Nixon Promises Full Accounting Of $16,000 Fund At An Early Date

Candidate Stevenson Warns Against Early Condemnation; Ike Confident

By UNITED PRESS
Sen. Richard M. Nixon, sustained by his running mate, Dwight D. Eisenhower, promised a full public accounting today of the $16,000 fund which he received from wealthy Californians.

The Republican vice presidential candidate defended his right to use the fund and asserted that "not one red cent" of the money went into his pockets.

Eisenhower gave Nixon a clean bill of health and said that "when the facts are known... they will show that Dick Nixon could not compromise with what is right."

Gov. Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic presidential candidate, took formal recognition of the development and called on the Republican Party to ascertain the facts in the case. He said the questions that arose were: "Who gave the money, was it given to influence the senator's position on public questions, and have any laws been violated?"

"I am sure that the great Republican Party will ascertain these facts, will make them public, and act in accordance with our best traditions and with due respect for the second most important position in the land," Stevenson said in New York.

"Condemnation without all the evidence, a practice all too familiar to us, would be wrong."

Eisenhower, in Kansas City, Mo., where he made a "corruption" speech last night attacking Stevenson as a front man for big-city political bosses, accepted fully a statement by Nixon that there was nothing wrong and that the criticisms were only a political "smear."

"I have worked with and have confidence in Senator Nixon," the GOP presidential candidate said. "Both he and I believe in a single standard of morality in public life." Sen. Robert A. Taft, whom Eisenhower defeated for the Republican nomination, also was quick to come to Nixon's defense. Taft said that he saw no basis for criticizing Nixon and that the senator was within his rights in accepting the "gifts" from his constituents.

Nixon, on a whistle stop tour of the West, gave a statement to his running mate in which he swore that he did not profit personally nor give any special favors to his beneficiaries.

"This whole issue developed as a deliberate smear attempt by persons intent on perpetuating the present administration in power," his statement said. "The only way to answer a smear is with the truth. This we shall do."

"The facts will show that public-spirited citizens who contributed to this fund ask nothing of me nor did they receive anything from me in any way of special favors, consideration or treatment. The facts will show that not one red cent was spent by me for my personal use."

"The facts will make it crystal clear that such a legitimate political fund originates in an earnest and unselfish desire on the part of the contributors to support my fight against communism and corruption in government."

Allan S. Haywood, CIO executive vice president, charged that three California businessmen each "bought a piece of the Republican vice presidential nominee."

The senator's vote on housing and rent control bills "shows that the California real estate men knew a good investment when they saw one," Haywood said.

Democratic National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell said that if Nixon did not "tell all" about the fund Eisenhower should "cast away his running mate."

Stevenson Reminds Stand Had To Be Made Against Red Grabs

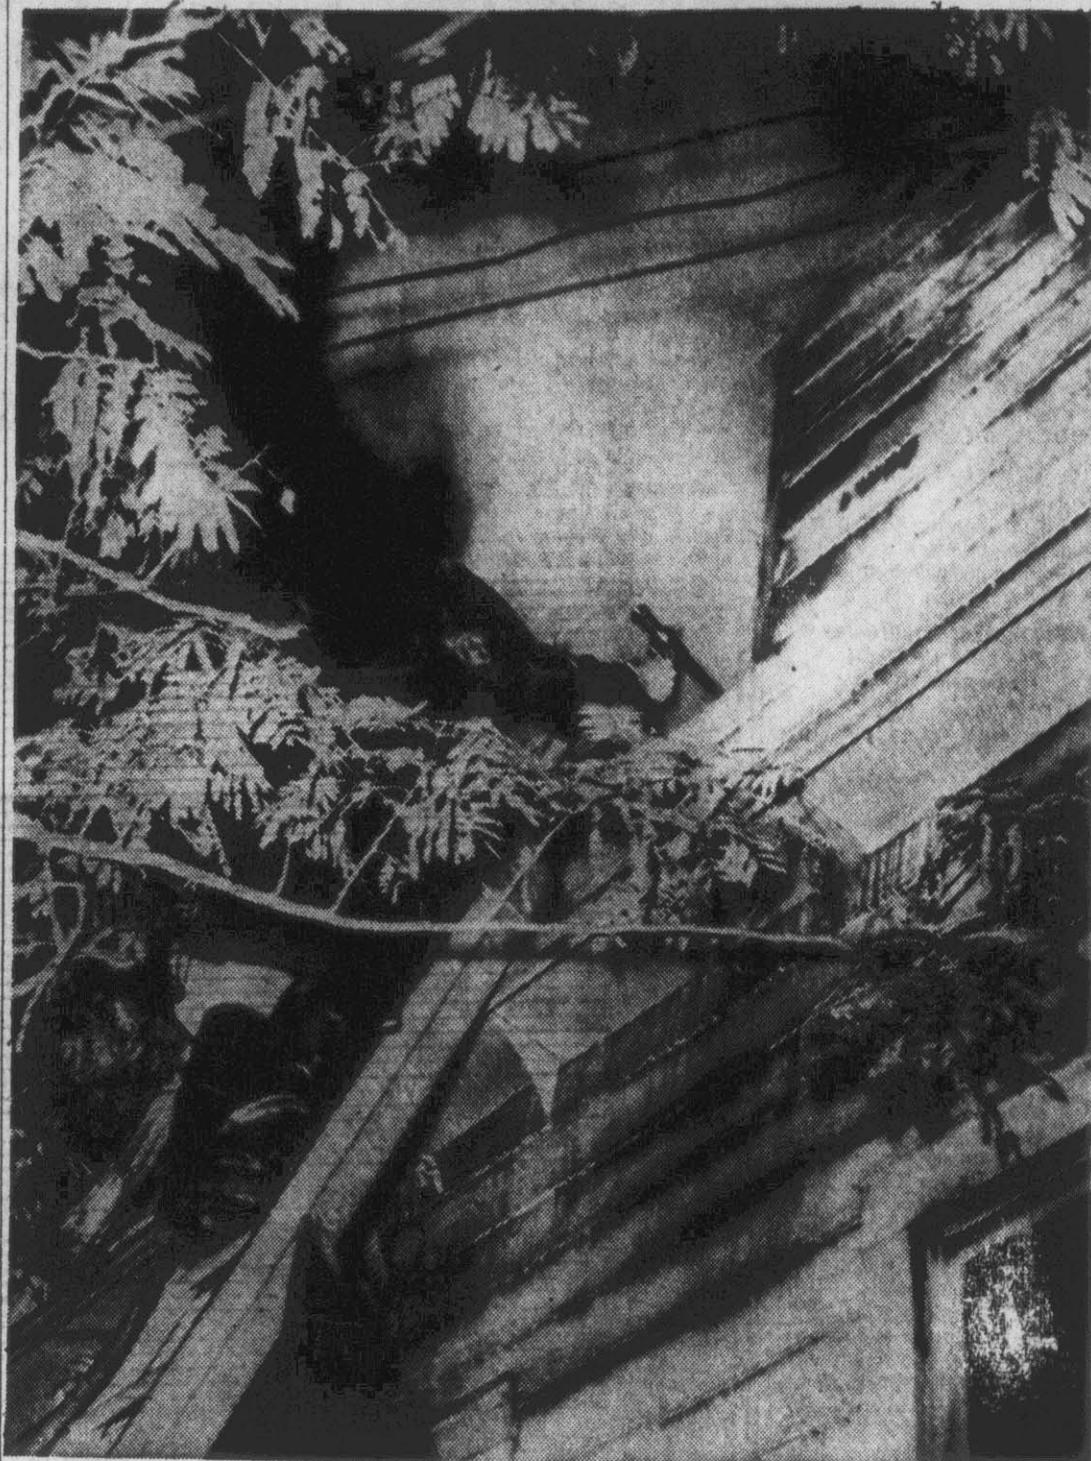

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press Staff Correspondent
QUANTICO, Va. (UP) — Gov. Adlai Stevenson said today that even if the Korean war could have been avoided, the United States would have taken fighting stand against Russian aggression somewhere in the world.

In a speech at graduation exercises at the Marine Corps officers' school here, the Democratic presidential candidate told the newly commissioned Leatherneck officers that they must defend their country "not to make good the errors of the past, but the promise of the future."

Stevenson's son, Adlai Jr., was one of the 300 officers who received his second lieutenant's commission.

Stevenson said American policy leading up to the Korean war is

Firemen Battle Blaze From Close-Up

A Greenville fireman is shown battling the fire which broke out in the offices of Dr. C. R. Graves last night. The offices were gutted before local firemen could bring the blaze under control. Firemen summoned to the burning building around four o'clock, fought the blaze for more than an hour and a half before putting it out. They prevented the flames from reaching adjoining offices occupied by Dr. J. A. Battle, owner of the building. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee.)

Dentist's Office Burns In Early Morning Fire

Thousands Of Dollars In New Equipment Lost; Building Heavily Damaged; Firemen Keep Blaze From Spreading

By ROY HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

A destructive fire of unknown origin this morning raged through the offices of Dr. C. R. Graves, Negro dentist, located at 119 Second St. Discovered around four o'clock, the fire had gained considerable headway by the time fire-fighting equipment arrived in response to the alarm.

Fire was eating its way through the two front offices when discovered, and had begun to go into the attic of the building.

Prompt action on the part of local fire fighters prevented the blaze from spreading to the adjoining offices of Dr. J. A. Battle, owner of the building.

Offices Gutted
The entire interior of Graves' offices was gutted.

Lost in the blaze was several thousands of dollars worth of new dental equipment which had been installed by the doctor this year.

No official estimate of the loss suffered in the blaze was known this morning, but it was believed to be heavy.

What caused the fire had not been traced.

It was understood that Dr. Graves returned to his office after his regular office hours around one o'clock this morning to see a patient.

Graves stated that he smelled something burning at that time, but after checking around the office could not find anything on fire, and left. Some three hours later the blaze broke out.

Firemen today expressed the belief that the fire originated from a couch in the back room of the dentist's office and possibly started when a cigarette dropped down behind the couch.

Loss Covered
Dr. Battle, owner of the building, stated that all of the loss to the building and the equipment was covered by insurance.

Battle praised local firemen for preventing the spread of the fire to the other parts of the frame building and for protecting his valuable and expensive X-ray equipment which was housed near the burned room.

A waiting room, shared by the two doctors, separated the two offices. A fierce blaze in the main office of the dentist's office, believed to have been caused by a cylinder of gas, blazed brightly for some time before it could be put out.

When firemen managed to control the downstairs blaze, the fire had eaten its way up into the attic and was burning between the tin covered roof.

Firemen were forced to rip off nearly one entire side of the roof to remove the tin from the burning shingles before the fire could be controlled.

This morning it was learned that Dr. Graves will continue to have his office located at the same location, with temporary quarters set up at Dr. Battle's office.

Says More Reds Might Desert

SANTHOFFEN, Germany (UP) — A former Russian air force sergeant, who deserted 17 months ago and enlisted in the American Army, said today many Soviets would desert if they were certain the Allies would protect them.

Many Soviet soldiers stationed in Germany and Austria would escape to the West if they only knew how well they would be treated," the 24-year-old soldier said.

Stevenson said the United States does not expect the "inevitability of world war" but rather has put its trust in gaining peace through construction. He said the job was the largest this country ever had undertaken — "nothing less than the rebuilding of a ruined world."

"Our fate rides with you," he told the young officers.

Stevenson came to Quantico from Washington for a swing through Virginia in a "non-political" invasion of the South, his first of the presidential campaign.

He told a cheering crowd of nearly 1,000 persons at Washington that today's speeches would be non-political because of Rosh Hashana, the Jewish new year which ends at sundown. His speech at Richmond, Va., this evening, however, is expected to be a full-blown political address.

Two Injured As Stalled Car Hit

Two persons were injured last night when an automobile which had become stalled on the highway was rammed from behind by a driver who did not see the unlighted vehicle.

Injured were Clemster B. Riggs, 32, 413 West Third Street, Greenville, driver of one car, and an unidentified passenger. Clemster received lacerations of the scalp, and other cuts and bruises.

He was admitted to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment.

Patrolman Jim Davis, who investigated the accident, stated that a car driven by Howard Pritchard Jr., 20, of 1720 South Pitt Street, Greenville, stalled on the Old Tar Road near the Fire Tower and was rammed from the rear by the car driven by Riggs.

Davis stated that Riggs told him he hit the car because lights from an approaching car blinded him and that the stalled car had no lights displayed.

An estimated $200 damage resulted to the Pritchard car while more than $700 was reported to the Riggs vehicle.

Riggs stated that he was traveling at a speed of 45 miles per hour at the time the accident occurred.

No charges have been preferred, as investigation of the accident is not complete, Davis reported.

Patrolman Delton E. Perry assisted in the investigation.

The accident occurred around 9:45.

Ask Intervention In Plane Tie-Up

LOS ANGELES (UP) — Union leaders called for government intervention in an 11-day-old Lockheed Aircraft strike after negotiations in the dispute were broken off and violence flared between strikers and non-strikers.

John Snider, chief of negotiators of Lodge 727 of the International Association of Machinists, accused the company of "bad faith" and acting with other local aircraft manufacturers in an "all-out conspiracy to fix wages."

"The government must intervene and do it now to insure even a trickle of production from the aircraft industry," he said.

His Mind Made Up About Nixon

BALTIMORE, Md. (UP) — Jerome Robinson, Democratic delegate to the Maryland assembly, had this to say today, among other things, about Sen. Richard M. Nixon's acceptance of more than $16,000 in expense money.

Probers Hot On Trail Of Kansas City Vote Fraud

New Lead On Old Mystery Made Available To House Investigators

WASHINGTON (UP) — House investigators were hot today on a new lead on an old mystery—the Kansas City vote fraud case.

The House subcommittee investigating the Justice Department announced that Atty. Gen. James P. McGranery has granted it permission to inspect documents allegedly "stripped" from FBI files on the case.

The lead was furnished yesterday by Rep. I. Bakewell (R-Mo.), who quoted FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover as saying former Atty. Gen. Tom C. Clark ordered a lot of material "deleted" from the FBI files on the case five years ago.

According to Bakewell, Hoover didn't get any of the material back until two years later when Clark was elevated to the Supreme Court.

Chairman Frank L. Chelso (D-Ky.) and Rep. Kenneth B. Keating (R-N.Y.), ranking minority member of the subcommittee, announced their group would begin inspecting the "missing" documents Monday.

The case stems from charges that fraud was committed in the 1946 Democratic primary in which Enos Axtell, supported by President Truman, defeated Rep. Roger C. Slaughter.

The Justice Department ordered only a preliminary investigation in Kansas City until someone blew up the Jackson County courthouse safe and stole the disputed ballots. It then ordered a full-scale inquiry.

The subcommittee, meantime, took a breather in its cross-examination of T. Lamar Caudie, a one-time Clark aide who was fired as the government's chief prosecutor of tax frauds last year. After completing his second day as a witness stand yesterday, he was excused until Tuesday.

The 49-year-old Wadesboro, N.C., attorney told the investigators that Sens. Harley M. Kilgore (D-W.Va.) and William Langer (R-ND) and Rep. Robert L. Doughton (D-NC) approached him on behalf of delinquent taxpayers facing prosecution.

Claude L. Pepper, former Democratic senator from Florida, also interceded on behalf of dealers into the black market at prices above OPA ceilings, Caudie, testified.

In every instance, he said, the department was convinced that the defendants were guilty and prosecuted the cases "just as hard as we could." Indictments and convictions were obtained in all but one of the cases, he said.

Asked if he was under "pressure" from the congressmen, Caudie said, "I don't know about pressure, but I sure did a lot of conferring." He said he was "always proud" to talk with congressmen on such cases.

Red Negotiators Called 'Clumsy, Stupid' at Talk

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP) — United Nations negotiators called the Communists clumsy and stupid today at the first Korean truce meeting in eight days.

Then, for the eighth straight week, both sides agreed to take another seven-day recess. They will meet again Sept. 28 with the question of forcible vs. voluntary repatriation of war prisoners still the only issue blocking an armistice.

Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison, chief Allied delegate, told the Reds in today's unproductive 52-minute meeting that they were guilty of "ridiculous lies and enormous crimes."

He said their words "have been clothed in evil" since the truce talks began. Harrison said the Red charge that the United States "has stolen the names of the United Nations" to wage aggressive war in Korea was "ridiculous."

Three-Way Pact Plans Discussed

STRASBOURG, France (UP) — Military chiefs of staff of Turkey, Yugoslavia and Greece have begun discussing plans for a defensive alliance, a Turkish source said today.

Nadir Nadi, a member of the Turkish delegation to the European assembly here, said he was certain the alliance would have the full backing of the United States and form a solid bulwark against the danger of Russia outflanking Western Europe.

Ground Fighting Swells To New Fury On Korean Front

Near $1 Million

Sales on the Greenville tobacco market almost reached the million dollar mark yesterday with $946,424.26 worth of tobacco going for an average of $50.00 per hundred pounds.

Foundage sold on the market yesterday totaled 1,576,414 and Supervisor of Sales W. L. Whedbee said that total had been surpassed this season but yesterday was the closest toward the million dollar mark.

During the five selling days this week the supervisor of sales said the average for tobacco was $50.00 per hundred pounds and that 7,283,802 pounds of tobacco had been sold.

Foundage sold for the season, 21 selling days, totaled 25,297,884 and the seasonal average now stands at $48.90 per hundred pounds, said the supervisor.

N. C. Raises Pay At Institutions

RALEIGH (AP) — The state is increasing the pay of doctors and officials at its mental hospitals in an effort to keep them and to compete for other doctors.

The new pay scale, approved yesterday by Gov. Scott and the Budget Bureau, is effective Oct. 1. In some brackets the pay of officials and psychiatrists is being boosted by as much as 30 per cent.

Dr. David Young, general superintendent for the mental hospitals, said the new pay scale will be the same at all the hospitals. Heretofore, the doctors and officials at the Goldsboro Hospital for Negroes have been paid less than others at the white hospitals, although all doctors in the mental hospitals are white.

An assistant superintendent and a psychiatrist recently resigned at the Goldsboro Hospital. The state hospital here recently lost its superintendent and assistant superintendent. Low salaries figured in the resignations.

Under the new pay scale, the superintendents at Raleigh, Morganton, Butler and Goldsboro will be paid $10,800. The old scale has been: Goldsboro, $7,800; Raleigh, $9,000; Butler and Morganton, $8,400.

Murder Report Is False Alarm

Another murder that was not a murder took place this morning in Cox's Mill community near Greenville.

Two police cars roared out of town just before noon to investigate a report of murder in that area.

On arrival, officers discovered that Jesse Small, 25-year-old Negro, had knocked his father out with a piece of pine slab.

The father, Henry Small, 50, had revived just before the officers' arrival and although slightly the "worse for wear" was all right.

Deputy Sheriff Lloyd Manning and State Highway Patrolman James Boykin, who investigated the report, said the two would be charged with drunkenness.

Jesse will be charged with assault, they added.

Both were placed in Pitt County Jail and had not been released on bond at noon.

Lanza Sued

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mario Lanza was sued for $5,195,888 damages yesterday by his studio, MGM, which charges the singer broke his contract by failing to show up for work in the movie "Student Prince."

MGM's suit said the movie had to be cancelled after Lanza refused to report for work last Aug. 22. The studio said it spent nearly $700,000 in pre-production preparations for the picture.

Lanza has never publicly given his version. He declined comment on the suit.

Modernizing Of Underpass Said Being Considered

District Engineer Says Improvement Of Two Other Crossings Studied

A letter from the Pitt County Board of Commissioners requesting relief of "traffic hazards" in Greenville was answered this week by R. Markham, district highway engineer.

In letters to Mayor Lester D. Page and W. W. Speight, county attorney, Markham said the railroad overpass on highway 43 and two crossings in the city are now under consideration.

"The modernization of the underpass on N. C. 43 has been under consideration for sometime," Markham said. "Numerous conferences have been held with representatives of the railroad company concerning the matter."

Investigation
According to the engineer, an investigation is now being made to determine the cost of the proposed improvement.

"As a result of my previous study of the situation, and in view of the benefits to be derived, I am authorized to suggest the cost of the proposed improvement be shared equally by the Norfolk-Southern Railroad, the city of Greenville and the N. C. State Highway Commission," Markham stated.

"We have also made a study of the Evans Street Crossing as well as the crossing leading from N. C. 11 to the new hospital. Both are within the city limits of Greenville and I believe they should receive the same consideration."

Share Cost
Markham asserted, with authorization, that since a large portion of the traffic using those crossings is purely local, the cost should be divided equally between the railroad, the city of Greenville and the N. C. State Highway Commission, each sharing one-third of the total cost.

"Since the crossing of the Atlantic Coastline Railroad between Tucker's and the outdoor theater is outside the city limits, a different cost procedure will of necessity prevail," he declared. "We are now preparing to handle the protection of that crossing with the railroad company."

The engineer said when his department has completed the survey and investigation to determine the cost of the projects, the city will be advised as to the amount of its participation in the improvement.

Markham assured both parties the highway commission appreciates the interest and cooperation shown in clearing up the traffic problems.

Board Action
Mayor Page said this morning Markham's proposal will be submitted to the board of aldermen for possible action at its next meeting.

He declared the hazards very definitely need to be cleared up, and expressed a desire to bring that about as quickly as possible.

State Officials, Employees Asked For Party Funds

RALEIGH (AP) — The State Democratic Party is "setting no precedent" in asking state officials and employees to contribute to its election campaign fund, according to Democratic Chairman Everett Jordan.

Letters requesting contributions went out this week to heads of state departments. The letters suggested quotas for the various departments to raise.

Jordan said yesterday "we are setting no precedent in asking for financial aid from all who see fit to help us."

He added that letters are being mailed to "people in all walks of life — farmers, merchants, factory workers, state officials and state employees alike."

Allied And Chinese Infantry Fight Bitterly For Heights; Air Force Adds 16 MIGs For Week To Total For Month As Secret Device Proves Poison To Enemy

SEOUL, Korea (UP) — South Korean infantrymen killed or wounded 300 Chinese Communists today as they battered back a Red assault on Finger Ridge on the Korean central front.

Other tank-supported Chinese captured an important hill south of the true city of Panmunjom after heavy fighting on the western front.

War planes from four separate Fifth Air Force wings and two Marine air groups roared out in mission after mission in support of Allied infantrymen along the boiling two-mile battlefield near Panmunjom.

An estimated 85 Chinese Reds were killed or wounded by air power and artillery fire in the fight for the western front heights.

Two hundred more Communist casualties were claimed by the U. N. after the Reds assaulted an advance position east of the Pukhan River on the east-central front.

Communist troops first slammed up against South Korean defenses on Finger Ridge late last night, but were beaten back shortly before midnight. About 3 a.m., the Reds attacked again, but by dawn the assault was blunted and the Communists were forced to withdraw.

United Nations Sabre jets, some armed with a mysterious new device, gave the Communists one of their worst beatings of the war the past week by shooting down 14 MIG-15 jet fighters, it was announced today.

Only one Sabre was lost in air-to-air combat during the week.

The Air Force, in its weekly summary, said the Allied victories brought the Sabres' monthly total to a record 46 MIGs destroyed, five more than the previous record set last April.

Allied officials in Korea, Tokyo and Washington have refused to identify the new device carried by some of the Sabres in recent air fighting. One official said it could be credited for the one-sided course the air war has taken recently.

The Reds knocked the Allies off Tiesse Hill temporarily with the aid of tank, artillery and mortar fire, but United Nations forces regained the crest after a two-hour fight.

It was the first time in more than a week the Communists had used tanks in the area, and an 8th Army briefing officer said it might signal the full-scale return of Red tanks to the Korean war.

Tessie Hill is the last of the four commanding heights below Panmunjom still in Allied hands. The Reds seized Kelly Hill and Old Baldy Friday, nearly annihilating one Allied unit and severely mauling another in the fighting.

An Allied patrol probed the crest of Kelly Hill today, but were driven off by 100 Chinese in a 15-minute skirmish. U. N. troops also dug in on Old Baldy's east and west slopes, but the Chinese held the dominating north slope.

The Reds have held Bunker Hill last of the four heights, for some time, although U. N. forces there too are on the east and west slopes.

School Reports Money Stolen From Cabinet

School authorities reported to Greenville police yesterday that $45 in one dollar bills had been stolen from the Vocational High School, on 14th street extension.

The officer investigating the case said the money was in a metal chalk box in a medicine cabinet. The lock on the cabinet was prized off.

This was the third reported robbery at local schools during the past week. The first was about the theft of a small safe from the Training School. Later, High School authorities reported that a room in the building had been entered. Nothing was missing, the police report states.

Work On N. C. Budget For Next 2 Fiscal Years Begins Monday

RALEIGH (AP) — Work on North Carolina's budget for the two fiscal years beginning next July 1 will get underway here Monday.

The Advisory Budget Commission will begin holding hearings at which heads of state agencies and institutions will appear and tell how much money they will need to operate during the two-year period.

After the hearings are over on Sept. 30, the Budget Commission will draft its recommendations for the 1953 legislature. Chances are their proposals will call for the biggest general fund budgets in state history during the next two years.

The State Board of Education, which will appear before the commission on the last day of the hearings and which will ask for the largest single appropriation of any state agency, is expected to request substantial increases in teachers' salaries.

The five things which he mentioned and commented on were a sound mind, a sound body, knowledge of the ages, freedom and the assurance of eternal life.

An educational film entitled "The Sixth Chair" was shown as the program feature. The film depicted the dangers of a complacent attitude towards education and the school on the part of the public.

During the business meeting a recommendation from the Executive Board relative to unfinished business concerning the purchase of a popcorn machine was approved. The recommendation stated that as the college had purchased a machine and had given consent for the P.T.A. to make use of it at certain times, the organization would not invest in one at this time.

District Matron, Patron Visit Local OES Chapter

Greenville Chapter 149, Order of Eastern Star, held a regular meeting on Tuesday, September 16, with Mrs. Thelma Maxwell, Worthy Matron, presiding.

This meeting was the occasion of the official visit of the District Deputy Grand Matron, Mrs. Rosella T. Edwards, and District Deputy Grand Patron, Mr. George A. Parker.

The chapter room was beautifully decorated with tall standards of flowers in the emblematic colors arranged by Mrs. Lillian Cherry and Mrs. Martha Forrest.

The district deputies were presented to the chapter and welcomed by Mrs. Maxwell. Mrs. Edwards was given a corsage of white and green orchids. Visitors from Farmville, Goldsboro, Washington and New Bern were also welcomed to the meeting.

Mrs. Edwards installed Mrs. Betty Nobles as Ruth and Mrs. Ruth Joyner as Electa with Mrs. Louise Wells serving as installing marshal.

The chapter exemplified various phases of the work for Mrs. Edwards. She discussed this work and gave a most informative and constructive talk on the rules and regulations of the order. She also pointed out that the heroines of the order should be selected whose lives were symbolic of the order and reminded the chapter that the Eastern Star was the largest organization for women in the world.

Mr. Parker discussed the Worthy Grand Matron's project for the year, which is to help rebuild the Rainbow Girl's Camp which was destroyed several years ago. Each chapter will be given an opportunity to help with this project.

Mrs. Mildred Kennedy presented

Mrs. Edwards with a gift from the chapter and Mr. Joseph Palmer presented Mr. Parker with a gift. Resolutions of respect for Mrs. Annie Scott were read and copies are to be sent to her family, to the Daily Reflector, and also made a part of the minutes of the chapter meeting.

Mrs. Louise Tadlock, president of the Past Matrons and Patrons Club, presented the chapter with two tablecloths from this club which were accepted by Mrs. Maxwell. Mrs. Maxwell also thanked this club for the class of instruction they gave and announced that these classes would continue to be held during the year.

It was announced that the district school of instruction would be held in Farmville on November 6. The local chapter is in the seventh district, which is comprised of nine chapters.

It was also announced that the Worthy Grand Matron would make her official visit to the chapter on November 4 and that the Farmville and Greene County chapters would meet jointly with the Greenville chapter.

Immediately following the meeting a social hour was enjoyed in the dining room. The table was centered with a crystal bowl of flowers in the emblematic colors with five crystal candleholders with tapers in these colors. Delicious refreshments were served by the refreshment committee. Mrs. Lucille Rogers was chairman of this committee and she was assisted by Mr. Frances Andrews, Mildred Kennedy, Eva Corbett and Lillie Dell Briley. Mrs. Susie Ragdale was in charge of decorations.

Immanuel Baptist Church Begins To Hold Night Services

Last Sunday night, the Immanuel Baptist Church began having evening worship services after a discontinuance for some time. There were 118 present.

Pastor J. A. Neilson spoke on the subject: "The Teaching Christ," introducing a series of messages based on the general theme: "Jesus Christ: a Mosaic."

"Just as many colors make up a mosaic pattern, so the many rich hues of the personality of Christ combine to form a colorful pattern of character," said Mr. Neilson in introducing the theme.

Included in the series will be such studies as the Sinless Christ, the Changeling Christ, the Essential Christ, the Disturbing Christ, the Angry Christ, the Silent Christ, and others. These services are open to the public and visitors are welcomed. The church especially invites any whose church does not have a Sunday night service.

Sunday night, Mr. Neilson will speak on "The Authoritative Christ." Mrs. Floyd Smith and Mrs. Norman Wilkerson will sing: "Just For Today" by Palmer.

Sunday morning, Mr. Neilson's subject will be "Life's Enlargement," and the choir will sing: "Children of the Heavenly King" by Pylel. The public is invited to worship with the congregation.

Mrs. Spilman Appears Before Ruritan Club

WINTERVILLE—Mrs. J. B. Spilman of Greenville was guest speaker at the Winterville Ruritan Club when it met Tuesday night.

Mrs. Spilman is secretary of the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association. She was assisted in the program by Miss Julia Fisher of the Pitt County Health Department.

In her talk to the club Mrs. Spilman said that Pitt County rates very high in the number of tuberculosis cases. She congratulated the people of Winterville for the assistance they have given the association in the past and asked for their continued interest and support.

Miss Fisher showed a movie which illustrated how a public health nurse goes about her work. After she locates a case of tuberculosis she gives the family assistance and advice. She also works closely with the public welfare department in needy cases.

The Ruritan Club is planning to raise money to pave a sidewalk in front of the Community Center and also paint the building.

Mr. H. D. Weaver who is connected with the DuPont plant and who has recently moved to Winterville, was a guest at the meeting.

VINE AND BRANCH
"I am the vine, ye are the branches."
This was our Lord's statement regarding the relationship existing between him and his disciples. From him comes life. The branch must have the vine, else it has no nourishment. We see plenty of people who appear to have no religion and others whose religion is nominal and empty. They are like withered branches hanging to a healthy vine. They have no arresting force of character, and since they are not abiding in the eternal, there does not course through them the living power of the infinite.
But while it is true that the branch needs the vine, it is also true that the vine needs the branch. God would be God, and Christ would be Christ, their power unimpaired, if not a single human being existed. But there must have been something which—to use a human expression—God felt the need of when he created man.
The work of the kingdom, of course, can only be done by man, even though God is the force behind it. The branch in the vine and the vine in the branch—this is the healthy and wholesome spiritual relationship which every believer may have with his Lord. There can be what John Henry Jowell has called "a fatal independence" between a man and his God. Christ came to make us one with the Father and to keep us eternally in that relationship.

Will Someone Protect The General Public This Time?

The Czar of American coal miners, John L. Lewis, is girding his miners for another strike, if necessary, to get his demands from soft coal producers as the deadline for contract negotiations nears.

Lewis won the first round of his seemingly annual battle with coal producers with the increased hard coal royalty gained this week from the producers. Now the groundwork has been laid for a duel with the soft coal operators to see whether Lewis or the producers will win the fray.

In anticipation of the coming negotiations, Lewis several weeks ago called his coal miners out of the pits in observance of a memorial holiday for other miners who died at their work during the past year. Lewis may have thought it fitting that miners take the holiday as a memorial; but it likewise gave him a wonderful opportunity to have the nation's stockpile of coal deflated in order to give the union a stronger bargaining position when the time came to re-negotiate work contracts.

No one ever knows quite what John L. Lewis has up his sleeve when the time comes for contract negotiations between his union and the coal operators. His goal is better conditions and more money for his miners, and better economic conditions for them and their families. In the past, however, it has been difficult to determine just how far he would press his issues even to the point of placing in jeopardy the welfare of the nation as a whole.

This year the nation faces another possible long and bitter strike by Lewis' miners. This year such a strike, if it is in keeping with those called by Lewis in the past, could take a severe toll of the nation's defense efforts, and the economy as a whole.

If Lewis' decision is another of the bitter strikes, we hope some source is ready to stand by the interest of the American people and the nation as a whole to see that the general public does not have to suffer unduly while the coal operators and the union settle their differences. We likewise hope the Chief Executive is ready to step into the picture within the limits prescribed by law to prevent a severe blow to the welfare of the nation should a wide-spread coal strike develop.

Aviation Of The "Future" Is Here Today

Aviation achievements which have been thought of in terms of the "future" are suddenly realities today.

To say the least, it offers a jolt to even the most realistic person to realize that mechanical pilots are replacing the men of the sky who have flown airplanes into combat in three wars during the past four decades.

Guided missiles and robot planes with television eyes in the minds of most people have comprised the aviation of the future—something to be read about and talked about, but something which would come in another time far beyond our own. And then suddenly we find these new mechanical aircraft making a bid to replace the aviation of the present.

For the first time in actual warfare the American Navy has thrown into action over Korea robot planes, guided by radio from mother planes or from radio stations miles away. It seems almost weird to visualize as a reality an airplane without a pilot taking off from its landing strip, bombing a target and returning to its home base without a pilot. It is even more difficult to visualize the pilotless planes locked in deadly dogfights, so familiar to thousands in past years. That's what we used to read in Flash Gordon and Buck Rogers comic strips and cast it aside as the figment of someone's imagination.

Today we find ourselves living in a world in which such things have come in to the realm of reality.

It follows through with the theory that America's key to survival is technological superiority . . . that, as one authority said, in case of World War III, our forces would have to disable 200 enemies for every single American casualty.

With An Eye To Future Growth Of Grifton

With an eye to the future growth and development of their community, officials of the town of Grifton are investigating the possibilities of setting up long range zoning ordinances for their town.

Grifton, while it is growing by leaps and bounds, can not yet be considered a small city. Nevertheless town officials in planning for zoning ordinances are looking to the day when Grifton will be a city. By planning now for the future development of the town, they are reasonably sure Grifton can avoid a great many growing pains which other small cities have felt during periods of marked growth.

There are far too many small cities in North Carolina and all over the nation which have waited until residential, commercial and industrial building was all mingled together before giving thought to zoning to help regulate an organized pattern of growth. Grifton, however, is taking action early—and wise action in our opinion, in setting up zoning regulations before the growth gets out of hand.

Time was a few years ago when such things as zoning ordinances were thought of only in terms of large cities. It is encouraging now to see that smaller towns are taking a greater interest in city planning to insure a better pattern of development for their communities.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—Many letters to the Springfield newspapers," writes Mrs. L. C. of Ludlow, Mass., "are stirring confusion in the minds of pro-Eisenhower supporters among the Polish people. I do not think much of the charges, but they may cost him votes throughout the country."

They blame him for the sell-out of Poland to Russia at Yalta. They say that Stalin was the only picture (autographed) on his desk when he commanded at Berlin. They condemn him for accepting the Order of St. George from the Soviet. St. George is one of the great villains in Polish history because of his butcheries. His name is to the Poles what Cromwell's is to the Irish.

NO ASSOCIATION—Answer: Eisenhower had no association with the Yalta agreement, they were concluded by F.D.R. with the late Secretary of State, Stettin and Alger Hiss as his principal advisers.

In his book "A Soldier's Story," General Bradley explains that Eisenhower and himself were highly critical of the Yalta arrangements, which halted the American advance far from Berlin. They also save the Russians the stranglehold there and elsewhere which causes so much difficulty and friction now.

Nor should it be forgotten that President Truman approved the Yalta Pact at Potsdam. In his repeated criticism of the "bungling" which led to the loss of China and the Korean "police action," he hits directly at F.D.R.'s generous concessions to Moscow.

UNDERSTANDING—It seems to me that Eisenhower's behavior at Berlin is also understandable. In the first place, the United States and Russia were on relatively friendly terms. It was several years afterward that Truman said: "I like Uncle Joe."

Ike's most difficult dealings as our commander in Western Germany were with the Russians. Thus, displaying Stalin's photograph on his desk may have been a bit of personal diplomacy.

As to the St. George decoration, there are several explanations. First, I doubt if Ike's knowledge of history had made him familiar with the brutalities of Catherine II's field marshal. Secondly, he could not have declined the honor without giving deep offense to an ally of the moment.

These complaints it seems, are on a par with the attempt to "smear" Stevenson as a Communist sympathizer because he testified as to Hiss' reputation for integrity. They constitute an appeal to emotion rather than to common sense.

"Governor Stevenson," comments Mrs. K. M. of Richmond, Va., "says that he will not endorse individual Democrats. Then he dismisses our Senator Byrd with faint praise, and pleads ignorance about Senator McCarran's record. Whom has he endorsed so far?"

CAUTIOUS—Answer: Governor Stevenson has been extremely cautious and selective. He characterized Senator Byrd as a "conscientious public servant," and an advocate of economy, but shied off from any comment on the Virginia's strong state's rights stand. However, this is more favorable than Truman's acid remark to the effect that "There are too many B-y-r-ds in the Senate."

Although Senator McCarran of Nevada has been an active and controversial figure on Capitol Hill for many years, mostly anti-Truman, Stevenson said he did not know enough of the westerner's record to pass judgment on him. This seems odd, in view of the eulogies of a Senator who is a newcomer to the Senate, and whose achievements are very scanty.

"Is it true," asks C. L. Q. of Albuquerque, N. M., "that the money paid by employees and employers for Social Security benefits is used for other purposes, and that then Congress has to vote more money to pay the claims when they fall due?"

BOOKKEEPING—Answer: That is a rough statement of how the system operates. Employee-employer contributions are used to finance current government expenses. Bonds equivalent to the amounts paid in are set aside to provide cash for benefit payments.

That seems to impose two payments—first, the direct salary contribution, and secondly, taxes to pay for the underlying bonds. Treasury spokesmen, however, say it is only a bookkeeping transaction. That is, if the money paid in were not spent immediately, additional taxes of a like amount would have to be levied.

You're On The Wrong Page

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Before writing today's story let me emphasize that I haven't seen a gnat since writing yesterday's story about the varmints. If writing about them has run them off then I should be declared the community hero.

From the subject of gnats I approach a pleasant subject: prosperity, despite political party. From time to time I read what the experts are saying about our chances of maintaining prosperity.

My latest reading seems to make sense. Everybody knows that prosperity seems to be governed by the amount of government spending. In this case, the experts cite government spending on defense.

This will reach its peak in the middle of 1953 and then gradually taper off for the following two years. At present, the government is spending $12 and one-fourth billion dollars per quarter on defense. By the middle of 1953, when the peak comes, this figure will be $14 billion per quarter.

Those of you who follow the stock market have noticed that it has been falling recently, so how does this story of mine add up? There is a simple explanation. The newest member of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, R. C. Turner, 44, told newspapermen that the peak in defense spending has virtually been reached. Turner said, "It will be a difficult and delicate job to maintain present prosperity."

But it so happens that Turner had misread revised figures on the 1953 budget and was quickly corrected by Presidential Assistant John Steelman and Boss Mobilizer

Henry H. Fowler. Later, Turner himself admitted the grave error he had made.

It was not long ago that appliance manufacturers were pushing their goods hard because production was ahead of demand. Now they are having trouble keeping up with the demand. And only six weeks after the steel strike automobile manufacturers turned out the biggest production this year for one week: 103,054 units, as compared to 100,584 during the same week last year.

In addition to the prosperity we are enjoying, there seems to be an indication ahead that prices will come down, enough to benefit the consumer but not enough to wreck us.

And I thank the experts for a promising note.

Around Capitol Square

CAPITOL — Every citizen of North Carolina is proud of the State Capitol building. Visitors from other states are charmed by its atmosphere of graceful dignity. Present day architects and contractors study its construction as a model of near perfection in obtaining strength without loss of beauty. Any proposal to change its architectural lines or add to the building meets violent protest.

It is a thing of beauty, an inspiration to strive for the ideal, a visible symbol of the permanent stability of State Government. But for practical purposes of the executive and legislative departments of that government it is entirely outmoded. It met the needs of the state when it was built more than 110 years ago and when the population was three quarters of a million. It is utterly inadequate to serve more than four million people.

JAMMED — The first floor is occupied by executive offices of the Governor, the Secretary of State, the State Auditor and the State Treasurer. Each of these departments have auxiliary offices scattered among half a dozen other office buildings, and even with that overflow provision the capital offices are jammed so that assistants and clerks cannot do most efficient work. The legislative senators, much less provide for working room for clerks and stenographers, or for citizens of the state who come to Raleigh to see the General Assembly in action. Most serious handicap now is in facilities for newspaper, radio, television and camera reporters. Numerous conferences with the powers that be have obtained nothing more than the promise that effort will be made to take care of newsmen during the next session in half the space assigned them for several years past—which was entirely inadequate for the fellow in the frayed white collar. The state might know what their legislators are doing.

NEW BUILDING — It seems inevitable that before many years a new building must be erected for the General Assembly and its auxiliary agencies. The assemblies of the past have appropriated money to provide adequate space—adequate at the time provided, at least, though in many instances now outgrown—for the Supreme Court and the Departments of Agriculture, Education, Highways, Justice and Revenue. Educational institutions have been accorded liberal treatment. But the Legislature from year to year has been reluctant to take care of itself. The matter cannot be much longer neglected without serious detriment to efficient operation.

CHAMPION — The Proposal for a new legislative and administrative building has a strong champion in the person of Senator R. E. Little of Anson. He will not be in the senate next time because of rotation in his district, but while in Raleigh over the weekend sponsoring one of the debutants, he took occasion to talk to several people about the idea of a new building. He thinks that would be a highly appropriate place to put some of the much vaunted "surplus" money accumulated in the general fund account. A building with decent working space for the General Assembly, including committee meetings and offices for presiding officers, and which also furnish quarters for top executive officers other than the Governor, could be built at a cost ranging from two to five million dollars. Senator Little is of the opinion that amount might easily be saved in one session of a General Assembly dealing in biennial budgets rapidly approaching the billion dollar level, by providing adequate surroundings in which to conduct the legislation.

UNTOUCHABLE — The Anson legislator is not brash enough to think the people of the State will tolerate much monkeying with the present capitol. He goes along with the idea of leaving it as it is, maintaining the present assembly rooms as historic memorials. That idea does not contemplate cluttering up the place with historical exhibits. Let the halls as they are and have been remain, not as place for exhibits, but as themselves constituting the "exhibit".

REGISTRATION — There is only one requirement for eligibility in North Carolina in the upcoming general election on November 4. That is to have your name properly entered on a precinct registration book. All the statutes about having to be 21 or over, have to live in the state or precinct for a specified time, being able to read and write, and all the other stuff about qualifications for voting, really have to do with eligibility to register. A citizen may have all of those qualifications and more, but unless his or her name is properly on the registration book there is no chance to vote. If the name is properly on the precinct book and is not challenged, the voter has nothing to worry about on election day except to decide how to mark the ballot.

DATES — Points is, that while November 4 is the great day of decision for the people of the United States, it is not so significant for North Carolinians as the dates beginning at nine o'clock on the morning of October 11 and ending at sundown on October

What Other Papers Are Thinking

WHERE THE MONEY GOES
(Rocky Mount Telegram)

If you habitually have too much month left at the end of your money, declares the Montgomery, Ala. Advertiser, it may be some consolation to know that you have plenty of company. To this we would like to add a very ungrammatical phrase, "Ain't it so!" The Advertiser goes on to say that a survey of the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics shows "the average American city family" spending about 6 per cent — or $400 per year—more than its income after personal taxes. This means resort to such devices as dipping into savings or going in debt. This conclusion was drawn from a survey covering 10,813 families in 91 cities, large and small.

The average American family is not exactly struggling to eke out a bare existence limited to absolute necessities, though. Or, to put it differently, we have come to regard as necessities things which were unknown in earlier ages, and which are still luxuries beyond the reach of most in many other lands.

The survey showed that the average family's housing bill, including fuel, light and refrigeration, too 15 per cent of its income. Food and alcoholic beverages accounted for 30 per cent. Another 22 percent went for "automobiles, television sets, refrigerators, other household appliances, doctor and hospital bills, tobacco, recreation and transportation."

It appears a bit inappropriate and irrelevant to lump essentials, like doctors' bills with such things as television sets; a breakdown here would be enlightening. But the statistics at least confirm the notion that a goodly part of the American's income goes not for bread alone, but for things that contribute to comfort, convenience and pleasure. These things are appropriated by Americans sufficiently to dip into savings or go in debt in order to have them.

Business Today

Early next year the Congress will have to tackle the federal tax problem, and a pretty puzzle it is, too, because while not all of the candidates have promised tax reduction, not one has promised to raise the rates.

One phase of the problem is the excess profits tax. The present law expires June 30, 1953, and there will surely be some efforts made to extend it, although at lower rates. The present law can take up to 82 per cent of certain corporate earnings, but few if any corporations are required to pay the maximum rate.

Some of the Senators who were largely responsible for the EPT law will be in Congress because their terms do not expire this year, and it may be assumed that a large number of newly-elected Senators and Representatives will favor continuing the tax if only to provide reductions in personal income levies.

In previous battles over EPT, the fight against it has been waged mainly by large corporations, their attorneys and lobbyists. But in the coming battle, many companies too small to be liable to the tax may be lined up against it. The paradox of small companies asking Congress not to tax the excess profits of their giant competitors stems from this situation.

For two years now, tax authorities have been publicly and privately telling large corporations that they should spend earnings that would otherwise be subject of the EPT—not to increase the value of the corporations and their later earning power.

They couldn't spend this money buying up smaller businesses, because such purchases would be capital expenditures. But they could spend it to increase their advertising and publicity, to research and develop new products and methods, invade new markets, establish more branches and to lure promising executives away from smaller competitors.

This advice has been followed to some extent—how much, it is impossible to tell because it results from executive decisions that are not usually publicized. Nevertheless, a small company is in a precarious position than a larger corporation, armed with "18 cent dollars," raids its men and markets.

OLD PROMOTER ADDS A FOOTNOTE
"Hm-m," said the Old Promoter who had moseyed in and was reading over our shoulder, "I was talking to the owner of a travel agency today. He tells me that travel to Europe is still booming. He also tells me that last year most of his receipts were checks from individuals, but this year most of them have been corporation checks."

"I suppose that portends a rise in trade with Europe," we remarked.

"Suppose all you want," the Old Promoter replied, "I think it means that some tax 'illars' were being spent for vacations disguised as business trips."

That's the trouble with the O.P. He never has any faith in the honesty of the American business man.

DEEP FLUCTUATIONS

Millions of dollars have been made and lost in the last three months on the lowly Maine potato. There has been great activity on potato futures on the New York Mercantile Exchange and deep fluctuations in quotations. Prices have ranged from $2.50 to $5.70 hundred pounds. Contracts for March, 1953, spuds have ranged from $3.03 to $5.70, a spread large enough to make fortunes for those who bought and sold at the right moments.

U.S. MARKET SOUGHT FOR ANCIENT BEVERAGE

Mead, an alcoholic beverage brewed from fermented honey and which imparted valor to ancient Britons, may appear in American package stores. The Department of Commerce has been asked to find an American importer for a British mead producer (F.W. Emney, Ltd., 4 Drapers Gardens, Throgmorton St., London, E.C. 2).

TWO SIZE CIGARETTES IN PACKAGES PLANNED

King size cigarettes have become so popular recently that one manufacturer is reported to be experimenting with a package containing two sizes, standards for short smokes and kings for more leisurely moments.

MILEAGE COUPONS AIDS RAILROADS

The Italian State Railways have figured out a novel scheme to boost travel. It is selling coupons to business firms for use as premiums. Each coupon is good for one, two, five or more kilometers of rail travel. Customers save coupons until they have enough for a journey and trade them in at any ticket office. The coupons have space to carry the firms' advertising.

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK (AP)—Uncle Sam's most neglected nephew today is the white collar man.

In the midst of a still booming national prosperity that is either post-war or pre-war (or perhaps both) the fellow in the frayed white collar is getting mostly crumbs. He eats last.

He is one of the largest classes in America, but who cares what happens to him except himself? He is the forgotten man of politics. A politician may wag his tail to get organized labor's vote, sit up and beg for the organized farm vote, or wrap himself in the flag to win the organized veterans' vote.

But how long has it been since you remember a statesman rearing up in Congress and announcing:

"Well, boys, let's roll out a big pork barrel and help that pore little fellow with the dirty white collar?" Somehow there is no lobby in Washington for him, and without a lobby to make noise for him he doesn't get to dip much gravy.

It is said that statistics can be used to prove anything. But no one yet has come up with any statistics to show the white collar man is doing as well as other segments of the population. The figures show that, in terms of income rise, he is falling behind. This has brought a decline in the prestige of the white collar class, which formerly prided itself on the fact that it rubbed up against wealth but now is learning to its vast sorrow that very little of that wealth rubs off on it.

The skilled worker a generation ago often disliked the white collar man and regarded him as a snob. Now he feels the gent with the pale throat harness is not only a snob but a poor snob at that, and envies him not at all. He rather feels sorry for him.

The social gulf that difference in attire once made between them has been more than wiped out by the difference in pay, which now sharply favors the guy in the stylish blue overalls.

The plumber, the bricklayer, the machinist used to be a renter, and a lunchbox carrier. Today he owns his own home, his own car, and lunches in a restaurant whenever the mood seizes him. Who now goes to his job toting a cheese sandwich and an apple in a paper bag? Thousands and thousands of white collar workers and they go home to a small parlor, bedroom and kitchenette.

Who can better afford to take his missus out now and then for a little night clubbing? The guy in the overalls. But after he dolls up for the evening he can't tell him from a millionaire. The office clerk, bookkeeper, or bank teller, however, not only lacks the following green to pick up a night club but he has to stay home so his shirt is still clean enough to wear another day.

A cab driver I rode with the other day summed up the problem of the white collar worker: "I worked in an office for years and finally got up to $60 a week. But my wife and I and the kid were starving on that. Then I took to hacking. Now I get fresh air and feel healthier. I can get by on the job with a sports shirt and an old pair of slacks. I work longer hours, but it's a bad week I don't bring home $85 or better."

"I say to hell with white collar jobs. I'd rather support my wife than a laundry."

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS
WASHINGTON—Miss Oneta Litter of the Rural Electrification Administration (REA), who has been with the Department of Agriculture since 1936, has a few hints for housewives on how to keep meat until time to use it.

If you buy meat today for use tomorrow, you wipe it with a damp cloth and put it in the coolest part of your refrigerator, uncovered. Most modern refrigerators have meat containers just under the evaporator. On refrigerators with the rear horizontal evaporator, meat can be frozen and kept for several weeks.

In the combination-type refrigerator with a freezing compartment built in to maintain a zero temperature, and in the home freezer, you can keep meat for months, depending of course on the cut and kind of meat.

In freezing meats, or poultry, you prepare as you would for cooking, wiping it off with a damp cloth and wrapping it in moisture-resistant packaging paper, foil or plastic. Miss Litter herself wraps meat and chicken in a light plastic bag such as some vegetables come in. After she puts the meat or poultry in the bag she immerses it in a pan of water to force out the air, then twists the top into a goose-neck closing and puts a rubber band around it.

On the subject of home freezers Miss Litter says it is more economical to have a turn-over of the foods stored than to stock them full all at one time. It is better to empty them out on a three or four month's basis so you can keep all of the freezer in use at the same time.

Miss Litter, who travels a great deal of the time to train the personnel of the REA's borrowers—co-operatives in the field of home electrification, has a 14-cubic foot freezer in the house she shares with her mother in nearby Alexandria, Va.

"You can have better living out of a home freezer," she told me. "This is especially true for rural housewives, who are now serving up more steaks for instance than ever before, because farmers had no place to keep such cuts of meat before home freezers came into the picture."

Housewives seeking information on refrigerator or freezer may write for free booklets from U.S. Department of Agriculture, Information Section, or U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C. These booklets are "How to Choose and Use Your Refrigerator," "Freezing Meat and Poultry Products for Home Use" and "Home Freezers, Their Selection and Use."

Jaywalkers Haven't As Much Time To Cross Streets

WATCH OUT FOR BABY—and there she goes, between two cars

Invitation To Disaster In Ignoring Precautions

By CHESTER WALSH
Editor Staff Writer

"This," said the chief, tapping a stack of photographs on his desk at the police station, "is reckless chance-taking."

The pictures were all of "jaywalking" on Greenville's main streets on a busy day. Curbing irresponsible pedestrians is now one of the police department's big preoccupations.

"These people," said Chief of Police Guy Langston, "are not only risking their own life and limb, but endangering their own children and others by their poor example."

Faster Traffic

Since the one-way traffic system was inaugurated, police estimate traffic movement through the principal streets of the business district has been speeded up by 20 per cent.

"People just haven't as much time to cross streets in the middle of the block, as they used to," continued Langston, "and they run an awful risk. Motorists are watching for pedestrians at the intersections, but not in the middle of the blocks. Our traffic officers frequently stop children and occasionally women with a baby in a carriage, crossing the street in the middle of the block with heavy traffic threatening them," the chief stated.

Safety Measures

He had a word too for pedestrians who attempt to cross streets at intersections, "against" the traffic light. Those who stand on the pavement, at intersections, while awaiting the signal to change came in for a warning, too.

It was, "Don't."

"That practice hinders motorists who want to turn the corner," he reminded.

Another precaution Langston advised was for motorists to dismount from their vehicle on the side next to the curbing. His second suggestion for drivers was not to stop near an intersection for disembarking a passenger.

"We'll always have our traffic problems," he added, "but what the police department is now seeking in its safety program is to enlist the support of parents and school officials in educating the public about everyday safety precautions in traffic."

Statistics for North Carolina show 730 pedestrian accidents this year, up to July 23. Of this number, 114 persons were killed and 645 were injured.

The rising trend of pedestrian accidents is of much concern to law enforcement officials.

Laws Cited

As to the dangers of "jaywalking" and its interference with the Langston quoted state laws regulating pedestrian traffic anywhere in the state:

Every pedestrian crossing a roadway at any point other than within a marked cross-walk, or within an unmarked cross-walk at an intersection, shall yield the right-of-way to all vehicles upon the roadway."

Another section of the state law reads: "Between adjacent intersections at which traffic controls are in operation, pedestrians shall not cross at any place except in a marked cross walk."

Each year the police department sends officers to the schools to instruct children about safety measures at crossings, and teachers also help in underscoring the necessity for safe traffic habits.

Who's To Blame?

The chief rapidly shuffled through the photographs.

"Some parents would feel mighty bad if that little boy running across the intersection was hit by a car," he said. "But who'd be to blame?"

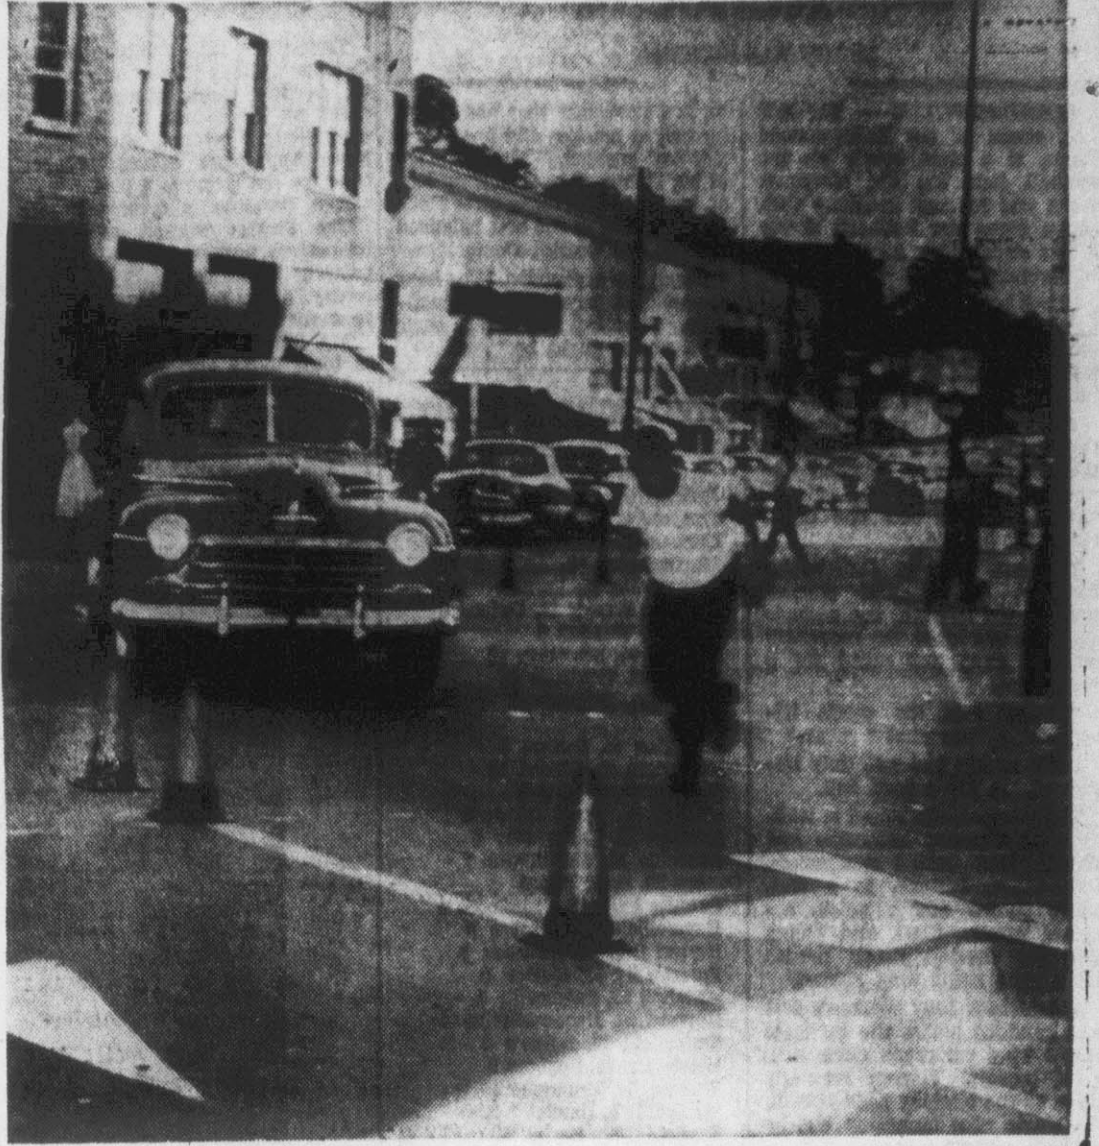

"Here's another instance of a parent pushing a stroller across the street where no pedestrian lanes are marked," she's running a big risk that way," he said, "and with an infant, too."

Other photos drew similar comment.

He set them aside.

"Once people get accustomed to the idea that traffic has speeded up, and that the only safe place to cross the street is the designated lanes, then the police department will have a big worry taken away."

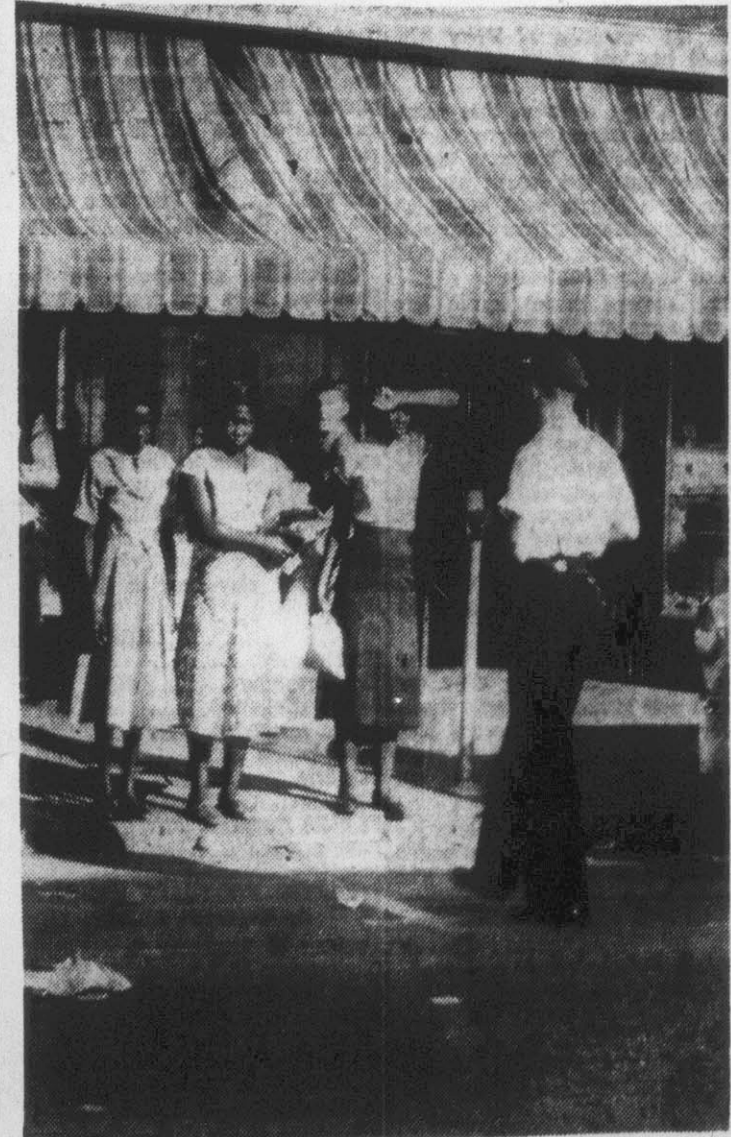

"The bad feature about all this is that one jaywalker gives the example to others, that's one reason why the patrolmen have been stricter than usual in recent weeks."

RUN BUDDY—but was this example of jaywalking necessary?

NO AGE LIMITS—and junior is learning how, too.

STOPPED—before they took a needless chance

LONDON (UP) — Sir Adolphe Abrahams, honorary medical adviser to the British Olympic team, said today an apple a day won't keep the doctor away, but it might cut down your visits to the dentist.

An apple, he reported in a new book, "Fitness for the Average Man", is an excellent tooth cleanser.

6-Year Improvement Plan For Portugal

LISBON, Portuga, (U.P.) — The government has embarked on a six-year, 13,500,000,000 escudo ($472,000,000) development program embracing European Portugal and her possessions.

LONELY SPITFIRES — These tiger cubs, parted from their mother for the first time at Copenhagen, Denmark, Zoo, had to be returned to her because of fright and homesickness.

engineered by Prime Minister Antonio Oliveira de Salazar, once a professor of economics, which have raised Portugal from bankruptcy in the 1920's to one of the soundest economies and best credit records of Europe.

Population Growth

The six-year plan allots 2,430,000,000 escudos ($84,965,000) for hydroelectric development; 2,540,000,000 escudos ($88,811,000) for transportation services, and 1,290,000,000 escudos ($46,111,000) for agricultural development of the Portuguese mainland.

Noting that the mainland population had grown from 5,500,000 in 1900 to 8,500,000 in 1950, the government's report said that Portugal was "in land neither fertile nor rich in natural resources."

The report said the government realized the necessity not only for modernization of agriculture and

Colonial Plans

The chief Portuguese colonies are Mozambique and Angola in Africa, both of which have great agricultural, mineral and forest resources.

Money earmarked for the colonies' agricultural development totals 1,839,000,000 escudos ($64,300,000) and for transportation, 2,915,000,000 escudos ($101,923,000).

Portugal has built up considerable credit in European commerce, and has received loans from the United States, but it has never been a heavy recipient of Marshall Plan or Mutual Security Agency aid, although it is a member of NATO. The Portuguese government welcomes private and public investment within the six-year program.

More Food Production

As one example of how the money will be spent, the government report stated that the country needs to increase and improve its food production. The plan calls for irrigation, reforestation, new scientific farming techniques, reclamation of flooded lands and breeding and redistribution of cattle.

ROBERSONVILLE — Big Bob Lee, coach of the Robersonville Rams, is a stern coach on the football field but the sternness melts and his face wreathes with smiles when star fullback Sonny James shakes loose for a long run in scrimmage.

"That boy can really run," commented Lee. "He's got power and he's fast. He hits the line going full steam and drives as long as his feet are on the ground."

The Rams were scrimmaging the first string offensive team against the defensive team. Coach Lee was calling plays for the offense. "Alright fellows, this one ought to work," he said.

The ball went to James who faked a handoff and crashed through the line into the secondary. He was hit in the secondary but got away and raced for a touchdown.

"There," said the coach triumphantly, "See what I mean. I saw alright and was duly impressed. It was a good run."

The Robersonville squad is loaded with returning lettermen and several good looking newcomers. Dan Clark, tailback, is a fast, shifty runner and a quick, accurate passer. Clark and James give the one-two punch needed for a good single wing attack.

Quarterback Billy Warren's deft ball handling makes the intricate single wing variations click with great success. Warren regularly plays at the blocking back spot in the single wing formation but he often fills in at tailback.

Tall, rangy Maurice Everett is another reason for Lee to smile. Everett is a glue fingered receiver and a pillar on defense.

Curtis Roberson, big 210-pounder, is a newcomer that has shown up well in practice and has won a starting position. The addition of big Roberson to a starting line of experienced players gives Robersonville one of the best balanced lines in the Coastal Conference.

Coach Lee expounded, "The boys are well set physically and mentally. They feel like this is their year, and it might be."

East Carolina Favored To Beat Shipbuilders Tonight

Yesterday's rain slowed the East Carolina College Pirates only a little bit as they went through a final check on the attack which will be used tonight against the Newport News Apprentice School. Kickoff time for the game is 8 p.m.

East Carolina is favored to win. The Pirates worked on kicking formations, passing offense, and pass patterns before calling it a day yesterday. A few minutes were devoted to a short dummy scrimmage.

The Shipbuilders are due to arrive in town today and set up camp in the college gym. The Builders lost their opener last week to the Williams and Mary Jayvees while the Pirates were dumped 13-7 by a strong Norfolk Navy team.

Drills yesterday indicated only one definite change in either the offensive or defensive lineup for the Builders. The change would come on the defensive unit where sophomore David

Lee will be used at guard. Lee was a tackle up until practice this week when he was shifted to the middle position.

Several other changes loom but nothing definite was announced by either Head Coach Jack Boone or Line Coach Clyde Biggers. One of the prospective changes would have Nick Kane at left tackle in place of Frank Turner who had a tooth chipped in last week's opener. Turner has been taking things rather easy in drills this week.

Provided there are no further changes, the Pirates will rely upon the same units which started last week. The offensive platoon has All-Conference Dwight Snee and Bobby Hodges at the ends, Turner or Kane and Willie Holland at the tackles. Doc Smith and George Tucker at the guards, Gaiter Cline at center. Sandy Siler at quarterback. Paul Gay and Jack Benzie at the half-backs, and Claude King at fullback. The defensive unit will be the same which started last week with the exception of Lee at a guard post in place of Tucker. Madigan at center to back up the line, James Faircloth replacing King to back up the line, and Boyd Webb in at quarterback to play safety.

While these two groups are expected to play most of the game, the East Carolina board of strategy is hoping to be able to do some experimenting, particularly in the line. Several of the freshmen members of the squad have looked very good in practice sessions and both Boone and Biggers are hoping for a chance to prove them under game conditions.

The game tonight will be the last non-conference contest for the Builders until November 8. They will launch their North State Conference schedule next week when they travel to Hickory to meet Lenoit-Rhyne.

Phantoms Suffer First Loss At Hertford 34-7

By WAYNE BISHOP

HERTFORD — The Greenville High School Phantoms were handed their first defeat of the year last night when big Howard Williams sparked the Hertford High School Indians to a 34-7 victory. The game was a non-conference affair.

Williams, a 190-pound halfback, twice shook loose for runs of 64 yards. On the second play of the second half, he went around end to score on the second of his long-distance journeys. His first had come midway the second quarter when he set up another touchdown by going for 64 yards before Greenville's Bobby Perry caught up with him and shoved him out of bounds on the Greenville eight yard line.

The Phantoms drew first blood in the contest when they began using the passing attack which was installed this week. The scoring play, from quarterback Pat Sawyer to Perry, covered 67 yards with Perry running the final 40 to score. The try for extra point was no good.

The Indians came back for their first tally in the middle of the second period. An offside penalty against Hertford had put the ball on the Indian 28 when Williams charged through the line and outran everyone on the Greenville team with the exception of Perry who chased him out of bounds on the Phantoms eight.

With a first down at that point, the Indians started working on the middle of the line but were unable to score until the fourth attempt when John Morris went across on a quarterback sneak from four yards out. The try for extra point was halted by the Phantoms.

The Indians moved ahead late in the same quarter after recovering a fumble by Pat Sawyer deep in Greenville territory. Guard Daryl Allen pounced on the ball on the Greenville 25 and the Indians were on their way. The Phantoms held the Hertford team's attempted line plunges but a passing interference ruling against Greenville put the ball on the one-yard line. From that point, Morris carried over on another quarterback sneak. Williams ran the extra point over to move the score to 13-6.

The third Perquimans school touchdown came shortly after the second half kickoff. Williams crashed over tackle on the second play from scrimmage and went 64 yards for the touchdown. He also ran over the extra point.

The Phantoms fought back in the closing moments of the third period for their final scoring effort. The Greenville attack began rolling when Perry ran a punt back to the Hertford 39. Sawyer's passing and the running of Perry and Guy Smith soon moved the ball to the five-yard line from where Smith ran the ball over. The try for the point was good but the Phantoms could not close the final gap of seven points.

Outstanding on defense for the Phantoms were end Vernon, Wingate, tackle Tommie Smith, and guard Bobby Nunn. End Bobby Conners, center Jimmy Cheatham, and guard Billy Arnold also did good work at their respective positions. Sawyer, Perry, and Smith were the outstanding men in the backfield.

For Perquimans, the honors easily went to Morris and Williams. The Phantoms will open their home schedule next Friday night when they play host to Kinston's Red Devils.

Athletics Halt Yankees; Indians Win Over Tigers

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—Jovial Jimmy Dykes, the little bush of the Athletics, said today that "nothing would give me greater pleasure than to knock the Yankees out of the pennant, and if giving out with our best every day will do it, that's what will happen."

"Don't get me wrong," he said. "I'm not taking any sides in the pennant race, as far as my team is concerned the big stake is third place and it looks as if we've got a swell chance to make that. But we gave out with the best we had when we played Cleveland and we'll do the same all the rest of the way with the Yankees. That's the only fair way to do it."

"And win or lose, those birds are gonna know they were in a battle." The fighting pilot, whose Athletics bowled over the Yankees, 2 to 0, last night behind the superb pitching of the magical mite, Bobby Shantz, battled so much that he didn't even get to see his southpaw ace wind up with his 24th victory of the year, his fifth shutout, his fourth victory over the Yankees, and extend his string of scoreless innings in Yankee Stadium to 29.

Dykes was heaved out of the game for protesting ball-and-strike decisions by plate umpire Bill Grieve. Yankee Manager Casey Stengel also had protested and Dykes roared out complaining that Grieve was trying to even up.

The Yankee defeat, coupled with Cleveland's 4 to 1 triumph over the Tigers, reduced New York's first place margin to 1 1/2 games with eight left for the Yankees to play and seven for the Indians.

In the National League, the Giants suffered perhaps their hardest blow yet, when they were shut out, 1 to 0 by Curt Simmons of the Phils after the Dodgers edged the Braves, 4 to 2, in a rain-shortened eight-inning game at Boston. That put the New Yorkers four full games behind with eight games left for each team to play.

Shantz gained the margin for the victory that put the Athletics just one game behind the idle third place White Sox when Dave Philley tripled home two runs in the third. Shantz touched off that rally with a single and Ferris Fain also singled as Philadelphia got three of its five hits in that frame. Vic Raschi suffered his sixth defeat, a early 16 wins.

Early Wynn pitched eight-hit ball for his 22nd victory and was backed up nobly at bay by Larry Doby and Bobby Avila of the Indians. Doby hit a two-run homer and Avila delivered a triple, double, and single. Wynn himself drove in a run with a single, too.

Simmons scattered nine hits for his 13th victory in a great duel with Sal Maglie of the Giants, who deserved a better fate than defeat. The only run of the game was unearned, coming on a first inning error by Clint Hartung, who dropped a fly by Mel Clark after Richie Ashburn had walked, putting runners on first and second. A single by Del Ennis scored Ashburn and the run makers were through for the night.

The Dodgers just beat out a cloud-burst when Joe (who else?) Clark came in to set the Braves down in order in the eighth after Brooklyn picked up two runs in the top of the inning. The game was washed out immediately afterward and if Boston had not completed the inning the Brooklyn runs wouldn't have counted.

Robersonville Triumphs 34-7

The Robersonville Rams unleashed a powerful attack last night and rolled over Contee 34-7. Quarterback Bill Warren and Sonny James, All-Conference fullback, contributed two touchdowns apiece in the onslaught. James also built across the goal line for three extra points.

End Andy Warren scored the other Ram touchdown.

John Langston scored Contee's only touchdown on a 25-yard jaunt in the fourth quarter. Langston added the extra point from scrimmage.

Big Curtis Roberson, tackle, and Bobby Clark, guard, and Julius Budacz, center, were mainstays in the Ram line that held Contee in check throughout the game.

Duke, Davidson Open SIC Football Slate

Duke

A pair of relatively inexperienced quarterbacks will face each other Saturday at Durham when Duke's Blue Devils get their first football test of the season against Washington and Lee's Generals.

Worth Lutz Jr., a 19-year-old who won "Southern Conference freshman of the year" honors last season as a defensive right halfback and offensive left halfback, will man the important position for Duke.

For Washington and Lee, the signal-caller will be Joey Lindsey, a junior who is faced with the difficult task of making W&L forget about the ability of glittering Gil Bocetti.

Lutz has been forced to move into the breach because of an injury which has sidelined Duke's brilliant regular quarterback, Jerry Barger.

Lindsey has been the Generals' No. 1 man ever since Coach Carl Wise first began looking for someone to replace Bocetti, now one of his assistant coaches. Joe is a plunger, a good ball-handler and also excels at running and passing. But his 1951 experience was limited to about 20 minutes over the span of a full season.

Both Lutz and Lindsey will be directing the complicated, difficult split-T attack.

Barger, who blossomed into a full-fledged star last year, watched Duke's practice from the sidelines yesterday as the Blue Devils went through a tough drill against W&L plays. Freshman Gene Riggie spelled Lutz at the quarterback post. Joining Barger on the injury list were tackle Ray Green and halfback Lloyd Caudle.

Sophomore halfback Carl Bolt, who needed 14 stitches to close facial wounds received in a scrimmage over the weekend, returned to W&L practice yesterday, patched up but ready to go against Duke. Pass offense and defense occupied the Generals. Lindsey passed well along with freshman Charley Brandmahl.

Reynolds Pacer Wins In Kentucky

DELAWARE, O. (AP)—W. G. Reynolds, the big aluminum and tobacco man from Louisville, Ky., figures he's no longer a jinx to his great three-year-old pacer, Meadow Rice.

Meadow Rice proved it to him yesterday, and handed him a $30,231.66 purse by winning the seventh annual $50,000 "Little Brown Jug" while Reynolds watched from atop the grandstand.

The brown colt, after being shunted to third place—that's as far back as he's been this year in 23 starts—on Thursday's opening heat of the rain-halted "Jug" came back yesterday to take two mile tests in a row to wrap up the laurels.

He did it in world record time for a divided three-hat race, for the time of the three miles totaled 6:06 2-5, more than three seconds under the 6:09 3-8 record set in 1950 when Dudley Hanover triumphed.

After Meadow Rice, sterling son of The Widower, came roaring home with the cash, Reynolds said: "This is my biggest thrill. I thought I was a jinx to Meadow Rice. I've seen him race 10 times before today, but I've seen him win only once."

Davidson

If Virginia Tech manages to whip Davidson this weekend, Southern Conference coaches can take fair warning that the Gobblers, though perhaps a year or so away, are on their way up the conference football ladder.

Not since 1947, when Jimmy Kirts was the head gridiron man at Blacksburg and VPI compiled a 4-5 record, have the Gobblers won two games in a row. With a victory over Marshall College already under their belts, the Techmen will be shooting for this goal at Davidson.

Oddly enough, Davidson itself hasn't won two in a row since 1947. But the Wildcats have fared vastly better than the Gobblers in recent years and since this is their opener, won't get the chance to make modern history until Sept. 20, at the earliest.

Last year, Davidson beat the Gobblers, 32-20. They'll do it again this time if history repeats. For Tech already had disposed of Marshall when the Gobblers met the Wildcats in 1951.

Both Tech Coach Frank O'Rear Moseley and Davidson Mentor Bill Dole are approaching Saturday's contest with long faces. And both had the same lament yesterday: "We need more work."

"We must have more work before we can be ready for any Southern Conference team," said Moseley. "We need a lot more work before we'll be ready for VPI," said Dole, who is making his debut as Wildcat head coach. "Our blocking is still very poor and if it doesn't improve I can't say how well we'll fare."

Blocking apparently is a Tech problem, too, for that was what the Gobblers emphasized most of all during yesterday's drills. Pass defense and tackling also got plenty of attention from Moseley in a long scrimmage.

DOLLARS GOING TO WASTE?

Of course, no one makes a point of throwing cash away—but somehow, many dollars do manage to disappear without contributing their share towards better living, if you don't have a savings plan. What's needed is a good, safe place for "storage of dollars"—such as a savings account. Not only are your savings insured to $10,000 here, but they also earn a liberal return. Why not start your savings account now?

Mighty Mike by Pap'

Mike Garcia is the hardest working player on the Cleveland team. Bobby Feller is a glutton for work that will keep him in shape, but Garcia tops even Feller. When Mike isn't slated to pitch, you'll find him shagging flies in the outfield or playing the pepper game with anyone who happens to be handy. Garcia weighs around 215 pounds. His teammates call him "Big Bear" so it is no wonder that Mike is conscious of the weight problem.

"I watch my diet," said Garcia, "and I run a lot to keep my weight down as well as to keep my legs in shape. You wouldn't believe it but I was too small to think about playing baseball when I was in junior high school. I wanted to become a jockey. Don't laugh, but when I was thirteen I weighed less than 100 pounds.

"We had horses on our farm in Visalia, Calif., where I grew up, and I was always riding them," Mike continued. "I was crazy about horses. One day my father took me to the race track where quarter horses were being raced. I strolled off to wander around the barns and looked over the horses. The first thing I knew, I had accepted an offer of five dollars to ride one of the horses. My horse won the race and then continued to run toward the barn. When he realized that the gate leading to the barn was closed, he stopped suddenly. But I didn't and wound up going over the fence and landing on my ear. That ended my career as a jockey."

Raleigh Man Is Kiwanis Speaker

At the Kiwanis Club last night, Josh James of Raleigh, member of the State Utilities Commission, guest speaker, gave a history of the public service body.

He reviewed expansion of the governmental agency from the beginning, when its facilities were limited, to the present time, when it has available engineer specialists in all fields, including natural gas, which is now piped into the state.

The speaker said it is a big job to keep up with the financial needs of various utilities serving the people of this state. He pointed out that the commission seeks to safeguard the interests of smaller utilities companies. James expressed the opinion that the commission's name should be the North Carolina Public Service Commission because it does render great public services.

Judge Dink James introduced the speaker, President Milo Smith presided.

Dr. S. M. Crisp, Richard Rogers and Dr. J. M. Barrett had birthdays, and they donated a dime for each year of their age to a club.
