'Win Or Die' Assaults By Reds Keep Front Flaming

Seven Thousand Veteran Chinese Troops, Backed By Rockets And Artillery Barrage, Again Get Toehold On Triangle Hill; ROKs Retreat, Bounce Back

SEOUL, Korea (UP) - Seven thousand fanatic Chinese Reds, backed by Russian-made "Katusha" rocket guns, smashed at Triangle Hill and Sniper Ridge in a "win or die" assault today and captured one peak of each.

The South Korean defenders of Sniper Ridge bounced back, however, and recaptured Pinpoint Peak in 10 hours of bitter and bloody fighting. But the Chinese at last reports still held Pike's Peak on American-defended Triangle Hill.

The Chinese assault marked the enemy's strongest effort yet to recapture the two dominant hill masses on the central front lost to United Nations' "little offensive" last week.

At the height of the Chinese attack on Sniper Ridge, the Reds hurled a near rocket 44,059 mortar, artillery and rocket shells on the South Koreans. The barrage equalled the second highest enemy bombardment of the war for a single day.

Most of the rockets came from the multiple - firing "Katushas" similar to those used by the Russians in World War II battles against the Germans.

Veteran Chinese Communist troops made up the attacking force. They were professional Red army fighters, not peasants, reported United Press war correspondent Wendell Merick from the front.

The attacking force increased to a regiment in size - about 3,000 men - and drove to the top of Pinpoint. At 3:40 a. m. (1:40 p. m. EST Sunday) the South Koreans counter attacked and battled their way back to the top, pushing the Reds to the northwest.

Chief Langston Resigning Office

To Be Effective Nov. 15; Mayor Says Aldermanic Acceptance To Be Mere Formality; Langston To Join Local Firm

By JESS POINDEXTER Reflector City Editor Who is going to be the new chief of police in Greenville?

Coming quite unexpectedly to city officials, Chief Guy C. Langston today submitted his resignation to Mayor Lester D. Page.

The chief's resignation is to become effective November 15, and Mayor Page said today acceptance of the resignation by the board of aldermen will be "just a formality."

In resigning from the position he has held since September 11, 1950, Langston stated he is planning to accept employment with College View Cleaners Inc., a local business firm.

His new duties with the dry cleaning establishment will include supervising safety engineer and sales representative. He will be in charge of safety relative to both rolling equipment and plant machinery.

The position of chief of police in Greenville carried with it a salary of $4,800 a year. Langston did not elaborate on compensation he will receive on his new job except to say it is a "substantial increase."

In the meeting with Mayor Page, Langston said his association with city government, department heads, Merchant's Association, civic clubs and citizens has been very pleasant during his more than two years in Greenville.

"I feel the police department has had the support and understanding of the people in Greenville during my stay here as chief of police," Langston declared.

300,000 Of Soft Coal Miners Are Staying Off Job

No Strike Call By Lewis, But Miners Believe Contract Is Canceled

By UNITED PRESS More than 300,000 of the nation's 375,000 soft coal miners stayed home today in what apparently was the start of an "unofficial" nationwide strike.

There was no formal strike order from John L. Lewis, but most of the United Mine Workers apparently felt that the government had canceled their contract by cutting 40 cents off their recently negotiated $1.90 daily pay raise.

Spokesmen for the miners said they were sticking to their traditional policy of "no contract, no work."

At Washington, Defense Mobilization Chief Henry H. Fowler indicated approval of the Wage Stabilization Board's decision to cut the pay raise negotiated last month by Lewis and the coal operators.

Thus there appeared little immediate prospect of a settlement. A spot check of the nation's richest coal fields showed only a handful of mines in operation.

In the rich coal fields of West Pennsylvania an estimated 30,000 were idle with only one major mine working. In Central Pennsylvania, a spot check showed no mines working and about 37,000 men off the job.

All mines were reported closed in West Virginia with 95,000 miners idle.

In Kentucky, a spokesman for the coal operators said as far as he knew all 50,000 UMW members in the state had quit work. The Harlan, Hazard, and Big Sandy fields were deserted.

Heads Campaign

W. W. Lee (above), Greenville businessman, will head this year's Community Chest Campaign. It was announced today by L. S. Ficklen, president of the Pitt County Community Chest.

"We are pleased that W. W. Lee to head the Community Chest campaign this year," stated Ficklen.

Lee said this morning that no definite plans for the campaign had been made as yet but he was holding a meeting tonight with some of the Community Chest officials to line up a campaign program.

Seize Opium On British Tanker

Customs Uncovers $1,000,000 Hoard; Crew Detained

PHILADELPHIA (UP) - Customs agents, who seized more than $1,000,000 worth of opium aboard the British oil tanker Silverdale, searched the ship for more narcotics today. The tanker's "mumous" crew was placed under detention.

It was one of the most sensational seizures of narcotics in East Coast history. It was touched off when Capt. D. B. Edgar of the Silverdale radioed from sea that ship's officers "are having trouble with the crew."

Details of the "trouble" were not disclosed immediately. Michael J. Bradley, collector of the port of Philadelphia, personally led 20 customs agents onto the ship, inbound from the sheikdom of Kuwait in the Persian Gulf, when she docked yesterday.

The agents seized 111 pounds of raw opium, valued at well over $1,000,000 in the illegal market, and indicated much more might be found in today's searching.

U.S. Communist Party Is Ruled A Puppet Of Soviet

President Stirs Heated Furor On 'Anti-Semitism'

GOP And Democrats Clash Over Barbed Aimed At Eisenhower By Truman

WASHINGTON (UP) - Democrats of the Jewish faith rose to the defense of President Truman today in the face of a growing controversy over the President's imputation that Dwight D. Eisenhower was "anti-Semitic" and "anti-Catholic."

The Republicans meanwhile continued to flail away at Mr. Truman for his attack on the GOP presidential nominee, accusing the President of injecting bigotry into the presidential campaign.

Elder statesman Bernard M. Baruch, adviser to Democratic president Truman, said today that he was "shocked beyond belief" by the President's statements against Eisenhower.

Baruch said the President's "abhorrence of intolerance" was "a disgrace to the American people."

Mr. Truman touched off the controversy last week when he said that Eisenhower was the "captive" of "anti-Semitic, anti-Catholic and anti-foreign" forces in the Republican party.

Mr. Truman with a charge that the President was engaging in the "lowest type of gutter politics" by raising the "ugly specter of race hatred."

Mr. Truman made the charge last week in a message to the National Welfare Board. It drew prompt rebuttals from prominent Jews. Republican leaders bitterly denounced the attack, and vice presidential candidate Richard M. Nixon called it "gutter politics."

Panel Of Subversive Activities Control Board Declares Evidence Clearly Shows Party Is Directed, Dominated And Controlled By Russia

WASHINGTON (UP) - A government hearing panel ruled today that the U.S. Communist party "is directed, dominated and controlled by the Soviet Union" and should register with the attorney general.

In the first recommended decision handed down under the 1950 Internal Security Act, a two-member panel of the subversive activities control board said the evidence clearly shows that the U.S. Communist party was founded "as a puppet of the Soviet Union, and so remains."

The panel said the Red organization lives in this country for the day when it can install a Soviet-type dictatorship and establish a "United States of Soviet America."

"... We conclude that respondent (the Communist party) is directed, dominated and controlled by the Soviet Union; and that respondent operates primarily to advance the objectives of the world Communist movement," the panel said.

The findings are the recommended decision of Peter Campbell Brown, board chairman, and Kathryn McHale, a board member, who sat for almost 18 months hearing the case. If the other two board members concur in the findings, as expected, the Communist party will be ordered to register with the Justice Department. But it can appeal the order to the courts.

The ruling was a victory for government attorneys who brought a parade of ex-Communists to the witness stand during the panel's lengthy hearings to swear that the party was subservient to Moscow. Party attorneys sought to refute the charge.

The act also bars members of Communist - action groups from seeking federal employment, applying for passports or working in defense plants. Violation of a final board order is punishable by a fine of up to $10,000 and five years' imprisonment.

The final board order is expected to be issued in a matter of weeks. The final decision can be appealed directly to the Court of Appeals, and the Communist party has indicated it will carry the test case to that tribunal and eventually to the Supreme Court.

Ike Says Nation Should Forestall New Depression

Must Prevent 'Crime Of Depression' In Cementing Plans For Peace

WASHINGTON (UP) - Dwight D. Eisenhower said today that this country must mobilize every resource at its command to prevent another "crime of depression."

Opening a 90-speech tour of New England, Eisenhower addressed a crowd of some 3,000 at Stamford, Conn., speaking from a platform beside the railroad station in a swirling snowstorm.

The Republican presidential candidate said that the American people have "but one conclusion - that the great problem of our time is peace."

"How are we going to produce a 'solid peace'?" he asked. "We must mobilize all the strength there is in the United States - economic and from every other source - to prevent another great depression. This must not happen again or we will have lost the peace through it."

Eisenhower said that a depression or economic collapse was what the Russians were hoping for, and "if we are to halt this Communist influence," the people must prevent this "crime of depression."

Eisenhower was introduced by Gov. John D. Lodge of Connecticut who presented him as "the man who President Truman and Stevenson are trying to destroy as a national hero."

During the morning Eisenhower sent a telegram to his democratic opponent, Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson saying he was glad they agreed on the importance of every eligible voter exercising his franchise.

Iran Holding Up Its Formal Break

Possibility Of American Mediation In Case Is Raised

TEHRAN, Iran (UP) - Transportation difficulties - and perhaps American mediation - may delay Iran's formal break in diplomatic relations with Britain today.

Iranian Foreign Minister Hossein Fatemi said last week the effective date would depend on how long it would take the Iranian embassy in London to pack and leave.

But British charge d'affaires George Middleton told a press conference today he had indicated to Fatemi he would need more time than his opposite number in London.

Although there are scores of trains and airplanes leaving London daily, Middleton said, there are only a half dozen flights available out of Tehran for the 100 British Embassy staffers.

However, he said it should not take more than two weeks to vacate the embassy. There were indications American intervention also may be delaying the formal break in Anglo-Iranian relations.

Refuses Resume Truce Meetings

UN Commander Says Reds Have Offered No New Aspects

TOKYO (UP) - Gen. Mark W. Clark refused today to resume armistice talks at Panmunjom unless the Communists give up their demand for forced repatriation of war prisoners.

In a long note to the Red high command, the U.N. commander said there was "nothing new or constructive" in the letter he received last Thursday from Premier Kim Il Sung of North Korea and Gen. Peng Teh-Huai, commander of the Chinese "volunteers" in Korea.

Clark said the Communist letter "does not constitute a valid basis for the resumption of delegation meetings."

The U.N. called an "indefinite recess" in the talks Oct. 8 because the Reds refused to accept proposals for settling the stalemate on exchanging war prisoners, or to submit a "constructive" counter-proposal.

There appeared no hope that an armistice will be achieved at Panmunjom unless the Reds accept the U.N. principle that war prisoners must not be returned against their will.

President Opens His Third Tour Tonight

WASHINGTON (UP) - President Truman boards his campaign train again late tonight for his third whistle-stop tour in support of the Democratic ticket.

The forthcoming three-day swing through New Jersey, Pennsylvania and West Virginia will be his next-to-last trip of the campaign, and will include major speeches at Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Pottsville, Pa.

White House aides said Mr. Truman may devote one or more of his public appearances to replying to the sharp criticism which Republicans and others have directed at him for accusing the GOP of "anti-Catholicism and anti-Semitism."

Mr. Truman made the charge last week in a message to the National Welfare Board. It drew prompt rebuttals from prominent Jews. Republican leaders bitterly denounced the attack, and vice presidential candidate Richard M. Nixon called it "gutter politics."

Mr. Truman returned to Washington early Sunday after a campaign swing through New England and New York City. Police estimated that more than 1,000,000 persons turned out to see him as he drove through the streets of Lower Manhattan and Brooklyn in a Brooklyn speech Saturday night, he said the Republicans have been conducting "the lowest street-gutter campaign I have ever seen."

The tentative schedule for the new tour called for Mr. Truman to make his first appearance at Jersey City, N. J. at 10:30 a. m. e. s. t. Tuesday. He will leave his train Jersey City for an auto trip through Newark, Elizabeth, Perth Amboy, New Brunswick, Trenton and Camden in New Jersey, and then cross into Pennsylvania for a late afternoon speech at Philadelphia.

Entraining again at Philadelphia, he will go on to Reading and Pottsville with an evening speech at the latter. On Wednesday, Mr. Truman will leave the train at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., for a motorcade to Scranton and Kingston, then return to the train for visits to Williamsport and Altoona, and an evening speech at Pottsville.

Favorable Tests Of Polio Vaccine

CLEVELAND, O. (UP) - A Johns Hopkins University scientist reported today he had obtained "favorable responses" from a polio vaccine designed to give immunity against all three types of paralyzing infantile paralysis.

The report of the new vaccine was made by Dr. Howard A. Howe at the opening session of the American Health Association convention here.

Howe's report said the tests had been performed on six Baltimore children. In all cases, he said, the children developed antibody or immunity levels to Lansing, Leon and Brunhilde types of polio. The immunity levels were comparable to antibody levels previously reached in laboratory experiments on monkeys and chimpanzees, Howe said.

British Civilians Take Up Arms

NAIROBI, Kenya, East Africa (UP) - British civilians armed for self-defense today after the dread Mau Mau terrorist society, which has sworn war to the death against white men, set the torch to Kenya's most exclusive polo club.

Nairobi swarmed with policemen, now organized on a military pattern, to safeguard against a Mau Mau foray into the capital. British troops and a cruiser were on the way to aid in defense.

Declares Negro Vote Is Decisive

GREENVILLE, S. C. (UP) - A White member of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People staff believes the Negro vote has become so important that "nobody can be elected president in a close election without it."

Herbert Hill addressed the closing session of the state NAACP meeting here yesterday. He predicted that Negroes would win the Lelandon County segregation case now before the federal Supreme Court because "history is on our side."

Say Ike Is Vulnerable In Criticism Of Hiss

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UP) - Friends of Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson said today that his Republican presidential rival, Dwight D. Eisenhower, is "more vulnerable" than Stevenson in the Alger Hiss case.

The claim was made by Volunteers for Stevenson in a statement issued through the Illinois governor's campaign headquarters. Some Republican campaigners have drummed on the theme that Stevenson's deposition attesting to the good reputation of Hiss during the defendant's first trial showed "bad judgment" or worse. Sen. Richard M. Nixon, GOP vice presidential candidate, has taken "as one of his favorite weapons" a series of attacks against Stevenson supporters recalled that there also is an "association" between Hiss and the Republican presidential nominee.

Declares Ruling 'Just Politics'

NEW YORK (UP) - Former Rep. Vito Marcantonio, attorney for the Communist party in hearings before the subversive activities control board, charged today that it is a foreign ruling that the party is a foreign agent was handed down today for political reasons only.

Marcantonio said he was confident that the American people will repudiate it, as they have always repudiated all violations of the Bill of Rights in the past.

Judges Politics By Ale-Pouring
By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—According to my friend, Maurice C. Dreicer, you can tell the character of any political candidate (from city clerk on up) by the way he pours a glass of beer or ale.

Maurice operates what he likes to call a "food, beverage and tobacco tasting bureau" in New York City.

Says he: "A candidate who pours ale into a glass, leaving a deep collar, is a man to beware of—he's a show-off."

"One who pours and breaks the foam is too conservative."

"But the man who fills the glass three-quarters of the way, then turns the bottle to continue filling to the top inch with a nice head, is your boy."

Maurice has given a lot of thought to the nation's digestive system in these trying days around election time.

So he has come up with a suggested diet—particularly for use during the tense hours when you are waiting to find out whether your candidate came out a winner.

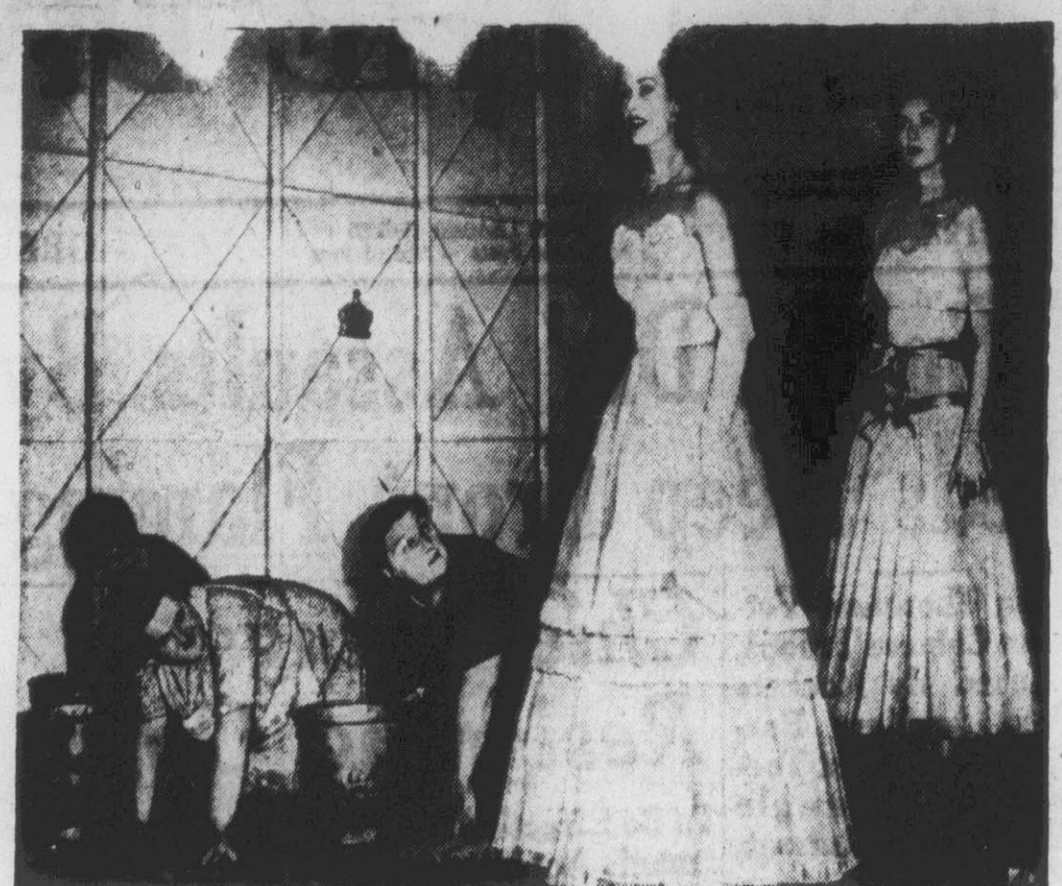

For the first course, he suggests a hot, clear soup, preferably bouillon. That, he says, will not interfere with the digestive system if you tend to be nervous.

The second course: A cold, sliced meat of some sort. People will be running around between the table and the television set, and any hot meal would chill, become greasy and likely would be wasted.

With the cold meat, the expert says, cold sliced tomatoes should be served. Hot vegetables would

Republican Candidate For President Topic At Club

As a continuation of the study of political candidates and party platforms, Mrs. J. O. Derrick presented a biographical sketch of Dwight Eisenhower at the Arles Book Club on Thursday night.

The club met at the home of Mrs. Dallas Clark with 17 of the 19 members present. Mrs. W. W. Smiley, club sponsor, was also there.

Mrs. Astor Richardson, president, presided and called for routine reports from committee chairmen. The bill which was submitted for the books ordered for the year was paid at this time.

Mrs. Derrick in her talk gave a background of the Eisenhower family, tracing the lineage back to the German ancestors. She brought out the fact that the Republican candidate has traces of German, Dutch and Swiss inheritance, and when the family came to America several generations ago, they settled in Pennsylvania. Eisenhower's father migrated to Texas, where Dwight was born, later settling in Kansas.

Eisenhower's family was of sturdy stock, but they were economically poor and the boys all had to work. Their training and home background provided excellent opportunities for the children to develop their natural abilities and personalities, she said.

Mrs. Derrick remarked about his educational training and his army experiences prior to World War II, and pointed out that he had always shown remarkable talent for orga-

Legion Supper Meeting Slated Tuesday Night

Pitt County Post 39 of The American Legion will hold its regular monthly supper meeting Tuesday night at 7 o'clock at the Legion Fairgrounds near Greenville.

The most important business scheduled for the meeting, officials said this morning, is the task of formulating plans for a comprehensive membership drive to be held in the county this year.

It is hoped that the local post may increase its membership, which last year was above 500 legionaires. The Post Commander urged that all members be present to assist in mapping out membership drive plans.

Following her talk there was a spirited discussion among the members about the qualities and comparisons of the two contenders for the presidency in the coming election.

Whale Meat Has Medical Value

CHICAGO (UP)—A doctor prescribed whale meat today for babies allergic to milk.

Scandinavia Authority Speaks To Faculty Club

Dr. Henry Goddard Leach, eminent author, educator, and editor, pointed out similarities and differences between American and Scandinavian democracy at a meeting Thursday evening of the Faculty Lecture Club of East Carolina College.

Approximately 150 people were present to hear Dr. Leach, formerly president of the American-Scandinavian Foundation, editor from 1922 to 1940 of the Forum and Century magazines, and professor of Scandinavian civilization at the University of Kansas.

In their conception and practice of democracy, he told his audience, the Scandinavian countries have laid emphasis on socialism and social reform. Following their plea of the rights of citizenship, he said, Scandinavians preceded this country in provisions for compulsory education, old age benefits, and housing projects.

Labor unions were organized in Scandinavia earlier than here, he said. The techniques of labor relationships differ, however, he explained, and told of the work of Labor Courts in Scandinavia and of the organization of employers' unions.

Citing several personal experiences, he explained the way socialized medicine works in the Scandinavian countries and compared some aspects of the system there.

Car Overtakes, Driver Says Dog Was Responsible

BELVOIR—A car driven by Al C. Pollard, 25, Route 1, Greenville, overturned on the Penny Hill highway about a fourth of a mile from here Saturday night.

Highway Patrolman James W. Boykin, investigating officer, charged Pollard with careless and reckless driving.

Boykin quoted the driver as saying that a dog ran out in front of him causing him to overtake.

Skid marks for 180 feet were found at the scene by the officer while an additional 40 feet of skid marks, showing where the car traveled side ways before overturning, Boykin stated.

Pollard was slightly injured in the accident. Damage to the car was estimated at $900.

DEAN HUDSON

Dean Hudson and his vocalist, Jean Terry, will be featured at the Harvest Ball Wednesday night as a part of the Annual Harvest Festival being held in Williamston this week.

The Harvest Festival in Williamston gets underway with a street dance tonight for Negro citizens and another street dance will be held Tuesday night for white citizens. Local bands will furnish music for these events.

Wednesday will be the big day of the festival with a parade, an address by Cameron Morrison, and the Harvest Ball which will feature a beauty contest to choose this year's Harvest Queen.

Entrants from surrounding towns and counties will take part in the contest. Barbara Cozart, a Greenville High School student, will represent Greenville in the contest which is scheduled to begin at 10:30.

Politics is indicated by materials in Scandinavian newspapers, he stated. Taft was unpopular as a choice for the Republican nomination, he said, and both Eisenhower and Stevenson seem acceptable in their stands on foreign policy.

Strength for the Day

OUR GRAVEST DANGERS
In 1947 J. Edgar Hoover announced that there were 26,000,000 children and young people in the United States untouched by the influence of the Church. The same year a religious census put the figure at 27,000,000. Inasmuch as this figure assumed that all children and young people enrolled in the various religious bodies were actually receiving religious instruction, it means that the figure of 27,000,000 was ultra conservative.

But why should J. Edgar Hoover, Head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, have made this announcement? Because he had discovered a relationship between crime and a lack of spiritual nurture. Criminals sometimes come from the best of Christian homes, and saints occasionally appear amid utterly wicked surroundings, but on the whole, Christian homes produce Christians, and unchristian homes produce people whose spiritual life is barren and usually dead.

We can get greatly excited over a number of national and international issues. Many of these are real. But the most alarming issues we confront have to do with the spiritual life of our nation.

The paganism, religious ignorance, and downright spiritual indifference of a large section of our population are enough to make us quake with fear.

In The Hands Of The People

Greenville citizens, individually and collectively, will be called on within the next few days to decide whether the people of the city should have the right to vote on the question of council-manager form of municipal government as proposed by the local Jaycees.

In view of the interest which has been expressed in the council-manager form of government in Greenville for a period of several years, we believe the issue should be brought to a vote of the people.

The petitions which the Jaycees are circulating this week are calling for a referendum in which the people can decide whether they want to change to the council-manager form of government.

According to the state statutes at least 25 per cent of the qualified voters at the last municipal election must sign the petition if the referendum is to be called. That will mean some 1,500 to 2,000 local citizens will have to sign the petition if the question of council-manager government is to be brought to a vote.

It should be kept in mind that signing the petition calling for the referendum does not constitute an endorsement of the council-manager form of government for Greenville.

If the required number of people sign the petition, an election day will be set at a later date to decide whether Greenville shall have the new form of government. A person's signature on the petition will merely indicate that he or she is of the opinion the matter should come to a vote of the people.

The Reflector urges citizens of Greenville to sign the petition which is being circulated by the Jaycees.

The number of signatures on the petition will determine whether Greenville's citizens have an opportunity to voice at the polls their sentiments for or against the council-manager form of government for the city.

Three Misrepresentations In Four Paragraphs

Political campaigning being what it is, people get used to hearing so many outright falsehoods, half-truths and oratorical gems scattered broadcast that after a while it sort of rolls off like the water from a duck's back.

Sometimes though it becomes overly obvious and somewhere a voice must rise up to call attention to fallacious impressions deliberately planted.

For example, our attention was drawn to the first four paragraphs of a United Press report of Adlai Stevenson's talks Friday in California. Those four paragraphs carried three such half-truths or misrepresentations, and also left Stevenson or the present Administration (take your choice) open to unfavorable conclusions to people who take their role of self-government seriously.

In order of their appearance, the Stevenson statements to the electorate on that memorable day, are: that Republicans would precipitate a "world disaster" if they should win the election and get a chance to "torpedo" U. S. foreign policy; that Republicans were suggesting American troops could be quickly withdrawn from Korea (which would also bring "disaster"); that "isolationist mentality" is common in GOP ranks, and they "have argued that we could live alone and like it."

The first premise is based largely on a partisan judgment, notoriously feeble as a reliable standard to work upon, and in the light of the past ten years' record could also be regarded by the wary as a "cover-up." There is no assurance, anywhere, that either party's victory would precipitate a "world disaster."

Secondly, his opponent Dwight Eisenhower has never said that American troops could be quickly withdrawn from Korea. Yes, he put forth the idea that South Koreans should bear the brunt of the fighting... but nowhere do we recall reading his advocacy of a "quick" withdrawal from Korea.

Thirdly, isolationist sentiment seems more of geographical ailment than a prominent characteristic of Republicans or Americans as a whole. Certainly, the old "live alone and like it" attitude is now reduced to such a popular low that we deem it unlikely this country could turn truly isolationist any time in the foreseeable future. Americans have witnessed too great a tide of events, undergone too many experiences in a brief period, to believe in anything but that we must live in a community of nations mutually helpful to one another. Too many people believe this now for real isolationism to gain a strong grip on our foreign policy.

The group of citizens concerned with a more moderate give-away program abroad has had the "isolationist" tag pinned upon them by their opposition. It's one way to discredit their motives and appeals for reason. A real honest-to-goodness "live alone" spokesman of national calibre hasn't appeared on the scene since before World War II.

And as we mentioned before, the Stevenson warnings seem to invite another note of censure for the past conduct of the national administration and infer reason to fear his own plans for the future. They betray the ugly truth that this government has not practiced a bipartisan foreign policy in these most troublesome times. Had such a bipartisanship existed there would be no excuse to whine "fear" of results in a national election.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—A Boston Federal court's reversal of the conviction of Deloris W. Delaney, former Internal Revenue Collector in the Hub, represents a new and powerful challenge to Congressional investigation of official wrongdoing. It had already been questioned by President Truman, who has frequently withheld executive cooperation and ridiculed the results as asinine or a red herring.

Delaney was convicted last January of accepting bribes in tax disputes, and of certifying that $100,000 in liens against delinquent taxpayers had been paid when, according to the government, they had not been discharged. Once a WPA relief worker, Delaney was promoted to Collector in 1944 and retained until his indictment in late 1949.

TRIAL UNFAIR—Three Federal judges set aside the conviction on the ground that he had not received a fair trial because of the unfavorable publicity resulting from his suspension, dismissal, indictment and the ensuing Congressional inquiry.

Incidentally, many other Truman officials have been convicted under almost the same circumstances, with appeals pending in many cases. It should also be noted that, if it had not been for the alleged laxity and criminality unearthed in the Boston office of Internal Revenue, the whole scandal in the tax collecting agency, with its nationwide ramifications, might have been suppressed permanently, unless the Administration should change hands next January 20.

ALBERT B FALL SCANDAL—If the Boston reversal is upheld by the Supreme Court, it will weaken or destroy the power of Congress to investigate both the executive and judicial branches of the government, a right which Truman has seriously questioned in the Alger Hiss, Internal Revenue and RFC exposures. An extremely grave constitutional issue is involved.

By the same judicial reasoning, it appears the conviction of Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of Interior, could have been invalidated. No trial ever generated more newspaper publicity, mostly adverse to the Cabinet member, before and during its conduct than did the accusation that he had accepted bribes for turning over Navy oil reserves to Doherty and Sinclair.

The sensational affair involved a dead President, Cabinet members, high Navy officers and prominent politicians of both parties. It was headlined throughout the nation as the "Harding scandals," which have been resurrected in the current Presidential contest as an offset to Truman corruption.

Nevertheless, despite all the political and journalistic ballyhoo attending these trials, the Supreme Court upheld the conviction of Fall, a far more important figure than Delaney.

CORRUPTION—The Boston judges' action, however, tends to reinforce Republican charges that Truman winked at corruption until Congressional investigations forced him to bestir himself in self-defense. Had it not been for official indifference, Delaney could have been prosecuted four years ago for the same offenses for which he was found guilty only last January. Here is the history:

In 1947, when the Republicans controlled the House, an Appropriations subcommittee began a seemingly routine inquiry into the effect of economies in the Treasury budget. It was headed by Representative Gordon Cantfield of New Jersey, a conscientious legislator. His investigator, Robert E. Lee, was appalled by conditions in the Boston office.

Thousands of income tax reports for 1941, 1942 and 1943 were missing. Books on receipts and accounts were unbalanced. Funds were carelessly handled. In violation of the Hatch Act, employees were forced to make political contributions in proportion to their salaries.

There were indications that these conditions prevailed in many other offices, especially Kansas City, St. Louis, New York and San Francisco, where unsavory situations were eventually found by Congressional investigators.

ART—Sponsors of a multi-million dollar art gallery in Raleigh, under leadership of Robert Lee Humber of Greenville, are getting ready to "put the bee" on the Council of State now and upon the General Assembly next spring for a lot of tax money to set up the project. The Governor and Council of State will be asked to allocate money from the contingency and emergency fund to air condition and otherwise adapt the old highway building for a temporary art gallery, and the General Assembly will be asked to provide money for a permanent building in which to display the State's collection of valuable paintings.

HISTORY—The State of North Carolina is in the art business to greater proportionate extent than any other State or even the Federal Government, according to those in position to know. Under terms of a bill enacted into law during the hectic closing hours of the 1947 Legislature and amended in 1951, the State has purchased nearly a million dollars worth of pictures, which are said to have a current market value of three times that amount. The State had previously acquired title to numerous valuable paintings by gift, including the famed Pfeiffer Collection. For many years art lovers have sought additional State aid for purchase of pieces and for a building in which to house and display them. The 1947 million dollar appropriation was a good start, but only a start, on an ambitious long range program.

NEW GROUND—Such extensive use of public funds for art is admittedly a new venture. Advocates of the program argue that art is educational and therefore public expenditure is justified. It is argued further that North Carolina should sometimes lead and not always follow other States in matters of this kind. The arguments are capped with the statement that having already invested a million dollars, the State must now appropriate several millions more in order to make that original investment worth while. The immediate question is whether the old highway building should be converted into a temporary art gallery in order to have tangible evidence to present to the Legislature in support of appeals for much larger financing of the total art project.

HARMONY—At every one of the eight congressional district Democratic rallies one or more of the speakers has proclaimed that the party is united in North Carolina and that all of its responsible leadership is solidly backing the ticket from top to bottom. Such statement got as much applause at the fifth district meeting in Reidsville as at the other places. At the same meeting there was the incident of P.W. Glidewell Sr., a Democratic warhorse of many years, interrupting Senator Willis Smith during his speech to question him about press reports of lack of enthusiasm for Stevenson. There was the other incident of Governor-nominate William Umstead publicly voicing his resentment against the Raleigh News and Observer, self-appointed "organ" of the Democratic party, for misrepresenting his statements in a previous rally. These and other developments have been interpreted by several political observers as evidence of hangers-on from bitter primaries of the past two years, and as proof that the struggle for control of the party is still going on between factions.

Republicans gleefully cite them as proof that boasted Democratic harmony is only skin deep.

SWEARING-IN—For several years it has been the custom when a new member came to the Supreme Court during mid-term for him to be presented to the court while in session by the attorney general and for the oath of office to be administered with dignity but without pomp, and then for the court to proceed immediately with its other business. Something different is being planned for the induction of Judge R. Hunt Parker as an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court. His friends are arranging a more elaborate, but no less dignified, swearing-in party for the afternoon of November 25, immediately after his election has been certified by the State Board of Elections and a commission issued by the Governor.

PARKER—After many years Parker was nominated in the spring primaries for the unexpired term of Associate Justice W.A. Devin, who was moved up to Chief Justice last year upon the death of Chief Justice Stacy.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

THOSE THREE AMENDMENTS, IN REVIEW

(Greensboro Daily News)
Out of a sprinkling of proposed amendments to the North Carolina Constitution the 1951 General Assembly chose only three for the Tar Heel voters' attention on November 4. They are:

(1) To increase state and county tax limitation on the $100 property valuation from 15 to 25 cents. For years county governments have been unable to meet all regular operating expenses out of a 15-cent levy. What they have been doing to get around that obstacle is to set up "special fund" accounts which allow them to obtain what they need. The amendment would simplify bookkeeping procedure—not necessarily change the tax rate.

(2) To allow the Government of North Carolina to fill vacancies "by death, resignation or otherwise" of members of the General Assembly. The amendment would require the Governor to appoint a person recommended by the executive committee of the county in which the deceased or resigned member was resident, being the executive committee of the political party with which the former member was affiliated. The purpose here is to avoid delay and expense of special elections. Some observers say this amendment (1) Upsets the precedent of having members of the General Assembly gain their seats only through direct vote of the people; and (2) writes recognition of political parties into the Constitution. To us these seem small objections. The amendment would be used only infrequently.

(3) To allow the Governor to fill vacancies on the Superior and Supreme Courts if they occur within 30 days of a general election. Purpose here is cover situations where it would be impossible to nominate candidates, print ballots, et cetera, in time for election day. The Governor's appointment would be effective until the next following general election. Here again amendment would apply only in rare cases. The loop-hole in the law should be closed.

Relatively few voters know much about constitutional amendments. They ought to know more. The Daily News recommends affirmative votes on the three upcoming November 4.

NOW LOOK AT IT LIKE THIS (Bethel Post)
Recently Dr. John D. Messick, president of our college in Greenville gave out a report on the progress of the drive to raise $100,000 for scholarship funds for Pitt County students. It was encouraging. The fund had $31,407 in its treasury.

When the various communities were listed, and their contributions, our town came second on that list. We had raised over three times the amount of Farmville, which is the second town in the county. And we had surpassed Ayden by the same margin. 3 to 1, and Ayden is larger in population than Bethel. Our total gifts came to $3,100.00.

The committee to raise those funds at Bethel are to be highly commended. They have done a splendid job. The Post congratulates those men: Leighton Blount, Sr., John Bunting and John Station.

Now look at it like this: Greenville raised $7,137.00. This is the seat of the institution. The population of Greenville is ten or more times that of Bethel. They should have reported about $30,000 themselves. Farmville should have reported about $7000. Ayden should have reported about $5,000. Of course Bethel will add to its fund, but frankly we came through ON TOP so far in this effort, and all Bethel is proud of all those who gave to the fund to aid our own students.

TRUMAN'S SPLEEN (Wilson Times)

If ever we were burdened with demagoguery, we were the other day when President Truman made his whistle-stops through Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania and upper New York. For in those talks he tried to give the impression that no one, not even Eisenhower, could improve on his administration. By dumping controls, he maintained, the Republicans will raise prices rather than lowering them. By lowering taxes, the Republicans will endanger the security of America, for taxes, he held, can be lowered only at the expense of defense.

On both counts the President was wrong. If controls were abolished prices would remain what they are. For the controls we have now are ineffective. They're on the books only for political purposes. In the matter of taxes, outstanding members of the President's own party point out that $8 billions could be taken out of the budget without in any way jeopardizing defense. Why, then, does he try to make people believe that his brand of democracy is the only one, that what any one else suggests is phony?

We don't know whether Truman is helping or hurting the Stevenson campaign. Nor will we know until after the election. He's making a lot of demagogic appeals in Buffalo, a town with thousands of foreign extraction, he said he was against the recent immigration bill, although it was the product of his own party. Can it be that he's all things to all people? Ever since Korea he's been against inflation, but he's been against it only in his talks. In his actions he's done nothing whatever to curb its rise. Will the people be fooled by his talks?

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

Sharpest rises in America's spending during the first eight months of this year have been for gasoline, milk, liquor and on feed, farm and garden supplies, judging from Department of Commerce statistics. Retailers in those groups reported 8 and 9 per cent increases in sales over corresponding months in 1951.

The sharpest drop was reported by floor-covering stores: down 14 per cent. Milk sales shared a general increase in the food group; only delicatessens failed to do better than a year ago, being down 1 per cent. This suggests agriculture has been doing pretty good. Has anybody any political deductions?

Total retail sales in all lines during the first two-thirds of the year are estimated to be the higher than the corresponding 1951 period. Other categories that made gains include: eating and drinking places, up 5 per cent; variety stores, up 5 per cent; apparel stores, up 2 per cent; drug and proprietary stores, up 4 per cent; fuel and fuel oil dealers, up 1 per cent; florists, up 3 per cent, and optical goods stores, up 3 per cent. Those that showed declines include: department stores, down 1 per cent; household appliance stores, down 3 per cent; jewelry stores, down 2 per cent; book stores, down 2 per cent; stationery stores, down 4 per cent; sporting goods and bicycle stores, down 2 per cent; music stores, down 5 per cent; luggage and leather goods stores, down 2 per cent; and office, store machine and equipment dealers, down 5 per cent.

There was a mixed situation among outlets in the lumber, building and hardware group; large stores showed a general decline but when all stores are calculated, sales held even with a year earlier. Another paradox: while gasoline sales were up 9 per cent, sales by auto dealers were down 5 per cent.

Many of the gains reflect higher prices and some of the declines—notably that in floor coverings—are a consequence of lower prices. The rise in liquor sales appears to be the result of higher taxes.

IMPORTERS SEEK LARGER ITALIAN CHEESE QUOTA

When Italy became entangled with a couple of dictators, American importers shifted to Argentina as a source of Italian-type cheeses.

When import quotas on cheese were set up, they were based on 1948-1950 imports, when considerable cheese was still coming from Argentina. Since then difficulties in doing business with Peron have increased and importers have turned back to Italy. Quotas could be adjusted accordingly. 9,000,000 pounds more of Italian cheese could be imported before June 30, 1953, importers say. Members of the Cheese Importers Association of America are trying to have the quota shifted.

HARDWARE INDUSTRY MUST DIG FOR SALES

The hardware industry faces a period of harder selling, in the opinion of delegates to the National Wholesale Hardware Association, meeting in Atlantic City last week.

William P. Tracy, president, said: "There are few items in short supply; rather we are faced with a surplus in many lines. In some few instances, households have bought their requirements for some time to come and further purchases would seem to rest on the establishment of new homes or on replacements."

U.S. AID OPENS NEW EXPORT OPPORTUNITIES

The Mutual Security Agency and the Technical Cooperation Administration continue to create markets for American exporters. Under their programs, Austria is currently seeking $130,000 worth of crude sulfur; Greece is buying 1,500 metric tons of coffee; Israel is asking for bids on 500 metric tons of refined liquid soy-oil, and Turkey is planning to buy $3,000,000 worth of road-building equipment.

Details on these and other upcoming opportunities can be obtained from the MSA Office of Small Business, 806 Connecticut Ave., N.W., Washington 25, D.C.

CENTRAL FRONT, Korea (AP)

The old colonel "didn't have any damn business up there" on Triangle Hill, the captain said, his bitterness tinged with admiration.

I remember the colonel said he had a Rebel flag and was going to pin it up there.

"It was the most remarkable example of courage I have ever seen—the master sergeant said. The old colonel worked his way up Triangle Hill to direct artillery fire. He led an infantry charge instead. That wasn't his job. He died on the edge of a Chinese trench at the crest.

"All the men were stunned and shocked from a grenade shower," the master sergeant recalled. "All the officers and platoon sergeants were hurt. When he found us, it was like a new outfit." The colonel told us he wanted to go up to the top and see if he could get some precision artillery zeroed in to help out the infantry. We had got the order to take the trench again."

The trench-10 feet long, 6 feet deep and 4 feet wide—was at the crest of Triangle Hill, objective of U.S. Seventh Division troops who kicked off at dawn Tuesday in the biggest Allied attack of the year.

Four times two companies of the Seventh Division tried to take the trench. Four times their assaults melted in blasts of Chinese artillery, mortar and grenade fire.

After the fourth assault, M-Sgt. John Hanson, Third River Falls, Minn., took over command of his company. That was between 8 and 9 A.M. Every other senior leader had been killed or wounded.

Hanson reorganized his company and set the men to digging into the sand and shale 50 yards below the crest.

That's when the colonel showed up. He was stout and gray-haired.

"The colonel had been dodging mortar and artillery fire all morning," Hanson said. "They were peppering that draw and it wasn't light stuff. We got almost half our casualties in that draw the colonel worked his way through."

"Our two companies were completely disorganized by enemy grenades and mortar. A lieutenant, from the other company tried to organize the men to attack again."

"The Chinese had let up tossing grenades at us for awhile."

"Before that, the Chinks had been standing up in their trenches, whirling satchel charges (sticks of dynamite tied together) over their heads like lassoes and heaving them down at our men. I think they were concussion charges that stunned and knocked you out instead of chopping you up with fragments."

"The colonel came up and asked us where there was a hole big enough for him to sit in."

"Then, without saying anything, he waked up to the top."

"He looked in the trench and waved his pistol for us to come up. He yelled that there weren't any Chinks in the trench."

"His voice had a tone of confidence. He was a striking-looking soldier. "About 10 men scrambled up the slope after him. The colonel was sitting on the edge of the trench looking in. He yelled back for grenades."

"We threw him one and started up ourselves. He threw it in the trench and stepped back. The other men also stepped back.

"After the grenade exploded the colonel looked again. Just as he stuck his head over they got off a satchel charge. It made a terrific bang."

"He just ducked up and toppled over in the trench. We could see his feet kicking."

"Then the Chinks followed up with grenades and burp guns. We answered with several volleys of small arms fire. The Chinks kept heaving and heaving grenades so we pulled off."

"I think I rolled back about 30 yards on my belly trying to miss those grenades. We took off for good."

"That's about it. That's exactly they way it came off."

Later, their memories fresh with the picture of the old colonel who didn't belong up there, whose legs should have given out long before he reached the top. Seventh Division infantrymen stormed and won the crest.

But the old colonel's body has not been recovered. He is listed as mission in action.

Washington Letter

By JANE FADS

WASHINGTON—The voice of the women of the Americas will be heard throughout Latin America to get suffrage for their still-voteless sisters in seven Latin American countries.

The "Voice," officially, is the Inter-American Commission of Women, organized to advise the Organization of American States on matters affecting women's rights in the 21 American republics and to work for extension of women's civil, political, economic and social rights.

Senora Amalia de Castillo Ledon of Mexico, chairman of the organization, attached to the general secretariat of OAS here, says that women of these countries want to vote but that none of the hair-pulling, hatpin-sticking, noisy antics of last generation suffragettes will be resorted to.

The campaign, decided on at the commission's meeting last August at Rio de Janeiro, will be furthered through radio programs, the newspapers, lectures and other local work.

"The revolutionary period is over for women," Senora Ledon said. "Those methods were all right for their times, but this is a time for peaceful constructive work."

Of the 21 nations in OAS, Senora Ledon says 14 have granted women full voting rights. In addition, women of Peru, Haiti and Mexico can vote in local elections. In Mexico, Peru and Honduras she says, equal political rights with men soon will be granted. "In Haiti, it is promised for 1953," she explained, "and in Mexico, the new president promised it in his campaign."

In Colombia, Paraguay, Honduras and Nicaragua women can not vote at all. Colombia and Honduras do not even have permanent representatives on the commission.

"We are planning a campaign in all countries, even where women have the vote," Senora Ledon told me. "We want to see the letter of all legislation affecting women translated into reality. We also want to stimulate the women who have the right to vote to make full use of the privilege." She explained that some women, illiterate and lacking proper food and clothing, have little interest in political rights.

Thousands Affected In Tax Quarrel Over Tips

(Editor's note: Thousands of persons who receive a large share of their annual incomes in tips could be affected by a Boston taxicab driver's claim that the tips are gifts and as such are not taxable. Here is the essence of his controversy with the Internal Revenue Bureau.)

By TOM W. GERBER
United Press Staff Correspondent
BOSTON (UP) — An Irish-born taxicab driver dared the Internal Revenue Bureau today to blarney him out of his contention that tips are "free will offerings," and therefore not taxable.

Theodore D. Belton, 60, believes an Irishman should know a gift when he sees one. After all, the Irish got the best gift ever when the fairies gave them the gift of laughter—tax free.

"I'm not looking for trouble," Belton said. "There's enough of that in the world already. But the way things are going, I could do better with a tin cup on Boston Common than with my taxi!"

The gray-haired World War I veteran says the government takes a big share of the laughter out of his life when it collects 10 per cent of his gross pay as taxes on tips.

Belton feels strongly that whatever his passengers give him over and above the meter fare "is a free will offering on which there's no obligation." When he informed local tax agents that he no longer would pay the tax on tips, he was told that "tips are not gifts" according to bureau regulations.

The revenue cited a case heard in Ninth District Court and upheld by the U. S. Tax Court to prove to him that the distinction between gifts and tips "already has been adjudicated."

"It's a question of service rendered," a spokesman for the bureau's Boston office said. "If one party renders service to another and the second party gives something more than the usual fee—that's a tip. But if someone just drops a quarter in your hand and you have rendered no service, that's a gift."

Belton said he wouldn't mind paying taxes on tips received for carrying a passenger's bags or tying a trunk to his cab. He said he considered that a regular tip—"something special besides your regular job"—but he doesn't expect tax agents to come over to his point of view.

"I think they will keep chasing me," he said, "but I'll stay adamant. I'll fight for what I believe to be the highest court in the land."

The local revenue spokesman said Belton was not obliged to accept the ruling of the Boston office that tips are taxable. It said he "always has recourse to higher authority."

Pungent, odoriferous fumes of white lightning rising from beneath the hood of a Greenville Negro's car prompted officers Saturday afternoon to make a thorough search of the vehicle — and place the driver in jail.

After a short chase on dirt roads near Winterville Pitt County ABC officers halted Pete Hooks, 31-year-old Negro of 1212 Mills Street, Greenville, and found two-and-one-half gallons of illegal spirits under the hood of his car.

Officers said this morning one of the jars was leaking and when the car began to just followed their noses. Hooks was placed in Pitt County jail following his arrest but was released on $300 bond later that night.

The Negro has been charged with transporting illegal whiskey and will be tried in County Court. The automobile was confiscated and will be sold to the highest bidder at a later date.

Actress Faints, Finishes Show

DETROIT (UP)—Actress Bette Davis fainted Sunday night during her first solo in the world premier of the musical, "Two's Company." But she came back to finish the show.

"You can't say I didn't fall for you," Miss Davis told the audience.

Others in the cast of the show which opens in New York in December said Miss Davis had worked 24 hours without sleep before beginning her first role as a singer.

They were so stunned, when she collapsed they were unable to move. A stagehand picked up the actress and carried her off-stage.

Ted Williams May Never Play Again

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP) — You don't need a crystal ball to discern that the baseball names of today are the baseball memories of tomorrow — and that for many major leaguers tomorrow may come in 1953.

One of the greats, Ted Williams of the Red Sox, admitted last week that he probably never will come back after his tour of service in Korea. Lots of others — some of them admittedly — are nearing the end of the glory road.

Among those who face the fact that they have nearly played out the string are such as little Phil Rizzuto, Dom DiMaggio, Jackie Robinson and Johnny Mize.

Silently apprehensive are such as Preacher Roe, Bob Feller, Harry Brecheen, Hal Newhouser and Bill Nicholson.

Annually a long line of players arrives and departs from the major leagues. So you discount the might-have-beens and the hardy-ables. But those named were, in their day, headliners under the big top. Some of them will beat the old fellow with the scythe another year, or maybe two, but they know that soon it is hail and farewell.

Rizzuto admits it when, after aiding the Yankees to a fourth straight world championship, he announces that he probably will retire at the end of 1953. Little Phil is a tired 34. He hit only 253 last season. Financially secure, he won't be one to ride the bench as a utility man.

DiMaggio put his baseball expectancy at "maybe two more years." The "little professor" hit 294 last season and still is one of the slickest fielders in the business. But he feels those day-after-day baseball blues, too.

Robinson has repeated time and again that he will play "only a couple more years." He was one of the Brooklyn sparkplugs, an adept second baseman and a valuable

Cherry-O'Kelly Form Frosh Passing Combo

Illard Yarborough, Paul Gay, Claude King Pace Running Attack; Thomas, Burton, And Tucker Injured In Rough Tiff

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Sports Writer

A heavily-favored East Carolina College football team spotted West-Carolina Teachers College seven points Saturday night before calling on a combination of second-string backs to lead the Pirates to a 21-7 North State Conference victory. The contest was played before 7,500 fans in College Stadium.

The visiting Catamounts, displaying very little regard for pre-game sniping, drove 92 yards after the opening kickoff for their touchdown. That's when the Pirates' second-string backs went to work.

Halfback Illard Yarborough, subbing for the injured Jack Benzle, was the boy who put the Pirates back in the ball game by scoring from four yards out but it was a freshman passing combination of Dick Cherry to Harold O'Kelly which brought the Pirates their actual margin of victory.

The Cherry-to-O'Kelly combination worked twice for East Carolina touchdowns. The first of the two was a 29-yard affair which went off in a very routine manner while the second scoring play was one which even the biggest Frank Merritt might have been proud to claim. Cherry was seemingly trapped far behind the line of scrimmage when he jumped up and out of the hands of three WCTC players to throw to O'Kelly who took the ball on WCTC 20 and simply outran everybody in the defensive backfield.

While the crowd was yelling about the comeback accomplishments of the Pirates, the tough game was taking its toll on both sides. Catawba tackle John Pappas was removed from the game and taken to the hospital with an injured back. The Pirates lost at least three men with injuries that could prove to be very serious. First of all, defensive guard Bobby Thomas reinjured the ankle which had sidelined him for the last two weeks. Then Don Burton, a potential first-stringer who lost out because of a shoulder injury, re-injured the bad shoulder and had to be helped from the field. Finally, George Tucker, the Pirates' 60-minute man and a leading candidate for All-Conference honors, went out of the contest with an injured wrist. The extent of Tucker's injury isn't known yet but it's feared that some bones in his hand are fractured.

WCTC Scoring Drive

The visitors' scoring drive started the moment that Jerry Moore ran the opening kickoff from his own seven to the 15. From there, the 185-pound fullback moved the ball out to the 26 for a first down and told tailback Fred Henry to take over for a two plays. Henry moved the ball to the 38 and saved the running chores back to Moore. Moore carried to the 41, Henry went to the 46, and then Moore took over for two more plays which carried the ball to the East Carolina 42. Henry hit right tackle for two more yards before Burton jumped in the hole to jam up the Catamount ground attack.

Redskins Eke Out Win Over Steelers; Cards Triumph

By EARL WRIGHT
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP) — The National Football League may be Francisco Forty-Niners dig in on headed for its fourth new champion in as many seasons as the San Francisco Forty-Niners dig in on top of the National Conference with a 4-0 record.

Coach Buck Shaw's Forty-Niners, powerful though crippled by injuries, took a two-game lead Sunday by defeating the Chicago Bears 40-16. It was San Francisco's 12th straight victory over the last two seasons and the worst beating ever suffered by Coach George Halas' proud Bears, seven-time champions in 33 NFL campaigns.

The Philadelphia Eagles won the world professional championship in 1949, the Cleveland Browns in 1950 and the Los Angeles Rams in 1951. The Forty-Niners, the only undefeated team in the circuit, may be next because no other club has shown such power and consistency against strong rivals this season.

But San Francisco's victory over the Bears wasn't half as surprising as the 24-23 Chicago Cardinal triumph over the previously unbeaten New York Giants. New York was a 13-point favorite but when the game ended the Cardinals, Giants and Cleveland were deadlocked for 3-1 records.

Cleveland, beaten last week by the Giants, took full advantage of New York's defeat by whipping the Eagles, 49-7. It was Philadelphia's second worst defeat.

The Detroit Lions tied the Bears and Green Bay Packers for second (each 2-2) in the National Conference y rallying to beat the Rams, 24-16, and the Washington Redskins came from behind to down the Pittsburgh Steelers, 28-24, in other games. Green Bay beat Dallas, 24-14, Saturday night.

The Eagles and Redskins have 2-2 records and Pittsburgh is 0-4 in the American Conference. The Rams are 1-3 in defense of their National Conference title. Dallas is last in the National with a 0-4 mark.

The Forty-Niners added quarterback Y. A. Tittle, fullback John Stryzalski, fullback Joe Perry and guard Don Burke to their injury list Sunday.

Perry scored three times from inside the Bear 10 after Albert passed the ball into position. McElhenny, 198-pound right halfback from Washington, gained 103 yards from scrimmage, caught three passes for 33 yards and ran 123 yards with three punts, including a 95-yard dash for a touchdown

State Has Young Football Squad

Raleigh, N. C. — The prospects for 1952 are not the brightest in history at North Carolina State's football camp, but the squad is certainly one of the youngest, up-and-coming groups ever to wear the Red and White. The 70-man squad boasts 26 freshmen, 20 sophomores, 14 juniors and 10 seniors. The average age of the team is 19-years, four months.

Howie Pitt Retains Lead In Southern Conference

RALEIGH (UP) — Duke end Howie Pitt led his teammates do most of the scoring in a 57-0 rout of North Carolina State Saturday, but snaggged a third period touchdown pass to remain the Southern Conference's leading individual scorer today.

Pitt has caught six touchdown passes, five of them from quarterback Worth Lutz and Saturday's from Jerry Barger. His point total is 36.

Tom (Killer) Koller, William and Mary's pile-driving halfback, scored two touchdowns against Boston University to run his touchdown total to five and a 30-point total.

Koller is just two points ahead of Wake Forest quarterback Sonny George in the scoring race. George accounted for all nine points as the Deacons beat North Carolina Saturday and shot his season's total to 28. George has scored three touchdowns, kicked seven extra points and has a field goal.

Halfback Charlie Smith of Duke climbed into a tie with three other stars for fourth place honors in the scorers derby. Smith, Ed Mioduszewski of William and Mary, Joe

By UNITED PRESS

The Catawba Indians, long the scourge of the North State Conference gridiron, moved today into strong contention for the league lead but there was plenty of proof that the top five teams are all stronger than ever.

Ted East Carolina earlier, the Redskins scalped the Appalachian Mountaineers 3-0 Saturday night at Winston-Salem. It was the third straight, hair-breadth loss for the Boone men. Lenoir-Rhyne beat Appalachian 21-0 just a week earlier.

Lenoir-Rhyne was idle last week, still on top on the league standings with two victories and no losses. The Bears take on Western Carolina this week at Hickory.

Catawba meets fourth-place Elon Saturday at Burlington. Third place East Carolina defeated Western Carolina 21-7 at Greenville and the Pirates play weak Guilford this week at Greensboro.

Elon defeated Little Creek Navy 28-25 Saturday.

Tar Heel Player Has Yank Tryout

Chapel Hill, N.C., Oct. 19 — When Freshman Will Frye of Hickory played in the Texas-North Carolina game at end of the Tar Heels two weeks ago, it was a big thrill for the youngster.

But Frye confesses that it wasn't his biggest moment in sports when he trotted into Kenan Stadium with the Tar Heels as one of the handful of freshmen slated to see action at the Longhorns.

His biggest bang, he says, came when he worked out with the New York Yankees in Yankee Stadium and took infield practice with the baseball club this summer. Frye is a top baseball prospect.

The winning time was one hour, 28 minutes, 09.85 seconds.

Going into the final 100 yards Delaney led Ingersoll by 20 yards. Ingersoll put on a final burst of speed and closed the gap, finishing only inches behind the winner.

Chapter 20

The broken piano arrangements were subtle pushes feeling out his defenses. Devereaux's eyes were casual as he watched her balancing on one leg with her middle hollowed out, yet standing with reedlike rigidity, as if a string were running from the top of her head to the floor.

Soon the sudden stretches and acrobatics were over, and the dance mood changed. The piano stopped, and a finger drum started up an African piece. The dancers began sensual, undulating movements.

His eyes fixed on her, deep in the group, but moving in a graceful solo designed only for him. She was brilliantly white in her black leotard. As the tempo grew, the tum-tums beating from the finger drum pierced his defenses. His eyes warmed until they were swimming in a haze.

Not long after, she came out of a dressing room, and crossed the barren loft floor to Devereaux's bench. The detective climbed up on his feet precariously. Something had gone wrong with his machinery.

"I promised myself once that I'd watch you dance," he said.

"Was it all too incomprehensible?" She smiled.

"Over my head, the modern ballet," Devereaux confessed. "Got a hang out of it, though." He took her arm. "You'll have to explain it to me sometime. I was raised on a simple diet of Radio City Rockettes and Pat Rooney, Senior."

They turned off Fifty-ninth Street. Aboard of his Buick, Devereaux motioned to a large illuminated sign that announced: HAMBURGER HEAVEN.

She shook her head. "Not hungry enough, thanks. And I don't eat between meals."

"Then get in. We'll park somewhere and talk."

A half hour had passed, and Devereaux talked like a man in a rush to spend a burden that was perversely accumulating as he spoke and probed. He had the odd feeling that talk of murder and conspiracy was an irrelevant and wasteful business here with the harbor stretching before them.

"That's about all there is," the "You're different," she said, and her eyes were sparkling.

"Different than what?" She signed. "I though you'd never kiss me again."

Devereaux smiled a wan smile. "Had to, finally, I guess. The struggle was too uneven. A man begins with a handicap."

"Handicap?"

"His being a man."

"Oh," she said, with the wisdom of thousands of years of mothers of men.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

The majority of families in this country, according to the last census, own their homes. And every home owner is a potential home seller. Still most advice about houses is geared around the theme of "How to Buy a House."

It seems to be high time that somebody said something about "How to Sell a House." Obviously out of the 48 million existing houses, some are going to have to be sold in order to provide buyers for the one million new houses being built each year.

So when a professional house seller writes a book on how to do it, after 20 years of experience in the field, there's news in what he says. Such is the new book, "House for Sale" by Walter Rostenberg, published by the Stravon Publishers, New York 1, N.Y. ($2).

A wet cellar and a leaking roof are mentioned as the most serious drawbacks in trying to sell a house, but when it comes to dressing up a property in vivid colors, the author issues a warning.

If a house normally would bring $15,000, he says "and the improvements would amount to $4,000, it is doubtful that the seller would realize a price of $19,000 with the improvements. Besides the buyer may not have wanted those improvements; or he may not be able to afford them at the moment."

On the point, except for the paint colors, Rostenberg seems to figure differently than bankers and other mortgage lenders. Under today's financing arrangements it is easier for a buyer to pay for improvements and equipment when they are included in the mortgage on the house, than it ever will be for him to pay for them on short term financing.

Assuming that a buyer is going to be able to obtain a monthly amortized mortgage for 15 years at 5 per cent—which is a safe assumption—he can carry $2,000 worth of improvements on the house by merely adding $15.82 per month of his mortgage payments.

It seems that the salability of old houses might be improved through cooperation of seller and buyer before the contract is signed

READY FOR FLIGHT TO KOREA—F-34G Thunderjets of 27th Fighter-Escort Wing are lined up at Travis Air Force Base, Calif., for hop to Korea via Hawaii to relieve 51st Wing which made first trans-Pacific mass jet flight in July.

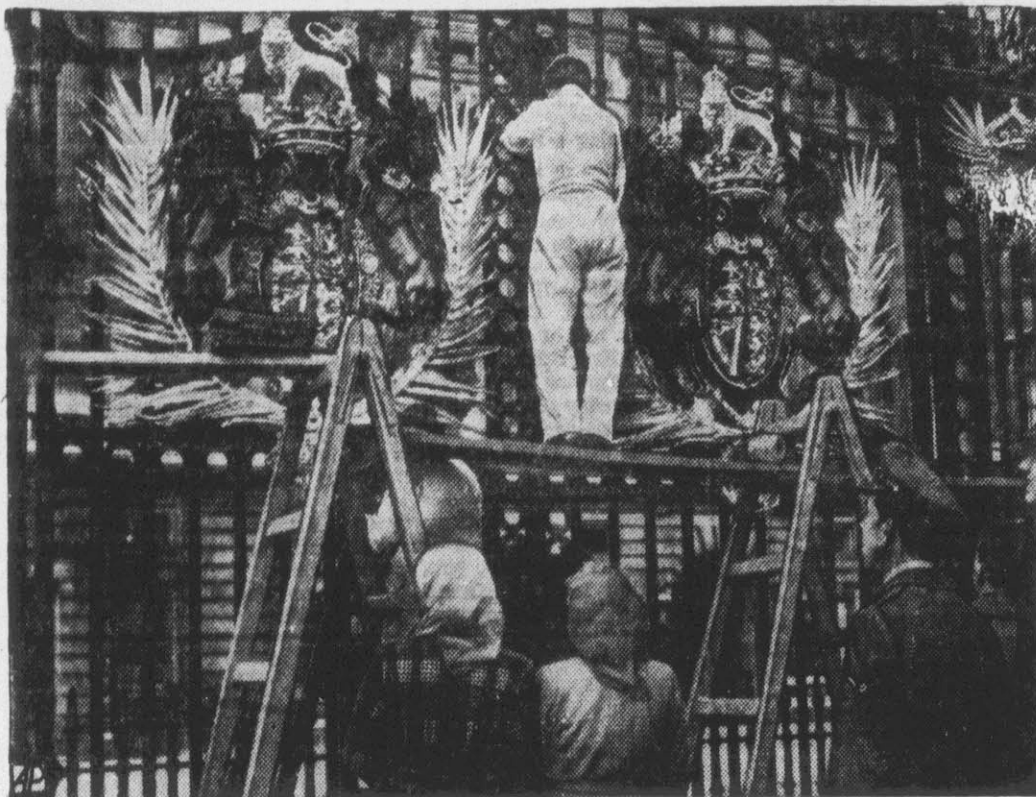

With a preliminary mortgage appraisal made on the existing property, it might be comparatively easy to obtain a larger commitment based on the proposed improvements. Although this might not net the seller a greater profit, it at least could insure the sale at a fair price.

The seller would not lose the sale for the want of a new roof and new heating plant. He would say "The house needs these things and they are going to cost you X dollars. Let's see if your bank will finance them on the regular mortgage. I will then pay for them and charge you the same amount, which will be added to your mortgage."

Rostenberg's Book, however, is packed with sound advice. "The house worth $20,000, but priced at $25,000," he observes, "does not even appear to be a good value to a buyer, and may even frighten some buyers away. Constantly reducing the price of a home after setting too high a price creates doubts in a buyer's mind, and queries as to 'what is wrong with it?'"

"Avoid misstatements," he advises, and in a list of "don'ts" he says "Don't select a price out of thin air." "Don't list the property with a broker at one price and offer it directly at a lower price."

"Don't reject a good, reasonable offer merely because it is the first one made." "Don't expect the broker to act as your attorney"

Antelope Hunt Poses Dilemma

LEWISTOWN, Mont. (AP)—Alan Van Horn doesn't care for "antelope-dogging."

While hunting recently, Van Horn missed an antelope with five shots. The antelope ran toward him. He grabbed the animal's horns rodeo-style and wrestled him to the ground.

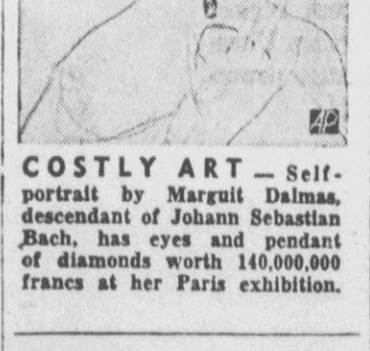

"There I was with one foot on his horns and the other on his neck," Van Horn later related. "The buck was getting mad and I was afraid if I let him up he'd start after me."

Another hunter came along and took Alan off the horns of a dilemma by cutting the antelope's throat.

Stocks And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP) — Stocks moved in a narrow range early today in quiet dealings.

Price movements throughout the list were extremely small either way with a number of leaders holding at their previous close.

Investors appeared highly cautious pending developments in the foreign situation.

Dealings in the first hour were at a snail's pace. Sales in the first hour totaled only 230,000 shares, compared with 310,000 in the same period last Friday.

Barber Oil was one of the few stocks that moved out of the narrow range. It rose 1 1/2 points to 44 on one transaction. Cities Service slipped 1/2 point to 91. Texas Pacific Land Trust at 138 was down 1 1/2 points.

Elsewhere, steel shares displayed easier tendencies. Fractional declines were noted in Bethlehem Steel and U.S. Steel. Automobiles were about the same.

Fractional gains were noted in American Smelting, Western Union, Kansas City Southern, Allied Chemical and International Nickel.

Australia Stands Firmly Beside U.S. On Issue

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP) — Australia declared today it will "stand firm" beside the United States in rejecting forcible repatriation of prisoners as a price for Korean peace.

Australian Foreign Minister R. G. Casey told the United Nations General Assembly that Russia in the past has gone much further than the U. N. in opposing forcible repatriation and official Soviet publications had described the principle during World War II as "expressing the highest act of humanitarianism."

Victor Andrews Belandue of Peru meanwhile proposed an alternative plan for solving the Panmunjom truce deadlock. He proposed that prisoners resisting repatriation be placed in a special zone of Korea under the protection and guarantees of the U. N.

Belandue's plan called for the creation of a special international neutral zone, including all interested parties, countries "enjoying the confidence of the assembly" and neutral countries not members of the U. N., to assume responsibility for the prisoners.

The Peruvian plan, which Belandue put forward informally for assembly consideration, was a modification of an earlier Mexican proposal for U. N. member countries to grant asylum to prisoners resisting repatriation.

Casey told the Russians they had little hope of dividing the Western world—especially the United States and Britain.

"Clearly," he said, "it is the Soviet Russian aim to attempt to drive a wedge between Great Britain and the United States. If this is so, there is a lot of us who have an interest in the matter. British-American cooperation is an avail that has worn out many hammers. It will stand up to a sickle as well."

On the issue of a Korean truce, the Australian foreign minister said: "On this issue we stand firm. We are not prepared to compel prisoners by force to return when they have a reasonable fear of danger to life or liberty. Will anyone deny the decency, the humanitarianism of this stand?"

Soviet foreign minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky's venomous outburst of last Saturday left U. N. diplomats pessimistic about chances of any settlement of the Korean war at this assembly.

'Voice' Is Broadcasting U.S. Political Struggle

BY H. D. QUIGG

NEW YORK (UP) — If you're living behind the Iron Curtain and you want to get the straight goods on the American election campaign, you do it like this:

You get together with a small group of trusted friends in a private home and you pull down the shades. You turn on the radio volume down low, and tune in the Voice of America.

And if the time was Thursday last week, you hear the Voice say:

"Now here is what the presidential candidates are saying as they take their cases to the American people: Mister Eisenhower spoke last night in Memphis, Tennessee—a famous old city on the Mississippi River and a center for Southern cotton and industry."

If you are a constant listener to the Voice of America's short-and-medium-wave broadcasts you get more than just the spot news of what the candidates are saying. You know, for instance, that in America "every four years, in the interval preceding the presidential election, suddenly—bango—the country seems to explode. Insults and the most appalling charges of chicanery fall from the mouths of Republicans and Democrats alike."

But you understand that "there is something in the American character that enjoys—even needs—these periodic explosions. On Nov. 4, a great hush will settle on the nation. The people will be at the polls. Immediately afterwards the loser will congratulate the winner."

"Recrimination and fireworks before the election, unity behind the victor once the people have decided—that is the pattern of American politics. It has happened time and again in the history of the American system."

Iron Curtain listeners know, also, about the "Nixon affair." It demonstrated "the vast power of public opinion in America." After Nixon's opponents accused him of improperly accepting contributions "the American people were perplexed and dubious. So Senator Nixon decided to take his case directly to the people."

Millions of Americans listened to his explanation on radio and television. The affair was given "a thorough public airing so that the people themselves can make up their minds as to who is right and who is wrong."

Voice commentator Raymond Swing said Nixon went through an experience "that never happened before in this country or any country—and which could only happen

Charge Three In Capitol Square Four-Car Wreck

FOUNTAIN—Three drivers face traffic violation charges as a result of a four-car accident which occurred on Highway 222, two miles from Fountain, around six o'clock last night.

No one was seriously injured in the accident, but property damage to the cars involved was heavy.

Patrolman Bruce Jackson, investigating officer, stated that a car driven by Ernest C. Wooten, 39, of Route 1, Fountain, started to make a left turn at the same time a car operated by Samuel Edwards, 26, of Route 1, Fountain, started to pass, hitting the Wooten car and overturning it on the highway.

Some time later, while the wrecked cars were still on the highway a third car operated by John Hardy 20, of Route 1, Fountain, headed toward Falkland, hit the Edwards car, turning it over again, then traveled down the highway hitting a parked car belonging to E. B. Moore.

Wooten was charged with failure to give a hand signal, Edwards with passing without giving an audible warning, and Hardy with careless and reckless driving.

Damage to the wrecked cars was estimated by Jackson at nearly $3,000.

SWITCH — The interesting suggestion has been heard that Governor Scott might appoint Special Judge W.H.S. Burgwyn to the regular bench and name another Special Judge from outside the district. Those familiar with the Governor's use of his appointive power, especially with respect to the judiciary, know the futility of attempting to forecast what he will do. Whoever he appoints as a resident judge will hold office until the general election of 1954. The tenure of special judges is only until June 30, 1953.

Staff Members Of Health Dept. Named To Posts

Two members of the Pitt County Health Department staff were recently honored with their election to offices in state health groups.

Julia Fisher, supervisor of nurses at the local department, was elected president of the 20th District North Carolina State Nurses Association at a meeting of the association in Rocky Mount last week.

John R. Carrington, local health investigator, was elected chairman of the section for Public Health Investigators for the North Carolina Public Health Association at a meeting of the association in Asheville October 9 through 11.

Despite the political differences of the candidates, Voice of America listeners know they agree on one thing. Gov. Adlai Stevenson: "The one supreme difference (between America and Russia) dwarfing all others, is this: America and its leaders believe in God; the rulers of Russia have turned their backs upon God and deny his very existence."

Dwight D. Eisenhower: "What is our battle against communism if it is not a fight between anti-God and a belief in the Almighty?"

The Voice of America broadcasts in 46 languages and has a potential audience of 300,000,000 outside North America. The job it does on the campaign is to explain and clarify—and combat the Communist version of what's going on.

and whose place has been filled by appointment of Justice Thomas Valentine until the election. Election returns will be canvassed and certified on November 25 and Judge Parker has indicated his purpose to take office that same day, probably about mid-afternoon in the Supreme Court room.

SUCCESSOR — He is not expected to resign as Superior Court judge, but when he takes the oath for the Supreme Court the other judgeship will be automatically vacated, subject to appointment of a new judge by Governor Scott. There is possibility that the Superior Court judge might be sworn in at the same time as Justice Parker. Until that time the new judge will probably be designated by a question mark. That district embraces the counties of Bertie, Hertford, Northampton, Halifax, Warren and Vance and there are potential candidates in every one of the six counties. Most frequently mentioned is Solicitor Ernest Tyler of Bertie.

SWITCH — The interesting suggestion has been heard that Governor Scott might appoint Special Judge W.H.S. Burgwyn to the regular bench and name another Special Judge from outside the district. Those familiar with the Governor's use of his appointive power, especially with respect to the judiciary, know the futility of attempting to forecast what he will do.
