Acheson To Report On Korean War

Will Give Details Of Truce Negotiations On Anniversary Of Charter

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UP) - Some 20 countries joined the United States today in sponsoring a United Nations resolution calling upon Communist China and North Korea to agree to a Korean truce providing for non-forcible repatriation of prisoners.

Britain, Canada and most of the Allies in the Korean war aligned themselves with the Americans. The list was expected to grow still further by the time Secretary of State Acheson goes before the General Assembly's main political committee at 3 p. m. e. s. t. this afternoon to "open the whole book" on the Korean conflict.

Acheson was expected to deliver a review of U. S. prosecution of the war and peace efforts. His speech was expected to last at least two hours.

He had been scheduled to speak Thursday, but the 60-nation committee's entire session was taken up with a wrangling, repetitious debate on whether to invite both the South and North Korean regimes to attend the discussion without voting rights.

The committee approved Thailand's proposal for an invitation to South Korea by a 54-5 vote, but killed an invitation to North Korea - proposed by Russia - by a 38-1 vote.

Today was "U. N. Day," the seventh anniversary of the date when the charter became effective in 1945 with the deposit of the 26th country's ratification, which, incidentally, came from Russia. The Assembly scheduled a special observance this morning.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt was scheduled to read the preamble to the charter, after which Assembly President Lester B. Pearson of Canada will deliver a short memorial address for those who have died in U. N. service. Pearson later will deliver a formal speech in observance of U. N. Day.

U. S. spokesmen said that Acheson's speech to the political committee would be a "full and frank account" of the truce negotiations and would deal with efforts to gain peace - not only by the U. N. and the U. S., but by other member countries individually.

The U. S. published its resolution Thursday, but because the committee was not ready to hear Acheson until 5:16 p. m., it delayed its formal presentation to the Secretariat until today in hopes of gaining more sponsors.

One country expected to join the growing list of co-sponsors was France.

U. S. spokesmen refused to list the group of countries joining in sponsorship. They explained that if such a list were made public, it might mislead other governments still expected to join the U. S. into believing that the sponsorship was closed to them.

Russians Evade Tribute To Dead

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UP) - Russia boycotted the United Nations observance of its anniversary today and thus avoided the embarrassment of deciding whether to honor the U. N.'s Korean War dead.

The General Assembly held a special meeting before its regular working session to observe the seventh anniversary of the date the U. N. Charter came into effect at San Francisco.

Ironically, the 29th country to deposit its ratification and make the charter effective in 1945 was Russia.

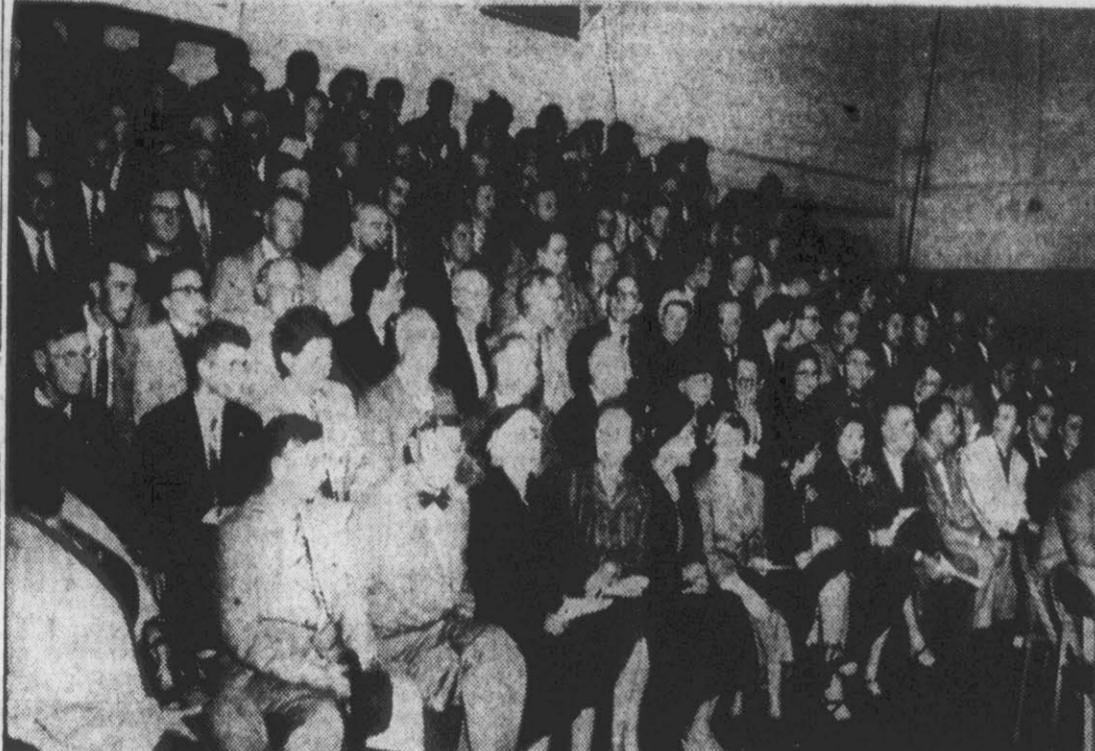

Assembly President Lester B. Pearson of Canada asked the assembly to recall "the solemn obligation we owe to those... who have done more than uphold the principles" of the charter.

He asked the delegates to rise in a moment's silent tribute to "those brave men who have laid down their lives in Korea and in many other lands in the service of the U. N. and of Peace."

The assembly rose, but there was nobody in the places assigned to Russia and her four satellites - Czechoslovakia, Poland, Byelorussia and the Ukraine.

The death toll from Trix rose almost hourly as areas which had been off re-established communications and reported casualties.

Big Turnout Of Democrats For District Rally In Robersonville

PITT COUNTY DEMOCRATS—Perhaps the largest and surely the most responsive delegation at the First District rally in Robersonville last night was the above Pitt County delegation. The local group filled its allotted space and then overflowed into the ranks of Beaufort County Democrats. Many local party-men never found seats, and stood near the entrance while ceremonies were in progress. (Reflector Photo by Jess Poindexter).

Umstead Says Farmers Will Five Escape From Prison Camp; Big Manhunt Is On

Large First District Democratic Audience Hears Gubernatorial Nominee Urge Solidity

By JESS POINDEXTER Reflector Staff Writer

ROBERSONVILLE—A change in national administration now would be disastrous to the farm program. Principal speaker William B. Umstead, Democratic nominee for governor of North Carolina, strongly emphasized that conviction here last night in an address before a First District Democratic Party rally.

Speaking before a capacity crowd in the high school gymnasium, Umstead said, "If the Republican Party goes into power in January it will seriously endanger the farm program that has brought so much prosperity to this district."

"The man who politicians said lacked the 'glamour and color of a good political candidate' visibly stirred the large audience as he lashed out viciously at the Harding and Hoover administrations, and then attacked 'McCarthyism' of the present era."

"Senator McCarthy," Umstead declared, "has attacked and attempted to smirch the characters of more honest people in the United States than any other one man in history."

The speaker said a public office is a public trust, and anyone violating that trust should be prosecuted. "There is some corruption in government now and it will always be so, but no single party has a monopoly on corruption."

Citing the Harding administration as an example, Umstead told of such corrupt practices as selling Naval oil reserves to private enterprise, and how a government official pocketed a $100,000 bribe for negotiating the "deal"—and went to prison for it.

Resents Attempt "I resent the Republican Party's attempt to create an impression of the Democratic administration is shot throughout with corruption, the gubernatorial candidate said."

"Whatever corruption there is in Washington does not justify a broadside assault on our party by the Republicans."

By way of comparison between the two presidential candidates, Umstead called Eisenhower a "military man trained in military matters." Eisenhower is entitled to acclaim by all people for his accomplishments as a soldier, he stated, but "Ike" is not capable of assuming responsibility as president.

On the other hand, the speaker called Adlai Stevenson a "student of government" who has made a brilliant record in numerous responsible government jobs. "The attitude displayed by Stevenson at the American Legion National Convention was one of the most courageous and unusual stands ever taken by a presidential candidate."

That was the occasion when Stevenson asserted he would not be swayed by any large pressure groups, even the American Legion.

202 Pints Of Blood Given To Bloodmobile Thursday

By MURIEL SHOTWELL Reflector Staff Writer

The men of the Air Force ROTC at East Carolina College yesterday rolled up their sleeves and donated 202 pints of blood, the largest amount of blood donated in the county yet.

A temporary Red Cross Blood Donor Center was set up yesterday in the Wright Building at the College under the sponsorship of the Air Force ROTC for a two-day stand with the quota set at 300 pints. Donations will continue through the day for college students and Pitt County citizens.

'Eisenhower Democrat' Doesn't Exist: Bonner

Congressman Wants No 'Mugwumps' In Party Ranks; Notes Strict Dividing Line Of Nation's Two-Party System

ROBERSONVILLE—"There just ain't no such animal as an Eisenhower Democrat," Congressman Herbert Bonner said here last night in short, introductory address to delegations from the 14 counties in the First District.

"I believe wholeheartedly in the two-party system as we have it today," the Washington congressman declared heatedly, "and I admire a man who says he's either a Democrat or a Republican. We don't want any 'mugwumps' in the Democratic Party."

Bonner lashed out at "lukewarm Democrats who will follow the party line except on the national ticket, and said there is a strict dividing line between the two parties—and a man should make his choice."

Democratic Gospel "In remarking on the rally held last night, Bonner asserted it was a revival. "Yes, it's a revival," he stated, "and a gospel will be preached here—the gospel of Democracy."

The congressman cited the generally apathetic attitude toward voting in Eastern North Carolina, and theorized that the Republican Party is "infiltrating the ranks of our youth." He said many of the young men now of voting age have forgotten 1932.

"Yes, people have made money, yes, times have been right for progress and prosperity but who made the times?" the speaker asked. "We all should know the Democratic Party made good times."

Successive democratic administrations have always given the people good government; our foreign and domestic policies are sound. It must be good government to make for such a good atmosphere and good living."

Bonner condemned Republican vice-presidential candidate Sen. Richard M. Nixon for going into office knowing what to expect relative to salary and allowances—and then taking money from sources outside the government.

"It is the beginning of disintegration and downfall of Democracy when officials in the public trust accept financial consideration from funds set up by outside private interests," he predicted.

Candidate Unfit The speaker criticized briefly Herbert Sowell, Jr. Republican nominee for the governorship of the state. "H has insulted all our people in that he has called North Carolina second-class state," Bonner announced. "A man who will make such a statement is not fit to be governor of North Carolina."

The meeting last night was presided over by Everett Jordan, State Chairman of the Democratic Party. Mayor H.S. Everett of Robersonville gave the welcome address to the gathering, and Jim Gray, chairman of the Martin County Democratic Executive Committee, introduced Congressman Bonner.

Officials Present Attending the rally were: Sen. Willis Smith, North Carolina's Junior Senator; Thad Eure, secretary of State; Brandon Hodges, state treasurer; Henry Bridges, state auditor; Harry McMullan, attorney general; L.Y. Ballentine, commissioner of agriculture; Waldo Cheek, and Billy Harrison, state YDC president.

Most pressing threat to the Democratic Party in the First District is not the Republicans. It's lifetime Democrats who plan to vote

Overpowered Two Guards And Seized Guns In Desperate Break; Believe 3 In Stolen Car

By ROY HARDEE Reflector Staff Writer

In a frantic but skillfully engineered bid for freedom this morning, five desperate prisoners overpowered two Pitt County road-gang guards, seized guns, and made their escape.

Those who made their escape are Peter Braxton of Lincoln, age 28; Defoe Inman of Gaston County, age 28; Arcadio Rodriguez of Wake County, age 25; F. C. Bonner of Columbus County, age 31; and Robie Lee Bivens of Halifax County, age 28. All of the men are white.

Smith continued with his story when he told officials that he was locked up in the truck and was made to remove his clothing along with the guards. He related that the prisoners exchanged clothes and told the men that "we'll be back in 15 minutes and if you are out we'll kill you." After the escapees left, Smith said they kicked out the cage doors.

The prisoners were reported to have stolen a 1949 model green convertible belonging to Bobby Curry who was working in a field nearby. Charlie Williams, who was also in a field close to the scene of escape, told law officers that he saw a prison truck and Curry's car pass by with at least three men in it.

The guards and remaining prisoners returned to the prison camp following the escape.

Guarding the road-gang was foreman Will Gladston and another guard, Johnnie Taylor. Both men were held for a while as hostages along with a civilian and remaining prisoners.

Deputy sheriffs, ABC officers, and highway patrolmen from Pitt and nearby counties have set up a road-block circling the scene of the escape and airplanes from Cherry Point Air Base have been asked to aid in the search for the five men.

Bonner was serving a life sentence for accessory before murder; Inman was serving 10 years for breaking, entering and larceny and is reported to have attempted escape a number of times; Braxton was serving from nine to 10 years for accessory before murder; Rodriguez was serving three years for breaking, entering and larceny; and Bivens was serving from five to seven years on the same charge as Rodriguez.

It is believed by law officers that three of the men are in the convertible and the others are on foot.

Southern Florida Bracing For Powerful Hurricane

MIAMI (UP)—Southern Florida braced today for howling gales, advance messengers of a mighty hurricane approaching Cuba with winds of 125 miles an hour.

The hurricane isn't very large but is sharp and intense," Norton said. "I see no indication that it has lost any of its force and winds of well over 100 miles per hour can be expected. Florida may miss the actual hurricane but we will be in the area of the storm."

The weather bureau said a hurricane hunter plane took off from Jacksonville early today and is expected in the center of the storm by 10 a. m. EST. Earlier, another plane took off from Jacksonville but had to turn back because of engine trouble.

GI Attack Stalled By Red Guns

Drove Within 90 Yards Of Crest, Pinned Down On Slopes By Heavy Fire

SEOUL, Korea. (UP)—American infantrymen assaulted Chinese Communists holding Pike's Peak on Triangle Hill today, but the attack stalled when the Americans ran into heavy mortar, rifle and grenade fire and stumbled across a maze of Red ground mines.

United States war correspondent Fred Linton reported from the 7th Division sector of the central front that the GI's drove to within 90 yards of the crest before being stopped.

At last reports, they were pinned down on the slopes of Pike's Peak by intense Communist fire, some of it direct trajectory which probably came from Red tanks or self-propelled guns.

Pike's Peak is the Reds' last foothold on the four-domed Triangle Hill mass north of Kumhwa. The other three hills are held by the Americans with Ethiopian troops backing them up from the Allied main line of resistance.

Painton said the Allied attack was launched at 4 p. m. (2 a. m. EST). After an hour and a half of bitter fighting, the U. N. troops scrambled to within 90 yards of the top.

There they ran into a heavy concentration of anti-personnel mines laid by Communist patrols. The mines, along with the Red mortar, rifle and artillery fire and grenade attacks, halted the U. S. assault.

The American attack followed savage assaults by more than 3,000 Chinese Communists on eight American, South Korean and Ethiopian positions last night and early today.

Battalions of about 800 Reds hit Triangle Hill, Finger Ridge and Little Gibraltar Hill, while companies and reinforced companies of about 200 men attacked Iron Horse Mountain, Sniper Ridge, Capitol Hill and Sandbag Castle.

The lone Allied defeat came at Iron Horse Mountain east of Chorwon where a reinforced company tossed POK infantrymen from the crest. At last reports fierce fighting was continuing, with the Reds holding the northern slope and the ROKs on the southern slope.

The two forces were only about 40 yards apart, and neither the Reds nor the ROKs could depend much on artillery because of their meanness.

Both sides were reported pinned down by heavy recoilless rifle and grenade fire.

"Raising one's head would mean death," a soldier said.

About 3,000 Chinese Communists took part in the night's assaults, one of which hit Ethiopian infantrymen on the main line of resistance behind Triangle Hill on the central front.

It was the first time in months that the Reds have struck the Allied main line. All of the recent heavy assaults have been directed at UN outpost positions.

At Sniper Ridge a mile east of Triangle, South Korean troops beat back a series of Red company attacks during the night and then launched a counter-attack at 9 a. m. (7 p. m. EST Thursday) behind a devastating air attack.

ROK soldiers, determined to wipe out the last Communist troops from Sniper, attacked before the smoke had cleared. After 50 minutes, they were trading hand grenades with an estimated two platoons of Chinese.

Scientist Plans Stockholm Trip For Nobel Prize

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J. (UP)—Dr. Selman A. Waksman said today he will leave for Stockholm, Sweden, Dec. 4 to receive his Nobel Prize in medicine for the discovery of streptomycin.

The quiet, 64-year-old scientist was swamped with telegrams and telephone calls from well-wishers after the award was announced yesterday in Stockholm.

As soon as he received the news, the Russian-born Waksman announced he would invest most of his $32,910 prize money in further research in his field of antibiotics.

Already, 82 1/2 per cent of his royalties from the manufacture of streptomycin, the first antibiotic effective against tuberculosis, are being applied toward construction of a $3,500,000 institute of microbiology at Rutgers University. He heads the institute.

TOKYO (UP)—The Japanese government today ordered six Russians, three of them correspondents for Pravda and Tass, to leave Japan within a month.

Christian Science
"Probation After Death" is the topic of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches next Sunday.

The Golden Text is from I Corinthians 15:56-57: "The sting of death is sin; and the strength of sin is the law. But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

Passages from the Bible include: "And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away." Rev. 21:4

And from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "When it is learned that disease cannot destroy life, and that mortals are not saved from sin or sickness by death, this understanding will quicken into newness of life. It will master either a desire to die or a dread of the grave, and thus destroy the great fear that betrays mortal existence."

End Of Century Club Members Hear Dr. Frank

On Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. J. Hampton Thomas was hostess to the End of the Century Club for its first meeting of the year. Her home was lovely with colorful arrangements of fall flowers.

Mrs. Joseph Moye, president, called the meeting to order. She then presented Mrs. R. C. Stokes and Mrs. Charles White, who gave beautiful and fitting memorial tributes to Mrs. J. L. Little and Mrs. E. B. Picklen, charter members. When the club has lost since its last meeting.

Mrs. Spilman introduced Dr. A. D. Frank, guest speaker for the day, who discussed topics of interest in national and international affairs.

Dr. Frank said he deplored the mud slinging in the present presidential campaign. Turning to international affairs, Dr. Frank said that he felt the U. S. had moved further away from war with Russia. He pointed out that in the past few years the United States has gained a great deal in the number of men trained and in ordnance and material, being much better equipped in tanks, guns, airplanes, submarines and guided missiles than when the Korean war started. The United Nations have also had time to train and equip an effective South Korean army. The United States has built airfields in England, Africa and other places, he pointed out.

As for the negotiations in Korea, Dr. Frank said that the break between Tito and Stalin seems to be complete and that both the Yugoslavs and the Turks have well trained and well equipped armies with which to withstand any Russian attack.

Following this interesting discussion, the books were distributed. The hostess then served a delicious salad course, with ham, rolls, dessert and coffee.

Guests for the afternoon were Mrs. Wallace I. Wolverton, Mrs. V. E. Wells and Dr. Frank.

Installation Of Officers Held At CWBC Bosses Night Banquet

The Credit Women's Breakfast Club members entertained their bosses and guests at their fourth annual Bosses' Night banquet and installation service at the Woman's Club on Thursday, October 16, at 7:30 p.m.

The entire first floor of the club was beautifully and artistically decorated by Mrs. Aileen Jefferson, of Jefferson's Florist, using fall colors and motifs in flowers, fruits, berries, and leaves. Tiny decorative colored

Guests were directed to the rooms flanking the entrance, where tomato juice, salted nuts and mints were served.

President Margaret Boykin presided at the dinner and greeted the guests. A warm welcome was extended by Mrs. Dorothy Copeland, to which Mr. Robert Greene gave a splendid response.

Mrs. Glenn Scott, pianist, with Mrs. Ned Kinsaul, soloist, rendered a musical program of exceptional beauty during the evening.

President Boykin recognized out-of-town guests from Raleigh, Rocky Mount and Reidsville, as well as distinguished local guests. She paid special tribute to Mrs. Dorothy Copeland, first president of the local Credit Club, and present first vice president of the State Association; and Mrs. Lettie Bilbro, the club's second president, who last spring received the outstanding Breakfast Clubber Award of the State, and who organized the State Past Presidents' Club and is its current president.

Perfect attendance awards were presented to seven members by President Boykin, who, immediately following, was herself the winner of the Greenville Club's Outstanding Breakfast Clubber Award for the year.

This award, given and presented by Mrs. Lettie Bilbro, consists of a silver trophy cup, with each year's winner's name engraved on it, and a personal gift to the winner, which in Mrs. Boykin's case was a large silver platter. Mrs. Louise Rush, manager of the American Legion Dining Room, received a silver gift knife in her pattern, a gift of the club in appreciation and recognition of her courteous and excellent service throughout the year in having breakfast served to the club members twice each month promptly at 7:30 a.m. President Boykin also presented personal gifts of key ring selectors to all members. To all sponsors she presented gifts of the pins. Two new sponsors, Mrs. Floyd Hendrix and Mr. H. L. Ormond, were elected to serve with those of last year.

Using the Rose Ritual, Mrs. Lettie Bilbro impressively installed the new officers for the club year 1952-53. The new officers are: Mrs. Eleanor Norris, president; Mrs. Frances Cassick, first vice president; Mrs. Ruby Lum, second vice president; Mrs. Earline Coghill, recording secretary; Mrs. Edna Branch, treasurer, and Mrs. Polly Dail, corresponding secretary.

The new president, Mrs. Eleanor Norris, after receiving the gavel, presented the retiring president, Mrs. Margaret Boykin, with the past president's pin on behalf of the club in recognition of her excellent year of leadership. President Norris turned the program over to Mrs. Earline Coghill, director of the evening's special entertainment of games, stunts and contests. During the evening, Mrs. Ruth Brady, door prize chairman, distributed over fifty prizes which were won by guests.

At the conclusion of the evening's program, President Norris, on behalf of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Hendrix, invited the entire assembly to a lovely open house reception at their home on Evans Street Extension. Their home was thrown en-suite for the occasion. Using the same rich fall color scheme, refreshments consisting of punch, drinks, vari-colored party sandwiches, nuts, mints and candies were served to over one hundred guests.

Miss Mary Rose Crisp, who will be an attendant in the wedding of Miss Kathryn Van Nortwick to David Whichard, entertained as a compliment to her at a luncheon on Wednesday.

The guests were greeted informally by the hostess, her mother and the honoree. The home throughout was decorated with arrangements of lavender chrysanthemums. On the main luncheon table in the dining room, the centerpiece was a bridal bouquet of pink roses and blue chrysanthemums, a larger replica of the shoulder corsage which was presented to Miss Van Nortwick upon her arrival. Dresden figurines adorned either end of the table.

Mrs. Bancroft Moseley and Mrs. Morris Brody, recent brides, and Miss Lucy Blount of New York were also remembered with nosegay corsages.

After the three course luncheon, the hostess presented Miss Van Nortwick with a gift.

Strength for the Day

IT EVENS UP
Are some people lucky and others unlucky? A few people do seem to have good fortune throughout their lives and a few seem to have nothing but misfortune. But people of this sort are very rare. There is no way of accounting for such situations when they occur. The general rule, however, is that over the whole span of life, about the same amount of good and evil fortune comes to everybody. Some people are poor all their lives, but they have compensation in good health or cheerful disposition or the satisfaction they get out of their families or a contented spirit. Sometimes the very wealthy have horrifying problems to confront and great burdens to bear.

As to whether this rule would hold for the whole human race, it would be hard to say, for certainly in Asia and Africa and some parts of Europe and South America there are social conditions which keep vast multitudes under the heel of adverse circumstances. But in the United States and Canada it is undoubtedly true that if all people who reach seventy years of age could be questioned as to the satisfactions and dissatisfactions of their lives, it would be found that they all had about the same amount of good fortune and about the same amount of misfortune.

If we knew what some people had to bear, we would change places with them even though it meant wealth, social position, and fame.

Transforming Dreams Into Realities

For centuries men have watched the volcanic steam drift upward from rugged peaks, and scientists have wondered how this product of nature could be used.

For centuries men have probed at the mighty sea in an attempt to domesticate at least a portion of it.

Developments of modern science are daily transforming from the realm of fantasy to reality ideas which heretofore have been shunned as the imagination of dreamers.

Just this week newspapers carried accounts of two developments which promise to make changes in particular fields of industry.

In Japan the government is supporting a development project which will harness the largely wasted volcanic steam that has been escaping from that nation's explosive mountains for centuries. An electricity generating plant is soon to be established in the area of Mt. Kokonoe which will generate power from the steam of volcanoes in the area. At the outset the plant will be slated for 3,000 kilowatt capacity, but eventually it may be producing 150,000 kilowatts.

At Columbus, Ohio, on the other hand, a spokesman for the Scottish Institute for Seaweed Research declares that undersea farming may be just around the corner as a promising new industry for coastal America.

The scientists to be sure are dreamers; but they are dreamers with a purpose and with a goal. They are dreamers who transform figments of man's imagination into realities.

One Last Chance To Be Registered

Saturday is the last chance! Pitt County citizens who do not have their names on the county's registration books by 6 o'clock Saturday night have thrown away their right to vote in the November 5 presidential election.

Through neglect they will have forfeited the priceless possession for which hundreds of thousands of Americans have given their lives, and for which other hundreds of thousands have suffered in domestic and foreign battles—they will have forfeited their right to a voice in the election of officials to lead this state and nation.

For three weeks now the registration books of Pitt County have been open to provide citizens an opportunity to check to be sure they are properly registered, and to provide an opportunity for those who were not previously registered to get their names on the books.

If an individual is not registered by Saturday night, he has only himself to blame. Newspapers, radios and individuals have urged for many weeks the importance of registering before the books close. To be sure, there are a good many people in Pitt County who have heeded the plea and have made sure they will be qualified to vote on November 4.

Yet as always, there are others who just haven't found the few minutes necessary to see that their names are on the registration books.

A special census report shows there are in North Carolina some 2,326,000 civilians of voting age. Exact figures on the number of people registered in the individual precincts are not available, but the secretary of the State Board of Elections has estimated the registration will reach 2,000,000. That of course means throughout the state there will be some 326,000 people of voting age who will not have their names on the registration books when voting day comes.

How many of those unregistered people will be in Pitt?

Four years ago in 1948 when North Carolina citizens were called on to cast their ballots for local, state and national officials, less than half of the registered voters made their appearance at the polls. Even more disgraceful is the fact that North Carolina recorded ballots for only 36.5 per cent of the total number of people of voting age at the time of the 1948 election.

The election day is more than a week away, but the last chance for getting one's name on the registration books is this coming Saturday. And those who are not registered will have forfeited their constitutional privilege to vote.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—As the Presidential campaign approaches its final week, the decisive factor may be the popular reaction to the relationship between Governor Stevenson and Harry S. Truman. Never in American political history, has an outboud President become such a controversial figure.

In blunt words, does the Democratic nominee approve the shoddy tactics and language which has been employed by the man he hopes to succeed, especially his injection of religious and racial issues that were supposed to have been banned from American politics after the disastrous Hoover-Smith struggle in 1928?

And, if elected, will Stevenson's sense of gratitude to Truman lead him to uphold and to press the Truman program of domestic and foreign issues on the next Congress? Even Stevenson regards it as a deplorable development.

Despite far more important problems in the Presidential struggle, "Trumanism" is now the principal issue.

TRUMAN SPECTACLE—Almost every survey of American opinion, both public and private polls, reflects a deep and natural disgust with the Truman spectacle, especially among the women and independents, who have been attracted to Stevenson's winning personality, and by the fact that, in his political background and in his speeches, he is a delightful departure from Trumanism.

This politically important element of the electorate was favorably impressed when Stevenson, beginning with his acceptance address at the Chicago convention, tried to disassociate himself from the Pendergast politician in the White House. But they have become disillusioned, according to reliable reports, at the Democratic candidate's slow but sure embrace of Harry.

The Truman-Stevenson flirtation, so many independents seem to think, is far worse than the Eisenhower-Taft reconciliation.

STEVENSON'S BLUNDER—It has been argued on behalf of Governor Stevenson that he could not prevent Truman from whistle stopping without losing votes among labor, racial and liberal groups, which were responsible for F.D.R.'s four triumphs. In proof, the Stevenson-Truman apologists cite Harry's rout of the Republicans by similar low-level tactics in 1948. However, if Stevenson is the decisive, idealistic and independent individual he is represented to be in Democratic campaign literature, which seldom mentions Truman, he could have solved the Truman problem quite easily. He could have prevented the Missouri, a political accident, from taking charge of the 1952 campaign.

Stevenson could have conferred with Truman, whom he has not met since the Chicago Convention, and arranged for a schedule that would keep Truman in a five o'clock shadow. After all, Stevenson is the retiring Truman, is now the ruler of the Democratic Party.

Truman is a has-been. He did not dare to seek renomination and re-election.

TOO LATE—As a matter of fact, the original Stevensonian program was for Truman to have only a minor part in the 1952 play. He was supposed to make about six speeches on radio and television in the closing weeks.

He was to permit the Illinois Governor to impress his attractive personality on the electorate. It was to be a high-class campaign between Ike and Adlai, instead of a Truman descent to a level which offends so many original Stevenson supporters.

It would be asking too much of Stevenson, politics being what it is, for him to repudiate Truman's offenses against ordinary decency codes. But there always was a way by which he could have kept the Missouri in the White House, discharging his Presidential obligations, instead of going on the stump.

DEMOCRATS ARE BROKE The Democrats, according to National Chairman Mitchell, Stevenson's hand picked and anti-White House selection, are broke.

Personal and political dislike of Truman has zipped the pocketbooks of wealthy men like Bernard M. Baruch, Jesse H. Jones and many other Democratic tycoons. As a result, several Stevenson friends (who have been financed by passing the hat at the last moment).

Despite this political poverty, Stevenson and Mitchell have devised a series of Truman whistle stops that will run up a bill of at least $200,000 on the Democrats' treasury and on the taxpayers. That is the amount of money which Truman and his White House entourage, in violation of Hatch Act restrictions on political expenditures, are donating to Stevenson's campaign.

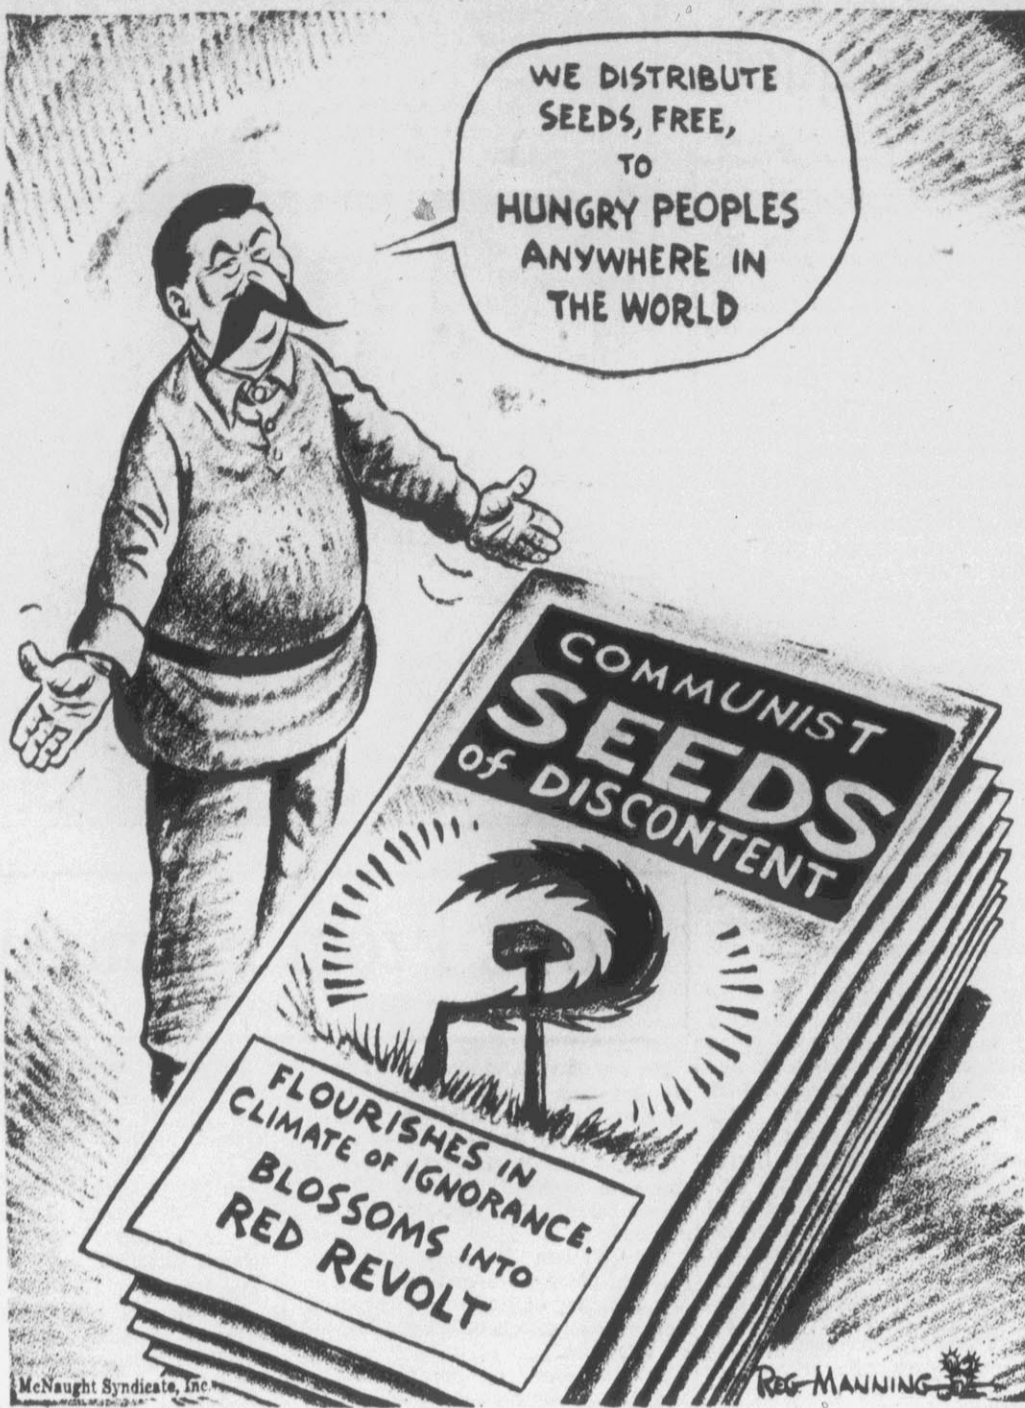

TRUMAN FOR HIMSELF—It is quite obvious that, if Stevenson were the strong and decisive personality he is proclaimed to be, he could have persuaded Truman to stay out of the 1952 political picture. Truman will do anything to achieve personal vindication by a Democratic triumph next month. He is campaigning for himself rather than for Stevenson.

If the gallant Governor of Illinois loses his bid for the Presidency, his defeat may be charged up to Harry S. Truman!

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

There are not many things I had rather do than look through a toy catalogue. Last night I took my third trip through a particular one, classifying the items into three categories: (1) things I want our children to have; (2) things I would have wished for as a child; and (3) things I wish I had now.

Bill Taylor of the men's department at Belk-Tyler bought himself an electric train several years ago. He had always wanted one and he figured at 20-odd he wasn't too old for it. As it worked out he now has a boy who will help him enjoy it in later years.

A toy movie projector would be on the top of my want list. What more could a man ask for than to sit at home and look at Mickey Mouse and Donald Duck? They call the machine a toy, but it really works.

There are plenty of toy games that almost any grown-up could enjoy. The electric games of football, ice hockey, horse racing, baseball and basketball are designed to employ player skill, just like the real thing. The electric baseball game shows players actually running the bases. It features a permanently magnetized ball. The batter makes a hit, starts for first. A fielder picks up the ball and tries to throw him out. Double plays and stolen bases can also be executed. At least that's what it says under the picture of the toy. And you know how a catalog description is.

The communications in the realm of toys is great. One toy for $8.59 even includes a telephone switchboard complete with two telephones. Walkie-talkies and phone rigs that really work would not only be fun for grown-ups, but perhaps even practical.

And you can't look through a toy catalogue without wondering how our children grow up without becoming gunmen. Every type of gun under the sun is given a big play, even the kind that shoots fire out of the end. Of all the guns, the most frightening is the Jet-Zoom, nicknamed the Tigrett. This is an interplanetary weapon that has super-radar sights, blast shield, and electronic chamber and cooling fins. It also has a steel spring loader with trigger mechanism. But fortunately they still have the old faithful pop gun for the more conservative trade.

And I thank you.

BONUS—One important reason for the greatest possible Democratic vote this fall has not been emphasized. That is the method of apportioning delegates in the county and State Convention for the next two general election years. In addition to getting Democratic officers elected, which all real Democrats naturally put first as the reason for voting, there is the extra or bonus dividend of larger vote in party councils. North Carolina, for example, got four "bonus" votes in the Chicago convention this year on account of the majority given the Democratic candidates for President and Vice President in 1948.

DELEGATES—The State Democratic convention is composed of delegates from the 100 counties allotted on basis on one delegate for each 150 votes, or major fraction thereof cast for Governor in the next general election. This means representation in the conventions of 1954 and in 1956—when the selection of delegates to the next Presidential nominating National Convention will be chosen—will be determined by the number of votes cast for Governor. Instead, for example, will have 20 delegates in the next two State conventions, but if the same county casts 6,000 votes it will have 40 voting delegates in the convention.

EAST—This factor is of particular importance in the East, where the general election vote is traditionally much less than in counties of comparable population in the West. Township and county officials, the candidate for congress in the district, and all State officers on the Democratic ticket will be elected whether the total vote of any county is heavy or light. But when it comes to voice in the councils of the Democratic party as expressed in conventions, this year Bertie county had 20 state convention votes for 26,349 people while McDowell county had 32 convention votes for 25,720 people—because McDowell cast 4,749 votes for the Democratic Governor in 1948 while Bertie cast only 2,983.

CONTROL—Eastern folks have been heard to complain about the Western and Piedmont counties dominating the Democratic party, although the East has a larger percentage of potential Democratic votes. Figures presented in this column last week tend to show that charges of failure of Eastern voters in the primary to follow through and vote in the fall election were not well founded. In great majority of the counties the November Democratic vote exceeds the primary totals. The more serious charge might be the Easterners just do not vote in any election as they should. Their failure to come out in full strength constitutes an effect a surrender of control of party machinery to the West. Even though it may not be necessary for the Easterners to poll full strength in order to elect Democratic officials, it is necessary for them to get out the full vote in order to maintain unbroken control of state party affairs. Aside from all the appeals to duty of citizenship, the selfish motive of maintaining influence in the Democratic party should Easterners to vote on November 4.

LEGISLATURE—The East has retained majority control of the General Assembly through the simple process of refusing to obey constitutional mandates for restricting on the basis of population. Up to now the Democratic convention and the party platforms adopted every two years have not attempted to bring pressure on this point. This attitude of indifference may not continue. It is easily conceivable that since the long established custom of east-west rotation of Governors has been abrogated, and small western counties have more convention votes than large eastern counties, some convention within the next few years may put into the platform a mandate for re-allocation of representatives in the Congress and the General Assembly, and that the succeeding Legislature might feel bound to respect the party directive and the constitution. If that happens the only possible result will be lost prestige for the East. The way to prevent that is for the eastern counties to get out a vote this year that will command attention in the party councils.

VOTING TIME—North Carolina statutes do not provide for "time off" for governmental or private industry employees to vote, although custom honored by long observance does permit voting time without penalty. According to a report of the National Civil Service Assembly there are 25 States in which laws have been passed requiring employers to let workers vote. Thirteen States expressly prohibit deductions in pay for voting time off; wage deductions are not prohibited in 10 States; in two—Alabama and Wisconsin—wage deductions are specifically permitted, but no other penalty can be imposed. Two hours is the usual time limit permitted, although in some instances there is a four-hour allowance. Common requirement is that the worker must request in advance to be allowed the time off, and the employer has the right to set the particular time of day when the employee may leave the job to vote. The North Carolina policy with respect to State employees, nearly all county and municipal and majority of private industrial workers, has been to allow reasonable time off at any conven-

Whether taxes on 1953 corporate earnings will be reduced is a question many executives would give a lot to know. The excess profits tax ends June 30, 1953, and it is not likely to be extended. But relatively few corporations pay an EPT. There is much more interest in the other corporation rates. Spokesmen in both parties have promised lower taxes but none, as far as we know, have promised lower corporate taxes. In fact, it would be politically expedient to talk and legislate for lower personal income taxes first. But there is always a hope that the new set of Congressmen will have a few points off the corporate rate.

Executives who want to gamble that rates will be cut will place their bets by spending money between now and the first of the year to make sales advertising and distribution outlays. Stepping up expenses now will reduce income taxable at this year's rates and increase income taxable at next year's rates—whatever they may be. Even though there is no change in rates, some companies may benefit by spending now to improve next year's sales. These are the companies that are making larger profits this year than they expect to make later. One famous tax service is advising corporations, "Get your deduction this year, when you most need the deduction, by promoting next year's sales, when you'll most need the sales. A double gain."

Earnings and tax rates will also influence decision on when to pay year-end bonuses. A company that expects to make less money next year will minimize taxes by paying bonuses before January 1, when the rate that expects to make more next year will profit by postponing payments until after that date.

In the latter group there may be quite a few companies that have signed defense contracts in the last six months. Considering the costs of tooling up, they are likely to have small profits or even losses this year, but they can count on recouping when deliveries begin. STORE "BRANCHES" ROLL ON WHEELS More merchants are taking their show rooms to the customers. A Houston furniture company has sent an air-conditioned showroom trailer on a tour through smaller cities within 165 miles of its store.

A Fond Du Lac, Wis., store has a remodeled van in which more than 500 carpet samples are displayed on 40 swinging racks for rural and suburban customers. The company reports that 7 out of 10 calls result in sales.

Hess Bros. of the Allentown, Pa., department store that pioneered in taking traveling fashion shows to mines, factories and farms in that state, has had a bus built to its own specifications for future shows. The bus has a projecting runway and dressing rooms to accommodate 12 models.

GLASS AEROSOL CONTAINER DEVELOPED An engineering firm and a glass company, both of New Jersey, have developed a glass aerosol container. A plastic, shatter-proof coating is said to eliminate the danger of pressure within the glass.

The development may open broad new fields in packaging in the drug, chemical, cosmetic and food industries. The container could be used for products that might react with linings of metal cans and, being transparent, may help sell products to shoppers who prefer to see what is in containers.

TOO MANY "DEALS," GROCERS COMPLAIN NEW PRODUCTS PLAYTHING: A horse head and neck, moulded of plastic, is being introduced on the toy market. It may be attached to the front of a bike or scooter, hung on a wall as a decoration, or strapped to the chest of a youngster who wants to pretend he is riding a horse. It is made by Cornell Industries, 193 Bradford St., Brooklyn 7.

PIN UP: A clock radio that can be attached to a wall is being introduced by Motorola, Inc., 4545 Augusta Blvd., Chicago 51. Two wall hooks which press tightly into plaster or wood surfaces fit into openings in back of the case, keeps the set level.

SCORES: A plastic device said to simplify figuring of point scores in card games is being marketed by Nu-Designs, 1501 Trails End, Kalamazoo, Mich. It's compact and shows scores at a glance in canasta, bridge and pinocle.

SPRINGS: Rubber springs, said to absorb road shock more smoothly than steel, have been developed for buses by B.F. Goodrich, Akron, Ohio. They operate on the torsion-or twist-principle.

TEST TUBES NOW REPLACING LEVIATHANS Science is saving the whale from extinction. It has developed synthetic detergents, which have reduced demands for natural fats, and it has synthesized vitamin A. As a consequence, whale oil has dropped in price from 19 to 8 cents a barrel over the year and many whaling ships may not put out next season.

WASHINGTON Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—Good meals rank high among the products competing for the family dollar, and people are more aware of the importance of a good diet than they used to be. But, says Dr. Esther F. Phipard, nutritionist in the Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics, U.S. Department of Agriculture, we are still far from our goal of adequate diets for all—even for high-income families.

"With more money to spend for food, city families at the low end of the income distribution—the lowest third, for example—bought 36 per cent more meat, poultry and fish in 1948 than did the comparable group in 1942," she says. "But the third of the families with highest income consumed virtually the same quantity of these foods in both periods."

However, she told me, too little money for food is still a major cause of poor diets. Food costs affect everyone, and not all families have shared equally in income advances. Consequently, the added, large numbers cannot afford to buy the kinds and quantities of foods needed for good diets.

The kind of diet a family can have depends not only on family income but also on the number of persons that income must support. Dr. Phipard pointed out, "The result is that diets of larger families tend to contain smaller quantities of protective foods," she said, and "therefore are less likely to be adequate nutritionally than diets of small families at the same income level."

Poor diets are often the result of poor food habits too, even when there is enough money. Dr. Phipard cited, for example, an analysis of some 25,000 one-day food records made by the U.S. Public Health Service, obtained mainly from children being examined for physical evidence of nutritional deficiency.

In one area the report showed 59 per cent of the subjects had no green or yellow vegetables during the day of the record. In another, 61 per cent reported no milk or less than one cup. In another, about three fourths had no vitamin-C-rich food such as citrus fruit, tomatoes or raw green cabbage. The types of food which seemed less likely to be missing were enriched grain products and such foods as meat or eggs.

"There is considerable evidence," Dr. Phipard says, "that a large share of the population is not attaining the level of nutritional health which the science of nutrition has shown to be a potentiality, although diets in general have been better since the middle 1940s than in any previous period. Further improvement must be along the lines of better distribution of food or nutrients among the under-consuming segments of the population."

NEW YORK (AP)—"Want more salad, dear?" she asked.

"No, thanks," he said.
"How do you like my new dress?"
"Fine."
"Fine?"
"Sure, fine. Wonderful." Pause.

"What happened at the office today?" she asked.
"Nothing much. Usual routine."
"Now tell me frankly, why don't you like the dress?"
"But I said I liked it."
"You said fine."
"Well?"

"Fine isn't your word. It's like grand, it's perfunctory, swell, terrific, snazzy, it is, you know."
Pause.

"I suppose you think I'm silly," she said. "But I always say I like your new suits."
"It's been a year and a half since I had a new suit."
"Why do you say that?"
"Oh, let's cut this nonsense. I just said it, that's all."
"You're trying to make me feel guilty."

"Now, look, I'm not trying to make you feel anything. I'm just trying to state the facts."
"Eat, sleep, eat, sleep."
"That's all I hear. I'm just—"
"Now you sound like someone in a bad soap opera."
"I don't care how I sound. So it's true. Well, I feel tired. I'm locked up in this house all day while you're at the office doing heaven knows what—"

"What do you mean, Heaven knows what? I work at the office. You make it sound like something else like wild parties."
"All day, cleaning in this house. Do you know how frustrating it is to clean a house? You dust the blinds. Next day they need dusting again. It's all so incredibly dull while you, you have lunch—"
"Don't you have lunch?"
"Sure, I have lunch. I have lunch alone or I have lunch with a neighbor and we talk about a new cake mix or the diaper service and isn't it scintillating?"

"What are you having for lunch out, different places, different people?"
"They were both screaming now."
"What is it you women want anyway?" he asked.

"We want nothing special. Just to be happy. Well, to feel fulfilled. Just to be a part of the world. And you, you begr

Jesus' Test of Faith

HE EMPHASIZED NEED FOR SELF-JUDGMENT AND REGARD FOR OTHERS

Scripture—Matthew 7.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL. LIFE is more complicated today, but the need for the kind of life which Jesus advocated in His Sermon on the Mount, is as essential now as then—even more so. Life in these United States is easier in many ways than it was in our Lord's time, but there is fear in our hearts and minds as there was then, and much wickedness is troubling the earth. Our world is much larger than the ancient one. We know more about the great globe and its inhabitants. We have many marvelous inventions, but alas, we plan to use so many of them for the destruction of others instead of for their benefit. Even so, we do use some of our newly-acquired knowledge to try to understand why others act as they do, and not to judge them too harshly, but to help them. But we must need to simply follow the Lord's teachings. If we could only convert the whole world to that, all our troubles would end. "Judge not, that ye be not judged," said Jesus. Our law says a man shall be considered innoof our children's requests must, in wisdom, be denied them, but if we seek, deeply and earnestly, we will derive benefit even if we do not get exactly what we ask for. "Therefore, all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them; for this is the law and the prophets." That sums up what should be the real relationship we have with others. Repeat the words, all who read, and think of them; then put them in practice in your daily living, and you may be sure that Christ will approve of your way of life and reward you. Jesus warned against false prophets "which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves." How shall we know them for what they are? "By their fruits shall ye know them." A good tree bringeth forth good fruit, but a corrupt tree cannot. Then Christ warned of those who deceive themselves that they will be acceptable in the Lord's sight, while their private conduct may be unethical. They may be hypocrites. "Not every one that saith unto cent until he is proved guilty, so why should we judge others when we ourselves have so many faults? "With what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged," Jesus told His hearers. Let us examine our own hearts and ask ourselves whether we are obeying that precept. The verses about beholding the mote (a minute splinter) in your brother's eye when you have a beam (a joist or rafter) in thine own, means that we should again fasten our attention on our own shortcomings, which may possibly be larger than those of the brother we are criticizing. "Casting pearls before swine" is a saying often heard in connection with presenting precious worldly things to unappreciative persons. Christ uses it in connection with things that are holy. About prayer, Jesus said: "Ask and it shall be given you," and asks what man would give his son a stone instead of bread, or a serpent in place of fish? "If ye, then, being evil, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more shall your Father which is in heaven, give good things to them that ask them?" Me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of My Father which is in heaven. "Many will say unto Me in that day (the day of judgment), Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in Thy name? and in Thy name have we cast out devils? and in Thy name done many wonderful works? "And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from Me, ye that work iniquity." The man or woman who hears (or reads) these things and then neglects to do them, Jesus likened to a man who built his house on sand, and when the storms came the house was destroyed. But the person who heeds His words and lives them is like a man who built his house on a rock. When the rain descended and the floods came, it remained firm, for it was built upon rock. So Jesus ended His Sermon, and the multitudes who had been listening to Him were astonished, because He taught them as "One having authority." Are we to be wise, following His teaching? or foolish like the man who built his house on the sand? The world hath sore need of those who obey His teachings all the days of their lives.

SATURDAY'S GAMES

My little friend Solomon, the King of Coleoptera, reported to work with deep frown wrinkling his brow. I immediately decided that work was the best antidote for whatever was troubling the sagacious little fellow so he was immediately given this week's football schedule and about an hour later turned in the following predictions and still frowning left me alone.

East Carolina vs. Guilford
Dick Cherry, passing behind what comes mighty close to being the best line in the North State Conference, should hit enough passes to sufficiently demoralize Guilford's defensive plans.

Even if Cherry's passes fail, the threat of passing should open the Guilford defenses wide enough to permit speedy Paul Gav. Illard Yarborough and hard-driving Fullback Claude King rip through for enough yardage to rout Guilford. The Pirates will be weakened slightly by injuries to George Tucker, David Lee and Bobby Thomas. A Pirate victory 21-7.

Western Carolina vs. Lenoir-Rhyne
Lenoir-Rhyne either isn't as powerful as they once were or they haven't found the right combination. The Bears have won all their Conference games but several of the victories were by the narrowest of margins. Steve Trudnak and the Robinsons were singled out more than anyone to sink the Teachers. A bear victory 20-0.

East Tennessee vs. Appalachian
The Mountaineers have lost three in a row. Even though they were close ones that could have gone either way. Coach E. C. Dugless isn't used to his teams being treated that way. The Mountaineers probably are determined to win this one if they have to load up their shooting irons to stop the ball carrier. Suggestion: Give the players a nip of Mountain Dew, Coach. Even if they don't take a nip the Apps should win 19-7.

Catawba vs. Elon
Should be a real thriller. Neither team has shown a potent offense all season and both squads have top defensive units. Bull Biangardi may find himself and live up to pre-season acclaim for Elon. Elon's best bet, however, appears to be Passing Lou Rochelli, who brought victory from defeat last week with his passing.

If the Catawba defense stifles Rochelli's passes, Harold Carter should be able to swing a Catawba victory. Catawba, 14-6.

North Carolina vs. Notre Dame
The Tar Heels are going to spring an upset victory if they ever find the right offensive combination. However, Notre Dame is a tough team to experiment on. Notre Dame, 14-7.

Duke vs. Virginia
The game of the day in the East. Two of the nation's best defensive units and Worth Lutz vs. Mel Roach. It will answer a lot of questions for Virginia rooters who have wondered how the Cavaliers would perform under a rough test. This is it for both squads, although Duke has to face tough Georgia Tech next week and that will be hard to forget. Duke, 13-7.

N.C. State-Florida State
State has been mauled by just about every team this year but Florida is a little more in their league. The Wolfpack, 13-6.

Furman-Davidson
It's the homecoming contest for Bill Dole's Wildcats and a victory over Furman would make up for a disheartening season. Furman has been hot and cold, after a fast start, they have suddenly slowed almost to a standstill. An upset prediction. Davidson 14-13.

Little League Footballers Play Here Saturday Night

Two Little League Teams Face Teams From Kinston; Games To Be Played At College Stadium

By HERMAN HICKMAN
Reflector Sports Editor
Two Little League football teams, the Red Raiders and Gold Nuggets, were preparing to go through final workouts today in preparation for a double-header event against two Kinston teams Saturday night at College Stadium. The first game is slated to get underway at 7:30.

The Raiders will play the Lovett-Hines team in the opener, and the Gold Nuggets face Kennedy Home's Midgets in the second game. The Raiders have a 2-0 record and the Nuggets stand 2-1-2 in League play. Speedy Halfback Mack Roebuck, who is currently the leading scorer in the Little League with seven touchdowns to his credit, will team with Quarterback Ralph Johnson, Eddie Lee, and Buck Fly to provide the main offensive punch for the Reds.

Flankers Bobby Pridmore and Butch Roberts will be favorite targets for Johnson's aerials. Filling in the Raider starting line are Oscar Stoneham and Lawrence Perkins, tackles, Joe Moye and Shelton Conway, guards, and Louis Arthur, center.

Substitutes for the Red team who will see plenty of action are Phil Davis, Donald Joyner, Charles Roberts, Carl Nichols, Kenneth Joyner, J. O. Proctor, Nelson Broughton, Jimmy Robertson, William Anderson, and Alvin Leonard.

In League games this season, Quarterback Divk Evans, Johnny Johnston, halfback John Ed Arnold, fullback and Bob Bilbro, end, have been top offensive stars. The starting Gold backfield will be Evans, Johnston, Arnold, and Sammy Pollard.

Holding down the end position opposite Bilbro is Delbert Smith. In the Nugget starting line are George Saied and Leonard Topping, tackles, Arthur Andrews and Jimmy Jenkins, guards, and Billy Neal James, center.

Nugget subs who are also slated for heavy duty will be Stanny Hathaway, Jeff Edwards, Ronald Jordan, Robert Taft, Johnny Moore, Donnie Westall, Conral Sumrell.

Phantoms Schedule 20 Basketball Contests

Greenville High School Athletic Director Bo Farley today announced a 20-game basketball schedule for the Phantoms. Included in the schedule are six games with members of the Eastern AAA Conference and two games with Lynchburg Va.

The Phantoms will begin their workouts on November 3 and are expected to have at least five lettermen to form the nucleus of the 52-53 team. Smith Worthington is the lone returning starter from last year's squad while Doug Morgan, Bobby Perry, Jimmy Chestham and Preston Fields are expected to lead the fight for the other four positions.

Most of the opposition to the five lettermen will come from four graduates of the Phantoms' '51-'52 Jayvee club. Pat Sawyer, Bobby Conway, George Sideris and Bobby Starkey are the four making the jump into Varsity ball.

The 20-game slate will be opened on December 2 when the Phantoms travel to Wilson. The first home game will be December 12 when the Cyclones return the game.

ECC Pirates Will Play Seventeen Basketball Tilts

East Carolina College has scheduled 17 basketball games for the coming season, it has been announced by Dr. N. M. Jorgensen, East Carolina's athletic director.

The Pirates will open the schedule with a North State Conference foe, Guilford College, in Greensboro on December 6. Coach Howard Porter will have a large number of lettermen back and is counting on freshmen replacements to add strength to the squad.

Of the 17 games set so far, nine will be played at home in the new gymnasium which is to be dedicated during the winter months.

The schedule:
December 6—Guilford, at Greensboro; 13—Lenoir Rhyne, at Greenville; 16—Catawba, at Greenville.

January 8—Appalachian, at Greenville; 10—Elon, at Elon College; 13—Guilford, at Greenville; 17—Lenoir Rhyne, at Hickory; 19—Western Carolina Teachers, at Cullowhee; 21—Catawba, at Salisbury; 26—High Point, at High Point; 30—Atlantic Christian, at Greenville; 31—Western Carolina Teachers, at Greenville.

February 2—Appalachian, at Boone; 7—McCrory's, at Greenville; 14—Elon, at Greenville; 18—High Point, at Greenville; 21—Atlantic Christian, at Wilson.

North State Conference Tournament dates are February 25-28, with the tourney scheduled to be held in Winston-Salem this season.

Coach C. Biggers Switches Pirate Line For Quaker Split-T Offense

A light signal drill and last minute check of both offense and defense was all that remained to be done this afternoon before the East Carolina College Pirates call a halt to preparations for their game tomorrow night in Greensboro against Guilford.

Yesterday, the Bucs spent most of the practice session checking the defense. They had a long dummy scrimmage and Line Coach Clyde Biggers made numerous shifts in the line personnel in an effort to find the best combination to use tomorrow against the Quakers' split-T offense.

The Pirates will go into tomorrow's game as a heavy favorite. They've won twice in North State Conference play while losing once and coming out with a tie in a fourth game. The Quakers have met only one conference foe, Appalachian, but were defeated in that game. They've played three non-conference games and have come out on the short end in all three contests.

The Quakers' main weakness comes from a lack of experience at almost every position. They've been using freshmen in key spots but the first-year men haven't been able to be really outstanding because of a lack of veteran players to string along with.

Tomorrow night the Guilford Coach Stuart Maynard is expected to follow the pattern he has set thus far and use freshmen in several first-team spots. The key freshman in the attack is a 160-pounder from Goldsboro, quarterback Billy Gibson.

The Pirates are expected to go along, too, with the line-up which has brought them a 3-2-1 record thus far this year. In the backfield, Illard Yarborough and Paul Gay King will be at fullback, and Sandy Siler at the all-important quarterback position.

The offensive line is expected to have Bobby Hodges and Dwight Shoe at the ends, Nick Kanos and Bill McDonald at the tackles, Doc Smith and George Tucker at the guards, and Gaither Cline at center.

Phants Blocking Is Much Improved

Bobby Howell And James Speight Will Be In Starting Line-up At New Bern

The Phantoms, 25-strong, will invade New Bern tonight, determined to hang onto their top spot in the Northeastern Conference.

The Phants have been doing a lot of blocking, tackling and play rehearsing and according to Assistant Coach George Graybill, "The boys look sharper at this time than any time this year. Their blocking is better, tackling is surer, and everybody knows the plays better."

The Phants worked out in light equipment yesterday and looked very impressive in their pass series, and plays that featured razzle-dazzle laterals or fake laterals.

Defensive Fullback Doug Morgan worked in the role of passer yesterday and got off some nice tosses. Bobby Howell and James Speight two hardworking players, have won first string places and will be in the starting lineup tonight.

Coach Bill Kittler described Howell as "the best blocker on the squad." According to Graybill, lack of backfield blocking has been hurting the Phantoms all season. Graybill pointed out, "In the Hertford game and the Mt. Airy game the boys were missing key blocks and it hurt our offense."

The Phantoms starting line will have Hal Edwards and Bobby Conway at ends, Boots Teel and Larry Powell, tackles, Bobby Nunn and Billy Arnold, guards, and Jimmy Chestham, center.

In the backfield will be Pat Sawyer, quarterback, James Speight and Bobby Perry, halfbacks, and Bobby Howell, fullback.

ranked second nationally and the Trojans are sixth. Each has won five games.

Duke's Worth (A Million) Lutz a brilliant split-T formation quarterback, is the key man in the Blue Devils' bid for an unbeaten and untied season. Virginia has not been held scoreless in a football game since 1946.

Of the nation's six remaining perfect-record teams, only UCLA was expected to have difficulty in winning. The Bruins face Wisconsin in another renewal of the PCC Big Ten rivalry. Wisconsin was a seven-point favorite to register the Big Ten's fourth victory in eight games between the two conferences.

Michigan State, the nation's top ranked team, Maryland, Georgia Tech, Holy Cross and Villanova were favored to win handily.

Pennsylvania Turns Out Choice Gridders

NEW YORK (UP)—William Penn, it can be revealed today, did more for college football than Amos Alonzo Stagg, the forward pass, Pop Warner, the crying towel and Knute Rockne combined.

Penn contributed Pennsylvania. And if "Whirling Willie" hadn't scored his financial touchdown against King Charles II and run his double-reverse as a first the turkey-wing Redskins, Pennsylvania wouldn't be the nation's number one football foundry. Which it is.

Of course, the coal mines, steel mills and farmhands of Penn's province polished the product. But college coaches across the land should kneel beside their trundle beds every night and give thanks to the founding father.

Because there are 14 major colleges undefeated on the gridiron this fall—with 144 Pennsylvanians on their combined squads. Almost any coach among the 10 teams will tell you that Penn got a rare bargain when he did his Branch Rickey on the Indians. There are 63 gridiron gamblers on those clubs, with an additional 81 on the four teams which have one tie marring their record.

It's a case of the big ones getting away most of the time, but the University of Pennsylvania managed to retain 45. A powerful lot hit the trail for foreign parts but Penn State has 35 home states and you'd think that Villanova, being in Pennsylvania, would be third.

Not so. Villanova has only 19—while Maryland has 21. Michigan State is a collegiate advertisement for the Keystone State with 13 Pennsylvanians on its squad. The South deals heavily, Duke having four, Georgia Tech and Virginia each two and Mississippi one. Up at Hol; Cross they smared a good one and way out at UCLA one of "Whirling Willie's" boys is making good with a sun tan.

Gold, Blue Play To 7-7 Deadlock

The Gold Nuggets staved off defeat and wound up with a 7-7 tie instead by connecting on a scoring pass play with less than two minutes remaining in their Little League contest yesterday with the Blues.

The Nuggets' scoring play was an aerial from Dick Evans to Bob Bilbro. A similar pass play worked for the extra point.

The Blues, defeated on four straight occasions before yesterday, had taken the lead early in the fourth quarter. Kelly Barnhill had carried the ball across on a quarterback sneak from two yards out for the touchdown while Barney Barrett drove through the middle for the extra point.

The Gold Nuggets, playing without the services of first-team backs Klutz Fisher and John Ed Arnold, had Evans, Bilbro, and Johnnie Johnston doing the bulk of the work on offense. Billy Neal James, Jimmy Jenkins, Jeff Edwards, and George Saied led the defense.

Mistakes Added Up By Coaches

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP)—Here is a gridiron soul-searching note. After each game, Colorado A. M. players are instructed to turn in to Coach Bob Davis a list of mistakes they believe they had committed. Then the coaches add to each players list errors noted from the sidelines.

"This gives them a chance to correct these mistakes—and you'd be surprised how many they didn't know they had made," Davis said.

Dick Groat Will Play In All-Star Basketball Game

CHICAGO (AP)—A front-line trio averaging 6 feet 9 inches in height will be the collegians' hope tonight in stopping George Mikan in the 13th annual All-Star basketball classic.

The game, sponsored by the Chicago Herald-American, is expected to attract a capacity 18,000 fans at Chicago Stadium.

The hand-picked college squad tangles with the professional championship Minneapolis Lakers led by the giant Mikan.

Phog Allen, veteran University of Kansas coach and head man of the all-stars, will start a front line of Mark Workman of West Virginia and Don Meineke of Dayton at forwards, and Ray Felix of Long Island U. at center.

Notre Dame's Leroy Leslie and Dick Groat, the Pittsburgh Pirates' shortstop who scored 2,087 points in three years at Duke, are probable starters at guard.

Ezz Charles To Fight Tonight

NEW YORK (UP)—The "new" Ezzard Charles was favored at 4:1 today to win his rip-or-retire fight with Cesar Brion of Argentina at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Ex-heavyweight champion Charles promised to rip into the tall, awkward South American in every round of their television 10-rounder because of his new, upright, aggressive style of fighting.

Even Ezzard's best friends say he'd better retire if he doesn't rip enough to beat his tough but inspt opponent, Dusky Charles of Cincinnati lost two of his three fights this year. Another defeat would definitely blast his hopes of becoming the first heavyweight to recapture the crown.

By JOHN ROEBURT

Chapter 24
The record room was airless and the heavy, tomblike quiet common to libraries. Devereaux leafed through the file quickly, seeking an outline of his scope. The orderly sequences told the short and cheerless story of a youth, born perversely, predoomed, and the crime that brought him to judgment. There was the terse police story of the crime and apprehension the probation officer's report couched in quasi-sociological phrasing, and the summary story of the trial and the punishment.

Devereaux returned to syste-to himself. "The messenger left the Bank of Manhattan with the weekly magic word reading. He read page payroll of the Hubbell Electrical Appliance Company and proceeded on foot one block to—"

Devereaux's sudden elation infused Solowey. "You found a link?" the portly detective exclaimed. "I hit the jackpot!" He reached into his pocket and brought out the folded omenskin sheath.

"Read this first," Devereaux ordered, drawing a nail line under the sentence that had obdurately haunted his thinking. Solowey complied.

"Now," Devereaux crowed. He drew a nail line under an entry on the omenskin, and waited triumphantly for Solowey's reaction. "The Hubbell Electrical Appliance Company." There was a comical note of awe in Solowey's voice. "Check, Frankie Hughes stole their payroll and shot their messenger, Buloff, as Jagendor, was the insurance-company detective assigned to the case." Devereaux looked solemnly at Solowey. Know what I'm thinking?"

Solowey nodded. "That Buloff double-crossed his own company, that he went after the spoils himself. That Longo was his agent."

"And that Longo got into Sing Sing to kill Frankie Hughes." "The deduction has substance enough," Solowey observed cautiously. "But the elapsed twenty years. What could be the explanation for that?"

Devereaux shook his head slowly. "The hundred-thousand-dollar loot was never recovered, and Hughes' confederates on the job were never identified and brought to book. Hughes didn't inform on them, and the police accomplished nothing except sending Hughes up the river. The sentence was shrewdly designed to break Hughes' morale, sooner or later, and get him to sing out." He thought about it. "A total of sixty years, on three separate counts. Three separate twenty-year sentences, running consecutively, with the stipulation that Hughes be brought back before the court after each sentence, after each twenty years, and be given the opportunity of mitigating his punishment by confessing the whole truth." Devereaux's face drew solemnly. "Hughes would have to be crazy to keep playing patsy for the rest of his life, just to keep faith with his pals outside."

Devereaux calculated swiftly. "The first twenty-year sentence was about over. The pressure on Hughes to sing must have been terrific."

"The pressure on his compatriots outside to prevent Hughes' singing undoubtedly was even more terrific." Solowey looked at Devereaux keenly. "The accidental death by scalding was a, ah, providential development."

"Or the successful outcome of some pretty desperate plotting." "Longo," Solowey said.

Devereaux nodded. "Longo, pretty clearly now. He bided his time in Sing Sing and disposed of Frankie Hughes in what looked for all the world like the perfect crime."

Devereaux was lost in his thinking. "The others could be our whole cast of principals, those dead and those alive," Devereaux said slowly, as if deliberateness acquitted him of arbitrariness. "And the most reasonable assumption about Buloff now is that he somehow came into the deal sometime after the payroll robbery and shooting. As a blackmailer, or self-declared partner, after having scouted the case and solved it as an insurance-company operative."

Solowey nodded in tentative agreement. "I makes a plausible picture."

Solowey got to his feet. "Where is the invincible Devereaux method taking you from here?" he inquired in a patiently forced effort at humor.

Devereaux replied eagerly, as if glad for a reprieve from the mood of his thinking. "To the Rogue's Gallery for a print of Frankie Hughes' face. Then home for that night-club photograph of Castle and Phillips. Then somewhere for a still of Lippy Latimer. With all that, I'm off to the neighborhood listed as Frankie Hughes' last address in the court file. I'll reconnoiter, inquire around, and see if I can make a pretty sound but still somewhat hypothetical story to a convincing imitation of life."

Solowey bowed in a clownish effect of idol worship.

Denies Egg She Threw Rotten

OAKLEY, Mich. (UP) -- Mrs. Frances Banghart, mother of the 22-year-old coed who tossed an egg at Gov. Adlai Stevenson at Elkhart, Ind., Wednesday, said today, "It was a nice, fresh, brown egg. Not a rotten one." She said her daughter, Lola told her she "objected to certain remarks" the Democratic presidential nominee made. The egg missed by a scant two feet.

Eisenhower To Review Errors Involving Korea

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press Staff Correspondent
WITH EISENHOWER (UP) — Dwight D. Eisenhower fought the Democrats in Michigan today on the issue of administration responsibility for the Korean war, describing foreign policy under President Truman as "a record of failure to lead us toward peace."

Eisenhower spoke in the morning to rear platform crowds at Pontiac and Royal Oak. He scheduled a major speech on Korea from Detroit tonight.

At Pontiac he said his address tonight would be devoted solely to what he called "the Korean incident, the way it occurred and where we are now." The Pontiac audience was estimated at 4,000 persons. About 8,000 greeted him at Royal Oak.

Mr. Truman in recent days has demanded repeatedly that if Eisenhower knows how to stop the fighting in Korea, he should make it public immediately.

The GOP presidential nominee renewed his charge that the Democrats were trying to sell the country "a berry of fears."

"But America doesn't buy fear easily," he said.

Members of the Republican presidential candidate's staff predicted Eisenhower's address in the Motor City tonight would be his most forceful since he accepted the party's nomination.

They said he not only would place the responsibility for the Korean war on the Truman administration but would criticize it vehemently for failing to bring the fighting to an end.

For days Eisenhower has been warming up on the subject of the administration's responsibility in the Korean conflict, charging the U.S. became involved because of a "miserable failure" of American diplomacy conducted on orders from the President.

Eisenhower scheduled only two stops — at Pontiac and Royal Oak — on the train trip to Detroit on his second invasion of Michigan.

An audience estimated by police at 15,000 went to Memorial Auditorium at Buffalo, N. Y., Thursday night to hear Eisenhower charge the Truman administration was the child of such big city bosses as the late Tom Pendergast of Kansas City.

He pictured his Democratic opponent, Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson, as having been taken over "body, boots and britches" by the President. He said Stevenson was a "prisoner of the administration and its sorry record."

"By edict he (Stevenson) is forced to accept that record," Eisenhower said. "And that he has done by personal choice from the outset."

Harrell Reminds It's Last Chance

Pitt County citizens, tomorrow is your last chance to register if you wish to vote this year!

Elections Board Chairman J. H. Harrell of Greenville this morning warned potential voters that registration books will be closed tomorrow at sunset until another election is held.

"Voters whose names do not appear on the books—in effect, those people who have not re-registered since the May Primary elections of 1950—will not be allowed to vote," Harrell said.

The chairman reported his office has received applications from more than 200 servicemen for absentee ballots and approximately 105 absentee applications from civilians.

He stated the number of servicemen applying for absentees this year is greater than any year since 1944, in the midst of World War II.

"People who are now ill or who know they cannot be at the polls November 4, may obtain absentee ballots by calling my office in Greenville," Harrell asserted. "Those may be obtained up through Saturday, November 1."

In the case of people who suddenly become too ill to journey to the polls November 4, he added, they may obtain absentees right up through the day of the elections.

First To Sign Jaycee Petition

FIRST TO SIGN—Miss Elizabeth Hyman of 205 Library Street becomes the first citizen in Greenville to sign the Jaycee petition calling for a referendum on city manager form of municipal administration for the city. Miss Hyman is pictured early last night as she affixed her signature to the petition being circulated by J. B. Smith, local Jaycee. (Reflector Photo by Roy Hardee.)

Jaycees began a house-to-house canvass of Greenville last night seeking signatures for their petition calling for an election on the council-manager form of government for the city.

Gene Skinner, chairman of the petition circulating committee, this morning expressed enthusiasm at the way the petition was accepted by local citizens called on last night. "Everyone I contacted was very cooperative in signing the petition,"

Skinner said. "We even had some people who were not Jaycees to offer to take petitions and get them signed for us."

Other teams of Jaycees with petitions reported similar results last night in the first quest for signatures, Skinner said.

The project of getting the petitions signed was begun by teams of Jaycees in all five wards of the city last night and will continue until each ward has been canvassed.

J. B. Kittrell Jr., general chairman of the city manager project, reported today he also has experienced favorable reception to the petitions on the part of local citizens.

Kittrell said the project will be conducted tonight, and in the future until it has been completed. To call a referendum, Jaycees need to get only 25 percent, or approximately 2,000, of the registered voters in the city on the petitions.

Adlai Assails Ike's Tactics

EN ROUTE WITH STEVENSON (UP)—Adlai E. Stevenson bid for New York's 45 electoral votes, top prize of the November election, today after accusing Dwight D. Eisenhower of directing a campaign of "innuendo and slander" which could wreck the American political system.

The New York drive opened with a whistle-stop tour across the Mohawk Valley with a schedule of 13 speeches between Niagara Falls at 7:15 a.m. and Troy, N.Y., at 10:15 p.m.—a full 15-hour day for the Democratic presidential nominee.

Stevenson hurled his charge at his Republican rival in an angry speech in Cleveland Thursday night in which he repudiated the criticisms of his part in the Alger Hiss case.

He accused the Republican opposition of a deliberate program of "innuendo and accusation aimed at sowing the seeds of doubt and distrust" in the minds of the American people.

He charged that "those who would beguile the voters by lies or half-truths, or corrupt them by fear and falsehood," are committing "spiritual treason."

"Like a cancer that is small at first and hardly noticed in the political, it can grow and it can spread until it has produced real organic changes — all that has made America strong and free and great," he said. "We do not believe that the ends justify the means."

It is understood that some organized effort will be made this week and next to get as many as possible of these absentee votes in the mails in time for them to be counted back home on November 4. In counties where the margin is narrow the impact of absentee votes is sometimes enough to turn the balance.
