Pitt Commissioners Find Constableship In Dispute

Will Call Special Meeting To Unravel Mix-Up Over Ayden Township Post; Fountain School District Tax Levy Resolution Passes; Road Petitions Approved

By JESS POINDEXTER
Reflector City Editor

Well now, let's see; who's going to be constable of Ayden township?

Judging from information offered at yesterday's regular meeting of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners, the commissioners do not know — but they're calling a special meeting in the near future to decide.

The controversy over the office evidently arose recently, after the board at its September meeting appointed Roy Stokes constable of Ayden township to replace Horace McLawhorn, who had reportedly resigned.

Discussion has it that last Summer, McLawhorn went to Canada to cure tobacco for severa weeks. While he was away, and with the understanding he had resigned, the board of commissioners appointed Stokes to fill his position.

No Intention

Yesterday, in company with Stokes and Church Moore, justice of the peace in Ayden township, McLawhorn appeared before the board of commissioners and stated he had not resigned and had entertained no intention of doing so in the near future.

Justice of the Peace Moore said he had no recommendation to offer either way, but inferred that Stokes has not as yet had time to show his ability. Stokes was appointed by the board of commissioners September 1.

After consultation with W.W. Speight, county attorney, the board agreed to hold a special called meeting to decide the issue. In the meantime, Stokes is to remain as Ayden township constable. Stokes has already qualified and posted bond.

Fountain School

The board passed a resolution regarding a special school tax levy election in Fountain School District. The report on the balloting was certified September 20, 1952, and recorded 69 persons voting in favor of the levy, 15 against the levy and eight persons registered but not voting.

The resolution read in effect, that a special tax of 10 cents be levied on all property in Fountain District to provide supplemental funds with which to operate schools in Fountain School District on a higher standard than that provided by State support, or to employ additional support, or to employ additional vocational teachers, or both, for a term of not more than 180 school days.

Authorities at the courthouse said that since the election was held after the county revenue budget was made up last Summer, the special tax cannot be levied during the current fiscal year, but will go into effect in 1953.

Travel Expense

The board of commissioners approved travel expense of $50 per month for Pitt County Health Officer W.C. Humbert as allowance for necessary trips with the exceptions of journeys to associations or meetings.

F.E. Taylor, representative of Virginia Electric Power Company, came before the board with a request for an "easement", so his company may cross the Greenville airport property and tie-in with the Greenville Utilities Commission's plant across Tar River.

Board Chairman F.F. Hendrix appointed a committee to meet jointly with the Greenville Airport Commission and the Greenville Board of Aldermen to discuss the proposition. The airport property is owned jointly by the city and county.

W.H. Watson, Greenville attorney, appeared before the board with a request that the local art club be allowed use of the two rooms in the armory recently vacated when the local Veteran's Administration office was moved to New Bern. Watson said the city

Two-Time Loser

MOBILE, Ala. (UP) — Mrs. Leamon Pullens, 33, is still losing races with the stork but she's narrowing the margin.

Six years ago Mrs. Pullen's husband and a friend started her to the hospital but they got only half way before the baby was born in the car.

Last night it was again time to rush the expectant mother to the hospital ten miles away. Pullen raced into the parking lot at City Hospital. But before he could compliment himself on winning the race, he was yelling for help.

A doctor and nurses delivered a seven-pound girl on the back seat of the family's 1941 sedan.

"When my wife has a baby, she doesn't waste any time," the father observed.

Iran Again Ready To Talk Oil Deal

Mossadegh Drops Threat To Sever Relations With Britain

TEHRAN, Iran (UP) —Premier Mohammed Mossadegh did an about-face today. He dropped his threat to sever diplomatic relations with Britain and instead readied an offer to resume negotiations with London for settlement of their oil dispute.

Authoritative sources said Mossaidgh is preparing notes for delivery later this week to Britain and the United States expressing Iran's appreciation for the goodwill shown him and declaring willingness to reopen oil talks.

They said Mossadegh will invite Britain to send a third mission to Iran to conduct the negotiations. Two British missions and one American went to Tehran last year in a futile attempt to arrange a settlement.

This represented a complete turnabout for Mossadegh. As recently as last week, he had threatened to break off diplomatic relations with Britain unless the British yielded by Saturday to his demands for settlement on Iran's terms.

When the British failed to meet his deadline Saturday, Mossadegh went to bed with a fever. The Anglo American notes finally arrived Sunday and they complete ignored Mossadegh's demands, instead renewing the Churchill-Truman proposals of last August.

These called for early reopening of the oil talks and World Court arbitration of claims from both sides resulting from Iran's nationalization of the Iranian properties of the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Co.

Again Close To $1 Million Sale

A total sale of 1,669,222 pounds of tobacco on the Greenville tobacco yesterday brought farmers in this area $950,210.51. Average price was $56.93.

Sales Supervisor W. L. Whedbee said this morning the quoted figures represent every pound of tobacco sold on all warehouse floors, including green, damaged, non-descript, sun-baked and scalded tobacco.

During the last six days the Greenville market has sold 7,738,834 pounds of tobacco for $4,179,100.53, an average price of $54 per hundred pounds.

"That figure likewise represents all tobacco sold and contains no inflated or misleading figures," Whedbee declared. "Those figures will check pound for pound and dollar for dollar with government figures."

Lesser Charge Is Accepted Against Socie By State

Porcelli Charged With First Degree Murder; Special Venire Is Drawn

Hushed spectators in Pitt County Superior Court this afternoon heard Herman J. Socie tender a plea of guilty to accessory before the fact in the murder of Greenville Policeman Jesse Mills, and the plea was accepted by the state.

Immediately following the state's acceptance of Socie's plea of guilty, attorneys for Fredrick L. Porcelli tendered a plea of guilty to the same charge, but Solicitor W. J. Bundy declined the plea.

In regard to Socie, Bundy said, "We have given the case careful consideration and by virtue of the fact Socie was on top of a building and did not do the shooting the state will accept a guilty plea to the lesser charge."

Charge First Degree

"However, in the case of Porcelli, the boy who allegedly pulled the trigger, the state cannot afford to accept the same plea and thus, declines," the solicitor stated. Porcelli will go on trial today charged with the first degree murder of the Greenville policeman.

Porcelli's attorneys requested that a special venire of 75 jurors be drawn to supplement the regular panel. Judge William T. Hatch so ordered and at 12:40 this afternoon Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson brought in boxes and drawing of the special venire began.

Solicitor Bundy suggested that in view of the fact that Mills was originally from Chicod township, no jurors be drawn from the Chicod box. That was agreed upon.

Stroke Of Noon

Both prisoners, Socie, 19, and Porcelli, 20, were brought from Pitt County jail into the courtroom on the stroke of noon. The two youthful Marines were clean-shaven and dressed informally in open-necked sport shirts.

Pre-trial deliberations between the solicitor for the state and defense attorneys were cloaked in secrecy this morning, because the prosecution and defense conferred behind closed doors. The trial had been expected to open early this morning.

Both Socie and Porcelli appeared outwardly calm during proceedings this afternoon and talked freely in low tones with their attorneys. Porcelli's sister from New Jersey sat immediately behind him when the pair was first brought into court.

Family In Court

It was not determined early this afternoon whether Socie's family was present, but members of the slain police officer's family were in the courtroom.

The bar before the judge's bench was crowded with attorneys, law enforcement officers and members of the press, but the crowd in the courtroom itself did not reach the capacity previously predicted by authorities.

The entire courtroom was wreathed in shadow, because dim lights from the roof failed to completely dissipate the feeble light that penetrated shuttered windows. Outside the courthouse, a dark and cloudy sky fanned down a damp mist of rain on potential jurors and spectators after court was adjourned for the morning.

It was not known early this afternoon when the state will begin presentation of its evidence against Porcelli, who, according to state statute, must plead not guilty to the capital charge of murder in the first degree.

Life Sentence Mandatory

And, thus far, Judge Hatch has not stated specifically when Socie will be sentenced but said this afternoon a sentence of life imprisonment is mandatory for a plea of guilty to the charge of accessory before the fact of murder.

Adlai Says Ike Doing Disservice

Claims Charge Of War-Born Prosperity Is Giving Comfort To Russia

SAGINAW, Mich. (UP)— Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson accused Dwight D. Eisenhower today of giving comfort to Russia with charges that American prosperity is based on a war economy.

The Democratic presidential candidate, who today entered what his aides have hinted will be a new and harder-hitting phase of the campaign, hurled the charge at Eisenhower in a speech prepared for delivery here.

"There is no greater disservice the Republican candidate could do America in its world role than to suggest that our economic strength here at home is a war prosperity," the Illinois governor said.

"When the general speaks of our prosperity as being war-born, who can gain comfort except the Soviets, who shout to the world that we have undertaken our defense program, not to insure peace but to prevent a depression at home by waging war abroad?" Stevenson asked.

Stevenson, who recently said "there is a great temptation" to base his campaign on prosperity under 20 years of Democratic rule, today said "it looks as though" the GOP planned "an economy in which a handful of insiders get lamb chops and the great mass of Americans get the paper jackets on the end bones."

Tonight, at Detroit, Stevenson has scheduled one of his most important addresses, a 30-minute talk over CBS radio and television on the explosive issue of the Communist menace, at home and abroad.

He is expected, among other things, to answer Republican charges of Communist infiltration into the State Department and criticisms of his own relations with Alger Hiss, former State Department official convicted of perjury in connection with Red spy activities.

The blunt attack against Eisenhower in the Saginaw speech was in line with predictions by Stevenson aides that the Illinois governor would begin to swing harder and harder in the closing weeks of the campaign.

"Who can be dismayed by such talk except our hard-pressed allies who know that another American depression would lead to their ruin?" he said of Eisenhower's "false prosperity" charges.

Referring to the fact that Eisenhower as a five-star general in command of European defense forces had an important role in carrying out bi-partisan foreign policy, Stevenson said:

"We expect this kind of talk from irresponsibles and isolationists. But not from a man who was formerly looked upon as an understanding leader in world affairs."

To repudiate the war-economy speeches of his rival, Stevenson said the country has maintained a high standard of living since the outbreak of the Korean war "not because of it" but because great productive power has enabled the country to meet the additional burden.

He drew a dismal picture of what would happen if the Republicans controlled the nation's economy. He said the Republicans talk about a "sound dollar" and recalled that "it got so sound in 1933 that it closed every bank in this country."

Within Rights To Keep Silent While On TV

WASHINGTON (AP)—A judge has ruled that a man is within his rights if he refuses to testify before television and newsreel cameras.

In his precedent-setting decision yesterday, Federal District Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut decided that two men who cited the cameras as their reason for not testifying before the old Senate Crime Investigating Committee were innocent of charges of contempt of Congress.

Freed of the charges were Morris Kleinman and Louis Rothkopf, described as important Cleveland bootleggers.

Schweinhaut's decision is not subject to appeal. It is possible, however, that another judge might rule differently in a similar case. The judge noted that his ruling was the first in history on the question.

France Plans To Oppose Action On Protectorate

PARIS (UP)—The French Cabinet decided today to fight any "interference" by the United Nations Assembly in the internal affairs of its African protectorates.

The decision, reached at a special meeting, may cause a bitter fight in the assembly starting Oct. 14 in New York over the demands of Arab nationalists in Tunisia and French Morocco for a greater measure of self-rule.

The United States has strongly counseled the government in recent days not to fight the conference of the U. S. in the issue and to agree to a full, open debate of French rule in North Africa.

Twelve Thousand Reds Hit Allied Lines Across Korea

Screaming Chinese Attack In Waves; Artillery Barrage 'Deafening'; Seize Seven Scattered Positions; No Indication Of Full-Scale Operation By Enemy

SEOUL, Korea (UP) — Twelve thousand screaming Chinese Communists, smashing at United Nations lines across most of the battlefront, seized seven positions today from hard - fighting Allied ground soldiers.

Two-thirds of the 155-mile battlefront flared into violent action last night as the Reds began a series of 35 separate attacks, the heaviest of the year, from the western sector to the east-central front.

"They attacked in waves and waves, shouting and shooting wildly in every direction," said one officer "The artillery was deafening."

The heaviest Communist effort of the day came northwest of Chorwon at Arrowhead Ridge and Whitehorse Mountain, where two regiments—about 6,000 men—used 30 tanks, self-propelled guns and intense artillery and mortar fire in an attempt to dislodge U.N. soldiers.

The Reds even opened the sluice gates at Pongnae Lake in the ope of cutting off allied positions encircled by the Yokkok River.

The roll call of the embattled hills contained such well - known names as Bunker, Big Nori, Finger Ridge, Capitol, Stay Fight and Tessie. With the exception of a knob on Finger Ridge, however, the U.N. repulsed attacks on these major points.

United Press correspondent Warren Franklin reported from the Whitehorse-Arrowhead area northwest of Chorwon that 64 U.N. warplanes attacked Chinese troops in the Arrowhead sector 15 times.

The Allied pilots dropped a total of 33 tons of bombs and 3,000 pounds of jellied gasoline and fired hundreds of rockets into enemy jump-off positions.

Chinese anti - aircraft guns unleashed what an Air Force officer told Franklin was "the heaviest barrage that we've seen along the front in Korea in more than a year."

Franklin said that in mid-afternoon enemy shells were falling at a two-per-minute rate on allied left flank northwest of Chorwon. A company-sized Communist attack north of Chorwon was repulsed during the afternoon, he said.

Using battalions of 800 men as though they were platoons, the Reds exploded their series of attacks like gigantic firecrackers.

Allied officers said they had no immediate explanation for the Red assaults. However, there was no indication they were the forerunner of any full-scale operation by the Reds.

Warehouse Loss Barely Averted By Quick Alarm

Flames Seen Under Floor; Spread Fast, But Promptly Controlled

By ROY HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

Two alert Greenville night policemen were credited this morning with the prevention of a serious fire in the tobacco town business district, when they found a local warehouse on fire.

The Dixie Warehouse, Tenth and Clark streets, was discovered on fire in the basement by a cruising police prowl car at 2:13 this morning.

At that time, police officers Lt. R. W. Harris and Patrolman J. B. Cannon reported that a small patch of yellow flames could be seen mushrooming from beneath the warehouse floor.

A radio alarm was relayed to the Fire Department who arrived on the scene minutes later.

Four trucks from the station answered the two alarms which were turned in from the fire.

Covering Basement

However, by the time the fire fighters arrived, the blaze had begun to spread all over the basement and was rapidly eating its way along the under part of the floor, filling the basement with glowing flames. A portion of the flames had broken through the floor above.

Firemen using booster lines from the first truck to arrive, halted the spread of the flames until two large hose lines could be stretched to the fire from a nearby fire hydrant.

Once the large lines began to play on the fire, it was soon brought under control and the danger to the area eased.

Fire Chief George Gardner stated that had the fire not been discovered by the officers when it was that, five minutes later the fire would have advanced so that it could not have been stopped.

"Not only would we more than likely have lost the warehouse but the damages to the buildings adjoining it would have been so great that possibly we could not have halted it then," the chief stated.

Lumber Pile

After the fire and smoke had cleared from the basement, enough to enable the fire fighters to enter the burned area for a closer inspection, it was discovered that large piles of lumber, stored or left under the warehouse, had been the center of the blaze.

The stacked lumber was located some 35 or 40 feet from the street.

Distance of the stacked lumber from the street ruled out any chance that a passerby carelessly dropped or threw a cigaret or match through a window into the basement.

Officials had not overlooked the fact that possibly some one placing tobacco on the warehouse floor for today's sale, sometime in the early hours of the morning, might have dropped a cigaret through a crack in the floor, causing the blaze.

Investigation Called

Fire Chief Gardner at the scene this morning ordered that an investigation be made by the Greenville Police Department to determine just how the blaze originated.

For the local warehouse it was the fourth time in the past three years that it had fallen victim to fire.

On December 10, 1949, the roof and part of the basement of the structure burned when the Hugh McGowan's warehouse, located across the street, was leveled to the ground by a fire of unknown origin.

Later a small fire was halted before it gained headway in a pile of trash located near a rear alley window. A cigaret was believed to have been the cause of the second blaze.

Fourth Blaze

Earlier this year, a third blaze was discovered in trash piled inside the building but was quelled before it did any damage.

The house, owned and operated by Bill Cannon, was reported to be insured and the resulting damage last night was covered.

Police last night had to enter the warehouse and tell the occupants that the building was on fire.

A floor manager and weighing crew inside the building had not seen the flames licking up behind several piles of tobacco on the floor nor the smoke which was filling the rear of the building.

A small quantity of tobacco was on the warehouse floors for today's sale at the time the fire started.

Fire Prevention Week

Oddly enough, one of the trucks answering the second alarm to the fire this morning was a reserve unit which had been outfitted with fire prevention posters for display during Fire Prevention Week which opened yesterday.

After the fire had been put out and the trucks returned to the station, a stand-by crew remained at the scene to keep a check on the burned area and to prevent any outbreak again.

It was not believed that the structure was weakened to any extent and that sales at the house would continue today.

Seek Endorsing Of Korea Conflict

United States To Ask UN Assembly For Blanket Endorsement Of Its Prosecuting Korea Campaign; Ready To Debate The War

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP)— The United States will ask the United Nations General Assembly for a blanket endorsement of its prosecution of the Korean war to strengthen its moral position in negotiations to end the conflict.

For the first time, the 28-month-old Korean conflict will become a major issue in the General Assembly session, opening Oct. 14. The American-led Western powers last year at Paris defeated a Russian attempt to stage a full debate on the war in the Assembly, transferring the truce negotiations from bleak Panmunjom in the Korean neutral zone. This year, the U. S. and her allies want to debate the war in the 60-nation Assembly.

Russia's tactics are not yet clear and will not be until Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky—or his stand-in, in case he is detained in Moscow by the Communist Party Congress now in session—speaks in the general debate which is expected to start on the Assembly's second day.

The U. S. has made it clear that there is no intention of switching the truce talks to U.N. headquarters. As it now stands, the plan is to gain a new endorsement of what has been done so far and reinforce it with an appeal from the president of the Assembly to Communist China and North Korea to agree to end the war.

At this juncture, the prisoner of war repatriation issue which stalemated the Panmunjom talks does not figure prominently in American plans for the Korean debate.

The U. S. will not change its stand that there can be no forcible repatriation of prisoners But, conducting intensive consultations with friendly powers up to the last minute, Washington hopes that a plan can be arranged which will respect this principle and still afford the Communists the very necessary face-saving device.

One such plan to be considered by the Assembly is a Mexican proposal that prisoners who don't want to be repatriated shall be given asylum in U.N. countries. The U. S. is not against this plan, but Russia's Jacob A. Malik has indicated privately that the Kremlin will reject it.

This much also is certain: if no end to the Korean fighting emerges from the Assembly debate, the U. S. will demand that the U.N. member countries give fuller support to the Korean war effort in troops, supplies and finances.

Artloom Head To Return For New Talk Over Plant

Greenville Industries Board Asks Help In Ironing Out Offer's Details

The president of Artloom Carpet Company, Herbert J. Adair, may come to Greenville "within the next week or 10 days" to discuss further the possibility of his company locating a fabricating plant here.

The board of directors of Greenville Industries, a local group organized to finance erection of the proposed building, met last night and voted to invite company representatives here to iron out details of the proposition.

Eight of the 11 members of the board of directors were present last night at a meeting called for the purpose of discussing details of finance submitted by financial institutions outside Greenville who have expressed interest in the project.

T. I. Wagner, president of Greenville Industries, said this morning several financial organizations are interested in the proposed investment, but plans have not progressed far enough for them to make any commitments.

Definite Possibility

"There is a definite possibility the business will be established here," Wagner said, "but as in the case of investors, we have made no specific agreement with Artloom Company."

The chairman of the board of directors' finance committee, J. Herbert Waldrop, made a report on the financial situation and bore out previous statements that several investment firms showed a definite interest in the proposition.

Wagner said as soon as the directors are able to talk with representatives of Artloom they will know more about the entire project.

Heart Stopped, Beat Again Ten Minutes Later

CLEVELAND (AP)—The heart of a two-year-old boy stopped beating for at least 10 minutes, then started up again, doctors at St. Luke's Hospital said today.

The five physicians who were trying to save him from strangling on a piece of orange said his heart stopped as they performed two operations on him yesterday.

The boy, Demetrius L. Morgan, was put to bed in fair condition last night. However, he died early today.

Demetrius was unconscious when his father brought him to the hospital.

Ike Warns Of 'Sly Apostles' Of Fair Deal In Reply To President

EN ROUTE WITH EISENHOWER (UP) —Dwight D. Eisenhower, trying to minimize President Truman's blunt charges that the Republicans are out to kill public power, warned against "sly apostles of Fair Dealism" who would sell the nation a "whole hog approach to public power."

Eisenhower's 18-car special train heads down the Pacific coastline today in much the same path the barnstorming Mr. Truman took last week.

Monday night in Seattle, Wash., a capacity audience of more than 6,000 persons in Seattle's Civic Ice Arena that he favored federal-state cooperation in public power development.

Eisenhower made a major answer to the President's prediction that if the GOP nominee won in November the voters "won't see any more" big federal resources projects.

"The whole hog theory is that the federal government must do everything for us and to us," Eisenhower said.

"It holds that state and local governments are basically incompetent and behind the times."

The former five-star general told

He flatly rejected the idea of a Columbia River Valley project.

Columbia basin development should be handled by an interstate body "in accordance with state laws," he said.

Eisenhower took one of his sharpest digs at President Truman to date.

"You have been told by an expert in political demagoguery that I want to turn this great Northwest back to the prairie dogs and sagebrush," the former general said.

"You have been conducted through an underworld of imaginary devils. You have had a course in nonsense fiction."

Eisenhower's special campaign train was sidetracked at Seattle overnight and was due to arrive at Tacoma, Wash., at 8 a.m. p.s.t. for his first rear-platform speech of the day.

After a greeting stop at Centralia, Wash., and a rear-platform appearance at Vancouver, Wash., Eisenhower was scheduled to make a speech in the Portland, Ore., Civic Auditorium at 1:30 p.m. p.s.t.

Eisenhower's defense of the Republican party's approach to power resources development was presented in the same Seattle hall in which Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson spoke three weeks ago.

The Democratic presidential nominee had attracted about the same size crowd as Eisenhower but officials estimated the sidewalk turnout for the Republican candidate was greater.

GOP welcoming committee officials said more than 4,000 persons also heard Eisenhower speak over a public address system in a stadium adjoining the ice arena.

Pactolus Negro School Consolidated; To Be Sold

The Pitt County Board of Education yesterday morning approved the consolidation of the Pactolus Negro School with Pitt County Training School and Cherry Lane School.

Half of the 60 students at Pactolus were sent to Pitt County Training School at Grimesland and the other half went to Cherry Lane. The transfer of students from Pactolus was effective at the beginning of the fourth week of school. Pactolus School operated the first three weeks of the school year.

D. H. Conley, superintendent of the county schools, said the consolidation was enacted since average daily attendance fell below the average set by the state to maintain the three teachers at the school. He also said the building at Pactolus was in bad shape.

The board was ordered to advertise for sale the school building and one acre of land at St. Peter's The school was recently consolidated and the students were sent to Shivers and Sally Branch.

A request from Stokes was made to the county education board for a vocational home economics teacher to give the female students a balanced program comparable to the one already set up for the boys at the school. The county board said it would submit the request to the state board and would recommend an additional teacher.

Officials of the Stokes School also requested the county board to authorize the building of a lunchroom at the school. Conley said Stokes officials wanted the county to build the lunchroom and it would have to be studied further before any action could be taken.

The board approved the Bethel School's special budget which amounts to $5,451.50 for a teacher, books, and typewriters.

The board approved Pitt County school children attending the State Fair October 17 provided they are accompanied and supervised by teachers and-or principals.

GOP 'Truth Squad' Dogs Trail Of President; Talk Corruption

SALT LAKE CITY (UP)—The Republican "truth squad" dogged President Truman's heels today chorusing "cronyism and corruption" on the same ground where he had called charges of dishonesty in his administration "sheer poppycock."

The three-man "answer-Truman-quick" team, charging that Mr. Truman's administration mirrors "government by favored crony," arrived in Utah as the President took special train east into Colorado.

Yesterday he had said "history will bear me out" when he rebuked the GOP for criticizing the moral character of Democratic rule.

The "truth team" was keeping as close to Mr. Truman's campaign train as its chartered plane permits, and with a week of campaigning under their belts, the Republican Senators said they think their novel idea is "catching on."

The Senators scheduled a noon (EST), news conference and a Republican party workers' luncheon here at 2 p.m. Later, they will drive 50 miles to Provo, Utah, for an evening meeting in the same town where Mr. Truman made a major address yesterday.

The senators levelled acid criticism at the President on grounds his administration "fails to understand the international conspiracy of Communism" and mirrors "Government by favored crony."

The Republicans claimed that Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee, promises only more of the same.

"Stevenson doesn't know anything about Communism, he testified for Alger Hiss, we challenge him to show any disclosures he ever made about Communism," Sen. Homer Ferguson (Mich) said.

And the Senators claimed President Truman "falsified the facts" by saying at Provo yesterday Republicans don't understand "what it takes to meet the menace of Communist aggression and subversion."

Taking a double turn at bat, Ferguson declared at Sacramento, Calif., the Truman administration "kissed off" the Communist menace at home by failure to root out Alger Hiss quickly and because of "Mr. Truman's failure to regard Communism as a real menace at home."

Joint Hostesses Give Luncheon

On last Saturday preceding the wedding later in the afternoon Miss Lula Lee Eason of Snow Hill and Dr. Kenneth Gobel of Winston-Salem were honored at a wedding luncheon.

Hostesses for the affair, which was held at the American Legion Dining Room, were Mrs. Alton Clapp, Mrs. Estelle Briley and Miss Mary Barrow.

The Hall was decorated with flowers and tapers which carried out a bridal motif of green and white. The mantel was banked with magnolia leaves and groups of candles; and the center table, at which the bridal party sat, was decorated with an imposing arrangement of white gladioli, dahlias, carnation and magnolia leaves with burning tapers on either side. Long tables were arranged for other guests along each end of the room.

As the guests arrived and greeted the hostesses, they were served tomato juice from a punch bowl placed in the sunroom. They found their places marked with bridal place cards, and the bride-elect found a corsage at her place.

A three course turkey luncheon was served to 35 guests, who were members of the wedding party, out-of-town guests and members of the families.

TB Association Work Described At Rotary Meet

By WYATT BROWN

Educating the public to the danger and prevelance of tuberculosis, facilitating the detection, and then turning known cases over to the county was declared to bet he role of the Pitt County Tuberculosis Association when Dr. W.E. Marshall spoke to the Rotary Club last night. He spoke following the showing of a sound movie that brought out how community agencies got together to help an expectant mother to face her surprise case of tuberculosis, treat it, cure it, and care for the family during her hospitalization. Miss Julia Fisher, Pitt County Health Nurse of the Pitt County Health Department, presented the movie and projected it.

Dr. Marshal opened his remarks by saying any home could have T.B. and not know it until it was detected. "It is up to the Pitt County Tuberculosis Associaion to find the cases in Pitt County and have them properly treated," he stated. Citing some satistics Dr. Marshall said 92 in every hundred thousand people in Pitt County and T.B. Of this number 37.4 per cent die, thought he average for the whole state is only 15.3 per cent.

Pitt County is seventh in the State in number of cases but fourth in deaths among those tha have he disease.

To face this situation Dr. Marshall told how giving in the Seal Sale Campaign reached an average of only 10½ cents per person. In contrast with this was the 23¼ per person given in Beaufort County.

Dr. Marshall spoke of the indefatigueable efforts of the Association's Executive Secretary, Mrs. JB. Spilman., to educate the people of Pitt County about tuberculosis.

"Tuberculosis kills more people each year than polio," he declared.

He announced that there would be another County-wide Xray campaign this year through the cooperation of the State and the Association. Everyone was urged to take advantage of the opportunity to have their chests X-rayed. If found eafly enough TB is as easy to cure as many other diseases.

At this point he urged hundred per cent co-operation from the citizens of North Carolina in the TB Seal Sale "to fight this most dreaded and infectious disease in the Unived Stes." He challenged that if the county average reached 25 cents per person "it would give the Association, the County Welfare Department, the County Health Department funds to carry on the educational program to rid us of a dangerous disease. If you will take this picture to heart -- it could happen to any one of us -- Tuberculosis could be made to be as foreign to the United States and Pitt County as yellow fever."

At the conclusion of the address Mr. Waldrop told how the County Association would spend $4,700 for the X-ray Campaign, had budgeted $1,000 for streptomiacin, and had already presented the County with a $3,000 X-ray machine. He explained that it was such things that the Seal Sale money went for.

Junior Rotarian Frank Bodkin was a guest of the Club last night. Ray Phillips of Washington was the only visiting R.OTARIAN. Club President J. Knot Proctor presided. James W. Butler, Chairman of the Program Committee, presented the program.

Trucking Industry Official Speaks To Lions Club

"The trucking industry is the basic life-line in the economic and social life of North Carolina," Jeff B. Wilson told the Greenville Lions Club members last night. Wilson is director of information and safety of the North Carolina Motor Carriers Association.

"It is not an industry apart to itself", he continued, "but is an important part of every comunity."

"The limitations of the trucking industry's growth and development in the Tar Heel state should be set only by the industrial progress and social achievement of the people of North Carolina," he said.

JEFF B. WILSON

Speaking on "The Truck in Your Life" Wilson pointed out that, "over 1,800 communities in North Carolina depend entirely on trucks to bring them everything they eat, wear and use." He devoted much of his talk to the three E's of highway safety-engineering, enforcement and education.

In addition to being policed by the State Highway Patrol, City and County police officers, the trucking industry polices itself, Wilson explained. "We have road patrols, company supervisory patrols and insurance patrols".

"The truck driver of today is a professional driver," he continued in speaking of the education phase of the courtesy and safety program. "He is truly a gentleman of the highway and lives up to his reputation of courtesy".

Wilson reminded the group that professional truck drivers are trained either under company operation or at the truck driver training school operated by North Carolina State College.

"The school, founded by the NCMCA two years ago, has graduated over 800 truck drivers who were thoroughly trained in safety, courtesy, fire fighting, first aid, behind-the-wheel lab, rules of the road and public relations," he stated.

"As for engineering," Wilson concluded, "the trucking industry does not receive or expect a free ride -- We pay our share Trucks are not to blame, obviously, for the Nation's narrow, curving, hilly highways. Nor for the congestion, for they number only 17 per cent of the vehicles using those highways. "Yet they pay huge highway user taxes, plus the usual business taxes."

Figures are not available for 1951 but undoubtedly will exceed the more than 851 million dollars paid to the state in highway user taxes and the more than 396 million dollars paid to the Federal Government in excises on gasoline, tires, equipment, etc., in 1950 by the trucking industry.

Wilson was introduced by O.E. Dowd, International Counselor.

President Bruce Sugg Jr. presided over the meeting.

Strength for the Day

DANGER SPOTS

Barbara Ward, the great English economist whose writings and observations on international affairs have arrested the attention of the world's outstanding thinkers, has declared: "To maintain our spiritual freedom in the world, we must develop a high moral integrity. . . . If history passes an inexorable sentence on arrogance, its judgment on corruption and moral laxity is not less stern. Roman power crumbled from within before it was overcome from without."

The conclusion at which Miss Ward arrives is this: "The record is clear, the verdict unescapable. The United States is on trial from without under the pressure of Soviet hostility. The pressure from within to relax standards, to forego responsibility, to take the easy path, is even more formidable and more difficult to resist, because less obvious. The battlefield of honest government, civic responsibility, social conscience, and human generosity will be the arena where the real battle is fought."

Here is another case of our worrying about the bombs which may fall on us from an airplane and paying no attention to the ones we carry around in our pockets. If you are looking for national and international danger spots, look into your own heart and the hearts of those about you.

One-Way Streets Are Proving Their Worth

Greenville's one-way streets, a controversial issue a couple of months ago, were put to their most rigid test so far Saturday and came through with flying colors.

Traffic in the business section of the city Saturday was the heaviest it has been in many months, and had it not been for the one-way streets, Greenville would have had many a traffic jam before the day was over. As it was, the stream of traffic flowed through the business district at a fast clip, and there were a nimimum number of tie-ups.

Just for curiosity, we decided to check on a few intersections to see how much traffic was moving each time the stop lights changed. At one intersection the average number of vehicles which moved on Evans Street each time the light changed ranged between 12 and 16. That is a great improvement over the days of the two-way street system which used to move only six or eight cars when traffic light changed.

There are still people who argue the two-way street system is not the proper solution to Greenville's traffic problem; but the longer the system stays in effect, the more apparent its merits become.

Who Will Forfeit His Right To Vote?

How many Pitt Countians are going to be turned away from the polls November 4 because they are not listed on the county's registration books?

We don't know the exact number, but unless the registration period which opens October 11 is kept in mind, there may be a good many voters who are not permitted to cast their ballots.

Last May in the Democratic primary a good many citizens in Greenville township found they could not vote because they failed to re-register when the precincts were changed. No doubt those who were turned away from the polls in May will remember to register between now and the time the books close.

In addition to those who were turned away from the polls in the primary there are hundreds and perhaps thousands of other citizens in Pitt County who are not on the registration books. Will these citizens remember to register so they will be able to cast their ballots in the presidential election?

Voting is an important civic duty which each individual is obligated to carry out as a portion of his responsibility as a good citizen. Yet, unless a person takes the few minutes required to be sure he is registered, good intentions on election day will amount to nothing.

In Pitt County the registration books will be open at the polling place of each precinct on October 11, 18 and 25. On the other days during the period between October 11 and October 25 the registrars will have the books and they will be open for registration although the registrars are not required to be at the polling places.

Newcomers to Pitt County who have not registered on the local books since establishing residence here, and local citizens of long standing who are not sure of their registration status should be sure they have their names on the books during the registration period.

The few minutes a citizen takes to check with the registrar in his precinct may determine whether or not he will be able to vote November 4.

A New Russia With A Tender Skin?

Russia's abrupt demand that American Ambassador George F. Kennan be recalled is another evidence of the length to which the Soviet Union will go to keep the terrible truth of inside Russia away from the world.

The raw nerve upon which Kennan touched with his statement in Berlin, comparing conditions in Russia today with those in Germany during his internment during 1941, produced almost instantaneous action in Moscow.

Surely Kennan did not make his Berlin statement to offend Russia or put more strain upon the relationship between the United States and Moscow. He merely stated the truth in brief terms. Had Kennan desired, no doubt he could have gone into much vivid detail in pointing out the conditions behind the Iron Curtain.

The immediate flare from Moscow which Kennan's statement drew could very well be indicative of the strain under which the Soviet government finds itself.

It points to uncertainty and fear on the part of the Soviet Union. It points emphatically to the concern which such authoritative criticism brings the high Soviet officials. It points to the swiftness with which Russia acts in an attempt to shut off such criticism.

Could it be Moscow's case of frayed nerves is beginning to wear thin? Could it be that Russia is beginning to find itself backed into a corner and has began to doubt its own internal security and the security of the relationships between the communist stronghold and its satellites?

Whatever the reason underlying the Soviet action against Kennan and the United States, it appears a maneuver from weakness rather than from strength. The United States should not let the incident pass without strong retaliatory measures.

WASHINGTON—A three-nation war council now in secret session at Washington dramatizes the reasons behind the western powers' many failures in the powder keg area of the Far East, the Middle East and Asia, and for Moscow's successes in this strategic sphere.

It is a situation which the next Administration will undoubtedly try to correct, although the two Presidential candidates show no awareness of its dangers. It has been neglected, if not aggravated, by President Truman and his various Secretaries of State in all their diplomatic dealings with China, Asia and adjacent countries.

It could make a major campaign issue, if the Republican strategists and press agents at New York and on the Eisenhower train ever wake up to the fact.

TOP BRASS MEET—The Washington conference in question has brought to the Pentagon the top military brass of the United States, Britain and France for discussion of the future defense of Indo-China and Southeast Asia against possible large-scale invasion by Chinese Communists. This proolem dwarfs the "police action" in Korea.

The French government has notified Washington and London that it cannot resist successfully the 200,000 force which Mao Tse-tung is reported to have mobilized on the northern border. Another diversionary move here is said to have been discussed when the Chinese delegation conferred with Stalin a few weeks ago.

As military and diplomatic experts realize and fear, the fall of Indo-China would give the Communists a position flanking all Asia, Japan, the Philippines, Indonesia, Australia and New Zealand. It would imperil our access to sources of tin, oil, rubber, and enrich Russia with these war materials It would hand Burma, "the rice bowl of India," to the hungry Red satellites.

Meanwhile, our only trained, equipped and experienced fighting force is pinned down and stalemated in Korea.

BLUNDER—The major blunder now being perpetrated at Washington, in spite of specific warnings and the lessons of recent history, is that not a representative of all the Asiatic nations so vitally concerned has been invited to attend. The western powers still treat these governments and their 500,000,000 population in accord with the master-servant relationship which has embittered them for so many years.

This neglect, generally defined as "colonialism," accounts for the loss of China, nationalization of Iran's oil industry, Nehru's "neutralism" in the "cold war." French difficulties in North Africa and the demand that England get out of Egypt and the Sudan.

It is an issue on which Moscow expects to cash in when Stalin decides on the day for infiltrating or conquering these countries.

WARNING—Ironically, a prominent and friendly Asiatic statesman gave clear warning of the dangerous effect of this one-sided policy only a few days before the military experts began their talks at the Pentagon. He is J. J. Singh, president of the India League of America, and extremely pro-United States.

"One of the main causes of resentment against the western powers," he wrote in a New York Times article, "is their arrogant assumption that the white fathers' know what is good for the backward Asian peoples, and that the decisions of the western powers should be liked and, if not liked, lumped by the Asians."

Singh listed other meetings like that now under way here as an insult and offense to the Asiatics. He noted that John Foster Dulles concluded a peace treaty with Japan without consulting India, which was why Nehru refused to sign the document.

He criticized the recent ANZUS Pacific Council at Honolulu, where Acheson conferred only with Australian and New Zealand foreign ministers. Then he relayed a remark he has frequently heard throughout the Far East:

"How is it that Secretary Acheson makes frequent visits to Europe and other parts of the western hemisphere, but he has never visited a single Asian country?"

Besides Everything Else

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

When I saw a building under construction on the Court House lawn I wondered how long the Court House has been there and whether or not any other building has ever been on the lawn. For a report I called the Reflector's publisher, D. J. Whichard Jr.

Mr. Whichard told me that the Court House was built in 1910, and the only construction on the lawn previous to the present job consisted of temporary speakers stands and the billboard during World War II bearing the names of Pitt County men on active duty.

What, then, could be so important that the Pitt County Commissioners would grant permission for its construction? By now I hope that I have built up your suspense for an important announcement. The building under construction will be a concession operated by the blind, for the benefit of the blind. Essentially, it will be a newsstand, but anything in demand will be supplied.

The store will be the 12th under the supervision of Mrs. Louis Gaylord Sr. of Greenville, who directs the operation of such stores in 11 locations in Eastern Carolina. The snack shop at the pulp mill in Plymouth, serving 2000 mill workers, is among these stores.

Manager of the Greenville store will be Preston Cherry, originally of Bethel but more lately of New Bern. Preston lost his sight in service during World War II, worked at the store in the New Bern Post Office, and was an active member of the Lions Club there. The store here will be under the supervision of the Commission of the Blind, but sponsored by the organization which does most for the blind, the Lions Club.

Mrs. Gaylord has given advance notice that Manager Cherry is an aggressive businessman. All store employees are given training for their jobs. The courses they take include merchandising, salesmanship, typing, budgeting, and English.

"Working with blind people," Mrs. Gaylord says, "is just like working with people who can see. They are bright, happy and can do almost anything anybody else can do."

The only other Pitt County store is in Grifton. The job of bringing this store to Greenville is largely due to the efforts of the sponsoring organization, the Lions Club.

And I thank Mrs. Gaylord.

HARMONY? -- On the surface and for the record there is almost complete harmony in both Democratic and Republican parties in North Carolina. The Democrats are all out for Stevenson for President and Umstead for Governor. The Republicans are all out for Eisenhower for President and Seawell for Governor. In between these definite partisan groups is a large number of citizens who say they will vote for the man and not for the party label. A few of these mixed votes will be for Stevenson and Sewell. A much larger number will vote for Eisenhower and Umstead. Stated another way there will be several thousand registered Democrats who will support the full ticket except for President and Vice President. Somewhat surprisingly the scrapping for preferred position among Democratic big shots is mostly over the national situation.

INSTANCES -- It began with squabble over delegates to the Chicago convention. Governor Scott vigorously protested when several of his nominations for delegates at large were left off the "slate" presented to the convention by Cameron Morrison. Another phase of that same issue developed on the way to Chicago when the delegation agreed on Cameron Morrison as chairman, instead of according that honor to the Governor--where it has been traditionally placed. The Young Democrats in formal resolution at their state convention voiced resentment at being pushed around by the regular party organization. YDC members, however, are among the most enthusiastic wokers for the entire ticket in the current campaign. Governor Scott charged the other day that Chairman Everett Jordan was ignoring Judge Hubert Olive who was defeated in the primary for Governor, and that none of Olive's chief supporters were being used in the fall campaign. Correspondence in the state headquarters files shows that Judge Olive was advised of the campaign plans, dates of district rallies and other facts in exactly the same manner as was the successful primary winner, William Umstead.

NATURAL -- Judge Olive replied to the invitation to join the district parade with the statement he would be led up in court most of the time between campaign opening and election day. It is quite natural for the nominee for Governor to be in more demand as a political speaker than the defeated primary candidate. It is also expected of him that he devote his time to the campaign, while the unsuccessful candidate attends to his private affairs. It is recalled in this connection that four years ago supporters of Charles M. Johnson made the same accusation of being ignored by the successful Scott people running the Democratic party. Check of correspondence files indicates that there was probably more basis for protest in 1948 than now.

STEVENSON -- Another evidence of lack of complete harmony in top party circles was the undercover squabbling about whether Governor Stevenson would be invited to speak in North Carolina, and if so where. Factional friction in this state is believed responsible for the presidential candidate "finding it impossible" to get a North Carolina date on his itinerary. The two-year ballyhoo about opening the national campaign with a barbecue at Haw River just petered out some time ago. Charlotte asked to have Stevenson speak there--and that was the only invitation from any community. Without consulting either State or National Democratic headquarters other groups began efforts to have the Stevenson speech in Moore County, where his sister lives, or in Iredell county, where his ancestors lived. Chairman Jordan has appeared unwilling to have the affair at the Scott farm in Alamance County and Governor Scott has apparently given no help toward getting the candidate for Charlotte. Many observers of inside doings among Tarheel Democrats believe this lack of cooperation rather than unavailable time prompted Governor Stevenson's telegram saying he had found it impossible to wedge in a North Carolina date. There is also developing friction over the possibility of having President Truman come into the State, probably during the State Fair at Raleigh. The situtation involves another phase of the struggle for power inside the party.

FREE LANCING -- Then there is the case of Senator John Sparkman, Democratic candidate for vice president, and Franklin Roosevelt coming to the state. Sparkman will speak at Rocky Mount on October 21 and Roosevelt at Nashville on October 10. Both engagements were arranged through Congressman Harold Cooley's office and the State Democratic Headquarters knew nothing about the plans until they they were published in the newspapers. Roosevelt's speech at the Nash County fair grounds is billed as non-political. Other instances of free lancing by local

What Other Papers Are Thinking

NO ROOM FOR PADDING IN N. C. BUDGET
(Charlotte Observer)

Any child who ever needed a dime for a kite string but asked for a quarter, knowing that his initial request faced a likely paring, has a good deal in common, we suspect, with some of the State government department heads. For, in filing budget estimates totaling $750 million with the Advisory Budget Commission, the agency executive have left apparent room for the trimming.

President Gordon Gray of the University of North Carolina, for example, wants $18 million during the next biennium for additions to the Greater University structure and $31 million for operational outlay. His expansion plan for the next two years is doubtless desirable. In a state where public school and other basic needs demand immediate attention, however, we can't believe that the University authorities really expect so large a share of available revenues.

The $750 million of the total request does not include a 10 per cent pay increase for the employes of all State departments, although such a rise is endorsed by some of the top officials, including Bill Umstead. Of the total, $200 million is in highway funds and $2 million in agricultural funds, neither of which items is likely to be subject to sharp reductions. General fund agencies are asking nearly $424 million for operational purposes and $123 million for permanent improvements.

Where is the money to come from? Official estimates of general fund revenue for the next two years range from $383 million to $391 million. And end-of-year surplus will add some amount, though comparatively small, to that total.

Quite obviously, budget reductions must be effected, and all along the line, to avoid upward revision of a tax structure that many competent authorities already regard as punitive to the development potential of North Carolina.

Like the kid with the kite string urge, we join the department heads in contemplating the attractive possibility of the full quarter. But even with fifteen cents, they're a nickel ahead of the game.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

Many manufacturers are missing profitably rich opportunities because they fail to understand that the consumer wants, in the opinion of Freda Diamond, industrial designer and merchandising consultant. Miss Diamond ought to know what she is talking about; she is designer for Libby Glass, Continental Can, Yale and Towne and many other big manufacturers, and she is home furnishings and design consultant for some of the top department stores of the country. Her remarks, of course, are not directed at her own clients.

Apparel manufacturers, she said, do a good job of finding out what the consumer wants and filling the need. But manufacturers of furniture and home furnishings do not, with a few exceptions, she added.

"Some depend on consumer surveys," she said," she said. "But many of these surveys are superficial. The average consumer is more inclined to give answers she thinks will please the questioner than to reveal her own tastes. If the interviewer is a 'just folks' type of person, the consumer is likely to express her color preferences, for example, in terms or primary colors. If the interviewer wears smart clothes or assumes a cultured air, the consumer is likely to say she prefers such 'fashionable' colors as chartreuse, turquoise and so on.

"Other manufacturers try to imitate designs that prove successful in the high brackets without realizing that people in other brackets have tastes of their own. A television manufacturer was considering bringing out a line of moderate-price receivers in cabinets of ultra-fashionable design when it was pointed out to him that most most people buy sets to go with the furnishings they already have and that such designs would fit in relatively few living rooms."

The best way to find out what consumers want is to study them when they are actually shopping, Miss Diamond said. Relying on salespeople is not enough, she said. Too few salespeople are trained to understand their customers' tastes and too few of them have facilities for analyzing wants and communicating them back through department heads.

Manufacturers could learn by putting their own researchers in stores as salespersons, she said, but one-week experiments of this kind are valueless. "It takes a week to learn a store's routine, with no time left for finding out what people really want," she said. Ascertaining consumer preference requires considerable time on the selling floor, consultation with the more observant department heads, and the advice of those who have made intensive studies in the field.

WARNS AGAINST EVADING POSTAL LIMITS

The practice of mailing parcels at second, third and fourth class post offices when the parcels are over the weight limit for first-class offices is contrary to postal regulations, Postmaster J.P.W. Finn of Boston points out.

Postmasters of smaller post offices have been instructed to refuse these heavier parcels when the return address indicates the sender is in an area served by a first-class office.

Regulations or not, some firms have been getting away with it. Using the return addresses of a branch office located in a second, third or fourth-class postal area may be averting--or postponing--detection.

However, Mr. Finn points out that the practice carries the seeds of its own destruction. If a shipper mails too many heavier parcels in a second-class post office, the second-class office may become a first-class one, thus reducing the weight of the parcels it could accept.

INDUSTRIALISTS SEEM DIVIDED POLITICALLY

A survey by Mill & Factory among industrial firms has produced the answers that might have been expected: most companies believe a new administration can reduce taxes over the next two years; 98 per cent believe expenses for government bureaus should be reduced; most want changes in the Taft-Hartley Act; most believe a change in administration will curb strikes, and most believe full employment can be maintained without government spending.

Surprising, however, were the sizes of the minorities. Thirty-one per cent believe that a new administration can't reduce taxes; 43 per cent think a change won't reduce strikes, and 33 per cent believe government spending is necessary for full employment.

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK (AP)—Wilbur Feeble, America's average citizen, thought it was the break of a lifetime when an old friend gave him two tickets to the World Series.

He wasn't so sure, however, when his wife said she wouldn't let him go to the big city without her. Wilbur knew that Trellis Mae's knowledge of baseball consisted of a dim conviction that a batter was something you stirred up in a kitchen.

"I'll take you on one condition—that you don't bother me with a single question during the entire game," he said.

She agreed. But the day of the game Trellis Mae insisted he leave the hotel and accompany her on a shopping tour. They missed lunch and got to the ball park in the third inning.

"They oughtn't to allow women—" fumed Wilbur, as they sat down in their seats in the upper stand near the right field foul pole.

Trellis Mae turned her back on him and confided to a beefy, red-nosed Dodger fan next to her:

"My husband won't let me talk to him. Will you tell me what is the real object of this game?"

"Well, it's—it's to get the most runs," said the fan.

"What are they standing there for then? Why don't they all start running?"

As the fan's jaw dropped, Trellis Mae said, "When do they take their naps?"

"Isn't that what those cute little white pillows are for?" she asked, pointing at the base bags. Next she wanted to know if it wouldn't dress up the game if they used lady umpires, then she scribbled a postcard saying, "Scenery wonderful—Wish you were here," and demanded, "Where's the mail-box?"

The red nose of her neighbor turned a mottled blue.

Bored, Trellis Mae started watching the metal foul pole as it swayed back and forth in the wind. Soon she felt nauseated.

"Wilbur, I'm seasick," she said.

"But nobody ever got seassick at a baseball game. It's impossible."

"Well, I am. It must be because I didn't eat. You'd better go get me a hot dog or you'll be awfully sorry."

Wilbur went. A great roar rose from the crowd a moment later. When Wilbur scrambled back, the red-nosed man said: "Johnny Mize just poled one into the stands—a good one."

"You mean," said Wilbur brokenly, "I missed the only chance of my life to see Mize knock a home run?"

"I missed it myself. Your wife was bending my ear."

"It went right in front of us," said Trellis Mae. "You could almost count the stitches."

She took the hot dog and objected, "You forgot the mustard, dear. I just can't eat it without mustard."

Too stunned to protest, Wilbur went back for the mustard. The Dodger fan leaned over and whispered something to Trellis Mae. She looked surprised, then nodded her head.

Trellis Mae ate her hot dog then pulled out a sheet of pape and silently began to make out he Christmas shopping list. She neve even looked out again at the playing field.

As they filed out at the end of the game the red-nosed man grudgingly took a $5 bill out of his pocket and gave it to Trellis Mae, who put it in her purse.

"I wonder who won", said Wilbur glumly.

"I did", said his helpmate. "that red-nosed fellow bet me $5 I couldn't keep my mouth shut the rest of the game. Wait here a minute Wilbur." And she loped away, returning 15 minutes later breathlessly lugging a ball bat.

"He didn't want to give it to me at first," said Trellis Mae. "But I told him he would need a new one next year anyway."

Surprised, her husband took the the bat, then reverently read the inscription: "To Wilbur, one to remember, signed Johnny Mize."

As Wilbur gratefully bent to kiss her, Trellis Mae murmured: "I tried to get you one of those little white pillows for a souvenir too, but some darned fool had tied them all down."

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON--Polly Safford, good-looking Texas-born redhead, has been collecting a few autographs to show her husband and friends when she returns to Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers in Europe (SHAPE) after a brief visit in Washington. The wife of Comdr. Robert William Safford, popular chief of the press section at SHAPE in Paris, is taking the autographs back on the cast she donned when she entered Bethesda Naval Hospital early in August.

"Hopalong Polly," as she calls herself, broke her foot when she climbed on a chair to get a bottle of shampoo off a shelf and it slipped from under her in the suite she and Bob occupy at the Trianon Palace Hotel at the entrance of the great park at Versailles. She was in and out of hospitals since March, first at the American hospital at Neuilly, then at the 97th General Hospital at Frankfort, but the shattered bones never healed.

"Now I'm walking without pain for the first time and ready to do a tango," Polly told me. "And I'm eager to get back to Paris, where life has been interesting and exciting."

But life has always been exciting to the Saffords, who were married in 1945 while she was a Marine Corporal and he a lieutenanat commander on furlough at a Pacific beach master. Polly says she fought the war out at Camp Lejuene, N.C., where she began by driving a cargo truck and wound up driving the chief of staff. "I joined the Marines in 1942 because I couldn't see myself counting my feet and listening to my hair grow while Bob was out in the Pacific risking his life," she said.

Polly hasn't had time to meet Mrs. Ridgway, wife of Gen. Matthew Ridgway, who succeeded Gen. Eisenhower at SHAPE, but she got to know Mamie Eisenhower well. "Everybody was crazy about Mamie, from top brass on down," she said. "She was always around for bingo nights every Friday, when the General could go to his office. She is friendly, unassuming and fun."

Comdr. Safford, a gourmet, loves to cook exotic and complicated dishes for his friends. He won an electric grill at one bingo game but hasn't had an opportunity to use it. As popular as the Saffords at SHAPE are their Ascob cocker spaniels, Red and Joe. "They match my hair," said Polly.

Chapter Nine

The teletype commended its animated click, click. Devereaux snapped forward to scan the sheet.

"Ninety per cent of you never left the force, Johnny." The wiry man at the desk made no attempt to conceal his amusement.

"I was hooked into this one, Anders," Devereaux said. "First chance I get, I'm still shoving off."

Captain Andrs laughed shortly "You'll throw your neck out of joint. Better let me read it to you." He tore the sheet from the machine. 'Nick Longo. Age, 48. Olive complexion, aquiline nose. Height, 5' 6". Weight, 148 pounds Scar tissue on neck under left ear Specialty, pickpocketing New York subway system. Nine arrests to 1945. No convictions. Convicted of felony, 1946. Sentenced to Sing Sing for two and a half years.

Devereaux showed surprise.. "Nine arrests for pickpocketing and no convictions?"

"It happens." Anders shrugged. "Shrewd article. Clever mouthpiece, maybe." He looked up. 'Sure Longo's your man?"

Devereaux nodded. "What was the felony that got him time up the river?"

"Murtagh's in the file room on it now. If you'll just sit tight."

Devereaux took the teletyped page and turned it in his hand thoughtfully. "Any room for doubt about how Mrs. Minna Gordon died?"

"None. Medical report was unqualified. It was a heart attack."

"Induced by shock," Devereaux said. "Longo's presence in her room brought it on."

"Maybe. But the medical fact is the heart was about to give up. A tire blowout in the street or a loud knock on the door could have done it, too." Anders shook his head. "Burglary or attempted burglary is the most you've got on Longo—if you can place him in that closet beyond any reasonable doubt."

"Burglary and assualt," Devereaux said, touching his head reminiscently.

"Placing him in that closet might not be easy, Johnny. You've only placed him in the lobby of the Hotel Orleans. And that on the word of a numbers bookie."

The door opened, and a man in shirt sleeves carrying a folder loafed in. He said listlessly, "On Longo, Captain."

"What was that 1946 felony conviction, Murtagh?" Anders asked.

"Sullivan Law. Caught toting a gun."

"Okay, leave the file." Anders watched his aide leave, then turned to Devereaux. "There it is."

"Funny, huh?" Dvereaux said after a reflective pause.

"What's funny?"

"That first conviction. A profession dip carrying a gun!"

"It happens."

"Doesn't jibe with the shrewd fellow who beat nine arrests?"

Anders shrugged. "Still, it happens."

Devereaux looked sharply at Anders. "Criminals stick to a habitual pattern, Anders. Killers tote rods, con men dream up new swindles. Petty thieves stay petty, and pickpockets stick close to what they know best. I don't think I've found a single variation in twenty years."

"Maybe." Anders looked thoughtful. "Then Longo's the exception to the rule. He did attempt burglary in that hotel room, you say. That was off the beaten path for a dip."

"Read me the file on that Sullivan Law rap."

Anders opened the folder and read it silently for a while. "Not much to it. Routine vagrancy arrests, and Longo was one of a crowd. When frisked, Longo was found carrying a gun."

"Where was he picked up?"

"Outside the Paddock Cafe, up near Forty-ninth. Sergeant McClintock grabbed him. McClintock's on the Broadway squad." Anders pawed the air. 'Guilty plea, and two and a half years in the Big House, period." He closed the folder, looking at Devereaux curiously. "How what are you looking perplexed about?"

"It's crazy."

"It's one and one. Longo's luck ran out."

"A small-time pickpocket carrying a gun!"

'Maybe he was ambitious for bigger things."

"A dip exposing himself outside a place as public and central as the Paddock Cafe?" Devereaux looked at Anders reproachfully. 'Think for a minute. Ask yourself: what happens when a known pickpocket is seen hanging around Broadway?"

"He's pinched."

"On sight?"

Anders nodded.

"Then just being outside the Paddock was risky for Longo, a man with a long record of arrests. And a gun in his jeans made it five times riskier. Longo was inviting disaster."

Anders pondered briefly. "Okay," he acknowledged finally. "So Longo stepped out of character that day in front of the Paddock. And he was off base when you met him in that hotel closet. What does it add up to?"

"I don't know." Devereaux paced the room. "You said Longo got a two-and-a-half-year sentence. How long did he serve?"

Anders opened the folder, scanned it, then turned a page. "Served only fourteen months and then was paroled." He looked up. "Place him i that closet, and you've got him for violation of parole for a starter.

"Anything could be important."

"Okay," Anders signed. "I'll get on the damned phone again." He opened a desk drawer, the held a cigar out to Devereaux. "Meanwhile, you chew on this. Calm down, and stop pacing the floor." He mopped his brow. "You're getting more nervous."

The Sport Reflector

By JIMMY ELLIS

All these football fans who saw the days of the single wing are gone should pay a visit to the North State Conference.

There are seven conference schools which field football teams and five of them still depend upon the single wing for ground gaining. Only two schools, East Carolina and Guilford, have been swept up by the movement to switch to the T-formation.

The Pirates will go against their third single wing team Saturday night when they tackle Elon in Burlington. The Christians haven't been so potent this year as they have been in past seasons but they finally got their offense rolling Saturday night and defeated Appalachian—another T team—by a 13-7 margin.

The men the Pirates will have to watch this week will be two fullbacks on the Elon squad. Bob Platt, a 220-pound transfer student from Kentucky, is the big boy but Fred Biangardi has been placed back on the squad and he'll be available for action, too.

The presence of the two big men will give the Pirates a switch from the type ball players they have had to watch in four previous games. In every game thus far they've had to worry about a small, speedy backfield man who tried to run around the big defensive line thrown up by Line Coach Clyde Biggers.

The most outstanding of those small football players is Catawba's Harold Carter. The 153-pound former high school All-America had the Pirates beating their heads against the wall Saturday night trying to think up some way to stop him.

Once Carter got past the line of scrimmage, it seemed impossible to stop him. He'd give you a hip here and then take it back quickly. He is easily the fastest—and best — runner the Pirates have faced this year.

Elon has a real speedster in little Lou Rochelli but they've trusted most of their running this year to Platt. Rochelli is an excellent passer, though, and his presence in the backfield gives the Christians a good one-two punch to throw at their opponents.

Defensively, the Pirates did a pretty good job Saturday night against Carter and the rest of the Indians. With the exception of Carter, the Indians had a fairly rough time moving against the Pirates' big defensive line and linebackers.

Big Algie Faircloth again did an outstanding job—even though his very presence on the field was almost in the miracle class.

Faircloth normally doesn't run at offensive center but was used at that position in a practice scrimmage session one day last week. He had worked about two plays and was starting on his third one when he went down in a pile of players and didn't come up quickly. When the other players were cleared away, Faircloth's upper lip was chopped to pieces and he was bleeding like the proverbial stuck pig.

It took eight stitches to put Algie's lip back together. He was expected to see only limited action Saturday night but he found himself a face guard and played just about every play on defense—and and there were plenty of those.

The stitches remained in Algie's upper lip throughout the game. He's due to have them taken out today . . . but he'll keep right on wearing the face guard until the lip completely heals.

Idle thought: Would you take a ball club 500 miles for a 49-0 licking — and $25,000? That's what happened to State's Wolfpack Saturday when they marched into Georgia and crawled back into North Carolina.

Eppes Downs Wilmington 12-6 For Initial Victory

The Eppes High Bulldogs came through for their initial victory of the season Friday night by downing the Wilmington Mighty Wonders 12-6.

Eppes and Wilmington each scored in the first quarter and then fought back and forth, displaying some fine defensive work on both teams, until the third quarter when the Bulldogs caught fire upon the return of injured Quarterback Carleton Tucker and drove the length of the field for the game winning touchdown.

Star Fullback Clarence Williams was the lad who capped off the winning touchdown with a 30 yard jaunt to paydirt.

Shortly after the game got under way Wilmington struck through the air, on the ground, and aided by a couple of penalties against Eppes, stormed to a 6-0 lead.

With less than a minute left in the first period, Walter Hemby handed off on an end around play to Ephriam Green who raced into the end zone to lock the count at 6-6.

Quarterback Tucker entered the game in the third period and guided the Bulldogs to victory, with Williams covering the final yards on a dazzling 30 yard charge up the middle.

Wynn, J. Brown and Green stood out in line play for the winners.

Dodgers Are Favored Over Yankees In Series Final

Mickey Mantle, Yogi Berra Spark Yankees In Sixth Game Win; Black Will Hurl Deciding Game For Dodgers

By LEO H. PETERSEN
United Press Sports Editor

BROOKLYN, N. Y. (UP) — It will be Joe Black, for sure, for the Brooklyn Dodgers and anybody or everybody willing for the New York Yankees today when they play the money game of the 1952 World Series on the scarred old lawn of Ebbets Field.

Manager Charley Dressen of the Dodgers, confident that he is in the driver's seat, named his great rookie Negro right hander to bring delirious old Brooklyn its first championship of the baseball world. He did so, almost defiantly, in the knowledge that he was naming a man who had never yet failed him.

Manager Casey Stengel, sometimes spelled Svengali, meanwhile was faced with the most difficult decision of his managerial career.

With one of the great World Series of all time deadlocked at three games each following the Yankees' 3-2 victory Monday, Stengel was "fresh out" of starting pitchers as he reached the game he could not afford to lose.

There was, of course, Super Chief Allie Reynolds, as great a pitcher for one game as anybody ever saw, but could the 34-year-old right hander come back to start after Monday's clutch relief performances? And there was veteran, Series-tested Ed Lopat, but could Casey afford to risk the soft-throwing southpaw against handed batting order in the Dodgers' bandbox park?

Stengel's decision was one to try any man's soul. He had originally planned to start Reynolds in the seventh and money game. But those plans may have been upset when Stengel was forced to bring the brilliant fireballer in to get the last four putouts in relief of tiring Vic Raschi in Monday's thriller.

And so, as it all came down to one game, Stengel faced this problem:

Reynolds is the man he wants to start. But Allie may or may not be capable of bouncing back overnight at full strength. He will pitch if necessary, of course, but perhaps it would be better to save him for a short-haul relief assignment.

Lopat is Series-tested and is paid $30,000 a year, highest paid "junk dealer" in America. But only one left hander started, finished and won against the Dodgers during the entire 154-game National League season. Moreover, Dressen himself admitted the pitcher the Dodgers would most like to see start the game would be Lopat.

Gorman is the type of pitcher who gave the Dodgers fits all season. He is a right handed sidearmer, not unlike Karl Drews of the Phillies, with a wide-breaking curve ball. He is not too fast but has enough control to keep the ball outside on Brooklyn's right handers. He won six games and lost two during the American League season.

But could Stengel risk the rookie, who delivered the wrong pitch to Yogi Berra in the third game and was responsible for letting in the two winning runs although Berra accepted the blame)?

Aside from the pitching angle, there were no unanswered questions. Both managers were going with their best. Stengel's battered "old champs" were ready.

Dressen's lineup will be unchanged.

Loes, a brash, 22-year-old right hander, shut out the Yankees on two hits for six innings Monday and the Dodgers finally got him a run in the last of the sixth when Duke Snider homered over the right field screen.

But the young pitcher could not even protect the lead for one inning. Yogi Berra, first up in the seventh, tied it with a homer. And before the inning was over, Loes had balked the tie-breaking run into scoring position and failed to field Raschi's grounder, which bounced off his left leg into the outfield for a single that scored Gene Woodling.

Mickey Mantle's home run made it 3-1 in the eighth and negated Snider's second homer of the game and his fourth of the Series in the bottom half of the same inning. The Dodgers threatened against the tiring Raschi in the same inning when Shuba doubled with two out but Reynolds came out of the bullpen to throw bullets past Campanella.

Phantoms Prepare To Face Tough Mt. Airy

By WAYNE BISHOP

Reserve members of the Greenville High School varsity football squad got a stiff workout yesterday against members of the school's junior varsity gridders. The Phantom reserves are expected to play a large part in the team's game Friday night with Mt. Airy.

With first-team quarterback Pat Sawyer directing the reserves, yardage was ground out consistently against the Jayvees. Halfbacks Mitchell Johnson and James Speight turned in a couple of nice runs with fullback Bob Howell providing the power for short-yardage plays.

Johnson, Speight and Howell were running against a Jayvee line composed of Edgar Moore and Bill Taft at the ends, Bruce Baker and Larry Powell at the tackles, Tom Smoot and Jerry Phillips at the guards, and Bill Johnson at center. Clete Oakley alternated with Taft at left end for Coach Bo Farley's junior varsity.

Sawyer worked a bit on passing and managed to complete several aerials although the Varsity reserves tried to do most of their gaining on running plays.

The Phantoms will take a break from their conference work when they entertain Mt. Airy Friday night in College Stadium. Thus far, Coach Bill Kittrell's team has racked up loop wins over Edenton and Kinston while they played Washington to a 0-0 tie.

Mt. Airy is a traditionally strong Western AA club which is a contender for the state AA football title almost every year.

Pet Bully Gains More Race Honor

CAMDEN, N. J. (UP) — Pet Bully, an invader from the Midwest, was favored to win the $7,500 Fall Inaugural Purse today as Garden State Park opened its gates for the initial program of a 25-day meeting.

Seven other crack sprinters were named to oppose Pet Bully, who was assigned top weight of 124 pounds for the six-furlong feature.

Pet Bully emerged as one of the Midwest's most consistent sprinters when he won four of seven starts during the recent Arlington-Washington Park meetings. The four-year-old colt, owned by Mrs. Ada L. Rice, has a season record of seven victories and two third-place finishes in 11 starts.

Each time Bobo Newsom of the Philadelphia Athletics issues a base on balls he sets a new American League record. He began the 1952 season with 1585 walks charged against him.

Injured Pirates Return To Drills After Tough Game

The East Carolina College Pirates paused long enough yesterday to count their injured and then they moved into a long session designed to eliminate flaws in their fundamental formations.

The Pirates came out of their 7-7 struggle with Catawba Saturday with three first-stringers on the injured list. Only one, defensive guard Bobby Thomas, is expected to miss Saturday's game at Elon but if the other two injured players don't respond to treatment, the Pirates would have their hands full of trouble.

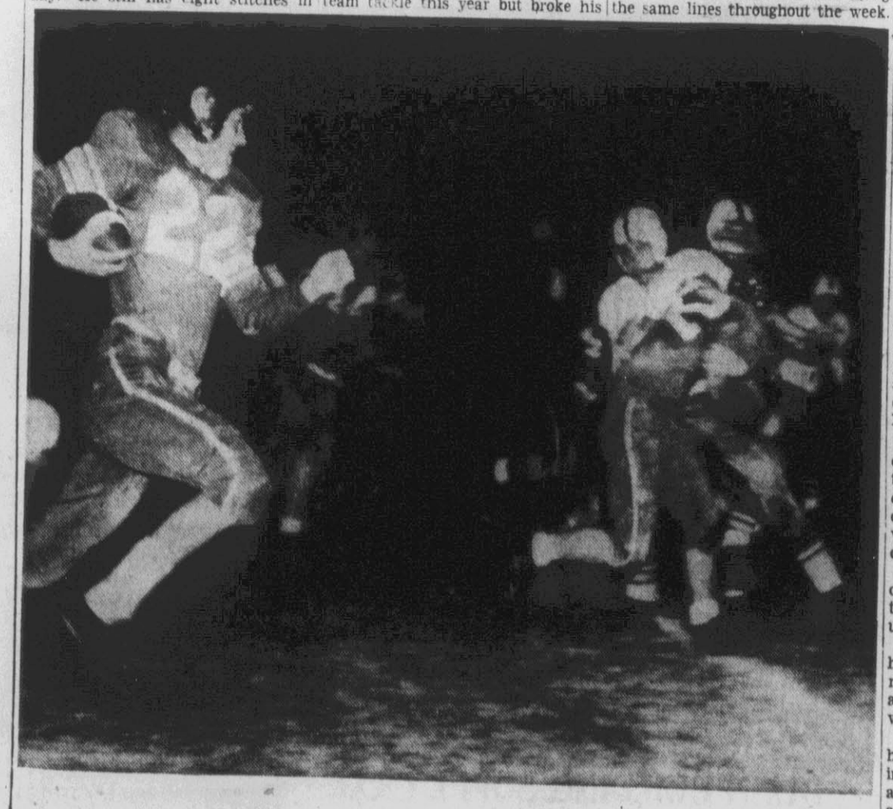

Center-linebacker James (Algie) Faircloth got his knee banged up and was in light equipment yesterday. He still has eight stitches in his lip, too, but both his knee and his lip are expected to be healed by the time Bucs move into Burlington for their game with the Fighting Christians.

End Bobby Hodges aggravated an old injury in the game with the Indians and was in light equipment yesterday. He's expected to resume full operations before the week is out, however, and is expected to be in his position at left end in time for the Elon contest.

The Pirates got some good news and added help in the person of Sonny Callahan who reported to practice yesterday. The Whiteville junior was expected to be a first-team tackle this year but broke his collarbone shortly after practice started this fall and has not seen any action in the four games thus far.

In the practice session yesterday, Coach Jack Boone put the entire squad through a long session of workouts to eliminate bruises and soreness picked up Saturday night. Boone then turned the linemen over to Line Coach Clyde Biggers who put them through their paces in blocking and tackling.

The backs, working under the direction of Boone, went through a long dummy scrimmage and then worked on pass defense. They're expected to continue workouts along the same lines throughout the week.

Duke Climbs To Sixth Spot In College Ranks

NEW YORK (UP) — Michigan State, which seems to make a habit of squeaking through football games, topped the United Press ratings for the third week in a row today, but California and Wisconsin moved up in a challenging position for the No. 1 rating.

The 35 leading coaches who comprise the United Press Rating Board gave Michigan state a total of 269 points for a margin of only 11 points over the Golden Bears of the West Coast. Wisconsin of the Big Ten was not far behind with 250 points. The Spartans led California last week by 94 points.

Michigan State, which edged Oregon State, 17-14, last Saturday on a last-second field goal for its 17th straight triumph, received 11 first place votes; California had nine and Wisconsin six. The Spartans have been picked by the coaches as the best bet for the national championship. California and Wisconsin both are similarly unbeaten and untied so far this season.

Wisconsin moved up from eighth to third place after trimming Illinois, 20-6.

Maryland, with a winning streak of 15 games, moved up one notch to fourth place with four first place votes and 200 points. Georgia Tech advanced two places to fifth with three first place votes and 187 points.

Duke and Notre Dame moved up among the top 10 teams for the first time this season after impressive victories. The Blue Devils, who upset Tennessee, 7-0, leaped from 12th last week to eighth behind Southern California and Oklahoma. Notre Dame, 14-3 winners over Texas, moved from 18th to ninth. Kansas rounded out the top 10 teams.

Southern California retained sixth place with 138 points, while Oklahoma jumped from 10th to seventh with 105 points. Duke had 100 points, Notre Dame 74 and Kansas, which attracted one first place ballot, had 72 points.

Winslow Horses Win At Benson

Sunny Acres Stables, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Hugh C. Winslow of Greenville, scored a resounding triumph at the Benson Horse Show held in connection with the annual Mule Festival last Sunday.

In the Amateur Five Gaited Class, Snow King, with Mrs. Hugh Winslow up, took reserve championship honors.

Stonewall Starlit, who the week before took championship honors at Norfolk, Va., repeated with a first place in the Amateur Fine Harness Class and a championship in the Fine Harness Stake with Hugh Winslow driving each time.

Mighty Chief, a reserve champion at Norfolk, won third in the Five Gaited Championship Stake, with Roland Mayo up. Color Guard took fifth in the Walk Trot Stake, with Mr. Mayo up.

The Winslow horses will show next at the Greenville Jaycee Horse Show this coming Sunday at Guy Smith Stadium.

Mickey Mantle, Yankee center fielder, hit .361 in 40 games with the Kansas City Blues in 1951.

The Ump Miscalls One On Yankees

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—A picture sequence of yesterday's World Series game appeared today to show that American League Umpire Art Passarella made a wrong call — and Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick admitted it.

Passarella called New York Yankee pitcher Johnny Sain out at first base in the 10th inning. The pictures, taken by Associated Press photographer John Lindsay, showed Sain's foot on the bag and the ball not yet in first baseman Gil Hodges' mitt.

"According to the picture, it looks like Passarella called a wrong play," Frick said.

"If he did, he's only human. I assure you it's not the first wrong call ever made by an umpire, if it was that. What's all the shouting about? Players make mistakes, too. So do officials. So does the commissioner. A player makes an error, another forgets to cover a base, a pitcher makes a wild pitch, a catcher lets a ball get away from him. Very little is said.

"But once an umpire makes a wrong call, he is crucified. Why? An umpire is only human. He can make mistakes, too. All I'm interested in is whether he was in the right position to make the call. The picture shows he was."

Passarella said he didn't blame the editors for showing the picture. "It's a good one," he said. "But pictures don't always tell the true story. I was on top of the play and called it as I saw it. In my judgment, the runner, whoever he was, was out. That's the way I called it, and I'll stick to it."

Brooklyn won the game, 6-5, in 11 innings to take a 3-2 lead in the series.

World Series Is Snubbed Abroad

By UNITED PRESS

It may be the "World Series," but interest in America's baseball classic is scant outside the United States.

A United Press survey showed today that the Series is being pretty generally ignored by the press in Europe, Africa, Australia and most of South America. By contrast, interest is high in Japan, Mexico and the Caribbean area.

Most British papers carry just one or two paragraphs daily and the Manchester Guardian hasn't carried a word on it yet. The exception is the Daily Express, always interested in things American.

A few German newspapers have carried the scores, but the rest of the European press has passed it up entirely.

Americans visiting in Argentina have to get their Series news by radio from Voice of America, armed forces programs, or short wave.

Outside of North America, the hottest interest is probably found in Japan where papers carry full accounts prominently displayed and the radio carries a recorded play-by-play in Japanese.

Deacs Are Angry About Tie Game

WAKEFOREST (UP) — Coach Tom Rogers promised to give the Wake Forest team a week of intensive practice to meet the challenge of Villanova, described by scouts as a "powerful crew."

"We don't care if they are powerful, we can be powerful too, if we are right for the game," Rogers told the Deacs. He said Saturday's 7-7 tie with Boston College was "something of a letdown."

"I don't know why," he said. "Our pass defense is weak."

Rogers put the deacons through a tough two-hour scrimmage yesterday with the jayvees running Villanova's offensive plays.

CHAPEL HILL (UP)—Coach Carl Snavely called another light workout for his Tar Heels today with a second idle Saturday in sight following the cancellation of the game with North Carolina State.

The Tar Heel gridmen studied scouting reports yesterday for Wake Forest, the foe they will meet here Oct. 18.

Authorities reported the condition of both members of the tar heel squad stricken during the current polio outbreak on the campus as "highly satisfactory." They are Harold Davidson of Murphy and Sam Sanders of Winston-Salem.

DURHAM (UP) — Duke's Blue Devils rallied up their injuries today as they drilled in preparation for Saturday's meeting with the South Carolina Gamecocks.

Coaches said jarring Jack Kistler, who rammed across the only touchdown in the Duke-Tennessee contest here last weekend, is not expected to see action in the coming game. They said a hand injury Kistler received against Tennessee will probably sideline him for Byrd Looper, who replaced him Saturday.

RALEIGH (UP)—Coach Horace Hendrickson hoped to get the North Carolina State College Wolfpack back into contact work today after competition by the classroom tied up enough members of his squad yesterday to restrict practice to dummy blocking and tackling drills.

Trainers said the team is in good condition to practice for this weekend's game against Davidson despite the 49-0 shellacking by Georgia. Tailback Alex Webster was sidelined yesterday with a neck injury suffered in the Georgia game. Guard Ed Mazgaj is expected to return to work today.

Lightheavy Calls For Heavyweights

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — Philadelphia's Harold Johnson looked to a fall or winter meeting with Rex Layne today on the strength of his speedy, "revenge" knockout of Bob Satterfield of Chicago in the second round of their scheduled 10-round set-to Monday night at the Arena.

The 175-pound light-heavy, giving away a pound to the foe who beat him in a split decision at the Chicago Stadium last Aug. 6, announced after the fight he plans to to stick to the heavyweight class from now on.

Johnson, No. 2 ranked light-heavyweight challenger, said he was being "forced into the heavyweight division" because he can't get enough fights in his own class. He picked Layne as his next foe.

Satterfield came out with a rush in the opening round, pounding Johnson with lefts and rights to the head and body and keeping up the attack I the first seconds of the second round. But Johnson suddenly opened up and felled Satterfield with a right to the chin at 1:58 of the second. Satterfield had to be revived by the ring doctor.

It was the 41st victory against five defeats for Johnson.

The Lawrence Realization, a race of one mile and five furlongs for three-year-olds, was first run in 1889. It was won by Salvator and he earned $34,100.

Irish Legends Recorded Before They Are Lost

By MILTON MARMOR
AP Newsfeatures

DUBLIN — The Irish Folklore Commission is recording for posterity that part of Irish history that has come down through the centuries on the lips of country story-tellers.

Modern recording apparatus is employed to put on wax and on microfilm the vocal history of Ireland. Other commissions may be occupied with the written or archeological story but not Irish Folklore Commission director, Prof. James H. Delargy.

The Irish, especially the country people, have prodigious memories. Perhaps the films are to blame: perhaps the radio; or it may simply be the increase of literacy in Ireland—but for whatever reason today's children don't listen any more to their elders' tales.

Before it is lost, Prof. Delargy and his staff of 10 men and two women are taking down—in tedious, diligent long hand until the last few years, but now on recording apparatus—the authentic voice of the nameless story-tellers who created the heroic literature of medieval Ireland.

Today, a handful of gifted spinners of tales still exist and it is from the lips of these few genuine echoes of yesteryear that today's recordings are being cut.

Such tales as that of the angered Irishman who bit off the top of a mountain or of the leprechaun who migrated to America and helped build the Union Pacific railroad, are being stored in labelled record containers on already crowded shelves.

In other rooms, row after row of bound volumes of both Gaelic and English long hand transciptions by commission field workers stand as silent witnesses to an age-old art. Modern microfilm cameras photograph their pages for future students of Irish folklore.

A quarter of a century ago, a noted Swedish savant, Dr. Wilelm von Sydow of the University f Lund, spotted in young Delargy t the University of Dublin a man ith an overriding interest in Irish olklore. He prevailed upon the uniersity president to permit Delargy o study under him in Sweden where olklore research already had beome a finished skill.

Prof. Delargy, who abhors the city and whose heart points only toward the countryside, tells with a distant, misty look in his eyes how he came back to Ireland and how as he entered Dublin harbor he looked from his ship, past the docks, past the choked city and he could see the Irish hills. He looked beyond them and knew he must make his life's work the recounting of the story of the people of his land.

He determined that everything that could be collected from the past and given to the children of tomorrow by the older people of today was to be his beholden duty. He now knew the techniques required.

Not until 1935 was the commission officially launched with the aid of Eamon de Valera. But Delargy had been striving on his own toward the collection of folklore since the day in 1923 when he met a farmer-fisherman named Sean O'Conaill in southwest Kerry.

Sean O'Conaill's photo hangs on the wall of the commission's headquarters. His features seem hewn of the same rock that forms the pictures background. He could not speak nor understand English and he had never been to school. Yet he was a gifted poet for in him was lodged the deep pleasure of telling tales.

Delargy sat by his side and with labored pen took down what later developed into a book of 500 pages.

The young university professor learned more from Sean O'Conaill than he ever could from books about the Irish people.

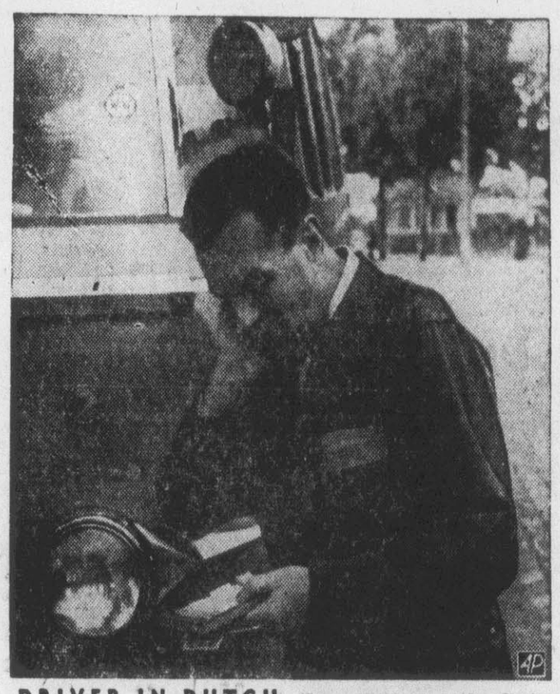

O'Conaill told the tall tales too. Did his listeners believe them all? Delargy doesn't seem to think that's very important.

Will Assist Art Workshop Plans

Francis Lee Neel, acting director of the department of art at East Carolina College, will assist teachers in the public schools of Snow Hill in a workshop on art for elementary-grade pupils. Arrangements for a series of talks and demonstrations have been made through Margaret Hodgens, elemenatry supervisor of Greene County Schools.

Five meetings during October and November have been scheduled. Mr. Neel will direct four of these. Leon Mead, consultant for the American Crayon Co., Knoxville, Tee., will direct one.

The series will open Tuesday, October 7; and meetings will be held each Tuesday night through 4 at the Elementary School Cafeteria in Snow Hill.

Mr. Neel will lead discussions as follows: "Crafts with Flat Paper," October 7; "Papier-mache," October 21; "Decoration of Papier-Mache," and "Etching On Glass," October 28; "Painting on Flat Paper," November 4. Mr. Mead will be director of a conference on "Art in the Elementary School," October 14.

NIGHT DANGER

CLEVELAND, O. (UP) — Street and Traffic Safety Lighting Bureau statistics show that 60 per cent of all auto accidents occur at night although only one-fourth as many vehicles are on the road as in daytime. Inadequate street illumination, the bureau said, is one of the major reasons for difference.

There are about 2,700 earthquakes per day on earth, says the National Geographic Society.

Murder Charged In Tokyo Slaying

TOKYO (UP)—The U. S. Army filed a murder charge today against Mrs. Dorothy Smith, 39, daughter of a retired general, in the fatal stabbing of her colonel husband last Saturday.

Col. Aubrey Smith, 45, an officer in Gen. Mark Clark's Far East headquarters, died of a knife wound in the right side in Tokyo Army Hospital six hours after the stabbing.

"A charge of murder has been preferred," said Lt. Col. D. R. Nugent, Clark's public information officer. "This case will be handled in accordance with normal procedure. The charge is now being investigated as required by statute. (Article 32 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice).

"Should the investigation establish that trial is warranted, the charge would be referred to an appropriate military court for trial."

Mrs. Smith, daughter of retired Gen. Walter Krueger, who served under Gen. Douglas MacArthur in World War II, was placed under observation in an Army hospital psychiatric ward shortly after the stabbing.

The stabbing took place in the bedroom of the Smith home in the Army's fashionable Washington Heights residential area.

The Army gave no information as to possible reasons for the stabbing.

20-Year-Old Can Vote November 4

NEW YORK (UP)—Selwyn Feinstein had permission today to vote in the Nov. 4 election although he will be only 20 years old on that day.

Feinstein received permission to vote from Attorney General Nathaniel Goldstein after the youth dug up an 1897 New York state law which states a person comes of age the day before the anniversary of his birth. Feinstein will be 21 on Nov. 5.

BIKE COPS

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UP)—Night beat policemen here are mobilized but not motorized. Fourteen young officers, assigned to patrol between midnight and dawn, ride bicycles up alleys and close to curbs. Police officials say the bike brigade is efficient, being able to patrol wider areas with more care.

Explorer Scout Encampment Set

The East Carolina Council, through their Activities Chairman, Roscoe G. Barnes, Wilson, has just released the preliminary announcement in connection with the huge Explorer Encampment for Explorers in Scout Troops and Explorer Units to be set up on the campus at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, the weekend of November 6-8.

Explorers of the East Carolina Council will join with 500 other young men from the Old North State in a second annual vocational exploration at the University. Mr. Barnes said that early registrations will be necessary to secure a spot on this encampment.

On Thursday afternoon, November 6, hundreds of young men who are Scout Explorers will arrive in Chapel Hill and pitch their tents on Emerson Field. After that, any similarity to an ordinary camping trip will end. As guests of the University, these Explorers will eat in the college cafeteria, tour the town and behave in a manner much like that of a incoming freshman class.

Friday morning, the "Exploration" will get under way. President Faculty experts in twelve major fields of study, ranging from agriculture to medicine, will conduct lecture-demonstration activities through the day and by nightfall the Explorers will have had an insight into what they may expect when they have eventually chosen their college or university.

Material assistance will be given by the University Testing Service as they are on hand to administer selected tests to the Explorers with the results being mailed to the individual back home. This testing may help determine vocational aptitudes for the Explorers and eliminate wasted time in choosing fields of endeavor when they enter institutions of higher learning.

It is estimated that about 100 earthquakes a year are strong enough to do real damage.

Says Envoys Are Ignoring Little People Abroad

CHICAGO (UP) — Abe Saperstein, owner-coach of the Harlem Globe-Trotters, assailed American ambassadors and consuls abroad today for neglecting "the common guy."

Saperstein returned last weekend from a five and one half month tour round the world with his basketball team in which they visited 85 cities, 32 countries and traveled 51,849 miles.

"Only a half a dozen diplomats showed up on the whole tour," he said. "They're just interested in cuties and visiting Congressmen. I think they've lost touch with the common guy we cater to."

Saperstein exempted from his accusations such cities as Rome and Lisbon, where American authorities visited his group, ranging from 32 to 40 members.

He said that in his opinion his tour fought the "Communist line of propaganda which in Europe has been the enslavement of the American Negro."

Farming Gains 'Great' But Much Left To Do

BERKELEY, Calif. (U.P.)—Between one and two million American farm families have incomes too low for "decent lifing" and are not making good or full use of their land and labor resources, according to Ralph W. Hollenberg, state director of the Farmers Home Administration for California, Nevada and Hawaii.

Despite this condition, great progress has been made, Hollenberg said adding:

"In 1930 about 42 per cent of the nation's farms were operated by tenants. By 1952, less than 25 per cent of the nation's farms were tenant-operated and many tenants, moreover, are farmig under conditions which are fair and profitable to all concerned."

Nevertheless, many farmers "lack the skill," the land resources, the equipment and the capital that are needed to keep up with the steady rise of productive ability that has taken place on the majority of American farms. The foremost need in a solution of this problem is credit—credit accompanied by assistance in the planning and execution of a sound farming system. .....Two Types Of Loans.....

Two Types Of Loans

"The services of the Farm Home Administration, Hollenberg noted, "are limited to those who cannot obtain credit elsewhere"—in other words: to those who cannot qualify for loans from established private or cooperative credit sources. With each loan, the FHA provides "a good deal of technical assistance in farm and home management to safeguard the government's investment and to make sure that the farm family gets the maximum value out of the loan."

FHA loans fall into two main classes: real estate credit and operating credit, said Hollenberg. FHA field offices have almost full authority for granting loans. FHA county committees, made up of local farmers, "determine applicants' eligibility the personal knowledge that the committeemen have of the applicants' background and ability is invaluable as a safeguard to the making of sound and productive lons."

In the field of real estate loans, Hollenberg estimated that about 72,300 families have borrowed about $450,000,000 (m) since 1938 and almost 40 per cent of the loans have been fully paid long before due dates.

Work Justified

In the field of operating loans, more than a million low income farmers have received credit since 1935. Water loans, since 1937, assisted more than 28,000 families in 17 western states and totaled about $17,000,000 (m)

Disaster loans, between April, 1949 and December, 1951, totalled $80,000,000 (m) and averaged $1,445 per loan, "indicating that the borrowers are mainly family-type operators."

Summarizing, Hollenberg said: "The experience of the past two decades indicates that the government's efforts have been well justified there is real significance in the fact that every dollar—if you count interest and principal repayment—of the billion dollars that was loaned for operating purposes to more than a million farmers during the thirites and war years, has been repaid."

Reich's Top Soldier Living Aloof, Alone

By WELLINGTON LONG
United Press Staff Correspondent

HANNOVER, Germany (U.P.)—Former Field Marshall Ferd von Rundstedt, senior military leader of the Third Reich, lives in a third-floor walkup apartment here on a pension which barely covers his rent and the cost of a nurse for his paralyzed wife.

Scion of a family that had produced soldiers for 800 years, the 76-year-old soldier who began serving in the German army when he was 16, has been in complete retirement since the war.

He spent three years in a British prison camp after the war. When freed, he returned to Hannover to rejoin his wife, Louise. She was the daughter of a retired army officer and married Rundstedt in 1902.

No Interviews

Since his return, Rundstedt has locked himself away from the world. Unlike most officers, he never kept a diary. He has refused to write a book because he doesn't want to create the impression that he is trying to vindicate himself.

He has refused to give any newspaper interviews, although he did permit a photographer to enter his tiny apartment last December to make pictures for use on his birthday, Dec. 12.

Frau Von Rundstedt suffered a stroke last December, which left her paralyzed below the waist. She has to use a wheelchair, and her husband has stretched his meager pension to hire a full-tim enurse for her.

Rejects Movie Money

Friends say Rundstedt has refused most of the offers of financial aid which have come to him both from inside Germany and abroad.

He did accept one offer of 1,000 marks ($238) with the understanding that it be used to assist in the education of the four children of his only son, who died in 1948.

A Hollywood film company which had portrayed Rundstedt briefly on the screen in one of its pictures offered to pay for the use of his name but he refused the money.

Thus, the man who, as a young lieutenant, was carried on the shoulders of the citizens of Arolsen to court balls in order that his boots might not be muddied, the officer who led the conquest of Poland in 1940, helped push the Russians to Moscow two years later, and led the Third Reich's last great offensive in the Ardennes in December, 1944, has returned to the poverty into which he was born.

Women In The Church

By Mary Fowler

Urging other councils of church women, local and state, to go and do likewise, Mrs. James D. Wyker, president of United Church Women, recounts a number of recent situations in which church women, personally or in their organizations, exerted influence for social understanding or community betterment. In Dearborn, Mich., she says a group of church women marched upon a broadcasting station and received an apology because a commentator implied that a certain minister had communistic leanings. In Annapolis, Md., church women had slum cleared, a housing project erected, and some housing commissioners replaced. In Des Moines, Iowa, the women worked with a state employment office in finding jobs for older women. Similar efforts are now being made in Denver, Hartford, Kansas City, Chicago, and Cleveland. In Atlanta, Ga., church women were active in improving state hospital conditions.

Miss Sarah E. Taylor, a retired teacher of Central Falls, R.I., wrote the "Bible hymn" voted the best of five submitted in the contest of the Hymn Society of America in celebration of the publication of the Revised Standard Version of the Bible. Her hymn is copyrighted by the Hymn Society of America (297 Fourth Avenue, New York 10, N.Y.) from which copies may be obtained. Suggested tunes are: "Ancient of Days" or "Charterhouse." The first and fourth stanzas are:

"O God of Light, they word, a lamp unfailing,
Shines through the darkness of our earthly way,
O'er fear and doubt, 'O'er black despair prevailing,
Guilding our steps to thine eter...l day

"To all the world the message thou art sending,
To every land, to every race and clan;
And myriad tongues, in one great anthem blending,
Acclaim with joy they wondrous gift to man."

INSULT TO INJURY
FORT WORTH, Tex. (UP) — It wasn't so much the accident in which a Mississippi motorist was involved that annoyed police. After a two-car crash, the driver drove the wrong way on a one-way street, made an illegal turn, ran a red light and couldn't produce a driver's license. And oh, yes—he was in a stolen car.

Medical knowledge was rapidly increased during both the World Wars.

TANDEM DRIVING

They were speeding at 60 miles an hour, with Horace operating the brake and clutch pedals and William sitting in his lap, steering. William was learning to drive.

Stocks And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—High-priced oil issues led the stock market higher early today in quiet dealings.

Gains in the high-priced oil group ranged to more than a point. Other gains were limited to small fractions with a number of pivotals holding at their previous close.

Calls No Inquest In Sudden Death Of Pitt Woman

Mrs. Mollie Lee Wells, 45, of Farmville Rte. 2 was found dead in bed this morning by her daughter who slept with her last night.

Coroner Griffin H. Rouse said Mrs. Wells died of natural causes and no inquest will be held.

The coroner quoted members of the family as saying Mrs. Wells retired as usual last night, apparently in good health. Mrs. Wells and four of her nine children lived on the Leslie Turnage old home place near Farmville with her brother, Willie Wells, Rouse said. The coroner added that Mrs. Wells' husband, the late David Elmer Wells, was found dead in bed of natural causes on June 27, 1945.

Officers Elected At Meet Of District Dental Society

Among the notable dentists and officers from this area in the Fifth District Dental Society attending that organization's annual meeting in Greenville Sunday and yesterday, pictured above left to right, were: Dr. R. A. Daniel, Jr., of Roanoke Rapids, vice-president; Dr. Coyte R. Minges of Rocky Mount, president elect; Dr. Dan Wright of Greenville, retiring president; Dr. W. H. Young of Burgaw, president; and Dr. M. M. Lilley of Scotland Neck, secretary-treasurer. (Reflector Photo by Herman Hickman).

Dr. Dan Wright of Greenville, retiring president of the Fifth District Dental Society, yesterday presided over the society's annual business session held at the Greenville Country Club.

The highlight of the annual two-day meeting, which began here Sunday night and lasted through yesterday, was the election of officers to head the organization for the coming year.

Dr. W.H. Young of Burgaw will assume the presidency next year. President elect this year, who will enter the office next year, is Dr. Coyte Minges of Rocky Mount. Other officers elected yesterday were: vice-president, Dr. R.A. Daniel, Jr. of Roanoke Rapids; and secretary-treasurer, Dr. M.M. Lilley of Scotland Neck.

Others Elected

Other officers elected in yesterday's business session are: Editor of the district dental journal, Dr. Frank Harris of Farmville; and five members to the house of delegates, Dr. W.H. Young of Burgaw, Dr. M.M. Lilley of Scotland Neck, Dr. Paul Jones of Farmville, Dr. Fred Hunt of Rocky Mount and Dr. R.E. Williams of Rocky Mount.

Members in attendance voted to hold the next annual meeting at Goldsboro. The Fifth District Dental Society is a subdivision of both the North Carolina Dental Society and the American Dental Association.

A number of notable dentists from throughout North Carolina attended the district meeting. Among them were Dr. John Brauer, dean of the neophyte University of North Carolina School of Dentistry at Chapel Hill; Dr. Neal Sheffield of Greensboro, president elect of the North Carolina Dental Society; and Dr. Bernard Walker of Charlotte, secretary-treasurer of the State Society.

Welcome Address

At the district society's meeting here in Greenville yesterday, Mayor Lester D. Page delivered the address of welcome and Rev. Richard E. Hardaway presented the invocation. The morning session was held at the city hall.

Dr. H. Fuerst of Rocky Mount and Dr. Charles Cooke of Wilson made lectures and held discussions on the latest techniques in dental surgery.

At a luncheon held yesterday noon at the Greenville Country Club, Dr. John D. Messick of Greenville, president of East Carolina College, made a short, informal talk to the group.

Late in the afternoon, officers were installed and the Fifth District Dental Society's annual meeting was adjourned — and became history.

District Dental Society Auxiliary Holds Session

Next year's officers of the Auxiliary of the Fifth District Dental Society were elected yesterday at the Greenville Country Club where they met in a business session.

Officers are Mrs. J.M. Kilpatrick, president, of Robersonville; Mrs. R.A. Daniel, Jr., president elect, of Roanoke Rapids; Mrs. Z. I. Belin, vice-president, of Wallace; Mrs. M.M. Lilley, secretary, of Scotland Neck; and Mrs. Ed Batemean, treasurer, of Rocky Mount.

The executive committee is made up of Mrs. B. McKay Johnson of Greenville, Mrs. C. B. Johnson of New Bern, and Mrs. Fred Hunt of Rocky Mount.

Several speakers were present at the meeting of the auxiliary which included Dr. A.C. Current of Gastonia. Dr. Current expressed enthusiasm about the auxiliary and appealed to them to have some objective in mind.

Mrs. Darden Eure of Morehead City, past state president of the auxiliary, told the group of women that there were certain roads in building an organization that people must travel. She compared the roads to Biblical times pointing out four roads that must be traveled: Road to Damascus, the road of awakening; Road to Jericho, road of service; Road to Emmaus, the road of fellowship; and the Road to Bethelem, the road of wonder.

Mrs. H.O. Lineberger of Raleigh, state president of the auxiliary, explained and stressed the importance of keeping three things in mind—the endowment program, scholarship, and vocational guidance.

Mrs. W.I. Hart of Edenton, president of the dental foundation committee, explained the work of the foundation to the group and explained the memorial book.

Approximately 25 women from 33 counties in the state, which comprises the Fifth District, were present at the all day meeting.

Mrs. W.H. Young of Burgaw, president, presided over the meeting.

Pitt . . .

REPUBLICANS -- There is evidence of disaffection in the Republican party, but it is less obvious and less important than that among Democrats. Control of party machinery makes little difference in the state unless there is a national Republican administration. Despite the fact that some Republicans who favored Senator Taft for the nomination are not enthusaistic about General Eisenhower they are going along with the ticket. The real scrap for power involving support of the Republican candidate is between the regular party organization and the independent "Citizens for Eisenhower". Republicans claim and Democrats refuse to admit that there is a chance for Eisenhower to get the 14 electoral votes in this State. Leaders of both parties concede that it will take upwards of 100,000 "independent" votes to turn the trick. The independents are loud in protest that they desire nothing out of the deal except a change in Washington. But it is recalled that in 1928 the Democrats who helped turn the State to Hoover demanded and got a share in the patronage. Backers of winning candidates have a way of forgetting their protestations of complete unselfishness after their man gets in office and starts to cutting the pie. So it is that in both parties in North Carolina there are cross currents down below that contrast with the smooth running appearance of the surface waters.
