Vishinsky Terms Korea A 'Fiasco'

Denounces Basing Truce Talk Success On Repatriation Of Prisoners; Claims U. S. And Allies Not Seeking End Of War; 'Noises' Interrupt Address

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UP) Russia: Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky declared today that the Korean war is a "military fiasco" for the United States.

Speaking in the United Nations' main political committee, Vishinsky accused Secretary of State Dean Acheson, and Western spokesmen supporting him, of ignoring facts and directing attention to only one issue in the truce talks—the voluntary repatriation of war prisoners.

"The U. S. delegation has done this," he said, "knowing in advance that this principle is totally unacceptable and therefore has been rejected.

"Consequently, any insistence upon it inevitably will lead to the collapse of the Panmunjom truce talks and the further protraction of the war."

The 20 countries co-sponsoring with the United States a resolution calling for an immediate truce and acceptance of voluntary repatriation of prisoners were not seeking an end to the Korean war, the Kremlin firebrand said.

"They felt their task," he said, "was to help the ruling circles of the U. S. to get out of a difficult situation in which they are floundering, having unleashed a bloody war with far-reaching designs at the beginning—but which has turned out to be a fiasco as a military adventure."

Vishinsky was reported to have a new resolution ready for presentation at the conclusion of his speech, the text of which ran 52 pages and, as usual, was not made available in advance.

Vishinsky complained twice that "noise" was interrupting his speech and at 11:26 a. m., after he had spoken for 41 minutes, he refused to go on. Committee Chairman Joao Carlos Muniz declared a recess to determine the source of the "noise" and eliminate it.

French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman makes his first appearance today in a talk before the full General Assembly. Schuman and British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, who probably will speak Tuesday delayed their arrival until the United States had chosen a new president.

Secretary of State Dean Acheson met Sunday night with Schuman and Eden for a private talk that was described as "a short discussion covering the principal matters coming before the General Assembly."

Their meeting, at the home of Britain's chief U.N. delegate, Sir Gladwyn Jebb, apparently was aimed at mapping a course for the fateful U.N. sessions ahead that may decide whether the Korean dispute can be settled at the conference table or must be fought to a bitter end on the battlefield.

Whatever decisions were made must have had a provisional nature, however. The future U. S. position on Korea and other U.N. affairs remains to be clarified by President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Three city officials left Greenville yesterday for Raleigh to attend the three-day annual convention of the North Carolina League of Municipalities.

Mayor Lester D. Page, Street Superintendent C. K Beatty and City Clerk H. H. Duncan are attending the convention which began yesterday and will last through tomorrow.

It was reported today that all officials will remain in Raleigh until the convention adjourns tomorrow afternoon.

CIO President's Passing Touches Off Union Race

Struggle Could Develop Into Membership War Within Organization

WASHINGTON (UP)—The death of CIO President Philip Murray today touched off a three-way race for the leadership of the large labor organization which could develop into a membership war within the American labor movement.

Murray's successor as the head of the nation's second largest labor group probably will be chosen at the forthcoming CIO national convention, scheduled to open in Los Angeles next Monday.

Murray had indicated to his lieutenants over a year ago that he wished to retire in 1952 after 12 years as head of the CIO. But no apparent move was ever made to groom an "(heir apparent," and it was generally assumed in CIO circles that Murray could be persuaded to hold the reins for another year.

As a result, labor experts believed a wide open race might develop for the CIO presidency which could divide the organization and lead to the defection of some member unions.

Among those most prominently mentioned as a successor to Murray were Walter Reuther, head of the CIO United Auto Workers; James B. Carey, CIO secretary-treasurer and president of the electrical workers union, and Allan S. Haywood, executive vice president of the CIO and its organizing director.

Some observers saw the possibility of a deadlock development between the Reuther and Carey functions with Haywood, who heads no union on his own, chosen as a "compromise" candidate.

If the fight for the presidency develops into a bitter, intra-union controversy, some labor experts predicted it would be the signal for the AFL to try to win bolting CIO unions back into the old parent organization.

There was also the possibility that defecting CIO unions might line up with the United Mine Workers of John L. Lewis, who bolted the AFL in 1935 to form the CIO. Lewis, who pulled out of the CIO in 1940 as a result of disagreement with Murray over the Roosevelt-Willkie election campaign, has made repeated overtures towards welding the UMW, the CIO and AF Linto one large union.

City Tax Take Is Now At $200,785

Duncan Says 62.3 Per Cent Of Total Levy Has Been Collected

City Clerk H. H. Duncan announced this morning that 62.3 percent of Greenville's total 1952-53 tax levy of $322,255.27 has been collected through October.

According to Duncan's report, $200,785.33 had been paid in at the end of October. That leaves $121,439.94—or 38.7 percent of the total—to be collected through June 30, 1953.

Total delinquent taxes dating from 1940 amount to $34,553.77. Outstanding taxes from last year account for $12,436.62 of the 10-year total.

Amounts for each year that have not been collected are: 1940, $1,067.23; 1941, $1,114.23; 1942, $829; 1943, $721; 1944, $600.71; 1945, $603.41; 1946, $841.37; 1947, $1,452.06; 1948, $3,221.15; 1949, $5,715.20; 1950, $6,152.52; and 1951, $12,436.62.

Through September, the city clerk's department had collected 52.3 percent, or $168,619.74, of the total annual budget. During last month, total delinquent taxes were reduced by $626.84.

Snow Hill Man Is Traffic Victim; Four Hospitalized

One Man Killed, Three Others Hurt Saturday; Pedestrian Is Injured

By MURIEL SHOTWELL
Reflector Staff Writer

A 26-year-old Navy veteran, Emmett Craft Jr., of Snow Hill, was killed instantly and three others hospitalized when the car in which they were riding wrecked Saturday night near Willow Green.

The death of Craft was Greene County's third fatality of the year.

The accident was one of several which occurred over the weekend in Pitt County and near the Pitt County line. As the result of accidents over the weekend, four people have been hospitalized in Pitt Memorial Hospital.

According to Highway Patrolman O. L. McCullen of Walstonburg, the car which Craft was driving swerved off the road one-half mile west of Willow Green in Greene County while traveling at a high rate of speed.

The car went into a ditch and traveled 64 feet before it hit an embankment, the impact pushing the engine up against the driver, Craft, crushing his chest and causing internal injuries.

Injured in the accident, who were passengers in Craft's car, were: Mack H. Spears, 19, of Maury, who was released after receiving first aid; John Edward Spears, 18, of Grifton; Ray Linwood Spears, 16, of Route 1, Snow Hill (no relation to the other two men); and Louis Parker, 29, of Maury. John Spears, Ray Spears and Parker were taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital and confined there.

Pedestrian Hit

An elderly man was struck by a car Sunday night around 8:30 just south of Ayden as he attempted to cross the highway.

Lewis Craft, white, 65, of Route 3, Ayden, was rushed to Pitt Memorial Hospital by ambulance after being struck by a car driven by Neal Whitner Hahn Jr., 33, of 1010 Dickinson Avenue, Greenville.

Craft told investigating officers, Highway Patrolmen James Boykin and Paul Whitley, that he saw the car coming as he crossed the road but it was going faster than he realized and thought he had time to get across the road.

Craft suffered bruises and abrasions and was confined to the hospital for observation. No charges were placed against the driver.

Wrecked Car Found

An overturned 1949 Packard was found with its wheels pointing skyward beside the road late Saturday night with no one in sight.

A passing motorist saw the car about eight miles south of Greenville on Highway 43 and reported it to the highway patrol who had it removed. Sunday morning, Carl G. Manning, white, 26, of Route 1, Grimesland, came into the police station inquiring about his car.

Manning told investigating Highway Patrolman Boykin that the accident occurred when he saw a car meeting him on his side of the road and he pulled to the right, losing control. The car turned end over end one time and landed with its wheels in the air. Damage to the car was estimated at $500.

The driver told officers that he left the car to go to his brother's house to get the car moved. He said when he returned the car was gone.

No charges were placed against Manning.

Indicates Dixie Lawmakers May Help Eisenhower

WASHINGTON (UPSen. Harry F. Byrd said today President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower can count on some southern Democratic support to help push "sound measures" through the 83rd Congress.

The Virginia Democrat, who was reelected last week with only nominal opposition, made it clear that he expects Congress to remain under the sway of the coalition of Republicans and conservative Democrats which has dominated it for more than a decade.

As the most outspoken of the anti-administration Democrats in the Senate, Byrd has long been a leader of that coalition. He refused this year to endorse the Democratic presidential ticket, and said today he regarded Eisenhower's election as "a mandate against Trumanism."

Solon Demands Inquiry Into Airplane Contract

Price Discrepancies And 'Excessive Costs' Of Kaiser-Frazer Cargo Planes Cited; Sees No Need For Subsidization

WASHINGTON (UP) — Sen. Styles Bridges fired the first post-election Republican blast at the Defense Department today by demanding investigation of an Air Force contract with Kaiser-Frazer Corp. for C-119 Flying Boxcar cargo planes.

The New Hampshire Republican, who is slated to be chairman of either the Senate Armed Services or Appropriations Committee in the new Congress, served notice there will be a double-barreled Congressional inquiry into the "excessive costs" of the Kaiser-Frazer contract.

The point of the investigations, Bridges said in a statement, will be to determine why Kaiser-Frazer has a $189,952,519 contract to build 159 of the cargo planes at a cost of $1,200,000 each while the Fairchild Engine and Aircraft Co. is building the same planes for $260,000 each.

Bridges said he has asked the Preparedness subcommittee of the Armed Services Committee to investigate the "disparity" in costs.

The Senate Republican leader said Fairchild, which developed the C-119, has offered to fill the government's entire requirements for the plane. But he said the Air Force awarded a "cost plus fixed fee" contract to Kaiser-Frazer for the plane which "figures to cost the government nearly $150,000,000 more than if the same contract had been awarded to Fairchild."

Bridges disclosed that he asked Air Force Secretary Thomas K. Finletter on Oct. 6 to withhold approval of the Kaiser-Frazer contract pending an investigation by the Preparedness subcommittee.

The "gist" of the Air Force reply, he said, "appears to be that Kaiser-Frazer has had no experience in the aircraft industry and must necessarily undergo large initial costs."

"This explanation can be considered a strong argument against the contract rather than any justification for continuing it," Bridges said. He added that he "sees no need of subsidizing any company while established plane builders have unused capacity."

The Air Force said last month there was no way to make a fair comparison of the Fairchild and Kaiser-Frazer contracts at present. At that time, it estimated the cost of the plane produced by Kaiser-Frazer at about $900,000.

It explained that late in 1950 it was deemed necessary to have two sources producing the plane and a contract was awarded to Kaiser-Frazer. The Air Force said this firm now is about where Fairchild was five years ago when it built the C-82, predecessor of the C-119, at a cost of about $650,000 per airframe.

Today's Rain Is First Recorded Since October 10

Rain in this area of the state early today, except for a light drizzle on November 4, was the first recorded here since October 10, Mrs. Carl E. Maiden, local observer for the U.S. Weather Bureau, reported.

Pitt County Forest Warden N.S. (Kid). Tyson said the main, although light, would be a considerable factor in slowing up the spread of woods fires in the county. He also said rains upstate are slowing up some of the woods fires in that area.

District Game Warden J.O. Teel said this morning the Department of Conservation and Development had unanimously decided to suspend all hunting until sufficient rain falls to slow up woods fires.

NATO Meeting Postponement Is Again Probable

PARIS (UP) — Postponement of the scheduled Dec. 15 meeting of the North Atlantic Council which is to plan West Europe's defenses for 1953-54 appeared probable today

High NATO circles said the long-awaited meeting likely will be put off until sometime in 1953 as a result of the United States change of administration and Britain's tardiness in submitting its future defense estimates.

The final decision, reliable sources said, will be taken by next week at the latest.

If the meeting is held as scheduled, these sources said, it will be scaled down in importance to a merely reparatory conference on a technical level to set the stage for a top-level meeting early in 1953.

Few Takers For Free Dollar Bills

AKRON, O. (UP)— William D. Schlemmer, a reporter for the Akron Beacon-Journal, had to stop about 100 persons before he was able to give away 10 crisp new one dollar bills.

Schlemmer received insults from some whom he offered a dollar, including this remark from one man:

"The damned Republicans — showing off already."

Shotgun Blast Victim Is Reported Close To Death

WINTERVILLE — Aaron Credel, 42-year-old Negro, is near death in Pitt Memorial Hospital today after being blasted with a shotgun in the hands of his common-law wife Louise Wilkes, 32.

The shooting took place yesterday afternoon two miles west of Winterville on the H. H. May farm, where the couple lived as tenants.

Pitt Sheriff Ruel W. Tyson reported this morning Credel was shot through the stomach with a .16 gauge shotgun. He was badly mutilated, the sheriff said, and it was not known this morning whether he would live or die.

Louise was arrested late yesterday by the sheriff, Deputy "Duke" Andrews and J. E. Buck, Winterville police chief. She is being held in Pitt County jail without privilege of bond pending the outcome of Credel's injuries.

Crude "Still"

An interesting sidelight of the shooting, Sheriff Tyson disclosed, was the confiscation of a "home-contrived" illicit whiskey distillery. The miniature "still" was found in a back room at the house where the shooting took place.

The crude equipment consisted of a 50-gallon "lard stand," with a copper "worm" leading to a nail keg full of water, which served as a cooling vat. The outfit was designed to sit atop the kitchen stove, Tyson said, and had been used this weekend.

According to the sheriff, Louise said she and Credel had distilled nearly a jar of illegal whiskey since Friday. They had used the makeshift still for about four years, she told officers.

Arresting officers confiscated the equipment and destroyed approximately 10 gallons of mash, which was to have been used later.

West Germany Swings 'Right' In Vote Results

FRANKFURT, Germany (UP) — Western Germany swung further right today and elected the last commander of Adolf Hitler's brownshirted S. A. Storm Troopers and a former Nazi general to city council seats.

Early returns from Sunday's municipal elections showed sharp gains for the rightist Free Democratic party, the ultra-nationalist Refugee party, and numerous independent groups ranging from conservative to neo-Nazi. Losses were felt by Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's Christian Democratic party.

The Social Democrats (Socialists), however, held their own or scored moderate gains in what generally was regarded as a preview of next summer's general election. No Communists were elected.

An estimated 12,000,000 voters elected 100,000 city, town and county councilors in the north-central states of Lower Saxony, North Rhine-Westphalia and Rhineland-Palatinate, whose combined population of 23,500,000 is nearly half that of the entire West German Republic.

Wilhelm Schepmann, last commander of the S. A., was elected to the city council in the Lower Saxony town of Gifhorn. A candidate of the Refugee party, he polled 30,000 votes. Lower Saxony was a stronghold of the post-war neo-Nazi Socialist Reich party, recently outlawed by the West German supreme court.

Schepmann, 58, worked his way up from the ranks in the early days of the Nazi party to become chief of staff of Hitler's Brownshirts in 1943.

Ike's Liaison Team Readies For Key Washington Talks

Infantry Storms Red-Held Height

Northernmost UN Position In North Korea Recaptured With Bayonet, Grenade And Rifle Butt; Front Generally Quiet

SEOUL, Korea (UP) United Nations infantrymen knocked 1,000 Communists from important Anchor Hill on the Korean eastern front today with a crippling bayonet, grenade and rifle butt charge that carried to the banks of the icy Nam River.

Allied soldiers recaptured the hill, northernmost U. N. position in North Korea, after losing it to North Korean Reds in a sudden shift of action from the central front.

U. N. troops stormed the snow-laced crest 40 miles north o the 38th parallel shortly after dawn. They fought hand-to-hand with Communist troops until the Reds broke and fled down the western slope.

A long-range rifle fight still was continuing at the Nam River's edge at last reports.

The original Red attack, backed by a 4,000 round barrage from enemy big guns, hit four U. N. hills simultaneously Sunday night. Screaming Reds quickly overran two of the hills, but one was regained by the U. N. in 15 minutes.

The eastern sector, manned by the rebuilt North Korean army of nearly 300,000 men, had been quiet except for a smaller-scale attempt to take Anchor Hill Sept. 2.

Officers on the eastern sector believed the Sunday night attack was backed by a powerful array of artillery as a morale booster for the Chinese army's North Korean "cousins."

Action along the rest of the Korean front was confined to patrol activity.

Ground action on the once-hot Triangle Hill area on the central front had dropped off too, but Allied fighter-bombers made more than 60 sorties against dug-in Communist guns in the area north of Kumhwa.

U. N. and Red artillery exchanged sporadic rounds but the duel was not severe.

Allied pilots reported a sharp decrease in the number of Communist gun positions. The drop was believed caused by heavy air bombing and artillery barrages and by the Reds pulling out some of the artillery they had massed in the area.

Towns Urged To Seek Industries

Hodges Says Future May Hold Less State And Federal Aid

RALEIGH (AP)—Tar Heel cities and towns were urged today to work aggressively to establish new industries.

Lt.-Gov.-elect Luther H. Hodges of Leaksville spoke at a luncheon session of the North Carolina League of Municipalities which is holding its annual convention here.

Hodges told the city leaders that the next few years may see a reduction in the amount of aid they can expect from the state and federal governments.

If such is the case and the people still demand additional services, it may be necessary for the municipalities and counties to boost taxes, Hodges warned. He pointed out that one way to avoid this would be through the development of new industries which would increase the number of taxpayers.

Hodges suggested that cities appoint advisory groups of business and industrial leaders to advise city heads on new enterprises. He stated that much can be done at the local level with local capital if surveys are made and proper use is made of cooperating state and educational institutions.

Declaring that "we have been looking to Raleigh too much," Hodges asserted that North Carolina should continue to emphasize decentralization in government.

Hirohito's Son Is Proclaimed Heir Apparent

TOKYO (UP)—Prince Akihito, 18-year-old American-tutored eldest son of Emperor Hirohito, was proclaimed heir apparent to the Japanese throne today in ancient rites that revived imperial pageantry after seven years of apologetic austerity.

The future emperor received from his father a black lacquered headdress that signified he had come into manhood and in a separate ceremony was officially hailed as heir to the "world's oldest throne."

The 1,000-year-old ceremonies, postponed from last December by court mourning for the late Empress Teimei, made the slender, boyish Akihito eligible to represent the emperor at the state events. The English-speaking prince will be his father's proxy at the coronation of Britain's Queen Elizabeth II next year.

Senator Lodge And Detroit Banker Joseph M. Dodge Are Named To Confer With Administration Officials; Parleys May Be Started By Next Friday

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UP — Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts and Joseph M. Dodge, a Detroit banker, took over today the preliminary details of easing the Truman administration out of Washington and replacing it with that of Dwight D. Eisenhower.

President-elect Eisenhower named the two men Sunday—Lodge as his chief liaison man with the outgoing administration and Dodge as his personal envoy to confer with budget officials.

Lodge and Dodge were without authority to participate in any policy decisions of the Truman administration. But they were empowered to sit in on high-level policy conferences and report back immediately to Eisenhower.

Lodge, who was whipped for re-election by Congressman John F. Kennedy last week, played an energetic role in helping Eisenhower get the GOP nomination and in the subsequent campaign. Dodge, 63, once served as economic adviser to Gens. Douglas MacArthur, Lucius D. Clay and George Marshall.

Lodge, Dodge and other GOP bigwigs conferred at length late Sunday with Eisenhower. Present also were Sen. Eugene Millikin (R-Colo., who will be the next chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and Herbert Brownell Jr., Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's 198 campaign manager and a highly effective behind-the-scenes factor in the campaign just finished.

Millikin and Brownell had no comment on what part they had in the conference at the President-elect's retreat at the Augusta National Golf Club.

After the two appointments had been announced by James Hagerty, Eisenhower's press secretary, Lodge told reporters he hoped his Washington conferences with the State and Defense departments could begin next Friday. Dodge said he hoped to start with budget officials in Washington on Wednesday.

The fact that Lodge will not go to Washington until Friday led reporters here to speculate there might be some delay in Eisenhower's meeting with President Truman, scheduled, according to Hagerty, "for the week of Nov. 17." It was certain Eisenhower would want a report from Lodge before he met with Mr. Truman.

Eisenhower's decision to name Lodge and Dodge was contained in a telegram to Mr. Truman, who has urged that the President-elect "immediately" name representatives to confer with top government officials.

Eisenhower's message said:

"With further reference to your several messages I am designating Senator Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., of Massachusetts, to serve as my personal liaison with those departments and agencies of government, other than the Bureau of the Budget, where such liaison may prove useful in facilitating the transfer of public business from the old to the new administration.

"Senator Lodge will come to Washington during the current week and will notify the executive office of his arrival.

Also on hand for the conference here was General Clay, former military governor of Germany and currently chairman of the board of Continental Can Company.

Costly Fires Hit Wayne Countians

Two Tracts Of Woods And Crop Lands Swept By Fire Sunday

GOLDSBORO (AP)—Two big fires crackled through woods and crop lands of Wayne County yesterday. Damage was estimated at $50,000.

Men and machines almost subdued the fires by mid-afternoon. Rain last night quenched the embers.

One tract of 750 acres in the Dobbersville section caught fires shortly before noon. The flames gnawed through fields of unharvested corn and through woodlands. Rising winds carried the flames to outbuildings of the Luther Darden farm. Losses there included a new 5-room tobacco barn, an automobile and trailer, four tobacco trucks, 50 bales of new alfalfa hay, one wagon, 5,000 tobaccos sticks, 13 acres of ungathered corn and five 300-pound hogs.

The Mt. Olive fire department saved the Manly Grove Church and a tobacco barn on the farm of William Strickland Jr. Between 12 and 15 tractors cut fire lanes to prevent spread of the blazes. A North Carolina fire lane caterpillar, summoned from Clinton, cut an eight-foot swatch and set protective backfires to limit another blaze.

Most of the timber destroyed in that area was pine, some of it 90 feet tall. Part was natural growth, the other reforestation. Estimates of the losses were made by County Fire Warden J. U. Thompson. He said the outbreaks were probably the worst in county history.

The county's other major blaze was in the Indian Springs section where 200 acres were burned over. An additional 60 acres burned in Fork Township.

CENSUS ESTIMATE

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Census Bureau estimated today that on Sept. 1 the population of the United States including armed forces overseas, had grown to 157, 505,000.

Weizmann's Last Words In Praise Of Eisenhower

REHOVOTH, Israel (UP—The last words of Dr. Chai mWeizmann, president of Israel, before he died yesterday were "Eisenhower is a very fine fellow."

The first president of this country had been unconscious, with an occasional periods of consciousness. He roused from his torpor and asked those at his bedside about the result of the American election. He made his comment when told that Dwight D. Eisenhower had won, and never spoke again, his physician Dr. S. Zondek said today.

The body of "the George Washington of Israel," mourned by Jews throughout the world, lay in state an extra day today by special dispensation of the chief rabbi.

The famed Russian-born statesman and scientist who would have been 78 on Nov. 27 died of a heart attack early Sunday at his home here. The heart ailment from which he suffered a long time was complicated more than a year ago by an inflammation of the respiratory tract and he was bed-ridden for six months.

Weizmann will be buried here at Rehovoth in Citrus Twp. south of Tel Aviv Tuesday in accordance with his own wishes.

Although Orthodox Jews normally are buried the day after death, Premier David Ben-Gurion announced the funeral was postponed to permit mourners to arrive from distant places. The chief rabbi granted special permission for the delay.

The body lay in state on a black-draped catafalque beneath a high blue and white canopy in the open before the home where he has lived for the past 25 years. Mourners filed slowly past to pay their last respects to the man regarded by many as the new Moses who once again led his people to the Promised Land.

Long lines of soldiers formed an honor guard along all roads leading to the residence. Special mourners' trains ran to Rehovoth from Haifa, Jerusalem and Tel Aviv.

Mrs. Vera Weizmann, his widow, sat by his body which was covered with a black and white prayer shawl. His only son, Benjamin, was en route by plane from London. Another son was shot down over Berlin and killed while serving with the Royal Air Force in World War II.

All government offices were closed and all entertainment cancelled throughout the sorrowful infant nation. Flags flew at half staff on all foreign embassies and government buildings.

Speculation on Weizmann's successor centered on Acting President Joseph Sprinzak, speaker of the Knesset (parliament) who carried out the late president's duties while he was bed-ridden.

Separation Plans Again Held Up

PARIS (UP) —Last-minute objections by Aly Khan's lawyer postponed indefinitely today the signing of a separation agreement in the on-again, off-again marriage of Rita Hayworth and the Moslem prince.

Both Charles Torem, Aly's lawyer, and Bartley Crum, Rita's attorney, said the difficulty was a mere matter of phrasing the agreement, which was reported to include a provision for a trust fund of at least $1,000,000 for the couple's two-year-old daughter Yasmin.

But persons present when Torem raised Aly's objections today said that unless the hitches are ironed out at another meeting of the two attorneys tomorrow, legal proceedings might stretch on for at least another six months.

Crum immediately placed a telephone call to Rita in Madrid for further instructions on how to proceed toward ending her ill-starred Arabian Nights romance with Aly.

She had said earlier she was ready to fly to Paris at once if a hitch arose in the negotiations, but Crum said he saw no point in her making such a trip.

Crum, obviously tired, said he plans to catch tomorrow night—agreement or not—the plane to New York he booked when he arrived in Paris last week.

"Will you turn the handling of the matter over to a Paris lawyer?" he was asked.

"No," he snapped. "We'll handle it by mail."

Paris lawyers said this easily could delay the matter for six months or more.

The Niagara River is about 34 miles long.

Student Of Theater Is Director Of Operettas

Dorothy Raedler is the founder and artistic director of American Savoyards, Inc., the Gilbert and Sullivan company which is to present "The Mikado" And "Patience" at the College Theatre on Monday, November 17th.

Miss Taedler was born in New York. Her career in the theatre began at the age of 7, when she became an actress, appearing in schools productions, and amateur and professional dramatic groups for the next ten years. Then bitten by the directing bug, her chief interest was theatre in all its phases. She wrote and produced her first musical comedy at the age of 17, and alternately wrote, directed and appeared in plays, operattas and radio shows in and around New York City. She is a graduate of Hunter College.

In March, 1939, Dorthy Raedler founded the Masque and Lyre Light Opera Company. It was originally an amateur group, producing an average of two Gilbert and Sullivan Operas a year. The advent of World War II postponed plans for the continuance of this group, but full production was resumed after the war and the group soon became one of the three foremost amateur Gilbert and Sullivan companies in New York.

In November, 1948, a complete reorganization took place. Professional singers were engaged and the Masque Lyre opened a four-week season in Flushing, L. I., the following February. In late July of the same year, the company made its first New York City appearance, in a little basement of a church house in the east seventies. Here they received rave notices from New York's first-string drama critics, which enabled them to a successful first season, and to continue in operation. The company was soon recognized as the finest and most authentic Gilbert and Sullivan exponents.

No one has overlooked the fact that all credit for the success of this company must go to Dorothy Raedler, its founder. Brooks Atkinson of the N.Y. Times wrote: "Miss Raedler is a dedicated Gilbert and Sullivan impresario. She and her associates know the style of Savoy Opera and they convey it skillfully". Paul Affelder in the Brooklyn Eagle wrote "Dorothy Raedler has done a remarkable job of preserving the true Savoyard flavor in the production"

In the summer of 1951, Charles L. Wagner saw a Masque Lyre performance. So enthusiastic was he over its artistic merits, that he and Miss Raedler made arrangements to tour the company throughout the United States the following season.

Now called the American Savoyards, Inc., its productions of "The Mikado" and "Patience" have been restaged for its first big season on the road, under the auspices of Charles L. Wagner.

Steel Controls Believed Ending

CLEVELAND, O. (UP)— Steel magazine said today "it looked as though all government allotment controls on steel and steel products would be eliminated by next June 30."

The magazine based its prediction on three things: the election to the presidency of Dwight D. Eisenhower, increased steel production and attainment of a plateau in defense production.

The political aspects of the prediction stemmed from the attitude of present administration controllers. Steel said, who "can't be expected to be as enthusiastic as they once were." Steel said, however, that even had the Democrats won the election, indications pointed to a "fade-out" of controls by next June.

Evidence of the growing supply, Steel said, was the announcement last week by the Defense Production Administration that it was taking the "most critical" label off cold-drawn carbon bars, hot-rolled carbon bars and semi-finished steels. The industry trade journal said all three would remain in tight supply for another few months, but that indications pointed to an improved situation by the second quarter of next year.

Except for a handful of items, Steel said, most steel products are once more in adequate supply. The increased production, which again last week exceeded rated capacity contributed largely to the situation.

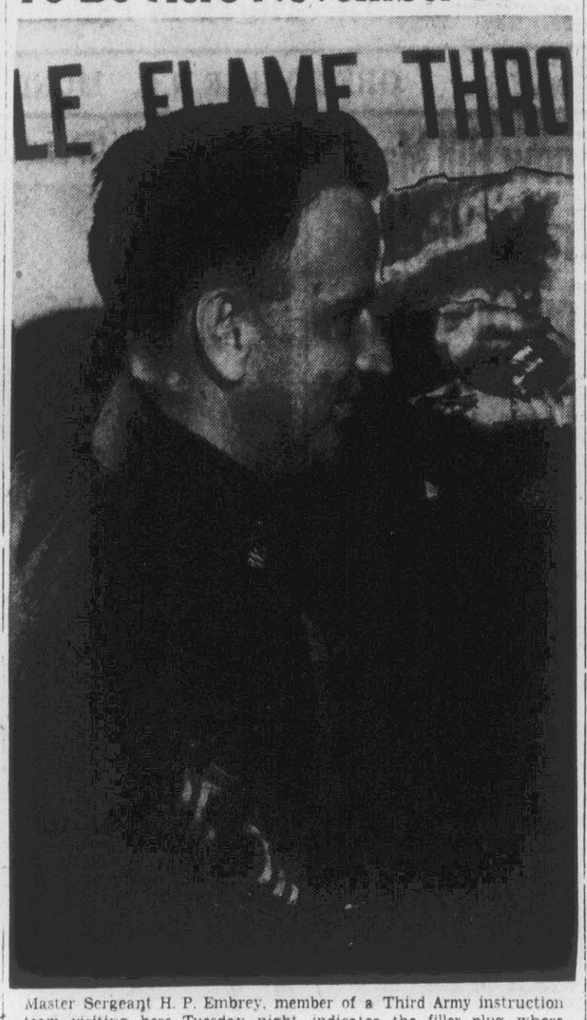

Last week's production, Steel estimated, was at 106 per cent of capacity, a drop of one-half per cent from the previous week. District rates rose 6 points to 96 per cent in Cincinnati, 6 to 91 in New England and 1.5 to 99.5 in Wheeling. Ooperations declined 4 points to 104 per cent in Detroit 1.5 to 105.5 in the Far West, 1.5 to 105.5 in Birmingham, 0.5 to 98 per cent in St. Louis, 2 points to 108 in Cleveland, 1 to 105.5 per cent in Pittsburgh and 0.5 to 112 in Chicago.

The rate was unchanged last week at 106 per cent in Youngstown and Buffalo and 99 per cent in the mid-Atlantic district.

East Carolina College And Schools In Hyde Stage Cooperative Program

Carrying out a Plan for Cooperative Learning begun last year by East Carolina College and the schools of Hyde County, three students teaching in the campus Training School this fall went to Engelhard Sunday, for a week of teaching and observation in rural schools.

Bettie A. Carroll of Winston-Salem, Elizabeth Gaddy of Wadesboro, and Mrs. Garland Carr of Rose Hill, seniors at East Carolina, were selected to participate in the project during the fall quarter.

The Plan for Cooperative Learning is a project begun by the college department of education and the Training School faculty under the joint direction of Dr. Keith D. Holmes and Dr. Eva Williamson. Each quarter of the present school year, they have announced, outstanding prospective teachers will be selected for participation in the work of improving schools in rural areas. The plan has won praise from the State Department of Public Instruction and other educational agencies.

During this week, the three East Carolina seniors will teach in the lower grades of the Hyde County schools. Teachers there will benefit by seeing new teaching techniques and materials of instruction presented through demonstration. Frequent conferences to evaluate work will be held by the guest teachers and the resident teachers.

Chapters Join In Combined Meeting In Honor Of W.G.M.

The Greenville, Famville and Greene County Chapters of the Eastern Star were joint hostesses on Tuesday night, November 4th, for the official visit of Mrs. Helen Rimmer, Worthy Grand Matron. The meeting was held in the Masonic Hall in Greenville.

A banquet was held in honor of Mrs. Rimmer preceding the meeting, at which time she was presented with an orchid by her hostesses.

The hall was beautifully decorated throughout for the occasion. A basket of green and natural wheat, a fountain arrangement of bronze mums, and baskets of yellow and white Fifi chrysanthemums decorated the hall. In the chapter room tall standards and vases of yellow and blue chrysanthmums, red and white gladioli, red pyracantha and green foliage were effectively used to carry out emblematic colors.

Mrs. Thelma Maxwell, Worthy Matron of Greenville, Mrs. Eula Williams, Worthy Matron of Farmville, and Mrs. Elizabeth Dobson, Worthy Matron of Greene County Chapter, officially opened the meting. Mrs. Maxwell graciously welcomed the guests and members to the meting.

Mrs. Rimmer gave a most inspiring and instructive talk. She briefly reviewed her projects for the year. Her emblem is the open Bible and her Bible remained open on the altar throughout the meeting. Her subject was the Bibical heroine Ada and was based on the tragedy of the race that forgot God.

She compared this story with the vows to the order, challenging members to these high principles and ideals. Her goal for the year is the rebuilding of the Rainbow Girls Camp and at the conclusion of her talk Mrs. Betty Mae Nobles displayed a lovely miniature rainbow made of lacelon ribbon in emblematic colors. The Star Points of the three chapters then hung five small pots of gold on this rainbow which contained their contribution for the Rainbow Camp. Mrs. Nobles then presented the completed rainbows to Mrs. Rimmer for the three chapters.

Mr. Elbert Bennett sang, "God's Ranibow Shines For You", accompanied by Mrs. Florence Scott, as tribute to Mrs. Rimmer. Mrs. Dorothy Wilkerson of the Farmville Chapter presented her with a gift of silver from the three chapters.

The chapter gave a rising vote of thanks to Mrs. Lillie Dell Briley and Mrs. Fenner Allen co-chairman of Scottish Rite banquet served by chapter to raise funds which was most successful ,and also to Mrs. Mellie House, who has made twenty-seven tablecloths to be used in the Masonic Hall.

Mrs. Maxwell reminded the members that Sunday, November 9th, has been designated as Go to Church Sunday by Worthy C and Matron and all members of the local chapter were asked to meet at Third Street School at 11:00 to attend services held there by St. James Methodist Church.

Among the distinguished guests present for the meeting were Mrs. Maude Baynor Foy Past Grand Matron; Dr. J. Frank Duke Past Grand Patron; Vernon J. Spivey, Associate Grand Patron; Mrs. Rosella Edwards and George Parker, District Deputy Grand Matron and Patron; Mrs. Lila Duke, District Deputy of Second District; Mrs. Louise Welis, Grand Representative and Mrs. Ola Wilson, Mrs. Keith Cain and Mrs. Hughlene Baynor, Grand Committee members.

A social hour followed in the dining room, which was a scene of beauty with a background of rainbow lights. The table was centered with a star made of flowers in emblematic colors. Across this star was a rainbow of lighted pencil tapers, depicting the Eastern Star as the foundation of Rainbow organization and work. The refreshments also carried out the Star theme.

Visitors from Farmville, Snow Hill, Washington, Williamston, New Bern, Hertford, Grifton, Ayden, Kinston, Goldsboro and Aurora Chapters were present.

Mrs. Betty Mae Nobles of the Greenville Chapter was in charge of the decorations and also made the rainbow presented to Mrs. Rimmer. Mrs. Hilda Laughinghouse was chairman of the refreshment committee, and Mrs Mildred Kennedy of the banquet committee.

Fireman Answer In Full Force To Brush Blaze

All of Greenville Fire Department's rolling stock roared out of town amid the screech of sirens yesterday afternoon to answer an alarm on the New Bern Highway.

The alarm was called in at approximately 3:30 and fire equipment city police and state highway patrolmen were there in a matter of minutes.

Only one truck was needed, however, because the alarm stemmed from a brush fire behind Wilson's Grocery Store on highway 43 just beyond Gold Leaf warehouse and the railroad overpass.

The fire was extinguished in less than 10 minutes and firemen and law enforcement officers returned to their posts.

Church Council Program Meets Good Response

World Community Day, sponsored by the Greenville Council of Church Women, was held at the Memorial Baptist Church on Friday, November 7, at 10 a. m.

This is one of the three annual observances which are held under the auspices of the United Church Women, the other two being World Day of Prayer and May Fellowship Day.

The topic for the day's meeting was "Building Lasting Peace", which was ably presented by the Rev. J. Woodrow Hassell.

Mrs. E. E. Rawl of the host church extended the welcome. Mrs. D. H. Conley, president of the local Council of Church Women, led the service. Miss Ruth Little, soloist, accompanied by Mrs. John E. Moss, sang two beautiful selections "O Divine Redeemer," and "The Lord's Prayer." Rev. R. E. Hardaway and Rev. Leon Russell participated in the service.

There was a generous response to the Packets For Peace; five duffel bags were filled to be sent to children in war-torn countries. The offering will be used to sustain the Christian Woman's Action Program for World Peace as well as supply medicines and vitamins to under nourished chlidren overseas.

Women In The Church

By Mary Fowler

Presbyterian church women of the Chiengrai area, Thailand, wishing to give help to the Overbrook Hospital and towards the evangelization of nearby villages, and knowing that not one penny was in the budget for such work, planned an auction. Each church brought in donations for sale—fine needlework, baskets, fruit, rice, stalks of sugar cane, chickens, ducks, and a half grown pig. The women used the proceeds of over $50 (U.S.) to help pay the wages of evangelists in rural areas and hospital. Dr. Edwin B. McDaniel, the Hospital's director, was presented with a Thai New Testament for the waiting room. 72 drinking glasses, 50 spittoons, 50 grass brooms, five wash basins.

Methodist women's gifts to the 1950 Week of Prayer offering of the Woman's Division of Christian Service made possible a new building at Homer Toberman Settlement, San Pedro, Calif. The building was recently dedicated by Bishop Gerald H. Kennedy. Founded by a former mayor of Los Angeles, J. R. Toberman and his wife, as a memorial to their son, the settlement will celebrate its fiftieth anniversary in 1953. Homer Toberman Settlement is now located a few blocks above the port of Los Angeles. It serves thirty natioalities who live in the neighborhood.

Mrs. Rosa Page Welch, noted Negro concert soprano, and Disciples of Christ churchwoman, has been on a concert tour of church gatherings in the Phillippine Islands, and "has won the hearts of the Filipinos." A report to the United Church Missionary Society (Disciples says: "Mrs. Welch was honored at a tea in Manila by the United Council of Evangelical Church Women, and at luncheons given by the National Women's Association of the United Church of Christ in the Philippines, the National Christian Women's Fellowship, and the Tagalong Disciples of Christ. Universities, church groups, and schools vie with one another for any appearance that could be scheduled. Her full schedule took her to Laoag, Vigan, Bangued, San Fernando, and Baguio in the north; and to Iloilo, Cebu, and dumaguete in the south. Her visit to Manila was the occasion for a city-wide meeting of choirs.

Indignant Diner Assaulted Chef

Lepore, 31, dined on jailhouse fare today, all because of a bad-tasting pizza.

Lepore ordered "Naples style" pizza in a restaurant. What he got, he said, was a concoction so vile he could not restrain himself.

Bystanders intervened after Lepore had grabbed the cook, Girloama de Nicolo, 45, and tried to stuff him into his own oven.

Officers discovered both men were fugitives from the law. Silva will be sent to Corpus Christi, Tex., to face a 1946 burglary charge as soon as he recovers from a knife wound. Valdez will go to Oklahoma City, where he is wanted for a 1947 murder, after his felonious assault case here is settled.

OMAHA, Neb. (UP) — Walt Burritt, an Omaha businessman, watched the skies today for response to a want ad he placed in the Omaha World-Herald..

Strength for the Day

REGARDING THE NATURE OF PRAISE

There is a great difference between flattery and praise. Everybody loves praise and, although we shouldn't love it, most of us love flattery. But unless we know what we are doing, a little flattery may prove to be a poison potion which may bring to ruin everything we hold dear.

Some man choose as a wife the girl who flatters them and builds up their ego. All people who enjoy public appearances have a little of the weakness in them which lays them open to the devastations of flattery. The desire to be a writer usually has in it considerable egotism, for the satisfaction of looking upon the printed page one has produced is only a variation of that amiable weakness which causes other people to peer at themselves in a mirror. No one is free of some latent conceit—that is, if he makes any success in life. For the complete absence of conceit may make one a spineless creature respected by no one, including himself.

But be quick to note the difference between praise and flattery. One is spontaneous, the other spoken with design. One is sincere, the other insincere. One releases new powers in man's mind and soul; the other acts as an anesthetic and makes one less ashamed of himself than he otherwise would be.

Many people know how to flatter; few know how to praise.

In The End, We're All One Big Team

Of course, it's been a relatively long time since there was a real change-over in governmental administration of the Republic. Still, it is most heartening that every apparent effort is being made by the outgoing administration to effect that change with as little disturbance as possible.

On the surface, at least, partisan natures have been set aside in order that the Ship of State will ride on even keel.

Most of the effort will be bent toward familiarizing the incoming advisors and probable officials with what has gone on before and what must be done in the days to come.

The importance of thus insuring there will be no misunderstandings or gaps in knowledge among the incoming administration cannot be overemphasized. It is so important in fact, that as we noted there is no show of partisan feelings in the "briefing" of future governmental officials.

Some observers even indicate that President-elect Dwight Eisenhower will have an opportunity to play a major role in administrative decisions even before he assumes office. President Truman has gone so far as to say he plans to make no more major policy decisions, if he can possibly avoid them, during his final weeks in office. The new President will thus have an almost free hand in the making of new and grave decisions that lie ahead.

It is a great and unselfish demonstration of putting the nation's welfare to the fore we Americans witness today. The sobriety of the occasion and the moment should serve to remind us that though love of country is sometimes forgotten by the tide of tempers in political campaigning when the fight is over it finds all hands laboring to best serve America and the free world.

A Trust Violated If The Story Is True

At the moment it isn't so important whether the hydrogen-bomb was or wasn't exploded on a Pacific islet. If it has been accomplished as an "unidentified eyewitness" informed a newspaper, well and good. No need to get excited about it. If it hasn't; still no reason to shout.

However, let's pretend it (the H-bomb) did go "boom." Then what have we got?

We've got a trusted public servant who betrayed the secret to the world before the Department of Defense was ready to disclose the hydrogen-bomb was an actuality.

Even a layman can conceive a dozen reasons practical as well as of a policy-making nature, why the Department of Defense or Atomic Energy Commission might not have been ready or willing to tell the world the goal had been achieved.

If the bomb was set off, it's safe to also assume that those who were present were all sworn to secrecy until it was deemed wise to tell the story. Under such an assumption some "witness" put his love of sensationalism above what responsible people felt to be the national welfare.

All this is hypothesis. But is it far-fetched to brand such a disclosure a crime against the nation as well as a violation of trust? If ever identified, would the "witness" be punished?

We hope so.

He Wrote History In A Land Called Israel

If his name had been Thomas Jefferson, or Simon Bolivar or George Washington, it would have struck a more responsive chord in the minds of all of us so far from a tiny bit of land he called "home".

Instead, his name was Chaim Weizmann; and he played a major role in the founding of a national homeland for his people and himself.

He died as the president of that homeland he, and other yearning men and women carved for themselves on a distant continent.

His people mourn him, so should we too regret his passing. For in his heart he carried a great dream; in his hands was a flame taken from our own torch of Freedom. The world has never been so rich as to have too many men like him.

A dreamer?

Yes. But he made his dreams and the dreams of others come true; and though he was aging and frail in body, his spirit was mighty. Though he is dead, we do not think either his spirit or his dream will soon leave the people of that little country known as Israel.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—Although President Truman has repeatedly declared that national defense expenditures cannot be reduced without jeopardizing security and the anti-Russian alliance, the 1954 fiscal year budget now in preparation carries a sharp cut in the military budget for the first time since the Korean invasion of mid-1950.

Defense appropriations for the 1953 fiscal year, which ends next June 30, totalled approximately $50 billion, with an additional 6.4 billion for foreign military and economic assistance.

As of today, the 1954 outlay for defense is estimated at about $44 billion, with possibly $5 billion for Mutual Security funds. The difference represents a saving of more than $7 billion. Congress may shave it another $3 billion.

KOREAN ISSUE—These figures are based on the expectation of that fighting will not become more intensive in Korea and Indo-China. Should the Communists launch large-scale invasions in both places, all current estimates will go out the window.

Another factor behind the proposed economy is the French and American plan to train more native soldiers for the defense of their countries. Twenty Indo-Chinese and the same number of Koreans can be made battle-worthy for the cost of transporting a single French or American G.I. to those distant front lines. The campaign concentration on this issue may yet pay dividends.

OUTSTANDING VICTORY—Air-minded strategists achieved an outstanding victory in staff arguments over allocation of 1954 funds. Whereas Army and Navy appropriations will be kept at present levels, almost half of the $44 billion will be used to build air strength to the authorized total of 143 wings.

The Pentagon has promised to resurvey its administrative personnel with the objective of placing more arm chair soldiers and sailors in active service.

It is estimated that there are enough superfluous aides, messengers, gardeners, house servants and flunkeys of one sort or another to provide another fighting division and a full crew for a battleship.

Anticipating that the new Administration and Congress will take a hard look at this wasteful "fat," the brass is inaugurating this needed reform itself.

U. S. FUNCTION—Although still shrouded in secrecy, an entirely new and revolutionary technique for handling the problem of foreign military and economic aid has been advanced by Secretary Acheson and Mutual Security Administrator Harriman. It is designed to meet overseas objections to the dominant position Uncle Sam occupies through the use of money pressures, as recently discussed here.

Instead of bilateral grants or loans of funds to individual countries like Britain, France, Spain, etc., the money would be channelled through the United Nations, its auxiliary agencies or even through a new organization to be known as the International Development Authority, modelled after TVA.

Each member, of course, would be asked to contribute larger sums than they have so far given. Our function would be to make available dollars for purchase of goods, machinery and services needed from the U.S.A.

OUTGOING PLANNER'S PROTOCOL—Acheson and Harriman do not expect that this new system can be perfected and placed in operation before they leave office on January 20. But they have blueprinted the organization in advance with the hope that they can sell the idea to their successors. They also aim to enlist private investors in the program, and have already discussed it in financial circles in New York.

Despite the indefiniteness surrounding the project, it would amount to an economic United Nations, dealing with recovery and development rather than with diplomacy. It would attempt to solve by international attack the causes of war—hunger, disease, poverty, etc.

It is designed especially to appeal to Asiatic, African and South American peoples now suspicious that the U.S. has designs on them as cannon fodder in a war with Russia.

Depending upon the response of the new Administration and Congress, as well as the reaction of the private financial community, the outgoing planners of Washington will soon propose this sort of "Union Now" as their final solution for the world's accumulating ills and evils.

ATOMIC SECRETS—Prime Minister Churchill will ask for a greater share in American atomic secrets when he makes his expected visit to Washington next spring. As a bargaining point, he will cite the fact that Britain has progressed in this field further than is generally known especially in the use of these weapons of naval warfare.

He still believes that our atomic head start has been the principal deterrent to an all-out Russian attack in Western Europe, the Middle East and the Far East. But he insists that, if there were a huge store of atomic bombs and shells in England, within easy flying range of Russian targets, war might be staved off for many many years.

This will be only one of the numerous headaches for the next President.

LOSS -- The State of North Carolina as a whole, the cause of agricultural advancement in particular, sustains a real loss in the decision of Dr. James H. Hilton to accept the presidency of Iowa State College at Ames, Iowa. Native of Catawba county, undergraduate student at N.C. State after completing the public school courses, and with earned degrees and teaching experience at several other universities, he came back to North Carolina in 1945 to head the division of animal industry and in 1948 he became dean of agriculture at at State, in which position he has made outstanding contribution to North Carolina and the nation.

CHANCELLOR -- It is no secret that powerful influences have counted upon him to be successor of retiring Chancellor John W. Harrelson at N. C. State, and that he has been urged not to accept previous offers of other jobs outside North Carolina with that in mind. The opportunity afforded in the presidency of an independent college considerably larger than N.C. State could not be passed up. His leaving will necessitate revised thinking of many of those interested in and responsible for choosing a chancellor. It has been learned that the special committee of trustees of the Consolidated University charged with nominating a successor to Col. Harrelson has not made much real progress. Numerous factors are involved, some of them made more complex by reason of the fact State is not an independent institution but it is an integral unit in the overall university system, the other units being Chapel Hill and Woman's College at Greensboro.

RIVALRY -- Although technical consolidation of the units was effected 20 years ago, actually there is almost as much rivalry and jealousy among the institutions as prevailed before. Further complications are encountered in the rivalry for prestige between the main divisions of State College-- engineering and agriculture. Impact of these jealousies is no less real because they do not show up on the surface and are not apparent from casual observation.

PROSPECTS -- Friends and alumni of the engineering division do not agree with contentions of the agricultural forces that since all the former heads of the college--whether called president, dean of administration or chancellor--have been directly related to the engineering field, that the next head should represent the farming interestes. The "farmers' have been insistent upon that, and it is common knowledge that Hilton was high on their list of candidates. With his elimination there remain several names inside and out of North Carolina There is very substantial backing for L. Y. (Stag) Ballentine, commissioner of agriculture. Governor Kerr Scott has been prominently mentioned as a logical and acceptable chancellor. One segment of alumni has taken the position that since the duties are primarily administrative, selection of good business men not directly identified with politics, agriculture or engineering world be a better solution of the problem.

DOUBLE -- Hilton's leaving doubles the responsibility of the trustees and college administrations, because it means not only naming a new chancellor but also replacing a dean of agriculture who has raised the prestige of the school from State and regional recognition to national prominence. In some technical aspects that will be a more difficult task than finding a chancellor.

SECOND LEVEL -- The foregoing statement recalls the observation of a very wise man some years ago. He said the greatest need in America is for competent No. 2 men. There are enough persons to fill the No. 1 spots, those who get nearly all the credit and who have to make final decision on matters of policy as presented by the second level. There is no shortage of personnel material for the manual, clerical and middle executive positions. The big problem is manning positions just below the top where important decisions must be made and qualities of real leadership are required, but without the glamor of top prestige or popular acclaim.

EXTRA—The Council of State this week alloted $5,000 of contingency and emergency funds to pay expenses of a study and appraisal of public school text books. The purpose to which the money was allotted is worthy, and the amount involved is relatively small. The incident serves to remind that a lot of public tax money goes into the public schools which does not show up in the appropriation item for maintenance of the nine months term.

HAPPY -- One of the happiest men encountered on the streets of Raleigh this week was Archie McL. Graham of Clinton. He was here to attend a meeting of the State Board of Education, which had a very short session at which only routine business was considered. He said he had been a member of the old School Commission and the State Board for 25 years and this was the shortest session he had ever attended. But that wasn't what he was smiling about. His home

What Other Papers Are Thinking

A VISIT TO KOREA
(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Now that President Truman has had his almost begrudging offer of his plane, The Independence, turned down as a transportation medium to carry General Eisenhowe. to Korea and the President-elect has decided upon an Army conveyance, one wonders just why so much attention is given to a trip to Korea, anyway.

To be sure General Eisenhower made the pledge during the heat of the campaign and naturally he will be expected to carry it out. That Mr. Truman regarded the proposal as political tinder was apparent in the President's offer in which he made his personal plane available, "if you still desire to go to Korea." And there's little doubt but that General Eisenhower did attach certain political significance to the proposal. Also it would be quite a face-losing gesture for the General to fail to make the trip now that he has been elected.

However, it is most difficult to see just what good such a trip would do anyway. Of course, the President-elect might get a clearer picture of the Korean situation by going to Korea and a comparative few service men might get a lift by coming in contact with him, but there's really very little that such a visit could accomplish as far as the war is concerned.

After all, Mr. Eisenhower, as President, can order to Washington any American who is engaged in any phase of activities pertaining to the war. Besides the Pentagon is supposed to have at finger tips the whole story to be divulged to the proper sources on a moment's notice.

Of course, a visit by General Eisenhower to the front naturally will have a certain stimulating effect upon the public and there are perhaps quite a few benefits that both the public and General Eisenhower may derive from his projected visit. But we still fail to see why it should become a national issue.

WITHOUT THE SOUTH, EH?
(Henderson Dispatch)

Those ultra-liberal, leftist Democrats who at the Chicago convention last summer shouted defiance at Southern delegates and said the party could get along without the South, and indicated a desire to toss this section out of the organization, now have another thought. These upstart, would-be policy-makers have their ears pinned back and have been stood on their heads as a result of the election.

They aren't even Democrats as the Democratic party was known until the dreamers took it over a couple of decades ago. They rode into power under the party label and promptly usurped the organization with their pet theories and experiments, and by handouts of one kind or another have been able to hold the reins of government until now.

They said the Democratic party could get along without the South. But can it? Just read the election returns. Stevenson carried only nine States for the 89 electoral votes that went to him. Any every one of them came from this section of the country. Get long without the South? Why had it not been for these nine Southern States, the party of these men who would have disowned this region traditionally known as the cradle of Democracy wouldn't have had a single electoral vote. And final tabulations may yet reduce the total for the governor if belated returns throw Kentucky into the Eisenhower column.

Results of the balloting last Tuesday ought to teach young Franklin Roosevelt and Senator Moody and Governor Mennen Williams of Michigan and Senator Humphries of Minnesot a lesson they will never forget. They were the boys who tried to toss the South out of the convention and out of the party. Great leaders they are!

In this election the South is the only regaining section of the nation where the Democrats made any showing at all. It has kept the party alive through the decades when other States repeatedly and habitually voted Republican. It is still doing just that.

Those Southern States which deserted the reservation did so out of resentment for the treatment they received at Chicago and at the hands of arrogant self-appointed leftist leaders. Those States were not forsaking the Democratic party but were walking out on a socialistic group which was attempting to seize the party for their own purposes. When the party is again taken over by Democrats from these young socialists and others of their way of thinking, every State in the South will again take its place where they have all stood for three-quarters of a century, with a few exceptions. And unless the principles for which the party all these years has stood are restored to their proper status, there need be no surprise if still further defections occur.

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

With so much talk about a leveling off, let-down or recession along about the middle of 1953, it is comforting to note that the Chamber of Commerce of the United States takes a sanguine view of the period in which defense contracts will be lower than they are now.

It concedes that there will not be the pent-up demand for consumer goods that hypoed the economy after World War II. But it, in its advertising news letter, points out that there are large market potentials in other areas.

For instance, it notes that "the record crop of babies--nearly 4,000,000 -- born last year will insure high employment in the food, clothing, toy and construction industries. It cites an Office of Education estimate that there will be 5,000,000 more children in elementary schools in 1956 than there are now.

For these 5,000,000, more classrooms, equipment, books and teachers will be required. It adds:

"And here are some more things to think about: 20 per cent of American families do not have mechanical refrigeration; 18 per cent are still cooking with coal and wood; millions of homes are without kitchen sinks, vacuum cleaners and bathtubs; nearly 15,000,000 families do not own an automobile. Only one in ten have two cars.

But don't forget the missing link in the production-consumption chain. It is the creation of demand. People don't automatically buy TV sets, refrigerators, clothings, etc. They have to be sold. And that is why we have this thing called advertising."

It points out that advertising expenditures were 4.3 per cent of national income in 1920 and declined to a low of 1.9 per cent during the war years, it was only 2.3 per cent in 1951.

Federal Reserve statistics are under attack again.

This time it is the Board's weekly report on department store sales totals, which is compiled with the cooperation of several hundred large stores and is generally regarded as an index of consumer buying.

The current attacker is Philip LeBoutillier, president of (Best and Co.), a large New York spread, who holds that weekly pr cant for an accurate reportin job.

As evidence, he cited the "pathetic corrections" of weekly figures: The figure for the week ended October 11 was first reported as plus 13 per cent and later corrected to plus 2 per cent and the figures for the four weeks ended October 11, first issued as plus 2 per cent and later corrected to minus 1 per cent.

CAROUSEL MACHINE MATCHES PAINT COLORS

An ingenious color-matching machine has been unveiled. It is about half the size of an office desk and the top consists of a sort of merry-go-round device with containers of various pigments.

When the desired color is selected from a color chip, pushing a button causes the correct amount of pigments to flow from the containers into a can of base paint, enamel or stain.

The machine will not be sold but will be leased to users (by Standard-Toch Chemicals, Inc.)

ROME (AP)—Everyone dreams of a famous street he would like to walk or a hotel he would like to sleep in-from Broadway in New York to the Raffles in Singapore, home of the gin sling.

In wartime there was a period when nobody thought of a hotel, but there was a frustrating highway that was the goal of an army.

It was highway No. 6, a pleasantly meandering macadam roadway between Naples and Rome.

Mark Clark was trying by brute strength to bust along it from the pleasant vale of sin, Napoli-called by Mussolini "The "The Sewer of Italy"-to Rome, where Il Duce and the Pope lived as uneasy neighbors.

Like any roadway an army needs in wartime, Highway 6 was bordered by hills. We didn't name them then, as they sometimes do in Korea now, after the bosoms of movie stars.

The army hadn't taken so many hills in those far away simple days that every bump it traversed on the landscape received a special renown. No one was sophisticated enough to christen all the spines in the Apennines.

As a matter of fact, if the Army" knew how many hills they would actually have to assault after landing at Salerno in the fall of 1943, they probably would have tossed coins with the Germans for the whole Italian peninsula. And probably both sides would have accepted the decision on a "Heads you lose, tails I win" basis.

A few peaks along that highway, of Course, will always remain memorable. Such as "Million Dollar Hill,' named wryly by dough-boys by their estimate of the artillery cost of a single bombardment. And Cairo, that towering crag of death. And Mt. Cassino, the German bulwark topped by an ancient abbey whose bombing led Berlin to assail pilots from Keokuk and Cambridge as savages, although they also were - some of them -American Catholics, who knew what they were bombing and why.

I remember the day two sailors tried serenely to drive from Salerno to Rome along Highway 6 and had to be rescued from their shot up vehicle by a disgusted infantry patrol. In those days the Germans were discouraging patrols by planting plastic mines that, if stepped on, would blow a man's leg off below the knee. If a fellow tripped on one, and fell on another with his hands or face, it was rather worse.

The Germans also sat in rock-covered steel pill boxes from which they could rake Highway 6. This was true both at Cassino and in the flank posts guarding the push from Anzio. The continuous death of stalemate lasted for weeks.

That stalemate never was broken until after I left Italy, returned home, and later went into Normandy.

All during the war - and the years since-I wondered what it would be like to drive along Highway 6 from Salerno through Naples into Rome. I had heard there was great Allied cemetery at Anzio, that the town and abbey of Cassino were rebuilt, and the road lay smooth again.

As our plane landed in Rome, my wife, Frances, who can't tell a map of San Francisco from a drawing of a dinosaur, said:

"Now be sure to show me where you were in the war."

But our time was so short that I had to decide whether to drive down that lonely Highway 6, where lonely thousands perished, or show her something fresh and new to both of us in exactly the opposite direction-Venice.

And so we saw Venice. I guess I'll always be a coward

Let others speed in comfort and safety on Highway 6 between Naples and Rome. So many I knew in wartime died to make it free. Why should I finish the journey now that they can never make? It is enough that others can, worrying mildly about how much gasoline it takes rather than how much blood it cost so terribly few remember years ago.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON--There is more evidence of increased public interest in the schools of the nation today than ever before, and more active participation of parents and laymen in the school program.

The U.S. Office of Education says some 288,000 men and women are serving on local school boards throughout the U.S., taking on the legal responsibilities for school planning, employment of teachers and supervision of school funds. These groups have sought to pool their experiences through the National School Board Association.

"Besides the official agencies, voluntary citizens groups are in operation, either at the request of a school board or more often because lay people themselves want to help improve school opportunities for their children," says U.S. Commissioner of Education Earl J. McGrath.

Some 1,700 such citizens groups in 47 states have kept in contact with the National Citizens Commission for the Public Schools, a voluntary organization which serves as a channel for the exchange of ideas and experiences.

Another voluntary organization, with more than 6½ million members, the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, is bringing school and community closer together.

Continued team work between an interested public and the schools is being urged during American Education Week with the aims, achievements and needs of the schools being reviewed in a nationwide open-house and other special programs.

This is a good opportunity for the public to take an inventory of its vast investment in its youth, says the sponsors of the program. These include the Office of Education and the Congress of Parents and Teachers, the American Legion and the National Education Association (NEA). The NEA is a national professional organization of educators. Financed by its half-million teacher members, it was founded in 1857 to promote the welfare of pupils and teachers, to advance the science and practice of education and build strong community relationships.

"The problems of today's schools are the problems of all who seek to hold the line for freedom and to build a better America and a better world," say sponsors of American Education Week. "This is a good time to review the history, purposes and achievements of our schools; consider their needs and problems; emphasize their role in national security and strengthen them for the long pull."

Visit Of German Teachers Near End

By MURIEL SHOTWELL
Reflector Staff Writer

"Your people and my people become friends," said two German teachers as they expressed what they thought the most important factor of the Teacher Exchange Program between countries.

With an eye on the educational system of towns in the United States, the two visiting teachers will wind up a visit in Greenville Tuesday after studying the communities' schools, churches, court system and various agencies.

The teachers, Miss Marie Steinoff and Miss Ursula Koehler, are part of the teacher exchange program in which the United States' Office of Education is bringing certain teachers to America to study how the democratic form of government operates a school.

Miss Steinoff, from Essen, and Miss Koehler, of Cuxhaven, are the second and third German teachers to visit Greenville in the past year.

Both of the teachers agreed that school conditions in this community are superior to their schools insofar as buildings and materials with which children may work. Miss Steinoff, an elementary school teacher, said class loads in Germany averaged between 50 and 65 pupils, and there were about 500 children to every eight teachers.

Miss Koehler, a high school teacher, said her classes were smaller since students had to pay a fee to go to high school. She said some dropped out of school before they reached high school, because of the fee.

Both teachers were impressed by the informality of relationship between teachers and pupils, though they said German schools were getting away from the formal approach. "In the old days things were very different", they said, "but the new program in Germany is built around the fact that a child is an individual"

Another feature that both teachers said impressed them was that here all children are treated the same and have the same opportunity. "Rich and poor sit side by side, and work together", they said.

J.H. Rose, superintendent of the city schools, explained to them the system in practice for teaching "slow" children after the teachers said they felt gifted pupils were somewhat handicapped by having to stay with the slower groups. "In Germany we have a helping school' where slow children are taught," they said.

After visitng towns in Colorado and Michigan, the teachers said they found the Greenville schools "best"; and were impressed with with the neatness and "greenness" of Greenville.

Russian Army's Might Is Told In Publication

By W. A. RYSER
United Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON (UP) —The Soviet has 215 divisions and its air force 20,000 operational planes, the influential monthly magazine "The Twentieth Century," said Saturday.

Red Army forces were broken down into 110 infantry and cavalry divisions, 65 armored and 40 artillery and anti-aircraft divisions spread across Eastern Europe and Asia.

Of the total air force, some 10,000 fighters, light bombers and reconnaissance planes subordinated to the army were considered the most important. "Well over half" are modern jets as the well known MIG-15 and the Tupolev twin jet.

The estimate and evaluation of Soviet land and air forces were contained in two articles in the magazine's special issue devoted to the 35th anniversary of the Russian revolution.

A review of the army was written by J. M. MacKintosh, former British liaison officer with the Red Army and a specialist on Soviet military affairs. Asher Lee, a former RAF intelligence officer and author of a book on the Soviet air force, wrote the other.

"At the moment," Lee said, "the Soviet tactical air arm is equipped with jet planes that can compete technically with anything the West can put against them."

On the other hand, he said, Soviet air defense has not yet reached the desired standard of efficiency despite great progress made in radar and other warning equipment. Lee said defense of the Yalu power plants in Korea by Soviet radar and signal experts and Soviet guns and planes "has been largely ineffective."

"Russia still has no force of strategic bomber aircraft equal to the American B-36 in range and striking power," he wrote, but added, "it is certain that Russia will produce squadrons of long-range jet bombers in the late 1950's."

MacKintosh said:

"The bulk of the Soviet army's strength lies in the rifle divisions and in the motorized divisions, which number about 11,000 men each and usually contain three rifle regiments, a regiment of artillery and an armored regiment of 50 tanks.

He said tank divisions usually have 10,500 men organized into three or four tank regiments and a motorized regiment, while artillery and anti-aircraft divisions have about 6,000 men.

MacKintosh said Russia has 42 divisions in Eastern Europe, 27 of them armored. Germany has 32, Poland four and Austria, Hungary and Romania two each, he said, but there are no Soviet troops in Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria or Albania.

Inside the Soviet Union, MacKintosh believed 40 divisions with six army headquarters are deployed in the Far East, 50 to 60 stationed in Russia west of a line drawn from Leningrad to Rostov and the remaining 60 or so concentrated in the Caucausus and in Soviet Central Asia.

Demos Narrow GOP Majority In House To Eleven

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Democrats narrowed the Republican majority in the House in the next Congress to 11 today, with the victory of a Democratic congressional candidate in Florida.

After trailing by about 2,000 votes in the counting of absentee ballots, William C. Cramer R) conceded defeat by Courtney W. Campbell D) in the race in Florida's First District.

With the decision in the Florida race, there are still three undecided House contests. Democrats are leading in two of the races — in Washington and Idaho — and the Republican candidate has a slight lead in an undecided race in California.

The Republicans presently hold 221 seats in the next House, the Democrats 210. There is one Independent and one vacancy.

Britain Orders Garrison Home

Informed sources said it was an economy move closely related to the withdrawal announced Friday of the British army, navy and air attaches from the embassy in Washington.

The evacuation of the 154 officers and men on Bermuda will be completed by next May.

TEEN TALK

(Dear Judy)

AP Newsfeatures

You can give some fine presents to the men in your life—Dad, brother and best boyfriend — by investing a few pennies from your piggy bank and a little time and energy.

These gifts are made with your own little hands, but they don't need to look homemade. Suggestions from your local sewing center will help you along with the project. All you need is Mom's sewing machine for a few hours to whip up a batch of pretty stitches that will spell glamor on Christmas morning. Here are some ideas, with directions on how to put them together:

1. DENIM COVERS FOR FATHER'S WOOD GOLF CLUBS

These could be made in solid denim with companion color striped denim for trim.

To make these covers, first cut back and front sections so that each section is 10 inches long and 5 inches wide. Curve top of both sections and taper towards lower edge so that sections are approximately 4 inches wide at that point. Next cut numerals 1,2,3, and 4. Applique numerals to front sections with your sewing machine zig-zagger attachment, which makes it unnecessary to turn under raw edges. Next thread bobbin of sewing machine with double length of elastic thread. Use mercerized thread on spool pin. Loosen lower tension to accommodate thickness of elastic thread. Upper tension remains normal. Approximately 4 inches from lower edge of both front and back sections, run two rows of stitching. This will insure fit of cover when it is slipped over the wood. Make a cording for joining front and back sections by placing narrow cord in bias strip ½ inch wide. Length of strip is the measurement around outside of sections to be joined. Thread bobbin with mercerized thread. Insert cording between back and front sections so that right sides of covers face each other and all raw edges are on inside. Stitch in place with cording foot attachment so that you can stitch close to the cord. If you wish to place a pull tab at top of cover make it of bias strip and insert with cording. If you use a pompom you can stitch it on when covers are completed. Bind lower edge of covers with bias strip.

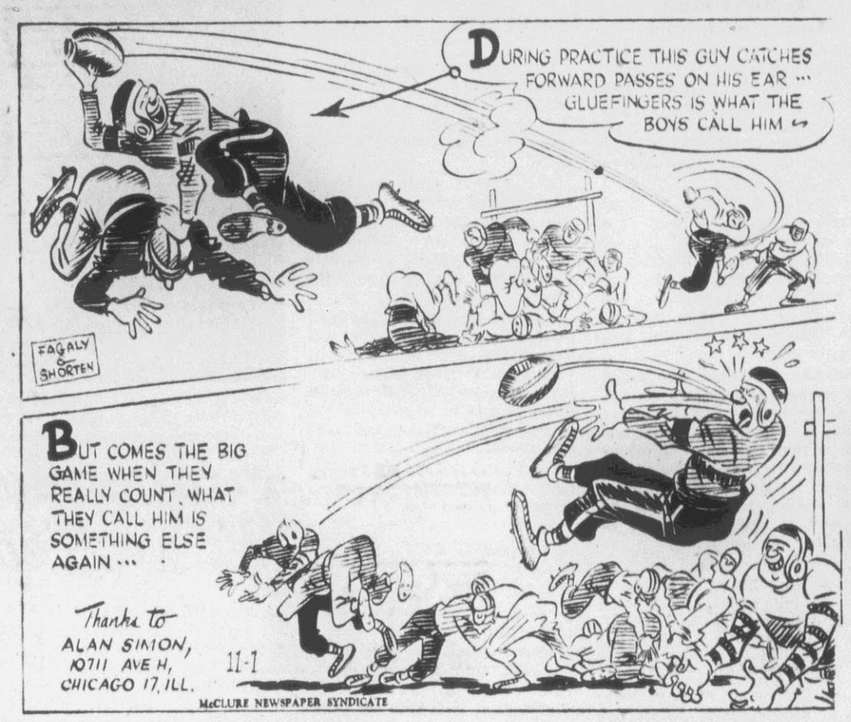

ROAD MAP FOLDER FOR HOT-ROD FAN Measure off a standard road map folded of course) and cut striped denim for outside cover, solid denim for lining and crinoline stiffening to one and one-half times the length of the map plus one-quarter seam allowance. For width, cut to double the width of the folded map plus two and one-quarter inches which include fold over and seam allowance.

Next step is to baste crinoline to wrong side of the striped denim used for outside cover. Then baste plain fabric used for lining to the striped out-side covering, so that the right sides of the two fabrics face each other. Now on your sewing machine, starting at bottom left hand corner, seam three sections together all the way around to right hand bottom corner. Turn cover right side out through opening along lower edge. Turn raw edges under the slip stitch place.

Starting at lower edge, fold entire width of the fabric up to where it forms a pocket of adequate depth to accommodate road maps. Run a line of stitching down center of the road map folder to get a pocket on each side. In order to anchor the finished side seams of pocket to finished side seams of pocket to finished side seams of cover, use an overcast stitch in a decorative thread. Continue stitching around sides, top and bottom. Attach tapes to each side to tie cover together.

SOMETHING FOR THE SPORT MAN—You can adapt the "shoe man You can adapt the "shoe bag" idea to a hanging container for his beloved sports equipment. Pocket compartments should be measured off to fit his needs. Shallow pockets attractively bound with contrasting bias tape may hold golf or tennis balls, baseballs, even a large pocket may be included for a football. Other pockets can hold baseball bat and glove, tennis racquet, sports shoes. If you're really creative, small appliques can be made to designate the contents of the various pockets.

county of Sampson had "gone Democrat" in Tuesday's election for the first time in 60 years. Occasionally within that period Sampson has had a few Democrats in the courthouse, but it has never been free from Republican "trouble." This year every Democrat on the county ticket was elected except the Register of Deeds. Mrs. Elsie Crumpler, Republican incumbent, was re-elected largely because, say the Democrats, she has done a good job; she has a small son who is a polio victim and she needs the salary. "Since 1892 I have looked forward to the time when we Democrats would 'clean out the court house', said Mr Graham. Almost identical sentiment was expressed by Associate Justice Jeff D. Johnson Jr., of the Supreme Court, who was re-elected for a full eight year term Tuesday. The judge cannot go as far back as Graham in his recollection of fighting Republicans, but he yields to none in his zeal for that activity. To these statements by older men, YDC leader Jim Chestnutt adds the assurance that "we're gonna keep it that way."

Rare Books And Manuscripts To Be On Display

Students at East Carolina College and residents in the Greenville area will be able to see a collection of rare books and manuscripts that date back to 3500 years before Christ when The Magic Carpet in Wheels visits the campus November 13 and 14.

Many examples of the history of man's efforts to record his progress in writing and printing are contained in the exhibition, which will be shown in front of the East Carolina Library.

Wendell W. Smiley, East Carolina librarian, completed arrangements for the showing here through the publishers of The Book of Knowledge, who are sending this and a companion exhibition on a coast-to-coast tour.

"The rare books, illuminated manuscripts and authentic examples of ancient writing contained in the exhibition show a complete history of the written and printed work for more than four centuries," Mr. Smiley states.

North Dakota's Southern Tests On Certified Seed Potatoes

Show Remarkable Increase In Yields

Growers who use home grown seed year after year find that plants gradually become smaller and produce less due to the presence of the virus diseases. This general stunting is commonly called "running out" of potato yield and growth. The plants do not die, but show various symptoms of stunting, rolling of leaves, and mottling.

The difference in growth and yield between the northern grown certified and homegrown seed has been strikingly shown in the North Dakota State Seed Department's test plots at Homestead, Florida where northern seed potatoes were planted. There was marked improvement in yields.

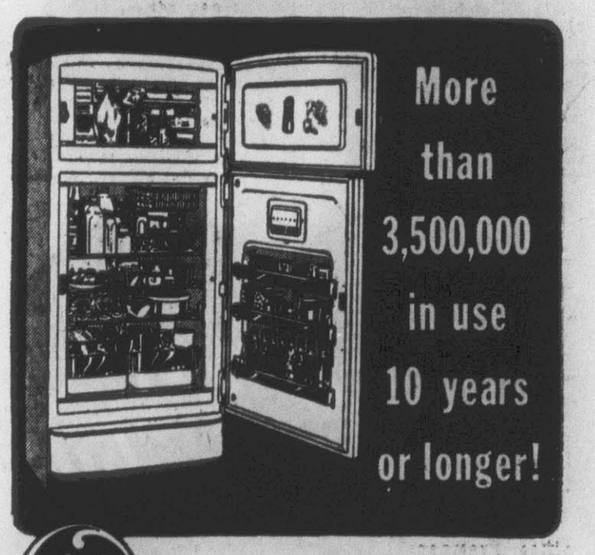

North Dakota has long cool summers so that potatoes are planted later, hence are harvested later. They have a shorter time to spend in storage before planting time. North Dakota certified potatoes have been inspected during the growing season and are highly free from diseases, particularly the virus disease which result in stunting plant growth and decreased yields.

It will pay growers whether commercial producers or home gardners to demand North Dakota grown certified seed potatoes. If you secure North Dakota seed locally, write State Seed Department, College Station, Fargo, North Dakota.

Upsets Have Bowl Officials Stymied

By JOHN GRIFFIN
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP) — Saturday's shock wave of upsets left bowl officials groping in the dark today in their attempts to line up teams for their New Year's Day football games.

The chief casualties were Oklahoma, Kansas, Villanova, and Penn State, whose defeats left officials of the Sugar Bowl and Cotton Bowl wondering where to turn next. And Purdue's tie by Minnesota threw the Big Ten's Rose Bowl berth into greater confusion.

Here's how the three biggest bowls look now:

Rose Bowl: UCLA and Southern Cal are heading for a showdown title game Nov. 22 for the Pacific Coast crown and bowl berth. Both are unbeaten; UCLA is idle this week while Southern Cal faces Washington. Purdue (3-0-1) meets Michigan (3-1-0) in the Big Ten's top game this week while Wisconsin (3-1-0) meets Indiana. Each of the three will then have one conference game left.

Sugar Bowl: Officials have been hopeful of landing Oklahoma or Maryland as rival for already-accepted Georgia Tech. Oklahoma would have to ask Big Seven permission, since that league has a bowl ban. Maryland is blocked by a similar Southern Conference rule, and apparently won't ask for permission.

Notre Dame, rising up for two fourth-period touchdowns, handed Oklahoma a 27-21 defeat Saturday. But there's still a chance the Sooners could get the bid if they obtain permission. Otherwise, the bid may go to Tennessee or another Southeastern Conference school. Villanova's chances were dimmed by a 42-6 walloping from Tulsa.

Cotton Bowl: Penn State bowed out with its 25-7 loss to Syracuse. Tennessee is also under consideration here for the visiting team slot, with Alabama and Mississippi also being mentioned. In the Southwest Conference, Texas can clinch the berth by beating Texas Christian this week.

The various conference races today shaped up like this:

Big Ten: In addition to Purdue-Michigan, other games this week are Illinois-Ohio State, Indiana-Wisconsin, and Northwestern-Iowa.

PCC: In addition to Southern Cal-Washington, other games are Oregon State-Idaho, California-Washington State, and Stanford-Oregon.

Southeastern: Georgia Tech 4-0 meets Alabama in the nationally televised game this week. Tennessee 3-0 faces Florida, while other games are Georgia-Auburn, Kentucky-Clemson, LSU-Mississippi State, and Tulane-Vanderbilt.

Southern: Duke still is 3-0, despite a surprise defeat by Navy in an outside game. This week the Blue Devils and Wake Forest, also 3-0, collide in a game that could mean the title.

Big Seven: Two big contenders, Missouri (4-0-0) and Oklahoma (3-0-1) clash this week while Colorado meets Kansas State in the only other game.

Ivy: Yale is 4-0 and Penn 3-0. This week Yale meets Princeton (4-1) while Penn is outside against Army. Other league games are Brown-Harvard and Cornell-Dartmouth.

Southwest: In addition to Texas-TCU, other games are Arkansas-SMU, and Texas Aggies-Rice.

Four intersectional games of note are on tap this week: Mississippi-Maryland, Boston College-Xavier, Nebraska-Minnesota, and Santa Clara-Utah.

Michigan State, the nation's No. 1 team, which stretched its winning streak to 22 games by whipping Indiana, 41-14, collides with Notre Dame this week. The Fighting Irish will seek revenge for last year's defeat.

Other leading games Saturday include: Boston U.-NYU, Houston-Baylor, Navy-Columbia, Penn State-Rutgers, Pitt-North Carolina State, Syracuse-Colgate, and Temple-Fordham.

Pirates Gain 19-19 Tie With Hatters

Gay's 88-Yard Run Sparks Pirate Rally

East Carolina Scores Twice In Last Six Minutes Of Game To Ruin Homecoming For Stetson Alumni

By JIMMY ELLIS
Reflector Sports Writer

DELAND, FLORIDA—The Stetson Hatters settled for a 19-19 deadlock in their Homecoming game Saturday afternoon when East Carolina College's Pirates went overboard in the last six minutes of the game to salvage two touchdowns and an extra point.

A noisy and previously happy homecoming crowd of some 7,500 were stunned into almost complete silence by the speed with which the Pirates made their comeback. They had been all set to celebrate a 19-6 victory when the Pirates stole the game right out from under their collective noses.

Actually, the fellow who pulled the biggest steal of them all was Paul Gay, the Pirates' 155-pound halfback from Wilson. Gay tallied the third East Carolina touchdown with three minutes and ten seconds remaining in the game after snaring a Hatter punt on his own 12 and returning it 88 yards for the touchdown.

Gay had gotten loose when he faked to Emo Boado so effectively that all the Hatters went after Boado. Gay went up the right sidelines practically by himself and agled across field at the 40 yard line. He ran into his most serious opposition at midfield but a key block by Bobby Thomas enabled him to score untouched. Hawk Grissom added the extra point which tied the game up.

Touchdown Nullified

All the scoring came in the second half of the game. The Pirates had gotten close to pay dirt in the first quarter but officials ruled that a touchdown pass from Dick Cherry to Dwight Shoe was incomplete when Shoe stepped outside the end zone to grab the pass.

Though the first half was without scoring, both teams did enough work in the last 30 minutes to more than make up for the first half's shortage.

The Hatters started the ball rolling on their first series of downs after the second half kickoff.

The Pirates had received the kickoff but any immediate scoring hopes they had vanished when Rod Lonsinger intercepted one of Cherry's passes and returned it to the East Carolina 36.

Bobby Marks, a tough 155-pounder from Fort Lauderdale, Florida, started the drive by smashing for 14-yard off-tackle. Bill Odum, Willi Han, and Marks alternated in carrying the ball from the 22 to the four in four plays. Han missed a chance to score through the middle and Marks was stopped short on a drive off-tackle before Han was given a pitchout around left end for the touchdown. Bill Proctor's kick was good and the Hatters were riding high with ten minutes remaining in the quarter.

The Pirates rammed through their first touchdown on a 88-yard drive which started with the after-touchdown kickoff by Stetson. Gay ran the kickoff back out to the 34 where Buddy Cannady and Illard Yarborough picked up four yards between them in two tries at the line. Gay was then pressed back into service on a reverse which was good for 27 yards and a first down on Stetson's 35 yard line.

Two tries at the line netted two yards and the Pirates went to the air for their yardage. Sandy Siler rifled a perfect strike to Illard Yarborough on the 20 and then followed up with another such pitch to Dwight Shoe on the 10.

Pirates Score

Stetson jumped the gun on the first play from that point and were penalized to the five. They got the yardage back two plays later, however, when Jerry Hopkins trapped Gay back of the line. A pass from Siler to Gay was too long as was a Siler pass to Bobby Hodges but the Bucs got a first down on the one-yard line anyway when officials ruled that Doug MacLennan tripped Hodges in the end zone. The injured Claude King was called into the game to ram the ball across for the Bucs.

The Hatters retained a slender 7-6 lead when Grissom's kick was blocked by Guido Tambur.

The two teams slugged it out for the remainder of the third quarter without any further scoring but they got right back into the point-making business as soon as the fourth period started.

The Hatters were the boys who did the early fourth quarter scoring when they wrapped up a pair of TD's in the first half of the period.

The first six-pounder came with 11 minutes remaining and culminated a 52-yard march which started after a Buc fumble had been recovered by Del Reinke of Stetson.

Two Quick TD's

Jerry Gallagher did most of the ball carrying on that drive and finally ended it by plunging over from four yards out. Proctor's kick was no good but it looked as if the Hatters were not going to need it when they roared back for another touchdown right after the kickoff.

The after-touchdown kick had been returned to the 23 by Jim Stanley but the Pirates ran only two plays before one of Siler's passes was intercepted by Tambur on the Pirate 25 and returned to the 12.

Han took a pitchout around right end for three yards and Jerry Gallagher hit the line for two more to set up a seven yard scoring run by Bobby Marks. Proctor missed the extra point again but the Hatters had a 13 point lead with eight minutes of play remaining.

The Pirates called on their passing attack again to close the point gap to seven little points. The only running plays in the entire drive came on Harold O'Kelley's kickoff return to the 26 and a play on which Siler was dropped for a six-yard loss when he couldn't find a receiver.

After that, the passing attack rolled with a regularity that was comforting to Coach Jack Boone and the hundred or so Pirates supporters who had made the long trip to DeLand.

The first Siler toss was incomplete but his second was to Bobby Hodges and good for a 24-yard gain. Two quickies to Jack Britt moved the ball to the Stetson 25 and then Siler found Yarborough all alone on the left and fired the ball to him. Yarborough scored easily but the stage was set for a tie when Grissom's kick sailed off wide to the right.

Gay's long touchdown run came exactly three minutes later when the Hatters kicked from their own 42 after their ground attack had finally been halted by East Carolina's defensive unit.

If the Pirates had a really outstanding individual performer in the "upset" then the honors would have to go to Shoe. The All-Conference and All- State senior end from Salisbury strengthened his bid for Little All-America honors with a brilliant performance that had both East Carolina

Bowl Bid For Bucs?

East Carolina College athletic officials would offer no formal comment today on a report that they had been approached by sponsors of a January 1 bowl game.

The Pirates were reportedly given "feelers" after their 19-19 tie with Stetson Saturday afternoon. Neither Head Coach Jack Boone nor Athletic Director N. M. Jorgenson would confirm or deny the report.

A formal invitation to any bowl game will depend upon the outcome of the game Saturday night with West Virginia Tech. After the bid is extended—if it is—it would have to be approved by the school's administration and athletic council.

The Pirates have a 5-2-2 record for the season. They have never played in a bowl game.

Stokes Divides Cage Thrillers

Janie Cherry, Bear Grass high scoring forward, rang up a field goal with only 20 seconds remaining in the game to give Bear Grass a 43-41 win over a stubborn Stokes High girls team Friday night.

After trailing throughout the game, the Stokes girls came to life in the third quarter and rallied to tie up the score. From that point on the game was a nip and tuck affair, each team matching basket for basket until Cherry's game winning goal.

High scorers for the Stokes girls were Jane Bullock with 14 points and Sherry Warren with nine. Cherry topped the Bear Grass attack with 14 points and Pat Bowen was runnerup with 11.

The Stokes High boys hit an early season stride and bombarded the basket in a runaway 73-28 victory over the Bear Grass boys.

Jack Warren was top point getter with 34, followed by Carl White with 22. George Roberson led Stokes floor play.

Bobby Rawls topped the Bear Grass attack with eight points.

Pirates Play Strong W. Va. Team Nov. 15

A group of individually big and fast football players have been molded into the powerful football unit which will oppose the East Carolina College Pirates next Saturday night in their final football game of the 1952 season.

West Virginia Tech, a terror in West Virginia's small college football circles, bring a season's record of five wins and two losses into their game with the Pirates. They've lost only to Emory and Henry and Morris-Harvey, a pair of perennially powerful teams in small college circles.

The Golden Bears, coached by Don Phillips, rolled to a 7-1 record in 1951. The year before that, they had a 6-3-1 record. All of the games were against top-notch competition.

Much of the success of the 1952 team can be handed to quarterback John Grossi, a 155-pound senior, and fullback Delmar Dixon, a 170-pound freshman fullback. Dixon is one of the rushing leaders in the tough West Virginia Conference as well as being the team's leading scorer. In his first 41 tries at the line, he gained an amazing 365 yards, an average of 8.1 yards per carry.

Teamed with Grossi and Dixon in the backfield are a pair of small, but fast, halfbacks. Walter Rapko, a 155-pound, is the team's second man in ground gaining and scoring. Moody Fisher, a 160-pound freshman, is the club's speed merchant and threat on wide runs.

The Golden Bears have made a clever combination of veterans and newcomers for their power this year. Most of the line is composed of senior members of the squad but reserve strength in the persons of freshman players has made the squad exceptionally dangerous.

The game between the Bears and East Carolina was arranged after the season got underway. The Bears were added to the Buc schedule after Cherry Point was forced to withdraw because of technical reasons. The contest will be the first meeting of the teams.

Coach Jack Boone and Stetson Coagh Jay Pattee almost wordless.

The 19-19 score mad the Pirates record for the season 5-2-2. Stetson's mark was rearranged to read two wins, two losses, and three ties. The Pirates will close their regular schedule Saturday night in College Stadium in Greenville with West Virginia Tech.

Farmville Ends Football Season

The Farmville Red Devils wound up their football schedule with a 12-12 tie at Scotland Neck Friday night. The Farmville team posted a 6 won, 2 lost, one tie, record for the season.

Grady Haynes, tall Scotland Neck speedster, gave his team a 12 point lead in the second quarter when he broke loose for a 70 yard touchdown sprint, then moments later intercepted a Farmville pass and dodged 40 yards for a score.

The Red Devils came raging back in the third quarter with Sigbe Boda taking a fake pass handoff from Charlie Fitzgerald and bulling straight up the middle for 45 yards to score.

Later in the third period Fitzgerald rifled a long pass to Jess Joyner who took it on the goal line and stepped over for the touchdown. The play covered 40 yards.

Jess Spencer, Jimmy Allen, Billy Shackleford, and Fitzgerald stood out on defense for the Red Devils.

Battle Over Grid Television Rages

PHILADLPHIA (UP)—The running feud between Bob Hall, chairman of the NCAA Television Committee, and Franny Murray, University of Pennsylvania athletic director, over the NCAA football television program was no nearer settlement today despite a televised debate between them on the issue.

Murray, the arch critic of controlled television, charged on the (NBC) American Forum of the Air program Sunday that controlled television of football games would lead to commercialization. Hall said the same thing about uncontrolled televising of grid contests.

Hall, who also is Yale's athletic director, charged that the millions of dollars paid to colleges with winning teams if televising the games was not controlled would create an "incentive to buy a team" and would result in a "football aristocracy" of 15 or 20 colleges.

Julius Boros To Receive Award

CHICAGO (AP)—The "Golfer of the Year" award will be presented tonight to Julius Boros, the 32-year-old Hungarian-born pro who came out of nowhere to become the leading money winner of 1952.

Boros was chosen for the honor in the annual poll of the Professional Golfers' Association.

A professional only three years, Boros captured the National Open championship last summer. He followed with a $25,000 coup in the "World Championship" meet at Chicago's Tam O'Shanter.

His winnings total more than $37,000.

The PGA held its annual meeting in Chicago over the weekend.

Ayden Loses 20-6 Game At Beaufort

Beaufort scored twice in the second quarter on runs by Wallace Cotter and added a third period tally on a 40 yard pass from Lewis Woodard to Gus Farlow, in defeating the Ayden Tornadoes 20-6 in a football game Friday night.

Randall Harrington scored the only Ayden marker in the second quarter on a nine yard rush through the line.

Gordon Hart and Mac Whitehurst were defensive standouts for the Tornadoes.

Rising Anti-Americanism In Europe Helps Reds; Friction Causes Many

By JACK V. FOX
United Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON (UP)—There is a rising sentiment of anti-Americanism in Europe these days, a feeling that comes pretty close to downright dislike of the Yanks.

Its symptoms are a scuffle in a Piccadilly bar, a speech by the French president, the dour Germans walking by the U.S. Post Exchange in Frankfurt, a defiantly uproarious welcome to Charlie Chaplin, a brush with Margaret Truman's bodyguards in Stockholm

The feeling fits in perfectly with Russia's newly intensified technique of splitting America from her allies, and many of the incidents are magnified—and some inspired by the Communists.

When a city the size of England's Manchester was declared off bounds to American soldiers, it brought home to thinking Britons and Americans alike the seriousness of a situation that has developed with the stationing of some 70,000 U.S. airmen in this little island.

That ban, now lifted, came after a clash between GIs and a gang of ruffians. But the trouble is far from confined to Manchester and the conduct of some young American soldiers has unquestionably rubbed the British the wrong way.

Heavily rouged, teen-age English girls, on the arms of GIs with far more money than British boys can spend, swarm through downtown London at night. One overzealous American sentry at London Airport recently held at gunpoint for an hour an airport employe who unthinkingly approached a U.S. military transport plane.

Another big American base is near the university town of Oxford and there Anglo-American relations are not too happy. GIs recently stopped cars on the highway near the base after some office equipment was discovered missing.

Two high-spirited American jet fighter pilots horned in on the Farnborough air show recently and stunted to the delight of the crowd who thought they were British and to the anger of authorities who felt it was a dangerous bit of unscheduled horseplay.

France recently has shown open resentment, more of U. S. policies than any personal clashes of peoples. Speaking at the dedication of a dam, President Vincent Auriol bluntly said his nation was distressed at an American attitude which overlooked bloody French sacrifices in Indo-China, played up to the Germans because France was thought to be weak-spined and interfered ignorantly in French colonial policy in North Africa.

The open-armed reception given Chaplin both in Britain and France was not nearly so much an honoring of the man and artist as it was a rebuff to what both countries think has been American kicking of the "underdog" — a role they feel they themselves are playing.

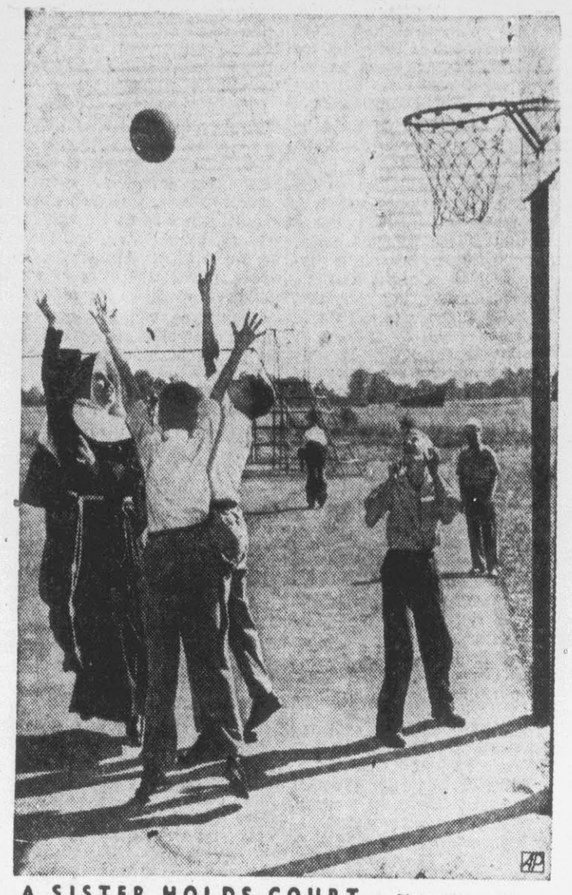

The 'touchiness of Italians was manifested when U. S. Adm. Robert B. Carney hastily summoned a press conference in Naples to soothe ruffled feelings over an American magazine article that suggested Italy was a "sphagetti" soft link in the European defense chain.

Most thinking West Europeans — leaders and people alike —deplore this anti-American tendency. They realize how much is at stake in the unity of the Old World with the New. But few will deny that it exists.

It was not helped by the level to which the American presidential campaign sank. Many Americans here experienced during that time an embarrassed reluctance by their hosts or guests to discuss a campaign in which the personal honor and finances of candidates for high office was brought into the public question.

The causes of this surge of anti-Americanism are many — the resentment of "poor relations" toward a rich uncle; the friction that always comes with the stationing of troops in a foreign land; a clash of cultures, natures and manners; a resentment at being caught in the giant nutcracker of the U. S. and Russia.

The solutions are not so apparent but the facts cannot be blinked away and many Europeans are worried that, with Communists gleefully egging it on, the situation may grow worse.

Struck Sergeant After Discharge

Kendricks, who paid the fine cheerfully, said "I wanted to thank him for six months of hell."

Meet At White House Recalls A Previous Failure

WASHINGTON (UP)—Old timers with long memories will wait for results of next week's White House conferences before throwing their hats in the air and shouting hooray for the president and the president-elect.

Mr. Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower tentatively are scheduled to meet here one week from today. The president-elect is eager and the President is anxious that representatives of the incoming Republican administration quickly be named to huddle with the Defense and State departments.

The President wants Eisenhower to assign a representative as soon as possible to help complete the government's tax and spending plans which will go to Congress in the form of the fiscal 1954 budget. They also want to talk face to face for the national good on overall problems.

Something like that was in the works just 20 years ago this week—and a nation cheered. In messages exchanged Nov. 12 and 14, 1932, President Herbert Hoover and President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt arranged a Nov. 22 White House meeting. It was a flop.

"They were obvious suspicious that we were trying to draw them into some kind of a trap," Mr. Hoover relates in his memoirs of that Nov. 22 meeting with FDR and his adviser, Raymond Moley.

Mr. Hoover sought Mr. Roosevelt's co-operation then on foreign policy, notably a united front to the growing European demand for further delay in paying World War I debts. Soon Mr. Hoover was seeking Mr. Roosevelt's aid in staving off a bank crisis, gold hoarding, and the accumulation of financial ills which ultimately closed the doors of every bank in the United States.

Repeated efforts failed to win Mr. Roosevelt's confidence or co-operation with what Mr. Hoover regards as disastrous results at home and abroad. As late as February, 1933, Mr. Hoover still was seeking FDR's aid to check a financial panic. But the president-elect was off on Vincent Astor's yacht. His aides said he would not consider such matters until the end of his cruise.

When he returned, Mr. Hoover wrote to FDR on Feb. 17. Six days passed before the acknowledgement came with an explanation that someone at Roosevelt headquarters had forgotten to mail it. By then the panic was on.

In his memoirs, Mr. Hoover relates that some of FDR's aides believed the president-elect either did not understand the situation or was determined to let things get worse as the Hoover administration ended "to gain for himself the entire credit for the rescue operation." Moley now believes that.

Next week's Truman-Eisenhower meeting promises much better for the country.

SHARKS ARE HUNTED

PORT SUDAN (AP)—An all-out campaign against sharks in Mohamed Gul area of the Red Sea is underway, but not for safety purposes. The drive is designed to produce revenue through the sale of fish meal and valuable shark oil. Recently a fisheries officer caught nine sharks in 40 minutes, including one that weighed 600 pounds, in these waters.

The nasturtium is a perennial but in cultivation it is treated as an annual.

Chapter Three

Dexter Hood's cabin was no different from the others in San Marcos, unless perhaps it was distinguished by the six mahogany Windsor chairs and the two marble-topped tables tha suggested a more gentle and spacious life lost somewhere in the past. For the rest, it was a piece with every other dwelling in the valley: a two-room log cabin with the logs chinked with mud and moss.

But there was a sense of peace beneath the overhanging eaves; a certain surety of dignity and decency and competent self-relia..ce. He felt it now, as he and Dex relaxed in the open breezeway, their minds and bodies pleasantly relaxed after the confusion and violence of the afternoon.

"I wouldn't be surprised but what Buck's done for." It was Dex's voice, almost imperdeptibly tinged with a certain grave satisfaction. "Between the shock an' th' loss of blood, it don't seem likely that he'd pull through."

"Suppose he doesn't. What then? Do they hang you in these parts for killing off people like Buck?"

"No. No, there won't be any trouble that way."

Clay relaxed with a deep sigh of relief. It hadn't been reassuring to consider the prospect of a murder charge here in Texas, just at the time he was trying to free himself of another in St. Louis.

"Of course," Dex hesitated as he sought the right, the cautious phrase, "Buck was tied in with a pretty rough crowd, an' they might not take it kindly."

"Lynch law?"

"Not those coyotes." The tip of his cigar glowed fiercely in the dark, and when he spoke again there was the harsh bitterness of long-held anger in his voice.

"They're like a bunch of snakes! Strikin' an' slippin' away so smooth an' quiet there ain't no way to fight back at 'em. They robbed my home an' land out from under me just like they've done with hundreds of others here in Texas, an' there's nothin' I can do about it! But there'll come a day, an' when it comes I'm aimin' to be there!"

Clay turned to stare at him in amazement.

"I don't understand you, Dex," he said slowly. "I had Buck sized up as a rough customer, but you sound like he was more than that."

Dex sat silent for so long that Clay shifted uneasily in his chair, wondering if his inquiry had overstepped the line the frontier drew between polite interest and insulting curiosity. But when Dex began to talk there was no resentment in his tone. Instead, there was only the weariness of a sorry tale told and retold so often that its meaning has been almost lost.

"I came here in 1830, Clay. That was five years before we shipped Santa Ana at San Jacinto and thought we were turnin' this into a decent country. Staked us out as pretty a piece of ground as you ever saw up on Cypress Bayoun, planted some corn an' cotton, built us a right good house, an' figgered that we was set forevermore."

He paused, remembering the hopes and plans, the high courage, and the mounting confidence of that new day in a bright new land.

"'After Texas got to be a nation, th' legislature confirmed all those old Mexican grants—an' then we did turn to! We figgered we really had it then an' we sailed in to sure enough make somethin' out of it."

"Martha worked harder than any field hand you ever saw—choppin' cotton in the hot sun all day long an' spinnin' an' weavin' in th' doin' it. We were doin' it for ourselves, an' so we'd have somethin' to hand on to our two boys when the time came. We were doin' fine. An' then one mornin' the sheriff rode up an' broke th' news to us that th' land we'd been sweatin' an' slavin' ove. didn't belong to us at all!"

"But, Dex! They couldn't just walk in and take your land away from you like that, could they?"

"Yes, they could!" The rough burr of rage growled in his voice again. "They could an' they did! Let me tell you how it was, Clay.

"I saddled up an' rode 'cross country clean to Houston. Th' capital was still down there in those days. I got me as smart a lawyer as there was in th' whole nation an' I was ready to fight 'em to a fare-ye-well, but it wasn't no use. Th' records coverin' my land, had been changed an' twisted an' turned an' tampered with till they showed that I never did have a good clear title to it. A feller by th' name of Morgan had filed on it six-eight months before I knew anything about it. He told me plainly he was fixin' to keep it, an' if I didn't get my family off of it God-awful quick there'd be some fellers out there to throw us off!"

"I went kinda crazy there for a little while, an' I was fixin' to kill him, but they drug me off an' that night two mean talkin' hombres came around to where I was stayin' an' told me if I was in Houston at noon th' next day I wouldn't live to see th' sun go down. I talked right big then, but by mornin' I knew I was done for, so I saddled up an' started home. We gathered up what stuff we could haul an' pack and brought it over here to San Marcos. There was still land to be had, but the best of it was gone, an the laws had been changed so that three hundred an' twenty acres was the most you could take up. We got that—for what little it's worth—an' th' policians down at th' capital are gettin' rich sellin' off my old place an' a couple of hundred more just like it that they stole the same way.

"They got the thing organized now they got their men all over th' nation. Buck was one of 'em here—him and a half-dozen others—put here so they could steal whatever was worth takin' an' scare or kill off anybody that put up a yell. I'm not grievin' none about Buck, Clay. I'm just wishin' there was a hundred of 'em dead tonight instead of one."

Abruptly Clay got to his feet and crossed the breezeway to the edge of the porch. He shook his head impatiently, denying to himself that it was any concern of his. If it had been a matter of physical combat or some demand upon the gold in his saddlebags, that would have been easy enough. But this was a tortuous affair of shabby double dealing, a pettifogging, scurvy intrigue conceived in knavery and brought to fruition in dinginess and darkness and corruption. It was no affair of his. In a few days he would ride away.

Christmas Wish, A Car, Fulfilled

MANCHESTER, England (UP)—Four-year old Jimmy Dolan visited Santa Claus at a department store here and asked for a "motor car" for Christmas.

"We'll see what we can do," Santa replied.

An hour later Jimmy was back. A hand fell on his shoulder. "This is the lad," a voice said.

Jimmy was the 40,000th child to visit the store's toyland. For a prize he was given a fine model motor car.

In the early Middle Ages, Christian countries counted March 25 the first day of the year.

'Met' Opens Tonight With All Old Glamor

NEW YORK (UP) —Glamor and music lovers polished their diamonds today in preparation for the start of a new opera season when the great gold curtain of the Metropolitan Opera House rises tonight.

Merchants, diplomats, movie moguls and old-guard New York society will rub elbows in the Met's horseshoe of boxes as the opening night cast sings out with Verdi's "La Forza del Destino."

There'll be a mob on the sidewalks to watch the celebrities and the furs and the jewelry.

Some standees will lean on the walls and the backs of red-plush seats, their feet already weary from waiting for standing room.

Nearly 3,500 persons will be paying record high prices to hear the classic melodies set to a story that could keep a good soap opera in plot for years.

Yugoslav soprano Zinka Milanov will be the opening night star—as she was in last season's opening "Aida" — with Leonard Warren playing her vengeful brother and Richard Tucker as her ill-starred lover.

Laura Castellano, of Rochester, N. Y., will make her Metropolitan debut as Curra, the heroine's maid.

Three hundred socialites will precede the opera with $6-a-plate roast beef dinner in Sherry's Opera House Restaurant—cheaper than all but the most precarious balcony seats.

The opera's general manager, Rudolph Bing, and Mrs. Bing will have as their guests Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, 3rd, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sherwood, and the United States U. N. delegate Warren Austin and Mrs. Austin.

As last year, opening night seats are not part of the usual subscription series, and eight-seat boxes have been sold for $450 and $300. Orchestra seats, $8 on other nights are $30, a boost of $5 over last year's prices. Other seats have had comparable increases. A bird's eye view from the far upper tier costs $2.25.

"La Forza del Destino" or "the Power of Destiny" is opening the gala Met season in new dress, 90 years to the day after its first performance at St. Petersburg, Russia, Nov. 10, 1862.

It comes back to the Metropolitan after an eight-year absence with new staging by Herbert Graf and settings and costumes by Eugene Berman. For pictorial purposes, it has been set a century earlier than the original 18th Century story.

The story starts off with Leonora's beloved, Don Alvaro, accidentally killing her father just before their planned elopment—he threw away his pistol so the marquis could skewer him with is sword, but the pistol went off when it hit the floor, killing the father instead.

Leonora and Don Alvaro flee separately in disguise, and Leonora's brother, Don Carlo, takes after them, also in disguise, to avenge his father's death. Years, wars and several mistaken identifies later, the plot winds up with Alvaro, now a monk, killing Carlo, and the dying Carlo killing Leonora, as she emerges from the cave in which she lived disguised as a hermit.

Champagne will flow at every intermission at the bar just behind the golden boxes.

Steak Is Served On Special Trip

NEW YORK (AP)—When Herbert Yates of Jackson Heights, N.Y., arrived in London from Amsterdam aboard a Royal Dutch Airlines plane, with a 3-pound steak in his possession, English customs officials admitted him but not the steak.

The Dutch airlines office here reported that officials informed Yates that only cooked meat could be imported. So Yates had the pilot take the steak back to Amsterdam on the return trip to make it more presentable.

The steak was cooked in the airport's commissary, put on the next plane bound for London where Yates was waiting for it.

Woman Has Read Bible 72 Times

POMA, Calif. (AP)--A 78-year-old Pomona woman has read the Bible through 72 times.

With good luck and a little more time, Mrs. Helen Burlingame hopes to read the Scriptures through as many times as she is years old.

It took Mrs. Burlingame 10 years to catch up with a Baptist missionary whose record was 70 readings. She lies down to study three to four chaters at a time, usually twice a day.

In 48 years of continuous Bible reading, the California woman has worn out only three Bibles.

Wheat-Eating Is Promoted In Asia

SINGAPORE (AP)—The government is trying to popularize the eating of wheat among the Singapore's rice-eating population, but diet experts doubt whether the scheme will be successful.

The recent postponement of rice talks at Bangkok between representatives of British Southeast Asia territories and the Thai government has given momentum to the plan. Thailand is Asia's biggest rice exporter.

Call For Curbs On Foreign Toys

MANILA (AP)—The Philippines banned the importation of all foreign toys last year except rubber balls but the plan seems to have flopped.

Local toy-makers are complaining that cheaper and better quality toys, mostly from Japan and the United States, are still flooding the local market. The local manufacturers called on the government to tighten import controls. They also seek to improve the quality of their own good and refrain from unfair trade practices among themselves.

STAMPEDE ELEPHANTS

SINGAPORE (AP)—R.A.F. bombings of Communist jungle hideouts have sent wild elephants stampeding into cultivated areas, the Malayan government reports.

Gen. Van Fleet Says Future Up To Staff Chiefs

SEOUL, Korea UP) — Gen. James A. Van Fleet, badgered for months by reports he would relinquish command of the U.S. Eighth Army for another assignment, said today his future is up to the Army chief of staff, Gen. J. Lawton Collins.

Van Fleet said a report he would be relieved within 60 days "is pure speculation." And a spokesman for the general added:

"General Collins is the only person who can answer any questions about Van Fleet's future."

The latest reports of Van Fleet's supposedly impending transfer came as the general's wife was en route to the Far East by ship. One source said she probably would make a brief trip to Korea. He said South Korean President and Mrs. Syngman Rhee had invited Mrs. Van Fleet to visit them.

Police are continuing their investigation.

Pay Reward For First Clue As To Slayers' Identity

In Mayor Lester D. Page's office Friday, the police department settled the matter of reward for the apprehension of the killers of Policeman Jesse E. Mills.

Acting Chief of Police Raymond T. Rogerson, upon request of G. R. Huffstetler of Greenville, who gave the first clue as to the identity of the slayers, returned to Harvey E. Mills, father of the slain policeman, his check for $1,000, tendered as part of a reward for the arrest of his son's slayers.

The police department had received $2,045.50 in donations for apprehension of the policeman's slayer. After turning back the $1,000 offered by the officer's father, acting Chief Raymond T. Rogerson turned over a check for $1,045.50 to Huffstetler as his reward for the clue that led to the arrest of the officer's slayers.

Mills was killed while in line of duty shortly after midnight on August 16. His slayers were given life sentences in the state penitentiary.

The Board of Aldermen, under its support of the Workmen's Compensation, turned over to Mrs. Jesse E. Mills, wife of the slain policeman, a check for $4,000. The board also gave her a check for $4,000 as guardian for her daughter, Geraldine, 12.

The city of Greenville is a self-insurer under the Compensation Act. Its rules provides that all beneficiaries shall share alike.

Literary Clubs Back Seal Sale

All literary clubs of Greenville have assigned committees to work for the success of the 1952 Christmas Seal Sale, according to an announcement made today by Mrs. W. L. Hall, chairman of the group.

The seal sale will be conducted from November 17 to Christmas and proceeds will be used to finance the association's TB prevention and control work during 1953.

Representatives from all clubs have been working during the past few weeks preparing letters, seals and educational leaflets for mailing.

Mrs. Hall said today that millions of people give each year to the crusade because they want to. "It's an idea that sprang from the people and is supported by the people," the chairman said. "No nationwide program has rested for so many years on so broad a base made up of millions of small gifts."

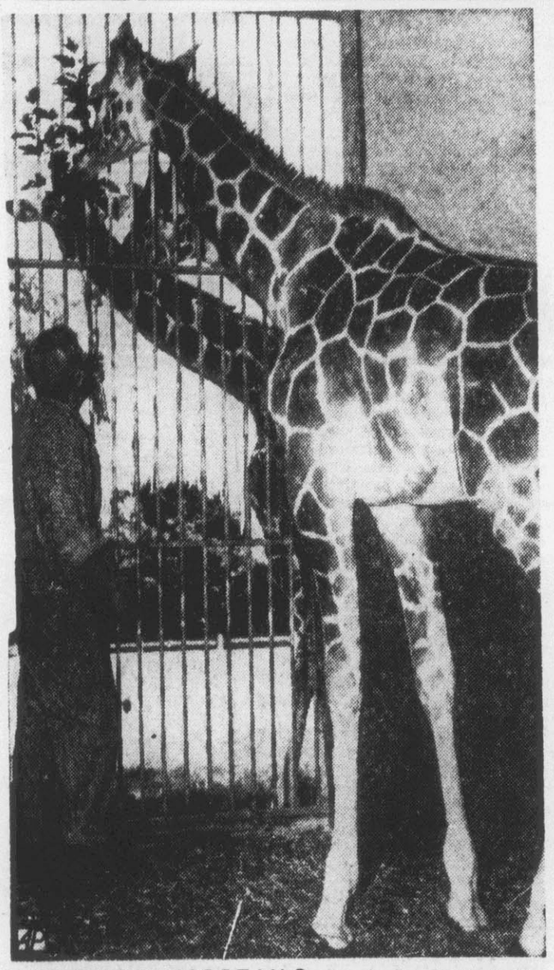

Tobacco Firm's Office Robbed

Searched House Yields 2 Gallons Of Illicit Booze

AYDEN — The man of the house was absent but his wife had the liquor in a closet.

J. M. Ward, Pitt County ABC officer, reported this morning that a week-end search of Elmer Jackson's house in the Bethany Church section near here netted officers two gallons of "white" whiskey.

The officer said Jackson was away from home but a search of the house turned up four half-gallon jars full of illegal spirits. The whiskey was hidden in a closet he stated.

Jackson was recognized to appear in County Court November 25, to answer charges of possession of non-tax-paid whiskey for the purpose of sale.

The raid was conducted by local ABC officers and L. E. Manning, Pitt deputy sheriff.

Played 'Football' With Explosive

LONDON (UP)— A London father pricked up his ears when his seven-year-old son told about playing football with a "metal ball" his playmates had found in a bombed-out building.

The father investigated and found a neighbor boy playing with the "ball" in the family kitchen. It was an unexploded 4.2-inch mortar bomb.

Shouted 'Heil Hitler' While Britons Honored War Dead

LONDON (UP) — A man was brought into court today on charges of shouting "Heil Hitler" when Queen Elizabeth II, Prime Minister Winston Churchill and thousands of other Britons stood in silent homage of Britain's war dead yesterday.

Writer James L. Battersby, 45, was charged with using insulting words at the ceremony at the Cenotaph, monument to the war dead. He was ordered held in custody pending a doctor's report.

Prosecutor John Averill told the Bow Street Court:

"This rather disgraceful incident arose as the chime of Big Ben finished striking 11 o'clock and, while everybody was silent, this man shouted, 'This is the day of English judgment. I speak the truth. English children must be saved. Praise God the eternal Christ. Heil Hitler.'"

Averill said Battersby then stood still and raised his arm in the Nazi salute.

Inspector Stephen Ratcliffe said the crowd was angry when he arrested Battersby and escorted him away.

"Bugles were being sounded and people shouted 'cut his throat' and 'string him up,'" Ratcliffe said.

Given Treatment For Neck Wound

Walter Williams, 40-year-old Negro, who was stabbed in the back of his neck by an "unknown assailant" Thursday night, did not go to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment until late Friday.

Several stitches were taken in the wound.

Police Patrolman Vernon C. Ackert said the man declined to reveal the name of his assailant.

Father Formally Charged In Rape

Greenville police have a warrant for Moses Moore 29-year-old Negro service station worker charging him with raping his nearly six-year old daughter.

Moore had not been arrested at noon today.

The child, Delzora Moore, was attacked at the family's home, 707 Wiliams street, near the Negro Cemetery, while her mother was at work Friday, Police Lt. M. E. Corbett stated. The child was seriously injured, the examining physician said.

Police said Moses has a police record. He has been in court numerous times on various charges twice, when the court changed the warrants from "peeping Tom" to trespassing.

Lt. Corbett quoted the child's mother as saying her daughter eldest of five children, was the victim of a similar attack by her father, when she was only three years old.
