

Top Commanders In Korea Confer

General Clark Meets With Land, Sea And Air Commanders; Silent On Reasons For Session; Attaches Little Import To Flurry Of Communist Probing

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—Gen. Mark Clark, U. N. Far East commander, met today with his top land, sea and air commanders, but declined to reveal the reasons for the high-level conferences.

At the conferences were Gen. James A. Van Fleet, 8th Army commander; Lt. Gen. Glenn O. Barcus, 5th Air Force commander; who flew to Seoul with Clark. Clark said he expected to be in Korea for "a couple of days" and that he had "all kinds of things to discuss."

Even as the meeting took place, Chinese Communists repelled a savage, tank-supported attack on Kelly Hill on the western front by soldiers from the 65th Puerto Rican Regiment of the U. S. 3rd Division. The Puerto Ricans were forced to give up after more than seven hours of heartbreaking fighting.

Discussing the recent battles for strategic hills across the battlefield, Clark indicated he did not attach too much military importance to the Communist attacks.

"I think they have to probe to see what is going on," he said. "It is a fight for observation."

Clark said he would also confer with Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison, senior Allied delegate to the Panmunjom truce negotiations.

The abortive assault on Kelly was preceded by the heaviest Allied artillery and mortar barrage on the western front in seven months.

"Ammunition is cheaper to make than men," one officer said.

U. N. soldiers, backed by tank fire, launched the attack at dawn after a diversionary attack to the northeast. An hour later a "handful of men" were on the crest, fighting against overwhelming odds to rout the Chinese Reds from their bunkers and trenches.

B-29 Superforts and B-26 light bombers teamed to make the night as miserable for the Reds as infantrymen did during the day.

Twelve B-29s dropped more than 100 tons of bombs on a "virgin" Red supply center at Puchungjang, 17 miles south of Hamhung in Eastern Korea.

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—Communist armistice negotiators formally protested today the release of 11,000 South Korean civilians by the United Nations, calling it a "provocative action."

The protest came in a letter to U. N. senior delegate Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison from North Korean Gen. Nam Il. The letter was handed over to an Allied officer at a brief liaison officers' meeting.

Nam said the release was a "provocative action" which showed the U. N. does not intend to reach a "fair and reasonable armistice."

U.S. War Losses Reach 118,569

WASHINGTON (UP)—American battle casualties in Korea now total 118,569, an increase of 1,071 over last week's summary, the Defense Department announced today.

The casualties include those whose next of kin were notified through last Friday. They do not include all casualties to that date since it takes one to three weeks to notify next of kin.

The total since the beginning of the Korean war includes 20,830 dead, 85,292 wounded, 9,733 missing, 1,665 captured and 1,389 previously missing but returned to military service.

AGED RABBI DIES

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (UP)—Rabbi Bernard Louis Levintha, 88, dean of American rabbis and founder and head of the Orthodox Rabbinical Association of America, died here last night.

Caudle Says McGrath Claimed Knowing Enough To Blow White House Sky High

WASHINGTON (UP)—T. Lamar Caudle today quoted ousted Atty. Gen. J. Howard McGrath as having said he had enough information about a "White House clique" to blow the place sky high.

Caudle, ousted as the government's chief tax frauds prosecutor about five months before President Truman fired McGrath, made his statement in completing testimony before a House subcommittee investigating the Justice Department.

He told newsmen after the hearing that "as best I can remember" McGrath made the remark in a conversation they held sometime after Mr. Truman fired McGrath last April in a blowup over the administration's anti-corruption drive.

Rep. Kenneth B. Keating (R-N.Y.) brought up the subject by asking if McGrath ever told Caudle he had information that would "blow the White House sky high."

"I have some recollection that the (at-or-) general made some such statement," Keating said. "I

Umstead Pledges Development Of N. C. Waterways

Inland Ports To Be Stressed In His Administration Says Nominee

RALEIGH (UP)—William B. Umstead, Democratic gubernatorial nominee, has promised that his administration will encourage development of the state's inland waterways to attract industry, tourists, and shipping for the state's new deepwater ports.

Umstead got squarely on the record at the second session of the Advisory Budget Commission here yesterday. J. A. Hackney of Washington, chairman of the newly organized Coastal Marine Council, said the state should make a survey to determine which inland ports should be developed and to what extent.

"We're not going to make ports at Morehead City and Wilmington pay until we get our inland ports developed," he said.

Umstead asked Hackney to "find out just what such a survey will cost and let me know. I am interested in this matter."

He indicated that he would seek funds for the Stream Sanitation Committee to use in checking pollution of the inland waterway, which he said is blamed for brevity of visits by touring yachtsmen.

The Department of Conservation and Development asked for an increase of approximately $900,000 a year in its appearance before the commission, holding hearings before preparing a recommended budget for the 1953 General Assembly.

Dr. Roy Norton, state health officer, asked an increase of about $500,000 a year in the next biennium for the Health Department to expand state aid to counties where federal funds have been lost.

Welfare Commissioner Dr. Ellen Winston asked that her department's budget be raised about $1,600,000 a year, mainly to provide a 10 per cent increase in average payments for the needy plus an addition of 1,000 persons each to the aid to dependent children and the disabled roles.

The Stream Sanitation Committee asked for another $39,000, the Industrial Commission for $40,000 more a year, the Commission for the Blind for $88,000, and the Veterans Commission $38,000.

Traffic System Changes Okayed

The city traffic committee yesterday approved a series of changes in the present traffic system in Greenville.

Proposed changes in the system were submitted to Mayor Lester D. Page last week by Police Chief Guy C. Langston and will go before the board of aldermen for action at its next meeting.

Instead of having Evans Street, two-way from Eighth Street to Tenth Street, as was first proposed, the new schedule of changes calls for Evans Street to be two-way all the way from Five Points south to Tenth Street.

Mayor Page explained that if that change is adopted by the board of aldermen, traffic will be allowed to turn right off Dickinson Avenue at Five Points and left off Fifth Street at Five Points.

"We still have West Third Street and Pitt Street under observation, and it's possible we may make Third Street one-way all the way into Elizabeth Street," the mayor stated.

hope I can be accurate but I don't know whether I am."

Keating said his information was that McGrath told Caudle he "knew enough about the White House that he could blow it so high that it would become another satellite in the orbit and gravity would never bring it back to earth."

Caudle replied that "that's about what he said." He said McGrath was "sort of mad at the time," and "I don't know what he meant by it."

"Perhaps the statement speaks for itself," Keating observed.

Caudle said McGrath told him that the "same clique" which was responsible for Caudle's dismissal "was after him (McGrath) and finally got him, too."

"He said McGrath didn't name any names, but that his own 'idea' is that the 'clique' included Joseph Short, who died last week; presidential counsel Charles S. Murphy and David Stowe, administrative aide to the President. Caudle insisted, despite a White

Ike Speeds Toward His Meeting With Nixon In Wheeling

Whistle-Stop Ohio Tour Draws Crowds; Praises Running-Mate's Courage In Face Of Trouble; Wires Encouragement

ABOARD GOP SPECIAL (UP)—Dwight D. Eisenhower headed for Wheeling, W. Va., today for a face-to-face meeting with Richard M. Nixon to decide if Nixon can stay in the race for vice president.

All indications pointed to Eisenhower's intent to keep Nixon but the retired general said he wanted a face-to-face talk with the California senator before making his final decision.

Eisenhower himself threw away a prepared speech in Cleveland last night to declare he was impressed with Nixon's courage in a radio-television speech in which Nixon barred his personal political affairs.

Today the general said he was swamped with "I like Dick" telegrams as top Republicans voiced their approval of keeping Nixon on the ticket.

Eisenhower left the train for a telephone call to Arthur Summerfield, Republican national committee chairman in Cleveland. Summerfield said immediately afterward he was "certain" Nixon would stay on U. S. ticket.

Aboard the train, Gov. Sherman Adams of New Hampshire, the chief of staff of Eisenhower's campaign, said arrangements for the meeting to tonight have been completed.

Republican headquarters meanwhile announced that it was receiving a flood of telegrams, 98 per cent of which approved of Nixon's staying on the ticket.

Eisenhower's first stop of the day was in Chillicothe, O., where he noted the fact that President Truman, who passed this way, had "merely given the people a 'whistle'."

This was a reference to the fact that Mr. Truman's train merely slowed down as it went through here early this month. A good sized crowd was at the station expecting to see the President as he passed through here.

Swine Show Has Name Changed

Junior Livestock Show Is New Title; Expansion Hoped

The annual Purebred Swine Show held at the Pitt County Agricultural Fair will be known this year as the Junior Livestock Show. It was decided yesterday afternoon.

The Agricultural Committee of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, vocational agriculture teachers in the county, and the county agents agreed to change the name of the annual show since there may be a possibility in the future of bringing dairy cattle and other livestock into the show instead of just swine.

The vocational teachers will have charge of the show this year and the program. Heading the committee for the program and show is Marion Nobles of the Belvoir-Falkland School and working with him are J. H. Mobley and S. F. Peterson.

A spokesman for the show said this morning that the exact number of exhibitors are not known as yet but between 40 and 50 boys are expected to exhibit their livestock.

A barbecue dinner for the exhibitors following the show, October 8, will be held by the chamber of commerce at Respass Brothers'.

Three Of 12 Men On Ice Cap Saved

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Air Force said today three of 12 men aboard a British plane which crashed on the Greenland ice cap have been rescued and returned to Thule Air Base, 480 miles west of the crash.

The rescued included the one American aboard, Capt. Charles W. Stover, Portland, Me., who has possible back injuries.

WASHINGTON (UP)—Did President Truman prompt the current Justice Department "study" of the legal aspects of Sen. Richard M. Nixon's $18,000 expense fund?

The White House first said that he did; now it says he didn't.

It was learned yesterday that Atty. Gen. James P. McGranery had put some of his legal aides to work checking various federal statutes to see if any law was violated by Nixon's acceptance of expense money.

A White House spokesman told reporters early in the afternoon that Mr. Truman requested the check, presumably during a private talk with McGranery after a cabinet meeting last Friday.

A few hours later, the spokesman called the newsmen back to say that he was "absolutely wrong" in his first report.

"There has been no White House intervention at all," he said.

Nixon Address Draws Big Response Supporting Him

Stevenson Defies Demands To Bare His Own Cash Gifts

Defends Practice Of Augmenting Officials' Salaries; Says Naming Names Would Be Breach Of Faith On His Part

BALTIMORE, Md. (UP)—Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson flatly rejected today Sen. Richard M. Nixon's demand that he disclose the names of Illinois state officials whose salaries he augmented with cash gifts.

But at the same time Stevenson defended the practice as one necessary to obtain and hold the services of men of "outstanding ability" in government.

Nixon, in explaining to the nation his own acceptance of an $18,235 expense allowance last night, challenged the Democratic nominee to make public the names of Illinois officials whose salaries have been augmented, a step Stevenson had admitted.

The Democratic presidential nominee told a meeting of volunteer campaign workers that he saw no purpose in disclosing the names of the persons or the amounts involved.

To do so, he said, would give them "undeserved publicity" and would be a "breach of faith on my part."

Stevenson explained also that he, while governor, had "adopted a practice of making gifts around Christmas time to a small number of state employees" whom he regarded as underpaid.

These men, he said, had been recruited from private industry where, in most cases, they enjoyed higher salaries and more secure future than in government service.

The money for the "gifts" Stevenson said, came from campaign funds and from contributions made "from time to time."

He said that no donor "to the fund knew the identity of those to whom" gifts were made. He said that no official receiving a "gift" knew the identity of other officials obtaining the same benefit.

The amounts paid individuals were not disclosed, he said.

The practice, Stevenson said, had resulted in obtaining the services of a group of men whose "integrity and loyalty" were the equal of any in government.

Stevenson delivered a major address on economic policy last night before a capacity audience of 9,000 in Baltimore's 5th Regiment Armory. He opposed a tax reduction until the federal budget is balanced, and warned that "tighter" wage and price controls may be necessary next year to combat inflation.

His address was carried to the nation by television at 9 p. m. EST immediately after Nixon had made his own dramatic broadcast defending his acceptance of an $18,235 private political fund.

Stevenson directed most of his speech last night to the nation as a whole, saying he would have to oppose a reduction in federal taxes until the budget can be balanced.

He reiterated his belief that with the necessity of maintaining a strong defense program, "our budget is determined more by the Russians than by the 'bureaucrats.'"

Woman Appointed As Truman Aide

WASHINGTON (UP)—Beth Carson, who first went to the White House as a working newspaperwoman 16 years ago, returned today as one of President Truman's top aides.

Mrs. Short, 44, is the widow of Joseph Short, White House press secretary who died of a heart attack last week.

Mr. Truman did not ask her to take over her husband's empty desk. But he gave her another job with the same rank and the same $18,000-a-year salary, as his correspondence secretary.

$85,000 Damage Suit Consumes Day Of Court

A civil suit for damages totaling $85,000 consumed all of yesterday's session in Pitt Superior Court and was continued until today.

Judge W. C. Harris postponed hearing the Bethel High School dispute until tomorrow. It was originally set for 9:30 this morning.

In the damage suit, Paul Morris of Greenville is suing Bate Lumber Company of New Bern. Morris alleges the company was negligent in causing his fall from a smokestack while working at the New Bern plant.

Court is scheduled to last through Friday.

PLANE TRAGEDY SAIGON, Indo-China (UP)—A four-engine French naval plane crashed shortly after it took off from the Saigon airport today, killing 13 persons.

Wires Jammed

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Richard Nixon's speech last night set off one of the greatest message jams in telegraphic history.

Western Union was still groggy today from the flow of telegrams.

Densetsu workers were called in for extra duty to help take care of the flood of messages. W. U. people gave up trying to get out all the messages last night. They listened, too, to citizens bombarding them with their own personal views of the Nixon affair.

W. U. headquarters in New York said its facilities were "jammed to absolute capacity during the night" and that the message deluge was growing today.

All Western Union functions such as bookkeeping were suspended so that all available personnel could be assigned to handling the telegrams.

Special operators were flown from New York to Washington to handle the telegraphic jam.

No figures on the total number of telegrams better than "tens of thousands" were available.

Family Loses Its Fourth To Polio

Past Nine Days Has Seen Death Of Four Young Children

MILWAUKEE (UP)—Bulbar polio has killed four of Leo Linneman's eight children in nine days.

Barbara, 19, the fourth victim, died last night. Funeral services were held the same day for her eight-year-old sister, Mary Ann.

Paul, 16, died Sept. 15. Lorraine, 4, died the next day.

All the children died within 48 hours after they entered the hospital with the most severe type of polio.

Hospital authorities said that it is the first time that four cases of bulbar polio have been recorded in one family.

"God must have wanted them very much," Mrs. Linneman said when her third child died.

And now, Barbara, is dead, too. Mrs. Linneman stayed with Barbara yesterday while her husband attended Mary Ann's funeral.

The other children are quarantined at home. They are John, 20, a Marine on emergency leave from his California post, Janet, 18, Francis, 11, and Yvonne, 1.

So far, none has had any sign of a polio infection.

The Linnemans prayed that they would be spared. They asked their friends and family to pray too.

They said they were "almost afraid to wake up in the morning."

A fund has been started to help the family.

Barbara was stricken with the disease Sunday. She was rushed to South View Hospital. She became worse Monday night and died last night.

Mary Ann was stricken last Sunday and died Saturday.

Barkley Sharing Adlai's Platform

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UP)—Vice President Alben W. Barkley will make his first speech of the presidential campaign here Saturday night on the same platform with Gov. Adlai Stevenson, the man who won the Democratic nomination that Barkley wanted.

The vice president will deliver a full-fledged political speech in behalf of the Democratic ticket, then will introduce Stevenson, who happens to be a distant cousin.

Tens Of Thousands Of People Wire Appeals He Remain On Republican Ticket; Director Of GOP National Committee Says No Meeting Is Necessary To Settle Issue

By WARREN DUFFEE

WASHINGTON (UP)—Sen. Richard M. Nixon received the support of tens of thousands of persons today, and a Republican official predicted Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower will respond "to the will of the people."

Wayne J. Hood, executive director of the Republican national committee, told newsmen that he thought a meeting of the GOP national committee will be necessary to decide the future of the young vice-presidential nominee.

Hood said before a table burdened with an estimated 20,000 telegrams and cables, which he said, were overwhelmingly in support of Nixon to stay in the race.

Western U on reported it was swamped with telegrams in answer to Nixon's televised a broadcast appeal last night to the nation to tell the GOP committee whether he should continue on the Eisenhower-Nixon ticket.

Nixon defended the $18,235 expense fund he received from wealthy men and demanded that Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson and Sen. John J. Sparkman give a public accounting of their finances as he did.

Hood said the people are talking and have talked "through the outpouring of telegrams from all over the country."

He said he thinks Eisenhower will "react" to that demonstration and to the dramatic presentation by the young Californian last night and retain Nixon as his running mate.

Wesley Roberts, the GOP national committee's director of organization, told newsmen that analysis of the first telegrams to reach headquarters last night showed that about 4,000 were in favor of Nixon and 21 were against.

Roberts called it a "magnificent demonstration" and emphasized that the response has poured from all sections of the country—from city and rural areas alike. Some 4,000 telephone calls were handled before 2 a. m.

Hood said, as far as he knows, Nixon's appeal for public response to his financial accounting had not been cleared with the national committee or with Eisenhower.

Nixon tossed the thorny problem into the laps of the Republican National Committee and the voters last night when he said he did not want to quit but thought the decision was up to them.

Early today the youthful California senator accepted an invitation to meet face-to-face with Eisenhower, and then left for Missoula, Mont., to resume his whistlestop tour.

Nixon went before the television cameras in Los Angeles last night to explain his $18,235 personal expense fund to the nation. "I do not believe I ought to quit because I am not a quitter," Nixon said with open emotion.

But he said he would not harm Eisenhower's chances of defeating Stevenson in November and said he was turning the case over to the GOP National Committee. He asked the voters for their opinion.

"Wire and write the Republican National Committee whether you think I should stay or whether I should get off; and whatever their decision is, I will abide by it," Nixon said.

The radio-television audience apparently responded with a will. Western Union offices across the country reported they were "swamped" with wires and the Republican campaign headquarters said they were "flooded with telephone calls."

A Western Union official said that by 3 a. m., EST more than 12,000 telegrams had reached Washington and that they were about 98 per cent in favor of Nixon. He said the 12,000 were "only a drop in the bucket" compared with the river of wires flooding Western Union offices elsewhere.

The 48-year-old senator left the television studio in tears but was cheered by a message of encouragement from Eisenhower.

"Your presentation was magnificent," Eisenhower said in a telegram from his train in Cleveland. "I feel the need to see you personally."

Buchanan Insurance Agency. "Stevens also suggested that the library property be used for off-street parking," Mayor Page explained. "He said parking there would not disrupt activities inside the building."

The mayor stated measurements will be complete by tomorrow and will then be dispatched to Stevens, who will make a study of the areas and submit a report to city officials.

Acheson Urges Steps To Permit German Election

Challenges Russia To End East German Terror And Allow Free Choice

WASHINGTON (UP)—Secretary of State Dean Acheson challenged Russia today to rid Red-occupied East Germany of terror so free elections can be held to unify Germany.

In a 750-word statement, Acheson ripped into the Soviets for talking about democracy and independence as a cover-up for Communist control of nations. He pictured East Germany as controlled by "kidnappers" and a place where Communists dispossess farmers and villagers "over night without recourse."

The statement followed the latest Big Three note to the Kremlin rejecting Russia's scheme for a "dictated" German peace treaty as "an insult to the German nation."

American officials believed the note shoved Russia into a corner where it would have to "put up or shut up."

Acheson said the Soviets have talked loudly about Germany but have avoided "talking about a free election, which is the only way to get unity in freedom."

"The Soviet government wants to talk about an eventual peace treaty, or about the North Atlantic Treaty, or about any other matter, but not about elections," Acheson said.

"We refuse to be distracted by attacks on extraneous subjects. We want to unify Germany. Therefore we want free elections. So we have asked the Soviets to do something about it."

In their notes, the Big Three flatly rejected Moscow's terms for a new Big Four conference and challenged the Soviets, as a test of sincerity, to meet next month on only one thing—the organization of free elections in all of Germany.

Building Plans Of Capital City Are Outlined

RALEIGH (UP)—Tar Heels have been offered a glimpse into future development of their capital city in building plans outlined to the Advisory Budget Commission.

George B. Cherry, superintendent of state buildings and grounds, asked only for two specific appropriations from the 1953 General Assembly, but offered a picture of needs future legislators must fill.

He recommended that the next session put up $1,000,000 to build near Capitol Square and $300,000 to finance an additional two stories on the four-story State Health Building given the construction go-ahead only this month.

For the future, Cherry said the state will need a Capitol annex costing between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000, a new central heating plant costing about $500,000, a one-story building to house chemical laboratories now scattered around in various structures and posing a fire hazard; and air-conditioning for all state buildings, including the governor's mansion, at a cost of $1,728,738.

Survey Planned For Bridge Need

RALEIGH (UP)—The State Highway Commission will make a survey to determine the need for bridges across Croatan Sound and Alligator River and submit the information to the 1953 General Assembly.

Dr. Henry Jordan, chairman of the commission, made that promise yesterday to a 17-member delegation from the Southern Albemarle Association promoting the bridge projects.

Strength for the Day

THE FUNCTION OF ANGER
Anger is usually looked upon as a moral weakness. Of course it is nothing of the sort. Anger is a God-given capacity meant to stir us into action against injustice, cruelty, and wrong. Our trouble is that we usually get angry because somebody has slighted us or crossed us or cheated us; whereas we are manifestly intended to get angry not over what is done to us but over what is done to others.

Our Lord was frequently angry. The Greek word used to describe his anger is related to the verb "to boil." His anger reached boiling proportions on a number of occasions. Once he overturned the tables of the money-changers and drove the traders out of the temple with a scourge of cords. On a number of occasions he called his enemies names which it would be deemed improper for us to call anyone.

Why then was our Lord's anger as righteous as everything else in his life? Because it was always directed against the cruelty and heartlessness with which men treated their fellows and never in a single instance against the way men treated him. On the cross he cried out, "Father, forgive them for they know not what they do."

Get angry; but be sure you get angry under the right circumstances. The Bible suggests this fine formula: "Be angry and sin not."

To Sit And Watch Or Work And Grow?

Greenville's Chamber of Commerce has set out once more to reactivate a positive, effective industrial expansion program for the city.

Such a program is a noble venture for any city, and indeed is needed by every city which is seeking to grow and attract new industry to its area. But such a program is not going to come and sit itself in the midst of the people of Greenville. It is going to take a great deal of work and probably some money to make an effective program. Greenville has the foundation for such a program in its Chamber of Commerce, but the task now is to build on that foundation.

The current program began with a discussion by the chief industrial engineer of the State Department of Conservation and Development who pointed out the steps which should be taken to make an effective program.

Now Greenville has moved to the phase which calls for the carrying out of the steps which were recommended.

As we have pointed out before, the matter of attracting industry to a particular locality has become a highly competitive field, particularly among the smaller cities in the South. If Greenville is to compete effectively in this quest for new industry, it must plan and carry out a far sighted promotional campaign which will make new industry look to Greenville and see the advantages which it has to offer.

Greenville Industries, Inc., has been requested by the industrial committee of the Chamber of Commerce to shed the dormant state in which it has rested since its organization in January 1951, and take an active part in helping with local industrial development. But both the Chamber of Commerce and Greenville Industries, Inc., must have the support of the citizens of the city if they are to do a good job of industrial promotion for Greenville.

One of the principal factors in the location of industry throughout North Carolina has been the availability of building space in which an industry could set up operations. Greenville, in this respect, has been handicapped, and it may be that construction of buildings suitable for industrial use will be necessary here as a part of the industrial development program.

One thing is almost certain in this program of industrial development: the results of the program will certainly be governed by the efforts local people are willing to put forth to carry out an effective program.

The time has come, we believe, when Greenville either must determine to promote its industrial growth effectively, or it must sit by and watch itself outstripped by other cities in this region which are seeking industry and having their efforts rewarded by substantial dividends in population growth, better balanced economy and continued industrial development.

1,500 More Farm Bureau Members Needed

Pitt County's Farm Bureau membership drive is nearing its climax as the annual campaign draws to a close.

Early this week it was announced by Farm Bureau officials that approximately two-thirds of the goal of 4,500 members for Pitt County had been reached. That means the local Farm Bureau needs another 1,500 memberships by the end of this week to reach its goal.

To go into the merits of the Farm Bureau program, or what the program and the organization have meant to farmers of Pitt County and North Carolina would be retelling a story which has been told time and time again. To point out that farmers, even in view of prosperity in recent years, need the continued efforts and support of the Farm Bureau is a reiteration of what every farmer knows full well.

Pitt County is where the Farm Bureau was founded in North Carolina, and Pitt County, as much as any other county in the state has profited and will continue to profit by the program of the Farm Bureau. Support of the Farm Bureau membership by the farmers and businessmen of the county is one of the surest ways to foster continued prosperity for the county.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—The current wholesale abrogation of federal controls over prices and goods by such emergency agencies as the National Production Authority and the Defense Production Administration does not represent a change of heart at Washington on the question of federal overlordship.

On the contrary, it is a definite step in the direction of retaining these controls for the fairly long period when the United States, due to failure of truce talks in Korea and Russia's menacing moves in other areas, will have to remain in a semi-state of war. With abnormal expenditures on the production of arms.

PRESSURE—The military experts warn that they see no hope of a sharp reduction of this outlay for many years. Although General Eisenhower holds out the prospect of a $60,000,000,000 budget for 1955, it will be several years after that date before funds already appropriated have been transformed into weapons.

The pressure on prices and the supply of materials for civilian and government consumption will continue during that period, or long after the Congressional grant of authority to impose these controls expires on June 30, 1953.

REBUKED—This generally misunderstood situation explains why Pentagon spokesmen publicly rebuked Robert C. Turner, new member of the White House Economic Advisory Council, for his recent statement that the defense outlay had already reached its "peak," and would soon start to decline.

It is significant that Leon H. Keyserling, the Council chairman and an advocate of extensive federal authority, did not come to the rescue of his associate.

Both the White House and the Pentagon think that the public should be prepared for a more extended period of hardship, sacrifices and federal interference with their affairs than they had anticipated.

DESIGN—In fact, political considerations also lie behind the recent rash of release of controls over goods and prices. They were apparently made at the time with the design of persuading the next President, whether he be Stevenson or Eisenhower, to ask a renewal of this authority, and of influencing the next Congress to act favorably on such a request.

By their present exercise of restraint in the use of their existing power, the planners and stabilizers and bureaucrats seek to demonstrate that they can be trusted not to abuse it, if their authority is renewed more or less permanently.

TIMED—Certain cynical Republicans, however, insist that the removal of price ceilings on many articles, as well as elimination of many industrial materials from the controls list, has been timed to improve the chances of the Democratic presidential nominee.

In every section of the country, and especially in the populous industrial areas of the Northeast and the Middle West, the government's interference in everyday activities has been one of the chief complaints against the Truman Administration.

SUSPECT—Senator Taft has been the principal opponent of federal bureaucracy, and Eisenhower is believed to sympathize with that attitude. Although Governor Stevenson says that he opposes unnecessary and unwise extension of federal authority, he is naturally suspect because of his stand on ownership of oil tidesands.

The men behind the movement for continuing controls are Truman appointees. Besides Keyserling and John R. Steegman, White House adviser on labor and other matters, they consist of veteran Roosevelt-Truman officials who have been transferred to DPA and NPA since the Korean emergency. They have thrived on what they call "emergencies" since 1943.

WARNING—A warning of this movement was recently conveyed to both Governor Stevenson and General Eisenhower by Roland E. Jones, who represents the nation's retail interests at Washington. He made a special trip to Denver and Springfield to explain the plans afoot, and to urge a return to a system of free enterprise as soon as conditions permit.

To the surprise of both of the candidates, Mr. Jones pointed out that 10,000,000 people are engaged in retail operations of one kind or another. He submitted figures which, in his opinion, showed that prices would fall if left uncontrolled, in view of the nation's apparent ability to manufacture a sufficient amount of civilian and military goods.

"Every other interest—labor, agriculture, the veterans—presents its views to the candidates," said Mr. Jones in explaining his visit. "I thought it was time—and perhaps it was the first time—that somebody speak for the retailers and their customers against permanent imposition of a strait jacket system."

OUR DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE

(From the Gilmer, Texas "Mirror")

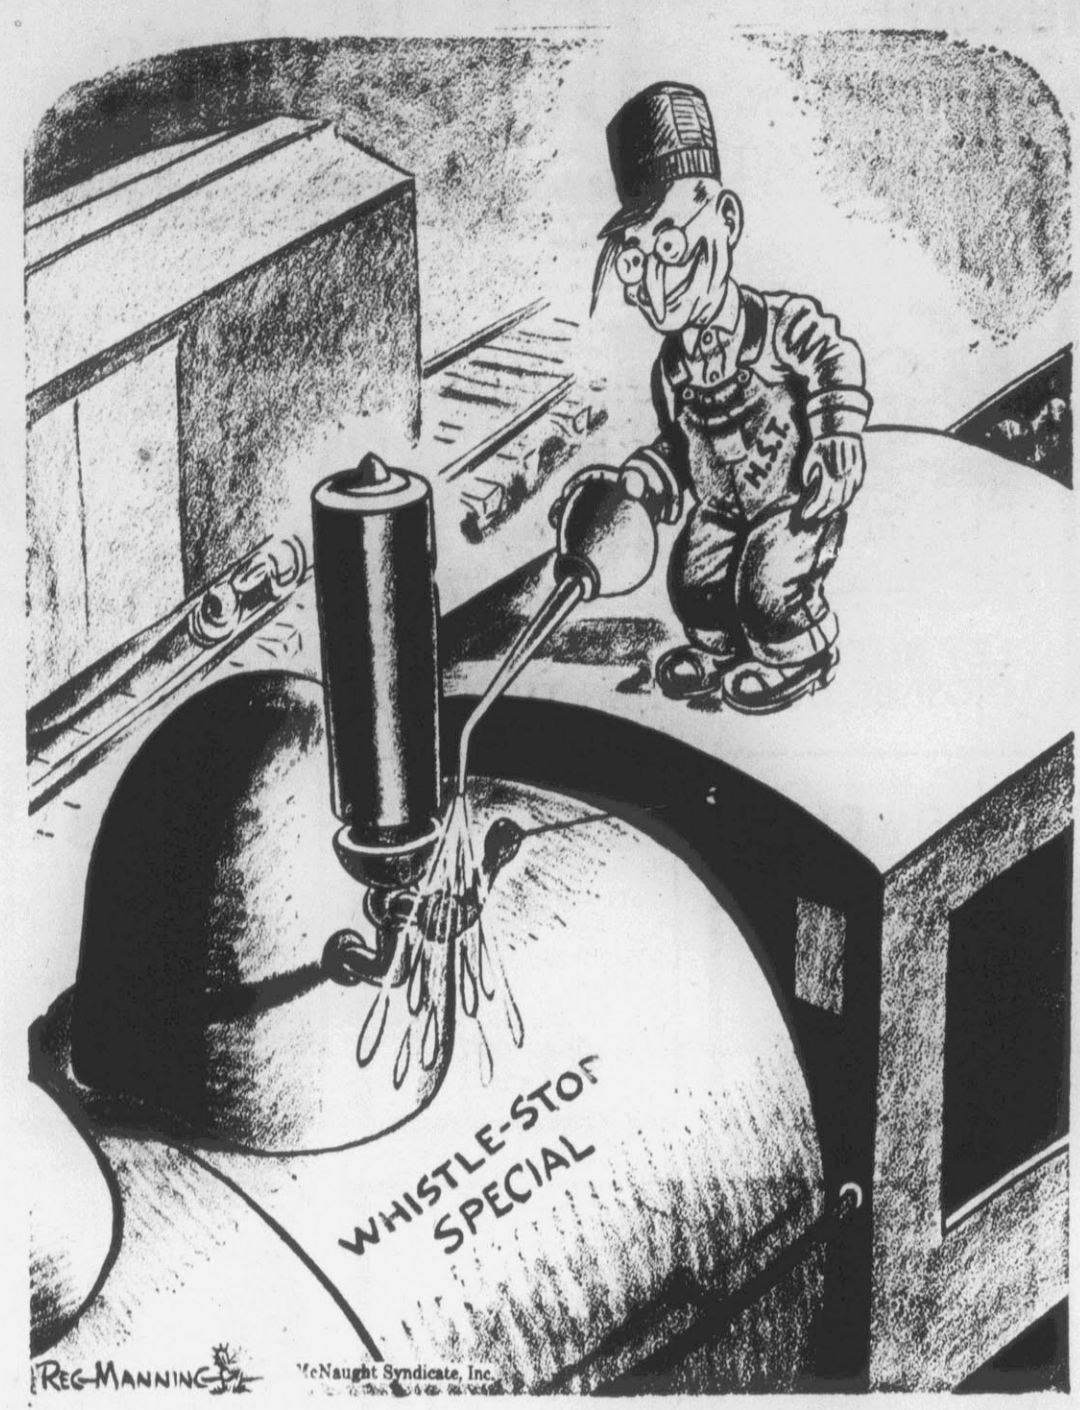

The time has come for the people of Texas and all the Southland to choose between reality and sentiment. Shall we remain "traditionally Democratic" for sentiment's sake, or shall we put the welfare of our state and country before party loyalty?

Shall we remain that political stooge known as the "Solid South" for the New Deal-Fair Deal's intrigues and corruption, or shall we recognize that our Democratic loyalty was originally based on "the sovereign rights of the states, the solemn covenants of treaties, and freedom from political tyranny."

The Mirror's answer to these questions is contained in one sentence:

We shall support Dwight D. Eisenhower for president. The Democratic party has been in power too long for their own and the nation's good. Gov. Adlai Stevenson was Truman's picked candidate and he cannot repudiate the Truman administration. It is basically the same crowd that has brought unparalleled waste, bureaucracy, centralization and corruption to our government.

Wetting His Whistle

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

About three years ago two Greenville doctors (and maybe more that I don't know about) received anonymous letters which read something like this:

"Dear Doctor:
Enclosed you will find $5. You can count on this $5 coming in every month, which you are to use to help those who cannot help themselves.

If possible, this amount will be increased, but $5 will be sure to come."

As one of the nurses in one of the doctor's offices says, "That $5 comes just as regular as the clock ticks, once every month." In accordance with the desires of the mysterious sender the two doctors have used the money to help those who cannot pay. The back of each envelope that contains the $5 bills has been used for writing down a record of how every cent was spent. No doubt Nixon wishes he had such a record!

The touching note in this story is that the sender still remains anonymous, not desiring any recognition for what he is doing! Frankly, I like for people to know it when I help them. It takes a better man to go without even a face-to-face "thank you."

The money has been used for a variety of things, from blood tests to ambulance fees. Two patients have been sent out-of-town to skin specialists, others have been sent to Durham. One afternoon one of the doctors paid for a baby sitter so a patient could be relieved for treatment. The list goes on and on, but in each case every penny has gone for a worthy cause.

The doctors and nurses do want to thank the person, in case he or she might be reading this, for the money. It's another sign that life is worth living.

This would be an excellent chance for the giver of this money to examine the envelopes. He could say that he read this story and would like to see them, not necessarily giving away his identity.

On the other hand, this person is probably not interested in each case, but instead in the overall idea of giving.

And I thank you, too.

Around Capitol Square

INCREASING -- The cost of operating the State Government during the next biennium will be about 25 per cent above the amount appropriated by the current General Assembly for the current period. The 25 per cent increase estimate contemplates that the scope of government services will be approximately the same, and is based upon presentations made by several departments to the Advisory Budget Commission on its first day of open hearings.

None of the really "big spending" agencies were heard, but a sort of pattern was developed as to probable percentage increases. Several departmental spokesmen made it clear that if the next General Assembly assumes larger duties it must also provide sufficient appropriations for the department to perform those duties.

BUDGETING -- The biennial series of budget hearings got off to an auspicious start Monday, despite the absence of Chairman Larry Moore, due to illness, and the slightly delayed appearance of Alonzo Edwards, one of the at-large appointed members. Senator John Larkins Jr., chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, was chosen to act as chairman. On hand were the other members—Harry Caldwell, appointed by the Governor; Senator Hamp Price, chairman of the 1951 Senate Finance Committee, and Rep. Eugene T. Bost Jr., chairman of the House Finance Committee.

SIGNIFICANT -- It was unusual and significant that both the outgoing and incoming Governors were present, and that the incoming Lieutenant Governor also was on hand. Under the budget statutes the outgoing Governor must sign, as director of the budget, the budget report to be presented in the next General Assembly, although its application to the responsibility of the upcoming administration. It is fortunate that Governor Kerr Scott and Governor-nominate William Umstead are both sitting in on as many of these budget hearings as they can find time to attend. It is also fortunate that Lieutenant Governor-nominate Luther Hodges, who will preside over the next Senate, is on hand and that Eugene Bost, who is practically certain to be Speaker of the House in the next Legislature is there as a member of the commission.

OVERLAPPING -- Attendance of these top officials in both the outgoing and incoming administrations is important because of the overlapping of executive-administrative and legislative budgeting periods. The executive administration of Governor Umstead will date from January 1, although he may not take office until a week or so later. The biennial appropriation period for which the 1953 General Assembly will be responsible does not begin until July 1. Actually, the first Legislature convening under a new Governor has a lot to do with appropriations applicable before June 30. The Governor as director of the budget has very large authority, delegated to him by the Legislature, but in final analysis the only real authority over collecting taxes and spending public money is vested in the General Assembly. The Legislature can make appropriations that are retroactive or futuristic—but even the powerful Assembly cannot levy retroactive taxes.

ALERT -- Your reporter could not find time from his multiple duties to stay with the budget commission even for all of its first day of hearings. A couple of hours Monday morning sufficed to prove that the men who are responsible for preparing and applying the budget for the next biennium are taking the responsibility seriously. Scott, Umstead, Hodges and Bost manifested keenly alert interest in even the minor details of presentations, as well as in the overall present and prospective financial condition of the State.

DETAILS -- Judging from questions asked by budgeters and comments by Governor Scott, when Commissioner of Agriculture Ballentine and Auditor Bridges had the floor, there is more attention to detail than to the total scheme. Sentiment seemed to be that if all the little things are properly handled the big deal will come out all right. The questions and comment indicated more interest in why the department needed $1,000 for a particular item, than in the total request for 1 or 3 or three million bucks for the whole job.

SOUND -- Another thing was made crystal clear during the first day of the budget hearings. North Carolina is financially solvent. More than that, the State's fiscal policy and condition is economically sound. That does not mean the State is able to go all the way in providing hand-outs and appropriating money for purposes other than real service to the people. Neither does it mean, as any State employee or taxpayer can testify, that the unprecedented number of dollars in hand and in prospect will buy as much as the same number of dollars would have bought a few years back. It does mean that while reckless spending cannot be justified, the unusually heavy spending of the

Business Today

There may be a scarcity of labor before the end of the year.

Employment in mid-August is estimated by the Census Bureau at 62,350,000 and insured unemployment on August 9 was 1,272,000. The figures are not as favorable as they were in August, 1951, when employment reached a high mark of 62,830,000 and insured unemployment was 1,001,000. However, farm employment is down, partly because of a drift of labor to factories. Non-farm employment in August set a new record of 46,900, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. This was despite the fact that a fourth of the men idled by the steel strike had not yet returned to their jobs.

Thus, if there had no been a drop in farm employment nor a steel strike, the August figure would have set a new high mark. Unemployment may be painful to most of the 1,272,000 persons out of work, but it is a scant pool for industry to draw on. It includes people who have quit to look for better jobs, those between seasonal jobs, moving to other sections of the country and recuperating from illness.

For some time there has been acute shortages of engineers, draftsmen and other highly skilled personnel. Shortages of clerical workers in many large cities have grown acute since Labor Day. In New York some employment agencies are delving offers of jobs because they cannot find competent personnel.

We are now entering the period of the year when jobs increase. There is usually a seasonal upturn in October. Defense work is still rising, and November hiring of mailmen, salespersons, wrappers and shipping personnel begins.

If there are no large coal or other strikes, employers may soon find it difficult to hire other than square pegs.

Two significant points for business men: High employment will insure a high level of retail sales. And firms that will need extra help for the Christmas season had best begin lining up candidates soon.

Wool men challenge claims for synthetic plastics, the wool industry is fighting boasts made for synthetic fibers.

The American Wool Council has asked the Federal Trade Commission to investigate claims made for Dacron, and it is gathering dossiers on claims made for other fibers promoted as substitutes for wool. The Council made it clear that it is not opposed to synthetics as such, but it does object to advertising synthetics as equal to or better than wool when such is not the case. Its complaint alleges that comparisons of Dacron to wool are unfair because, it asserts, the synthetic melts at a touch of tobacco spark and has static qualities that "could be downright dangerous."

Business buying more premiums this year. Sales of premiums to business firms this year will top last year's mark of $1,200,000,000, Frank H. Waggoner, secretary, said at the annual show of the Premium Advertising Association of America.

Some 300 exhibitors displayed 12,000 articles at the show. While most of them were of the give-away type—toys, magic rings and gimmicks—manufacturers reported an increase in self-liquidating premiums—more expensive items that are offered consumers for a low price and a box top.

SHOPPERS OUTWAIT DELIVERING NEC. A Lincoln, Neb., floor-covering store staged what it called a "Chinese sale." It will not repeat it soon.

For one day only it offered a large stock of goods. They went on sale at the regular price and prices were cut each hour, down to 90 per cent during the last hour, after which the remainders were given to charity. Alas, the biggest rush of buyers came in the last hour.

BANK PUBLISHES PAPER FOR NEIGHBORS IN SERVICE. Twice a month since the start of the Korean war, the State National Bank of El Paso, Tex., has published a miniature 4-page newspaper chock full of home town news. It is sent free to El Pasoans in the armed forces. The bank reports that it has won thousands of friends for the bank.

NEW PRODUCTS. FOAM: A silicone-based foam for polishing furniture, metal and woodwork is being offered (by E. L. Bruce Co., Memphis, Tenn.). The push button is said to release a gallon of foam from a 9-ounce aerosol can.

KIT: A kit of materials for making graphs and charts is being marketed (by Chart-Pak, Inc., 104 Lincoln Ave., Stamford, Conn.). It includes plastic board, 28 patterns on pressure-sensitive tapes and accessories for applications, plus instructions for making columnar, bar, line and curve charts.

TIME-SAVER: A machine said to cut, clean and "fan" shrimp in one operation is being made (by Del Mig Co., 1167 E. 11th St., Los Angeles). It is said to cut shrimp uniformly to any desired depth and completely devein them then into the machine.

BAKER: A portable infrared heat panel for baking enamel, processing wood or poster board, and other heating jobs has been developed (by Miskella Infra-Red Co., 7303 Grand Ave., Cleveland 4, Ohio).

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK (AP) — Manhattan is an island where they say the little people have big dreams and the big people have nightmares.

They say it is a place where only success is worshipped—where men wreck their health to get to the top, and then worry themselves to death trying to stay there.

It is sometimes called a shining citadel of discontent, a stone city with a granite soul, where a man's best friend is his psychiatrist.

When I hear critics say things like that about Manhattan, I feel they are like a fellow who goes alone to an amusement park, rides by himself through the "Tunnel of Love" and comes out saying:

"It's a fraud!" To him it was a fraud, but only because he didn't bring along with him what he needed to make the boat ride worthwhile.

Some people come here from elsewhere, dwell reluctantly for a while, then leave it happy in their hatred for it.

This always makes me feel a little sad for I have had a long love affair with New York City, a municipal romance that has brought me much happiness. And I hate to hear anyone run it down, just as I dislike hearing a new acquaintance refer slightingly to someone he hasn't taken the trouble really to understand.

All that is really wrong with Manhattan—the air of rush, the traffic jams, the occasional blunt discourtesies—arise from one thing: It is too crowded. Anyone who can adjust himself to that can love Gotham, and if he can't adjust he really shouldn't come here. Some people just can't be happy in a crowd.

I have learned to look on Manhattan not so much as a city, or a part of a city, but as a human being, pockmarked with faults as any other human being but also gifted with rare talents, virtues and a million different moods to share. It is a wonderful city to walk in, and when I stroll about it I feel like I am having a silent conversation with a long time friend.

The feeling of utter loneliness that afflicts a stranger when he first comes here—I felt that way for many a weary month—wears away if you don't insist on staying lonely. The secret terror that these high canyons will crumble upon you and bury you in the debris of your dreams, passes. They come to exhilarate rather than depress you.

In a life of many friendships I have known no companion more inspiring than Manhattan itself. It can give any man more than he can possibly give it, and if it doesn't give a man what he wants the fault lies in him.

More opportunity, financial or cultural, is shoehorned in its few square miles than anywhere else in the world. Wall Street, elegant Park and 7th Avenue, and a wandering former cowpunch called Broadway are its famous lanes. But every sidestreet is an advanture in contentment or frustration, beauty or ugliness.

It can satisfy every taste, whether you like bebop or Beethoven, a 15-cent hotdog or a quiet $150 luncheon or Armadillo meat for four.

To those who insist life in Manhattan is just a prolonged case of insomnia, there is this answer: "Washington slept here."

And there is no evidence he had to take a sleeping pill.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—Senora Emma de Moya Posas, Honduran journalist and a leader of the Honduran feminist movement, says that only after next December will she be able to sleep nights with no worries.

At that time the women of her country will at long last gain the right to vote, privilege for which she has been fighting since 1948. Outside of Honduras, the only Latin American countries where women no not have suffrage are Nicaragua, Paraguay and Colombia.

"Honduran women missed by only three votes of getting suffrage last year," Senora de Moya Posas, columnist, magazine writer, and radio commentator told me. "When we have suffrage, our chances of being appointed to high office will be better, though we will have to keep fighting to break down the barriers set up by the men."

Since the vivid, bruno beauty speaks only Spanish, our interview was carried on through the help of Daniel Matamoros, cultural attache of the Honduran embassy. He explained the senora had accompanied her husband, Horacio Moya Posas, whose government position corresponds to that of our Attorney General, to enter their daughter Ruth, 16, in Holy Cross Academy here. Senora de Moya Posas said she started a new column for her newspaper, El Dia, dealing with her impressions of the United States.

"Washington for me is historically classic," she mused when I asked what these impressions might be. "For me, it is difficult to understand how it can be the center of such stormy, controversial arguments and remain so serene. All the women in the Americas have faith in Washington as the laboratory where peace will be worked out. Even in Washington, so modern a city, I find the women know how to work hard but at the same time know how to dream."

Senora de Moya Posas said she was proud to have met American women and was returning to Honduras with "great courage and to tell my countrywomen what they have done in public and professional life." She said her husband had been in full accord with her efforts to promote suffrage for Honduran women and had led arguments in his lawyers' association favoring the passing of legislation to assure them the vote.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

OPINIONS OF EDITORS (Henderson Dispatch)

Editors in the South give their composite opinion to The Associated Press that it is a fifty-fifty chance as to whether the Solid South will remain solid in the November election. Editors of North Carolina newspapers give it as their view that this State will certainly go Democratic, as usual. With this latter conclusion in particular there will be general agreement.

As of now, the outlook as expressed is that there will be more Eisenhower votes in North Carolina than for any Republican presidential candidate since 1928, when the State gave its electoral vote to Herbert Hoover as against Al Smith, the Democratic candidate. But convictions of all the editors are that there will not be enough Republican votes to tip the State anywhere dangerously near a reversal of traditional loyalties. This is precisely the view that has been expressed in this department more than once in recent weeks. The Democratic high command can forget North Carolina, should it choose to do so, without any fears or misgivings. It is safe for democracy again.

As for the South as a whole there is not so much assurance. From a number of sources have come predictions that one or two or three Southern States may flip to the GOP standard. That may be true, but for our part we'll have to see the vote tabulations before getting out on that sort of limb. If we had to make a guess, it would be that there will be a much larger Republican vote than at any time since 1928, but in no instance enough to switch a single state in this section of the country. The South will accept the snubs and insults hurled in its direction at last summer's convention and vote as it has been in the habit of doing since Reconstruction, with the single exception noted. At least this is the way it looks at this distance. Editors from all parts of the South contributed to The Associated Press survey, including sections far removed from North Carolina, and where they should be much more familiar with conditions and trends, and with the way the people are thinking.

It may be seriously questioned that there is even a fifty-fifty chance of any Southern State leaving the Democratic party nationally. Upsets may occur, but it will take more than General Eisenhower's recent two-day invasion to bring them about.

WESTPORT LANDING

By Homer Hatten

Chapter 30

There was a smile of harsh satisfaction on his face as Jose charged in. He had hardly expected to be lucky enough to be able to deal out the same treatment Lopez had received, but here was a candidate for that honor running forward to receive it. He waited, crouching a little, until Jose was almost upon him, and then he swung the heavy gun in a terrible upward-sweeping arc that caught Jose just below the left ear. The impact jarred his arms and shoulders, but he felt Jose's skull crack beneath the crushing blow and saw the side of his face change into a bloody, pulpy, shapeless mass as the hard walnut stock tore the flesh from the bone.

Jose stumbled forward a few steps, his knees bucking beneath him, and just as he collapsed Clay swung the gun again so that Jose's head snapped back on his shoulders as fresh blood spurted from the new wound. This time the impetus of his charge had spent itself, and he fell at Clay's feet, his head strangely twisted to one side in the bright pool of blood that gushed from his battered head.

Clay felt a sudden gust of exultation sweep through him. By sheer good luck, and thanks to the unforeseen emergency at the ford, the five men who had opposed him had been reduced to one. The certainty that he was, he would certainly break and run in the instant after Clay had fired and before he could reload. It was not safe to depend on the pistol to deliver the coup de grace—the distance was entirely too far.

Then, suddenly, the solution came to him.

Slipping back down from the crest of the hill, he crawled over to where Jose's mule had fallen. There was Jose's rifle, half hidden in the grass, and here were Jose's powder and rifle balls.

Grimly he loaded both guns, Jose's and his own, and laid his in the grass beside him. He would reserve it for the final shot, for he was used to it and knew it threw low and a little to the left. Jose's was an unknown quantity, but it would serve admirably to lace the canvas wagon cover with rifle balls.

He lifted Jose's gun and fired. A rattled hole appeared in the canvas, but there was no other change. Quickly he reloaded and fired again, this time farther forward, and was rewarded by seeing the front hoop jerk to one side as if someone had lunged against it. He was loading and firing now without taking his eyes from the wagon, for he knew that when Felipe's nerve did break and send him flying into the open there would be only a split second for action before Felipe found new cover.

Then Felipe appeared—a dark, shapeless form that was out of the wagon and into the water in one long, desperate leap. He was scrambling across the ford toward the farther bank, his arms waving wildly to help him maintain his balance as he tried to run through water that was almost breast deep. His head and shoulders were an uncertain target there in the fading light, and Clay held his fire, even though his own rifle was tight against his cheek, his finger trembling on the trigger.

Felipe fought his way forward, and even as far away as he was Clay could hear the gasping breath surging out of his lungs as he fought frantically to reach the farther bank. But it was that bank that was his undoing, for as he gained the shallow water at the edge his body began to come out of the water.

Clay let him go forward until he was only knee deep, only a scant six feet from the bank, before he pressed the trigger. The gun roared once in the silent twilight, its sharp bark like a final and decisive period set down in fire to mark the end of the episode. Felipe staggered as the bullet struck him, half turned as if to return to the wagon, and then collapsed. For a moment there was a swirl and a turmoil of broken ripples and then the water closed above him.

It was done. He dropped the rifle in the soft grass and lifted himself to his feet.

It was time, now, to get the wagon and the mules free of the river mud.

It was time to go back to Westport—back to Sally.

Rocky Marciano KO's Joe Walcott

Rocky Wins Heavyweight Championship By Knocking Out Jersey Joe In 13th Round While Behind On Points

JOE WALCOTT

ROCKY MARCIANO

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — Rocky Marciano, the brand new heavyweight champion, was hailed as another De. today because of his slashing attack that blasted gallant Jersey Joe Walcott into retirement.

Fighting in this same Municipal Stadium where Joe Dempsey lost his crown to Gene Tunney 26 years ago last night, unbeaten Marciano over Brockton, Mass., wrested the crown from 34-year-old Walcott on a knock-out at 43 seconds of the 13th round.

An explosive left jab that followed a setting-up right smashed dusky Joe to the canvas and made the first white heavyweight champion in 15 years by winning his 43rd consecutive professional victory.

The sword, the solar son of a Brockton shoem. For became the first white heavyweight champion in 15 years by winning his 43rd consecutive professional victory.

The left hook did it, the jubilant winner celebrated in his dressing room.

A crowd of 40,379 saw Marciano rise from the canvas in the first round, after his first knockdown of his career, and come through a thrilling fight to victory.

It was a tragic defeat for Walcott in his second defense of his crown.

In the dressing room, manager Felix Bocchicchio announced that Walcott must retire or "fight without my management." Walcott finally said, "I'll have to go along with my manager. He brought me this far. Now we'll go into business."

The exciting brawl attracted a gross gate of $504,845, second largest in Philadelphia's history. It ranked next to the "Brotherly Love" to the $1,044,733 attracted by Demsey and Tunney. A guarantee of $120,000 brought the total receipts (before results of the movie take is known) to $624,645. That would amount to a net of approximately $467,290, and a purse of $186,916 for Walcott and $93,458 for Marciano.

Little Leaguers Open Season With Rousing Game

The Little League football program got underway yesterday at the park with a rousing and tumble game between the Red and Gold teams that featured running, blocking, and passing, with surprising finesse to the enjoyment of a number of spectators present.

Paced by the shifty running of Mack Roebuck and some timely blocking by Ralph Johnson the Red team struck for two first-half touchdowns, then held off a last half threat by the Golds, for a 12-6 triumph.

In the first half Roebuck intercepted a pass in deep Gold territory and scored a minute later on an off tackle play. Late in the second quarter when the Red attack again carried within the Gold 10-yard line, Roebuck slanted off-tackle in a repeat performance to put the Reds ahead 12-0 at the half.

The second half was a different story. The Gold team, led by Klutznick Fisher's driving runs that accounted for several first downs and a 20-yard pass from Dick Evans to Bob Bilbro, marched 60 yards for a third period score. Dick Evans scored on a quarterback sneak from two yards out.

The Gold team controlled the ball most of the second half but couldn't muster a scoring punch.

Del Smith, Bob Taft, Bob Bilbro, and Leonard Topping were defensive standouts for the Gold team.

For the Reds, Joe Mow, Lawrence Perkins, Butch Roberts, Ralph Johnson, and Louis Arthur showed up well on defense.

Phantoms Drill For Home Opener Against Kinston

By WAYNE BISHOP

The Greenville Phantoms went through a long scrimmage session at Guy Smith Stadium yesterday as they began applying the finishing touches to their preparations for the Kinston Red Devils. The Devils will come to Greenville Friday night for a game in College Stadium.

Chief item in the drills was the introduction of some new plays which will be used for the first time Friday. The plays are designed to fill gaps discovered in last week's 20-13 loss to Hertford.

During the scrimmage session, quarterback Pat Sawyer and halfback Bobby Perry took top honors on the offensive platoon. Sawyer did some smooth ball handling while Perry broke away for considerable gains on several occasions.

Defensively, the honors went to tackle Tommie Smith and end Harold Edwards. Both did top-notch jobs.

Preceding the scrimmage session, the backs were sent through their paces on the new plays while the linemen brushed up on their blocking assignments.

Two new players were tried at quarterback yesterday in an effort to fill the gap created by the injury to Bobby Langston. Jerry Phillips, a quarterback on last year's junior varsity squad, and Doug Morgan, a fullback, both worked out at quarterback and will see some action this weekend. Sawyer, however, is still the team's top field general and will start against the Devils unless unforeseen incidents occur.

The game with Kinston will be the first home game of the year for the Phantoms and their second Northeastern Conference game. The first league contest was a 6-0 win over Edenton.

Dodgers Cinch Flag With 5-4 Victory Over Phils

By CARL LUNDQUIST

United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—Charley Dressen, the chipper skipper nursed a victory highball after lifting it high in toast to his Brooklyn Dodgers today and then added a special tribute—"to Joe Black."

"Without him we couldn't have done it," he said. "He made the big difference."

The situation was reminiscent of 1947 when another manager toasted another Joe—and it was remarkably parallel. That was when Eucy Harris of the Yankees lifted his after-game drink to Joe Page, who like Black was a fireball relief pitcher delegated to the saving of victory after victory.

Dressen, quiet and in no search of revelry after the pennant-clinching decision over the Phillies, sat in his dressing cubicle long after the druggy doubleheader and talked nothing but baseball.

"This was an amazing year and we had an amazing team without a 20-game winner and with Black the only 15-game man," he said. "But this time we showed we had it in the clutch and I think we'll also have it in the clutch in the world series—against the Yankees or the Indians."

Dressen hedged a little from his earlier plans and acting like a man who suddenly had struck out in about three localities at once, said that "I've got plenty of pitchers for the series."

"I think I can say definitely that for the first game it will be Joe Black, Carl Erskine, or Preacher Roe," he said—very definitely.

The Dodgers gained their first flag since 1949 and their sixth in modern National League history, when they topped the Phils, 5 to 4, in a first game thriller last night in which Duke Snider significantly double home the two winning runs. For it was Snider who drove home their "pennant" run when they took the title in Philadelphia on the last day of the season in 1949.

The Dodgers, who couldn't un-cork their champagne in earnest until after the second game of the double bill, had to battle 12 innings before losing a 1 to 0 anti-climax decision to lefty Curt Simmons. The game was important to the Phils, who are battling for third place.

In the American League, the Yankees were rained out and the Indians were almost closed out in the battle for the flag when they blew a 10 to 1 decision to the White Sox. Mike Garcia was whacked for five runs in the first inning and Cleveland never had a chance thereafter. Chicago scored three runs before he retired a batter. He walked Al Carrasquel to start the game and Nellie Fox bunted safely. Minnie Minoso, trying to sacrifice, was safe on a wild throw and Eddie Robinson blooped a two-run single. A double by Tom Wright scored Minoso and Robinson scored on a fly after which Rocky Kramich singled home the fifth run. Kramich later drove in two more runs with a single and Sherman Lollar hit a three run homer.

Bob Cain scattered eight hits—one a home run by Matt Batts—as the Browns beat the Tigers, 3-1, in an American League night game and Stan Musial smashed three hits to lift his league-leading batting average to .336 as the Cardinals beat the Reds, 4 to 3 in a modern National League history, when they topped the Phils, 5 to 4, in a first game thriller last night in which Duke Snider significantly double home the two winning runs. For it was Snider who drove home their "pennant" run when they took the title in Philadelphia on the last day of the season in 1949.

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — Dr. Hilarian Gopadze, team physician of the Philadelphia Athletics, predicted today that Bobby Shantz' broken arm "will be as good as new" when he resumes pitching next spring.

"Any effects of his injury will be temporary," Dr. Gopadze said. "If he had suffered the injury during the middle of the season he would have been able to resume pitching in about six weeks."

Shantz, a 24-game winner and strong candidate for "Player of the Year" honors, suffered a complete fracture of the ulna bone about four inches above his left wrist when hit by a pitched ball thrown by Walt Masterson of the Washington Senators yesterday. He will be lost to the team for the remainder of the season.

ROBERSONVILLE — "I thought we looked pretty good," said Coach Bob Lee cautiously. "The downhill blocking and the line blocking was much improved over our early season practice game against La Grange."

The Robersonville Rams downed Contentnea High last week 34-7 in a practice game.

This week the Rams get their first real test of the season when they take on the Coastal Conference champion Ayden Tornados at Robersonville.

Coach Lee used his reserves freely in last week's one-sided affair and several sophomores and freshmen showed great promise.

Marshall Kilpatrick, 120-pound sophomore newcomer, looked good in the Rams' running attack. Clinton House displayed some fine play diagnosis and played an excellent defensive game.

Billy Warren, who scored on a 35-yard run and caught a touchdown pass against Contentnea, has continued to look good in practice.

Dan Clark and Sonny James will be depended on for a large part of the offensive burdens against Ayden.

Duke Stars Have Knee Troubles

DURHAM—Two regulars on the 1951 football team, quarterback Jerry Barger of Salisbury and guard Jim Logan of Asheville, sustained knee injuries, Barger in the final game with North Carolina and Logan during spring drills and underwent operations. # Annual Coastal Conference Meet Scheduled Here

President Morris S. Clary, District Principal of South Edgecombe Schools, will preside over after-dinner discussions directed mainly toward interpretation and clarification of the new rules set forth by North Carolina High School Athletic Association.

Another subject expected to be brought up at the meeting is the annexation of additional schools to the conference.

Basketball and baseball schedules for 1953-54 will be worked out or committees appointed for the purpose.

New Conference officers will be elected for the 1952-53 season.

Farmville Red Devils, cheered by their 34-0 victory over South Edgecombe last week, went through spirited drills in preparation for this week's contest against Snow Hill.

Jimmie Allen, who plays any position line or backfield on defense, has been showing up well in practice sessions.

Billy Ellis, reserve quarterback, served notice that he will be ready to take over at the quarterback post when Charlie Fitzgerald graduates. After piling up a commanding lead against South Edgecombe, Fitzgerald and his first teammates gave way to Ellis and the second team, who at times appeared to operate almost as well as the starting unit.

Billy Baker, Mark Owens, freshman guards, and Mac Holmes, freshman fullback, showed plenty of promise and will likely see some action against Snow Hill.

Jack Lewis, junior tackle, and B. L. Bateman, freshman tackle, played an outstanding defensive game last week and have continued to look

Pirates Hold Long Drills For Big Test With Bears

An hour-long scrimmage session followed by an intensive drill on pass defense highlighted yesterday's gridiron workout for the East Carolina College Pirates as they picked up the tempo of their drills for Saturday's game at Lenoir-Rhyne.

The scrimmage took place on the turf in College Stadium with teams alternating in carrying the ball against a defensive line-up selected by Line Coach Clyde Biggers. Head Coach Jack Boone directed the offensive teams.

Changes were made frequently in both line-ups but some individuals made outstanding contributions while they were in the game. Dick Cherry, the freshman quarterback from Washington handled the offensive team while on one touchdown march and looked good in the quarterbacking position. Buddy Canady and Illard Yarborough both turned in some good running from their backfield posts.

On defense, ends Dwight Shoe and Bobby Hodges and linebacker Algie Faircloth were the outstanding men. Shoe, an All-Conference end, stopped plays running at his right end position while Hodges did the same things to plays directed toward his left end post. The tactics of Shoe and Hodges drove the ball up the middle where Faircloth did the racking.

In the past defense drill, Coach Boone changed men frequently in an effort to find a combination which will stop the passes of Lenoir-Rhyne's Bill Crement weakness last weekend when they let the Newport News Apprentice School complete passes almost at will during the game which the Pirates won 37-6.

Minor injuries kept two of the Bucs from taking part in yesterday's work. Jim Stanley, halfback from Washington who scored on a 38-yard run Saturday night, was in tight gear because of a chest condition resulting from a cold. End Bob

Grifton Property Given For New Recreation Area

GRIFTON The newly appointed recreation commission in Grifton has begun plans for a Grifton Recreation Center following the donation of property for such a project by three citizens.

W.H. Gower, chairman of the commission which was appointed September 8, said yesterday that work would begin in the newly developed Dogwood Park section of the town on a recreation park and center as soon as the commission met.

He disclosed that 18 lots, measuring 450 feet by 150 feet, all together in Dogwood Park had been donated by Howell P. Rasberry and lots two-thirds that size adjoining the Rasberry property had been donated by Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Williams for a recreation area.

The congregation of the Christian Church were hosts at the party, during which time they expressed their appreciation for the work that Miss Gray has done in the local church and their pride in her choice of a vocation.

Guests were greeted at the door by Miss Gray and Mrs. R. J. Langley. Mrs. David Grimes Jr. presided at the register, which had been handpainted by Mrs. Hugh Roberson.

Mrs. William Gray presided at the punch bowl, where the guests were served a refreshing drink, cookies and salted nuts.

On behalf of the Christian Women's Fellowship Mrs. Jab Roberson presented Miss Gray with a copy of the Revised Version of the Bible, while Mrs. James M. Perry, on behalf of the Royal Bearer's Class, gave her a leather brief case as a remembrance from them.

After these presents were unwrapped a large basket was brought in, which contained a rug, a blanket, a flashlight, handkerchiefs, money, bath powder, stationery, hose, wearing apparel, costume jewelry, cosmetics, an alarm clock and a great variety of other useful articles.

The refreshment table was centered with a bowl of iced lilies, which had been arranged by Mrs. John Gray Taylor and Mr. and Mrs. William D. Sanford. They also were responsible for the vases of other flowers which were used to decorate the basement rooms. Miss Gray was given a wristlet of yellow gladioli and her mother, Mrs. William Gray, had a lavender corsage.

Following her graduation from Mary Washington College, Miss Gray taught in Quincy, Florida, for one year. She was a psychiatric aide in the Institute of Living at Hartford, Connecticut, for about 12 months, after which she was employed by the Department of Agriculture in Raleigh as a seed analyst.

By MARTHA S. FORBES

The most illusive thing in the world is tomorrow; the most irrevocable is yesterday. And yet we always have yesterdays and tomorrows intruding themselves upon our thoughts.

If a moment, an hour, a day which has passed cannot be recalled, and if we never attain our tomorrows, then when do we live?

We live one day, one moment, at the time. We can achieve things only during the hour which is surrounding us now. It is wise to plan for the future, but only the foolish ones lose themselves in dreams of days to come at the expense of making the most of today.

We must give some consideration to our past actions and deeds in order to make of them stepping stones for the life ahead, but we cannot escape the reality of the present by dwelling in the past.

Because we do not know what lies ahead or what circumstances will control our future, we must live each moment for all it is worth, thus adding to the past and building security for the future.

We live one day at the time when we learn to spend less than we earn. That practise will build up for us financial reserves which will help to alleviate so many of the worries that beset and bedevil us.

It will relieve us of the concern as to "what we shall eat, what we shall drink, what we shall wear." Fretting over such mundane affairs takes much of our time that could be spent more constructively.

We live one day at the time when we learn to pull our own weight with some left over to spare for others. Doing our duty and discharging our responsibilities day by day will keep them from piling up into frightening mountains that loom so large when viewed from the perspective of what lies ahead.

When we learn to throw things off rather than letting them stick like burrs to rankle and irritate us, we will master, in a large measure, the art of relaxing and unwinding our tensions. By not anticipating our worries, fears and boredoms, we will find each day easier and more enjoyable, and every passing hour will add to the pleasure of living.

We live one day at the time in fuller measure when we learn to respect human personality and make friends and be friends. Nothing adds to the happiness of each day like pleasant friendships which deepen and ripen with the passage of time.

Life is beautiful when we take time to absorb the things of natural beauty which surround us. In every growing thing, in every rock or flowing stream, there is quiet restfulness and strength to be found to aid us in recouping our lagging spirits and tired emotions.

To live one day at the time to the fullest and richest extent, we must learn to let our admirations rather than our disgusts rule our thoughts and actions. The habit of seeking the good and worthwhile is as easily cultivated as the habit of discontent and fault finding, and it is so much more pleasant to abide.

Because none of us knows when the final day will come, we must be glad to live but not afraid to die. The fear of death is so ever-present in the consciousness of some people that they cannot enjoy life that is in their grasp. Living each day unto itself, letting tomorrow come as it will, and squeezing every drop of goodness and joy from each task or pleasure will give each of us more contentment and happiness.

If we knew that today was our last one on earth, what would we do? Let us use each day as though there were no tomorrows, and we will find peace as evening folds its curtains about the earth.

Lovett Reveals Plane Output Up

HOUSTON, Tex. (UP)—Secretary of Defense Robert A. Lovett toured military bases in Texas today after declaring that the nation's aircraft output in the last three months had surpassed all U. S. losses in Korea.

Lovett said production of all military supplies had increased 660 per cent since the Korea war started in June, 1950. He said plane production had risen to the point where production in the last three months was greater than all combat losses and destruction from other causes in Korea since fighting there began.

He added that there was nothing in current world conditions "which would justify the slightest relaxation" of the nation's defense effort.

Urge Nixon Stay On GOP Ticket

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UP)—The nation's first Eisenhower for President club urged today that Sen. Richard M. Nixon remain the Republican vice presidential nominee.

The club, in Wyandotte County 7th dist., wired Dwight D. Eisenhower that Nixon is a "fighting American." After listening to Nixon's speech last night, the 400 members of the club joined in the statement: "We have heard his explanation. We believe in his integrity."

The club originally announced its support of Eisenhower on Sept. 25, 1947.

Actress Admits Being 'Stupid' In Red Dealings

WASHINGTON (UP)—Judy Holliday, movie dom's famous "dumb blonde," has told Senate investigators she was "more than slightly stupid" about Communist-front organizations, it was disclosed today.

In a secret hearing last March, the actress said she was so upset about finding herself called a "Red" in newspapers she hired investigators to investigate herself because "I wanted to know what I had done."

But Ives, folk song singer, also was quizzed by the Senate internal security subcommittee in his inquiry into possible Communist influence on the entertainment industry. Both and Miss Holliday denied any intentional Red affiliations.

For Judy, it was a command performance of the "dumb blonde" role that won her the Academy Award in the movie "Born Yesterday," but this time she played it in dead earnest.

She admitted she had unwittingly contributed to some subversive organizations that seemed to be aiding "hard-luck" causes.

"When I was solicited I always simply said, 'Oh, isn't that too bad. Sure, it's my name,'" she told the subcommittee.

She said she didn't suspect the organizations were subversive and never checked up on them at the time.

Her self-investigation brought shocking revelations, she said.

"I have had my eyes opened like they have never been opened in the last year."

"I have been awakened to a realization that I have been irresponsible and slightly more than slightly—stupid."

Miss Holliday, Ives, Sam Levenson, television comedian, and Philip Loeb, a New York actor, all testified last spring before the subcommittee, which is investigating subversive infiltration of radio, television and the entertainment industry. All said they never knowingly affiliated with any communist movement.

Chairman Pat McCarran (D-Nev.) made their testimony public today and in an accompanying statement urged entertainers to be "everlastingly on guard" against pro-Communist affiliations.

paid, the net debt will be $208,485,000. It is recalled that the 1947 General Assembly set aside enough money to pay off the then outstanding general fund bonded debt. At that time the highway bond sinking account and anticipated yield of gasoline taxes made the highway debt negligible. The 1949 Legislature issued on its own authority and by authorizing popular votes, $32.5 million in general fund bonds and $200 million in highway bonds. The highway bonds—secondary road-issue carried a one cent a gallon gasoline tax to pay it off. That tax is now yielding about $10 million a year against the average bond redemption need of $12 million. Meantime interest collected by the state on sinking fund and temporary cash balances is going a long way toward caring for the general fund bond carrying charges. So the total picture works out to about this kind of showing: At present rate of increasing tax yields and interest on sinking fund and other idle State money, within about two years the State bonded debt will be "carrying itself" without requirement for appropriations from then current revenue to pay interest on or retire outstanding bonds.

Monk Will Conduct Retreat This Week

Father Lc. Stevens, Episcopal monk of the Order of the Holy Cross, will arrive in Greenville Thursday night to visit East Carolina College and conduct a retreat for college students on the Pamlico River.

Marketing Care In Cotton Urged

Pitt County cotton growers were warned today by Farm Agent Sam Winchester to be extremely careful in marketing their product this fall.

"Producers must know their cotton if they expect to realize the highest market price," the farm agent said. "It is important they know the exact classification as to grade and staple of each bale."

Average prices for one-and-one-thirty-seconds of an inch staple on the U. S. Department of Agriculture on September 8, 1952, are: strict middling, 41.48 cents per pound; middling, 40.81 cents per pound; and strict low middling, 38.87 cents per pound.

Winchester declared farmers should ask their ginners to sample each bale for Smith-Doxey classification and find out what the particular grade and staple of each should bring.

"To receive the highest possible price, growers should also get several bids on their cotton before selling," the farm agent added.

Band Is Selected For Benefit Ball

JEAN TERRY

Advance sale of tickets is now being prepared and can be bought at a saving to the purchaser. Advance sale tickets will go for $1.50 each while at the door the price will be $2.00.

The arrival of Hudson in Greenville will mark his first appearance in this section in some time.

"MILES PER GALLON" is something everyone talks about—and Buick owners take pride in telling us that they're doing OK on this score.

But the kind of miles is important too. The real pay-off you get when you own a Buick is in what happens while you're turning gas into power.

Every drop of gas sets off a tiny tornado of compacted energy in Buick's Fireball 8 Engine.

You swoop from a standing start to any speed the law or good sense permits with effortless smoothness, thanks to Dynaflo Drive.*

You soar over the road with magnificent levelness—buoyed by big soft coil springs on every wheel—coddled by a dozen other features which make up Buick's million dollar ride.

The car holds direction like an airliner on the beam. You snug into turns with sure-footed poise—ease your grip on the steering wheel and feel the car seek a straight course again like a compass points to the pole.

This is travel as you've always hoped to find it—relaxed, carefree, luxurious, happy—while you leave the miles behind.

Yes indeed—life's different in a Buick. How different you should find out firsthand.

How about letting us give you a sample—any day you say?

Equipment, accessories, trim and models are subject to change without notice. *Standard on Roadmaster, optional at extra cost on other Series.
