Ike Winds Up Last Vacation

Leaves For Washington Tuesday; Heavy Round Of Appointments Follows

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UP)—Dwight D. Eisenhower winds up today the last real vacation he probably will enjoy before he becomes President of the United States in January.

The President-elect leaves here by plane Tuesday morning for Washington for a conference with President Truman. Later in the day he will continue to New York where he has scheduled a heavy round of appointments.

His Wednesday schedule in New York was announced Sunday by James A. Hagerty, his press secretary. First on the list was a joint conference with Sen. Robert A. Taft and Rep. Joseph W. Martin.

Then will follow meetings with other Republican Congressional leaders and with party chieftains, including Herbert Brownell Jr., former chairman of the GOP National Committee, and Gov. Sherman Adams of New Hampshire, two of Eisenhower's chief campaign strategists.

Eisenhower is scheduled to leave here by chartered airliner at 10:30 a.m. e.s.t. Tuesday, arriving in Washington at 1:10 p.m. He will be met at the Military Air Transport Service Terminal by Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge (R-Mass.), his chief emissary to the executive departments in arranging the transfer of the administration.

After a procession through downtown Washington, Eisenhower will proceed to the White House for his meeting with Mr. Truman. Lodge and Joseph M. Dodge, the Detroit banker who has been sitting in at budget discussions as Eisenhower's representative, will attend the meeting with him.

It was reported here that Eisenhower would approach his conference with the President with a determination to be friendly, but would make no promises. His aides pointed out that since his election he has stressed in his public statements that he does not want to become involved in the policy decisions of the outgoing administration.

After the White House meeting, Eisenhower, his wife and party will fly to New York. Hagerty said that in addition to the Wednesday meetings at Eisenhower's Commodore Hotel headquarters in New York there would be other important appointments Thursday and Friday. They will be announced later, he said.

Taft and Martin, the former general's first callers Wednesday, will discuss plans for the GOP legislative program. Hagerty said Taft is chairman of the powerful Senate Republican Policy Committee, and Martin is in line for the speakership of the House.

Sen. Styles Bridges (R-N.H.) and Sen. Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.) are other callers listed. On Wednesday, Hagerty said that Wiley, a member of the U. S. delegation to the United Nations General Assembly, wanted to discuss pending matters before the U.N. Wiley is slated to become chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Bridges was expected to discuss "the inauguration and fiscal matters," according to Hagerty. The Eisenhower's went to the Reid Memorial Presbyterian Church Sunday and heard the Rev. Massey Moti Helitz "bounce" the "disobedient Ku Klux Klan" for trying to hide its prejudices behind religious motives.

When he left the church, Eisenhower told the pastor it was a fine sermon. "I like that shooting from the hip," Eisenhower said.

POSTAL SHAKE-UP? BOSTON (UP)—The incoming Republican administration will restore two-day-a-week home postal deliveries and lengthen the hours of business at post offices, according to President William Donohoe of the National Association of Letter Carriers.

Gibbs Takes Oath As New Chief Of Police

Former SBI Agent S. G. Gibbs (left), is shown this morning as he was officially sworn in as Greenville's new chief of police. Recorder's Court Judge Charles H. Whedbee administered the oath of office before Mayor Lester D. Page, members of the city's board of aldermen and officers of the Greenville Police Department. Gibbs became one of the youngest men ever to serve as chief in the long history of the city's organized police department. (Reflector Photo by C.L. Perkins, Jr.)

New Chief Of Police Sworn In Today At Brief Ceremony

Gibbs Meets In Special Session With Mayor, Aldermen And Police Force, To Outline Policies; Mutual Cooperation Pledged

By JESS POINDEXTER Reflector City Editor

A two-week vacancy has been filled, and the city of Greenville now has a permanent chief of police.

In brief, appropriate ceremonies at the city hall today, S. G. Gibbs joined a long, innumerable line of local police chiefs when he was sworn as the new head of Greenville's police department.

The 30-year-old former SBI Agent took the oath of his new office from Recorder's Court Judge Charles H. Whedbee shortly after 10 o'clock this morning.

In so doing, Gibbs became the youngest local chief in more than 50 years, and possibly the youngest ever to serve in that capacity during almost a century of the department's organization.

Before administering the oath of office, Judge Whedbee praised Gibbs highly for his work in law enforcement circles and stated that the city is indeed fortunate to obtain a man of Gibbs' stature for the office.

"Gibbs is a student of his chosen profession and since I have known him I have found him to be of unusually high caliber, both in training and sincerity," the judge said. He has a higher degree of training than men usually available for such a position."

Immediately following the official ceremony, Gibbs was congratulated by Mayor Lester D. Page, members of the board of aldermen and officers of the Greenville police force. He is replacing Guy C. Langston, who resigned November 1 to enter other business.

Minutes later, Gibbs met in special session with the mayor, the board of aldermen and the entire police department to present his inaugural speech. In the short address Gibbs outlined tentative plans for the department's operation under his forthcoming administration.

The new chief said he has been a native of Greenville for six years during his tours of duty with the State Highway Patrol and the N. C. Department of Investigation. "I like it here in Greenville," he stated. In fact, that was a deciding factor in my application for the job.

No Factions "As long as you do your work well you will receive credit for it," Gibbs told officers. "Make certain you are right in every instance and I will always give you my undivided support, whether the defendant be rich or poor, black or white."

Gibbs emphasized the fact that factional groups and cliques within the department will not be tolerated under his administration. "But so long as you work with me and carry out the assignments given you, neither of you need fear for a job."

Intent-To-Kill Is Charged Spouse

Wounded Woman Says He Was Playing 'Russian Roulette'

By CHESTER WALSH Reflector Staff Writer

Greenville police are holding without privilege of bail Archie Lee Smith, 32-year-old Negro tobacco worker, on the charge of "secret assault with intent to kill" his wife, Mary M. Smith, 22, in a "game of Russian roulette" on Boyd avenue Saturday night.

Police quoted the woman as saying, "He told me to walk ahead of him, that he was going to play the game of Russian roulette. While walking in front of him," she added, "a gun fired. A bullet struck me in the back and I fell and couldn't move."

At Pitt Memorial Hospital a surgeon stated that a pistol bullet had lodged near her spine and paralyzed her. He recommended that she be taken to Duke Hospital in Durham.

Police arrested the woman's husband at the hospital. At first, they stated, Smith told them a stranger had shot his wife with a shotgun.

On further questioning, Smith admitted "playing the game of Russian roulette."

He was locked up pending outcome of his wife's condition. Lt. M. E. Corbett and Detective M. E. Corbett are investigating the shooting.

Byrd found the man's pistol near a pile of lumber in the 1100 Block of Boyd avenue. There was only one shell in it and that had been fired.

The victim was in a critical condition at Duke Hospital today, police reported.

Offers $40,000 For Hour's Work WASHINGTON (UP)—Roger Brown, head of a New York recording company, offered President Truman $40,000 today for one hour's work after he leaves the White House Jan. 20. Brown said he would pay Mr. Truman that amount if he would record four of his own piano favorites. It would take about an hour, Brown said.

PROCEDURE REVERSED TREVISO, Italy (UP)—Frances Carniato told police he was riding home for work on a bicycle when a woman bandit waving a gun halted him. Carniato said she took his wallet, kissed him firmly on the mouth and then pedaled away on his bicycle.

AEC Seemingly Confirms H-Bomb Has Been Tested

Chest Chairman Says Goal Will Be Quickly Reached

Lee Predicts $14,000 Goal Will Be Attained By End Of This Week

Advance planning for staging the 1953 Community Chest drive this week has been completed and W. W. Lee, drive chairman, said the goal of $14,000 would be reached by the end of the week.

The drive will get underway tomorrow with a kick-off breakfast for workers in the Special Gifts Division. Tom Webb, special gifts chairman, said more than 50 workers in the division will begin canvases of the business district tomorrow. The breakfast will be held at the Proctor Hotel at 8 o'clock.

Organization of the women's division under the chairmanship of Mrs. J. B. Cummings has been completed and the door-to-door drive in the residential section will be conducted later in the week.

Chairman Lee called attention to the United Defense Fund quota of $2,000 for the USO. Greenville's share of the $388,945 to be raised in North Carolina will aid in the continuance of 16 North and South Carolina USO's among the 280 clubs and centers in the country and around the globe.

The USO camp shows four military hospitals at home and follow Carolina soldiers at all military posts from Korea to Alaska and Germany and Japan. Attention was called to the visitation of 1,500,000 service men and women to USO centers at home and abroad last month.

"Everybody talks about doing something for the boys and girls in the community, but the Greenville Community Chest directors don't just talk—they do," said James Butler, committee chairman.

"But the Community Chest directors do only as the citizens of Greenville provide the funds for service to the agencies supported by the Community Chest," he stated.

Truman Thinking Of Farewell Talk

Appearance Before GOP Congress Still Undecided As Yet

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Truman is toying with the idea of appearing in person before the Republican-controlled 83rd Congress early in January to deliver a "farewell address."

Administration officials emphasized that "nothing has been decided yet" and said Mr. Truman "may or may not" go through with the unprecedented speech.

They said the speech would not be the usual State of the Union message recommending a legislative program. Instead it would be a review of Mr. Truman's seven years in the presidency, or, as one informant put it, an "accounting to the Congress and the people of his stewardship in office."

A Congressional appearance by an outgoing President before a party Congress not controlled by his party would be without historical precedent. This is the first change in administration since approval of the Twentieth Amendment which abolished the "Lame Duck" Congress.

Presidents Grover Cleveland, William Howard Taft, Woodrow Wilson, and Herbert Hoover were among the outgoing chief executives sending State of the Union messages after their administrations had been voted out of power. However, they sent them to "Lame Duck" Congresses. At that time, the chief executive did not leave office until March 4.

Franklin D. Roosevelt after the three times he was re-elected, sent State of the Union messages to the new Congress. But each time both the executive and legislative branches were continuing in Democratic hands.

If the farewell address is made by President Truman, he is expected to follow his usual procedure and read his final message personally and have it broadcast at the same time.

Pastor Raps His Large Turnout AUGUSTA, Ga. (UP)—Most Protestant churches in Augusta were jammed Sunday, presumably by persons hoping to get a glimpse of Dwight D. Eisenhower, who had announced he'd attend church but didn't say which one. One pastor told his unexpectedly large congregation: "If any of you are here to see the Eisenhower's you ought to be ashamed."

Sabres Score Five 'Kills' Over Korea

Lull In Battle For Sniper Ridge Shattered By Red Artillery Barrage; New UN Jet Ace Emerges In Air War

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—Communist big guns unleashed a thundering artillery bombardment against Allied troops on the central front today as American Sabre jets shot down five Communist MIG-15s in air battles over northwest Korea.

The heavy Red artillery barrage thrown at United Nations infantrymen on Sniper Ridge brought a 24-hour lull in the bloody battle of the Kumhwa ridges to an abrupt halt.

At the same time Sabre jets of the 4th and 51st fighter-interceptor wings tangled with a flight of Russian-built enemy fighters in a series of later afternoon dogfights.

In addition to the five "kills," one MIG was probably destroyed, one was damaged and another kill awaited confirmation.

Col. Royal N. Baker, of McKinney, Tex., shot down his fifth MIG to become the 21st American jet ace of the Korea war. He had previously destroyed four MIGs and one Russian-made propeller-driven plane.

Today's MIG claims were the highest since Oct. 11, a day fighter-bombers attacked a Communist headquarters southeast of Samdung and southwest of Namchonjon and blasted 60 buildings off the map.

United Press correspondent Victor Kendrick reported from the central front that the Red shelling began at 11 a.m. (9 p.m. Sunday EST).

It was still continuing at 6 p.m. at the rate of more than 1,100 rounds an hour, Kendrick said. Before the Chinese launched their artillery barrage the running battle on Pinpoint Hill and Finger Ridge during the seven-hour period.

American observers meanwhile told Kendrick movement of Chinese troops on "the Yoke," the northern, Communist-held finger of Sniper Ridge, indicated the possibility of renewed Communist attempts to drive the ROKs from their strategic positions.

"We're still up there, holding on," an American officer said. United Nations artillery fired a thundering barrage of counter-battery fire in an attempt to knock Red big guns and mortars hidden on towering Papa-San Mountain and in the maze of gullies and ridges surrounding the huge hill mass.

"The sound of artillery reverberated through the Kumhwa Valley like a giant kettledrum and echoed from mountain to mountain," Kendrick said.

Before the Chinese launched their artillery barrage the running battle for control of the vital Kumhwa ridges, one of the classic engagements of the Korean war, had reached its first lull in more than 30 days.

United Nations troops were in command of all but one of the important hills in the sector.

ROK infantrymen today beat off a Chinese assault on Sniper Ridge. Their officers said it was the heaviest clash since Oct. 14, when the South Koreans launched their drive for control of the Sniper and Triangle hill masses.

The South Koreans hold Pinpoint Hill and Rocky Point on Sniper Ridge. The Chinese were in command only of "the Yoke," northern finger of the widespread Kumhwa ridgeline which is honeycombed with tunnels and underground bunkers.

At dawn Sunday 200 Communist troops attacked and forced a temporary Allied withdrawal from Rocky Point. U. N. artillery pounded the position with heavy concentrations after which the ROKs re-occupied the point.

Community Heads Personally Appeal For Making Campaign A Success

WASHINGTON (UP)—The hydrogen super-bomb, capable of destroying whole cities in a flash with blast and fire, has now joined America's arsenal of atomic weapons.

That, informed sources said today, is the clear meaning of a brief official announcement issued by the Atomic Energy Commission in the wake of a flood of eyewitness accounts from Eniwetok describing the world's first H-bomb explosion.

These sources also said that development of the super-bomb was a brilliant scientific and technical achievement which gives the West a tremendous new weapon, not yet possessed by Russia, for enforcement of peace. They predicted that the first test model of the H-bomb will be followed shortly by even more violent versions.

But what role the super-bomb will play in the U. S. scheme of defense has yet to be determined. That is a matter of high policy, a preliminary briefing on the nature of the scientific, economic, and military problems posed by the H-bomb when he confers with President Truman and administration leaders at the White House on Tuesday.

Many individual members of the task force which conducted this fall's historic tests at the Eniwetok proving grounds in the Pacific wrote vivid reports in letters home of the H-bomb's incomparable blast and flame effect. Many gave Nov. 1 as H-day. Some hinted at more than one hydrogen explosion.

But the Atomic Energy Commission in Sunday's meager announcement withheld all details. AEC Chairman Gordon Dean said "any amplification might give aid to potential enemies" and that, therefore, "we will make no further announcement, enia."

Dean also said the commission "is concerned" by the eyewitness letters. He said investigations are under way which may result in disciplinary action or prosecution for violation of law or security regulations. He did not, however, deny what the letter writers wrote.

The commission didn't even use the word H-bomb. It said only that "the test program included experiments contributing to thermonuclear weapons research." It did say that the task force had performed "a remarkable feat" and that the scientists in charge were satisfied with the results.

In Chapel Hill, N. C., Rep. Carl T. Durham (D-N. C.), acting chairman of the House-Senate Atomic Energy Committee, said the AEC's H-bomb plans for this fall culminated at Eniwetok "about on schedule." He hinted at bigger explosions in future tests.

The first H-bomb blast, which spouted fire five miles into the air and sent a vast cloud of smoke, vapor, and radioactive debris 10 miles higher, was an event comparable in atomic weaponizing to the first A-bomb explosion.

In the old days of public discussion, prelude President Truman's decision of January, 1950, to develop it, the H-bomb frequently was spoken of as potentially 1,000 times more powerful than the wartime A-bomb.

How powerful it is depends on how much of its power-producing weights-are packed in. The H-bomb is triggered by the multi-million-degree heat of an A-bomb. So it is an A-bomb plus-plus whatever explosive amount of hydrogen it contains.

Thus it is possible, if Eisenhower gives the H-bomb top priority, for the AEC to make a "whole family" of hydrogen bombs just as it has in the case of the A-bomb.

and is represented on the Wage Stabilization Board.

While proposing an end to active economic controls, Murray said the new administration should be given standby controls because a new outbreak of Communist aggression "could change the economic scene, setting off a new wave of inflationary pressures."

Murray Reversed Wage-Price Control Stand At Last Minute

Washington Official Accepts Wage Stabilization

WASHINGTON (UP)—Philip Murray, in his last official act as CIO president, made the surprise recommendation that active wage and price controls be dropped.

The recommendation, a reversal of previous CIO policy, was contained in Murray's annual report, which was to have been presented to the CIO convention today. Murray's sudden death last Sunday caused a postponement of the convention until Dec. 1, at which time the report will be submitted to the delegates for approval.

In calling for an end to anti-inflation controls, Murray noted that "widespread inflationary pressures have subsided" and that there is now "the danger of a deflationary tendency."

But his principal argument was that wage controls must be lifted because "there no longer is a comprehensive price control program."

"When organized labor decided to accept wage stabilization, it was specifically and emphatically stated that wage stabilization can be viewed favorably only as part of an overall economic stabilization program," he said. "The CIO stated time and time again that the effective control of living costs is a prerequisite for acceptance of wage stabilization."

But now, Murray said, "the price control program is being abandoned—as a result of Congressional action (amending the economic controls law) and soft markets."

The voluminous annual report, running 85 pages and about 50,000 words, was written two weeks before the presidential election, in which the CIO actively supported the unsuccessful candidacy of Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson.

Murray ventured no prediction as to the outcome of the election, but with obvious reference to the possibility of a Republican victory, he said:

"Even if a hostile administration or a hostile Congress were to sit in Washington, I am confident that the march of trade unionism will carry forward."

New Coalition Of Conservative Southern Democrats Discussed

NEW ORLEANS (UP)—A party system might be theoretical, desirable for the South, he does not believe the region is ready for it.

Shivers was presiding officer of a first business session of the Southern Governors' Conference today.

This was to be followed by a joint meeting of the board of control of the Southern Regional Council for Education association and an informal luncheon and reception.

A formal state dinner was scheduled for tonight. Battle and Shivers were among the chief executives who arrived early for a round of entertainment Sunday although there were no business sessions until today. The conference ends Tuesday night.

Tattle said he believed most of the Southern Democrats who voted for Republican candidate Dwight D. Eisenhower did so in order to bring about a complete change in Washington.

Study Of Joshua, Judges Given At Lector Book Club

The Lector Book Club met at the home of Mrs. V. E. Wells, Jr. on Tuesday, November 4. Arrangements of fall flowers were made in the living and dining rooms.

The meeting was called to order by the vice president, Mrs. Tom Wilson, in the absence of the president, Mrs. Hugh Winslow announced that the club had not been contacted to assist in the County Tuberculosis Seal Sale. Mrs. Holly Van Dyke, project chairman, read a list of needy families in and around Greenville. After a brief discussion it was decided to take a family most in need of care. Mrs. Van Dyke asked all the members to bring clothing, food and other things to her house by Friday and she would deliver them. Mrs. Wells gave the program for the afternoon. Continuing the study of the Old Testament, Mrs. Wells reviewed the books of Joshua and Judges, the first two historical books in the Old Testament, she said.

In her paper she brought out the fact that Joshua was the successor to Moses, a faithful servant of God, and the leader of Israel's hosts in the conquest of Canaan. His outstanding traits were obedience to law, intense patriotism, and a courage that feared absolutely nothing. "Among the great military chieftains of the Hebrews, he ranks with Judas Maccabeus, though the name of neither is found in the catalogue of Israel's heroes of faith as given in the Epistle to the Hebrews," she said.

The work of Joshua was important, she declared, because it was constructive and he provided a home for the children of Israel. Centuries later, after the people's return from captivity, another Joshua figured conspicuously as the model of the people's life, and in the fullness of still another era, there was One whose name through the Greek became known as Jesus, who came as the reformer of Israel and the Redeemer of the world.

Mrs. Wells pointed out the two divisions of the book: one that deals with the conquest of Canaan and the other that deals with the division of the land and Joshua's farewell address. She briefly discussed the great battles which are recorded in the book and in summing up Joshua's character, she said that he heeded well the challenge to be strong and of good courage. In her review of the book of Judges, she pointed out that this as-

Reports Made On Rotary Projects

AYDEN - Rotarians heard community-betterment projects at their recent weekly meeting.

Corey Stokes reported sufficient dirt had been hauled in and leveled for the foundation for new tennis courts. Leslie Stock reported the drive for the Boy Scout support fund was nearing completion and the attainment of the $467 quota was in sight.

Larry Davis, in charge of the program, provided a game of Bridge for entertainment of Club members and guests. Frank Peterson directed the game.

The fellowship prize was won by Jack Quinney; the on-time-prize was won by Bill Johnston. Martin Swartz was the visiting Rotarian from Greenville and Jack Pogleman, Methodist minister, was guest of Wilbur Ormond. Carroll Bennett, DuPont official, was the guest of Frank Kilpatrick.

Ray Turnage, Jr., emphasized the importance of the CROP drive which starts Monday for the collection of grain for overseas relief. Vice President Roy Turnage Sr. presided in the absence of Ralph Hardee who was confined to his home due to illness.

Newcomer Honored At Coffee Hour

GRITTON—Mrs. W. M. January and Mrs. Al Hawkins entertained last Tuesday morning at the home of Mrs. Hawkins in Dogwood Park at a delightful coffee hour to honor Mrs. F. C. Butcher, who has recently moved her residence to the neighborhood.

Yellow pom poms and turquoise candles were used throughout the rooms for decorations. The refreshment table was covered with handmade lace cloth. Mrs. M. E. Hodges poured coffee and guests served themselves to party sandwiches, ham biscuits and other delicacies. Enjoying the hour were Mrs. Butcher, Mrs. Hodges, Mrs. Charles Kline, Mrs. L. A. Butler, Mrs. Thurman Williams, Mrs. Richard Nelson, Mrs. Tom Jackson, Mrs. Robert Mewborn, Mrs. Tom Gower, and Mrs. S. E. Coffman.

CAR THEFTS SOAR

CHICAGO (UP)—The number of cars stolen in Chicago has doubled in four years. Lt. John Golden of the police stolen auto detail said that 4,013 were stolen in 1948. He expects this year's total to be more than 8,000. Most of the stolen cars are recovered, Golden said.

Honey Business Sought In Ceylon

NEW YORK (AP)—Britain is sending a bee expert to Ceylon to advise the government on the development of beekeeping in the island, the British Information Service reports here.

Dr. Colin G. Butler, an expert on the physiology and behavior of bees, will spend six weeks at Peradeniya in Ceylon studying bee strains and advising on the breeding of bee colonies. It is hoped that a thriving honey industry will supplement the island's meager food supply.

The labor force in the United States includes about 19 million women.

One survey reports that 44 elements have been found in sea water.

Pupils Protest Moving Teache.

TEL AVIV (AP)—When their eighth grade teacher was transferred to another class recently, his 26 pupils, all about 14, started a minor revolution that lasted four days before peace was restored.

The pupils left their class, marched through corridors, upset tables and finally organized a demonstration aided by their parents. Protests were made to educational authorities who relented and restored their teacher, Ben Moshe. "You see, he was so good to us," one boy said. "He never went on with a lesson as long as one of us didn't understand properly."

As a consequence of the rise in the birth rate, the proportion of children under 5 has increased from 8 per cent in 1940 to 10.8 in 1950.

Jean Mills Weds Carlton Taylor

Hollywood Church Scene of Afternoon Ceremony Saturday

In a candlelight ceremony of quiet simplicity, Miss Jean Mills and John Carlton Taylor were united in matrimony Saturday, November 15, at 5:30 in the Hollywood Presbyterian Church. The Rev. E. Lee Willingham III officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Allen Mills, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Clarence Taylor Sr. of Greenville.

Prior to the ceremony Miss Virginia Belle Cooper of Ayden, pianist, presented a program of sacred nuptial music. Mrs. Cora Pauline Corbett of Wilson, soloist, sang "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life" and "Entreat Me Not To Leave Thee" before the entrance of the wedding party, and as a benediction, she sang "The Lord's Prayer" by Malotte. The traditional wedding marches by Wagner and Mendelssohn were used for the processional and the recessional.

The church was decorated with large floor standards of white gladioli and mums, and three and seven wrought iron branched candelabra holding cathedral lighted tapers against a background of bridal greenery consisting of emerald green palms, plumosus, and Oregon greens. On either side of the satin covered prayer bench were single wrought iron candelabra holding lighted cathedral candles. Pews for the families were marked with single white chrysanthemums tied with satin ribbon.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of candlelight satin fashioned with a sweetheart neckline, empire waist, and long sleeves ending in points over her hands. Her sweep skirt fell into a full court train. Her fingertip veil of imported bridal illusion edged in chantilly lace fell from a cloche of lace and satin trimmed with seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white, silver sheen chrysanthemums centered with a white orchid tied with bride's satin.

Miss Irene McGowan, cousin of the bride, attended her as maid of honor. She was gowned in a moss green satin, off-the-shoulder gown with a fitted bodice and full gathered skirt, and matching bandeau and mitts. She carried a colonial bouquet of tulle and blended shades of dубonnet pompon chrysanthemums tied with dубonnet satin ribbon.

Bridesmaids were Miss Peggy Gene Porter and Miss Nina Lou McGowan. Their dresses were of mauve pink satin and net with fitted bodices and satin boleros, and bustle backs. Their full gathered floor length skirts were covered with lace and they were matching bangles and mitts. They carried colonial bouquets of nylon tulle and blended orchid pink pompon chrysanthemums tied with walnut brown satin ribbon.

William C. Taylor, Jr. of Greenville was his brother's best man. Groomsman were Richard K. Worsley, Frank J. Diener, Jr., Jesse L. Poindeexter, Jr., and James T. Covington, all of Greenville.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Mills chose a navy street length dress with navy accessories and white doekin gloves. Her corsage was a green cymbidium orchid. Mrs. Taylor wore for her son's wedding a street length dress of navy with black accessories and a pink cymbidium orchid corsage.

Following the ceremony, the wedding party received in the church. First a background of palms, floor standards of flowers, and seven branched candelabra holding lighted tapers.

For traveling the bride changed into a suit of mingled brown tweed with an imported French velour hat and brown accessories. She wore the white orchid corsage lifted from her bouquet.

Mrs. Taylor is a graduate of East Carolina College where she received her degree in Business Education. Since graduation, she has been employed as a private secretary at the Pitt Memorial Hospital in Greenville.

Four Collisions Involving 9 Cars In City Weekend

By Chester Walsh
Greenville police during the week-end investigated four collisions of motor vehicles, involving nine cars, injury of one person, $1,200 estimated property damage and arrest of two drivers.

A three-car collision occurred on Dickinson avenue, near Boyd avenue, Saturday afternoon about 1:30. The police report states that cars driven by Marvin Mills, Route 2, Winterville, and William T. Boone, 208 Arlington Drive, Greenville, had stopped for a red traffic light. The car driven by Grover C. Barfield of Painesville, Ohio, collided with the rear of the Boone car, causing it to collide with Mills' car. Mrs. Bertha Barfield Wilcox was slightly injured. She was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital, treated and released, the investigating officer said. Estimated damage to the Mills car was $100, Boone's car, $200, and Barfield's $100. Police arrested Barfield on the charge of failure to keep proper lookout.

Two cars collided at 10th and Railroad streets Saturday about noon as a result of confusion over signals. One car was driven by J. Gus Stokes, 1109 West Third street, the other by John W. Shirley, 504-A Watauga Avenue. No arrest. None injured. Damage to Stokes' car was estimated at $100, Shirley's car, $75.

A police report states that a car driven by Mrs. Irma H. Whichard of Stokes Saturday morning backed into a car parked on Cotanche street, near Third. Damage to her car was $25. The other car was not damaged. No arrest.

Considerable property damage was done Saturday night about 7 o'clock when two cars collided at Maple and 10th streets. The investigating officer arrested Ronald D. Godley, 500 Mumford street, Greenville, on the charge of failure to keep proper lookout. Damage to his car was estimated at $400. Damage to the other car, driven by Cameron W. Pfeil of Washington, N.C., $200.

Greenville, High School Notes

The Phantom's victory over Roanoke Rapids in their last football tilt of the season was celebrated at a dance immediately following the clash Friday night. The event was sponsored by the second year Latin class.

Mrs. J.K. Long, recent addition to the faculty and wife of the head of the educational department at East Carolina College, is the instructor in this classical language.

Superlatives for the senior class of '53 were chosen November 10. Titles available were the same as last year. They included Best All Around, Most Popular, Best Dressed, Best Looking, Most Talented, Most Dependable, Biggest Flirts, Most Likely to Succeed, Most Sincere, Best Dancers, Wittiest, and Friendliest.

This year's superlatives have not yet been announced to the student body.

A flag raising ceremony was conducted in front of the high school Thursday.

Roy Taylor, student council president, presided over the event. The band furnished a musical background.

This ceremony, held in commemoration of Armistice Day, was originally scheduled for Tuesday but was postponed because of the weather.

Fifteen Future Teachers of America from Rocky Mount High School observed various GHS classes Wednesday.

This group consisted of junior and senior girls who intend to be teachers.

Plans are being formed by the local chapter of the National Forensic League for its annual congress. Sessions will be held in the Methodist Church and the City Hall. This year for, the first time, there will be no trophies awarded.

ACE Members Hold Session On Saturday

Members of the Association for Childhood Education in the north-eastern counties of North Carolina met at East Carolina College Saturday, November 15, to participate in a series of discussions and class demonstrations based on the theme "Emotional Growth through Rhythms, Poetry, and Dramatic Play."

Mrs. Myrtle Clark of Greenville, regional president, presided during a morning program and business session. Guests were welcomed by Frances Wahl, principal of the Training School at East Carolina, and were led in a devotional service by members of the Rocky Mount branch of the ACE.

Class demonstrations illustrating various teaching procedures were presented by pupils in the sixth grade at the Training School, of which Mrs. Clark is teacher. Mrs. Sue Rouse of Greenville introduced the young participants and the directors of the demonstrations.

Ralph Rives of Enfield, graduate student at East Carolina, directed a play "Mrs. Magician Makes a

Two Greenville Girls Are Beauty Contest Finalists

Two Greenville girls, students at Duke University in Durham, have been chosen as two of the 20 contestants in the annual "Chanticleer" beauty queen contest.

They are Miss Barbara Russell, 20, and Miss Mary Anne Waldrop, 19. Miss Russell is a junior majoring in elementary education, and Miss Waldrop is a sophomore planning to major in social studies.

The two girls were among the 20 finalists chosen by Duke men students from 50 nominees. One of the 20 contestants will be named 1953 queen, while 10 others will be chosen members of her court.

Announcement of the queen and members of the court will be made Wednesday night, and they will be presented in official ceremonies at the traditional Co-ed Ball on Thanksgiving Eve. Milton Caniff, comic strip artist and creator of "Steve Canyon," will designate the queen and court from photographs submitted.

Miss Russell is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Leon Russell and Miss Waldrop is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Herbert Waldrop.

The annual Red Cross Drive began Monday morning. A representative was chosen from each homeroom.

Delegates to the recent regional convention of the Student Cooperative Association in Miami, Florida, presented reports of their trip in an assembly Friday.

Says Christmas Overshadows All

PORT HURON, Mich. (UP)—The Port Huron Council of Churches complained today that decorations and promotions were pushing Thanksgiving into the background. In a resolution to the Chamber of Commerce, the council asked that merchants "hold up the decorations and extensive promotion at least until Thanksgiving." STEAL BY THE HALF-DOZEN LELAND, Mich. (UP)—State police were asked to hunt for thieves who did their stealing by the numbers at the Sugar Loaf Mountain ski club. Officers reported they stole six of everything—six pairs of skis, six pairs of ski poles and six pairs of ski boot. In Britain the automobile windshield is called a windscreen.

Strength for the Day

COUNTERFEIT Governments the world over are very severe on counterfeiters. To simulate the currency of any realm...

One notes three things about a counterfeit coin. In the first place, the image it bears is never quite what it ought to be.

Counterfeit people are even more dangerous than counterfeit coins. And, like counterfeit coins, there is something the matter with the image they bear.

Last of all, counterfeit people never ring true. Instinctively we know that there is something about them which needs to be watched or avoided or repelled.

Anything counterfeit is ruinous—especially counterfeit people.

Invest In The Chest; It's Our Own Fund

It's your Community Chest.

That one short sentence sums up just about everything that is to be said of the Chest. Success or failure, many services or few services, they all hinge on how a community invests in its own welfare.

The brief period of annual solicitation is followed by months of constant giving from the Chest fund back to the people it serves. Each year that fund must be replenished to maintain the standard that has been set, to meet ever-increasing requirements and to strive for even greater service.

To an individual the required money is a vast sum. To five or six, to fifty or sixty people it still looks like a lot of money to be raised. But this is not a burden to be borne by a few; the Community Chest is just what its name implies: it belongs to all, and all share in its maintenance and blessings.

If all our people contribute to the Chest according to their means, there will be no lack of money for the tasks to be done, just as there appears no limits to the needs of the community it serves.

Your Community Chest is as democratic as the spirit of the people who get behind it with their labors and the people who make it possible with their financial support.

The word "give" is frequently used in describing that financial support; actually, the word "invest" would better denote the true meaning of participation in the annual funds campaign. And no one will ever make a better investment than in their own home town.

Teaching Safety Is A Full-Time Job

The work that goes into trying to make our highways safer is unending. It goes on and on in a variety of forms, each seeking to meet and correct separate safety problems that can and have spelled the difference between life and death.

There are so many factors involved in the causes of traffic accidents that no one magic potion can be served up to cure them all. Always at the root of such problems there is the human element; and that human quality of unpredictability can be blamed for so many of our troubles.

Still, the constant stressing of safety measures the installation of "safety consciousness", can help to meet even this seeming incurable quality of human frailty. For that reason, every available means of reminding motorists to be careful are resorted to by individuals and organizations that are in contact with the grisly aftermaths of momentary carelessness and reckless driving.

In the past week there were three distinct safety programs underway locally. They were related only by the common desire to combat the always-rising tide of death and injury on the roads. The Junior Chamber of Commerce was promoting a step to insure greater visibility for after-dark motorists; the Highway Patrol was conducting an informal safety course for school bus drivers; and a Driver Training Institute for Teachers was being held at East Carolina College.

All of these activities will accomplish some good, though their true value may never be reflected statistically. Probably the greatest hope for eventual reduction of traffic accidents lies in the training of beginner-drivers who will comprise the driving public of tomorrow. The impressing of sane and safe driving practices upon their responsive minds will have a more lasting effect upon future accident rates. And it is for the future we must prepare.

Perhaps too, if these beginner-drivers were subjected to a present-day "chamber of horrors" . . . a required visit to the scene of a particularly gruesome automobile accident . . . before being issued a driver's license, they would show even greater respect for the necessity of avoiding unnecessary travel risks.

The initial shock would pass away; but the memory and resultant precautionary measures might last a lifetime.

Nothing seems to please the left-of-center spokesmen more than to condemn, criticize or deride the works and person of Nevada's Democratic Senator Pat McCarren.

Cartoonists, columnists, speakers and newspapers who fall into the "left-of-center" category to varying degrees, find little or nothing nice to say about the Nevada solon. The unanimity of their viewpoints leaves us suspicious as to their motives.

While we haven't followed the senator's career too closely, offhand we recall no espousal of selfish legislation, or any "ism" except Americanism. That seems no great fault on his part.

When Senator McCarren takes on the unpleasant task of looking for disloyal Americans, he's criticized. His work of codifying the immigration laws was similarly a target of seeming outrage.

Before passing judgement on him, it is well to remember that McCarren's work on the immigration laws had the approval of a majority of Congress. And in his seeking out of disloyal citizens, he has other senators on his subcommittee; among them one we Tar Heels should have the greatest confidence, our own Senator Willis Smith.

WASHINGTON—An outstanding but generally unremarked feature of the tremendous Eisenhower triumph is that he crushed the professional political machines in the great cities of the country almost as completely as he smashed Hitler's armies.

Temporarily at least, the old-fashioned bosses and their sordid system of bread-and-butter, bought-and-paid-for politics appear to have been eliminated from the American scene.

Although Tammany and its minor imitations generally supported the Stevenson-Sparkman ticket, the Illinois Governor barely broke even in most of the urban centers, whose vote frequently determines the outcome in their respective states. Two decades of Roosevelt-Truman victories derived from the fact that they could rely on the cities for at least a 60 per cent vote.

Moreover, the surrounding areas, including those within or adjacent to the city limits, offset the Democratic tallies in the so-called tenement districts, Westchester and Long Island counties. GOP turnout actualized New York City's Democratic majority, just as suburban Cook County balanced Chicago's demonstration for Stevenson.

POLITICAL BOSSES—It may not be accidental that erstwhile political rulers are advocating in the wake of Eisenhower's great victory. Jake Arvey of Chicago, Stevenson's sponsor, has lost interest. Ailing "Ed" Flynn, Bronx boss, may retire. Paul E. Fitzpatrick, New York State chairman, has resigned.

Frank Hague of Jersey is through, although he may not realize it. "Jim" Curley of Boston is discredited, losing badly in the primary. "Boss" Crump of Memphis and the Pendergast faction were routed by New York and Symington primary wins in Tennessee and Missouri, respectively.

Certain historic machines in Dixie may never regain their old power as a result of internal rivalries and dissensions in the 1952 struggle.

MACHINE RULE WRECKAGE—Civil reformers temper their rejoicing over this development, however, because of their recollection that a similar wreckage of the Tammanyized brand of politics in the early '30s was short-lived. F.D.R. and his municipal allies, notably La Guardia in New York, were opposed by these same forces in 1932 and 1936, but he eventually restored them to power.

F.D.R. associated himself with the Curleys, O'Dwyers, Hagues, Nashes, Kelleys, Crumps and Pendergasts in building the hodge-podge and incongruous machine that fell apart on November 4. He kept them at arms' length, and sneaked them into the White House through the back door, but he accepted their support and gave them his favor.

Under Truman, who boasts that he "is a politician and proud of it," the professionals had the run of Washington and the government. Almost every official convicted, indicted, suspended or fired in the "scandals of 1952" was appointed through the admitted and advertised operation of the "spoils system."

Thus there is no assurance that the mercenary, politics-for-profit and cynical era has ended permanently. American politicians are a hardy breed, and like the Old Guard, they never surrender.

"GOVERNMENT BY CRONIES"—But there are certain hopeful aspects in the current political drama that were not present in the Rooseveltian preview of busted bossism of two decades ago. Even more important, Eisenhower's nonpolitical background and personality, there are economic and social changes of far-reaching influence.

It is significant, however, that the next President was not brought up in a political atmosphere and never hung around a ward clubhouse. In the campaign he thought of people rather than the political faithful and organization hirelings. He has no false loyalties and he was no single man or group for his election. "Government by cronies" is out!

There is no attraction to tomorrow's voters in dingy, ill-lighted clubhouses or scheming, cigar-smoking precinct captains. The movies, the radio and television have educated them to better things, including ideal standards, opportunities.

Now Eisenhower acts in the next four, eight, or years may determine whether these gains will endure!

We'll Have To Wait For The Memoirs

Around Capitol Square

By LYNN NISBET

NO GAINS—Despite the unprecedented Republican vote in North Carolina this year, the minority party has made very small gains on percentage basis within the past 26 years. It was noted here a day or two ago that the Republican representation in the General Assembly after the Hoover landslide has fluctuated, but that several times before have been 13 members in the house and eight years ago there were 14, the same number as will be on hand for the 1953 session. Comparison of the votes for Governor since 1920 shows fairly steady party division.

TWO TO ONE—Although Herbert Sealwell got by far the largest vote ever given a Republican candidate for State office, nearly 100,000 more than his father received in the Hoover year for the same office, he was defeated by much greater percentage majority. Democrat William Umstead's 796,306 votes, largest ever recorded, a candidate of any party and for any office in this state, was more than double Sealwell's total of 383,329. Umstead's slightly better than two-to-one margin was almost exactly the same percentage as that which elected Clyde Hoyer and Gregg Cherry over Frank Patton in 1944.

RECORD—While Umstead's record for total number of votes, the biggest percentage ever given J.M. Broughton to 24 per cent by Robert H. McNeill in 1940. Next highest was the Kerr Scott percentage of 72 per cent to George M. Pritchard's 27 per cent four years ago. The 32 1/2 per cent of the total vote captured by Republicans this year is also above the 30 per cent run up against Blucher Ehringhaus in 1932, it is well below the 44 per cent in 1928, the 39 per cent against A.W. McLean in 1924 and 34 per cent in 1920, when John Parker ran against Cameron Morrison. The gain in percentage from 27 per cent to 32 1/2 since 1948 was substantially less than the gain from 24 per cent to 33 per cent between 1940 and 1944. The record apparently does not justify Republican claims that they are making progress toward providing a real opposition party at State level.

CAT—There will be four members of the Umstead family to move into the Executive Mansion next January. Governor-elect and Mrs. Umstead has a daughter, Merle Bradley, 10, who has a pet cat. Throughout the primary and general election campaigns the parents did not discuss the pending removal with the daughter very much. The little lady interrupted one conversation simply to ask if she could bring her kitty to Raleigh. Upon being assured that she could, there was apparently nothing else to worry about. She could live happily anywhere so long as daddy and mother and kitty are with her.

MANSION—Reference to the forthcoming change in tenancy at the Governor's Mansion (which is admittedly a misnomer for the house) recalls a suggestion made several years ago by George Cherry, superintendent of public buildings and grounds. The "mansion" belongs to the State of North Carolina and in many aspects it is a public building. But it is also the home of the Governor's family during his tenure in office, and to a great degree as possible the living quarters are privately devoted to family life. Much of the furniture and furnishings belong to the State. It is inconceivable that any family would not have a number of special pieces of furniture and intimate belongings necessary to continuity of family home life. Being public property the taxpayers have a right to demand that the property be maintained. The place was pretty thoroughly torn over during the McLean administration and was given very little attention until 25 years later. Upon demand of women members of the 1949 Legislature money was appropriated for refurbishing and to large extent refurbishing the mansion. Mrs. Mary Scott as incumbent mistress of the premises had considerable voice in selecting materials and furnishings. The incoming mistress, Mrs. Merle Umstead, may like these items or may not. Admitting that no incumbent should have the right to throw out and put in furniture belonging to all the people on personal whim, some consideration should be given.

SUGGESTION—That gets back to the sensible suggestion made by George Cherry, but not followed up, that for the last few weeks of each administration the State should provide quarters for the retiring Governor's family in a down town hotel or some other suitable place. That would enable workmen to get into the mansion for such odd jobs as cleaning rugs and draperies, touching up the paint, repairing the plumbing and the hundred and one other little things that every householder must do once in a while. It would also afford time for the outgoing family to pack up personal belongings and the incoming family to start bringing in the same kind of necessary items, without the confusion incident to doing those things while trying to carry on routine activities of official and domestic life. Necessity for physical repairs may be less this time than usual because of the great amount of work done during the past three years, but the personal inconvenience to the office family would be less.

What Other Papers Are Thinking

WHEN WILL IT COME? (Washington Daily News)

A new party alignment will come someday in this nation. We are satisfied that it will come now. We don't profess to know when, nor do we profess to know how. But we do believe it is coming sometime in the years just ahead.

We have two major political parties in this country. The democratic party has been in power now for 20 years. The Republican party takes over on January 20 when General Eisenhower is inaugurated.

Now, if we will take the leaders of these two parties and look at them and their political views, we'll quite likely discover that in each party there is a wide difference of views.

For instance take the Democratic party. On the conservative side we find such men as Senators Hoyer and Smith of North Carolina, Maybank of South Carolina, Smathers of Florida, Russell and George of Georgia, Fulbright of Arkansas, and dozens of others. We also find Bernard Baruch, Senator Byrd, and countless other conservatives. Also in the Democratic party we find men like Senator Humphrey, Wilson Wyatt, Oscar Chapman, Maurice Tobin, Senator Moody, and hundreds of others of the extreme liberal element. And there is a large segment of opinion in the middle of the road.

There is a world of difference between the thinking of Senator Humphrey of Minnesota and Senator Byrd of Virginia. There is no common ground for agreement between the two. They are just poles apart in their thinking, and they'll likely remain far apart.

Look at the Republican party. On the conservative side there are Senators Taft, Dirksen, Millikan, and Bricker. Then there are ultra liberals like Governor Dewey, Senators Ives, Lodge, and Morse. Between the two groups there is a wide divergence of thinking, and apparently there is no now any common ground upon which the two elements can meet.

But when we compare the conservative elements of the Democratic party with those of the Republican party, we find that the views are so similar that only a party label separates them. And the same thing applies in the liberal elements. There is little difference between the thinking of Senator Ives, Republican, and Senator Humphrey, Democrat. And there is little difference between the thinking of Senator Byrd, Democrat and Senator Taft, Republican.

So in time we believe that the conservative elements of both parties will eventually unite to form one party, while the liberal elements of both parties will join to form another party.

And those in between, the middle of the roaders, will have a choice to make either in one party or the other, or in a third party. We think perhaps that the choice will be in one party or the other.

We believe realignment is coming, perhaps sooner than we think.

THE STATE'S NO. 2 MAN (Henderson Dispatch)

In his address to the Eastern Carolina Press Association meeting last week in Raleigh, Lieutenant Governor Luther Hodges left his hearers with the conclusion that the State may have hit the jackpot in picking its No. 2 man for the four years. Not that as much cannot be said of the governor-elect with equal emphasis, or perhaps of other high officials, but as of the moment the thought is on the lieutenant governor who will assume his duties next January.

Mr. Hodges impressed the group with his own serious approach to the duties of the office he is about to assume. He is no fly-by-night, haphazard selection for important responsibilities. Mr. Hodges said he hoped for a sane consideration and solution of the many problems that confront the State in this crucial era. If there be a huge surplus, he declared, there is no demand that it shall be spent merely because it exists. Appropriations ought to be made on the basis of genuine need. More than is available might be required, and if borrowing should be absolutely necessary, then it should first be justified. That was the lieutenant governor's theory, intimating that he feels there is a job for the individual to do as well as for the State, and that soundness ought to be the paramount factor.

Mr. Hodges has voiced that keynote in many of his public utterances since his nomination last spring, which, of course, was equivalent even then to election last week. There is good reason to assume that he will make of the office he is about to take over much more than merely the secondary job in State government. Already he has learned a great deal of public affairs, he said, and in the four years ahead will add to that knowledge. He may even develop into gubernatorial caliber by 1956, and if so the State could go farther and do a lot worse in selecting its chief executive for the quadrennium next following this new one

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER

Voters changed the Administration and many of their representatives in House and Senate. Top generals are retiring or being shifted. The Secretary-General of the United Nations has quit. A long list of corporations are putting new people in top executive posts.

Some observers say that a psychology of change, with roots deep in mass frustrations, is sweeping the country.

What's happening may not be that deep-dish. But it is certain that there is a lot of change in the air.

This has important implications for businessmen. If this desire for change is contagious, it may lead many customers to shift their sources of supply, to try newer things and adopt different buying patterns. It may also lead to a lot of job changing; the time is ripe for this anyway, with high wages and scarcities of many talents.

It can result in a lot of retail sales if housewives tire of old wallpaper, furniture and draperies. It also can mean new sales of autos, paints, office furniture, apparel and other things. Any businessman who is convinced that the nation is in a period of change—whether because the idea that it is time for a change was hammered in so deeply during the election campaign, because of mass psychology or simply because it is in the air—must do these things:

Step up promotions among prospective new customers with the objective of gaining as many as possible of those who have a feeling for change.

Intensify advertising of new things and those that bring changes in the outlook and appearance of the buyers.

Consolidate the loyalty of present customers and discouraging their impulse to change with better services, more attention to their wants and friendlier attitudes.

For some, it will be a good time to re-examine relations with key personnel to make sure they won't catch the fever. For others it may be a good time to invest in a new store front or interior alterations.

SKIRT PRODUCTION

MAY TOUCH NEW HIGH

In any event, it looks as if men are changing their shirts more. The National Association of Shirt, Palama Sportswear Manufacturers says that shirt production may set a new high this year, exceeding the previous record of 217,000,000 produced in 1950. During the first eight months of the year production was 142,000,000 or 2,000,000 more than the like 1950 period.

ADVISES YEAR—ROUND SILVERWARE PROMOTION

Department stores are depriving themselves of profitable silverware volume by promoting silverware only at Christmas. Says the November issue of Stores, the monthly magazine of the National Retail Dry Goods Association. Year-round efforts can produce a healthy increase in sales, its researchers find.

One reason for failure to take advantage of the possibilities is the custom of relying on previous year's heavily promoted silverware. Because promoted for the holidays, sales soar then and retailers are inclined to regard November-December as the only good period.

Stores added: "To keep customers from hunting price-cutting competitors, play up the department's assortment, prestige, services and credit facilities."

PROMOTER OPPOSES

SLUM CLEARANCE

"Can't you," asked the Old Promoter, "do something about these slum clearance projects?" "Well, I could volunteer a few hours work scaling bricks," we said.

He ignored us. "This is what happens. The reformers discover a slum. They move in and condemn the land and buildings, and chase the poor people out. Then, often without taxpayers' money, they put up slick new housing. Who moves in? The old slum dwellers? No. City employees, doctors, insurance salesmen and other white-collar workers. The old residents have been forced to move into worse slums. But are they allowed to live in peace? No. The reformers track them down and tear down that slum and build new apartments. Why can't they let our poor people alone?"

"Why don't you write a letter to HST new fellow?" we suggested. "You know—that guy named Ike something or other."

The O.P. snorted off. Didn't even wait for a cigar.

NEW PRODUCTS

MULTIPURPOSE: A combination desk, file, safe and storage cabinet is being introduced by Sears

ROEDER Co., Homan Arlington, Chicago 7. Constructed of hardwood with mahogany veneer, its filing compartment has 25 indexed hanging folders, and storage compartments in bottom house portable typewriter and safe.

EEN: A fountain pen with a polished sapphire writing point has been announced by L.E. Waterman Co., 344 Hudson St., New smearproof ink, developed for the new pen, is said to flow more smoothly over the surface of the sapphire than over metal or steel points. The pen itself weighs less than one ounce, has a gold-filled barrel and retractable point.

Hal Boyle's Column

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Leaves from a travel notebook:

The streets of Lisbon are reputed to be the cleanest of any city in the world. This gives the visitor a favorable impression of Portugal on first view.

The clean streets are only one of many external signs of the brisk efficiency with which Premier Antonio Dr. Oliveira Salazar runs his country.

Dr. Salazar remains one of the least known but most successful Dictators of Europe. Under his long term program for economic progress Portugal has emerged from its century-old financial dependence on Britain and is today a creditor rather than a debtor nation.

There is no articulate protest against Dr. Salazar, nor evidence of any wide-scale effort to overthrow his government. As one native put it:

"The people will not die for Salazar, but they have a lot of respect for him and faith in him, because time has proved him right in most of the decisions he has made in the last 35 years. Salazar has never made any attempt to gain personal popularity, because he doesn't attach much importance to it."

The Dictator feels his place in Portugal's history will be determined largely by the results of his campaign to industrialize the country and develop its huge African colonies.

The revolutionary spirit is a flame in Asia, a glowing coal in Africa, but in Europe it is a cold ash.

The drain of the last great war—the fear of another one—weighs upon the people in almost every land. The specter of more unrest, no matter for what reason, simply appals all classes.

The common goal is to earn enough bread for the table—and a chance to eat it in peace. Europeans not only are opposed to war talk. They don't even wish to hear the word said aloud.

Walking across St. Mark's Square in Venice we were approached by an old lady—Beggara. We gave her some coins. The first we passed on heard her grumble aloud to herself:

"When Mussolini was alive, I had more food and more fun, too."

Somehow her words of complaint in the darkness left me feeling sad and troubled.

Many Italians still recall the days of Mussolini with nostalgia, and even remember him kindly.

"He did many things to help Italy," one young veteran said. "But he made one great mistake: he took us into a foolish war. And for that we will never forgive him."

There is an elderly guide in the palaces of the Doges in Venice whose work has given him a long view of history.

"America must become the Rome of the year 2,000," he said. "It is her destiny, and she cannot avoid it. Only the United States can set up a system of order in the world that will let other nations work out their own pattern of life in peace.

"Russia?"—he said, and made a face. "The Communists will fail there because of one thing: they are against human nature itself."

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—Begum Mohammad Ali, wife of the Pakistani ambassador, helps him to represent one of the newest nations and one of the oldest cultures in the world.

Typifying this, she takes an avid interest in modern American doings, especially sports, but at the same time clings to the long scarf-draped sari, the ancient native costume of the land from which she comes.

This slight, graceful, intelligent woman from the East joined her husband and sons, Hamad, 14, and Hamid, 12, last summer in a series of golf lessons on a public course and now is taking up bowling. The distinguished couple had learned something of the latter game in Canada, where for two years the ambassador had served as Pakistan's first high commissioner. They also took up ballroom dancing.

"We all like being here," Begum Ali told me over a cup of tea in the beautiful gold damask salon of the embassy. Since their arrival last February, they have visited many parts of the U.S.

"The boys went with us because we believe travel itself is an education," she added. "By traveling we are also learning many things which will help in the development of our own country. Our country is new and backward. When we were partitioned from India the factories we had went to India. Things are growing, like jute and cotton, but we can't process them. We can't wait. We must have the industries now."

Begum Ali used to play the organ and says she still has the feeling for music in her, but her chief interest is in painting. She works with water colors mainly, but has studied oils. She does landscapes and still life. "I once tried to do a portrait of my son Hamad from a photograph, but my teacher told me I was too ambitious," she said. "You can paint a tree not too straight, but a bent nose, no."

Begum Ali wore a sari of sheer white chiffon, exquisitely printed in a lacy black border, draped about her slight figure. Underneath she wore a light grey sweater. She said she imported most of the saris from Paris and is always dreaming of a new one.

"I'm so used to aaris I can't seem to part with them," she said. "Yes, I even wear them when I play golf or bowl, but when we go fishing I find it better to wear slacks. The whole family loves to fish."

Scholarship Fund Opens Portals, Says McGinnis

"Opening the door of opportunity to talented, needy students," Dr. Howard J. McGinnis of Greenville said Friday is the thought that lies back of the Pitt County Scholarship Foundation. Dr. McGinnis, who is coordinator of the present drive to raise $100,000 for scholarships at the college, made the concluding address in a series of five radio programs given last week to explain the Foundation to citizens of the county.

"Hundreds of bright, eager, and needy young people," he stated, "are doomed to waste their sweetness on the desert air," so to speak; to be limited in the service they render to our society as adults, because the opportunity to develop their native talents for service was denied them."

"All work," he stated, "that serves a worthy human need is honorable, whether it be tilling the soil, building a house, feeding the hungry, or engaging in such pursuits as teaching those who want instruction, preaching the gospel, or serving in our governmental agencies."

"Men and women of intelligence, ambition, vision and training," he continued, "are needed in each of these pursuits; and it is the responsibility of all of us to help our youth, in every way possible, to achieve their worthy ambitions, and to secure the training that will make them the most effective citizens in this highly complex world." That, he declared, is the fundamental reason for the need of scholarships in our institutions of learning.

Friday's Cases In Police Court

By CHESTER WALSH
In Police Court Friday, Judge Charles H. Whedbee found John L. Braxton, farmer of near Ayden, guilty of indecent exposure.

The court sentenced Braxton to six months on the roads, sentence to be suspended on payment of $25.00 costs deducted. The court's judgment also provides that Braxton is not to enter the city limits of Greenville for two years.

Freddie L. Green, Georgia Negro, was found guilty of larceny in three cases and he was given a year on the roads in each case. Green is an escaped prisoner from a Georgia State Prison camp near Moultrie.

In the case of William Grice, Negro, the court gave him six months on the roads for non-support. Sentence is to be suspended on condition that he pay $6 a week for the support of his illegitimate child. He was to pay $6 before being released from jail.

David Newsome, Negro, was not guilty of disorderly conduct, and the prosecuting witness was taxed with court costs.

The case of Callie Watson, Negro, charged with vulgar and profane language, was continued.

Skipping a board bill; Caesar Reese Jr., Negro, prayer for judgment was continued on payment of $5.64 to the prosecuting witness and $5 on court costs. Carlton R. Daniels, Negro, same judgment on payment of $8.96 to the prosecuting witness.

Thomas J. Cox was found guilty of driving drunk and fined $100 and costs and recommendation that his driver's license be revoked for a year was made. The court fined Cox $25.00 costs deducted, for not having a driver's license. For hit-and-run driving, Judge Whedbee found Cox guilty and gave him 90 days on the roads. The order also provides that he is not to violate any law or ride in any motor vehicle except a passenger bus unless he makes restitution for property damage to Jarvis R. Everette.

Irvin R. Everette, careless and reckless driving, 30 days in jail, suspended on payment of $25 and costs, and he is not to operate a motor vehicle for six months. Also he is to remain of good behavior.

John R. Hemby Jr. and Isaac Davis Henry, Negroes, were found not guilty of aiding and abetting in larceny.

Lantis M. Howell paid $15 for being drunk.

The scoring for the evening got underway in a very routine manner—but quickly. The Pirates took the opening kickoff on their own 12-yard line and five plays later had their first score. After Cherry had returned the kickoff to the Pirate 25, Yarborough started the march by going six yards over tackle.

Siler then found Gay opened on the left side and shot him a pass which was good for a 37-yard gain to the Tech 32. Gay went for five more yards around end and then King was called upon to move the ball to the five on a pitchout which netted 23 yards. Siler passed to Yarborough for the score. Hawk Grissom added the first of four extra points and the Pirates were on their way.

Pirates Put On Offensive Show; Receive Bowl Offers

Approximately 6,500 fans were on hand Saturday night in College Stadium to watch the East Carolina Pirates finish their 1952 football season in a blaze of glory.

The Pirates were unappalled by the excellent record of the invading West Virginia Tech team. It took only five plays for the Bucs to score their first touchdown and only slightly more to score their second.

Throughout the entire first half the Pirates treated the capacity crowd to an offensive show seldom equaled in the stadium. Sandy Siler, playing his final game in a Pirate uniform, calmly hit receivers Paul Gay and All-America candidate Dwight Shoe, with such regularity that Tech defenders were off balance and out of position for Claude King's roaring driving runs that ripped for consistent gains of more than ten yards.

It was quite a show and officials from three different New Year's bowls were, unknowingly by the Pirates, watching from the stands.

N. M. Jorgensen, Director of Athletics at ECC, said that he had been approached by representatives from three bowls but as yet there has been no definite plans concluded for a post season game.

One of the offers came from a North Carolina bowl representative.

Injured Jockey Is Ready To Ride

WOONSOCKET, R. I. (UP)—Tony Despirito hopes to get back in the saddle again Tuesday to make up for two lost riding days in his quest for a new national victory record.

The 17-year-old apprentice jockey from Lawrence, Mass., fell twice in a single race Friday at Lincoln Downs and was hospitalized here.

"Tony wants to ride today but we have advised him to wait until tomorrow," said his manager, J. H. Carr of Somerville, Mass.

Carr said Despirito was recovering nicely from a brain concussion he suffered in the two tumblers, either one of which could have ended his riding career of hopelessly doom his bid to break the record of 388 wins in one season. He needs only 42 more victories to pass the mark.

League Titles, Bowl Bids To Be Decided Saturday

By JOHN GRIFFIN

NEW YORK (UP)—The Big Ten and Pacific Coast Conference races were thundering today toward a Saturday showdown with four pressure-packed games to decide both league titles and the coveted bids to the Rose Bowl.

The PCC crown will be settled in one glamorous, nationally televised game—the long-awaited struggle at Los Angeles between UCLA and Southern California, the two perfect-record titans of the West.

Four teams still are in contention for the Big Ten title as one of the hottest races in that league's history comes down to the wire—Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Purdue. And Michigan definitely has the inside track, for it's the only team in the group that can clinch simply by winning its game Saturday against Ohio State.

Each of the other three Big Ten contenders need a combination: Wisconsin can win by beating Minnesota, if Michigan loses; Minnesota can win by beating Wisconsin, if both Michigan and Purdue lose. Purdue can tie for the title by beating Indiana, if Michigan loses and Minnesota defeats Wisconsin.

Sounds complicated, but the two Rose Bowl rivals should be known by nightfall Saturday.

Texas nailed down the Cotton Bowl berth by rallying to beat Texas Christian, 14-7, on two touchdowns by Billy Quinn. The Longhorns thus clinched at least a tie for the Southwest Conference crown, with SMU the only team with a chance to tie. Texas is idle this week, while SMU meets Baylor.

Two other conference races are likely to be decided this week—the Big Seven, where Oklahoma needs only a win over Nebraska to nail down its seventh straight flag, and the Southern Conference, where Duke can pick up all the marbles by whipping North Carolina.

36 College Teams Compete In Track

NEW YORK (UP)—Teams from 36 colleges compete today in the 44th annual ICAA cross country championships at Van Cortlandt Park with the Harriers from Penn State seeking their third straight team title.

Penn State's team will be led by Lamont Smith, who finished fourth in last year's race over the five-mile course. Dick Shea of Army, individual winner last year, has graduated.

Regarded as Penn State's chief rivals for the team title are Army, winner of the heptagonal championship; St. John's, the metropolitan champion; Rhode Island, the New England champion; and Michigan State, Syracuse and Manhattan.

Winterville Adds Features To Gym

Winterville High School will play Maury High Tuesday night in their first basketball game of the season.

The Winterville girls team was Pitt County champion last year.

New bleacher seats which will accommodate approximately 150 to 200 more spectators have been made available for overflow crowd attendance.

The gym will also have a "new look." The wooden backboards have been replaced with modern glass backboards.

Far West Crowns Two New Champs

SYDNEY, Australia (UP)—The Far Pacific had two world boxing champions today.

Jimmy Carruthers gave Australia its first world title by knocking out bantamweight ruler Vic Towel of South Africa in the first round at Johannesburg, S. A., Saturday night.

Also on Saturday night, little Yoshio Shirai of Japan kept his world flyweight crown by giving ex-champion Dado Marino of Hawaii a 5-round beating at Tokyo.

Middleweights To Go Over TV Show

NEW YORK (UP)—Middleweights Rocky Castellani of Luzerne, Pa., and Vic Cardell of Hartford, Conn., clash tonight in the 10-round feature fight at Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway Arena.

The bout will be televised in many eastern areas.

The high-ranking Bears could do little with Coach Jack Boone's Pirates. From the moment of the game's first play—a 13-yard kickoff return by Dick Cherry—until the Bears punted from deep in their own territory—the Pirates were in almost complete charge of the ball game.

Most of the damage to Tech's football machine was turned in by a fellow making his last appearance in College Stadium, quarterback Sandy Siler. Siler wasn't much on running the ball—he never has been—but his ball-handling was with the touch of the gifted and his passing was good for six completions in 10 tries. The passing resulted in a total of 86 yards gained and two touchdowns. Another touchdown pass—for seven yards to Little All-America candidate Dwight Shoe—was called back because of a rules infraction.

Siler had plenty of help in wrecking the Tech machine but his chief aide was 190-pound sophomore Claude King of Wilmington. The husky fullback was playing his first complete game in three weeks but he didn't show any ill effects from his enforced layoff as he reeled off a total gain of 124 yards in 17 carries through the line. He lost on only two plays: once when he was going to pass and again on a reverse play which was stopped cold before it got started.

The scoring honors for the night went to another player making his final College Stadium appearance, halfback Illard Yarborough. The High Point senior tallied twice—once on a four-yard pass from Siler, again on a four-yard smash over right tackle. The other scoring was done by Paul Gay, Toppay Hayes, and Shoe.

Shoe, as usual, managed to pull the game's outstanding play when he took a 24-yard pass from Dick Cherry right out of the hands of a defensive halfback and then ran 40 additional yards for his touchdown. She not only took the ball out of Bud Cooney's hands but he pulled away from two other defenders to score the touchdown.

That 64-yard scoring play was seriously rivaled for "thrill of the evening" by Hayes' touchdown run, a 35-yard punt return. The little (160-pound) Hayes took Walter Rapko's punt on the Tech 35 with Tech linemen standing all around him. Hayes, a sophomore who did his high-school playing with the Durham County Counts, wasn't bothered at all by the defenders, however; he simply took the ball, headed for the right sidelines and turned on the steam. He scored untouched.

Scoring Comes Quickly

The final first half touchdown came midway the second period with a Siler-to-Gay passing resulting in six points after a sustained drive of 85 yards.

King had launched the drive by picking up 21 yards on a pitchout which moved the ball to the EC 49. Yarborough and King moved the ball to the Tech 13 when Gay was called on to run the ball. The little sophomore from Wilson picked up six yards to the seven. Siler passed to Shoe in the end zone for a touchdown but the Pirates were detected doing a little bit of slugging and the ball was shoved back to the 22 where Siler tried again. He failed to get the touchdown in two tries but his third pitch, found Gay all alone in front of the goal posts and the Pirates were ahead 27-0. Grissom missed his only extra point of the evening but it was of little consequence.

The third quarter passed quietly but both teams sneaked in a touchdown in the last fifteen-minute period. Tech got first chance and rammed across their only touchdown on the fifth play of the fourth quarter.

Fourth Quarter Scoring

The ball had come into possession of the Pirates on their own 30 after King had made the only punt forced upon the Pirates during the entire game. John Hess, who later left the game with a head injury, showed that Tech wasn't ready to quit when he returned the punt 30 yards to East Carolina's 40 where quarterback John Grossi and halfback Walt Rapko took over.

Grossi, a watch-pocket quarterback at 155 pounds, had a bit of trouble passing over the heads of the larger Pirates but Rapko made the key play of the drive when he flipped a 22-yard aerial to All-Conference end Jack Davis which put the ball on the East Carolina three. Rapko, Tech's leading scorer and a powerful runner, rammed the ball across from that point. Grossi kicked the point.

East Carolina, reportedly playing before representatives of three bowl games, quickly went to work to prove that Tech's TD was a big mistake on the part of both teams. They

McCLURE NEWSPAPER SYNDICATE 11-22

Conquest By Homer Hatten

From the beginning, Toni had selected the trails they were to follow. Dim trails, little used, sometimes fading away into nothingness...

the air. Two massive gates of hand-sawed oak provided an entrance to the stockade...

Slowly, incredulously, Clay's eyes roved over the scene before him. There was a strange incongruity about it--the contradiction of the wide fields and the bellicose stockade...

"Well," he said slowly, "I expected everything in the world but this. Is this where we started to go?"

Toni's eyes were like bright stars, and there was a half-smile on her lips. She was as enchanted as some child who had won through to a magic land...

"This is Palmentera," she said softly. "Palmentera, just as they have always told me"

"Told you? Do you mean to say that you've never been here before?"

"Never before. But I have known of it, and I have been told of the trail to follow since the time that I first became one of Las Espinas."

Clay shifted his weight in his saddle and grinned quizzically at her.

"Las Espinas, eh? In other words, The Thorns. And now you say you're one of them."

She lifted her shoulders in a gesture of rueful regret, laughing a little at her own carelessness and confusion.

It is always the way with women. They chatter and their tongues are loose at both ends and before their minds can curb their lips the damage is done. Si, corazon, there is an organization here in Texas of men who call themselves Las Espinas...

Clay nodded, his eyes narrowed in speculation as he studied her face. "I know. You haven't exactly overwhelmed me with information since we started out."

As they rode forward across the valley the gates swung open and four horsemen came riding through.

They were in no hurry. Indeed, they trotted carelessly along like men who had no greater responsibility than a casual hunting trip or a leisurely journey to some nearby posada.

As the group stopped before them Clay could see that they were Mexican vaqueros, the lean, steel-muscled horsemen of the plains, as selfless as medieval mercenaries.

One of them, a man past middle age, asked a question with straight lips that scarcely moved.

"Adonde van? Where are you going?" Clay glanced inquiringly at Toni and saw that she was leaning forward eagerly, her lips half parted, her eyes studying the dark face of the man before her.

"Quien sabe, amigo? El hombre propone y Dios dispone." Silently, Clay translated the phrase within his mind: Who knows, friend? Man proposes and God disposes.

The old man's eyes flickered once and then his face was impassive again. "Es verdad, en este mundo no hay rosas. It is true, in this world there are no roses."

He paused expectantly and Toni took up the ritual triumphantly: "No hay rosas sin espinas."

Clay let the tightly held breath go out of his lungs in a sigh of response. "There are no roses without thorns," the pattern was complete. This, then, was the outer guard of Las Espinas, and the high walls of Palmentera formed a stronghold of whatever strange brigade these men might be.

Arrest Solved Three Robberies

Greenville police solved three robberies of business places here when they captured a Negro convict who had escaped from a Georgia prison camp seven months ago.

Police Detective Lt. M.E. Corbett apprehended Freddie L. Green, 26-year-old Negro, early last week. Green, who was serving from eight to 10 years in the Moultrie, Georgia, prison camp, for burglary, was first picked up here on suspicion. Later, he was identified as an escapee.

Lt. M.E. Corbett and Negro Patrolman Caesar Corbett went to work on several robberies committed here. The two officers assembled sufficient evidence to charge Green with breaking, entering and robbery.

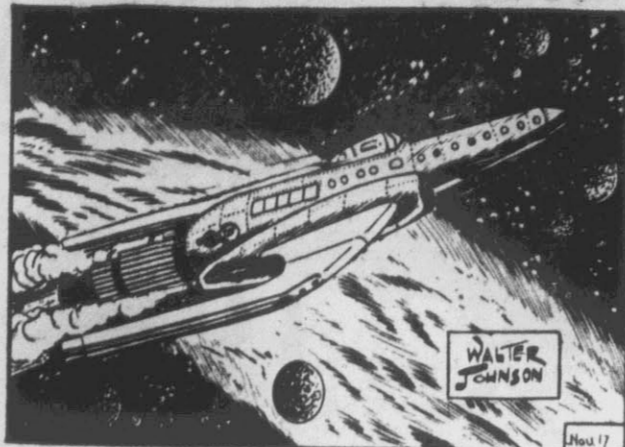

In Police Court, before Judge Charles H. Whedbee, Green pleaded guilty to robbing Barrett's Cafe, 11th and Pitt streets; West End Tea Room, West Fifth street, and Early's Pool Room, Bonner's Lane. The court found Green guilty of larceny in the three cases and gave him a year on the roads on each charge.

In the meantime, Green has been taken to the State Prison Camp for Negroes at Maury, in Greene county. He will be held there pending action of the Georgia prison authorities, Lt. Corbett stated.

Australia Beating Red Influence Among Unions

SYDNEY, Australia (U.P.) — Although attempts to outlaw the Communist Party failed in 1951, democratic substitute procedures today are gradually crushing red disruption in Australia's trade unions.

Many observers predicted that the Communists would enlarge their grip on trade unions after the people voted against a constitutional amendment to permit the Menzies-Fadden government to outlaw the party.

The government took its case for outlawing Communism to the people in September, 1951, after the nation's high court invalidated a bitterly-contested anti-Communist act. It was believed then to be the first attempt by an English-speaking democracy to outlaw the Communist Party.

Instead of an upsurge of red infiltration into trade unions, labor and government observers agree today that the Australian Communist Party has reached its lowest ebb since it was formed in 1917.

Not Politically Strong
Politically, Communism never gained any real stature in Australia, and a party candidate has never held a seat in the federal parliament.

The party's principal usefulness to the Kremlin was through its control of a small group of strategic trade unions in the mining, maritime, transport, steel, and building industries.

No spectacular parliamentary investigations of Communism comparable to the congressional probes conducted in the U.S.A. have accompanied the series of victories over the reds in Australia since defeat of the anti-Communist legislation.

The State of Victoria in 1949 conducted the only inquiry even roughly comparable to the character of the U.S. public hearings but it was no national undertaking.

"Hysteria" Avoided
Australians believe they have "contained" Communism in their country without lapsing into what they allege is an "hysterical" atmosphere of fear, which they claim prevails in America today.

Most experts agree that the most potent weapon used against the Communists is the secret ballot for the election of trade union officers. Communist officials were wiped out of union after union, and the newspaper headlines "Reds Kicked Out of Another Union" became almost a weekly occurrence.

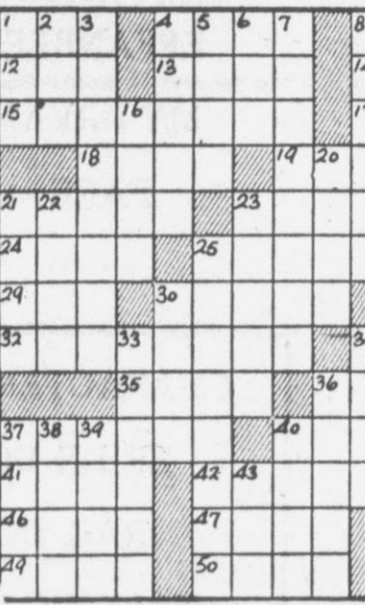

Top reds were thrown out of the Federated Ironworkers, controlling all of Australia's steelworkers. "Commos" lost their positions in the transport and building unions and their ranks were sadly depleted in the mining unions. Red bosses in the maritime unions, while still retaining power, took a much more cautious approach than the strike-inciting battle-cry of old.

Steps by Government
The government has done more than introduce the secret ballots legislation. It is:

1. Legislated to strengthen the machinery of the Commonwealth arbitration court, the highest rul-

Stocks And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Stocks rose a few cents on the average in light dealings during the morning trading today.

Three and oils provided a few wide-moving features in an otherwise narrow-moving list. Rails provided the activity. Steels, motors, chems and utilities ruled steady to firm.

Selectivity continued the watchword in trading circles. Special situations were sought and the main list was dull.

Allegheny Corp. opened on 25,000 shares and led the market in turnover. It touched 4 up 1/8 and a new high, and then sagged to the previous close. This company owns a large block of Missouri Pacific whose preferred has been soaring in recent markets.

Among the wider movers were Superior Oil of California at 490 off 10 and equals to the year's low; Amerada 183 1/2 off 1 1/2; Goodrich 71 1/2 up 2 1/2; International Harvest 31 3/4 up 1 1/4; Peoples Gas 127 up 1 1/4; Pure Oil 60 1/2 off 1; and International Business Machines 224 up 1 and a new high.

Institute For Driver-Training Held At College

DRIVER EDUCATION PROGRAM Dean Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina College, (center), awards a certificate to a member of a course in Teachers' Preparation in Driver Education completed on the campus last weekend. Eighteen people who completed a course in Teacher Preparation in Driver Education were awarded certificates Friday morning at East Carolina College. Dean Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina made a brief talk on safety on the highways and presented the certificates.

The course was given Monday through Friday of last week under the sponsorship of the state departments of Public Instruction and of Motor Vehicles and East Carolina College with the cooperation of the American Automobile Association and the Carolina Motor Club.

John Noe, advisor in Safety Education with the State Department of Public Instruction, conducted the 40-clock-hour course. Working with him was Stewart Mead of Livingston, N. J., AAA course instructor.

Class members were largely teachers representing schools over a wide area in North Carolina. One came from Maryland, and another, represented the Police Department in Burlington.

These receiving certificates were: Ray L. Alston, Apex; Clyde L. Andrew, Raleigh; Ben B. Bowles, and W. Willie Bruner, Burlington; Carlton Fleetwood, St. Pauls; E. A. Gans and Mrs. Gans, Hendersonville; Herman J. Hayes, Hunterford; Edward J. Hayes, Hunterford; Jay M. Robinson, Concord; Thurston Little, Freeland; Elwood Mitz, Lenoir; Ben E. Perry, Edenton; Charles W. Porter, Wilson; Ralph W. Roper, Wilmington; Elmer J. Supple, Dickerson, Md.; Albert F. Wadford, Butler; and Floyd T. Wilson, Jr., Concord.

Police List 169 October Arrests

Greenville police made 169 arrests during October, according to Chief Guy C. Langston's report. Seventy-three of those arrested were white—11 of them males, and two females.

Ninety-six Negroes were arrested. Eighty-five of them were males; 11, females.

The chief's report shows that the police investigated 46 accidents during the month; 19 dog complaints and 332 miscellaneous complaints during October.

The report shows that 216 cases were known to police during the month; 169 of them were cleared by arrests. Average number of cases cleared by arrests, 78.2 per cent.

The chief's report also shows that 31 cases were recorded for other authorities, and that 29 arrests were recorded for other authorities.

Mileage of police patrol cars follows, 51 car, 651 miles; 52 cars, 2,398 miles; 53 cars, 768 54 cars, 405 miles; No. 1 motorcycle, 527 miles; No. 2 motorcycle, 1,263 miles, and the dog catcher's truck, 1,232 miles.

The report was signed by Capt. Raymond T. Rogerson, acting chief of police until November 17, when the new chief, S. G. Gibbs, will take office. Chief Langston resigned, effective November 1.

Denies Reports

TOKYO (AP)—Gen. Mark Clark today flatly denied published reports he has asked for additional U. S. divisions to mount an offensive in Korea.

In reply to a query, Clark said such stories "are without foundation in fact."

The Chicago Sun-Times Saturday said Clark, U. S. Far East commander, had asked the Defense Department to send him three or four more American divisions.

The Sun-Times report, by Frederick Kuh of its Washington Bureau, said "according to a reliable source, he (Clark) made it clear that his aim is to prepare a new major offensive against the Chinese and North Korean Communists."

Capitol Square

(Continued from page four) lies during the transition will be about the same. To require the Scouts to maintain normal routine through the night of January 7 and the Umsteads to pick up and carry on beginning at noon of January 8 seems unfair to both families. The four-year-old proposal for a transition period of vacancy seems to make good sense.

REFERENCES—Your reporter has not interviewed any of the women folk, but it is believed that Mrs. Max Gardner, Mrs. J. C. B. Ehringhaus, Mrs. J. M. Broughton and Mrs. Gregg Cherry, each of whom has gone in and out of the mansion, will agree that the change-over has night marsh elements that could and should be avoided. This year would be the best time, since it has not been done before, to start the new program of an interim vacancy.

Wouldn't Wait; Goes Barefoot

CHICAGO (UP)—George Perry, 44, decided to go barefooted rather than wait around the jail for a pair of shoes. Dismissed on a disorderly conduct charge, Perry ignored the judge's suggestion that he wait.

He said he had been robbed of his shoes and wallet. Before dashing away, he said, "Just let me go. I can get home without any shoes. It's not cold outside."

Personally Leads Traffic Crusade

NEW YORK (UP)—Chief Magistrate John M. Murlagh, who has been waging war on "scofflaws"—motorists who ignore traffic summonses—personally led a police squad Sunday which picked 34 automobiles off the streets and put them in the city pound. The owners weren't getting them back until they pay off their traffic tickets, plus $10 hauling charges on their cars.

Refuses Return To Clear Up Tale

FARGO, N.D. (UP)—Newell Anderson, 27-year-old former circulation manager of a Tupelo, Miss., newspaper, said today he has decided not to go back to Mississippi to clear himself of charges that his story of being driven from Mississippi by hooded terrorists was a hoax.

Anderson did not give any reason for his decision not to make the trip. He had been quoted earlier as saying he would go to Mississippi to "clear my name."

But George McLean, editor-publisher of the Tupelo Journal, said he had withdrawn an offer to pay Anderson's expenses for the trip because the plans had not been kept secret.

Anderson's story that he was taken for a "ride" and threatened by hooded terrorists has been challenged by Rep. John Rankin (D-Miss.) and Tupelo Police Chief D. B. Crockett.

Crockett said he thought marks on Anderson's face were pin scratches rather than razor marks, and that Anderson had contradicted himself in telling his story.

Anderson and his wife left Tupelo shortly before the deadline he said was set by the hooded men, and returned to his parents' home here.

At Tupelo, McLean said he called off the offer because the Minneapolis Morning Tribune published news of the offer.

Reds Proclaim Industrialization

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The Communist Pelona radio claims the Manchurian rail center of Harbin, once a refuge for White Russians across the Soviet frontier, has been transformed into an industrial center in three years.

The red broadcast said that before "liberation" by the Communists in 1948, Harbin had only one large factory, a railway workshop. Now, the Reds say, industrial output is five times above the 1949 level. Mentioned specifically were a modern flax mill, a machine tool plant and a tractor parts plant.
