Ayden Power Cost Action Deferred By Utilities Board

Commissioners To Call In Consulting Firm To Map Revision Of Wholesale Power Rates; VEP- CO Officials Ask Easements On Right Of Way For Lines In City

Greenville utilities commissioners last night turned thumbs down on a request from the town of Ayden for an immediate 10 per cent reduction in the price Ayden is paying Greenville for wholesale electric current.

The commissioners told Mayor Corey Stokes of Ayden, who appeared in behalf of his town, that a consulting firm would be contacted immediately and instructed to present to the commission a proposal for revising the wholesale power rates of the local utilities, and that Ayden officials would be called into conference with the local utilities commissioners after the proposals from the consultant had been received.

The reduction in wholesale purchase rate of power by Ayden apparently is contingent upon the tie-in between the Greenville power plant and Virginia Electric Power company which is expected to be completed about the first of the year. Utilities Superintendent Martin Swartz said consideration is being given to a "sixth" rate charge to be effective at the time Greenville begins purchasing power from the Virginia company. At the present time the Greenville Utilities have only five rates in their scale of charges for electric power.

Freezing The Ball Stokes told the commissioners the Ayden officials "feel sure we will have a rate satisfactory to us when the VEPCO plan is worked out. In the meantime we feel like the man in a basketball game when the other side is two points ahead and freezes the ball."

Stokes said Ayden's average purchase price of wholesale current from Greenville over a period of 12 months was 1.42 cents per kw. He asserted Ayden could purchase an equal amount of electric power from Carolina Power and Light Company for 1.03 per kw, but admitted there could be considerable overhead cost involved in effecting a connection between the Ayden system and Carolina Power and Light company.

Requested Reduction In May Stokes pointed out that Ayden first presented its request for lower power rates to Greenville utilities in May. "We really believed we were going to get some relief in July, and we are let down and we have lost faith," Stokes declared. He added that after careful consideration and talks with other power people, Ayden officials felt they should be purchasing electric power for a price "in the 1.20's" per kw.

The board in turning down the Ayden request for an immediate 10 per cent reduction in its power rate pointed out action could not be taken in Ayden's case without giving the same consideration to other wholesale customers, and that recommendations for a revision of wholesale charges would be obtained from a rate consultant as soon as possible.

The town of Ayden has its own distribution system and purchases approximately $5,000 worth of electric current per month from the Greenville utilities. The town resells power to consumers at the same rates which Greenville utilities has for its customers.

New Whiteway Representatives of Virginia Electric Power company appeared before the commissioners and requested resolutions giving the company permanent easements on a 100-foot right of way for its lines across city property near the power plant and an easement on a plot of city property which will be used for VEP- CO's sub-station to be located in Greenville. The commissioners passed a resolution recommending such easements and requesting the Board of Aldermen to concur in the action.

After hearing Swartz discuss the whiteway cable and lights between Five Points and the court house on Evans Street, the commissioners approved the installation of mercury lights on the two blocks of Evans street to replace the present street light system. There are 16 whiteway lights on the two blocks at the present time, and the replacement cost with new fixtures and wiring will cost approximately $250 per unit, Swartz said.

The superintendent said construction work at the new water plant is nearing completion, and the installation of new equipment for the plant will begin in the near future. He also asked the board to give consideration to the new water tank and piping which has been proposed for the Meadowbrook section of the city. The cost of the Meadowbrook project would be approximately $75,000.

Loop System Approved Authorization was given by the commission for ordering of equipment which will be necessary for the establishment of a new loop system of high voltage electric lines around the outskirts of Greenville to afford a better distribution system for the business section of the

Stevenson Says No 'Trick' Can End Korean War

Accuses Eisenhower Of Playing Politics With Conflict In Korea

SPOKANE, Wash. (UP)—Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson warned today that "there is no trick" that can bring a quick end to the fighting in Korea and accused Dwight D. Eisenhower of playing politics with the conflict there.

The Democratic presidential candidate went on to promise that "I intend to run a clean, honest government." He challenged Eisenhower's ability to provide better stewardship of public funds and to cut government spending.

In a speech prepared for delivery here, Stevenson sharply criticized Eisenhower's "let it be Asians against Asians" remark about the Korean war.

"Surely, as our most distinguished soldier, the general must know that we have been training South Koreans as rapidly as we could for a long time now," Stevenson said.

"He must know that the South Korean divisions have been growing in combat ability and carrying more of the load of battle every month," he said.

"I will not play politics with war and peace."

(In a speech at Champaign, Ill., recently Eisenhower implied that American troops could be withdrawn from the Korean front more rapidly if South Koreans were trained and equipped to take over. "Let it be Asians against Asians," he said.)

Stevenson flew here from Salt Lake City, Utah, where Tuesday night he accused his Republican rival of welcoming "as satellites" "peddlers of hate and fear."

This was to be his last campaign tour of the Pacific Northwest and he hopped over Idaho where he has not appeared personally. Tonight he will make another major address in the San Francisco Cow Palace.

"Our men are fighting in Korea so they will not have to fight in Alaska or Spokane or Omaha," Stevenson told a party rally at a downtown Spokane intersection. "They will come home from Korea just as soon as our national safety permits."

The remarks on Korea came at the end of an address devoted primarily to the subject of public power development in the reversion-conscious Northwest. Stevenson said Eisenhower didn't know what he was talking about when he discussed the issue of public power.

Assumes Blame DURHAM (AP)—A Highway Commission engineer said yesterday that he and three other commission engineers made the decision which resulted in cracking of portions of the new Durham-Chapel Hill highway.

R. S. Sizer, resident engineer on the project, said he and the other engineers decided that construction of shoulder drains on the new highway could be discontinued. He added that he and contractor Nello L. Teer Sr. have agreed that the drains would have prevented the cracks which have appeared on portions of the road which was opened on Sept. 19.

The decision to halt the drain construction was made, Sizer said, because he and the other engineers thought the state could save approximately $7,000. It was estimated that repairing the damage to the road will cost about $5,000, and installation of drains where they were left out will cost another $10,000.

A.L. Haddock Is Given 2 Years In Federal Prison

Autry Lee Haddock, Pitt's long-time bootlegger, had his career cut short Monday when he was given a two-year sentence in a Federal prison.

Sentence was passed on the Pitt Countian from Judge Don Gilliam in Eastern District Court in New Bern to a charge of transporting non-taxpaid liquor.

Haddock was last arrested during the early morning of September 15 when his car was forced from the Fort Barnwell road near Dover after a wild 30-mile chase. Before he was arrested Haddock had forced three highway patrol cars off the road by his sidwiping maneuvers and reportedly exceeded 85 miles per hour.

At the time of his arrest, Haddock was on parole after serving six and a half months of a two-year sentence for a state whiskey violation in Pitt County. Haddock

Acheson Speech To UN Assembly Briefly Delayed

Expected East-West Debate Over Korea Still Awaits Formal Start

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UP)—The United States, in a sudden tactical shift, today postponed Secretary of State Dean Acheson's general policy speech before the United Nations General Assembly for "a day or two," possibly until Friday.

Acheson had been listed first on the speakers' list for the general debate in which foreign ministers customarily make policy declarations.

The postponement left the inauguration of the general debate up to the smaller powers at the afternoon session, with the expected Moscow-Washington clash over Korea deferred. But when it was discovered only Afghanistan and Cuba were ready to speak, the afternoon session also was called off.

The first major issue of the Assembly came up in the Steering Committee, where France was expected to oppose the inclusion of her disputes with Tunisia and Morocco on the Assembly's agenda.

On that score, a strong movement toward mediation of the North African colonial issue developed with Joao Carlos Muniz of Brazil, chairman of the powerful Political Committee, expected to push for a Pacific settlement of the dispute off the Assembly floor.

Informed sources said that when Acheson does speak he will not make any specific proposals concerning the Korean war or the stalemated Panmunjom peace talks.

Acheson intends, these sources said, to limit himself to a review of the U. S. prosecution of the war and its conduct of the truce talks, on behalf of the U. N.

He will not even appeal, as had been expected, for a blanket endorsement of the U. S. "stewardship" of the Korean war effort. It was said. This apparently will be left until the 60-nation Political Committee—which begins meeting next week—are collective measures against future aggression and the fruitless efforts of the U. N. Disarmament Commission to reach agreement.

Ike Discloses His Personal Income

NEW YORK (UP)—Dwight D. Eisenhower completed politics' personal income circle today with the disclosure he earned $888,033.99 during the 10-year period ending last Dec. 31.

Eisenhower said in a summary of joint federal income tax returns which he and his wife had filed that they retained $671,221.28 after taxes.

The Republican presidential nominee was the last of the top four political officers to make public his financial affairs.

Eisenhower's statement, released late yesterday at his headquarters, said he had paid $217,082.71 in income taxes.

More than half of Eisenhower's income during the 10-year period came from the sale in 1948 of all rights to "crusade in Europe," his memoirs of World War II.

The summary said Eisenhower received $635,000 from his book publisher. He was permitted by the Bureau of Internal Revenue to pay a capital gains tax of $158,750 since he was not a professional writer and the book represented his life's work.

Lie Detector Is In Line For Test

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UP)—Judge Phillip Bayt today was considering giving a lie detector a test.

Bayt said that on Tuesday Alfred Storey and Florence Rhodes were given lie detector tests to check conflicting accounts of an auto accident. The lie detector indicated both were telling the truth although their stories conflicted.

Three Democratic governors—James B. Byrnes of South Carolina, Robert F. Kennon of Louisiana and Allan Shivers of Texas—have announced that they will scratch Stevenson and vote for Eisenhower in the Nov. 4 election.

The Democratic senatorial nominee from Texas, Price Daniel, also is supporting Eisenhower. Daniel introduced the former five-star general when Eisenhower spoke in Houston Tuesday.

Stevenson has had no such luck in wooing prominent republican politicians, although his headquarters announced a few days ago that many prominent independent voters were switching from Eisenhower to Stevenson.

Porcelli, Socie Leave Court After Sentencing

FACE LIFE IMPRISONMENT—Fred Porcelli (left) and Herman Socie (right) are shown leaving the Pitt County courtroom yesterday afternoon after being sentenced to life imprisonment in the murder of Greenville Policeman Jesse E. Mills here August 16. The case which began October 7 came to a swift climax late yesterday afternoon when Porcelli, who was being tried for first degree murder, was allowed to enter a plea of accessory before the fact of murder. Deputy Sheriff's Lloyd Manning (foreground) and Arthur M. Andrews (background) are shown escorting the youths to Pitt County jail where they remained less than an hour before being sent to State Prison in Raleigh to begin serving their sentences. State Accepts New Porcelli Plea; Both Get Life Terms

By JESS POINDEXTER Reflector City Editor

Coming as an anti-climax to a week of costly deliberations, the murder trial of Fred Porcelli ended abruptly in Pitt Superior Court late yesterday.

A few minutes after the state accepted a plea of guilty to accessory before the fact of murder on the part of Porcelli, the same plea tendered a week ago relative to Herman Socie, Judge William T. Hatch passed sentence on the two young Marines.

Shortly after 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, in a courtroom tense with anxiety, Judge Hatch decreed that Fred Porcelli and Herman Socie shall spend the term of their natural lives at hard labor in State Prison at Raleigh.

Portraits of a governor of the state, a judge, a congressman, legislators and lawyers now deceased but preserved on canvas gazed down from the walls of the courtroom with unseeing eyes as the Raleigh jurist, with a few terse words, removed the last vestige of freedom from the lives of two boys who have never cast a ballot.

In view of the fact he pleaded guilty at the outset of the trial a week ago, the 19-year-old Socie was sentenced first. His parents were seated directly behind him as he rose to his feet and received the confining sentence.

Socie's mother, who with his father had observed the entire week's proceedings in silence, broke into hysterical weeping when Judge Hatch sent her son away for life. Porcelli's foster sister and aunt also bowed their heads and sobbed as he escaped the death penalty and was sent away forever.

Spectators Wept Eyes of many spectators in a packed courtroom were wet with tears as they witnessed the two confessed youths' relatives weeping silently and heard Judge Hatch hand down the ultimatum that removed Porcelli and Socie from society for all time.

Both prisoners cried softly as Porcelli made a statement to the court and the Mills family that he is sorry Mr. Mills is dead. "I think when he came upon me that night I surprised him, and he shot me. I had to shoot him to keep him from killing me, and I did not mean to kill him," Porcelli stated.

However, the two boys were dry-eyed and outwardly composed when they stood to receive their sentences. The pair began serving their sentences this morning, because shortly after the trial ended they were transferred to Central Prison in Raleigh—leaving Greenville last night at 6 o'clock.

Long Period Not in many months has a trial consumed so much time and had so much interest and significance attached to it. It is also the longest period in recent years that a jury has been confined and absent from their homes. Three jurors had been in custody since Tuesday, October 7.

The state tested its case against Porcelli yesterday morning at 11:45 and the remainder of the court's time was taken up with hearing motions for non-suits on the part of defense attorney Cameron Weeks and backroom deliberations between defense, prosecution, the two prisoners and the Mills family.

Solicitor W. J. Bundy denied until the final minute of the trial that the state would accept a lesser plea if the defense chose to tender one. Only five minutes prior to the state's acceptance of the guilty plea for Porcelli, Bundy shook his head negatively when asked if he planned to take a plea.

"Redeem Themselves" Speaking on behalf of Herman Socie, attorney Sam O. Worthington said he is glad the state saw fit to accept a plea of guilty to a lesser charge from Porcelli. "There is no reason, under the penal system of our state, that the two boys can't redeem themselves," he stated.

In accepting the plea of Porcelli, Solicitor Bundy said that in view of the extreme youthfulness of the defendant—and with the approval of the Mills family—the state felt it should take a plea of guilty to the less serious charge.

In a statement to the jury, Judge Hatch said, "In my more than three years experience on the bench of North Carolina I have never had a jury more attentive to witnesses as they testified and to questions asked by attorneys than you have been. Pitt County can well be proud of its citizenship."

The jurist then released the jury from custody and allowed its members to return to their respective homes.

Discharging Duty "On the night in question," Judge Hatch stated to spectators, "the officer was discharging his duty; and in the discharge of his duty as a policeman he lost his life. The court will say nothing to punish the two defendants further than they will be punished."

"But apparently they meant to

More Crossing Of Party Lines For Eisenhower

Has Had More Success Than Stevenson In Luring Big-Name Politicians To Cross Party Lines And Give Support

By REX CHANEY United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON (UP)—Dwight D. Eisenhower holds a lead over Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson in at least one respect. He has had more success in luring big-name politicians to cross party lines and come to his support in the presidential race.

Three Democratic governors—James B. Byrnes of South Carolina, Robert F. Kennon of Louisiana and Allan Shivers of Texas—have announced that they will scratch Stevenson and vote for Eisenhower in the Nov. 4 election.

The Democratic senatorial nominee from Texas, Price Daniel, also is supporting Eisenhower. Daniel introduced the former five-star general when Eisenhower spoke in Houston Tuesday.

Stevenson has had no such luck in wooing prominent republican politicians, although his headquarters announced a few days ago that many prominent independent voters were switching from Eisenhower to Stevenson.

Wilson W. Wyatt, Stevenson's campaign manager, said that among the independent voters who had come over to the Democratic camp were Chester Laroche, New York advertising man who helped in Wendell L. Willkie's 1940 camaign; authors John Steinbeck, Will Durant and Edna Ferber; Frederick Lewis Allen, editor of Harper's; James P. Warburg, financier; John Jacob Astor, and Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr.

There have been hints that one or more prominent Republican politicians might make the jump from Eisenhower to Stevenson.

Wayne L. Morse of Oregon, for one, has been critical of the views expressed by Eisenhower on some issues.

Morse was an original, pre-Chicago Eisenhower booster and had intended to work actively for him. But Morse now plans to sit out the campaign. On the question of whether he will vote for Eisenhower or Stevenson, Morse said he hasn't made up his mind and won't until election day.

Another Republican member of Congress—Rep. Usher L. Burdick of North Dakota—said at one point not vote for Eisenhower even as "the lesser of two evils." But there have been recent indications he might change his mind.

The three southern governors announced their support of Eisenhower in separate statements denouncing the Truman administration.

Truman Again Embarking On Political Tour Tonight

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Truman, highly pleased with the results of his first campaign tour, is "rarin' to go again."

White House intimates reported today he will board his special train tonight for his second foray into the hustings on behalf of the Democratic ticket. His schedule calls for three days of whistle-stopping through Connecticut, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and New Hampshire, winding up with a major address Saturday night in Brooklyn.

Vice President Alben W. Barkley also hit the campaign trail today, for the first time in the 1952 campaign. Leaving the capital by plane, the 74-year-old Veep planned to visit at least 11 states, beginning with a rally at St. Cloud, Minn., tonight.

Mr. Truman's intense campaigning drew the fire of Sen. Herman Welker (R-Ida.), who called on the President in a telegram to "cancel further campaign trips and remain at your post in the White House in the interests of American security."

Welker said that "an unfortunate impression has been created abroad that the country is leaderless during the political campaign, largely because of the absence from Washington of the President."

Mr. Truman returned to the Capital Sunday after a 16-day cross-country trip on which he lambasted Republican presidential candidate Dwight D. Eisenhower with more than 90 speeches in 15 states.

GIs Storm And Take Another Hill

Texans Hear Ike Hit Cynical Men Leading Gov'n't

Charges Demo Leaders More Interested In Money Than In Morals

EN ROUTE WITH EISENHOWER (UP)—Dwight D. Eisenhower, charging Democratic leaders were more interested in money than morals, swept through Texas today in a final personal bid for its 24 electoral votes.

The Republican presidential candidate already had been cheered at Houston, San Antonio and Lubbock and his supporters expected him to win more acclaim in the rival cities of Dallas and Fort Worth.

Eisenhower chose the steps of the historic Alamo at San Antonio Tuesday night as the platform for a speech in which he scorchingly described some Democratic leaders as "cynical men" who "shrug off moral laws at plitudes."

He said the nation must find new leaders to keep America strong spiritually.

"We must deal here with moral qualities, the deep things of man's inner life, forces that have no spiritual kinship with a slogan—'You never had it so good,'" Eisenhower said.

He said the men now entrusted with the nation's leadership "were caught in a bear trap set by the bear itself" in Korea.

"The new administration will inherit the job of bringing the bloody Korean snarl to a conclusion without plunging us into global war," Eisenhower said. Such a task will challenge all the experience, all the intelligence, and all the energy that leadership can bring to bear."

But Eisenhower added that Americans, in the past, had hurdled great obstacles and adequate leadership could do it again.

He said he had given up his job as a peacemaker in Europe because he felt there was more work to be done here.

A few months ago I came back from Europe and a job I had been assigned to do there," he said. "That job had to do with peace through cooperation with our allies in Western Europe. I returned because I was convinced that there was a still bigger job to be done for peace. And that bigger job had to be done in America."

Eisenhower then listed four basic elements which he thought were needed to win lasting peace — "a strong America, a political leadership that earns respect, free allies throughout the world, and an active United Nations."

"Wherever allies can not be bought," he said. "Dollars alone will not do the job. It can only be done through mutual respect, mutual confidence and readiness to cooperate."

Earlier in his speech Eisenhower expressed pride in knowing that the men in the Kremlin were not included among the "I Like Ike" people.

Kiss Burglar Is Led Into Trap

ALBANY, N. Y. (UP)—Kiss burglar Herbert Campbell Jr., 28, told police today he spotted a beautiful 15-year-old blonde in a movie theater and decided to follow her home.

He said he later entered her house through a window, found her bedroom and kissed her.

"Who is it?" the girl asked. "Shhh! Don't speak," he said and kissed her again.

Campbell then made a date with the young miss for the following evening.

When Campbell showed up for his date, so did the cops. He was charged with second degree burglary and third degree assault.

Big Ground Assault Continues Against Fanatically Resisting Reds; Naval Task Force Feints Landing; ROKs Tunnel Into Hill, Blow Up Chinese Defenders

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—American GI's of the 31st regiment stormed and captured bitterly-contested Triangle Hill today in a sharp attack which carried them over the crest and 150 yards down the enemy-held northern slope.

Only a mile to the east, South Koreans of the 2nd Republic Division launched a new assault on Sniper Ridge and at last reports were locked in battle with fanatic Chinese defenders.

The U. N. is pressing its biggest ground assault in a year against the twin peaks on the central front. The South Koreans gained Sniper Ridge for a time yesterday, but a Chinese counter-attack knocked them off.

Later today, U.S. troops occupied Sandy Ridge in the Triangle area without resistance but called off an assault on Jane Russell hill nearby when the Reds unleashed a heavy mortar and artillery barrage. The GI's dug in on Sandy Ridge.

Allied planes gave air support to the infantrymen when the weather cleared.

To the west, the battle for White Horse Mountain astride the Chonwon invasion gateway to Seoul appeared over. South Koreans, unable to push the Chinese off the last three knobs of the mountain, blew them up.

Korean engineers tunneled beneath the Reds and set off dynamite charges.

"It just about blew the top of the hill," said Colonel McKimley of the daring ROK raiders. "It looks like the battle on White Horse is finished."

The Chinese who survived the explosions put up a token fight before surrendering.

On the east coast of North Korea a huge Allied task force made an amphibious feint. Aircraft carriers, loaded troopships and landing craft approached the Kojo Peninsula south of Wonsan and carried out all phases of an amphibious assault except an actual landing.

The task force was composed of six aircraft carriers, four cruisers, 30 destroyers, the battleship Iowa, the command ship Mount McKinley and scores of minor combat ships and landing craft. The Navy called the exercise a "full-scale training operation."

Planes and warships had "softened" the Kojo area for three days and troops believed they were to make a real landing. But instead their landing craft merely circled the shores.

The feint was viewed as a warning to the Reds that the U. N. is always ready to carry out a behind-the-scenes landing. Such a threat is reported to be being down large numbers of Red troops along the coast.

The latest assaults on Triangle and Sniper followed a day and a night of heavy fighting.

The Allies yesterday captured two smaller hills, Jane Russell and Sandy Ridge, but withdrew last night during a Red counter-attack which also swept them from the southern slopes of Triangle and Sniper Ridge. The Reds used tall, burly Mongolians.

Bypassing Jane Russell and Sandy Ridge, U.S. infantrymen jumped off again at 10 a.m. (8 p.m. EST Tuesday) and stormed the 70-degree slopes of Triangle. They drove the Reds 150 yards down the northern side in a battle lasting one hour and 40 minutes.

United Press war correspondent Fred Panton said the U.S. 7th Division reported its 31st Regiment was atop the peak with a "good force." He reported a mist shrouding the peak prevented Communist artillery observers from pinpointing new U.S. positions on the ridge.

Bookie Cost His Friends $25,000

NEW YORK (UP)—Convicted bookmaker Harry Gross "day of the races" cost his friends $25,000. The Appellate Division affirmed Tuesday an order forfeiting a $25,000 bail bond posted by his friends after the gambler walked out on two policemen Sept. 12, 1951, to attend the races at Atlantic City. N. J. Gross was picked up at the track 24 hours later.

Had Excellent Results With Cheap Want-Ad

Mr. Jimmy Smith of E. 10th Street Ext. ran a "Help Wanted" ad in The Daily Reflector Classified ad section for three times at a cost of $25. It read as follows: Wanted—Good reliable servant to work in home. Good pay, steady position. Will come for you and take you home. Call 5471 or 2878. Mr. Smith stated that he got excellent results from the ad by readers interested in that type of work.

Impressions

By MARTHA S. FORBES

Girls, do you want to be always youthful and glamorous? Men, do you want to be wealthy, influential and powerful?

According to the great quantities of advertising to which we are exposed every time we open a magazine or paper, the answer to all problems of life is to be found in the purchase and use of certain kinds of products.

It is rather interesting to take several publications and compare the style and type of advertising which appears on their pages. Take any one commodity and search for all the ads you can find about that one particular kind of thing. It is amusing and highly diverting to study all the claims that rival manufacturers make about the same kind of goods. Many people admit that they buy certain periodicals because of the beautiful and interesting ads which they carry, and even more will say that they read them in preference to articles, stories or features. That kind of endorsement is music to the advertiser's ears but hardly comprehensible to the writers and authors who think their "brain child" is what sells a newspaper or a magazine.

Once in browsing through a magazine, I saw two ads by rival cosmetics firms which carried endorsements by the same movie star. It is of course possible that she uses both products, but it is rather insulting to one's intelligence for the same person to make the same extravagant claims about competitors' lipsticks, creams and powders. Most of the cosmetics ads promise youthful beauty to everyone, if she only purchases and uses long enough a certain kind of lotion, cream or soap. Other full page color ads make all sorts of claims for relaxing, beautifying, and appealing—to say nothing of cleansing all the while it is making you more desirable and "sweeter than a baby."

Do you girls know why your husbands have lost "interest" or have ceased to feel romantic towards you? It is either because you failed to use a certain kind of cake mix, or you did not massage hands with a particular kind of lotion, or you forgot to buy the kind of foundation that keeps your spreading figure lithe and "fluid."

Husbands, are your wives bored with domestic life? Then go out to the nearest appliance center and order a washing machine, a stove, a refrigerator, a dryer, and everything else which has been invented for the housewife's delight, and she will rather stay home than go any place in the world. It would probably be cheaper in the long run to invest your hard earned dollars in something of this sort rather than to have to take her out once a week for dinner and a show, considering the high cost of baby sitters, tipping, new clothes which she will need for social life, and what not.

If your baby is uncomfortable, sickly and fussy? It is not because he is ill or sleepy or just acting normal for a baby. It is because you have failed to use the right kind of powder, diapers, bottles, play toys or feeding bowl for him. Just stock up on everything which manufacturers of baby's needs make, and you will have a healthy, happy, cry-less child.

The secret of all business success is the kind of train you travel on to keep engagements, the kind of files and desks you use in your office, the quality of the office stationery, or the kind of car you drive. Everybody knows by now that the kind of cigarette you smoke or the brand of dentifrice which you habitually use is the stepping stone to success.

Yes, advertising is big business

City Christmas Plans Discussed

Plans were made yesterday morning by the Christmas Plans Committee of the Merchants' Association and representatives of other groups for the decorations which will be worn by the city this Christmas.

Meeting with representatives of the Utilities Commission and business men from West End Circle, the planning committee, under the chairmanship of B. D. Johnson, planned to use enameled mountain laurel intermingled with colored lights and centered with plastic faces and scenes for this year's decorations.

Carroll Carpenter of Hickory submitted a number of sketches of decorations with suggestions for decorations for the committee but none of his ideas were fully decided on by the committee. Plans additional to those submitted by Carpenter will be used.

Areas which will wear Christmas decorations are: Evans Street from the post office to the end of the business section; Fifth Street from the municipal building to the high school; Dickinson Avenue from Five Points to the railroad; one block off Evans Street; and possibly a part of Colanthe Street.

Representatives from West End Circle met with the committee yesterday. Decorations might be put up in that section of the city as well as in other sections not previously cited.

The decorations will be put up by P. C. Kemp.

Tyson-Broadhurst Vows Exchanged

Immanuel Church Rites On Sunday; Reception Follows

The Immanuel Baptist Church was the setting for the wedding of Miss Doris Spence Broadhurst and French Kermit Tyson which took place Sunday afternoon, October 12. The Rev. J. A. Neilson officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Eugene Wooten Broadhurst of Greenville and the late Mr. Broadhurst. The groom is the son of Mrs. Charles Leon Tyson and the late Mr. Tyson of Ayden.

Prior to the entrance of the wedding party Mr. A. Hartwell Campbell, organist, presented a program of organ melodies, including "Serenade" by Schubert, "A Perfect Day" by Carrie Jacobs Bond and "Wedding Prayer" by Dunlap. During the ceremony he played "Bless Be The Tie" by Hans G. Naegeli. The traditional wedding marches by Wagner and Mendelssohn were used as the processional and recessional.

Mrs. Ralph Worthington of Ayden, cousin of the groom, was soloist. She sang "Through The Years" by Youmans, and "Because" by D'Hardelot. As a benediction she sang "O Perfect Love" by Barnby.

The vows were spoken before an altar banked with palms and ferns and traditional bridal greenery. Baskets of white gladioli and standards of cathedral candles formed the setting.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Jack E. Broadhurst of Wilson, wore a gown of bridal satin and chantilly lace with sheer nylon yoke outlined by an applique of chantilly lace forming an off shoulder effect which extended into the fitted starpoint bodice of satin. The long tapering sleeves of satin ended in calla lily points over the hands. Her bouffant skirt of satin was outlined with chantilly lace over satin, which fell into folds forming the cathedral train. Her fingertip veil of bridal illusion and matching chantilly lace fell from a tiara of seed pearls. Her only ornament was a strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom. She carried a cascade bouquet of feathered carnations centered with a purple throated orchid.

Miss Eloise Warren was maid of honor and only attendant. She wore a gown of arcadia blue nylon net over matching taffeta skirt fashioned with a tight fitting blue velvet bodice. Her headdress was of matching tulle and velvet sprinkled with rhinestones. She wore blue mitts and carried an arm bouquet of large yellow chrysanthemums tied with yellow satin ribbon.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson, uncle of the groom, was best man and ushers were Powell T. Speight and R. H. McLawhorn Jr. of Winterville, cousins of the groom. Joseph W. Broadhurst of Athens, Ga., brother of the bride, and K. R. Johnson of Chincoteague, Va., brother-in-law of the bride.

Mrs. Broadhurst wore for her daughter's wedding a grey dress with black and white accessories. She wore an orchid glamelia corsage.

Mrs. Tyson chose a gown of combed blue with matching accessories. She wore a coral glamelia corsage.

Reception Immediately following the ceremony the mother of the bride entertained in honor of the bride and groom at a reception in the Church Parlor. Bridal greenery and arrangements of white flowers decorated the parlor. The bride's table was centered with a lovely white arrangement flanked by candelabras in silver candelabra.

Guests were greeted at the door by Mr. and Mrs. Lebron S. Spence of Melbourne, Fla. and Mrs. E. P. Spence of Morehead City, Mr. and Mrs. Brantley Speight introduced the guests to the receiving line composed of Mrs. Broadhurst, Jack E. Broadhurst, Mrs. C. L. Tyson, the bride and groom, Rev. and Mrs. Neilson, Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson, Miss Eloise Warren, Mr. Hartwell Campbell and Mrs. Ralph Worthington.

Mrs. K. R. Johnson of Chincoteague, Va. presided at the punch bowl and Mrs. Sidney Albritton of Snow

Hill served the bridal cakes. Assisting elsewhere were Mrs. Carl Abee Jr. of Greenville, Miss Eulalie Spence of Seven Springs, Miss Gladys Norris, Miss Margaret Windham, Mrs. B. M. Reagan and Mrs. J. B. Jones, all of Greenville. Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Overstreet of Norfolk, Va. presided at the register. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest E. Broadhurst of Wilson said the goodbyes.

Mrs. Tyson attended Greenville High School and Norfolk College. She holds a position with Goodson-Flanagan Insurance Agency in Greenville.

Mr. Tyson attended Winterville High School. He served three years in the army and is now engaged in farming near Ayden.

After the ceremony and reception the couple left for a bridal trip. For traveling the bride chose a grey wool suit with a blue feather hat and gloves of matching color. Her other accessories were black. She wore the orchid lifted from her bridal bouquet.

Out of town guests attending the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis Whitfield and Mr. J. L. Whitfield, Robersonville; Mr. and Mrs. Fred T. Langford, Rocky Mount; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cooper and Mr. and Mrs. George Strickland, Kinston; Mrs. Carrie Bell Joyner, Farmville; Mrs. Buck Grantham and Mrs. Ray Harper, Stantonburg; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Parker, Pollockville; Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Pearce Jr., Raleigh; Mrs. Kelly Davenport, Hobgood; Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Anderson and children, Burlington; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Rackley and children, Smithfield; Miss Rachel E. Wooten, Greenville, South Carolina; Mrs. A. B. Allen and Mrs. Hill-ton Miller, Lubbock, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Fields, Miss Anne Fields and Miss Daisy Fields, Walsenburg; Donald R. Coley and Walter R. J. Kramicki, Cherry Point.

After-Rehearsal Party Following the rehearsal on Saturday evening, Sheriff and Mrs. Ruel W. Tyson and Mrs. Charles Leon Tyson honored the Tyson-Broadhurst wedding party and out of town guests at an informal after-rehearsal party at their home on East 5th Street in Greenville.

Sheriff and Mrs. Tyson greeted the guests at the door. Mr. and Mrs. Carl Abee Jr. invited the guests in the dining room. Arrangements of fall flowers, greenery and candles were used throughout the home.

The refreshment table was covered with a deep ruffled green organza cover, centered with a unique arrangement of white candles, white pom-poms, carnations and fern. The bride- and groom-elect cut the first slice from the three tiered wedding cake, after which Mrs. Tyson, mother of the groom-elect, served the guests while Mrs. Broadhurst, mother of the bride-elect, served molded sherbet.

Misses Daphne McLawhorn of Raleigh and Winterville, Sarah Jones and Bernadine Ballance of the dining room, while Miss Vernette Albritton of Snow Hill and Mr. and Mrs. George Strickland of Kinston presided at other points throughout the house. Fifty guests called.

Next District VFW Meet Is Slated For January 18

R.R. Newton, Jr., of Farmville, Commander, District No. 2, Department of North Carolina Veterans of Foreign Wars, presided at a District meeting held on Sunday, October 12 in Greenville. Charles Gray Morgan Post No. 7032 was host.

Guests present included Forrest Dunstan, Senior Vice Commander, Department of N.C., Earl Knauff, Past Department Commander, J. Bedford Gum, Community Service Chairman, Department of N.C., W. Rufus Joyner, National Aide de Camp, Ed Hyman, Past National Aide de Camp, Hugh Mattocks, Commander, Cooties, Department of N.C., Bill Boyette, Commander, 3rd District, Frank Diano, Quartermaster, 3rd District, Jack Bright, Junior Vice Commander, 2nd District, C.B. Penny, Commander, 4th District, Eimer Brothers, Commander, 1st District, Tucker McGlohon, Department Aide de Camp, Jasper Tyndall, Past Commander, 2nd District, Edna Baumgardner, President, Department of N.C. Auxiliary, Mary Stubbs, Junior Vice President, Department of N.C. Auxiliary, Elsie Bright, Color Bearer, Department of N.C. Auxiliary, Elizabeth Kajeel, President, 4th District Auxiliary, and Bessie Hyman, Past President, Department of N.C. Auxiliary.

Plans for the building of a cottage at the National VFW home at Easton Rapids, Mich., by the Department of North Carolina were discussed by Earl Knauff, a member of the Board of Directors of the National home, who proposed that the 2nd District pass a resolution at its next district meeting urging that the Department of N.C. place the N.C. Cottage fund under the control of the Board of Directors of the National home so that the fund will be available for use when it becomes practicable to build the cottage.

Forrest Dunstan addressed the meeting briefly in respect to the last National VFW encampment held in Los Angeles and he urged that all members work to the end that the Department of N.C. again be among the leaders of the state Departments of the VFW.

The importance of community service work was discussed by J. Bedford Gum and he stated that no project of the VFW is more important, either to the local posts or to the community, than that of rendering some service to the community.

The next district meeting will be held at Washington, N.C., on January 18, 1953, and the Washington Post will be host.

Tuesday's Cases In County Court

By CHESTER WALSH In Pitt County Recorder's Court yesterday, Judge Dink James presided over the session, held in the courtroom at the City Hall. Court was held there while Superior Court was in session at the courthouse.

Three defendants were found guilty of driving while drunk. R. C. Council, Negro, of the Bethel community, driving while drunk and driving without an operator's license, for four months on the roads, sentence suspended on payment of $100 and costs.

Bert Brown, Negro, of the Bethel community, driving while drunk and driving without an operator's license, $100 and costs, and the court's judgment provides that Brown is not to drive a motor vehicle until after he has obtained proper license.

William R. Lynch, driving drunk, $100 and costs. Bobby Haddock of near Vanceboro, no driver's license, $25 and costs. Heber A. Smith pleaded guilty in absentia to the charge of driving without a driver's license. The court fined him $25 and costs.

Worthless check: Dan Hoell, three months on the roads, sentence suspended on payment of court costs, and on condition that he pay the check in the amount of $200 in 60 days.

Henry Small, Negro, was found guilty of assault with a deadly weapon and fined $10 and costs. Jesse Small, Negro, also was fined $10 and costs.

Assault with a deadly weapon: Allen J. Williams, Negro, three months on the roads, sentence suspended on payment of $20 and costs. The court order also provides that he is not to possess any firearms for two years. Isabelle Reid, Negro, also was given three months on the roads, sentence suspended on payment of court costs, and he is to remain of good behavior for two years.

Willie Riles, Negro, possession of non-tax-paid whiskey, was found guilty. The court found that he had violated the terms of a previous suspended sentence and gave the defendant 90 days on the roads, this sentence to run concurrently with the other sentence.

Non-support: John David Paige, Negro, six months on the roads, sentence suspended on payment of doctor's bill of $94.42. He was to pay one-third before release, one-third December 1, and one-third March 1. Payments to be made to the Pitt County Welfare Department at the rate of $3 a week.

Abandonment and non-support: Eugene Savage, Negro, not guilty. In the case against James Lee Atkinson, Negro, charged with disturbing religious worship, Judge James continued prayer for judgment on condition that Atkinson pay court costs.

Strength for the Day

BLENDED OF POWERS
People are liable to attribute either too much importance to feelings or too little. Some people would push all feelings aside and declare that no judgment is ever sound unless it is arrived at purely and solely by the exercise of the mind. Others are always giving in to humors, never taking time to reason out anything but proceeding always on the basis of how they feel.

Sound judgment depends on the proper mixture of thoughts and feeling in arriving at a decision. The principle of balance underlies the whole of nature. Our physical processes are the result of perfect balances. Accordingly, in arriving at any decision we should make sure that thought and feeling—intellect and emotion—are blended together in a way that will bring us to a sound and rational policy.

Too much emotion sweeps us into the quicksand of sentimentality. Too much reason leaves us indecisive, skeptical, and perhaps cynical. Blend reason and feeling together in arriving at any conclusion. They are both God-given powers and both need to be sensibly used.

And The Bad Weather Is Yet To Come

Pitt County, unfortunately, is living up to its earned reputation for smashing motor vehicles and human bodies on its highways and by-ways.

During the past week-end no less than six highway accidents were reported in the county. The accidents resulted in no fatalities, but there were at least a dozen people injured.

As the fall and winter seasons approach each year, it seems that the accident rate in Pitt County goes up. It could be that more people are on the roads and are more inclined to hurry in those months.

It could be that weather conditions during the late fall and winter months play a part in the increasing accident rate.

Whatever the cause, Pitt County is still having what we believe is more than its share of highway accidents. And with the really bad weather yet to come, the rate of accidents could go above what it is now unless more than usual caution is taken for accident prevention.

We hope, along with other people in Pitt, that the county can get by the remainder of 1952 without any more highway fatalities, but unless the accident rate is reduced, the law of averages is going to catch up with the county's drivers and take more lives before the new year comes in.

A Second Front In The Korean War

A second front appears to be opening in the Korean War—a two-fold attack which the Allies hope will bring enough pressure on the communists to effect a truce in the Korean conflict.

As the General Assembly of the United Nations opened its seventh annual session yesterday, the U. N. forces in Korea launched their largest attack in a year against the communist forces in Korea.

Whether there is any correlation between the military battle U. N. troops have launched in Korea and the debating battle which is to be launched in the United Nations General Assembly, no one can say for sure. However, it appears the strategy of the simultaneous moves on the military and political fronts has been coordinated by a high command which is looking at the overall international picture.

For almost a year while the truce negotiations have been going on in Korea, the communists have been subjected to little military pressure except the stepped up air attacks of the U. N. forces. There has been little ground action pressed by the Allies until the past week.

It is too early to tell yet whether the new Allied punch into the communist positions will develop into a full scale offensive, but the action is certainly a change from the "hold the line" policy which has been followed by the U. N. ground forces for the past year.

The coordinated attacks on the Korean battlefields and in the United Nations General Assembly are certainly pointed toward the same goal. The outcome of neither battle can be predicted; but should both succeed, the peace outlook in Korea which has been black for so many months should brighten considerably within the next few weeks.

Handiwork Goes Beyond The Campaign

What counts most in American political campaigns, the sound, calm approach to the issues involved, or the "give 'em hell" type oratory which President Truman has made famous since 1948?

From reports of political polsters who say they have their fingers on the pulse of the nation's thoughts, it seems that Stevenson's political stock has gained several points since President Truman hit the road with his blood and thunder whistle-stop show a couple of weeks ago.

From the way President Truman tore into the Republicans—and everybody in general who didn't see eye to eye with his thoughts on the administration and national policies—it sounded almost like there were three front rank candidates in the race for two weeks. But if the popularity reports of the polsters are correct—and they have been way off base several times in the past—the whistle-stop campaign which President Truman made has done Stevenson's campaign some good.

The polsters say Eisenhower is still ahead in popularity but Stevenson has been gaining since Truman began his stumping campaign.

Mr. Truman's campaign style, and the apparent effect it had is indicative, it seems to us, of the type name-calling, invective campaign which appeals to the American people.

When the Eisenhower-Stevenson campaign began, both candidates expressed the desire for a campaign on a high plane, not seen in American politics for a long time. But since the campaign has built up a head of steam, the melodies played by both principals have been drowned out by the vicious overtones of other partisans who from time to time have stolen the campaign spotlight from the candidates themselves.

It all points to the fact that a campaign of such magnitude is not a one-man show. There are a good many people on both sides of the political fence who have a hand in planning and painting the campaign picture.

And their handiwork does not stop there. It carries over into the planning and operation of the administration once the successful candidate takes office.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—President Truman's campaign request that the Federal Trade Commission break down the disposition of the consumer's food dollar by advertising the fact that the farmers' share is falling simultaneously with a sharp increase in his taxes, his debts, and his costs of operations.

Although ex-Senator James M. Mead of New York, who now heads the FTC, is an extreme partisan, it is almost certain that he will pigeonhole the White House demand. For one reason, he received it only a few weeks ago, and it would require a long and conscientious study to ascertain the facts in such a complex subject.

Secondly, it would reveal that the statistics might not win votes for the Stevenson-Sparkman ticket in politically important agricultural areas.

ECONOMIC STATUS—They would show that, despite the billions which the Government has spent on farm and price support programs, the producers' share has remained fairly constant since before World War II, when measured in relative purchasing power. The gains have been normal and in accord with the historical pattern of many years.

Moreover, as is true in industry, the farmers' improved economic status is based largely on the increased use of machinery, their own persistent study of new methods, the railroad's installation of faster and refrigerated rolling stock, and the steady growth of larger and hungrier markets.

In short, the records show the farmer deserves as much credit as Uncle Sam for his more favorable position in the economic system.

CONSUMER'S DOLLAR—Although an X-ray of the component costs of the market basket would admittedly be helpful in many ways, especially in the more prompt and fair settlement of labor disputes, President Truman's memo to the FTC suggests that he hoped to make political capital of it, if it satisfied his purpose.

"Powerful interests are at work," he wrote, "trying to convince the consumer that it is the farmer who is responsible for the high cost of living. Figures of the Department of Agriculture, however, show that the farmer receives only about half of the consumer's food dollar, and far less for other products such as cotton and tobacco. Let us get the full facts on where the rest of the consumer's dollar goes."

Truman obviously has two ideas in mind. The first is to demonstrate that what he calls "reactionary interests" are responsible for today's high prices. The second is to hold out the promise of a larger share than 50 per cent, possibly through the two-price Branman Plan that was rejected by the Democratic platform makers and by Stevenson.

BREAKDOWN IMPOSSIBLE—Had President Truman consulted the findings of several agencies better acquainted with this problem than FTC, he would have discovered where the remainder of the consumer's dollar goes. Although they will not guarantee the accuracy of their conclusions for the reasons listed above, their breakdown is accepted as fairly accurate.

These studies indicate that 30 cents is paid out as the cost of transportation, processing, packaging, insurance, etc. Another 20 cents is accounted for by the costs of local distribution to retail stores, and their expense in preparing, stocking and delivering the goods to the customers.

Obviously, in view of the different origins and destinations of products, the varied methods of packaging and processing, the contrasts in marketing methods of chain stores, independents and public markets, any average or nationwide breakdown of the food dollar is out of the question. And any analysis made by FTC for use before November 4 would be only a political ploy.

MIDDLE MAN—The powerful interests indirectly assailed by Truman—the railroad, truck lines, the processors, the insurance companies—would have a ready answer for the Presidential suggestion that the middle men are getting the gravy. So would the local distributors and retailers, who have already carried their protests against taxes and costly Federal controls to Eisenhower and Stevenson.

Changing The Brand

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Last night I dropped in on the regular meeting of the Pitt County Chapter of Alcoholics Anonymous, the organization which has done most to help chronic alcoholics. Because the members remain anonymous, the meetings are not open to outsiders except by invitation. Knowing that my intention is to inform my readers about the group without revealing names, I have one of the rare "honorary" memberships.

In the near future the local AA group plans to have an open meeting for the general public, in order to give information about the function of AA. But if you are interested you don't have to wait for the meeting. You can contact me at any time and I will put you in touch with the group. If you had rather by-pass me, write: Alcoholics Anonymous, Box 461.

Greenville, N. C.
The local group last night had finished the formal meeting when I came in and was engaged in the after-meeting coffee, coke, and bull session. It's amazing to see people that used to think a drink is a necessary part of a good time having such a good time without drinking. The theory of AA is something that in my opinion can be explained properly only by an alcoholic. My attempt would be something like this: Suppose you read in the paper that I had been in an automobile accident and had broken my leg in three places. And suppose the same identical thing had happened to you, but you had recovered and can walk and run as well as you ever did. If you would take time off, even if you didn't know me, to come to see me and tell me of your experience, and how you came out of it with flying colors, it would give me no end of encouragement to do the same thing. If I were suffering psychological twirls, I would probably listen to you quicker than anybody else, on the theory that you have been in the same boat and know how I feel.

The broken-leg idea is only one phase of the operation of AA. The program is a vast thing, with a physical, mental, and spiritual side. The group is self-supporting, with the funds coming from passing the gold fish bowl at the meetings. One-fourth of the gold fish bowl funds go in a medical fund.

The Pitt County group has more women in it than any group of its size in the state. Any member of any AA group, woman or man, will do anything possible to help an alcoholic go dry. The AA's realize that they still have the alley to whiskey, but have arrested it. And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

By LYNN NISBET
POLK — Whether Ned Anderson will continue to function as chairman of the Polk county board of elections almost certainly will depend upon what position the courts take with respect to action taken by the State Board of Elections last week in ordering him to surrender his office to a new appointee. Whether the court action will be started by the new appointee, whose name was not available at the State Board office as this is being written Monday afternoon, or in form of legal protest by Anderson against the attempted ouster, could not be learned. Circumstances would seem to put the burden on the new man or the State Board, because the incumbent chairman is in possession of the office, along with the official ballots for the November election which were mailed out some weeks ago.

"FUNNY" — All of the "monkey business" in Polk county did not occur in the primary. What happened there last week was just as "funny" as anything occurring in May or June. It was charged that official ballots were stolen from a deputy sheriff's car during the primary voting day, but no charge was made that any of the stolen ballots were voted or that results of the election were in any way affected by their disappearance. The State Board ordered an investigation which was held at Columbus and Tryon last Friday, with State Chairman C. M. Britt presiding, and Democrat H. C. Ferebee, Republican Fredrick Brown and Eugene Snyder present. The other Democrat, Haywood Robbins, could not attend. After the evidence had been heard before the board with its two-to-one Republican majority voted to remove County Chairman Anderson from office, and named another man in his place.

CAN'T DO — The State Board of Elections under chairmanship of Charles Britt has assumed a very dictatorial and autocratic attitude, but opinion of several good lawyers, including unofficial expressions of Attorney General Harry McMullan, is that the board has no authority to remove from office a public official, who is not an employee of the board but a sworn officer of the county and state, without formal notice to him of charges and a chance for him to refute the charges. Britt and his Republican associates on the State Board have a lot of authority over election procedure, but their power does not go that far.

REMOVAL — Any board or any individual is presumed to have the right to discharge an employee for cause, and the cause may range all the way from simple personal dislike to gross inefficiency or disloyalty. Public officials can be removed only by resignation, impeachment or conviction in a court of competent jurisdiction on charges of malfeasance. The current State Board of Elections, during the past three years, has attempted to treat members of the county boards as employees, subject to firing at will. The statutes, however, set them up as public officers, coming within purview of the constitutional ban on double office holding. That is why some court of competent authority must pass upon the Polk County case before the attempted ouster of Chairman Anderson can be made effective.

NAIVE — The folks who set up the program for the Nash County Harvest Festival at Nashville last Friday and put Congressman Franklin Roosevelt Jr. and Governor Kerr Scott on for non-political speeches were very naive. (That is a French word pronounced like it was spelled Nah-eeve, and meaning artlessly simple.) Both Roosevelt and Scott poked fun at the idea—and launched into all-out Democratic campaign speeches. Fact is, anybody who thinks there can be a big gathering of North Carolinians with top flight politicians on the program less than a month before the election and keep politics out, is certainly "nah-eeve."

REGISTRATION — Registration books open in more than 2,000 voting precincts in this State last Saturday and will remain open until sundown on October 25. Reports on first day new registrations indicate more than usual interest in the up-coming election and forecast the biggest vote in State history. Secretary of State Thad Eure is looking for more than 850,000. Raymond Maxwell, secretary to the State Board of Elections declines to make an estimate but said he would "not be surprised" at more than 900,000. Some optimistic predictions go as high as a million. The record to date stands at 835,000 cast in 1938.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

NOT TRUMAN'S KINDNESS, THANK GOODNESS
(Charlotte Observer)

President Truman in his harangue at Buffalo did not use the words Red Herring in denouncing the fight against communism in this country, but he said it was phony. He was just using different language to express his hostility to these suspicious elements among us.

When charges were brought against Alger Hiss, they were red herring in Mr. Truman's book. Now, similar efforts to root out Communists are phony.

In a speech as full of hypocrisy as anything he has yet uttered, he went on from there to declaim about his devotion to the Bill of Rights, but it was very noticeable that he wanted to use the Bill of Rights to protect persons accused of communism. That is well and good, but when he has been so zealous about using that document for the protection of loyal Americans?

In the Fifth Article of the Bill of Rights there is a clause that says no person "shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law." Just last spring Mr. Truman did not hesitate to violate that clause in an arbitrary proceeding against loyal American citizens, and it took a Supreme Court opinion to stop him.

But he is very solicitous about using the Bill of Rights to protect suspicious persons who are not even citizens of this country. Because Senator McCarran is one of those who are leading the fight against communism, the President pounced on him and said McCarran was "not my kind of Democrat."

If Senator McCarran deigns to take note of this cheap distributive, we can fancy his answering that he is proud that he is not Truman's kind of Democrat. And there are thousands of others who were born and reared Democrats who are proud that they are not Truman's kind. It is not they who have changed it; it is the Democratic party that has changed. They have not moved away from the party; the party has moved away from them under Truman's leadership.

He has simply stolen an old and honored name.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer is busy these days, when not making political speeches, in setting up an Office of Distribution in his department.

It will — or should be — good for business, because distribution ranks with production as a foundation of the American economy. Further more, in the next few years distribution will have to support a much larger share of the stresses than production.

Production facilities are at an all-time high. They have been expanded phenomenally under pressures of high consumer demand, defense work and government aid in the forms of loans and grants of rapid tax amortization.

In short, we have one of the finest aggregates of plants the world has ever known. When defense spending begins to taper off, part of this aggregate can be converted from defense production to civilian production.

If it isn't, there will be a decline in employment and a drop in demand for raw materials.

But if it is, it will fall to distribution to get the increased civilian production from mills and factories into the hands of consumers. In other words, the forces of distribution will have to grow stronger or production will become weaker.

Figures for the first half of this year show that total production of goods and services is at an annual rate of $43.2 billion. Of this, the government took $1.5 billion. It follows that distribution is moving $26.7 billion worth of goods from plants and factories from point of production into homes and plants for consumption. Distribution not only does the physical job of moving that quantity, it is also selling it.

If government purchases are eventually reduced one-third — although that won't happen soon — distribution will have to market an additional $26 billion worth of goods and services a year of the nation will face a depression.

Of course, an office in a government department cannot stimulate the arteries of distribution enough for such a task. It will require, in addition, dynamic efforts by marketing men, merchandisers, advertising men and both family and industrial consumers to accomplish it. But the government can help.

EXACTLY WHAT IS "DISTRIBUTION"?
One of the first tasks of Secretary Sawyer's new office should be to define distribution; the second should be to make that definition well known.

Probably no economic term is more misunderstood than "distribution."

Many people confuse it with physical distribution. When experts say, as they often do, that costs of distribution are too high, many think they're saying that railroad and trucking charges are excessive.

But physical distribution is only a part of "distribution."

The definitions committee of the American Marketing Association has decided that "distribution" means "marketing" and defines the latter as:

"The performance of business activities that direct the flow of goods and services from producer to consumer or user."

What the definition gains in brevity is lost in exposition. Most marketing men would add that distribution includes packaging, shipping to wholesalers or other distributors, warehousing, shipping to stores or industrial distributors, handling, wrapping, advertising and getting the product into the hands, home or plant of the eventual user. These services, involve rent, insurance, management, taxes, light, heat, protection, losses from theft, deterioration and other causes, inspection, cost of samples, outlays on guarantees and a host of other charges.

The fact that producers often get half, or less than half of the users' dollar is sometimes the take-off point for statements that "distribution costs are too high." When one considers all that is involved in distribution, the wonder is that they are not higher.

FEWER WORK-WEEKS TO BUY A HOUSE
Despite the fact that building costs have risen, it is now easier for an employed man to buy a home, the National Association of Home Builders calculates. In 1939, the average general manufacturing worker had to work 296 weeks to earn the equivalent of the cost of a house, the association says, but today it takes only 151 weeks because wages have risen faster than building costs.

Hal Boyle's Column

By SAUL PETT
For Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP)—Dear Hal: I hope you have a nice vacation. Really I do.

What I mean is, there's no need to feel bad leaving me to do your column while you fish in Spain or take the sun in Capri. No need at all.

Oh, I've had a little trouble getting off the ground, but don't worry. Looking over the files, I noticed that in just the last few months you've written about balding women; biding men; fur-bearing cows; losing weight; stealing the Queen Mary; office collections, how to spoil a wife, in defense of the common cold, how to make a million dollars, about politics, life, death, war, peace, love and hate.

That, of course, leaves me plenty of room. You've scarcely touched advanced calculus, the dialectic overtones of nihilism or the best way to install a remote-control wiring system.

Looking for ideas, I've roamed through the whole office, but, it seems, you beat me to it. Every brain around here has been picked clean. The folks here now act like people in a small town after a carnival has passed through. They just ain't talking to any more strangers.

For the last 36 hours, I've followed my kids around with pencil and paper but they haven't said anything particularly funny or poignant. True, Kathy, the 6-year-old, keeps yelling she wants a loose tooth, but how much can you do with that? Besides, whatever clever things the kids have done in the past, you've already written about. Remind me to keep you away from my children.

My wife hasn't been much help, either. It must be at least two weeks since she picked on me. Ordinarily, I would count myself lucky, but now this leaves me with no ammunition to renew the battle of the sexes.

Talking to a man up at the zoo, I thought I had up an idea. But even that subject is tied up. Someone else is doing "How To Live With A Skunk."

And where have all the press agents gone? The best they have come up with so far is a tip on a dog trainer who is taking public speaking courses at New York University. I called the guy and asked him why and he said to get more authority in his voice. That about covered that.

I talked to another fellow who said he had just come across the country from California by motorcycle and had some fresh ideas on the international situation. Fine I said and took out my pencil. But then he suggested I submit my questions in writing and he would answer them in writing.

Not much point, I said, and, besides, wouldn't we look silly passing notes back and forth like a couple of spies? He shrugged and said, well, it was just a suggestion.

Now about your trip I said, and we said, just a moment. You understand, he said, I'll have to charge you for the interview. Period. Thirty. End Story.

thing will turn up. Meanwhile I hope you have a grand time. Really I do.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS
WASHINGTON—Mrs. Maria Harzendorf, an inquiring young German journalist, has come to the United States to "see how Mr. and Mrs. America and their children live" and to report on her findings for her many women readers back home.

Women's editor of the Neue Wuertembergische Zeitung, which her husband began publishing at Goepfingen, Germany, after the war, Mrs. Harzendorf is here for a year's study under the sponsorship of the Mutual Security Agency's technical assistance program.

She wants to live and work in the homes of middle-class American families and has already decided to spend some time in Cleveland, O., and Seattle and Bellingham, Wash. She thinks she'd like to go to Texas, too. "I also want to live in a war camp, because sooner or later Germany will have a new army and will have a branch for females," she told me. "I think the American way to train and to teach female Army personnel will give us some ideas."

An attractive, blue-eyed blonde and the mother of two young children, Agatha and Michael, Mrs. Harzendorf wanted to be a doctor. She attended the Universities of Freiburg and Munich, where she studied medicine and learned Latin, Greek, French and English. "I wanted to be a missionary doctor and go to Alaska," she said. "I thought it would be a lonely place and I could do really good things, rather than in a sophisticated town."

She was an interne in the Freiburg hospital when she met her husband. The birth of Agatha interrupted her studies, and after Michael came she decided to give up her dream of becoming doctor. She went to work for the newspaper. Before coming to the U.S., she spent 10 weeks in Turkey studying the women's emancipation movement, writing for her paper and others as well as for the German Press Agency.

In Goepfingen Mrs. Harzendorf writes to get women interested in political, economic and civic affairs. She initiates a woman's club along non-partisan lines. "It's difficult to get them interested, especially the generation between 40 and 60 years of age," she said. "These women were in Hitler organizations and though they themselves did only good things they were punished for it after the war. Now they're like burned children."

However, a large number of German women are now working for new laws to better their family life and to help out their children. Mrs. Harzendorf says she encourages them to seek interesting new jobs. "Sometimes I try to tell them how to find a husband," she added.

Campaign For Blind-Aid Funds Is Now Entering Final Stretch

The Greenville Lions Club annual drive, to raise funds for support of the Pitt County Association for the Blind, moves into the home stretch this week.

Monday night it was reported by drive chairman Ben Rouse that between $600-$700 has been collected by the soliciting Lions thus far.

Money collected during the drive each year is used for work with the blind in Pitt County.

Not only does the money go to pay for a case worker to work with the blind persons in the county, but is used as a preventive means of cutting down the number of blind cases in the county.

Known as the White Can Drive, since members on their soliciting program usually carry a long white, red-striped cane swung over their arm, a symbol of the people who they are attempting to aid in the fund gathering drive, is carried on a state-wide basis.

Any sum, large or small, entitles the donor to membership in the Pitt County Association for the Blind.

375 Eye Examinations

In Pitt County last year, 375 persons were given eye examinations, paid for by the local Association.

During the year a total of 62 persons were removed from the classification of blindness, while 278 others were assisted with securing glasses.

Also during the year, 30 eye operations were performed on needy persons and three persons assisted in paying for artificial eyes.

Many other cases were investigated by the association and found able to pay for the necessary treatment.

The Pitt Association for the Blind is for those who are blind and can not help themselves. It is the purpose of the organization to assist the needy and aid them in being able to carry on a useful occupation and help support themselves.

270 Blind in County

In Pitt County today there are 275 blind persons who need the attention of the Pitt County Association for the Blind and the funds which are being raised now.

Each of these persons must be visited in their homes and assisted in personal and family adjustment by the case worker.

One-third of the salary of the case worker is paid by the Pitt Association for the Blind, with the state association paying the balance.

The case worker's job is to help the newly blinded persons to adjust themselves, secure some self-confidence and to aid them in learning some useful trade or craft which will make them less dependent and more self supporting.

Special Training

Children who become blind are assisted in making plans to enter the State School for the Blind.

There they will be given special training which will turn them into useful citizens once more.

For those who have neither the funds for food or clothing the local Association provides food, clothing, medical care and transportation when needed.

Mothers with blind babies are aided in planning to attend special conferences for mothers of preschool blind children.

Through the medium of the Pitt County Association for the Blind and its caseworker, the blind and handicapped in the county are given a means to become useful and productive once more in spite of their blindness.

Training Plane In Crash Landing

A single engine training plane crashed upon attempting to land at the Pitt-Greenville airport yesterday afternoon, but the pilot escaped without injury.

The crash yesterday was the first accident for the Air Force flyers from Stalling Air Force Base in nearly two months, it was reported.

According to witnesses the student pilot on his solo flight approached for a landing touched his wheels to the landing strip, and as he attempted to gain speed once more, went into a skid.

The plane left the run-way, and nosed over in a near-by field adjoining the air strip.

Damage to the plane was to the nose and engine and the right wing. It did not catch fire.

The trainees using the local airport are from the Stalling Air Force Base at Kinston and are undergoing basic flight training.

One Arrest Was Turned Into Two

BOSTON (UP)—Patrolman John Campbell was having a tough time Tuesday hauling a drunk to the local station house when a passerby came to his assistance.

A short time later Campbell arrived at the police station with both men under arrest. The inebriate was charged with drunkenness and the passerby with suspicion of larceny. In helping the officer, the passerby also helped himself to the drunk's wallet.

Plans 112-Pound Wedding Cake

LADYSMITH, B. C. (UP)—Dorothy Duncan is going to have her cake and eat it too.

Dorothy, a bride-to-be, said she wanted a multi-decked cake "like one I remember from childhood dreams."

Today Michael Farrano, a graduate of Chicago's Eibel Institute of Technology, was busy "engineering" his masterpiece—a 112-pound cake.

Arcaro Want Try For Race Record

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP) — Records mean nothing to Eddie Arcaro so the mournful-looking jockey with the smiling bank account today planned a European vacation which virtually wipes out the opportunity of breaking the immortal Earl Sande's most famous mark.

"Records were made to be broken," little Eddie insisted as he prepared for two more stakes engagements before sailing next Wednesday aboard the Queen Mary for a tour of England, France and Italy.

"They are nice to have, of course," he added. "But actually they don't mean anything. Eventually somebody comes along and breaks them anyhow."

Arcaro already has a pile of records as big as his bankroll, which is a sizeable bundle. This year alone he will earn an estimated $250,000 through fantastic performances in the saddle which have put Sande's most revered record in peril.

The "handy guy" wrote that one into the books back in 1923 with an assist from the great Zev as he booted home winners of 39 stakes races. Zev won 10 of those for Sande.

Arcaro appeared a shoo-in to break that fabulous standard this year as he won 37 stakes events. Now, needing only two for a tie and three to eclipse Sande's record, Arcaro is preparing to ignore the mark by taking a two-month vacation.

He may match it, at that. For he'll go postcard in two stakes before he and Mrs. Arcaro sail next Wednesday. Eddie is listed to be aboard Greek Ship in the International at Laurel on Saturday. He also will ride in the New Rochelle Handicap at Jamaica on Monday. But then, record tied or not, he'll stow his silks until reporting at Santa Anita after Christmas.

Even then he still could do it, for he'll put his boots in the irons in the California breeders event Dec. 27 and the Santa Ynez on Dec. 31. But the odds are against it.

Which leaves Arcaro completely unperturbed. Long ago he acquired an external veneer which is rarely disturbed.

"Ride a winner and when you come back they lean over the rail and yell 'Attaboy, Eddie, you're my boy.' The next race if you lose a photo the same guy will growl at you 'Yah, Arcaro, yer a bum,'" Eddie explains. "Why get upset?"

He has that same calm philosophy about records.

Arcaro already has racing's biggest one of them all—five victories in the Kentucky Derby, Sande and the ancient Isaac Murphy once held that with three wins each in the Rose Run. Arcaro moved off in a class by himself with Lawrin in 1938, Whirlaway in 1941, Hoop Jr. in 1945, Citation in 1948 and Hill Gail this year.

The Derby was just one of a phenomenal string this year which includes the $112,750 Santa Anita Maternity; $82,400 Belmont; $105,000 Arlington Classic; $103,000 American Derby; $79,000 Washington Park Futurity, and a Derby Week sweep of the Rose Run, Derby Trial, Kentucky Oaks and Debutante Stakes.

At 10 per cent of the purse—and probably more—the little guy should worry about a few lines in the record book!

Farmville, Ayden Meet In Crucial Game

Contest Friday Night May Decide Champion

Robersonville Meets Tarboro; South Edgecombe Faces Nashville; Vanceboro Has Open Date In Conference Activity

By HERMAN HICKMAN
Reflector Sports Editor

The Farmville Red Devils will travel to Ayden Friday night to engage the Tornadoes in a football game which may decide who is to be Coastal Conference champions for 1952.

Every year since 1949 when the Coastal Conference was organized, Ayden has won the championship practically without a struggle.

This year Coaches Charlie Tucker and Sam Steel have welded together a sophomore and junior student Farmville team that has a potent offensive and a tried and proven defense.

Co-Captain Charlie Fitzgerald, senior quarterback, directs the young Red Devil juggernaut from a variation of the split-T formation. Bulldozing Fullback Sigbe Dilda and fleet halfbacks Teddy Allen and Jess Joyner have found the suitable method for a wide open brand of playing that has resulted in a number of touchdowns against opponents this season.

A hard charging Farmville line is paced by Tackle Dick Shackelford and Carroll Wooten, guard. Round-shouldered starting line are Ends Tommy Norville and Tull Edwards, Dick Allen, guard. Center Jack Allen, and Jess Spencer, tackle.

The Tornadoes, while not possessing the powerhouse of other years, nevertheless have a good strong team built around All-Conference choices Mac Whitehurst, end, Darrell Worthington, quarterback, and Randall Harrington, tackle.

In early season games the Tornadoes have given no indication of weakening and while the offense may not be on a par of some previous teams, it is still plenty good and the defensive team is rated by many observers as even better than last year.

Worthington and Whitehurst form an aerial combination that will keep any team on its toes, and Wesley Cannon, diminutive scabbard, and hard-driving Harry Ross lend speed and deception to the Tornado attack. Billy Holland and B. P. McLawhorn have plenty of power at the full-back post.

Husky Gordon Hart, Bobby Barfield, big 215 lb. guard, Center Todd Kittrell, Billy E. McLawhorn and newcomer Sidney Britt team with Whitehurst and Harrington in the Ayden forward wall.

Both Ayden and Farmville boast victories over South Edgecombe and Robersonville and the winner of Friday night's contest can take the Coastal Conference crown with a win over Vanceboro.

Vanceboro
Vanceboro potentially had a better than average team before the season started, but their reserve strength developed slow and the Red Raiders have suffered several early season setbacks. Last week the Raiders came into their own and trampled South Edgecombe 47-0.

Co-Captain Jack Taylor paced the Vanceboro attack by romping to three touchdowns, including a 62 yard scoring dash. Tailback Billy Butler and Earl Wright, wingback, contributed two touchdowns apiece to the onslaught.

Robersonville

The Robersonville Rams returned to the practice field this week somewhat disheartened over last week's 13-0 loss to Farmville, but quickly began to concentrate on the prospects of playing host to Tarboro this week in a night game at Robersonville.

The Farmville game uncovered a new running threat for the Rams in Russell Johnson who will combine in the backfield with Sonny James, Dan Clark and Andy Warren against Tarboro.

The Rams will rely offensively mainly on the running of James, Johnson and Clark and the passing arm of Clark to receivers Warren and Maurice Everette.

In the Ram forward wall will be Everett and Charles Peel at ends, Bobby Clark and Pete Johnson guards, Curtis Roberson and Jerry Beach, tackles, and Julius Budacz at the pivot.

South Edgecombe

South Edgecombe will still be trying for their first victory when they take on Nashville at the South Edgecombe home field Friday night.

Co-Captain Luther Lewis will direct the Pinetoppers' offensive attack from his quarterback position, teaming with Bobby Edmondson, Joe Aycock, Bruce Lewis and Donald and Joe Craft.

Co-Captain Milton Fuller heads the defense which will attempt to stem the tide of touchdowns that opponents have piled up all year. George York, senior end, has played well for the Pinetoppers this season as has Milton Tolson, Jerry Webb, John Felton and an aggregation of freshmen and sophomores who make up the bulk of the team.

DICK SHACKLEFORD, Charlie Fitzgerald, and Sigbe Dilda have been leaders in Farmville victories this year and they will be depended on heavily when Farmville invades Ayden Friday night.

White Terrors Win 25-0 In Fry League

Bobby Edwards raced to three touchdowns on runs of 30, 35 and 40 yards to lead the White Terrors to a 25-0 victory over the Blue Imps in a Little League contest at Elm Street Park yesterday afternoon.

Lynn Jorgensen scored the other White touchdown by intercepting a pass and scoring 30 yards to cross the goal line. Fullback Howard Garner added an extra point with a line plunge.

The White Terrors controlled both the offensive and defensive action, limiting the Blue Imps to only one first down during the game.

Outstanding on offense for the Terrors were Bobby Edwards, Howard Garner, Charles Rumley and Peanut Nunn. The defensive standouts were Lynn Jorgensen, Rumley, Jeff Fountain, Mokee Lassiter and Aubry Harrison.

The Blue team sparked by Barney Barrett and Kelly Burnhill couldn't seem to get a sustained drive going as they suffered their worst defeat of the year.

Sparkplug of the defensive Blue line was Burke Stancill, who proved a thorn in the White side all afternoon by dumping Terror ball carriers who were almost in the clear and preventing an even more lopsided score. Erskine Duff and Coleman Ruffin also performed well on defense for the Blues.

Veck Still In Building Stage

ST. LOUIS (UP)—Bill Veck, ever-hopeful of building his ragtag St. Louis Browns into a big league contender, acquired one of the minor league's outstanding shortstops today in a $150,000 deal.

Veck obtained 24-year-old Gordon (Bill) Hunter from the Brooklyn Dodgers' St. Paul affiliate in the American Association for outfielder Ray Coleman, pitcher Bob Mahoney and infielder Stan Rojek plus an estimated $100,000. Coleman is valued at $30,000 and Mahoney and Rojek at $10,000 each.

Hunter, transferred to the St. Paul roster after the season, won the most valuable player award in the Texas League while the Ft. Worth this year. He led the league in fielding and stolen bases and batted .290.

Veck refused to disclose the exact amount of the cash involved but said it was more "than I spent for any other player since taking over the Browns."

Pirates Try New Plays In Drills For Western Tilt

The East Carolina College Pirates had a light football workout yesterday but were warned of rough work which is to come up today and tomorrow. The Bucs will meet the Western Carolina Teachers College Catamounts Saturday night in the College Stadium.

Yesterday, the Pirates devoted most of their time to a dummy scrimmage which was designed to iron out technical errors in last week's game with Elon. A couple of new plays were checked and the entire Pirate offense got a short workout.

The Bucs are expected to try the changes installed yesterday in their rough work this afternoon. Not much rough work is planned, however, because of injuries to key members of the team.

The club's top defensive guards, Bobby Thomas and David Lee, continued to miss practice because of injuries which kept them out of last week's contest. Thomas has an injured foot while Lee has a bad ankle.

The Pirates came through the contest Friday night without any further serious injuries.

In practice yesterday, three different backfields worked on timing. Sandy Slier directed the first team backfield composed of Paul Gay, Claude King and Ilard Yarborough, while Dick Cherry and Boyd Webb worked with the other two units. Efforts are being made to give all the backs a chance to get in plenty of work this week because Coach Jack Boone has already indicated that frequent substitutions will be made against the Catamounts.

The Catamounts are normally one of the top teams in the North State Conference but they've found the going rough thus far this year. They've stepped out against loop foes twice thus far and have been beaten both times. Catawba defeated the Cats 21-0 last Saturday as Harold Carter and Bill Kluttz starred for the Indians.

4 Phantoms Are Injured In Drills

By WAYNE BISHOP
Four members of the Greenville High School football team received minor injuries yesterday as the Phantoms went through their roughest workout of the season.

The Phantoms have an open date coming up Friday but Coach Bill Kittrell had the entire squad going through the session in an effort to shake after-effects of last week's contest with Mount Airy and Monday's free afternoon.

The injured list yesterday was headed by halfback James Speight who received a head injury. Speight was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital where he was given a thorough examination by doctors who termed his wound "not serious."

The remainder of the casualty list included tackle Dixie Hobgood, who sprained an ankle; Edgar Moore, who bruised a leg; and Bob Howell, who bruised his hand. Neither of the three was injured seriously and are expected to take part in drills throughout the remainder of the week.

The only squad member who missed the rough work yesterday was co-captain and center Jimmy Cheatham. Cheatham missed the practice because of illness.

Following the workout, Kittrell termed the team "sluggish" and stated that he felt Monday's holiday "did more harm than good."

The Phantoms' next game will be October 24 when they travel to New Bern.

Bucky Harris To Get New Contract

WASHINGTON (UP)—Bucky Harris, whose shrewd trades enabled the Washington Senators to rise from seventh to fifth place in the American League this year, was rewarded today with a new two-year contract estimated to call for $40,000 a season.

The 55-year-old Harris immediately conceded that more trades were in the wind in an effort to lift the Senators into the first division next season.

"The turning point of the year for us was when we got Jackie Jensen from the Yankees and Jim Busby from the White Sox," Harris said. "So we contemplate some changes for 1953. I can't mention any names or positions because I don't know whether these trades will materialize."

NCAA Report On Bowl Games Held

CHICAGO (UP)—The National Collegiate Athletic Association's Executive Committee today held annual recommendations of a report on football bowl games and other post-season athletic events.

The committee received the report Tuesday, but said it would not reveal its recommendations until they are presented to the 1953 NCAA convention next Jan 8-10 at Washington.

Wilbur C. Johns, athletic director of the University of California at Los Angeles and chairman of the Committee on Post-Season Games, said 181 member institutions contributed their opinions on the problem.

Munger Of Penn Is Coach Of The Week

NEW YORK (UP)—He's a true country squire who rides to the hounds in pink coat and derby.

But in the off-season he roots for the school's basketball and track teams with the whooping fervor of a sophomore.

He was such a precocious kid that he got kicked out of one school for pouring water down a deaf teacher's ear trumpet.

But he's such a serious student of football that he even plans his pass interceptions.

That's George Munger of Penn, the United Press Coach of the Week.

His was the team which finally ended Princeton's victory streak of 24 games. Other coaches scored upsets last Saturday—Red Dawson of Pitt beat Notre Dame, Woody Hayes of Ohio State beat Wisconsin, Gaynell Tinsley of Louisiana State beat Kentucky—but this was the big one, for Princeton nursed that unbeaten string in its home stadium with a powerful force.

Like other Ivy League schools, Penn was shackled this year with a new rule forbidding spring training. Yet Munger, coach at Penn since 1938, decided his was the team to stop the Princeton three-year streak.

He did it, and here's how: He knew Princeton had the best offense, so he decided to win the game on defense. He knew he could score on passing, so the trick was to stop Princeton's passing.

Six freshman football players at West Virginia University have Lee for a middle name and half of these were christened Robert Lee

Army Team Hints Of Power Return

WEST POINT, N. Y. (UP)—Is Army back? Can the cribbing scandal be considered history?

The answer may come Saturday. The Cadets play Pitt, recent conqueror of Notre Dame, at a time when their hopes are buoyed by a surprisingly complete 37-7 victory over Dartmouth. Should Army win this next one, you can consider it at least half-way back up the road from the tragedy of 1951.

When Red Blaik's entire squad was wiped off the map by the cribbing scandal, he glumly estimated it might take 10 years to rebuild. It was not simply a matter of replacing the lost players, man for man.

It was the reluctance of the prospective replacements. In the first place, a kid knows the discipline always is tougher at West Point than any civilian college.

Add to that a lo-be-expect crack-down because of the scandal and the chances of playing on losing teams—and you got "no, thanks" from many a likely halfback.

But Blaik plugged along as best he could, with the wiles which made him great, and success may be near. Army beat South Carolina, 28-7, and Dartmouth. It lost to Southern California, 22-0. But more important than scores or winning was the power shown in the Dartmouth game.

GORDON HART, husky Ayden tackle, has been a standout in line play for the Tornadoes all season and is expected to give the Farmville ball carriers a rough evening when the Red Devils invade Ayden Friday night to try to wrest the crown from the reigning Tornadoes.

Will Lecture Reservists Here Tonight

First Lt. Henry J. McNichols, right, points to areas on a map of Korea where he fought with the First Cavalry Division as he discusses his combat experience with Capt. Lloyd W. Howell. The two Korea returnees are members of a Fort Benning instruction team scheduled to visit Greenville tonight for a lecture on Infantry tactics and techniques to organized Reserve Corps, National Guard and ROTC units. Time of the meeting is eight o'clock, at 106 Picklen Street.

A two-man team of Korea Veterans will visit Greenville tonight, to present a special program for members of the local Organized Reserve units and National Guard outfits in this section.

The demonstration team is one of many two-man teams of battle wise infantrymen who will visit Military Districts throughout the Southeastern United States to talk to reservists, National Guardsmen and ROTC members on the principles of guerrilla warfare.

Also to be discussed will be changes in small unit tactics resulting from the war in Korea and the type of fortified positions prepared and used by the infantry units in the Korean war.

The service teams are from the Infantry training center at Fort Benning Ga.

Use of mobile instructional teams to keep the Army's civilian components abreast of latest developments in Infantry weapons and tactics is not new, but the scope of instruction has increased since the outbreak of war in Korea.

The demonstration will be held at the office of the Unit Instructor, at 106 Picklen Street, Greenville.

All members of the Organized Reserve, National Guard and ROTC units in this region are being urged to attend.

For members of the 3046 Induction Center and 2015 Reception Center, the instruction team meeting will take place of the regular weekly drill night and will be counted as a pay drill, the ORC office announced this morning.

The teams draw heavily upon their personal experiences to provide a clearer picture of the North and South Korean situations.

They also discuss the impact of the Korean war on the home front.

RESOLUTION OF RESPECT
Whereas, Sojourner Annie J. Scott was on June 26, 1952, translated from the Terrestrial Shrine below to that Celestial Shrine above, now, therefore, be it resolved by the members of Greenville White Shrine No. 7:

First, That the death of Sojourner Scott removes from us one of our devoted members. In her life she exhibited the spirit of the Shrine. She did what she could and her passing leaves a vacancy in our midst which cannot be filled.

Second, That to the family of our deceased Sojourner we extend our deepest sympathy. Those of us who knew her know something of the measure of their loss and the intensity of their grief. In our mutual grief, however, may we remind them that we mourn not as those without hope. Through faith in our Heavenly Father we realize that our loss is for the eternal gain of our loved one.

Third, That a copy of these resolutions be sent the family, a copy spread on the minutes of the Shrine, and a copy be sent to the Greenville Reflector for publication.

The "Walking" Man

Eddie Stanky has been with five National League clubs—but not with his home town team, Philadelphia. Eddie holds the N. L. record for walks—148 in 1945. But much as Eddie likes to "walk", Eddie loves driving a car. He takes mighty good care of his car, too, and when it comes to winter-time protection, Eddie chooses America's most famous anti-freeze, "Prestone" anti-freeze. "You don't have to worry with it," says Eddie. "Just put it in and you're all set for the cold weather—and even the warm spells in between." No other anti-freeze gives your car the same complete protection. No rust, no freeze, no foam, no failure. And one shot of "Prestone" brand anti-freeze lasts all winter! Get it today!

enough. You better cancel those retirement papers or ask for temporary reinstatement or apply for a private license."

Devereaux's eyelids were drooping. Solowey looked over to him. "Hurt?" he asked compassionately. "Arm's throbbing like crazy?" The painkiller was wearing off.

"Castle wanted to kill you," Solowey said quietly. "That means something."

Devereaux said nothing, and Solowey continued. "That pile of ash. Castle built a bonfire of papers before getting shot."

"Or the killer did," Devereaux said. "There might be a clue in that ash. If we could get it, and get it to a laboratory."

"Bullard won't let go, so forget it. We'll work with what we've got."

A mile later, Devereaux said, "It's finally become a murder case."

"It has," Solowey agreed solemnly, tooting the horn to pass a car ahead. "And you didn't have to go to Jersey to make it that."

It was slow filtering into Devereaux's consciousness. He realized it with a start. "Who?"

"Longo. Someone shot him on Front Street this afternoon."

"In broad daylight?" Devereaux asked incredulously.

"Best place to do it. Fish markets, boat whistles, trucks back-firing. A small-caliber bullet gets lost in the general uproar. Longo sat on a packing case near the wharf with a bullet hole in the side of the head near the ear. He was sitting for nearly an hour before anybody caught on that he was dead."

"He shook your man?"

"That was easy, once Longo knew he was being shadowed. There are office buildings downtown with three-way exits, and each exit leading to different streets."

Devereaux sighed wearily. "It's a day of surprises."

Solowey sounded a warning toot on the auto horn. "It is," he agreed. "It is," he repeated almost to himself.

"Drive to the Old New York Mission first, Solowey. You can drop me at Doc Freedley's after that."

"See Doc Freedley first," Dolowey said, and Devereaux almost divined the rest by Solowey's tone.

"Buloff's gone, bag and baggage. Disappeared. And that housekeeper of his, Anna Jorgenson, swore she didn't know his whereabouts."

Solowey concluded wryly. "Sure, see Doc Freedley first, Solowey."

Devereaux closed his eyes and began to doze off. There were electric needles racing from his hand to his shoulder, and a paste was forming on his forehead, as his temperature rose. Sleep he whispered to himself feverishly, was a blessed painkiller.

The Attic Circus sign was in wavering view when Devereaux crossed the street and descended a few cellar steps. His signal against the door went unanswered, and he was turning to leave when he saw the Venetian blind move.

The door opened, admitting Devereaux.

"You took your time," Pearl said sullenly.

"Sorry," Devereaux indicated his limp arm. "I've been on the inactive list for the last forty-eight hours."

They faced each other in the center of the room for a silent moment, and Devereaux wondered about her strained look, the dead, unnatural whiteness of her skin that looked macabre under the fluorescent lights. She was without her customary rouge. Also without her customary aplomb. She looked tucked out, depressed.

"Tell me about it," Devereaux said gently.

"Latimer tumbled to your idea. He tore up my concession contract the day after I sneaked that picture for you."

Devereaux's eyes glistened sympathetically. "I'll rustle up a new account for you."

"You can't. I've been black-balled on this side of town. Latimer saw to that." She held up four fingers. "I've had this many cancellations since yesterday."

Devereaux looked into the developing room. The modest equipment was a scattering of junk. A wrecker had come and gone. Devereaux picked a crushed camera off the floor and set it down on a long wooden table. "Latimer?" he asked tonelessly, feeling an anger even more than his wont.

She shook her head. "He wouldn't be fool enough. It was a guy I'd never seen around before." She cupped her cheeks with her hands.

"My teeth ache," she said miserably. "I've been eating aspirins, but my teeth don't stop aching."

"He cuffed you?"

"His hands were like wooden paddles." Her fingers pressed into her cheeks. "Three days, and they keep on aching." Her voice cried, "No one ever hit me before, not ever. Not even my father."

"This fellow," Devereaux said softly, "what did he look like?"

She wiped her eyes on the handkerchief he held out to her. "You think he's only a kid, until you look close. Then you know he isn't a kid, because it takes more time than a kid's life for a face to get that way." Devereaux felt her shudder. "His eyes aren't in his head. They're outside."

"Short, big, dark, what?" Devereaux prompted.

"You don't see that. You're just looking at his eyes."

"How much to replace that equipment?"

DETROIT (UP)—The traffic judge didn't care for the explanation William E. Williams gave of how he keeps track of the speed he is driving. The court fined Williams $25 and ordered him off the road for six months after the driver explained that his "speedometer" was his cupped left hand held out the car window to "check the wind pressure."

Trend Is Toward Larger Plots Of Land For School

SAVANNAH, (AP)—The present trend in building schools is to lose the building in a large tract of land, according to Savannah delegates to the southeastern conference of the American Institute of Architects at Atlanta.

The group said the average school built last year was located on 20 acres—three or four times the size of elementary and high school tracts of the past.

The architects recommend structures spread over a comfortable area, connected by side corridors, with related activities housed together.

One-story schools are safest, architects said, and 85 per cent of school buildings constructed last year were without basements.

The type of storms known as hurricanes in the Atlantic and typhoons in the Pacific are known as cyclones which they appear in the Indian Ocean.

It's Obvious Now, That Korean War Is All Ours

By PHIL NEWSOM
United Press Foreign News Editor
We may as well face it. The Korean war is our baby.

Which is not to argue the moral and political issues, nor events leading up to the war, nor even whether we should have gotten into it in the first place.

But, rather, the situation that faces us now.
Having run into an apparently hopeless stalemate at Panmunjom, U.N. truce negotiators now are willing that the issue come before the U.N. Assembly. First step is expected to be a move for blanket endorsement of U. S. direction of the war. The second will be to get more help in fighting the war.

Morally, those nations outside the Communist orbit are agreed that any peace in Korea must be a peace with honor.

But after that comes the rub. Sixteen United Nations now have troops in Korea. Of these the United States, with approximately 250,000 men, has by far the greatest number.

Britain and the Commonwealth nations, with a full division among them, plus air and naval strength, are next. After them, more or less in order, come France, Turkey, Greece, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg, Colombia, Ethiopia, Thailand and the Philippines.

British Commonwealth nations are Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa.
It is noteworthy that the nations most able to contribute already are represented.

Britain, with some 60,000 men at Suez and 45,000 more fighting a war in Malaya, plus garrisons at Hong Kong and elsewhere, cannot be expected to add much more. Nor can France, which has more than 100,000 men in Indo-China where for years she has been losing the cream of her officer crop and spending $1,000,000,000 a year. The rest of the world either doesn't offer much help or has good reasons not to.

Norway hasn't enough men under arms even to defend her own northern border. Sweden is reluctant, in fact refuses, to abandon her traditionally neutral role. Besides, both Sweden and Denmark, as well as Norway, must maintain strength at home in the face of an increasingly bombastic Russia.

West Germany and Italy have vast manpower resources, but neither is a member of the U.N. Egypt might be tapped but is in the midst of a revolution. Neither Israel nor other Arab nations can be counted on because they have a state of war of their own.

India says a "plague on both your houses."

Use of Chiang Kai-shek's Formosa troops has been declared impractical.

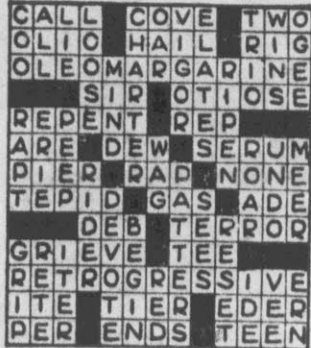

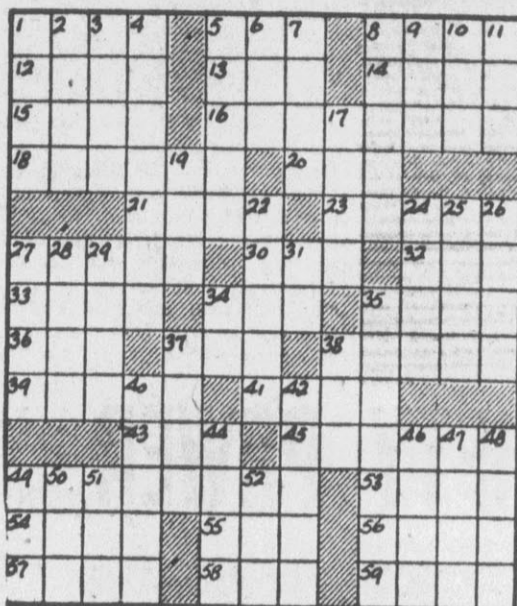

Most hope inside the U.N. seems to look toward South and Central America, particularly toward Mexico and Brazil.
But even the brightest hopes now, from all sources, do not believe more than 20,000 additional men can be obtained outside the U. S. That doesn't stack up as very much when compared to a million or so Chinese.

TENNIS ON WATER
DETROIT (UP)—Water reservoirs with tennis courts above them have been approved by the City Council. Acting on a recommendation by the Board of Water Commissioners, the Council approved the novel idea for two new one-acre storage areas.

From General To Sergeant, While Serving 3 Flags

FORT BELVOIR, Va. (U.P.)—After serving tours of duty with the armies of Canada and Kashmir, Russell K. Haight is now pulling a hitch with the U.S. army.

Haight signed up with the Canadian army at 17 when the British Empire went to war against Germany in 1939. He was among the commandos who raided Dieppe in August, 1942.

When the United States joined the conflict and made provision for Americans already fighting to transfer to U.S. units, Haight made the shift.

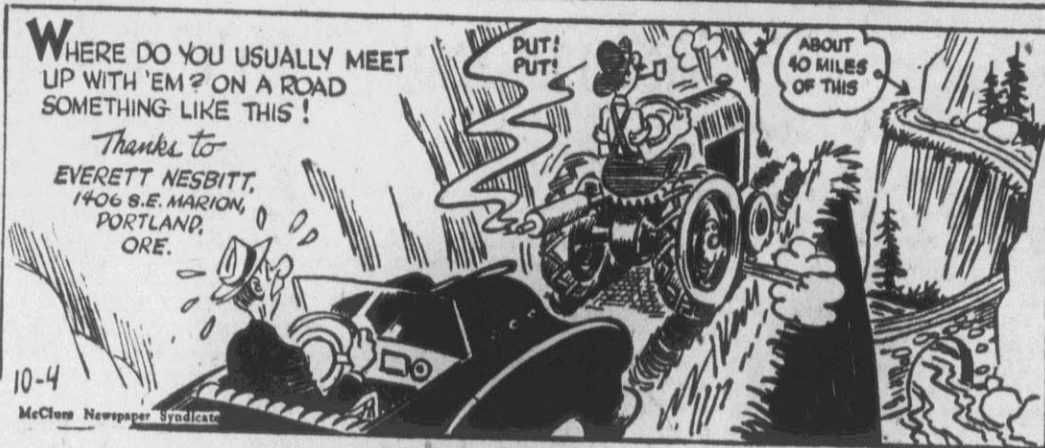

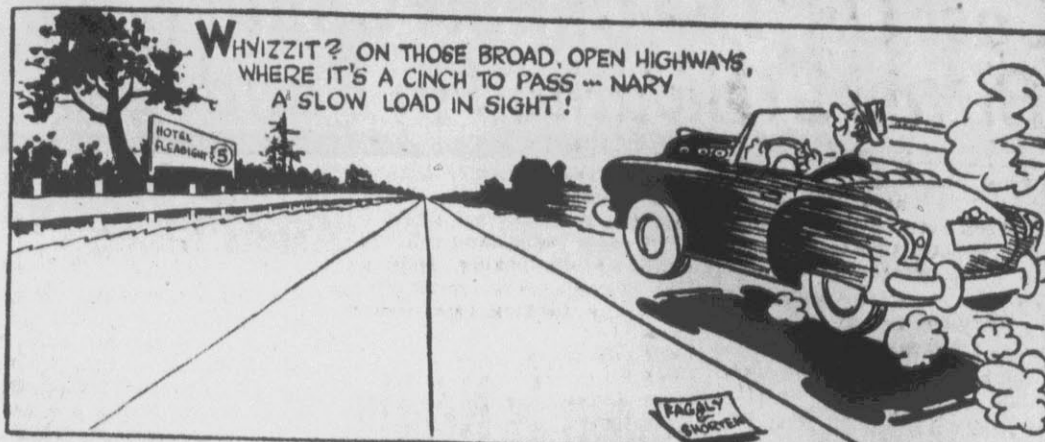

After being discharged in 1945, he got a commission as a captain in the army of Kashmir and was involved in several skirmishes with Indian forces.

Haight commanded 2,000 rugged troops equipped with battered rifles, home-made spears and swords. The only modern weapons they had were those swiped from British soldiers.

Clothed in blue jeans and high yellow boots and wearing a handdebar moustache, Haight led his troops in a successful fall campaign, winning four towns from enemy forces and advancing in rank to brigadier-general.

When the U.S. government hinted he was jeopardizing his citizenship, Haight decided to return home.

Shortly afterwards, he enlisted in the U.S. army and, as a veteran warrior at the age of 30, is now an instructor in the engineers' school at Fort Belvoir.

As to his present rank of sergeant first class, after having been a general, Haight said, "I've always felt the sergeants are the backbone of any army."

Offer 'Tips' On Automobile Care

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (U.P.)—In case you have trouble starting your car during winter months, here are some of the tricks employed in the "far north" where temperatures often drop 30 degrees and more below zero:
Some motorists use five-weight motor oil, instead of the heavier conventional weights. In cold weather this makes it easier to turn over the motor since the oil doesn't get as thick.

Some drivers start their cars at least every four hours and let them warm up thoroughly to prevent them from getting "too stiff" and "too hard to turn over."
Motorists also use "head bolt heaters" — electrical bolts which fit into the head of the engine and attach to electrical outlets — to keep oil and grease in the engine from getting "too stiff," which are put in cars in place of the conventional oil-measuring dip-sticks. Plugged into electrical outlets these also serve to keep the car warmed up.

Most motorists make it a point to keep their gas tanks at least half-filled to help prevent moisture condensation which could lead to freezing of the gas line. The fuller the gas tank is kept, the better.

ROCKFORD, Ill. (UP)—When Franklin Warnke was awakened, he had to be told that during his snooze at the wheel his automobile had grazed a parked car, jumped the curb, run over a bicycle in front of a house, wandered along a sidewalk for a block and crossed a street before it halted.

DIG THIS!

RICHMOND, Va. (UP)—Virginia's mines have enough coal to last for the next 500 years at the present rate of production, according to the Bituminous Coal Institute. It says 600,000,000 tons have been produced since digging started in 1800.

"SOMETHING FOR EVERYBODY"

For What It Cost Us, The Chinks Could Keep It, Groans A Bitter GI Swathed In Bandages

By FRED PAINTON
United Press Staff Correspondent
TRIANGLE HILL, Korea (UP)—The wounded used rifles for crutches as they hobbled down the narrow valley leading from the smoking death struggle on Triangle Hill.

Even their enemy mortars found them, killing the wounded and wounding the medics who rushed to meet them. The whole valley rang with the screams for help.

This was a battle in which the Communists looked down the throats of every GI who climbed the steep, sandy hill to kill them.

Against such odds, many men became heroes and others grew bitter.

At a forward aid station, a pile of armored vests lay outside a bunker door, each with a brilliant yellow and red cross on the back. The colors marked the men who had led the attack.

A touselled blond corporal with his leg in a bloody white bandage was talking to a chaplain.

"One more, Father," he said, "and you'll have our whole platoon here."

Chaplain Arthur Estes of Seaside Calif., smiled at the grim humor and offered the soldier a cigarette. The wounded boy dragged greedily and began to speak.

"The company commander was hit twice," he said in a monotone. "Blood was pouring down his face. He got up and was hit by a grenade. The last time I saw him he was leading the final charge with the blood on his face. For my money, if I hadn't been for him, we wouldn't have got the hill."

A tall, husky soldier with an arm in a sling walked up to the corporal. They looked at each other intently and then said hello in strained voices.

Both started to speak, but the man with the wounded arm spoke first.

"Who's dead?" he asked.

"I know Nick is dead," said the corporal. "He was trying to dig a hole when a grenade rolled down on him. He jumped up to get away, but the thing exploded up from his stomach."

The husky boy walked off toward a medic, his face pale.

"I think I'm going to throw up," he said.

The medic led him off from the confusion of the aid station. The soldier lay down on the ground and retched.

There was one bitter man with his head swathed in bandages.

"Yeah," he said, "we took the hill. For what it cost us, the Chinks could keep it."

Then he turned his face away. "They told us there weren't many Chinks up there. The hell there wasn't."

Pfc. Ronald L. Sackett of Los Gatos, Calif., a medic, told how the wounded spoke reverently of the death of an elderly colonel who was killed leading one of the many charges on the hill.

"Everybody was down," he said. "The colonel got up and waved the rest on. About 20 Chinese grenades landed on him when he got to the top. They didn't even get his body."

Nobody could explain what the colonel was doing on the hill, but his death was confirmed.

Many of the wounded said the Chinese had rolled rocks down on them. One dazed and wounded kid said:

"If there was rocks, it was the first time I ever saw stones explode."

The shell-shocked came in babbling—always of their buddies. One couldn't remember his name or rank. He only knew that, "I carried crazy (apparently the name of his buddy) down the hill." He repeated this over and over.

Another simply sobbed until the chaplain slapped the hysteria from him.

"Come on, boy," the chaplain said. "You're old enough to know what's wrong with you."

The sobs gradually subsided. "I've got a job for you that will be good for both you and me."

The chaplain put the shell-shocked man to work caring for the wounded.

Woman Is Nearly Victim Of Smoke

Robersonville—Mrs. Jesse Ward narrowly escaped death when she was overcome by smoke at her home on Sunday morning.

According to reports, Mrs. Ward got up rather early to turn her dog out. While waiting for the pet to come back, she lit a cigarette, shortly thereafter returning to bed.

About 9:15 a roomer upstairs smelled smoke and began to investigate. He discovered that it was coming from the bedroom occupied by Mrs. Ward. When repeated knocking failed to arouse her he called a neighbor and together they gained admittance to the room with the use of a skeleton key.

The two found Mrs. Ward lying unconscious on the floor near the door of the room, which was filled with smoke. The men managed to drag her out and immediately called for an ambulance to take her to the hospital in Williamston.

Though in a near-fatal condition, she was revived several hours later and has returned to her home in Robersonville.

The overstuffed chair, in which she was sitting, burst into flames when the door to the room was opened, but the men were able to remove it from the house before any more damage was incurred.

Contributes To Peabody College Alumni Magazine

Dr. Elizabeth Utterback of the East Carolina College faculty contributed a short story "First Day of School" to the fall issue of the journal of the College and the Alumni of George Peabody College for Teachers, Nashville, Tennessee.

Dr. Utterback is assistant professor of English at East Carolina and the author of a number of published articles, poems, and short stories. Recent issues of "North Carolina Education" and the "North Carolina English Teacher" have included poems by her.

"First Day of School" centers attention on an Alabama tenant-farm boy who picks cotton while other more fortunate children go to school. His revolt against the ignorance and narrowness of his "Folks" and the drabness of his environment gives the story interest as character study and comment on education.

322 Descendants To Mourn Him

BASINGER, Fla. (AP)—Noel Rabon Raulerson, cattleman and farmer who died recently at the age of 103, had 322 descendants, including the fifth generation.

The widower was survived by 13 of 17 children, 110 grandchildren, 165 great-grandchildren and 34 great-great-grandchildren.

Typhoons are the Asiatic equivalent to the hurricanes of the Atlantic area.

Savings, Loan Assets Rising

CHICAGO (UP)—The United States Savings and Loan League reports that savings and loan associations increased their assets during 1951 by $2,288,000,000 (B).

Ben H. Hazen, league president, said the record-breaking rate of increase was continuing in 1952. By May 1, he said, assets had passed the $20,000,000,000 (B), mark compared with a total of $19,173,000,000 (B) at the end of 1951.

The increase in 1951 represented a new record for a single year.

"The uninterrupted and unprecedented growth of the savings and loan business represents a unique chapter in postwar American finance," Hazen said.

DOUBLE CHECK

RICHMOND, Va. (UP)—The Bureau of Internal Revenue office issued a duplicate check for income tax refund to a man here. The claimant said a cow ate the original check.

When The Boss Starts To Compose, You Know Tin Pan Alley Is Digging Hard

By JACK GAVER
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—When the boss feels called upon to sit down at his long-unused piano and turn out a hit song, you know that things aren't just what they ought to be in Tin Pan Alley.

"For some reason or other there's been a falling off in the quality of songs submitted by professional writers," said music publisher Chester Conn.

"Maybe the emphasis on reviving old songs has been a discouraging factor. The unsettled state of the world doesn't help creative artists either."

"A good, established publishing house can't get along solely on the revivals, no matter how many of them may come out of its library in a season. You can make several thousand dollars on record sales, of course, but that's not the important thing."

"A song publisher makes his money by selling sheet music even now when the million-copy hit is a real rarity, contrary to the situation that prevailed 20 years and more ago. The revival of an old favorite can easily sell a million records nowadays but it doesn't bring much of a demand for printed copies of the song.

"That's why a publisher has to try and come through with two or three new songs every season. That's why I went back to the piano."

Conn said his partners in one of the Alley's better known firms, Jack Bregman and Rocco Vocco, sort of put him on the spot after weeks without finding anything that aroused them.

"They as much as said that it was a fine thing indeed for a fellow who had turned out some big hits in the past just to be sitting around when he might be composing a song that would be just what the firm needed."

Conn, who hit the million-copy jackpot with his very first song, "Why Should I Cry Over You," 30 years ago and turned out dozens of successes after that over a 15-year period, took the hint.

"I didn't have any idea what I was going to write," he said, "but about that time Sammy Gallop, a well-known lyric writer, dropped by with something he whipped up and asked me what I thought of it. I sat down at a piano and before I knew it I had set the music pattern just by chording through the 'mes. I had the firm's arrangement come on the run to put it down on paper before I forgot it.

Stocks And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Stocks drifted lower in dull trading during the morning dealings today.

The leading averages showed small declines at the end of the first hour and were steady around their lows in the second hour.

Most net changes held to fractions. The strong exceptions included two high-priced railroads which appeared on single sales of 10 shares each. Mahoning Coal Railroad rose 1 1/2 to 515 and New York & Harlem 15 to 475. Alabama & Vicksburg rose 2 to 154.

Declines of a point or more appeared in Collins & Aikman, Dow Chemical, Ruberoid, Newmont Mining, Texas Pacific Land Trust, American Cyanamid and Texas Pacific Coal & Oil. Amerasia, a late opener, fell nearly 3 points.

The main list of oils dipped fractions. Steels balanced off small gains and losses. Motors sagged. Televisions sold off as much as 3/4. POINT IN Zenith. Rubbers ruled steady to firm.

Child Describes 'Nice Men' Who Killed Four

CHESTER, Calif. (UP)—Little Sondra Young today gave authorities a surprisingly detailed description of the "nice men" who killed her father, her sisters, her playmate and savagely beat her with a bloody pipe.

Shortly after the three-year-old child told her story Tuesday, Chester theater owner was arrested near Reno, Nev.

Plumas County Sheriff Melvin H. Schooler said Louis Edmund Blair, the arrested businessman, was the "best suspect we have had so far." Blair steadfastly protested his innocence and no charge has been filed against him.

Schooler said he would go to Reno today to question Blair and arrange for a lie detector test. The man was questioned by Washoe (Nev.) County sheriff's deputies for two hours Tuesday night.

Blair said he had "prayed that Sondra would live so that she could identify the murderers."

"My prayers have been answered," he said.

Sondra was taken from a hospital where she had been treated for her beating injuries to go with officers to the scene of the murders.

"I don't believe there is any question but what she could identify the men," District Attorney Bertram James said after talking with the child.

It was likely that Sondra would be brought face to face with Blair, and the suspect said he would like to "face" her.

"I'm sure she'll clear me," he said.

She whimpered with fright when the sheriff's car approached the spot where unidentified assailants beat to death her father, Gard Young, 43, her sisters, Jean 7, and Judy, 6, and her playmate, Michael Saile, 4. Young, a grocer, was apparently killed so the men could rob him of $7,100 in currency.

Sondra told investigators two men, one of them with a white mask and the other carrying a "short gun," had pulled alongside her father's car and killed him and the other three children.

She said both men were wearing green shirts, blue pants and black shoes.

Sondra said the unmasked man had blond curly hair and that the masked man was bald.

"The men were nice," the little girl said. "They were good to me."

Sondra said the masked man was the driver of a "big blue" car.

Blair, 37, whose theater is located next door to Young's grocery, was taken into custody near Reno. He is partly bald.

INDIC EX-POSTMASTER
CHICAGO (AP)—A Federal Grand Jury today indicted Chicago's former postmaster, John C. Haderlein, and 10 others in connection with alleged job selling in the Chicago Post Office.

Ayden Power . . . (Continued from page one) city and to take care of the increasing power load on present lines. The total cost of the project is estimated at $60,000.

A new billing system for the utilities was discussed, and a report was made on the progress of the rural electrification program of the city. The matter of turning electrical inspectors in Greenville over to the official county inspector was referred by the commission to the city attorney for recommendation. The commission also passed a resolution requesting the Board of Aldermen to furnish the utilities with plans and specifications for all new streets to be opened in the city, and for improvements to be made to city streets.

Appeals Penalty For Thievery
BOSTON, MASS. (UP)—Charles E. Harrington appealed Tuesday a nine-months prison sentence imposed on him for "molesting a telephone booth."

Harrington had been charged with "plugging the coin chute and removing the money deposited by customers."

Travelers' Protective Association Plans Accident Prevention Week
The local Travelers Protective Association met last night at 7 o'clock to formulate plans for National Child Accident Prevention Week, which will be held October 19 through 25.

Presiding over the meeting, Erskine Duff, vice-president of the local organization, appointed a five-man committee to work out details of the week's activities.

Chairman is C. B. Bissette. Other members are J. H. Moye, E. R. Conway, Police Chief Guy C. Langston and Russell Rogerson.

The Travelers Protective Association sponsors the week locally each year. It is being held with the cooperation of the Greenville City Schools.

R. B. Starling of Greenville High School is coordinating the efforts of the schools and the association.

Guests attending the meeting last night were J. H. Rose and Mrs. Cora Powell.

Churchill Views War As Unlikely

LONDON (UP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill said last night in his opinion a third world war is unlikely because both sides know the horrors it would bring to the world.

Churchill, speaking at a Pilgrims Society dinner, said: "We all hate and fear war. Let me tell you why in my opinion, and it is only my opinion, a third war is unlikely."

"It is because among other reasons it would be entirely different in certain vital aspects from any other war that has ever taken place."

"Both sides know that it would begin with horrors of a kind and on a scale never dreamed of before by human beings."

"It would begin by both sides in Europe suffering in the very first stage exactly what they dreaded the most. It would also be different from other wars because the main decisions would probably come in the first month or even the first week."

"The quarrel might continue for an indefinite period, but after the first month it would be a broken-back war in which no great armies could be moved over long distances by land."

"The torments, which would fall in an increasing measure on the whole civilian population of the globe, would be indescribable and there is this fact also to be remembered, that governments, dependent upon long distance communications by land, might well find that they had quite soon lost their power to dominate events."

Protest Injury To Prisoners In Koje Incident
PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—The Communists protested today against the wounding of three war prisoners on Koje Island last Saturday.

Communist liaison officers at the Panmunjom truce camp repeated their customary warning that the United Nations "bears full responsibility for the continuing war crimes of slaughtering prisoners."

The U.N. previously announced the three prisoners were injured slightly when a prisoner-supervisor was removed from a work detail for questioning on why the detail was working so slowly. The detail refused to return to its compound until forced by South Korean Army guards.

FUTILE JUMP
BALTIMORE (AP)—Wallace Norton, 25, of Hope Mills, N. C., jumped 70 feet off a scaffold early today to get away from the police but firemen caught him in a safety net.

FAIR — Careful analysis of the way North Carolina newspapers handle political news justifies the verdict that they are generally very fair to all factions and schools of thought. Much of the criticism for "slanting" news is because the news is not "slanted" the way the critic would like. Take an accurate report of a political meeting which had been widely bally-hooped with advance publicity of 3,000 people expected. Never before had more than 1,000 folks shown up for any such meeting at that place. When the big event comes off, it was a "big crowd" and another says "attendance was disappointingly small." Both are right, and both are accused of slanting the news. Whether a quart cup with a pint

IN DEMOCRATIC COLUMN
AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The Texas attorney general ruled today voters in this state can write the names of GOP nominees Dwight Eisenhower and Richard Nixon in the Democratic column Nov. 4.

Stevenson has charged that the newspapers of the county are biased against him and the Democratic party. At the Moore County YDC rally at Carthage Saturday night Congressman C. B. Deane made essentially the same accusation, except that Deane limited the indictment to the big dailies. He commended the weekly press for its fairness in presenting the issues. It might be charged, with equal accuracy, that both Stevenson and Deane are playing politics in their reference to the press. There are 45 or 46 daily newspapers in North Carolina's twelve congressional districts, but only two in Deane's eighth district. When he first went to congress six years ago his was the only North Carolina district without a daily paper. Since then the Lexington Dispatch and the Sanford Herald had gone to daily afternoon publication; but all along the eight
