Champions Are Chosen At County Fair's Livestock Show

GRAND CHAMPION of the 1952 Pitt County American Legion Fair swine contest held yesterday was the Poland China shown above with its proud owner, Don Manning of Route 2, Greenville. Manning's entry was judged the best of all breeds entered in the stock show yesterday. (Reflector Photos by Roy Hardee).

DAIRY CHAMPION over a field of 12 entries, was this calf of Michael House, of the Bethel Future Farmers of America chapter. Mike is shown with his entry after the winners had been announced. His calf also won first prize in the showmanship contest. Second place in showmanship went to Bobby Barfield of the Grifton FFA chapter.

Now Resigned To Long Korean War

Top Gov't Officials See Odds Against Truce Rising

WASHINGTON (UP) — The administration is all but resigned to a long war in Korea, informed sources revealed today.

Top government officials figure the odds against an early armistice at more than 100 to 1 and already are tailoring U.S. strategy to deal with this gloomy prospect.

Secretary of State Dean Acheson said Wednesday that he hasn't given up all hope for an armistice. But he was far from cheerful about the prospects.

The State and Defense departments are studying possible ways to apply more military and diplomatic pressure on the Communists to crack the deadlock on repatriation of Red prisoners.

But, according to reliable sources, these officials believe little more can be done, short of extending the war to the Chinese mainland.

Administration officials remain dead set against a naval blockade or strategic bombing of Red China, except in case of an emergency.

These moves, they feel, might pull Russia into the war under the terms of the Sino-Soviet Defense Pact.

The United Nations Command postponed the truce talks indefinitely Tuesday night, telling the Communists bluntly they can either forget about an armistice or accept the U.N. stand that no prisoners will be forced to return to Communist rule against their will.

Officials said this move was designed to drive home two points — that the Reds can't keep using Panmunjom as a propaganda sounding-board and that the Allies are going to be tough on the POW issue.

Trygve Lie Calls For Sharing Korea Costs

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UP) — United Nations Secretary-general Trygve Lie today called for a "more equitable sharing of the burdens" of the Korean war. He also asked continuation of the fight to throw back the Communist aggressors and restore peace and security to the embattled peninsula.

In his annual report, prepared for the seventh session of the U.N. General Assembly opening here next Tuesday, Lie said: "The military action in Korea has been undertaken and fought by the U.N. only to throw back the aggressors, to bring the aggression to an end, and to restore peace and security."

"Until there is an armistice, it is the part of wisdom and of duty under the charter for members to carry on the fight for the attainment of these objectives and to do so with a more equitable sharing of the burdens."

"The U.N. has sought and should continue to seek in all ways to reach a reasonable and fair armistice agreement without sacrifice of moral principle. An armistice along the present battle lines would end the aggression approximately where it started and open the way to a restoration of peace and security in the area."

Large Number Of Entries In Stock Show At County Fair; Ribbons And Prizes Awarded

By ROY HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

While chilling autumn winds briskly whipped a drizzling rain around the fair grounds, dampening crowd attendance, Pitt stock raisers turned out yesterday to stage the largest stock show ever seen at a county fair.

Growth of stock production in the county over the past year was clearly in evidence at the show yesterday with the large number of entries present.

Swine showed a good increase over last year's show while beef cattle doubled as compared with 1951.

In the dairy cattle class, a marked increase was noted, also the addition of two new departments, including classification for heifers, resulting from artificial breeding and a junior dairy show, sponsored by county vocational teachers.

In the poultry field, many more entries were exhibited over last year.

Grand Champion Dairy
A Bethel Future Farmer of America, Michael House, was top mail at the show yesterday as his prize winning purebred calf took the grand champion honors over a field of 12 entries.

In addition, House's animal placed first in the showmanship class, winning an additional blue ribbon and prize money of $10.

Second place honors went to Bobby Barfield in the showmanship classification.

Barfield returned with the second place winner in the top vent, however, as he dropped the reserve champion calf honors. Barfield is a member of the Grifton FFA chapter and lives on Ayden Rt. 1.

Swine Champions
Grand champion of all breeds in the swine entries went to a Poland China owned by Dan Manning, FFA club member.

The reserve champion honor was taken by Tommie Phillips.

An entry owned by Roger Mills of Grimesland won first place in the showmanship class with second place honors going to Don Manning.

Mills was Junior champion in his class while Manning was senior champion.

Total premiums paid out by the Pitt County American Legion Fair last night to the stock winners in the swine and dairy show was $305.09.

Exhibitors Honored

Last night the Greenville Chamber of Commerce honored all persons taking part in the stock show yesterday with a barbecue dinner, after which presentation of awards was made.

Ercell Webb, president of the Chamber of Commerce, delivered the opening address of welcome to the crowd present.

He praised the growth of the swine and dairy production in Pitt over the years which made this year's show the largest yet.

The supper last night marked the fifth year which the local Chamber of Commerce has so honored the exhibitors at the fair.

Toastmaster J. B. Kittrell introduced S. F. Peterson, Ayden Agriculture teacher, who presented President John D. Messick of East Carolina College.

Messick spoke briefly to the group assembled, saying, "There is not a more honorable profession than that of a farmer, and don't you forget that."

After citing the progress made by the county in production increases among its dairy and swine heads, the president then issued a challenge to all present to exercise their right to vote.

Telling the audience that they could not blame the type of government which they had if they do not vote, he cited the fact that in the last presidential election some 49 percent of the American voting public did not go to the polls.

Presentation Of Awards

Pitt County Superintendent Donald H. Conley next presented the swine awards to the winners, followed by Bob Wood of the FCX who gave out the dairy awards.

Wood also presented additional prizes to the prize winners in the dairy class given by the FCX.

For the second year in a row, the Bethel Future Farmers of America Chapter has topped the award for the best all-around booth in the fair.

Each year a ribbon and cash prize of $25 is presented by Norman Y. Chambliss, fair manager, for the best exhibit as selected by a panel of judges.

Bill Drum next presented the Grand Champion, Dan Manning, with a trophy for winning the number one spot in the stock show yesterday to round out the night's events.

Truman Says GOP Will Kill Remnants Of Price Control

By DAYTON MOORE
United Press Staff Correspondent

EN ROUTE WITH TRUMAN (UP) — President Truman warned today that Republicans would "murder what is left of price controls" and added they "might be willing" to cause a minor depression in America.

Mr. Truman said the Republican party won't let Dwight D. Eisenhower say anything "positive about price controls because the special interest lobbies who control that party are against them."

In a speech prepared for delivery at Cleveland, O., the President slammed away at Eisenhower by saying he did not recall "any conspicuous examples" of economy or efficiency during the former general's term as chief of staff.

"You can be sure his party will murder what is left of price controls if ever they get hold of the government," Mr. Truman said.

"There is one way the Republicans could reduce prices, and I think they might be willing to try it," he said. "That is to bring on a depression—not a big depression like they had in 1932, you understand, but just a little bit of a depression."

Rolling east on the homeward leg of an 8,500-mile coast-to-coast campaign tour, Mr. Truman's itinerary today called for speeches at Indianapolis, Anderson and Muncie, Ind.; Bellefontaine, Marion, Galion and Cleveland, O. and Erie, Pa. and Buffalo, N. Y.

"We have to realize that this military candidate is simply the front man for the party that has fought price and rent control, and tried to open loopholes in our control laws and our tax laws for the powerful interests," Mr. Truman said.

The President said that Eisenhower had "moaned and groaned" about high prices but had not said anything about how to lower them because the "special interest lobbies" won't let him.

He said it is "vitally important" to elect the "right man" as President this November because "these next four years are likely to be some of the most critical we have ever faced."

The "right man," he said, was Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson, the Democratic candidate.

Mr. Truman scoffed that Eisenhower "doesn't know much—if anything—about the real issues."

The President said the Republicans nominated the five-star general because they thought his "military glamour is going to make the people forget the real issues."

His speech, prepared for delivery in the President's home state of Missouri, was reminiscent of Mr. Truman's "do-nothing, good-for-nothing attacks four years ago on the Republican-controlled 80th Congress."

Although Stevenson has been accused of trying to get out from under the "Truman label," the Democratic presidential candidate paid high tribute in his Kansas City speech to Mr. Truman, who comes from nearby Independence.

"Harry Truman is certainly a man of independence," he said. "I think that's the thing I like about him most."

"He won't take anything off anybody. No one knows this better than Joe Stalin. (He) has rallied the free peoples against the mortal threat of Communism and Russian imperialism."

Stevenson also lashed out anew at Dwight D. Eisenhower, his Republican opponent, on the charge that the former five-star general has become a submissive captive of the "Old Guard" of the Republican party.

"For a moment, back in August, the Republican leadership had a shem of liberalism, of progressiveness," he said. "But the shem has all rubbed off."

He mentioned Eisenhower's associations with Sens. John W. Bricker of Ohio and Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois and the fact that "in Wisconsin, he barnstormed around the state with Sen. Joseph McCarthy, the defamer of his friend and benefactor, General (George C.) Marshall."

Stevenson scheduled three talks today in Missouri—a "prop-stop" at St. Joseph at mid-morning, his speech in Kansas City and a major speech tonight at St. Louis.

Stevenson came to Missouri from a day of barnstorming across McCarthy's home state during which he lashed out repeatedly at the Wisconsin senator and the tactics he has used in his "Communist in government" charges.

Ike Says U.S. Swindled; Stevenson Lauds HST

Charges Administration For Being 'Taken' In Korea

EN ROUTE WITH EISENHOWER (UP)—Dwight D. Eisenhower charged Wednesday night that the Truman administration has allowed Russia to "swindle" America in the Korean truce talks and has let Communist influences creep "into our citadel."

The Republican presidential candidate's special train pushed into Southern California today after Eisenhower made the fiercest attack to date on President Truman and his secretary of state, Dean Acheson.

He blamed foreign policy for being at least partially responsible for the failure of the Korean armistice negotiations.

Eisenhower said that while the negotiations had dragged on without success for 15 months "the Communist military position has been repaired" and "beyond that, it has probably been made half again as strong."

"As month after bloody month dragged by, we came to realize we had been swindled," the former five-star general said.

The radio and television audience did not hear Eisenhower use the word "swindled" because the latter part of his speech had to be cut when air time ran out.

But James H. Agerty, Eisenhower's press secretary, said the GOP nominee still "stands by" his prepared text as the official version of his speech.

Eisenhower's blast at the administration came after the nominee had received a tumultuous ticker tape welcome to San Francisco by an estimated 100,000 persons.

The GOP candidate, speaking to an auditorium crowd of 28,000 persons, said:

"The administration in power has failed to bring into line its cross-cutting, overlapping and jealous departments, bureaus and agencies."

"It has failed to follow up the policies made by the National Security Council."

"The administration hasn't brought to bear all our forces at the same time under the same plan on the same target."

"It's time we did!" the GOP nominee said.

Adlai Also Borrows Campaign Techniques Of 1948

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UP)—Adlai E. Stevenson borrowed the 1948 "give 'em hell" technique of President Truman today with a charge that the Republicans are a "do-nothing, care-nothing, know-nothing party."

His speech, prepared for delivery in the President's home state of Missouri, was reminiscent of Mr. Truman's "do-nothing, good-for-nothing attacks four years ago on the Republican-controlled 80th Congress."

Although Stevenson has been accused of trying to get out from under the "Truman label," the Democratic presidential candidate paid high tribute in his Kansas City speech to Mr. Truman, who comes from nearby Independence.

"Harry Truman is certainly a man of independence," he said. "I think that's the thing I like about him most."

"He won't take anything off anybody. No one knows this better than Joe Stalin. (He) has rallied the free peoples against the mortal threat of Communism and Russian imperialism."

Stevenson also lashed out anew at Dwight D. Eisenhower, his Republican opponent, on the charge that the former five-star general has become a submissive captive of the "Old Guard" of the Republican party.

"For a moment, back in August, the Republican leadership had a shem of liberalism, of progressiveness," he said. "But the shem has all rubbed off."

91 Known Dead In Railway Crash

Weary Volunteers Continue Searching Wreckage Of Trains

HARROW, England (UP)—Weary British volunteers and U. S. Air Force rescue teams today searched the wreckage of three trains which crashed here yesterday for persons who still may be trapped alive and for bodies of additional dead.

The British railway administration listed 91 known dead and 169 hurt in the worst rail disaster in the nation's history. The toll was expected to mount as the crushed and splintered cars were pulled apart and as injured died in hospitals.

At least one American was killed when two speeding express trains, travelling in opposite directions, ripped into a crowded commuter local at yesterday's rush hour.

Railway officials said there may be some school children beneath the heap of wreckage.

One official on the scene said: "There are still numerous people trapped. We don't know how many, if any, are still alive."

No official figure was available on the missing, but it was known at least six railway employees have been accounted for.

Ten Jurors For Porcelli Trial Chosen By Noon

Second Special Venire Of 100 Pitt Citizens Ordered To Be Drawn

By JESS POINDEXTER
Reflector Staff Writer

With 10 jurors passed and sworn through this morning's session, pre-trial court deliberations in the capital case against Fredrick L. Porcelli dragged into their third day.

Porcelli stands indicted on a charge of murder in the first degree as the result of the fatal shooting August 16 of Jesse Mills, a Greenville night policeman.

Components of a second special venire of 100 prospective jurors bore the brunt of meticulous interrogation this morning, as prosecution and defense attorneys continued their seemingly inexhaustible effort to obtain a trial jury.

Second Venire

Presiding Judge William T. Hatch yesterday afternoon ordered the drawing of a second special venire of 100 Pitt County citizens. The order came immediately after the first special venire of 75 potential jurors was exhausted at 3 o'clock.

Before the drawing began, Judge Hatch directed Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson to exclude names of residents of Greenville, Ayden, Paoctous, Swift Creek and Winterville townships from the jury list. He had previously ordered that no jurors be drawn from Chicod township, originally the residence of the slain policeman.

One of the jurors selected this morning is a woman and the mother of two children. She is Mrs. Dennis E. Hardy of Bethel. An additional juror passed yesterday afternoon is Wendell W. Smiley of Greenville township.

Jurors Passed

Other jurors examined and passed this morning are: J. L. Creech, Farmville township; Jarvis D. Batchelor, Bethel township; and John H. Cherry, Carolina township. As in the case of six jurors previously sworn, all those selected this morning have families.

Making up the trial jury as it stands to date, in addition to those previously mentioned, are: W. T. Kirkman, Carolina township; Dennis Briley Jr., Bethel township; S. L. Corbett, Fountain township; C. A. Lillie, Farmville township; and Robert Joyner, Farmville township.

To obtain 10 members of the trial jury, attorneys have examined 32 regular panel jurors, 54 members of the first special venire of 75 and approximately 30 of the second special venire ordered to report into court this morning at 9:30.

A total of 70 members of the second special venire of 100 appeared in court this morning. Cost to the county for the first and second special venires is approximately $600 thus far.

Begin Evidence

Through noon today the defense had exhausted seven of its 14 allotted challenges, and thus, has seven remaining. The state has challenged two jurors to date, and retains four of its original six.

As they have been throughout the past three days of deliberation, members of the two Marines' families were in court this morning. They (Continued on page sixteen)

American Observers Amazed By Valor Of Troops Beaten Back But Always Returning To Close-Quarter Battle; Crest Pulverized By Artillery And Air Strikes

SEOUL, Korea (UP) — South Korean troops won control of the crest of bitterly contested White Horse Mountain early today, and at last reports had closed with weakening Chinese Communists in hand-to-hand fighting.

The Republic of Korea troops whose valor amazed American officers, battled with guns, grenades and bayonets to throw Chinese off the blood-soaked peak guarding the central front gateway to Seoul.

A corps spokesman said close-in fighting continued with ROKs in control of the top. A ruddy harvest moon and aerial flares lighted the peak in the fourth night of vicious fighting.

ROKs of the 9th Division who had worked their way to within 20 yards of the crest loosed four sharp jabs at 11 p.m. and by 12:30 a.m. had reached the top. It was their first time on the crest in the sea-saw fighting since 4:15 a.m. Thursday.

Allied observers counted 1,200 bodies in visible portions of the sprawling mountain battlefield. This figure supported previous estimates of 8,000 Red casualties in the battle which was 75 hours old at midnight.

"It's Oriental against Oriental," an American officer said, "and that means the most savage of hand-to-hand fighting." An Allied spokesman said the Chinese apparently have orders to "win or die."

ROK troops were within 70 yards of the crest at 10 p.m. United Press war correspondent Warren Franklin reported from the front.

The crest, pulverized by artillery from both sides and by repeated United Nations air strikes, has changed hands more than a dozen times since the Chinese struck Monday night.

ROK troops, frequently forced into temporary retreat but always returning to attack, have knocked out of action an entire Chinese division of some 8,000 men.

Remaining Chinese hold the crest with a reinforced company of about 200 men, backed by two beefed-up Red battalions of some 800 men each. Other Chinese battalions on the north slope complete the front line Red forces which have sent repeated futile attacks against the ROKs.

The ROKs earlier today went back up the hill cawed today in the face of a tremendous Red artillery barrage.

The three-day battle for White Horse and the nearby French-defended Arrowhead Ridge northwest of Choron on the central front has been costly for the Chinese.

"We can safely say," an Allied spokesman said, "that one Chinese Division (about 12,000 men) has been decimated."

The spokesman apparently meant "cut to pieces." He estimated that 4,000 Chinese were killed, 4,000 wounded and the remainder shovelled in as replacements in other units.

"We believe the Chinese have had orders to take at least one of the

Music Club Enjoys Program Of Folk Songs And Music

The Greenville Music Club held its first meeting of the season Tuesday night, October 6, at 8 o'clock in the Woman's Club.

Mr. George Perry, president, called the attention of the club to the fact that there are conflicts at the college for the December and January meetings, so the date for these two meetings were changed from the second Tuesday night in the month to the first Tuesday night in both instances.

Mr. Charles White informed members that the Wagner Opera Company will again be in Greenville this fall, and on Monday, November 17th will present Gilbert and Sullivan's Opera, "The Mikado," in the new theatre of the Training School.

Members learned with regret that Mrs. Karl Gilbert, who faithfully served as program chairman last year, has left Greenville to make Rochester, N. Y. her home. Miss Beatrice Chauncey, teacher of Music Methods at East Carolina College and supervisor of music practice teachers in the Training School, has agreed to fill the office of program chairman. The club is eagerly looking forward to the programs she has planned for the year.

The program Miss Chauncey presented for the evening had Folk Music for its theme. She first spoke, giving a detailed history of Folk Music, and then played several recordings of Folk Music. Mr. Black and Mr. Hamm, teachers at the college, together with Miss Chauncey, rendered several Folk Songs and then Miss Chauncey led the whole group in singing additional Folk Songs, giving the club a program of charm and variety.

Revised Version Of Bible Topic At Atheneum

The Atheneum Book Club held its first meeting of the 1952-53 year on Tuesday at 1:00 p.m. at the home of Mrs. J. H. Rose.

Fall flowers were used throughout the house and guests were seated at card tables where they were served a delicious two-course luncheon by the hostess, who was assisted by Mrs. Burt Aycock.

After the luncheon guests were invited upstairs to the dramatic studio of the hostess, where she presented the program for the afternoon.

Mrs. Rose chose for her subject the Revised Standard Version of the Holy Bible. She read a story telling of the history of the making of this Bible, while at the same time Mrs. Leon Russell illustrated her talk by the showing of slides. This was a most interesting and enlightening talk, making all present feel a much deeper appreciation of the new Bible.

There was also an exhibit of posters in the room showing pages from each of the Bible translations up to the present version.
After the program there was a short business session presided over by the president, Mrs. Rose. New books were distributed and the meeting adjourned.

Guests for the afternoon were Mrs. Aycock and Mrs. Russell.

Doctors Present Bethel PTA Program

BETHEL—Dr. Kenneth Quiggins of Greenville was guest speaker for the Bethel Parent-Teacher Association which met Thursday evening, October 2, in the Bethel Elementary School auditorium.

His subject for the evening was "Sight and Life." He listed twenty outstanding indications of weak eyes at the beginning of his discussion. Following this introduction, he showed a number of slides dealing with light and sight as it pertains to students in school. Dr. Quiggins was assisted by Dr. Sam White. They were introduced by Mrs. W. R. Huncutt.

Prior to the talk by Dr. Quiggins, Rev. Carl Bjork gave the devotional. Mrs. Dennis Hardy presided over the meeting in the absence of the president, Mrs. R. J. Whitehurst. The secretary, Mrs. J. C. Wynne Jr., gave the minutes of the last meeting and the treasurer's report.

The second and ninth grades won the attendance prizes. During the business session, the chairman of the Halloween committee, Mrs. Jasper Smith, reported plans that had been made for the Halloween Carnival. Mr. R. L. Martin, in behalf of the Halloween committee, asked members present to donate jointly or individually some pigs for the barbecue dinner that would be served in connection with the Halloween Festival. Four pigs were donated.

Yearbooks for the 1952-53 session of the P.T.A. were distributed.

Dinner Meet Precedes WSCS Study Course

BETHEL—On Friday evening, October 3, sixty-five members of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of Bethel Methodist Church met in the home of Mrs. R. J. Whitehurst for a dinner and study course. Members of the Mary Lambeth Circle furnished the dinner.

Following the dinner, which was served buffet style, Mrs. J. C. Wynne Jr. gave the devotional. Mrs. Tom Andrews Jr. rendered a vocal selection, accompanied by Mrs. Harold Staton at the piano.

For the remainder of the evening, Mrs. A. M. McWhorter, Mrs. W. C. Latham and Mrs. S. D. Dewar reviewed the book that had been chosen for the study entitled "These Rights We Hold." The study was closed with the benediction.

Caravaner Talks To Members Of Guild

On Monday night, October 6, the Wesleyan Service Guild held an interesting meeting at the home of Misses Margaret and Lillian Purvis. The devotional was given by Miss Annie Laurie Askew.

Miss Annie Turner, secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting, after which Mrs. Charles Blanchard gave the treasurer's report.

Miss Jane Hadley, president, on behalf of the Guild, presented Mrs. Dorothy Johnson with a life membership pin.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. Kara Lynn Pennell, vice president, who introduced Miss Caroline Flewellen, who in turn entertained the group with slides. Miss Flewellen made a tour of Europe during the summer with the Youth Caravan, so these slides, together with Miss Flewellen's explanation, gave a clear up-to-date picture of several parts of Europe. It was announced that since Mrs. Fennell has joined the St. James Methodist Church that Mrs. Dorothy Johnson would replace her as vice president.

Just before adjournment, the hostesses, assisted by Miss Kathleen Venters, served ice cream, cookies, and salted peanuts.

Operating Fair Food Booth Has Aspects Of Big Business

By MARTHA S. FORBES

One of the most popular attractions at the Pitt County Fair are the booths where hot foods and cold drinks are sold.

For some reason, attending a fair seems to stimulate the appetite and dry out a person's throat, and the average family of four will spend several of their preciously hoarded dollars satisfying their hunger and thirst at one of these food booths.

But the operation and maintenance of these booths is a rather complicated affair for which plans have to be made long in advance of Fair Week. Most of the nine booths which are available are rented by county clubs or church organizations. This year three are rented by private citizens; the other six are being operated by St. James Methodist Church, Ayden Christian Church, Red Banks Home Demonstration Club, Simpson Home Demonstration Club, Nobles Young Men's Class of the Winterville Church, and the Negro American Legion Booth.

The first step to hurdle is the renting of one of these booths. As they are in far greater demand than supply, the first ones to pay half of the rent in advance get the booths. Offers are first extended to the same groups which operated booths the previous year, and if they do not exercise their option on one, then the first ones to apply and pay their "down payment" are assigned them.

After a group gets its assignment, all workers who plan to engage in activities out there have to get a health card signed by the Pitt County Health Officer. The examination for this entails a blood check and an X-ray. Typhoid shots are recommended but not required, and this physical check-up can be secured either from a private physician or the Pitt County Health Department.

The booths are equipped with a table, benches, sink, a counter, hot and cold running water and electricity. Stoves, refrigerators, drink boxes, utensils and all other equipments have to be furnished by the sellers.

For an organization, the planning of the kind and quantity of food which will be needed is one of the major problems to be solved. Food is purchased in wholesale lots and much of it is prepared in private homes and brought to the booths as needed. Other purchases are made daily from the vendors, who make their rounds at 7:30 each morning. This necessitates the presence of some one at the fair that early in the morning to give the orders for the day's supply of bread, milk, drinks, and other things.

From that hour until far into the wee hours of the next morning, someone is at the booth at all times—cooking, serving, washing dishes, making change, and replenishing supplies. One booth group runs a "taxi" service to and from the fair twice a day to check on supplies and to serve as delivery carriers to fetch and carry whatever is needed to keep the booth going.

Workers are scheduled to serve in shifts of several hours each. From early morning until late at night, the demands on the food booths keep all hands busy, with the peak of the business around the super hour. Many of the carnival workers and other fair personnel depend on these food booths for all their meals.

It is work—hard work—but for a group which is united in a common cause to raise money for a worthy purpose, there is a great deal of satisfaction in the aching backs, tired feet, weary bones and sleep-laden eyes, evidences of labors performed for others.

Teen Age Circle Meets at Gum Swamp

The Teen Age Circle of the Gum Swamp church met at the home of Elizabeth Brewer on last Sunday night at 7:30.

The meeting was opened with the group singing "Savior, Like A Shepherd Lead Us," followed by "Rescue the Perishing."

Mrs. Thelma Lewis was chosen as the new leader for the group when it was announced that the previous leader, Mrs. Jane Anderson, would no longer be in attendance. The group also decided to have a party on Wednesday night, October 29, at the Home Economics Building. Each one would have the privilege of inviting a guest.

After another song, the hostess, assisted by her mother, Mrs. Perry Brewer, served iced drinks, cookies and potato chips.

DECIDING WITH PURPOSE
How do you make your day by day decisions? By default or as the result of divine guidance? For you can be very sure that God stands ready to guide you in the making of your decisions if you will allow Him to do so.

If you believe in God at all, can you possibly believe that the God who has made this complex universe ever neglects in the slightest particular any part of his creation? Microscope and telescope both testify to the omnipotence and glory of God. There is nothing so small that the presence of the Creator is not found there. There is no galaxy in the heavens so extensive and remote that it is not held within the powerful hand by which it was first created.

Awake to the fact that you live in a world which God created and which He still dominates. Stop allowing the circumstances of life to drag you along by the hair of the head. Drag them along; not by an impious exercise of will power which will let you down at the very moment you believe triumph is imminent, but by the resignation of your will to that universal will through which all that now is came into being and by which the whole of our present existence is guided.

Stop making your decisions by default. Make them as the result of divine guidance. "Ask, and ye shall receive; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you."

Pitt County's Parade Is Worth A Visit

Pitt County is still on parade out at the fair grounds.

And what a parade it is. Even in the face of Pitt County's past reputation for one of the finest agricultural fairs in the state, we believe the exhibits this year surpass those of past years. Both the livestock exhibits and the booths and entries on display in the exhibit hall are a credit to the agricultural fair and the people of one of the leading agricultural counties in the nation.

There are a large number of Pitt Counties who have viewed the parade this year, but there must be thousands of others who so far this week have not gotten to the parade. We honestly believe the exhibits themselves are well worth the trip to the fair, not to mention the entertainment aspect of the fair which is well above average.

...But The Dollar Sign Is Still There...

The oil gauge of the Western nations has taken a swing upward again with reports that Iranian Premier Mossadegh is prepared to reopen negotiations between his nation and Britain.

Even with the brighter prospects for reopening negotiations over the vast oil fields of Iran, hopes should not be allowed to fly too high.

The $137,200,000 price tag attached to the invitation by Mossadegh is a high one for the privilege of talking. The hopes for a settlement could too easily drop to rock bottom as they have done thrice before during the past year.

Mossadegh has had a difficult time with the nationalism in Iran which he fostered. He drove the British from the Iranian oil fields, and has been unsuccessful in reopening the fields for operations. For a while it looked as if control of Iran would be wrested from Mossadegh's hands by extremist groups including the communists.

The strain of many months of international and domestic unrest in Iran is telling on Mossadegh. Only last week he threatened to break off diplomatic relations with Britain unless the British met his demands in the oil dispute by last Saturday. No reply was received from the British, and this week the Iranian premier had turned an about face and apparently is ready to talk again with Britain about Iranian oil. For a price, of course.

It may be the turning point for the Western bloc after a series of unpleasant experiences with Middle East nations.

Mossadegh apparently has decided not to press the relations between his nation and the West to the breaking point because of the big Red bear which has been breathing down his neck for many months.

Perhaps now the Iranian premier is ready to come to reasonable terms with the Western nations over the oil situation rather than risk his neck politically, and the future of his nation by laying the way open for a successful communist thrust either from within his nation or across his borders.

From A 'Dead Duck' To A Political Football

FROM A DEAD DUCK...MM

President Truman still thinks the Brannan plan is what the farmers of the United States need.

He has blasted Candidate Eisenhower for criticizing the Brannan plan, and indirectly has taken a poke at all the other individuals and organizations who offered criticisms of the controversial plan offered by the Secretary of Agriculture.

In spite of the fact that the nation's leading farm organizations have gone on record opposing the Brannan plan; leading farmers have taken a similar position, and people in general look with disfavor on the proposal of Brannan, Truman still says it is the thing to have and those who oppose it just do not have a correct viewpoint.

Well, the President may know what the farmers want and need better than the farmers themselves do. He may know what the farmers want and need better than the major farm organizations and agricultural leaders do.

Nevertheless, we must admit we are inclined to believe the criticism the Brannan plan has received from farmers and farm organizations alike should be sufficient to convince the President he should take another good look at the Brannan plan and the philosophy which lies at the base of the proposal.

Or on the other hand, perhaps the President has come to the conclusion the farmers of the nation should have the Brannan plan whether they want it or not.

To put the crops of the farmers under the control of the federal government from the fields to the dinner table—which in effect would be under the Brannan plan—at best does not seem wise for the farmers or for the citizenry of the United States.

In view of the position taken toward the Brannan plan by representative groups of those for whom it supposedly is to benefit—the farmers—it seems to us a dead duck. Mr. Truman, on the other hand, has elevated it to the position of a political football.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—President Truman's apparent misrepresentation of historical facts and official figures in his "whistle-stopping" adventure has amazed even his own admirers, although they hope that he can "get away with it" as he did on the grain storage issue in 1948. It has stumped the so-called "Republican truth squad" because factual repudiation can rarely catch up with Presidential headlines in the affected areas.

Truman's defense of what he calls his "economy record" is the most notable example, for it can be tested by Treasury statistics, although even those can be prefabricated for electioneering purposes. He maintains, for instance, that he has built up a net surplus rather than a series of deficits since he took office.

MANIPULATION—It is easy to manipulate figures when talking of billions, and the precise sources of Truman's are unknown here. But the official chart shows that, at the end of the 1952 fiscal year, which was last June, he had thrown the Government into the red by at least $10 billion. It may go to twice that amount at the end of the current fiscal year.

His largest surplus was in 1948, totaling $5.4 billion after deducting allocations for the first year of the Marshall Plan. Even that balance resulted from economies effected by the 80th Congress, which Truman continues to characterize as that "no-good, do-nothing Republican Congress."

SNYDER'S FORMULA—As he had been warned by better informed financiers, Snyder found that he had no use for the billions which the public had invested, and he applied it to reduction of the public debt. No saving was involved.

He simply took from Peter (the public) to pay Paul (Uncle Sam). That has been the only sizeable and permanent cut under Truman. The debt now stands at about $260 billion. But it will approach the 270 mark when the 1953 deficit accumulated by Truman is added to this total next June.

These are not partisan or election-year statistics. They are official government figures. They can be confirmed by an audit by any firm of certified public accountants which does not have an axe to bury in a campaign opponent's head.

ACCUSES IKE—Truman accuses Eisenhower of misleading him on Russia's postwar plans and intentions. As evidence, the President cites Ike's Capitol Hill testimony in 1945 (the date is important), in which he anticipated continued friendly relations between the U.S.S.R. and the United States.

In the first place, Stalin was then assuring Truman and American ambassadors that he would cooperate with us in restoring and preserving world peace. Secondly, Ike was serving as our military and diplomatic representative in Berlin.

As Russia's demand for recall of Ambassador Kennan proves, Eisenhower would have been extremely inept if he had publicly insulted the Reds at that time.

If anybody was bamboozled, it was Truman. At Potsdam, he confirmed the Yalta surrenders. He sent numerous emissaries, including Harriman, to Moscow in the hope of improving relations. When all the secret files are opened, they will show that he disregarded repeated warnings of Stalin's hostility.

And several years after the Eisenhower episode, when the Soviet had embarked on its scheme for world conquest, Truman said: "I like good old Joe." As final evidence that this charge against Eisenhower is a political afterthought, there is the fact that Truman wanted Ike to become the Democratic Presidential nominee as recently as last winter.

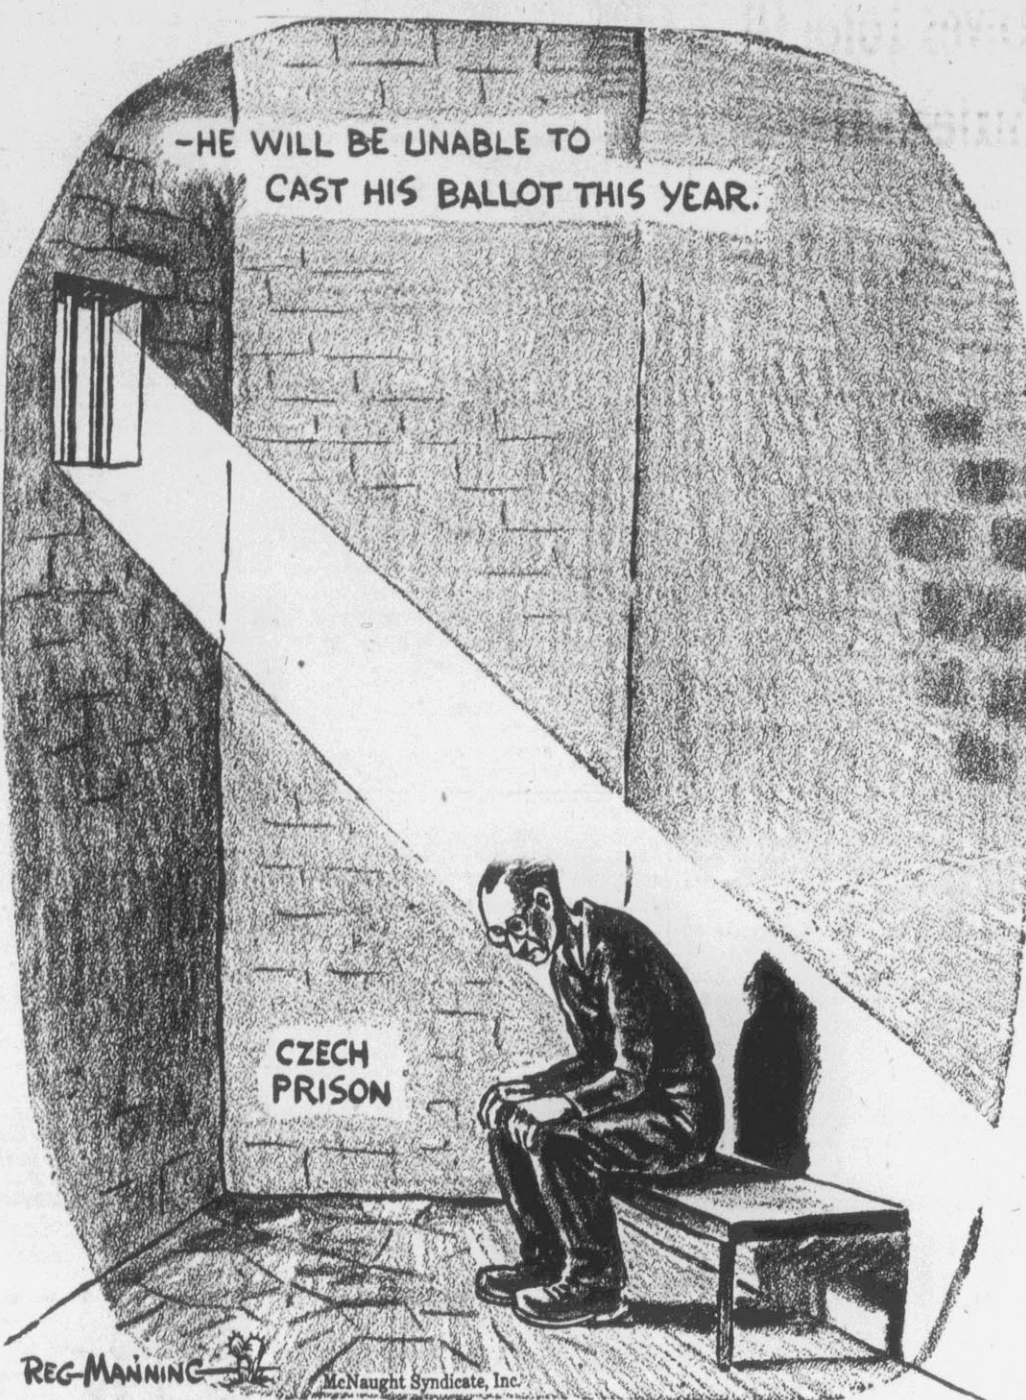

IRONIC—Truman's most ironic accusation against Eisenhower is his plea that the voters "send him back to the army" on the ground that military men have no understanding or experience in managing public affairs. It is a strange disparagement for a man whose youthful ambition was West Point.

Moreover, no American Chief Executive has ever placed such reliance on the military for civilian posts. Truman named General Marshall as Secretary of State, and sent him on an extremely delicate diplomatic mission to China. He appointed General Walter Bedell Smith and Admiral Alan Kirk as Ambassadors to Moscow. Numerous post-Korean defense agencies are loaded down with former soldiers.

To be fair to Truman, it should be noted that he had to fall back on the brass because, in view of his preoccupation with political rather than governmental problems, first-rate leaders of business and industry have declined offers to serve under him. They don't want to have their horses shot from under them, as happened to Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson, in a skirmish with Philip Murray.

Somebody Told Me

Comments

What other man, besides me, could become a parent and have the privilege of writing 550 words in a newspaper about the blessed event? Believe me, it's great to have an outlet to express our enthusiasm.

However, if I'm going to be honest about the situation I should name this story, "Husbands Are A Sorry Lot; and Most Particularly On Their Children's Birthdays." Honestly, nothing could be as useless as a husband pacing the hospital floor. The personnel of the Pitt Memorial Hospital is to be congratulated on having such patience. As I recall the 500 questions I asked yesterday (and I was in such a fog that I probably asked more than I don't remember) I think the hospital staff should have thrown me out at least by the 99th question.

Yesterday morning I ran into John Biggs' Drug Store for a minute and told him of our anticipated arrival. "You're an old hand at becoming a father now," he said. "It's probably routine to you."

I agreed with John, but now it's on my conscience. My answer should have been that my crew haircut was the only thing that saved me from pulling my hair out. It's simply too short to grasp. How can a man get used to the ordeal?

The standard hospital expression, "We've never lost a father yet" is one I can't understand. Men (at least this one) simply aren't constructed to undergo such emotional strain. Anybody who calls man the stronger sex is crazy. The only foundation for such a statement might be that some men can lift heavier objects than women can.

If you like to smoke cigars, come to see me. Frankly, I'm a sucker for giving away cigars. In fact, when my daughter Nancy was born I even smoked a few, despite the fact that I normally don't smoke. Being proud will cause a man to throw normalcy to the winds.

Everybody has heard the expression, "There are no atheists in foxholes. Let me add mine: There are no atheists in maternity wards!"

And I thank you.

MONEY—It takes money, and a lot of it, to run a political campaign. Competitive use of radio and television makes campaigning now cost a great deal more than it did just a few years ago. Inflation has added to the cost of the old staples like postage, printing, newspaper advertising and travel for personal contacts. There are just two possible sources for campaign money. It can come from single individuals, corporations and small groups of special interests in large sums or from a lot of people in small units. Both methods have been used.

BIG MONEY—It was widely publicized half a century ago that Mark Hanna put the bee on big railroads and banks to finance Republican campaigns for William McKinley. It was just as common knowledge in 1928 that John Raskob and his associates put up huge sums for Democratic Al Smith. John L. Lewis boasted of a "loan" which was essentially a contribution of $600,000 to the Democrat Roosevelt campaign in 1936. There was a near scandal about alleged tax deduction allowance for a similar "loan" of $300,000 by Dick Reynolds for the Roosevelt 1940 campaign. From the days of Bryan and McKinley to those of Stevenson and Eisenhower there has been criticism of Wall Street big money domination.

LITTLE MONEY—There have also been in almost every election year numerous Dollar Clubs or $5 Certificates—such as are being promoted now by the National Democratic Committee. Your reporter has faint recollection of hearing the older folks talk about Dimes for Bryan. On State level there is distinct memory of dollar solicitation for Ralph McDonald and Bob Reynolds. Majority of the big contributions come in without solicitation or are obtained by personal visits. The little amounts are usually solicited by mail or in general newspaper and radio advertisement appeals.

EMPLOYEES—Another source of campaign money is the employed personnel of the government departments and agencies who would be affected by a change in administration. In former years the demands upon these workers were so heavy that legislation had to be enacted to protect them—such as the Federal Hatch Act and the State Corrupt Practices Act. In spite of these protective statutes there is complaint of undue pressure for campaign contributions.

PRESSURE—Several people were talking the other day about when the practice of calling for campaign help from government employees began. Nobody could fix an approximate date. It was recalled that a century and a quarter ago Andrew Jackson issued the dictum that "To the victors belong the spoils," and a half century later Zeb Vance said the same thing in different words. "The horse that eats the fodder ought to pull the plow." There is no record of letters being written to department heads or assessments against individual employees in those olden days, but the principle has not changed. The victors still claim the spoils and the fodder-eaters still have obligation to plow the corn. Since everything now seems to be more complex than a hundred years ago, the dividing line between proper solicitation and undue political pressure is harder to define.

PRIMARIES—Many State employees will testify that they have been subjected to more pressure for contributions to factional candidates in the primaries than for the Democratic party ticket in the general elections during the past three decades. Some of these same employees will confess that they have contributed more to the primary funds than to the general election war chest on the practical theory that the real contest for political control of North Carolina is in May or June instead of November. There is reliable information that in some counties the pressure is heavier in the general election, and it is applied to both Democrats and Republicans for the purpose of staying in or getting in the county offices.

MILK—North Carolina is second only to Virginia among the South Atlantic States in production and value of milk, according to figures compiled by the Milk Industry Foundation at Washington and distributed by the N.C. Dairy Products Association at Raleigh. The state had 357,000 milk cows on farms last year, worth an estimated $68 million. These cows produced an average of 4,450 pounds of milk each for total production of well above a billion and a half pounds valued at $50 million. In number and value of cows and total production North Carolina was exceeded only by Virginia, but fell also behind Maryland in cash farm income from milk. In production of ice cream this state was far ahead of its neighbors, ranking 12th in the entire nation.

FULL UP—There will be more political speaking in North Carolina during the next three weeks than ever before in history, if the records of the State headquarters of the two major parties accurately reflect the situation. The Democratic nominee for Governor, William B. Umstead, is booked solidly for average of more than one speech a day until November 3. The Republican nominee, Herbert Seawell, has almost as full schedule. Both Umstead and Seawell are riding most of the time they are not speaking. Luther Hodges, De-

The Voice Of The People

Dear Sir:

I have just read with a great deal of interest your editorial of September 27, entitled "To Play The Game Now, Or Go Back To Sleep?"

May I endorse the contents of your editorial. I am writing this letter in view of our interest in Greenville and vicinity, and to express the hope that the proposal for the carpet company will be worked out.

It is not too often that communities can expect opportunities of this type to come their way, and it seems to me that the real test of progress is going to be whether you will take advantage of the opportunity which is yours at this time.

Your situation seems to be ideal to land this industry, particularly in view of the fact that the company officials are evidently highly pleased with the operation of the plant which they now have in Greenville. Other factors which are most favorable to you are the very high rating and standing of the company, which would make the investment on the part of the community, it seems to me, as sound as could be found.

With the amount of capital available in Greenville and vicinity, I do not have any doubt that it will be possible to raise the required amount of money. May I urge in every way possible that the community not let this opportunity slip. Greenville faces a real challenge. I have every hope that it will be met successfully.

I should like to extend to Greenville my very best wishes in working out the proposal which you have before you.

Very truly yours,
Paul Kelly

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
A good idea—which in turn suggests an idea for almost all retailers—has been worked out by the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

The Bureau has worked out a health barometer plan, which is being tested in 15 to 25 markets. It consists of checking the sales of three well-known cold remedies in a few key drug stores in each market. A sharp rise in sales in any market is believed to indicate a seige or epidemic of colds there.

At the first sign of a coryza wave, manufacturers of cough remedies, pain relievers, vitamins, alkalizers, laxatives, mentholated cigarettes, facial tissues and health foods can step up their advertising. "Hold for release" ads can be prepared in advance for use when the barometer indicates more sneezes ahead.

This suggests that druggists and other merchants can set up their own barometers in their own fields. It is an old axiom of business that an item a retailer will sell the most of tomorrow is the item he sells the most of today.

By watching and analyzing sales each day, a retailer can gain a fairly accurate idea of what will sell best on the morrow, barring, of course, sharp seasonal changes. This will be true for dealers in foods, apparel, housewares, small appliances, books, stationery, footwear and notions as well as drugs.

With this information, retailers can shift window displays, counter and rack displays and other point-of-purchase material. He can also gear his advertising to his own barometer. It is always more profitable to push goods that are selling than to try to force those that people aren't buying.

As most merchants have found, there are ebbs and flows of consumer preference besides those caused by germs. Some are caused by example. Three girls buying one kind of scarf can often start a run on them in stores catering to high-school students; the appearance of distinctive costume jewelry on a celebrated actress can sell a lot of similar pieces. And sometimes causes of a spurt in demand can't be traced.

And just as a druggist is justifiled in filling his window with cold remedies the first day this fall that aspirin sales double, so is a haberdasher justified in increasing his advertising for bowties or polka-dot suspenders any time sales of these furnishings take a sharp rise.

HIGHER THE INCOME, SHORTER THE ILLNESS.

There may be a close relationship between income and time lost on the job, Leon Werch said in disclosing preliminary findings by the Research Council for Economic Security. Mr. Werch is directing a study which so far has examined records of 40,000 employees for a 90-day period ending April 30.

While warning that further studies may lead to different conclusions, he said that no worker earning more than $7,500 a year has been ill for more than 13 weeks. Of those ill for more than eight days, 59 per cent earned less than $3,500 a year. AND LONGER THE TIME, FEWER THE OPTIMISTS.

"With respect to the early months of 1952, there is now a remarkable unanimity of prophecy," says the October letter of National City Bank. "Observers reach the conclusion that business will carry well into 1953 at a good and possibly rising pace."

"As forecasts are pushed further along, however, the optimists seem to drop out by progressive stages: some at the end of the first quarter, some at the half-year, and the great majority by the year-end if not earlier." SIXTH OF ALL FAMILIES IN SMALL BUSINESS.

There were 53,100,000 spending units in the United States in February of this year, the Federal Reserve Board estimates. A spending unit are all persons of the same family living in the same dwelling who pool their incomes to meet major expenses.

Of these units, approximately 3,500,000 owned a full or part interest in a nonfarm unincorporated business and 750,000 more had an interest in a privately held corporation. In addition, approximately 4,500,000 units operated farms—another kind of small business. That makes a total of 8,750,000.

Hal Boyle's Column

NEW YORK (AP) never said women ought to get up and give their seats to men in a bus, or tip their hats in an elevator whenever a man enters.

These womanly gestures of chivalry toward the new weaker sex certainly wouldn't be inappropriate today, but I have set up no cry for them.

How do such ideas get around anyway? All I did was to point out in a recent essay the obvious fact that as a result of the emancipation of women the clinging vine wife has been replaced by the clinging vine husband.

He just changes places with her. She steers the family bus, spends the money and spansks the kids. He merely sits on the fence, umpires her errors and tells her fondly, "Gee, Honey, I'm a lucky man to have a girl like you to lean on. How did you pick me out of all the men in the world? I'm not really so much to look at."

Far from opposing this trend, I said it was a fine thing. Everyone now knows that women are physically more durable, emotionally more stable (I must have read that somewhere), and far tougher-minded than men. Since they now have the freedom to use this greater strength, it is only natural that they should take over the job of running this troubled world. Men thus can relax into the soft clinging vine role their sex plays so often in the vast realm of nature.

Who ever heard of a king bee in a hive? Man is a shy dreamling drone at heart, and the present era of stalwart womanhood at last gives him the strong shoulder he needs to rest his weary head on.

In putting down these thoughts, I intended only to pay tribute to the woman of the future—a confident, herculean figure striding the earth in triumph, one who, like the lady spider, takes the mere male as a luxury and a treat, not a necessity.

But the more a man praises a woman the more she regards him with suspicion. My mail from indignant women has been so heated it almost has to be handled with tongs. A few scorching examples:

"Your mother must have dropped you on your head as a child."

"You you you (censored)."

"Why do you hate women, you coward?"

"No real woman wants a clinging vine husband, and you know it."

"If you were my clinging vine husband, I'd pull all your pretty little leaves off—but fast."

"The trouble with all you men is you're jealous, you can't stand competition."

On the other hand, a sensible, elderly widow wrote:

"I read your ad for a clinging vine husband. Where can I get one? Any husband is better than none."

In answer, ladies, I would like to say this: I didn't invent the clinging vine husband. You did.

Many modern women selfishly have tried to turn the equal rights movement into a one-way lane. But it is a two-way street. They handle a man's paycheck, beat him to his favorite barstool, and when he goes to the ballpark to root for his team he is answered with a soprano boo. They desperately insist on being accorded all their ancient courties at the same time they grab for all the privileges of the new freedom.

But life just ain't that rewarding. If women crowd a man out of his world, he has only one world to turn to—their old world. He shrivels into the twining vine. I know a fellow who has turned to making quilts as a hobby because, as he says "It's the only thing I know of that women aren't trying to beat a man at."

Come right down to it, it would be nice to have women tip their hats to you. I'm tired of showing my bald spot, and a little bit of respect from their sex these days wouldn't do any man harm.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—Helen F. Demond's father OK'd her going to college only with the understanding she would never be a school teacher. She majored in economics, wanting to go into the business world.

When she had earned her A.B. degree at Mt. Holyoke, the head of the economics department invited her to be an assistant while she earned her M.A. degree. Then she was asked to be an instructor. "So my first full-time job was as a teacher, after all," she told me.

Miss Demond stuck with teaching two years without regret, but in 1931 she came to Washington where she has remained continuously in government service. She has just been appointed chief of the Program Projection Branch in the Office of the Assistant Director for Europe of the Mutual Security Administration (MSA). Her job is to collect estimates on the present and future financial operations of the European countries that receive grants and loans from the MSA. "I don't like math at all, but I'm constantly on figures," she said.

Her first government job was as an economist with the Treasury Department. In 1935 she became a statistician with the Internal Revenue Bureau, working on individual and corporation income tax returns, estate and gift tax returns. With her War Shipping Administration during war, she was in charge of projection of the use of dry cargo merchant marine ships four months in advance.

"This was one of the best jobs I ever had from the point of view of subject matter," she said. "We couldn't just decide today, for instance, to send a ship to India tomorrow. We had to know the time and turn-around time of every ship we wished to use and plan it out every week. I used to wake up every morning wondering why ships didn't stand still till I could get them down on paper."

Miss Demond, born in Springfield, Mass., the daughter of a lawyer, is a frank and friendly woman with a handsomeness reminiscent of actress Ethel Barrymore. She lives in a white brick, five room, 12½-foot-wide house in historic Georgetown, with a red door and 40 feet of books in her living room.

She likes to cook, and her favorite recipe is for a New England baked shad dish. She also is fond of the theater. The first 36 weeks she spent in New York after leaving Mt. Holyoke, she took in 52 Broadway shows. She was chosen to participate in this month in a convocation at Mt. Holyoke on science and human values and to receive an honorary citation.

'Truth Team' Says Adlai On Harry Truman's Leash

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UP)—The Republican "truth team" gave up chasing President Truman long enough to turn their sights on Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson, whom they attacked as a man on the chief executive's "leash."

The three-man, flying "answer-back" squad arrived here by plane only a few hours before Stevenson was due in the city for a campaign speech.

The senators scheduled a news conference for 9:30 a.m. c.s.t. to give their acid comments on the Democratic presidential nominee. They also planned a luncheon with local Republican officials.

Tonight, at 9 p.m. over NBC network, the "truth team" will answer Democratic campaign speeches in a nationwide broadcast.

The "team" of Sens. Bourke B. Hickenlooper (Ia.), Eugene D. Milliken (Colo.) and Homer Ferguson (Mich.) sharply altered their battle tactics for the moment by launching direct attacks on Stevenson.

Their aim was an effort to drive a wedge between Mr. Truman and the man he hopes to make his successor.

Milliken, speaking in his home state Wednesday, said that Stevenson was a "running dog" candidate on Mr. Truman's leash. Adlai Stevenson lock, stock and barrel. "Truman is running for President again," Ferguson said. "He expects to put Stevenson aboard."

Brash Volunteer Confesses Guilt

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Robert J. Morgan, 30, moaned "why didn't I keep my big mouth shut."

Morgan was a customer in a tavern where police were checking the bar for fingerprints following a robbery. After completing their check the police said they had failed to find any prints.

Morgan, who was under suspicion for the burglary, promptly went to police headquarters and volunteered to be fingerprinted.

The police, who actually had found a set of prints, matched them with Morgan's, who confessed.

Describes Pat As 'Next Wife'

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The introduction of Sen. Richard M. Nixon's wife, Pat, to a crowd of more than 8,000 here Wednesday night brought a smile to the lips of the vice presidential candidate.

Mrs. Nell G. Dressler, vice president of the Allegheny County Republican Committee, introduced Pat Nixon as "the next wife of the vice president of the United States."

N. C. High Court Gives Total Of Sixteen Decisions

RALEIGH (AP)—The State Supreme Court yesterday untangled a legal dispute surrounding some appointments to the Yancey County board of education.

The court held that Rush T. Wray and Everett Powell are legally members of the board and that Lloyd Fortner and Adrian Buchanan are not. Wray and Powell were appointed to the board by the State Board of Education. Fortner and Buchanan were appointed by the Yancey Democratic Executive Committee.

The high court ruling reversed a decision by Superior Court Judge William K. McLean, who had held that Fortner and Buchanan were the duly appointed members.

The Supreme Court pointed out that party executive committees are empowered to fill vacancies if they do so within 30 days after the vacancy occurs. The power then reverts to the State Board of Education.

Wray and Powell "are lawfully entitled to occupy the two posts" until the 1953 Legislature meets, the Supreme Court stated.

The Yancey board vacancies occurred when the court ruled that two members were illegally holding double offices. The were Mark W. Bennett, mayor of Burnsville, and R.A. Radford, postmaster at Cane River.

In all, 16 opinions were handed down by the Supreme Court. The State Highway Commission was declared winner in a case brought by the town of Williamston to force construction of a new railroad underpass there.

It is the duty of the commission to decide which road projects are needed and the courts cannot act as referees to decide which projects are needed, the Supreme Court stated.

In another opinion, the court upheld an election in Chatham County in which the sale of beer was banned. W.F. Collins, Asheville beer dealer, contended there were irregularities in the calling and holding of the election. He asked for a court order restraining officers from enforcing the law against the sale of beer.

In a Lee County case, the court freed Willa Mae Alston, who was sentenced to two years in prison after she testified she owned the whiskey her husband, Aaron, was charged with possession. Judge Henry L. Stevens imposed the sentence.

The high court held that the judgment was made "without warrant or indictment, or waiver thereof and without arraignment, plea or the intervention of a jury." The court pointed out that if the

Truman Appoints Ambassador To Czechoslovakia

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Truman today appointed George Wadsworth to be the new American ambassador to Communist Czechoslovakia, where he is expected to redouble the efforts to free imprisoned American newsman William N. Oatis.

The career diplomat succeeds Ellis O. Briggs, who has been appointed ambassador to South Korea. Wadsworth, 59, is a skilled diplomat with 36 years of continuous service in Washington and in important foreign capitals. He has served as minister to Lebanon and Syria, ambassador to Iraq and was ambassador to Turkey until last year.

Iran's Foreign Minister Quits

Tehran, Iran (UP)—Foreign Minister Hussein Navab resigned today because "I can not work under present conditions" in the Anglo-Iranian oil dispute.

Announcement of the resignation came shortly after an authoritative report that Premier Mohammed Mossadegh again threatened to break diplomatic relations with Great Britain.

An authoritative informant said Mossadegh, after changing his mind several times, had now decided to break relations unless Britain paid within five days oil royalties which he claims for Iran.

New Polio Case Count Is Record

WASHINGTON (UP)—The U. S. Public Health Service reported today that the number of polio cases in this "disease year" now stands at 41,050, a new record.

This compared with 20,477 last year, and 33,703 in 1949, the previous year. The disease year begins in April.

The service reported that there were 3,227 new cases of polio last week, a drop of 312 from those reported in the previous week.

The drop represented the second consecutive weekly decrease in the number of new cases of polio. The service said last week that it appeared the epidemic this year has passed its peak.

Fire-Fighting Jeep Part Of Aircraft Carrier's Future

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—The Navy is experimenting with a device that one day may save many lives and millions of dollars in equipment.

I witnessed the first demonstration of a new foam fire-fighting jeep. It is designed for use on the decks of our larger aircraft carriers.

The performance took place on a lot outside the naval research laboratory. A beat-up old torpedo bomber was set afire. Then the foam fire-fighter went to work. In 10 seconds flames were cut to a point where both the pilot and co-pilot could be rescued. In another two minutes, the fire was out altogether.

Richard L. Tuve, head of the engineering research branch, chemical division, at the lab explained a self-contained fire-extinguishing system, mounted on a standard jeep chassis, is capable of shooting out 1900 gallons of foam per minute.

"This new equipment," Tuve said, "requires no power supply other than the 60 horsepower jeep engine. It spreads a protective cone of fire-killing foam 30 feet in diameter over the trapped pilots. Or it will reach a crashed and burning plane up to 90 feet away with its consolidated stream of foam."

The foam came out in flakes and when it settled on the nose, tail, and props of the old bomber it looked like whipped cream.

Tuve explained the foam is formed in one foam-making pump which proportions the necessary raw materials—air, water, and foam concentrate. The pump whips these together like an egg-beater would. The micro-bubbled foam is forced through the adjustable distributing nozzle.

It takes two men to operate the jeep fire-fighter. A driver and a hose man. In this case, they were Joe Porter and Raymond Neill, who wore fire-proof clothing and eye shields to protect themselves. The model I saw is the only one in existence as yet, but there will be more when this one has earned its spurs at sea. Tuve said the Navy plans to put the model aboard a big carrier soon, and if it works as everyone thinks it will, production will begin.

In use aboard a carrier, the jeep will be kept on a standby on the carrier island or near the landing barriers.

In action, the nozzleman forms an approach path and a protective foam shield for the rescue crew, until they have rescued the pilot and the co-pilot and then continues to put out the fire.

"Anyone who can drive a jeep and pull a knob can operate it," Tuve said. "In simulated crash-fire tests, covering 600 square feet, 'rescues' have been made within 24 seconds."

Navy lab scientists estimate the new equipment can be manufactured for about $5,000. Most airport crash fire trucks in use today cost upwards of $30,000 each.

Fisherman Nets Old Torpedo

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (AP)—The tug on Joseph Whaley's fishing net was so great he summoned his son Howard for help. When the nets were finally raised the "fish" turned out to be of the tin variety—a 20-foot torpedo.

The torpedo was encrusted with barnacles and tangled with the remains of a half-dozen fishing nets. Young Whaley delivered his catch to the Coast Guard.

All organic compounds in plants are derived from sugar.

U.S. Leading In Brewery Parade

NEW YORK (AP)—There are 328 breweries operating in the United States, according to the new edition of Breweries of the Western Hemisphere.

The publication says there are nearly 600 breweries in all of North and South America. Of the total, Canada has 60, Brazil 60, Mexico 21, Colombia 23, with the remainder in Latin American countries.

Only one new brewery was opened in the U.S. last year to offset the shutdown of 32 during the 18 months from January, 1951, to June, 1952.

Chemistry Puts End To Ambushes

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (AP)—A vegetation-killing chemical spray is putting an end to guerrilla ambushes from the undergrowth along Malayan roads.

Experiments in chemical spraying carried out by a fleet of five vehicles fitted with pumps and spray gear have done much to kill the underbrush, the federal legislative council was told.

Shows A Profit In Destruction

NEW YORK (AP)—A firm which makes a good living by demolishing everything it can get its hands on is the U.S. Testing Co. Laboratories.

Some 30,000 American manufacturers of everything from detergents to basketballs pay it to take their products apart to see if they are as good as the claims on the label. Many companies pay to have their competitors' merchandise tested regularly.

A lady recently asked the laboratory to find out if the stains on her husband's necktie were lipstick. The company refused the job when she wanted to know what particular brand.

Do CRAMPS give you that monthly look?

Why let tell-tale misery, "nerves" show in your eyes? Does your mirror show an older-looking, worn-out, nervous face during your "bad days"? Why let men see that you are suffering from monthly cramps? Try a little Gardul each day as thousands of women do. Let it help build strength and resistance so you have less and less misery each month. Some go through periods without feeling any discomfort at all. Also helps relax jittery nerves—sleep better. Advices Corncob For Windshields

BAGLEY, Ia. (AP)—If you have trouble scrubbing the windshield clean on your car, try a corncob. That's the advice of Don Myers, local filling station operator.

Instead of wearing out expensive sponges to remove the crusted remains of bugs, Myers says he wets a corncob, rubs the surface and dries the glass. The result: a shiny windshield without any of the scratches produced by strong abrasives.

USO Dancer Is 'Red Feather' Girl Of Campaign

CHARLOTTE WINSON

AP Newsfeatures.....
NEW YORK—Charlotte Winson, a United Camp Service (USO) dancer, has been chosen "red feather" girl for the United Defense fund this year. The United Defense fund supports USO, relief for Korea and other defense activities.

The fund will be included in most of the Community Chest drives which are being staged this month in many communities across the nation. As "red feather" girl Miss Winson will help in the campaign for which a red feather is a symbol.

She is 18 years old and one of the youngest performers ever to tour with USO Camp Shows. For 15 weeks she gave shows at 150 points in Korea, Japan and the Pacific Islands. Audiences varied from a few hundred soldiers near the front to several thousand sailors and Marines at a big base.

The Community Chest campaigns in which the United Defense fund is usually a part also include many local state and national enterprises. The selection of the organizations which are included in the local campaigns is made by the sponsors in each city.

The Defense fund estimates that it has been able to supply only 25 per cent of the entertainment needs of the armed forces because of lack of funds.

Old Cadillac Is Prize Winner In Auto Festival

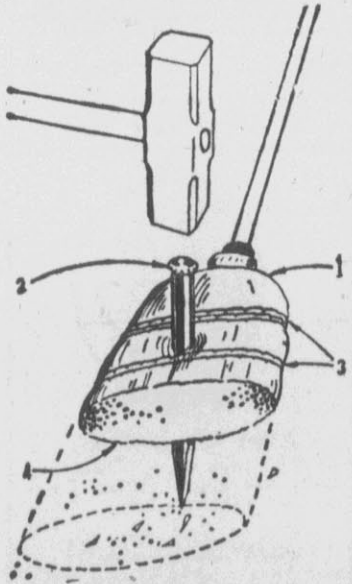

FLINT, Mich. (AP)—A 1902 Cadillac that runs has won the grand prize at the Old Car Festival at Greenfield Village in Dearborn. It was considered the most perfectly restored to its original new appearance.

The old Cadillac is powered by a one-cylinder five-horsepower engine located under the seat. The wheels are of natural wood finish. There is a picnic basket strapped to the right side of the car and in the rear is a basket, resembling a golf bag, for carrying umbrellas. Both baskets, made of wicker, were accessories when the car was made.

The car, owned by Mrs. Charles Hulse of this city, was purchased by her husband in 1941 from a Lansing woman. The couple, who make a hobby of old cars, did part of the restoration work themselves.

ADVENTURER
DETROIT (UP)—Nine-month-old Stanley Davis started out to see the world early. He crawled from his crib to an open window and tumbled 20 feet to a concrete sidewalk. Hospital doctors could find nothing wrong with him.

BREAKING CONCRETE can be hazardous for the man holding the cold chisel if his partner is not extremely accurate with the sledge hammer. An old broom can eliminate danger and speed the job, says the American Builder, trade journal of home builders. Loose ends of the broom are cut off to aid vision. The chisel is forced through the straw between the cord binders. If the chisel works loose, it can be reinserted in a new spot.

Schuman, Pinay May Be Victims Of Nationalism

By PHIL NEWSOM

United Press Foreign News Editor
French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman, whose name is attached to the plan to pool European iron and steel, is apt soon to lose his political head.

And with him could go the French government of Premier Antoine Pinay, whose regime has been the most stable of any in France since the end of World War II.

It would not be good news in the United States.

Schuman, like West Germany's Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, has been one European statesman who has looked beyond physical borders to the economic and political good that could come from a unified Europe. He has been one of the strongest supporters of the European army plan and NATO as defenses against Russian aggression.

And for those reasons he soon may be sold down the river.

French political opinion is aroused against him primarily over relations with Germany. Both the de Gaulleists on the extreme right and the Communists on the left oppose a rearmament Germany. Nearly all branches of opinion, right, left and center, are aroused over the future status of the Saar. The common charge is that Schuman is "selling out" French interests.

There is also the question of the Indo-China war, which is extremely unpopular.

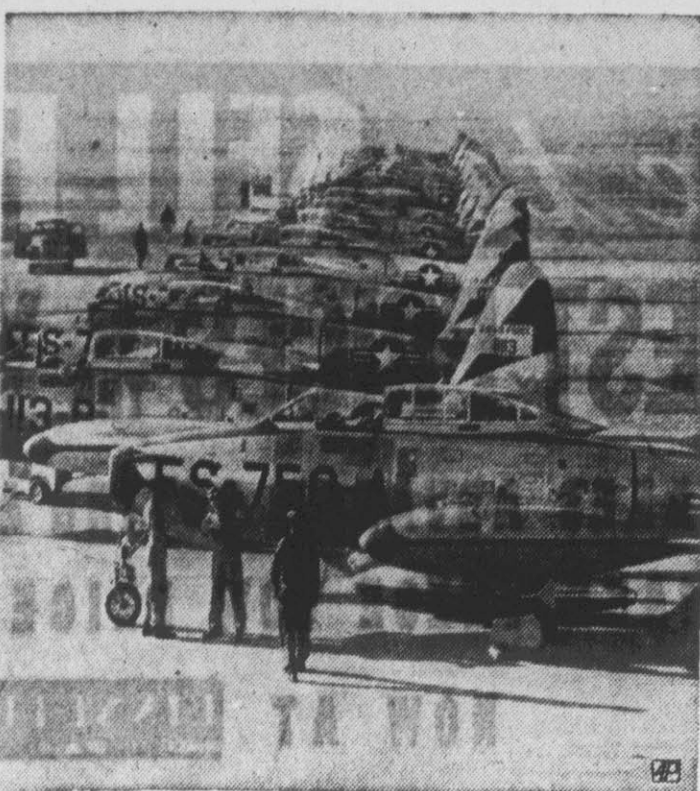

And finally, there is the question of Tunisia and Morocco.

It is the latter point which seems to present the greatest immediate danger to Schuman and indirectly to Pinay.

Pinay is said to be determined to protect his foreign minister, but the matter will not be entirely in his hands.

The Arab nations are determined that the Tunisian-Moroccan question shall come before the United Nations General Assembly which convenes next week.

The French, with the help of the United States, blocked a previous Arab attempt to bring the issue before the Security Council. But the United States was embarrassed seriously particularly before the small nations, and has notified France that it cannot continue to

AT START OF PACIFIC HOP:—Some of the 82 F-84G Thunderbolts of the 7th Fighter-Escort Wing en route to join the Far East Air Forces, are lined up at Travis Air Force Base, Calif., for take-off to Hickam Field, Hawaii. Forty-four planes were in the first group to leave. The jets are refueled in flight over the ocean. The planes will relieve the 31st Wing, now in action over Korea, which made the first mass jet hop across the Pacific in July. (P Wirephoto).

Army Foreign Language School Is Streamlined

By HERMAN W. NICHOLS

United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—One section of the military not too much concerned with the mother tongue is the Army Language School at the Presidio of Monterey, Calif.

From the moment the student enters the classroom at his unusual hall of learning overlooking Monterey Bay and the Pacific, he leaves most of his English behind him. The boys start out in a foreign language simple phrases like "How do you do?" and "Good morning, sir." By the end of the first day, they are able to answer simple questions in a foreign language.

Object of the interpreter courses is to graduate linguists who can speak fluently with a pronunciation approximating that of a native, and who readily can understand the native.

The Army Information Digest says that teaching methods differ from those used in most high schools and colleges. Instead of trying to master the rules of grammar and spelling first, students begin at the conversational level. They learn the fundamental speech patterns through exhaustive oral practice and drill.

Small sections of not more than eight students meet for six hours a day, five days a week. Each afternoon the instructor introduces a new subject for conversation. Evenings, the students continue their study by means of phonograph records, first listening and then repeating the phrases and sentences.

The classroom work finally goes beyond the oral exercises. The fellows see foreign movies. They listen to short wave foreign broadcasts and they are required to read foreign language newspapers and magazines. They get together on plays and skits in foreign languages and they even get head to head in close harmony in foreign folk songs.

Outside the classroom, they visit neighborhoods in the San Francisco area populated by people from foreign lands.

In the classroom, they also study sand table models of foreign scenes. They listen to lectures on the history, geography, social customs, and racial characteristics of the countries whose languages they are studying.

Some 1,200 students now are enrolled: 60 per cent Army and 40 per cent Air Force. The students range in ages from 17 to 50 and in rank from buck private to full colonel.

No Wheat Trade With Russians

TEL AVIV (AP)—The Israel government is not able to import Russian wheat in exchange for citrus fruit, according to a foreign office spokesman here.

It was stated that the wheat price asked by the Soviet authorities "was considerably higher than that which Israel pays under the International Wheat Agreement or on the free world market."

Harvard Steps Up Student Aid In Scholarships

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Harvard College undergraduates will participate in nearly a million dollars worth of scholarships, loans and part-time employment in the coming school year, the largest program of financial aid in the college's history.

Wilbur J. Bender, dean of Admissions and Financial Aids, says that $623,000 are earmarked as scholarship aid to 1,045 students. About 700 students working as porters, in dining halls and libraries and other jobs are expected to earn $175,000. Long-term student loans are another major item. More than one-third of Harvard's 4,450 undergraduates will be assisted by the program.

Some Sanitary Conditions In U.S. Are Worse

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—Some sanitary conditions in the United States are worse now than they were 50 to 100 years ago, says a University of California scientist.

Dr. Harold B. Gotaas, professor of sanitary engineering, reports there are still some 6,000 American communities without a public water supply and over 9,000 without a sewage system.

"And there is scarcely a city in the United States today in which atmospheric pollution conditions are not worse than they were a century ago," said Dr. Gotaas. Increased sanitary problems are the result of urban and suburban growth, industrialization, increased travel and changing living conditions, he said.

Lincoln's Gettysburg address was delivered at the dedication of a Civil War cemetery on November 19, 1863.

Bible Words to Live by

My favorite Bible verses are II Corinthians 5:18-19:

"And all things are of God, who hath reconciled us to himself Jesus Christ, and hath given to us the ministry of reconciliation;
"To wit, that God was in Christ, reconciling the world unto himself, not imputing their trespasses unto them; and hath committed unto us the word of reconciliation."

These words have always impressed me, because in them is contained the very heart of Christianity. The Christian religion is concerned with faith in God. It is concerned with the place of Jesus Christ in history. Here, it seems to me, St. Paul has the insight that leads us to an understanding of the fact that God works in history, that His supreme work in history was in the person of Jesus of Nazareth. The supreme work was to reconcile and to win man back into the fellowship with Himself.

However we interpret Jesus Christ from a detailed theological point of view, the words of St. Paul in the 18th and 19th verses of this Second Epistle stand out as containing a great truth which we all know and experience.

TOUGH COP

By JOHN ROEBURT

Chapter 11
The revelation seemed to stun Buloff. Devereaux watched the wild gray mane move back and forth dolefully, then resumed his inquiry. "Quite a switch for an old dog, huh? What made you decide on a new trick?"

Longo's eyes shadowed. "The police were arresting me on sight. I was too well known in the old business."

"But you'd gotten by as a pick-pocket for more than ten years. Not one conviction?"

Longo smiled faintly, in a bare glow of pride. "Long time," he said in scarcely audible tones. "Long time, and too old." He held a hand out. "Hands no good any more."

The hand was trembling badly. The dexterity needed for picking pockets was plainly lost to Longo.

Devereaux said, "So you let yourself into the hotel room with a master key. Go on from there."

Longo looked at Devereaux uncertainly. "I want an account of what happened inside, step by step," the detective explained.

"It was dark inside, and for a minute I didn't see her lying on the bed. I was at the bureau, when she made a sound. A sick sound, like someone who was hurt. I watched her try to get up, and then fall back. She lay there, breathing hard and choking and calling to me with her fingers. I went over to her, and watched her eyes close. I thought she had fallen asleep."

"It didn't occur to you that she might be dead?"

Longo shook his head. "Not until after I left."

"You went through the room before leaving. What did you take?"

"Nothing. I searched, but I didn't feel right with her lying there on the bed. It sounded curiously as if Longo was ashamed of his ungentlemanly role in the hotel room. The thief shrugged, throwing of the mood. "There was nothing, anyhow. Eight dollars in the handbag. Cheap jewelry."

Devereaux grinned slightly. "And a hundred dollars hidden under the mattress, which we both missed. Go on."

"I heard a voice at the door, so I hid in the closet."

"Blackjack in hand, and ready," Devereaux said grimly. Longo kept silent, and the detective asked, "How did you come to pick that particular room?"

"Just—" Longo shrugged, and left the reply unfinished.

"Like that, out of a hat?" Devereaux's eyes searched the thief's face. "Just coincidence that we both had business in the same hotel room, at practically the same time?"

"Just a bad break I got," Longo said. "I tried a room on the fourth floor first. I knocked, but somebody came to the door."

"Did you know who occupied the room you entered?"

Longo shook his head. Devereaux twisted slightly, and brought both Longo and Buloff in to simultaneous focus. "Know Martin Phillips?" he asked.

Longo's eyes grew wide. "I never heard of him," he said emphatically.

Devereaux's eyes glinted at Buloff. Do you know Martin Phillips?"

"No," Buloff sounded mystified. "Of what importance is this Martin Phillips?"

"How is this Mission of yours set up, Buloff?" Devereaux said irrelevantly.

"I don't understand." After a pause, Buloff added, "I have a charter."

"You're classified as a private corporation, devoted to welfare work?"

How do you support the Mission?"

"I have some money of my own. I also solicit contributions."

"Keep books?"

Buloff nodded irritably. "Your list of donors available for examination?"

"Of course," Buloff bridled. "Why these questions?"

"Nothing special."

"The proper affidavits were filed with the parole board. I do everything openly."

"I'm not questioning that," Devereaux looked at Buloff curiously. "One impertinent question?"

Buloff was silent for a while. "I believe in man's dependency on his brother."

"That's another way of saying religion, isn't it?"

"No. My idea differs. I believe this dependency is born of guilt. We all share a universal guilt. And from it we each take our measure of pain, and suffering."

"Still a religious concept to me."

"Religion offers expiation and atonement, Mr. Devereaux."

"Don't you?"

"No, I don't." There was a new, harsh quality in Buloff's tones.

"Hope is a delusion, Mr. Devereaux. Our guilt increases with each day we live."

Devereaux motioned about him. "Then this derelict living, this wormy and uncomfortable setup, and the philosophy you bring to it—it's a kind of hell, huh?"

Buloff disdained answering. Devereaux flashed a look at Longo. The thief seemed uninterested in the discourse. The detective said, "Then there was no idea of reform really in your sponsoring Longo's parole. He was just come live in this hell of yours."

Buloff said forbiddingly. Longo believes in my word."

Devereaux turned to Longo. "Do you, Longo?"

"Sure," Longo said without conviction.

Devereaux looked at Buloff critically. "But Longo broke his word to you, and also broke his parole. What's your attitude on that?"

"His guilt is greater, and he consequently suffers more."

"I mean, would you still sponsor his parole?"

Buloff shrugged. "That is up to the police now."

Wellington Home Now A Museum

NEW YORK (AP)—The mansion which grateful England gave to the Duke of Wellington for beating Napoleon at Waterloo has been turned back to the government because the present duke can't bear the tax load.

The British Information Service reports here that the great house, whose address is simply "No. 1, London," will become a museum. It had been restored to resemble its original appearance.

In Britain a sedan automobile is known as a saloon.

The Sport Reflector

By HERMAN HICKMAN

If you happen to meet a member of the Phantoms football team please don't quote the old adage "It matters not who wins or loses, it's how you play the game."

The Phantoms are a little touchy on this "how you play the game" business. Twice this season the Phants have outplayed their opponents and once wound up on the short end of a 20-13 score at Hertford and again finished with a 0-0 count after pushing Washington's Pam Pack all over the field. They want to play the game well and win too.

The players didn't complain too badly about the loss at Hertford although barring a couple of 15 yard penalties, imposed when the Phants were inside their opponents' 10 yard line, the outcome might have been reversed.

That loss was the first one of the season for the Phants but it wasn't too hard to take because it wasn't a conference game. But Washington is in the conference, very much so, and the Phants have long hungered for a victory over them.

The Phantoms have a good, well balanced football team this year and the addition of Assistant Coaches George Graybill and Frank Maemle has provided an excellent coaching staff.

Any of the players will tell you quite frankly that they have not their sights set on taking the Northeastern Conference title and are unwilling to settle for less. That might sound like big talk and high ideas for a Greenville team which hasn't had a consistent winning team for several years, but a closer look reveals that the Phantoms could very well win the conference title.

Edenton, Washington and Kinston are already by the boards and the Phants have emerged with nothing more than a tie to blench their confidence standing.

The big test will come following next week's rest date, October 24, the Phants will travel to New Bern for what will no doubt be their toughest game in conference play. Should they defeat New Bern, only Elizabeth City and Roanoke Rapids would remain and from early season performances neither of these teams can match the Phantoms.

Mt. Airy Is Tough

Mt. Airy will invade Greenville tomorrow night for a contest with the Phantoms. The Granteers always have a tough team and the play between these two clubs should be fast and furious.

The mountaineers have been weakened somewhat by the loss of their triple threat halfback, Don Hlatt, who suffered a broken leg in the opening game. Mt. Airy's star fullback was laid low with a broken knee the second game. Nevertheless the state sectional game will be viewed with interest by football fans who will be noting how football in the western part of the state stacks up to eastern style of play.

Navy Guard Wins Lineman Of Week

NEW YORK (AP)—Steve Eisenhauer, Navy Guard, is the lineman of the week.

A husky 200-pounder from Shef-won the first Associated Press line-man poll of the football season.

His standout performance last Saturday as the unbeaten Middies walloped Cornell, 31-7, put him on top in the voting.

Eisenhauer, a 21-year-old junior who failed to earn a letter a year ago, blocked a punt for one touchdown against Cornell. He recovered two fumbles and made four tackles alone which cost the Big Red 31 yards.

Bill Murray, Duke football coach, was president of the student body in 1931 during his senior year.

Phantoms Prepare To Welcome Mt. Airy

Defensive Team Looks 'Sharp' In Workouts

Phants Review Mt. Airy Plays And Set Up Defense; Kittrell Warns Team Not To Underrate Mountaineers

The Greenville Phantoms yesterday got their first look at the type of defense used by Mount Airy and spent most of their practice time devising defenses which will be used in the Friday night game between the two schools.

Reserve members of the Phantoms' offensive unit ran the Mount Airy plays against the number one defensive line but could make very little progress. Despite the high degree of efficiency on the part of the defense, Coach Bill Kittrell had a warning for them.

"Don't underestimate this Mount Airy ball club," he told his defensive team. "They run from the single wing and have some powerful backfield men who'll run right over you if you give them half a chance. They have a much better ball club than their record indicates and we can expect to have our hands full Friday night," he added.

About the only ball carrier able to make much headway yesterday was Bob Howell, who was running at fullback in the single wing. Wingback Guy Smith managed to shake loose several times on reverses but the defense quickly caught onto the system used.

The Phantoms will not have any more rough work this week but they're scheduled to have a light workout this afternoon in which they'll review their defensive maneuvers in addition to polishing their own offense. The defensive team is slated for extra time before the blackboards in an effort to be sure of what to use against the Mount Airy power plays.

In yesterday's workout, the defensive team was composed of Doug Morgan and Vernon Wingate at the ends, Dixie Hobgood and Larry Powell at the tackles, Answer Joseph and Bobby Nunn at the guards, Bob Conway and Billy Arnold at line-backers, Bobby Langston and Mitchell Johnson at halfbacks, and Bobby Perry at safety.

Powell, the left tackle, served notice that he's ready for plenty of action this week. He was filling in at the tackle post for first-stringer Tommie Smith who was absent from the drills yesterday.

The game will be the second home contest of the year for the Phantoms who have played four games on the road. Their Northeastern Conference record of one win and one tie will not be at stake in the game against the strong Western AA Granteers.

ATHLETIC DIRECTOR
CHAPEL HILL—Johnny Morris, former University of North Carolina athletic staff member, is the new assistant athletic director at Michigan State College.

SOCCER COACH
CHAPEL HILL—The University of North Carolina's soccer team is coached by Alan Moore, a former All-American at Springfield College.

Jack Armstrong, 6-1 and scaling 225 pounds, is the biggest man on Columbia University's football team. He's a sophomore tackle.

From 1932 through 1941, Charley (Red) Ruffing of the Yankees compiled a perfect pitching record in opening games of the World Series. He won five.

Phantoms Adopt Bunnies As Good Luck Mascots

Superstitions? Believe in the legendary powers of the rabbit's foot? If you do, then you're no different from the rest of about half the world's population. (We can't account for the half behind the Iron Curtain who aren't quite sure what they're allowed to believe.)

Included in the half we feel reasonably superstitious are members of the Greenville High School football team. But, these boys are different—they go overboard. They aren't satisfied with just one rabbit's foot like everyone else—they've got eight. Yep, eight rabbits' feet with the rabbits' two still attached.

The bunnies were found on the practice field at Guy Smith Stadium Monday afternoon by Dixie Hobgood. Hobgood is a tackle of... well, shall we say, "rather ample proportions," who nearly stepped on the rabbits while through a play. Luckily for the rabbits, he scooped them up before making another step.

While Hobgood was standing there with the rabbits in his hand watching the play run right past him, someone suggested that the bunnies could bring the team good luck. Rabbit-master Hobgood agreed and started rubbing them for good luck. Maybe it's coincidence, but right away Hobgood started stopping everything that came his way. (Nothing unusual for him, we might add.)

After practice, Coach Bill Kittrell added to the reputation of the rabbits by telling the team they could stay out late that night (Monday) and take in the Pitt County Fair.

Next day, an unexpected scouting report on Mount Airy turned up. The Granteers are the Phantoms' opponent for Friday's game and the Phants were afraid they were going to have to go into the game "cold" so far as knowledge of the Granteers was concerned.

Since the rabbits have been found, injuries to team members have been noticeable by their absence. (If you're really superstitious, you'll knock on wood right now.)

The new mascots, christened "Green" and "Phantom" will get their first chance to perform before the general public when the Phantoms tackle Mount Airy Friday night in College Stadium. The Phantoms are on the short end of the stick so far as being favored is concerned but they figure "with a little luck" they'll be able to handle the rough, tough boys from the hills.

The mascots have been awarded full football scholarships and living stipends at the home of Coach Bill Kittrell with a separate training table. Carrots, cabbage, and milk make up their diet. But they're sure of their new type of life only until Saturday at least. They've got to prove themselves Friday night if they want to keep the scholarship. They figure they're lucky enough to keep it.

Duke Star Faces Home State Team

DURHAM, N.C. — While Duke's No. 1 safetyman, Dick Sommers, played high school football at Raleigh, N.C., High School, he now calls Kingsport, Tenn., home since his father is a Methodist minister there. Dick gets a crack at a "home state" club here Saturday, Oct. 4, when Duke runs up against the University of Tennessee, rated No. 1 in the nation, last year.

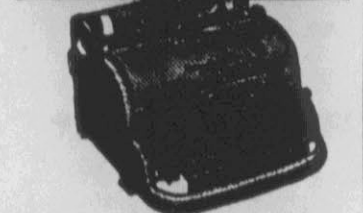

ON PENNANT WINNING TEAM
CHAPEL HILL—Clyde King, former University of North Carolina athlete, will carry the Tar Heel colors in the World Series. He's now a pitcher for the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Christy Mathewson pitched 68 innings without allowing a base on balls in the summer of 1913.

Red Devils Meet Rams In Big Game

The powerful Farmville Red Devils will take on the equally strong Robersonville Rams in the Coastal Conference's big game of the week to be played under lights at the Robersonville ball park Friday night.

Andy Warren, valuable first stringer who fills in at either wingback or end, will miss the contest due to a bruised hip muscle injured two weeks ago in the Ayden game.

James Taylor, sophomore guard who proved himself a defensive terror in the Vanceboro game, will combine with veterans Julius Budacz, center, Curtis Robertson and Jerry Beach, tackles, Bobby Clark, guard, and Ends Maurice Everett, All-Conference, and Charles Peel to present a formidable Ram forward wall.

Clinton House, Pete Johnson, Marshall Kilpatrick and Milton Haislip are also slated for front-line duty. All-Conference Fullback Sonny James, Dan Clark, Russell Johnson and Billie Warren carry the mail for the Rams from the single wing formation. James and Clark have the necessary talents of power and speed at the fullback and tailback spots to make the single wing click. Warren and Johnson are able pass receivers for Clark's frequent aerials and both are good blockers.

Coach Charles Tucker and Assistant Sam Stiel have molded the best football team to represent Farmville in several seasons. The Red Devils ran roughshod over their first three opponents and held a highly favored Morehead City to six points while suffering their first defeat last week.

Dick Shackelford, Carroll Wooten, Jimmie Allen and Jack Allen have shone in the Farmville line in previous games and will be leading the Red Devils against the strong Ram forwards.

Quarterback Charlie Fitzgerald, Sigbe Dilda, Teddy Allen and Jess Joyner make up a combination of one of the fastest backfields in the Coastal Conference.

Should Farmville get past the Rams the conference title could be at stake next week when the Red Devils take on Ayden who defeated the Rams 14-0.

Pirates Ignore Rain In Drill For Elonites

The East Carolina College Pirates thumbed their noses yesterday at rain and cold weather as they continued to prepare for their Saturday night game in Burlington with the Elon Christians.

The Pirates worked yesterday on blocking and other fundamental maneuvers. They've been working all week on formations which will be used against the Christians who won their first game of the season last week.

The injured list of the Pirates failed to get any smaller yesterday. Center-linebacker James (Algie) Faircloth reported some change in the condition of his knee but defensive guard David Lee went out of action with a bad ankle. Lee's running mate on the defensive team, Bobby Thomas, is already being counted out of Saturday's game because of a bad foot injury.

Just whether or not Lee will play Saturday is questionable. He didn't see any rough work yesterday and will probably take things easy for the rest of the week. If he is lost for the Elon game, there would be a serious shortage of defensive guards and some double duty would be necessary by members of the offensive team.

The condition of the Pirate line will be an important factor in the North State contest because the Christians have two of the most powerful runners in the conference in their backfield. Fullback Fred Biangardi, last year's leader on offense, will be at fullback for the first time this year while transfer student Bob Platt, the leader in Elon's first three games, will be at wing back.

Shifty Lou Rochell, a talented passer and runner, will be at tailback in Coach Jim Mallory's single wing formation and will direct the Christians on offense. It was Rochell's pin-point passing which wrecked the Pirates last year in East Carolina's homecoming game but his running is also in the "first-class" category and can't be overlooked.

The Christians have scored but twice in their first three games but these two touchdowns enable them to pull the North State's first big upset when they defeated Appalachian 13-7 last week. Platt, a bru-ing 220-pounder, led the way for the Christians who had been tied 0-0 by Norfolk Navy and lost 20-0 to Newberry.

The only team both clubs have faced is the Norfolk Navy team which opened the Pirates' schedule. The week before Elon was tied 0-0, the Tars had defeated the Pirates 13-7.

Information regarding tickets for the game can be obtained by calling the East Carolina athletic office in the new gymnasium.

Camera Is Needed For World Series

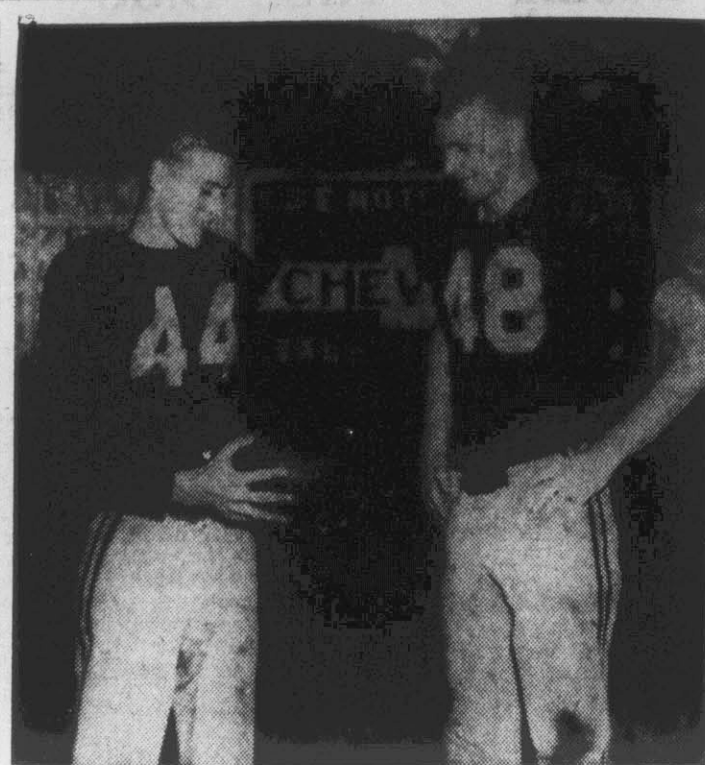

NEW YORK (UP)—Next year, for the World Series and perhaps for key games during the regular season, baseball may adopt an idea from horse racing and install a "photo finish" camera at first base to double check the umpires.

The idea definitely is under discussion, not because of a disputed decision by American League Umpire Art Passarella at first base in the fifth game of the World Series, but because top flight arbiters for some time have felt that they are placed on the spot needlessly when close plays develop.

Before the regular season ended, one veteran umpire stated that he had brought up the proposal and that it had received very favorable response. Had there been time enough to complete arrangements, the photo finish might have been set up for the 1952 World Series.

He explained that the use of a camera would not be feasible or practical for most plays, but that it would be ideal if set up exactly parallel to first base where many close plays develop and where the umpire there often is out of position to make a call that may not later backfire.

The matter will be up for consideration at the major league meetings in Phoenix, Ariz., in December and although there is no official comment now, Commissioner Ford Frick is expected to announce there whether or not the revolutionary step will be taken.

Quarterback Darrell Worthington and End Mac Whitehurst talk over air strategy to be used against Williamston tomorrow night at Ayden. Worthington and Whitehurst have completed several touchdown plays this year and are regarded as one of the best combinations in the county.

Williamston Invades Ayden On Friday Night

Williamston will bring their tough luck team to Ayden tomorrow night to try and shake "old man Hard Luck" and break into the win column.

The Ayden Tornadoes, champions of the Coastal Conference for three years running, are riding high, wide and handsome with conquests over Robersonville and South Edgecombe.

Co-Captains Harrell Everett, tackle, and End Buddy Fussell will lead a team of veteran players into action against Ayden. Filling in the starting line are Guards Wilbur Edwards and Nelson Quinn, center David Davis, Tackle Randolph Coker and Bobby Mobley at end.

Backfield men Ben Andrews and Billy Glover, halfbacks, Billy Allbrook, fullback, and Wilbur Stewart, quarterback, have performed admirably in a losing cause until now and have been improving all along. Coach Carroll Blackerby said, "I think we've got a good hard charging team. Our offensive timing has improved considerably and we move the ball better. Ayden is tough and we look for a rough game."

Mac Whitehurst, three times All-Conference end, and Darrell Worthington, quarterback, have teamed up to account for several Ayden touchdowns via the airways and they are expected to be the chief threat to the invading Williamston team. Leading the hardened forward wall for Ayden are Tackles Gordon Hart, Randall Harrington, guards Sidney Britt, and Bobby Barfield, center Todd Kittrell and End Billy E. Mc-

Lawhorn. Providing brilliant assistance to Worthington in the Tornado backfield are Harry Ross, Wesley Cannon, Billy Holland, and B. P. McLawhorn.

Reds Score 12-0 Win Over Blues In Little League

First and third quarter touchdowns brought the Red team a 12-0 win over the Blues in Little League football action yesterday.

The Reds got their first touchdown early in the opening period when Mack Roebuck carried over from the five yard line on a pitchout from quarterback Ralph Johnson. The scoring play had been set up one play earlier on a 20-yard pass from Johnson to Roebuck.

Early in the third period, Johnson passed again, this time to Butch Roberts. Roberts had gotten behind the Blue defensive halfbacks and took the pass on the 30-yard line. He scored without any difficulty on the play which covered 55 yards. Both attempts for the extra point were blocked.

Florida State University's football record under Coach Don Vetter shows 30 victories and only four losses in four years.

California Seldom On Losing Election Side

WITH EISENHOWER (UP)—It will be 68 years next month since California voters, by a small margin, preferred James G. Blaine to Grover Cleveland for president of the United States.

Cleveland was the nation's choice however. In every election since that one of 1884, California has been on the winning side of presidential contests, sometimes by no more than a whisker.

It looks like a close one again here this year. Aboard Dwight D. Eisenhower's Republican special which entered California today, they are saying that as this state goes, so goes the nation.

That was the word, too, at Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson's Democratic headquarters back in Springfield, Ill. Several newsmen, including the United Press crews, switched candidates there last week, when the general's train came through, to learn how the other half campaigned.

One of the most solid and significant mid-century political facts in this country is the electoral coming-of-age of the two largest states, each an unbelievable empire in itself.

The other state is Texas. The 1950 census gave Texas another electoral vote, hiking the total to 24. California leaped from 25 to 32 while such states as New York and Pennsylvania were losing California casts as many electoral votes now as the eight Mountain states combined.

It carries almost as much weight as all New England, New England, the East-Central and Mountain states held their own in the 1950 nose counting. Mid-Atlantic, West Central and Southern states all lost electoral college and, of course, congressional numbers.

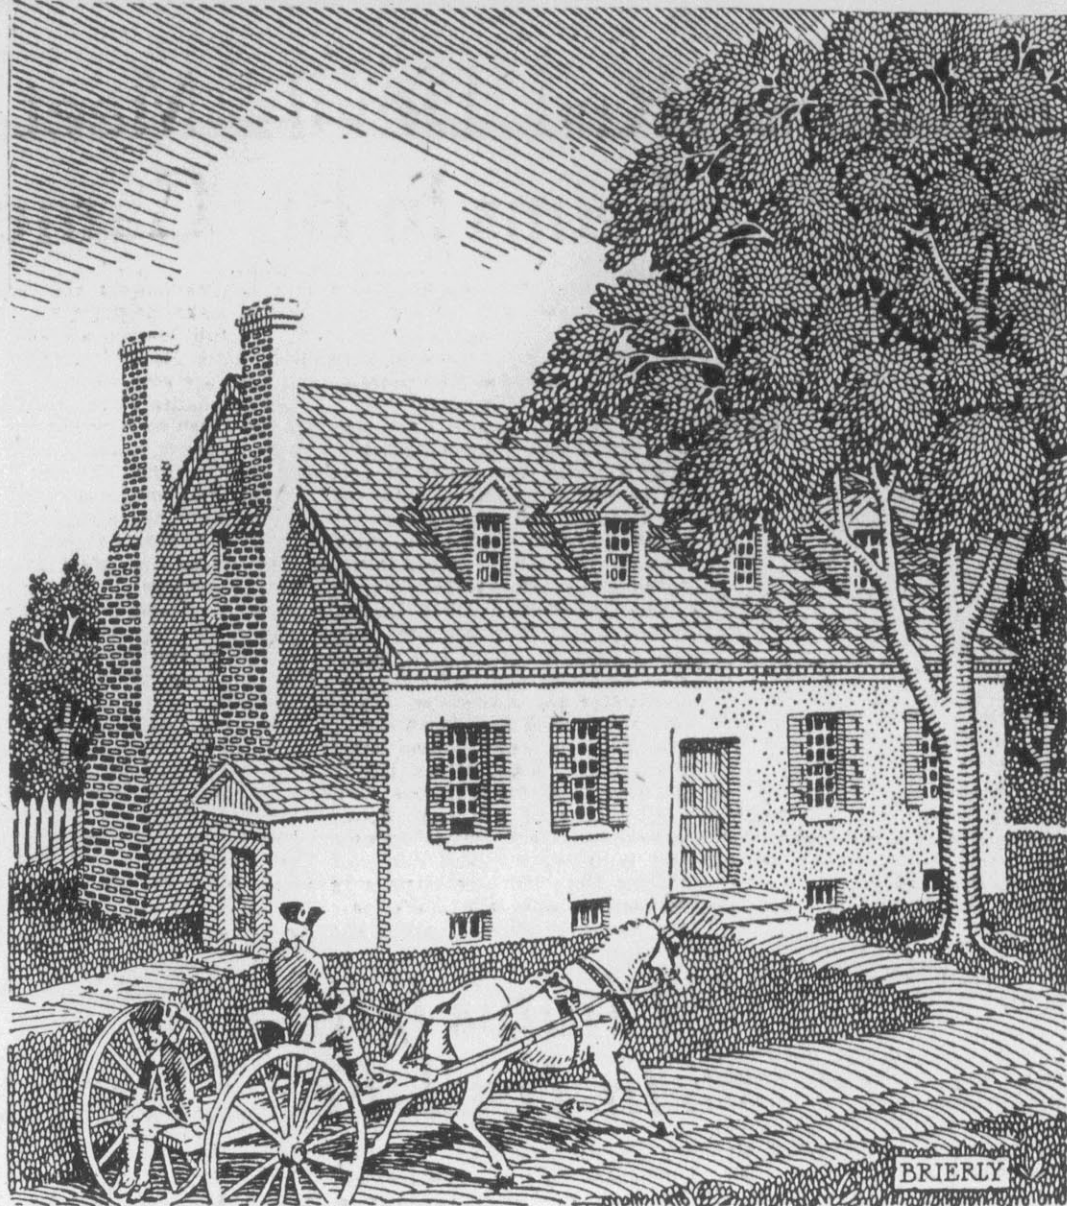

Only the Pacific states, as a group, have gained from 1940 to 1950 in population.

It is not surprising, therefore, that Stevenson already has been here, campaigning in the state's great central farming area, nor that he is coming back to California, and that Eisenhower will be here the better part of two days. The political stake is enormous.

California's interests are enormous, too, extending from ownership of the oil-rich tidelands to race relations and touching practically every issue which in other states rings a bell.

Twice in a row, now, Republicans have picked a Californian for their vice presidential candidate. That's a practical salute to the state's political omph. They hope Eisenhower and Sen. Richard M. Nixon can achieve what Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and Gov. Earl Warren could not do four years ago—bring California back to the

LANDMARK IN HISTORY

1732. WAKEFIELD. Birthplace of GEORGE WASHINGTON

AP Newsfeatures

At Wakefield, Va., stood the home of Augustine Washington and his second wife, Mary Bell Washington; and here, on February 22, 1732, Mary presented her husband with a boy, later named George Washington, and later still, to become the first President of the United States of America and "The Father of His Country." The old house was the center of a thousand-acre plantation, with its woodland and rich bottom lands, stretching along the Virginia shore of the Potomac for a mile and bounded on one side by Popes Creek and, on the other, by Bridges Creek. The plantation was originally known as Popes' or Bridges' Creek but was later called "Wakefield." Fire destroyed the old house in 1779, but it has since been faithfully restored by the Wakefield Memorial Association and is now a national shrine.

Executed Nippon Generals Remain Family Heroes

AP Newfeatures
TOKYO — The widows of four Japanese generals executed by the Allies after the Pacific war say they are still proud of their husbands.

"But my husband deserved death," said Mrs. Hisako Yamashita, as quoted in a story in the magazine Maru.

Her husband was Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, who commanded the Japanese forces in the Philippines. He was hanged at Manila Feb. 23, 1946.

"When a professional soldier loses a battle leaving his nation in ruins, he must die," Mrs. Yamashita said.

Mrs. Fujiko Homma, wife of Gen. Masaharu Homma, commander of the Bataan death march, said she is still proud of her husband exactly as she testified at his Manila trial.

Homma was shot April 3, 1946, at Manila following his trial for his part in the death march which took the lives of many Americans and Filipinos who were captured at Bataan and Corregidor.

"I knew my husband was to be killed," Mrs. Homma said. "So I did not beg for his life when I met General MacArthur after returning from Manila."

In the Maru magazine story Mrs. Yamashita said she did not go to Manila to testify in behalf of her husband as Mrs. Homma did for hers, because "I knew it was useless."

"It was a trial of the defeated by the winner," Mrs. Yamashita added. Mrs. Katsuko Tojo, widow of Gen. Hideki Tojo, the wartime Japanese premier who was hanged Dec. 23, 1948, said her only wish is to have her daughters marry any boys who "do not mind their background."

General Tojo's three daughters—Makie, 30; Yukie, 24, and Kimie, 21—live with their mother at the house where Tojo tried to kill himself rather than face trial in 1945. One other daughter, Mitsue, 34, was married before the war.

The Tojo family now raises poultry and crops in their garden, and the two younger daughters attend college.

Mrs. Kiku Itagaki, widow of Gen. Seishiro Itagaki, former war minister who was hanged with Tojo, said her husband was "a really good man."

"At the last interview before his death," she said, "he had only this thing to tell:

"I have had a really happy life simply because of you. I wish to now thank you with all my heart."

Professor To Be Committee Head

Dr. Richard C. Todd of the East Carolina College faculty has accepted an appointment as chairman of the college Entertainment Committee for the 1952-1953 term. He replaces Mrs. Ellen C. Fleming of the faculty, chairman for the past three years.

The Entertainment Committee, a student-faculty group, schedules and manages the college Entertainment Series, offered annually on the campus. During the present school year nine attractions will be brought to the campus for the enjoyment of students and of patrons of the series from many localities in eastern North Carolina.

Other members of the committee who will assist Dr. Todd this year are Herbert L. Carter of the music department faculty and the following students: Nora Ellen Faulkner, Kingston; Janet Tyson Ham, Portsmouth, Va.; Albert L. Harrington, Hope Mills; Walter Noona, Norfolk, Va.; Monteen Winstead, Tabor City; and Charles A. Klutz, Henderson.

NEW YORK—Who ever heard of a horse widow? Yes; tennis widows, often; baseball and poker widows, frequently. But horsemanship is one sport in which the whole family takes part, point out some of the exhibitors at this year's National Horse Show, which takes over Madison Square Garden Nov. 4-11.

In this year's lineup family groups will play a starring role. There is, for instance, the Cavanagh family of Glen Head, N.Y., who three generations in the saddle. Mr. and Mrs. James Cavanagh, their five children and three grandchildren, all old hands at collecting horse show trophies.

The Hickox family of Wheatley Hills, N.Y., is another example of family participation. Charles V. Hickox and his four children are all enthusiastic exhibitors and members of the Meadowbrook Hunt, of which Mr. Hickox is joint master.

A noted husband-and-wife team is Mr. and Mrs. J.J. McDonald, of Syosset, N.Y. Both have been riding most of their lives. Mrs. McDonald has played polo and driven in trotting races while her husband has taken trophies in practically every type of equine sport, from steeplechase to horse shows. This year the McDonalds will be busy judging at the horse show, but Mrs. McDonald's daughter, Barbara Hewlett, will represent the family in the exhibitors' lists.

Marshall Field and his two daughters, Fiona and Phyllis, are entered in this year's events, while a father-son combination among exhibitors is Albert Merkel, Sr. and Jr., of Brookville, N.Y., who together have collected more than 200 ribbons with their string of jumpers.

"But they are there to be looked at, for their color. They will be something to make conversation about."

One photographer, late for lunch, looked at them and said: "they look like scrambled eggs."

To a scientist who has explored the microscopical world, their bases look like nothing more than ameba, splitting and multiplying.

Like the ink-blot tests in psychology, interpreting them might be revealing. Leger discussed the work in France with Wallace Harrison chief of the U.N. architect board. He gave Leger a sample of the U.N. blue color used on most of the seats in the assembly hall.

Leger made up his eight-inch-square gouaches and sent them to the architect board, a Philadelphia who was a World War I veteran, stayed over to paint in France and then went into the Leger school, to do the work.

The yellow—or mustard—looked all right in the small gouaches, but when brought up to the 30-foot

Modernistic Murals Give Color To U. N.

MURAL—Bruce Gregory copies the Leger original on the west wall of the U. N. Assembly Building.

By A.I. GOLDBERG
AP Newfeatures
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.—When the modernistic new U.N. General Assembly Building is opened to the public in mid-October, the newest works of France's Impressionist leader, Fernand Leger will be displayed at the same time. The huge murals, blobbed right on the gray-black walls of the vaulted assembly chamber, may not be understood but they can't be missed. The 30 foot square murals flank the spectators' gallery.

They are abstractions—formless masses of color, not intended to mean anything specific but by the boldness of their coloring they dominate the assembly hall.

The one on the spectators' right, on the west wall, is distinguished by a vivid blue—close to a shade that has been called "U.N. blue"—and what some figure as orangish-yellow and others as orangish-brown. Forming an underlay for the whole pattern is a shade of off-white. On the east wall off-white and orange-red are used.

Art reporters here agree that the designs, "blown up" from gouaches about eight inches square by Bruce Gregory, an American student of Leger, cannot be appreciated without the color.

Not very many people have seen the murals. Important U.N. guests are shown through from time to time, some reporters have tried to figure out a meaning for them, some secretariat workers, have sneaked in for a peek.

U. N. planning headquarters people say: "There isn't supposed to be any meaning, don't look for any."

But Leger has been quoted as saying: "Color has a reality in itself, a life of its own; a geometric form also has a reality in itself. There was never any question in plastic art, in poetry, in music, of representing anything. It is a matter of creating something beautiful, moving or handsome—this is by no means the same thing."

Vito Buonocorso, a guard and amateur photographer, likes the Leger abstractions.

"They don't have to mean anything," he said. "But everyone who comes here to see them can read his own meanings into them. If he wants to."

"One woman came here and looked at that west wall mural. She told me that in her imagination the two lines extending from ROKs Win . . .

(Continued from page one) two hills. The Chinese have gone through one division and have committed a second to achieve their objective. He said if the Reds succeeded in capturing the two hills, the U.N. probably would have to withdraw its forces behind the Yokkok River, bringing Chorwon and the vital western Allied rail supply route under the range of Chinese guns. The battle was the heaviest in a year for a single position. Its outcome will decide whether the United Nations or the Communists win control of the Chorwon invasion gateway to Seoul.

Artificial Valve Is Installed In Woman's Heart

WASHINGTON (UP)—Surgeons for the first time in medical history have successfully installed an artificial valve in the heart of a human being.

The valve, a small plastic chamber with a plastic "pea" inside, not only saved the life of a 30-year-old housewife but restored her to vigorous health.

The operation, it was disclosed today, was performed three weeks ago at the Georgetown University medical center here by Dr. Charles Hufnagle assisted by Dr. John F. Gillespie.

The housewife, whose name was not revealed, faced almost certain death because of damage caused by rheumatic fever to the valve which keeps blood pumped out by the heart from flowing back in.

With every beat her heart threatened to destroy itself because of the faulty valve.

Ten Jurors . . .

have been sitting directly behind the two youths, listening carefully to examination of jurors.

Court authorities say they hope to complete the selection of jurors this afternoon and go into trial evidence late today or early tomorrow. As is the custom in most capital cases, Judge Hatch has indicated he will order a 13-man jury to hear the evidence.

Capitol Square

mocratic nominee for lieutenant governor and a relative newcomer to North Carolina politics, is using airplanes to get him from one speaking place to another. There will be from one to half a dozen local political meetings in the State every night, in addition to the airwaves loaded with big time national speeches. The average voter may be confused by this barrage of campaign oratory, but he cannot contend on November 4 that he did not have sufficient information about issues, upon which to base an intelligent vote.

Thirty Taking Pre-Draft Tests

Thirty Pitt County men were sent this morning to Raleigh for pre-induction by the local Selective Service Board.

In Raleigh the men will undergo physical and mental examinations. Another pre-induction call is scheduled for October 31 and an induction call for 24 men is scheduled for October 22.

Ask 47,000 Men In Draft Call

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Defense Department today asked Selective Service to draft 47,000 men in December for the Army.

The draft call is the same as for October and November.

The Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force do not intend to place draft calls for December. Selective Service was requested to deliver the December draft quota in the first two weeks of the month to let a maximum number of army personnel take advantage of Christmas leave, the department said.
