ROK Infantry Takes New Crest

Win Complete Control Of Height Against Chinese Fighting Desperately From Deep Bunkers; Rest Of Front Relatively Quiet; Sabres, Fighter Bombers Out In Force

SEOUL, Korea, (UP)—South Korean infantrymen chopped their way to the crest of Iron Horse Mountain on the central front today while U.N. fighter-bombers unleashed a large-scale attack on Communist targets deep in North Korea.

Allied F-86 Sabre jets shot down one Communist MIG-15 jet fighter and probably destroyed another. The Red jets were trying to stop F-84 Thunder jets from attacking Communist railroads, mining areas and troop concentrations.

South Korean 8th Division soldiers won complete control of the hotly-contested Iron Horse Mountain northwest of Chorwon in a hand-to-hand fight with Chinese Communists fighting desperately from deep bunkers.

Republic of Korea commanders reported the hill was "secured" at 1:20 p.m. (11:20 p.m. EST), although the victorious ROK's were receiving Communist artillery and mortar fire an hour and 40 minutes later.

Sniper Ridge and Triangle Hill, North of Kumhwa, scene of some of the bloodiest fighting in a year, were quiet for the first time in two weeks. The Reds abandoned, temporarily at least, their attempts to recapture the strategic heights.

The heaviest Thunder jet attack of the day was launched against a transformer and mining area near Kumi in northwest Korea. Pilots reported the destruction of 16 buildings and said flames sent dense clouds of smoke spiraling a mile into the air.

The Sabre pilot who knocked down today's MIG, the first destruction claim in five days, asked that his name not be disclosed.

Thunder jets also bombed a vital Communist rail route leading to the southeast from Suncheon near the west coast. Marine fighter-bombers struck a Red troop concentration south of Sarivon, leveling 25 buildings. A radar station south of Kumchong was destroyed and F-51 Mustangs bombed 10 warehouses at Kangdong.

Fifty Chinese made a half-hearted attempt to dent South Korean defenses on Sniper Ridge early today, while 20 Red troops made a futile eight-minute probe against American-held Triangle Hill a mile to the west. It was a sharp drop from attempts by thousands of enemy soldiers to recapture the strategic heights north of Kumhwa.

After the Reds' two-battalion attack Tuesday night on Sniper, the 8th Army said, 222 enemy dead were counted, another 258 were estimated to have been killed and 85 were believed wounded.

However, a South Korean regimental commander gave a preliminary total of 645 Chinese killed, wounded and another 600 probably killed.

Eisenhower Hits At Innuendo And 'Slander' By Foes

Charges Opposition Only Wants To Perpetuate Itself, Divert Eyes

ABOARD EISENHOWER SPECIAL (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower campaigned today through industrial cities of New York state, hitting at what he called opposition slander and innuendoes that he would destroy unions.

The Republican presidential candidate told a cheering crowd in Schenectady, home of a big General Electric plant, that his opponents were making such charges because they wanted to perpetuate themselves in power and divert attention from their own record.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, 1948 GOP nominee, was accompanying Eisenhower on the trip from Albany to Buffalo.

The crowd in Schenectady packed streets on one side of the railroad station and appeared to number about 5,000.

A sign facing his speaking rostrum spelled out Ike's initials this way: "Integrity, Know-how, Economy."

Declaring the opposition was peddling bunk, Eisenhower told his Schenectady listeners:

"They say we are against labor and labor unions in spite of the fact that everyone that I know of in this crusade has gone up and down the line preaching for strong labor unions that have the right and the opportunity to bargain for themselves on a collective basis and free of Washington's influence.

Eisenhower said the opposition had been called upon to "defend a record that is indefensible" and had adopted "tactics of desperation."

"I think they would say we are against the 10 commandments," the general said.

Taking up the Republican charge that President Truman had tried to implicate Eisenhower with anti-Catholicism and anti-semitism, the general said he had long ago given up any idea of being bothered about the implications or of answering them himself.

Sixth Hurricane Of Season Seen Slowly Drifting

MIAMI, Fla. (UP)—A small sluggish hurricane, the sixth of the season, drifted slowly today on a northerly course about 600 miles almost due south of Miami today.

The latest big blow, christened "Fox," sent its 85-mile-an-hour winds swirling over a 100-mile area approximately 350 miles south of Havana, Cuba, in the southwestern Caribbean.

The Miami weather bureau reported in its 5 a. m. advisory today that the hurricane is moving at five miles an hour and it will be "slow and erratic" for the next 12 hours while following a general northward course.

Another small but violent hurricane boomed up two years ago in the same area where the present storm was discovered by a Navy hurricane hunter plane yesterday. It lashed Miami and plowed into Georgia, causing an estimated $45,000,000 damage and killing four persons.

Morrison Calls For Rally Under Demo Banners

Cameron Morrison, 83-year-old warhorse of North Carolina's Democratic party, urged the people of Eastern North Carolina to rally under the "snow-white banner of the Democratic party" in a speech yesterday afternoon in Williamston. Crowds estimated between 10,000 and 15,000 people gathered in Williamston for the festival yesterday which was highlighted by Morrison's address, a big parade and a beauty contest and dance. Cam Morrison Speaks To Williamston Guests

Many Thousands Turn Out For Harvest Festival And To Hear Demo Spokesman Condemn Idea Of Republican Win

By MURIEL SHOTWELL Reflector Staff Writer WILLIAMSTON—The "grand old democratic party" was lauded yesterday before a crowd of Martin County citizens following an hour-long parade which was dotted throughout with floats of a political nature.

Between 10,000 and 15,000 persons were jammed together on the streets of Williamston to witness the featured events of the Fifth Annual Harvest Festival which has been in progress since Monday and sponsored by the Williamston Boosters, Inc.

The featured speaker, Cameron Morrison of Charlotte, ex-governor and senator, told the assembled crowd that the economy of the state and nation would be wrecked if the Republicans gained power. He opened his address by saying that such a happy occasion as was in Williamston would not be possible under Republican administration.

He called the Republican party a "stubborn" one, and highly praised Stevenson and Sparkman, saying that they would continue to give this country the type of government which meant peace and happiness.

"Rally under the snow-white banners of the Democratic party and keep good government in North Carolina as well as in the United States," Morrison stated in closing.

The speaker was introduced by Elbert S. Peele, Williamston attorney. Congressman Herbert Bonner spoke briefly, stating that that North Carolina was a first-class state and would remain that way as long as the best people run it, "the best people being the Democrats."

An hour before the parade began, clowns delighted both young and old with their antics. The streets began filling long before

Advise Delay In Selling Carolina Cotton Crop

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Two Carolinas members of the U. S. Senate have advised cotton growers to hold their cotton from the market until prices strengthen.

The senators, Olin D. Johnston and South Carolina and Clyde R. Hoey of North Carolina, appeared on a television program here last night.

They told growers that if they needed ready cash, they should take advantage of government loans. They explained that a farmer needing cash may store his cotton in a government warehouse, obtain a loan up to 90 per cent of the cost of production, and hold his cotton for later sale. In no case would the price be less than 90 per cent of the production costs.

Reinforcements Sent Into Kenya

Venerated Native Chief And Police man Killed By Mob

NAIROBI, Kenya. (UP)—Police reinforcements were rushed to a Kikuyu tribal forest reserve today after hundreds of anti-white Mau Mau terrorists wielding long knives killed a venerated native chief and an African policeman.

Two tribal policemen also were missing after the one-sided forest clash in which the Mau Mau defied the government's stern measures to restore law and order in this British East African colony.

It marked the first outbreak of violence since the government rushed in hundreds of extra troops and police and arrested scores of suspected terrorists under an emergency proclamation issued Monday.

The new attack came when senior tribal chief Nderi, oldest chief of the Kikuyu, sought to break up an illegal tribal meeting.

The first police to arrive at the murder scene arrested 21 persons, most of them elder tribesmen and women alleged to have been at the meeting.

Nderi learned of the gathering of 500 of his tribesmen yesterday, he notified police headquarters at Nyeri township some miles away, where 20 African police under command of a European officer were stationed. He and a companion then went to the gathering accompanied by two tribal policemen. The four fired shots into the air and the meeting broke up. Then, according to police, the chief and his companions "very bravely, but very foolishly" mingled with the tribesmen in an effort to calm them.

Immediately the Kikuyus swarmed on the chief and the African policeman and hacked them to death with long knives known as pangas.

When the police detachment arrived it found the two mutilated bodies. The two tribal policemen who had escorted the old chief were missing.

Justice Critical Of Gov't View On Roanoke Dam

Frankfurter Says Government Speaking Out Of Two Different Mouths

WASHINGTON (UP)—U. S. Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter said today the government is "speaking out of two different mouths" in its efforts to stop private construction of a hydro-electric plant at Roanoke Rapids, N.C.

The Federal Power Commission has awarded a construction license to the Virginia Electric and Power Co. for the project. But the Supreme Court is now hearing arguments by the Interior Department which is trying to stop the construction.

Gregory Hankin, counsel for the Interior Department, told the high court yesterday the federal government should and will build the plant in line with its overall scheme for developing the entire Roanoke River Basin.

Hankin told the court the commission surrendered $75,000,000 of the nation's assets to VEPCO, but Bradford Ross, commission general counsel, said general congressional approval of the 11-project development doesn't necessarily preclude the commission from granting license to private companies.

Ross denied the FPC had previously approved the entire basin development as a federal undertaking.

"The whole thing is, isn't it," asked Justice Hugo Black, "that the commission first approved it as a government project and then a different commission changed its mind?"

The Interior Department and a delegation representing the Virginia Rural Electrification Association told the court the Flood Control Act of 1944 removed the project from the licensing power of the FPC.

VEPCO attorney T. Justin Moore of Richmond countered with an argument that the purpose of Congress in the flood control legislation was to stimulate development of hydro-electric projects by commercial capital and of flood control projects, but not straight power projects, by public funds.

The Roanoke River project would be solely for the development of power and would be connected with flood control only by reason of its relation to the overall development plan.

Truman Asserts Nixon Anti-Labor Says GOP Leaders 'Hate Labor Unions,' Seek Destruction

WITH TRUMAN (AP)—President Truman today denounced Richard M. Nixon as "anti-labor" and declared his party's leaders "hate labor unions and would like to destroy them."

Appealing for Democratic votes in West Virginia's soft coal and steel region, Truman made one of his rare attacks on the GOP vice presidential candidate and declared that the Taft-Hartley Act "can wreck the American labor movement."

In an address prepared for delivery in a rear platform appearance at Wheeling, W. Va., Truman said GOP presidential nominee Dwight D. Eisenhower "picked one of the most anti-labor men in Congress to be his running mate."

The Chief Executive said a provision in the original Hartley bill of 1947, banning industry-wide bargaining, was dropped out of the final version of the Taft-Hartley Act. "but it has not been forgotten."

"The congressman who made the concluding argument on the floor of the House of Representatives in favor of the Hartley bill in 1947 was a young man who showed real promise as a leader in the battle against labor-Rep. Nixon of California," Truman said.

Taking Petitions Around Tonight

Stevenson Still Awaits Russell's Campaign Move

WASHINGTON (UP)—Adlai E. Stevenson's backers kept their fingers crossed today in hope that Georgia's powerful Sen. Richard B. Russell will make a few speeches for the national Democratic ticket before election day.

Russell, who came back to town yesterday after a long vacation in Venezuela, kept his own counsel. As one associate put it, "he's wrestling with his conscience."

The senator avoided old Democratic friends who might bring pressure on him. He wouldn't even accept long distance telephone calls from such party leaders as House Speaker Sam Rayburn.

Democratic leaders are eager to bring Russell into the Stevenson campaign because he is one of the South's most influential leaders. They believe he could go far toward offsetting defections by such party old-timers as Gov. James F. Byrnes of South Carolina and Virginia's Sen. Harry F. Byrd.

Russell took the first step toward joining the Stevenson team earlier this week. He issued a statement saying that while he did not agree with every plank in the Democratic platform, he was "convinced" that Stevenson had the makings of "one of our greatest presidents."

In the same statement, he predicted a Democratic victory this year, and said Republican candidate Dwight D. Eisenhower was losing his appeal because of the "confusing" campaign he has waged.

Trying to coax Russell all the way into the fold, Stevenson last night issued a statement expressing his "great personal satisfaction" at the Georgia senator's kind words.

"I value these comments especially because they come from an American leader who has had a long and outstanding record both as an executive and as a legislator," Stevenson said.

Stephen A. Mitchell, Democratic national committee chairman, lauded Russell as "one of the great leaders of our party." He started to say something more at a Democratic rally here yesterday, then checked himself in full stride and turned to other matters.

Russell is in somewhat of a strange position insofar as Stevenson is concerned. He is perpetual quarterback for Southern efforts to block any move toward what Dixie senators term federal encroachment on states' rights. He calls the signals when Southern legislators arise to filibuster civil rights legislation.

Suggests Truman Make Recording

NEW YORK (UP)—Roger Brown, president of the Bronco Records Company, sent the following letter to President Truman Wednesday.

"I understand that you may be temporarily unemployed effective Jan. 20, 1953. I should like to suggest that you consider recording a number of your own piano favorites for national distribution."

Brown said the "Missouri Waltz," the "Black Hawk Waltz" and "Beautiful Ohio" would be best sellers and would add considerably to the President's income.

Federal Grand Jury Indicts H. Gruenwald

WASHINGTON (UP)—Henry W. (The Dutchman) Gruenwald, Washington mystery man, was indicted by a federal grand jury today on charges of contempt of Congress.

The indictment, returned here, cited 22 counts in which Gruenwald refused to answer questions on a House Ways and Means subcommittee investigating tax scandals.

The indictment cited three different occasions on which Gruenwald appeared before the subcommittee—Dec. 12, 1951, Dec. 20, 1951, and Jan. 29, 1952, during which he was allegedly contemptuous.

The indictment charged that among other questions he refused to answer was whether or not he had ever discussed any tax cases with an official or employee of the Bureau of Internal Revenue or whether he knew Charles Oliphant, former chief counsel of the bureau.

Jaycees Begin Doorbell-Ringing Drive To Circulate Petitions Calling For A Referendum On City Manager Form Of Government; Seek At Least 2,000 Signatures

By JESS FOINDEKTER Reflector Staff Writer

When doorbells start ringing all over Greenville tonight, citizens needn't be unduly alarmed—it'll only be local Jaycees calling on registered voters of the city.

Following a special meeting of the club at 7 o'clock, members of the Greenville Jaycee organization will begin circulating petitions calling for a referendum on city manager form of municipal government for Greenville.

The General Assembly has provided that a referendum on city manager government may be called in any city if a minimum of 25 percent of the registered voters in residence sign petitions requesting a referendum.

J. B. Kittrell Jr., general chairman of the city manager petition committee, said today the club will definitely begin circulating petitions tonight. If 25 percent of the voters—which is approximately 2,000—sign the petitions, the proposal will be put to a city-wide vote at a later date.

Jaycees President Charles Horne has called a special meeting of the club tonight at 7 o'clock in the Rotary Building. "The success of our city manager petition is at stake," Horne stated today, "and I want to urge every member to be present."

Responsibility of mapping plans for the project has been assigned to Gene Skinner, chairman of the petition circulating committee. Skinner reports that Jaycee members will be divided into groups to work each ward in the city.

Names Of Voters "We have obtained the names of all registered voters in each ward," Skinner declared, "and they will be contacted in person within the next few nights." He added that wives as well as husbands are being asked to sign the petitions.

The city manager project was adopted by local Jaycees several months ago and much effort has been expended to hear both sides of the issue before definite steps were taken to begin circulating petitions.

At several successive meetings, representative mayors and city managers from surrounding cities have been guest speakers at Jaycee meetings. Local government officials have also been present to give the pros and cons of city manager government.

Voters Decide But the signing of petitions does not automatically install a city manager in Greenville—that will be entirely up to the citizens. The petitions only provide for holding a referendum to decide whether local voters favor that type of municipal administration in the city.

When the issue is put to a vote, the decision to accept or reject the city manager proposal will lie in the hands of the voting public.

Police Disrupted Tranquil Scene

NEW YORK (UP)—Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Moorhead were spending a quiet evening at home. Elmer was reading a book, Renee, his wife, was watching television.

The tranquil scene ended when police arrived and said the TV set Renee was watching, along with a $50,000 worth of other TV sets, jewelry, cameras, etc., in their apartment belonged to someone else. The couple was charged with criminally receiving stolen property.

In that inquiry, Gruenwald has asked that the grand jury cease to question him about his political connections with three Republican senators, including GOP vice presidential nominee Richard M. Nixon.

Federal Judge Matthew T. Abruzzo has set next Tuesday for hearing arguments on Gruenwald's request.

The other two senators are Owen Brewster of Maine, who was defeated for renomination in the GOP primary, and Milton R. Young of North Dakota. Brewster had testified before a House committee last spring that he used Gruenwald as a "conduit" to channel $50,000 contributions each to the 1950 primary campaigns of Nixon and Young.

Brewster had testified he borrowed the money from a Washington bank and sent it to the two senators through Gruenwald.

She told of many of her experiences and of the places she visited.

Miss Fiewellen also made side trips to Italy, Switzerland, France and England and described her travels in these countries also. She showed many slides, commenting on each one and making the members feel as though they were taking a European tour.

LAURINBURG—Miss Lois Meredith Tunnell and Grady Herring Floyd were united in marriage on October 4 in church ceremonies which were conducted by the Rev. Charles Mercer, assisted by the Rev. J. Herbert Miller.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Carson Tunnell of Swan Quarter, and the groom is the son of Mrs. Grady Herring Floyd and the late Mr. Floyd of Fairmont.

Mrs. E. M. Guest, organist, and Miss Margaret King, of Georgetown, S. C., soloist, presented a program of nuptial music prior to the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white Chantilly lace and nylon tulle gown fashioned with a satin bodice and an off-shoulder yoke of illusion edged with hand-appliqued lace.

Miss Betsy Howard of Laurinburg, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a ballerina length dress of leaf green nylon over satin with a strapless bodice and matching stole. She carried a crescent bouquet of chrysanthemum tuberosum and miniature ivy. Her headpiece was a matching circle of flower petals.

Mrs. Linwood Tunnell of Baltimore, Maryland, and Mrs. Robert Tunnell of Greenville, sisters in law of the bride, were the bridesmaids. They wore gowns similar to that of the maid of honor of ivory colored nylon tulle and carries crescent bouquets to match that of the honor attendant. Circlets of leaves were worn in their hair.

Miss Carol Ann Floyd of Fairmont, niece of the groom, and Miss Tnn Tunnell of Greenville, niece of the bride, were flower girls. They were dressed in white nylon net over satin and carried bouquets of pastel flowers.

Dr. Hal S. Floyd served his brother as best man. Ushers were Willie B. Webster, P. R. Floyd Jr. of Fairmont, and Dan Floyd of Chapel Hill.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Tunnell wore a dress of blue lace with matching accessories and a corsage of a purple throated orchid. Mrs. Floyd wore an aqua dress with rose accessories and a pink orchid corsage.

Immediately following the ceremony the parents of the bride entertained at a reception, after which the couple left for a wedding trip to New England. For traveling the bride wore a matching dress and coat of burnt sugar and navy wool. The couple will make their home in Fairmont, where the groom is associated with a concrete products company.

Mrs. Floyd is a graduate of Swan Quarter high school and Woman's College. She has taught in the schools of North Carolina since her graduation. Prior to going to Fairmont, she taught for two years in Robersonville school.

The groom attended State College and served with the United States Army for six years during World War II.

On Saturday the Girl Scouts will offer for sale thousands of boxes of Girl Scout cookies. Through the sale of these baked products local troops will receive a proportionate amount for use in their local groups. This is the only drive for funds which the Girl Scouts conduct during the year, and the public is requested to lend them their support. The Scouts themselves will deliver the cookies, for which they have been taking orders for some time.

Then on Sunday afternoon at 4:30 P.M. at the Memorial Baptist Church, an impressive candlelight service for the Scouts will be conducted. At this time the Scouts will attend in full uniform and have a part in the service. Parents and friends of the Scouts are invited to attend. Brownies will also participate.

Party Platforms Are Traced By Speakers At A.A.U.W.

Dr. W. E. Marshall and Dr. George Pasti, of the social studies department of the College, led a lively discussion on Democratic and Republican party platforms at the meeting of the American Association of University Women Monday night at the College.

Mrs. Walter Krausnick, president of A.A.U.W., presided; and Dr. Elizabeth Utterback, program chairman, introduced the program and the speakers.

The two leaders took up the main planks in the current political platforms and compared them point by point, with Dr. Pasti presenting the Republican platform on a particular topic and then giving Eisenhower's stand on the matter. Dr. Marshall presented the same point for the Democrats and gave Stevenson's public statements on it.

They pointed out the numerous items on which there is little disagreement, and then contrasted the position on more controversial questions, such as civil rights, the Taft-Hartley Act, taxes, "Socialized" medicine, and reduction of government expenditures.

Dr. Marshall said that President Truman had already submitted to Congress 176 of the 272 proposals of the Hoover Report on economy in government, but that only 27 of these had been passed by Congress, the other 155 having been defeated by an almost unanimous Republican vote plus the vote of a handful of very conservative Democrats.

The program was followed by a short business meeting.

Service League Organized In Gritton Tuesday

GRITTON — In keeping with its growing pains the little town of Gritton has been feeling lately, a group of women met Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Tom Gower for the purpose of organizing a Service League.

Over their coffee cups much information and advice was given by a group of Greenville women, who came over for the meeting to explain the organization and outline projects. Among these ladies were Mrs. Karl Pace, Mrs. J. T. Little, Mrs. W. S. Bost, Mrs. R. C. Stokes Jr. and Mrs. E. H. Willford, all of whom are efficient workers with the Greenville League.

Mrs. Gower was elected president of the Gritton league. Other officers elected are vice president, Mrs. S. E. Coffman; secretary, Mrs. Charles R. Kline; treasurer, Mrs. Glendel Tucker. A committee of Mesdames Milton Hart, Joe House, Fred Bumgardner and L. A. Butler was named to work out a constitution.

The league will meet on each first Wednesday in the month, the place of meeting to be set later.

As a project the community playground was up for discussion at this meeting. Seventeen members were signed up as charter members. Others than the above named were Mesdames Roger Johnson, John Looney, W. M. January, Charlie Gardner, W. E. Rasberry, A. C. Fletcher, Claude Hart, Archie Rogers, and Al Hawkins.

Democrats Of N.C. Are Out To Clinch A Party Victory

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
United Press Staff Correspondent
RALEIGH, N.C. (UP)—Of the South's tier of supposedly safe Democratic states, North Carolina is among the most solid. But the 1952 political campaign has brought aroused Democrats in this state out stumping like they haven't done in 20 years.

Aligned against the powers that have commanded overwhelming Democratic majorities in past years is a combination of hard work by the Republicans, a growing but loosely-organized Citizens for Eisenhower movement and the popular appeal of Gen. Dwight Eisenhower himself.

A record registration has nearly 1,000,000 voters eligible to cast ballots in this state and reliable estimates are that 850,000 or 900,000 votes will be counted. North Carolina has 14 electoral votes.

Even Gov. W. Kerr Scott, one of the most vociferous supporters of the Stevenson-Sparkman ticket, has refused to predict by what margin he expects the Democrats to win in North Carolina.

On the other hand, Eisenhower supporters are generally hopeful, but not optimistic.

Both sides expect Eisenhower to make the best showing by a Republican presidential candidate in North Carolina since Herbert Hoover's victory in 1928.

Aware of the Eisenhower appeal and the gathering GOP support, the state's Democrats "rolled up their sleeves" in September and have campaigned vigorously in all parts of the state.

"We have found evidence of hard work by the Republicans," state Democratic chairman Everett Jordan said. "But we have worked harder, and North Carolina will deliver its votes to Stevenson-Sparkman."

A "lack of enthusiasm" for the national party platform by Sen. Willis Smith has been the only chink in a smooth front of down-the-line support of the Stevenson-Sparkman ticket by North Carolina officials. And Smith has said he will vote the straight party ticket

Nov. 4 despite his differences. Most of the state's press is supporting Stevenson, but there are notable exceptions. In Charlotte, the center of Eisenhower's strength both papers support the general.

Eisenhower made a favorable impression and drew large crowds as the first Republican presidential candidate to campaign in North Carolina. Stevenson sent regrets that his schedule did not permit a visit to this state before Nov. 4 and his running mate, Sen. John Sparkman, was forced to cancel two scheduled appearances — the latest this week because of illness.

Vice President Alben Barkley was the ranking Democratic speaker. On the congressional district level, Republicans are outrightly optimistic about chances in one race and are hoping for upsets in two others.

Honor Society Accepts Juniors

Alice Jackson of Godwin and Delphia Rawls of Robersonville, juniors at East Carolina College, were accepted this week as members of the home economics honor society Phi Omicron. An initiation ceremony took place Tuesday night in the Flanagan auditorium on the campus.

Members of the organization are chosen because of the excellence of their scholastic records at the college. The two initiates were the only members of the junior class to be chosen this fall from majors in the home economics department.

Bottle-Breakers Said Hastening Dime Soft Drink

bottle-breakers, anne WINSTON-SALEM (UP)—The folks who break soft drink bottles are hastening a crisis in the industry and may bring on an increase in the price of pop.

This was the word yesterday from members of the North Carolina Bottlers' Association. The NCBBA began its annual meeting last night.

The five-cent soft drink may vanish from the American scene within the next few months, the bottlers warned, unless bottle-smashing is curtailed drastically.

For one thing, the bottlers say, the price of glass is going up. Soft drink bottles now cost $2.50 a case and are going up 5 per cent on Nov. 1. That makes it hard for the bottlers to hold the price line.

Other factors putting the bottlers in a tight spot are cost of labor increases, the high price of sugar—highest since 1921—and increased costs of mechanical equipment. One bottler charged that the rising costs of sugar is being brought on by the government. Sugar quotas are cut by the government to keep prices up, he said, adding that if prices were allowed to seek their own level, there wouldn't be any problem.

Other bottlers said the only alternative to price increases of individual pop sales is increased efficiency of operations.

Bible Words to Live by

My favorite Bible verse is JOHN 3:16.

"For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

My reasons for thinking of this as my favorite verse are as follows:

First of all, it sums up the attitude of God the Creator as one who is interested in the things He has created, exhibiting a kindly and loving spirit toward mankind as a part of His creation. This benevolence of God has been exhibited through many centuries, and is one of the stabilizing aspects of the Christian faith.

It also points the way by which man can approach this God in whom we believe. Through the person of Jesus Christ we may come into close association with God, and thus be redeemed from destruction and placed upon the way of eternal life.

Play Reviewed At Faculty Club

The Faculty Wives Club of East Carolina College met on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. J. D. Messick.

Assisting Mrs. Messick as hostesses for the evening were Mesdames J. O. Derrick, E. R. Browning, William Young, Ed Carter, William Honey, Paul A. Toll, L. W. Tracy, Norman Cameron and John R. Gordon.

Mrs. Hubert Coleman, president, presided over the business, at which time an announcement was made by Mrs. Harold Jones concerning the visit of the Bloodmobile at the college and an appeal for helpers was made. Mrs. J. B. Cummings also asked for volunteers for the Community Chest Drive. New members were introduced and welcomed into the club.

The program was presented by Dr. Elizabeth Utterback, who reviewed the play "The Wisteria Trees" by Jonathan Logan. This play was performed in New York in the spring of 1950 by Helen Hayes. It is an adaptation of "The Cherry Orchard" and deals with the passing of the aristocracy as the ruling class of the south.

During the refreshment hour, individual pies with ice cream, salted nuts and spiced tea were served. The table was decorated with a centerpiece of fall fruit and foliage.

Special guests for the evening were Mrs. R. M. Garrett, Miss Lucille Rice, Miss Christine Wilton and Mrs. F. O. Reynolds.

Strength for the Day

A HUMAN LIFE
During the war there was aboard a small naval vessel a particularly lazy, careless sailor. He was dirty, always in trouble, never in the right place. Nobody liked him.

One morning a petty officer noticed him absent from where he should have been working. He could not be found. The alarm spread, and soon all the officers and men not on watch were combing the ship. The master-at-arms searched every bunk; the boat-swatch's made piped shrilly from bow to stern. But there was no trace of the missing sailor.

The ship was near Greenland. No man could live more than a few moments in those icy waters. The sailor had already been missing longer than that. Officers and men looked at each other and spoke in low tones, recalling good times, never before mentioned, about their lost shipmate. Those who had been most severe to him suddenly felt ashamed.

Then, just as the ship was turning back for a hopeless search, they found him—fast asleep in a tiny space behind a locker, where he had crawled to escape from work. A moment later life aboard ship was normal again.

But things were not quite the same. A few men at least had learned a lesson: that no one, no matter how contemptible and worthless he seems, is without his value and worth to those around him. Humanity, however low it may appear, is still sacred.

Amendments - Two No; One Yes

Among other things North Carolina voters will decide upon on November 4 are three proposed amendments to the constitution of the state.

Many Pitt County voters, we are afraid, have given little if any thought to these three constitutional changes.

Changing the constitution is serious business. An individual should not go into the balloting booth and vote blindly for or against a constitutional amendment without knowing what the amendment entails.

Of the three amendments which are proposed for the North Carolina constitution at this election, The Reflector is of the opinion two of the proposals should be rejected. One, we feel, could serve a worthy purpose as a part of the state constitution.

The first proposed amendment provides for raising the state and county tax limitation for the general fund from 15 cents to 20 cents on $100 property valuations.

To that proposed amendment The Reflector is opposed.

It can not be denied that some of the poorer counties of North Carolina are having difficulties meeting their needs from monies now coming into the general fund. Some are now levying the full 15-cent tax allowed under the constitution, and feel they must have more general fund money for proper operation. On the other hand there are counties such as Pitt which find themselves in more favorable financial circumstances and do not levy a single penny of ad valorem tax for the general fund.

We believe those counties which need the extra money could find the answer to their problem more reasonably in revaluing property and bringing antiquated tax valuations up to date rather than through a constitutional amendment which would allow every county in the state to levy up to 20 cents on $100 valuation for general fund purposes.

The second proposal which advocates authorizing the governor to fill by appointment vacancies in the General Assembly by all means should be rejected by the people of the state.

Such a move would take representative government out of the hands of the people and vest it in the party executive committees of the individual counties, and in the Governor's office.

At the present time if vacancies occur in the membership of the General Assembly, writs of election are issued by the governor to have the vacancies filled by the elector. Under the proposed amendment, if such a vacancy should occur, the county executive committee of the party of which the legislator was a member would recommend to the governor an individual to fill the unexpired term in the General Assembly, and the governor would immediately appoint the individual recommended by the county executive committee.

Such a method would do away with the necessity of having a special election in such an event. But it would likewise do away with the peoples' right to elect all the members of the General Assembly of North Carolina. It would give local party executive committees power to name the county's representative to the General Assembly rather than taking the matter to the people of the county involved.

It would amount to representation by appointment rather than representation by election. We don't think it would be in the best interest of the people of the state.

The third proposed constitutional change, which is the only one we believe is in the best interest of the people of North Carolina, provides for appointments by the governor to fill vacancies in the Judicial Department that are not otherwise specially provided for.

Actually the amendment provides that if a vacancy occurs in the department less than 30 days before the general election, the vacancy would be filled by the governor and the appointee would serve until the next election which is more than 30 days after the vacancy occurs.

If a vacancy occurred too close to the general election and it was impossible or impractical to nominate a candidate, print ballots and provide for the details of the election, under the present provision there would be no way to fill the vacancy.

The new "thirty day" provision which the amendment provides would be the answer to the question.

In our opinion amendments one and two should be rejected by the voters of North Carolina in the November election, and amendment number three should be approved by the voters of the state.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—Harmonious and workable relationships between the White House and Congress will be more likely through the election of General Eisenhower, even if the legislative branch should remain in Democratic hands after November 4. For some odd reason, this is an important factor which has been almost neglected by the GOP including Ike.

This conclusion does not derive from a partisan approach or a one-sided analysis of possibilities, since most veteran members of House and Senate agree, although not always for publication.

It is based on the actual voting records of the present membership, which has not enacted a single major Fair Deal measure, although the Democrats have had nominal control of the executive and legislative arms.

PROBABLE ANTAGONISM—In view of the realignment expected to result from the November election, and Governor Stevenson's progressive endorsement of Truman's more extreme policies on domestic and foreign questions, it is probable that the next Congress will be more antagonistic to the Missouri man's heir than it would be toward a new personality in the White House.

Unfortunately, and only because he deemed it necessary in order to capture the support of certain elements in the electorate, Stevenson has had to take on Truman's opponents as well as friends inside and outside Congress. Again unfortunately for the Democratic nominee, the outgoing Chief Executive has made more enemies in Capitol Hill than any predecessor since Andrew Johnson, who escaped impeachment by a single ballot.

CONCLUSIVE PROOF—The Congressional and Presidential attitude toward the McCarran Immigration Act furnishes conclusive proof of that tragic fact. This legislation was endorsed by The National Catholic Welfare Conference, the American Federation of Labor, the American Legion and similar reputable organizations.

Almost as many Democrats as Republicans, including Stevenson's top campaign aides, voted for passage over a Truman veto.

And now, simply because Eisenhower is giving nominal endorsement to three GOP Senators who backed the bill, Truman horrifies the nation by denouncing Ike as "anti-Semitic and anti-Catholic." It must make Stevenson weep.

FRUSTRATING—A mathematical examination of the lineup in the next House and Senate furnishes courtroom proof of the theory that an Eisenhower election offers greater hope for breaking the long and dangerous feud between 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue and the eastern end of that famous deadlock thoroughfare.

The Republicans will have at least 44 members of the next Senate, and it is possible that they may command a majority. At least 30 men from the South usually vote with the GOP on most controversial matters.

It is this combination which has frustrated Truman almost since he took office, saving for many foreign aid measures. On this issue the southerners favor the Truman-Acheson program.

PERSONAL ATTACKS—Truman, and Stevenson by proxy, has antagonized at least a score of southern Congressmen and Governors by personal attacks on them. Although using more gentlemanly language in his foray into Dixieland, the Illinois Governor has kept alive these feuds.

He has, contrary to his original campaign plan and hope, had to run as a sectional rather than a national leader. Otherwise, he might have forfeited the Missouriian's approval.

Thus, the anti-White House alliance, assuming that a Democrat sits in what Truman calls a "white jail," will become more rather than less formidable in a "Stevenson Administration."

To paraphrase the accusation so frequently leveled at Ike by his two Presidential opponents, Stevenson would be the "captive" of a hostile, legislative group. And veteran members of Congress are not the kind of men who can be awed by threats or won over by a display of sweet reasonableness. Stevenson will find them far tougher than he did the Democratic members of the Illinois Legislature from Chicago.

PRACTICAL FEPC ACT POSSIBLE—Not does the prospect of a White House-Congress understanding mean that the legislative clock will be turned backward. Indeed, it is possible that it may result in enactment of a batch of long-deferred but constructive measures, although the final form may not satisfy extremists.

After years of futile Presidential promises, a practical FEPC Act may be passed along the lines of the Republicans and southerners' demand—namely, Federal action only in the event of state failure, and reliance upon education rather than compulsion. Likely also is a labor-management law that will establish a healthier balance among the conflicting interests, including the consumers.

Federal assistance in the fields of health and education, although not in the manner vainly insisted on by Truman, may be forthcoming. However, the states and local communities rather than Washington will decide on policies and spending. The Taft faction, although it is not generally appreciated, has always been ready to make these compromises.

In short, these great problems may be settled instead of being juggled in the political air for the sake of preserving vote-getting issues.

ROK, Plus "C" For Courage

Somebody Told Me

By I. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Last night I talked to John Clark and Henry Harrell for the latest developments on the November 4th election. John is Chairman of the Pitt County Democrats and Henry is Chairman of the Pitt County Board of Elections. But instead of talking about November 4th, both men were putting more emphasis on October 25th, Saturday, the last opportunity to register before the election. Naturally Mr. Clark is plugging hard for Stevenson, but in keeping with the national drive, he first says, "Get out and register—and vote!"

How about 1948? What happened then? Pitt County has a population of about 66,000 people. How many of these people are eligible voters is a figure I do not have. But in 1948 there were approximately 9,000 who voted. In 1948 602 Pitt County residents voted for Thomas E. Dewey. Percentage-wise, this figures 6.7.

"How about going out on a limb," I asked Mr. Clark, "and predicting how many Pitt Countyans will go for Ike?" Mr. Clark quickly got off the spot by saying, "I think possibly eight or nine per cent will go for him. We are attempting to get 15,000 people to vote in the county. Republican votes will be up, but ours will also be up in proportion. Say, for example, that Ike gets 1,000 votes. Then we should get 12,000. If Ike gets 1,000 votes, 900 of them will be Greenville votes."

"Tonight there will be a big Democratic rally in Robersonville, which was well covered in last night's Reflector. Previous to last night's rally, there have been three others in the county. "The response has been excellent," Mr. Clark emphasizes.

"Today," Mr. Clark continued, "I even had a man come in my office to buy some of the handbills we have been distributing." He was referring to the one showing the possessions of a Pitt County farmer in 1932, featuring a Hoover car; and the 1952 county home, car, tractor and home appliances in contrast.

Elections Chairman Harrell says that there is no doubt about a new record being set in registration. "There has been more interest shown in the absentee ballot than ever before, despite the fact that there were more absentee ballots in 1944 because of the number of men in the service.

"A voter is qualified for an absentee ballot if he is registered, will be out of the county, or physically unable to go to the polls. This time we will have more civilian absentee ballots than ever before."

And I thank Mr. Harrell and Mr. Clark.

TRAVEL—Charles Parker, director of state advertising, just back from a contact trip to New York and Washington, reports that prospects for travel, including vacation and tourist business, continue very good. This is especially true of motor travel.

Parker found evidence of some uncertainty in other lines of business, resulting in a slightly depressed stock market, based to some extent upon doubt about outcome of the election. In the field of travel trade, however, there seemed no doubt about maintenance or probable increase of the high level set this year. The objective of Parker's trip was to ascertain what the travelers are likely to want in the way of accommodations and recreation. The information will be passed along to North Carolina resort operators and caterer. In order to make sure that the visitors to this state get the kind of treatment they expect.

POLITICS—Parker avoided as much as possible discussion of politics, but with the election just two weeks off the Yankees could not resist temptation to find from a North Carolinian in position to know what is going on in this part of the South. New York Republicans are counting on Eisenhower carrying several Southern States, one or more if not all of the following: Virginia, South Carolina, Florida, Louisiana and Texas; and they had heard that the General had an even chance in North Carolina. They were warned not to be too optimistic about any of these reports.

SPECIALTY—Representative Harold Cooley told the Wake County YDC rally Monday night that in 1932 his law office at Nashville specialized in filing petitions in bankruptcy; now it is expert in filing income tax returns, and probably has forgotten how to prepare bankruptcy papers. He thought that illustrated pretty well the change in economic status "since the Democrats came into power."

NECKTIES—Bill Sharpe, publisher of the State weekly magazine, is distributing novelty neckties identifying the wearer as a Tarheel. The basic fabric is gray upon which has been printed a pattern of green feet with black spots on the heels, similar to the ensign of Tar Heels Afloat. Sharpe, who was for many years director of North Carolina state advertising, says he has had many requests for some souvenir or decorative item, and finally decided to sponsor the Tarheel necktie. It is expected that these ties will have more permanent appeal than the present fad for elephant and donkey decorations on neckwear. That type of decorations—or at least half of it—will be outmoded after November 4.

CHRISTMAS—The mails are being cluttered with advertising material about Christmas gifts, and cards on display in stationery and department stores warn that Christmas is just two months away. Another reminder comes from the U.S. Forest Service which has advertised the third annual sale of Christmas trees on Roan Mountain for Thursday, October 23. This is a unique auction sale, in that the item sold is the right to cut from specified areas on the slopes of Roan Mountain small spruce and fir trees and branches from big trees. The cutting, to be done under supervision of forestry specialists. The area "units" contain from 100 to 1500 saleable trees, with wholesale on-the-stump prices starting at 25 cents each and running up to several dollars. When the Christmas tree auction was inaugurated three years ago there were five buyers. This year 54 have been notified of the sale. It may well work out that some Christmas trees used in North Carolina will come from Oregon or Washington, while trees set up in Chicago or St. Paul may have come from North Carolina. Anyway, time does move along and Christmas is just two months from Saturday—and next year just a week later.

BRANCH BANKS—Further evidence of the trend toward branches of big banking institutions, instead of numerous small independent banks is found in the advance release on agenda before the State Banking Commission this week. There are

FACTS ON THE RED HERRING (Rocky Mount Telegram)

As the campaign clamor rises to a new crescendo each day, the prospective voter will have increasing difficulty hearing the truth about the real issues because of the dinful distractions of political noises.

For instance, the question of communists in government and whether the present administration did or did not move energetically enough to clean them out, is certainly a major issue. Any voter seeking factual help in penetrating the political fog surrounding this question will find it in the current issue of The Reader's Digest in excerpts from an interview with Senator Richard Nixon on the Alger Hiss case, which was originally published in U. S. News and World Report.

One of the most important questions asked Senator Nixon in the interview was whether he thought Hiss did any harm while he was in the government. Senator Nixon's answer was: "Incalculable harm. This is shown by the testimony of John Peurifoy and Sumner Welles to the effect that if the Russians got hold of even one of the documents of the hundreds which Hiss turned over to Chamber, they would have broken the American secret State Department code. They did get those documents and that means that they did break the code."

The interview also recalls that President Truman made the famous "red herring" statement not once but several times, the first time at a press conference shortly after Hiss testified on August 5, 1948. When asked whether the statement was withdrawn later, Senator Nixon replied: "Withdrawn? It was not only withdrawn—it was made again and again. It was made seven times (by the President) during the course of our investigation, at press conferences even after the indictment."

A number of other questions which many persons have been wondering about since the presence of communists in government began coming to light are asked and answered in the interview.

Were there many other communists with Hiss in government? How much help did the Justice Department give the House Committee in the investigation? What about the Committee's work? What about "McCarthyism?"

The interview provides broad study material pertaining to one of the major issues of the current campaign.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
Business executives rank first as credit risks. It is disclosed in a new study reported in the University of Illinois' "Current Economic Comment," by Robert S. Hancock, instructor in marketing.

While occupation alone is not a complete guide in granting credit, it is a factor and a number of studies of the relationship between occupations and credit ratings have been made. This most recent one was conducted by the university's Bureau of Economic and Business Research in cooperation with the Associated Credit Bureaus of America.

It confirms an important point: that the steadiness of income, rather than the total, has much to do with the way people meet their obligations.

In Professor Hancock's rating of 42 occupations, accountants and auditors; independent retail managers; chain store managers; physicians, surgeons and dentists; engineers; farm owners; and utility workers followed business executives in that order.

Clergymen, surprisingly, ranked 17th, but ahead of public officials (19th) and lawyers and judges (22nd). Skilled factory workers ranked 12th, but unskilled factory workers were 31st, just after enlisted soldiers and sailors.

Of the 42 occupations, farm laborers ranked last. In general, men in occupations in which they change place of work often were ranked lower than those with more steady employment. However, no occupation was ranked poor even the farm workers were in the "fair" bracket.

The rankings show some interesting changes from a study made in 1941. Business executives led then, followed by army and navy officers, chain-store managers, skilled factory workers, office workers and railroad trainmen (who are now 14th). Physicians went from 12th to 5th place over the decade. Farm owners went from 7th to 10th place, an evidence of the rise in farm prosperity. Policemen and firemen dropped from 20th to 25th place and traveling salesmen from 17th to 23rd.

Newspapermen were not included in either study.

SEEK MORE COLLEGE COURSES FOR BUILDERS—A drive to persuade colleges to offer more degree and extension courses for both established builders and young men eager to enter the building industry has been launched by the National Association of Home Builders.

There are now 44 degree courses, 28 short and 27 night courses offered in various aspects of home building and merchandising, but the association would like to see enough more to give every aspirant a chance of a college education.

SEES DELAYS AHEAD IN CORSET DELIVERIES—

Efforts of the corset industry to get early department store orders for spring are viewed pessimistically by the National Retail Dry Goods Association's publication "Stores."

The industry's spring market week is scheduled for November 17 to 21. Buyers for smaller stores have said that they are too busy with Christmas planning to attend and buyers for larger stores have indicated they will come out until January to place orders. This, "Stores" predicts, will lead to a congestion of orders then and delayed deliveries in the spring.

BOOKLET TELLS HOW EXCHANGE OPERATES—

The workings of a commodity exchange and such terms as "hedging," "spot" and "futures" puzzles many people. Into this area of lack of information, the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange, 113 Pearl St., New York, has tossed a 37-page booklet telling how it works. It is entitled "Seventy Years of Service" and costs nonmembers 25 cents.

DISTILLERS DISAGREE ON MARGIN PROMISE—

Big whiskey distillers aren't seeing eye to eye these days. One of the largest has notified retailers that it will increase mark-ups 7 per cent if Congress lowers the 10.50-a-gallon tax. Other big firms are annoyed and alarmed; annoyed because the first company got a promotional jump on them; alarmed because they think Congressmen will hesitate to reduce excises unless the full amount is reflected in retail price reductions.

The first company's answer is that is announcement will get all liquor dealers working for a tax cut. The others' rejoinder is that they are working for it anyway.

FROZEN: Quick frozen whole breaded shrimp in a basket is being introduced by Southcoast Quick Freezing & Packing Co., Miami, Fla.). Packages weigh ten ounces.

BELTS: Conveyor belts of coated glass fabrics, said to be unaffected by most chemicals and to resist slicking and high and low temperatures, are being made for industry (by Voss Belting & Specialty Co., 6445 N. Ravenswood Ave., Chicago).

Hal Boyle's Column

By SAUL PETT

For Hal Boyle
HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP)—Every now and then an obscure little man rises up in wrath and smites the sounds and sights of a world that is too much with him.

In doing so, he becomes a hero to many of us who share his convictions but not his courage. Such a man is Frank P. Walsh. Unable to submit any longer as a captive audience, he rebelled. He shot his television set. He shot it dead, right through its 12 1/2-inch eye.

But Walsh paid the price of martyrdom. He lost his job. "And I'm still in my wife's doghouse," he said. "It's very cold."

Mrs. Walsh, mother of five children ranging in age from 5 to 15, can't explain her husband's precipitous action. "The set may have been on a little too loud," she conceded. "But always before, when he complained of the noise, I turned it down and that was that."

Mrs. Walsh looked forlornly at the empty corner of her living room so recently occupied by her television set.

"I feel so lost without it," she said. "It cost $258 and I don't know when we can get another one. We had it two years and only made the last payment this August."

Mourning her loss, Mrs. Walsh said television had been part of her life. It was her habit, she said, to turn it on at 10 in the morning for an early movie while she "cleaned up in the living and dining room."

From 11:30 to 12, she watched "Strike It Rich" while she "got the kids' lunch ready." Then came "Bride and Groom," "Love of Life" and "Search For Tomorrow."

"I almost always turned it off at 12:45 and didn't turn it on until 3 o'clock for just one-half hour of 'The Big Payoff'!" Mrs. Walsh said. "Then I kept it off until the early show movie came on at 6:15. From then on, I used to keep it on until I went to bed."

Now we come back to Frank Walsh, who is 38, tall and thin. He used to work nights for a private detective agency and by day he did electrical jobs. Frank liked the fights and the detective stories. He had nothing against television except when it disturbed his sleep.

Several times before the fatal incident, he said, he had felt like shooting the set when the sound shook his early evening naps. "Fin ly," he said, "It happened. Sunday night I awoke hearing somebody scream, 'Hey, Abbott!' and I got nothing against them. But I was mad, not being able to sleep. I figured the easiest way was the quickest."

I walked out of the bedroom and leaned over the rail overlooking the sunken living room. My wife and all the kids were there. "I told them to move over and about 15 feet away. Caught the tube in the upper right corner.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—One of the most decided changes, and one of great importance to nutrition in the diet of Americans, is the increased use of milk products.

Present-day consumption of milk in the United States averages about 250 quarts a year per person, or 2 1/2 cups per day, says Dr. Esther F. Phipard of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics.

Though milk production has increased very little in the U.S. in the past 10 years, and the number of people has increased by more than 20 million, more milk is now being used as human food than in previous years, when more skim milk was fed to farm animals or wasted.

"People are getting milk, but often in different forms, using more whole fluid milk and whole milk products, such as ice cream, canned milk and cheese," Dr. Phipard explained. She added that great advances have been made in using the part of milk below the creamline, such as non-fat dry milk, skim milk drinks and cottage cheese. The skim milk drinks include chocolate milk and buttermilk.

Americans now use for food approximately 70 per cent of the skim milk produced, compared to only 50 per cent in the early 1930s and in the 1920s, she says, and consumption of practically all milk products, except butter, is higher today than before World War II.

Dr. Phipard says milk is by far the most economical food for calcium and is a relatively cheap source of good quality proteins, riboflavin and many other nutrients. Milk products, outside of butter, today are contributing about three-fourths of the calcium and nearly half of the riboflavin in the national diet.

"For children, a quart of milk a day is recommended for growing bodies, strong teeth and bones," Dr. Phipard says. "Adults may well use two or three cups a day for health and well-being. Few other foods give so much nutritive value for the money."

Sale Of Legion's Home To Be Settled By Post

Pitt County Post 39 of The American Legion, a final decision will be made relative to the sale of the Legion Home property in Greenville.

During the business session that followed the post's monthly supper meeting at the Legion Fairgrounds Wednesday night, an investigating committee previously appointed reported and recommended that the property be sold.

Immediately a controversial discussion arose, with some of the members endorsing the committee's recommendation for sale while others just as vehemently opposed the idea.

Decision Postponed
For the past several weeks the post has been engaged in comprehensive investigation and debate regarding the Legion Home, and it was suggested at the meeting that the final decision be postponed until next month.

But at that time, post members agreed a definite decision will be made as to whether the Legion property shall be sold or retained for post use. At present it is being operated as a public dining room. It was brought out at the meeting that terms of office for three members of the Pitt County Fair's board of directors has expired. The three members are J. Howard Moye, D. J. Whitchard, Jr., and W. T. Kyzer.

Directors Re-Appointed
As a consequence of that revelation, the same three members of the board of directors were re-appointed for another term — if they are willing to serve.

Lengthy discussion came on the suggestion that a board of directors for the local post be appointed to expedite transaction of such business as "would not require a vote of the entire post."

Post Commander W. Conner Eagles appointed a committee composed of Ed Harris, F. M. Stokes and Lester Turnage to make a detailed study of the proposition and report on the feasibility of such a plan at the next meeting.

Sergeant-At-Arms
Ed Harris was also appointed to serve as post sergeant-at-arms during the remainder of the fiscal year.

Commander Eagles announced that a free lunch will be served in the fairgrounds at 12 o'clock, November 11, for all veterans who present their 1952 Legion membership cards.

The post as a body lauded F. M. Stokes for his initiative in establishing and maintaining a post concession stand during the week of ship cards.

Sale Of Defense Bonds In County Said Progressing

Sale of Series E, H, J, and K United States Defense Bonds in Pitt County for the month of September, 1952, totaled $49,412.50. Of this amount, $46,412.50 was in Series E and H (combined); none in Series J Bonds; and $3,000.00 in Series K Bonds. This sales announcement was made today by County Defense Bonds Chairman Waldrop based on the monthly sales report from Allison James, State Director of the U.S. Savings Bonds Division, in Greensboro.

The total figures for North Carolina's 100 counties were as follows: Series E & H (Combined) $2,793,786.50; Series J Bonds $86,544.00; Series K Bonds $317,500.00; totaling $3,197,830.50.

Chairman Waldrop stated that September has been the most active month since the close of the War for the U.S. Defense Bonds program in North Carolina. The Payroll Savings Drive from September 10th to December 15th is going full blast. Person-to-person canvasses are underway in a majority of North Carolina industrial firms. These canvasses are designed to call the attention of employees to the advantages of the Payroll Savings method of saving money regularly through the purchase of U.S. Defense Bonds.

The Production and Marketing Administration is cooperating to the fullest with the Defense Bonds Program in publicizing the U.S. Defense Bonds Farm Machinery Plan. This Plan briefly is to purchase a sufficient quantity of U.S. Defense Bonds annually during the productive life of a farm machine to replace that machine when it is worn out.

Grange Adopts Farm Policy For 1952 At Session

RALEIGH (AP)—A major four-point agricultural policy for 1953 was adopted by the State Grange yesterday as it ended a three-day convention here.

The policy advocates:
1. High standard of living and general welfare for all farm families.
2. Programs of education for all farm families.
3. Conservation of soil, water and forest resources.

4. Balanced land use program. The Grange members urged that farmers be given equal bargaining power with other segments of the economy through cooperative marketing, multiple price systems for commodities that can use it, use of marketing quotas when need is indicated, by two-thirds of the growers voting in a referendum, and government price supports when needed.

A number of committee reports were adopted. The education program called for a teacher salary schedule of $2,600-$4,100 a year for "A" certificate teachers in view of the critical shortage of teachers, enforcement of compulsory attendance laws, consolidation of schools and administrative school units where practical, and continuation of the 30-pupil load per teacher.

The Grange Tobacco Committee urged continuation of the support of tobacco at 90 per cent of parity. The Grange members also approved:

Expansion of rural electrification, telephones and farm cooperatives; appointment of a Grange committee to study freight rates; continuation of agricultural conservation payments; establishment of a commission to study water rights and laws; development of inland ports and waterways in the state; removal of tax inequities on farm machinery; proper care and facilities for the mentally ill; foster home for dependent children and homeless old people stream sanitation; and an across-the-board sales tax except on basic foods which are now exempted.

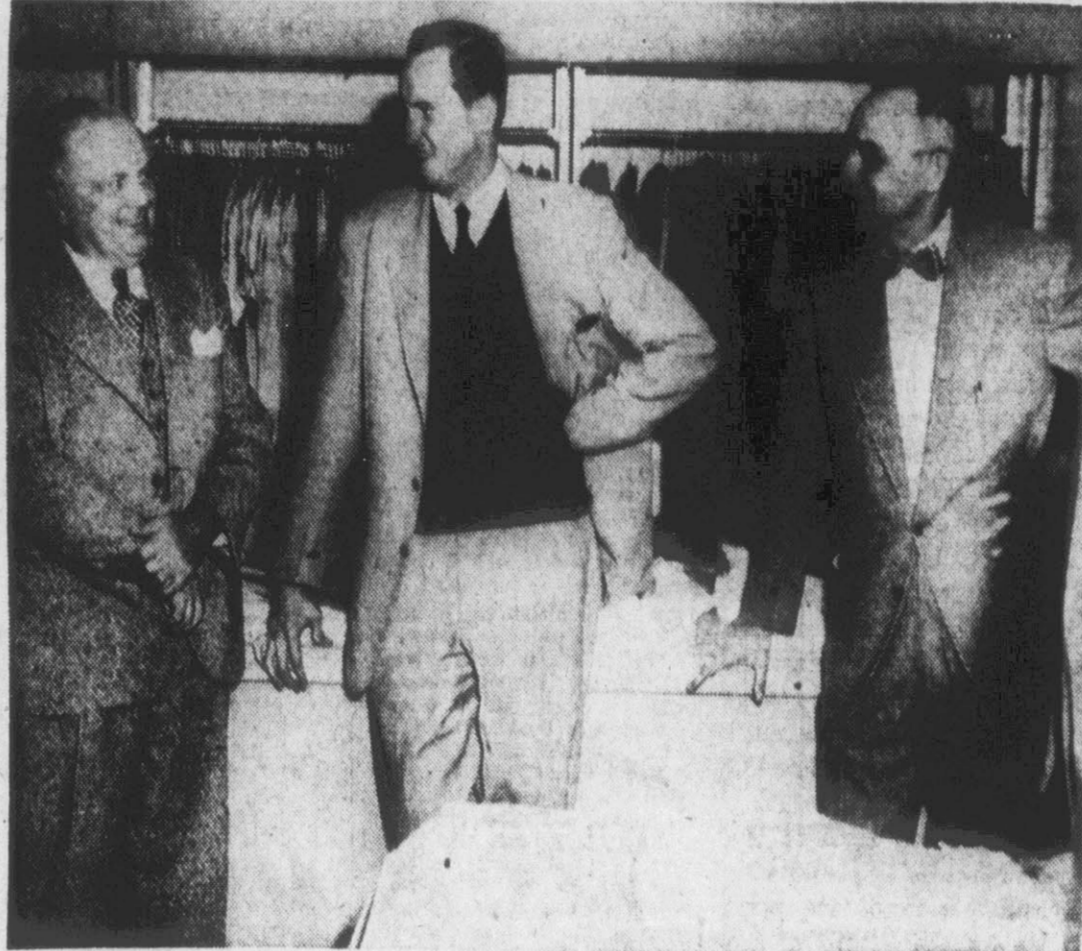

Kinsmen Slated To Greet Veep On N. C. Visit

CHARLOTTE (AP)—When Vice President Alben Barkley arrives here tomorrow for a political speech, he will be greeted at the airport by almost 100 Tar Heel kinsmen.

Paul R. Younts, chairman of arrangements for the Democratic rally, said the Veep's cousins will come in a caravan from Rowan County, from which the Kentucky Barkleys' forebears moved westward a century ago.

Vice President and Mrs. Barkley will be guests at a dinner tomorrow night, after which he will speak at the Charlotte Armory. At the conclusion of his speech,

Campus County Clubs Organized This Week

Organization of county clubs on the campus of East Carolina College for the current school term was completed at a series of meetings following an all-student assembly Tuesday morning of this week.

College President J. D. Messick discussed with students various problems related to campus life. The Student Government Association's campus "Clean-up Campaign, now in progress, was explained and the cooperation of students requested by Robert L. Robinson of Franklin Springs, Ga., president. The Varsity Men's Glee Club, conducted by Dr. Kenneth Cuthbert of the department of music, sang at the opening of the assembly.

The county-club programs in the public relations activity of the college were evaluated by President Messick before he presented Alumni Secretary James W. Butler, director and coordinator of the clubs.

Butler announced the schedules of meetings and the development of a program of work for the clubs by a council of club presidents. to be composed of the leaders of the twenty-three groups which represent individual counties, groups of geographical areas, and state clubs. Publicity, assistance with the annual High School Day on the campus, and alumni contacts are among major objectives of the clubs for this year, the coordinator told East Carolina students.

Full slates of officers and faculty advisors were chosen at the club sessions which followed the assembly.

Curiosity Gets To Wild Goat

COLUMBIA FALLS, Mont. (AP)—A wild, Rocky Mountain billygoat apparently decided to butt into the progress of civilization near here recently when he came down from his elevated den for a two-day visit.

The billy watched construction workers building a 125-foot tower on a new 230,000-volt power line to Hungry Horse Dam.

For reasons known only to himself, the goat grew so curious that he inched his way up to within 15 feet of the workers at one point before turning tail and heading for his home grounds.

Errors Surveyed In Dept. Stores

CHICAGO U.P.—A University of Illinois survey shows that the failure of department stores to exploit their sales advantages has helped chain stores and mail order firms cut into their business.

The consumers in areas served by five midwestern department stores were questioned about recent purchases, why they shopped, criticism of the store being surveyed.

The survey found that department store merchants were falling to exploit one of their best sales arguments — the convenience of purchasing related merchandise in one place. On the average, only one out of five customers bought any two of the survey items in the same store.

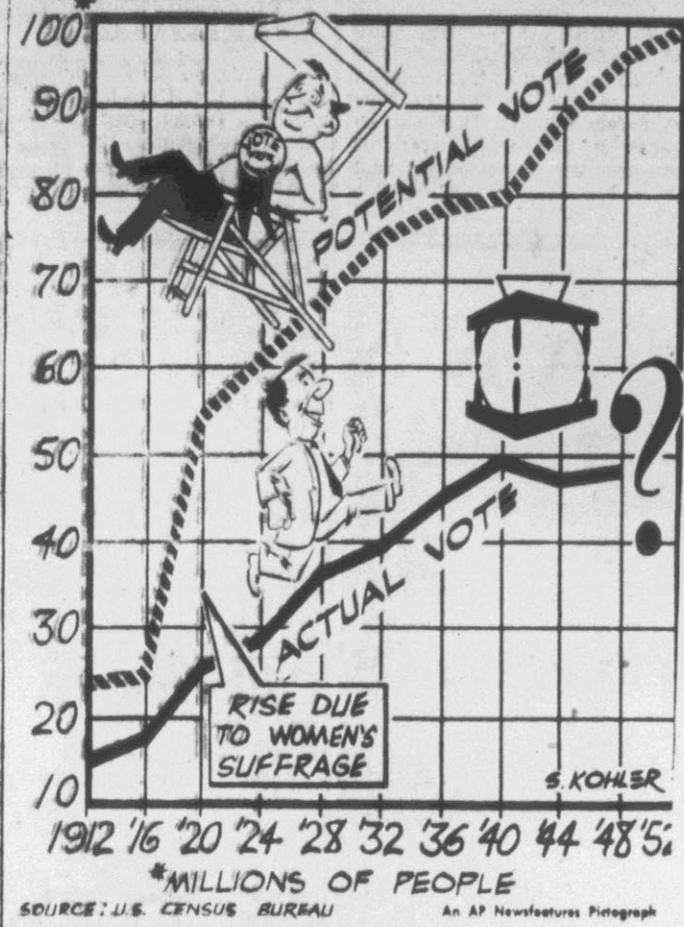

Although 80 per cent of the customers had charge accounts, only 15 per cent used them regularly.

Parking facilities appeared to be a major complaint, with "slow service" also mentioned frequently. "Poor salesmanship" and "high prices" also were frequent criticisms.

But the stores appeared to have the reputation among customers of being "quality" establishments, known for their fair dealing.

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

To be plastered, or not to be, the walls and ceilings of today's house present a question that hinges largely on economics.

One reader had his heart set on plastering his new house until he got the bids. Now he's reconsidering some kind of wallboard.

But the stability of plastered walls has such a reputation that many people refuse to consider substitutes. And much can be said, too, for dry wall construction, in addition to its economy. In fact so much has been said for dry walls since World War II, a period in which their popularity has boomed tremendously, that every time wallboard is mentioned the plasterers are sure to be heard from.

And you can't blame the plasterers on that score. Knowing the virtues of their material and workmanship, they can't remain silent when the advocates of wallboard say it never will develop cracks the way plaster does.

The plasterers' retort, beyond cracking back about improperly butted joints in wallboard, is to remind us that correctly mixed and properly dried plaster virtually reverts to being heard from. Any structural settlement cracks, rightly repaired, stay repaired—strength of your plaster by 50 per cent. Tests have shown that a plaster coat of three-eighths of an inch is only half as strong as a house, or an addition to a house, could do well to re-examine the advantages of plaster. Although it has taken on somewhat of a luxury complexion under today's building costs, when it comes to subcontracting the lathing and then paying for the traditional three coats of plaster, you can figure your house probably is going to last a long, long time.

The deep-seated public preference for plaster shouldn't be overlooked in considering the resale value of the house. One of the most successful builders of luxury homes on the north shore of New York's Long Island recently built himself a house with dry walls, but in all of the homes he sells he uses plaster.

Another man, building a fire-safe home for himself, was content with dry walls, but used a plastered ceiling.

However, there is one thing to bear in mind when deciding on plaster coat of three-eighths of an inch corners on the quality of the job. Metal lath calls for a full three-quarters of an inch of plaster. Gypsum lath needs a minimum of a half inch. To skin an eighth of an inch from either of those thicknesses will reduce the strength of your plaster by 50 per cent. Tests have shown that a plaster coat of three-eighths of an inch is only half as strong as a half-inch coat.

The Gypsum Association, which represents the manufacturers of plaster ingredients, points out that the homeowner works no hardship on the plasterer by insisting on a good plaster job. This organization has found that "not more than $15 can be saved on an average home if the plaster is skinned one-eighth of an inch below the required half-inch thickness."

Furthermore, any such saving of $15 can be penny-wise and dollar-foolish, since repair costs on a bad plastering job can run into hundreds of dollars in labor and material costs.

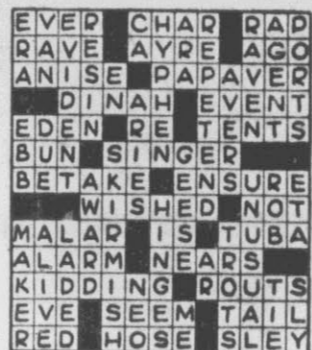

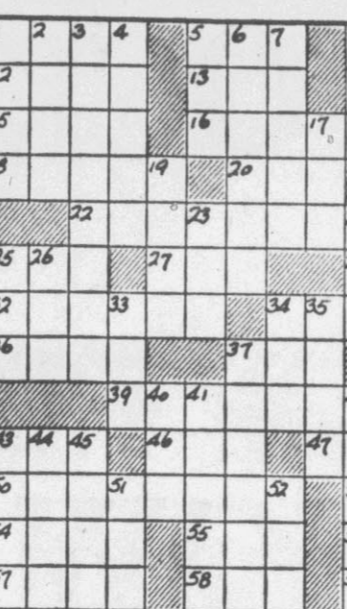

Whether you plan to build a house or finish some rooms in the attic, it is worth while to appreciate some of the art involved in good plastering. For one thing, you can't hurry the curing or interfere with it. Experts say thermal shock causes more plaster damage than any framing movement.

In hot weather, windows and doors must be closed after a plaster job is done to prevent a "dry out." This trouble is caused by hot air currents sweeping over the plaster. It shows in soft and crumbly patches with a light chalky appearance. The only way to handle it is to fog-spray the areas until they take up no more water. This is done about every two hours until the plaster sets, but too much water cannot be used.

Another trouble is a "sweatout." This occurs when plaster sets too rapidly preventing contained water from evaporating. It happens mostly in periods of continued high humidity and results in walls remaining damp, dark in color and soft. This calls for ventilation and heat. If it isn't checked the plaster can take on a musty smell and lost its strength.

NATO Partners In Quarrel Over Fishing Rights

Greece — close military partners in NATO — are trying a patch up a neighborly quarrel over fishing rights in the historic Aegean Sea.

Every now and then the Turkish coast guard fires on and captures a Greek fishing trawler on charges of poaching in Turkish coastal waters. Sometimes a fisherman is wounded. Small fines or a month's imprisonment may follow.

The bickering goes on despite a recently signed agreement between the two countries regulating fishing off the Turkish coast. Neither the Turkish nor Greek parliament has ratified this as yet, and it's likely to be revised at further talks.

It's not openly admitted by either side but in the background is a Turkish attempt to control widespread smuggling including drug traffic, carried on by well-organized groups. The smugglers, informants say, use high-speed fishing trawlers.

Islands Waive Fees For Visas

MANILA (AP)—The Philippines government has approved a foreign office proposal to exempt tourists from $15 visa fees to encourage its tourist trade with the United States.

The recommendation was made after a survey showed 39 countries required no visas for Americans, 14 did not require passports, while seven others issued visas free of charge.

Helping Others Makes Full Life For This Nurse

GREENVILLE, Miss. (U.P.)—A motherly-looking "lady in white" says the confidence people gain in nurses "sort of does something to you inside."

Miss Ilene C. Greene has been on the job for 32 years and she is convinced she couldn't have found a better way to spend her life than doing public health work.

One of the reasons the white-haired Miss Greene likes her job so is that it "is helping people who need help and who appreciate what you can do for them."

She was graduated from nursing school here in 1920 ready "to see a little of the world." That wanderlust carried her to Ellis Island, New York, for her first job. There she met immigrants who were entering the country for the first time.

Stern With Patients
"Sometimes I couldn't understand what they said but it wasn't hard to understand what they felt when they were sick and a little scared, too," she recalled.

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW!

POTBELLY IS A MAN WITH AN IRON WILL—WHEN HE GOES ON A DIET NOTHING'S GOING TO MAKE HIM BREAK IT.

BUT DEAR, YOU'VE HARDLY EATEN A THING FOR DINNER! YOU'LL BE STARVED—
NO! I'M GAINING TOO MUCH WEIGHT. I'M CUTTING DOWN ON FOOD AS OF RIGHT NOW!

BUT ALONG ABOUT MIDNIGHT WATCH HIM BEND IT A LITTLE...

...UH—JUST GRABBING A SNACK BEFORE BED. ANY MORE OF THAT COLD TURKEY AROUND?
Thanks to MRS. W. D. UPDYKE, 1020 E. MAIN ST., REESBURG, WISC.

Notes Progress

Miss Greene notes that there has been a "great deal" of progress in public health work since she returned here 11 years ago after 20 years of roaming the nation as a nurse.

"Among the Negroes, it is particularly so," she said. "I find much less superstition than existed 11 years ago."

Miss Greene keeps up with the latest advances in the field of nursing by attending college clinics and by outside studies.

Her top job today is making house-to-house calls to help individuals with health problems. She trains midwives and follows up on their practices, making blood tests, giving pre-natal and

Says People Are In Too Big Rush

ST. LOUIS AP)—"People nowadays don't slow down enough to really enjoy themselves."
That's the opinion of August F. Gus) Kuhn who ought to know. He is retired after 29 years as head waiter at the Statler Hotel here. "The old times were the good times," Kuhn says. "Now everything's hurry, hurry. People didn't used to do that. They didn't have as much money to spend, so they took more time about spending it."

The 70-year-old Kuhn who came to the United States from Saxony, Germany, in 1905, also observes "people are less polite today than they used to be because they're always in such a hurry."

Needed Mansion To House Family

CLEVELAND, O. (U.P.)—Peter Baruzzi, 57, always wanted to keep his family together, but the lack of room plagued him until he discovered that buying a mansion would solve everything.

Baruzzi, an immigrant carpenter, owned his own home but found it too small for himself, his wife, his wife's mother, his son and the son's wife and two daughters and their husbands. Then of course there are the two small children and two puppies—which aren't so small any more.

Joseph first saw the ad that stated the Baruzzi's toward ownership of a $500,000 mansion built by Guerdon S. Holden and which they bought for $33,000.

The family moved in on the place they had bought by mortgaging their old home and cleaned it up. The house has eight wood-burning fireplaces, a kitchen on the third floor and several on the first floor; pantries and servant's dining quarters; a laundry dumb-waiter; a buzzer system, seven bathrooms, two lavatories and a coal-vapor heating system.

It's outside the Baruzzi's realm of worry, but the estate lies across the line between the municipalities of Cleveland and Bratenah. That will be a headache for the tax experts.

MORALITY TRIUMPHS
OMAHA (UP)—Customers telephoning wagers to a betting center here would have done better to hang up when a strange voice answered. The morals squad raided the establishment and answered the phone, casually taking bets.

LANDMARK IN HISTORY

1635. ROGER WILLIAMS' HOUSE, Salem, Massachusetts.

Features
 THIS OLD house on the corner of Essex and North Streets in Salem, Massachusetts, was the home of Roger Williams, a Puritan preacher, in 1635. He came over from England, hoping to be able to preach and to worship God in his own way. He was a sincere Christian and preached not only to the settlers but also to the Indians. He went to their villages, learned the Indian language and was beloved and trusted by them. Gradually, due to his divergence from the strict letter of church law, he became so unpopular with the elders that he was forced to flee from his home one winter night to escape arrest and deportation to England. His friend, Chief Massasoit, sheltered him in an Indian village until spring. Then, with a few faithful followers, he crossed the border into Rhode Island and, in 1638, established the city of Providence. Here, all comers were welcome to establish homes and worship God as their consciences dictated.

Stevenson-Owned Newspaper Will Endorse No One

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (UP)—The Bloomington Daily Pantagraph, the newspaper in which Adlai Stevenson owns 25 per cent of the capital stock, said today it will not endorse either Stevenson or Dwight D. Eisenhower for president.

In a lead editorial the newspaper said it was "naturally prejudiced" in Stevenson's favor but also is prejudiced "in favor of the Republican party" at this time.

"We will not make a choice because we feel that we are much too close to one of the candidates in this election to make an objective decision," the editorial said.

Shortly after the governor's nomination on the Democratic ticket in July the normally Republican Pantagraph declared itself undecided but favoring a change of administration. Today's editorial echoed this attitude but offered admiration for Stevenson.

"Adlai Stevenson, our colleague, is now seeking the highest office in the land," the editorial said. "We are naturally prejudiced in his favor for we know him to be a man of great capabilities—a man whose character and intellect fit him for the highest responsibility."

"At the same time we will freely admit another prejudice—a prejudice in favor of the Republican party" at this juncture of our history.

The editorial did not discuss the qualifications of Eisenhower.

Sum Is Given For Mills' Family

Chief of Police Guy C. Langston has received a $100 bill and a note suggesting the possibility of more such gifts from other sources, for the family of the late Jesse Mills.

The donor's accompanying letter expressed sympathy for the family and the hope that others might contribute to such a fund.

Policeman Mills was killed in line of duty last August 16.

The chief turned the $100 over to Mills' widow.

"This gesture was another evidence of the good spirit of the people of the community," Langston said.

TOUGH COP

By JOHN ROEBURT

Chapter 23
Devereaux tried the door of the attic circus mechanically, rattled the doorknob as he reread the lettered sign set on the inside of the glass door as if rejecting its message. The sign read: "Closed Tuesdays."

He had turned away, wondering where a pugilist turned restaurateur might be found on his free day, when the familiar blue sedan suddenly loomed in his vision. Buloff's car stood across the street. It was parked and unoccupied, but it clattered at Devereaux like a live thing. He had missed spotting it in his approach.

The detective walked a few paces below the restaurant door, worked the slide handle of an iron Florentine gate that let into an alleyway, then moved quietly into the depths of the alley.

Devereaux put hands to the unlocked window, paused, looked around him with involuntary guilt, then began to raise it slowly. He was stock-still, just inside the room, adjusting his sight, when deafening sound, like a rush of water against his eardrums, the blow toppled him over. He sat on the floor askew, in a momentary paralysis not conscious, and felt rather than saw a vaulting silhouette vanish through the open window. Soon he was back on his feet in a rising wave, then out in the alley with his gun drawn and pointing.

The alleyway was empty. Across the street, an electric delivery wagon filled the place quitted by Buloff's blue sedan. Devereaux looked up the street vainly. The blue sedan had pulled away and vanished.

Devereaux climbed back through the window. He was dry right to the base of his throat and a sense of portent was a boulder in his stomach.

In the far corner of the room, deep in the shadows, he found Lippy on the floor propped against the wall.

Devereaux looked at the figure moodily for some time, then removed his hat in a slow, mechanical reaction to the sublimity of death.

An hour later, Devereaux pushed through the street door of the Attic Circus; he was flanked by Captain Anders and Solowey. Anders was saying, "I want the whole story, Johnny, every word of it, in triplicate, and all of it over your signature." His fingers pressed into Devereaux's arm. "You'll also have to put your reinstatement papers into the works right away, so that you can copper with more warrant than the Department's sentimental feeling about you."

Solowey panted with Devereaux's racing stride. "Sad about Latimer, he puffed."

"Uh-huh," Devereaux agreed huskily.

Devereaux said nothing, letting a picture construct itself in his mind.

If it was Buloff, Devereaux said, Buloff might have found Latimer dead, just as I did. Devereaux unlocked the Buick. They sat wordlessly for a while, then Devereaux said, Longo, Castle, Latimer, Buloff, and Phillips. His voice marveled. "A weird, mismatched quintet. A half-literate ex-boxer, a perfumed critic, a hate publisher, an ex-insurance detective turned salvationist, and a cheap dip. What made an odd assortment like that dance to the same tune?"

Solowey observed dryly, "Your mismatched quintet is a duet now, Phillips and Buloff. And one of them is your killer." He added as an afterthought, "Unless there is a sixth person we have not encountered yet."

"Funny," Devereaux said, "but Jennifer Phillips seems a curious irrelevance now. No bearing on the case whatsoever, as it shapes up."

Solowey was shaking his head doubtfully, and Devereaux's tone quickened. "You're about to remind me that the girl's story was the touchstone for everything that happened subsequently. That my visit to Cora Jennings' room and the violence from then on became part of my experience because the girl approached me with a story one night."

Solowey nodded, and Devereaux continued, "Okay, granted. But even if the girl had never come to me that first night, Longo would have been there, in the Hotel Orleans rifling a dead woman's effects the next day. And whatever existed between Phillips, Castle, Latimer, and Buloff would ferment and ferment and sooner or later explode into murder. Suppose that Phillips is the girl's father. What would be different? What could—"

Devereaux stopped, suddenly at a loss. A neglected fact had suddenly flashed through his head. Longo had been rifling Cora Jennings' effects. And Cora Jennings had been the remembered house mother of a home for waifs in Jennifer's story.

Devereaux's lips pursed. He'd been setting up his own blindspot. The case, in its every ramification, ran together.

He sighed giganticly. "Got that schedule on Buloff as Jagendorf the insurance detective with you?"

Solowey handed Devereaux a sheath of folded pages.

Devereaux opened the pages, scanned them once, then over a

Entering the downtown district, Solowey inquired, "What case are we checking into?"

"The People of the State of New York versus Frankie Hughes. An armed robbery and second-degree murder conviction that got Hughes sentenced to sixty years."

Devereaux eased the Buick into the curb. "Frankie Hughes was the only casualty in the Big House during Longo's stay there. Hughes suffered a dizzy spell while under a hot shower. He was scalded to death."

Solowey wagged a rebuking finger. "Thoroughness, bah. You are letting your passion for the smallest details lead you around by the nose."

The Sport Reflector

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Sports Writer

Last spring, representatives of the Goldsboro, Wilson and Rocky Mount high schools held a meeting to discuss the possibilities of those schools withdrawing from the Eastern AAA Conference to take up residence in one of the state's AA conferences.

The results of the meeting were not disclosed to the general public but evidently the three schools decided to remain in the Eastern AAA. They are all three acting as full-fledged members of the conference and have not given any suggestion that they are ready to formally withdraw.

There is, however, a great deal of unrest in at least one of the towns because of the school's inability to win against AA competition. There is a great deal of talk being generated about the possibility of the school's team connecting with an AA circuit at the close of the present academic year.

The situation directly concerns sports followers of this area because the school's first choice among the AA conferences is the Northeastern Conference. The school plays Northeastern Conference teams in all three sports and is familiar with the high quality of athletics within the conference.

The move would be a natural one for the school. This year, its football team has met two Northeastern teams and will play another one before the season is over. Football games with at least two members of the conference—including Greenville—have already been lined up for next year.

It's no secret—or excuse—that the school is frankly too small to hope to compete on an equal basis with teams from Raleigh, Wilmington and Durham. Every now and then the school comes up with an outstanding team in one of the three major sports but a sustained peak is practically impossible because of a lack of material from which the school would draw potential athletes.

Frankly, the school isn't interested in getting into a conference where they could run all over the other members of the loop. Neither do they have any special desire to remain in a conference where they'll get the stuffings knocked out of them every time they take the field against a conference team—the situation which now exists. There are a number of technical questions to be answered before such a move could be made. The full support of the school and its followers would have to be lined up to get them out of the present setup and into a more agreeable one. There will be some people in the town who have devoted time, talents and money who will not like the idea of the school's "stepping down" a notch in the athletic classification.

Personally, I think it will be one of the smartest moves so far as athletics are concerned the school has made in a number of years. We don't speak as an innocent bystander who merely nods to be agreeable. We went through four years of high school there and feel at least half-way qualified to say as much as had been said in this column.

The school usually attracts about 650 students a year. It doesn't have the facilities to attract many more than that. We can't exactly see where it can hope to compete with schools which have more than a thousand students and facilities for not only that many, but for many more as well.

Changing the subject somewhat, the South's top game this week is the one in Charlottesville, Va. between Duke and the University of Virginia. Both teams have outstanding defensive units—Virginia's is the best in the nation—but Duke is being given the edge in pre-game ratings because of a supposedly better offensive unit. Personally, we bet either way—even with somebody else's money.

The most important game in the North State Conference is the one which is going to be played in Greensboro between the third-place East Carolina Pirates and the winless Guilford Quakers.

The statistical position of the teams would suggest that East Carolina has an easy road to travel Saturday night. Guilford doesn't work that way, however. They like to pull at least one good upset a year and while they had much rather work on Elon, they don't mind thinking that they can knock the socks off East Carolina. The game can be one of those "make or break" contests for the Pirates so far as North State standings are concerned.

Farmville, S. Edgecombe Play Hosts In Coastal Games

Vanceboro At Farmville, Robersonville At South Edgecombe; Ayden Will Play Tarboro

The Vanceboro Red Raiders travel to Farmville Friday night for their second conference football game this week. South Edgecombe will play host to Robersonville in a night contest.

Vanceboro, slightly game-weary from a tough battle with Ayden Tuesday, has shown steady improvement throughout the season and will be striving hard for their second conference win.

Captain Jack Taylor, who recently hit a hot streak and tallied seven touchdowns in three games, will pace the running and passing attack for the Red Raiders. Taylor's favorite targets are Earl Wright and running mate Billy Butler. Helping out in the backfield are Leslie Mills, Skippy Christopher, John Hellen and James Toler.

Bolstering the Raider line will be Co-Captain Curtis Morris, J. D. McCowan, Nat Fulcher, John Laughinghouse, Calvin Miller, Robert Cline, Terry Witherington and Charles Hartley. Clarence Powell, Graham Wetherington and Walter Hoyle add reserve strength.

Farmville is also on the rebound from an Ayden defeat suffered last Friday. They will be plugging hard for a victory over Vanceboro in order to nail down the runner-up spot in the Coastal Conference.

Quarterback Charlie Fitzgerald will be guiding competent backfield veterans in Teddy Allen, Sirie Dilda, Jess Joyner and Mae Holmes.

In the Red Devil line will be Tommy Norville and Thorne, ends, Dick Shackelford and Jess Spencer, tackles, Carroll Wooten and Bill Allen, guards, Jack Allen, center.

Robersonville

Robersonville, fresh from a resounding 32-18 victory over Tarboro, will take a strong experienced squad to South Edgecombe, who is currently in the rebuilding stage with a host of freshmen and sophomores.

Dan Clark, passing ace, and hard charging Fullback Sonny James pace the Ram attack with some able assistance from speedy Halfbacks Andy Warren and Russell Johnson.

Robersonville Ram Fullback

SONNY JONES, all-conference fullback, will lead the Robersonville attack when the Rams invade South Edgecombe Friday night.

All-Conference End Maurice Everett, who scored four touchdowns against Tarboro last week, will lead Curtis Roberson, Jerry Beach, Pete Johnson, Julius Budack, Bobby Clark, Milton Haislip, John C. House, Charles Peel and a host of freshmen and sophomores into the fray against the Pinetoppers.

South Edgecombe will be relying heavily on Co-Captain Luther Lewis, Bruce Lewis, Bobby Edmondson, Donald and Joe Craft to provide an offensive punch.

George York, Jerry Webb, Milton Tolson, John Felton, George and Lewis Eason, Ray Trevaath, Brooks Drake and Co-Captain Milton Fuller will be some of the stalwarts to square off against the Ram line.

Ayden

The new Coastal Conference champs play for the second time this week at Tarboro.

Tuesday's star, Wesley Cannon, who tallied four times in the Tarboro 33-6 victory over Vanceboro, will be joined in the backfield by Quarterback Darrell Worthington, Billy "Head" Holland, Harry Ross and B. P. McLawhorn.

The Tornado front line shapes up with B. E. McLawhorn, Gordon Hart, Bobby Barfield, Todd Kittrell, Sidney Britt, Randall Harrington, and Mac Whitehurst.

Pirates Return To Rough Workouts For Guilford

After limiting themselves to non-contact workouts for more than two weeks, the East Carolina College Pirates returned to rough work yesterday with a half-hour scrimmage session.

The scrimmage, devoted mostly to perfection of a defense to be used Saturday against Guilford, was the first such session. The Bucs have had in practice since October 7. They have been kept away from full-scale rough work because of injuries to key members of the squad.

In yesterday's workout, the Pirates got a first-hand look at the way the Guilford split-T formation works. They set their defenses for the Quaker running game and then went to work on pass defense. More of the same is expected today while a short signal drill and dummy scrimmage is expected for tomorrow afternoon.

The Pirates will more than likely be stronger this weekend against Guilford than they had first thought they would be. All but one of their injured linemen have returned to practice and even the one who isn't in full gear, Don Burton, is expected to see some limited action.

The team's top trio of defensive guards, George Tucker, Bobby Thomas and David Lee, were in full gear yesterday and are expected to see considerable action Saturday night. Tucker has been slowed down this week with an injured hand while Thomas and Lee have both been bothered with ankle injuries which have sidelined them both for more than two weeks.

PURDUE AND ARMY

DURHAM—Purdue and Army will come to the Duke football schedule during the fall of 1953, Army being met in Durham and Purdue in Lafayette, Ind.

The United States consumed 476 million tons of bituminous coal in 1951, which was nearly 100 million tons more than in 1939.

Phants Travel To New Bern For Tilt

By WAYNE BISHOP
Rough workouts for the week were concluded yesterday by the Greenville Phantoms as they gave both offense and defense a final check under scrimmage conditions. The Phantoms will hold a short signal drill and dummy scrimmage today as the final phase of their preparations for their game tomorrow in New Bern against the New Bern Bears.

Passing was stressed in yesterday's drill with quarterback Pat Sawyer doing most of the throwing from the Phants' split-T formation. Sawyer's favorite targets, end Pobby Conway and halfback Bobby Perry, both got off nice runs after receiving passes.

Running with Sawyer and Perry in the number one backfield were halfbacks James Speight and Guy Smith and fullback Bob Howell. Speight and Smith shared the duties at right halfback, a system which Coach Bill Kittrell is expected to follow tomorrow in the important contest with the Bruins.

Moore Out
The Phantoms had a sobering note injected into their drill yesterday when it was revealed that end Edgar Moore would be lost to the squad for the remainder of the season. Moore sustained a head injury in practice a couple of days ago. He joined tackle Bruce Baker, out after an attack of appendicitis, on the sidelines.

First-team tackle Dixie Hogood is definitely out of tomorrow's game because of a thumb injury but his absence from the workouts has uncovered another outstanding tackle prospect for the Phantoms. Larry Powell, the squad member put in Hogood's spot, has been playing as if he invented the game and will be a starter tomorrow. Hogood will return to practice next week but he is expected to have his hands full if he is going to take the first-team position back from Powell.

Reserve quarterback George Siders, who reported to practice this week after being out of action in the first six games, has been working out in light equipment and may be available for limited action against the Bears. He is still bothered some by the broken collarbone which sidelined him but he is rapidly returning to playing condition.

After the game in New Bern tomorrow, the Phantoms will return to Greenville for their next three games. They have a game next week with Rocky Mount. That game will be followed by contests with Elizabeth City and Roanoke Rapids.

Virginia, Duke Pit Top Defense Teams Saturday

NEW YORK (AP)—The University of Virginia's undefeated Cavaliers lead the nation's major college football teams in total defense, having permitted the enemy a paltry average of 141.8 yards per game, according to figures released today by the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau.

Not far behind is Georgia Tech, another Southern powerhouse, which has yielded just 142.6 yards per game for the opposition. Just to show that defense is king this year, the third, fourth and fifth teams in total defense, Maryland, Southern California and Duke, in order—are undefeated. Third place Maryland has a long way to go to catch the leaders, however, with a mark of 167.8.

Virginia and Duke meet this Saturday, so if the seasonal pattern follows, the game should be a low scoring one. Until VMI scored twice against the second-stringers last Saturday, Virginia was the last major team in the country that had not permitted a score. Duke also is no slouch in that department. The Blue Devils lead the country in point-per-game against with an average of 2.8.

Fordham leads the pack in rushing defense but the Rams have played only two games. Their average is 35-yards-per-game. Navy, in second spot, is the real leader with a 69.3 record in four games, while Maryland is third with 79.6. Georgia Tech and Holy Cross round out the first five.

Brigham Young is No. 1 in forward pass defense with a 34.3 yards-per-game average. Alabama is a close second with 38.8 followed in order by Virginia, Mississippi State and Tennessee.

Native Dancer Ranked As No. 1 Race Horse

By OSCAR FRALEY
NEW YORK (UP)—They wrapped up the roses today for delivery in May to the galloping gray colt named Native Dancer. The Dancer did an old-fashioned cakewalk at Jamaica for his ninth win in as many starts Wednesday and a new two-year-old money-winning record of $230,495. But, more important, he did it over a piece of ground.

So in the noisy maelstrom of the tack-room, where the little men in silks were stripping off their defeated colors, they were wondering whether anybody will show up against him in next spring's Kentucky Derby.

"He's the champ," shouted Ted Atkinson over the clamor of excited conversation. They discussed the Dancer, those little men with their faces grimy from the dust of his flying hoofs, like they used to talk about such greats as Man O'War, Count Fleet and Citation. And if he stays sound, this slick, mouse-gray colt with the star on his forehead, they insisted, he could not be beaten in the Run for the Roses.

Off in a corner, tiny Eric Guerin wiped his hatchet face with a sponge, water running down around a wide grin. "Maybe this one will make up for Cousin," said the dancer's jockey.

The little fellow from Louisiana went to Churchill Downs last May to ride the colt. Cousin, in a tenth, three-sixteenths less than "crazy" horse, an unpredictable but sulker, and when he quit cold in the Derby trial, they scratched him from the big race.

"Yah, I've won the Derby with Jet Pilot in 1947," Guerin said in his squeaky voice. "And it looks like I got another one here."

"You sure have," interrupted Dave Gorman, one of the vanquished riders. "I didn't get close enough for a good look today, but that's the best two-year-old I ever saw."

"Well," Guerin added, "he's the best one I ever rode and he's smart, too."

The Dancer, Guerin explained, just about runs his own race. "After we took the lead in the stretch and had it won," he said, "he started to ease himself up. I've only had to belt him twice, once in his first start and in the Grand Union Hotel Stakes at Saratoga. If I had needed more from him, he'd have had it. We could have won by five lengths or more."

Instead, Guerin was content with a one-and-one-half length victory. Native Dancer hadn't run a really great race. He, and Guerin, were content to take command midway down the stretch and roll on home after laying thru most of the way.

But the undefeated Dancer had convinced the skeptics as he shattered Top Flight's two-year-old money record of $219,000. Because this was the first time he had been asked to a distance, and while the East View Stakes Wednesday was only a mile-and-a-half, the Dancer did it handsily.

Wake Forest Homecoming

WAKE FOREST UP)—Coach Tom Rogers drilled his Wake Forest squad today on defending the passer as he began grooming the Demon Deacons for their homecoming game here Nov. 1 against North Carolina State.

The North Carolina defense smothered Sonny George time after time as he tried to pass last Saturday and Murray worked to plug the holes and drilled on blocking assignments.

Guard Clyde Pickard and tackle Ken Bridges, injured slightly in the North Carolina game, worked in light logs yesterday.

RALEIGH UP)—The North Carolina State Wolfpack searched for a badly-needed scoring punch today as Coach Horace Hendrickson told his team it will take at least two touchdowns to win against Florida State Saturday. The Wolfpack has scored only 28 points all season. Hendrickson shifted players around yesterday, moving hard-running Ralph Martin up into Joe Barringer's fullback spot for the first time this season. Barringer tried out at the halfback post.

CHAPEL HILL UP)—The North Carolina University Tar Heels were scheduled to take their last pre-Notre Dame workout here this afternoon.

Coach Carl Snavely put the team through a routine offensive and defensive scrimmage yesterday stressing the perfection of offensive plays.

Bud Wallace, leading the Southern Conference in punting, spent the afternoon sharpening up on his kicking.

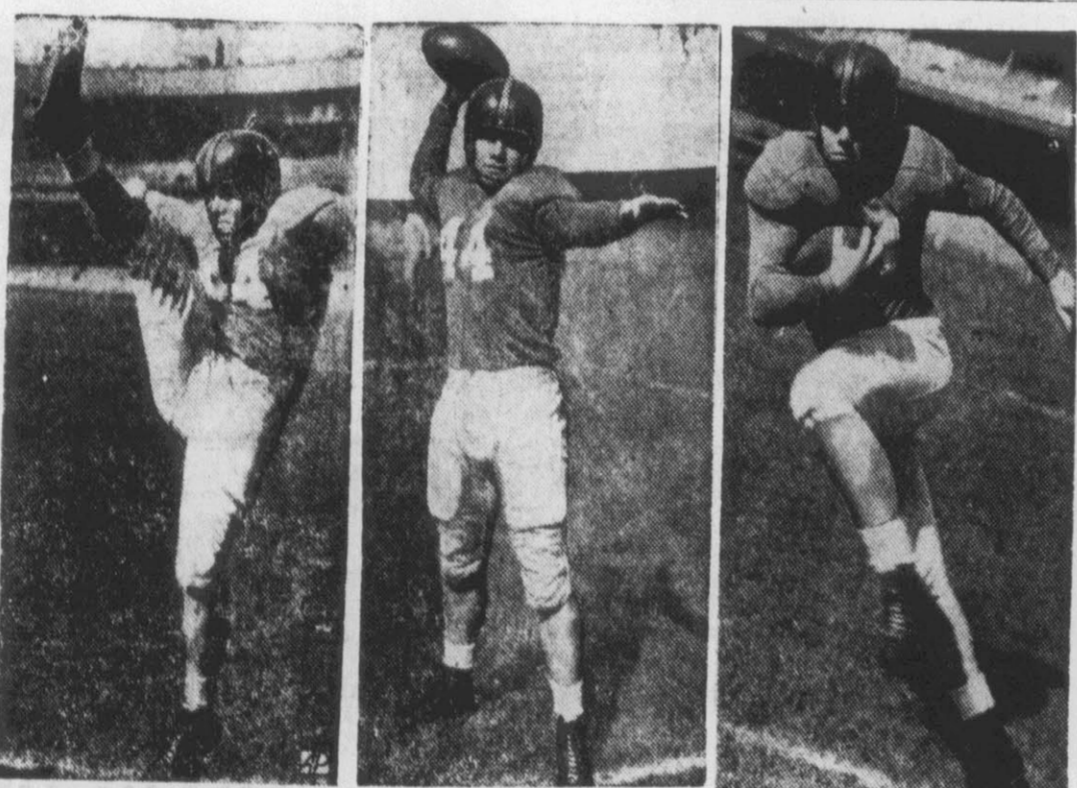

DURHAM UP)—Duke coaches today praised the work of defensive guards Carson Leach and Bobby Burrows against the junior varsity's running of the Virginia attack. The guards led the conference's top defenders in breaking up the simulated Cavalier attack yesterday, and the line expected more practice at the assignment today. Quarterbacks Worth Lutz and Jerry Barger led two backfield combinations yesterday as coach Bill Murray pushed for a smoother and faster pace to use in Saturday's game in Charlottesville.

Ray Masten Wins

Forty-six members of the Greenville Country Club participated in a blind bogey tournament last Sunday and contributed the entire receipts and fees to the Cerebral Palsy Fund. A silver replica of the Weather-vane Trophy was won by Ray Masten who turned in a net score of 76. He had an 86 with a 10 handicap.

Low gross score (without handicap) of the day was a 74 posted by Reynolds May.

KYLE ROTE former All-American grid star at S. M. U. is now in his second year as a member of the New York football Giants but has played little due to a knee injury sustained early last year. The knee failed to heal properly and Rote was used for kicking off purposes only. An operation in May made the knee sound but Coach Steve Owen used him sparingly in pre-season exhibitions taking no chances on losing the valuable triple-threat before the season started. If Rote's knee holds up throughout the year the Giants are going to put the pressure on the Cleveland Browns for the division championship.

STAN MUSIAL - THE CARDINAL SLUGGER WON THE NATIONAL LEAGUE BATTING CHAMPIONSHIP FOR THE THIRD STRAIGHT YEAR

IT HAS BEEN 30 YEARS SINCE THE CHAMPIONS OF BOTH LEAGUES REPEATED

JAKE DAUBERT and TY COBB DID THE TRICK IN 1914

One has to go all the way back to 1914 to find an instance where the batting champions of both the National and American Leagues repeated in the fashion that Stan Musial and Ferris Fain have done. Musial won his third straight National League batting championship . . . while Fain took the American League individual honors for the second year in a row.

Incidentally, Cobb's string extended from 1907 through 1915. He lost the title to Ty Cobb in 1916 but regained it the following year and then added the 1918 and 1919 crowns to his collection. The sharp decline in the batting averages of both 1952 champions as well as the marked drop in home run production causes one to wonder what became of the lively ball. Musial's 1952 average of .336 is 19 percentage points under his 1951 record while Fain dropped 17 points by batting .327 this year. In both leagues the race for individual batting honors was hotly contested every step of the way.

to prevent the Elmira, N. Y., and Jersey City franchises from signing players involved in the basketball scandals. The issue conceivably could bring about the end to the 30-year-old A.B.L., the oldest professional basketball league in the country. The controversy arose when Jersey City owners announced their intentions of signing Sherman White, former Long Island University center, and Alex Groza and Ralph Beard, one-time University of Kentucky All-Americans. At the same time, Elmira sought to sign Bill Spivey, another former Kentucky All-American star. White has served a jail sentence for "dumping" college games; Groza and Beard, who played professionally for Indianapolis in the National Basketball Association, have received suspended sentences for bribe-taking, and Spivey has been indicted for perjury in connection with testimony about Bascom's 110 per cent.

Unbeaten Teams Clash On Saturday

By TIM MORIARTY United Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (UP)—All the nation's major unbeaten teams except UCLA were favored in the "official" line today to extend their perfect records on this weekend's college football program.

UCLA, despite the fact it has star tailback Paul Cameron back from the infirmary, was made a seven-point underdog for its inter-sectional clash with once-beaten Wisconsin.

Michigan State, ranked No. 1 by the United Press Board of Coaches, was quoted as a 24-point favorite to register its 20th straight victory at the expense of unbeaten Penn State. However, some experts considered this game an "over-lay." The top-ranked Spartans had five players out with injuries earlier this week, including right halfback Vince Pisano.

The "book" also was quoting Maryland as a 21-point favorite to gain its 18th straight victory in its game with Louisiana State, while Georgia Tech was a 20-point pick over Vanderbilt.

In the weekend battles of the unbeaten, California was a six-point choice over Southern California, while Duke was favored by the same margin over Virginia.

Holy Cross, New England's only major undefeated team, was picked to turn back Syracuse by six points. However, Holy Cross Coach Dr. Eddie Anderson already has warned that the Orange "will be looking to get square with somebody" after last week's 48-7 defeat by Michigan State.

In Saturday's television feature, Illinois was quoted six points better than Purdue. This, too, could be an over-lay. The Illini are hobbled by injuries, and probably have lost Captain Al Brosky for the season.

In Friday night games, Fordham is favored over Boston College by six points; Miami (Fla.) is the same pick over Marquette, and Santa Clara is a 13-point choice over Idaho.

Other odds: East: Army over Columbia by six; Penn over Navy by seven; Princeton over Cornell by 20; Pitt over West Virginia by 20; Boston University over Lehigh by 20, and Dartmouth-Harvard, even.

South: Tulane over Auburn by six; Alabama over Mississippi State by seven, and Washington and Lee over Virginia Tech by 13.

Midwest: Cincinnati over Kentucky by six; Missouri over Iowa State by 13; Michigan over Minnesota by 14; Notre Dame over North Carolina by 20; Ohio State over Iowa by 20, and Indiana-Northwestern, even.

Southwest: Oklahoma A and M over Detroit by seven; Texas over Rice by 10; Baylor over Texas A

New Plants For Flower Gardens

NEW YORK (AP)—A top horticulturist recently returned from England with 300 varieties of plants, all strangers to America, most of which will eventually find their way into U.S. gardens.

T.H. Everett of the New York Botanical Garden said that most of the plants are quite rare although he was primarily concerned in importing plants that would thrive in America and be of interest to gardeners.

Among the more unusual plants are a yellow-flowered lilac, a double flowered sweet rocket, five new varieties of geraniums and even some specially bred varieties of golden-rod.

Food Fanciers Honor Famed French Chef

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON (UP)—Every year about this time, the fancy eaters of the world honor the memory of Escoffier, the Frenchman considered the best chef of all time.

There is a society known as "Les Amis d'Escoffier," which in French means "The Friends of Escoffier." In big hotels around the country, famous chefs try to outdo one another. But none it is said ever has topped the great Frenchman.

In Washington this year the man on the spot will be Emile Buisson of the Statler. He will dish up complicated recipes for other chefs in town while hotel managers and owners take notes.

Emile's menu is a secret. The fellow is a student of fine foods and how to prepare them. He looks like a chef is supposed to look, with the starched white apron and jacket and flour showing in his gray hair under the big white hat.

dishes a-la-Emile. He's been here ever since. On his day off he eats at home, and who does the cooking? His wife, Julia.

"You cook all day and half the night and you are too tired to cook," he said. "But my little wife, Julia, she cook pretty good, too."

While Emile's menu is his secret, there is no secret about what was served up at the last Escoffier dinner by the chef of the Carlton Hotel. It included potted brook trout, saddle of deer (soaked in red wine for a week), puree of chestnuts, chicken breast in burgundy, cream and truffles, shells of goose liver coated with chicken jelly, and lettuce leaves with walnut dressing, topped by peaches flaming in brandy.

Almost 90 per cent of U.S. farms have electricity.

Before he came to Washington, he had 30 years of experience in serving the crowned heads of Europe and the great and near-great in American hostilities.

Emile was born in Perigueux, France, and learned his art in the country, where, as he puts it "they really cook."

"Initial training in France," he told me in French-English, "is rigid. One must serve two years in the pastry shop, three in the kitchen, and then take an oral and written examination given by the French Hotel association. If he passes the tough test he becomes a full-hatted chef."

Emile came to this country in 1922 to visit a friend and after eating at several snooty beaneries he decided to stick around and show American chefs a thing or two about garlic, rare wines, and

Police 'Abetted' Speed Violation

LOGANSPORT, Ind. (AP)—A Peru, Ind., man raced through towns the other day from Logansport to Ft. Wayne and return at 80 miles an hour and went even faster in the country. And instead of stopping him, police escorted him part of the trip.

Doctors credit the man, Lewis G. Sharp, with probably saving the life of his niece, who needs a rare type of blood for a transfusion in an emergency.

Sharp drove the 137-mile round trip in two hours. His niece, Mrs. Katherine Sherarer of Winamac, Ind., is recovering in a Logansport hospital.

FEELS FINE AT 100 GOSHEN, Va. (UP)—After celebrating his 100th birthday, frisky Edward D. Blackwell packed up and left for Florida to spend the winter. "If I felt any better," he said, "I'd have to call a doctor."

More than 200,000 U.S. farms were electrified from June, 1951 to June, 1952.

Now let us show you!

Optional on De Luxe models at extra cost. BODY BY FISHER Fisher Body is world-famous for smarter styling, for superior craftsmanship, for the strength and safety of Unisteel Construction—exclusive to Chevrolet in the low-price field. CENTERPOISE POWER Chevrolet's great valve-in-head engine is centered, poised and cushioned in rubber by high-side mountings. Vibration and power impulses are screened out. Performance is smoother! Stocks And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Stocks edged upward early today, marking the first advance in four sessions. Dealings were quiet.

The modest upswing was called "mostly technical" because of the recent slump in the market.

Despite the improved tone in the market, dealers were at a snail's pace. Sales in the first hour totaled only 280,000 shares, compared with 230,000 in the same period yesterday.

High-priced oil shares, which have led the market downward recently, led the recovery movement. Amerasia Petroleum jumped 3 1/2 points to 193 1/2 and Texas Pacific Land Trust at 135 was up 2 1/2 points. Other pivots in this section firmed.

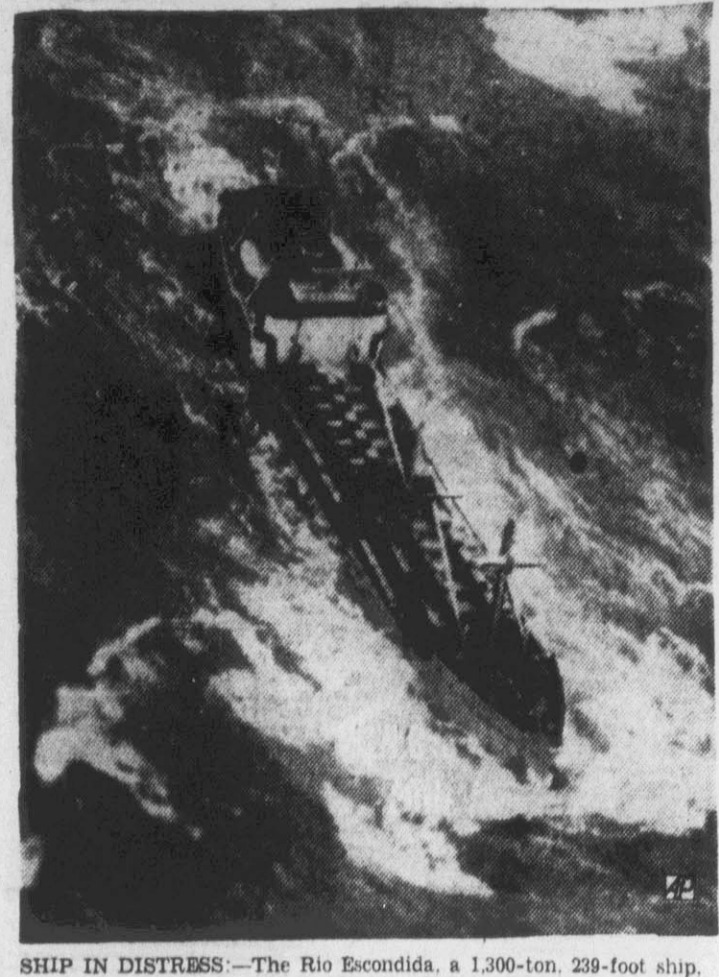

A few railroad issues displayed some strength. Seaboard Air Line rose 1 1/2 points to 108 1/2, and Atlantic Coast Line was up a point to 105 1/2. Southern Railway improved 1 1/2 points to 67 1/2.

Steel shares edged upward. Small gains were noted in Bethlehem Steel and U. S. Steel. Chrysler and General Motors added small amounts.

Freight Theft Conviction Is Made In Police Court

By CHESTER WALSH
Greenville police and a railroad detective solved the robbery of freight cars on the Atlantic Coast Line tracks here last summer and had the defendants in Police Court yesterday.

Greenville Police Detective M. E. Corbett and Railroad Detective R. J. McGhee, working on the case, had clues that pointed to William Andrew Joyner, 16-year-old Negro, who lives at 608 Williams street, and Manson Wilson, 18, Negro, who lives at 1715 South Pitt street.

The officers testified that the two accused youths went north and worked in harvesting crops. Authorities arrested Joyner here last week, and Norfolk, Va., police arrested Wilson there.

Detective N. H. Byrd brought Wilson back to Greenville yesterday. In the meantime, local police arrested five Negro youths on the charge of buying and receiving some of the stolen goods.

Judge Charles H. Whedbee found Joyner and Wilson guilty of larceny from freight cars. He gave Joyner six months on the roads in three cases. The first two sentences are to be served consecutively, the third, concurrently.

The court also gave Joyner six months for the larceny of an $80 bicycle, and six months on the roads for the larceny of a radio. These two sentences are to be served consecutively.

For his part as to larceny in three cases from the freight cars and accessory to larceny, the court gave Wilson six months on the roads on each charge, the third sentence to be served concurrently with the first two sentences. He will serve a year.

Judge Whedbee also found five Negro defendants guilty of buying and receiving good stolen from the railroad cars. They are: William Thomas Armwood, 1911 South Pitt street, $25 fine, costs deducted; Respass Little, Route 3, Greenville, 30 days, suspended on payment of $25; Roy Brewington of Greenville, 30 days, suspended on payment of $25 and costs; James A. Flood, 1806 South Railroad street, $50, costs deducted; Ernest Flood,

James' brother, 30 days, suspended on payment of $50, costs deducted. The case of the larceny of a crate of 30 dozen eggs from the sidewalk in front of a cafe on Railroad street was an unusual case, Solicitor Eli Bloom stated in court.

Judge Whedbee found Alonza Rasberry, Negro, guilty of larceny of the eggs. He gave Rasberry 60 days on the roads, sentence suspended on payment of $25 fine, costs deducted, and he is to pay $14.70 to C. E. Carrawan, owner of the eggs. Vanilla Jenkins, Negro, operator of a cafe, was tried for buying and receiving stolen goods and the court found her not guilty.

On the stand, the woman testified that Rasberry came into her cafe on Saturday with a crate of eggs on his shoulder. She bought the 30 dozen eggs and paid him $5, explaining that she would pay him more later. The eggs remained there until Monday, she testified, and she had not counted them. She broke one and found it was fresh, she testified. The witness testified that Rasberry told her he "found the crate of eggs." The court found her not guilty.

The court found Willie Knight Jenkins, Negro, not guilty of buying and receiving stolen goods. James A. Flood, Negro, 1806 South Railroad street, was found guilty of a five-year period. Styron, who said he quit school in the third grade, told the court he is worth about $150,000 but denied evading his income taxes.

Styron said he "just signed blank forms and told my accountant about everything I had and could think of, and he did the rest."

Tighe Woods Has Final Price Session With N.C. Housewives

NORTH WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP)—Price Stabilizer Tighe E. Woods comes here tonight for his final meeting with housewives to gather their reactions on price controls.

Woods, who has held 11 meetings with housewives in all parts of the nation, said yesterday he would report to President Truman in Washington Saturday on the results of his meetings.

The meeting here will be held at 7 p.m. Housewives from all parts of the state have been invited. The session will include a question and answer period.

Woods said in New York yesterday that he had found the nation's housewives far from apathetic on food prices, and many quite annoyed.

In a give-and-take at a forum attended by some 200 homemakers at Queens College, Woods told the women that Congress writes the price control laws, and that the president can do little about rising prices unless Congress provides the necessary legislation.

"Congress listens most to the people who yell the loudest," he said. "When the last law was written, the housewives didn't yell."

One woman told Woods, "If you could make the housewife's dollar stretch, you'd be the most popular man in the country and they'd be screaming for you and not for Ike and Adlai."

Woods will be accompanied here by several other OPS officials and advisers, all prepared to tell Wilkes citizens the factors behind the spiraling prices and what should be done about them.

The affair has been christened the "High Cost of Living Rally." It is expected to draw 600 questioners and listeners into the town's largest auditorium.

The price stabilizer's plans call for him to arrive at Charlotte by plane this afternoon, where he will be met by Mrs. Charles A. Ziliak, local housewife who is the moving spirit behind the meeting.

Woods will visit a North Wilkesboro supermarket and stand by the cash register where he will talk with housewives as they pass by to pay their food bills.

The government has charged that Roland T. Styron evaded $56,239 in income taxes over a five-year period. Styron, who said he quit school in the third grade, told the court he is worth about $150,000 but denied evading his income taxes.

Styron said he "just signed blank forms and told my accountant about everything I had and could think of, and he did the rest."

Argument for the proposed branches is that they will serve convenience of customers. Main argument against them is that branches instead of independent banks tend to banking monopoly. The branch bank idea has grown in popularity during the past few years because of statutory limitation upon loans and other operations in relation to capital stock and resources of the bank.

INTERESTED—Four friends were standing on the street the other day when your reporter came along. It looked like a stalemate, so the reporter joined the group to break the tie—without knowing what the conversation was about. It developed they were talking about the heavy registration this fall as contrasted with past apathy toward participating in elections. There was no tie vote; decision was unanimous that there is presently more lively interest manifested in the November election of a President than at any time since 1928. It happened that all five in that group are committed to

Theft Ring Said Now Broken Up

PACTOLUS A "ring" of tobacco thieves operating in the Pactolus area has been broken up this week with the arrest of three Negroes, Sheriff Ruel Tyson reported today.

Three Pactolus Negroes, Willie James Murchison, William Henry Latham and Eugene Knight, were placed in Pitt County jail at odd times this week and charged with breaking and entering and larceny.

Murchison was still being held in jail this morning, but Knight and Latham have been released on bond. All three will be tried in Pitt Superior Court on charges of stealing 400 pounds of tobacco from a local farm.

The farm from which the tobacco was stolen is owned by F.W. Satterthwaite of Farmville. Deputies "Duke" Andrews and Elmer Haddock have been working on the case since September 18, and made the arrests this week.

vote the Democratic ticket, from President to constable, so the main question at issue was the probable size of the total vote. Estimates ranged from 850,000 to a full million, with majority opinion fixing the vote at a little above 900,000. The biggest vote ever cast in this state was 839,000 in 1936, and the vote four years ago was 792,000. It was agreed that if attendance at political meetings, Democratic and Republican, added to the heavy registration, is any criterion the 1952 total will go far above that figure. It was also conceded that the total vote this year will not come anywhere close to the maximum potential of two million. Inevitable conclusion is that while there is more than usual interest there is still too much apathy and indifference with respect to the privilege and duty of voting.
