Aldermen Talk Enlarging Board

Strong Possibility First Ward May Have Additional Representation; VEPCO Authority Granted; Fire Substation Go-Ahead Is Given; Funds Transfer Voted

By JESS POINDEXTER Reflector City Editor The number of aldermen on Greenville's prime governing body may be increased to 10.

Discussion at last night's meeting of the Greenville Board of Aldermen indicated there is a strong possibility that in the near future the first ward in the city will have an additional alderman.

Heber B. Tripp, alderman from the first ward, said last night that with the annexing of new areas recently the first ward has become the biggest division in Greenville. "There has been much talk about adding another alderman to the board from that ward," he stated.

At the present time the first ward is the only one of five wards in the city which does not have two representatives on the city board. Tripp is the lone representative of first ward citizens, and has been for several years.

City Attorney R. B. Lee declared there is no reason why the first ward should not have an additional alderman, but disclosed such a proposal would necessitate action by the state legislature.

No definite action was taken relative to the proposal last night, but the board agreed to give it due consideration for possible discussion in the future.

VEPCO Connection Easement proceedings granting Virginia Electric Power Company the authority to pass over city property with power lines was approved. Last night's action was subsequent to recommendations of the Greenville Utilities Commission and precedes eventual connection with VEPCO.

Over the strong verbal opposition of Mayor Lester D. Page, the board approved granting of a last driver's permit to an applicant with a court record of six law violations dating back to 1949. The latest violation was in 1949, and acting Police Chief Capt. R. T. Rogerson said it is customary to refuse applicants who have a recent court record.

Mayor Page disclosed that the applicant, Wilson W. Ballinger, 30-year-old white man, has applied for a permit several times in the past and has always been turned down because of his lengthy court record.

Ballinger's record of violations and dates is: 1949, traffic violation, paid $5.00 and costs; 1949, embezzlement, not pros; 1941, failure to purchase city automobile license, paid $5.00 and costs; 1944, speeding, paid costs; 1945, assault, paid $25.00 and costs; 1949, speeding 65 miles per hour in a 25 mile per hour zone, paid $20 costs deducted.

The applicant's record was not read to the board, but was attached to his application for their inspection. "He's changed," Alderman George Pugh said, "because I know him," and Pugh made a motion to approve the application and grant Ballinger a permit.

On his application Ballinger listed George Pugh as his prospective employer.

Fire Sub-Station The board voted the "go ahead" on work at the fire sub-station, and approved a motion to draw up a contract on a "cost plus" basis. The contract would provide for purchasing materials with the board's approval and stipulate that the contract can be terminated whenever the city sees fit to do so.

Members of the board approved the transfer of $7,000 from paving contract eight to the city debt service fund. They also approved an enabling act which would permit establishment of a centralized airport for the counties of Pitt, Nash, Wilson and Transylvania counties.

A tax driver's permit was granted Joe Sparkman, 43-year-old Negro.

ROACHES STOLEN GREEN BAY, Wis (UP)—Prof. John Barton of St. Norbert College reported to police today that 350 "highly-trained cockroaches" valued at $500 were stolen from the back seat of his car. Barton said the roaches were being used in a memory experiment.

Community Chest Campaign Divisional Chairmen Named; Drive Opens Nov. 17

Greenville's 1952 Community Chest campaign division chairmen have been chosen and their names were announced today by General Campaign Chairman W. W. Lee.

The annual Community Chest campaign opens November 17 for the raising of a budget of $14,000, the largest in the history of the community agency which finances the charitable, service, and character-building agencies in Greenville.

Heading the major divisions, Lee said, will be Thomas Webb, insurance executive, special gifts; E. D. Johnston, department store manager, branch firms; Mrs. J. B. Cummings, civic and religious organiza-

Chinese Attack In Snowstorm Is Again Smashed

Apparently Trying Move Into Position For New Sniper Ridge Raid

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—United Nations forces smashed a Chinese attack between Triangle Hill and Sniper Ridge early today in the first snowstorm of the season.

The Chinese swarmed through rocky valleys separating the two bitterly-contested heights on the west-central front at 3:40 a.m. (1:40 p.m. EST Thurs.). A shattering Allied artillery and mortar bombardment forced the Reds to retreat an hour later.

The enemy apparently was trying to move into position for a new attack on Sniper Ridge, about one mile east of Triangle. The push came at almost the same spot where the Reds lost an estimated 200 dead and wounded in a similar maneuver last night. U.N. heavy guns also broke up that attack.

To the west, 300 Chinese hit an advanced Chinese position between Old Baldy and T-Bone hills just before midnight. The Reds fought until 2:30 a.m. (12:30 p.m. EST Thurs.), then withdrew under heavy artillery and mortar fire.

A light snow fell early today along the central sector of the battline. Most of it melted, although 5th Air Force Reconnaissance planes reported heavy snow in mountains and valleys deep in North Korea.

Cloudy weather halted most air operations.

An 8th Army briefing officer said that the tempo of Red patrols picked up sharply last night and early today. The Reds stabbed at three points around Luke the Gook's Castle on the eastern front, losing more than one-fourth of their 100-man force in killed or wounded.

Allied raiders roamed through no-man's-land on the western front, clashing with Chinese in several brief engagements. Some hand-to-hand fighting was reported in duels northwest of Korangpo.

The 45,000-ton battleship Missouri turned its mainmorn guns on Red targets in North Korea Thursday, destroying a transformer plant with a 16-inch shell. Other warships patrolled the coast, peppering the Reds with shell-fire.

U. S. Sea Power Featured In Book

LONDON (UP)—"Jane's Fighting Ships," the authoritative naval publication of the world, made the enormous naval power of the United States the feature of its new 1952-1953 edition today.

"A colossal fighting force which is already the largest peacetime fleet ever maintained and is as large as all the other navies of the world put together," Jane's said of the U. S. Navy.

Jane's also called attention to the fact that Russia obscures its naval building behind its Iron curtain. It lists Russia as having at least 370 fast submarines, and at least 120 more building.

Russia is "persistently" reported to be building one or more battle-ships of the Soyvetzkiy Soyuz type, Jane's said. But it dropped last year's report that up to four of these are being built, and it also dropped their reported details including a tonnage of 42,000. It likewise did not carry last year's report that Russia's program includes 200 cruisers, 120 destroyers and a total of 1,000 seagoing submarines.

SPECIAL BREW LONDON (UP)—Breweries announced today they are making beer of special strength for the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II next June 2.

Carolina Forest Fires Again Are Out Of Control

Danger Of More Fires 'Extremely Critical'; Winds Fan Flames

By The Associated Press Forest fires, which have blackened thousands of acres of woodlands in the Carolinas during the past 10 days, blazed anew today and the danger of still more fires was termed "extremely critical."

Brisk winds fanned the destructive blazes which already were feeding on powder-dry timberland as a result of a record-breaking drought.

Two big fires were burning out of control in the Pisgah and Nantahala National Forests in Western North Carolina and the tiny village of Tellico in Macon County was threatened. Wary firefighters started backfires in an effort to keep the main blaze away from the village's 20 houses.

More than 100 men were rushed into the Tennessee Gap section near Rosman to battle a blaze which had swept over 700 acres by mid-morning. Some of them were diverted from trips home after fire duty in Tennessee for two weeks.

In Northern Georgia, near the North Carolina border, another big fire was raging in the Chattahoochee National Forest. In fact, the situation throughout the Southern Appalachians was termed "extremely critical" by government officials.

One official said the Nantahala area was purposely set in three places. Another fire in the Penley Cove Section south of Asheville was blamed on a smoker who carelessly tossed a cigarette along a road.

At Raleigh, the closing or postponing hunting seasons because of the danger of forest fires likely will be considered by the State Wildlife Resources Commission tomorrow.

However, Director Clyde C. Patton said he doesn't expect any action. He explained that he saw no particular advantage in closing the woods to hunters while leaving them open for industrial and recreational purposes.

Firefighters, many of them volunteers, battled another blaze in the Yadkin River bottomland just west of Lewisville near Winston-Salem.

Weather forecasters forecast a general rain for Monday.

Vote Tabulation Is Now In Works

Harrell's Office A Beehive As Difficult Task Begins

The long, monotonous task of tabulating official totals of Pitt County's record breaking vote in Tuesday's general elections began yesterday.

The office of Pitt Elections Board Chairman J. H. Harrell was a "beehive" of activity yesterday as pollholders from all over the county poured in to report the vote in their precincts.

Harrell said the total number of people actually voting would be approximately 14,000, but the number of votes received by any two candidates in a given race would not reach that figure.

"Many people split their tickets," he stated this morning, "and countless other cast votes for one candidate but failed to vote for others—a practice which fails to indicate that an actual count of all persons voting will be completed from voting books in each precinct."

The number of votes cast for the Democratic candidate in the governor's race—upon which Pitt County's representation to the state convention is based—is almost 12,000. It is thought at present that more ballots were cast in the presidential race than any other.

Harrell reported official figures on the balloting will be made available either tomorrow or Monday, and at that time they will be presented to the public.

ASKS EARLY MEETING WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman today asked President-elect Eisenhower to send representatives to the Defense and State Departments and Budget Bureau "at the earliest possible moment."

Workers will meet for campaign instructions prior to the kick-off of the drive, and at that time will receive reports on Community Chest operations from President L. S. Ficklen who has headed the organization for the past year.

Organization of the drive in the residential areas will be conducted by the Greenville Service League. Mrs. E. H. Willford, president, and Mrs. Cummings.

Will Talk Future

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson plans a meeting tomorrow with two of the Democratic Party's top leaders for a discussion of the party's future plans and leadership.

Stevenson, an aide said last night, will meet with Stephen Mitchell, Democratic National Committee chairman, and Wilson Wyatt, the defeated presidential nominee's campaign manager.

Stevenson has been silent on his future political plans since his crushing defeat by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower in Tuesday's election.

Wyatt, however, has said that he and others in the governor's headquarters have discussed briefly with Stevenson the party's future plans and leadership. Wyatt told reporters:

"Our feeling is definitely that it will be Adlai Stevenson in 1956" as the party's presidential candidate.

Stevenson ends his first four year term as governor of Illinois in two months. He is expected to disclose, after a vacation, his personal plans after his term expires.

Elections Impact Slows Diplomacy

Indecision In State Dept. Pending Eisenhower Signals

WASHINGTON, (UP)—The shattering impact of the Republican election victory today almost immobilized American diplomacy.

The atmosphere at the State Department was one of indecision pending word from the new signal-carryer, President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower, and his foreign policy advisers.

Secretary of State Dean Acheson and scores of other Democratic appointees in upper-echelon diplomatic posts here and overseas were preparing to quit their jobs in anticipation of the GOP "house cleaning" to come in January.

Everyone in the diplomatic business took the view it would be foolhardy and perhaps even dangerous to commit this country to any new policies or important moves until it was certain they would be underwritten by the new Republican administration.

It seemed essential to most diplomats that Eisenhower select someone to establish liaison with the State Department soon to help it face pending problems and any sudden emergencies in the next 10 weeks.

These questions were said to be of key importance during the transition from a Democratic to a Republican administration of foreign policy.

Korea: The North Korean and Chinese Communists are not expected to budge on the armistice problem until they see what Eisenhower may propose as a result of his promised trip to Korea. Little progress on the Korean question can be made at the United Nations until Eisenhower or his aides give their approval of any new strategy moves.

North Atlantic Treaty: A meeting of crucial importance is to be held in Paris on Dec. 15 by the 14 nations. Treaty allies will have little faith in the words of Truman administration spokesmen unless Eisenhower associates himself with the U.S. position in advance.

Emergencies: Responsible Republicans should be readily available for quick consultation to meet any new cold or hot war crisis engineered by the Communists. The situations in Iran, Indo-China and Western Europe could be the scene of a quick Red challenge.

Heavy Gale Now Lashing British, French Coasts

LONDON (UP)—One of the worst gales in years blew across Britain and northern France today and caused heavy damage on sea and land.

Shipping was tied up in the English Channel by winds that reached 94 miles an hour at Shawbury, Shropshire, and 90 miles an hour atop the Eiffel Tower in Paris.

The 8,725-ton Cunard liner Asia was blown onto a mudbank at Blackwall in the river Thames.

A U. S. Air Force B-50 landed during the storm near Great Dunmow, England, and all 11 men aboard were believed killed. The winds fanned the blazing wreckage for hours.

Firemen throughout southern England answered many night calls to put out fires whipped by the winds and rescue people from damaged houses. Many chimneys were blown down into houses.

Congratulates Soviet People

MOSCOW, (UP)—A routine message from President Truman congratulating America's traditional ally on the Soviet anniversary was delivered to the Foreign Ministry today. It asked the ministry to convey the greetings of the American people to the Soviet people.

The British and French representatives transmitted similar greetings from their governments.

Soviet Military Might Parades For Anniversary

Stalin And Other Leaders Look On; Marshal Boasts Of Army's Power

MOSCOW (UP)—The Soviet Union's military might and 2,000,000 civilians paraded past Premier Josef Stalin in Moscow's Red Square today in observance of the 35th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

Stalin, dressed in a regulation army greatcoat, watched the march-past from atop Lenin's mausoleum in the first snowstorm of the season. He acknowledged the cheers of the hundreds of thousands formed below with a wave of his hand.

Marshal Semyon Timoshenko, hero of Stalingrad, reviewed the parade from Horseback and then mounted the mausoleum to address the troops and the crowd.

Timoshenko accused Western "warmongers" of "trying to incite certain states against the Soviet Union." But, he added:

"The gallant armed forces of the Soviet Union possess everything needed to answer the aggressors crushingly with the army and navy ready to fulfill honorably their duty to the country's interests."

With Stalin and Timoshenko atop Lenin's tomb were top Soviet Communist party and government leaders, among them deputy premiers Vyacheslav M. Molotov and Georgi M. Malenkov.

U.S. Charge d'Affaires Elmo R. O'Shaughnessy, wearing a top hat, watched the parade from a special diplomatic stand to the left of Lenin's tomb. With him were the American Army, Air Force and Naval attaches.

Crack troops of the Moscow garrison and the military academies led off the parade at 11 a.m. (3 a.m. EST). Then "land battleship" tanks, motorized artillery and other mobile equipment rumbled through the square.

Soviet aircraft did not fly because of the low ceiling.

The military parade lasted one hour. Then civilian marchers with their arms raised in a salute to the victory of Communism, and "long live the friendship of Soviet, American and British people in the common struggle for peace," paraded past.

They carried large portraits of Stalin and other party and government leaders, as well as leaders of foreign Communist parties—including America's William Foster, Britain's Harry Pollitt, France's Maurice Thorez and Italy's Palmiro Togliatti.

Timoshenko, in his 10-minute address, said it was "true the warmongers are dreaming of another war and preparing for it."

"They are stepping up their arms drive. For almost three years now they have been waging a barbarous war against the Korean people and are trying to incite certain states against the Soviet Union."

"The warmongers should, however, know that the people of the world do not want war, while our states are stronger than ever and capable of answering any attack by the aggressors with a crushing blow."

Miss Carole Evans, chief secretary supervising four girls operating the typewriter, said the messages were "wonderful."

She said most of them urged him to stay in national politics and that many praised the Illinois governor "for campaigning the way he thought he should."

And the defeated Democratic presidential candidate seemed to be sticking by a passage he once wrote into a television fireside chat:

"And if it should cause you to cast me down and revile me, and with me the Democratic party, I would still talk the same."

The magazine said the Soviet rocket planes were the products of German scientists. It described them as 35 feet long, with a wingspan of 28 feet and weighing 15,000 pounds at takeoff. The pilot lies prone in the plane, it said, to reduce the effects of gravity at high speed.

U. S. Grand Jury Resumes Inquiry Of Tax Scandals

WASHINGTON, (UP)—A federal grand jury has resumed investigation of tax scandals uncovered by a House subcommittee headed by Rep. Cecil R. King, it was disclosed today.

The jury, originally empaneled in August, has been idle for several weeks.

U.S. Atty. Charles M. Ireland said he expects the jurors to spend at least "a couple of months" following up leads of possible law violations brought to light by the congressional investigation.

No specific case or cases is being presented to the jury for indictment.

Arab-Asia Bloc Due Reply Today On Korea Offer

COMMUNIST CHINA'S Reaction To Mediation Plans Is Awaited In UN

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UP)—The United Nations Arab-Asian bloc gets an answer from Communist China today on proposals for compromise solutions to the Korean war deadlock.

The 13-nation bloc, a powerful force bent on mediation of the Korean conflict, was scheduled to meet in secret session at noon today to learn the reaction of Mao Tse-Tung's Peiping government to two carefully-worded compromise solutions offered by Indonesia and Canada.

Meanwhile the Special Political Committee of the U.N. scheduled a meeting at 10:30 a.m. to take a vote on a resolution charging that the Union of South Africa discriminates against persons of Indian origin.

And the Main Political Committee meets at 3 p.m. to continue its Korean debate, with Ecuador and Ethiopia heading the list of speakers.

At the Arab-Asian caucus, India also was expected to present its own version of a compromise proposal to solve the prisoner of war issue which has stalemated the Korean truce talks.

The private session had before it a draft resolution from Indonesian delegate leader, L. N. Palar, already had sounded out Russia's Andrei A. Gromyko on its content.

The Indonesia resolution would create two commissions. The first, comprising representatives of all countries interested in the Korean war, would appoint another "neutral" group instructed to deal exclusively with the prisoner problem.

The "neutral" commission, disregarding all previous screenings conducted by the U. N. Command, would turn over to the Communists all prisoners not forcibly opposing repatriation.

The neutral group would assume responsibility for all prisoners who refused to return to their Red homelands.

Stevenson Gets Deluge Of Mail From Countrymen

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UP)—Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson's campaign headquarters here was deluged today with almost as many telegrams and letters as he might have received had he won the highest office in the land.

Miss Carole Evans, chief secretary supervising four girls operating the typewriter, said the messages were "wonderful."

She said most of them urged him to stay in national politics and that many praised the Illinois governor "for campaigning the way he thought he should."

And the defeated Democratic presidential candidate seemed to be sticking by a passage he once wrote into a television fireside chat:

"And if it should cause you to cast me down and revile me, and with me the Democratic party, I would still talk the same."

Alger Hiss Applies For Parole From His Five-Year Prison Term; Eligible Nov. 21

WASHINGTON (UP)—Alger Hiss, has applied for parole from his five-year prison term for lying about his role in a Russian spy ring.

A Justice Department spokesman revealed Thursday night the former State Department official applied to Warden George Humphrey of the federal prison at Lewisburg, Pa., where he has been imprisoned since March 21, 1951.

Hiss will automatically become eligible for parole Nov. 21, when he will have served a third of his sentence. He was convicted of perjury in January, 1950, on charges of lying when he told a federal grand jury under oath that he never slipped confidential government documents to Whittaker Chambers, confessed member of a pre-war Soviet espionage ring.

It was learned that George Killinger, chairman of the U. S. Parole Board, will go to Lewisburg next Wednesday to conduct a hearing on Hiss' application and those of other prisoners Hiss will be 48 on Tuesday.

Humphrey refused to confirm that Hiss had applied for parole. He said in Lewisburg he was

One Found At Father's Home In Robeson County, Seriously Wounded; Another Is Picked Up In Fayetteville

By MURIEL SHOTWELL Reflector Staff Writer

Two of the four Pitt County convicts who gained their freedom yesterday afternoon from a road gang working between Pictou and Grimesland were recaptured last night.

One of the convicts, Velton Deese was captured in Robeson County after being found at his father's home seriously wounded and the other escapee, Rufus Gainey, was found in Fayetteville after the truck in which he and the other prisoners were riding wrecked.

Deese was captured at his father's home by Deputy Clint Parrish of the Robeson County sheriff's office. He was found shot through the hip at the time of his capture but refused to say how he was shot.

He was captured in the driveway at 2 a. m. as his father was driving him to a hospital. He is reported to be in a serious condition.

Gainey related the story of his capture to a reporter in Fayetteville. He stated that he walked into a house on the Elizabethtown road after finding the door unlocked, and shortly afterward three men and a woman came in.

In a scuffle one of the men knocked him unconscious with a shotgun and another sat on him while they called for sheriff's deputies.

The break which occurred yesterday was the second roadgang workers escape in the past two weeks. Two of the convicts which escaped two weeks ago from Riverside have been recaptured.

Overpowered Guards Pitt's most recent prisoner escape occurred around 3:30 yesterday afternoon when guard Johnnie Harrell left the scene leaving apprentice guard Shate Hardy and gang foreman Clesie Haislip in charge.

In an instant, four of the convicts jumped the guards and took their weapons. The guard and six fellow prisoners were locked in a cage truck and the truck was driven away by the escapees.

Shortly afterward, they met a car coming down the road and wrecked the truck across the road to block the oncoming car. In the car was Constable Preston Woolard of the Pictou Township.

He was also taken prisoner and the convicts made their way in Woolard's car to Ayden, heavily armed and carrying the constable's handcuffs. Before they left the hostages, the convicts backed the cage truck against a tree blocking the cage door. It was almost an hour later before the hostages released themselves.

The men escaped in Woolard's car and traveled to Ayden. Before making their appearance known, Jerome Hardee, who lives two miles from Ayden, called the Ayden police and reported seeing a car turn into a woods path nearby and a man who appeared to be in stripes get out.

In the meantime, a man appeared in Hardee's yard and asked for aid to his stalled car. Hardee and a Negro man with him tried to stall the man but he drew a 45 automatic pistol and ordered the two to drive Hardee's pick-up truck to where the car had stalled.

The two hostages were handcuffed and left by the stolen car. They were later released by Ayden police.

Truck Found The next news of the escaped men came last night from Fayetteville where the pick-up truck was wrecked. The police there are holding Rufus Gainey and are searching for the two remaining escapees.

The two remaining prisoners at large are Marvin McLamb, 35 of Lillington, and Harry E. Flack, 24 of Southern Pines.

Two weeks ago, five prisoners made their escape from a roadgang working at Riverside near Grifton. One of the prisoners who left on foot was recaptured the same day and another was recaptured Wednesday.

The past escape was almost identical to the last. The hostages and guards were locked in a cage truck and the convicts took off in a stolen car. The car was recovered Wednesday near Kinston and one of the convicts, Aristelo Rodriguez, was chased into Canton where he wrecked another stolen car.

Eisenhower Talk With GOP Lawmakers Ahead

Wants To Talk Over Legislative Problems In Advance Of New Congressional Session Starting January 3

WASHINGTON (UP)—President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower is planning to meet with Republican leaders of Congress about Dec. 1 to discuss the GOP legislative program, it was disclosed today.

Rep. Joseph W. Martin Jr., the Massachusetts Republican who is slated to be speaker of the House in the next Congress, said he understood that Eisenhower wants to talk over legislative problems with congressional leaders in advance of the new session starting Jan. 3.

Republicans won headline majorities in both the House and Senate Tuesday while Eisenhower captured the presidency with the biggest vote ever given a presidential candidate.

The latest United Press tabulation gave Eisenhower 32,527,194 popular and 442 electoral votes, compared with 25,656,321 popular and 89 electoral votes for Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson.

Eisenhower's victory was not reflected in the majorities the Republicans won in Congress. The Senate will consist of 48 Republicans, 47 Democrats and one inde-

Vets' Orphans Aided By Buddy Poppy Proceeds

How the sale of Buddy Poppies enables the Veterans of Foreign Wars to provide aid to the orphans of veterans is explained in a statement issued today by Commander George Johnson of Post 7032, with the announcement that November 8 has been selected for the annual sale of Buddy Poppies in this city.

"One penny from each Buddy Poppy the V.F.W. has sold during the past 25 years has been earmarked for the maintenance of the V.F.W. National Home for widows and orphans at Eaton Rapids, Michigan," Commander Johnson explained.

"This National Home is the only orphan project of its kind being supported and maintained by a veteran organization. Child welfare experts, who have watched its growth and development since 1925, unanimously agree that the V.F.W. National Home is the finest child welfare venture of its kind in the world.

"This National Home is unique in the very fact that it is not operated as a typical orphan asylum, or anything that resembles an institution."

"On the contrary, we have built a child village, a community of individual homes, that is comparable to the typical residential section of any modern city. Children under our care are brought up as members of an average family. Boys and girls live under the same roof — like brothers and sisters — where they enjoy the watchful care of a competent house mother.

"There is no regimentation at the V.F.W. National Home. There are no uniforms, no drills, no songs, nor signals that tell these children when it's time to eat, or go to bed.

"We treat them like we would our own children, with clothes to fit their individual personalities. They get their education in the public schools, where they learn how to mix socially with the children from ordinary American homes.

"In the final analysis, we are trying to give these boys and girls the kind of homes their heroic fathers would have tried to provide for them if they had been given the opportunity.

"The support of this V.F.W. National Home is only one of the many welfare projects that we accomplish with the money that we raise annually through the sale of Buddy Poppies. Every penny of the balance makes it possible to furnish relief and assistance to our disabled and needy comrades, and their dependents."

Random Notes From Robersonville Area

ROBERSONVILLE — Notes at random concerning church news in and around Robersonville have been collected for the week.

Mrs. Alice Dunning of Williams-ton made a generous cash contribution to the First Christian Church in memory of her nephew, Irving Smith, a very popular business man and civic leader, who died in May. Mr. Smith was one of the trustees of the church.

An excellent meeting was held at the Everett Christian Church last week under the leadership of Elmore Turner of Washington. Rev. Wilbur T. Wallace of the Robersonville Christian Church conducted the baptismal service Sunday afternoon, when 11 persons were baptized.

The Stewardship Workshop, led by Roy L. Throp, National Director of Christian stewardship, was held Tuesday afternoon at the Christian Church. The children's workshop, led by Miss Carrie Dee Hancock, director of children's missionary activities of N. C. M. S. was also present to help with the young people's work.

Dr. Emory Ross, executive secretary of the Africa Committee of the National Council of Churches, spoke on Wednesday afternoon at the Christian Church on the subject, "A Challenge to Christians."

Due to the increased attendance at the Christian Church School, plans were made to secure a stove and install it on the porch of the Funeral Home and to enclose the porch with postglazings so that it may be used as a classroom during the winter months.

Rev. J. Bascom Hurley and family of Littleton will come to Robersonville this week. Mr. W. E. Johnson, who has completed a two year pastorate for the Methodist Church, has been transferred to Gaston, where he will have only one church. His family moved into a new parsonage on Monday. Mr. Johnson will continue to study for another degree at Duke University.

40 Years Ago Today

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
November 7, 1912

The total registration of the graded school is now 510 pupils. The enrollment a year ago was 463. The board of trustees at their last meeting ordered a fire escape to be constructed at the north end of the building.

The drinking fountains installed about a year ago have proved very satisfactory. They are partially home-made and are not so fancy as some of the neat porcelain fountains, but they have the advantage of being absolutely sanitary. No person can possibly drink after another.

There has been but little sickness among the children thus far. The attendance has been fairly good the shows, carnivals and fairs considered, and the children have done very satisfactory work. Home support in Greenville has never been bad, but it has improved much and it makes educating much easier and better.

Loyal Women's Class Of Farmville Meets

FARMVILLE—Mrs. Ruppert Pippin was hostess to the Loyal Women's Class of the Farmville Christian Church on Friday night.

During the business discussion it was decided that the next meeting would be held December 19 at the home of Mrs. T. R. Mizelle with Mrs. Thompson as hostess. At this time the class will have their annual Christmas party.

The flower report was given by Mrs. L. E. Flowers. The card report was given by Mrs. Louise Harris. Impression was the theme of the devotional given by Mrs. Hubert Dixon, who chose as a Scripture the first Psalm.

"What impression does the beauty of the earth have on you?" Mrs. Dixon asked. "Do you ever stop to pause long enough to thank God? Even the trees are more beautiful in the autumn. Let us give God the praise and take time to enjoy some of the beauties of the earth as well as our blessings day by day," she commented.

Mrs. Thompson was in charge of the program, which was a discussion of the books of the New Testament and also of the leading men and women of the Bible.

The hostess assisted by her daughter served a fruit drink with cookies, cheese, straws and salted nuts during the social hour.

Strength for the Day

LIFE AFTER DEATH
One of the deepest desires of the human heart is the desire for personal immortality. If we have no belief in life after death, then our religion is pretty dead, no matter how ably it may be supported by worldly success and vast learning.
The whole human story seems to be considerable of a mess, does it not, if death ends all? Can you think of a sensible human being continuing for a long period of time to create something and then in the end destroying his creation? If there is anything finer in the universe than personality, we know nothing about it. How, then, can you imagine God, who has fashioned personality, cultivated it, and sustained it through the ages, finally destroying it and casting the pieces aside?
It doesn't make sense. Plato and Socrates saw that it didn't. So have all the great thinkers of the world. The Bible does not set out to prove immortality; it assumes it as the only sensible belief for anyone to entertain. We are told of Jesus that he brought life and immortality to light. The crown of his career was the resurrection. If we try to confine our religion too closely to earth, we miss the truth of its heavenly origin, which is its glory.

Wear A Poppy

Let us forget, and sometimes we do, the traditional bright red poppies will be sold and displayed in Greenville tomorrow.
They are a reminder of America's fallen heroes; and in addition they also provide a living memorial in the form of practical help to the living.
Buy a poppy and display it proudly. It represents far more than a gesture of goodwill; it's a symbol of honor to millions of Americans.

Our Neighbors Too, Require Attention

Because Uncle Sam's interests have grown into a global outlook his neighbors to the South have been sidelined, in order that more pressing problems could be met. Portents and signs have been multiplying in recent years that North America had best soon begin seeking greater accord with those latin cousins.

The fact that governments and peoples in South and Central America give evidence of not only coolness, but animosity towards us, is difficult to understand. Some observers say this is due to the billions of dollars we have given and loaned to Europe; others attribute the traces of bitterness to envy of the rich "yanquis"; yet another viewpoint is that they resent our well-intentioned advice and their pride balks at forever saying "yes" to United States policies.

Their attitudes may be influenced by all of these, but we should add too the hate-America propaganda spewed forth by dictator Juan Peron. There are other strong men in our neighboring governments who also find it convenient to blame all their troubles on "exploitation" by an "imperialistic" United States. This kind of poison is spread broadcast, and some of it is retained in the minds of those whom we want to be our friends.

The question of how best to meet and overcome this problem naturally raises itself. It is not an easy one to answer.

It is self-evident, we believe, that the United States wants and needs the most cordial relations among all peoples and countries in this hemisphere. It follows too that any such friendship as we desire cannot be purchased or won by "loans" and concessions that are tantamount to bribery. Friendships obtained on such a basis are not worth very much when put to a strain of even moderate degree.

American owned and operated industrial giants have long provided substantial financial backing to many of these governments. Steel, shipping and fruit corporations have extensive interests in those lands and have operated a sort of informal development program of their own, an effort which did much to elevate the general welfare of the people. But even these benefactors have been the target of governmental-supported harrassments and only recently Bolivia confiscated valuable tin mines... in which Americans are the principal shareholders.

The resolving of the anti-American attitudes will take no ordinary diplomatic measures. Nor do we believe the situation should be permitted to develop into the "crisis stage" toward which it is moving.

Someday, and soon, the full attention of our State Department must be turned southward; before the elements of hate swell into full bloom.

Welfare Department's Work Is Growing

The important role of the Welfare Department was re-emphasized at this week's meeting of the Pitt Board of Commissioners. Financial straits in which it is involved is indicative of not only the rising cost of individual care but the increasing number of cases which it is called upon to handle.

In no sense can this be considered a fault of the department. The hard fact is that they have a growing responsibility rather than a static condition to cope with. The fact that the County Commissioners cautioned the department to guard against overstepping its financial ability and to arrange for settlement of hospital accounts should not carry with it the implication that funds were misused. Rather, it should be remembered that the commissioners themselves must take the over-all view which involves the hospital's well-being as well as the county's general budgetary program.

We think that all the signs point to an ultimate increase in the allotment of funds to the Welfare Department. It is something which appears near-inevitable with the coming years and a responsibility that cannot be ignored.

The many functions which it exercises are all a part of community service and community responsibility to its own people. There can be no argument against the fulfillment of such an obligation, among any of us.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—Harry S. Truman will become one of the world's most disappointed and unhappy men when he discovers that he cannot take the aura of the White House with him into private life after next January 20. Not even his most intimate friends dare to prepare him for the steep comedown from his present place. He is in no mood to listen.

Privately and publicly, Truman has disclosed his designs for post-Presidential living. He has told so many visiting Ambassadors and Ministers of his plans to tour their countries that the United States may not see him again, if he keeps his promises.
Should he go abroad to inspect the operation of his Point Four Program, which was his own idea when he sprang it in his 1948 inaugural address, he may never return. For it would be like looking for an American needle in an international haystack. In view of the paltry amounts he has asked Congress to appropriate for this scheme to modernize the "backward and undeveloped lands."

EX-PRESIDENT'S ACTIVITIES—Once he settles down, Truman has expressed a desire to write, to lecture and to teach. Here again, his associates hesitate to point out that the market for ex-Presidential wares usually disappears soon after his departure from the White House.

Calvin Coolidge made that discovery within a year, although he could turn a phrase more neatly or pithily than the outboard Missourian. His syndicated articles did not sell or sell.

Truman fancies himself as an expert in American history, especially during the Jacksonian period, when the backwoodsmen and mountaineers ousted the Virginian aristocracy from control of the Party and the government. He regards himself as a direct descendant of "Old Hickory."

However, it is doubtful if he has the temperament of a teacher, or that he would enjoy the solitude of an assumed scholarship. Moreover, he would have to do a great deal of brushing-up before he could qualify. There are great gaps in the canvas of history he would point for his students.

TRUMAN NOT A TR—Truman has not the intellectual detachment or historical perspective for a classroom, elementary or advanced. As he demonstrated most vividly and conclusively in the campaign, there would be too many courses in "I" and "Me" in the assignments he gave to his pupils. And they would most assuredly flunk if he did not follow instructions to the letter—both letters.

Literary experts, however, believe that Truman has one or two good and important books in him. They say that they might pay a high price, if he would reveal many hitherto unrevealed happenings during his almost eight years in office. In view of his gossiping tendencies, and the grudges he would like to pay off, they figure that he has enough enemies to insure several "best sellers."

It is not to be expected a "Graves Memoirs," for the realistic and unpretentious old soldier stuck to the facts. He did not permit his prejudices to influence him in writing about enemies in politics or on the battlefield.

Truman will learn, as have so many of his predecessors, that history does not halt and salute when a President takes his last official ride down Pennsylvania Avenue. Perhaps the only "Ex" whose influence lingered and with tremendous effect on the nation's future, was Theodore Roosevelt. And Truman is not a "TR."

MODERN AMERICAN POLITICS—The recent unbridled Presidential campaign was, perhaps, one of the most bitter in modern American politics. It was the cause of division and doubt, meanness and bitterness. Against that background, it may be helpful and timely to quote a little known address by a little known but great American.
He was the late Senator George Frisbie Hoar of Massachusetts. Addressing the Republican state convention in Boston only twenty days after the nation had been shaken by the assassination of McKinley, he said:
"You and I are Republicans. You and I are men of the North. Most of us are Protestants in religion. We are men of native birth. Yet, if every Republican today were to fall in his place, as William McKinley has fallen, I believe that our countrymen of the other Party in spite of what we deem their errors, would take the Republic and bear on the flag to liberty and glory."

AMERICA WOULD SURVIVE—"I believe that, if every Protestant were to be stricken down by a lightning stroke and brethren of the Catholic faith would still carry on the Republic in the spirit of a true and liberal freedom, I believe that, in the spirit of a true and liberal freedom, if every man of native birth within our borders were to die this day, the men of foreign birth, who have come here to seek homes and liberty under the shadow of the Republic, would carry on the Republic in God's appointed way."
"I believe that, if every man of the North were to die, the new and chastened South with the virtues it has cherished from the beginning of love of home and love of state and love of freedom, with its courage and its constancy, would take the country and bear the torch to the achievement of its lofty destiny. The anchor must stay 75 million Americans before he can slay the Republic."
"Of course, there would be mistakes. Of course, there would be disappointments and grievous errors. Of course, there would be many things for which the lovers of liberty would mourn. But America would survive them all and the nation our fathers planned would abide in perennial life."

Let Others Gloat Or Groan

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

Yesterday I was working in Ayden, taking the place of the salesman in our organization. I was fortunate enough to run into two of our competitors around lunch time. That's right, I said I was fortunate enough to run into them. The session we had during lunch was the most informative I have attended in years.
There are at least a thousand reasons why businessmen should be friendly with their competitors, but here are just a few that were illustrated in our lunch session yesterday:
1. You all have the same problems, and it's a great relief to cry on each other's shoulders.
2. More important, you learn to respect each other. You learn that even if a man is taking some of your business away, perhaps he isn't the devil himself.
3. You find that you can have solutions to problems that will help each other and yet not give away your own sales secrets. But by this time you are such great friends that you almost feel like giving your competitor all of the secrets.
4. To save yourself from failure, you find out which ones of your customers have failed to pay your competitors. Some customers meet with unforeseen obligations and can't possibly pay. But there are others who have no intention of paying in the first place. By keeping constant contact with your competitors, you can be on the lookout for such customers.
5. You can work trading agreements with your competitors, to make sales that you would otherwise miss. With this plan, you

Around Capitol Square

POSTLUDE—Folks around Capitol square did not like the way the election came out nationally, but only a few were really surprised at Eisenhower's victory. There was general attitude of pleasure that North Carolina remained in the Democratic column. Almost unanimous gratification was expressed that the new President will have a "workable" Congress from the start of his administration. When numerous State officials were interviewed final returns were not in, but it seemed certain that the Senate would be organized by the Republicans and non-Democratic majority in the House of Representatives was indicated. That did surprise some of the State office people. Likewise some local Eisenhower supporters have voiced disappointment in the prospective loss of Congressional leadership to North Carolina. Generally, however, the thinking is that if change was to come it should be all the way.

PATRONAGE—The job-conscious folks on Capitol square gave immediate thought to the turnover in government personnel at Washington. Many thousands of the government workers are more or less protected by civil service. Under civil service provisions it is still possible to fire an employee for cause, and there are other thousands not covered by civil service but who hold their jobs wholly on basis of party patronage. Some of them have been there for 20 years that Democratic administrations have been in power. Chances are many of them will not be there much longer. Being already jittery because of changing administrations in Raleigh, though the change does not involve different political parties, some of the Capitol square workers are wondering about the impact upon the State situation of job-seekers released at Washington. That as much as any other factor concerned many mid-level employees with whom your reporter has talked. Personnel in the offices of Tarheel congressmen, except in the case of Rep. Hamilton Jones, will not be affected, but majority of those on payrolls of congressional committees headed by Democrats may be replaced by appointees of Republican chairmen.

UNFUNNY—It was funny when the late Clarence Lundy said it, but the suggestion is definitely unfunny now. Lundy was talking about the number of North Carolinians who would lose their jobs in Washington if Wendell Wilkie were elected in 1940. He said the "exodus of Hebrews across the Red Sea" would look like a group on the way to a family reunion picnic when compared to the hiegers of North Carolinians across the Potomac.
He was talking about the thousands of employees in the various governmental departments, commissions, bureaus and agencies which would change from Democratic to Republican control. The change did not occur then, but it is coming up early next year. Incidentally, that is one phase of the overall question which many Democrats for Eisenhower did not evaluate. Their help was accepted and appreciated by the Republican organizations, but when time comes to distribute patronage most of the jobs will go to Republicans, and most of them to residents of traditionally Republican states.
STATE—There was an unprecedented heavy vote all over the nation, but in North Carolina particularly the voters made monkeys out of all the forecasters. When Everett Jordan, Democratic chairman, and some others first predicted nearly a million votes in this State they were hoisted. Most estimates ranged around 900,000, and there were some informed persons who figured that a 10 per cent increase of the 793,000 cast four years ago would be about tops. When final reports are in the total is going well above the maximum forecast of a million, maybe even to a million and a quarter. That will present about 30 per cent jump over the last Presidential vote in North Carolina. Your reporter had predicted last summer a vote of a million, and last week he predicted a Stevenson majority approximately 15 per cent of the total, or around 150,000. Looks now like the final tally will be 10 per cent or less, in the neighborhood of 100,000. It may be smaller than that. The biggest "bust" made by your reporter was in the 10th district, where Democratic Incumbent Ham Jones was given a chance to win by a narrow margin. He lost by a very substantial margin. All the other forecasts made here stood up pretty well in the final count.

GOOD—Everybody who has been heard to comment on the subject has expressed gratification at size of the total vote. Many comments have been to the general effect that "when more than a million North Carolinians go to the polls, representing some 60 per cent of the eligible registered voters and approximately half of the maximum potential, it is really an election. The fact that so many people voted in North Carolina and in the nation Tuesday is much more important than how they voted.
RESPONSIBILITY—Apparently the people of this State discharged their responsibility more fully than ever before, and there is probability that the habit of voting may be continued into future elections. It is noticeable that North Carolina is once more counted in the list of States adhering to a reasonable middle-of-the-road course. In the nomination and election of William Umstead as Governor and the slate of State officials which went along with the Democratic ticket, the voters indicated lack of desire to change the basic features of State government while at the same time proving they did not want to go any farther to a liberal side. In giving Eisenhower

What Other Papers Are Thinking

FARMERS PAY IT BACK—(Ashland (Ky.) Independent)
Farmers hard hit by natural disaster of flood or drought borrowed $81,000,000 in the last three years from the Federal government through the Department of Agriculture and the Farmers Home Administration. The theory is that farmers will do almost anything in their power to stay on their land and make it productive again, come hell or high water.
But in the next their power to stay and survive on the land was often inadequate. Sheer grit and determination will not save the old home place following a disaster if money for a new start is lacking.

No bank or group of banks in a large flood area could muster the resources and facilities to offer loans to all the farmers who might need money simultaneously. However, it is a fair question to ask if the loans are being repaid. The Department of Agriculture now gives an answer.
Of the $47,000,000 that has come due, 90 per cent has been repaid. Interest collections will, it is held, offset any final loss to the government. If the expense of administering the loans is comparable to a bank's expenses, prorated, there can be real satisfaction in the record so far.

It would be interesting to know how the costs do compare. But, anyway here's a salute to the farmers who, with few exceptions, have shown they feel that federal aid is not necessarily a one-way proposition.

The costs and difficulties in placing insurance has become a great burden on merchants and threatens to become worse, Dwight W. Sleeper, chief consultant of the Insurance Buyers' Council, warned the Controller: Congress.
"Already many owners are finding it difficult to buy auto, mobile bodily injury and property damage insurance from companies of their choice," he said. "Some are having difficulty in maintaining insurance against injuries to the public and to their employees."
"The situation is being worsened," he said, by:
"The tendency of the courts to hold stores liable to damages without much or any consideration of contributory negligence;
"Jurors' generosity in awarding larger sums, especially if the defendant is believed to be wealthy or insured."
"The willingness of state and Federal legislatures to liberalize workmen's compensation laws and add new types of so-called social security, and "Increasing demands of labor unions for more and larger pensions and insurance benefits."
"So long as insurance companies can collect premiums large enough to cover all such increasing costs of doing business, they will provide insurance to cover these third-party indemnities for which the stores are held liable," Mr. Sleeper said.
"If the insurance companies are forced by the courts and by public pressure to raise their rates to a point the stores cannot afford to pay—and that is all to near—then the stores will be forced to assume burdensome risks beyond the point of capacity."
"And if the insurance companies cannot collect sufficient premiums to enable them to remain solvent they will refuse to write the kinds of insurance which are no longer profitable."
Mr. Sleeper cited the McNair report on department store operation which showed that in 1951 stores doing less than $1,000,000 a year in sales paid 45 to 55 cents of each $100 received for insurance. Specialty shops paid 50 to 60 cents. The rate was less for larger stores, being 25 cents per $100 in sales for those in the $10,000,000-and-over class.

CEILING DELAYING—With the prospects that material controls will be greatly relaxed early next year and dropped entirely by mid-1953, there is a suspicion among scrap dealers that some of it is being held by plants, mills and dealers.
Dealers have asked that ceilings be lifted at once, saying it will restore the normal flow of scrap back to refiners and help relieve current scarcities of copper and brass.

SCRAP AND SLACK-MAKERS BATTLE OVER STYLE—There is a style war on between manufacturers of men's suits and the makers of slacks. Those manufacturers who are turning out both suits and slacks don't care who wins.
The suit manufacturers and tailors are putting out a bit of propaganda to the effect that a man isn't well-dressed unless his coat and trousers match; the slacks makers would have us believe that anybody without a few pairs of slacks is neither a candidate for the Social Register nor the fashion magazines.
David Lewis, who (as head of Esquire Sportswear) makes no suits, is using a tangible sort of propaganda. He has burst into the spring market with a line of 720 numbers in 60 ranges, 30 colors and 46 fabrics—believed to be some sort of record.

ROME (AP)—If there is anything an American cannot stand, it is to be disliked.
And the feeling he is disliked now abroad ruins the visit of many away from home.
"You know, they really don't like us over here," one tourist tells another, and adds virtuously "After all we did for them, too! I just can't understand it."
It is this attitude, of course, this air of bragging "look-at-all-we-did-for-you," that is sure to win contemptuous dislike wherever and whenever it is displayed. The ordinary European doesn't like to be regarded as an object of charity. He does not regard Uncle Sam's roving nephews as philanthropists, and in any case he is unwilling to drop dead of gratitude for anybody.
The best way to win friends and influence people in Europe is to avoid taking personal credit for the Marshall Plan, and, if the subject even is mentioned, look surprised and say, "The Marshall Plan? What is it?"
This will endear you forever to all Europeans without hearing. Most of them are weary of explaining why, despite all the good old American dollars poured so generously into their country, it still looks slightly shabbier than the Garden of Eden.
In Italy, as elsewhere in Europe, the Marshall Plan comes in for a lot of ribbing. As we passed a huge apartment project on the outskirts of Rome, our Italian guide explained it was being built with Marshall Plan funds and added:
"No one with hiccupps is allowed to move in-for fear he will jar the walls down."
Actually, the average American tourist's feeling he is disliked abroad is generally exaggerated, except in Communist areas. There he is not only disliked; he is actively hated.
The tourist passes unnoticed in the shopping centers or promenade avenues of big Italian cities. But let him stroll down a side street populated by Communist supporters and he cannot mistake the meaning of the black looks in the faces turned his way. To them he is no mere tourist on a vacation-he personalities Wall Street, rampant capitalism, the Third World War, and all the other enemy symbols of their propaganda literature.
You can feel this visible hatred, and it makes you uneasy and depressed, because what can you do about it? Nothing. It gives you a kind of brief hopeless loneliness, to be hated in this unreasoning way, and it takes some of the luster from your vacation.
But with this disturbing exception, France and I have encountered no widespread or general animosity against Americans.
The friendliness with which you are greeted in Europe is measured in exact ratio to your behavior as it should be. Knowing only a single Italian word "Grazie," which means "Thank you"—we traveled happily throughout Italy and met nothing but helpful kindness all the way.
You can have a good time in any land if you take the trouble to learn that one warm word or phrase in its language which allows you to tell a man in his own tongue you appreciate the courtesies he extends you, a stranger. Here "Grazie" is "Open

WASHINGTON—The three R's—reading, riting and rithmetick—are still getting top billing in our schools, but these tools of learning are being expanded to prepare youth for living and making a living in today's complex world.
Modern educators are developing in our boys and girls other skills to help them think rationally, to express their thoughts clearly, to listen and observe with understanding and to work with others. This has resulted in changes in teaching methods, textbooks, teacher-pupil relationships, even in the structure and arrangement of school buildings themselves, says Dr. Earl J. McGrath, U.S. commissioner of education.
When parents are asked what they want the schools to teach their children, they usually always want to double the duty of schools in teaching the traditional three R's," he added. "They want the schools to teach the children how to get along with people, in the duties of citizenship and how to make a living. Parents want the help of the schools in teaching what might be called a second set of R's, including responsibility, rights and relationships (with other people)."
Contrary to a popular belief, the children who are taught by modern methods outstrip their parents and grandparents in the three R's, according to the Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development of the National Education Association.
Emphasis in teaching is more and more geared to the belief that each child has his own pattern of growth and that each child is different. The degree of reading materials and arithmetic practices must be adjusted to different levels and needs, the association believes.
Equally important is the change in the school's acceptance of responsibility for dealing with the needs of the whole child. Whereas in the past the school concerned itself only with the mental development of a child, today it tries to provide him with an all-round program that is based on his actual needs, as a growing, developing organism.
Learning by doing is also stressed. The U.S. Office of Education says that studies have shown some 60 ways for youth to take an active part in community affairs.
There is also increased emphasis in the schools on programs for international understanding, where the work of the United Nations and other agencies is studied.

Latin Neighbors Giving U.S. A Chilly Shoulder

By PHIL NEWSOM
United Press Foreign News Editor

Another South American country is telling the United States, not too politely, to mind its own business.

It gives form and body to a growing problem in our relations with our Latin American neighbors, and one among those facing President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The country is violence-torn Bolivia which last Easter fell to one of those recurrent revolutions—this one spearheaded from Argentina—and which now is nationalizing its tin mines, third richest in the world.

Bolivian president Victor Paz Estenssoro has warned that it would be an "error" for the U. S. to take a protective attitude toward the nationalized Patino, Aramayo and Hochschild mining companies.

However, the United States must have a more than passing interest. First is the strategic value of the mines, which, with the loss of Malaya and Indonesia during World War II, became our principal source of tin.

Second, the Patino mines are 65 per cent owned by American shareholders.

And finally, for our future relations, it is not encouraging that Argentina enters so prominently into the picture. A financial syndicate backed by the anti-U. S. Peronista regime of Argentina already has contracted to build a tin smelter in Bolivia under a 60-year exclusive deal and also to manufacture chemicals and explosives.

Paz Estenssoro received refuge in Argentina prior to the successful revolution of his M.N.R. (National Revolutionary Movement).

The seizure of the mines is the direct consequence of the revolution and a strange wedding between the M.N.R., whose leaders once were accused of fascism, and Bolivian miners, many of whom are Communist-led.

Strikes and violence among the miners have been commonplace and the companies long ago began removing American wives and children from the mining communities.

President of the miners' union is Juan Lechin, also is minister of mines in the government.

Crux of the dispute between the mining companies and the government is the government charge that the companies have "exploited" Bolivia, taking most of the revenue from the mines out of the country and at the same time, through "bribes, corruption and intimidation" deliberately retarding development of agriculture and other industry.

The government has placed an arbitrary value on the seized property.

They Don't Like Names Of Roses

VIENNA (AP)—Hungary's Communist regime doesn't like the names of certain roses — they smell too much of the West.

The official newspaper Szabad Nep criticized the names of roses in a public park — "Lord Rosemore, Lord Chariemont The Duchess of Sutherland, Lady Ashton, pope Pius XII, Maria Theresa."

The newspaper suggested they be given more "serious" names, like "May 1, November 7, Red Star, Liberation" — all with Communist significance.

Keeps Beehive In Home's Bedroom

DUBLIN (AP)—Henry Lawrence of Ballymena, Ireland, has a beehive in his bedroom.

He installed the hive two years ago and now has a colony of 25,000 bees in winter and upwards of 70,000 in the summer. This year he collected 35 lbs. of honey.

Said Lawrence: "Most people associate bee-keeping with gardening, but I have proved that they can be kept successfully in the heart of a town."

Store Considers Preparing Place For Helicopters

NEW YORK (AP)—A midtown Manhattan department store is considering turning its extensive roof into a landing field for helicopters of shoppers from the suburbs.

William M. Holmes, president of James McCreery & Co., displayed on the store's fourth floor a model of a commuters' helicopter. Engineers say the store roof is big enough to accommodate them.

There is one physical obstacle however. Across the street is the Empire State Building, world's tallest, whose television transmitting tower was originally constructed as a dirigible mooring mast. Up and down drafts, not to mention swirling lateral currents, were usually so violent that no dirigible ever approached it and pilots gave it a wide berth.

Korean Soldiers Are Baptized Into Christian Faith

WITH THE U. S. 45TH INFANTRY DIVISION, KOREA (AP)—One by one, 13 young Korean soldiers stripped to the waist, walked into the clear river water and were baptized into the Christian faith.

Chaplain Granville Greenwood performed the ceremony on a recent Sunday afternoon. Limh Yong Il, Korean soldier of the 3rd Battalion, translated during the service. The devout groups, some thumbing Korean Bibles, first sat on the river bank, listening to Chaplain Greenwood read from the scriptures.

Then, one by one, they were baptized into the Protestant church. Later, a communion service was held in the chapel of the 179th, which had attended five weeks of classes on "What It Means to Become a Christian." They never before had claimed a formal religion.

SATURDAY'S GAMES

Carolina vs. Virginia
Homecoming for the Tar Heels Virginia is on the rebound from an upset defeat at South Carolina last week. However, Carolina is rebounding from four straight defeats, so they should have as much incentive as the Cavaliers.

Virginia has a fine quarterback in Mel Roach plus an adequate supply of reserves, but their offense has been sputtering against such rivals as Duke and South Carolina.

Carolina still has one of the best defensive lines around despite terrific poundings by Tennessee, Notre Dame, Texas and Wake Forest.

The Tar Heels have developed a scoring punch with Marshall Newman's passes, and are likely to spring a running attack on some unwary opponent. Here's saying they will pick this homecoming game to go all out. An upset, Carolina 20-14.

Duke vs. Navy
Duke was humbled last week by Georgia Tech and crippled as well. Red Smith, a devastating power runner, is out along with Bobby Burrows, rated among the nation's top linemen.

Navy has plenty of manpower and one of the best defensive teams in the country. They fought the Fighting Irish to a standstill for three quarters last week.

Duke, before the Ga. Tech game, was rated number five in press grid polls. They still have Worth Lutz, Jerry Barger, Jack Kistler, Piney Fields, and are deep in reserve strength. Going against the experts who pick Navy, and take Duke 14-7.

Wake Forest vs. TCU
Wake Forest is going into Texas, football's no-man's-land, for inter-sectional rivals, and that's two strikes against them before the kickoff.

Wake gave a good account for themselves against Baylor and the Christians will be well prepared for a tough contest.

Sonny George, sometimes brilliant and erratic by turns, will be at the helm for the Deacs and should Joe Koch play as he did against Carolina, Wake could win. Nevertheless TCU 27-19.

East Carolina vs. Stetson U.
The Pirates have Cherry, whose cool generalship and sparkling passes have been the difference in several North State Conference games, and here's a vote that southern exposure won't have any ill effects for a passing attack. ECC 20-7.

Davidson vs. U. of Richmond
Davidson, under Coach Bill Dole, has given several big opponents some mighty anxious moments this year. Harvard was glad to settle with a 6 point margin last week. Furman barely escaped with a 14-13 win and was lucky to do so.

However, Richmond has their strongest team in several years as they exhibited against the U. of Va. several weeks ago.

A close vote for Richmond, 19-13.

Pirates Depart For Florida Today For Stetson U. Game

Entire Team To Make The Trip

Pirates Invade Sunny South With 5-2-1 Season Record; Play Final Contest Here Next Saturday

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Sports Writer
DELAND, FLORIDA — The East Carolina Pirates, 40-strong, moved in and set up camp in Deland today in preparation for their game tomorrow with the powerful Stetson Hatters.

Typical Florida weather and officials of the University greeted the Pirates this morning after their all-night train ride from Wilson, N. C. Good weather is promised for the first meeting of the two small college grid powers.

The Pirates' opponent for tomorrow is a team which is practically steeped in the tradition of powerful and winning football teams. Their latest effort was last Saturday when they tied Florida State College 6-6.

In past years, the Hatters have been participants in bowl games for small colleges with their latest appearance in the Cigar Bowl at Tampa. The Hatters are expected to have their hands full with the Bucs to morrow. Jack Boone is going to have to make some line-up changes even though he didn't leave anyone home because of injuries.

The promised change at fullback will probably have Tom Cannady starting in place of the injured Claude King. Cannady started last week against Appalachian after King had been sidelined with a knee injury sustained in the Guilford game.

The rest of the line-up will remain much the same as it has been the past two weeks. There's some questions as to whether Dick Cherry or Sandy Siler will start at quarterback but Cherry will probably get the nod. He started last week against Appalachian, sparked the Bucs to an outstanding comeback victory, and received "Athlete of the Week" honors from the Greensboro Daily News.

The line play will be led by guard George Tucker and end Dwight Shoe, both of whom have received "Linemen of the Week" nominations from the Associated Press. Tucker received his nomination after a brilliant performance against Elon while Shoe received recognition for his performance against Appalachian.

Along with Shoe and Tucker in the line, Bobby Hodges will be at left end, Frank Turner and Bill McDonald at the tackles, Doc Smith at right guard, and Gaitner Cline at center. Frequent substitutions are planned by Line Coach Clyde Biggers in an effort to combat the fatigue which is almost sure to be created by the unusual (to the Pirates) weather conditions.

The backfield is expected to have Cherry or Siler at quarterback,illard Yarborough and Paul Gay at the halfbacks, and Cannady at fullback. Here, too, substitutions will be frequent according to the plans of Coach Boone.

Defensively, the Pirates will have J. D. Bradford and Hodges at the ends, Willie Holland and Turner at the tackles, Don Burton and David Lee or Bobby Thomas at the guards, Frank Madigan and Algie Faircloth backing up the line, Topsy Hayes

Hunting Season Postponed For Lack Of Rain

Dry Spell Has Increased Forest Fire Danger; At Least Dozen States Wait For Rain And Snow

By UNITED PRESS
Hunting seasons have been canceled or postponed in at least a dozen states because the prolonged dry spell increased the danger of forest fires.

Some state conservation officials promised to make up for the postponements by adding a few days to seasons after rain or snow dampens woodlands.

In others, such as Texas where the state Legislature has changed hunting dates, officials urged hunters to be extremely cautious. Texas' Game and Fish Department sent extra wardens into the fire-threatened areas.

A survey by United Press showed some hunting seasons canceled or postponed indefinitely in these states: Arkansas, Iowa, Kansas, Mississippi, Missouri, New York, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Tennessee and West Virginia.

In Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Georgia and Virginia officials banned hunting in some extra dry sections. The drought was so serious in five others that hunters were warned of a possible cancellation if no rain or snow comes. These five states were: Illinois, Connecticut, Nebraska, North Carolina and Texas.

An order from the Kansas Forestry, Fish and Game Commission suspended all hunting effective Friday. Kansas has had the driest May-through-October period in the state's Weather Bureau records.

The deer hunting season in 20 was postponed indefinitely until the fire hazard diminishes and North Dakota reset the opening date from Nov. 10 to Nov. 24 in hopes of rain or snow by that time. New York state closed all hunting, except ducks, on Nov. 2. Missouri banned all hunting, fishing and camping.

Gov. John S. Pine of Pennsylvania not only closed all hunting but also barred all sportsmen from the woods.

Illinois State Conservation Director Leonard Schwartz announced he was "considering" an order banning hunting. Nebraska officials said upland game bird shooting would continue there but they would cancel the deer season as a "last alternative."

Farmers, the Farm Bureau and sportsmen's groups asked the Iowa Conservation Commission to postpone the pheasant season because of the fire danger in dry fields.

G. E. Eddy, Michigan conservation director, said there were no plans to shorten or cancel hunting seasons because recent rains reduced the hazard. Indiana's deer season opened on schedule Thursday because of timely rains.

Massachusetts is permitting hunting only if done from boats in coastal waters. Most western states looked forward to regular hunting periods because rain or heavy fog dampened forests.

and Teddy Barnes at the halfbacks, and either Cherry or Emo Bado at the safety spot.

The Pirates were accompanied on the trip by Coaches Boone and Biggers, Athletic Director N. M. Jorgenson, Graduate Manager of Athletics Dr. John O. Reynolds, Alumni Secretary James W. Butler, and a stable contingent of students.

Pep Rally, Parade Feature Afternoon Activities

The Phantoms wound up the week's drills with a careful review of offensive and defensive strategy to be employed against Elizabeth City in tonight's Homecoming game for Greenville High.

The game, slated to begin at 8 o'clock, will be the finale of the Homecoming events.

A pep rally will begin at 3 o'clock this afternoon followed by a parade leaving from Five Points at 3:30.

At 7:15 the high school student body will assemble at Five Points and march to the Stadium in a body to the accompaniment of the school band.

Immediately before game time, Co-Captains and sponsors from both teams will meet in the center of the field where the sponsors will exchange flowers.

At halftime Mr. and Mrs. School Spirit of Greenville High will be crowned.

Following the game a dance, sponsored by the Monogram Club, will be held in the high school auditorium.

The Phantom football squad, with the exception of Pat Sawyer, will be in its best physical condition since early season. Sawyer has worked out in light equipment this week and may see some duty as a passer tonight.

Dixie Hobgood, Tommy Smith, Boots Teel, Bobby Nunn and Bobby Conway have been standouts in defensive work for the Phantoms this season. Doug Morgan and Guy Smith are two performers who began the year as offensive starters but were converted to defensive men for their excellent work.

Rounding out the Phantom line is Awer Joseph, Tom Smoot, Harold Edwards, Larry Powell and Jimmy Cheatham.

In the backfield will be George Sideris at quarterback, Bobby Perry and Mitchell Johnson, halfbacks, and Bobby Langston or Bob Howell at fullback.

Madison Sq. Bout On TV Tonight

NEW YORK (UP) — The horse show at Madison Square Garden forces tonight's television fight into St. Nicholas Arena, where junior lightweight Eddie Compo of New Haven, Conn., will meet Pat Marcune of Coney Island in a 10-rounder.

Compo was favored at 11-5 because of his superior boxing skill and because he had outpointed Marcune in their two previous

Little Leaguers Lose Double-Bill To Kinston Teams

Kinston Little Leaguers continued their mastery over Greenville Little Leaguers by taking both ends of a double header football contest last night. Lovett-Hines defeated the White Terrors 26-6, and Emma Webb downed the Blue Devils 13-0.

In the first game Lovett-Hines scored the first time they gained possession of the ball. Avery swept around end for 20 yards for the marker. Knox added the extra point through the line.

Again in the initial quarter Avery tallied for the Kinston team on an eight yard dash.

In the second period Cosby broke away on the 30 yard line and raced for a score to put Lovett-Hines ahead 10-0 at the half.

At the beginning of the third quarter Bobby Edwards returned the kickoff 80 yards for the Terrors' only score.

Cosby added Lovett-Hines' final touchdown in the final quarter, and Knox added the extra point making it 26-6.

Defensive leaders for the White Terrors were Mokey Lassiter, Lynn Jorgensen, Alf Forbes and Howard Garner.

Second Game
The Blue Devils, who currently are in the cellar of Little League standings, made a heavier Emma Webb Midgets strain to the limit to win 13-0.

Erskine Duff, a 65 pounder, and Linebacker Barney Barrett stopped any efforts that came their way through the center of the line.

The Kinston team pushed across scores in the second and fourth quarters with Creech covering the final yardage for the touchdown each time.

Standouts for the Blue Devils on defense were Barrett, Barnhill, Boyd, Strickland, Crawford, Faber, Stancel, Ruffin, Wright and Ross.

The fight should be entertaining although it has no significance. Neither fighter is ranked among the lightweights or featherweights.

All-Conference End

DWIGHT SHOE—An All-Conference end selection last year, he was nominated in the AP "Lineman of the Week" poll for an outstanding performance against Appalachian last week. Terps, Sooners Invited To Play Ga. Tech In Bowl

WASHINGTON (AP) — Both Maryland and Oklahoma have been invited to play Georgia Tech in the Sugar Bowl and whichever team first gets conference permission gets the formal bid, the Washington Post said today.

Maryland, a member of the Southern Conference and Oklahoma, a member of the Big Seven, are both banned from post-season games under present conference rules.

The Sugar Bowl favors Maryland for the football classic, the Post said. But it quoted an unnamed Bowl official as adding:

"If Oklahoma can get clearance after its game with Notre Dame Saturday the Sugar Bowl will grant Oklahoma."

The two schools are unbeaten in football this year although Oklahoma was tied by Colorado in its opening game.

Tar Heels Play Virginia In Homecoming, Saturday

CHAPEL HILL, (UP) — University of North Carolina Coach Carl Snively planned to field a reshuffled backfield tomorrow against the potent University of Virginia Cavaliers.

Larry Parker has moved from right to left halfback in place of injured Bob White and Ken Keller. Connie Gravette will alternate with Parker. John Gaylord, out of action since the opener against Texas, is ready again to help Chalmers Port at right half.

DURHAM, UP—Duke added a fourth key offensive player to the list of injured today who probably won't see action against Navy tomorrow.

Capt. Lou Tepe, center, was sidelined with an ankle injury suffered in practice Wednesday. Coach Bill Murray worked sophomore Johnny Palmer and freshman Ronnie Falls at the spot and planned to assign one to offensive center and the other to the defensive chores in the slot.

Navy was scheduled to arrive at the Raleigh-Durham airport this afternoon and hold an hour-long practice in Duke Stadium.

'Housecleaning' To Affect 2,000

WASHINGTON (UP) — Dwight D. Eisenhower's "house-cleaning" in Washington will sweep some 2,000 Democrats out of top-bracket federal jobs.

But government personnel experts said today the average "little fellow" on the federal payroll need not worry about losing his job when the new administration takes office next Jan. 20.

The "spoils system" of Andrew Jackson's day is no more. Most of the 2,600,000 civilian workers on Uncle Sam's payroll now are protected by civil service. Eisenhower could not fire and replace them even if he wanted to—which he doesn't.

Eisenhower's campaign pledge to "clean house" in Democratic Washington was aimed at what he termed the "bosses." He also promised to oust the dishonest and corrupt. He repeatedly assured federal employees generally they could count on keeping their jobs.

Eisenhower promised to end "the policy of big government for the sake of bigness." He campaigned on an economy platform. He said he would end "empire building" by the heads of federal agencies. These pledges were understood here to mean that Eisenhower intends to reduce government payrolls. However, any such reduction presumably will be very gradual. It could not take place overnight. And it could be accomplished with few if any firings—simply by failing to fill normal vacancies as they occur.

In any event, Eisenhower promised federal workers there would be no "wholesale" or "indiscriminate" firings.

The new Republican president can and will replace all top job holders, including Cabinet Members, with members of his own "team." These are the jobs that make government policy. They also are the jobs that make news.

GI Is Getting Marathon Letter

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Sgt. Osmon Knepper is getting a letter in Korea which will take him a long time to read.

Deciding her "courtship, marriage and honeymoon were too short," Knepper's wife Alberta spent 33 hours and 35 minutes over an 18-day period writing a 108-foot-long letter to him. Mrs. Knepper said she averaged 6 feet of the letter a day. And it took $1.90 in postage to mail the letter.

Just so Knepper wouldn't think his wife was forgetting him, she wrote and mailed him 16 shorter ones during the time it took to finish the long one.

Bicycle License Stirs Rebellion

NEW YORK (UP)—East side, west side all, around the town, the kids were up in arms today.

It seems that City Councilman Jack Kranis filed a bill to license all "owners and operators" of bicycles. Kranis' proposal, designed to aid police in locating stolen bikes, calls for a 50 cent owner's license, and a 25 cent operator's license.

"Fifty cents for your own bike?" one irate seven-year-old asked. "Your own bike that you buy? For my own bike I'm going to pay 50 cents?"

"I'll never pay it," he concluded. "Let them come and get me!"

Local Moose Lodge Holds Its Anniversary Campaign

Greenville Lodge No. 885, Loyal Order of Moose, began its "anniversary campaign" membership drive here last week with initiation of 33 candidates into the order.

Plans for the membership drive were formulated by lodge members at their regular weekly meeting held Monday, October 27, at the lodge home in Greenville. The drive will be conducted for the next three months.

The local lodge was instituted November 24, 1950, with 55 members. Today its membership stands at 270. 1952 is the occasion for the celebration of the 40th year of Mooseheart, the 30th year of Moosehaven and the 65th year of the founding of the Loyal Order of Moose.

One Million Members
A spokesman for the group said there are more than 1,000,000 members of the order scattered throughout the entire world.

Collectively, all lodges in the United States maintain and support the child city of Mooseheart, Ill., where children of deceased members of the order are cared for. Moosehaven, Fla., is a home maintained for the aged members of the order.

Officers of the local lodge are:

J. J. Stauffer, governor; J. E. Collins, past governor; Gene Skinner, junior governor; Leon Smith, prelate; J. B. Bass, treasurer; George Johnson, secretary; and C. E. Williams, William L. Boyd and Thomas E. Caraway, trustees.

Agriculture Dean At N. C. State Accepts Position

RALEIGH, (UP)—James H. Hilton, dean of agriculture at North Carolina State College since 1948, will become president of Iowa State College at Ames, Ia.

Hilton earlier had declined offers to become dean of agriculture at both Iowa State College and the University of Illinois and had been under consideration as the next chancellor of North Carolina State.

Chancellor J. W. Harrelson, who will retire next year, announced that Hilton will resign his post at the Raleigh school to assume the presidency of Iowa State next June or July. Hilton will succeed Dr. Charles E. Fridley, retiring Iowa State president.

A native of Hickory, Hilton received his bachelor's degree from Iowa State College, his master's from Wisconsin and his doctor of science degree from Purdue. He became head of the animal husbandry department at N. C. State in 1945.

Under his administration as dean the school of agriculture has completed a $4,000,000 expansion program including a new agronomy building, botany-zoology building, forestry-horticulture building, poultry-science building and new equipment.

As dean of agriculture he administered the far-flung state extension service program and the North Carolina agricultural experiment station in addition to resident instruction in the school of agriculture.

The author of 30 scientific publications, Hilton becomes president of one of the nation's top agricultural schools. Iowa State, located in the heart of the corn belt, has world-famous schools of agriculture, veterinary science, home economics, industrial science and engineering.

President Gordon Gray of the consolidated University of North Carolina said that during Hilton's tenure as dean, agriculture in North Carolina has made "its most spectacular and, at the same time, solid progress."

Harrelson said "Dean Hilton's going is a loss to the state in general and a much greater loss in particular to all the agricultural activities of North Carolina."

Hilton said he regretted leaving North Carolina which he called "one of the truly great states in this country."

"Without doubt," he said, "this state and the Southeastern region will lead the way in progress during the next decade."

Jesus' Power and Human Need

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matthew 8.

As Jesus came down from the mountain, many followed Him. A leper came to Him, saying, "Lord if Thou wilt Thou canst make me clean." Jesus put forth His hand and healed him.

As Jesus entered Capernaum, a Roman centurion came to Him, asking Him to heal his servant who was sick with palsy. Because the centurion had faith in Christ, the servant was healed.

At Peter's house, the Lord found Peter's mother-in-law ill with fever. Jesus took her by the hand, the fever left her, and she arose and ministered unto them.

As Jesus and His disciples crossed the Sea of Galilee Jesus slept while a storm arose and frightened the disciples. Waking the Lord, He stilled the waves. MEMORY VERSE—Galatians 6:10.

Jesus' Power and Human Needs

HE WORKED MIRACLES OF CLEANSING AND HEALING

Scripture—Matthew 8.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

OUR LAST three lessons have been about Jesus' teachings in His Sermon on the Mount. In this lesson He had descended from the mountain and begun His work of healing those who were ill of various diseases or possessed of evil spirits.

We today talk of "modern miracles" and there are many of them—telephone, telegraph, radio, television, the motion picture and automobile—which would not only have surprised, but terrified, people of Jesus' day if they could have seen or heard them.

There are so many more marvelous inventions that could be named, in fact, it rather frightens us to realize how far we have come from those seemingly primitive times.

Can we control what we call our "conveniences"? or will they destroy us? Thousands of people have been killed by automobiles; millions by other modern inventions which might have blessed us but have been used to destroy human life.

The Sermon on the Mount was ended and Jesus came down, fol-left her, and she arose, and ministered unto them—Jesus and those that were with Him.

That evening Christ healed many persons and drove devils out of others.

"That it might be fulfilled which was spoken by Isaiah the prophet, saying, Himself took our infirmities, and bare our sicknesses."

A scribe came to Jesus saying, "Master, I will follow Thee, whithersoever Thou goes." Jesus said to him, "The foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests; but the Son of Man hath not where to lay His head."

Another disciple asked that he be allowed to go and bury his father, but Jesus forbade him, with the words "let the dead bury their dead." Lest this seem a hard condition, our commentator writes that the man was not going to bury his father then, but that he wanted to stay at home until his father died, as he was old, and then he would follow Jesus.

Entering a ship to cross the Sea of Galilee, and being exhausted, we must suppose, Jesus slept. A storm arose, and the boat was so tossed about that the disciples

Finally he decided to harness the flow of cold, crystal-clear water to run the hotel's air conditioning system. Now everybody's happy and the hotel's water bill has been considerably reduced.

Bible Words to Live by

My favorite Bible verse is found in the Gospel.

ST. JOHN 15:7: "If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ask whatsoever ye will, and it shall be done unto you."

This is my favorite passage because it answers the heart-hunger of mankind for completeness by promising the Presence and the resources of God's omnipotence. It inspires hope for me in my human weakness and frailty. Moreover, it sets forth a challenging relationship between God and the individual. Here I learn that if I desire God's blessings and resources then I must fulfill certain requirements and conditions. God's promise is conditional upon my willingness to get into the proper environment and spirit to receive and use His blessings.

Thomas O. Parish Central Christian Church Kansas City, Kan.

RFD COMMEMORATED

CALDWELL, Kan. (UP)—This Kansas town near the Oklahoma border celebrated what pioneers claimed as the 50th anniversary of the first rural free delivery in Kansas.

The Wichita Eagle of July 18, 1902, noted the event: "Sixty-two carriers of rural mail were abroad in Sumner County for the first time yesterday, in the biggest enterprise of its kind in the history of this nation."

Chapter One

"But, Clay!"

Sally's eyes were frantic with fear, a stark, anguished fear that racked the smooth sweetness of her body and turned her soft lips into two thin lines of agony.

"They'll hunt you down and hang you! Wayne Shepley has money. He has power. He has influence. He'll never forget that you killed his son. He'll never stop until you're dragged back to St. Louis and tried—and sentenced—and hanged."

He nodded grimly—Clay Bennett Farrar, this lean, dark man who had come back to Westport from Santa Fe less than an hour before with a fortune in gold in his wagon bed.

"He'd like to," he admitted. "Maybe I would, too, if I were in his place."

His lean face lightened a little, touched by the reckless, sardonic humor too many men had learned to fear. His fingers under her chin lifted her face to his, gently, reassuringly.

"But I'm not in his place, honey, and I can't spare the time for a good, old-fashioned hanging right now. I've got a lot of other things I'm planning to take care of first. One of them—"

He drew her a little closer to him. For an instant she was surrendering her heart and then she was shaking her head in passionate negation, her eyes closed and the silver tears tracing bitter pathways down her cheeks.

"Oh, no, Clay—no!" she pleaded. "Not now, my darling. Not until I know you're safe—not until so far away that Shepley can't ever reach us."

"Shepley? Well, we'll take care of Shepley."

He frowned, considering the murder warrant that waited for him a half-dozen miles away, at Westport Landing, the two hard-bitten St. Louis officers who waited there to serve it—and watched Sally's cabin while they waited. They might even be outside now. And then he shook his head, a cynical smile of disbelief touching his lips. Even the most conscientious guardians of the law would be indoors on a night like this, a night when the cabin walls and the thunder rumbled up out of the prairie and crashed against the bluffs that lay beside the river.

"Sally," he said slowly. "When you wrote me in Santa Fe, you told me you had three steamboats running up and down the Missouri between here and St. Louis. You've still got them?"

She shrugged her shoulders impatiently, pulling herself out of his arms and moving a little away.

"All right." She flung the words over her shoulder as if she despised them. "I've still got the steamboats. I've got three agents in St. Louis who find more profitable cargo than the boats can carry. Everyone says we'll have war with Mexico in 1846—and that's less than six months away. If we do, they won't just be steamboats—they'll be floating gold mines. Now," she spun around to face him, "does that tell you all you want to know about the steamboats? Will you forget them now and think about Wayne Shepley and—and your life?"

He nodded gravely, but there was still the sparking fire of laughter dancing far back in his eyes.

"I will, honey. I can promise you I will. For example, all Shepley's witnesses against me are bound to be in St. Louis, and your three agents are in St. Louis, too. Doesn't that suggest anything to you?"

"St. Louis?" The dark eyebrows that were like notes of strange music knitted a little as she probed the meaning of his words. "St. Louis. I don't understand you, Clay."

"Look, Sally, it's like this: If Shepley doesn't have witnesses, he doesn't have a case. And if those agents of yours are half the high-binders I think they are, they can arrange for those witnesses to get out—or develop bad memories—or disappear! It takes unscrupulous men and it takes money, but you've got the men and I've got fifty thousand dollars in gold cached in that wagon that brought me here. Give them a year and Shepley's case against me will blow up in his face! You'll find that most of those that won't go along on that basis can be—removed!"

Sally nodded slowly, her swift-paced Gallic brain plucking and tugging at the fabric of the plan he had presented.

"It could be done," she admitted thoughtfully. "Yes, it could be done."

Her eyes widened in sudden alarm.

"But, Clay—you can't stay here until it's over! There'll never be a night or a day or an hour when you'll be safe!"

"I'll be safe. I'll be a thousand miles south of here in General Sam Houston's Republic of Texas—along with all the other outlaws who got across the Sabine or the Red River just two jumps ahead of the sheriff's posse. I'll be safe enough, Sally, but you'll have to stay here and see that it all works out."

"If you can't come back—" She caught her breath and lifted her face to his. "If you can't, darling, I'll find the way to Texas, and I'll find you."

Homes For Last Of Life Are Planned

AGED people need special housing facilities, says the New York State Division of Housing. Present plans call for 5 per cent of the state-aided housing projects of the future to be fitted up for old couples or single persons. Housing Commissioner Herman T. Stuchman says this will not provide enough housing for low-income old people, but he hopes private industry will also provide some housing. Pictured is one type of apartment planned for old people with special facilities.

Pastor To Give Talks On American Education Week

In cooperation with the radio committee of the North Carolina Education Association, American Education Week will be brought to the radio public next week by Rev. H. E. Johnson, pastor of the Greenville Pentecostal Holiness Church on the Morning Devotions program at 9:30-9:45 a. m. Monday, November 10 on station WGTC.

The general topic "Children In Today's World" was selected by its sponsors with daily topics as follows:

Monday November 10, their HOMES
Tuesday November 11, their HERITAGE
Wednesday November 12, their SCHOOLS
Thursday November 13, their COUNTRY
Friday November 14, their OPPORTUNITY
Saturday November 15, their FUTURE.

"In view of the present world scene with its many disturbing elements such as the clash of arms among nations in a life-and-death struggle between the totalitarian and democratic ways of life and the many other problems that confront today's children, 'We ought to give the more earnest heed to the things which we have heard lest at any time we should drift away from them.'" (Bible) said Rev. Johnson.

"Therefore the public is cordially invited to hear the topics discussed with the thought of gaining minds in achieving the desired end — that of making this world a better place with more favorable conditions in which our children may find peace and happiness for themselves and useful service to future generations," he concluded.

Interim Revenue Boss Indicated

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Truman may have to name a "caretaker" commissioner to run the Internal Revenue Bureau, target of GOP corruption charges, until Dwight D. Eisenhower takes over in January.

The post is expected to be vacated before Dec. 1 by Commissioner John B. Dunlap who has been nominated to head the new revenue district of Texas and Oklahoma. Dunlap is a career man in the revenue service and has run the bureau since July, 1951.

Secretary of Treasury John W. Snyder has sent Dunlap's name to the Civil Service Commission for approval as district commissioner for the two Southwestern states, a spokesman said.

The revenue commissioner is the only political job in the reorganized tax service and is named by the president subject to Senate confirmation. All other officials are protected from political changes by civil service.

Viewed Sunrise From Pitt Jail

A Beaufort County native reportedly just out of State Prison got a cool reception in Pitt yesterday and saw the sun rise this morning from the confines of Pitt County Jail.

David S. Bazemore, 39-year-old white man of Washington, was arrested by Pitt ABC officers yesterday on the Pachtolus highway and placed in jail on charges of driving drunk.

Bazemore's bond was set at $200, and he had not been released from custody this morning.

ABC officer J. M. Ward said Bazemore's car was stopped after it veered back and forth across the highway. A half-empty "fifth" was found in the front seat and according to Ward, the driver said "I might be a little too drunk to drive."

The officer said it is his information Bazemore was recently released from prison after serving 17 months for assault.

Country Club Is Robbed In Night

Last night, for the second time in less than a year, the Greenville Golf and Country Club was entered by thieves.

Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson reported this morning the culprits entered the country club by breaking out the glass in a door and unlocking the door from the inside.

The only damage done inside, the sheriff said, was to the record player and the cigarette machine. Nothing else was thought to be missing.

Both the record player and the cigarette machine were broken open. Between $10 and $15 was missing from the record player, and both cigarettes and an undetermined amount of silver was taken from the cigarette machine.

The theft is under investigation by the Sheriff's department.

Still Is Blown Up Before Starting

PACTOLUS — Pitt County's ever-watchful ABC force swooped down on an illicit "still" near here yesterday and dynamited the plant before even the first "run" was made.

ABC Officer J. M. Ward reported this morning the illegal distillery was located in Clark Neck section near the Grimesland-Pactolus road.

According to Ward the outfit was new and had never been operated, but was in readiness to begin running the 400 gallons of mash found at the still.

The still found yesterday—which was of the submarine variety—had a capacity of 200 gallons, and was located only 35 feet from another outfit blown up by officers October 11.

No arrests were made but both the still and mash were destroyed by dynamite, Ward said.

Participating in the raid was the entire ABC force of Ward, Dick King and J. L. Taylor.

In surface mining, "overburden" is the soil and rocks that lie atop the seams of coal. They must be removed before the coal can be taken out.

Boy Injured In Street Mishap

Erskine Duff, Jr., nine-year-old boy, 807 East Third street, who was injured on his bicycle in a collision with an automobile on East Fifth street, near the college, this morning, was not seriously hurt.

The police report states that the lad, following a car on his bicycle, was struck by another car. Mrs. Susie Webb, 304 South Library St., the driver, stopped to give assistance. The fire department's emergency truck carried young Duff to Pitt General Hospital. He was given first aid and released.

Two Hitchhiking Girls Are Held

Greenville police are holding two teen-age New England girls who hitchhiked their way this far South with various motor truck drivers.

Police Officer W. B. Cole took the girls into custody this morning at the Busy Bee Cafe, near the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad station.

Police quoted the girls as saying they were on their way to the army base at Fort Benning, Georgia, where one of the girls' brother is stationed.

Stabilizer Has Coal Pay Issue As Final Problem

WASHINGTON (UP)—Economic Stabilizer Roger L. Putnam today faced one last problem before retiring to private life—whether to grant John L. Lewis' miners their full $1.26-a-day pay raise.

Putnam took the first step in settling the dispute over the miners' wages when he met yesterday with public members of the Wage Stabilization Board. Presumably Putnam sought to learn whether the board would review its decision that the miners' color stabilization rules, are entitled to only $1.50 of their negotiated $1.90 pay increase.

The board's decision touched off a week-long coal strike last month which Lewis called "the only strike Putnam agreed at a White House meeting to review the ruling.

The public members said the dispute since the body sided with industry members against giving the miners their full pay boost. If the public members stand pat on their decision, then Putnam was expected to make a ruling himself on the pay increase.

Eisenhower . . .

Eisenhower can talk over with congressional leaders such major legislative problems as possible tax reduction, curtailment of government spending, continuation of price and wage controls, Taft-Hartley Act Amendments, and foreign aid.

Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-O) said he did not expect Eisenhower to have any serious trouble getting his program through the Senate. The Republican are counting on some southern Democratic support for their legislative program. Conservative southerners have formed a coalition with GOP lawmakers in the past.
