Red Night Raid Smashed By Big Guns; One MIG Downed in Battle

Van Fleet Visits Scene Of Triangle Hill Set-backs; ROK Attack Halted

SEUL, Korea (UP) - A murderous Allied artillery barrage virtually wiped out 200 Chinese Communists who tried tonight to storm Allied positions between Triangle Hill and Sniper Ridge.

The battle, the second in the Triangle-Sniper sector today, came a few hours after the 8th Army disclosed that Gen. James A. Van Fleet flew to the scene for a personal inspection of the bloody center front battleground.

Van Fleet visited the Triangle Hill area yesterday on a "routine" visit. He returned to the front again today, but visited another sector.

The Reds opened their latest attack at 9:50 p.m. on low ground between Jane Russell Hill, a Red-held position on the Triangle Mass, and Sniper Ridge, occupied by South Koreans.

Advancing through their own artillery bursts under a brilliant glare from U.N. searchlights and aerial flares, the Chinese were an easy target for the Allied artillery, which rained barrage after barrage of shellfire on them.

The Reds got to within 50 yards of Allied positions before U.N. shells cut them to pieces. Those Reds who could withdraw 5 minutes after the attack began. An Allied officer estimated they suffered "nearly 100 per cent killed or wounded."

To the west, Chinese Reds blowing horns and howling "kill kill!" snatched Jackson Heights from Allied troops, but abandoned it a few hours later. U.N. forces reoccupied the height without resistance.

American Sabre jets shot down one Communist MIG-15 jet fighter and damaged four more in two blazing dogfights deep in northwest Korea. The aerial duels ran the Allies' November score to 11 MIGs—four destroyed, two probably destroyed and five damaged.

Van Fleet visited the Triangle Hill area yesterday in what his headquarters said was "merely a routine observation of the area."

However, United Press correspondent Victor Kendrick said he went there "to see if anything could be salvaged" from the setback suffered by the South Koreans at Triangle Hill.

The 8th Army said ROK troops were ordered "by their commander" to withdraw from the frozen slopes after nine hours of fighting yesterday because of "heavy enemy mortar fire." There were reports the mortar missed 300 heavy guns in the area.

Troops of the American 7th Infantry Division had seized the peak Oct. 15. The South Koreans who relieved them fought a see-saw battle with the Chinese for possession of the crest, finally losing it last Friday.

American and South Korean officers in that sector refused to admit defeat, despite heavy ROK casualties. The American advisers described the ROK efforts as "superb," but admitted occasional bad planning and staff work.

Earlier, censors passed news dispatches saying the 8th Army had ordered the ROKs to stop the attack, but a headquarters spokesman later said the order came

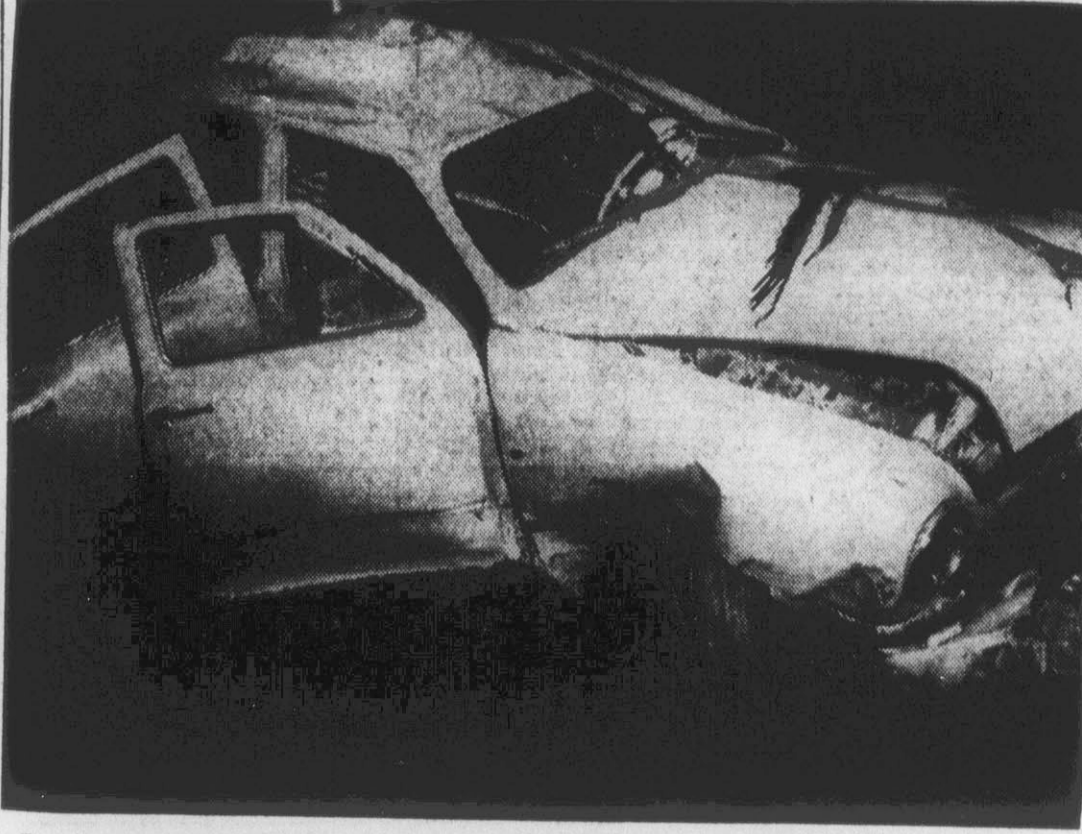

Ask That Leaves Not Be In Street

The Street Department requests hou chalders and others not to pile up fallen leaves in the street.

Supt. C. K. Beatty suggests that leaves be placed in sheets or in piles that cannot scatter on premises. A telephone call to the Street Department will receive proper response.

"We plan to get around to everybody's leaves just as soon as possible," he added.

One Youth Critically Hurt, 3 Others Injured

Four teen-agers were injured last night, one critically, when the car in which they were riding apparently went out of control when it rounded a curve. The youths were on the way to attend and take part in their school's first basketball game of the year. The accident occurred near Grimesland. (Reflector Photo By)

Four Pitt Youngsters Injured In Auto Wreck

One Has Fractured Skull; Two Others Kept At Hospital; Were On Their Way To Basketball Game

By MURIEL SHOTWELL, Reflector Staff Writer

GRIMESLAND—Enroute to their school's first basketball game of the season, four Pitt County teen-agers were hospitalized last night following an automobile accident which injured one boy critically.

Alton Hodges, 17-year-old youth of Route 3, Greenville, student at Grimesland High School, who was the driver of the car, was seriously injured in the accident which occurred on a rural road two miles south of Grimesland around 6:45 last night.

Hodges was first taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital, but later transferred to Duke Hospital. He is reported to have a fractured skull, fractured spine and internal injuries.

Hodges' 14-year-old sister, Shelby Jean, was taken to Tayloe Hospital in Washington but was later released after being treated for cuts and bruises and shock. Bobby Gladson, 17, of Grimesland, was extensively bruised and Jerry Gaskins, 16, of Route 3, Greenville, suffered head and chest injuries. The two boys were taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital where they are confined.

The four teen-agers left Black Jack and were headed north on a rural road enroute to Maury where Grimesland High School and Maury High School were meeting for a basketball game. The youths were planning to stop for more players. Gaskins, a star player, and Hodges were to take part in Grimesland's first game of the season.

Investigating officers, Highway Patrolmen James Boykin and Cpl. C. E. Whitfield, said the car apparently went out of control as it rounded a curve, turning over several times. Details of the accident are not yet known because of the driver's condition but the accident is still under investigation.

The youths' parents are Glenn Gaskins of Route 3, Greenville, Leroy Gladson of Grimesland and Floyd Hodges of Route 3, Greenville. All of the youths were students at Grimesland High School.

Damage to the car was set at approximately $1,250.

EISEN-SHOWER

DALLAS, Tex. (UP)—Less than an hour after Adlai Stevenson conceded his defeat, it started to rain in Dallas. It was the first rain in the drought-stricken city since Oct. 7.

Local Republicans called it an Eisen-shower.

Welfare Department Cautioned To Remain Within Budget Limit

By JESS POINDEXTER, Reflector City Editor

Pitt County Welfare Superintendent K. F. Futrelle was cautioned this week to stay within his 1952-53 budget for hospital care of indigent patients inside the county.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Pitt Board of Commissioners, Futrelle was informed that his budget was being depleted at a rate indicative of complete exhaustion before the end of the fiscal year.

Futrelle said many more old people are being hospitalized this year than was anticipated when the budget for the current fiscal year was made up and approved last summer. "That is something we have no control over," he declared.

Secret Service Men On 'Holiday' Guards Accompany Ike On His Brief Vacation In Georgia

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UP)—President Dwight D. Eisenhower woke up in his small golf course cottage today to find it discreetly surrounded by agents of the United States Secret Service.

Outside on the first tee of the Augusta National Golf Course where the big Masters Tournament is played every spring there was a battery of cameras, microphones and reporters waiting for the man who will occupy the White House for the next four years.

Thus did Eisenhower start a 10-day golf and fishing vacation after his gruelling campaign for the presidency.

His golfing companions today were Ed Dudley, the professional at the club, and two of Eisenhower's old-time golfing companions from New York, William E. Robinson, an executive of the New York Herald Tribune, and Clifford Roberts, a Manhattan business executive.

Eisenhower meanwhile evidenced no reaction to President Truman's publicly stated suggestion that Eisenhower come to Washington at an early date for briefing on the problems ahead, including the 1953-54 budget, and to show the world that Americans are united in the struggle for freedom and peace.

Eisenhower's staff reported that they heard about Mr. Truman's invitation from press sources but not directly from the chief executive until mid-evening Wednesday night. Pending a direct message from Mr. Truman, the advisers around the President-elect preferred to withhold comment for publication.

Two Nixons Won Montana Vote

HELENA, Mont. (UP)—The Richard Nixons, both of them, came through with flying colors in the Montana elections.

The state gave its presidential electoral votes to Dwight Eisenhower and his running-mate, California Sen. Richard Nixon.

The voters in Blaine County elected a local Democrat named Richard Nixon to the state House of Representatives.

Rep. Sabath Dies Of Long Illness

Rose From Immigrant Boy To 'Dean' Of U. S. Congress

WASHINGTON (UP)—Rep. Adolph J. Sabath, who rose from Bohemian immigrant boy to dean of the United States Congress, died early today of cancer.

The Illinois Democrat was 86, a veteran of just under 46 years in the House and to the end an unyielding battler for "liberal" legislation. He served in Congress under eight presidents.

Sabath was elected by Chicago voters Tuesday to his 24th consecutive term. He had served longer with no break than any House or Senate member in history. Only one member ever had bested his total — and that by only two months.

Sabath was a New and Fair Dealer early and late. He battled the "interests" and championed the "little man." He was an unflinching supporter of Presidents Roosevelt and Truman. He distrusted the generals and would likely have tangled with President-elect Eisenhower.

House members loved Sabath almost to the last man, though more and more often in recent years a majority found itself opposing his goals.

Sabath entered the House on March 4, 1907, and in Democratic years since 1938 had held one of its highest positions, chairmanship of the Rules Committee.

He set a number of records in Congress, including one in the realm of fisticuffs. He swapped blows with another member on the House floor at age 83, and did well in the exchange, although he modestly told reporters later he had "just sort of brushed" his opponent's cheek.

Russians Build 5 Transmitters In East Germany

BONN, Germany (UP)—Soviet radio experts are building five new transmitters in East Germany, and Western experts believe the Reds plan a greatly intensified propaganda offensive against West Europe.

The transmitters, like most Soviet projects, are shrouded in secrecy. No one west of the Iron Curtain knows exactly when they will go on the air. The best guess is sometime during 1953.

Western experts say they are sure the big new stations are intended for propaganda purposes rather than jamming, because Russia's equipment for jamming Western broadcasts already is "adequate."

They expect the new transmitters to be beamed primarily to Western Germany, but they will have the power to blast their way into most of West Europe.

Stabilizer Will Quit Job Soon

WASHINGTON (AP)—Roger L. Putnam said today he plans to quit as economic stabilizer "just as soon as I can get the coal miners' wage dispute settled."

He added that he has high hopes of reaching a decision on the coal matter in the next week or so. Putnam told a reporter that "A year is long enough to handle this stabilization job and I certainly hope to get home to my family in Springfield, Mass. by Thanksgiving. I made a promise to stay and see this coal thing through and I'll do it."

Tide Of Eisenhower Votes Continues To Edge Upward

Tarheel 2-Party System Regarded A Long Way Off

Despite Votes For Ike, Top Observers Regard It As Flash In The Pan

RALEIGH, (UP)—Republicans and Democrats alike agreed today that despite the good election showing of the GOP, Republicanism has a long way to go before the state will have a real two-party system.

Not only did the state elect its first Republican congressman in 24 years, but unofficial returns showed that the Republican presidential ticket led in 28 counties, and tied in one (Allegheny) of the state's 100 counties. In the last election, Republican Thomas E. Dewey led in only 15 counties. Perhaps equally significant was the fact that Eisenhower appeared to have captured four of the most populous counties—Mecklenburg, Forsyth, Buncombe and Guilford—which gave majorities to President Truman four years ago.

In the gubernatorial race, Republican Herbert F. Seawell Jr., trailed William B. Umstead by a two-to-one margin. But Seawell's total vote was expected to approximate if not surpass the record vote for any Republican gubernatorial candidate in North Carolina. The record was set in 1928 by Seawell's father, who piled up 289,415.

Governor-elect Umstead said he believes the Republican gains both in North Carolina and elsewhere in the South are "largely temporary."

"I don't believe it indicates any substantial increase in the Republican strength in the South," he said.

Seawell, the loser, said he thinks Dwight Eisenhower's success in the South is due to "personal popularity." He said he thinks the South will eventually have a two-party system but "the Republicans can't build it themselves. It will have to be done by the Democrats and Independents."

The Carthage lawyer said he thinks that if a single leading North Carolina Democrat had been willing to back Eisenhower, the general would have carried the state.

"Sen. Willis Smith almost did it — But not quite," said Seawell. "I wired Smith to put his voice where his heart was. If he had, North Carolina might have gone for Ike."

Smith himself said the election was "a disappointment to those who supported the entire Democratic ticket." He said he thinks the election appears "to reflect the objection of our people to Trumanism" and "we should devote ourselves to preventing the radical elements from assuming control of the party."

Gov. Kerr Scott said he saw "nothing significant" in the Republican vote in the South. Scott said "oil" was responsible for the large GOP turnout in Texas and Louisiana but "I just don't know what caused the Republican victory in Virginia."

"I was satisfied with the showing of the Democrats in North Carolina," Scott added. "The Republican vote was just what it generally is."

State Republican Chairman B. M. Baley said he was encouraged by the "better" Republican showing. "I believe it will make the beginnings of the two-party system in North Carolina," Baley said.

Scott dismissed such claims. He said, "I always thought we had a two-party system."

Seawell said no one can talk about a two-party system in the state when the Republicans have no organization in eastern North Carolina.

"If the state were divided at Raleigh, we would have an opportunity to elect a Republican governor," he said.

Contradictory

WASHINGTON (AP)—Adlai Stevenson, whose views on civil rights were received with something less than sympathy in the South, got all his electoral votes in Dixie, near-complete returns showed today.

Those returns put the Democratic presidential nominee ahead in only nine states, whose total electoral vote amounts to 89. This was the smallest electoral vote for any Democratic nominee since 1928, when Alfred E. Smith received 87.

There was a chance that Stevenson might yet lose one of those nine states—Kentucky. If so, his electoral vote total would fall to 79.

With 116 precincts missing, Stevenson led in Kentucky by 1,527 votes.

Chairman Named For Seal Sales

Local Campaign Opens Nov. 17; Bond Letters Readied

P. L. Goodson (above) has been named chairman of the 1952 Tuberculosis Seal Sale Drive which will get underway November 17.

The announcement of Goodson's appointment as chairman was made yesterday by the Pitt County TB Association and Mrs. J. B. Spilman, executive secretary of the association.

As head of the bond sales, Goodson will send out approximately 900 bond letters to people who have made special contributions in the past. The letters will be put in the mail Friday. Goodson will also make personal calls on possible contributors.

Bond letters which will be sent out Friday will contain bonds from $5.00 to $10.00.

Letters containing $2.00 worth of seals will be sent out November 17, the starting date of the 46th annual seal sale drive.

Event scheduled for next week in the 1952 TB Seal Sale Drive will feature a radio program with mayors of seven surrounding towns appearing on the program.

Each of the mayors will make a special appeal to his town to help Pitt County go over the top of the $100,000 goal.

Appearing on the program will be: R. L. Martin, Bethel; Corey Stokes, Ayden; Walter Jones, Farmville; Burney Tucker, Winterville; Dr. W. E. Rasberry, Grifton; J. W. Peele, Fountain; and Lester Page, Greenville.

Mrs. J. B. Spilman will entertain county TB seal sale chairmen and workers in her home next week where they will make further plans to promote the seal sale drive.

Dr. W. E. Marshall and Mrs. J. Bryan Brown are serving as chairman and co-chairman of the 1952 TB Seal Sale Drive.

Stevenson Said Likely Nominee In 1956 Campaign

Campaign Manager Says Candidate's Stature Is 'Certainly Secure'

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UP)—Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson, looking like a man who has had a great burden lifted from his slender shoulders, ignored politics today and devoted his energies to government.

But as the Illinois governor went back to his desk in the official mansion here, it seemed inevitable that politics and the fate of the Democratic party would preoccupy him again soon.

His campaign manager, Wilson Wyatt, was ready to admit that Stevenson's crushing defeat in the presidential election might mean considerable "realignment" within the party and that some old Democratic axioms no longer held true.

Stevenson spent the greater part of Wednesday saying goodbye to newsmen who had grveled with him during the hectic campaign and to supporters who seemed more shocked and crestfallen than he.

Wyatt, who refused to concede defeat until the last vestige of hope disappeared, held a final news conference at which he said he and Stevenson's aides were unanimous in the belief that Stevenson would head the Democratic ticket in 1956.

"Our feeling is definitely that it is Stevenson in '56," he said. "Governor Stevenson would not comment on this, your guess on his opinion is as good as mine."

Wyatt, on a day when the Democratic party as a whole was feeling pretty blue, found a cheering note.

"The total popular vote cast for Stevenson was greater than that heretofore received by any Republican candidate in history," he said. "The great outpouring of votes should be a heartening thing to all Americans."

Wyatt expressed pleasure at the way the campaign had gone.

"Governor Stevenson made no compromises, no commitments and has no regrets," Wyatt said. "The outcome could not have been other than it was and Stevenson abides cheerfully by the decision."

The question of Stevenson's status in the Democratic party was put to Wyatt and the governor's campaign manager said that "it was the customary thing for the presidential candidate, even though defeated, to remain as the party's leader."

Wyatt said Stevenson's position in American politics and government "was certainly secure."

"He will most certainly be one of the great leaders of our country," Wyatt said. "Not only in the United States but in foreign affairs."

Rep. Joe Martin Is Third In Line

WASHINGTON (UP)—Republican control of the House of Representatives will put Rep. Joseph W. Martin Jr. (R-Mass.) third in line for the presidency.

Martin will move up from Republican floor leader to speaker, a post he held in the 80th Congress. He will replace Sam Rayburn of Texas, who has been speaker longer than any man in history.

Under the law, the speaker becomes president if the president and vice president both should die.

Director Frederick J. Lawton on the fiscal 1953 budget which must go to Congress by Jan. 18.

Informed sources said President Truman probably will not send a new Congress, as is customary. It is not required to law, as is the annual budget.

These sources also said that Mr. Truman probably will leave the semi-annual Economic Message to Congress for Eisenhower to handle.

Mr. Truman pledged his support to Eisenhower and warned that the new President will face "extremely difficult problems, particularly in the field of foreign affairs."

"The proper solution of these problems may determine whether we shall have a third world war—and, indeed, whether we shall survive as a free and democratic nation," Mr. Truman said in a post-

Latest Tabulations Indicate Electoral Vote Of 422, From 39 States; Republican Party Fails Win Enough Congressional Races To Assure Safe Control

By LYLE C. WILSON, United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Dwight D. Eisenhower's record-setting flood of popular votes continued to edge upward today but the Republican party failed to win enough congressional races to assure safe and certain GOP control of either house.

Conclusive returns from Tuesday's election showed the Republicans will have a shaky majority of the new House but will have to depend on other party votes to put and keep the Senate under control.

The latest tabulations give Eisenhower 31,934,009 popular votes—422 electoral votes from 39 states, including Tennessee in the South. The score for Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson: 25,899,958 popular votes, 89 electoral votes from nine states.

Indicated Senate strength: 48 Republicans; in the House, 219 as against 212 Democrats, one Independent, one vacancy. This gives the GOP a majority of only four.

BULLETIN AUGUSTA, Ga. (UP)—Dwight D. Eisenhower agreed today to meet the man he replaces in the White House, President Truman, in Washington during the week of Nov. 17.

Failure to win firm control of Congress could be a crippling handicap for President-elect Eisenhower.

But Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-O.), who now emerges as the most powerful figure in the Senate, foresaw no serious obstacles to Republican control.

With Vice President-elect Richard M. Nixon, Taft pointed out the Republicans after Jan. 20 will have the majority they need to organize the Senate.

There was a possible outside chance the Republicans might get a 49th Senate seat. In New Mexico Patrick J. Hurley, Republican, indicated he may ask a recount of votes which showed he lost to Sen. Dennis Chavez, Democrat.

Trains Collide In Brooklyn Subway

NEW YORK (UP)—Two subway trains collided in Brooklyn today and 6 persons were injured.

At least 20 of the injured were taken to a nearby hospital for treatment. Police said they suffered minor injuries and shock.

The collision occurred shortly after midnight when the brakes of a subway train locked. Repairmen, trying to release the brakes of the six-car train, uncoupled the last three cars when they were found to be in order. The three cars rolled backward into the first car of the train behind.

Aldermen Hold Meeting Tonight

The Greenville Board of Aldermen will hold its regular monthly meeting tonight at 7:30 in the aldermen's room at the city hall.

Mayor Lester D. Page said this morning the meeting will be routine and that nothing of any special importance is slated for discussion.

Reports of city department heads will be heard and action taken on any pending petitions submitted.

The garage doors were not open.

Truman Indicates He Will Make No More Major Policy Decisions

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Truman indicated today that he will not make any more major decisions as the nation's chief executive, unless they are absolutely necessary.

If world events should force a major presidential decision before Jan. 20, indications are that Mr. Truman will not act without approval of President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower.

About two hours after arriving here Wednesday, Mr. Truman invited Eisenhower to an early White House meeting to make "clear to all the world that this nation is united in its struggle for freedom and peace."

Mr. Truman said such a meeting also is necessary to the "orderly" change of administrations after the Jan. 20 inauguration of the new Republican President.

The President earlier had invited Eisenhower to send a representative to confer with Budget Director Frederick J. Lawton on the fiscal 1953 budget which must go to Congress by Jan. 18.

Informed sources said President Truman probably will not send a new Congress, as is customary. It is not required to law, as is the annual budget.

These sources also said that Mr. Truman probably will leave the semi-annual Economic Message to Congress for Eisenhower to handle.

Mr. Truman pledged his support to Eisenhower and warned that the new President will face "extremely difficult problems, particularly in the field of foreign affairs."

"The proper solution of these problems may determine whether we shall have a third world war—and, indeed, whether we shall survive as a free and democratic nation," Mr. Truman said in a post-election statement.

Mr. Truman planned to stick close to the White House for his remaining 11 weeks as President. Aides said that he does not plan to take his customary winter vacation either at Key West, Fla., or elsewhere.

Neither does he plan, to go to his Independence, Mo., home for Christmas, as in past years. He probably will go to Philadelphia for the annual Army-Navy football game, however.

During the remainder of his tenure in office, President and Mrs. Truman plan to entertain relatives and close personal associates for short visits in the White House.

The President also has a great number of personal gifts and longings accumulated during his nearly eight years in the White House which must be catalogued, packed and shipped.

40 Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
November 6, 1912

Miss Lucy Forbes has returned from Richmond.

J. Milton Johnston and H. T. Hux went to Ayden yesterday.

Miss Bertha Bunn of Henderson, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. P. M. Johnston, left this morning.

As yet some of them have not recovered from the shock but they are coming around.

Of course some had to be disappointed, but there is no use in having a grudge about it.

Heal up campaign scores now and let everybody get together for business and progress.

The election is over. Democracy won a glorious victory and the farmers go right along selling cotton and tobacco, the merchants selling dry goods and the factories doing business as before.

There will be a turkey supper Friday night, Nov. 7, from 6:00 to 8:30 o'clock in the Sweet Gum Grove community building. Adults plates $1.00, children's plates, 50c.

The proceeds of this supper will go for the expenses of Willis Wilson, who is a student in Nashville, Tenn. Bible College.

Betty Sue Baker Carnival Queen

FOUNTAIN—Miss Betty Sue Baker was crowned Queen of the 1952 Halloween Carnival before approximately 250 people at the Fountain School last Friday night.

Betty Sue reigned over the event with Billy Morgan, the 1952 king. The royal couple won out in a spirited contest with the kings and queens from the seven other grades in the school. Betty Sue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Baker, represented the seventh grade; and Billy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Morgan, represented the eighth grade.

Kings and queens representing the various grades were as follows: first, Elaine Gardner and Jimmy Dida; second, Sue Nichols and Henry Lewis Smith; third, Teresa Mosely and Jimmy Everett; fourth, Shirley Everette and Billy Hamric; fifth, Bernice Moore and Edward Tyson Smith; sixth, Jo Anne Hathaway and Gene Gray; seventh, Betty Sue Baker and Billy Morgan; eighth, Barbara Baker and Billy Morgan; ninth, Anne Eaton Everett entertained with tap dancing at the coronation of the king and queen. The guests took part in several cake walks.

The carnival was complete with booths offering bingo, fishing, grab bags, produce, fortunes, and refreshments. Costume contests were won by Carlton Vandiford, who was dressed as a bathing beauty, and Mary Newton, who was dressed as a witch.

The P.T.A. sponsors this event annually for the benefit of the school.

The degree of Pocahontas held their regular semi-meeting Tuesday night with Kathleen Woolard presiding.

Jean McGowan was welcomed as a new member. Geneva Webb and Sophia Hardee contributed to the birthday fund.

The social chairman, Thelma Vincent, gave a report on the annual banquet which will be held November 11 at 7 o'clock at the Woman's Club. All members are urged to be present.

Ruby Hodges, dressed in Halloween costume, gave a Halloween reading entitled "Paddy, the Pooch's Nightmare." Virginia Worthington, Peggy Bowers and Myrtle Coburn rendered special music. Mattie Mayo led in prayer.

The door prize was won by Bettie Nobles.

After the meeting refreshments were served by the hostesses and bobbing for the apples was enjoyed. Halloween decorations were used throughout the hall.

Cosmos Club Meets With Mrs. Scales

Mrs. W. M. Scales was hostess to members of the Cosmos Book Club Tuesday afternoon.

A salad plate with coffee was served when the guests arrived. The living and dining rooms were decorated with bowls of fall leaves.

Mrs. Charles Howard Jr., president, presided during the routine business session. Mrs. Bill Corbett of Henderson was welcomed as a guest for the afternoon.

Mrs. Scales, who was responsible for the program, presented Mrs. Harry Forbes, who discussed with the members some of the technicalities of publishing a newspaper. She explained how the ads were laid out and set, how the news stories were assimilated and set, and the exacting processes necessary in making up a page with blocks of type and ads.

She described the step by step processes involved in getting a paper ready for the press, and she showed some of the things which are "tools" of the trade. Following her informal talk there was a discussion about newspaper work in general.

Books were exchanged and the club adjourned.

The term "nerve" originally had by some mammals, reptiles, amphibia, fishes and invertebrates.

Bride Elect Shower Honoree

Mrs. Jimmie Moye Dail was the honoree Tuesday night, November 4 when Mrs. Clifton Bennett of Kinston and Mrs. W. G. Leggett of Greenville entertained at a miscellaneous shower at the Greenville Woman's Club.

Mrs. Dail will be married on Saturday, November 8 to Mr. Thomas Graham Leggett.

The dining room of the club was lovely with vases of fall flowers and foliage and two tables used for refreshments and presents were decorated with traditional bridal colors of green and white. The refreshment table, which was at the door of the dining room, was decorated with white carnations and fern. Punch, bridal cakes, mints and nuts were served.

In front of the mantle was a long table holding shower gifts and it was covered with a lace cloth. Flowers and candles completed this table from which the bridal couple opened gifts together after many guests were enjoyed by all those present.

The honoree was remembered with a corsage of white carnations and gifts by the hostesses.

Approximately fifty guests were present.

Postmistress Urges Early Holiday Mail

ROBERSONVILLE—Mrs. Geneva Weaver, postmistress, urges everyone to mail packages to overseas destinations before the deadline of November 15.

Food subject to spoilage or breakages should not be sent across Matches of all kinds and lighter fluid are prohibited. Breakable things should not be sent. In certain areas tobacco and coffee are restricted.

Air parcel post packages can't exceed two pounds and these must be in the post office by November 25 to assure delivery by Christmas.

Mrs. Fred McKeele Honoree At Party

FOUNTAIN—On Friday night Mrs. Fred McKeele of Fountain was feted at a party and kitchen shower given in the home of Mrs. Raymond Jefferson with Miss Edith Webb and Mrs. Louise Stalling, assisting hostesses.

Guests played several games and prizes were awarded to the winners. A number of useful kitchen utensils were presented to Mrs. McKeele prior to the serving of a tempting plate with chicken salad on lettuce, crackers, candy and iced drinks.

Mrs. McKeele will accompany her soldier husband to their new home he has rented near his post in Georgia at an early date.

Traffic Mishaps Reported For Election Day

Police reports list two motor vehicle collisions in the city Tuesday—Election Day.

Isaac Taft, Negro, 1416 West Sixth Street, was cited to Police Court on the charge of failure to stop at a traffic light. The report states that he was involved in a collision at Dickinson and Boyd Avenues.

Taft's car was in collision with a car driven by Zadoc Farmer of Ayden. None of the occupants was injured. Police estimated damage to Taft's car at $500; Farmer's car, $200.

Cars driven by Harry V. Spreiter, Route 5, Greenville, and Jarvis L. Lewis of Bethel collided at Third and Greene Streets Tuesday morning. The investigating officer ascribed the collision to confusion over signals. None injured. No arrest. Damage to Spreiter's car was estimated at $75; Lewis' car, $10.

In seven miles the Niagara River falls 315 feet which includes Niagara Falls and a series of rapids.

Rev. Alfred K. Dudley of the Winter Park Presbyterian Church, Wilmington, will do the preaching and Charles Baucum of Farmville will lead the song service. The meeting will begin with a fellowship supper served at the church on Sunday evening at 5:30 o'clock to which every one in the community is invited to come and eat and then to be present at the church services at 7 o'clock.

Rev. Willingham, pastor of the Hollywood Presbyterian Church, will preach Sunday evening as Rev. Dudley cannot be here until Monday.

Everybody, come out to church and let's make these services mean something for more Christian living in this community.

NEW MIRACLE DRUG GIVES WONDERFUL FAST RELIEF from MINOR THROAT IRRITATION from colds, smoking and other common throat irritants

At the first sign of a minor throat irritation, take McKESSON'S sensational new NEO-AQUA-DRIN Throat Lozenges. Because NEO-AQUA-DRIN contains the antibiotic, miracle drug, Tyrothricin, it works fast, two ways:

1. relieves discomfort almost immediately
2. inhibits the germ-positive germs that cause most minor throat irritations.

NEO-AQUA-DRIN is guaranteed to contain up to twice as much pain-relieving local anesthetic or germ-inhibiting ingredients as other leading products. Pleasant orange flavor . . . leaves no bitter after-taste. And NEO-AQUA-DRIN does not disturb digestion or deaden taste of food. Note: If throat irritation is accompanied by fever or other symptoms, see your doctor.

Strength for the Day

TWO KINDS OF WEALTH

Jesus once taught a parable about a big fool and his big barn. The ground of a certain rich man brought forth plentifully, and he figured how, because he had surplus, it would be well for him to pull down his barns and build greater. Then, said he, I will eat and drink and be merry for I will have much goods laid up for many years. Jesus called him a fool and his barns the height of folly.

There is nothing essentially evil about acquisition. Neither is there anything essentially good about it. The important matter is not what we own but what we do. From the most primitive systems to the most sophisticated, the desire for riches (or even of the acquisition of worldly goods) gets in its ugly work. If we allow the physical aspects of life to become our masters, they trample us under their feet. If, on the other hand, we make them our servants, they obey us docilely and bring satisfaction to us and to the world.

There has never been anything wrong about full barns, but there is nothing but evil in that presumption which lays up treasure for itself upon the earth and is not rich toward God. There is earthly treasure and there is heavenly. Learn to tell the difference.

Science Is Approaching 'Forbidden' Territory

Science is wonderful we'll all agree; but sometimes the trade threatens to take some of the joys out of life.

Oh yes, it's provided a lot of pleasures and conveniences too. After harnessing electricity, water power, the lever, the internal combustion engine, the wheel, steam power, radio, impulses and the atom; it put them all to work making life easier.

A lot of man-hours devoted to hard labor was lifted from the collective back of the human race.

Now we ride; enjoy light at all hours; hear and see the finest forms of entertainment; can even control the temperature of our immediate surroundings.

Somebody added to the creature comforts by providing electric blankets, fireless cigaret lighters, smoking jackets, dishwashers, automatic stoves and hosts of other consequential and inconsequential items.

But yesterday we saw a news item that poses a threat to what seems now his most cherished pastime: pondering the outcome of a political race.

A "mechanical brain" predicted early Tuesday night that Eisenhower was going to win by a landslide, and nobody believed it. When the outcome was demonstrated, the technicians were flabbergasted.

It runs against the grain to have a machine around that can give an election result before a human being can find it out for himself. Being so reliant on machines, we might just start to leave it all to them; and then where would we be?

So we put the motion before the House that the tangled mass of gears, levers, tubes, wiring and flashing lights be henceforth banned from participating further in election night activities.

Why Talk Recession On A Democratic Program

To the everlasting credit of the Democratic Party, much of their domestic legislation has the direct or indirect endorsement of the victorious Republicans. To this, Democratic leadership can point with unquestionable pride.

The measures on which the rivals see eye to eye largely concern steps taken during the early years of the Roosevelt administration, and subsequently improved, designed to strengthen the nation's economy against repetition of new depressions.

It was a regrettable strategy employed by some Democratic spokesmen which implied and utilized fears of an economic recession should their opponents win the recent national election. There are people who believe this to be as true as night follows day. Particularly in this true among Southern farmers.

There is an historic contradiction to this attitude in the great farm belt of the Middle West which is traditionally Republican. Because these men are farmers and because the South is still predominantly agricultural, we wonder why they do not find a common ground on where their interests lie. The farm parity price support program will go on; social security coverage will be expanded; varied cushioning legislation against the effects of any future economic recession will be retained; reduced federal spending and the searching out and elimination of waste is pledged. None of these measures sound like an invitation to catastrophe.

Not only are these responsible Democratic-inspired measures to go on, but a whole new management will replace the old administrative machinery which inspired much deep-felt criticism among even the staunchest Southern Democrats. The new set-up will have to prove itself to all the people, North, South, East and West. They should, in all fairness, be given their chance.

If the new administration can make good on its intended program of economy, reduced red tape and efficiency, then there can be no grounds for complaint from anyone. It is to everybody's advantage that this be done . . . done with the advantage of a "new broom." We expect them to attempt these measures in no half-hearted manner.

Economic recession should not necessarily follow those activities; instead it should even strengthen the dam against all the factors that tend to weaken our economic structure.

Maybe we expect too much. But this is clear: after twenty years of government under one party there is to be a change. If all goes well, it could be a change for the better. If we don't like what we see the voters will give a good accounting of themselves in the next off-year elections, and again clean house four years from now.

Meanwhile, we fail to see any reason to fear tomorrow.

The nation was once told, in a far darker hour, "there is nothing to fear but fear itself". That advice is still good enough to heed.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—Campaign and Congressional revelations of the unprecedented degree of executive secrecy surrounding the conduct of grave domestic and foreign affairs has precipitated an indignant demand on Capitol Hill for a more vigilant check on the downtown branch of the government. It may be one of the hygienic results of the 1952 struggle.

The American people must now realize that censorship over information vital to their welfare and security, and to which they are entitled, has reached a new high—or low under the Truman Administration. The Van Fleet letter disclosed a remarkable callousness at letting them know what, if any, steps were being taken to minimize their sons' sacrifices in Korea.

Aside from its political effect, this communication showed that efforts to train the natives were begun intensively only several months ago, despite repeated suggestions from commanders in the field since the invasion began on June 25, 1950.

Finally, it made clear that Presidential power over secret disposition of the nation's lives and treasure must be revised radically.

CONGRESSIONAL DISSATISFACTION—Truman's use of confidential Pentagon files in a political effort to discredit General Eisenhower has placed this question in an entirely new light. It has sharpened simmering Congressional dissatisfaction with the executive control of governmental data, even though any attempt to loosen the grip may mean a constitutional clash in the courts.

Although Truman has withheld relatively unimportant material from House and Senate investigators clothed with proper authority, he was willing to declassify top-secret material that will give valuable information to the Kremlin for vote-getting purposes. Orders for this action came from the White House, not from Secretary Lovett.

It is easy to imagine the chagrin some key members of the legislative branch, in view of the fact that they have not been able to pry this material from Truman or Acheson files.

STARTLING FACT—The Truman-Van Fleet-Eisenhower incident, as the public thinks less emotionally of campaign developments, will awaken them to the startling fact that they have almost no control of their government's behavior. Even more serious, the Congress they elect cannot serve as watchdog for them.

Despite this temporary and partisan violation of Truman-imposed secrecy codes, his ukases against dissemination of information by civilian departments still stand. These orders against publicity affect such questions as tax reductions and refunds, loans and grants, the pardon of prisoners, favors to friends, prominent Hollywood figures, Secretary Snyder and Internal Revenue Commissioner Dunlap refused to comply. In order to postpone a pre-election showdown, they skipped to Seattle to attend the swearing-in of a few minor officials.

But many committee members now suspect that they unbent only to impress the voters before November 4. When the King committee asked for promised data on millions of inside tax deals involving prominent Hollywood figures, Secretary Snyder and Internal Revenue Commissioner Dunlap refused to comply. In order to postpone a pre-election showdown, they skipped to Seattle to attend the swearing-in of a few minor officials.

PERVING MATERIAL—Attorney General McGranery and Secretary Snyder, by White House permission, made a gaudy show of granting Congressional demands for pertinent material during the campaign. They appeared to cooperate fully with the King and Chief groups inquiring into Justice and Treasury corruption and favoritism toward Truman cronies. They turned over data hitherto withheld.

EXPERIENCE TEACHES—Members of Congress have no pat answer to this problem of Presidential secrecy. The Supreme Court has usually upheld the right of the executive branch to be its own judge in deciding what shall be kept under the lid, both in peace and wartime.

But the legislators' experience with Truman has taught them a lesson on how to handle disdainful and defiant Chief Executives. Henceforth, officials testifying on measures providing authority or funds for White House agencies will be cross-examined so viciously that it will make the Spanish Inquisition seem like a quiz-kid show on television.

News: Man Kicks Mule

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Believe it or not, the stock market went up yesterday! At one time the ticker was 10 minutes behind with increases, which is the first time that's happened since April!

But what is the local reaction to Ike's winning the election? D. J. Whichard Jr., the Reflector's publisher, says "America is going forward regardless of which party is in power! The country is too far advanced for conditions to go back where some people seem to think we will go under a Republican administration."

Mr. Whichard also related some interesting history. In this century, Tuesday's vote was not the biggest for the Republicans, percentage-wise. In 1928 about 25 per cent went for Hoover; in this election only 18 per cent in Pitt County went for Ike.

One of the strongest Stevenson men I talked to during the campaign was Royce Hunsucker of the Taylor Food Company, so I called him for his reaction. Royce hated to see his man lose, but thinks the change of administration will not nose dive our economy. Royce talked to other people in the county yesterday, and most of them, he said, were optimistic even if they were disappointed.

The happiest man I talked to was W. B. Phillips of Ayden, chairman of the Republican Party for Pitt County. After waiting for 20 years, Mr. Phillips was ready to crow about his party's victory. "I think the election came out just about like the Pitt County Republicans expected," Mr. Phillips went on to say that the trend of votes in Pitt County even showed the gaining favor for a two-party system in North Carolina. Pitt County Democrats, says, "I'm John Clark, chairman of the just about as contented as an old cow. I think I know how to win and how to lose. I was prepared for a national loss but a Pitt County win. The people have spoken, America is on the road and cannot be stopped. The man who was elected is my President just as much as anybody else's. I'm an American first and a politician second.

"In a rally at Robersonville I said that some very fine people in Pitt County were going to vote for Eisenhower. The American people wanted the change and got it and I'm with the American people."

And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

By LYNN NISBET

SERIOUS-MINDED — Personal visits to more than a dozen voting precincts in four counties convinced your reporter that North Carolinians were taking seriously the business of voting Tuesday. Everywhere there were voters waiting in line, but nowhere was there evidence of confusion. Neither was there any sign of levity or the holiday spirit. Men and women in approximate equal numbers were going about the duty of citizenship in apparent full realization of the importance of the incident.

ITINERARY — After early morning check of several voting places in the City of Raleigh, your reporter took off for a spot check of Millbrook and Wake Forest in Wake county; Youngsville and Franklin in Franklin county; Creedmore in Granville; Hillside School in the City of Durham and Nelson precinct in Durham Durham county. The itinerary included wholly rural, village community, small town and big city precincts. The number of voters registered ranged from 470 at rural Nelson to 2,700 at Durham's Hillside—mostly Negro and perhaps the biggest Negro voting unit in the State. The time ran from about 9:30 to 12:00 and at every call there was evidence that voting was fast enough to assure more than 75 per cent of the registration being taken care of before the polls closed if the early ration was continued throughout the day.

FACILITIES — At several Raleigh precincts the physical arrangement of marking booths and ballot boxes occasioned congestion. Only at one place, the fire station at Franklin, was there room to arrange the furniture in compliance with the statutory suggestion. The arrangement in the Community House at Nelson was almost as good. All the other places in fire stations, city halls and school houses were too small to permit the desired space between pieces of voting equipment. Yet there was evident a spirit of co-operation and intent to observe the spirit of the law for free, secret and orderly voting. Registrars and election judges were busy, some of them already looked tired, but none was flustered or confused.

CAMPAIGNING — There was noticeable absence of intensive campaigning at any of the polling places. None of the election officials queried had seen any signs of the Amvet petition carriers. Posters of Eisenhower-Nixon and Stevenson-Sparkman were in evidence at several points, but well outside the area where such display is prohibited, and very few standers-by or voters were wearing insignia of either party. Two colored men on the sidewalk in front of Hillside School were courteously offering new arrivals slips of paper asking support for a local school bond issue. A church auxiliary was selling confectionery and a hospital guild solicited contributions at Franklin, but their activities were separated by legal distance and closed doors from the voting process in the rear of the building.

HOW GOES — By now it is known how the voting went at these and nearly all other precincts in North Carolina. At time of the visits very little data could be obtained on that point. One attractive woman registrar was asked if she knew anything about the trend of votes up to then. She smiled and replied: "Do you think I ought to answer that if I could?" A by-stander at one place was asked if he could give any idea of how the vote was going, and he said all he knew was that more people than usual were voting and insisting upon secrecy; but he didn't know whether that was because they were marking ballots for some candidate other than their own regular party or because they had been talking one way and were voting another.

"Anyhow," he added, "it's none of my business." That seemed to be the general attitude, as evidenced by the serious-mindedness of the voters and the relatively small number of people who publicly indicated their preference by sporting lapel buttons of any candidate. One couldn't watch this demonstration of democracy in action without realizing that the ballyhoo and the shouting of and for the candidates was finished and that the citizens, the men and women of the homes and farms and factories had taken over.

ALL THE WAY — At several places the officials were asked if most voters were taking and depositing all the ballots; in other words, if there seemed to be as many people voting on the constitutional amendments as were voting for President and Governor. They could not tell how the ballots were marked, but there was no marked indicator of less interest in one box than in the others. Final statewide returns may not bear out the early trends in these dozen or more precincts checked. It had been generally conceded that the presidential vote would be the largest, that for the State ticket next except where close margins brought out a bigger vote for the county offices, and amendment ballots falling behind. There was some evidence early Tuesday that citizens were taking on the full job and going all the way in expressing their choice, even on some matters which they did not quite understand and in which they were not greatly interested.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

THE THREE R's (Gastonia Gazette)

We become disturbed periodically about the poor spelling and writing of Young America.

Few young people today, college graduates and otherwise, can spell anything above a four letter word. And the handwriting of most of them might as well be Sanskrit so far as anyone outside of their families and friends is concerned. Time was when great emphasis was placed on spelling and writing in the public schools and colleges.

Not so today.

Our attention was called the other day to a letter written by a college graduate. Not only a graduate, but in the top third of his class.

The letter made it obvious in several sentences that the graduate did not have the slightest notion of the difference between the three words, "to," "too," and "two."

The Blue Back Speller and his successors; and the Palmer Method of improving handwriting were, a generation ago, among the most important subjects in grammar schools grades.

Today they don't even learn the alphabet until after they have learned whole words.

There may be some virtues in the changes that have been made in our primary and secondary educational systems but we will always contend that the demphasis of spelling and writing has been a grave mistake.

The theory seems to be: "Teach 'em psychology, economy, a smattering of science and language, and let the rest of it go." We may be wrong, but we think the whole thing is a mistake.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

Because the dollar has lost half its value, goods and services that are less than double their 1935-39 prices are actually cheaper than they were before the war.

The value of the dollar as measured by consumer prices is 52.4 per cent of its prewar purchasing power, 42.9 per cent as measured by retail food prices and 46.7 per cent as measured by wholesale prices.

Unless there has been a significant shift in the ratio between supply and demand of any product or service, the price is likely to tend toward return to its historic relation to other prices.

Thus, the things that have gone up higher than the average are less likely to rise than those that have not gone up so high.

Take gas and electricity. They stand at 99 on the Bureau of Labor Statistics' index; they actually cost less than half of what they did before the war in terms of constant dollars. And they are very likely to go up.

The reason they haven't gone up so far is not that they are under regulation, but that they are under a special kind of regulation. This type puts rates at levels that will pay adequate returns on original investments. Most of the investments were made before the war when the dollar had larger purchasing power. Of course, utilities are also entitled to rate increases to compensate them for pay increases, but labor is a less significant cost factor in generating plants than in many other industries.

Now the electric industry is at the point at which its output must be greatly increased. Demand in homes and manufacturing plants is rising. New facilities will have to be installed at 1952-53 prices and this will require much larger investments. Eventually the rates will have to go up to support those investments. Perhaps not double, but probably much higher than at present.

There is another field where there is pressure to return to historic ratios—postage rates. There have been a number of increases, but only for post cards, has the rate kept up with inflation. One of the first problems the Congress elected yesterday will have to face is the post office deficit and it will occur to some of them that, in terms of 1939 dollars, it costs only 1 1/2 cents to mail a letter.

"STEREOPTIC" SOUND.....

PLAYED BACK AT SHOW..... Two-car sound was demonstrated by two recording companies at the annual Audio show in New York.

In each case, music or other sound is picked up by two separate microphones, recorded separately and played back through two speakers. This binaural sound gives the listener the same hearing sensation he would get listening to the original music. The producers say it gives added dimension to sound just as stereopticons give added dimension to pictures.

In one system (by Magnecord) the sound is recorded on tape and will not become commercial until the problem of mass-producing tape recordings is solved. The other (by Cook Laboratories) is on discs which are played with a two-headed pickup arm.

Records are expensive now but will come down as sales volume increases.

CLAY PIPE MAKERS.....

Several types of mechanical joints for clay pipes are being studied by the National Clay Pipe Manufacturers Association. D. M. Strickland, president, told a meeting in New York.

Mechanical joints are intended to make pipe easier to lay and to reduce labor costs. The association is also studying the manufacture of 4-foot lengths which would also be cheaper to lay than standard 2-foot lengths.

NEW PRODUCTS

SPEEDY: A machine to compare, interfile, collate, segregate and check sequence simultaneously for two sets of punched cards has been introduced (by Remington Rand, 315 Fourth Ave., New York 10). It is said to handle 250 cards per minute.

TOY: Small flexible plastic sticks which can be linked together to form caricatures of people, animals, buildings, etc., are being distributed (by Trix Stix, Inc., 20 Madison Ave., New York 16).

The sticks, both ends of which are notched and slit, hold assemblies for as long as desired, yet return to original shape after use.

CLOTH: An auto tack cloth that picks up dust and dirt from surfaces to be painted is being made (by Industrial Tape Corp., New Brunswick, N.J.). Treated with a special impregnant, it is said to resist spontaneous combustion.

Hal Boyle's Column

By HAL BOYLE

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (AP)—You climb slowly up a road on a hill near Rome worn by the passage of endless thousands of pilgrim feet.

You pause at one of the little shops along the way and buy a few rosaries, a religious medal or two.

You step hastily through a gateway and find a place in the throng that packs the courtyard from wall to wall. It is an odd throng whispering children black gowned nuns, brown robed monks young students rich people, poor people, the devout or merely curious from a dozen lands around the world.

A sudden wave of silence washes over the dense throng. All eyes turn upward to a balcony.

A door opens and a tall, elderly figure clad in white steps out.

There is a luminous quality to his spare, kindly face as he looks down and raises his hand in benediction. A or yorn spontaneously from hundreds of hearts rises in the bright sunshine: "Il Papa! Il Papa!"

This is the scene as Pope Pius XII, born Eugenio Pacelli 76 years ago, gives audience at his summer palace as often as his health permits.

It is always a moment of tremendous pageantry as the faithful get their first glimpse of their ascetic, frugal, unworldly, living symbol and spiritual pillar of 400 million members of an ancient church.

Profoundly moving to Catholics, the experience also is deeply stirring to the scores or hundreds of protestants who attend to have religious mementoes blessed for Catholic friends back home.

"Il Papa! Il Papa! Il Papa!" The cries grow more clamorous, as the white figure bends silently and flexes his fingers in his cupped palms in the Italian manner of waving as if he were gathering to him the prayers wafted from the throng.

"Il Papa! Il Papa! Il Papa!" A kind of hysteria sweeps the throng, growing from throat to throat. Women begin to sob. In this shared tumult of exultation many stand at the religious peak of their lifetime.

The Pope, modern enough to use an electric razor, learned enough to speak half a dozen languages, still the clamor with a raised hand. He has gone over the list of those present beforehand. A hush falls as he steps to a microphone.

Group after group—nationality after nationality the Pope speaks to the pilgrims, welcoming each in its own tongue. It is a masterful demonstration by a master of linguistics. In most languages the Pope gives his greeting ex-temporaneously. The others he reads, fluently and easily.

As each group or nationality is recognized, it sends up a cry of pride and gladness. One impatient Irishman, all alone and anxious for his blessing, keeps crying the name of his country in Italian: "Irlanda! Irlanda!"

The Pope, smiling, finally turns to a benediction in English and the Irishman subsides, satisfied to be lumped with the visiting English, Scotch and Americans.

Lastly, the Pope fondly questions a group of small Italian children, and their excited treble answers rise in the air like the music of birds.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—Toute teacher shortage is just as acute today as in American education today as the shortage of classrooms. Some people want to know why. Here are some of the answers:

There was a demand for 600,000 qualified teachers in our elementary schools this fall, according to the National Education Association (NEA) to relieve overcrowding, to meet the increased enrollments, to replace teachers who did not return and to replace just the worst of the untrained teachers—those who do not meet even one-half of the minimum requirements.

The NEA says that even if we met the immediate demand we would still need 100,000 elementary teachers per year until 1957, when children born in 1951 will enter the first grade and if the present birth rate of at least 3 1/2 million per year continues the annual demand will continue at that rate even after 1957.

Against the 1952 demand, NEA says colleges and universities produced this year a total of 32,443 qualified elementary teacher candidates. So to fill the demand the schools would have to train particularly qualified teachers in service, to induce former teachers, both fully and partially qualified, to return to the classroom, re-direct teachers prepared for other types of teaching to elementary school teaching, temporarily license persons with general college education—or continue to permit the wholly unfit to enter the classroom.

The teaching profession is competing with an ever-increasing number of occupations for college-trained people. Almost half of the states have enacted minimum salary laws, with some $2,000 and some as high as $3,000 per year. Such increases are helping to meet the problem of teacher shortage, but not enough.

For the nation as a whole surveys show that despite continued efforts and temporary successes, teacher salaries continue to lag far below professional levels. Even worse, in recent years the average salary of teachers was lower than the average earnings of all salary and wage workers combined, including unskilled labor. In January, 1952, teacher pay fell to 3 per cent below the average of all other employed persons.

Latest comparative figures on earnings in the professions are for 1949, when teachers earned an average of $2,890 and the net income of doctors, dentists and lawyers was about $9,150.

Cases Heard In City Police Court

In Police Court yesterday, Judge Charles H. Wheeler found Francis Peterson, Negro, guilty of three serious charges and sentenced him to a year on the roads.

In the first case, the court found him guilty of assault with a deadly weapon (a chair) on his wife, Edna Earle Peterson, and gave him six months on the roads.

The court found Peterson guilty of forcible trespass and damaging personal property, and gave him another six months on the roads. This sentence is to be served consecutively with the first sentence.

In the third case, Peterson was found guilty of assault with a deadly weapon (an axe) on his wife's mother, Mrs. Annie Mae Barrett. The court gave him 12 months on this charge, and ordered that it run concurrently with the above sentences.

The case against James Langley, charged with careless and reckless driving, was not pressed.

Thomas A. Stocks, charged with speeding, requested a jury trial. The court granted it and transferred the case to Superior Court.

Isaac Taft, Negro, failure to stop at a traffic light, was given 30 days in jail, sentence suspended on payment of $10. The court order also provides that he is not to drive a motor vehicle for six months, unless he makes restitution for property damage.

$2.7 Millions In J. A. Gray Estate

WINSTON-SALEM (AP)—James A. Gray, the late chairman of the board of R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., left an estate valued at more than $2,700,000 to his wife and six children.

The will of the 63-year-old Gray, who died Oct. 29, was filed for probate here yesterday. Of the total of $1,716,209.86, there is $2,641,000 listed in personal property and $75,000 in real estate. Gray's Winston-Salem home and his summer home at Roaring Gap were willed to his wife, with the remainder of the estate given in equal shares to his wife, three sons and three daughters.

The Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. was named executor of the estate and trustee of the various trusts which was made Dec. 21, 1946.

In it, Gray explained why he was leaving none of his estate to charity. The will read in part:

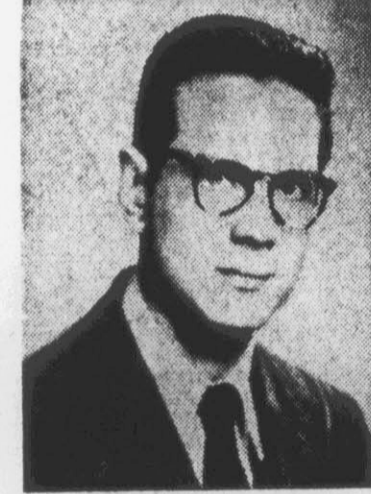

"During my lifetime I have made contributions to religious, educational, charitable and other benevolent causes in amounts totalling a sum in excess of the value at the time of execution of the will of my estate available for the use and benefit of my wife and children. In view of these earlier gifts I make no provision in this will for such causes."

No Competition From Montana

LEWISTOWN, Mont. (AP)—Watermelon growers in Georgia need not worry about competition from Montana.

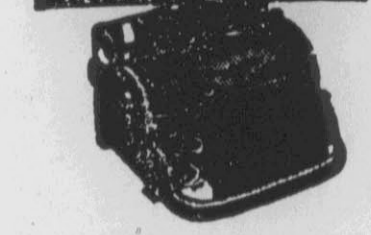

Loyal Viers spent the summer carefully cultivating a watermelon plant. The first frost of the fall froze his melon just when it got as big as a good-sized orange.

In Recital

Robert Gray, trombonist and faculty member at East Carolina College, will be presented in a recital this evening by the college department of music. The program will take place in the Austin auditorium at 8:15 o'clock and is open to the public. Elizabeth Drake, pianist, will be accompanist. Mr. Gray came to East Carolina this fall as a member of the department of music. Formerly he taught at the University of Arizona and at Duke University, where he was director of bands. The recital tonight will be his first public appearance on the college campus here.

RALEIGH (AP)—The Eastern Carolina Press Association will open a two-day meeting here tomorrow.

Li-Gov.-elect Luther Hodges will deliver the principal address at the banquet session tomorrow night. He will speak on "Newspapers and Their Opportunities."

The delegates will register at 2 p.m. tomorrow. This will be followed by a panel discussion on "A New Approach to Advertising." The participants will be Signal Jones, editor of the Warren Record, and R. H. Carson, advertising manager of the Raleigh News and Observer. Eric W. Rodgers of Scotland Neck, president of the association, will serve as moderator.

A panel discussion on "Reporting of Local News" will be held Saturday morning. This will be led by Thomas W. Wilson, editor of the Nashville Graphic, and Ashley B. Futrell, editor of the Washington Daily News. Jonathan Daniels, editor of the News and Observer, will be moderator.

French Student Addresses Clubs

Jacqueline Phalempin of Arras, France, exchange student at East Carolina College, gave an informal talk last Tuesday night at a joint meeting of Sigma Pi Alpha, foreign languages fraternity, and the English Club. James L. Fleming, director of the college foreign languages department, explained the student exchange system before introducing Miss Phalempin to the group of approximately 60 people.

The young French student told her audience how Fulbright Scholarships are awarded for study in American universities and colleges. Comparing and contrasting American and French schools, she stated that one of the differences is the fact that in France students begin the study of foreign languages at the age of eleven, while in America this course of study begins much later.

A question-and-answer period gave the student audience an opportunity to receive from Miss Phalempin comments on French and American customs and ideas, ranging from French reaction to the American Presidential election to "dating" and football.

Vernie Wilder of Nashville, chairman of the Sigma Pi Alpha Yearbook Committee, issued program booklets for the 1952-1953 school term to members of the fraternity. The yearbook, mimeographed and attractively bound in colorful hand-painted covers, is the first to be issued by the fraternity.

Chapter 25
 "My father made his decision," she continued, "and it made him happy. We talked over our plans. He'd make a clean breast of everything and his sentence would be reduced. His book would be published, and I'd go to the Governor on my knees. He'd win a pardon, he had to win a pardon!" Her eyes dimmed, but the tears didn't come. "We'd live together and I'd be his housekeeper and typist. I'd help him redeem the lost years. And he'd help me."
 "Too bad it didn't happen like that," Devereaux heard himself saying.
 "They murdered him," she said, and her face was deathly white. "I knew his death wasn't accidental. I watched Phillips; I saw his nervousness. I knew that somehow, he, along with others, had managed to murder my father."
 "You didn't know Castle, Latimer, and Bulloff?" Devereaux asked.
 "He shook her head."
 "So you came to me," Devereaux said. "You came to me." Devereaux repeated bitterly. "I was to be your finger man."
 "I was your finger man," the detective said. "Each time I turned up a new principal, you killed each other." Castle Latimer. He laughed. "I played dupe, accessory before the fact of murder. Guns went off, but a gramophone playing Lohengrin's wedding march in my head drowned out all the other noises." The laugh rattled deeper. "Each time I looked into your sweet, saintly young face I put on another blindfold."
 He pushed her away. "You hoped Bulloff and Phillips, each suspecting the other, would exterminate each other," he said. "Or that the survivor would attempt escape, resist capture, and be killed, just as it happened."
 "You hoped for such an outcome," Devereaux said. "Your method had the shrewd stamp of a highly qualified murderer, not the hit-or-miss desperation of a hysterical girl. And split-second timing, as if you were born to the murder game! You shot Longo in broad daylight along a crowded waterfront. An hour later, you were right behind me driving to Summit. You were able to shoot Castle while I lay unconscious and get away before the police arrived. Yesterday, with the Attic

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW!

Solowey sought Devereaux's eyes unsuccessfully. "I wanted to hurry over," he said miserably. "The minute I related Rockland County with that newspaper photograph of the girl and Phillips in my files, I wanted to hurry over."
 Solowey found Devereaux's eyes and held them intensely. "I was afraid you could give her nothing. His voice shook a little. "I was afraid you would turn her away, let your wounded ego interfere. I was afraid you would turn away from her."
 Devereaux stared into the depths of Solowey's eyes, then dropped his gaze. "I walked out," he said. "A misbegotten child, a loveless child," Solowey said. "Think of her story. She found her father love, found the shining promise that would redeem the lost years. And think of how it was taken from her. Think of the way Frankie Hughes was murdered. Devereaux! It was something to know, an agony for the living to endure."
 He shook his head. "Too much, Devereaux. Too great an agony for just a driven girl. Who could be as stoic as that? Who could hold to sanity?"
 "I walked out," Devereaux said, closing his eyes.
 "I see her now in my mind's eye. I see her impaled on the iron railing spikes."
 "You weren't just a finger man, say: has long been considered one of the drawbacks in recruiting young women for this phase of religious ministry. Now the United Lutheran Church has decided to revise its rules and permit its candidates for deaconess orders to choose whether or not they will be so garbed. Deaconesses garbed or non-garbed, will be entitled to the name of "Sister," and all will be trained in the same way. Only unmarried or widowed women are acceptable. The Church now has 300 garbed deaconesses.

 Miss Alice E. Cary of Boston, Mass., a secretary of the American (Congregational) Board of Foreign Missions, is en route to the coral pin-prick island of Kusaia, in Micronesia of the South Seas, to meet "some other Christians from Boston." When American soldiers occupied this almost unknown island during World War II, they were startled to be told by a group of people that they were "Christians from Boston."
 A century ago they had been visited by missionaries from the American Board (Boston), and embraced Christianity, and had held their faith through the decades. Many American soldiers were befriended by the Kusaiens. King John, then the ruler of the people, was a Christian. And now that the island is a democracy, the King has surrendered his title, has been ordained a minister — the Rev. John Sigrah. Miss Cary is taking a gift of a baptismal bowl — a Paul Revere reproduction, "made in Boston."

Women In The Church

By Mary Fowler
 The Japanese people are peace-loving people, says Mrs. Gustav Christensen of Lincoln, Nebraska, who spent three years there as a special-term missionary of the Methodist Church before her marriage. She found many people in Hiroshima who believe war can be "completely eliminated from our society." Mrs. Christensen says the Japanese people are genuinely questioning the motives of the United States. They ask, "Is the U.S. really interested in helping us to become a democratic nation or only in making us strong enough to serve as a buffer against Russia?"

Eisenhower Plans Carry Out Much Of Demo Program

By REX CHANEY
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower will bring into office in January an administration pledged to immediate steps to end the Korean war and to "clean up the mess in Washington."
 He is expected to announce soon when he will fulfill his campaign promise to visit Korea and seek an honorable means of stopping the fighting.
 The 62-year-old retired general also promised in his "crusade" for the presidency to do his best to maintain domestic prosperity, to reduce taxes later, and to comb the government for any remaining Communist sympathizers.
 As president, judging by his record and his campaign speeches, Eisenhower is expected to:
 1. Shake up the executive branch of the government from "top to bottom;" surround himself with a competent staff of advisers; retain honest and loyal federal workers.
 2. Cut government spending first and taxes next; tighten monetary controls; fight inflation in other ways.

3. Restore bipartisan foreign policy, continue cooperation with other free nations; build up U. S. military strength while guarding against "wasteful" spending.
 4. Approve continuation of farm price supports at 90 per cent of parity through 1954; seek revision but not repeal of the Taft-Hartley law; resist discrimination based on creed, color, or religion (although he has made no specific legislative recommendations on this score).
 5. Ask Congress to improve and extend social security.
 These were the essentials of his "it's time for a change" theme. His election promises new faces, new ideas, new methods of operation in the capital.
 Eisenhower, who once wrote that he could never accept high public office, is the first Republican to be elected president since Herbert Hoover defeated Alfred E. Smith in 1928.
 When he takes the oath of office on the Capitol steps Jan. 20, Eisenhower, at 62, will be the fourth oldest man to become chief executive. William Henry Harrison was 68 when he was inaugurated, James Buchanan 65, and Zachary Taylor 64.

 The former five-star general gave up his army commission and $19,541 a year in military retirement pay to seek the presidency. He will take office at a critical time in American history.
 The threat of atomic war, the fighting in Korea, strained relations with Russia, cracks in the bipartisan foreign policy, bickering among our allies abroad—these are among the issues facing the president-elect.
 On the domestic front also are serious problems requiring early attention from the man who will be the nation's 34th president. They include high prices, high taxes, government spending, corruption among public officials, internal security, and civil rights issues.
 How will this military hero meet the challenges facing him as a civilian president?
 It would be difficult to single out any one characteristic as primarily responsible for Eisenhower's past successes. But his reliance on good staff work and his determination to surround himself with a top-flight team have been important factors in his climb to the top.
 In 40 years of service in the military—which places great emphasis on teamwork—Eisenhower learned to lean heavily on the advice and assistance of others. When he entered politics, his first move was to assemble a team in which he could repose confidence.
 His victory over Adlai E. Stevenson was first a victory for Eisenhower. But it also was a victory for his advisers and staff members.
 Eisenhower's dependence on men like Gov. Sherman Adams of New Hampshire and Sens. Frank Carlson of Kansas and Fred A. Seaton of Nebraska did not mean he made no decisions himself. He did.
 But he left it to the staff to lay the groundwork. He reaped the collective thinking fruits of a group of trusted advisers before deciding what course to follow. When a decision had been reached, Eisenhower took full responsibility for subsequent events.
 He is not expected to depart from this system as president.
 The record indicates that the public will not be startled by what Eisenhower says and does. He emphasized repeatedly during his campaign that he would avoid extremes of both the left and right and would steer a middle course.
 One of Eisenhower's outstanding qualities as a military man was his ability to resolve differences of opinion. And during his presidential campaign, he felt he could ask the voters to return to Congress some members with whom he did not see eye to eye.
 He said time and again during the campaign that if the two-party system is to survive, there must be party responsibility. To him this meant that if the Republicans are to be responsible for the presidency, they also should have control of Congress.
 Eisenhower never manifested any ambition to be president until a few months ago. Until last January he had resisted every effort to coax him into politics.
 Almost five years to the day before he will be inaugurated he wrote a letter to a New Hampshire newspaper publisher expressing belief that professional soldiers should not seek high public office until there is an "obvious and overriding reason."

 As far back as 1945, when he was the object of worldwide admiration for leading the allied forces of World War II to victory in Western Europe, there was presidential talk.
 One of the first to think of him in this role, apparently, was the man he will succeed—President Truman. In his book "Crusade in Europe," Eisenhower recorded that Mr. Truman said to him:
 "General, there is nothing that you may want that I won't try to help you get. That definitely and specifically includes the presidency in 1948."
 Eisenhower said he told the president he didn't know who Mr. Truman's 1948 opponent would be but it wouldn't be the general.
 By the time the 1952 campaign came along Mr. Truman had changed his mind; he said he no longer felt the man he had praised so lavishly was qualified to be president.
 Eisenhower is conservative in dress and habits. His campaign conduct indicates that his administration will also be conservative.
 That does not mean he will try to wipe out social gains of the last 20 years. He has promised, on the contrary, to retain and improve many of them.
 He believes the Social Security Act should be "improved and extended" and the Taft-Hartley Act revised—but not repealed—to meet some of the objections of labor.
 He believes farmers should be guaranteed at least 90 per cent of parity for basic farm crops. He favors the soil conservation program, and further development of natural resources—but with state and local governments given more of a voice in what is done.
 Eisenhower wants a truly bipartisan foreign policy, and to this end has expressed a willingness to work with Democrats in Congress as well as Republicans. He favors close cooperation with America's allies.
 "America," he said in one of his last major speeches of the campaign, "cannot be isolationist without being isolated."
 And he has said he would consider his election "a call to the leadership of the greatest crusade in the world."
 He thinks the Truman administration has over-committed U. S. troops in Korea. He wants training of South Korean troops stepped up to relieve American soldiers on the fighting fronts.
 He thinks government spending—particularly in the military establishment—can be reduced, and that taxes can be brought down in the not too distant future.
 In his campaign, Eisenhower's strategy board consisted of men who, by and large, began whooping it up for him long before he declared himself available for the Republican nomination.
 In this group was New Hampshire's governor Adams. Adams took a three-month leave of absence from office to serve as one of Eisenhower's closest advisers, the civilian counterpart of a military chief of staff. He was a key figure in formulation of campaign strategy, in policy planning, and in deciding when and where Eisenhower would go.
 His term as governor expires in January. It seems certain that this quiet, friendly New Englander will wind up with a high post in the Eisenhower administration, perhaps in the Cabinet.

 Carlson of Kansas and Seaton of Nebraska were with Eisenhower throughout his campaign. Seaton worked closely with Adams in planning strategy while Carlson served as a personal adviser and contact man. Both may wind up with high jobs in the new administration.
 Arthur H. Vandenberg Jr., son of the late Republican senator from Michigan, was Eisenhower's executive assistant during the campaign. He also is expected to be rewarded.
 Two other associates of Eisenhower during the campaign were Gabriel Hauge, research specialist and speech-writer, and Robert Cutler, Boston banker who became one of the closest advisers to the president-elect.
 New York's Gov. Thomas E. Dewey is given much of the credit for getting the nomination for Eisenhower. While Dewey has said he doesn't want any job within the gift of the president-elect, he might be persuaded to change his mind.

Canada Stresses Anti-Submarine Craft Program

OTTAWA (AP)—The Royal Canadian Navy has set itself the target of becoming the anti-submarine expert of the Atlantic Pact nations.

Its ambition is backed by a 250 million dollar shipbuilding program and a gradual increase in manpower. The pendulum swung heavily in favor of the submarine at the end of World War II when "schnorkel" apparatus came into service, permitting submarines to "breathe" indefinitely underwater.

The Western powers have been seeking new anti-submarine devices ever since—aware that Russia is plunging heavily on modern submarines.

Canada is staking her aspirations on a new type of ship, a $5 million dollar escort vessel, low-slung and of destroyer size. However, the 14 ordered escort vessels still are under construction in seven Canadian shipyards. The first one won't be in service until late 1953 or later.

What part of every prescription weighs nothing at all?

Your pharmacist's scale is so sensitive it will respond to the weight of a hair!

But into every prescription he compounds, your pharmacist puts one ingredient that never moves the scale's needle.

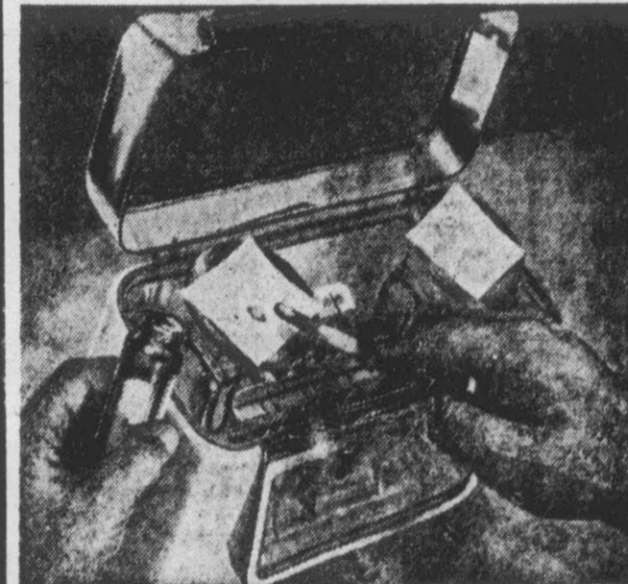

It is the most important thing you buy whenever you have a prescription filled!

It is the professional knowledge and skill of your pharmacist. Without it, no prescription could be properly filled. The physician orders the required drugs in the specific amounts needed, but the compounding of the finished prescription is the sole responsibility of your pharmacist.

Before he could fulfill this responsibility, he devoted years to the study of the highly specialized subjects of his profession. To earn his college degree, for example, he had to acquire a fundamental knowledge of many sciences such as chemistry, physics, biology. He mastered, too, the details of compounding and dispensing drugs, chemicals, and other medicinal agents.

And after his formal education, your pharmacist's course of study does not end. For there are constant changes and progress in medicine and pharmacy with which he must keep abreast.

Get better acquainted with your pharmacist...he's a good neighbor, and a good citizen who works for better community health.

TEEN TALK

Dea Judy

AP Newscasters... Use your teens to build for your twenties. That's the advice offered by glamorous Mildred Miller, who at 26 years of age finds herself a star of the Metropolitan Opera, slated to sing the important role of Preziosilla in Verdi's "Forza del Destino" in the first performance of the season. Says she:

"Young people sometimes tend to let well enough alone with their gifts and talents instead of exploring tentative interests. There are many teen-agers who flirt with the idea of being a nightclub singer, a recording artist, a musical comedy star or even an opera singer, but few of them do anything to make their dreams come true."

Mildred's own story is a good case in point. She had taken piano lessons from early childhood and in high school acted as accompanist and soloist for school affairs and programs. She might have continued in that secure spot, if she hadn't had faith in herself. She explains:

"I got interested in singing because I sang in our church choir. When I got a solo once and felt the thrill of feeling my voice soar out I found a thrill that piano playing never gave me. I didn't know if I could really sing, but I figured I was young enough to take a chance and find out. When you are in your teens you have time to waste on this kind of exploration."

Mildred offers these pointers to ambitious young people, and those who need to be pulled out of a rut:

1. Participate in school or church events. It doesn't matter whether you go to a small school or a medium sized one. Extra-curricular events in all schools are planned chiefly to draw young people out and create school spirit, so don't be shy about volunteering or applying for school jobs. An interest in reporting can develop on the school paper. The stage is full of talented young people who got their first theatrical experience acting, designing scenery or making costumes for school productions. A college or university radio station can offer practical working experience.

2. It's a good thing to be adamant about your talent, but if you find your interest in one kind of activity waning in favor of another, give yourself a chance to find out how deep your interest is in the new field. (Mildred did this when she switched from piano to voice.)

3. Take your dreams seriously. Don't be self-consciously afraid that they are too big for you. If it weren't for dreams, we would not have the telephone, airplane or the discovery of radium. We limit ourselves when we do not give our dreams a chance to come true.

4. Be realistic. Have a plan of action and set your sights. Rather than be turned down for a lack of experience on the job that you are anxious to have, get the reply for it. If the odds are against you as a newcomer, wait a while and get a professional or business standing elsewhere.

5. Be down to earth about yourself and your ambitions, so that those who are responsible for your welfare won't be reluctant to give you another chance. Parents and teachers will help you if you show definite talent for the thing you are aiming to do.

In order to get attention, Mildred went to Europe to gain experience on the opera stages abroad before she tackled the Met. She sang in Italian and German opera companies and got many opportunities that she would not have gotten in musically crowded New York, she says. Sheer luck entered into this program also, however, for she says she was heard abroad by Mr. Rudolf Bing, General Manager of the Metropolitan Opera.

The musk-ox is, in many respects, intermediate between sheep and goats on the one hand and cattle on the other.

True to their theme of the year, more than 2,000,000 boys and girls in the United States, Alaska, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico are "Serving as Loyal Citizens Through 4-H." While mastering practical skills in farming, homemaking, and related fields, 4-H'ers develop a sense of responsibility far beyond their years. And through their tangible 4-H projects, these young people acquire rare—and reassuring—qualities of leadership for their future role as dependable, purposeful citizens.

Feet On Desk Is Healthy, If Not Good Manners

NEW YORK (AP)—Putting your feet on the desk may not be good manners but it is healthy, reports the National Office Furniture Association.

A survey has shown that one of every three business men puts his feet on the desk. If more did so, the association says, both they and their business would be in better shape.

One of the most common symptoms of business worries is muscular tension, according to medical authorities. Raising feet to desk level breaks up muscular habit patterns and releases tension on the large muscles at the back of the thigh.

The association adds that business men need not lose dignity by placing their feet on desks. Posture chairs, a spokesman said, accomplish the same purpose.

The mean altitude of North America is about 2,000 feet.

Villains Just Don't Look The Part, Now

By ELIZABETH DOMEY
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 NEW YORK (UP) — Dallas Brody sometimes sighs over the soft job casting directors had in the days of road show melodramas when villains looked like villains and heroes were handsome. Nowadays we've become so fascinated by psychopathic criminals that a television casting director spends hours searching memory files and the outer lobby for a ruthless killer who looks like, say a chemistry professor. The guys typed as toughies have a hard time making a living on this new kind of crime show. "Spencer Tracy, for instance, would be a wonderful criminal for one of our shows," said Dallas, a 30-year-old red-haired casting director who is not from Texas. "He's so literate. All kinds of subtle motives could be behind a crime he would commit." Clark Gable would be ideal for the "con man type," Dallas added. As casting director for three crime shows, "Treasury Men in Action," "Big Story" and "Police Story," Dallas tosses off the jargon of the underworld in the most businesslike tones. "You know the con man's role," she said briskly. "He's the brains of the gang, but he has hood men to do the dirty work." Even the girls, definitely in the minority in the shows Dallas casts, are affected by the new conception of crime. Casting a girl like Marilyn Monroe as the gun moll would be too obvious, Dallas explained. "She would be good for decorative background all right.

but we'd be more likely to pick someone like Lisa Ferraday for the bad girl role." Miss Ferraday was a European countess before she entered the acting profession. In a bare room adjoining the reception lobby outside the casting director's office, the newest cast for "Treasury Men in Action" rehearsed the latest tale of crime and punishment. The fatherly looking man with the horn-rimmed glasses was Walter Greaza, who always plays the part of the chief of the Treasury Department Investigation Bureau. A fresh-faced lad who played the clean-cut lead in a road company of "The Moon Is Blue" was the villain. Two girls, one looking slightly world-weary and the other a brunette with an expression of eager innocence, murmured their lines in a corner. "Rita plays the bad girl," one whispered. She was the one with the innocent expression. The only suspicious looking man in the room was cast as a Treasury Department special agent. Oh yes, there was that tough guy in the T-shirt. He turned out to be the director.

ed self-defense and was found innocent. All three slayings took place in Brown's cafe here. WILMINGTON, N. C. (AP) — The third time up was the unlucky one for twice-convicted murderer Alfred A. Brown. The 66-year-old Negro was sentenced to 28 to 30 years imprisonment for the slaying of his wife in New Hanover Superior Court here yesterday. Judge Leo Carr pronounced sentence. Brown has been tried three times for murder. Convicted in July, 1936 for the murder of George James, a Negro. Brown was sentenced to 20 to 30 years and was paroled in February, 1940. In April, 1943, while still on parole, he shot and killed another Negro, Lawrence Rogers, but plead-

Phantoms Drill Long For Homecoming Game Friday

Phants In Good Shape For Game

Bobby Perry, Pat Sawyer Off The Injured List And Ready For Action Against Yellow Jackets

Contact work for the week was ended yesterday as the Greenville Phantoms reached the height of preparations for their Homecoming game Friday night against Elizabeth City.

Coach Bill Kittrell had the squad run through a full-scale rehearsal of their plays yesterday with every member of the squad getting an opportunity to prove himself. Defensive play was led by guard Billy Arnold while backs Mitchell Johnson, Bobby Langston, and Bob Howell did the bulk of the ball-carrying.

After the head-knocking session, Kittrell put a further polish on the backfield work with a long signal drill. A similar signal drill is expected to be the bulk of activity in today's workout.

Quarterbacks George Sideris and Pat Sawyer alternated at that post yesterday with Sideris doing most of the signal-calling because of Sawyer's knee injury. Sawyer was in light equipment yesterday but he did get to see some very limited action and will more than likely be able to play some against the Yellow Jackets.

Captain Bobby Perry, the team's top halfback and ground gainer, also reported to practice yesterday for the first time this week. Perry has been sidelined all week with a knee injury which was suffered in last week's loss to Rocky Mount. Perry is expected to start against the Jackets.

The Phantoms are expected to be at near top strength for the game. Sawyer's inability to see sustained action will weaken the club's passing attack but the club's ground game is expected to be slightly improved because of the good physical shape of the other backs.

Most of the responsibility for making the ground game click will fall upon Perry. The senior halfback is averaging five yards per carry thus far this season and leads the team in scoring with 51 points. He will team with Guy Smith, another senior, to form the Phantoms' one-two punch at the halves.

Quarterback Van Cuthrell will lead the favored Yellow Jackets into the Northeastern Conference clash. Cuthrell is one of the Conference's top nominees for All-State honors.

Friday Night Is Homecoming For Greenville High

Greenville High School's annual Homecoming festivities will be held Friday with a full program of activity planned for alumni and students of the school.

A pep rally Friday afternoon at three o'clock will launch the day's activity. Feature event of the rally will be the crowning of "Mr. and Miss School Spirit," two members of the Greenville student body. The rally will be concluded with a parade.

In addition to the afternoon parade, the band will march in formation with the students, to College Stadium at 7:15. The feature of the day's activities, the football game between Greenville and Elizabeth City, is scheduled to start at 8 p.m. It will be followed by a dance sponsored by the Monogram Club. The dance will be held in the high school auditorium.

Basketball Begins In Pitt County

Basketball, the king of winter sports, has nudged into the picture. Two Pitt County teams, Grimesland and Belvoir, opened their cage season this week and Grifton, Winterville and Stokes play games Friday night.

In opening contests Friday night Grifton faces Walsenburg, boys and girls, at Walsenburg; Stokes plays Bear Grass at Stokes. Grimesland faces ockerton at Grimesland and Belvoir plays Maury at Belvoir.

Shirley McLawhorn, tallying seven, were top scorers for Grimesland in the opener. The Grimesland lassies traded most of the game but broke into the lead in the final quarter to win going away.

Bobby Andrews was top scorer for the boys with eight points. Grimesland faces Hookerton Friday night at Grimesland.

The three injured players—Claude King, Jack Benzie, and Bobby Strickland—were all in full practice equipment yesterday but they didn't take part in the workout. King continues to have trouble with a knee injury received in the Guilford game and it's highly doubtful that he'll see any action Saturday.

Benzie, the club's number one left halfback during the early days of the current season, still has a little trouble with an injured toe but he's expected to be able to play Saturday. A senior, Benzie has been out of action for more than two weeks.

Strickland, a freshman from Fayetteville, isn't expected to see any action at all. He got hurt last week in the game with Appalachian and has had difficulty running since then because of a hip injury. He is King's top relief man at the fullback position.

It seems almost certain that sophomore Tom Cannady will get the starting job at fullback against the Hatters because of the injuries to King and Strickland. Cannady started last week against Appalachian and played well. He weighs 170 pounds and is one of the faster members of the squad.

Except for King, Benzie, and Strickland, the Pirates appear to be in good physical shape. There are the usual assortment of bruises, but, all in all, the squad doesn't have any injuries which will weaken them Saturday afternoon.

The Pirates will begin their long trip to Deland today. They'll have a light workout this afternoon and then leave for Wilson where they will board a train for the all-night trip. They will cap their practice sessions with a workout tomorrow afternoon on the Stetson campus.

A squad of around 35 players is expected to make the trip.

Coaches of Greenville Little League teams playing in Kinston tonight have announced line-ups for the teams participating. The squad members will leave for the game at 5:45 from the Armory. Game time is 7:30.

The line-ups: White Terrors: Pos. Fleming RE, Clapp RT, Lassiter RG, Bynum C, Brown LG, Jorgenson LT, Nunn LE, Edwards LE, Rumble RB, Garner FB. Blue Devils: Stancil, Boyd, Strickland, Ruffin, Faber, Duff, Crawford, Barnhill, Harrison, Long, Barrett.

Belvoir Wins Two Opening Contests

The Belvoir Eagles opened their 1952 cage slate with a double win over Walsenburg. The girls won the opener 47-32 but the boys had to play an overtime session before winning 45-43.

Howard Bullock topped the attack for the boys, sinking a total of 15 points. Harvey Strickland was runnerup with eight.

Eding Randolph and Marlene Clark shared high scoring honors in the opener with 13 points each.

Pirates Hold Off Farmville; Vanceboro End Rough Work Due To Many Injuries

Even though their three injured players, were back in full equipment yesterday, the East Carolina College Pirates stayed away from rough work as they continued to prepare for their game Saturday afternoon against Stetson University.

The Pirates limited their work yesterday to another dummy scrimmage session and a long drill on pass defense. That has been the pattern for practices all week long and another such session is expected today.

The three injured players—Claude King, Jack Benzie, and Bobby Strickland—were all in full practice equipment yesterday but they didn't take part in the workout. King continues to have trouble with a knee injury received in the Guilford game and it's highly doubtful that he'll see any action Saturday.

Benzie, the club's number one left halfback during the early days of the current season, still has a little trouble with an injured toe but he's expected to be able to play Saturday. A senior, Benzie has been out of action for more than two weeks.

Strickland, a freshman from Fayetteville, isn't expected to see any action at all. He got hurt last week in the game with Appalachian and has had difficulty running since then because of a hip injury. He is King's top relief man at the fullback position.

It seems almost certain that sophomore Tom Cannady will get the starting job at fullback against the Hatters because of the injuries to King and Strickland. Cannady started last week against Appalachian and played well. He weighs 170 pounds and is one of the faster members of the squad.

Except for King, Benzie, and Strickland, the Pirates appear to be in good physical shape. There are the usual assortment of bruises, but, all in all, the squad doesn't have any injuries which will weaken them Saturday afternoon.

The Pirates will begin their long trip to Deland today. They'll have a light workout this afternoon and then leave for Wilson where they will board a train for the all-night trip. They will cap their practice sessions with a workout tomorrow afternoon on the Stetson campus.

A squad of around 35 players is expected to make the trip.

Farmville; Vanceboro End Football Schedules Friday

The Vanceboro Red Raiders play Swansboro Friday afternoon in the only Coastal Conference contest on home grounds.

This will be the final game of the season for the Red Raiders who have been in the process of rebuilding and have experienced more defeats than victories.

The Raiders reached their peak against South Edgecombe when Co-Captain Jack Taylor scored three touchdowns to lead them to a 47-0 victory.

Starting in the Vanceboro line are Clarence Powell and Walker, ends; John Laughinghouse and Calvin Miller, tackles; John Hellen and Co-Captain Curtis, guards; and Midyette, center.

In the backfield are Billy Butler and Earl Wright at halfbacks; Barrow, quarterback, and Jack Taylor at the fullback post.

The Red Devils from Farmville windup their football schedule with a game at Scotland Neck Friday night.

The Devils are currently sporting a 6-2 record, losing only to Ayden and Morehead City.

Charlie Fitzgerald will be at the helm, directing line thrusters by Sigbee Dilda, and handing off to Teddy Allen and Jess Joyner, a pair of speedy halfbacks.

Allen has scored 14 touchdowns so far against Farmville opponents, and the majority of these have come on runs of ten or more yards.

In the Red Devil line will be Tommy Norville and Freddy Thorne, ends; Dick Shackelford and Jess Spencer, tackles; William Allen and Carroll Wooten, guards; and Jack Allen, center.

Coach Charlie Tucker has singled Spencer out for special praise on defense work.

The Ayden Tornados, Coastal Conference champions, go to Beaufort tonight, and will be striving to get back on the winning side of the ledger after suffering straight defeats by Tarboro and Plymouth.

The Tornado offense suffered a terrific blow last week when Darrell Worthington was injured and lost for the season.

Wesley Cannon, Harry Ross, Billy Holland and B. P. McLawhorn are ready to go in the backfield for the Tornados, behind linemen Mac Whitehurst, Randall Harrington, Sidney Britt, Todd Kittrell, Bobby Gene Barfield, Gordon Hart and Billy E. McLawhorn.

The Robersonville Rams, smarting from a 14-6 defeat by Central High of Elizabeth City, take on another tough foe this week when they travel to Plymouth for a night game with the Quakers.

The Rams will depend heavily on the bull rushes of Fullback Sonny James and the passing arm of Dan Clark. Clark's aerial artistry has given the Rams a deceptive offensive punch that makes them a threat against much stronger opponents.

Ends Maurice Everett, Boyd Bailey, and Halfbacks Andy Warren and Russell Johnson are chief targets for Clark's potshots.

The Ram forward wall are Everette and Charles Peel, ends; Pete Johnson and Bobby Clark, guards; Curtis Roberson and Jerry Beach, tackles; and Julius Budacz, center.

Frosh Grid Star Is Top Trackman

FORT WORTH, Tex.—Texas Christian University, which goes in for football and carries track as a sideline, got one of the brightest track prospects in the country because it doesn't stress track.

Sounds complicated but here's the story: Bill Curtis of Waurike, Okla., national high school hurdles champion, showed up on the TCU campus this fall and started playing football. No one paid much attention to him until the TCU freshmen played a game and they turned Curtis loose against the Texas A&M freshmen.

Curtis caught a pass and made a brilliant 40-yard, sidestepping run for the first TCU touchdown. He got down first under a punt, knocked the receiver off the ball and recovered to set up another TCU touchdown. He knocked himself and other people out tackling—preventing an Aggie score with a stone-cold stop on the two-yard line.

He was quite the sensation and it caused a lot of talk. Why was Curtis, whom both Oklahoma and Oklahomna A&M sought for track, playing football at TCU? Bill explained it like this: At either Oklahoma or Oklahomna A&M, where track is stressed, his talents for hurdling would have made him too valuable as a trackman to be risked in football.

But Bill wanted to play football, too. At TCU where football comes first, Curtis could try to do both if he wanted to. He wanted to. And TCU has a potential Southwest Conference hurdles champion and All-Southwest Conference football.

Detroit Sets New Attendance Mark

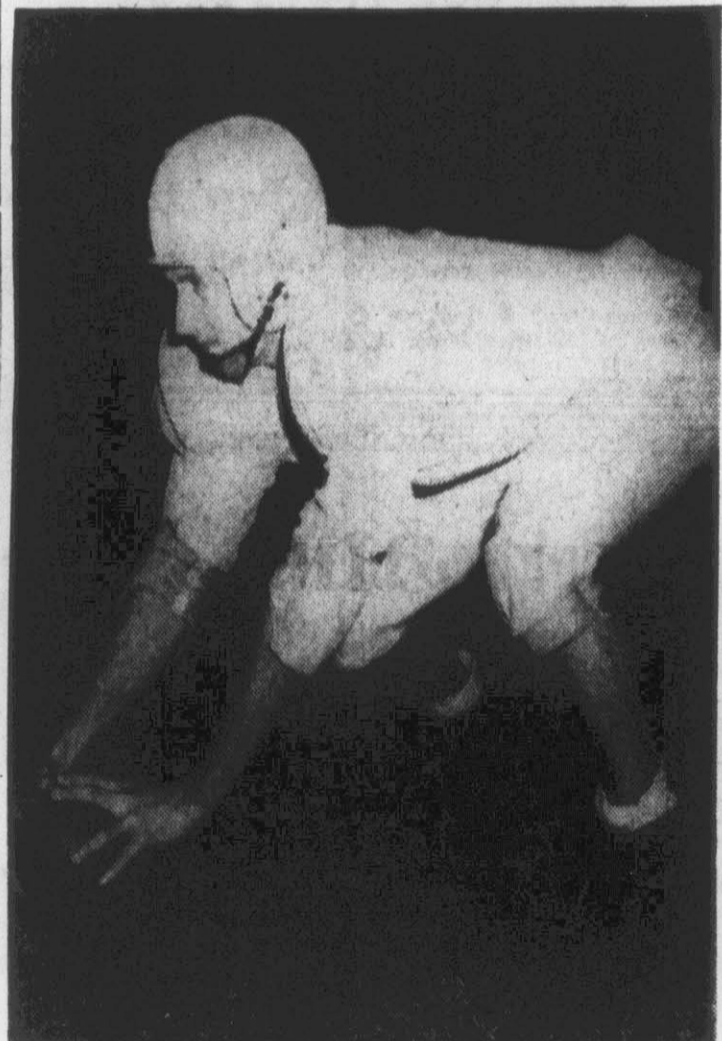

DETROIT (AP)—In the first two home games of the 1952 season the Detroit Lions of the National Football League played before 96,974 fans. This two-game figure surpasses the 82,700 mark set for six games when the Lions won the National Football League title in 1935.

'Bonus Babies' Under Fire

By CARL LUNDQUIST
 United Press Sports Writer
 NEW YORK (UP) — Baseball's fabulous "bonus babies," who used to get up to $100,000 plus an automobile for dad just for signing their names, may have to get their big money strictly on a merit basis in the future, Commissioner Ford Frick said today.

Baseball's big boss, outlining the proposed new bonus rule which will be voted on at the major and minor league meetings in Phoenix, Ariz., next month, said it contained no limits on what a youngster could get. But the restrictions imposed are so binding that only the "cream of the crop" will be involved in the big-money bidding, Frick pointed out.

The proposed rule provides that any player who is signed for more than the major league salary minimum of $5,000 for a single year must either be placed on the club's roster for two full playing seasons, or be subject to selection in the annual "bargain basement" player draft after one year on a minor league farm club.

"Under the new rule, a player probably wouldn't get the big bonus to begin with, but he can be paid any amount under the $5,000 minimum and be told that if he makes good after a period in the minors, he will be brought up to the majors on merit," Frick said.

"I should not become suspicious of a club as a possible violator of the rule if it signed a player below the bonus limit, kept him in the minors a year, then brought him up to the majors and paid him a good sized salary—provided he had made good in the minors. And the practical effect should be for club owners to use extreme caution unless they know that a kid player really has the goods," Frick made it plain, though, that he did not think the rule would halt high bonuses—perhaps up to $100,000—for young players of obvious major league caliber.

In the event a bonus player is kept on the big league roster for two years, he must count at all times in the club's player limit. If the club decides not to keep him, he is subject to "grabs" by other major league clubs at the waiver price.

Frick said the principal difference between the proposed bonus rule and the one which was discarded by baseball two years ago is that "there are teeth in this one which provide drastic penalties to violators, and we certainly will be prepared to throw the book at any club owners found guilty of such practices."

He said that applied mainly to so-called "under the table" bonuses of cold cash. Violations will be penalized with heavy fines and Frick said he would not hesitate to throw any one out of baseball for flagrant cases.

The bonus rule would extend all the way through the minors with a $4,000 top for clubs in the open, Triple-A, Double-A and A classifications, and $3,000 for the B, C, and D lower minor circuits.

Georgia Tech To Play New Year's Sugar Bowl Game

NEW ORLEANS, La. (UP)—Georgia Tech, offered a $150,000 booty and plenty of tickets to take care of its supporters, grabbed off the most lucrative of the bowl bids today by accepting an invitation to play in the Sugar Bowl or New Year's Day.

The Mid-Winter Sports Association, which sponsors the Sugar Bowl, got the jump on its rival bowl promoters by coralling the Engineers as the host team nearly two months before the date for the classic Georgia Tech, unbeaten and untied this season in six games, is ranked fourth in the nation.

Irwin Poche, president of the association, reached an agreement with Coach Bobby Dodd of Georgia Tech Wednesday night after three days of negotiation. Actually, Tech still must obtain permission to play from the Southeastern Conference at its Dec. 10 meeting in Atlanta, but that approval is regarded simply a formality.

A "suitable" opponent for the Yellowjackets will be chosen as soon as possible, Poche said. Oklahoma is regarded a leading prospect, if the Big Seven Conference will rescind its ban on bowl games. Other leading prospects are Tennessee, Penn State, or the runner-up team in the Southwest Conference.

Dodd agreed to send his team to the Sugar Bowl in preference to the Orange Bowl when the Mid-Winter Sports Association offered to set aside about 14,000 tickets for Georgia Tech rooters. A Southeastern Conference ruling says member teams must receive at least 12,500 tickets from a bowl sponsor.

"I wanted as many tickets as I could get because I don't want Tech fans saying we let them down," Dodd said. "We want as many fans as can go with us."

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTHER, AP Real Estate Editor

Here comes winter and readers of this department are anticipating it with letters that can make a Southerner smile.

But J.A.J. of Oshkosh, Wis., writes about a problem that brings up a subject of winter time-lessness in southern regions as well as in the North.

He is worried about snow and ice on the roof. And the most practical gadget he can use lends itself to speeding gorgeous flows in hotbeds in the South, or any other place for that matter.

This is an electric heating coil, available at most electric supply shops or well-stocked hardware stores.

J.A.J. says: "We have been living in our new home for two years and during each of the past two winters we have been troubled with a heavy coating of ice forming in and above the eaves troughs. On mild days the water melting under the ice seems to back up under the shingles and leak through the roof boards.

"By keeping the roof clear of snow and chipping channels in the ice, through which the water may escape, I have been able to prevent any serious damage to the inside of the house. However, I am still looking for a permanent solution to the problem and for relief from the disagreeable task of having to pull the snow off the roof after every snow storm."

This is a very common problem in the north. Whenever icicles form at the eaves you can almost always find an ice dam formed along the edge of the roof. This is because water from snow melting on the warmer part of the roof above the house, freezes again when it reaches the colder overhang of the eaves. More water backs up behind this ice dam and seeps under shingles, leaking through to stain plaster and spoil wallpaper.

Electric heating cable laid in a zig-zag pattern along the eaves will melt this ice, forming channels through which water can drain off. It works on the same principle as an electric blanket or any other electric heating unit, being of hairpin shape no matter how long. Therefore, you can't cut it.

However, heating cable sets can be obtained in 15-foot, 30-foot and 60-foot lengths with ends fitted into weather-proof electric plugs. You can plug the 15- and 30-foot lengths into ordinary house current, either in an out-door weatherproof outlet, or through a window to an indoor length, however, which is actually 120 feet of heating cable in hairpin style, calls for 220 volts, which is the common electric range current.

You can compare the cost of operation with that for electric lights on this basis: a 15-foot hairpin of 30 feet of heating cable is rated at 180 watts by the General Electric Co. The 30-foot hairpin is rated at 400 watts; 60-foot hairpin at 800 watts. In other words, to keep 60 feet of cable warm should require about the same current needed to keep eight 100-watt lights burning.

These heating cables can be laid in the soil of hotbeds and connected with thermostats to maintain constant growing temperatures. Or you can use them for thawing frozen water pipes or to keep pipes from freezing.

The cables would work encased in concrete, asphalt or black top to melt snow from sidewalks or driveways, but General Electric points out that such uses "may prove prohibitively expensive due to the cost of installation and operation."

You can get a 20-page booklet of instructions on the installation of heating cable by writing to the Construction Materials Division, General Electric Co., Bridgeport 2, Conn.

Expects Crowds To Honor Saint

GOA, Portuguese India (AP)—Officials here are busy reading extra tourist facilities for the half million pilgrims expected when the monthlong fourth centenary of the death of St. Francis Xavier starts Dec. 3.

Pilgrims from throughout the world, including an estimated 200,000 non-Catholics, will attend centenary festivities, officials said. The body of the saint lies encased in a silver casket studded with precious stones at the Basilica de Bom Jesus at Old Goa, former state capital.

Miss Jessie Ellis of Tarboro spent the weekend with her grandmother, Mrs. Mattie Nichols.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Knott and children, Jimmy, Sue and James, of Roanoke Rapids were Sunday guests of Mrs. Knott's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Smith.

Hairless Fox Is Shot In Indiana

PEKIN, Ind. (AP)—Tales of a naked-looking wild beast roaming around Washington County turned out to be true. John McCoskey shot it in his chicken yard.

It turned out to be a grey fox that, for some unknown reason, had shed practically all of its hair.

New Volcano Is Rising From Sea

MANILA (AP)—A second volcano is reported rising from the sea off the Philippines, this time not far from Kibok-hibok, the killer volcano.

Constabulary headquarters said the undersea volcano had thrust its mouth 20 feet above the sea near the coastal town of Jasaan on Mindanao about 40 miles south of Hibok-hibok on Camiguin Island. Hibok-hibok has a habit of erupting explosively, and has killed hundreds of Filipinos who farm its slopes.

NEW YORK (UP)—The nation's habit of reading newspapers has taken in healthy stride the advent of radio—and more recently—television.

People are reading more newspapers today than ever before in history, the American Newspaper Publishers Association said today.

"Newspaper reading is just about the only regular activity which showed no change after the advent of TV," the association pointed out in commenting on video's effect on family life.

While population in the United States has increased from 106,000,000 in 1920 to 155,000,000 now, the association points out that weekly newspaper circulation in the same period has gone up from 28,000,000 to 54,000,000. This means a gain of 47 per cent for population and 94 per cent for newspapers in the 32-year period.

Funeral Friday For Raymond L. Brock

Raymond L. Brock, 50, died in Pitt Memorial Hospital in Greenville at 5:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon after suffering a heart attack about thirty minutes earlier.

Funeral services will be held at the Winterville Free Will Baptist Church Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock and burial will be in the Winterville Cemetery. The Rev. N. D. Beaman, pastor, assisted by the Rev. M. A. Woodard, Free Will Baptist minister of Winterville, will conduct the services. Active and honorary pall bearers will be members of the Winterville Tribe of Red Men. The body will remain at the S. G. Wilkerson and Sons Funeral Home and will be carried to the church one hour prior to the time of services.

Mr. Brock was a native of Pitt County and lived all his married life near Winterville. He was a member of the Winterville Free Will Baptist Church and the Mohican Tribe No. 56, Improved Order of Red Men.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Letha Weathering Brock; four sons, Pfc Raymond L. Brock Jr., of the U. S. Army, now stationed at Detroit, Mich.; Clifton, Jackie, and Freddy Brock of the home; three daughters, Mrs. William L. Nobles, Mrs. Holton Avery, and Mrs. Leola Avery of Winterville; five brothers, Joe and Alton Brock of Farmville, Roy Lee Brock of Tarboro, Oscar Brock of Newport News, Va., and Bill Brock of Long Beach, California; and a sister, Mrs. Archie Jackson of Washington.

Walter Lee Wilson Funeral On Friday

Funeral services for Walter Lee Wilson died at Taylor Hospital in Juniper Chapel Free Will Baptist Church near Vanceboro Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Interment will follow in the church cemetery.

Wilson died at Taylor Hospital in Washington following an illness of five weeks. He was born in Craven County, the son of the late S. A. and Elizabeth Wilson, and was a retired farmer.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. S. A. Neese and Mrs. Dora McFarland of Portsmouth, Va., and Mrs. Fred Norris of Beaufort; two sons, Frank Wilson of Grimesland and Odie Wilson of Beaufort.

Also surviving are seven grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Heber Rogers Funeral Is Planned For Friday

AYDEN—Mr. Heber Rogers, 81, died at his home at 9:30 Thursday morning. A retired farmer, he had spent his entire life in the Rountree community and was a member of the Rountree Christian Church.

Funeral services will be conducted by the Rev. G. H. Sullivan of Wilson, at Britt's Funeral Chapel in Ayden at 3 p. m. Friday. Burial will follow in the Ayden cemetery.

Surviving are his wife; one daughter, Eleanor of the home; one brother, Percy Rogers, of the home; one sister, Mrs. Clara Spear, of near the home.

His nephews will be active pallbearers.

A copy of the enabling act relative to the Joint Airport Authority was presented to the board by W. W. Speight, county attorney. The commission's approved the act and voted to request the legislature's approval of the document at the next session.

Guy C. Dunn, county electrical inspector, submitted his resignation because "I do not have enough work to warrant my keeping the job." The board took the resignation into consideration pending a meeting with the Greenville Utilities Commission.

Road Petitions

Two road petitions were presented and approved. There were 1. Chicod township — road intersecting the Grimesland and Black Jack road one mile south of Grimesland known as Arnold Road, extending 1/2 of a mile and requested that it be added to the state system;

2. Greenville township — White road, 4.2 miles long off Falkland highway, requested that it be improved.

Jury list for the December special criminal term of Pitt Superior Court was drawn, and all county departments made regular monthly reports.

Last Rites Friday For Mrs. Nancy Tyson

FARMVILLE—Mrs. Nancy Burnette Tyson, 94, of Ayden, died of a heart attack at Pitt Memorial Hospital in Greenville Wednesday night at 7:30.

Funeral services will be held at the Farmville Home Friday morning at 10 o'clock. Rev. Frank Ross, rector of the Farmville Episcopal Church, will officiate. Burial will be in the Farmville cemetery.

Surviving are a brother, J. A. Burnette of Newport News, Va.; three granddaughters, Mrs. V. Preston Dunn and Mrs. James W. Everett, both of Ayden, and Mrs. Talmadge Benton of Cherry Point.

Commissioners urged Futrelle and hospital officials to get together and work out a way acceptable to all parties for paying welfare bills due the hospital.

C. D. Ward, administrator of Pitt Memorial Hospital, made his monthly report to the board of commissioners in which he stated October was the worst month at the hospital this year. "We did not have enough patients during September to pay operating costs at the hospital, even if we had made 100 percent collections — which we didn't," he asserted.

Welfare Dept. . . .

According to the administrator, the average patient load dropped from 67 in August to a low of 60 for September. He said 502 patients were treated in August, while only 437 were treated during September.

However, Ward reported that October was the best month the hospital has had since it opened in February 1951. Collections for that month were $38,957.15, while expenses were only $34,000. Accumulative deficit for the year at the end of October was approximately $5,000.

Although patient load for October was less than other months, Ward said, we had the best financial report. At the end of October, the average patient load for the year was 74.

Arrest Made In Edgecombe Theft

A Pitt County white man was arrested and turned over to Edgecombe County authorities on charges of breaking and entering and larceny in the neighboring county.

Josephus Corbett, 32, of near Falkland, was taken into custody by Deputy Sheriff Lloyd Manning this morning and delivered to Tom Barden, sheriff of Edgecombe County.

Pitt Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson said today Corbett has been charged with breaking into a service station in Edgecombe and stealing a quantity of merchandise. He is to be tried on that charge in Tarboro next week.

Sheriff Tyson reported that Corbett was free on bond in Pitt on charges of breaking into G. W. Moore's store-filling station near Falkland last Friday night. He was jailed in Pitt on that charge but made bond the first of the week.

"Some of the merchandise taken from Moore's place — and also some taken from the service station in Edgecombe — has been found in Corbett's house," Tyson stated. "It is thought Corbett is one of a theft ring which has committed a series of robberies recently."

CONFUSING — Several people who had already cast their ballots said they did not like the apparent, though perhaps unintentional, confusing statements about the amendments. The ballots for individual candidates and parties were clear. Any literate person could tell when he was voting for the Democratic or Republican party, or for John Doe or Richard Roe. Majority of them did not know what was meant on the ballot by limiting the county tax to 20 cents, or providing for filling vacancies in certain state offices. Three men confessed they voted against the whole business on the theory that we've been getting along all right with present provisions, and they didn't know what changes would be made. If the
