

It began about 18 months ago when the zoo decided its more than 50 buildings and 252 acres could have a lot more eye appeal. Officials got in touch with an attractive New England woman who had built quite a reputation for her color know-how.

Since then, blue-eyed Teresa Kilham has been directing a paint-brush brigade among the old buildings. Now, about 25 per cent of the animal houses, once a calm buff and blue, glisten with decorative colors ranging from brilliant red to cheery yellows and all sorts of blues and greens.

Like Fairy Book
The children's section of the zoo looks like a page from a fairy book—a medley of rose and lemon, azure and pink.
The eagles hold regal court in huge cages topped by a brilliant red crest and banded with light blue, yellow and light green iron-work around deep blue screens.

The black panther is shown off against a backdrop of bright blue. "We're just trying to make the zoo more attractive," officials explained. "We're not experimenting with the effects of color on animals or anything like that."

Miss Kilham, a native of Boston, said decorating a zoo has been the most exciting job she's had, and certainly the most spectacular.

Not Like Libraries
"Up to now I've been working on libraries and such," she said. They included libraries at Trinity College, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Princeton University. She also has color-planned high schools, business offices and homes for her friends and special clients.

None of them gave her the scope for the showmanship she has used at the Zoo.

"I sure shocked officials with the first building," she said. "It was lavishly with yellow red, blue and white, but they seemed pleased. I make sure there are no clashing colors as far as the eye can see."

Miss Kilham expects it will take another year or two for the whole job to be done. So far, the new color schemes apparently have met with approval of the thousands of visitors to the Zoo.

Took 'Hard Way' In Covered Wagon

CENTRALIA, Ill. (AP)—It took a Mattoon, Ill. couple back to pioneer days to travel 100 miles in a covered wagon. It also took them four days.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis S. Reed had a hunch it would be tough. They hired a truck to take their home furnishings ahead to their new Mt. Carmel, Ill. home. They took the "hard way" because it seemed a good way to take their covered wagon relic and horse with them.

Montana Grows Colder, Wetter

HELENA, Mont. (AP)—Montana has grown colder and wetter during the past 10 years. Mountain glaciers have grown larger in the cold weather, and the state's growing season has shortened.

R.A. Dightman, chief of the U.S. Weather Bureau in Montana, claims Montana and the entire Northwest, is in the midst of a cyclical cold period. He has told the Montana Academy of Sciences that Weather Bureau figures show temperatures for the last 10 years have averaged 42.2 degrees in Montana, two degrees less than the previous 10 year mean. In 1937 the 10-year average moisture fall was slightly over 12 inches. In 1952 it had climbed to 15 inches.

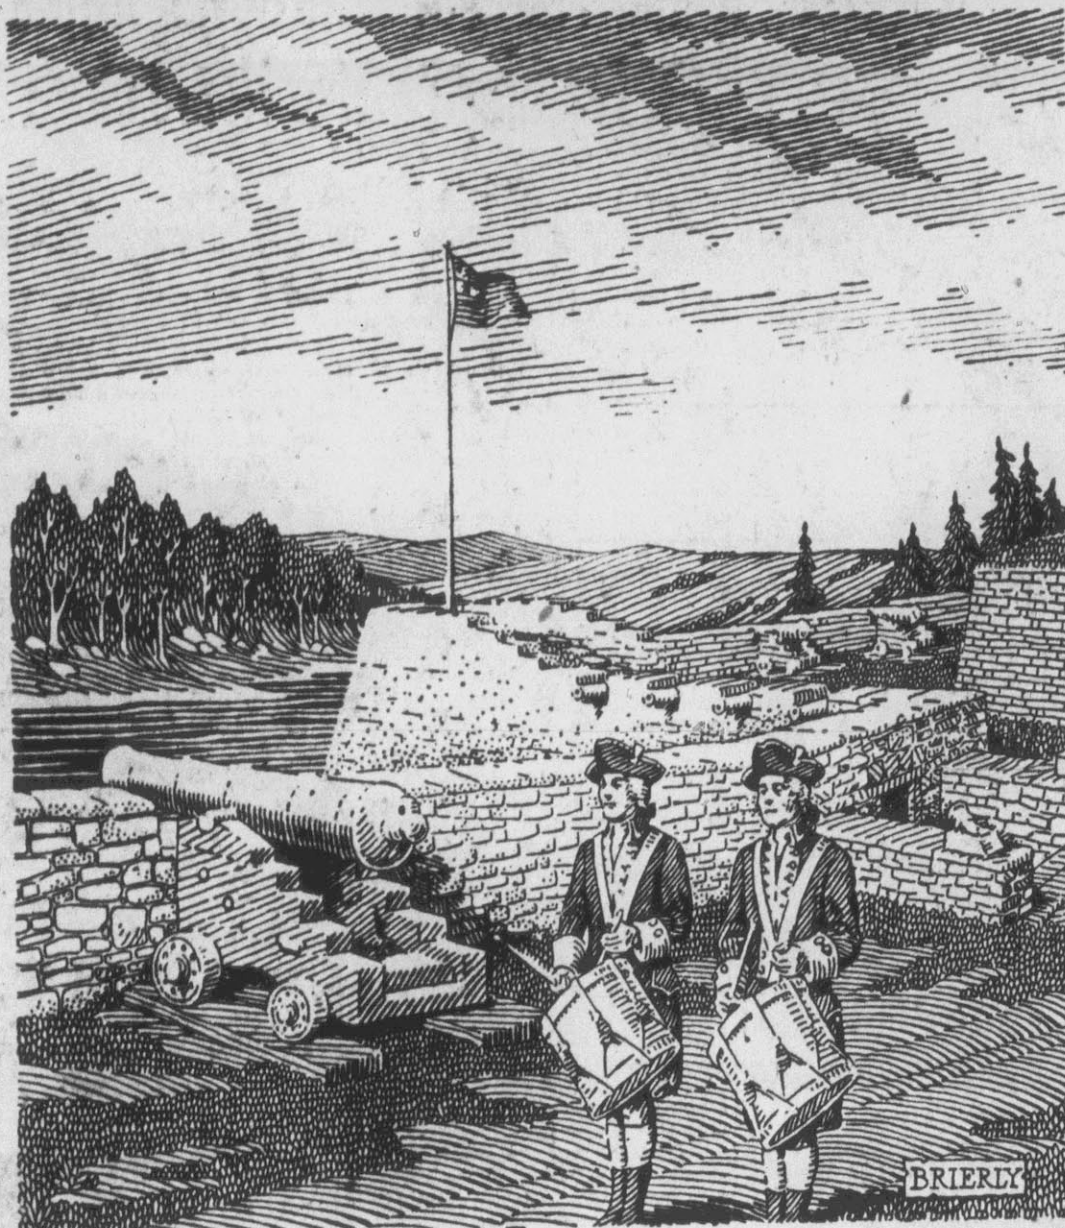

The increased cold has brought dramatic growth to the state's glaciers, Dightman said. His figures showed that Grinnell Glacier in Glacier National Park has gained 5 feet in thickness and has extended itself 25 feet downward in the past year. Over a period of years, since its smallest area was measured at 250 acres, the glacier has grown to cover 270 acres.

GOOD DEED WASTED

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UP)—Sgt. Robert Livesay picked up a victim of a hit-and-run driver and sped to a hospital, using his automobile horn as a siren. A stoplight and traffic wouldn't respond. The result was three cars smashed, and arrest of the good Samaritan for reckless driving.

NOT MEANT LITIGATION

Landmark In U. S. History

1775, FORT TICONDEROGA under Patriot Occupation.

Never to be overlooked as one of America's historical landmarks, the old fort of Ticonderoga remains as one of the crossroads of early colonial achievements. Its capture by Ethan Allen's Green Mountain boys provided necessary equipment for arming of Washington's soldiers.

British A-Bomb Tests Planned Any Day Now

By PHIL NEWSOM
United Press Foreign News Editor
Any day now, in an aura of mystery almost unprecedented even in this atomic age, the British will explode their first atomic "device."

The test will be conducted off Australia's barren west coast and will be witnessed only by British military personnel and British and Australian scientists.

There is speculation that the British have something new. If new, it must be awesome indeed.

It has been just over seven years since the first atom bomb to be fired in anger, and only the second ever to be built, exploded over Hiroshima in Japan.

It utilized, as President Truman explained at the time, the power of the sun, and it struck more terror into the hearts of civilian populations than even the German buzz bombs or the Allied block busters had been able to do.

In the intervening years there have been 31 known atomic explosions—28 touched off by American scientists and three by the Russians.

The Russians have touched off the explosions but whether they have an actual atomic bomb still is a matter of speculation. It is assumed, however, that they have.

Now the implication is that the British are about to add a new twist to the power and terror of the atom.

The base for the tests will be a lonely string of uninhabited coral islands called Monte Bello some 45 miles off the Australian coast about 1,000 miles north of Perth.

Until the scientists arrived, the only living things on the islands were rats and cats, presumably survivors of some shipwreck, along with kangaroos, lizards and thousands of birds, particularly the white osprey.

Before World War II, Japanese pearl divers sometimes sought refuge from hurricanes at anchorages there. Six weeks ago the escort carrier Campanian, carrying "equipment" for the operation, arrived at Fremantle. Since then the official silence has been broken only by an official warning to shipping and aircraft that 3,000 square miles around Monte Bello will be dangerous.

Authorities also set up a "danger cone" whose base rests on the Monte Bello islands and its tip in the Woomera rocket range in the vast desert of central Australia.

There have been guarded reports that the British have perfected an improved "trigger" for the atom bomb, and it is known that the British are far advanced in guided missile experiments, including one with a "brain" which seeks out and destroys its own target.

Known facts, coupled with logical speculation, suggest that the Monte Bello tests will include a guided missile with an atomic war head—one that can be dropped into a barrel at a range of 1,000 miles.

Loudest Siren Is Tried Out Today

NEW YORK (UP)—The world's loudest siren gets its first test today.

New York Civil Defense Director Arthur Wallander ordered the first blast to be sounded in the harbor near the Statue of Liberty.

The siren is powered by a 180-horsepower engine. Wallander said engineers with sound equipment would be stationed around the city to check on the volume of the blasts.

WOMAN HEADS LEGION
LINCOLN, Neb. (UP)—The 3,000-member Lincoln American Legion just has a woman commander. Mrs. Maryellen Lorton, widow of a World War II veteran, was elected without opposition.

Marker Honors Heroic Soldier

ABEVILLE, S. C. (UP)—This town's 5,395 inhabitants signified with a granite marker today their imperishable pride in a native son who became one of America's greatest heroes of World War II.

The large monument to the memory of Maj. Thomas D. Howie, "The Major of St. Lo," was unveiled in a solemn ceremony at the Courthouse Square here yesterday.

Maj. Howie was killed July 7, 1944, by a German shell explosion as he led his men into St. Lo during the Allied Normandy campaign which led to the destruction of the German Army.

His men, who called him "the best officer that ever lived," carried his body upon a stretcher at the head of their column as they entered the city and placed it upon an altar in the ruins of a church.

Gen. Charles P. Summerall, former Army chief of staff and now president of the Citadel at Charleston, where Howie was an undergraduate football star, addressed the memorial gathering here.

The monument was unveiled by Howie's 14-year old daughter Sallie, and four-year old nephew and name sake, Thomas D. Howie II. Howie's widow and Sallie, their only child, live in Staunton, Va.

Swept Himself To New Freedom

Oakland, Calif. (UP)—A trusty prisoner did too thorough a job in sweeping the Eastern precinct police station lobby yesterday.

Leo Morley, a 45-year-old caddy serving a 30-day sentence for drunkenness, swept himself right out the front door to freedom.

BURGLES EMPTY SACK
IRENE, Tex. (UP)—A burglar entered the Paul Haverman general store, dumped a sack of corn meal on the floor and left with the sack his only loot.

Art 'Advertised' By Radio Station

NEW YORK (AP)—The arts—modern painting, architecture, opera, classical music—are about to be sold to the radio audience as if they were soap chips, beer or chlorophyll.

New York City's independent station WNEW will soon start singing little musical jingles plugging long-hair pleasures. For instance, one jazzy jingle starts: "Maybe Mr. Bach wrote tunes that didn't rock." It goes on to advise giving an ear to his music. Another notes that people laughed at Rembrandt when his style was new and follows by admonishing:

"When you look at modern art, don't laugh with condescension. Just look awhile and maybe you'll smile a smile filled with admiration."

The singing jingle plugging a non-commercial product is the idea of Berenice Judis, manager of the station. The station picked up a handful of awards a few years back with singing commercials on tolerance, safety and other concepts of public service.

To Travel After World Cruise

BALTIMORE (AP)—You'd think Bill Murnan, a youthful 56, would be ready for a rest after a five-year-trip around the world in a 30-foot-yawl.

But Bill, who stopped here en route to New York, plans to sell the yawl and buy a station wagon to tour the United States. "I've been at sea since 1919," he says. "There are an awful lot of things I have to do on land."

He started from Los Angeles and visited the West Indies, Ascension Island, South Africa, Australia, New Guinea and Hawaii. Illness forced his wife to abandon the trip in Samoa. She's been knocking around in Europe awaiting his return.

Stocks And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Prospect of a sale of $7,000,000 of Western Union stock as a secondary offering brought a sharp decline into that issue today and tempered a modest recovery movement on the market.

It was learned that John Fox, Boston capitalist who recently acquired large Western Union holdings, planned to sell a major portion of them—a total estimated at 180,000 shares.

It was said Fox plans to devote all his time to his new venture—the Boston Post, recently acquired—in a fight against Communism.

Western Union touched 42 in the early trading where it was up 1-8. On word of the Fox plans, it fell to 39 off 2 7-8 points where it met minor support.

Railroad issues extended early gains, but industry, dipped from their first hour highs in the averages. However, a majority of issues held small gains at mid-session.

Several recent weak spots registered gains of a point or better, including Amerasia which sold at 194 up 2 1-4 and U. S. Gypsum 115 1-2 up 2.

Zenith led televisions higher with a 1 3-4 point gain, more than half of which was held. Oils as a group turned firmer. Motors held firm and steels about steady. Douglas Aircraft, Shell Oil, Monsanto, Ingersoll-Rand, and McIntyre Porcupine gained a point or better.

When King Ibn-Saud of Arabia uses his ship of the desert in the future, it won't be a camel. An American-built luxury trailer has been shipped to him and will provide space for living and government conferences far from big centers. A Tulsa aircraft firm (Spartan) spent 15 months custom building the $50,000 aluminum trailer. It is 42 feet long and 9 feet wide. Insulated against the desert heat, it has its own cooling and power plants. The conference room is shown in the top picture. Below is the exterior view with the special four-wheel drive truck which will tow it.

Another Lincoln 'Controversy' Ends; Will Paint Home Brown

By JAMES J. KLOCKENKEMPER
United Press Staff Correspondent
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UP) — A little knot of people, standing on Abraham Lincoln's front lawn and peering at old chips of paint and pieces of wood, wrote a settlement of another Lincoln controversy into the books today.

They decided to paint his Springfield home, the only home he ever owned, brown instead of white. Quaker brown, they said.

For a time, the color line had split the historians in this Lincoln-conscious community.

A few weeks ago the Lincoln home was closed to make it "authentic in every detail." Then a state agency sent an archeologist and historians had discovered Lincoln painted the house "Quaker brown" or "a Quaker tint of tan."

Editorials denounced this defacing of what is now a white house with green shutters. Some scholars said that the home was white when Lincoln lived there. Some plain citizens said whether Lincoln liked it or not, white was prettier.

State Parks Director Ray Hubbs, caught in the middle, summoned Gov. Adlai Stevenson's Lincoln advisory board. It gathered on the narrow lawn in front of the house.

First, the board forthrightly rejected a near-yellow color that came perilously close to getting the nod. State Historian Harry Pratt, Springfield banker George Bunn, and Mrs. William T. Bacon of Winnetka, members of the board, clustered about Hubbs. With them stood archeologist Richard Hagan, an outspoken "brown," Miss Virginia Stuart Brown, the home custodian and a militant "white," and C. F. Pope, state head of design and a nervous neutral.

Hubbs: "We're here to decide the original color of this house. Some say one, some say another; I say let's get down to business and decide what it's going to be."

Hagan: "Now here's the board I scraped."

Miss Brown, waving a small piece of wood: "Your board was put on after the '70's. Here's an original walnut board."

Hagan, stunned but game: "It doesn't have any white paint on it."

Miss Brown: "We know it was white part of the time Lincoln lived."

Hagan: "The only proof of white paint is from people born after 1890 who talked to people born before 1890."

Bunn, as Mrs. Bacon holds board against paint chips: "I believe it's closer to the color of Mr. Hubbs' suit."

Hubbs: "This decision must be final."

Mrs. Bacon: "I think this is the one, lightened up a little."

Bunn: "Yes, that's just the color of Mr. Hubbs' suit."

Hubbs: "If that's decided, how about the shutters? They're supposed to be green."

Mrs. Bacon: "They must have been very dark green."

Hubbs: "Now, Pope and Hagan, you're the paint experts, get in here."

Pope: "Oh no, this is a job for the Lincoln scholars."

Hubbs, leading the group into the house: "Well, it's this dark green and this tan. Now that's final. Let's pick out the wallpaper."

Reports Rattler Turned Cannibal

DILLON, Mont. (AP)—A man who hunts rattlesnakes for a hobby says the reptiles have turned cannibal.

Stewart Schlafke shot a 30-inch rattler on Sunday and cut off its rattles. He hiked on a little further and then came back to the same spot where he killed the snake.

Will Not Go Over Final Pay Offer

NEW YORK (UP)—L. R. Boulware, General Electric vice president in charge of employee relations said today the company will not go beyond its latest offer of 7 1-2 to 13 cents an hour pay boosts for its 200,000 employees.

The offer was made yesterday to the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (IURMW) and other unions representing GE workers.

Some unions were reported to have accepted the offer but others are holding out for a greater increase.

Rules Suicide In Gunshot Death

BETHEL—Colonel E. Pittman, 36-year-old Negro man, committed suicide sometime Wednesday morning after complaining of illness and leaving the field where he was picking cotton.

Coroner Griffin Rouse said the man was picking cotton on the P. L. Blount farm near Bethel Wednesday morning with his mother, father and others, and complained of being sick to his stomach. He left the field and was not seen again until noon when he was discovered in his room, shot in the left side.

Pittman used a 12-gauge single barrel shotgun as the suicide weapon. He had used part of a tobacco stick to pull the trigger. Rouse said the gun was lying beside Pittman, who died instantly.

The farmhand had lived on the Blount farm for 18 years. He served for three years in World War II and was not married.

Rouse stated there would be no inquest and called the death "a clear case of suicide."

Pactolus Store Robbed In Night

PACTOLUS—The Pitt County sheriff's department today is on the lookout for an unidentified thief who last night broke into J. P. Davenport and Sons store here.

Deputy Sheriff Lloyd Manning reported today the exact amount of merchandise stolen could not be determined in a short time because of the extensive stock.

"However," Manning said, "the management definitely established that some watches and pocketknives were taken." Entrance to the store was made through the front window, which had been broken, the deputy stated.

The theft was discovered by John Langley, an employee, when he came down this morning to open the store for business. There are no suspects at present but officers are still working on the case.

The break-in was investigated by Manning and "Cap'n" S. B. Dorsey, identification specialist with the Greenville Police Department.

Questions Import Of Primary Vote

MILWAUKEE (UP) — A Democratic leader said today that Sen. Joseph McCarthy's impressive victory in the Wisconsin primary was no assurance that he will be able to beat his Democratic opponent in November.

Carl Thompson, state Democratic committeeman, said the Republican senator's renomination "doesn't mean he will be elected to Congress."

But political observers were awed by McCarthy's overwhelming victory over Leonard Schmitt of Merrill, Wis., and McCarthy himself predicted the voters would endorse him again in the general election.

It seemed certain that his Democratic opponent in the senatorial election would be former state Atty. Gen. Thomas E. Fairchild. Fairchild built up a lead over Milwaukee attorney Henry Reuss as the returns poured in, and Reuss conceded. However, later returns showed that Reuss was gaining.

In the campaign Schmitt and McCarthy pined the issues to a single one—McCarthy's charges of Communism in government and his methods of making the charges. McCarthy's victory indicated he had won the support of Wisconsin voters.

"I don't care about losing personally—I mean that sincerely," Schmitt said. "But I am astounded and amazed that the voters who are reputed to be the most intelligent electorate in the U. S. should fall for the shallow falsehoods of McCarthy."

Tobacco Prices Vary Slightly On Wednesday Sales

RALEIGH (UP)—Average prices on the Middle, Eastern and Border belt flue-cured tobacco markets varied from steady to slightly lower through steady to slightly higher yesterday.

Several scattered grades showed $1 to $3 declines on the Middle belt, according to the Federal-State Market News Service, with deliveries light.

On the Eastern belt increases were generally $1 to $3, with volume of sales medium.

The Border belt held steady with a fairly heavy volume of offerings. Principal offerings on the three belts were common to fair leaf, nondescript, good and fair lugs and some fair primings.

Tuesday's sales figures were: Middle—$270,522 pounds averaging $50.12. Border—7,853,402 pounds with an average of $51.10.

Salt Rubbed In Victim's Wounds

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UP)—Police questioned a 21-year-old man today after an alleged farmer was clubbed with a shotgun and salt was rubbed into his open wounds.

Norton Tyler, 72, was hit over the head with his own shotgun when he returned from the fields and found a robber ransacking his home yesterday. Tyler said his assailant forced him to lie on a bed while he rubbed salt in his wounds.

The Illinois Department of Public Safety said they arrested the 21-year-old suspect.

Piney Grove News

So far there has been good attendance at the revival. Mr. Manning is bringing some wonderful messages, and Mr. Hinnant is conducting the song service. The services begin each evening at 7:45.

Homecoming Day will be Sunday and members are reminded to bring a basket and sweetened tea. Visitors are welcome and former pastors are especially invited.

During the Sunday School hour, Sunday morning, there will be a short service honoring Mr. Joe Pollard who has been so faithful regardless of his infirmities during the past thirty years.

Friends of Mr. Clifton Harris will be sorry to learn that he is in critical condition in Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Those attending from out-of-town were Mrs. Marjorie Brister and daughter of Algiers, La., Mr. and Mrs. Graham Allen of Norfolk, Va. Mrs. Brister and Mr. Allen are children of Mrs. Bernice Causey and were visiting her. Also Mr. and Mrs. Joe Tyson and sons were home from Chapel Hill.

Further Spread Of Tie-Up Feared

BURBANK, Calif. (UP) — A strike that has tied up production of the Air Force's newest jet fighters threatened to spread to another company today when union leaders rejected a wage offer by Douglas Aircraft.

Unless settlement is reached in wage dispute between the AFL International Association of Machinists and Douglas, union spokesmen indicated that walkouts would begin Monday at plants in Santa Monica and El Segundo, Calif.

A four-day strike by IAM workers in Lockheed Aircraft plants here has crippled production of the Starfire jet fighter.

Lockheed obtained an injunction yesterday that prohibits mass picketing around its plants.

Lockheed union President John Snider said "his members would comply with the order but said it was unnecessary because picketing had been peaceful."

Union representatives from both Lockheed and Douglas made it clear that they did not intend to settle their dispute on terms recommended by the Wage Stabilization Board in another aircraft wage fight between North American Aviation and the CIO United Auto Workers.

The WSB approved a 10-cent hourly raise for the North American workers, but IAM spokesman said the UAW's previous scale was below that at Lockheed and Douglas.

Late Rains Aided Tobacco Returns

RALEIGH (UP) — August rains were more like greenbacks than pennies from heaven to North Carolina tobacco growers, a report by the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service showed today.

The agency raised its tobacco production estimate 69,750,000 pounds during the past month to a total of 922,790,000 pounds. The forecast figure would fall only 5.6 per cent short of the record 1951 crop and would set the 1951-52 average by 27.7 per cent.

The service said yield is expected to be 1,287 per acre compared with the record 1951 yield of 1,325 pounds.

Rains during the first week of August "resulted in tobacco taking second growth and it was not uncommon for plants to double in height soon after these rains," the report said.

The same rains delayed harvesting from two to four weeks in some areas, and the reporting service admitted "there is some speculation in the Old and Middle belt as to whether all the crop will be harvested before killing frosts."

By belts the forecast was: Border—116,250,000 pounds, compared to 127,480,000 pounds in 1951. Eastern—460,800,000 pounds, compared to 510,880,000 in 1951. Old and Middle—345,740,000 pounds, compared to 339,300,000 in 1951.

Resolution

It reads: WHEREAS, law enforcement personnel of the State Bureau of Investigation, Pitt County Sheriff's staff and Greenville Police Department gave unstintingly of their time and professional skill over a period of more than a week in a combined effort to apprehend the killers of Greenville Police Officer Jesse Mills;

AND WHEREAS, as the result of tireless efforts of those three cooperating groups around the clock, and over and above the call of duty, the killers have been apprehended;

BE IT THEREFORE resolved that the board of aldermen and mayor of the city of Greenville thank and commend those three law enforcement agencies for their highly efficient and effective efforts in the solution of the Mills murder case;

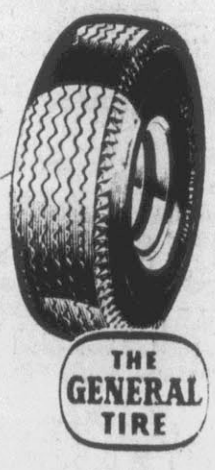

AND BE IT FURTHER resolved that our mayor be authorized to forward a copy of this resolution to each of the law enforcement agencies with a covering letter.
