Truman Pleased With Ike's Stand

Discloses POW Issue Among Main Matters Discussed At White House Tuesday; Willing To Meet With Eisenhower Again; Hopes Cabinet Will Be Named Soon

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Truman said today he is "very happy" that President-elect Eisenhower expressed approval of the administration's stand against forcible repatriation of Communist prisoners in Korea.

Mr. Truman told a news conference—his first since Sept. 25—that the Korean prisoner situation was one of the main matters discussed in Tuesday's White House meeting.

He opened the news conference with a brief statement that the election is over and "we are trying to get things in shape" for an orderly transition between administrations.

He said one purpose of the Tuesday meeting and one of his present objectives is to let "the world know that this country is a unified organization."

Asked for comment on statements by Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-?) about balancing the budget, Mr. Truman said a news conference Taft doesn't know anything about what is in the budget and he had better wait until he sees it.

The President said he has always submitted tight, honest budgets to Congress and that Congress never has been able to cut them very much despite strenuous efforts.

There have been reports Mr. Truman would submit a budget of about $85,000,000,000.

The President also said he will continue to have influence in the Democratic party but he considers Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson to be the party's head.

Mr. Truman said that Stevenson, unsuccessful Democratic candidate for president, will visit him here about Dec. 1.

He also said that he will not be ready to announce his future plans until Jan. 1—the day after he turns over the White House to Eisenhower. But he said he is not going to do anything for a while but take life easy.

Mr. Truman said he will be glad to meet again with Eisenhower before Jan. 20 if the President-elect desires it. Mr. Truman said he will be glad to see Eisenhower at any time.

As Mr. Truman held the news conference, diplomatic officials predicted that Eisenhower's forthcoming trip to Korea also will convince him the Truman administration was right about keeping Chinese Nationalist troops out of the fighting.

Mr. Truman said "I was very happy to see that Gen. Eisenhower had told Sen. (Alexander) Wiley (R-Wis.) that he was in accord with the policy on prisoner of war in Korea."

Czechoslovakian Red Purge Trials Hit Top Officials

Former Foreign Minister Among 14 Who Are Charged With Treason And Spying

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—Fourteen former top leaders of Communist Czechoslovakia, including former Foreign Minister Vratislav Clementis, went on trial in a Prague court today on charges of treason and espionage.

Austrian Press Agency reports said Clementis had confessed to responsibility for the death of Jan. Sverm, a Slovak Communist hero who took part in the anti-Nazi uprising of 1944.

The reports said Rudolf Slansky, former secretary-general of the party and another of the chief defendants, had admitted to preventing medical treatment for Sverm. Slansky was charged also with plotting the "elimination" of President Klement Gottwald.

No Western correspondent was permitted to witness the court room drama, which compared with the famous Moscow trials of 1936. The Prague trial represented a final stage in a struggle for power by clashing factions within the Red leadership of a country once foremost in the ranks of the Democracies, and now dominated by the Soviet Union.

Maria Svermova, widow of Sverm, was a former deputy of Slansky. She is reported to have given testimony to Communist interrogators that helped them obtain a confession from Slansky. Although she was arrested with Slansky, her name was not among the accused.

There have been no Western correspondents working in Prague since the spy trial in July, 1951, of Associated Press correspondent William N. Oatis. He received a 10-year sentence on what has been denounced in the West as trumped up charges. Clementis' name figured in the Oatis trial. Oatis testified as to his part in reporting the arrest of Clementis—a big news story of that time.

The prosecution sought to stamp as "spying" the normal work of a reporter in collecting facts and answering queries of his home office about the Clementis story.

The trial was first announced earlier today by Prague radio. Eleven of the 14 accused are Jews. Radio Prague said that all 14 were accused of "Trotskyism, Titoism, and Zionism," and were all "bourgeois nationalist traitors and enemies of the Czechoslovak people and of socialism."

The broadcast continued: "In the service of American imperialism, under the leadership of Western espionage agencies, they formed an anti-state conspiracy center in order to destroy the People's Democratic machine in Czechoslovakia and to sabotage Socialist reconstruction and the national economy."

Mr. Truman said "I was very happy to see that Gen. Eisenhower had told Sen. (Alexander) Wiley (R-Wis.) that he was in accord with the policy on prisoner of war in Korea."

He also said that he will not be ready to announce his future plans until Jan. 1—the day after he turns over the White House to Eisenhower. But he said he is not going to do anything for a while but take life easy.

Cars In Collision At Intersection

Around $500 in damage to two cars resulted from collision yesterday around noon at the intersection of 10th and Evans Streets. Investigating officer V. C. Ackert said one of the cars, driven by Mrs. Louise C. Brocado, went through on a caution light and collided with a car driven by William Eugene Stocks. There were no injuries and no arrest was made. Assisting in the investigation was Sgt. H. B. Lilly. (Reflector photo by Muriel Shotwell).

Speed Record Is Set By New F-86

Jet Sets 699.9 MPH Mark In Flying Over Measured Course

THERMAL, Calif. (UP)—An improved model of the Sabrejet interceptor being used in Korea streaked to a new world's speed record of 699.9 miles an hour.

The North American F-86D Interceptor was credited by company and Air Force officials with surpassing the official record of 670.981 miles an hour set in 1948 by an earlier Sabrejet, the F-86A.

Capt. J. Slade Nash, of Edwards Air Force Base, piloted the sleek, silver all-weather plane in four passes Wednesday over a measured course near Salton Sea, 177 feet below sea level, in the Upper Imperial Valley.

The jet carried a full military rocket armament load and weighed nine tons for the record-breaking run.

"There was little rough air to contend with," said Nash, 31, of Sioux City, Iowa, "despite the low altitude of the flight at below sea level. The clear weather and excellent visibility helped make the flight a success."

Nash kept the jet less than 100 feet off the ground during its four passes over the three-kilometer course. Electrical timers were used for the tests.

While the course itself was only three kilometers (1.863 miles), the plane flew 40 miles on each of its runs to build up speed. The added mileage also was necessary to enable the plane to turn around and straighten out for each pass over the desert course.

A General Electric jet engine powered the interceptor. The engine developed more than 5,700 thrust pounds which was increased about a third by an after-burner which utilized exhaust fuel.

The Air Force ordered the flight to test the plane's proficiency, said Col. Fred J. Ascani, director of flight test and development at Edwards Air Force Base, where the old speed mark was set.

Airliner's Polar Flight Proceeds Without Mishap

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP)—A Scandinavian airliner winged across the top of the world today and landed at the big U. S. Air Force Base at Thule, North Greenland, more than half way along the trail it is blazing for commercial aviation over the North Pole.

The Arid Viking, making the first of two exploratory flights from Los Angeles to Copenhagen, landed at Thule at 3:28 a.m. Eastern Standard Time, the Scandinavian Airlines System, operators of the plane, announced.

The Viking carried 22 passengers, a crew of 13, seven Arctic survival equipment as sleeping bags, skis, snowshoes, snow shovels and rifles, and 500 pounds of mail. Her operators hope to inaugurate regular commercial service on the top-of-the-world route between Los Angeles and Copenhagen soon.

Bulletin

NEW YORK (UP)—President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower announced today that he had picked three members of his cabinet—John Foster Dulles of New York, Charles E. Wilson of Detroit, and Gov. Douglas McKay of Oregon.

Eisenhower announced that following his inauguration he would send to the Senate the nominations of Dulles as secretary of state; Wilson as secretary of defense, and McKay as secretary of the interior.

Pitt Fugitive Is Declared Outlaw

P. F. Baxter, Oct. 24 Escaped, May Be Killed On Sight

One of two convicts who gained their freedom from a skillfully engineered break from a Pitt County road gang Friday, October 24, has been declared an outlaw and may be shot down on sight.

Peter Franklin Baxter, 30, who is wanted by Gaston County for breaking and entering and larceny and was serving a life sentence for murder, was identified this week by Superior Court Judge Zeb V. Nettles as an "outlaw."

Judge Nettles proclaimed Baxter a dangerous fugitive and instructed the sheriffs of all counties in the state to take any steps necessary to apprehend him.

On a wanted "flier" now circulating throughout North Carolina the judge commanded that Baxter surrender himself to the nearest law enforcement agency. The "flier" was issued November 17.

On the wanted notice, Judge Nettles warned Baxter that if he fails to immediately surrender himself, any citizen of the state may, after calling on him to surrender, slay him without accusation or impeachment of any crime.

Only Baxter, and Arcadio Rodriguez remain at large of the original five who escaped. Three other convicts have been captured.

Lafayette Miller Appeal Heard By Supreme Court

RALEIGH (UP)—A lanky young Negro who once escaped execution at the zero hour called anxiously in a death row cell here today for a ruling by the State Supreme Court that could overthrow his death sentence.

Attorneys for Lafayette Miller argued before the highest state court yesterday that his constitutional rights were violated by the grand jury which indicted him, Samuel Mitchell, local Negro attorney, contended that Negroes are discriminated against in the selection of Beaufort County grand jurors.

Miller was convicted of firing a shotgun blast from ambush last Thanksgiving eve and killing young white farmer Harvie C. Boyd, 21, at his home near Chocowinity.

Chest Drive Goes On Despite Rain

First Reports Indicate $3,000 Turned In On $14,000 Goal

Greenville's Community Chest was jogging along through the rain Thursday. There is still a long way to go to raise the $14,000, campaign officials said.

Two teams in the Special Gifts Division headed by Tom Webb had reported their assignments completed. Chairman W. W. Lee has announced, but no word has come from the 22 other teams.

On the basis of early gifts from the Special Gifts, the Branch Firms and the residential areas, Lee reported that the contributions of $3,000 have been turned in on the $14,000 quota.

Welcomed as a contribution to the break in the drought which has been hurtful to permanent pastures, cover crops and urban residents' lawns, the rainfall of Wednesday and Thursday had a dampening effect upon the Community Chest workers' activity.

Chairman Lee has strongly urged Chest workers to complete their calls and make their reports before the end of this week.

One effort of the Community Chest drive is to "put all the eggs in one basket." Public Information Chairman James Butler said Thursday. This supporting of seven agencies in one appeal is the Good Neighbor spirit at work in a practical manner, he added.

Gifts which have not been called for should be mailed to Chairman W. W. Lee, Greenville Community Chest Campaign, if a solicitor in any of the divisions has failed in calling on prospective donors.

Pitt Civil Term Of Court Closes

Yesterday afternoon presiding Judge J. Paul Frizzelle signed the last judgment and brought the November civil term of Pitt Superior Court to a close.

Court was scheduled to last through Thursday, but it ended yesterday after the last case on the calendar for trial was completed. Jurors were released to return to their homes.

One divorce was granted yesterday. It was in the case of Willie J. Rogers vs Mayo James Rogers, white, and came on the grounds of two years separation.

Other cases heard were: J. P. Davenport, Jr. vs Marshall Lee, Davenport was awarded the sum of $503.78; L. D. Wall vs Otis Hawkins, Jr. Wall entitled to recover $1,000.

This week's session is the last to be held here this month. There will be a special criminal session beginning Monday, December 15.

U. S. Fighters Shoot Down Five MiGs Over N. Korea

UN 'Showdown' On Korea Is Near

Meets With Dulles Today In Briefing On Foreign Affairs Preparatory To Anticipated Trip To Far East

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UP)—The United Nations moved closer to a showdown on Korean peace plans today with the United States still resisting pressure to endorse India's compromise proposal.

The U.S. position in the U.N. was strengthened by the announcement of Sen. Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.) that President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower emphatically opposes forcible repatriation of Communist prisoners in Korea.

"The fate of prisoners resisting repatriation still lacked clarity, in American opinion, despite an hour-and-a-half explanation of the Indian compromise proposal before the General Assembly's main Political Committee by V. K. Krishna Menon of India.

But Menon did tell the Assembly that the Indian resolution did not mean that recalcitrant prisoners would be kept prisoner indefinitely, as the U.S. feared.

"There must be an understanding," Menon said, "that you can't keep human beings in captivity all their lives or for an indefinite period."

The Indian resolution already contains a provision that force cannot be used either to repatriate or retain prisoners.

Menon's clarification appeared to boil down to this: 1. There would be an immediate cease-fire if both sides accepted the Indian compromise proposal.

2. All prisoners would be freed in demilitarized zones under a U.N. commission and those refusing to go home would be given food and shelter there.

3. The fate of those who still had not chosen to be repatriated after 90 days would be decided by a high level far eastern political conference provided for in the tentative Panmunjom truce terms.

The U.S. has maintained that there can be no cease-fire until the prisoners' fate is decided and that the Indian proposal offers recalcitrants only a "one exit" haven—go home or rot in prison camps.

"The soviet position still had not been made clear. Menon asked priority for his proposal in the committee's considerations.

Immediately after Wednesday afternoon's full session, an eight-member subcommittee of the 21-power Western group co-sponsoring an American peace resolution met to decide on the request for priority, but reached no conclusion. The issue was to be taken up by the entire 21 at a closed meeting today.

The full Political Committee also scheduled morning and afternoon meetings in an effort to conclude the extended debate on Korea and reach a vote on the opposing peace resolutions.

After his meeting with Dulles, the President-elect was scheduled to see Harold E. Stassen, unsuccessful candidate for the GOP presidential nomination, and have a luncheon conference with British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, who is here attending the U.N. General Assembly.

Dulles' visit comes on the heels of a meeting Wednesday between Eisenhower and Sen. Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.), a member of the U. S. delegation to the United Nations who is slated to become chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in the next Congress.

After his meeting, Wiley said that the President-elect had assured him he was completely behind the principles of the U.N. and was in full agreement with current American policy opposing forcible repatriation of Communist prisoners in Korea.

Jet Duels Take Place In Blistering Attack On Troop Concentration Area; Chinese Open Assault On Pinpoint Hill, Fight Still Going On At Day's End

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—American fighter pilots shot down five Communist MIG-15 jet fighters over North Korea today, raising to more than 500 the toll of the Russian-made planes destroyed in the 20-month-old Korean war.

The aerial duels between the Sabres and MIGs took place as F-84 Thunder-jets smashed the "hottest target" in North Korea—a huge enemy troop concentration area and suspected rocket launching site near the Yalu river.

On the ground, 300 screaming Chinese attacked Pinpoint Hill and Rocky Point on Sniper Ridge late today in the heaviest assault on the central front height in four days. The battle was still going on this evening.

At dusk, U.N. troops fired one of the heaviest rocket barrages of the war into Chinese positions north of Kumwha. Nearly 600 rockets were launched. Half the missiles were armed with fuses that exploded on force contact, hurling lethal fragments at the Reds.

Other Allied air attacks included two B-29 raids on a 30-acre metal processing plant at Moktong in north-central Korea and against a 55-acre troop and supply center in northwest Korea.

Two other MIGs were damaged today for a three-day total of 21 destroyed or damaged.

Capt. Paul E. Jones Jr., of Aragon, Ga., shot down two MIGs in one minute in a scramble above the Sulho reservoir flanking the Manchurian border.

They were the 499th and 500th shot down. Jones dedicated them—his first kills in 78 missions—to his daughter Shelly, 2.

The other MIG kills were credited to 1st Lt. David T. Copeland of Dallas, Tex.; Capt. Manuel T. Ferrnandez, Miami, Fla., and 1st Lt. Glenn A. Carus, Nashville, Tenn.

Carus knocked down his MIG without firing a shot. He maneuvered the enemy jet into a stall from which the Red pilot could not recover.

The troop concentration area and suspected rocket launching site was located north of Chongju, 50 miles from the Yalu.

Sweeping in at treetop level, the F-84s dropped more than 25,000 gallons of burning napalm and leveled more than 80 buildings. Pilots said black smoke swirled thousands of feet into the air.

On the ground, a deadly half of fire from Allied artillery, machine-guns and rifles ripped into Chinese forces harassing Sniper Ridge on the central front.

The accurate fire drove what remained of the Red attack force to the bottom of Rocky Point, the pinnacle of the eastern finger of the hill mass. South Korean troops were ready and waiting for the Reds to reopen the battle for the Kumwha ridges.

U. N. raiders struck deep into red-held territory east of the Pukhan River on the east-central front, killing or wounding 85 Chinese soldiers before returning to Allied lines.

The raiders, their faces daubed black, drove a Chinese platoon off a hill position and fought a fierce skirmish at hand-grenade range with about 150 counterattacking Chinese in a one-hour and 20-minute action.

Eisenhower Continuing His Advisory Meetings

American Position Strengthened By Eisenhower Opposition To Forcible Repatriation Of Communist Prisoners

NEW YORK (UP)—President-elect Eisenhower, preparing for his forthcoming trip to Korea, confers today with John Foster Dulles, one of the top GOP experts on far eastern policy.

Dulles, architect of the Japanese peace treaty concluded with this country in 1951, has been mentioned prominently as the next secretary of state.

Dulles' visit comes on the heels of a meeting Wednesday between Eisenhower and Sen. Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.), a member of the U. S. delegation to the United Nations who is slated to become chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in the next Congress.

After his meeting, Wiley said that the President-elect had assured him he was completely behind the principles of the U.N. and was in full agreement with current American policy opposing forcible repatriation of Communist prisoners in Korea.

The repatriation issue was responsible for a deadlock of truce negotiations between U.N. and Communist officials in Korea.

It was believed Dulles and Eisenhower would discuss not only Korea but would touch on other world trouble spots, including Iran, on which the President-elect was briefed during his White House conference with President Truman and his cabinet on Tuesday.

Eisenhower will get another top-secret briefing on military and diplomatic affairs Friday, possibly his last before leaving for Korea. Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. (R-Mass.), Eisenhower's liaison man with the outgoing administration, will come here from Washington to make the report.

Dulles was another in an increasing list of foreign policy and military experts on the engagement list as the President-elect went about the double task of preparing for the Korean trip and building his new administration.

In addition to Wiley, Eisenhower met Wednesday with Maj. Gen. Roger Ramey, director of operations for the Air Force, and Maj. Gen. Wilton B. Persons. Persons is believed to be the man who is putting together Eisenhower's Korean itinerary. He was an administrative assistant to Eisenhower in Paris and was reported in line for a top White House staff post. After his meeting with Dulles, the President-elect was scheduled to see Harold E. Stassen, unsuccessful candidate for the GOP presidential nomination, and have a luncheon conference with British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, who is here attending the U.N. General Assembly.

Dulles' visit comes on the heels of a meeting Wednesday between Eisenhower and Sen. Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.), a member of the U. S. delegation to the United Nations who is slated to become chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in the next Congress.

Solicitation Control Steps To Be Talked

The Greenville Merchants Association and Chamber of Commerce will be hosts to representatives from 17 invited associations in eastern North Carolina to discuss solicitation control.

Tonight's meeting has been called at the request of Charles L. McCullers, manager of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce, who said that the matter of solicitation control is of vital importance to members of Merchants' associations and chambers of commerce.

The meeting is a follow-up of a meeting held in Greenville May 27, 1948, at which time a set of uniform rules and regulations regarding solicitations were recommended.

Car And School Bus Damaged In Collision Today

One person was slightly injured and nominal property damage was done when a car and a city school bus collided at Manhattan Avenue and Chestnut street about 8:30 a. m. today.

The police report stated that the car, driven by Enla Hollowell Pele, 1407 Chestnut street, and the school bus, from West Greenville School, driven by Lloyd Allen Hudson, 18, collided at the intersection as a result of "confusion over signals." No arrest.

Brenda Boyd, six years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Boyd, 14th street, was not seriously hurt.

TREMOR RECORDED

MOBILE, Ala. (UP)—Seismographs here and in New York today recorded what was described as a moderate, sharp earthquake in Central America.

The Viking carried 22 passengers, a crew of 13, seven Arctic survival equipment as sleeping bags, skis, snowshoes, snow shovels and rifles, and 500 pounds of mail. Her operators hope to inaugurate regular commercial service on the top-of-the-world route between Los Angeles and Copenhagen soon.

By Week's End? WASHINGTON (AP)—Economic Stabilizer Roger Putnam hopes to decide before the end of the week whether John L. Lewis' $75,000 soft coal miners should be allowed the full $1.90 daily wage increase they won from the industry.

Plan No Korea Front Line Tour On Eisenhower Visit

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower will get his briefing on Korea at headquarters "well behind the lines and will not make any risky trips to the front, according to present plans, official sources said today.

Reliable sources also said "all possible safeguards" will protect the president-elect from scores of Communist agents assumed to be in Seoul.

However, the final decision on where he will go and what he will see is up to Eisenhower himself, sources here said. South Korean officials have indicated the visit would begin in Seoul here he will confer with 8th Army commander Gen. James

Parade Postponed

Continuing inclement weather has necessitated indefinite postponement of the community chest parade set for this afternoon at 3:30.

J. H. Rose, superintendent of city schools, said late this morning the parade, which is to kick-off the community chest drive in Greenville, may be held sometime next week.

The parade was originally scheduled for yesterday afternoon, but was postponed until today because of threatening weather. "It definitely will not be held this week," Rose stated.

No Fannies For Sale
The Ladies Auxiliary of St. Paul's Episcopal Church are sorry to announce that they were unable to secure the pansy plants for which they have been taking orders.

The nursery which accepted their order in September failed at the last minute to deliver it. Contacts with other concerns were unsuccessful. Nowhere could enough plants be bought to be sold at the prices quoted to their friends and delivered as consigned.

They express regret and offer apologies, both individually and collectively, for their inability to supply their many customers in Greenville and throughout the county. However, they will again try next year to resume the project.

Robersonville Couple Hold Open House On Anniversary

ROBERSONVILLE—On Saturday evening, November 15, Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Kilpatrick celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary at their home in Robersonville.

The guests were invited to call between the hours of 8:00-11:00 p. m., and as they arrived they were greeted at the door by Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Roberson, who introduced them to the receiving line. The four children, Marshall, Michael, Linda and Emily, received with their parents.

Mrs. M. L. Weaver, presiding over the register, directed the guests into the gift room, where Mrs. W. O. Gibbs of Elizabeth City, sister of Dr. Kilpatrick, and Mrs. J. E. L. Thomas of Fayetteville received.

The dining room was resplendent with its table covered with an imported outdoor cloth. The centerpiece was a beautifully decorated three tiered cake topped with a nosegay of lilies of the valley and roses with ribbons tied with chrysanthemums and fern streaming from the cake.

A silver punch bowl graced one end of the table while a silver tray with individually decorated cakes adorned the other.

The banquet end table held silver candelabra with lighted tapers and a bouquet of mixed white flowers.

Mrs. Harvey Roberson, sister of Mrs. Kilpatrick, served the cake. Mrs. George Pennington of Tarboro, niece of Dr. Kilpatrick, poured the punch. Mrs. Everett James, Mrs. James H. Gray, Mrs. Gilbert Smith and Mrs. Herbert Highsmith served the attractive flowered mints and salted nuts.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie R. Gray said the purpose of the sales is to raise funds for the building program of the church.

Now, for the first time, young brides looking for a sterling pattern have an "Americana" design in silver to complement their ranch house or early American furnishings, says Reed & Barton silversmiths new "Silver Wheat."

Characterized by a gracefully sculptured wheat spray sweeping up toward the plain handle end with its light-catching tilt, "Silver Wheat" is a turning point in modern silver design. It is modern in styling, but not extreme modern. It is contemporary with a touch of traditional.

According to Best Jewelry Co., this unusual new sterling pattern by Reed & Barton is attracting considerable interest from young marrieds, with many of them choosing this distinctive new design to go with their new homes.

Robersonville OES Welcomes Officials
ROBERSONVILLE—At the regular meeting of the Eastern Star on Monday night, November 10, Mrs. Lila Duke, district deputy matron, and Mrs. Charlie Gray, district deputy patron, paid their official visit to the chapter.

Mrs. Duke spoke on the ritualistic work of the order and told of her trip to the Grand Chapter in Milwaukee.

On behalf of the chapter Mrs. Margaret Matthews presented Mrs. Duke with an antique gold pitcher and Mrs. John Tyler gave Mr. Gray a billfold from the Stowell Chapter 244.

Special guests for the meeting were Mrs. Evelyn Hunt of Williamston, worthy matron, Mr. V. J. Spivey of Williamston, associate grand patron, and Dr. Frank Duke of Washington, past grand patron.

Prize Exhibit On Display At P.T.A. Meeting

ROBERSONVILLE—Because the high school auditorium is being painted, the P.T.A. executives met in the Elementary School Thursday night at 7:30 p. m.

At 8:00 p. m. the parents and teachers held their regular meeting, which was opened by the singing of "Home on the Range," led by the music teacher, Miss Jeanne Taylor.

Mrs. Wiley B. Rogerson gave the devotional and Mrs. Marvin Everett reported on the study course, "How to Build a Healthy Personality."

The president announced that the band master will arrive the first of December to work with pupils in the fourth through the tenth grades. It was also announced that Miss Addie Lee Meaders, a speech consultant, will conduct a study course dealing with speech problems in children.

Mrs. Vance Roberson gave a report on the bridge tournament, which was sponsored by the organization. She said that $100 was cleared on this, and with the funds made from the Halloween festival, the treasury now boasts a balance of over $1,000. A membership of 259 was reported.

Jo Ann Warren, a high school senior, who represented the community in the Harvest Festival which was held in Williamston, reported on the activities there. The organization presented her with a gift.

Miss Sonja Taylor, who was voted Miss High School, was crowned by Lela Modlin, last year's queen. Ann House, Miss Elementary School, was crowned by the 1951 winner, Glenda Lee Roberson. All the queens were presented gifts from local firms.

Pupils in the sixth grade, under the direction of their teacher, Miss Hilda Summell, gave a musical program, playing on their new chimes and flutes. Her grade was awarded the attendance prize.

On exhibition in the halls was a model of Robersonville showing the progress which had been made in the community since 1872. This copy was made by the seventh grade under the instruction of Mrs. Evelyn Cherry and won first place at the Martin County Fair. The miniature town was laid out street by street with tiny cardboard buildings which were duplications of present dwellings. Churches, schools, and other points of interest in the town were faithfully represented. The exhibit attracted a lot of attention and comment.

Other prizes which were won at the fair by school groups were: the Home Economics exhibit, which won second place; the FFA exhibit, which won third place, and the high school library exhibit, which won fourth place.

Mrs. Chester Hart Bridge Club Hostess
AYDEN—On Friday night at her home near Ayden Mrs. Charles Hart entertained the members of her bridge club.

At the end of play bedroom slides were won by Mrs. Tucker Tripp for high score, while Christmas wrappings were won by Mrs. Clarence Hart as runner-up. Mrs. Leslie Stocks was recipient of a prize for low score.

The hostess served a sweet course with coffee to the following: Mesdames Tripp, Hart, Stocks, Marvin McCormick, Joe Tripp, Raymond Cox, Wilbur Dunn and Mac Edwards.

Masonic Notice

Beauty Contest Well Received

FOUNTAIN—The All-Male Beauty contest held in Fountain School auditorium Friday night was a great success.

Carey Gaynor and Jimmy Bell were winners in the All-Male Beauty contest, which was sponsored by the business women's circle of the First Baptist Church.

Runners-up to Carey for the title of ugliest were Rooney Lee Owens and Willie Killbrew. Crowding Jimmy Bell for first place as the prettiest were Rod Harris, second place; and Jim Jefferson, third.

Two of the contestants, Gloria Swanson (Jim Jefferson) and Jeanette MacDonald (Mr. J. A. Denton) rendered several songs with dances and appropriate gestures. The Spring Branch Quartet sang several hymns.

Rev. Philip M. Corey was master of ceremonies, and the judges were Miss Nancy Pruden, Mrs. Sadie Collins, and Mrs. Pauline Eagles, all of Wilson.

Mrs. Dawson Jefferson was the accompanist on the piano, assisted by Mr. Dawson Jefferson with his saxophone. They entertained with a musical program prior to the contest, and throughout the program Robert Knox of Tarboro concluded the program with popular tunes.

The total amount from the cake auction and the door receipts netted $150.00 for the organ fund. The organ has arrived and will be installed as soon as the painters have finished their job in the church.

Large Group Attends State CYF Convention

LARGE GROUP—SOC ROBERSONVILLE—Martin County was well represented by a delegation of young people who attended the North Carolina convention of the Disciples of Christ.

The convention was held in Raleigh at Hilyer Memorial Christian Church. The youth from the community attended the session which had been planned for the CYF, a portion of which was presented by CYF members from Kinston. A play entitled "A Day at Camp," was given by the Wilson Chi Rho Fellowship.

During the evening meeting, which followed a banquet at the First Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Harrison McMains, pastor of the First Christian Church of Atlanta, Georgia, was the principal speaker. A former actor, the Rev. McMains held the young people spellbound by his address on the subject, "Youth Faces a Troubled World."

Those from Robersonville who attended in company with their counselor, Wallace Reid Bullock, were: Davis Jenkins, Joyce Whitfield, Michael Kilpatrick, Jimmie Lee Taylor, William H. Gray, Lee Harney, Hubert Everett, Mike Roberson, Cinda Bunting, Kay Weaver, Judy Highsmith.

Jennie White, Benjamin Wilson, Emma Nell Everett, Ethna Earl Anderson, Jimmie Taylor, Anita Everett, Kenneth Taylor, Becky Roberson, Janice Warren, Tilton Harney, Grace Coltrane, Elizabeth Ann Everett, Janice Whitfield, Anna Speight Whitfield, Jimmie Highsmith and David Grimes Jr.

The group was also accompanied by Mrs. Bullock, and in Raleigh they picked up Dalpa Rawls.

Fifty-five others from Williamson, Plymouth, Hasell, Everetts and Oak City also went to the convention.

Married Friday

Mrs. Joe Tucker Fornes is the former Betty Jean Dixon of Greenville. She was married on Friday, November 14, at the Free Will Baptist Parsonage in Black Jack with the Rev. Floyd Cherry officiating. The couple are now making their home in Black Jack.

Mrs. Fornes is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Dixon of Black Jack. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Fornes of Greenville.

Miss Ruth Haislip of Hasell is the state president of the Christian Youth Fellowship.

Ayden News

Mr. F. M. Kilpatrick attended the conservation congress in Raleigh last week.

Mrs. Bobby Creech and small son of La Grange spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Kilpatrick. Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Kilpatrick, Miss Virginia Belle Cooper, Mrs. Bobby Creech and Mrs. J. L. Cranke of Washington, D. C. attended the 25th wedding anniversary of Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Kilpatrick of Robersonville one day last week.

Mrs. E. B. Aycock Hostess To Thaliam Club

The Thaliam Book Club met on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. E. B. Aycock.

As soon as the members arrived, they were invited to find their places at luncheon tables, where they were served a two course meal before the meeting.

Mrs. Dan Wright gave the program for the afternoon, giving a study of the Third Commandment.

This commandment, which deals with profane living, was first explained by the speaker according to the ancient Hebrew interpretation.

The Commandment, she said, forbids two sins—that of profanity and that of lying. She gave many timely illustrations to illustrate how these injunctions are violated in all areas of daily living.

Mrs. Wright then discussed the Commandment from the point of modern application and quoted freely from sermons of outstanding clergymen, who approach it from a positive point, declaring that God's name should be taken, but not in vain, in all fields of living.

Wright elaborated on this view by suggesting that God could be taken into the homes through devotionals, family habits, attitudes and relationships between members; that through worship and service the Commandment could be obeyed effectively in positive ways of service and sacrificial giving.

Mrs. Wright, in conclusion, challenged the members by asking the question: Are you willing to pay the price in personal service and giving in order to carry the Name to yourself, to thy household, and to the whole world?

This is one of the series in the study of the Ten Commandments which the club is following this year in their programs.

Strength for the Day

NOTHING TO BOAST ABOUT
A Paris newspaper recently boasted of the fact that wine-drinking countries had more running feet of bar space to each inhabitant than any other country. It denounced "slogans against the divine bottle." France has almost twelve times as many bars as it has bakeries. It has one bar for every eleven citizens.

One does not have to be a temperance fanatic to realize that the future does not look good for any country which indulges itself in this fashion and boasts of its indulgence. There may not be as much staggering drunkenness in wine-drinking countries as there is in some other places, but an intake of this sort pulls down the efficiency of a nation and makes it lag behind in the international procession.

People very often do not realize how much indulgence of this kind costs. In this country it costs about nine billion dollars a year, which averages up to several hundred dollars for every drinking family. But this is the least of the cost. Increased automobile and industrial accidents, broken homes, crime, and the general degradation of home life constitute the greatest national expense.

The United States and Canada need to watch their step lest they slip into the careless and indulgent ways of continental Europe.

A Good Beginning; Now A Good Ending

Off to a good start is the annual campaign of the Green Community Chest.

Through yesterday afternoon no figures on the funds raised since Tuesday morning had been released by Community Chest officials, but admittedly they were pleased by early responses to the plea for funds for the seven agencies which make up the Chest.

This year the Community Chest budget is $14,000 — $2,000 more than last year — which means a little more digging into individual pocketbooks or more pocketbooks entering the campaign is necessary.

True the campaign is off to a good start and that helps a lot. What really counts in the final analysis, however, is how the campaign ends. The Reflector urges the Greenville citizens who have not already contributed to the Community Chest to get their contributions in as quickly as possible so the campaign can be culminated. The beginning has been good. We hope the end will be just as good.

Who Will Hold Sway, People—Pressure Groups?

Big money is going to be a big problem for the 1953 North Carolina General Assembly which convenes less than two months from now.

Those who have been observing the activities in North Carolina political circles and those who have been reading reports from around the state are aware the dollar mark may play a bigger role in 1953 than in any General Assembly in many years.

In general terms, the problem hinges on two principal factors: 1. The probability of huge requests for permanent improvements and many "extras" by state departments and other groups in the state on top of the $25 to $40 million dollar increase in operational costs caused by inflation.

2. The probability of the most avid fight for a popular vote on the liquor question the legislature has faced since 1935.

The first factor of course means more money to be spent. Just how much more the legislature will not be able to determine at the outset. Veteran Raleigh Correspondent Lynn Nisbet estimates $10 million of permanent buildings is a "must" but another $50 million for building will be requested. On top of that there is the question of a multi-million dollar bond issue for improving the primary highway system of the state. And still more problematical is the pending drive on the part of some groups for a state-wide bonus for veterans which would cost North Carolina some $200 million if the people approved the bonus.

The pending fight over the question of legalized liquor sales in North Carolina really puts the gimmick in the money matters before the General Assembly. If a referendum is called on the question, there is always a chance the state treasury would have $50 million annually cut off from its revenue, because that amount is the current state take-off on liquor sales. In addition there would be other millions short in county and local government coffers because the local government profits from liquor stores likewise would be gone.

Nisbet estimates if the General Assembly goes all the way in meeting demands for new expenditures including the veterans bonus, and does away with the revenue now derived from liquor sales, North Carolina will have to find almost a billion dollars of new revenue to make ends meet.

That would be a big order. For the next few months there will be a good may pressure groups working on members of the General Assembly for endorsement of their pet projects. Right or wrong, pressure brought by lobbies and individual groups swing a good many deals in Raleigh. And yet there are a vast majority of the people in the state who do not consider themselves a part of any lobby or pressure group for a particular piece of legislation.

During the next few months the citizens in the latter group must make their wishes heard individually by their representatives in the General Assembly if the legislators are to have a true picture of the kind of legislation the majority of the people of North Carolina really want in 1953.

Unless the individual citizens speak out, the organized pressure group may walk away with their arms loaded with bundles before the 1953 General Assembly adjourns.

National Whirligig

WASHINGTON—Although the Democrats have hardly scrambled to their feet after their November 4 downfall, the more irrepresible leaders here and throughout the country are already discussing a possible 1956 comeback and speculating on probable Presidential candidates. In view of the extent of the Eisenhower sweep, the minority cannot afford to delay and drift.

Governor Adlai E. Stevenson has been mentioned, as is usually the case with a defeated candidate, and particularly because of the excellent impression he made in the campaign. But he faces the handicap that he will lose his public platform and political spotlight when he returns from his present post in January. Even if he presides actively over the Party's destinies, refusing offers that might keep him in the public mind, it will be difficult for him to retain his present hold. Moreover, his friends doubt whether the Illinoisan, who strove to escape the 1952 honor, will want to undergo another campaign ordeal.

SCARCITY OF PRESIDENTIAL MATERIAL—The Democrats must begin to groom a 1956 entry almost immediately because of the devastating nature of their recent defeat. With the exception of Governor G. Mennen Williams of Michigan, who barely survived the GOP landslide, they have no executives at the capitals of the great states to promote for the Presidency.

The losers may win back several governorships two years hence, but it will be difficult for those victorious Democrats to build themselves to national stature in two short years.

There is a scarcity of Presidential material in the Senate, for almost all the outstanding members of that body fall from deep in Dixie. No House member and none of the outgoing Cabinet officials appear to merit consideration.

The Democrats, in short, are bereft of prospective Presidents.

SYMINGTON QUALIFICATIONS—Ironically, the most likely prospect seems to be a handsome, popular and able veteran of the "battle of Washington" who was opposed by Harry S. Truman in the 1952 political wars. He is Senator-elect W. Stuart Symington, who won a remarkable victory in Missouri in the face of the Eisenhower sweep. So far he is the only man the Democrats can find as even remotely available for 1956.

Symington has numerous potential qualifications. His family were southerners who lost their wealth in the Civil War. When his parents moved to Baltimore, as their fortunes improved, he attended Yale, made himself a millionaire by rebuilding railroad industries, and married the daughter of the late James W. Wadsworth of New York, former Senator, Representative and GOP stalwart.

POPULAR WITH LABOR—Symington came to Washington in the early days of World War II, and few men have held so many important posts in the defense establishment. He became a mobile trouble-shooter for both Ford and Truman. His likable, easy-going personality belies his ability, his versatility, and capacity for hard work.

When Congressional investigations revealed that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation had been degraded into a political pawn shop, with Truman cronies as major beneficiaries, the President drafted his fellow-Missourian to "clean house." Despite this trust in his subordinate, Truman opposed Symington in the primary, supporting a machine politician.

Crusty Senator Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee, an octogenarian not given to kindness or compliments, once described Symington to be "as fine a public official as I have ever known." Nor will it be any disadvantage to future preferment that, based on his record as a ubiquitous industrialist, he is extremely popular with organized labor.

Should he ring up a good record on Capitol Hill as a freshman, he will be one of the men to watch in 1956.

DIXIECRATS COOPERATION—Joseph M. Dodge's economy conference with Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia suggests that the South will not suffer severely because its principal politicians deserted their Party in the recent contest. The Eisenhower emissary's action will not endear him to President Truman, who once said that there "are too many B-y-r-d-s in the Senate."

It is true that numerous southerners will lose their committee chairmanships, with their prestige and perquisites. But these will be personal rather than regional losses.

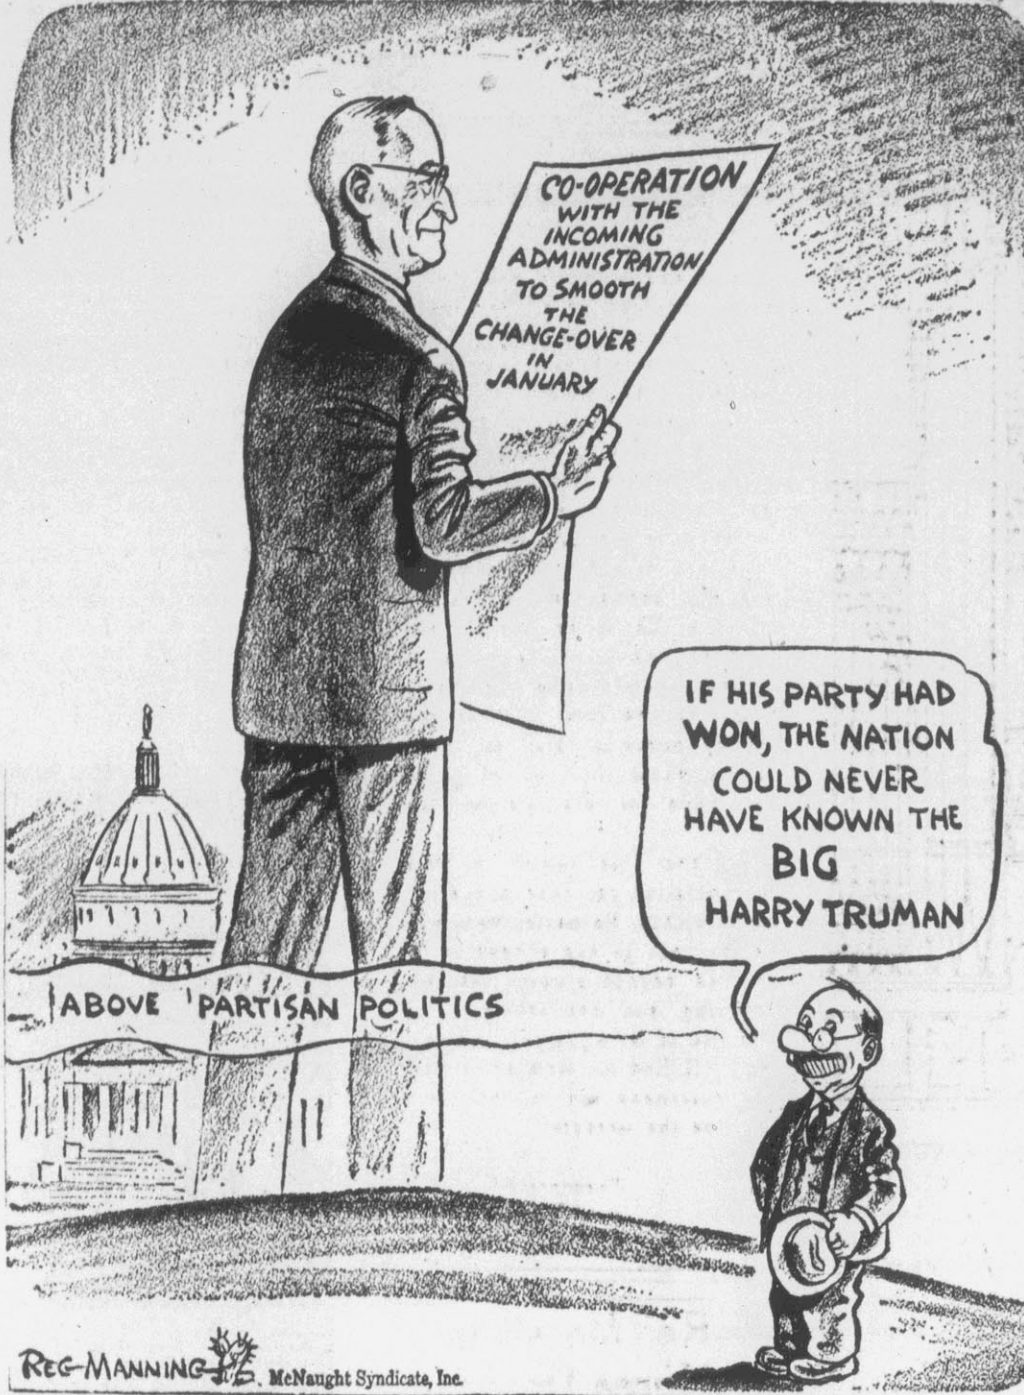

Moreover, the Dixie members are by far the ablest on the Democratic side, and Eisenhower will soon find that he will need their cooperation. He can achieve his legislative program, which they generally endorse, only with their support. The so-called "Truman-minded bloc" will oppose many of his proposals on domestic legislation.

COLD FACT—The Dodge-Byrd get-together may mean a break for the taxpayers. The Virginian has long insisted that the Federal budget can be cut by $10 billion. He has made specific recommendations to that effect, but they have drawn only contemptuous comment from the White House.

The cold fact is that no section of the country, in our system of a closely integrated economy, can be penalized for reasons of political revenge. Truman, for instance, hates, in order, Governor Byrnes of South Carolina, Senator Taft of Ohio and Senator Bricker of the same state.

But two of the most elaborate atomic and hydrogen-bomb plants have been located in the enemies' areas, with a resultant increase in employment, purchasing power and business activity.

Measuring Up

Somebody Told Me

By L. J. (Jack) EDWARDS, JR.

One of the most popular programs on our local radio station, WGTC, is Mac's Music Rack, which comes on every weekday morning from 8:15 to 9:30, save a ten-minute break at 8:55. The program is popular because the announcer Carl MacKinney, says whatever happens to pop into his mind, instead of following the copy. Listeners enjoy his relaxed approach.

Oddly enough, the commercials are one of the most popular features of Mac's program. Most of them are ad-libbed, which gives them the personal touch that the listeners like. Naturally no one can say what he thinks without occasionally upsetting someone. Back when haircuts went up to 75 cents Mac lit into the barbers one morning and consequently temporarily became their target. Since that time amends have been made and now Mac has one of the shops as a client.

During the presidential campaign Mac made by-partisan comments about the two candidates. A listener decided that Mac was an Ike supporter, which in his opinion was inexcusable. So the listener called Mac to tell him that he should be a Stevenson supporter. In so many words, Mac explained to the listener that the radio could be turned to another station. And if it would get only Greenville, it could be cut off.

One morning Mac said, "This is without a doubt the loudest program on the air." Evidently his listeners disagree. But complete honesty is Mac's intention, and he was in a mood that left him dissatisfied with his program.

Mac's program comes from the studio on the Falkland highway, but some of the recordings are played from the transmitter in the corn field a few miles away. Mac and Hank Tribble let the listeners "in" on their switches back and forth on one mike to the other. "Hank" Mac will say, "after this next number play cut 7, side two."

One reason for Mac's following is the element of surprise involved in his broadcasts. You can never tell what he might say, and all of us thrive on the unexpected, especially when it comes from someone who isn't afraid to criticize something that should be criticized. And I thank you.

Around Capitol Square

BY LYNN NISBET
WATER—Cumulative testimony is that water is not only the most vital physical element, but is perhaps the most important factor in civilization. Earliest recorded history deals with water as the center of community life, as an avenue of travel and as a source of food. The wells dug by Abraham and Isaac determined the course of the Bible story. The Nile, the Euphrates, the Ganges and other ancient rivers have had large influence upon the history and literature of the Orient, just as the Rubicon and the Rhine, the Mississippi and the St. Lawrence have had controlling effect upon development of modern Western civilization.

Settlements in America began on the coastal waters and followed the rivers inland. More wars have been caused, between nations and among individuals over water than any other item. DOMINANT—Water is still the dominant problem, in North Carolina as in the rest of the world. Almost half of the entire program of the three-day Conservation Congress held in Raleigh this week was devoted to water-water for generating power, for carrying commerce, for municipal needs, for commercial and sports fishing, for recreational boating and swimming, for growing crops and forests and pastures, and in negative way the control of erosion. In his keynote address at opening of the Conservation Congress, George Ross quoted from speeches by emphasizing the importance of conserving water resources, and Governor Scott's contribution to the program was a paper-read in his absence due to the Southern Governors' Conference-devoted to the vital necessity for utilizing the State's water to best advantage. More than half the exhibits around the capital building during the congress had direct relationship to water. The senate chamber was taken over one day for display of charts and graphs and relief maps depicting the efforts of the U.S. Forestry Service to control surface waters, and another day by comparable charts and graphs showing the importance of commercial and sport fishing.

VALEDICTORY—The Conservation Congress was in many ways a complete success, because there were many fine discussions of problems confronting North Carolina with respect to development and utilization of its resources, physical, human and economic. Actually, there was much fuller presentation of these problems than proposals for their solution. Such remedies as were proposed lacked force and authority for that they were made at the end rather than the beginning of a governmental administration. It has been pointed out before that nearly all participants in the program are connected directly or indirectly with State or Federal payrolls. It was noticeable that while the avowed objective of the congress was to map a course for the future, there was nobody known to be connected with the incoming regimes on the program. Presumably many of the State and Federal officials will continue in their present jobs, and will carry on basic policies already in effect. Emphasis was largely upon the inadequacy and ineffectiveness of these policies, and there was no speaker with recognized authority to commit the incoming State or National administrations either to continuance or change.

TIMING—For that reason a good many people, including some of those having responsibility for arranging the program, felt that the congress was badly timed from the viewpoint of constructive accomplishment. Politics and human nature being what they are it is only natural that recommendations made at the end of an administration cannot have the same effective influence as if they were made at the beginning, even though the suggestions might be identical. In other words, if the Federal officials had been speaking for President Eisenhower instead of President Truman, and if the State officials had been speaking for Governor Umstead instead of Governor Scott, their speeches would have had much more weight. Changing administrations, however, do not change facts and the new folks can profit greatly by studying the suggestions based on experience of the retiring officials.

DISCORDANT—Carolina alumni generally were very happy when their favorite football team won over South Carolina last week, and many of them are genuinely hopeful for victory over Duke this week end. Not so one devoted alumni who, for very obvious reasons, said he would cut somebody's throat if his name were used. "They won't even let us keep the honor of being the worst team in the country," complained this disgruntled Tarheel rooter. "We had a good chance to run up a record for no win and stem darned South Carolinians busted up that chance."

COMPENSATION—No body worked any harder during the recent election campaign than Mrs. Elizabeth Johnston, office manager for State Democratic headquarters, and nobody was any more disappointed when Adlai Stevenson failed to win the Presidency. Subsequent events, however, have relegated politics and presidents to their appropriate backseat position. A few days after November 4 Mrs. Johnston and her husband, W.P. (Bill), took off for a brief vacation in Florida. Now whenever somebody mentions the election Mrs. Johnston digs into her voluminous

What Other Papers Are Thinking

TAX FRAUD CASES
(Wilson Times)

For years, ever since the repeal of prohibition, we've known that racketeers made enormous sums without seeming to work. For years we've watched them throw that money away in a reckless fashion at the resorts in Atlantic City and Miami. To check on what they spent would not have been hard even if, so check on what they earned, would have been. Why, then, didn't the government work backward, taking for granted that what a man spent must have been earned in some way? But that government paid little or no attention to it. In the Kefauver investigation much of that was brought out in public. And, as a consequence, some of the more notable gamblers were put behind bars. But has the government, as a result, increased its collections from that source? We, for one, are inclined to question the outcome. And in that, it would appear, we're right. For the state of North Carolina has some 150 cases pending 53 of which involve racketeers or public officials to whom those racketeers paid money.

Does that indicate that we're going after those racketeers in earnest? It would seem so in the those areas where those racketeers are not tied in too closely with politics. But what about cities like Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, both of which today are Democratically-controlled? Are we to pluck off only the small fry in North Carolina, totally ignoring the big fry in our large metropolitan areas? In Chicago, politics and racketeering are still closely linked. Did Governor Stevenson, as Governor, do anything about it? We know what's going on. Indeed, we're of the opinion that the government knows what's going on. But is that government making any effort to collect its rightful share of taxes?

Business Today

By ELMER ROESSNER
Problems of defense against crooks will become a little more complicated for retailers this holiday season. The high levels of employment and income will tend to reduce the number of amateurs. On the other hand, expected record-breaking store traffic may increase the boldness of professional sour-check writers, passers of counterfeit and shoplifters.

Many merchants are already taking steps to minimize losses. Here are some of the things being done now:

1. Conferring with local bankers and police on methods to outwit the cheats and getting information of new counterfeiters and new wrinkles in check passing and pilfering. Some fairly deceptive counterfeit government push-card checks have appeared in some areas.
2. Conducting classes to teach cashiers and others handling money how to spot counterfeiters and how to guard against sour checks.
3. Posting warnings issued by Federal Reserve and other banks in locker rooms and elsewhere where employees will see them.
4. Increasing store detective forces.
5. Instructing sales personnel in ways to spot shoplifters—and what to do when suspicions are aroused.

Dealing with petty crooks is a ticklish problem for almost every retailer. False accusations of shoplifting—even accusing a guilty person without proof—can be embarrassing and costly. Too many restrictions on cashing checks can offend honest patrons. Even overt scrutiny of currency can annoy the honest shopper. On the other hand, failure to take reasonable steps can heavily dent already narrow profit margins. The whole matter calls for considerable alertness and boundless tact.

CHANGING SUBJECT

FROM TACT TO TAXES..... Individual Federal income taxpayers will get their forms in a new shape next year. They will be packaged with 12-page instruction pamphlets and are folded at the side instead of at the top. This makes it awkward for carbon copies, but the Bureau of Internal Revenue will permit the forms to be torn apart at the side fold and stapled together later.

The rates will be the highest in American history.

TRAVELING SHOW
OF U.S. PATENTS..... The Department of Commerce is doing a bit of merchandising. It has put a patent show on the road. The show consists of exhibits of 3,000 patents developed by government scientists and which are available for free, nonexclusive license. Patents cover industrial processes and devices, food processes, new fabrics, lubricants and advances in chemistry. Many are by-products of military work.

The "break-in" showing opened in Chicago and it will appear in other cities later.

FORMULA REPELS.....

INSECTS FROM CLOTHES
One of the newest government inventions is a new insect repellent which is still under test in Korea. The repellent, known as Formula M-1950, is odorless and colorless. When it is added to the water in which clothes are washed, the garments repel mites, fleas, ticks, mosquitoes and leeches. While the formula has not yet been turned loose for commercial exploitation, it may soon be available for impregnating sports and hunting wear.

The Army is also developing another formula which repels insects from the skin.

NEW PRODUCTS

CARPET: A foam-rubber-backed auto carpeting, said to resist water and dirt and minimize vibration and sound, is being introduced by Collins Alkman Corp., 200 Madison Ave., New York. A thick rubber crease is added to the fabric to stiffify into a foam rubber pad that is an integral part of the carpet. FILM: Polyester film for industry, said to be two to eight times stronger than other commercial films, has excellent insulating qualities and retain flexibility at very low temperatures, has been developed (by Du Pont, Wilmington, Del.). Made in clear, crystal-clear sheets and hazy, translucent forms, it is said also to repel physical and electrical properties under varied heat and humidity changes and to resist chemicals.

Hal Boyle's Column

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP)—Eighty-nine years ago yesterday, as soon as the Baltimore Glee Club had finished, the tall, homely man pulled a paper from his pocket and began to read a speech in his high, unmusical voice.

The crowd at Gettysburg, Pa., probably didn't pay too much attention. "Fourscore and seven years ago," Abraham Lincoln began, "our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal."

After all, there had been plenty of speechmaking already. Especially from Edward Everett, who had been a U.S. senator, a governor of Massachusetts, a Cabinet member, a minister to Great Britain and president of Harvard.

As the nation's top orator, Everett, in his hour and 57-minute speech, touched all the bases, including a description of how the early Greeks cared for those who were killed in battle.

Lincoln stuck to his own nation, and its awful problems. "Now we are engaged in a great civil war testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure," he said.

"We are met on a great battlefield of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field, as a final resting place for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this," Lincoln said.

"But, in a larger sense, we cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow, this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it far above our poor power to add or detract."

Oddly, Lincoln almost didn't make the speech, and for a good reason. No one asked him to. He had been invited to the ceremonies earlier. After he had accepted, the sponsors decided it would be better to have the President say a few appropriate remarks."

To us now, the reaction to the speech seems curious. The Harrisburg, Pa., Patriot and Union said: "We pass over the silly remarks of the President; for the credit of the nation we are willing that the veil of oblivion shall be dropped over them and that they shall no more be repeated or thought of."

And from the Chicago Times came this: "The chief of every American must think with shame as he reads the silly, flat, and dish-watery utterances."

Lincoln himself didn't seem to think he had a bell-ringer. "The world will little note nor long remember what we say here," Lincoln said, "but it can never forget what they did here."

devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion—that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

The tall man sat down. He had been expected to make some perfunctory remarks and probably he got only perfunctory applause.

It didn't matter. The Chicago Tribune man summed it up in a sentence.

"The dedicatory remarks of President Lincoln," he said, "will live among the annals of man."

To be remembered, and pondered, whenever the nation was in trouble.

Washington Letter

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON—A physical as well as a political change is taking place in your capital. It has nothing to do with either Republicans or Democrats.

Capitol Hill—the neighborhood around the domed capital building which houses the Congress of the United States—is now beginning to challenge the older, historic Georgetown as a fashionable place to live.

Georgetown lies well to the west of the White House, its lowlands and hills overlooking the Potomac River, and is sometimes referred to as "Foggy Bottom." It was founded as a city about 1665, long before anyone even thought of Washington, D. C., but after it became a part of the capital city, ceded by the state of Maryland, it was for years regarded as the swank place to have a home.

Georgetown became fashionable again in early New Deal days. Now nearly every ram-shackle old structure in it has been re-modeled into a high-priced home or apartment. New-coming fashionable Washingtonians are forced to turn elsewhere. They are turning to "The Hill."

Capitol Hill lies in the opposite direction from the White House, to the East. In addition to the big capitol building and the House and Senate office buildings, it embraces the stately Supreme Court building, the delicate Folger Library and the somewhat ram-shackle delight of students everywhere, the Congressional Library.

Around these imposing edifices are innumerable ancient buildings. When Washington was laid out and built afresh after the British ransacked the place in the War of 1812, Capitol Hill was designed to be the residential district. But people then considered the prices asked for lots and houses in this section exorbitant. So they turned to Georgetown or other sections. Washington has many suburbs—Chevy Chase and Bethesda in Maryland, Arlington and Alexandria across the river in Virginia, and the newest Spring Valley, at the western end of Massachusetts Avenue, better known as "Embassy Row"—where Vice President-elect Richard Nixon has his $40,000 home—but Georgetown still ranks as swankest of the swank.

Now the buildings on Capitol Hill are being remodeled, as is also older buildings in "The Hill" at last is coming into its own.

Bible Words to Live by

ISAIAH 30:15—"In quietness and in confidence shall be thy strength."

In a day of strife and tumult, doubt and fear, we all need some sure source of strength for the duties of every day and confidence for the future. This I find in my favorite verse, though like most Christians, I have many other favorite verses and love the whole of God's Word.

Happy is the man whose trust is in the God and Father of us all, and who knows that through his faith in Christ as Saviour and Lord he has found the secret of joy and usefulness in life. Where else can we look for true and lasting peace of mind and heart and to whom else can we go for assurance for this life and the next.

Whatever the tumult without, the Christian can have peace and poise within. No matter what may be the test he has access to resources beyond himself that are unfailing and everlasting. Try this life of faith yourself and you, too, will find the promise is true, "In quietness and in confidence shall be thy strength."

Once Bustling City Is Casualty Of War

By VICTOR KENDRICK

United Press Staff Correspondent
KUMHWA, North Korea (UP)—Kumhwa once was a thriving bustling city of 200,000 persons — about the size of South Bend, Ind., or El Paso, Tex.

Today it is a dead city. It is a casualty of war. It has no value at all except to Allied military commanders.

Wandering through deserted streets overgrown by weeds, the observer sees huge piles of rubble scattered over several acres. About half a dozen jagged sections of brick wall still stand upright. Not even the shell of a building remains.

Pylons whose high-tension lines once brought power and light to Kumhwa lie broken at crazy angles, their insulators sprouting weeds in the fields below.

Kumhwa met its death for the same reasons it flourished at the junction of two roads and a railroad, K a vitally strategic position eyes of U. N. and Communist commanders.

By capturing Kumhwa, the Communists could cut the Allied supply route to the central and flank U.N. troops over a wide area.

Kumhwa is the southeast apex of the old Iron Triangle. The other two points of the Triangle were Chorwon and Pyongyang. Last year the Communists massed a formidable concentration of troops and supplies within this Triangle. But Allied firepower cracked the Triangle and the U.N. took Kumhwa.

North of Kumhwa lie the key heights of Triangle Hill and Sniper Ridge, won by Americans and South Koreans five weeks ago.

Japan Supplies Textile Machines

MANILA (AP)—Japan has dislodged the United States as the leading supplier of textile machinery and spare parts to the Philippines.

Bureau of trade statistics also showed that during the first half of 1952 Japan ran a close second to the United States as buyer of Philippine mahogany, sugar, scrap metals, sea shells and hemp.

Lassie Is Home After Solo Trip Cross Country

ETHRAGE, N. Y. (AP)—Lassie the collie dog, is home today after a cross-country jaunt to California. She was brought east by airplane and how she travelled west is anyone's guess.

The 5-year-old dog wandered away from home in late August. Around mid-October, the Michael Duff family got a letter from the Los Angeles Animal Shelter. Lassie had been identified by License and name tag.

The Duffs acquired Lassie when they lived in Bakersfield, Calif., two years ago. They telephoned a former neighbor to care for the dog until return arrangements could be made.

Yesterday Lassie arrived aboard a cargo plane and was delighted to see the Duffs - and the feeling was mutual.

"We're all glad she's back," said Mrs. Michael Duff, "and we hope that now she will stay home."

Four-Star General Acts As Private's Messenger

WITH 1ST MARINE DIVISION, Korea (UP)—One of the highest ranking military groups ever to tour Korea came to an abrupt halt today while a four-star general delivered a package of cookies to a Marine private.

Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, U. S. Air Force chief of staff was given the cookies by the Marine's mother while he was in Spain three weeks ago on the European end of his round the world tour of inspection.

Gen. James A. Van Fleet, 8th Army commander; O. P. Weyland, Far East Air Forces boss; Glenn O. Barcus, Fifth Air Force Chief, and several other officers with stars on their shoulders waited at a forward air strip while Vandenberg presented the package of cookies.

"I was kind of shaken when I heard he was going to deliver it personally," said Pfc. Nicholas G. Baldwin, Minneapolis, Minn.

The 24-year old Marine said his mother had told him in a letter that she had met Vandenberg and given him a package for her son in Korea.

"I heard last night he was going to bring it himself," Baldwin said. "I didn't get much sleep."

Baldwin said his father is an engineer with the Fiat Automobile Company in Florence, Italy. He did not know his parents had been in Spain.

The young Marine was driven to the air strip from his Marine reconnaissance company, where he is a cook.

"I brought a package for you," Vandenberg said when the Marine pulled to sharp attention and saluted.

"I think there's some food in it for you," the general added.

"Yes sir," the Marine said. "I hope your buddies haven't heard about it," the general said.

"They already have, sir," Baldwin replied.

"Then I hope they don't eat it all up," smiled the general.

"Yes sir," the Marine said. As Vandenberg turned over the paper-wrapped package, he said: "Mission completed."

"Yes sir," the Marine said. After Vandenberg rejoined his official party the Marine said, "I'll be hearing about this for a couple of weeks."

Baldwin said he was drafted into the Marine Corps a year ago August and arrived in Korea in April. He graduated from Wesleyan College in the spring of 1951.

Costlier Crop

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina cotton growers are having to pay more than ever before to get their 1952 crop harvested.

This was reported yesterday by the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service. As of Nov. 1, an average of $3.50 per 100 pounds of cotton was being paid for harvesting, compared with $3.25 in 1951.

North Carolina ranks third in the pay scale among cotton-producing states. Missouri's average of $3.35 is tops, with California second at $3.60.

Jumped Ship To Live In America

BIRMINGHAM (UP)—Bernard Henaghar, English merchant seaman who jumped ship in New Orleans because he dreamed of living in the United States, spent the night in city jail after he turned himself in to authorities here.

Henaghar, 19, from Northumberland, England, told detectives that he left his ship, the Sedgewood, last Thursday. He said he had toyed with the idea of staying in this country since his first visit, but had never had the nerve to take the gamble.

The gamble failed to pay off for Henaghar spent the last of his $30 for breakfast in Huntsville, Ala., yesterday. He said he decided he may as well turn himself in because his money gave out and prospective employers always ask him for a Social Security card.

The young English sailor then hitchhiked to Birmingham where he approached detectives with his story. He told them he went through Hattiesburg and Meridian, Miss., and Birmingham during the week's time.

Henaghar, at sea for the past two years, said he faces ejection from the "seaman's pool" for jumping ship.

"The only regret I have," the youth said, "is that it's impossible to sail unless one is in the pool and the boys over 17 who aren't in the merchant fleet end up in the Army."

Pupils Finance Teacher's Trip

BRUNSWICK, Ga. (AP)—A retired high school English teacher will visit the English homeland of her literary heroes because of the generosity of her pupils of a half century of teaching.

Miss Jane Macon, 70, received cash gifts totaling $2,400 from her former students following her compulsory retirement last June from Glynn Academy here. The purse resulted from letters sent to about 2,000 former students of "Lady Jane," as she was affectionately known. Replies came in from all sections of the globe.

Nature Rules On Experiment Farm

WOOSTER, O. (AP)—Nature still has the upper hand at Ohio's Agricultural Experiment Station here, agricultural scientists found out the other day.

They held a meeting to show the editors of city newspapers what they had been doing. But during the meeting a group of fruit experts had to leave. They said there were a lot of apples on the trees at the station and they had to be picked before they froze.

Chose Kalamazoo For Marriage

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (UP)—Airman 3-C John Tovani, stationed at Fort Leavenworth, Topeka, Kan., and Jacqueline Branson Topeka, were married here Wednesday because the bride "always had been fascinated by the name Kalamazoo."

When the couple said they did not know where they should honeymoon a guest at the reception suggested Oshkosh as a possibility.

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS—This 75-foot Christmas letter was written by 80 Louisville relatives and friends of Airman third class Rodney Scheels. It is being prepared for mailing to Scheels in Korea. Here, some of the authors, who took a month to write the letter, stretch it out to full length. (AP Wirephoto)

Pitt Cotton Crop In Line With Last Year's Yield

Pitt County's 1952 cotton crop is right in line with last year's local farmers have experienced in many years.

"Although dry weather during the past summer caused heavy damage to many growing crops in the county, it did not appreciably reduce cotton yields," County Farm Agent Sam Winchester said this morning.

"Tobacco and corn were affected by the long period of drought, but cotton is different and is better suited to dry weather than either of the other two crops."

Winchester said if anything, dry weather helped growers control boll weevil better. "We have approximately five percent less cotton acreage this year than last," he added, "but on a per acre basis the yield will be just as high."

The farm agent bore out figures recently released by the N.C. Department of Commerce which showed that prior to November 1, 1952, 7,535 bales of cotton were ginned in Pitt County from the 1952 crop.

That figure compares favorably in fact it exceeds—ginning figures through the same period in 1951, when only 6,491 bales of cotton were ginned in the county.

All ginning should be completed locally by the last of December, the farm agent asserted, and we expect total ginning figures to run well above 10,000 bales.

Robinson Union PTA Holds Second Meeting At School Tuesday Night

WINTERVILLE—Between 100 and 125 persons representing parents from various parts of the Winterville district, met at the Robinson Union School Tuesday night for their second P.T.A. meeting.

The opening with devotionals was led by the president, David L. Henderson. Mrs. Mary Hammonds and Mr. Ruben Payton, delegates to the district P.T.A. at Grimesland, made reports. Mrs. Hammonds and Mrs. Beatrice Richardson will represent the local P.T.A. in Raleigh on November 28-29 at the State Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Frustrated, And Fined By Court

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UP)—Raymond Bishop, 22, a frustrated Romeo, was fined $35 Wednesday for losing pebbles against his former girl friend's window.

Bishop said his lady-love, Janet Telford, 19, was trying to break off their romance and he "wanted to talk to her."

IN ONE EASY LESSON CORVALLIS, Ore. (UP)—A film called "How to Dig," distributed by the Oregon State College movie library, was returned Wednesday from Fossil, Ore., a geologists' paradise. It was promptly sent to San Quentin.

Among the least abundant elements in sea water are gold and radium.

N. C. Community Struck By Brief, Violent Tornado

OXFORD, N.C. (AP)—A violent, short-lived tornado struck the Oak Hill School community near here last night, destroying six buildings and causing $400,000 damage.

The 15-room consolidated Oak Hill School was wrecked by the violent wind. Oak Hill is in Granville County, about 15 miles north of Oxford.

Striking a few minutes before midnight, the tornado cut a swath of destruction about 600 yards long and 400 yards wide.

Roy Beard, Granville County highway maintenance supervisor, reported the tornado dipped onto the school, hit that immediate area and then apparently bounced. He said he had found no other damage in surrounding areas.

Only one minor injury was reported, although several teachers, sleeping in a teacher's near the school, said debris littered their beds.

Miss Nannie Lou Adcock, a first grade teacher, suffered a cut ankle.

The buildings damaged were the school, a combination elementary and high school with 400 students, a three-room home economics cottage and cafeteria, a gymnasium, a garage and the school janitor's frame home. All but the janitor's home were brick buildings.

Beard said the wind ripped pipes loose from the school's water tank. He reported the gymnasium was a total loss.

Principal S.R. Murray set the damage at $400,000.

The school was the second largest in Granville County.

A home to one side of the school was slightly damaged, reports said, and three cars nearby were damaged seriously. A television aerial was knocked down and a tobacco barn slightly damaged.

The tornado struck at 11:37 p.m. electric clocks went off and blew down power lines in the area. Firemen from near by Virgilia, Va., stood by for an hour and half after midnight, but no fire developed.

Father Is Long Way From Police

NEW YORK (UP)—Red-haired TV actress Rosemary Murphy, 25, paid a $60 fine Wednesday after admitting that she was responsible for two of four parking tickets police put on her automobile. She said the other two probably were her father's.

"Who is your father," the magistrate asked. "We'll have to get him in here."

"I'm afraid he won't be able to get here for a couple of years," she replied. "You see, he's the United States ambassador to Japan."

The detectives discovered Valentine had been married for five years to Olga Harcam, 28. Olga said she thought he worked nights. Adeline believed he worked days. Police sought him on a bigamy charge.

Sends Dollar To Assist Project

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UP)—An eight-year-old boy who can see part of Lake Michigan Harbor from his home was so thrilled at the prospect of viewing ocean-going vessels there that he sent Canada's Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent a Canadian dollar to get the St. Lawrence Seaway started.

David's father said the boy had heard of Canada's plans to build the seaway with or without U.S. aid and wanted construction to begin immediately.

The prime minister sent David a letter thanking him and explaining that Canada already had approved a method of financing this venture.

Ayden Police To Crack Down On Fire Chasers

AYDEN—Members of the Ayden Police Department are planning to crack down on those commonly known as "fire chasers."

The Ayden Chief, J. A. Jones, said recently that the fire department has been hindered on a number of occasions by persons following the fire truck and blocking the streets surrounding a fire.

"These fire-chasers are affecting the efficiency of the firemen," stated Jones.

In addition to violating laws concerning the following of fire trucks, Chief Jones said many persons break speed laws when they follow the fire trucks. The chief said the Ayden Police Department would enforce these laws.

Doves Provided Divorce Grounds

NEW YORK (UP)—Comedian Roy Benson was granted an annulment from his dove-dancer wife, Lola Wilson, Wednesday after he told a Supreme Court referee his wife's billing and cooing was strictly for the birds.

He said Lola uses 12 doves in her dance act, all male and all named after an ex-husband or ex-boyfriend. He said she spent their wedding night "billing and cooing with the birds."

"You have a point that dovetails with the court's," the referee said in granting the annulment.

Greenville Grid Fans Will Remember Season Of '52

Football in Greenville is over until next September, but fans and players will talk about some of the thrills in East Carolina and Greenville High games for years to come.

Bobby Perry's slashing long runs and Pat Sawyer's bullseye passing will be remembered as chief factors in a successful 1952 season. Guy Smith, who played mediocre ball until the last four games, turned in excellent performances in leading the Phantoms to victory over Elizabeth City and Roanoke Rapids.

Bobby Conway's glue-fingered pass receiving and outstanding defensive play have made him a top candidate for an All-Conference position. As a matter of fact, Conway is the best high school end this observer has ever seen.

tackle, filled in brilliantly for injured linemen and showed great promise. Jimmy Cheatham, Billy Arnold and Doug Morgan did standout work in backing up the line.

Coach Bill Kittrell and Assistant George Graybill and Frank Maennle did an excellent job of molding and preparing the Phantoms for their rugged schedule this season.

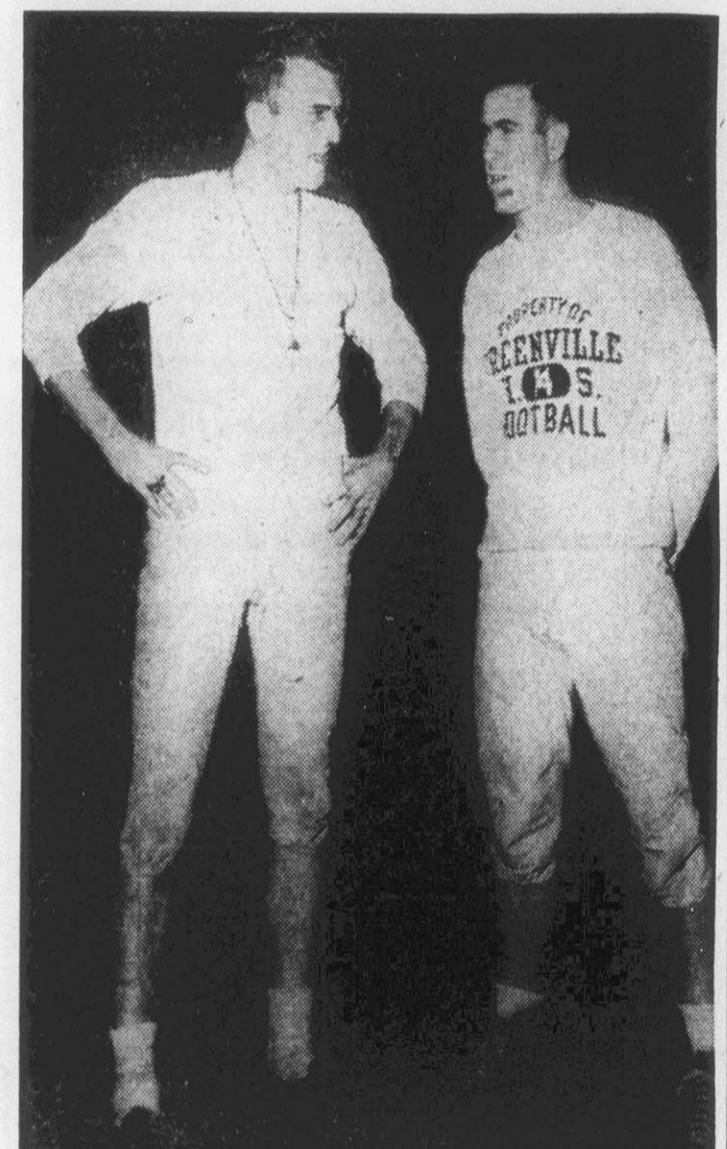

Maennle's scouting reports on teams slated to face the Phantoms helped the team immeasurably in setting up defenses and planning offenses at the opposing team's weak spots.

Graybill's work with the linemen paid off in the last two games when the Phantoms staved off the rushing attack of favored Elizabeth City and Roanoke Rapids.

Kittrell

Dixie Hobgood, Bobby Nunn, Boots Teel and Tommy Smith played major roles in the Phantoms' success story. Theirs is the type play that seldom draws raves in the next day's headlines. Their efforts are seldom spectacular but steady. The back that runs through the holes the linemen open up, appreciates them. Larry Powell, a towering freshman

UCLA-Southern Cal Game Of The Year

NEW YORK (UP)—If figures prove anything in Saturday's "Game of the Year" between Southern California and UCLA, the team on defense is going to be the one that's attacking.

With millions watching on television while the Pacific Coast Conference title and the Rose Bowl entry are being decided, defensive platoons and maneuvers will be in the spotlight to a seldom equalled degree, according to statistics released today by the NCAA Service Bureau.

Neither of the Los Angeles squads leads the country in the latest defense rankings. In total defense, Georgia Tech is on top, yielding 166.8 yards a game. Tech supplanted Maryland, last week's leader which was knocked to fifth and out of the unbeaten class by Mississippi. In rushing, Michigan State has been most rugged, allowed 87.3 yards a game through its line. In pass defense, Virginia's 50.6 yards and 29.9 per cent completions allowed are the best figures, and Colorado's 42.8-yards-a-kick punting record is No. 1.

But in all-around anti-offense activities, Saturday's television stars are real experts.

Oklahoma Players Vote To Turn Down Bowl Game Bid

Conference Restrictions Would Jeopardize Entire Sports Program

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—Oklahoma's brief flirtation with post-season football appeared to be a dead end today with bowl fever cooled by the team, university president and regents chairman.

The formal end to the strange episode was expected to come today the same way it started—at a meeting of the board of regents.

The official attitude was that a New Year's Day game, like the Orange Bowl which had an invitation ready, would be nice—but not at the price of disciplinary action by the Big Seven Conference for violating its ban on post-season athletics, or severing ties with the loop altogether.

The 24-hour bowl binge, touched off by a student demonstration Tuesday night, reached its climax yesterday when the decision was dumped into the players' laps.

The Sooners, No. 5 in the AP poll, voted to accept a bowl bid but only if the Big Seven relaxed its restrictions, which it refused to do a week ago.

Players balked at taking action which would jeopardize, or even end relations with the conference, and thus have far-reaching effect on every school sport.

And so Eddie Crowder, the slick split-T quarterback talking for the team, executed a neat verbal handoff to the regents, who tossed the ball in the first place by voting secretly to permit a bowl trip if Dr. George L. Cross and the team approved.

With the player decision, however, Dr. Cross—who set the Big Seven on its ear Tuesday night in putting a bowl bid up to the team—said he saw no need for further action.

Coach Bud Wilkinson hailed the vote as unselfish and loyal, and added, "I, too, wish we could have played in a bowl."

Bethel Beats Aurora In Two Cage Games

BETHEL—Bethel's girls pulled a red-hot rally in the closing minutes last night to defeat Aurora 43-40 and give the Bethel teams a double win over the Aurora cagers. The Bethel boys team won its game by a comfortable 67-60 margin in the other half of the twin bill.

The Bethel girls had trailed in their contest at the halftime but began a scoring surge shortly after the second half got underway. The big drive was capped in the last few seconds of the contest when Mary Jo Wynn dropped in a field goal and a free throw for the final margin of victory.

Mary Jo led the scoring for the game with a total of 25 points. Jenny Whitehurst got nine points for Bethel's runner-up honors. The Aurora scoring was divided between Bunnie Gilkin, with 16 points; and Joyce Broome and Ann McWilliams, both of whom had 12.

In the boys game, Robert Nelson and Michael House collaborated their scoring abilities to keep Bethel ahead throughout the contest. Nelson took high scoring honors with 22 points but House was not far behind with 19. House's total was matched by Joe Sadler, high scorer for the visitors. Ray Bonner took runner-up honors for Aurora with 15 points while Joe Howell scored 14.

The boxes:

Basketball: The King Of Winter Sports

BASKETBALL IS BACK. The referee tosses the ball in the air and another basketball season gets underway. Picture above shows Stokes and Hookerton boys getting set to start a game. Stokes Wins Two In Basketball

Stokes High scored a smashing double victory over Hookerton High in two high scoring contests. The girls triumphed 42-27 and the boys rolled up a 70-18 stampede.

Jack Warren and Warren Whitehurst were the big scoring guns for Stokes. Warren tallied 25 points and Whitehurst chipped in 11.

The Stokes cagers charged up and down the court scoring almost at will against the hapless visitors. So extensively did the Stokes cagers dominate the court that Hookerton failed to score a single point during the second quarter.

Jane Bullock led the Stokes girls scoring with 22 points. Helen Copeland and Judy Etheridge had seven points each for runner-up honors. The Stokes girls took an early lead in the ball game and were never threatened for the lead.

Linda Jones topped the attack for the Hookerton girls with 12 total points.

Pirate Cagers Go Through Workout

Basketball was solidly entrenched in the top spot in East Carolina College's athletic picture yesterday as they whipped through their second game-length scrimmage session. Their mates on the football team were still idle yesterday as football Coach Jack Boone continued to wait for some definite word on reported bowl bids for the Pirate gridgers.

The basketball crew, unhampered at present by any such thoughts, transferred their two-hour workout from the afternoon to a night session yesterday and left Coach Howard Porter pleased with their performance.

All of the candidates for the team got a chance to show their stuff in the scrimmage session last night but most of them had to take a back seat to Charlie Huffman. A junior from Thomasville, Huffman led the scoring for both teams and turned in a good game under the boards.

Stacked up behind Huffman in the "outstanding performers" department were a number of players with All-State and All-Conference forward Sonny Russell leading the way. Others included forward Jack Carr, J. C. Thomas, Cecil Heath and Bob Moye.

Coach Porter is expected to begin naming the twelve members of the traveling squad within the next few days but there has been little indication thus far as to just who will form the unit. The Pirates will play the first of 18 games when they travel to Greensboro on December 6 to meet Guilford.

Carolina

CHAPEL HILL, (UP)— Freshman sensation Flo Worrell looked today like a sure starter against Duke Saturday as halfback Chalmers Fort joined a long University of North Carolina injured list.

Port pulled a muscle in practice. Coach Carl Snavely dropped an iron curtain around the Tar Heels' practice field yesterday, and spectators were barred as the team worked on its secret weapons for the Duke tussle.

N. C. State

RALEIGH, (UP)— North Carolina State College worked long and hard yesterday on its defense in hopes of stopping powerful William and Mary runners on Saturday.

Coach Horace Hendrickson had a his junior varsity running William and Mary plans against his top defensive unit and appeared satisfied with the results.

With freshman quarterback Eddie Frantz calling the plays, the Wolfpack also went through a light offensive workout.

Whitey Ford Set For Yankee Staff

NEW YORK (UP)—The New York Yankees' hopes for a fifth straight American League pennant were boosted today as Ed (Whitey) Ford ended his career as a soldier and got set to return to pitching.

Ford, rookie star of the Yankees in 1950 and now only 24 years old, was discharged from the Army at Fort Monmouth, N. J., Wednesday after two years of service. He said he planned to go to Florida to begin training next spring a few days before the rest of the Yankees.

If Ford can regain the form he showed in 1950, his return would give the Yankees their long-sought "fourth starter" to go with Allie Reynolds, Vic Raschi, and Ed Lopat. He joined the Yankees in mid-season in 1950 and won nine straight games before suffering a defeat. He also beat the Phillies in the fourth and final game of the World Series.

The University of Florida grid team intercepted 13 of 87 opposing passes in their first four games. Defensive halfback Tommy Ives led the way with four interceptions.

Coaches Accused For Grid Ethics

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (UP)— Anonymity is the kiss of death in sports and the American Football Coaches Association seems determined today to whitewash itself with a "kill or cure" secrecy remedy which has few healing qualities.

The dull two-platoon system already has stolen much of the glamor from the collegiate gridiron. Frightened by the various purity drives, the coaches now are preparing a so-called "code of ethics" which will take away the last vestiges of color the college game has left.

The proposed code, to be presented to the annual meeting in January, looks suspiciously like a red herring because the big quarrel in football simmers down simply to how players are obtained and how much they are paid.

But the guilt complex has a strong grip on the coaches, apparently. The code provides: Criticisms of officials or players shall be unethical; the dressing rooms shall be barred 15 minutes after the game for a "cooling off" period; player injuries and eligibility problems should not be stressed, and coaches should not participate in picking game winners or participate in polls or rating systems.

There are other items, but those are the ones on which I would like to put the knock.

Why, for instance, shouldn't a coach openly rap a poor case of officiating or discuss a controversial decision about which the fans want to hear? That's like telling Leo Durocher or Casey Stengel not to argue with an umpire. I'm certain that any fan like an occasional rhubarb to relieve the tedium.

And why shouldn't player injuries or academic ineligibilities be disclosed and discussed? Maybe someday, after my demise, they'll stamp out drinking and smoking. But I'll give you any odds you want that nobody will ever eliminate gambling as long as two guys populate this parlay-happy planet.

That's not defending the ancient vice. It's facing facts. And as long as so many people want to make a wager, no matter how small, why shouldn't they have the same information which the gamblers are certain to come up with somehow?

As for closing the dressing room for "cooling off" periods, that's an old bugaboo of mine. All I can say is—keep 'em closed for good. After 15 minutes the "color" is as dead as Sanskrit.

Nor am I shilling for the United Press, which has a Board of Coaches which rank the nation's top teams during football season. My idea is that this promotes football interest. I can't see any harm in an anonymous ballot of this sort where no coach is put on the spot.

The proposed code also suggests that coaches adhere to the generally accepted recruiting patterns; refrain from using alumni or other groups to defeat athletic controls and desist from trying to beat the rules. That's fine-sounding double talk to drive home the point that they should do what they are supposed to do anyway.

Actually, all the fire and brimstone which has kept football on the pan has been coming from the colleges and their own groups such as the NCAA. If they'd dry up, stick to their rules and play football the fuss would be forgotten.

But the jittery coaches are going to keep the ball bouncing the wrong way with a lot of silly gestures on their own. A few more mats of the spade and the interment should be complete.

Two Skilled Women Are Weaving Velvet Of Royal Coronation Robe

BRAINTREE, Essex, England (UP)—Behind the closed doors of Warner's textile mills two women—the most skilled in all the British Commonwealth—were hard at work today at the task of weaving the royal purple velvet for Queen Elizabeth II's coronation robe.

It is a tedious, painstaking task that will keep the pair, Miss Lily Lee and Mrs. Hilda Calver, busy for the next three months. Although they are closeted alone in the room with their 100-year-old handlooms, there is no sound except the rattle of the foot treadles that part the warp and the soft hiss of the flying shuttles carrying the weft.

Each must turn out 20 yards of purple velvet—as uniform in color and texture as it is possible for human skills to produce. So fine is the weave and so exacting the requirements that each day's work produces a scant one and one-half feet of cloth. The two women must concentrate constantly on their task, for the delicate weave is so fine that the slightest variation in the pressure of the razor-sharp cutters that snip the silk threads and turn them into velvet pile would change the shade of the royal purple.

Both women have been weavers for 30 years, or more. But never, they said, have they been assigned a task like this. And beneath the mechanical rhythm of their work there is a fierce competition. For they know that although each is weaving 20 yards of the precious cloth, only one will be used for the coronation robe. The queen herself will select the finest, the possibly flawless length. The other will be held as a duplicate in case anything could happen to the first piece while it is being tailored.

'Operation Bootstrap' Speeded Up With Industrialization Bid

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (U.P.)—Operation Bootstrap has turned into Operation Hurry-up on this American island in the Caribbean. Industrial development is moving fast.

Officials of the government's economic development administration (EDA) are hard-pressed to keep up with requests for building new or providing other types of factory space to house companies that want to go into business in Puerto Rico.

Last June, official records showed 60 new companies went into production in a 12-month period. Now the tempo has stepped up to nearly twice that many.

Eleven factories were opened during July and August, 20 more are in process of construction—most of them to be ready early in 1953 — and perhaps another 60 companies are negotiating with the EDA to set up business in Puerto Rico.

Expectations exceeded A year ago, the EDA announced it would start a factory construction program, build several standard floor-space units as quickly as they could be raised, and worry about tenants later on. It was a $10,000,000-a-year construction "cart before the horse" program and already has proved inadequate.

Almost all of the nearly 50 buildings in the program already has been occupied or committed to a new industry. In addition to the "standard space" buildings, which were designed so that they would be useful to a variety of small operations involving an average of 100 employees per factory, many larger and specially-constructed factories are being completed.

The five-year industrial development program started with a modest 10 factories in 1947; in February of this year the 150th new industry was started and the most recent count showed a total of 190.

At the present rate of growth, officials expect to run at an annual rate of 150 new factories and reach their goal of around 700 industries by 1960.

More Jobs Created Approximately 20,000 direct new jobs in industry have resulted thus far. Perhaps another 20,000 jobs have been created as a result of the over-all economic program. More than $60,000,000 a year has been added to Puerto Rico's economy by industrial sources alone and the island has boomed its income to some $800,000,000 a year.

Encouraging as the industrial program appears at this time, the Economic Development Administration has had its headaches. Projects that appeared soundly launched have stumbled, some have fallen by the way. At least three have failed because of financial difficulties with losses to local investors.

The failures are more than balanced by the addition of newer and more substantial industrial ventures, however. U.S. Rubber International has completed negotiations to occupy a factory near San Juan to make canvas and rubber shoes.

Some so-called "heavy industries" are planning to operate here.

Puerto Rico's attractive tax exemption incentives have been a strong inducement for mainland industry to establish here. That factor is not solely responsible for expansion of the industrial economy. Although the bulk of production in factories here is designed for consumption in mainland U.S. markets, some of the newer companies have their eyes on the future growth of export business, principally to Latin American countries.

Fire-Blowing Is 'Near-Suicide'

CINCINNATI, O. (U.P.)—The new college craze of blowing a mouthful of cigaret lighter fluid at a lighted match has drawn sharp criticism from safety officials here.

The trick was described as "an example of how one might painfully commit suicide or at least carry a hideous, shriveled countenance to the grave," by Arthur M. O'Connell, president of the Cincinnati Fire Underwriters Association.

"One who tries this stunt, other than a professional fire eater, faces almost certain death or serious injury—if not the first, then the second, fourth or hundredth time," O'Connell said.

Chester returned home this week and was arrested on abandonment charges.

Although the birds bear no identification, the Hartmans can tell them individually. "You get to know their mannerisms and characteristics," Ruth says. "They're a lot like people."

Toy Railroading Has Gained Rising Favor

NEW YORK (UP)—If your son comes, don't send for the narcotic squad. It's an abbreviation of a more reputable word.

He will simply be indicating that he wants a refrigerator car for his toy railroad, according to Louis H. Hertz, an adult authority in the field on model railroading.

"There was a time," Hertz said, "when grown men pretended they were buying toy trains for their sons, when actually they wanted them for themselves. Now they walk right in and order openly. The kids are lucky if he is allowed in the cellar while his father is operating his elaborate layout, complete down to miniature stations with animated commuters that actually board the trains."

Advice Offered

For fathers who are buying their first electric train this Christmas for their sons or for themselves—Hertz had this advice:

"Get a good basic outfit. Since miniature railroading is a long-term hobby, plan carefully the kind of railroad you want, not just for Christmas, but for years to come. Start modestly with a single train set and invest the rest of your budget in extra track and switches.

Track has a habit of getting very scarce right after Christmas and the natural expansion of your home railroad will be curtailed if you have not stocked up on extra pieces of straight and curved.

"A permanent layout is generally preferable. If you are pressed for space, mount the track on a large section of plywood which you can stick in a closet or even under a bed when not in use. Most important of all, if you are a novice tinkerer, read the directions before you run the trains. Today's electric trains are rugged but their complicated mechanisms do require understanding and care."

Hobby Growing Fast

Hertz, author of the recently published "New Roads to Adventure in Model Railroading" and seven other books on the subject, declares that scale-model railroading has become the fastest growing hobby in the United States.

"The English once led the world in this field," he said, "but now

Find Policemen In Physically Poor Condition

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—A physical checkup of policemen here recently disclosed that 14 per cent were physically incapable of performing satisfactory police duty, Safety Director James E. Thornberry reports.

Of the 438 policemen examined, 184 were overweight, 116 had unsatisfactory blood pressure, 87 had below-par vision, 25 were wholly or partially color blind and 79 had defective hearing.

Thornberry blamed low police pensions for the high percentage of unqualified officers. Of the 62 men termed unsatisfactory, 46 had already reached the age of 51, which is in the retirement bracket.

RED DEATH—Millions of dead fish cover a four-hundred square mile area in the Gulf of Mexico, victims of the dread "Red Tide" which scourged the Gulf waters in 1947 and is again striking. Above is shown approximately a three-mile-long sea-turrow of fish off Fort Myers, Fla. The picture was taken by a St. Petersburg Independent staff photographer from a Coast Guard PBY which carried John F. Howell, a U. S. Fish and Wildlife biologist, who surveyed the area of discolored water. Howell said the same organism which caused the 1947 scourge is again present. He would not say how long the present condition would exist nor how much farther it would extend. Every type of fish has fallen victim to the "Red Death" from man-eating sharks, tarpon, to small shiners. (AP Wirephoto).

Participates In Investment Study

DURHAM, N.C. — Duke University student Samuel Northrop, Jr. of Greenville is now getting first-hand investment experience as one of six outstanding students named to the Board of Directors for a new investments training program at Duke.

The son of Mrs. and Mrs. Sam Northrop, Sr. of 503 W. 5th St. is helping invest half of a $20,000 fund given to Duke University and the University of North Carolina by Charles H. Babcock of Reynolds and Company, Winston-Salem, N.C.

Under terms of the grant, students in investment and finance courses will analyze securities and seek to build up a group of investments bringing the highest yields with the maximum possible safety.

Northrop and the other five members of the student Board of Directors at Duke have invested some $4000 to date and plan to invest the remaining $6000 within the next few weeks. The Board has sole authority to invest the fund, and its decisions cannot be vetoed by Duke faculty members or officials.

Half of the annual income from the investments will be given to the local Community Chest, and the other half will be added to the original $10,000 fund.

Society Offering 10 Scholarships

NEW YORK (AP)—To encourage more young men to take up engineering, the American Society of Tool Engineers is offering 10 scholarships of $700 each to engineering students in American and Canadian colleges.

The society, which has some 23,000 production experts among its members, is offering the 1953 scholarships to college students in their fourth or fifth year who are taking subjects in the general category of tool engineering, including such courses as metal processing, tool design, plant layout, inspection and advanced manufacturing processes.

For the last two years, the society has awarded five $300 scholarships. The 1953 awards represent an increase of more than 350 per cent in the program.

In 1951 there were 3,833,000 births in the United States.

Jail Trustees Dig Up Bullets

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—This seacoast city, far from any ore deposits, nonetheless has a thriving lead "mine."

The miners are jail trustees who periodically dig up bullets fired into dirt bunkers behind targets on the police pistol club range. They recover, between four and five tons of lead every four months.

The metal is melted down and molded into new slugs which are fed into an automatic reloader. The police department figures its "mine" saves $22 per hundred pounds of lead recovered.

Chapter 12

Palmenter was waiting for them, and as they entered he pulled himself up out of the chair and stood waiting to welcome them. Whatever bitterness he had felt the night before had been erased or hidden in the night, for he was again the suave and impeccably courteous host who had greeted them upon their arrival.

They settled themselves at the breakfast table, and as they ate Palmenter told Clay of the steps he had taken to bring Clay and his guerrilla troops together.

"All told," he explained, "we have about two hundred active men here who have been partially trained soldiers; roughly equivalent to a cavalry regiment. There are others, of course—servants and herdsmen and colored slaves—but they do not concern you, for they are not part of your group. The regiment, however, has been divided into two squadrons, and each squadron is divided into four troops of approximately twenty-five men each. Each troop is led by a captain, and you will find that these captains usually speak for all of their men. There are five troops of Americans and three of Mexicans. How many of them will want to go with you, I have no idea. That is a matter you must work out with them now."

"They are all here?"

"Most of them. Two troops were away, but I sent word to them last night. They should all be here within the hour. Mr. Farrar—" He hesitated as if he found it hard to speak. "Mr. Farrar, you may have found me discourteous and abrupt last night. Let me say now, before you meet these men, that I wish you every success with them."

Clay looked up in surprise, started at such a sweeping change in attitude from a man as sure of himself as Palmenter.

"Why, thank you, sir. I'm very pleased to hear you say that, although I must admit I'm a little surprised."

Palmenter lifted his shoulders in an unmistakable gesture of self-reproach.

"Why," he admitted, "I suppose it's because I wanted to lead them myself. Of course, it was obviously impossible—a restrained gesture indicated his twisted body—but I assembled them, trained them, equipped them, and subconsciously I must have believed some miracle would let me ride to the Gulf with them. That's why I found reasons to wait and prota O'Neill opened my eyes."

He turned to smile at her, with that strangely magnetic smile that was as warm as a fire and as strong as an iron cable.

The squadrons were gathering, and as the three inside the house, finished their meal there was a knock on the door and the white-haired majordomo, who had challenged them the day before, came into the room.

He swept off his hat and his eyes were bright with excitement as he addressed Palmenter.

"Los hombres estan aqui, señor," he announced. "They are ready for you now—whenever you are ready for them."

Palmenter looked from Clay to Toni, his lips drawn into a thin smile, his face suddenly tense and alert.

"So," he said. "The men are ready for you. Are you ready for them, Mr. Farrar?"

Clay smiled back at him, one friend smiling at another, each fully assured that the other would back him to the limit.

"I'm ready," he agreed. "I take it you'll want to explain the situation to them a little before I'm put on the auction block."

Palmenter nodded. "They know me," he apologized. "They'll expect some sort of explanation from me."

When they passed through the great door at the front and stood on the wide veranda, it seemed to Clay for an instant that all the hard-eyed adventurers on the face of the earth had been gathered together in this remote, sun-bitten courtyard. Standing in uneven ranks, they packed the stockade from one side to the other, the troops separated by irregular intervals, the captains a few paces in advance of their commands.

Palmenter pulled himself toward and his head turned slowly as he surveyed the horde before him.

"You are the fighting men of Las Esquinas! You have come here because there was something that had to be done, and because you were the men who had to do it. Some of you have been here a long time—perhaps too long—but now you will not have to wait any longer."

There was a rolling growl of approval from the courtyard and he waited until it had died away.

"Now—I have found a man to lead you! A fighting man! A man you can trust and a man you can follow! A man who is new to Texas, but a man with a record of courage and ability behind him!"

His voice dropped to a lower pitch, but a rich so clear and resonant that it could be heard in every corner of the vast stockade.

"You know, I know, that you need not follow any man unless he is a man of your own selection. I cannot tell you to follow this man, but I can tell you that, if I were able to do so, I would follow him! He is here now. Judge him for yourselves. Gentlemen—senoritas—Clay Bennett Farrar!"

As Clay stepped forward, he was suddenly and angrily aware that cold shivers of excitement were racing up and down his spine. In the first instant of facing them, the faces below him were a blur—a blur of men who could be only doubtful at best, and coldly and bitterly suspicious at the worst.

There was one almost directly before him, a massive, deep-bearded captain with hard gray eyes and a mouth as still and unyielding as a bar of steel. If he could convince this man, he could convince the rest.

Clay began to talk to him.

"None of you know me. I am a stranger here, and you have been asked to risk your lives with me, although you have never seen me before."

The captain's hard mouth was as unyielding as ever. And this man was a symbol of all the other men before him.

"I am not a soldier, but I have fought the Comanches, and white men, too, when it was necessary to do so. I am not a quartermaster general, but I have taken wagon trains across the plains and done it safely. I am not a Texan, but I am a Kentuckian by way of Missouri, and I know that many of you have followed much the same route to get here."

ON THE HOUSE

By DAVID G. BAREUTNER, AP Real Estate Editor

Few people realize the seriousness of the contract that is signed when you buy or sell a house. It is the most critical part of the deal.

Yet, so many houses are sold in a sort of over-the-counter manner today that many buyers scarcely read the legal document they tie themselves up with.

For instance, you see a sample house a builder has erected. You like it. You order one to be built like it. You put down a sizable deposit and sign a paper.

In most cases everything seems to turn out all right. But if trouble develops and you want to get out of the deal — want your money back, can you get it? That depends on many circumstances, sometimes on the builder and his whim among other things.

Why should he give you your money back? You ordered him to start construction on a house for you. He has gone to a lot of expense and deserves to be paid. He can compel you to fulfill your part of the contract you signed. In other words, complete the deal and take ownership.

And after you have owned that house and want to sell it, you may go through the same thing with another careless buyer.

Still many people sign contracts without any legal guidance. Some say "Oh, I'll get a lawyer for the closing"—the day when title is taken. By that time it is too late for any lawyer to save your rights which you may have signed away in a one-sided contract.

Others even have said: "The builder has a lawyer for the closing; why should I have another lawyer there. One is enough." That lawyer himself could tell them that no man can faithfully serve two masters.

Undoubtedly one reason there are so many lawyers is that people persist in getting themselves into so many legal jams.

In fact, real estate contracts are so serious and have so many ramifications that approximately 1,500 real estate lawyers got together recently in New York's Town Hall to hear a discussion of hazards that develop between the signing of a contract and taking of title.

The occasion was a semi-annual legal symposium sponsored by the Home Title Guaranty Co. of New York. If the discussion hadn't been so scholarly it might have been front page news for every home owner and potential home buyer in the country.

For example, what happens if a house burns down or is damaged by fire or other casualty after a contract to buy the property is signed? Is the buyer obliged to go ahead with the deal and take title to a property that is not in the same condition as when he contracted to buy it? Is the seller obliged to restore it, regardless of cost?

A famous case was cited at the Town Hall symposium — a case which had been fought out at considerable expense in courts. "Unfortunately," the legal expert recounted, "this property was apparently insured for its full value. However, in the past few years when building costs have been mounting steadily, we have seen many instances where property owners were under-insured. If such an owner should contract to sell and assume the risk of damage pending closing of title, a destruction of the premises would be disastrous.

And of course, fire is not the only hazard. Cases were cited where steam pipes, not covered by insurance, had burst. Other instances involved parts of water-front lots washing away before title closing.

A most interesting problem was brought up in connection with zoning restrictions being changed before title closing. Such changes can seriously affect the value of a property. A case was cited where a man owned an acre and a half. He contracted to sell an acre for his own house. The zoning law was changed to limit homesites in that neighborhood to one acre as a minimum. This would leave the title to the seller's own half-acre unmarketable. Is he compelled to fulfill his contract to sell?

Or suppose you sign a contract to buy and then have a survey made and discover that a wall of the house stands on a neighbor's land, or that the neighbor's wall stands on your land. This probably sounds like a small matter that you can overlook, as long as the neighbor overlooks it. But can you get a mortgage on such property?

Answers to all of these questions have been sought in the courts and depend on many different state laws. And they are only a few of the responsibilities involved in the signing of a contract. When 1,500 lawyers can become concerned with the consequences of contracts, it is no time for a home owner to think he can take the law into his own hands.

Cases Heard In City Police Court

By CHESTER WALSH

In Police Court yesterday, Judge Charles H. Whedbee ordered an infanter capias for Grover C. Barfield of Painesville, Ohio, when he failed to answer when his name was called on a charge of a traffic violation.

Police reported that Barfield was arrested last Saturday night for failure to keep proper lookout. He provided $100 bond through the Atlantic Bonding Company and forfeited it by failure to appear in court. Police said Barfield was involved in a collision with a car driven by Marvin Mills and one driven by William T. Boone of Greenville at Dickinson and Boyd avenues last Saturday night.

Ada Clark, Negro, assault with a deadly weapon (a knife) on Rachel Williams, Negro, was given 30 days in jail, suspended on condition that she pay $15 on court costs and $10 to Rachel Williams for damage with a knife to her coat and remain of good behavior for six months. Rachel Williams, Negro, pleaded guilty to assaulting Ada Clark with her hands, and the court taxed her $5.

Raymond T. Williams, driving without an operator's license, fined $25 and costs.

The case against T. G. Basnight, Jr., charging him with embezzlement, was dismissed. Judge Whedbee ruled that prosecution was not in the public interest.

If the case of Claude Lee Floyd, Negro, non-support, the court gave him 60 days on the roads, suspended on payment of $15 for support of his children before his release, and he was ordered to pay $15 a week for his support.

James Roscoe Lee, Negro, assault on a female, 60 days on the roads, sentence suspended on payment of $15. The court order also provides that he is not to go to the home of Maggie Rouse and not harm or threaten her.

The following three cases were not pressed: James A. Parrish, driving drunk; Martha B. Sherman, disorderly conduct, and Mrs. Noah Bolton, trespass. The case against Caesar Prayer, Negro, charging assault with a deadly weapon, was not pressed with leave.

Shakespeare To Be Featured

LONDON (AP)—Some 400,000 visitors are expected at the coronation year Shakespeare festival at Stratford-on-Avon. The company will be headed by such English favorites as Peggy Ashcroft, Michael Redgrave, Marilus Goring, Yvonne Mitchell and Harry Andrews.

The 33-week season opening March 7 will see the presentation of "The Merchant of Venice," "Richard III," "Antony and Cleopatra," "The Taming of the Shrew" and "King Lear."

During the last decade the number of U.S. families increased from approximately 32 million to 40 million.

Hospital Patient Load Compared

The average daily patient load at Pitt Memorial Hospital for the month of October was 67.

That information came out at the regular monthly meeting of the hospital's board of directors Tuesday night. Through October of this year, the average patient load was 72.

C.D. Ward, administrator of the hospital, said this morning those figures compared very favorably with annual operations at old Pitt General Hospital.

"During the last year of operations at Pitt General the average patient load was only 44," Ward stated. "The patient load this year thus far is nearly double that figure."

Directors also discussed the prospect of landscaping the hospital grounds, which project would embrace planting of trees and shrubbery about the premises. That is to be done this winter.

Ward directed a note of thanks to Greenville Tobacco Company and Person-Garrett Tobacco Company for making tobacco scraps available for use on the hospital grounds.

According to one Irish legend, the jack-o'-lantern derives from a man named Jack who was barred from Heaven because of misdeeds and from Hell for playing tricks on the devil and who was therefore condemned to roam the earth carrying a lantern until Judgment Day.

Stocks And Market Reports

NEW YORK (UP)—Stocks encountered mild profit-taking early today after extending yesterday's sharp advance. Trading was moderately active.

The mild retreat in prices was orderly, and it was generally expected because of the recent advance which carried the industrial average within a few cents of a new high. Dealings also slowed up considerably from the recent brisk pace. Sales in the first hour totaled only 360,000 shares, compared with 590,000 in the same period yesterday.

Losses throughout the list were limited to small fractions with a number of stocks holding at their previous close. Some specialties countered the trend with good gains.

Oil shares as a group met the most realizing. Standard Oil of New Jersey slipped a point to 74 3/4, and Continental Oil was off one same amount to 62 1/2. Amoco Petroleum was down 1 1/2 points to 186.

Steel equities registered small declines, automobiles held around their previous close and utilities receded slightly from their 21-year highs.

Russell Disclaims Wedding Rumor

ATLANTA, (UP)—Sen. Richard B. Russell had a negative answer today for Broadway columnist Ed Sullivan, who wrote: "Dick Russell to wed Georgia Belle."
"That's the first I've heard of it," said Russell, bachelor Georgia senator and an unsuccessful aspirant for the Democratic presidential nomination last July.

Rumors of a wedding, Russell added, are "as greatly exaggerated as the premature report of Mark Twain's death."

TWO MILLION MEMBERS
"Demolay now has well over 2,000,000 members between the ages of 14 and 21, and has 2,000 chapters throughout the United States, Canada and 11 foreign countries," the speaker declared.

According to Israel, the order was named for Jacques Demolay, a Frenchman who organized participation in the crusades and was burned alive at the stake at the pleasure of the French king because he refused to disclose the identity of his followers.

Among the cardinal precepts of the Order of Demolay are comradeship, reverence, love of parents, patriotism and cleanliness," the speaker stated. "Each of those precepts constitutes one obligatory day of recognition each year."

Emory Greer Jr., 20-year-old Demolay from Jacksonville, also spoke briefly on the order and what it has meant to him during his membership. He is a charter member of the Jacksonville chapter and has served as master counselor three terms.

Talk Establishing Of Demolay Unit In City

Initial plans were formulated last night which may lead to the establishment of a Greenville chapter of the Order of Demolay, a national youth organization sponsored by the Masonic Order.

Members of Greenville Masonic Lodge 284 entertained at the Masonic home approximately 50 young local boys of high school age and their fathers. They were invited to hear discussion of Demolay, its activities and intentions.

Guest speakers at the meeting were Lester W. Israel of Camp Lejeune, former Missouri Demolay, and Emory Greer Jr., senior Demolay and master counselor for three terms of the Jacksonville chapter of the order.

BUNDY PRESIDENT
Solicitor W. J. Bundy of Greenville, deputy in North Carolina of the Grand Council of Demolay, presided over the meeting and announced that an advisory board had been appointed to assist in the organization of a local Demolay chapter.

The board is composed of Elliott Johnson, chairman; Herman Hardee, vice-chairman; Joe Palmer, secretary; and Ed Austin and Dr. Warren Aldrich, advisors. Harold Alder is present master of the Greenville Masonic Lodge.

In his address to boys, their fathers and local Masons, Israel said he has been active in Demolay for 25 years, being a charter member of the Kansas City chapter.

Israel gave a short historical sketch of Demolay and explained the order has grown from a membership of 11 when it was established in St. Louis in 1919 to more than 2,000,000 boys in all parts of the world.

Truman Advises Against Stopping Social Progress

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Truman cautioned President-elect Eisenhower Wednesday night not to interpret his election as a "mandate" to stop the "social and economic progress" of the Democratic administration.

In his first post-election comment on the Republican presidential victory, Mr. Truman issued this warning to the incoming administration:

"The people of this country continue to expect their government to be concerned with their well-being. In the field of health, as in other important aspects of economic and social life, the people will look to the government to meet those great responsibilities which government alone can handle."

"Anyone who interprets the election as a mandate to stop the efforts we have been making for social and economic progress is blind to history."

Mr. Truman made the statement in a speech before the Association of Military Surgeons in which he defended his administration's public health programs.

The President said "not a single program" has been made in the health field during his administration through the "cooperative efforts" of government and professional groups, with the result that the nation now enjoys the highest standard of health in its history.

But, in a slip at the American Medical Association, he said the progress would have been greater if his health program had not suffered "serious setbacks" because of opposition by the medical profession.

"We are confronted at this time by a violent attack on the whole principle of government support and assistance in meeting our health problems," he said. "The attack is led by men who, in my opinion, are sadly mistaken in believing that our whole pattern of progress conceals some hidden danger to the livelihood and the independence of the medical practitioner."

Stores Censured For Merchandise

VIENNA, Austria. (UP)—Budapest department stores have forgotten their proper role in the Hungarian people's democracy, the Communist paper Esti reported today.

Several smart shops, it said, have begun selling top hats, canes, monocles and other items intended for "gentlemen."

Ask Communists To Deliver Gifts At Christmas

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—The United Nations asked the Communists today to undertake the deliveries of Christmas packages for Allied prisoners held by the Reds.

It was the third time the U.N. has asked the Reds to accept parcels for Allied prisoners. So far, the Reds have agreed only to exchange mail.

Today's request was made in a letter from Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison, chief U.N. truce delegate to North Korean Gen. Nam Il. The letter was given the Communists at a brief liaison officers' meeting.

"The approach of winter and the hardships imposed by cold weather make it particularly desirable to take all possible steps at this time to enable the captured personnel of both sides to receive relief parcels," Harrison said.

Twenty Pilgrims To Mecca Die

SINGAPORE (AP)—Twenty Malays of the 2,000-odd pilgrims from Malaysia died on the return voyage from Mecca aboard the pilgrim ship Tyndareus.

Seventeen of them were buried at sea between Jeddah, port of Mecca, and Penang, Malaya. One body was taken ashore at Penang and the remaining two at Singapore.

She says she does like the way Florida fish respond to her approaches. Incidentally, it might be noted that Mrs. Johnston did not "go fishing" until after the election.

Despite the unprecedented total vote there is evidence that some others, both Democrats and Republicans "went fishing" beforehand. Some of them now claim they caught fish, but not many of them can produce an embossed certificate to support their claims, Mrs. Johnston can, and it bears a post-election date.

Reputed Head Of Underworld Is Freed By Court

WASHINGTON (AP)—Tony Accardo, reputed chief of the crime syndicate founded by Al Capone was freed today of contempt of Congress charges.

So was Joseph Scalleat of Hazleton, Pa., described by the Senate Crime Investigating Committee as a racketeer.

Both Accardo and Scalleat had been indicted for refusing to answer questions of the Senate Crime Investigating Committee.

The charges were dropped on a motion by the prosecutor, Assistant U. S. Attorney William Hitz. He told District Judge James R. Kirkland he had given "very careful
